Their new home was the site of occasional parties, and Bobby's revelry accelerated with his income. While he didn't consider himself a problem drinker, he did drink heavily two or three nights a week.

"There's not a lot to do in Rotan," he joked.

If Bobby had a weakness other than women, it was cars, and he switched back and forth between Chevrolets and Pontiacs so often that he sometimes forgot to make his monthly payments. Asked once if he believed his unpaid bills and financial obligations to be serious, he replied:

Very serious." Still, in the spring of 1976, Bobby owned a late model Pontiac Grand Prix that fit his lifestyle attracted more of the town's. attention than he suspected.

Some thought Bobby might be. "And she was standing behind the slipping away for a rendezvous with an attractive young woman named Melanie, a chunky, dark-haired nurse's aide at Fisher County Hospital. Melanie was in fact Bobby's most recent sexual conquest. Or perhaps vice versa. Either way, it was a feverish, ongoing affair, one which both would look back on with tempered remorse.

On March 27, 1976, two weeks before Rhonda's death, Bobby threw a party at the couple's home. Melanie showed up with friends, but soon grew upset that Bobby was ignoring her.

Rather suspiciously, some thought, Melanie fainted in the front

Bobby carried her into a bedroom and ordered everyone out. When Rhonda suggested calling a doctor, he told her to shut up, get out and close the door.

That raised an eyebrow or two, However, that attention was and at least one couple present child, though she wasn't.

At 2 a.m. that night, Melanie called Bobby and told him, "I'm okay, I think.

Several days after the party, she and Bobby checked into a Holiday Inn at nearby Sweetwater. It was April Fool's Day, a prophetic date as it turned out because the motel receipt surfaced years later as evidence in Bobby's murder trial.

On Friday evening, April 9, Bobby telephoned Rhonda's parents in Shamrock and told Jaye Nell, "We're not going to be able to come home this weekend."

Bobby apparently lied to his mother-in-law that a work-related problem had arisen at the hospital. He said he and Rhonda would come the following week.

"That will be better anyway," Jaye Nell replied, "because next week is Easter Sunday."

Bobby spent the Saturday before Rhonda's death with relatives from Dallas who had come to Rotan to pick up a boat. That evening, he and Rhonda visited a neighborhood couple, Ron and Susie Martin.

As they talked on the porch, Mrs. Martin said, Bobby tried to hold hands with Rhonda, but she pulled "She did this a couple of times," the neighbor recalled. Then, when Bobby attempted to put his arm around her, she stepped away from him. The neighbor described Rhonda's behavior that evening as unusual but said the bar brushing her hair.'

Years later, witnesses would testify that Rhonda had a habit of showering and then brush-drying her hair. And if she had showered and brushed her hair, why would she be back in a bathtub two hours over."

On April 11, 1976, Bobby arose carly and drove to the hospital to dispose of a few Sunday morning chores. He returned around 9:30 or 10:00 a.m.

His activities over the next few hours would one day come under intense scrutiny and it was his recollections, often conflicting or muddled, that aroused latent suspicions.

Shortly before noon, Bobby drove to a drive-in cafe and service station where he spoke briefly with Donna and Ray Gene Shipp, who were friends and fishing companions.

He told them he was headed to Abilene "to get out of this damn town" awhile and that Rhonda was home getting ready.

"He was very nervous and jittery, and in a hurry," Mrs. Shipp said, adding that she thought it peculiar that Bobby purchased only $2 worth of gas. "And he had told the lady to charge it," she said.

A neighbor named Alta Hinson, nursing supervisor at Fisher County Hospital, saw Bobby leave and return home.

"He was gone between five and 10 minutes," she claimed. Mrs. Hinson said she returned from church shortly before noon, changed clothes, put a steak on to fry, glanced out her kitchen window and saw Bobby climb in his car and drive away.

He squealed his tires, she said, 'like he always did.'

Bobby returned within minutes, and a short time later she heard a sound she interpreted as a "sound of distress ... a human sound."

Before she could determine the source, the phone rang. It was a nurse from the hospital.

"She told me that I needed to go to Bobby's, that he had just called her, and that something had happened at his house, and that he was very upset, and that he told her Rhonda was dead."

Mrs. Hinson ran to the Templin home, found Bobby agitated and upset and Rhonda lying dead on the living room floor. A neighbor and mortician named Doug Weathersbee was attending the body.

Weathersbee told her Rhonda had been electrocuted. She checked for life signs and found none. She lowered the blanket and placed her ear on Rhonda's chest. Nothing.

A burn on the inner side of Rhonda's right arm caught her eye, though fleetingly.

Across town, Police Chief Glenn Willeford was discussing a trouble call at the Templin home with district attorney's investigator Ken Crow, the top investigative officer in the three-county district.

Willeford said it sounded like an accident and told Crow he wouldn't be needed at the scene.

"Look into it carefully," said Crow, always wary of the obvious. "You could be burying a murder. Call me if you need me to come

There was no call.

Entering the bathroom that Sunday, Alta Hinson saw a radio submerged in the tub along with part of an extension cord and a towel. Later, with police permission, she removed the radio from the tub and noticed the wires on the extension cord were exposed near one end. They had been severed and spliced back together.

She wrapped the cord around the radio and placed it in a cabinet beneath the vanity. And there it remained, accessible to anyone who might wish to examine it or even tamper with it.

Until it vanished months later.

Bruce Garrison, one of Bobby's co-workers at the hospital, was among the first arrivals at the Templin home. He found Bobby bent over Rhonda's body.

"I think she is dead," he recalled Bobby saying.

'He kept repeating that he had told Rhonda several times not to place the radio on the bathtub. Andhe just couldn't believe what had happened...He was trying to say, in his own words - trying to revive her, verbally, and going around the house beating his head against the father would agree to it.' She said Bobby also indicated "he felt that they were doing the autopsy because they didn't believe

Informed of their daughter's death by Alta Hinson, Norbert and Jaye Nell Schlegel arrived from Shamrock about 3:30 p.m. They were less concerned with the autopsy than finding out from Bobby what had happened that morning.

But Bobby seemed unwilling or unable to tell them. The Schlegels felt they had to pry answers from

Later that evening, as two carloads of family members headed for Shamrock, Bobby overtook the car carrying the Schlegels, rolled down the window and said:

"You all go on. I have something I have to do at the hospital. And I will catch up.'

He drove directly to a telephone and called an Abilene pathologist named Jarrett Williams. Dr. Williams was just finishing his autopsy on Rhonda.

"That is my wife," Bobby began, asking if the pathologist had determined the cause of death.

BABY BLUES

Are you disappointed because your baby's blue eyes are turning brown? Don't be. Most babies are born with blue eyes because there is a lack of pigment at birth in the tissues of the iris, the colored part of the eye. When your baby is a few weeks old, the body begins to produce a pigment that can change the color of the baby's eyes. A small amount of pigment production will leave the baby's eyes blue. The production of more pigment causes the eyes to turn almost aqua. And, as the amount of pigment increases, the color of the eyes change to grey, then hazel and finally, for most babies, to brown.

Generally, the amount of pigment produced in the iris is related to the amount of pigment produced in other parts of the body. That is why there are more blue eyes among fair-skinned blondes and more brown eyes among darker-skinned people.

Heredity plays a large factor in the color of your baby's eyes. Brown eyed babies are just as beautiful as blue eyed ones.

Amendments

Texas voters will decide the fate of 21 proposed constitutional amendments on Nov. 7. Since this is an oddnumbered year, there will be no federal, state, district or county offices on the ballot. Various local jurisdictions across the state will hold special elections or votes on special propositions.

Here in Deaf Smith County, only the 21 proposed amendments will be on the ballot. We won't have a vote but Amarillo is voting on two sales tax propositions that could affect Hereford shoppers. If the propositions pass, Panhandle shoppers who buy in Amarillo will help pay for industrial development and the reduction of property taxes in that city.

Despite the large number of proposed amendments to consider, we find ourselves in favor of most of them. We will vote against Nos. 1 and 11, both concerning compensation paid to members of the Legislature. While we think the current salary of $7,200 a year is inadequate, this proposal would not only give lawmakers a 224 percent pay raise but would also take away voter approval of any

No. 1 would amend the Constitution to replace the specific salary of $600 a month for members of the Legislature with a salary of one-fourth of the governor's salary. Based on the current governor's salary of $93,432, this would set the legislative pay at $23,358 a year.

Why the legislator's salary should be linked to the governor's salary, we don't understand--except that the legislature sets the governor's salary. An enraged electorate forced the U.S. Congress to back off when it tried a similar salary end-run earlier this year. Texas voters should reject this type of pay raise, as well.

No. 11, which would raise the per diem for legislators by 170 percent and also ties the amount to a federal income-tax deduction. Again, this pay would be removed from control of Texas voters. If both Amendment No. 1 and No. 11 are approved, Legislators would reap a double bonus. The Legislature has already helped itself to other goodies, such as more retirement pay(tied to the salaries of district judges) and higher interim per diem, at a time when many Texans are barely breaking even.

Let's pay our Legislators more when they come up with an above board, common-sense proposal!

We will also vote against No. 6, which authorizes board members of hospital districts to serve four-year terms. We favor two-year terms which make office holders more accountable to the public. Voters need a way to oust incompetent or indifferent directors without waiting four years. In addition, this amendment just whittles down the two-year term rule with another special exception. If we want to change, the two-year limit should be removed on all governing boards. Most states allow their legislatures the flexibility to fix the terms of all state-created offices, which is the best way to make a change.

Amendment 21, the state bond issue for college savings and student loans, sounds good but seems unnecessary at this time. The student loans program is administered by the coordinating board through the Texas Opportunity Plan. Of the $285 million in authorized bonds(authorized in 1965 and 1969), $205.5 million had been issued as of 1977 and last June the remaining $79.5 million was authorized for use. Demand for the loans has been low because the state and federal governments now guarantee repayment of student loans. It seems premature to approve a new bond authorization until the present bonds are exhausted.

We'll vote for all the others, and highly recommend votes for No. 2($500 million in bonds for water projects), No. 3(state financing of the development and production of Texas products and businesses), No. 5(tax break for goods in transit), No. 8(bonds for prisons, mental health and law enforcement facilities), No. 9(consolidation of criminal justice agencies), No. 10(instructions to juries on parole and good conduct laws), and No. 13(bill of rights for crime victims).

DA endorses 8

On Nov. 7 the voters will decide an important issue for the criminal justice system of Texas.

Proposition 8 would allow the state to issue up to $400 million in general obligation bonds to finance construction and renovation of adult and juvenile facilities and state mental health facilities.

As most people know, the criminal justice system in Texas is in a mess. Because of the early releases on parole, we now have people who would rather be sent to the penitentiary for their crime than be placed on probabion. Hardened criminals are being released from prison after having served only a small fraction of their sentence.

Our prisons are so overcrowded that many county jails have more than 200 percent capacity because of all the people in the jails who have been sentenced to the Texas Department of Corrections but cannot be received by the TDC because of their crowded conditions. Deaf Smith County has been very fortunate because all the officials have worked very hard at it, and we have been able to keep our backlog of TDC prisoners to a minimum. However, unless some more prisons are built, we may soon see a problem in our county.

If approved, No. 8 would allow the state to issue the bonds to fund six new prisons. Construction of the first would begin in January. While construction of new prisons may not be a cure-all for the problems in our criminal justice system, we must do something to keep the hardened criminals off the streets. This may not be the only answer to the problem but it is one of the steps that we must take in order to reach a solution.

WHAT TIME IS IT?

Arizona is the smartest state I know. They refuse to practice the foolishness of daylight savings time. They let the rest of us change our time while they live in bliss. What do they need with more daylight? They have sunshine enough.

Since they do not change, some of the time they are on the same time as California. The rest of the time they are the same as New Mexico. They do not seem to care. They figure it is our problem to figure out if they are one hour ahead of us or two.

Daylight savings time has me confused. When are we on the real time? The time God intended? What time is it really? Time is hard for me anyhow.

If I head west I gain time, right? But if I keep going west I gain and gain until I hit a line out in the Pacific and suddenly I have lost a whole day. Time is mindboggling enough without having some nuts messing it up twice a year.

The women at the beauty shop where my wife goes swear that most of the problems in the world come from daylight savings time. They say we did not have AIDS until there was daylight savings time. The ozone layer was fine when we left the time where God wanted it. It is hard to fault their logic.

The whole idea is backwards. They cut off time in the evening when evening time is already short. They could cut two hours off in the summer and we could still get in a walk after dinner. If I die young it is going to be because it got too dark to exercise; at least that is what I am going to tell my doctor.

If Arizona can do it why can't we? We holler a lot about big brother running our lives, so let's take a stand right here. If the state won't do it then lets be the only city in America with it's own time.

It will be confusing but it won't be confusing to us. Let everyone else figure it out. We will get on God's time and stay

An AP News Analysis

Bush won't budge on taxes

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent White House tutoring in remedial lipreading to keep Republicans in line with President Bush's across-the-board vow that there will be no new taxes.

There's been some GOP talk about boosting the federal gasoline tax, notably by the Senate Republican leader. That's an idea that has been advanced before, usually by Democrats, to raise money and promote energy conservation at the same time.

A gas tax boost is one Bush vehemently ruled out when he was a candidate, and his spokesman did so again the other day. Democratic leaders already had said they were not going to risk advocating a tax increase the president would block and the GOP would use against them later.

"Everyone has read his lips..." said Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, the majority leader.

But Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, the GOP leader, said he would be for an increase as long as the money it raised went to finance the highway system, and wasn't earmarked to reduce the national debt as sometimes has been proposed. "I would support a gas tax increase for rebuilding the infrastructure, not for debt reduction," Dole said Sunday.

Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., said earlier that he would support a gas tax increase if needed to rebuild earthquake-damaged highways in the state where he's running for governor next

But there's no real chance the tax, now 9.1 cents a gallon, is going to be increased. Bush isn't budging, and Democratic congressional leaders are not going to take on the political burden of pushing an unpopular tax increase against his opposition.

The new round of tax talk grew out of the need for disaster funds, for California and to repair the damage caused by Hurricane Hugo in the East.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said when the Senate passed a disaster relief appropriation that the earthquake and hurricane "should have awakened us to the fact that we do not have the revenues we need to build and the White House. "We do not feel that

He said Bush had an opportunity to say so, despite his campaign refrain that he would tell Congress: "Read my lips - no new taxes.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-III. chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, was advocating an increase in the gasoline tax long before the disaster hit.

So has Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, who said a higher tax would encourage conservation and lower American dependence on foreign oil, which is increasing steadily. Each one cent increase in the federal gasoline tax raises about $1 billion a year, a prospect that led to earlier proposals for a sharp increase to reduce the federal deficit. Gas tax revenues said. go into the highway trust fund; roadbuilders, the oil industry and allied interests are determined to keep it that

Dole, appearing on the NBC-TV read Bush's lips, too, and hadn't forgotten the injunction against new taxes, but wouldn't consider a roadbuilding gas tax to be a major

 The distinction did not register at WASHINGTON (AP) - It may take maintain vital physical infrastructure an increase in federal gas taxes is necessary at this time," said Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

When the government began the interstate highway system in 1956, it was to be financed by a federal gasoline tax of 3 cents a gallon. Advocates of an increase say that if the gasoline tax had kept pace with inflation, it would now be at least 13 cents a gallon instead

With gasoline prices down, petroleum imports are increasing. In July, oil imports accounted for more than half of U.S. consumption for the first time in a dozen years. The Department of Energy estimates that the import rate will reach 65 percent by the year 2,000.

We are getting back into all the old habits, getting more and more dependent on foreign oil," Moynihan

But the idea Dole endorsed isn't going anywhere without Bush, which means it isn't going anywhere. House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., said he favors an increase, but would program "Meet the Press," said he'd push one only if it came with an ironclad Bush endorsement.

> "We're not going to engage in a kamikaze effort to raise taxes,"

Dear editor:

We want to thank the Hereford Junior High band and its directors for the wonderful performance in the homecoming parade.

As parents of a band member, we surely do know how much time and effort is put into making a truly number one band of which Hereford can and always should be proud.

We very much appreciate the part each and every one of you had to make this such a success.

Dear editor:

We wish to express our gratitude. to all who participated in the Holly King Walk-A-Thon. It brought in over $2,800. This wouldn't have happened but for the people who walked, donated prizes, worked, and to the businesses at the mall who allowed the mall to be used for this event.

We would like to thank all of the churches, businesses and organizations, to all of the workers and of course the walkers who brought in their pledges.

this money will be used to help pay for equipment Holly needs at home during her recovery.

May you all be richly blessed for making this crisis a little easier to bear for Holly's family.

Dear Editor:

I am a high school senior in Hereford. We have just finished debating the subject of the Savings and Loans crisis in our Advanced Social Studies class.

While studying this subject, I have uncovered a major crime. The crime being that the taxpayers of this country are going to have to pay billions upon billions of dollars over the next 30 years.

The taxpayers are having to pay. for the mistakes of government deregulation and the fraudulent behavior of thrift executives. Why should we, the taxpayers, have to carry this burden on our back?

Dear editor:

After doing some research, I have discovered that people were stealing money from the savings and loans.

A new law just passed by Congress will make the taxpayers pay for the loss of money and for the prosecution of the people who stole the money. The new law was written to better regulate savings and loans to prevent the loss of money.

The savings and loans will be regulated by the Treasury Department and the FDIC. this law "should" keep people from embczzling and stealing money, but I do not think it will. All it will do is make the taxpayers pay for the billions of dollars already lost and keep the regulations at a minimum.

It took people years to find ways to get the money the first time by check kiting, nominee loans, land flips and many other ways. Even though I do not understand how they got away with embezzling money from savings and loans, these people will find other ways to steal the money. They may attempt to go around the law the same way Congress is attempting to go around Gramm-Rudman by going "off-

The only positive thing to come out of the failure of the savings and loans is that we are able to detect the old schemes used in stealing this money. My main concerns are whether or not we are alert enough to detect the new methods of theft and that the American people are paying for all of their money lost.

In recent years, many farmers have seen anything but security in their industry. But when First National Bank says "Financial Security with Hometown Pride" it applies as much, if not more so, to the farmers of our area. And in order to be a strong financial institution for our farmers, we've got to know a great deal about banking as well as farming. That is why we are fortunate to have active board members like Mr. Donald Meyer. Mr. Meyer has farmed in the Hereford community for more than thirty years. He brings life-long knowledge of the farming industry to the daily operations at First National.

Mr. Meyer is also active on the ASCS County Committee and has just recently completed twenty-one years on the Hereford Grain Board. He, his wife, Ann, and their four children are heavily involved in church activities at St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

We do have great pride in the agricultural strength of this area. And consider it a vital part of our commitment to Hereford, to understand the intricacies of each business and offer any necessary financial support. With board members like Donald Meyer, we feel our resources in the farming industry are the ultimate assurance to our farmers that First National is . . .

Financial Security With Hometown Pride.

Herd rushes past Tigers, 28-14

By SAM W. WALLER Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces moved a giant step closer to securing a playoff spot Friday with a 28-14 win over the Frenship Tigers at Tiger Stadium in Wolfforth.

The Herd upped its record to 6-2 on the year and 5-1 in District 1-4A with the win, keeping right behind the Estacado Matadors, while the Tigers fell to 3-5 and 2-4. The Mats held on to the district lead with a 24-0 win over Borger, giving the Bulldogs three losses in district play. Pampa, with the next best chance at making the playoffs, also suffered it's third district loss, 23-17 to Randall.

Hereford had some early problems moving the ball, but kicked into gear in the second half when tailback Matt Bromlow rushed for 121 of his 182 vards and scored two of his three Bromlow's 15-yard run with about five minutes left in the game took him over the 1,000-yard mark for the season. The junior finished the night at 1,049 yards in just six games.

The game started out as a defensive attle with both teams punting on their first possessions. But the fourth quarter made up for the slow start as five of the game's six touchdowns came in the final nine minutes.

Frenship opened the game lined up in the old "7 Diamond" defense, which supposedly went out with leather

But the relic still worked, at least for a while, as the Herd was held to just eight yards of offense on two first quarter possessions.

Hereford's detense allowed a little the Tigers drove 60 yards to the Herd 6-yard line, cating 6:31 off the clock in 14 plays. But on first-and-goal, tailback David Renshaw, dropped a pitchout that Brian Wagner covered. Frenship got even closer on its next attempt, reaching the Herd 3 early in the second quarter. But the defense stiffened again and forced a 20-yard. sailed harmlessly wide after being tipped at the line of scrimmage.

in the first half," Cumpton said, because they had the ball inside the 30 I know three times. We blocked a field goal and stopped them two times. by our defense. I thought, overall, it was the best they've played."

The defense was led by Mike Daniel and Jeremy Gowdy, both of whom were in on seven tackles, while Jason Lueb, Oscar Garcia and Chris Tardy each had six and Mark Daniel and Aaron Savage had five apiece.

Defensive tackle Brian Wagner said the Tiger offensive line was a major source of Frenship's being able to territory as they reached the 37-yard recovered.

It was just a matter of getting used The defense kept us in the game—to what they were doing (out of the 7-Diamond)," he said. "They were moving people all over the place, but we started picking them up." Bromlow gave Hereford its first I thought it was a great performance—first down of the game on a 13-yard dash and Jason Walterscheid connected with Brett Confer twice on third downs to keep the drive going. A 27-yard completion to Confer put the Herd at the Frenship 28. Bromlow broke for 27 more on the next play to set up his one-yard score. Eddie Cantu's kick was the last point that would go up more than 19 minutes of play.

The Tigers again penetrated Hereford 31-yard line where Benny Gonzales

Bromlow rushed for 16 yards and Walterscheid found Russell Backus for 10 more. But a holding call and a sixyard sack left the Herd facing fourthand-22

The Tigers had to punt the ball back Hereford tried to run the half out, after three plays netted only seven yards, setting the Herd up at its own

Hereford proceeded to march the ball downfield as Walterscheid completed four straight passes, including one for seven yards to Confer on third-and-six and a 21yarder to Backus after another holding penalty and a fumble recovered for a loss left the Herd with second-and-24. Bromlow had 31 yards on the drive, which lasted 12 plays and used up 6:14, and scored from seven yards Cumpton said the Walterscheidto-Confer combination worked well al night for the Herd.

Patterson gained nine yards on first "I thought we threw the ball real but Shin was hit as he made the pitch well," he said. "And against that kind on the option and the ball rolled to the of a defense, that's what you have to do. That's one thing this bunch has been able to do is take advantage of what the defense gives them.

"A good example of that is when they started double teaming Russell Backus, Confer catches six passes. It's a team game, and somebody has always made the plays when we've had to make them.

"I thought Brett Confer had a great game, and I thought that was, maybe, Jason Walterscheid's best game throwing the ball.

Walterscheid finished eight of 12 for 91 yards. Confer's six catches totaled 60 yards while Backus picked up 31 yards on two.

Frenship-finally got on the board following the kickoff, ending the Herd's string of 11 consecutive quarters without allowing a point.

A late hit on the kickoff return gave the Tigers a free 15 yards to begin the drive. Shin gained six yards to convert on fourth-and-one at the Herd 46, but was sacked for an eight-yard loss on the next play by Savage, Wagner and Burt Noland. The Tigers got a break, though, when Hereford was given an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty for celebrating after the play.

On the very next play, Cade passed on a flanker reverse for to Boudy 33 vards and the score, then added the point after to cut the Herd's lead in

The Whitefaces wasted little time in getting the points back, needing only 2:10 to move 66 yards.

Bromlow accounted for 60 of the yards, including the 15 on third-andone from the Herd 43 that put him over 1,000 for the year, and went 34 for his third touchdown.

Bromlow said the simple toss was what worked best when the Herd moved on the ground.

When we started inside and then kicked it outside," he said, "we were making at least 15 yards every time we ran that play. The linemen were getting out on their blocks real well and I just followed them."

Hereford wasted even less time in putting the game away. Frenship ran just over a minute off the clock after the kickoff before having to punt. Tate Smith came in to spell Bromlow and almost duplicated his feat of a week ago when he scored on his very first

Smith gained only two steps on his first run this time, but went 60 yards for a touchdown on the next play. Cantu's kick gave Hereford a 21-point bulge with just two-and-a-half minutes

"I think they had a stunt on, I'm not sure," Smith said of his scoring run. "(Fullback Greg Urbanczyk) broke out and I was following behind 'Scheid. He picked up the safety and I was gone. from there. Benny (Gonzales) and Tree (Tijerina) got their two men to the ground and I just took off."

Frenship appeared finished when return man Tony Moses muffed Savage's kickoff and had to fall on the ball at the Tiger 11. But Renshaw cut loose for a 56-yard gain on first down.

The carry was all Renshaw needed to become the second back in the game to reach the 1,000-yard plateau.

The Tigers ran the hook-and-lateral again with Renshaw taking the ball from Boudy for 15 yards to the Herd An interference call against Hereford in the end zone moved Frenship to the Herd 2. Renshaw got the score two plays later on a four-yard sweep with 42 seconds left in the game.

Frenship successfully pulled an on-side kick when Eddie Crawley fell on the ball at the Herd 43 after three Hereford players failed to gain control during the scramble.

After gaining 18 yards on the first two plays, the Tigers tried the hookand-lateral for a third time, but Boudy was flagged for making a forward pitch to Renshaw. Shin managed to find Boudy one last time for 25 yards, but the receiver was brought down at the Herd 9 as time expired.

The Herd's ground game was slowed a little, and the usual Jason Walterscheid-to-Russell Backus pass connection wasn't open because the Tigers double-covered Backus. So Walterscheid instead threw to wide receiver Brett Confer, who had six catches for 60 yards.

"They said early in the week they might throw to me more, so I wasn't surprised," said Confer. "They weren't covering me very tight, because they were double teaming Russell. That left, me more open and Jason got the ball there."

"Jason played extremely well, and Brett Confer made some great plays for us," said Hereford coach Don Cumpton. "We expected them to play a seven-man front, and when they came out in that defense we were a little behind for a half.

"Our linemen did a great job understanding what they were doing to us and picking up what we told them at the half. The way they (the Tigers) were playing they had 11 men within five yards of the line of scrimmage. When we broke the line of scrimmage we could go a long way. That's a chance you take when you play a lot of people that close to the line."

Some folks were a little apprehensive before the game, especially some of the more superstitious coaches.

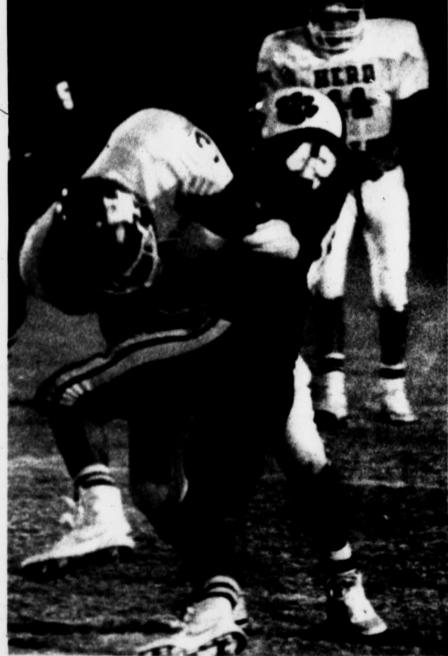

Most Friday nights, assistant coach Ed Coplen is on the road looking at a future Herd opponent. Since Dumas had the night off

Friday night, so did Coplen. He went to Frenship to watch the Herd. It was the third game he had seen this season. The other two: the losses to Palo Duro and Estacado. Coplen gave a little sigh of relief when the Herd had the 28-14 win. Another little trradition went by the way this week also: several Hereford coaches eat on Wednesday nights at a local Mexican food restaurant. But this past Wednesday they had to go to bus-driving school.

For me, it was a first, too: it was the first time in five games in Wolfforth that a visting team won: three Dimmitt losses and Hereford's 1987 loss.

Bulled over

All alone

Hereford wingback Brett Confer (30) was this wide open most of the night against Frenship as the Tigers concentrated on shutting down the Herd's leading receiver, Russell Backus, who was held to only two catches. Herd quarterback Jason Walterscheid found it worth his while to throw to Confer instead, who finished with 60 yards on six catches.

Johnson disappointed with 'Pokes

An AP Sports Analysis By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - You can see it in his eyes. Jimmy Johnson never thought he'd go winless through the first half of the NFL season.

His eyes blaze when he talks about it. They are defiant. Yet there's also a hint of resignation to the hard times ahead before the Dallas Cowboys are winners again.

Heavy heat from the fans is coming down. The honeymoon is over for the new regime and boos once again echo across Texas Stadium like they did for Tom Landry in last year's 3-13 season. Things are getting rougher on the talk shows. "What's coach Johnson say now?" a caller asked. "Does he still have all the answers? Unfair, perhaps, but losing begets bad manners. 'Some people have a lot of frustration in-their own lives so they are looking for someone who has more trouble than they do," Johnson said. "I know there are still people out there who still resent we are here. Johnson has said a thousand times Permian could stuff.

that the Cowboys' 0-8 start is a "disappointment."

He has admitted to getting overly pumped up by a 3-1 preseason and misjudging some of his talent.

As the losing dragged on, it became apparent to Johnson why the Cowboys only won three games last year. They weren't very talented.

So, to his credit, he decided to sacrifice this year for the future. He traded Herschel Walker for a mother lode of draft picks.

But it could be several years before those draft picks pay dividends. Meanwhile, there's the weekly losing grind. He tries to be positive and upbeat, finding small things to be encouraged about.

Then Sunday reality rolls around. The only break the Cowboys are going to get is to one of their bones. The officials are looking the other way now. Who would you give a borderline call to? The Washington Redskins or a team tripping over its shoelaces?

The Cowboys are playing so many rookies that a coordinated game plan is practically impossible. Thus, we see a fundamental offense that Odessa but don't have the team speed to stay on the field with the majority of NFL offenses.

Johnson ignores the catcalls and coaches on bravely:

"I can't stand losing, either," he says. "I know there are a lot of people who are smiling and said 'I told you so.' Well, that's their problem.'

Johnson, who won 52 games and a national title in five years at the University of Miami, knows his ability to coach in the NFL is under question. He knows John McKay and Lou Holtz never made a successful conversion.

Here's a guy with an IQ of 162. He didn't roll into Valley Ranch on a wagon load of losses. His plan to turn it around is to build a franchise through draft choices. Remember, it has been done before by men named Landry, Tex Schramm and Gil Brandt. They went to five Super Bowls that way.

Owner Jerry Jones suggested on the day he bought the franchise that Johnson was worth five Heisman Trophy winners and five No. 1 draft.

Johnson has to be worth every bit of that to get the Cowboys back to must lift the morale of his players and the fans while the losing wheel spins.

He has the time because of a 10year contract with good friend Jones. But does he have the patience? What if the Cowboys have the worst Tampa Bay's 0-14 for one year.

Draft picks can't be expected to make a big impact next year. What if the Cowboys break Tampa Bay's NFL record of 26 consecutive losses?

Johnson knows once a team starts losing it becomes a habit. He saw that at Oklahoma State where those Cowboys could seldom beat the Sooners and the Cornhuskers.

'I could have stayed with a pat before he does.

Defensively, the Cowboys play hard playoff caliber again. He somehow only have seven losses to go to beat hand and we would have made fewer mistakes, but I felt it was in our best interest to bring in some players who could help us in the future," Johnson

He has gambled his coaching reputation that he can do things his way and win big in the NFL. With some fans already booing and the critics taking sniper shots, Johnson could be like John Wayne at the Alamo

Let Your Voice Be Heard... Vote YES on Proposition #4

In Texas, we like to believe that we can do anything, including making our state the very best it can be! That's why veterans organizations quickly expanded their scope to include local fund-raising activities that benefit Little League Baseball, Cancer Research, Boys' State, Girls' State, T-ball, Youth Summer Camps plus assistance to disaster victims, aid to the homeless and many more programs...

However, these programs are threatened because veterans are treated unequally throughout the state when it comes to property taxes. Veterans groups already pay millions of dollars in taxes, why make them pay more? Bob Bullock, Texas' State Comptroller, testified recently "we've looked at the impact of this change and found it would have very little impact locally...rather, it will help the local community by providing additional revenue to take care of the needy..." Voting YES allows veterans to continue their support of local causes and charities.

So Support your Veterans by Voting YES on Proposition #4 on November 7.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farm- increase reported for 1988-89. land prices are expected to increase ment. ,

Based on a survey of farmland appraisers made in early August, prices are likely to rise an average sers for the slowdown in the price would be about half the 6.5 percent soybean prices from the drought-

Farmland prices plummeted in in 1990 but at a much slower pace, the early 1980s, and by 1986 had than this year, according to a survey reached a 19-year low average reported by the Agriculture Depart-nationally of $548 per acre before turning back up. The peak was $823 per acre in 1982.

> The report said appraisers expect land values to rise the fastest in the North Central region, up 4.8 percent during the 1989-90, compared with a 9.5 percent increase reported in

> No state estimates were included in the report.

"While corn and soybean prices remain relatively high compared with recent years, current prices are lower than last year and may have contributed to the less-optimistic outlook," the report said. "In contrast, high and rising wheat prices are likely providing strength

In the South, appraisers expect land values to increase an average of 2.7 percent in 1989-90, compared with 5.5 percent the previous 12

"Principal factors behind the 2.7 percent increase expected in the South are commodity price movements, lower interest rates and improving farm incomes," report said. "During the past year, the appraisers said high commodity prices, government programs and favorable weather contributed to higher farmland values in the South.'

Farmland in the West was about 3 percent, compared with 4.1 percent in 1988-89.

"High commodity prices, including cattle, and stronger demand by non-agricultural investors are the most frequently cited factors behind the increases," the report said.

Values in the Northeast are expected to rise an average of 1.4. percent in 1989-90, compared with 2.8 percent the previous year.

The report said most federal reserve banks also report slower increases in farmland values. Agricultural bankers in the Chicago district, for example, said "good" farmland averaged 1 percent higher in the second quarter of this year. down from a 3 percent gain in the first quarter.

"A number of factors support the outlook for mild increases in farmland values," the report said. "Net farm income, which measures forecast by appraisers to appreciate the value of annual agricultural production less costs, is forecast to exceed the 1987 record this year."

Interest and inflation rates are expected to average "moderately higher" this year, with higher interest reducing demand for land, while higher inflation rates boost the demand, the report said.

Weight Loss Pill 'Baffles' Scientists

WASHINGTON - Scientists are baffled by a new weight loss formula that causes people to lose weight even though they don t change the way they normally eat

Studies published in respected scientific journals such as The British Journal of Nutrition say that cyamopsis tetragonolobus, an ingredient often used to thicken ice cream, can cause permanent weight loss without dieting or exercise. Although several explanations for the weight loss are suggested, the most likely according to scientists, is that the ingredient seems to trap high calorie fat particles, decreasing their absorption in the intestines

Scientists at National dietary Research, an organization committed to the research and development of nutritional solutions to world-wide health problems have successfully isolated and incorporated cyamopsis tetragonolobus into an improved formula that greatly enhances the potential for weight loss over the ingredient alone Called Food Source One, the revolutionary new formula provides a three-way scientifically designed process to help prevent calorie absorption.

The mechanism by which Food Source One works to decrease body weight is a complicated process called nutri-bonding. When chewed and swallowed immediately before meals, high calorie fats are replaced with lower calorie nutrients, thereby providing optimum nutrition and a minimum number of fat calories as explained in an instruction sheet that accompanies the tablets. The instruction sheet should be followed for optimum results.

Food Source One is unlike any other product on the market and is available immediately because it is not a drug and only contains natural ingredients already known to be safe. Physicians and pharmacists are praising Food Source One as a natural, drug free alternative for the treatment of obesity. Food Source One is available at

Some things are so dependable, we can't help taking them for granted.

It's easy to take your natural gas furnace for granted. It sits quietly in a dark room and year after dependable year, keeps your family warm and cozy through the toughest West Texas winters.

Comfort

Natural gas heat from your furnace is warmer than heat from a heat pump. Your furnace gets your home cozy warm in a hurry, and keeps it that way.

Very Low Maintenance

After its annual pre-season check-up, your natural gas furnace should require very little attention the rest of the winter. What peace of mind that is!

Over the life of your furnace, you'll save thousands of dollars compared to the cost of electric heating in West Texas, it just doesn't make sense to heat with anything but natural gas.

Dependability

From a chilly morning to the coldest days, you'll have plenty of natural gas from Energas to take care of your family. Just set your thermostat and have a great winter!

Dependable natural gas. It's still West Texas' best energy value.

We're proud to be your gas company

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am enclosing an article from the newspaper about estrogen and breast cancer. I know this has been a concern for most women taking estrogen, but doctors assure us that the risk is small considering other factors. However, this new evidence concerns me. I am 55 years old and have been taking estrogen for a number of years and will probably have to take it for the rest of my life since I had a hysterectomy when I was 37.

DEAR READER: Your newspaper article refers to a report from Sweden. I read this report rather carefully when it appeared in the New England

Journal of Medicine. The overall data showed there was a 10 percent increase in breast cancer in women who used estrogen replacement compared to those who did not. But the study was in women who used estradiol, a form of estrogen that is not commonly used in the United States. It is a powerful estrogen somewhat different from the conjugated (synthetic) estrogen most postmenopausal women take. They have different actions. The important point is that in this same study from Sweden there was no increase in the risk of breast cancer in women who used conjugated estrogen, even over conjugated estrogens such as Prema-

Long sleeves hard to find

NEW YORK (AP) - Brooke Shields, Cher and Sigourney Weaver are among the nearly 5 million American women who at 5 feet 8 inches or over are considered tall. While they and other high-paid fashion models and movie stars can afford the luxury of custom clothing, the majority of tall women face countless frustrations finding fashionable, affordable, quality clothing that fits.

Trends such as miniskirts and cropped jackets add to their wardrobe woes.

Recently in Charlotte, N.C.; St. Louis; Denver and San Jose, Calif., women of average means but above-average stature gathered to focus on the pros and cons of their extra inches. They were brought together by JCPenney, which twice yearly publishes the "Especially for Talls" catalog which offers fashions proportioned for tall women - 5 feet 8 inches to 5 feet 11 inches and ultra-talls, those up to 6 feet 2 inches.

"The overwhelming sentiment expressed by the women in our groups was that they love being tall," said Chris O'Connell, special markets catalog manager for Pen-

"The downside for them is the great difficulty in building a wardrobe because most specialty and department stores offer little or no apparel specifically tailored for the woman 5 feet 8 inches and above."

O'Connell says most tall women find that clothing designed for average sizes just doesn't fit. They can disguise ill-fitting shirts by rolling up the sleeves and they can buy coats, jackets and dresses in larger sizes to get the length but then have to deal with alterations.

To avoid sleeves that are too short, waistlines that are too high, shirttails too skimpy and pants that look like they've shrunk, many fashionable talls say they shop the men's departments. There they can find sweaters, sweats, shirts, turtlenecks and pants of quality fabrics. The women also say they like to buy pants unhemmed, a standard in menswear for better fit.

JCPenney started its catalog exclusively for tall women in 1986. Tall fashions also can be mailordered through Sears Roebuck, Spiegel and Lane Bryant, among others, though none has a separate catalog. There isn't the plethora of offerings that there is for petites, those women 5 feet 3 and under, and much of what is offered tends toward styles that appeal to older

How did I overcome stuttering?

My husband died suddenly when I was 25. It was a terrible blow. I decided that stuttering was small potatoes compared with being a widow. I told myself that everyone has a cross to bear and stuttering was mine. Once I accepted stuttering, in the same way that I accepted the fact that my thighs are too big and I can't grow plants, I stuttered less and less. After a while I barely stuttered at all.

There are still some things that I won't do, such as call information and give my credit card number on the phone. But who cares? When I remarried recently, we said our vows in unison and it was beautiful. -- C.W., Bridgeport, Mich.

DEAR C.W.: Thanks for sharing. I was inundated with letter on the subject. Read on:

FROM LAS VEGAS: My heart goes out to that young lad who stuttered. I had the same problem and it caused me untold misery. I sweat blood every time I was called on in school. Although I was an A student, I couldn't respond orally to the simplest question.

I was an embarrassment to my sisters, who would tell me to shut up whenever I started to speak. I ran away from home at age 15. I was amazed to find that when I was away from my family my stuttering immediately eased up and eventually it stopped. When I return home to visit I find myself stuttering again. It's not hard to figure out that stress was the main factor in my case. I have a hunch it figures in other instances as well.

SAN BERNARDINO: My child was a stutterer. She attended a small private school in Mexico. A teacher there instructed her to read aloud with her teeth clenched 15 minutes, four times a day. That cured her.

MINNEAPOLIS: I stammered all through school. When I was a junior in college I went to a speech pathologist who suggested that I take up weightlifting. I took his This gave me the self-esteem I and he took it with his left hand. We were told to place everything in his left hand. We did and that put an end to the boy's stuttering.

A. - That last question gives some cause for concern. Having worked on roofs, you should know about such things as determining the pitch. However, it is found by measuring how many inches it rises for every foot it runs. Roofs with slopes of 4" of 5" per horizontal foot are safest and easiest for the do-it-yourselfer. Steep slopes and high roofs, or those with many angles, dormers or gables, are best left to the professional. If you do the job yourself, there are certain safety precautions that should be observed. > Q. - Is it possible to clean brass with regular ammonia? I seem to recall my grandmother using some kind of ammonia mixture for that

A. - Mix equal parts of household ammonia and water. Soak the brass object in the mixture for about an hour, then take it out and rub it vigorously with a clean cloth. Brass is likely to tarnish after a period of time unless it is coated with lacquer or a paste wax. This is especially true of brass which comes into contact with human skin, such as a doorknob. The ammonia-water mixture just mentioned may not work if the brass is heavily tarnished. If it is, try two parts of vinegar with one part of lemon juice and go through the same procedure as above, including the coating with lacquer or paste wax.

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) - Soul singer Wilson Pickett filed suit against Philadelphia, claiming his reputation was damaged when the city advertised his appearance in a. concert before a contract had been reached.

Pickett, whose songs "In the Midnight Hour" and "Mustang Sally" were big hits in the 1960s, is seeking $3 million in damages. The suit was filed last week in U.S. District Court in Newark and was assigned to Camden.

The suit contends that the city's Department of Recreation advertised that Pickett, 48, who lives in Englewood, would perform at an Aug. 30 concert. Negotiations for the appearance broke down and a contract was never signed, said Walter D. Nealy, Pickett's lawyer.

Karen Warrington, a spokeswoman for Philadelphia Mayor W. Wilson Goode, was not in her office Thursday afternoon and did not return a telephone call.

Strong local leadership led Holly to Hereford

were a major crop in the Magic Triangle of Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer counties, Hereford was moving and shaking in agriculture.

"Hereford has always been an agricultural center," said Bill Cleavinger, president of the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association and the American Sugarbeet Growers Association.

"We have had a lot of people in town that have been progressive and promoted not just Holly but the cattle feeding industry and other areas. Hereford has been the hub of the High Plains vegetable industry for many years, even previous to Holly coming

> Not only was there aggressive leadership, but there was the main line of the Santa Fe Railroad, U.S. highways 60 and 385, good soil, adequate water for irrigation and a long growing season.

We've had these ingredients for a long time here, but a major part of the economy was wheat and milo--no corn like there is now--and vegetables," Cleavinger said. "Sugarbeets gave a good alternative crop to the

"Prior to Holly coming here there had been sugarbeets grown since the 1940s and shipped to the American Crystal plant then in Rocky Ford, Colo. Other cities wanted it, Plainview in There are other towns in the Texas particular, but the people of Hereford

Since the growers had been dealing with American Crystal, that's the company they originally tried to get to build in Hereford.

They worked with American Crystal for a long time, but American Crystal finally decided against building here," Cleavinger explained. "At that time American Crystal wasn't as progressive, and shortly after that time (1964) the growers bought the company and turned it into the cooperative it is today in Minnesota in North Dakota.

"Holly was well established, and just up the road in Colorado Springs, Cleavinger is still excited about the acquisition a year ago of Holly by the Imperial Sugar Company of Sugar Land, Texas. Imperial Sugar's saga goes back to the days of the Republic of Texas, and the Kempner family has really started in 1912, but Holly Sugar decided on Jan. 21, 1963 the company would construct an $18 million plant in Hereford, Texas.

It was the first sugar beet plant to be built in Texas--and is still the only sugar beet plant in Texas.

It took the work of people throughout the Hereford area, including Dimmitt and Hart and Nazareth and other parts of Castro County, Friona and Bovina and Farwell and the rest of Parmer County, farmers in the Clovis, N.M. region, and all of Deaf Smith County to get the plant here.

It also took the courting of two prospective sugar manufacturers, an act of Congress and an overthrow in Cuba before all of the pieces fell into "The first sugar beets were reported to have been grown in Deaf Smith County in 1912. The successful early trial had sparked some interest in a plant here, but the idea died on the vine for a while.

Perhaps he didn't know history was against him: others had tried and failed in the United States to successfully farm and process sugar beets.

Dyer formed a company to build a processing plant on a corner of his farm. On Nov. 17, 1870, the first sugar was delivered to market from the plant. He symbolized his success by # m Ammuersarv Remember!

It's hard to believe it has been 25 years since Holly began processing beets in Hereford. The plant's September 1964 dedication ceremonies attracted close to 15,000 people. Govenor John Connally welcomed the new industry to Texas.

As most of you know, it was Jimmy Witherspoon who was most responsible for bringing the sugar beet industry here. Jim's three-year campaign effort to organize regional farmers, and petitioning legislators and senators was monumental.

When the sugar program was amended to include increased acres, Holly announced it's plans to expand to the Texas panhandle area.

The rest is history. A few farmers had produced beets which were shipped to another company for processing in Colorado. But with Holly's milestone decision to come here, several hundred area growers immediately had a market they could depend on year-in and year-out.

Imperial Holly offers us the same reliable market today, and will continue to do so in the years to come. Its goals for further expansion here indicate this region is definitely in its long range production plans.

Looking after our interests is a continuing obligation in these times of national and world-wide legislative efforts (through GATT - General Agreement on Trade and Tarrifs) to control our industry. Your board is always devoting time and energy to these problems, and with the cooperation of Holly and our many friends across the country, we expect to be successful in these efforts.

At the same time, existing industry realized the possibility of a harmonious relationship with the factory, and thus expanded their operations. Sugar processing plants, such as Holly, greatly benefited and supported beef production. As a result, feed yard investors moved with this current of expansion. The growth cycle for Hereford and the surrounding area had begun.

"Thank you for being here to participate in this historic event the first annual shareholders' Following the business meeting, meeting of Imperial Holly Corporation. It is my pleasure to report to you on the company's activities of the past year- particularly the financial results which were quite good. During our first fiscal year -1989 - the company generated revenue in excess of $660 million and produced a net profit of $22,39-2,000 Or $3.75 per share. I'm sure you share my pleasure with these figures considering results of the year before which reflected a loss of nearly $500,000. Quite a turnaround, but then we have also created a significant change in the company with the acquisition of the Holly Sugar Corporation. There is no question in my mind that this purchase is second in importance only to Mr. I.H. Kempner Sr.'s founding of Imperial. I would quickly add that the event is of similar significance in the history of Holly.

"Some time ago we determined that there could be a future in the refined sugar business, but only with a scaled up and balanced company. The expansion and diversification of our company are part of what has become something of a trend in the industry. A trend that has seen other sugar companies take on a somewhat similar structure to ours. The trend has also included cane sugar refiners becoming the parent of beet sugar processors. In fact, three of the six cane refiners in the U.S. have beet sugar interests that account for about 40 percent of the total beet sugar production capacity. Imperial Holly has the largest beet sugar interest of any of these refiners. No doubt about it, the combination of Imperial and Holly has created a degree of balance and diversity that is absolutely unique to the sugar industry."

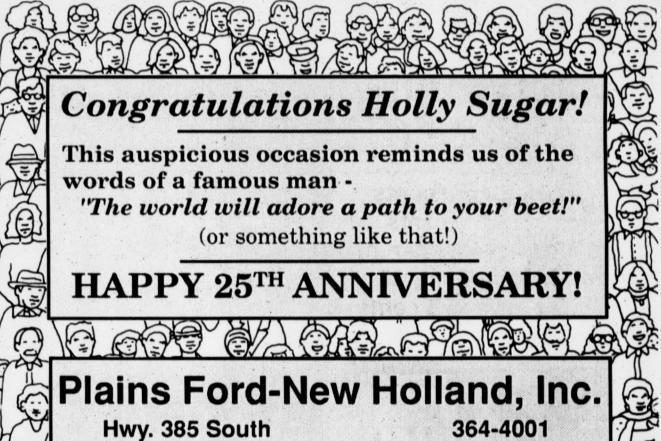

philosophical consolidation of the company began simultaneously with the acquisition. In the process, a number of changes were made in management personnel and management approach, all of which have brought benefit to the new company. I might add that these changes were made in the principled manner that has always characterized Imperial. We set about developing the synergies between Imperial and Holly that had been identified early on and initiated the search for more.

The sun may be going down in the western sky, but the day keeps rolling along at Hereford's Holly Sugar plant, during the busy beet harvest campaign, there are beets to be hauled from the farm to one of eight receiving stations, then transported to Holly, where the large brown tubers are transformed into pure, sweet sugar.

there's a sizeable investment. There's also a sizeable return in the county's second largest dollargenerator, behind the livestock

Holly employs about 120 people year-around, but once the campaign gears up in late September, up to 300 employees are needed. The annual payroll reaches $4 million.

Holly also pays more than a quarter of a million dollars a year in taxes, and is by far the largest taxpayer in Deaf Smith County.

After a half-century of dreaming and thinking and planning about it, the Holly Sugar plant in Hereford was dedicated during ceremonies Sept. 19-20, 1964, in Hereford.

The Merrill E. Shoup plant cost $20 million when it was built in 1963-64, with concrete silos holding the unpackaged sugar rising 230 feet into the sky southwest of Hereford; there were originally three dried pulp warehouses that were 240 feet long, 140 feet wide and 70 feet high; five thick juice storage tanks, each with a capacity near 2 million gallons; and the main processing building, 259 feet long, 84 feet wide, and as high as 95

There had been sugar beets grown in the area before Holly Sugar, and Holly wasn't the company originally courted for a sugar beet plant in Growers began raising beets in the late 1940s, with more farmers looking for an ahernative to the milo-andwheat farming foundations. The beets grown before 1964 were shipped to an American Crystal plant in Rocky Ford, Colo., with transportation costs eating into the profits.

More and more farmers were looking at the crop, but more farmers would have to be enlisted to grow beets before a plant could be built here.

Jay Boston, Austin Rose and Raymond Higginbotham led the efforts to sign up farmers to grow beets.

But there was a catch in the works: the existing sugar legislation wouldn't allow the necessary acreage to be produced. At the same time, the breaking off of relations with Cuba led to a sugar shortage. Through the efforts of Henry Sears, Lee Benefield and James Witherspoon, the National Sugar Act was amended on July 13, 1962 to allow an allocation to growers in this area for the new plant.

A contract with the H.K. Ferguson Company was signed on Sept. 20, 1962 to built the plant, and groundbreaking ceremonies were held April 1, 1963 on the 1,700 acre site.

Why there is a sugar program, and how it works

Since 1981, the U.S. sugar program has maintained a secure domestic supply of sugar for American consumers. The program also has allowed more than a million U.S. farmers and workers to produce and process sugar and corn for sweetener to maintain a viable industry in spite of unfair competition from abroad.

Nearly 100 countries worldwide produce sugar. About 70 % of all the sugar produced in the world is consumed in the country of origin. Another 15-20 % is traded under bilateral agreements or special arrangements. The rest, about 15% or less of the sugar produced each year worldwide, is traded on the world market, a dumping ground for Every major sugar producing country subsidiezes its producers or insulates them from the world market. The government interventions allow producers to dump excess sugar on the world market at a price farm below the actual cost of production. That is why the so-called "world price" of sugar is about 12 cents a pound for raw sugar based at a foreign port, while the world average cost of production is 23 cents

The U.S. sugar program assures that domestic farmers and workers will not lose their jobs because of the import of artificially chap, heavily subsidized foreign sugar. The program sets a loan rate of 18 cents a pound for raw sugar, but it operates at no cost to the taxpayer because loans are repaid with interest.
