Bivins presents legislative overview

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

State Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, Thursday gave Hereford citizens an overview of issues addressed in the recent legislative session, and he admittedly spent more time talking about the negatives than the positives.

Approximately 60 persons turned out for the "Town Hall" meeting held Thursday morning at the Hereford Senior Citizen Center auditorium. The senator was here for an hour and left for an 11 a.m. meeting in Canyon.

Bivins pointed out that Gov. Richards "gave the legislature an A-plus for the session," but he added that a teacher never gave him a high grade when he did just 60 percent of his work.

The unfinished business mentioned by the state senator included the budget, redistricting and the governor's push to let voters decide the state lottery issue. Several educational proposals didn't make it in the regular session—including the bill to lessen the no-pass, no-play penalty from six to three weeks.

Bivins was also disappointed with legislation affecting the business climate in Texas. The House passed some measures of benefit to business, but plaintiff lawyers stopped the bills in the Senate, said Bivins.

As a member of the State Finance Committee, Bivins says he disagrees with the $4.6 billion deficit being tossed about in Austin. "We need some more revenue but I think we can get it by making spending cuts rather than increasing taxes." Some of the increased costs projected for state services are out of line, he added.

There were some positive accomplishments in the session, said the senator. He mentioned the insurance reform, cigarette-tax reform, and a pilot project allowing the state to hedge on commodity futures. The latter bill serves as a good risk-management tool, Bivins said of a proposal he carried in the Senate. He also was a sponsor of the bill to enforce collection of cigarette taxes.

"Some of the things accomplished were the result of court or federal orders," stated Bivins. "It was a matter of the legislature reacting, not acting." One of these was the school finance bill, which was "one of the most difficult votes I've cast," said the senator.

Bivins said there are 86 school districts in the 31st Senatorial District and they range from poor to rich. He said he had problems with the bill, but he also had a problem in going against the Supreme Court. "My fear was that the court would mandate massive school district consolidations."

A bill that he thought was "very creative" but didn't pass was the proposal to sell coupons to pay for speeding fines. Aside from the fact that many Texans drive between 55 and 70 said Bivins, "what really caught my eye was that it could generate $100 million in revenue."

Johnnie Turrentine, local Justice of the Peace, complained to Bivins that the proposal would take away revenue from the county, since the state would collect all the coupon money. The senator said if the bill came up again, he'd suggest the county receive a portion of the funds.

This brought up a point by Bivins that the "buck passing stops at the local governmental level." He said the federal government mandates action to states without funding, then the state passes rules for the county without funds. "Local governments have no place to get funding except the local property tax, and those taxes have increased more in Texas in recent years than in any other state," he said.

Bivins had five of the "Town Hall" meetings scheduled in area towns Thursday. He appeared in Friona earlier Thursday morning.

New scam preys on checks, banks

WASHINGTON (AP) - Americans who think they will win a dream vacation by calling a number on a postcard often discover later that they lost more than a great trip. Also gone, sometimes without their consent, is a piece of their checking accounts.

The latest fraudulent scheme by unsavory telephone marketing firms has triggered special alerts to banks by the FBI, the Federal Reserve, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Comptroller of the Currency.

The trouble begins when the telephone sales person, hawking a vacation, low-interest credit card or other product, lures the customer into providing his checking account number.

The unethical operator then encodes the account number on a demand draft - forms that can be used to withdraw funds quickly. Meanwhile, the promoted product is rarely delivered.

Victims often don't learn of such a withdrawal until they spot it on a monthly bank statement. Or, if they have orally agreed to a charge, they become furious when their account was charged but the product wasn't delivered.

The firms send out postcards to generate return calls or do direct dialing to hawk their promises of easy credit, grand prizes or services such as help in selling a used car.

In each case, there's a charge which - in the case of promised prizes - often is called a processing fee. The companies say they'll take care of the transaction if the customer will provide his checking account number.

Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., chairman of the House Small Business subcommittee on regulation, said the businesses possess "an impressive array of electronic and computerized tools which literally unlock the bank's safe."

The drafts submitted for payment by the telephone marketers are like the ones used routinely by legitimate insurance companies, mutual funds and other businesses.

Richards eyes 'cabinet'

AUSTIN (AP) - Changing to more of a cabinet-style of government, boosting a governor's authority over state agencies, is attracting the interest at the Capitol.

The Houston Chronicle reported that lawmakers and the governor's office are studying the idea.

Gov. Ann Richards has called a special session for July 8 to write and fund the 1992-93 state budget, with lawmakers facing a projected $4.7 billion deficit.

The Chronicle reported Thursday that a cabinet proposal would be tied to a reorganization and consolidation of government agencies.

It would represent a major change in the structure of Texas government, with backers hoping it would make the bureaucracy more efficient and more responsive.

Promoted by Rep. Ric Williamson, D-Weatherford, the plan would have the governor appoint the executive directors of state agencies that now run by appointed boards and commissions. The boards would become advisory.

"Inevitably, it's going to be called a cabinet. I would be inclined to call it an executive management group," Williamson said.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he supports the idea.

Richards' executive assistant, Paul Williams, said the governor hadn't seen details of the plan but added, "I think it would be fair to say the proposal is one the governor would look at with favor."

Under present law, most agency chiefs are hired by their respective governing boards. It generally takes a new governor most of one term to achieve a majority of board members.

Although Richards, a Democrat, has been in office since January, most of the appointees serving on boards now were named by former Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

Richards has battled with some agencies, including the State Board of Insurance, and openly complained about the unresponsiveness of others.

"There are some built-in ways in which we are unable to get agencies to be responsive to the Legislature or the governor or any other elected official. We think those are important to address as well as these budget difficulties," Richards said.

Comptroller John Sharp has been leading a team of auditors examining all agency spending. Next week, he is expected to recommend consolidation and reorganization of a number of them.

Among other things, Sharp is expected to propose a new "umbrella" board to promote better coordination of health and welfare programs that now are spread out among several agencies.

Williamson said his appointment proposal would fit in with such a reorganization. He and Montford said they are primarily interested in changing the agencies headed by appointed boards and commissions, which make up the bulk of the bureaucracy, not those headed by elected officials.

"I think that it is time to do some major reorganization of state government. I don't know when the political winds are going to be stronger," Montford said.

Rain hampers Filipinos

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - Filipinos who had returned to their homes after Mount Pinatubo quieted down were leaving again today, because of fears that heavy rains may unleash tons of debris from the volcano's slopes.

About 3,000 Americans sailed today from Subic Bay naval base aboard the aircraft carrier Abraham Lincoln as the exodus of service families continued. The carrier midway was due Saturday at Subic, about 25 miles southwest of the volcano.

Meanwhile, there was confusion over whether U.S. airmen would be withdrawn from the Philippines because of damage to Clark Air Base, 10 miles east of Pinatubo. The Navy at Subic Bay announced that more than 60 percent of the 7,000 airmen would leave today, but the Pentagon said no final decision had been made.

The 4,795-foot volcano, about 60 miles north of Manila, was quiet today after spewing more ash over Clark in seven explosions Thursday. The death toll from more than two weeks of eruptions rose to 268.

Rivers in central Luzon were reported rising today as volcanic ash washed into the streams after two days of steady rains. In Capas, near the volcano, police said three refugee children were swept away by floodwaters Thursday and feared dead.

It was unclear how many people were leaving their homes but residents said many were doing so because of warnings from geologists that rains could unleash mountains of earth and debris from Mount Pinatubo.

Roy David, mayor of Porac west of Angeles, said he had urged residents who fled to evacuation centers not to return home because of the rising Porac river. He estimates about 80 percent of the town's 68,000 residents have fled since June 9 when eruptions began.

"Mudflows have already cascaded down the slopes of Mount Pinatubo and the silt in the Porac river is steadily rising," he said.

Rivals fill cocaine void

MEDELLIN, Colombia (AP) - More Medellin drug cartel members have followed leader Pablo Escobar in surrendering, but cocaine is still flowing north and officials say the cartel's rivals will likely continue to meet world demand.

On Thursday, the cartel's finance chief, Valentin de Jesus Taborda, 53, turned himself in and accepted a government leniency offer. Three other alleged Medellin traffickers also arrived at the Envigado prison Thursday under heavy guard. Their identities were not immediately revealed.

Escobar, 41, gave up Wednesday just hours after a constitutional panel voted to ban extraditions. Escobar, who is wanted in the United States, and three other Medellin bosses were taken to a custom-designed luxury prison that was originally built as a drug treatment center in Escobar's hometown, Envigado, outside Medellin.

In a written note sent Thursday to a television reporter, Escobar said 12 other cartel members would soon turn themselves in, officials said.

While the Medellin cartel may have been hobbled by the surrenders, an unmet demand is likely to be met by the traffickers including the Cali-based cartel, the nation's No. 2 cocaine organization.

"I think the Cali organizations have become dominant in the cocaine trafficking, both production and distribution to the United States and Europe," said the Drug Enforcement Administration's chief, Robert C. Bonner on Thursday.

"But there have been other organizations on the north coast and the Bogota area that have moved in, so they also deserve some attention."

Bonner said the Cali cartel began to gain a larger share of the cocaine market during the crackdown on the Medellin operations, which began following the 1989 assassination of presidential candidate Sen. Luis Carlos Galan.

Meanwhile, some of the Cali cartel's processing has moved over the border into Bolivia, Bonner said.

Yeltsin's words welcomed

An AP News Analysis
By MICHAEL PUTZEL
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin mouthed all the right words to win friends in Washington this week, but the Bush administration would have preferred to have heard them from Mikhail S. Gorbachev, President Bush's ally and Yeltsin's chief rival.

For three days, the newly elected president of the Soviet Union's largest republic pledged his commitment to democracy, free enterprise, private property and land reform to return farmland to the farmers.

He found other touchstones as well, telling his American audiences the Soviet Union needs not their handouts but rather their ideas, their expertise and their investment. He said Soviet aid to Cuba should be cut off, and the Baltic republics should be given their independence.

"He represents everything that we have been praying for," said Republican political consultant John Buckley, explaining why Yeltsin, a rough-hewn populist, has become the darling of the American right.

"Conservatives have felt that both the Reagan and the Bush administrations have looked at the Soviet Union with a pair of false options, either Gorbachev or the (Communist Party) hardliners," Buckley said.

Ever since Gorbachev won control of the party and the Kremlin in 1985, Buckley said, "conservatives have been saying it's either Gorbachev or, conceivably, a free-market, anti-communist democracy. Yeltsin represents that free-market, anti-communist democracy."

But to the administration, he represents not only the reforms it would welcome but a threat as well.

As the first popularly elected leader of Russia, by far the largest of the Soviet Union's 15 republics, Yeltsin poses a serious challenge to Gorbachev's leadership, and administration analysts have watched with mounting concern as Gorbachev's support has eroded.

Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle went to extraordinary lengths to declare the administration's distaste for a competition that could further weaken Gorbachev and give control of the Soviet Union back to communist hardliners, the military and the KGB.

"Boris Yeltsin is a man who is helping to bring democratization and reform to the Soviet Union," Quayle said in presenting the Russian leader the top award of the bipartisan Center for Democracy on Wednesday night.

But he launched immediately into an even stronger commendation of Gorbachev and his achievements.

"Working together with President Gorbachev, we have transformed the most dangerous relationship in the world into a productive relationship," Quayle said.

While the United States values expanded ties with Russia and the other republics, the vice president said, "we intend to maintain the closest possible working relationship with the government of the Soviet Union."

When Yeltsin came to the White House on Thursday, Bush was even more direct, interrupting his talks with the visiting Russian leader to make his point in front of the news media.

"We have been heartened and encouraged by President Yeltsin's commitment to democratic values and free-market principles, and we look forward to working with him," the president said. "But at the same time, I want to be very clear about this: the United States will continue to maintain the closest possible official relationship with the Soviet government of President Gorbachev."

But while Bush and Quayle took such pains to express their support for Gorbachev, the administration has made no secret of its desire to see him push for the kind of genuine economic and political reform Yeltsin advocates.

Session may deal with judge issue

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards said she will talk to legal advisers before deciding whether to put the issue of judicial elections on the agenda of a special legislative session this summer.

"If it is necessary, of course we will include it," Richards said.

The Supreme Court, ruling on cases from Texas and Louisiana, said Thursday the federal law protecting minorities' voting power applies to the election of state and local judges.

The League of United Latin American Citizens, which challenged Texas' at-large system of electing judges in nine counties, urged Richards to put the issue on the agenda.

"We call on the governor to provide the leadership on this very important issue for the minority community in remedying the problem, just as the minority community provided strong support for her election," said lawyer Rolando Rios, representing LULAC.

Richards, who is calling lawmakers into a special session beginning July 8 to write a state budget, said she would meet with Texas Attorney General Dan Morales and her own legal staff.

The governor said she was not surprised by the Supreme Court decision.

"I always thought that common sense and logic would indicate that if you say that one group of elected officials has to come under the Voting Rights Act, then the rest of them would, too," she said.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said he has supported changing to a single-member district method of electing judges.

"We need a system for electing judges that allows fair representation of all Texans in our judicial system. With this ruling from the Supreme Court, we can now move ahead and create such a system in Texas," Lewis said.

Gray McBride, spokesman for the state attorney general, said the case would be returned to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, which earlier ruled the Voting Rights Act did not require Texas to abandon countywide election of trial judges.

McBride said the 5th Circuit Court likely would return the case to District Judge Lucius Bunton of Midland for a trial that would yield additional evidence, which probably would include the 1990 election returns.

Chief Justice Tom Phillips of the Texas Supreme Court said that since the ruling didn't specifically say that the Texas system of electing judges violated the law, it could remain a legal issue for years.

However, Phillips said, "I would hope that the Legislature will explore changes in judicial elections now. We should devise a system that will eliminate partisanship, limit campaign contributions, increase minority representation and enhance public confidence in our judiciary."

Of 172 judges elected countywide in the nine counties challenged by LULAC, 14 are minorities, Rios said.

If judges instead were chosen from legislators' districts, as many as 60 minorities could be elected, he said.

Big cats sought in hunts

AUSTIN (AP) - A newspaper reported that great cats such as African lions and endangered leopards die every year in Texas and around the country at the hands of trophy hunters and unscrupulous collectors.

A demand for pristine hides for mounting, and for "canned" hunts, is being answered by a network of private breeders who sell the cats to individuals or at auction, the Austin American-Statesman reported Thursday in a copyright story.

Federal and state laws regulate the sale and ownership of the animals, but the laws do not track them from one owner to another, the newspaper said.

One federal prosecutor called the process a "black hole" from which cats emerge as caged, tamed, de-clawed and sometimes de-fanged victims of a hunt inside a high-fenced pen.

Or they may be given a dose of cyanide, get an ice pick in the ear, or be shot in their cages so their hide can be sold and mounted, the American-Statesman reported.

"There's no responsibility for it once it's bred, raised and sold," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Collis White of San Antonio.

Two men recently pleaded guilty in San Antonio to various charges, including killing an endangered black leopard during a canned hunt.

The American-Statesman reported that a third man said he would plead guilty Friday morning to charges of killing the animal and conspiracy to violate federal law.

A videotaped account of the hunt, on a ranch near Leakey in the Texas Hill Country, shows the leopard released from a cage and fleeing a pack of dogs by hiding under a nearby pickup, the newspaper reported.

Flushed from there, the de-clawed cat tried to escape across an open area, only to be caught and surrounded by the dogs. The actual killing is not shown because of faulty camera work.

Game warden Wayne Chappell, who oversees Texas' permitting process, said the state began issuing permits last fall.

Twenty-six people hold Texas permits for exotic and endangered animals, Chappell said. Native mountain lions are the No. 1 species, he said, and lions, tigers, leopards and cheetahs also are on the state permit list.

Under the plan backed up LULAC, one to three judges would be elected from each legislative district.

The ruling also was praised by representatives of other minority groups, including the Houston Lawyers' Association, which was a plaintiff in the LULAC case.

"Obviously, on behalf of all Afro-Americans, we're ecstatic," said Ray Shackelford, association president.

Judith Sanders-Castro, lawyer with the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, said the question must be addressed quickly because elections are scheduled for next year and the filing period for candidates begins Dec. 1.

"This promises to open doors for minority representation in what is essentially the last bastion of the white, good ol' boy stronghold, which are the courts," Ms. Sanders-Castro said.

Jim Harrington, director of the Texas Civil Rights Project, predicted the decision could raise the number of minority judges statewide by as many as 30.

Judge Bunton ruled in 1989 that the judicial election system challenged by LULAC diluted votes of blacks and Hispanics.

In a telephone interview from his Midland office, he said he was pleased with the Supreme Court decision and expressed hope for a quick resolution.

"Now that the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled, I hope Gov. Richards will decide the solution is not judicial, but should be a legislative one," Bunton said.

"The Legislature has been reluctant to move on this issue and I hope they will step forward now so that the voters will not be deprived in 1992 of what is rightfully theirs," he said.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the lady who was devastated by the loss of her daughter has haunted me ever since I read it. I, too, lost my only daughter in a car accident when a drunk driver backed onto an interstate highway. She was 8 years old, the light of my life. My son, a beautiful, talented boy, also died in the same accident. He was 15.

Not long after, my husband of 20 years decided that he hadn't had a chance to experience life because we married young. He suggested that we try an "open marriage." I attempted suicide twice. Two psychiatrists later, I was still miserable.

Finally, a psychologist at a local mental health clinic helped me get my life in order. I learned that I had never recovered from the death of my children. When the divorce finally came five years later, I was ready for it. I got a college degree while working full-time. That was nine years ago. I now teach school and get to love 27 kids every day.

My life is exciting, challenging and busy because I made the choice to quit holding a self-pity party for one. I vowed to justify my existence by helping others. The woman who wrote to you should do the same. She could read to the blind, deliver meals to the elderly, visit a veterans hospital or a nursing home and dedicate those services in memory of her daughter. Like me, she probably did not work through the grieving process.

Ann, keep pushing counseling. All therapists aren't right for all people. If you feel you aren't being heard, go to someone who listens. This woman certainly has the capacity to love, and so many people need her. -- J.L., Columbia, Ill.

DEAR J.L.: Thank you for writing. Your letter is full of constructive suggestions. I would like to add another. There is a wonderful organization to help parents who have suffered the tragic loss of a child. It is called the Compassionate Friends, and it can be a godsend. The national headquarters address is: P.O. Box 3696, Oak Brook, Ill. Anyone who wants information should write and enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. A $1 donation to help defray costs would be greatly appreciated. Those who have joined say the healing begins at once. Trust me.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You were not entirely wrong when you spelled Jan Peerce's name "Pierce." Here's the true story: He was born Jacob Perelmuth and first performed as Pinky Pearl, with his Society Dance Band. "Roxy" Rothafel, pioneer in theatrical entertainment, changed Jan's name to John Pierce.

Jan didn't care for the name so Roxy suggested Jan Peerce.

Sara, Peerce's young sister, married Richard Tucker, one of the world's greatest tenors. Unfortunately, a professional misunderstanding arose between Jan and Richard and they rarely spoke to each other after that. Shortly before Sara Tucker passed away, she confided in me that Jan Peerce was the greatest artist she had ever heard, and believe me, she had heard them all. Sara made a big effort but she was never able to patch up the differences between her brother and her husband.

Without a doubt, both men were giants of opera in their day, and sad to say, the world will have to wait a long time to hear and see the likes of another Jan Peerce or Richard Tucker. -- Albert Smith, Quebec

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

WELCOME, STRANGER!

THE WORD "HOSPITALITY" STEMS FROM THE GREEK, MEANING LOVE OF STRANGERS! TO BIBLICAL PEOPLES THE OBLIGATION TO ENTERTAIN WAS A SACRED TRUST (LEV.19:34) AND WAYFARERS WERE OFFERED FAR MORE THAN MERE BED AND BOARD....

... EVERY KINDNESS WAS LAVISHED UPON THEM—THE BEST FOODS AND WINES, FELLOWSHIP, GIFTS, PROTECTION—THE LATTER SOMETIMES CARRIED TO EXTREMES—WITNESS LOT! TO SAVE HIS GUESTS FROM HARM, HE OFFERED HIS UNMARRIED DAUGHTERS TO THE SODOMITE RABBLE CLAMORING AT HIS DOOR! (GENESIS 19:6-9)

PAUL'S LETTER TO THE HEBREWS (13:2) ACCURATELY DESCRIBES THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENT BELIEFS REGARDING HOSPITALITY:

"BE NOT FORGETFUL TO ENTERTAIN STRANGERS FOR THEREBY SOME HAVE ENTERTAINED ANGELS UNAWARES."

NEXT WEEK: ROYAL DISOBEDIENCE!

Angels, Tigers continue bean-ball wars

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Another day, another basebrawl. In the latest installment of a season filled with incidents, the California Angels and Detroit Tigers cleared the benches after a beanball battle Thursday night.

Already this year, Rob Dibble, Kevin Mitchell, Otis Nixon, Dave Valle and Mark Whiten have been in the middle of big fights. Earlier this week, Tom Glavine was ejected after throwing at Dale Murphy.

This time at Tiger Stadium, the teams stayed pretty calm. The dugouts emptied in the fourth inning, but no punches were thrown. California eventually won 7-5 on Dave Parker's tie-breaking, two-run homer in the seventh.

The problems started when Detroit's Dan Gakeler hit Luis Sojo in the left earflap with a fastball in the top of the fourth. Sojo was taken to a hospital with a mild concussion.

"I don't know if the kid hit Luis intentionally or not," Parker said. "But it left a whole lot of things open. It was definitely a little scary. If you've got a purpose pitch, you don't work up in that area."

Home plate umpire John Shulock warned the teams against any more trouble. But in the bottom of the fourth, California's Chuck Finley hit Mickey Tettleton in the leg with his first pitch. Finley was immediately ejected and Angels manager Doug Rader argued.

"I've been around long enough to know that Finley had to be ejected," Shulock said. "Rader was expressing his opinion that Finley shouldn't be ejected. That's it."

Gakeler said he did not hit Sojo on purpose. Rader said Finley also hit Tettleton by accident.

Cecil Fielder hit his 15th home run and Alan Trammell hit his fifth homer as the Tigers built a 5-3 lead. Luis Polonia tied it with a two-run single in the California sixth.

The Angels had gone 89 innings without a home run until Parker connected off Paul Gibson (2-4). Joe Grahe (1-1) pitched 4 1-3 innings for the victory and Bryan Harvey worked the ninth for his 18th save.

Rangers 7, White Sox 3
Ruben Sierra and Julio Franco hit consecutive home runs off Bobby Thigpen, sparking a five-run rally.

Thigpen (3-2) blew his fifth save in 18 chances. Jack McDowell pitched three-hit ball for eight innings before Thigpen relieved. Mike Jeffcoat (3-1) went 2 1-3 innings for the victory.

Red Sox 8, Athletics 7
Tom Brunansky hit an RBI double and scored on Tony Pena's single as Boston rallied in the eighth inning.

Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire homered for Oakland, which took a 7-6 lead in the seventh with the help of Willie Wilson's 2,000th career hit.

The Red Sox came back when Mike Greenwell singled off Curt Young and reliever Steve Chitren (1-2) threw a wild pitch. Brunansky, who hit a two-run homer earlier, doubled off the glove of second baseman Mike Bordick for his third hit and Pena hit an RBI single with one out.

Jeff Gray (2-3) pitched two scoreless innings. Jeff Reardon worked the ninth for his 18th save.

Brewers 4, Mariners 0
Jaime Navarro pitched a four-hitter for his second shutout of the season.

Navarro (7-4) struck out four and walked two in his team-high fourth complete game. Brian Holman (7-7) took the loss.

Darryl Hamilton and Billy Spiers hit RBI singles in the second inning. Franklin Stubbs got a run home in the third with a double-play grounder and singled home another in the seventh.

Royals 3, Orioles 2
Brian McRae singled home the winning run in the bottom of the 10th inning.

Kurt Stillwell drew a leadoff walk from Todd Frohwirth (1-1) in the 10th. Terry Shumpert sacrificed and McRae hit a drive over left fielder Brady Anderson.

Steve Crawford (2-0) got the victory. Carmelo Martinez homered and hit an RBI double for the Royals.

Dodgers able to breathe easier

By The Associated Press

Things are looking a little better each day for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Take Thursday, for example. Los Angeles beat Pittsburgh 3-2 in a battle of division leaders for its fifth straight victory. Meanwhile, second-place Cincinnati lost World Series MVP Jose Rijo for as much as six weeks with a broken ankle.

A turning point in the race, perhaps?

Dennis Martinez anchored a combined three-hitter and Marquis Grissom singled home an 11th-inning run as Montreal beat Cincinnati 1-0 at Riverfront Stadium for its seventh consecutive victory. The loss dropped the Reds six games behind the Dodgers in the National League West.

The Reds now have two starting pitchers on the disabled list - Rijo and left-hander Norm Charlton, out with shoulder tendinitis - and three others who are struggling. Jack Armstrong, Scott Scudder and Chris Hammond have been unimpressive the last month, going 1-9 in their last 12 starts combined.

Martinez retired the first 17 batters before Rijo singled in the sixth inning. Rijo then tried to steal second base. Big mistake.

He started his slide wrong, digging his right cleats into the dirt. All of the force came down on the ankle, causing it to chip. Rijo rolled off it awkwardly and was tagged out.

"I changed my mind. I knew I had it made, but I started sliding with the wrong foot," Rijo said. "My cleats got stuck in the dirt. After I hit the dirt I tried to move my foot and I couldn't. I knew then."

It was a major setback to the club, and Rijo knew it.

"I feel so bad," he said, fighting to maintain his composure. "The team is struggling and I've been throwing the ball well for a while. It's disappointing. Very disappointing."

The night was even more disappointing when the Reds found out the Dodgers won again on Stan Javier's tie-breaking single in the eighth inning.

Brett Butler led off the eighth with a single off starter John Smiley (8-4) and was sacrificed to second by Juan Samuel. Javier followed with what appeared to be a routine grounder to shortstop, but the ball bounced over the outstretched glove of Jay Bell.

Kevin Gross (4-5) was the winning pitcher, blanking the Pirates in the eighth and ninth.

Phillies 7, Astros 3
Rookie Wes Chamberlain had four hits and John Kruk drove in three runs.

Chamberlain, who played in 18 games for the Phillies in 1990 and saw brief action in April, was recalled from Scranton-Wilkes-Barre of the International League on June 15. He is 10-for-24 in six games since returning.

The Phillies took a 5-2 lead with three runs in the fourth off Jimmy Jones (4-5). The Astros have lost four straight.

Danny Cox (2-1), who came off the disabled list on June 17, gave up two runs and three hits in 5 2-3 innings for the victory.

Mets 9, Braves 7
Hubie Brooks hit two homers and drove in four runs and Dwight Gooden also homered.

Brooks hit his 12th homer of the season, a two-run shot in the fifth inning, had a run-scoring double in the fourth and a solo homer in the eighth. There were eight home runs hit in the game, four by each team.

Gooden (7-5) got the victory despite giving up three home runs, two to Terry Pendleton. John Smoltz (2-9) took the loss.

Giants 4, Cubs 3
Robby Thompson and Will Clark had RBI singles and another run scored on a wild pitch in the seventh inning.

Francisco Oliveras (3-2) worked two innings in relief of rookie Mike Remlinger to get the win. Dave Righetti got the last three outs for his eighth save, allowing Jerome Walton's RBI single in the ninth. Les Lancaster (2-2) was the loser.

Toros challenge Letterman

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Goat or hero: it's up to David Letterman now. He could be blowing his big, and maybe only, shot at baseball immortality, depending on whether he replies to an invitation to pitch against the Houston Astros.

It's enough to make No. 1 on his Top 10 List for why he shouldn't be on the mound: "I forgot to mail, phone or fax in my R.S.V.P."

About 10 days after being invited to pitch for the Pacific Coast League's Tucson Toros in its July 1 exhibition against the parent Houston Astros, there's still no word from the host of NBC's "Late Night With David Letterman."

That's despite the pitch he's been making for months, offering his services "to any major league team" wanting an inning of shutout ball. Letterman has said he might not strike out everyone or get the batters out in order, but has guaranteed a scoreless inning.

So Rick Holtzman, owner of the Class AAA Toros, sent an invitation to start against the Astros at Hi Corbett Field. And Jon Ruby, general manager of the local NBC-TV affiliate, also faxed a letter last week urging him to show up.

The invitation said Letterman would stay on the mound at the mercy of Toros manager Bob Skinner. It also invited him to hit in a pregame home run hitting contest and to work the play-by-play broadcast.

But as of Thursday, neither Holtzman nor Ruby had received a reply.

And a spokeswoman for Letterman said he would not be available to talk.

Toros general manager Mike Feder said, "It's time to put up or shut up! He's been whining for two months, and now he's got the chance."

Feder said, "Now we are calling his bluff, and await the final verdict."

Rangers acquire Schiraldi

CHICAGO (AP) - The Texas Rangers have acquired right-hander Calvin Schiraldi from the Houston organization and purchased the contract of right-hander Terry Mathews from Oklahoma City of the American Association.

To make room, the Rangers designated pitchers Joe Bitker and Mark Petkovsek for assignment. Both were placed on waivers for the purpose of outright assignment to Oklahoma City.

Schiraldi, 29, was pitching for Tucson where he had a 3-2 record with a 4.47 earned run average in 15 games.

Does it seem like you used to catch more fish before all these new electronic gizmos?

Remember when the cost of special paper for the older-model depth finders forced most anglers to use those units only sparingly? The angler would make a pass over a likely-looking fishing hole, study it, and then turn off the paper graph because a roll of paper cost more than $5 and lasted only 30 minutes. Fishing was almost always done without the graph. Because modern units use a screen without paper, anglers leave units on during the entire fishing trip.

Try this experiment: after launching your rig, turn on the depth finder and place your hand on the bottom of the transducer (the part that sends the signal into the water). Feel the pulses. Because sound travels seven times better in water than in air, the unit is very accurate but fish can certainly hear or feel these sound pulses.

Top anglers like Tommy Pugh of Randall County suggest that not only can fish hear depth finders but their unique sound is a danger signal to older and bigger fish.

When a fish is growing up, food selection is a trial-and-error search. If a strange sound (a depth finder) is followed by the appearance of food, an immature fish will probably attack it in spite of the strange sound. If that tempting morsel (your bait) is full of painful hooks, the juvenile fish quickly associates that strange sound with painful food and simply refuses to eat.

Professional anglers like Tommy Biffle of Oklahoma use their electronics during practice days but frequently fish a three-day tournament without once turning on their noise machines. Think about it.

The International Game Fish Association reports that the most intelligent fresh-water fish is the largemouth bass. Trout will hit a fly two, three or even four times and bluegill will never stop striking an artificial lure, but Mr. Bass rarely strikes a lure the second time. Now try convincing a nymph-tying, tippet-knotting fly rod owner that a bass is smarter than a trout.

Lubbock's Ben Kirkpatrick used a Slug-Go to catch a three bass limit of 9.58 pounds and won the June 13 White River Fun Tournament. David Morren of Lubbock placed second with 7.73 pounds and Dwayne Moses of Ralls finished third with 3.74. The next White River Fun Tournament is Thursday, July 11.

Baylor Big Bass Tournament—On Saturday, June 29, some lucky fisherman may walk away with $2,500 for catching the biggest bass of the day. Hourly winners can earn $100. The entry fee is only $50 until June 24, when it increases to $60, and the tournament is limited to 100 anglers. Call me at (806) 353-3654 for more details.

Baker-Finch paces Anheuser-Busch

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) - The Great White Shark is taking the week off, so the Dark Shark is carrying the load for Australia at the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

Ian Baker-Finch birdied six of his last seven holes and tied a course record with a 9-under-par 62 that gave him a one-shot edge over Bob Gilder after Thursday's first round of the $1 million event.

In addition to his seven birdies and an eagle at Kingsmill Golf Club, Baker-Finch missed five birdie putts of 10 feet or less, but still recorded the lowest score of his career.

It was another entry in the growing list of impressive credentials for the Australian, who is starting to display some of the same abilities as his more famous countryman, Greg Norman. "A couple of the guys out here have been saying some real nice things about my play, and that's always good to hear," Baker-Finch said. "I'm not too happy about the Dark Shark part, though."

Several publications and some of his fellow competitors have given the tag to Baker-Finch, who has black hair and a deep tan.

"It's just like, 'Here's another Australian, and Greg's the White Shark so he's the Dark Shark,'" the good-natured Baker-Finch said. "I don't want to be remembered as the next to come along after Greg Norman. I want to be remembered for being me."

Baker-Finch was one of 107

golfers in the 155-player field to shoot par or better on Kingsmill's 6,776-yard layout. Of that total, 62 broke 70.

Dan Pohl and Mike Reid were two shots off the lead after 64s, and it was another shot back to Roger Maltbie, Blaine McCallister and Dudley Hart.

The region got several doses of steady rain earlier this week, leaving Kingsmill's greens soft, vulnerable targets. And Thursday's lack of any significant wind made accurate approach shots that much easier.

"When it's firm, it's a pretty good little golf course," Gilder said. "When it's soft, that's why you see the scores so low."

Baker-Finch, who played in the morning, tied Mike Sullivan's 1-year-old course record. But the five missed birdies cost him a shot at Al Geiberger's PGA Tour standard of 59, set in 1977 at the Memphis Classic.

"There's going to be other chances in time to shoot 59," Baker-Finch said. "I think to shoot really, really low like that, to break 60, you'd want to have a better start than I did. I mean, I was only 3-under after 11 holes. You're not thinking about shooting 59 then."

His previous low round was 63, a score he has reached several times.

Texas A&M won't play Arkansas

DALLAS (AP) - Texas A&M football coach R.C. Slocum says he understands why Arkansas wants to continue playing in Texas after it joins the Southeastern Conference, but he's not interested in playing host to the Razorbacks.

Southern Methodist and Arkansas Thursday announced an agreement to play four-year football series starting in 1992, the Razorbacks first as members of the SEC.

Slocum is one of several SWC coaches to express a reluctance to play the Razorbacks because the games could help Arkansas recruit players from Texas.

"It's certainly not going to help them if a player knows that once he goes to Arkansas, he'll never play in Texas again," Slocum said. "I would wonder what their motivations would be if that (recruiting) wasn't it."

The Mustangs will play Arkansas in Little Rock in 1992 and 1994, while the Razorbacks visit Dallas in 1993 and 1995, SMU athletic director Forrest Gregg said.

"It's a good situation for us," Gregg said. "Arkansas certainly will always have competitive teams and we won't have to introduce them down here. They have a large following and wanted to continue playing in Dallas."

Slocum said he's not interested in playing the Razorbacks after their defection.

"If they're going to be a non-conference game, there are other people we can play with more novelty right now," Slocum said. "We'd rather play a West Virginia or a Pitt or go out to the West Coast."

Baylor athletic director Bill Menefee said the Bears also have no plans of playing Arkansas.

"We haven't discussed scheduling with Arkansas," Menefee said. "I guess I can only speak for Baylor and we're not anxious to schedule Arkansas at this time."

Asked whether the SMU series would help Arkansas' recruiting in Texas, Menefee said, "I guess SMU's got to answer that."

Houston athletic director Rudy Davalos said the Cougars are willing to play Arkansas, but the Razorbacks aren't interested.

Lady Whiteface camp to start

Bill would hinder NCAA

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - The NCAA can police its membership without the need for laws forcing it to apply the Constitutional rules of criminal due process, NCAA executive director Dick Schultz says.

U.S. Rep Edolphus Towns, D-N.Y., has introduced a bill requiring the NCAA to accord due process to coaches, players and colleges it investigates.

process with administrative due process," Schultz said. "What the state legislatures are trying to do is force the NCAA to conform to criminal due process."

"We can't do that. We don't have subpoena power. We don't have the ability to swear people to oath. Without subpoena power you don't have the ability to cross-examine because you can't require a witness to appear."

"Those are things that we can't provide but they are not demanded by due process."

Critics say the NCAA provides only limited access to evidence against accused institutions. But Schultz said schools under scrutiny are aware they are being investigated.

"You can take a look at any voluntary organization...and I'll guarantee that you will not find more due process provided in administrative hearings," Schultz said.

Schultz said he has favored reform since becoming the NCAA's executive director in an attempt to put college athletics back in its place on the college campus.

"Competitive athletics in America is almost like a cult," Schultz said. "It's probably swung too far to one side and the effort that you are seeing take place in the NCAA today is to try to bring that back to the center."

The reform movement could go as far as banning all off-campus recruiting, Schultz said.

"I think there is substantial interest growing to eliminate off-campus recruiting, especially among the presidents," Schultz said. "And, I'm not so sure if push comes to shove that the college coaches wouldn't think that's pretty good idea too."

A desire for equal rules could bring the coaches around to the recruiting change, he said.

"You'd go back to the old system of writing letters and telephone calls and that type of thing," Schultz said. "The important thing you'd have to do is keep the boosters out of that process."

Hints from Heloise

HANDY SPAGHETTI

Dear Heloise: When I need to light a tall candle with a wick that is hard to reach and I am out of long matches, I light a strand of raw spaghetti with a cigarette lighter.

I find this very handy when I am out of long matches. — Mrs. Harry E. Hill.

Dear Heloise: I was constantly having to replace the cushions on my lawn furniture because of water damage.

I finally hit on a solution. When it looks like rain, I slide the cushions into large, plastic garbage bags. It's sure saved on replacement cost. — Robin T., Augusta, Ga.

The old saying that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure is surely true here. Thanks for writing. — Heloise.

VACATION TIPS

Dear Heloise: I have something to add to your hints on what to do before you go on vacation.

Have your neighbors put garbage in your cans. No garbage in the can is a sure sign no one is home. — Mrs. John Culpepper, Pine Bluff, Ark.

What a smart idea! Bet you don't have a break-in when you're on vacation! — Heloise

BATHTUB SAFETY

Dear Heloise: I solved the slick-guard-rail problem in the bathroom by wrapping self-adhesive safety strips around the rail at a slant, and I also stuck them on the side of the tub.

I buy the strips at the grocery store but have also seen them at the local drug store. This hint has helped me and I hope it will keep someone else from slipping.

— Ruth McKee, Winter Haven, Fla.
I'm sure it will, and thanks for sending in this super safety hint. — Hugs, Heloise

ANTS

Q. My side yard is full of ants, and that's the area where my children love to play.

Do you know of a safe way to rid my yard of these pests without harming the children or the environment? — Mary Linne, Ft. Myers, Fla.

A. Ants are fond of sugary foods, which is probably why they seem so plentiful in the areas where your children play and probably eat snacks.

An effective home remedy is to pour household ammonia into the center of the ant hills. Poke a stick into the mound and wiggle it around first so the ammonia can reach all the areas.

There are some commercial ant eradicators, but try to find one (as you said) that will not harm your children or the environment.

A mound can contain large numbers of ants, so patience and persistence are the key. It could take several weeks of this treatment before all the ants disappear.

I'm sending you a complimentary copy of my pamphlet, Heloise Battles Bugs, which includes this hint and more information about ants. Anyone interested in a copy should send $2 and a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, legal-sized envelope to Heloise/Bugs, P.O. Box 836, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9910. — Heloise

Summer Pasta Salad

The yogurt in this recipe makes this pasta salad extra creamy.

|---------|----------------------|---------|-----------------------------|
| 1½ cups | broccoli florets | 2 tbsp. | Parmesan cheese |
| ½ cup | sliced carrots | 2 tbsp. | mayonnaise |
| 3 cups | cooked pasta spirals | ½ tsp. | garlic powder |

Home health care coverage can make recovery more comfortable.

Full recovery from a serious illness can take much longer than a stay in the hospital... especially if the patient is elderly. Recuperation at home can be more comfortable and secure. It can also cost your parents or your family a lot of money for which Medicare does not reimburse you.

That's why the CNA Insurance Companies, one of several major companies our independent agency represents, created a new Home Health Care Plan. It provides coverage your parents and your own family may need to help pay the costs of professional health services performed at home. Contact our agency for a discussion that can make your whole family more comfortable about the future.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am very worried about my husband. Recently he joined a group to lose weight. The diet they recommended is 20 years old — a low-carbohydrate, high-protein diet. He is not allowed to eat any whole-grain cereal, no whole wheat or any kind of bread or cereal. He cannot eat rice, rice cakes or any carbohydrate. They told him he will binge if he eats any carbohydrates. He can eat some fruit and vegetables.

I've always maintained my weight by a high-carbohydrate, low-fat diet. Is a high-protein, no-carbohydrate diet dangerous? I understand it can cause kidney and liver disorders.

Also, he is only allowed three meals a day and I understand doctors recommend eating four or five times a day, only smaller portions.

DEAR READER: Actually that kind of diet is over 30 years old. It was popularized by Herman Taller in his book "Calories Don't Count" published in 1961 — but, of course, they do count.

Think about your own experience. You have controlled your weight despite being on a high-carbohydrate diet. Why? Because your calorie intake was limited. The low-carbohydrate, high-protein diets do help people lose weight, mostly because a person consumes fewer calories. There are some initial changes that cause a loss of pounds, such as emptying the colon and eliminating water from the body, but these temporary changes are not loss of body fat.

When carbohydrates are eliminated or drastically reduced, a person's appetite is diminished. That is because the body switches over to using protein and fat, and there is a chemical change in the body, called ketosis. It is a mechanism again to diminish calorie intake. The hardest part of dieting for many people is controlling their appetites. But if you can consume just the same number of calories, regardless of the diet composition, you will lose the same amount of weight.

I have discussed the factors involved in weight loss in Special Report 91, Making Weight Control Work, and am sending you a free copy. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/91, P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908. It includes a discussion of some of the harmful diets that have been popularized.

All very-low-calorie diets are potentially dangerous. Semi-starvation is not the right approach to weight loss. Yes, the very-low-carbohydrate diets can lead to fatty deposits in the liver. The emphasis on proteins, particularly fat meats and other foods high in saturated fats, and even eggs, may significantly increase the total cholesterol levels. There is very little to recommend them.

The proper diet for weight control is a balanced diet that includes all of the four basic food groups. It should provide 1,200 calories a day for adults. Anything less can lead to problems and needs to be managed by a physician. The very-low-calorie diets being promoted today usually produce only temporary results. All you need to do is look at Oprah Winfrey's story of rapid weight loss and, not too long afterward, a rapid weight gain, back to where she started. That is the usual story. If you want to lose weight, you need to be on a program you can follow for life.

Don't forget the value of exercise. A proper limited-calorie diet along with a good exercise program is essential. And it really doesn't matter if you have three or six meals a day. Calories do count and the total intake is the important factor.
