County votes 3-2 for fund

By ANDREA LAMB Staff Writer

The Deaf Smith County Commissioners pushed the accelerator for Hereford's economic development Friday, voting 3-2 to donate $48,000 to help fund the proposed Economic Development Council.

In the special meeting, Commissioners Austin Rose Jr. and Troy Don Moore and County Judge Tom Simons voted for funding despite dissenting remarks from Commissioners Johnny Latham and Bill Bradly who voted against the measure

"I'm 100 percent for any economic development plan," said Latham, "But I don't think we should raise taxes to fund it. This isn't just a oneshot deal (the current proposal calls for an economic development board to be established for five years). We are working on a tax abatement plan right now which will help bring in new business and help the existing

Simons. "We've got a one-half cent sales tax that should generate $240,000 a year, but that money will soon be gone. That means there's still gonna be problems and our only alternative is to reduce services or work on economic development."

Phillip Niedzielski-Eichner, director of the Economic Development Strategy Council, said it's up to the city, county, school and the Chamber of Commerce to get the council roll-

"I'm encouraging the three taxing entities to get together as soon as possible because there needs to be a transition period of a couple of months before the EDSC dissolves," Eichner stated.

In an effort to resolve next year's budget, which will take effect Oct. 1, the commissioners also considered raising the tax rate 4 percent. translated into a two-cent tax increase from $.4516 to $.4716 per $100 property evaluation.

"Our only alternative is to reduce services or work on economic development."--County Judge Tom Simons ones, and that's something we can do without spending out of our pockets." · Latham and Bradly were vocally supported by four audience members, including George Warner, owner of George Warner Seeds. "I've been here in Hereford since it had a population of 3,000 and I've watched it grow, and I'm in favor of growth. But I'm not in favor of paying for things we should do voluntarily (economic development)," stated Warner, who stressed that he started his business without much financial backing.

The Economic Development Council, which the city and school district voted to contribute $48,000 and $24,000 respectively, has been idling since the county has been grappling with its 1988-1989 budget which, even without the economic development funding, will need a county tax hike to support it.

"I do know this - the tax base has been the same the past four years and services have increased," stated

The commissioners won't vote on any tax hike until their next meeting scheduled June 13.

The county's one-half cent sales tax was originally designed to slash the citizens' ad valorem tax. This money, however, will be needed to offset the deficit situation the county faces for the next fiscal year.

"The reason we're having so many problems with the budget is because the tax base has become stagnant, the revenue sharing, which was over $200,000 a year, is no longer available, we lost our cattle tax, there's an increasing cost for services and the state and federal governments have shifted some of their burdens onto the county government," Simons stated.

At one of its recent meetings, the commissioners court asked that all county departments cut their individual budgets by 4 percent, and the commissioners agreed that there shall be no salary increases for county employees.

A long-standing tradition of Hereford sits idly in the corner of the Ranch House Cafe where the coffee and the bull are flowing freely even before the chickens get up.

Knights It's not the kind of thing you put in a chamber of commerce pamphlet, but the circular formica table represents a kinship for the men who station themselves around the table each morning, discussing politics, weather, farming, or betting on who's paying for the breakfast.

The Roundtable is divided into two shifts -one for the really brave at 5:30 a.m., and one at 7 a.m. Billy Wall, a veteran of the 7 o'clock shift, says he's been coming to the Roundtable for 8 or 10 years and "there's times it gets so sticky and gets a little deep that you can't come back for a few days."

Tom Draper, who's been ambling to the table since the cafe opened in 1963, is loosely considered the kingpin of the Roundtable.

"When Tom's gone, and he rarely is, we don't have much to talk about," said Emory Brownlow, one of the more vocal members of the 5:30 a.m.

"Tom eats that every morningone scrambled egg, gravy, toast and tomato..."

"And plenty of grape jelly nothing but grape jelly unless it's grape wine," chimes in Leroy Wood, who starts barbing Draper about his grape growing business.

"Why don't you tell 'em about your wine makin'? Let's get this out in the public," shouts Brownlow to Draper.

Draper, a member of the Church of Christ which does not condone alcohol, concedes defeat and scrunches his shoulders, laughing with a hoot.

Draper, wearing a pair of his OshKosh overalls and a straw hat he bought at Anthony's, quickly turns the table on Wood and asks, "Why don't you tell that girl how long you've owed me and Argen (Tom's wife) a big thick steak?" "For one month longer you've owed me one," retorts Wood. Spicer Gripp intervenes at this point to explain that Draper and Wood have a running bet on the first frost day of the year. Wood matched four steaks to Draper's four steaks this past year, Wood lost and hasn't had the money to pay, according to Wood.

Whatever happens, the wives is gonna win," says Draper. "That don't take any hide off their backs to sit there and eat those steaks.

According to Brownlow, gambiing is one of Draper's favorite hobbies, who loves to match quarters with people at Hereford State Bank and Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative each day.

"He can't afford to buy a piano

Politics are pretty well defined at the Roundtable. Tom Draper makes sure everyone knows there could be a Democrat in the house.

for the church but he can afford to gamble," says Brownlow, taking another jab at Draper.

"Tom, my voice is such we don't need a piano."

The mention of church and gambling quiekly springs a story in Draper's mind which is crammed with thousands of tales stored over the years.

The one he introduces concerns an old church member who loved to gamble.

'One Sunday morning we got a new minister in up there and I guess he heard about ole Cecil's gamblin.' He hit that pulpit and he said 'It's not whether you win or lose, it's the influence.' He was layin' it on and tryin' to get Cecil's attention: I looked around at Cecil to see how he was takin' the heat, and he was sound asleep," says Draper while the entire table cackles.

As sure as the sun rises in the east, a conversation at the Roundtable would not be complete without a good left hook to the Republican Party.

Draper, who drives a 50s model pink Plymouth Savoy with the sign "Republicans put me in this car," always determines a man's political affiliation before he will eat with him. "When you write down these them," said Draper, pointing at the three men sitting at the table. 'Not all of us are Democrats, though," said Gripp. Well, you got to be patient and longsuffering. I think we'll have

Poll: Change our primary processes

NEW YORK (AP) - Most Americans favor major changes in the selection of presidential nominees, with six in 10 saying they would eliminate political conventions and let voters choose the candidates directly, a Media General-Associated Press poll has found.

As the primary season winds down, with the final contests June 7. the survey found broad dissatisfaction with the selection system. A majority of respondents said they did not follow the campaigns regularly and only half believed the races provide a good discussion of the issues.

Authorities seek young boy's identity

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - A mysterious deaf-mute boy found wandering in a Mexican border city repeatedly draws pictures of a plane crash, leading authorities to believe he may have survived one. "From the way he keeps drawing the same pictures, and has his clothes packed, I think he is desperate to find his way back home," said Leticia Cota, a social worker in Juarez, Mexico, where the boy was found Nov 7.

The boy, who communicates only with pictures and gestures, was found by the side of a highway, according to an El Paso child welfare report filed this week. He is believed to be 7 or 8 years old.

The Center for Missing and Exploited Children in Washington sought the help of the FBI in El Paso

this week to find the boy's identity. FBI spokesman Terry Kincaid said Friday:

"We're making every effort to identify the boy through whatever means possible," Kincaid said. "The FBI will cross-check the boy's footprints with records in the U.S. and in Mexico sometime within the next.

Mexican social workers, who con-a plane crash survivor. The boy repeatedly draws pictures of a crashed airplane, with people in it that he describes as his father, mother, younger sister and himself - and with "28D, 23" written under the airplane.

The boy is 4 feet 6, has dark blond to light brown hair and a slightly freckled white complexion.

Social workers said that through drawings and other communication, the boy has revealed background details that indicate:

By BEVERLY HARDER County Extension Agent ANTIPERSPIRANT DAMAGE TO CLOTHING

Holes, tears and discoloration in the underarm area of clothes that otherwise have strong fabric has consumers puzzled.

According to the International Fabricare Institute, the problem occurs when antiperspirants come into contact with items made or blended with cellulose fibers, such as cotton, linen, ramie and rayon.

Antiperspirants usually contain high concentrations of aluminum chlorides which can damage cellulose fibers. The agitation of laundering will cause the chemically degraded fibers to tear or be removed from the fabric.

Antiperspirants should be removed from clothing as soon as possible to prevent this type of damage from occuring. The consumer may also choose to use a deodorant, which should not cause this problem, rather than an antiperspirant.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Tired of turmoil

Amid all the claims and counter-claims surrounding the relations between the administration and faculty of West Texas State University, we believe there is enough blame to go around. President Ed Roach has made some mistakes, and some of the faculty members are acting like spoiled brats.

The decision of the board of regents to have a panel of outside education experts to study the problems and offer recommendations was a great idea. The board's 6-2 vote to keep the findings a secret was dumb.

The investigative panel was to look at the controversy and tell the public what was happening at the university and, hopefully, offer some solutions. What could have been an end to the continuing battle has been postponed to "review the findings." A committee is now scheduled to report back to the board in mid-June.

The regents claim they are not required to release the report because it is not covered by the Texas Open Records Act. The faculty disagrees. Regardless of legalities, the WTSU regents should let the public read the investigative panel report.

Area citizens are fed up with the continuing turmoil at the university. It's time the problems are resolved and WTSU get about its business of providing a quality regional university for our students.

Sanitized flight?

Frank Lorenzo President Texas Air Holding Co. Houston, Texas:

Dear Mr. Lorenzo:

Let us suggest a bold move for your company's operation of Continental and Eastern Airlines.

Why not go Northwest Airlines, who stopped smoking on all flights? One better - why not install on all your airlines the ultimate step-the first all pollution-free, antiseptically clean, fully sanitized commercial flight?

It's the next logical step for any airline concerned about pollution of air aboard commercial flights.

Simply stopping smoking aboard a flight is a halfway measure. Outlawing perfume, hair spray, deodorants, after-shave lotion, cosmetics, chloroseptic mints and chewing gum is not enough.

Why not carry this ban against smoking to the ultimate conclusiona complete antiseptic atmosphere aboard every airplane?

You could have all passengers arrive an extra thirty minutes early, check their luggage and provide each passenger with a handy plastic bag, and shunt all passengers into the shower area.

They could leave their clothes on this side of the shower room, enter the fumigating room and receive a generous dose of antigermicidal spray. -

Passengers then could shower and inspectors could make sure that all hair spray, cosmetics, perfume and other nose-sensitive odors were completely washed away.

Then each could be handed a sterile surgical gown complete with surgical cap and sterile booties to go over previously cleaned shoes. No pockets allowed.

All passengers could board the plane wearing only sterile surgical gowns, gloves, caps and shoes. Clothes bags coudl be stored in the regular luggage area.

Once aboard, passengers would be prohibited from coughing, sneezing, snoring or talking. Talking could spread germs not killed by the overhead blue, sanitized and sterilizing lamps over each passenger seat.

No alcohol, beverages or food would be served since the odors arriving there from might trigger allergies on the part of some

No briefcases, magazines, newspapers, or other reading material would be allowed since all carry inks that might contaminate sen-

Movies would be taboo since some passengers might take offense at either the language or the flickering of the picture. Finally, if passengers found such restrictions bothersome, perhaps a calming Valium might be given all passengers in order to introduce a comatose state while the plan is in the air. We realize it's a hold and drastic step for any airline. Perhaps it might be wise, before installing such an antiseptic measure, you might want to have several trial runs. You might want to select your passengers for those test runs.

Perhaps you could invite members of the Sierra Club, the officials of the Environmental Protection Agency, those non-smoking members of Congress, and all employees of the Federal Aviation Agency.

If those first passengers love the test runs, then the process coudl be installed on all your planes.

The only drawback to this proposal is the knee-jerk reaction by some competition.

A competing airline might throw caution and sensitivity to the wind and advertise flights that prmit drinking, reading, movie watching, talking, outlandish dress and exotic perfumes and sprays, and even serve tantalizing, aromatic foods aboard.

The insensitive clods might even allow smoking. Let us know if we can provide further exhilarating details.

COOKS

Good cooks are born, not made. The only reason to buy cook books is for decorations in the kitchen. Cooking is genetic. It is in the same category as athletic ability or the ability to spell, it is inherited or it ain't

My brother, the lawyer, is an excellent cook. He is so good he can get away with being obnoxious about it. About the time I want to hit him, the food is ready and I forget about being angry. He inherited the ability to cook, just as he inherited ability to play football. He got all of the genes in both areas. I can't cook and I could not play foot-

My wife has been gone for over a week to play with the new grandson. I have been the cook and bottle washer for my mother who is recovering from a broken hip. Somehow she has lived through the ordeal. For the life of me I can not figure out how to get all of the stuff ready at the same time. I serve seven course meals, even at breakfast. The toast is done and eaten before the eggs are in the pan. The bacon is in the microwave and I can not remember how long it is supposed to cook. I think it is about five minutes a slice. Give a microwave that long with bacon and it will make steel.

Cleaning up is no better. There are folks in this world who are born with the ability to fill a dishwasher. That is their calling in life. Unfortunately, they are the only ones on earth who can. The rest of us are hopeless. Two people having ice cream and cookies for a snack create enough dishes for two loads if it is my job.

Cooking is genetic. There are all kinds of myths about how we can learn to cook. Don't believe them. These myths are designed to sell cook books. I have eaten in enough houses to know, we are either born with it or we die without it.

Even the fabled farm wife must be born with it. The first church I served paid me twenty dollars a week and Sunday lunch. Many a week I would have given the money back if I did not have to eat the lunch. Some of those ladies were terrible. I struggled through one meal while eyeing a raisin cake. I thought I could at least eat the cake. I reached for the cake and all of the raisins flew off. I tell you, it is genetic.

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek comes to the rescue of Congressmen this week, perhaps.

When Congress, as it often does, votes itself a raise members argue it's necessary, that living expenses in Washington are so high they can't make it on less.

Otherwise, they say, only a rich man could afford to serve, and who wants a country where only the rich can stay in Congress?

The trouble with this is the required annual financial disclosure statements by members of the House and Senate came out last week.

The salary of a Congressman, not counting free office space, free telephones, free postage, free air flights back home, meals in a government restaurant at half price, government-paid staff assistants, etc., is $87,483 a year.

Also, according to figures in the disclosure statements, most members of Congress earn considerable outside income from making speeches, writing articles, and other unrecognizable sources. I know one Congressman who, broke at the time, ran for the job on borrowed money years ago and is now worth over $3 million.

Counting salary and outside income, a Congressman now averages a minium of $100,000 a year.

Why, you might ask, can't he live comfortably on that? I can explain. It's this way: from long custom, Congressmen have a habit of spending whatever money is available. Seeing $100,000 a year coming in, they confuse their money with the government's and go right on spending that too till they don't have anything left for living expenses.

A Congressman ought to be paid in different colored money so he can hold on to it for his own living expenses and not get it all mixed up with the government's.

Yours faithfully.

Unions-their own worst enemy

By Richard L. Lesher President

WASHINGTON - In the losing battle for a plant closing provision in the trade bill, organized labor has once again proven to be its own worst enemy.

President Reagan made it clear from the beginning that he would veto a trade bill containing a plant closing provision, but the unions refused to heed the warning. They demanded and got a plant closing provision, and now Congress is back at the drawing board, after three years of hard work.

This is pure folly for everyone involved, including organized labor. The trade bill contains many goodies for the unions: a $1 billion training program for displaced workers, initially proposed by the Reagan administration; an additional $80 million in aid for workers who lose their jobs because of imports; stronger enforcement of voluntary restraint agreements curbing import of steel; and language making violation of international norms of worker rights grounds for trade complaints.

Perhaps the unions thought they could pull a fast one because the bill also contains many things wanted badly by the Reagan administration and some on the business wish list.

For example, the Reagan administration would get authority to negotiate a new General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade; stronger protection of U.S. intellectual property. such as patents and computer software; approval of a new system of harmonized tariffs that other trading nations have already adopted; clarification of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act to reduce liability of orate officers: and an easier path to ratification of the free trade reement between the U.S. and

Of course, many of these items are also sought by business, as are tougher rules against unfair trade practices, streamlined export licensing rules, improved financing for the Export-Import Bank, repeal of the oil windfall profits tax and others.

But now all of those most desirable benefits for both labor and management are in dire jeopardy because of the unions' stubborn insistence on passage of a plant closing provision. Well, the unions got the fight they wanted, and they lost. Now, it is incumbent upon Congress to turn around quickly and enact the trade bill as written without the plant closing provision. President Reagan has indicated he would sign such a bill. It can become law within a matter of

The only potential snag is Congress, which, like the unions, can on occasion display astounding stub-bornness. But while losing a major battle is never fun, there is no reason this setback should cause the full bill to be aborted. Too much work and effort has been invested. Congress needs this bill, the Reagan ad-

There's one with 2 greens, 9 pin placements

Ever heard of a 2-hole, 9-hole golf course?

By MIKE COCHRAN Associated Press Writer

YANTIS, Texas (AP) - First find 114 crazies, a secluded country setting, a vintage German fighter plane, a totally mad pilot and a high velocity band called Dash Riprock and the Dragons.

Mix with hot sausage, cold beer, frozen margaritas and half a barbecued cow.

Flavor with two bubbling cauldrons of stew and the head football coaches from the arch-rival universities of Texas and Oklahoma.

Remind the crazies that nobody promised them a rose garden, or even a fair deal, then turn 'em loose in Mike McAlister's backyard.

What you've got is a Memorial Day weekend at the McAlister Ranch and Country Club Championship, an annual East Texas bash that features a golf tournament played on what may . be the Free World's most unusual 2-hole golf course.

Make that a 9-hole, 2-hole course. Or perhaps a 2-hole, 9-hole course. Confused? Good. Nothing about McAlister's backyard golf course is

"I've been to two Louisiana fairs and three hog wallowin's and I've never seen anything like this," said

Buri Gray, a builder from the Dallas

suburb of Plano.

McAlister's 2-holer has two huge greens, nine different pin placements and eight different teeboxes spread over 100 acres. It's a 3,270-yard, par 36 course with three par 3s, three par 4s and three par 5s.

And with sand traps, lakes, trees, water hazards and tight fairways, it is hardly a pushover.

"It's challenging, laid out real well" and very, very tight," said former U.S. Open champ Orville Moody, who lives in nearby Sulphur Springs.

And Moody, who was unable to play here this year, didn't even take into account the 114 crazies running amok in golf carts.

Neither did Jackie Cupit, a former fixture on the PGA circuit, who said he's played courses the world over, "but I've never seen another course quite like it. Unique best describes what Mike has done."

What Mike, his wife, Judy, and several of their friends have done is carve lush fairways out of a forest, build two slick, undulating greens and utilize a beautiful little bass lake as a water hazard called Lake Hud-

The private lake is so named for one of McAlister's buddies, Don Hudson, who once hit 15 straight balls in the water while driving off the No. 1

tee behind McAlister's ranch-style

"Don's bag and clubs still lie at the bottom of Lake Hudson," McAlister laughed.

Mike, 41, the founder and president of Lone Star Chemical Co., bought the ranch 10 years ago and started building the course himself two years later. With the help of friends, and with Judy occasionally driving a tractor, the course was completed in two years. It includes concrete cart paths and an underground sprinkler

A native of Big Spring in West Texas, McAlister nourished his fondness for golf, fishing, C&W music and mild revelry while at Texas Tech. He then found the perfect spot to further embrace those pleasures in the rolling East Texas woodlands of Hopkins County.

The so-called Club Championship began as an excuse to bring his friends together for a holiday weekend of golfing and partying and dancing to country and western McAlister's friend Darrell Royal, the former Longhorn coach, often found time to drop by, as did C&W superstar Charley Pride and other music and sports figures. Jerry Max Lane, who once headed the house band for Billy Bob's Texas, the world's largest honky tonk, showed up this year to do some midnight pickin' and singin'.

Departing from C&W tradition, a rock band belted out songs and sounds of the Fifties and Sixties, featuring not only Dash Riprock himself but colleagues Johnny Cool, Sharky Fin and Rock Hard.

But the 1988 gala showcased a golfing shootout between teams led by coaches David McWilliams of Texas and Barry Switzer of Oklahoma. McWilliams' team won by two shots, perhaps because some Longhorn fans kept Switzer up partying until 5 a.m. the night before the match.

Switzer realized the fix was in when he stepped none too nimbly to the first tee and was greeted by that old Longhorn favorite, "The Eyes of

Except for one of the crazies who overdosed on sausage, most everyone survived the stew and barbecue and other delights that made chef Sam White, only slightly more famous than Sissy Spacelt in Quitman, Texas. Nor were there any casualties of a risky one-man aerial show by Big Spring pilot Doug Warren, who swept in over the treetops and skimmed across the fairways in a World War II German Messerschmitt.

McAlister said the first year Warren dive-hombed the golfers, he did so without warning. "They scattered like quail," he chuckled. "They were scrambling under trees and tables and spilling beer and dropping sandwiches and sausages and everything."

One year during the air show a vapor lock in the aircraft forced Warren to make a dangerous emergency landing in a pasture out of sight of the golfers, who knew only J. that Warren and his plane had disap-

Gooden makes most of his second chance

By HAL BOCK

AP Sports Writer Sunday's start against the Chicago Cubs will be more than a routine nt for Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets. That's because June 5 is Gooden's first anniversary back from cocaine rehabilitation.

In the year since he returned, Gooden has a 23-8 record - 15-7 in the second half of last season and 8-1 this year - as well as a new appreciation of himself and his career.

He is one of many baseball players who have been able to come back from rehabilitation to have successful careers. But for others, the

"If there is one answer for why Dwight got better, it was his desire to get better," Lans said. "It's a complicated answer. It's strengths. It's weaknesses. It's courage. It's will. It's determination. Those who want to get better have the best chance to get better. You have to work at it."

Lans thought Gooden's task was no more difficult than any other patient,

Dr. Arnold M. Washton, founder and executive director of a private drug rehabilitation facility in New York, has worked with a number of addicted athletes and says their road to recovery is made tougher by their distinctive lifestyles.

"First and foremost in recovery is the abuser himself," he said. "He has to realize at some point that he has a problem and he has to accept its existence. There are implications that follow from that. The first is how "You cannot be an occasional user. Most relapses to cocaine start with a drink. Most relapses to alcohol start with a sleeping pill or a tranquilizer.

Two things cripple the recovery of athletes. One is if they are around other abusers. The other is the inherent way their lives are structured."

Washton said drug users often depend on "enablers" who make substance abuse easier for them. "Athletes are surrounded by enablers," he said. "They live a life that takes responsibility away. They have people doing things for them, clearing a path. It's an artificial reality. Somebody's always there to take care of things for you."

TOWNHOUSE TYPE DUPLEX PLAN DRAWN WITH IDENTICAL LIVING AREAS

Identical sides include a private separate foyer with open rail stair to second floor, half bath and the spacious living room and dining room, along with a combined kitchen and breakfast. Exterior access is from the breakfast room and the compact kitchen is as functional as most larger kitchens. A

There are three bedrooms upstairs; the master bedroom suite spanning the full depth of the plan. The two remaining bedrooms are serviced by a hall bath and the laundry room is also located in the second floor. Although the hall is relatively narrow, the open rail stair affords a more desirable spacious effect. Disappearing stairs are shown to attic for additional storage.

The exterior is country, constructed of horizontal frame, and gable roof design is shown.

The plan is number 2928-D. It includes a total of 2,940 square feet (1,470 feet each side). All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

and, even then, the doctor must understand that resanding and refinishing a floor is no easy chore. The drum sander your husband will have to handle is a lot tougher than swinging a golf club. There is no standard rule about the physical capabilities of a person who has had a bypass. Each case is individual. Your husband's doctor will have to counsel him.

Q. - We bought an unfinished bedroom bureau. The store that sold it to us said it was birch, but a friend who has worked with a lot of wood says it is not birch, although he isn't sure what it is. Will the kind of wood it is affect the way in which we finish it or should we just go ahead and put on a couple of coats of varnish?

A. — The simplest way to refinish it is to decide on the type of finish and then do a part of the underside of the cabinet. If it comes out all right, go ahead with the visible portion of the furniture. How much care you take in the refinishing will determine the result. Doing a test on part of the cabinet is the best way to handle it.

Q. - I will be handling some plumbing projects in my house. I have examined the plumbing codes and find I can do most of the work myself. But

A. - Always follow the local code.

Q. - When my toilet is flushed, not enough water flows into the bowl to make it work properly. I have taken off the tank cover, but don't know enough about the mechanism to know what's wrong.

A. - Sounds as if the water level in the tank isn't high enough. When you flush the toilet, the water should rise high enough in the tank so it is about 1/2 to one inch below the top of the overflow tube. If the valve shuts off too soon, you won't get the water to rise that high. To raise the water level, bend the float arm upwards a little. Do it with two hands so you don't throw the entire mechanism out of whack.

The front door is the first impression people get of a family's home. It should look nice as well as serve as an entranceway and buffer against the outside world.

Until fairly recently, wood and metal front doors just about split the market. A newcomer into the field, a molded fiberglass door, is beginning to win wide acceptance. Oddly, whatever resistance some consumers have developed to it stems from its being plastic. Deke Welles, marketing chief of the Therma-True Corp. of Toledo, Ohio, admits this is because plastic is sometimes I need advice. When the National associated with "cheap." He ex-Plumbing Code differs a bit from the local coo, which one has to be plains:

'Most common building products are in the plastic family, including siding and flooring. But they are referred to as vinyl because plastic has traditionally been a dirty word. But 'Made in Japan' used to mean something cheap and shoddy. Now it is a distinctive mark of good quality. We're working toward the day when people who manufacture and use plastic products will also get respect."

To make consumers more comfortable with the idea of a fiberglass door, the company keeps track of products that have shifted from wood to metal to plastic. Among the most familiar are boats, tennis rackets, golf clubs, skis, fishing rods and even automobiles. Welles says new technology has overcome such obstacles as plastics being subject to ultra-violet light degradation and deterioration from contact with solvents. The fiberglass doors are molded so that they look like wood and take a stain like wood. The doors' molded sills accept nails and screws and come in a wide range of grains and styles. When Therma-True first experimented with a fiberglassreinforced composite resin material plastic - it came a cropper. The test turned into a plastic dud. It took several years of work and further experiments to make a fiberglass door that turned around a conservative industry.

Welles likes to point out one indication of how successfully the fiberglass door imitates the appearance of wood. It came when a trade magazine mistakenly used a photo of a fiberglass door in an article on wood doors. Deke's father, over a bankrupt lumber company that had "no business, no inventory and little money." Now it sells metal doors and its new fiberglass doors in every state and in Canada. It has manufacturing plants in three states, employs more than 500 people and soon may be licensing its molded fiberglass doors overseas.

The fiberglass door is said to resist warping, cracking or splitting and can't rust or dent. Inside its fiberglass exterior is a solid polyurethane insulating core with a thermal protection value of 11.5, higher than many steel doors and about four times the insulation of most wood doors.

What about painting? It can be painted with an exterior oil-based or latex house paint. No priming is necessary, but two coats are preferred. As for staining, a solid-color, linseed oil-based stain or artist oil should be used. To further protect the finish, an exterior urethane top coat is recommended.

Potluck supper still popular tradition

Midwestern cooking is a reflection before long the buffet table reaches of its people, independent and direct. Substance is more important than style, and this is perhaps no where more apparent than at a church sup-

Sometimes called a "pitch-in" supper, other times simply potluck, the church supper continues to be as much a part of the social fabric of rural and small-town Midwest life as it was at the turn of the century.

The meal always is served buffetstyle, a tradition which traces its roots to the days when farm wives prepared huge midday and evening meals at harvest time. Long trestle tables are set up outside under the trees during the summer, in the church basement in winter, and covered with checkered cloths. Everyone brings a dish or two, and the groaning point. Plates are filled and refilled several times, and no one counts calories.

Sturdy casseroles form the mainstay of the menu. They're easy to transport and many can be made ahead. Homemade breads and rolls, salads and a variety of cakes, pies and cookies complete the spread.

While traditional dishes such as scalloped potatoes and ham haven't lost their appeal, Midwestern cookslike cooks everywhere-have found it necessary to update favorite recipes to fit today's busy schedules and changed tastes.

The classic macaroni and cheese, for example, still makes frequent appearances at church suppers and potluck dinners of all kinds and for good reason. it's hearty, tasty and transportable. It's also apt to have a more contemporary appearance and Macaroni and three cheeses is a snap to prepare with today's timesaving appliances. The microwave oven sautes the red bell pepper, cooks the white sauce to a creamy smoothness, melts the butter for the crumb topping and heats the assembled dish, all in minutes.

Streamlined preparation isn't all macaroni and three cheeses has going for it, however. The combination of provolone, cheddar and blue cheeses adds a new, more robust flavor dimension. A curly pasta like rotini lends a new look, while a fresh tomato and bread crumb topper adds the extra eye appeal sure to make this contemporary classic a standout on any buffet table.

MACARONI AND THREE CHEESES

12 ounces macaroni OR curly pasta, uncooked

One-third cup butter ... ½ cup chopped red AND/OR green

One-third cup all-purpose flour 1/4 teaspoon EACH: salt, pepper, numeg

2 cups milk 1 cup (4 ounces) EACH: shredded Provolone. Cheddar cheeses

1/2 to 3/4 cup (2 to 3 ounces) Blue Cheese, crumbled 2 small tomatoes, sliced

1 tablespoon butter 4 cup seasoned dry bread crumbs

Cook macaroni on top of the stove according to the package directions; rinse and drain. Place one-third cup butter in 21/2-quart round casserole. Microwave on high 1 minute. Add peppers and saute on high until tender-crisp, about 2 minutes. Stir in flour and seasonings until smooth. Microwave on high 45 to 60 seconds, or until mixture bubbles. Gradually stir in milk. Microwave on high 6 minutes, or until thickened and bubbly, stirring every 2 minutes. Stir in cheese until melted. Stir in cooked macaroni.

Place tomatoes around outer edge of casserole. Microwave 1 tablespoon butter in 1-cup measuring cup on high 20 seconds. Stir in bread crumbs until well combined. Sprinkle bread crumbs over tomatoes and pasta. Microwave casserole on high 5 to 6 minutes, or until hot and bubbly, rotating dish after half the cooking time. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

DRUG SHOWS PROMISE

ATLANTA (AP) - Based on results from animal studies, researchers report the drug cyclosporin A should be clinically tested on people with severe lupus, says the Arthritis

In lupus, the immune system goes awry and the white blood cells that regulate antibody production, called T-cells, behave abnormally. In tests with mice, cyclosporin A restored normal T-cell function and reduced kidney and joint inflammation.

The researchers say they hope the drug will someday be added to the list of immune-suppresive drugs used to treat lupus.

'TEXAS' opens 23rd season on June 15

"TEXAS" begins its 23rd season in the open-air Pioneer Amphitheatre beneath the enormous cliffs of Palo Duro Canyon on Wednesday, June 15th, at 8:30 p.m.

The musical drama will play nightly except Sundays through August 27th in the State Park near Amarillo.

Opening night festivities this year will honor previous and current board members of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, the non-profit producer of "TEXAS."

A reception in honor of the board is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the flag area on the patio prior to the first performance. The group will also be recognized during the show.

This is part of a continuing effort this year to reward these 150 influential people from the 40 surrounding communities of the Texas Panhandle.

Cowboys and Indians mount horses as the story of early Panhandle life unfolds. A romantic triangle brings the struggles between the farmer and rancher to life while battling the fierce elements of nature.

An eventual collaboration produces a railroad and a new town for the area.

Written by Pulitzer Prize winning author Paul Green, "TEXAS" is the dream of founder Margaret Harper. Having read about Green and his outdoor dramas in READER'S DIGEST in 1960, she wrote the famous letter that drew Green to the Canyon.

It took six years to raise the money, build the theatre and for Green to complete the script.

Today that script remains virtually unchanged, but enormous talent and the latest sound and light technology would make Green proud. Ideas that Green envisioned in 1966 but were technically impossible are now a reality.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The recent letter from "Guilty in N.Y.," whose wife died of emphysema, caught my eye. Please tell that man not to feel guilty. I'm sure had he known that his cigarette smoke was killing his wife he would have stopped smoking in her presence.

I teach smoking cessation classes and have done a great deal of research on this subject. Ignorance is the culprit. Once smokers understand the facts they behave differentlv. Here is some information that every nicotine addict needs to know:

-Nonsmoking spouses of heavy smokers develop lung cancer at nearly twice the rate of those married to nonsmokers.

-Nonsmokers married to smokers had 60 percent more cancer of all types than those married to nonsmokers.

-A recent U.S. study calculates that 10,000 to 50,000 American nonsmokers die each year due to long-term exposure to low levels of second-hand smoke.

We now have the solid documentation. No more guessing. Please Ann, give the American public the facts.-A Former Smoker

DEAR FORMER: That's precisely what I've been doing ever since the embattled American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute started to sound their warnings. And I intend to keep at it.

Cigarette are not the only killers. Chewing tobacco has been targeted as a serious threat because it can cause cancer of the tongue and mouth. I wish our baseball heroes ould stop chewing and spitting on TV. These role models for America's youth set a very poor example, and some of them are going to break our hearts by dying much too young.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send $3 plus a No. 10, selfaddressed, stamped envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

SHY AID

NEW YORK (AP) — Although most doctors agree that those who have a tendency toward shyness are probably born with that inclination, there are still steps parents can take to help modify this behavior, easing some difficulties of social interaction.

These steps, as reported in a recent issue of Parents Magazine, are:

—"Seize opportunities to build feelings of self-confidence.

Help steer the child into interactions that are non-threatening.

 Introduce the child to new social situations gradually.

—Avoid shaming or embarrassing the child.

Abundant Life

ENJOYMENT IN LIFE

By Bob Wear We know that there is much sadness and sorrow, so much so, in fact, that it almost seems out of order to speak of enjoyment. Nevertheless, we are not helping by giving ourselvs over to gloom and dejection. Of course, we will "weep with those who weep"; but it is just as fitting and important to "rejoice with those who rejoice".

There is and there can be 'enjoyment in life'; but no reference is being to the various forms of selfindulgence, or to any kind of misuse or abuse of life. Self-indulgence and self-abuse are not sources of enjoyment. There is no merit in the limited philosophy, "Let us eat, drink and be merry; for tomorrow we die."

"Live it up, you only go around once" is not an attitude that is productive of anything that produces and supports true and enduring enjoyment. It causes the exact opposite in the life of all who embrace it.

Restraint is the golden rule of en joyment."-London.

Rejoicing is not frivoligy, or foolishness, fickleness, levity and such like. It is not the same as fun, but is deeper, more abiding, and more constructive. This is not completely self-centered, but will include our wholesome concern for others, to the extent that we help when help is needed and we are able to help.

In our family, our work, our friendships, and in all other aspects of life that are honorable, and decent, and wholesomely constructive 'enjoyment' should have a very special place. Life is a mixture of joy and sorrow, but when we have experienced the sorrow and have let it serve its best purpose, we must let it pass. It is the joy, the justified joy, that must prevail because it is the substantial life quality that will help sustain us and those with whom we interact.

Enjoyment is found in company goodness, decency, thankfulness and usefulness.

Kathleen Ross and Suzy Nix served the three-tiered white cake decorated with flowers and Cynthia

Sanford served punch and coffee. Following a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe, Calif., the couple will reside

The long hot days of summer are fast approaching. What better time to break out the grill, call up some friends and celebrate the season with a barbecue. By making a party out of cooking the meal, entertaining will be easy as well as fun.

And to kick-off of the outdoor cooking season, why not try some new recipes? "Simple variations can turn traditional grilled favorites into something truly special," says Fave Egan, consumer food specialist. "And with a very small amount of advanced preparation you can enjoy the festivities as much as your guests."

For a new twist to everyone's favorite steak, try Savory Grilled Tournedos. Just prepare the sauce-a blend of steak sauce, catsup, marmalade, lemon juice and seasonings--and brush on the bacon wrapped steaks as you're grilling.

Grilled Onion-Cheese Bread is the perfect accompaniment. Spread Italian bread with a mixture of cheese, steak sauce, scallions, margarine and basil. Place foil wrapped bread on the grill for 20 minutes or until heated. Toss a salad and let the party begin!

SAVORY GRILLED TOURNEDOS

Makes 8 servings

- 1/3 cup A.l. Steak Sauce 4 cup tomato catsup
- ¼ cup orange marmalade
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 8 slices bacon
- 8 beef tenderloin steaks (tournedos), cut 1-inch thick

Mushrooms, radishes and parsley springs, for garnish

In small bowl, blend steak sauce, catsup, marmalade, lemon juice, onion and garlic. Wrap a bacon slice around edge of each steak; secure with string or toothpick.

Grill steaks over medium-high heat, 4 inches from heat source, about 10 minutes for rare or until desired doneness, turning occasionally and brushing frequently with prepared sauce. Or, broil steaks 5 to 10 minutes for rare, turning once. Arrange tournedos on serving platter; garnish with mushrooms, radishes and parsley.

MS Bike Tour planned

The Panhandle Chapter of the Na-tional Multiple Scierosis Society's this debilitating disease, with 200 First Annual MS Wild West 150 Bike Tour will be held Saturday and Sunday, July 30-31. This is a two-day event beginning in Amarillo and ending at Lake Marvin near the Oklahoma State line.

'What's so wonderful about this bike tour," said Cindy Dawson Bike Tour Coordinator, "is that it is a chance to see parts of the Panhandle, such as the old wagon train and military trails that have made the west what it is today. Also each participant will receive a T-shirt from Bud Light, a watter bottle from Hill's Sport Shop, and a cycling cap from Mason's Pro Frame Shop along with a few other terrific prizes."

Everyone regardless of age is encouraged to ride in the bike tour that will begin in Amarillo and conclude at Lake Marvin near Canadian, Tx. The tour is open to individuals and teams. Teams are comprised of four (4) cyclists. There is a $15 registration fee and a minimum of $150 in pledges required from each participant. Funds raised help scientists nationally to research the cause and cure of Multiple Sclerosis and help provide patient services in the Panhandle area. MS strikes the central nervous system of young adults between the ages of 20 and 50, causing difficulty in walking, talking and

Even adults got into the act May 20 at West Central Intermediate School's Science Olympiad. Various events were held to test students' science-related skills, with one such event being the Naked Egg Drop. Students provided boxes with popcorn, foam rubber, and other forms of padding into which raw eggs were dropped from various heights. Purpose of the event was to see whose eggs would remain unbroken; Gerald Harder, at left, dropped eggs from shoulder height while Jerry Walker of SPS, at right, dropped eggs from a 35-foot-tall cherry picker. So many eggs did not break that several winners were named in the event.

Annual conference to focus on 'lean beef' of 'lean beef' will be the focus of the second annual National Beef Industry Conference at Texas A&M University July 7-8.

Major sessions of the conference will deal with the nutritional value of lean beef and dietary matters and with producing beef products to meet consumer demands

"Use of beef in the diet is a key national health issue today, and we will have a number of speakers address that issue," said Dr. Larry Boleman, a beef cattle specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, which is hosting the conference along with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

A general session on lean beef, which features results of a recent national beef market basket survey, will open the two-day conference. One concurrent session that afternoon will deal with the nutritional Production as well as consumption value of beef and how it fits into the diets of individuals with various disorders. The other session will focus on the cutability value of beef as it relates to producers, feeders, packers and retailers.

> A banquet that evening will feature an address by Martin Jorgensen, a South Dakota rancher who was named the 1988 "Cattle Businessman of the Year" by the National Cattleman's Association.

The second day of the conference will focus on producing cattle to meet packer specifications and production and marketing options for cat-

The conference will be at Rudder Center on the Texas A&M University campus, with the opening session set for 9 a.m. July 7. Please call the county Extension office at 364-3573 to obtain registration forms.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) - Director Oliver Stone, here in preparation for a film version of the musical "Evita," says he's considering Barbra Streisand, Olivia Newton-John and Madonna to portray the lead.

Stone, director of the hit movies "Platoon" and "Wall Street," arrived in Argentina on Wednesday. During his five days here, he plans to tour the areas where the late first lady Eva "Evita" Peron lived, and contact people who once knew her.

Evita, a little-known actress, became Gen. Juan D. Peron's lover and eventually his wife. She organized a vast state welfare agency that monopolized all charitable activity and helped Peron become known as the savior of the poor. She died of cancer at age 33 in 1952.

NEW YORK (AP) - Singer Boz Scaggs says he never expected his year-long sabbatical from the music business would last eight years.

The respite has ended with the 43-year-old blues singer's new album, "Other Roads."

"I had two young sons to raise and some personal matters to settle," Scaggs said in interview published Wednesday in The New York Times. "I had been working continuously for 10 years."

Apart from raising his children, Scaggs said, he did a lot of reading and traveling and opened a Tex-Mex restaurant. Next month, he's starting up a jazz and blues club in San Francisco.

"I must say that during my time off I've enjoyed life immensely," Scaggs said.

BOSTON (AP) - Mother Teresa plans to visit three prisons in Massachusetts this weekend, including an isolation unit at the Walpole prison where she will meet a prison pen pal, officials said.

The Rev. Peter V. Conley, spokesman for the Catholic Archdiocese of Boston, said the nun, who won a Nobel Peace Prize for her missionary work in Calcutta, India, has communicated with an inmate at he maximum-security prison for several years.

Inmates guilty of crimes or serious disciplinary violations committed in prison are kept in lockup for 23 hours a day in the Walpole isolation unit. Some of the prison's most violent men are confined in the unit.

Correction Department spokeswoman Kathy Ayres said the 77-year-old Albanian-born missionary also will tour prisons in Concord and Framingham.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., has filed for divorce from his second wife, citing irreconcilable differences after 10 years of marriage.

Cranston, a 73-year-old four-term senator, married his wife, Norma, on May 19, 1978, according to the brief court petition filed Wednesday. Information on separate and community property would be supplied later, the petition said.

A call seeking comment was made to Cranston's Los Angeles field office after business hours, but there was no answer.

Cranston was divorced in 1977 from his first wife, Geneva McMath, after 30 years of marriage.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) - Paul Newman, awarded an honorary degree by Yale University, had some advice for graduates about the importance of uncertainty. "Just try to keep yourself off balance. Never know what you're doing the next day and you'll be all right," Newman said Monday after Yale's 287th commencement.

Newman, an actor, director and philanthropist, attended the Yale School of Drama in 1951.

"In the midst of a demanding career you dedicate a large portion of your great gifts to the service of others," Yale President Benno C.

Schmidt Jr. told Newman. Newman will soon dedicate a summer camp for seriously ill children that is being funded in large part by proceeds from his food company, Newman's Own Inc. The Connecticut company gives all its profits to charity. Yale is helping to support the camp by providing medical services and advice.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - Former White House spokesman Larry Speakes defended Nancy Reagan against criticism that she wields too much power, and said he didn't know she had consulted an astrologer.

Speakes was promoting his recently published book, "Speaking Out," at the American Booksellers Association convention, which ends today.

"I think everything Nancy does comes from her concern as a wife to see that her husband's health is protected and that he is a success," Speakes said during a news conference Monday.

As for allegations in a book by Donald T. Regan, Reagan's former chief of staff, that Mrs. Reagan cor sulted an astrologer for guidance for her and her husband, Speakes said: "I didn't know anything about that. I guess it was a state secret he kept for his own book."

Of his own admission that he invented presidential quotations during the 1985 arms control summit, Speakes said, "I do agree it was wrong." But, he added, he doesn't think it was an unusal move for a press secretary.

NEW YORK (AP) - Pete Hamill will rejoin the New York Post to write a column three times a week, and will cover such issues as drugs, homelessness, local politics and the impact of national policies on New York, the newspaper said.

"I also plan to examine the endless variations of that New York specialty, murder," Hamill said. The column is expected to start next month. Post owner Peter S. Kalikow announced the move Monday and praised Hamill's "inimitable style and unique perspective."

Hamill, 52, joined the Post in 1960 as a reporter and stayed for 14 years. He also has written for the Daily News, New York magazine and the Village Voice. His seventh novel is scheduled to be published this winter by Random House.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Little Richard will be host of a weekly music and comedy TV series, costarring "Love Boat" bartender Ted Lange and Chip Fields, who played Richard Pryor's wife in the film "Blue Collar."

The longtime rock 'n' roller's new syndicated program, "The Colors of Success," is scheduled to make its debut Sept. 12.

Executive producers Reuben Cannon and Barry Hankerson announced Monday that the show combines musical performance in a live setting with situation comedy.

Little Richard will act as the host and master of ceremonies at a nightclub owned by a divorced couple (Lange and Miss Fields). The show is based on an off-

Broadway play called "The Rhythm and The Blues," staged in 1982 and created by Hankerson. NEW YORK (AP) - Total energy otion in the U.S. in 1988 is expected to hit its highest level in nine years, according to a report in Energy User News. The energy industry management journal says that projects show total aption of 76.4 quadrillion British Thermal Units (BTUs) in 1988, compared with 78.9 quadrillion

BTUs in 1979.
