DSGH hopes for profit

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Deaf Smith General Hospital hopes to make $438,356 profit in its 1988-89 fiscal year which begins Oct. 1, but that projected profit is based on the hospital finding a new orthopedic surgeon and other, more minor, factors, the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board learned Tuesday night.

At its regular monthly meeting, the board also approved several changes in the DSGH Personnel Handbook, bought a new ambulance, accepted a proposal for the 1987-88 audit and cost report, and learned that its free of debt on the DSGH emergency room after the last $100,000 of a loan-lease agreement was paid.

The 1988-89 budget, presented by DSGH Administrator Gary Moore, calls total revenues of $6,069 million and expenses of $5.63 million — and there's no tax hike planned. "It's based on the same tax rate that we had last year," Moore said.

Moore explained that the preliminary budget had been reviewed twice by board and hospital committees. "In both groups, we assumed that we would be able to recruit a new orthopedic surgeon to replace Dr. (James) Herberson (who will be leaving his practice here in August to move to Stephenville), our patient volumes would be pretty much the same, there would be a inflation rate of 5 percent in equipment and supplies, a 3 percent increase in utilities, but other costs would be about the same."

There are no across-the-board salary increases planned, but the hospital will be enhancing its retirement program. "In some departments we are paying those people top-notch salaries, as much as they could make at any hospital anywhere," explained comptroller Phillis Morrison.

Moore said the anticipated profit will be "hard to achieve unless some things go as they are right now. If we don't replace Dr. Herberson all departments will be affected, but surgery, physical therapy and X-ray will be hurt the most. We are assuming we can find another orthopedist.

The board accepted, 4-1, the lowest proposal — $12,500 from Peat Marwick of Amarillo — for its 1987-88 audit and cost report.

The decision was made with some reservations, because the board had hoped to award the project to McGinty and Associates of Hereford. McGinty, according to Moore, was going to be forced to farm out the cost report because of its highly-specialized nature.

"To prepare a cost report you must have someone with a lot of expertise in Medicare," Moore explained. "A large company is the only one that can do that, that can afford the cost of having someone. A company will usually hire someone with experience working with Medicare or Blue Cross/Blue Shield."

Most of the larger firms that submitted estimates said they would not do just the cost report because much of the background work would be done during the audit.

"I would very much like to see Pat get this," said board member Margie Ford, who voted against awarding the job to Peat Marwick. "Pat walked us through some extremely difficult days. If he had made just one slip we couldn't have stood it. It wasn't a one-man show, but we couldn't have done it without him. I feel very strongly about that."

"I'm torn between individual loyalty and my position on the board to run this place as efficiently as we can," said board member Frank Zinser. "I don't like it, but that's where my responsibility lies."

"I hate to send any dollars, any business, out of town," said board member Craig Smith, "but, in this case, it seems like the best thing to do."

The board walked through changes in the personnel policies. Most of the changes were minor, but will effect most of the DSGH workers. The most major changes include:

—Employees will have to work 32 hours a week to be eligible for the hospital's insurance program. Currently, some work as few as 16 hours a week and are covered.

—Vacation days cannot be forwarded from one year to the next: They must be used within one year of the date they are earned. "Our hospital has a stake in that vacation," said Ralph Detten, board president. "They need to take some time off."

—In-service days will no longer be used for "earned days off" for employees to tack onto vacations. "Some employees were using the earned days off for extra vacation, some employees weren't even aware of the policy," said Moore. "Part of the tradeoff is that we are sending them to programs, paying their way." Days already earned under the old policy will be honored, but no more days off may be earned in the future.

—Employees won't be allowed to trade their accumulated sick days for days off in the future, and won't be able to have more than 60 sick days "in the bank". Persons who now have more than 60 sick days will use the overage first, and will not earn more sick days until they are under 60 accumulated days.

The monthly financial statements showed the hospital had a net loss for the month of June of $7,028, but the cash flow statement, which reflects the actual costs accrued during the month against the cash required to run the hospital, showed a $38,969 profit.

"We really didn't expect to show a profit this month," Moore explained. "We had two or three physicians gone most of the time during the month, and all of our numbers were lower compared to a year ago."

"I'm pretty happy with this (financial report) when you consider what we were looking at a year ago," Zinser said.

The board also accepted the low bid of $45,660 for a 1988 model ambulance from Collins Ambulance of Fort Worth.

Buddy joins sheriff's office to fight drugs

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

Buddy, Deaf Smith County's latest addition to its sheriff's office, will wag his tail, play ball and generally fulfill his credo as man's best friend — unless that man happens to carry illegal drugs.

Then the sparks fly. Once the 50-pound Labrador retriever gets a whiff of any drug, whether it be marijuana or methamphetamines, the pooch vigorously scratches, his ears perk, and the drugs are immediately uncovered.

Mark Hardt, who just returned from a week's training in Newton, Kan., with the shiny black dog, says the dog is virtually fool-proof.

"After a week of training, his final test was to find one narcotic hidden in an auto and three in a building, and he was only allowed two false hits. He did really well," said Hardt. "In fact, we thought he was doing a false hit when he started scratching where there were no drugs. Come to find out, there were some drugs hidden there a week ago and the odor was still lingering."

The pooch, donated by several businesses and organizations in Hereford, cost approximately $2,500 with the county providing training expenses for Hardt.

Hardt will be Buddy's sole master and will bring out the dog when the sheriff's office needs to search a vehicle or building.

"This dog will be probable cause for getting search warrants," said Sheriff Joe Brown. "Once he sniffs the drugs in there, we get the search warrant and the dog finds the drugs."

However, 14-month-old Buddy doesn't know he's looking for drugs, said Hardt. Instead, he associates the drug smell with a tennis ball which his trainers offered as Buddy's reward once he scratched at the drugs.

Drug searches may be far and few between in Deaf Smith County, so Hardt is required to work Buddy every other day, keeping his senses alert.

Hardt usually will stash marijuana or other narcotics in inconspicuous places such as a vehicle's air filter, but Buddy almost always smells the aroma through the cracks around the hood or through the air vent.

Buddy, Deaf Smith County's drug dog, immediately smells his way to a stack of boxes where amphetamines were stored 30 minutes before. Mark Hardt, his master, says he'll be shedding the leash once he and Buddy become better acquainted.

"As long as there's some kind of air movement, Buddy is gonna find it," Hardt said.

Hiding drugs in coffee grounds or masking the smell with analgesics doesn't work either. The canine already has been inducted into law enforcement work by sniffing out a marijuana cigarette butt in the county jail.

"We'll probably be using him for traffic stops, too, since all drugs are usually transported by vehicle at some time or another," stated Brown.

Clements undergoing tests

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements, hospitalized after suffering what aides described as a mild stroke that temporarily blurred his vision, was to begin undergoing tests today.

Clements, 71, had complained of illness before admitting himself into Seton Medical Center around 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, aides said.

The governor was checked every two hours through the night and woke up about 6 a.m., said hospital spokeswoman Pat Korbus.

"He's already has some coffee and is waiting for breakfast. He's reading the paper," she said.

Clements' press secretary, Reggie Bashur, Tuesday night explained what happened.

"Gov. Clements has had a slight stroke that had affected his vision," Bashur said. "His vision right now is almost all back to normal. There are no other difficulties or symptoms."

Clements

Bashur, who said he had spoken with neurologist Dr. Jerry Tindel, reported that Clements was expected to remain hospitalized for two to three days for observation and tests. He said aspirin, sometimes given as a blood thinner, was the only medication being administered to the governor.

"(Clements) is walking around. He's smiling. He feels fine," Bashur said. Clements' wife, Rita, also was at the hospital.

George Bayoud, Clements' chief of staff, said he was in his office when Clements walked in Tuesday afternoon and said he was not feeling well and was going to see his doctor.

Later at the hospital, Clements appeared to be feeling better.

"He's walking around joking (and) says he's going to have some ice cream," Bayoud said. Cardiologist Dr. David Morris also was attending Clements, Bayoud said.

Though doctors were not immediately available to discuss Clements' condition, stroke, or cerebrovascular accident, is most commonly caused by a lack of blood to a particular part of the brain. This could result from a blood clot or a ruptured or narrowed blood vessel.

Strokes rank third behind heart disease and cancer as the third leading cause of death in the United States.

Many people receive a warning before a major stroke in the form of a transient ischemic attack, or TIA. A TIA is usually accompanied by slurred speech, numbness or weakness of a hand or foot or temporary vision problems.

Bayoud said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta, placed a call to Clements, but didn't talk to him. Bayoud said he spoke with a Hobby aide about the governor's health.

Bayoud said there was no reason for Hobby, the state's second-in-command, to return to Texas early. "The governor is wide awake. If you saw him right now ... he looks absolutely normal," Bayoud said.

Hobby spokesman Glenn Smith said the offices of the lieutenant governor and governor have been in contact. "The governor's office informs us out of courtesy and caution," he said. After Hobby, State Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, would be next in the line of command, Bayoud said.

Earlier in the day Tuesday, Clements had appeared in good spirits when he posed for photographs with the 1987 Miss Texas.

Bashur said Clements' condition Tuesday was not related to his previous health problems. Within months of leaving office in 1983 after his first term, Clements underwent hip joint replacement surgery to correct an old injury that bothered him throughout his political campaigns. He quickly recovered and was soon back in political and civic circles.

Bayoud said that to his knowledge, Clements had not been admitted to a hospital since the 1983 surgery.

Clements was first elected in 1978 before being defeated by Democrat Mark White in 1982. He then defeated White in the 1986 election. Clements is the first Republican governor of Texas since Civil War Reconstruction.

Bentsen eyes Kemp

ATLANTA (AP) — If he were given his choice — he won't be — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says he would take on Rep. Jack Kemp of New York as his Republican opponent for the vice presidency.

In an interview on Cable News Network, Bentsen, who will be Michael Dukakis' running mate, was asked whether he would rather run against Kemp or his longtime friend and Senate colleague, Bob Dole, R-Kan.

Both have been mentioned prominently as possible running mates for the all-but-certain nominee, George Bush. The Republicans hold their convention next month.

"I suppose that would be Jack Kemp in that kind of a situation," Bentsen said.

The New York congressman, who abandoned his own presidential bid in March, is a longtime supporter of supply-side economics, and is "extremely vulnerable" to criticism, Bentsen said.

Put on the defensive about philosophical differences between him and the more liberal Dukakis, Bentsen said he won't submerge his views if the Democrats take the White House.

"I'm not going to change my position on those things I believe in ... I will be heard," Bentsen said in an ABC-TV interview Tuesday.

Bentsen curtailed his public schedule today as he works on his acceptance speech for Thursday night. He has spent his week making the rounds among skeptical delegates, musing his differences with Dukakis and stressing party unity.

But in a series of television interviews Tuesday, the senator was peppered with questions about some of his conservative views, which put him at odds with Dukakis on such issues as Contra aid and defense spending.

"We do disagree on some issues ... but the good part of it is we agree on the vast majority of issues like jobs creation, health care, helping on education, good housing," Bentsen said on ABC. "All of those are very major issues for our country."

Man held on assault charge

A Hereford man was arrested Monday in Hereford on a warrant from Lubbock County on charges of aggravated sexual assault of a 13-year-old girl Monday after he allegedly assaulted her in a Lubbock motel room Saturday while the Hereford Kids, Inc. girls softball all-star team he was coaching was participating in a tournament.

Julian Zamora Chavarria Jr., 31, of 401 Bradley St., was arrested and is being held in lieu of $50,000 bond in the Deaf Smith County Jail after the girl returned from the softball tournament Sunday and reported the alleged assault to her father who reported it to police, said Detective Mike Ahrens.

According to police reports, the girl knocked on Chavarria's door to get a ride to the ballpark when the reported assault occurred.

An examination at Deaf Smith General Hospital did verify that the girl showed physical evidence of being sexually assaulted.

Police arrest four

The Hereford Police Department arrested a 32-year-old man for public intoxication; a man, 24, for having no liability insurance and having fictitious license tags; a 20-year-old man was charged with minor in consumption of alcohol and contest of speed and a man, 31, was arrested on charges of aggravated sexual assault of a child.

A two-wheel dolly worth $125 was stolen from the 200 block of south 25 Mile Avenue; a gun worth $65 was stolen in the 400 block of 25 Mile Avenue; neighbor problems were reported in the 200 block of North Street; window screens were cut in the 200 block of Juniper Street; a suspicious person was reported in the 200 block of Higgins Street; a family disturbance was reported in the 500 block of Avenue G; burglary of a motor vehicle occurred on east Park Avenue;

Children were reportedly shoplifting at a local store; criminal mischief worth $300 was reported in the 100 block of Centre Street; children on four-wheelers were reported in the 200 block of Norton Street; assault was reported in the 600 block of Star Street; criminal trespassing and criminal mischief were reported in the 700 block of Avenue H and children were caught littering on U.S. Highway 385. Five citations were issued.

County activity light

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office reported that a reported missing person from the Valley was located and shipped back home and a civil dispute southeast of Hereford is to be settled in Justice of the Peace Court.

A 25-year-old man was arrested on a warrant from the Justice of the Peace for disorderly conduct and failure to identify to a police officer.

Dukakis likely to garner nomination

ATLANTA (AP) — Energized by waves of rhetoric ridiculing George Bush, the Democratic Party awards its presidential nomination tonight to Michael Dukakis, suburbanite son of immigrants and spokesman for a new political generation.

Both Dukakis and Jesse Jackson will have their names entered in nomination at the Democratic National Convention but when the roll is called, it will be the steel-tempered Massachusetts governor, not the fiery preacher-politician, who will triumph.

Dukakis will claim his prize with an acceptance speech Thursday night following the convention's ratification of his choice of a Southern moderate, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, as running mate.

Jackson had his night in the spotlight Tuesday, delivering a graceful swan song before a noisy and excited house. Citing dangerous overcrowding, police sealed all entrances to the Omni shortly before Jackson spoke, locking out about 1,000 delegates, guests and reporters.

Prosecutor says Meese probably committed crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — A prosecutor decides he won't seek an indictment, but tells the world that the subject of his investigation — Attorney General Edwin Meese III — probably broke the law.

Why wasn't Meese charged with a crime, and was it unfair of independent counsel James McKay to announce that the attorney general likely violated two criminal tax statutes and, on two occasions, a federal conflict-of-interest provision?

"If this happened in a routine case, if (U.S. Attorney) Rudy Giuliani said, 'I've been investigating ABC brokerage house and I've concluded they violated the law and I could probably convince a jury, but I'm not going to indict,' that's not a proper use of prosecutorial power," said Stephen Gillers, a New York University law professor and ethics expert.

In that context, "there's something to Meese's argument" that McKay treated him unfairly, Gillers said. "But I think McKay and Meese are a different animal. McKay has an obligation to explain the reasons for his actions. The attorney general gets extra scrutiny and that comes with the territory."

Others, particularly conservatives, disagree.

"What McKay has done is turn the office of independent counsel into an engine to destroy reputations without any judicial trial," said Bruce Fein, an associate deputy attorney general in 1981-82 and formerly with the conservative Heritage Foundation.

Inside the hall, Jackson declared, "We meet tonight at a crossroads, a point of decision. Shall we expand, be inclusive, find unity and power, or suffer division and impotence?"

"The only time we win is when we come together," Jackson said, as his supporters waved a sea of red banners proclaiming, "Jesse." On orders from Dukakis' floor leaders, the governor's supporters kept their own blue-colored placards out of sight.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and other speakers trained their sights on Vice President Bush, the certain nominee when the Republicans convene next month in New Orleans.

Kennedy derided Bush as the man who "keeps burying his head in his hands and hiding from the record of the Reagan-Bush mistakes."

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower told the delegates that Bush was a "toothache of a man" who doesn't care about the problems of anyone but the rich.

"George has always been in another world. His is an upper-class world in which wealth is given to you at birth," Hightower said. "He is a man who was born on third base and thinks he hit a triple."

Even before Jackson mounted the podium, the convention had rebuffed his calls for higher taxes on the wealthy and a pledge to reject the first use of nuclear weapons. Instead, delegates approved a Dukakis-endorsed platform worded in such general terms that it won't provide much of a target for Republicans.

Showing no sign of defeat, Jackson told the delegates, "Tonight I salute Gov. Michael Dukakis. He has run a well-managed and dignified campaign. No matter how tired or how tried, he always resisted the temptation to stoop to demagoguery."

Yet, Jackson did not offer Dukakis an endorsement, probably because his own candidacy is alive for a few more hours. "I'll make the appropriate decision at the appropriate time," Jackson said later.

Stressing the need for unity with Dukakis, Jackson said, "His foreparents came to American in immigrant ships. My foreparents came to American in slave ships."

"But whatever the original ships, we are in the same boat tonight."

In a message he had sounded hundreds of times on the campaign trail, Jackson said, "I was born in the slum. But the slum was not born in me. And it wasn't born in you. You can make it."

"Keep hope alive! Keep hope alive! Keep hope alive," he shouted in conclusion, sparking an eruption of cheers and applause.

Tonight, Dukakis' name will be put in nomination by Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, who said he wants to make clear "why he's the right person for president for this time."

Discovery launch set back

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Engineers are trying to fix a tiny gas leak in the space shuttle, but there's a 50-50 chance Discovery will have to be rolled back from the launch pad to a hangar for repairs, says Kennedy Space Center's director.

Taking Discovery off the pad would delay the first launch since the Challenger disaster, now scheduled for early September, by up to two months, Forrest S. McCartney told reporters Tuesday.

"We wish we had found it (the leak) earlier," McCartney said. "If we had found it when it was accessible, there would have been no problem. But it's in an inaccessible place, and we don't know what we're going to do about it."

"We've got people looking at the prudent and safe thing to do. Whatever course we take there will be no compromise in flight safety."

"The odds are 50-50 on a rollback," McCartney said.

He said no decision was likely until after Discovery's three main engines have been test-fired on the pad in a critical test set for July 28. The main engines are separate from the steering engine system, where the leak is.

The tiny nitrogen tetroxide gas leak was detected Friday in an engine compartment, and was traced to a fitting on a line leading to an oxidizer tank. Nitrogen tetroxide normally combines with fuel to power the steering engines.

Shuttle managers were combing through documents to determine whether workers might have missed a similar leak as early as last January.

Launch Director Bob Sieck said paperwork showed that a pressure check was made on the oxidizer tank manifold in an engine compartment before Christmas, and that a second reading taken two weeks later showed a pressure drop.

The pressure drop occurred in the same area as the one detected in January.

"We are reviewing all procedures and documentation and equipment associated with that event," Sieck said.

The earlier readings may have been within specifications, he said. "And I wouldn't preclude the fact that we have other data that says the integrity of the joint was confirmed."

"Until a final review is in it is pure speculation that a requirement was violated and not reported," Sieck said.

The problem with fixing the leak on the pad is that the 22-foot-tall engine compartment probably would have to be removed, a difficult task never done there before.

Another option would be to take Discovery to a hangar and replace the compartment as soon as possible with one being prepared for a November flight by Atlantis. Such a move would eliminate the need to wait for a leak repair, and could cut the launch delay to about a month.

Flying with the leak is a possibility, "but we would have to assure ourselves that it would be absolutely safe," Sieck said.

Texans back Dukakis' side at convention

ATLANTA (AP) — The Texas delegation's votes on controversial platform proposals at the Democratic National Convention should serve as a preview of tonight's vote that will give Michael Dukakis the presidential nomination.

The Dukakis delegates, backed by Texans who had supported defeated candidates Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore Jr. or Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt, mustered 123 votes against a Jesse Jackson-backed proposal to increase taxes on the rich.

The Jackson forces picked up 72 votes on that issue, and a similar number on a Jackson proposal for a ban on first-strike use of nuclear weapons by the United States.

Both proposals were voted down by the convention.

Tonight's nomination vote should give Dukakis about 141 Texas votes. That will include delegates who were in the bathroom or otherwise not around for the Tuesday platform votes. Jackson is expected to get about 70 of Texas' 211 votes.

Projections show Dukakis will have more than enough votes before Texas is called on to announce its votes tonight.

The Tuesday platform votes came after some of the Texas delegates took lessons in style and substance. Graham Allison of Boston, dean of the John F. Kennedy School of Government and a foreign policy adviser to Dukakis, handled the substance lesson for the Dukakis delegates.

He gave them a quick course in the intricacies of the situation in the Middle East and how to avoid war with the Soviet Union.

Several other officials talked about style. The key lessons were: be in your seat; make a lot of noise when appropriate and ooze unity.

"We are going to take care of business before TV comes on and then get back to the business of unity," the Dukakis delegates were told by Peter Giangreco, the official Texas delegate tracker for the Dukakis campaign.

Indeed, the key votes came hours before prime time.

Billy Horton, representing the Democratic National Committee, told the Dukakis delegates to stay in their seats on the convention floor at all times.

"It makes it look a lot more organized on TV and that's what we're concerned about," he said.

Texas Railroad Commissioner John Sharp cautioned against being too organized.

"We don't want this looking like a Republican convention," he said.

Letter to the Editor

Dear editor:

With reference to Bob Baker's letter in the July 17 Sunday Brand concerning the new distance markers at the golf course, I would like to offer the correct facts.

City Manager McGill did not have anything to do with the distance markers being placed in the fairways, and probably doesn't even know about them, unless he read about it in the paper. I'm sure he will be pleased with the improvement. Also, the city did not spend any money or contribute any manhours on the markers.

The distance markers are made from worn-out plow disks. The project is an accomplishment of the Hereford Women's Golf Association (HWGA). They have been trying for some time to get this done; since they were hosting the Hi-Plains Ladies Playday on July 13, they felt it needed to be done now.

On July 12, HWGA members Mary Shelton, Rose Marie Robinson and Pat Goforth, assisted by Duane Albracht, spent most of the day obtaining, painting, measuring, and placing the disks in the fairway. Thanks to Cecil Oglesby for donating some of the disks, while the others were purchased, with HWGA money, from a local scrap iron dealer.

The distance markers do, indeed, compliment the golf course, and I personally think they were needed.

My thanks, and rightly so, for this project and many others goes to the HWGA and other individuals who have undertaken project to improve our municipal golf course at no expense to the taxpayers. Also, thanks to Duane for spending his day off helping get this particular project mostly completed for the playday.

Hereford has a fine golf course, one to be proud of. However, to keep it that way every effort must be made by the city to improve upkeep and upgrade the course as the budget allows.

Dry mouth remedies include water

ORADELL, N.J. (AP) — Medication, emotional stress and dehydration all can cause dry mouth, characterized by a significant decrease in saliva flow.

Doctors suggest the following to reduce discomfort:

- Drink more water and other fluids, except acidic juices and alcohol.
- Carry water with you if possible.
- Stop smoking.
- Avoid eating dry or coarse foods but keep a sound diet.
- Avoid commercial mouthwashes.

The risk of tooth decay also is associated with dry mouth, says Patient Care, so don't forget to see your dentist about recommendations for a program of oral hygiene.

Iranians dislike resolution

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said today that accepting a U.N. resolution calling for a cease-fire in the Iran-Iraq war was "worse than drinking poison," but that Iran's political leaders recommended it be done.

It was the first statement from the 87-year-old leader since Iran announced Monday it was accepting the resolution passed by the Security Council on July 20, 1987.

Iraq called the announcement a trick to buy time.

Also today, an Iraqi military spokesman said two Iranian jet fighters tried to bomb the Dokan Dam near the northern city of Kirkuk but were chased off by anti-aircraft fire.

The jets dropped their bombs but missed the target, according to Iraqi press reports monitored in Cyprus. The spokesman was not identified.

Iran and Iraq have been at war since September 1980.

DOING AS WE PLEASE

By Bob Wear

Doing as we please is probably the most certain way to create the situation in which it is impossible to do as we please. This attitude of mind produces the kind of unrestrained and misguided action that will fashion the worst possible social climate.

Permissiveness is the principal degrading element in this grossly false, and obviously destructive life style. It is the most perverted concept of personal freedom and personal rights, and it will, in time, curtail and perhaps destroy the most helpful and desirable rights of humankind.

Life out-of-control is not life, because it is too close to death to be called life. We know that uncontrolled and misdirected power is destructive, and the uncontrolled life-power is perhaps the most destructive of all.

"False notions of liberty are strangely common. People talk of it as if it meant the liberty of doing whatever one likes—whereas the only liberty that a man, worthy of the name of man, ought to ask for, is to have all restrictions, inward and outward, removed that prevent his doing what he ought."

The foolish notion that we should be able to do as we please is closely associated with the worst kind of insecurity. This insecurity, on its own, can practically destroy the vitality that is so essential to the best of living. The sense of meaninglessness increases until nothing seems worthwhile, and there is a nagging feeling that something has gone wrong. With this attitude, in time, everything will go wrong.

We are anti-self, and anti-social in assuming the unwise view that we can do as we please. This spirit of personal permissiveness places our course on the lonely road of diminishing returns.

There must be control, discipline and restraint in the successful action of everything. This applies to the physical, moral and spiritual aspects of the living experience. "Liberty exists in proportion to wholesome restraint." (Daniel Webster)

NOT HAUNTED, JUST HUMID

NEW YORK (AP) - When your house creaks and groans at night, it doesn't mean it's haunted.

"What you hear is the wood contracting and expanding as it picks up and gives off moisture," says wood specialist Julian Beckwith in Family Circle magazine.

The substance that gives wood its main structure - cellulose - attracts water from the air. Old buildings often make more noise than newer ones that have modern air conditioning and heating to keep the humidity constant.

Amy Mason honored at bridal shower July 9

Amy Mason was feted with a morning bridal shower July 9 in the home of Carmen Flood. The honoree and Rodney Dale "Gitch" Greer of Canyon will exchange wedding vows Saturday afternoon in First Christian Church of Hereford.

Refreshments of coffee, juice, cinnamon rolls, bacon crisps, assorted fruits, and sausage balls were served from a table centered with an arrangement of teal and pink flowers.

Special guests included the honoree's mother, Mrs. Don Tindal; the prospective groom's mother, Mrs. Joe Dale Greer of Stinnett; and the bride's grandmother, Jonnie Tindal.

Out-of-town guests included the honoree's cousins, Mrs. Darrell Mason and Vickie Crim; and her aunt, Alma Crim.

A comforter was given to Miss Mason by the hostesses: Marguerite Cole, Della Hutchins, Betty Stephan, Carleta Harkins, Dickie Dobbins, Kay Williams, Virginia Self, Flood, Randi Griffin, Kathy Christie, Mary Hamby, Beth Gearn, Lori Hall and Linda Frye.

SHORT SUBJECT

NEW YORK (AP) - Movie audiences are growing by 4 percent a year, despite increased competition from video cassettes and rising admission costs.

In return though, moviegoers now want more for the bigger bucks they are putting down at the box office. And that could mean a return to entertainment "extras," such as serials and short subjects, says producer Stan Zeitlin.

Hough's knuckler paces Texas over Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — In his first three starts in July, all resulting in losses, Charlie Hough pitched with what he described as a "dead tired" right arm. But the condition is nothing new, nothing so earth shattering.

"I've more or less been like this for 20 years," the 40-year old knuckleballer said. "I'm not known for having the strongest arm in the history of baseball. Why do you think I throw like this? I'd much rather blow away people like Roger Clemens, but it didn't work out that way."

Hough, enduring an almost two-hour rain delay, allowed only four hits in seven innings Tuesday night, winning his first game since June 29 and helping the Texas Rangers to a 7-2 victory over the New York Yankees. Scott Fletcher led a 16-hit attack with three hits and Steve Buechele knocked in three runs.

Hough, 9-10, gave up two singles, a double, and Joel Skinner's two-out fifth-inning homer while walking one and striking out six. It was Hough's first victory over the Yankees since July 17, 1984, as he ended a six-game losing streak against the club.

"That's a pretty good lineup they have," he said. "And I only made one mistake against them. That's not a bad night's work and not a bad way to break out of a slump."

With his team ahead 7-0 in the fifth, Hough made his mistake by trying to slip a 1-0 fastball past Skinner, who grounded out his first time up. The pitch ran down the middle of the plate and Skinner hit it 410 feet to left-center for his third home run of the season.

"All I wanted was for him to put it in play," Hough said with a growing smile. "But I didn't know that he would put it so far into play. That was pretty rude of him. If I had known he would do that, I would have thrown him something else."

The Yankees managed little off of Hough's dancing knuckle ball, putting only one runner in scoring position in the first seven innings.

"When he's on like that, throwing strikes, he's almost impossible to hit," Yankees manager Lou Piniella said. "It's when he's off and when that knuckle ball starts flying around the plate, that's when you get to him.

But he had it pretty much under control tonight, real tough."

Hough hadn't been the same since throwing 11 scoreless innings in a 1-0 victory over Seattle four starts ago. Over his next three starts, he allowed 13 earned runs and 14 hits in 16 innings while building a three-game losing streak.

"That game against the Mariners really ate up my arm," he said. "It's taken this much time and some medication to get me back where I'm feeling good on the mound again."

The Rangers, breaking from an extended batting slump, scored three runs in each of the first and third innings off starter John Candelaria, 10-6. They scored once more in the fifth off reliever Steve Shields.

"We got some timely hits with men on base," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine, whose club entered the game with 14 runs in its last seven games. "That's what we've been lacking. I hope it's here for more than just one game. I hope it's here to stay for a while."

Mike Stanley hit a two-out RBI single in the first and Buechele followed with a two-run double. Buechele singled in another run in the third and Jeff Kunkel, two at-bats later, hit a two-run double. Cecil Espy drove in the Rangers' final run with a single that scored Bob Brower.

Craig McMurtry closed out Hough's game with two innings of one-hit relief. He allowed a run in the ninth on Luis Aguayo's third hit of the game, an RBI single that scored Jack Clark from second base.

The game was delayed in the fourth inning by one hour, 47 minutes. The second delay came in the bottom of the ninth and lasted 26 minutes.

Astros edge Montreal, 4-3

MONTREAL (AP) — Pascual Perez was hardly his effusive self after his first loss at home as a starting pitcher with the Montreal Expos.

Perez brushed past reporters without saying a word after Montreal lost 4-3 to the Houston Astros Tuesday night — the club's third straight defeat.

Perez, 6-4, who joined the Expos last August, didn't pitch badly, yielding just four hits in seven innings. But he was victimized by a strong performance from Houston starter Mike Scott, 9-2, and a couple of his own mistakes.

The first miscue occurred in the sixth inning when Perez threw Glenn Davis one of his "Pascualball" bloopers, a pitch that has embarrassed a number of NL hitters this season.

This time it was Perez who was embarrassed as Davis, a slow-pitch softball player in the off-season, timed it, and after double striding, blasted it into the left-field seats for his 21st homer.

"I guess you could say he went to the well once too often because the guy hit it out," said Expos manager Buck Rodgers. "But those are just the breaks. It's an effective pitch for him because it complements his repertoire. I don't want to see him stop throwing it."

The second Perez mistake, set up by Expos shortstop Luis Rivera's throwing error, resulted in what proved to be the deciding run for Houston in the seventh.

Rivera had plenty of time on a routine bouncer by Rafael Ramirez, but fired wildly for a two-base error. Ramirez went to third on an infield out and scored when Perez threw a wild pitch with two outs and Scott batting.

"We just gave them that run," said Rodgers.

The Astros jumped on Perez quickly in the first inning when Gerald Young hit his first pitch for a triple and scored on Terry Puhl's one-out single.

Montreal tied it when Nelson Santovenia doubled home Hubie Brooks in the second, but the Astros regained the lead when Davis doubled home Puhl in the fourth.

Davis boosted the lead to 3-1 with his homer on the "pitch" in the sixth inning.

"I'm glad he threw it," said Scott, who yielded six hits and struck out 11 batters in 8 2-3 innings to win for the first time since June 16. "It's not the kind of pitch I'd throw in that situation, but then again, I'm not Perez." The Expos did get one back in the seventh when Tim Wallach scored from third on Santovenia's infield out, and engineered a last-gasp rally that just fell short with two down in the ninth.

"It got a little scary there at the end," said Scott, who was looking for his fifth complete game.

The Houston pitcher quickly retired Brooks and Wallach, but Tom Foley doubled and went to third on Santovenia's infield single.

That brought on Dave Smith, who balked home Foley before throwing a pitch to pinch-hitter Wallace Johnson.

Smith then fell behind 2-0 to Johnson, before inducing the batter to bounce out to first to end the game and pick up his 16th save.

"I was just too anxious," said Johnson. "He threw me a slider which I usually try to hit to center, but this time I pulled it."

FITCH'S GOAL

HOUSTON (AP) — Bill Fitch's ambition was to win an NBA championship with a second team, in this case, the Houston Rockets. The ambition was not realized in the 1987-88 season. He then was fired.

Bass Club holds meet

The Hereford Bass Club held its eighth tournament of the year Saturday and Sunday at Conchas Lake, N.M., with Tim Homer winning the points total and Ronnie Bell landing the biggest bass of the day.

Homer won with 129 points, outdistancing Lowell Rusher, second, and Scott Taylor, third.

Jim Taylor still leads the season points totals with 735. Second-place Bruce Johnson made up a few points on Taylor last weekend, but still trails by 43 points.

Season point standings are:

1. Jim Taylor 735
2. Bruce Johnson 692
3. Scott Taylor 554
4. Tim Homer 551
5. Sharon Johnson 529½
6. Ronnie Bell 513
7. Jerry Walker 488
8. Don Taylor 466
9. Lowell Rusher 436½
10. Eric Fowler 356½

In the junior division, Brendan Lee picked up 10 points last weekend to take a 10-point lead over Darren Nikkel in the season point standings.

The club's next meeting will be held July 26 at 7:30 p.m. at West Texas Rural Telephone.

Chaney happy with deal

HOUSTON (AP) — New Houston Rockets Coach Don Chaney was a big factor in free agent Mike Woodson's decision to sign a five-year contract with the team.

"Don had a lot to do with it," Woodson said Tuesday of his decision to sign with Houston and reunite with Chaney. Chaney coached Woodson while with the Los Angeles Clippers and they are friends off the court.

The Rockets made room for Woodson by trading popular guard Robert Reid Monday to the NBA expansion team Charlotte Hornets.

Woodson, 30, said deciding with which team to play was a new experience for him since he's been traded three times throughout his nine-year National Basketball Association career.

"I wanted to get out of L.A.," said the 6-foot-5, 198-pound guard who played for the Los Angeles Clippers the last two seasons. "The last two years has been very, very frustrating as far as winning ballgames.

NFL tightens steroid policies

NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL is getting tougher on the use of steroids, which for more than a decade turned some marginal players into near-300-pounders. But Commissioner Pete Rozelle says the league won't crack down on steroid users the way it has on other drug abusers.

This season, for the first time, the league is making players who use steroids subject to discipline by Rozelle. The warning was contained in Rozelle's annual drug-use memo sent to all NFL training camps.

But the discipline was not specified in the 15-page document and league officials sought to play down the change.

"Last year, we tested the players for anabolic steroids for the first time; this year we are again testing," NFL spokesman Joe Browne said Tuesday. "The difference this year is that we have told the players that they could face possible disciplinary action. However, I am not suggesting suspensions for testing positive for anabolic steroids at this time."

Doctors and other critics of steroids have long warned of the adverse side effects, including the long-term possibility of cancer, sterility and various other maladies or diseases.

The NCAA began a testing program two years ago that resulted in several football players, including All-American linebacker Brian Bosworth of Oklahoma, being barred from bowl games. Bosworth, who said he took steroids only once, now plays for the Seattle Seahawks.

Rozelle's first mention of steroids was in his 1987 message on prohibited drugs, which also mentioned cocaine, marijuana and amphetamines.

"The league no longer merely condemns the misuses of these substances," he said in last year's memo. "They are prohibited in any quantity for any purpose."

That phrase also was contained in this year's message.

Renfro wishes for better luck

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Mike Renfro got the word on "Dr. Death's" eighth-place finish in a stakes race at Hawthorne the day he arrived in Dallas Cowboys' training camp.

"I hope it isn't symbolic of the way things are going to go for me here," said Renfro, who is among a talented group of wide receivers trying to make the Cowboys' team and also the owner of the budding three-year-old thoroughbred.

The 11-year veteran Renfro is once again trying to fend off a number one draft pick. This time it's Mike Irvin of Miami, who has been a training camp sensation.

Club president Tex Schramm said "It's going to be tough for Mike to make the team this year. Irvin has looked great."

"It will be the third number one draft choice I've faced," Renfro says. "There is usually always somebody trying to take my job. This year the kid is really good."

He added the Cowboys "have six or seven tremendous receivers. It's the best group the Cowboys have ever put together. Coach (Tom) Landry is going to have some difficult decisions to make that's for sure."

Renfro broke into the NFL with the Houston Oilers as a rookie out of Texas Christian who was rated too slow to last long in the pros.

"I got a job as a rookie because Billy White Shoes (Johnson) got into a contract dispute," Renfro says. "That's how I got my shot. It's how I got my chance."

Renfro says he would accept a backup role this year should Irvin win the job at the wing position.

"I can play either side and it doesn't bother me," Renfro says. "But there is also a chance I could get cut. If that happens I might have to look at going somewhere else. I've worked hard in the offseason and I don't want that to go for nothing. I've made a commitment to play football in 1988. He had talked of retirement after the 1987 season but admitted "the Texas economy put some business deals I had on hold."

Besides Irvin, Renfro must beat out such talented receivers as Kelvin Edwards, Everett Gay, Rod Barksdale, Kelvin Martin and Gordon Banks.

"A tremendous group," Renfro said.

Renfro was deflated by the defeat of his thoroughbred, "Dr. Death" after the horse had won five of six races and earned $182,000 this year.

"It was an off track and that could have hurt him," said Renfro, who owns 50 per cent of the horse. "It would have been $95,000 if we had won that race. It would have put a lot of worries behind."

Allen becoming Houston holdout

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — Houston Oiler cornerback Patrick Allen is negotiating his third contract with General Manager Ladd Herzeg and so far it hasn't been the charm.

Allen will officially become a holdout at 6 p.m. today if he doesn't sign a contract and report to training camp with other Oiler veterans.

Allen doesn't think that will happen. "At the pace they are going now, it's going to be two or three weeks," Allen said Tuesday.

Allen and fellow starting cornerback Steve Brown unsigned along with three other 1987 Oiler starters.

Herzeg offered Tuesday to trade either Allen or Brown to the San Francisco 49ers for unhappy 49er cornerback starter Tim McKyer.

Allen doesn't let that bother him. "This is my third negotiation with Ladd and you just have to stay open-minded and don't get too involved and let your attorney take care of it," Allen said.

"If that's what he wants to do, fine, I could live with it, I don't take it personally. That would not be a part of my character."

Oiler rookies reported for their first workouts today with the veterans scheduled to take the field Thursday.

In addition to Brown and Allen, center Jay Pennison, nose tackle Doug Smith, and kicker Tony Zendejas were unsigned.

The Oilers signed tight end Jamie Williams Tuesday along with sixth round pick linebacker Kurt Crain of Auburn and 10th round selection wide receiver Marco Johnson of Hawaii.

But Rozelle went farther this year, noting that detection of steroid use during a camp-opening drug test will subject the player to random testing for "reasonable cause," similar to that imposed on those who test positive for other substances.

If such a finding is made at training camp, Rozelle said, the player will be re-tested within four weeks. If that test turns up positive, he will then undergo a complete medical evaluation by the team physician and the NFL's drug advisor, Dr. Forrest Tennant.

"Each instance in which a second positive test for anabolic steroids is confirmed will be handled on a case-by-case basis," Rozelle wrote. "Involved players will be subject to appropriate discipline by the commissioner."

"I back the family insurance I sell with good neighbor service. Call me."

Learn to barbecue like a pro

When summer heat turns the kitchen into an oven, head outdoors for a barbecue. Long a favorite summer pastime, barbecuing is a simple cooking process that's convenient and fun.

Here are a few barbecue set-up tips:

- Remove ash and debris from the barbecue pit to allow maximum air circulation. Make sure air holes are clear.
- Arrange charcoal briquets in a wide mound to facilitate heating.
- Apply a liberal amount of lighter fluid to the briquets.

- As a safety precaution, use long wooden matches to ignite fluid.
 - When the flames die and the briquets glow, spread out mound to ensure even heat distribution. It takes approximately 45 minutes until the coals turn ash white and the fire is hot enough for cooking.

- Store unused portions of hot dogs, potato chips and cheese in their original resealable zippered packaging for reuse.
 - Never leave a barbecue unattended. When the cooking is done and the marshmallows toasted, douse coals with water to extinguish the fire.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Today, I quit. I walked out on an executive position in a major electronics company. I decided to stop chasing after the newest, the best, the most state-of-the-art in everything. It suddenly dawned on me that I had my priorities boggled up and my children deserve better.
 I had to admit that getting fulfillment from my career was a pipe dream. It may elude me in motherhood as well, but I now know what really matters. After nine years of paying someone to raise my children, I was forced to admit that my family is more important to me than anything else. I wish I had known this when my first child was born.
 I am now 36 years old and happy to say that we are expecting our third child in a few months. If the good Lord keeps my body going, we may have four. This means cutting down on vacations, and our entertaining will be reduced to popcorn and video parties with a few old friends. But that's what we like best anyway.

An acquaintance has this framed motto on his office wall: "No success in life can compensate for failure at home." I don't know who said it, but it certainly is true. Sign me—Truly Liberated in Saratoga, Calif.

DEAR TRULY: Your letter is sure to elicit a strong response from career women with children who were miserable staying at home and decided it would be better for all concerned if they went back to work.

I will also hear from angry mothers who are divorced and must work in order to make ends meet, as well as married women whose families cannot hack it on one paycheck.

There is no one answer to this dilemma that is right for everyone, but the authorities I respect recommend that the mother stay at home with a new baby for at least six months, and for a year if possible. This recommendation makes a great deal of sense to me.

How much do you know about pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? Think you can handle them? For up-to-the minute information on drugs, write for Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION THE STATE OF TEXAS

TO: WILLIAM OTIS PEIFER, aka W.O. PEIFER, FLORENCE PEIFER, FAYE PEIFER, KENNETH PEIFER, CLEM PEIFER, JUNE PEIFER, and if such person be deceased, the unknown heirs of WILLIAM OTIS PEIFER, FLORENCE PEIFER, FAYE PEIFER, KENNETH PEIFER, CLEM PEIFER, and JUNE PEIFER, Defendants, Greeting:

YOU (AND EACH OF YOU) ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to appear before the District Court of Deaf Smith County at the Courthouse thereof, in Hereford, Texas, by filing a written answer at or before 10 o'clock A.M. of the first Monday next after the expiration of forty-two days from the date of the issuance of this citation, same being the 8th day of August A.D. 1988, to Plaintiff's Petition filed in said court, on the 23 day of June A.D. 1988, in this cause, numbered C1-88F-972 on the docket of said court and styled RICHARD FORTENBERRY and wife, DIXIE D. FORTENBERRY, Plaintiffs, vs. WILLIAM OTIS PEIFER, aka W.O. PEIFER, FLORENCE PEIFER, FAYE PEIFER, KENNETH PEIFER, CLEM PEIFER, JUNE PEIFER, and if such persons be deceased, the unknown heirs of WILLIAM OTIS PEIFER, FLORENCE PEIFER, FAYE PEIFER, KENNETH PEIFER, CLEM PEIFER, and JUNE PEIFER, Defendants.

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows, to-wit:

A trespass to try title suit seeking title and possession to all the North 100 acres of the East 320 acres of Section No. 18, Township 3 North, Range 1 East, of the Capital Syndicate Subdivision, Deaf Smith County, Texas, specifically alleging as grounds for recovery the ten (10) and twenty-five (25) year Statutes of Limitations.

If this citation is not served within ninety days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.

The officer executing this writ shall promptly serve the same according to requirements of law, and the mandates hereof, and make due return as the law directs.

Witness, Lola Faye Veazey, Clerk of the District Court(s) of Deaf Smith County, Texas.

Issued and given under my hand and the seal of said court at Hereford, Texas, this the 23 day of June, A.D. 1988.

ARE YOU PUTTING ME ON?
MAKE THE CONNECTION FOR SAFETY!

ASK DR. LAMB

DEAR DR. LAMB: Recently I learned that you can have little heart attacks, angina heart pain, without pain, and that these silent episodes could be more dangerous than the heart pain people experience. That has really bothered me. How can you tell if you are having little heart attacks if they occur without pain? How do the doctors know that you are having them? Does this mean that a lot of people are walking around out there, myself included, who may be having these little heart attacks and don't even know it? If you are having these, does that mean you are more likely to have the big one soon?

DEAR READER: There is nothing new about silent heart disease. As many as 25 percent to 35 percent of heart attacks occur without the person being aware that they have happened. My colleagues and I observed that in annual electrocardiograms taken by the U.S. Air Force flight crews. Sometime between examinations the person could have had a heart attack and not even know it. It has been confirmed by many other investigators and by studies of hearts in patients who have died from other causes.

And there is nothing new about the first warning a person may have of heart disease being a regular heart attack or dropping dead. That is why preventive measures, before there are any symptoms, are so important. You are probably talking about silent ischemia. When you have angina pectoris that causes a squeezing or pressure sensation in the chest, you are not getting enough blood to part of the heart muscle. That is called ischemia. And you can have these ischemic attacks without pain. Most of the studies have been done in patients who have silent ischemia in addition to painful ischemia - angina.

There is no evidence that individuals who have silent ischemia and who do not have known heart disease or attacks with symptoms are more prone to a heart attack in the near future. For years doctors have really checked people for silent ischemia by doing an exercise electrocardiogram test. That is one way to tell if a person is having silent ischemia or not. Read "Heart Ischemia" in THE HEALTH LETTER 31-12, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER 31-12, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. The risk factors are still the best predictors in people without known heart disease of their future chances of having a heart attack.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I donate blood yearly at my company's annual blood drive, and I just wanted to know if there are any health risks for a healthy person to donate blood. I never heard anything negative about donating blood. Usually the emphasis at blood-drive time is on the humanitarian aspects of donating.

The only thing I have noticed is feeling just a little bit tired for a day or so after donating. Is that normal? DEAR READER: If a person really is healthy and has a normal amount of blood and no anemia, there is no significant health risk to donating blood. The only risk really would be a black-and-blue spot if you happened to leak a little blood around the place where the needle was inserted.

The needle and all equipment is sterile, and there is no danger of getting any disease from giving the blood. You might feel a little tired the next day, but most people do not. It is probably not a good idea to engage in vigorous physical activity for the rest of that day. The blood you give is rapidly replaced. Your bone marrow just speeds up producing new blood cells.

DEAR DR. LAMB: You recently had a column about gout. You said it is not caused by diet. My last two attacks came after eating shrimp. My doctor said this should not cause it. What do you think? You did not mention shrimp as a food to stay away from. I am interested in how to get a low purine diet. What type of foods would cause a rise in your uric acid?

DEAR READER: It is understood today that the major source of uric acid is from a person's own cells. It is a spin off from the formation of nucleic acids for the nucleus of your cells. Some people have a gene system that produces an excess amount which is not converted to other products. For example, individuals who form a lot of new blood cells because of certain disorders may have a high uric acid.

Diet plays some role, but it is minor compared to what your own cells do. That is why one of the better medicines for gout today is Zylorim, which prevents the formation of the excess uric acid. Other medicines are used to increase the elimination through the kidneys of excess urate formed from uric acid. Still other medicines are used to control the pain of an acute gout attack.

Despite this, I think it is wise to refrain from using a lot of the purine-rich foods. The purine is used to make uric acid. I have included a classification of common foods as to their purine content in my new Special Report 86, Gout: The Disease of Kings, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/86, P.O. Box 19622. As you will see from the report I'm sending you, shrimp contains only a moderate amount of purine - 50 to 150 mg in 100 grams. The usual recommendation is not to eat more than one serving a day of the foods that contain a moderate amount of purine.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Oh, Bull

Durham on DL for abuse

CINCINNATI (AP) — Leon Durham's substance-abuse problem is another argument for mandatory drug testing in the major leagues, Cincinnati Reds general manager Murray Cook says.

Cook announced Tuesday that Durham, who missed three games in a weekend series in Montreal, has agreed to enter a substance-abuse program. Cook declined to be more specific about Durham's problem.

"There needs to be some sort of definitive drug program brought forth between management and the players, one that would include the possibility of testing," Cook said.

There's currently no mandatory drug testing in major-league baseball.

"I think it's a shame," Cook said. "I don't think it works to the benefit of anybody."

Durham is the second Reds player to go into a substance-abuse program this year. Outfielder Eddie Milner missed the first two months of the season because of a cocaine relapse.

"I just hope he's OK," Milner said Tuesday night, following an 11-2 victory over the New York Mets. "I couldn't tell (he had a problem). All I want to say about it is I wish him luck. He has my support."

Durham, a Cincinnati native, was acquired by the Reds from the Chicago Cubs on May 18 for reliever Pat Perry and cash. He was supposed to start at first base while Nick Esasky recovered from a severe ankle sprain, but he pulled back muscles and ended up on the disabled list himself May 27.

When Durham was activated, he platooned at first with Esasky for a while, then was relegated to pinch-hitting and occasional starts. He was hitting .216 with one homer and two runs batted in for Cincinnati in 21 games.

Wanted: Pro sports teams

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

They sold out spiffy, new Pilot Field in Buffalo twice in the last couple of weeks, first for an oldtimers' game and then for the first-ever Triple A minor league All-Star game.

In a month or so, the town might break the record for minor league attendance in a season, without benefit of a pulsating pennant race.

With Buffalo far behind in their American Association division, you can assume that the fans are showing up for something other than the Bisons. They're coming out to certify themselves as big league, a popular pastime in America today.

A major league sports team gets a town pumped up. It is why otherwise proud municipalities happily stand, hat in hand, all but begging for a franchise. The latest winners in this derby are Charlotte, Miami, Minneapolis and Orlando, all added to the NBA in a single burst of enthusiasm a couple of years ago with little concern for the resulting roster quality.

When baseball gets around to expanding — Commissioner Peter Ueberroth promised last week that it won't be long now — there will be a fistful of cities anxious to plunk down big bucks for a franchise. Besides Buffalo, they will include Denver, disappointed in this business before, and Washington, carrying the burden of two previous failures.

And there will be St. Petersburg. There are little kids running all over that town these days wearing T-shirts advertising the Florida White Sox. The manufacturer was, as they say, slightly premature. Don't blame him. The town was convinced that the Sox were headed south, and with good reason.

The lures were substantial. There was a handsome new domed stadium nearing completion, a far cry from charming but tired Comiskey Park where the Sox have been playing for, oh, three-quarters of a century or so.

There were substantial tax benefits and a lucrative state-wide television deal. And there was, perhaps most importantly, no other team in town with which to share the spotlight.

In Chicago, the White Sox are the second team, sort of an afterthought. Chicago is the Cubs' town. It always has been and, it seems, it always will be. Chicago has the Bulls and Jordan and the Bears and McMahon. Chicago also has the Blackhawks and the Cubs, and, oh yes, the White Sox. It can give you an inferiority complex.

Then they started tearing up the Dan Ryan Expressway, making access to Comiskey a real trial. It was as if they were testing the commitment of the White Sox and their fans. Some of the faithful will tell you it has always been thus.

So why not pack up all your cares and woes and take the show to St. Pete where northern expatriates are salivating for baseball? Residents of Chicago make that same trip every year for climatological reasons. It seemed like a sensible solution to a perpetual problem.

Being fairminded folks, the proprietors of the White Sox gave Chicago a way to hang on to the home team. It would require a new ballpark across the street from Comiskey and that would require a $150 million package. That is a lot of greenbacks, not the kind of money you come up with by casually dipping into petty cash.

The deadline for the deal was June 30 and, under the stewardship of Gov. James Thompson — a lifelong Cubs fan, naturally; isn't everybody in Illinois? — the legislature approved the package. The vote was 60-55, hardly a resounding margin. Still, it was better than if it had gone 60-55 the other way.

The White Sox, saying they wanted to stay all along, were grateful. The commissioner, happy to avoid a transient franchise condition, was grateful. The only ones who may not be grateful are the visitors to the city who will be paying a 2 percent tax on their hotel and motel rooms to finance the package and the residents who must be relocated to make room for the new stadium.

And, oh yes, there are also the people of St. Petersburg, who have a load of collector's item T-shirts and a nice ballpark but, for now, no team.

Not to worry. Tractor pulls can be very exciting events.
