School okays $24,000 for ED

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The Hereford school board voted Thursday to contribute a maximum of $24,000 for the first year of an economic development effort in Hereford and Deaf Smith County.

The board voted 4-1 to give the money, 20 percent of a projected $120,000 budget, for an effort to secure new business and industry and work to expand current business and industry.

Board member Dennis Newton cast the lone dissenting vote. "I'm not against economic development," Newton explained. "There's nothing more we need. I'm just concerned about the way it is set up."

Superintendent Charles Greenawalt said the schools "need to be very involved in economic development. We need to be sure the economic development will be beneficial to our schools. The key is vision. We can lock ourselves in a black box and not do anything and see things deteriorate. If we want to see our community grow and see our tax base grow, we need to have the backbone to support this."

To come up with the $24,000, the school district may have to raise taxes by one-half cent—although that is not a foregone conclusion.

"I think we are looking at a tax increase whether we do this or not because of state funding problems," explained board member Kathy Moore. "We are trying to do the best we can for the children of our community, and this could be the key to a better future for our children and for all of our community."

The school district could receive a quick return on its investment according to figures provided by Phillip Niedzielski-Eichner, executive director of the Economic Development Strategy Council. EDSC figures indicate that if the school district invests $120,000—$24,000 a year for five years—and the tax base increases by $10 million ("One Frito-Lay or four Gears Industries," Eichner explained) the increased tax revenue would mean the school district would have recouped its investment in seven years and would, if you carry the projections out to 20 years with only $120,000 invested, end up with a little over $1 million. That is an 869 percent return on an investment of $120,000.

"Even if the tax base grows by only $1 million, you would have an 87 percent return on your investment," Eichner told the board. "I have tried to present a conservative approach with these figures, plus they don't include new payroll being spent here and additional sales tax revenues."

"I believe we can grow. Just look at the raw material we have available, and the people here. The business we have here is the best business in the country. We are the leader in Texas and one of the top counties in the country in cattle and agriculture. That has

Life-saving attempt

Emergency personnel, including, from left, L.V. Watts and Joe Hamby, work to try to save the life of Wilton Lynn, 77, of Lubbock after a car-truck crash east of Hereford on Thursday. Rescue personnel worked for about 20 minutes to try to revive the man at the scene, but Lynn was pronounced dead shortly after 2 p.m. from injuries he received in the accident.

Man killed in accident

A retired Methodist minister in the process of moving from Lubbock to Hereford, died Thursday afternoon when his vehicle collided with a tractor-trailer rig at the intersection of U.S. Highway 60 and FM 2943 east of Hereford.

Wilton E. Lynn, 77, was pronounced dead at Deaf Smith General Hospital shortly after 2 p.m. Thursday after almost two hours of attempts to save his life at the scene and at DSGH. The accident occurred at 12:55 p.m.

Lynn was northbound on FM

side the automobile. Bragg was uninjured.

Rescue units from the Hereford Fire Department were forced to use the Jaws of Life rescue tool to free Lynn from the wreckage, then began CPR on the man for about 20 minutes at the scene before transporting him to DSGH.

Reagan stresses human rights

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — President Reagan, emerging from pre-summit isolation, today appealed to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev to enter the Western "House of Democracy" by embracing the values enshrined in the 1975 Helsinki agreement.

Sounding the human rights theme he will stress in their talks in Moscow, Reagan praised Gorbachev's "glasnost" and the openness that has flourished in his three years at the Kremlin helm.

But while dissidents are released from labor camps and books and movies criticizing the communist system gain currency, the president said, "Soviet practice does not — or does not yet — measure up to Soviet commitment."

In the 1975 accord with 36 other nations, the Soviets pledged to provide more liberty for their people and those in Eastern Europe. And yet, 13 years later, Reagan said, the cases of divided families and blocked marriages remain on the East-West agenda, while Russians trying to emigrate are subjected to artificial quotas and arbitrary rulings.

"And what are we to think of the continued suppression of those who wish to practice their religious beliefs?" the president asked.

Reagan spoke in a prepared speech to a Finnish audience in Finlandia Hall, where the Helsinki Final Agreement was signed in 1975.

He said he welcomed every sign that the Soviets and their allies are ready to adopt Western values.

"The House of Democracy is a House whose doors are open to all," Reagan said.

As he spoke, Jewish groups gathered in the Finnish capital to mount public pressure on Moscow in behalf of Soviet Jews waiting for exit permits and those seeking wider latitude to teach and practice their religion.

A Friday evening Sabbath service was planned outside a Lutheran church in an ecumenical display of unity.

In other summit-related developments:

— A top Soviet arms control official in Moscow called on the United States to speed up negotiations on a treaty to cut long-range nuclear arsenals by making good on promises of compromise.

Viktor Karpov, head of the Soviet Foreign Ministry's arms control department and a former chief negotiator at Geneva arms talks, told the Tass news agency the United States had agreed to compromise on several key issues, but then backed off.

"As soon as an issue reaches the American delegation in Geneva, it gets stuck there," he complained.

— And an aide to Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Gorbachev charged that the United States is violating a peace accord by continuing to ship arms to Afghanistan's anti-communist Mujahideen guerrillas.

"They are arming, quite openly, those who want to go on in their civil war," said Yevgeny Primakov, who is head of the Institute for the World Economy and has acted as a key adviser to Gorbachev on Afghanistan.

Before Reagan spoke, U.S. Jewish activists for Soviet Jews urged the president to remind the Soviets that human rights were indirectly linked to progress in arms control.

Morris B. Abram, chairman of the National Council for Soviet Jewry, said Jewish emigration is a "test of whether arms reductions can succeed."

"Any agreement depends on trust and credibility," he told a news conference. "No one asks for direct linkage."

Abram called the improvement in Jewish emigration figures "insignificant compared with those who wish to leave... It's smoke and mirrors as far as the right to leave is concerned."

The council, an umbrella organization of U.S. Jewish groups active for Soviet Jewry, brought a 50-member delegation to Helsinki to draw attention to the issue.

US ultimatum broke down negotiations, says Panama leader, Manuel Noriega

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega told a packed National Assembly session that the United States' take-it-or-leave-it attitude forced the collapse of talks about his leaving power.

"The world must know that the conversation sustained with the envoy of President Reagan broke down when he presented us with an ultimatum in which Panama had to immediately accept his last offer," Noriega said.

"I know it and I say so because I was there. (U.S. Secretary of State) George Shultz wasn't there," Noriega said in his speech Thursday to a cheering crowd in the 500-seat assembly chamber.

Outside the chamber of the 67-member assembly, hundreds of people listened to his words through a loudspeaker.

Noriega, who commands Panama's 15,000-strong Defense Forces and is his country's de facto leader, did not elaborate. Shultz on Wednesday announced the breakdown of talks and blamed Noriega.

The general said Thursday that Panama had accepted several U.S. proposals, but added: "Even this wasn't sufficient. The United States desired an ultimatum."

In exchange for Noriega's stepping down, the Reagan administration had offered to lift economic sanctions it imposed on Panama after the general was indicted on U.S. drug trafficking charges in February.

It also offered to have the indictments dismissed.

The White House still recognizes the presidency of Eric Arturo Delvalle, whom the Noriegadominated National Assembly deposed Feb. 26 after Delvalle tried to fire the general.

Noriega appeared before the assembly to answer questions about what the government insists on calling "conversations," not negotiations, on a possible arrangement under which he would relinquish power.

Asked whether his resignation had been discussed, the general replied: "The commander doesn't abandon his ship in stormy weather."

Noriega said Panama has become a pawn for U.S. political candidates and charged them with "using the flag of Panama in whatever way is convenient for them."

Pickens rallies group to fight off anti-shareholder legislation

DALLAS (AP) — Corporate raider T. Boone Pickens Jr. is trying to rally America's corporate shareholders to fend off management executives he said are destroying the nation's publicly held businesses.

"After World War II and up until 1966, what corporate America saw was fragmented ownership," Pickens told more than 400 members of the United Shareholders Association at a forum Thursday.

"Owners bent to the whim of their managers and it seemed there was no way out," Pickens said. "Now there's a way out."

Pickens is chairman of USA, a shareholders' rights advocacy with more than 15,000 active members in all 50 states. Pickens, general partner of the Amarillo-based oil investment firm Mesa Limited Partnership, founded the grassroots organization with his wife, Beatrice Carr Pickens, in August 1986.

Pickens said the group must fight against anti-shareholders legislation being considered at the state and national levels.

"Shareholders must unite if they want to combat this legislation," Pickens said. "You are an owner and the management are your employees."

Pickens said such legislation threatens to halt a corporate restructuring movement that has forced management to improve productivity and competitiveness.

"Restructuring I have seen in most companies liberates assets and brings back management accountability," Pickens said.

He said 33 states have enacted anti-shareholder legislation. While none has been written in Texas, the Legislature has conducted a hearing on the subject, Pickens said.

In the interim, Pickens said USA members need to work for pro-shareholder legislation that would ban golden parachutes for retiring executives, guarantee one-share, one-vote power for stockholders, establish confidential votes for shareholders and reform the proxy process.

He was critical of company executives who stack the boardroom against shareholders and prompt the adoption of two classes of stock to water down voting strength of the general stockholders.

"By joining USA, you're doing your part in putting corporate control and wealth back where it belongs, in the hands of the owners, the shareholders," Pickens said.

Pickens told the Dallas Morning News he "might be interested" in some of the oil and gas assets that Tenneco Inc. announced it is selling. But the Panhandle oilman criticized the Houston-based company's decision to "get rid of its first-class assets."

Tenneco, the second-largest company in Houston, announced Wednesday that it was selling its oil and gas and refining and marketing subsidiary — Tenneco Oil Co. — to pay down its $8.8 billion in debt.

Iranians burn ship, fire at helicopter

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Three Iranian speedboats raided a Maltese freighter today and left it burning in the Strait of Hormuz, then fired at a press helicopter when it approached the site of the attack, shipping executives said.

Iran earlier claimed it killed or wounded 10,000 Iraqi troops in land battles east of Basra.

The press helicopter chartered by the American television network CBS was not hit.

Shipping executives had said a second ship was hit but later retracted that report.

The executives said the 18-member crew of the 18,000-ton Don Miguel abandoned ship after the 8 a.m. attack. An Omani warship sailing nearby rescued them.

The executives, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the crew, all South Koreans, were transferred to a salvage tugboat of the Dutch company Smit and appeared to have been unharmed.

Associated Press photographer Greg English, who was aboard a helicopter in the area, said a second Smit salvage tugboat battling the flames as they ravaged the freighter's stern.

The executives said the Iranians fired at the helicopter chartered by CBS when it tried to get close to the site of the attack.

REAGAN

pean nations including the Soviet Union initially was viewed skeptically by American political conservatives because it implicitly accepts East European boundaries set after World War II in Moscow's favor.

But in the years since, the Helsinki agreement has served as a Western platform for chastising the Soviets for deficiencies on human rights.

Meanwhile, in Washington, the U.S. Senate today moved toward ratification of the historic treaty that Reagan and Gorbachev signed at their December summit eliminating medium range nuclear missiles.

Senate leaders said they had the votes to approve the pact. White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr. was set to rush the treaty to the president for a ceremonial exchange of the ratification documents with Gorbachev.

Human rights is one of Reagan's themes in his fourth summit with Gorbachev. The president plans to meet Monday with Soviet activists and refuseniks to underscore his concern.

Word reached the presidential party Thursday that the Soviets had questioned the participation of one of the religious groups scheduled to meet with Reagan at the Danilov monastery on Monday.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said he did not know which religious group the Soviets objected to. The meeting, said Fitzwater, "is still on as far as I know."

On the official level, the Soviets have shown no concern over the meeting. At a press conference Thursday to discuss the summit, Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir F. Petrovsky said, "The U.S. president... is certainly free to decide who of Soviet citizens he finds interesting and useful to meet with outside the framework of the official visits."

But, he added, "This American move is hardly aimed at improving mutual understanding between the U.S.A. and U.S.S.R."

Refuseniks demonstrating in Moscow on Thursday said they want human rights to figure prominently in the Reagan-Gorbachev meetings.

A Leningrad refusenik, Roald "Alec" Zelichonok, said in a telephone interview that KGB secret police has warned him against accepting an invitation to meet Reagan on Monday.

Zelichonok, who has been refused permission to emigrate for more than 10 years, said he received a letter and telephone call Tuesday from the U.S. Embassy inviting him to take part in the meeting with Reagan.

Shortly after the embassy phone call, he said, a KGB officer telephoned and said "in light of security measures around Moscow, my departure for Moscow will not be permitted."

Reagan, in a pre-summit interview with West European journalists, said he hopes to work out an agreement with Gorbachev to give American psychiatrists access to Soviet mental hospitals.

"We have progressive, innovative people. If they are given the right circumstances they can expand the economy. Hereford is going to have to sell itself by offering a competitive advantage for people to locate here. It's easier to grow from within, but both are doable.

"None of this will happen unless there is a motivation of the com-

In taking its action Thursday, the school district joins the city in contributing to a large-scale development effort. The city officially gave $48,000 to the effort at its May 16 meeting. Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I couldn't go to sleep until I expressed my feelings about that letter from "Divorced Dad in Texas." He said he wanted you to know what a day in the life of a divorced father is really like. I just wonder if I'm the only one who got the impression that the jerk is wallowing in self-pity.

Sounds a lot like my ex-husband. They have both developed the art of going through life playing the victim. For example: Your correspondent says he sits by the phone hoping one of the kids will call "just to say hello." No call comes and he is so depressed he can't sleep. Why in the heck doesn't he call them?

His wife says she's taking him to court if he doesn't increase the child support check. His response got me right here. He can't come up with more money because he's taking care of his mother's medical bills. I ask, Ann Landers, what should come first, his mother's medical bills or his child's needs?

El Jerko writes, "I sit down alone to a dinner of frozen lasagna and a salad I got at the deli." Now ain't that just too bad? As a divorced mother who never received one penny of court-ordered child support, I couldn't afford frozen lasagna or a salad from a deli. For a long time I lived on flour, dried beans, cabbage, powdered milk and eggs. I couldn't even buy coffee or tea.

Your correspondent whines about not being able to go to a movie with a friend because he doesn't have the $7. Poor baby. My "entertainment" is books from the library and visits with friends and relatives.

In my opinion, that bozo's letter was a disservice to every divorced man who is a good father. I can't understand why you printed it.—Jersey Jane

DEAR JANE: I heard from a great many divorced dads, and most of them sounded a lot like this one. The mail produced undeniable evidence that the hatred between former spouses is widespread and venomous. Unfortunately, the real victims of the lousy relationship are the children. How sad.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently I have been awakened at odd hours of the night and early in the morning by the sound of what I thought was somebody in the apartment above mine jumping rope. I have since realized that the couple upstairs is engaged in an entirely different kind of activity.

Earplugs do not help since it is more than just the noise that is disturbing. The thumping causes a resonance through their wood floors and my ceiling that is more annoying than the sound.

I have a job that requires a great deal of energy. A good night's sleep is very important to me, and I haven't had one since these people moved in. Please tell me how to deal with their problem.—Red-Eyed in Apartment 6 (Mpls.)

DEAR RED: You don't say whether you are a male or female. My advice is to speak with the same sex neighbor about the "rope-jumping" at odd hours of the night, and ask if this could be done in another part of the apartment. I'll bet you get results.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How's this for profound simplicity?

Forgiveness is the ultimate revenge. Indifference is the ultimate insult.—S.R. in British Columbia

DEAR S.R.: Beautiful. Wish I had thought of it.

Feeling pressured to go "all the way" because everyone else is doing it? You're not alone. 'Haven't seen real Mavericks,' Dallas' Sam Perkins declares

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — After Dallas fell behind the Los Angeles Lakers 2-0 in the NBA Western Conference finals, Mavericks forward Sam Perkins had drawn a conclusion that explained his team's problem. "You haven't seen the real Mavericks," Perkins said. "Unfortunately, you have seen the real Lakers, though." The best-of-seven series shifts to the Mavericks' home court at Reunion Arena tonight and Sunday and Dallas coach John MacLeod hopes his team finally shows up before it's too late. "We're going to have to react better to what they're doing defensively," MacLeod said. "And we're going to have to get back faster on defense ourselves."

The Lakers, attempting to become the first team to repeat as NBA champions since 1969, beat the Mavericks 123-101 Wednesday night. The Lakers took the series opener 113-98 in the same manner they won the second game — with a fast-paced running game that didn't allow the Mavericks time to set up on defense. "The homecourt itself won't change things," MacLeod said. "But there are five games left and we know we're going to play better." Lakers coach Pat Riley would like to escape Dallas with one victory. "Two years ago we won the first two (at the Forum) and they won two back there (at Dallas) and the series went six games," Riley said. "Our goal is to get one win, I don't care which game, and come back and wrap it up in five games." Dallas center James Donaldson thinks the Mavericks need a sweep in Reunion Arena to get back into the series. "If we don't get two in Dallas, it'll be a painful series for us," Donaldson said. "We've got to keep them from shooting the ball as well as they have been." The Lakers shot at an outstanding pace in the first two games and

Byron Scott led the way with 30 points on 12 of 18 shooting in Game 2. "Over the whole year, defenders have been playing me for the drive," Scott said. "The way I've been shooting the ball, they have to defend that too."

"Now I can either drive or shoot and they have to defend both. I have created more problems." The Lakers struggled in the conference semifinals before beating Utah in seven games. But they've rallied with a vengeance against the Mavericks.

Los Angeles never really got its trademark fastbreak offense rolling against the Jazz. The Mavericks haven't found anyone to match Utah's 7-foot-4 center, Mark Eaton, to slow down the Lakers' drive to the basket.

The Lakers have also been successful going inside against the Mavericks, and Donaldson. "We're different from Utah and I'm different from Eaton," Donaldson said. "We have different philosophies than Utah. "What works for them, we don't do. Maybe that's giving them extra breathing room in the middle," he said of the Lakers.

The Mavericks must first try to stop Scott, MacLeod said. "He's having an All-Star season for them," MacLeod said. "He's been on fire, playing really well since training camp. He's going to remember this year when he's old and retired."

The Mavericks may soon be retired from the playoffs but the Lakers say they aren't getting overconfident.

"They are an explosive ballclub and we've got to be ready," Los Angeles forward James Worthy said. "They will feel more motivated being at home with their crowd."

"We aren't thinking about a sweep," the Lakers' Magic Johnson said. "We're just thinking about Friday night. We have to take care of business."

McHale's 3-pointer tied game at end of regulation

Celtics win in double OT, 119-105

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The outlook was grim. The Boston Celtics faced almost certain defeat. Standing just 15 feet from the leprechaun painted at the center of the parquet floor, Kevin McHale, of all people, flung up a desperation 3-point shot. It went in, adding another magic moment to the Celtic mystique. "I know, playing these guys, it's not over 'til it's over," Detroit's Isiah Thomas said. McHale's basket with five seconds left in the first overtime gave Boston a 109-109 tie. With Dennis Johnson scoring the last six points of the second overtime, the Celtics overtook the Pistons 119-115 Thursday night to even the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final at one game each.

Detroit, which broke a 21-game Boston Garden losing streak in Wednesday night's opener, will be home for the next two games Saturday and Monday afternoons. Boston has lost its last eight NBA games at the Pontiac Silverdome.

In his eight NBA seasons, the 6-foot-10 McHale had taken just 21 shots from 3-point range and made only one. His 3-point attempt Thursday night was his first of the season.

"The leprechaun stepped up for us," Boston coach K.C. Jones said. "We were lucky."

Not even the supremely confident Larry Bird had confidence that McHale would hit his shot. Bird was cutting toward the basket when Johnson's inbounds pass went behind him and hit his left hand.

"I thought it was over," Bird said. "I thought for sure someone on the other team would pick it up."

The Pistons planned to foul the player who got the ball. But when the play broke down, they were unable to get to McHale in time.

The ball rolled to the forward, who is known more for his inside excellence. He picked it up and fired from the top of the 3-point line, 23 feet, 9 inches — give or take a fraction of an inch — from the basket.

The Pistons protested that McHale had his foot on the 3-point line, but referee Jack Madden conferred with the other referee, Mike Mathis, and the alternate referee, Bill Saar. Again, Boston had luck on its side.

"It was ruled a 3-pointer," Detroit coach Chuck Daly said. "I'm not sure it was." "You think I was actually worried about where my feet were?" McHale said. "I was in no man's land with the clock ticking down."

Similarly improbable misfortunes have struck the Pistons in Boston Garden.

In the fifth game of last season's conference final, Bird stole Thomas' inbounds pass with five seconds left and fed Johnson for a layup as Boston won 108-107.

In the seventh game, Detroit's Adrian Dantley and Vinnie Johnson collided headfirst while diving for a ball in front of their bench. The Pistons were leading 80-79 at the time, but without Dantley for the rest of the game they lost 117-114.

The Celtics led 81-78 after three quarters, but Dantley made one of two free throws with 11 seconds left in the fourth period to send the game into overtime tied at 102.

Boston's Danny Ainge got the first two baskets of the first overtime, but Thomas scored seven straight points, including a 3-pointer over McHale that made the score 109-106 with seven seconds left.

Joe Dumars' jumper gave Detroit its last lead, 115-113, with 1:39 remaining in the second overtime.

Finally score off Blue Jays' Henke

Rangers rally for 8-7 victory

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Ever since the Texas Rangers lost Tom Henke in the 1985 compensation draft, Henke has made life miserable for his former employers.

The Rangers had never scored a run off the Toronto Blue Jays reliever, but that ended Thursday when Texas rallied for two runs in the ninth off Henke for an 8-7 decision in the rubber game of the three-game series.

Henke hadn't failed in 10 save opportunities this season.

"We kept battling," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine. "We made a few bonehead plays but it turned out good for the good guys."

Ruben Sierra's one-out single down the right-field line scored Scott Fletcher with the game-winner. Fletcher knocked in Curtis Wilkerson with the tying run with a triple to left past a diving George Bell. Wilkerson started the inning with a ground-rule double that bounced off the right-field foul pole.

"It seems that every time we play Toronto we see Henke in the late innings," Fletcher said. "He's always been tough."

"In that situation I'm just looking for a pitch to drive. That was good for us, coming back in the ninth before a road trip."

Henke, 0-1, has lost nine straight decisions dating back to September of 1986 but had allowed Texas only five hits in 14 previous career outings.

Wilkerson atoned for a third-inning error at second base that opened the way for four Toronto runs.

"I can't worry about errors," said Wilkerson, who had three hits including a triple and double. "That hit in the ninth would have gone for a triple if it hadn't hit the foul pole."

Mitch Williams, 1-1, allowed only one hit over 1 1/3 innings to earn the victory.

The Blue Jays wasted Fred McGriff's four RBI and two doubles. Toronto made three errors and Bell's gamble on Fletcher's ninth-inning line drive also proved costly.

Blue Jays manager Jimmy Williams defended Bell's decision.

"That was George's only chance to stop the ball," Williams said. "It was either that or it goes all the way to the wall anyway. I think he made the right decision."

Toronto starter Dave Stieb went five innings before being replaced by Duane Ward to open the sixth. Stieb allowed only four hits but was victimized by all three Blue Jay errors, making two of the four runs he allowed unearned.

"Stieb was just tired so we decided to pull him," Williams said.

As for Henke, Williams said, "You can't expect him to do it all the time. And we didn't play very well at all."

The Rangers had their own foul-ups. In the ninth center fielder Cecil Espy and left-fielder Pete Incaviglia watched as McGriff's fly ball dropped between them for a double. In the eighth pinch-runner Oddibe McDowell was picked off second.

McGriff's four RBI tied his career-high set earlier this year.

Toronto roughed up Ranger starter Paul Kilgus for 10 hits over six innings although only three of the seven Blue Jay runs he allowed were earned.

Kilgus entered the game with a 4-1 record and 1.70 ERA in five starts during May, including complete-game shutouts in two of his previous three starts.

In the only other game in the American League Thursday, the Detroit Tigers defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3.

Tigers 4, Brewers 3

Sparky Anderson isn't kidding himself. The Detroit manager knows his Tigers haven't got a prayer without their pitching and defense.

The Tigers got both Thursday night, plus some unexpected batting punch, to defeat the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3.

Frank Tanana, 8-2, checked the Brewers on six hits over 7 2/3 innings while Darrell Evans and Lou Whitaker hit home runs for Detroit. But defense was the difference.

Detroit outfielder Gary Pettis and shortstop Alan Trammell turned in defensive gems in crucial situations, while Milwaukee's Robin Yount lost a bloop fly which led to Detroit's second run.

Pettis was able to haul in a powerful shot to deep center by Dale Sveum in the seventh inning because it's 440 feet to the wall in that part of the ballpark.

The home runs by Evans and Whitaker were basically high flies that dropped into the short right-field seats at Tiger Stadium.

Chris Bosio, 6-5, went the distance for Milwaukee, giving up 12 hits.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The Ralph Boyle family, missionaries to Tanzania, will give their testimony at 11 a.m. Sunday and a full presentation in the evening service at 6:30. A picnic with the Boyles is planned following the morning worship service in the church fellowship hall. Everyone is invited.

There is a new Sunday School class for college age adults that meets at 9:45 a.m. each Sunday in the room next to the youth assembly room.

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST CHURCH

The Hereford Seventh-day Adventist Church, 711 W. Park St., will be conducting a vacation Bible School June 5-10. Registration is planned at 6:15 p.m. June 5 with the program set from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Sunday through Thursday. A special family program will be held Friday evening.

The school is being offered free of charge and is designed for children five to 13 years of age. The five-day program consists of music, Bible study, crafts and other activities. The theme of the event will be "Happy With Jesus" and focuses on seeing God's work in nature.

The program is open to community residents of all faiths. For additional information, call 364-6227. Advance registration is recommended.

There will be a special city-wide youth revival with "Strike Force" on June 4-6 at 7 p.m. in the Hereford High School gym. Anyone interested in helping as a counselor needs to contact Dennis Latham.

A slave auction is planned June 5 following the evening service. The proceeds will go to help teens that would like to go to the National Youth Congress June 23-26 at Fort Collins, Colo.

Drivers are needed for transporting the kidney dialysis patients to Amarillo. Sign up in the church foyer.

Glenn Smith, president of International Western Outreach Center, will be speaking at 7 p.m. June 19-20 at the church. He is an ex-rodeo professional and rancher. With special emphasis on the western world, Smith has pioneered many cowboy church services and camp meetings, including those at the National Finals Rodeo.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

"More Than Conquerors" is the title of the Rev. Bruce Kochmeter's sermon for the regular 10:30 a.m. Sunday worship service. The scripture is found in Romans 8:31-39.

Mission Yearbook: Today we are asked to pray for Cairo Evangelical Theological Seminary in Egypt, where Presbyterian missionary Ruth Wilson is director of the department of Christian education. Recently the students held an exhibition with the theme, "The Message of Peace." It was a time of challenging Christians to live the Biblical message for this war-torn area. Please offer them your prayers today!

Scripture For Lunch Bunch is a great way to learn to walk by faith, as each Wednesday at noon we gather for a brown bag fellowship and discussion of the scripture for Sunday. This week: Matthew 25:14-30.

Summer Sunday School Preparations are moving right along! Please watch your newsletter for details for adults and children. For Children's Summer Sunday School, please save plastic "bowl" containers Cool Whip, Large butter, frosting containers, etc. and any color balls of yarn.

Francisco presented certificate

Clarendon College announces that Andy Francisco of Hereford received his ranch and feedlot operation certificate in the May 6 ceremony held in the Fine Arts Auditorium on campus.
