School plan may go to court

AUSTIN (AP) - House Speaker Gib Lewis said although he hasn't given up trying for a compromise on school finance reform, politics may prevent the Legislature from doing the job.

"This issue is so complex, there's a possibility that a democratically elected body can't make that decision because of the politics involved. This is a political system, and a political process, and that's what we're dealing with," Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said Wednesday.

Senate Education Committee Chairman Carl Parker said prospects for passing a school finance reform plan before the next court hearing are "getting a little dimmer every day." Lawmakers missed Monday's Texas Supreme Court deadline for devising a reform plan, triggering an order to shut off state funds to schools. The impact of the order is not immediate because the next state checks are not due to be sent to school districts until April 25.

State District Judge F. Scott McCown, who is overseeing the case, set a new April 15 hearing date in the case. He appointed an expert to draw up a backup reform plan for his consideration in case lawmakers fail again.

The House last week rejected a school finance reform bill developed by a House-Senate conference committee.

The bill, which passed the Senate, would have shifted hundreds of millions of dollars in local property tax revenue from wealthier to poorer school districts.

Lewis met Wednesday with lawmakers who voted against the bill to see if it can be modified to meet their concerns. Richards also has called lawmakers in an effort to change votes.

The Supreme Court has twice unanimously ruled unconstitutional the current $14 billion-a-year school finance system, which relies on state aid, local property taxes and some federal money.

Differences in local property values now result in large disparities in education funding available to school districts.

Parker, D-Port Arthur, said lawmakers who may be looking for a painless way to equalize school funding won't find one.

"They're like me. I want to become skinny ... but I want to keep drinking and eating all I'm eating and drinking. They want the thing to get fixed without any sacrifice to themselves, to their district, and it's not going to happen," he said.

Woman rescued from cave

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) - Rescuers pulled an injured explorer from the nation's deepest cave early today, ending a four-day ordeal during which she hobbled on a broken leg and was pulled across treacherous chasms.

Emily Davis Mobley emerged on a stretcher, her leg in a splint, a few minutes after 1 a.m. and immediately telephoned her husband, saying: "This is your loving wife, coming up from the depths of the earth to see you."

"She's out! She made it," Carlsbad Caverns National Park spokeswoman Lyn Carranza said as Mobley emerged from 1,565-foot-deep, 54-mile-long Lechuguilla Cave.

The 40-year-old woman from Schoharie, N.Y., was to be taken to a hospital in Carlsbad.

Her condition was not immediately known, but her husband, William, reached at the couple's home, said, "She isn't exhausted. She's in great shape. She's an absolutely incredible person. She can't be very comfortable being in there for five days."

"I feel like calling everybody. I called her parents. I called one of our closest friends in Tokyo," he said. "I feel great."

The rescue effort drew some of the nation's top cave rescue experts to New Mexico.

Mobley, a 22-year cave explorer and expert in cave rescues, was about 1,000 feet down and about two miles into the cave Sunday when an 80-pound rock she had been holding onto gave way and fell on her, breaking her left leg below the knee.

During the rescue, the woman hobbled when there was space to stand upright and was carried or slid on stretchers elsewhere. Rescuers used a network of ropes and pulleys to get her through a treacherous labyrinth of chambers, narrow passages, sheer rock faces and wide chasms.

A doctor with her in the cave gave her painkillers.

The rescue went more quickly than expected Wednesday night after moving in fits and starts since Sunday.

The undeveloped cave in a remote area of the park is closed to the general public. The National Park Service lets a limited number of experienced cave explorers in to explore and map it. Mobley was part of a mapping expedition.

On Wednesday, Mobley spoke to reporters via a line rescuers stretched to her from the entrance.

"I'm feeling real good this morning. I'm being taken care of real well down here," she said. She was about 600 feet down at the time and about to begin the treacherous journey through the boulder-strewn area with large holes called The Rift. "This cave rescue couldn't be run better," Mobley said. "I'm comfortable at all times. ... I'm not being treated like a package. I'm being treated like a person."

Rescuers moved her through The Rift and across a formation known as Glacier Bay by Wednesday evening. Earlier in the day, she was taken across a 40-foot-wide chasm known as Freakout Traverse, the longest in the cave.

Rescuer Mark Rosbrook said ropes were anchored to two boulders, and Mobley, who was on a stretcher attached to pulleys, was pulled across the chasm, which has a 100-foot drop.

Mobley told reporters she had been exploring caves since 1969, when a friend introduced her to spelunking.

"The first time I went caving I thought it was the most exciting thing I've ever done," she said. "Ever since then, caving has been a major part of my life."

Mobley said she hopes her leg will heal by summer so she can resume exploring Lechuguilla Cave.

"There's no way this is going to slow me down at all," she said.

State considering tax repeal

AUSTIN (AP) - Just talking about taxes won't hurt, says the sponsor of a bill tentatively approved by the Senate, which would repeal all state taxes on Sept. 1, 1994.

Sen. Carl Parker said his measure "would force us to have the courage to talk about taxes, would force us to put it out there in the cold light of day."

Wednesday's tentative approval, 22-9, was viewed as a move by the Senate to gain attention from the House and taxpayers for a broad review of taxes, which could include promotion of a personal or corporate income tax.

Parker said he would not seek final Senate passage immediately because of questions raised by some senators, including the impact of the bill on Texas' billion-dollar bond market.

Parker, D-Port Arthur, noted that the Legislature would meet again in regular session in 1993 before the bill would become effective.

He said the proposal should send a "strong message to the House and a strong message to the people of Texas that the time has passed for not having an effective tax policy in this state - it's time ... that we looked at the whole picture all at once."

Parker told reporters the repeal would extend to some city taxes, but would not cover local property taxes.

He said a tax equity study committee had been created that is "well-suited to tell us what taxes can stand alone on merit and which can't, and whether or not we can have a better system of taxation in this state that would more fairly spread the burden."

Sen. Chet Brooks, who voted against the bill, described it as a "very good attention-getter as far as getting people to really look seriously at what our tax policies and what our tax structure is in this state."

But Brooks, D-Pasadena, asked, "Members, are you ready for a $31 billion tax bill in 1993? Are you ready for the collapse of the bond market, and it will occur?"

Brooks also said tax repeal, without substitute taxes in place, would cut off federal matching funds for such programs as Medicaid.

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, said Parker's proposal "is one of the most demagogic ideas of all time," and would cause the bond market "to drop out of sight."

Parker, however, gained support from Sen. John Montford, chairman of the Finance Committee, who described Texas' current tax system as being from the "horse and buggy" era.

"This is a rare opportunity to catapult this state into the next century with a tax system that adjusts and grows with the economy," said Montford, D-Lubbock.

UN council awaiting Iraqi response

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - U.N. diplomats say they're confident the burden of trade sanctions will compel Iraq to accept their tough cease-fire terms, and have turned to considering how to protect Iraq's rebellious minorities.

The resolution for a permanent cease-fire in the Persian Gulf War, overwhelmingly approved by the council on Wednesday, is unique in U.N. history because the world body has never before set peace terms after a war.

Iraq's ambassador, Abdul Amir al-Anbari, called the resolution "outrageous" and a violation of international law that would destabilize the region. But he did not reject it.

He said a formal response would come in several days from Saddam Hussein's government. The decimation of Saddam's army in the war over Iraq's invasion of Kuwait makes further Iraqi military adventures unlikely for years to come.

The cease-fire resolution would provide additional insurance against Iraqi aggression by forcing the country to destroy its chemical and germ weapons, nuclear capability and most of its ballistic weapons.

It also would exact compensation from Iraq.

As Iraq implements the resolution's provisions, the embargo on trade with Baghdad would gradually be lifted. A U.N. ban on conventional arms sales to Iraq would, however, remain in force.

U.S. Ambassador Thomas R. Pickering called the resolution "tough, but fair," and said it was in Iraq's self-interest to comply.

If Iraq does not comply, there will be no formal cease-fire, no withdrawal of allied troops from southern Iraq and the region and no lifting of economic sanctions.

Earlier U.N. resolutions still in place leave open the possibility of continued allied military action, although that is considered unlikely.

The United States has made it clear that it is anxious to remove its troops from the region and have them replaces by a regional security force and U.N. peacekeepers.

Council members were to meet privately today to discuss calls from France and Turkey to help Iraq's Kurdish and Shiite Muslim minorities, who have faced repression after having postwar uprisings launched from their ranks crushed.

The Kurds, concentrated in Iraq's north, are largely in flight and have massed by the hundreds of thousands on the Turkish and Iranian borders in hopes of crossing. They face severe hardship and lack adequate food and shelter.

The United States has openly encouraged the Iraqi people to overthrow Saddam, and intelligence sources in Washington said Wednesday that President Bush had authorized the CIA three months ago to aid the rebels.

But the White House has refused to supply the insurgents with military aid, even after widespread reports of Iraqi army atrocities against Kurds and Shiites. U.S. officials worried that Iraq could be split apart by the insurgencies.

"I do not want to see us get sucked into the internal struggle in Iraq," Bush said Wednesday in Florida.

France has proposed a U.N. resolution that would condemn Iraqi military attacks on Kurdish rebels, demand an end to repression and insist on immediate political dialogue with the Kurds and other Iraqi minorities.

Turkey also was said to be drafting a resolution to help Iraqi refugees. Turkey on Wednesday said it closed its borders to most of the refugees.

Iran said it was accepting both Kurdish and Shiite refugees - and asked for international assistance to help provide for them.

U.N. intervention in Iraq's domestic strife is prohibited by the U.N. Charter.

But U.N. diplomats said that the massing of 200,000 Kurdish refugees on the Turkish border and the spillover of refugees into Iran and Turkey could represent a threat to international peace and security.

Hispanics urged to get educated

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Hispanic-Americans have been urged to get an education as the first step toward fulfilling their potential.

The advice came Wednesday from Dr. Antonia Novello, the nation's first Hispanic and first woman surgeon general.

Novello, who received a standing ovation after her emotional speech, cited disproportionately low Hispanic graduation rates at the high school and college levels, calling them "a sad commentary of what we are doing in this world."

"We need to make programs for Harvard, but we also need to make programs for the barrios," Ms. Novello told a conference co-sponsored by the San Antonio-based Hispanic Association of Colleges and Universities and the federal Office of Personnel Management.

"School seems so far away for people who are still counting on their fingers," said the native of Puerto Rico.

The nation's top physician also spoke at a meeting of U.S. Public Health Services officers at the Hyatt Regency San Antonio that centered on efforts to recruit more minorities into the public health field.

"Challenges for the Hispanic community are no different than those facing other minorities.

"But it seems," she said, "that our problems are more magnified. Hispanics are in a position to be great to this country. But I am not sure if they know how important an impact they can have."

Job recruiters who say they cannot find qualified Hispanics to fill positions are looking in the wrong places, one high-ranking official said.

In Puerto Rico, people with doctoral degrees are working in fast-food restaurants because of the glut of well-educated people there, said Emilio Mola, chief of the affirmative action and complaints branch of the Department of Health and Human Services.

Mola said Texas and New Mexico also are fertile ground for job recruiters because of the large population of Hispanics and the scarcity of jobs.

Texas unemployment pay falls short

WASHINGTON (AP) - Less than one-fourth of all jobless Texans received unemployment benefits last year as the U.S. economy entered the recession, according to a study released today.

Nationally, the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities said the economy entered the recession with a weaker unemployment system than at any time since the end of World War II.

In Texas, only 23 percent of the unemployed received benefits last year, compared with 37 percent of jobless workers nationally who received benefits in an average month in 1990, the study said.

Approximately 400,000 unemployed Texans lacked benefits in an average month, the study said, basing its figures on an unemployment rate of 6.2 percent in 1990.

Texas also had 140,000 jobless workers who exhausted their benefits but had still not found work in 1990, the third-highest level of any state, the study said.

The report cited studies indicating unemployed people who are not receiving unemployment benefits are much more likely to be poor than those who do receive benefits, and that the erosion in unemployment insurance protection over the past decade has led to higher poverty rates.

"For some previously middle class workers, this deterioration in unemployment protection may mean not only a further decline in their standard of living but also that they sink into poverty," said Marion Nichols, a co-author of the report.

In Texas, the state is already fighting a "rising tide of poverty" and its social service programs are already overburdened, according to recent comments by Human Services Commissioner Ron Lindsay.

Texas Employment Commission Chairman Jim Kaster said the new study looked at all jobless Texans, rather than at only those who qualify for aid, such as those who work a minimum amount of time and lose their jobs through layoffs or other acceptable reasons.

If only the jobless who qualify for assistance are considered, Kaster said the percentage of those covered in Texas would be far higher.

But the study includes such unemployed Texans as youths who drop out of school and have never worked, which would not qualify them for jobless assistance, or women who drop out of the workforce to stay home with their children, Kaster said.

The state is currently paying out $20 million a week in unemployment insurance, up from recent weekly totals of $17 million or $18 million, Kaster said.

But Kaster predicted the total would be falling because the unemployment rate has also recently dropped.

The Employment Commission has approximately 400,000 to 500,000 jobless Texans receiving assistance at any one time, and serves 1 million to 1.25 million Texans in a year, Kaster said Wednesday.

The average unemployed worker in Texas gets jobless benefits for 12 to 13 weeks.

Almost 8 million Texans are in the job force out of the state's population of almost 17 million, Kaster said.

According to the Texas Department of Human Services, more than 3 million Texans are living in poverty.

Cablevision interrupts service

During routine maintenance, Cablevision found a crack in the coaxial cable coming into town from the tower site.

Cable with a crack in it leads to many problems, such as poor reception, unwanted frequencies seeping in and the loss of TV signals.

"In order to make the repair we will have to splice the cable, which will cause an interruption of cable service since it is the mainline not Hereford," said Lloyd Ames, general manager of Hereford Cablevision.

Cablevision will begin splicing April 5th at 3 p.m. Time of service interruption will be approximately 20 minutes.

"We apologize for this interruption," said Ames. "Our goal is to keep the cable TV system in great shape so we can provide quality reception to our cablevision subscribers."

Universities get audited

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bush administration is targeting 12 major universities for audits of federal research programs following questions about Stanford University's billing of luxury costs to the government.

Investigators from the Department of Health and Human Services have begun financial reviews of the overhead costs of programs at four of the schools under a new long-range auditing plan, officials said.

Development of the plan began about a year ago, but officials said its implementation was speeded by the General Accounting Office's inquiry at Stanford, which was found to have billed the government for items such as an antique commode, a cedar-lined closet and depreciation on a yacht.

The HHS inspector general's office has begun audits at Yale University, the University of Pennsylvania, Johns Hopkins University and Dartmouth College, said Judy Holtz, a spokeswoman for the office.

The office is contacting eight other schools about upcoming audits, she said, but she could not identify them until they had been notified. The office plans audits at eight to 10 additional schools, but they have not been identified, Ms. Holtz said.

The schools were selected based on their share of federal grants, their overhead rates and on their location because the inspector general wanted to include institutions in various regions of the country, said one official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Johns Hopkins, Yale and Pennsylvania were among top recipients of federal money in 1989, according to the inspector general's office.

Johns Hopkins topped the list with $411 million. Yale was 11th with $146 million and Pennsylvania was 14th with $133 million.

Ex-mobster runs for mayor

AUSTIN (AP) - Austin mayoral candidate John Johnson says he's a former mobster and one-time hitman under federal wraps after helping to convict members of a New Jersey crime family.

After a decade of living on the run and trying to hide his criminal past, Johnson now finds himself in the unusual position of trying to convince people he really is a felon.

The U.S. Marshals Service, charged with protecting the identities of witnesses who enter their Witness Protection Program, declined to confirm or deny Johnson's participation.

But Lt. Colon Jordan, retired head of Austin police intelligence, and other police sources have confirmed Johnson's story about his life as a mobster in the early 1970s.

They told the Austin American-Statesman they've known for years the true identity of the man who sought refuge in Austin seven years ago.

Johnson, who is one of eight candidates running in the May 4 election, made public his shady past at a news conference Wednesday at the Capitol.

So why would a man, who claims to have helped send gangsters to prison, reveal his true identity and run for mayor? Because he professes to be more afraid of the local police force than the mobsters who forced him to leave behind the identity of John Patrick Tully.

"I've come out in the open and I joined this mayor's race because I was in fear of my life by the police department," Johnson said, an American flag draped around his neck.

Johnson claimed he had been beaten up by police while in custody in 1987. Continued harassment forced him to reveal his past, he said.

He said he no longer fears retaliation from the mob.

"These crimes happened 20 years ago," he said. "Today, I'm no longer a threat to the Mafia that I was 20 years ago."

Assistant Police Chief George Phifer said that he did not know of any harassment against Johnson.

"There's nothing pervasive in the Austin Police Department to indicate there's been any harassment of Mr. Johnson," Phifer said.

Police spokeswoman Gail Phillips said the department has no record of any harassment reports being filed by Johnson.

"Obviously, it concerns us when people say they are being harassed. We really want to investigate if, in fact, it's true," she said.

Johnson, who has an unpublished telephone number, could not be reached later to elaborate on his tales of police harassment.

Records show Tully pleaded guilty in 1975 to four counts of murder, one count of conspiring to commit murder and numerous federal and state charges, including armed robbery and drug trafficking. He was sentenced to 12 years in prison after promising to testify against his former accomplices.

Johnson, who operates a hot dog and fajita vending business in Austin's 6th Street nightclub district, displayed a photograph and numerous documents to buttress his claim he is Tully.

"Some of you may know me as John Johnson, a local businessman and candidate for mayor," he told reporters. "My original name and the name I will always consider my real name, is John Patrick Tully."

The Amarillo Dragway will play host on April 12-14 to more than 350 drivers entered in the 1991 National Hot Rod Association's Winston Drag Racing Series.

This is the third of six 1991 NHRA South Central (Division 4) events leading to the coveted NHRA Winston divisional sportsman titles.

The three-day championship drag race will carry a purse of $92,975, with the biggest portion awaiting the eventual champions in Top Alcohol Dragster, Top Alcohol Funny Car, Competition, Super Stock, Super Gas, Stock, Super Comp and Super Street.

Time trials and qualifying open April 12, highlighted by an Alcohol Dragster, Alcohol Funny Car and Competition Eliminator qualifying session at 4 p.m.

Qualifying will continue April 13, starting at 9 a.m. and concluding at 5 p.m. with the final two Alcohol Dragster and Alcohol Funny Car qualifying sessions, set for 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. These will set the two eight-car qualified fields.

Final eliminations will commence at 9 a.m. April 14. The featured 225-mph Alcohol Dragster and Alcohol Funny Car categories will begin at noon.

The defending NHRA South Central (Division 4) champions who are entered include Tom Conway of Seminole, Okla. (Alcohol Dragster); Hugh Kelley of Nederland (Alcohol Funny Car); David Nickens of Houston (Competition); Greg Stanfield of Bossier City, La. (Super Stock); Terry Johnson of Monroe, La. (Stock); Terry Sullivan of Allen (Super Gas); Rodney Horton of Fort Worth (Super Comp) and Don Sturgeon of Fort Worth (Super Street).

Stanfield is also the reigning NHRA Winston season champion with the Rayburn White Racing Chevy Camaro. He won three 1990 NHRA national event titles, including the Chief Auto Parts Nationals in October.

Nickens won five 1990 NHRA national events with the Castrol GTX C/Altered-classed Oldsmobile Cutlass out of the Nickens Brothers race shop. He won his 18th career NHRA national event title at the 1991 Arizona Nationals in Chandler, Ariz.

Conway, the four-time (1987-1990) Division 4 champion, will be after his fifth consecutive South Central points championship with his Conway Automotive dragster. He was the 1989 NHRA Winston season champion and holds both ends of the NHRA national performance records: 5.916 seconds and 233.94 mph.

He won the 1991 Division 4 opener in Ennis to once again get off to a fast start toward the $4,000 Winston divisional bonus.

Spectator gates open at 10 a.m. Friday, and at 8 a.m. both Saturday and Sunday.

Admission is $10, including pit pass, on Friday. On Saturday and Sunday admission is $15, and pit passes cost an additional $5 Saturday and $10 Sunday.

Reigning champion to compete

Bo signs with White Sox

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) - No, this isn't another "Bo knows" commercial. He'll shoot a commercial soon with his new Chicago pal, Michael Jordan, but Bo Jackson doesn't know if he'll ever play baseball or football again, and he may not know for months.

That didn't dissuade Chicago White Sox general manager Ron Schueler from gambling plenty of owner Jerry Reinsdorf's dough that Bo will still know how to run and hit and field when - and if - his damaged left hip heals.

The White Sox signed Jackson on Wednesday to a one-year contract worth at least $700,000, a deal they realistically don't expect him to honor this season. The contract contains playing time incentives for 1992 and 1993 that could inflate the total value to $8.1 million, even before performance bonuses are added.

The contract doesn't block Jackson from continuing his hobby - pro football - but protects the White Sox against any football-related injuries.

Now, if they just knew when Bo could go.

"We've been told he might be available by July, but 1992 is more realistic," Schueler said. "Anything before that is a plus."

Schueler said the Jackson deal is a plus with no minuses, except for his uncertain physical condition. He didn't cost the White Sox any players, and, if healthy, joins Cory Snyder and Tim Raines as key additions to a team that won 94 games last season, second in the American League to Oakland's 103.

"We've added power and more speed to the middle of the lineup without giving anything up in return," Schueler said. "You can never have enough speed or enough good athletes."

When he's not walking on crutches, Bo Jackson has enough speed for two athletes. If he can just get up to speed, the commercial possibilities are endless for him in the city where Air Jordan already earns millions of dollars.

Is Chicago big enough - and rich enough - to afford America's two most visible athletes, the owners of the two richest shoe endorsement contracts in professional sports history? Or will Bo let the air out of Michael's monopoly of the Windy City?

"We'll be announcing something interesting with Bo and Michael next week," said Richard Woods, Jackson's agent.

What a Bodacious duo that should be. Maybe by next year, Chicago will be known as ChicaBo, or, maybe, the White Sox will be called the Bo Sox.

First, they have to get him healthy. Jackson will spend the next several months rehabilitating in Kansas City and in Birmingham, Ala., the home of sports physician Dr. James Andrews. Andrews said the severity of Jackson's hip injury has been overstated by doctors not acquainted with all of the facts.

"We think Bo has an excellent potential to heal," he said.

Andrews' close relationship with the White Sox - he has treated dozens of their Class AA Birmingham farm club's players - and Bo's not-so-close ties to Kansas City motivated Jackson to sign with the White Sox.

Jackson was waived by the Royals last month, less than two years after winning the All-Star Game MVP award. The Royals were convinced his hip injury is career-threatening, so they opted to release Jackson before they were obligated to pay his entire 1991 salary of $2,375,000.

Jackson said he "smelled a rat long before they released me," but that letting him go "allows me to play for a winner."

"Yes, I'm looking forward to going back there," to Kansas City, Jackson said.

Baseball headlines weekend

The Hereford baseball teams head up the weekend's sports action, with all three teams playing in Hereford.

The White junior varsity starts it off with a game against Dalhart's JV at 5 p.m. at Whiteface Field.

On Saturday, a Herd vs. Pampa doubleheader has the varsity squads squaring off at 1 p.m. and the Maroon JV playing Pampa's JV after the first game.

There will also be a junior high girls' track meet at Whiteface Stadium Friday. The Hereford Junior High team will host teams from Dumas, Borger, Pampa, Valley View, Canyon, Plainview and two junior highs in Clovis. Coach Jane Radford said she did not yet know which Clovis junior highs would compete.

"This is a really big invitational meet for us," Radford said.

The junior high boys will compete in Canyon.

Going back to high school competition, both the tennis team and the girls' golf team are playing Friday and Saturday in meets connected with the Amarillo Relays.

The boys' golf team is scheduled to play district rounds at Randall Friday and at Dumas Saturday.

Both track teams are scheduled to compete in invitational track meets Saturday, with the girls in Plainview and the boys in Abilene.

The only player allowed to use his hands in soccer is the goalkeeper.

The ball used in table tennis is 1 1/2 inches in diameter and weighs between 37 and 39 grains.

Tribe's Belle doing well with new name

By DICK BRINSTER
 AP Sports Writer

Joey Belle decided he needed a fresh start after spending 10 weeks last summer in alcohol rehab, so he changed his name to Albert.

That isn't the only thing that's changed for the Cleveland Indians outfielder. His swing is mute testimony to that.

He hit one home run in limited action for the Tribe last season. This spring, he has hit eight - including one in a 7-0 victory Wednesday over Seattle at Tucson, Ariz. - to lead all major leaguers.

"People are finally seeing the real Albert Belle at the major league level," he said. "I did it in the minor leagues. Now I hope to do it in the majors."

Manager John McNamara believes he can.

"Belle is like (Cecil) Fielder and (Jose) Canseco, guys like that," McNamara said. "When he hits them, it doesn't matter what ballpark he's in. "I would not say I've been surprised. This is the first time I've seen the real Albert Belle, the one that everybody's been talking about."

One thing Albert doesn't want to talk about is Joey.

"I wish people would drop that," he said of his past difficulties. "It's over and done with."

"The results speak for themselves. Nineteen-ninety is over. This is '91."

In other exhibition games, it was Los Angeles 3, the New York Mets 2; Boston 3, Pittsburgh 0; Philadelphia 7, St. Louis 2; Atlanta 6, the New York Yankees 5; Minnesota 11, Texas 1; the Chicago White Sox 7, Toronto 1; Milwaukee 4, San Francisco 2; Cleveland 7, Seattle 0; Oakland 9, the Chicago Cubs 2; San Diego 5, California 3; Kansas City 8, Houston 1, and Cincinnati 6, Detroit 4. Baltimore and Montreal were rained out.

Incaviglia clears waivers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - The Texas Rangers won't have to pay outfielder Pete Incaviglia his $1.6 million salary any more. But the team owes him $414,148 termination pay after he cleared waivers.

No other team claimed Incaviglia by Wednesday's deadline, so he became a free agent, team spokesman John Blake announced.

Incaviglia has said he plans to file a grievance against the Rangers with the Major League Baseball Players Association for placing him on waivers Friday.

Incaviglia said his release was triggered by a personality conflict with manager Bobby Valentine and the team's desire to unload his $1.6 million salary.

But the Rangers contended they got rid of the outfielder because of his performance and his displeasure over batting seventh in the lineup.

Despite hitting at least 20 home runs in each of five major league seasons, Incaviglia has had trouble hitting inside fastballs and has struck out 788 times.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Tuesday's Brand that the second Kids Inc. registration session is on April 9. The actual date for the second session is April 13.

The first session is, as reported, Saturday. Both sessions are open from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. in the Lounge Room in the west end of the Hereford Community Center.

Registration both days is for boys' T-ball, minor, major and Babe Ruth leagues and for girls' softball. The registration fee per player is $35 for Babe Ruth League participants (ages 13-15) and $25 for all others.

Foyt's test drive first since crash

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - A.J. Foyt is putting the pedal to the metal for the first time since nearly losing his legs in a crash last September.

Foyt was to test his nerve and strength today with a few spins around the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, where he plans to compete in his record 34th consecutive and final Indianapolis 500 in May.

"It seems like it's been forever," Foyt said Wednesday. "I'm here not to try to break any speed records. I'm here just to ride around."

Foyt hopes to convince himself that he can still handle the two-mile oval at speeds of more than 200 mph.

He has ordered the track closed to the public and media today and Friday. He'll go public with another test Saturday.

"If it's not a go, it's just not a go," Foyt said. "We're not going to cry over spilled milk."

"I just hope we run well. I know we've got a lot of catching up to do."

Making a comeback at 56 was the last thing Foyt had in mind when his brakes failed in a race last September at Elkhart Lake, Wis.

His car slammed into an earthen embankment and broke in two. The accident shattered his legs and convinced many observers his career was over.

"After looking at the car, I can't believe I've still got both legs and both feet," the four-time Indy 500 champ said.

"There's no way I shouldn't have lost one or the other. No way."

The injuries left him with "by far the worst pain I've ever had in my life," and Foyt said it still hurts to drive a car on the highway.

Since Foyt's legs were put back together by Dr. Terry Trammell at Methodist Hospital here, he does five to six hours of therapy a day at his Houston home. After testing at the Speedway, he will head to Phoenix to attempt qualifying for the Valvoline 200 Indy-car race on April 21.

If successful, it will be his only race before returning to Indianapolis.

Although he has said the May 26 race will be his final Indy 500, he doesn't like the reminders.

"This is just another race to A.J. Foyt, not my last race," he said.

"Naturally I hope I can win the damn thing and walk away and say the hell with it, but there's going to be 32 other guys that got the same idea."

His comeback is more to ensure his physical well-being, Foyt said, than for the money or the attention.

"It's been an awful lot of hard work," he said. "A lot of people said, 'Why didn't you want to retire and don't worry about it.'"

"I'm not doing all this work just to get back for racing. I'm doing it for A.J. Foyt himself because I don't want to be a cripple for the rest of my life."

"That's one of the biggest reasons I worked as hard as I did."

To help recover his mental skills, Foyt has spent three weeks just sitting in his car watching race footage on a VCR and simulating his reactions to the passing traffic.

His ankles and feet remain swollen and he walked with a slight limp Wednesday after Trammell removed both his big toenails and the fourth toenail on his left foot. After losing all his toenails in the accident, the new ones had become ingrown.

"I got in the car the other day and suited up and my toes are very nervous about going in that little hole again," he said. "If somebody stepped on one of my toes right now, I'd probably faint."

Foyt, who shares with Al Unser the record for Indy victories, said his emotions will be on overdrive when he drives at the speedway.

"I know the cars will run fast," he said. "I'm here to see how I'm going to like it."

"The biggest thing is I want to make sure in my own mind."

RELAX AND WIN

HOUSTON (AP) - There is a lot of pressure on pro golfers while a tournament is being played.

Jodie Mudd found ways to relax during the Nabisco Championship event last fall.

The opening round was on a Thursday, and Mudd relaxed that evening watching a basketball game. After the second round on Friday, he took in some boxing matches on closed circuit. Following Saturday's third round, Jodie saw more basketball.

On Sunday he went out and won the tourney.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson says he won't dawdle while deciding whether to stay with the Razorbacks or possibly make a return to Tulsa.

"I feel that's the only fair thing to do," he said Wednesday. "Not that there was anything offered. If I am to proceed on any further, then I think it's up to me to go ahead and make that decision."

"I just feel that it is time for me to go back to Fayetteville and just have a good night's sleep, a few prayers, and then let everybody know what Nolan's going to do."

Richardson says he is 80 percent sure he'll stay put, some Tulsa boosters are holding out hope that he will return to coach the Hurricane.

"I really think he will," Lee Levinson told The Tulsa Tribune in Wednesday's editions. "It would be a boon for Tulsa sports. It would create some excitement around here again."

Richardson said he met late Wednesday in Tulsa at his hotel with University President Robert Donaldson and athletic director Rick Dickson, but said no contract package was offered.

"There was nothing presented for me to make any decisions on," Richardson said. "Hopefully, I'll know more or less tomorrow what I have to do."

Richardson did say the trio discussed difficulties Tulsa may have in generating a salary package and that Donaldson and Dickson assured him there would be no problem surfaced at least $500,000.

Richardson also said there was more to the issue than money. "Yes, a lot more to it. I feel there is a lot of other things to discuss, many of which we discussed tonight. But there is more to it than money."

Ed Beshara, a Tulsa businessman who is a longtime friend of Richardson and a supporter of the Tulsa athletic program, said he doesn't think there is anything to a Richardson move.

"I think he'd be crazy to leave the University of Arkansas," Beshara said. "He likes the people of Arkansas. There are just a few who could destroy an empire."

Tulsa was 119-37 in the five years that Richardson was coach. He left in 1985 to take the Arkansas job.

Tulsa fired coach J.D. Barnett on March 20, and Richardson's name has surfaced as a possible candidate.

The Razorbacks, who set a school record with 34 victories this year, lost in the NCAA regional finals to Kansas. They reached the Final Four last year, losing to Duke in the semifinals.

Richardson said earlier that he didn't like the constant scrutiny of his program at Arkansas and that he began evaluating his situation before the end of this season.

"I know basically the time is coming when the attitude of a lot of people is getting out of control. Sometimes you don't want to be a part of that."

"You can get into a situation where you have done so much as far as putting games together and winning by big margins. I go back in my head and say, 'Man, you're creating something here that's ridiculous.'"

"It's unrealistic what's happening - margin of victory, automatic Final Four. Automatic Final Four."

NBA's Midwest division tightening

By The Associated Press

Hakeem Olajuwon was brilliant throughout, while Mark Eaton had just one shining moment, further squeezing the tight Midwest Division.

Olajuwon keyed Houston's 102-86 victory over Dallas Wednesday night with 22 points and 22 rebounds. Karl Malone had 39 points and 12 rebounds for Utah in a 99-97 win over the Los Angeles Clippers that wasn't sealed until Eaton, who was scoreless, blocked Ron Harper's shot in the final seconds.

The two outcomes left first-place San Antonio with a half-game edge over both the Rockets and Jazz in the Midwest. The winner of the division will get the second seed in the Western Conference playoffs, while the second- and third-place finishers probably will not even have homecourt advantage in the first round.

"We're stacking them up one by one," Rockets coach Don Chaney said of Houston's 15th victory in 16 games.

"I'm happy with my game. Our whole team has made it easier for me by the way they are playing," said Olajuwon, who had 17 points and 12 rebounds at halftime and then helped the Rockets put down a 20-6 spurt by the Mavericks in the third quarter.

Olajuwon got 20-plus rebounds for the sixth time this season and Vernon Maxwell led Houston in scoring with 27 points. Dallas lost for the 12th time in 15 games and extended its road losing streak to seven games.

The Rockets, who never trailed, led 52-35 at halftime after leading 41-21 in the second quarter.

Houston increased the lead to 62-41 with 8:47 to go in the third quarter before the Mavericks, who got 20 points from Rolando Blackman, outscored the Rockets 20-6 to close to 68-61 with 2:21 left in the period.

Jazz 99, Clippers 97

Malone scored the last five points of the game in the final 2:07.

The Clippers led 97-94 on a jumper by Charles Smith with 2:24 left, but Los Angeles didn't score again.

Malone tied it with 2:07 to go with a three-point play after he was fouled by Smith, then broke the tie with a jump hook with 1:36 left, the final points of the game.

Jeff Malone scored 22 points for Utah. Harper led the Clippers with 26 points, including four 3-pointers.

SuperSonics 106, Kings 91

Seattle brought Sacramento within one loss of the NBA record for consecutive road defeats as Shawn Kemp and Eddie Johnson scored 20 points apiece and Kemp grabbed 14 rebounds as the Sonics outrebounded the Kings 58-36.

Antoine Carr scored 29 points, keeping the Kings, 1-36 on the road with 33 consecutive losses this season, in contention through three quarters.

Warriors 127, Heat 114

Golden State clinched a Western Conference playoff spot as Chris Mullin scored 12 of his 28 points in the fourth quarter and Tim Hardaway had a career-high eight steals against Miami.

Miami, trailing by 20 points at halftime, closed to 104-102 with 6:25 remaining. But the Warriors responded with an 11-2 spurt for a 115-104 advantage with 3:05 to go.

Philadelphia got strong performances from Ron Anderson, Armon Gilliam and Rickey Green to win at Indiana without Charles Barkley and Rick Mahorn.

Barkley, out for at least two weeks with a sprained knee, and Mahorn, who has a bruised right heel, were sidelined as Anderson scored 27 points, Gilliam had 22 points and 12 rebounds and Green 19 points for the 76ers.

The Pacers fell behind by 14 points early in the third quarter, but took an 89-87 lead on four straight points by Reggie Miller. Philadelphia then scored the next five points to take the lead for good, 92-89, on a free throw by Hersey Hawkins with 5:29 remaining.

Cavaliers 95, Knicks 84

Cleveland won at home by outscoring New York 70-43 from the midway point of the second quarter.

The Cavaliers, who trailed by 16 points in the second quarter, took the lead at 65-63 on a jumper by Larry Nance with 2:11 left in the third period. They stayed on top the rest of the way after a 3-pointer by Henry James broke a 65-65 tie with 50 seconds left in the quarter.

Nance scored 10 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter.

Tulane may join SWC

DALLAS (AP) - Southwest Conference commissioner Fred Jacoby says Tulane University could become a member of the Southwest Conference by June 3, but said it's not a "done deal."

"I don't want to say it's a done deal," Jacoby said Wednesday. "It's not. But there are interesting possibilities."

Jacoby and nine other SWC officials will visit Tulane April 12 to see the university's athletic facilities and examine the overall school for possible admittance to the conference.

Jacoby said if everything goes well on the New Orleans visit, he would endorse a procedure that could admit Tulane's basketball program and other sports into the SWC by 1992-93 and football by 1994.

SWC athletic directors will meet May 1 to discuss Tulane and further discussions will be held at the conference's spring meetings May 25-30, the commissioner said. The presidents could vote on Tulane at their June 3 meeting in Dallas.

"By that time we will have the visiting team's report," Jacoby said.

"We will have met with the athletic directors and faculty reps, and June 3 is the meeting with the presidents. We'll have touched all bases for membership."

Milton Fingerma, Tulane's faculty representative, said Wednesday the university wants to join the conference.

"Our athletic people are extremely interested," he said. "If we got an offer, they'd gobble it up."

Tulane wants to join a conference to improve its football program, which competes as an independent, Fingerma said. Tulane's current conference, the Metro, does not include football and has been in danger of falling apart since the departure of Florida State and South Carolina.

Florida State has announced it will join the Atlantic Coast Conference and South Carolina will join the Southeastern Conference.

Tulane, however, has committed to playing in the Metro for 1991-92 but has refused to put up a $500,000 letter of credit to remain in the conference for five years.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has filed two separate applications with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to introduce two new optional directory services. One service is Directory Assistance Call Completion (DACC) and the other service is Multiple List Directory Assistance (MLDA).

DACC is an optional service that provides customers the option of having their Directory Assistance call completed to the requested number (when they call Directory Assistance for a number) by either the Directory Assistance operator or a mechanized audio response system.

The proposed rates* for fully-automated DACC calls are: $.30 if the call is sent paid or billed to a calling card, $1.00 if the call is collect or billed to a third number and $.25 from a coin telephone.

The proposed rates* for semi-automated (operator assisted) DACC calls are: $.85 for calls that are sent paid or billed to a calling card, $1.20 if the call is collect or billed to a third number and $2.60 for a person-to-person call.

Multiple List Directory Assistance (MLDA) allows the customer to request more than two listing requests per call to Directory Assistance. Customers can either call on "demand" and receive up to 10 listings, or schedule an "appointment" and receive the assistance of a Directory Assistance operator for as long as required. The rates for "demand" MLDA are $.30 per listing request (after applicable allowances), with a maximum of 10 listing requests per call. The rates for "appointment" MLDA are $1.00 per minute, with a 15-minute minimum.

The optional services DACC and MLDA are intended for use by both residence and business customers. Those persons who qualify for exemption of Directory Assistance charges because of visual or physical handicaps will be able to use DACC and "demand" MLDA free of charge. If approved by the commission, DACC and MLDA will be available beginning May 13, 1991. First-year projected revenues for DACC are approximately $9.6 million. First-year projected revenues for MLDA are approximately $1.7 million.

Persons who wish to comment on these applications should notify the commission by May 3, 1991. Requests for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or you may call the Public Utility Commission Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

*The charges for DACC are in addition to the charge for the Directory Assistance Listing (if applicable) and/or any local or intra-LATA toll charges that would apply to the completed call.

Pearson preparing to coach in Arena League

By JEFF SIEGEL
Dallas Times Herald
 DALLAS (AP) - Drew Pearson is trying to act like a Football Coach. He wears a Football Coach Face - a hard, steely, glint in his eyes and a scowl instead of a smile, so that he looks a lot like a linebacker with rabies.

He tries to use Football Coach Speak - gang-talking questions with cliches, euphemisms, and banalities, so he can give an answer that doesn't mean anything at all.

But the former Cowboys receiver, the new coach of the Arena Football League Dallas Texans, is having a hard time with the role.

His enthusiasm for his new job, his first as a head coach, is no act. It keeps getting in the way of his game face, and he punctuates the air with clenched fists when he talks about the upcoming season.

Pearson holds up his end of a conversation with forceful, measured replies and doesn't once say he has to look at the films before he can make a decision.

"The last 18 years have been a constant experience of proving that I belonged," Pearson says. "First, in making the Cowboys, and then in playing 11 years, and then in adjusting to life after football. Now I have this opportunity to prove that I can coach."

Drew Pearson has never been easy to pigeonhole. Signed as a free agent out of the University of Tulsa, he became the most productive wide receiver in Cowboys history, with 7,822 yards, a figure since passed by Tony Hill.

Pearson had little business experience when he started his hat-and-cap company in 1985, yet last year the Drew Pearson Cos. had sales of $12 million.

For most former players, that would be enough - a successful playing career and a successful after-playing career. But Pearson, at age 40 and away from football for five years, has become coach of an indoor football team that plays in a summer league with eight players who play both ways.

Why?
 "This is an opportunity for me to better myself," Pearson says. "When I was playing, I always wanted to go to the front office, but it was never offered. Now, this gives me a chance to do that."

"It might be only the Arena league, but it still gives me a chance to show that I can lead and manage."

"And don't forget to look at the whole picture. This job fits in well with the rest of my life. It will keep my name out there and give me some exposure, and that's good for my company."

Says Ernie Stautner, whom Pearson replaced as coach: "It's going to put Drew back in the public eye."

Try to pigeonhole this: Texans owner Lanier Richey hired Pearson despite Pearson's lack of coaching experience. Pearson coached one year, in 1985 as a Cowboys assistant, after which he quit. He says he didn't enjoy it and wouldn't do it again. He didn't plan on coaching again.

"But that didn't bother us at all," says Mike Fernandez, the Texans' director of operations who has been a friend of Pearson for almost a decade.

Richey credits Fernandez with talking Pearson into taking the Texans' job. Pearson says he wasn't interested until Fernandez pointed out that the exposure will more than offset the time it will take away from his business.

"I'm not downplaying coaching experience, but what else is coaching other than teaching and being organized?" Fernandez said. "And Drew has shown that he can teach and that he is organized, if only in his business."

The success of Pearson's business impressed Richey and Fernandez almost as much as his football credentials. He built the company from scratch in 1985, and now it sells 300,000 dozen caps and hats each year from its Addison headquarters, where it employs 10 people.

"I think he'll be an excellent coach - if he lives through it," says Kenneth Sheard, the president of the Pearson Cos., who has known Pearson since they went to college together.

"He is going to feel so much pressure to win because he's such a competitor. He was talking about spending two months working for the Texans, and I know he's going to spend four or five months. He was talking about working six or seven hours a day, and I know he's going to spend 14."

THE SILENT MAN
 NEW YORK (AP) - Bobby Bonds, long-time big-league star and father of Barry Bonds of the Pittsburgh Pirates, remembers his days as a San Francisco Giant star.

Bonds was a roommate of George Foster, who later won greatness with the Cincinnati Reds.

According to Bonds, the first two weeks the men roomed together, Foster didn't say a word. Finally, Bonds exploded. He told George either he had to start talking or there would be trouble.

"For a second," Bonds recalls, "I thought George would choose trouble. Then he smiled and after that we got along great."

meetings, I'm still going to learn something in 11 years," he says. "After a while, I already knew everything the coaches knew about the game. So I started to pay attention to the other things, to ask questions."

"That's why Drew is going to be a good coach," says former Cowboys coach Tom Landry. "He's smart and aware, and he knows the passing game, which is something that will help him in that league."

Pearson played for Landry from 1973 to 1983 as the Cowboys made the playoffs 10 times, won three NFC titles and one Super Bowl. He says he learned the old Cowboys way of doing things when the team was feared and admired: how an organization is structured and how to run a practice. For example, Pearson, just like Landry, will require players to wear ties on road trips. Pearson says he hated the practice but came to realize Landry was teaching him about discipline by forcing him to do something he didn't want to do.

"Even if I slept through half of the Mitchell Ward has no doubt Pearson will be as successful a coach as he was a wide receiver. This makes Ward happy, because he is one of the Texans' best players, a running back-linebacker who led the league in rushing in 1990.

"I was excited to hear about Drew," says Ward, who has appeared with Pearson at several charity benefits. "It was real good news, and I'll tell you why. It was like replacing Magic Johnson with Michael Jordan. Ernie was Magic and Drew is Michael and I'm going to take us to new heights."

Pearson lends continuity and credibility in much the same way

Stautner did in the Texans' first season a year ago. Pearson and Stautner come from the same background and learned to do things the same way; Stautner, after all, was a Cowboys assistant under Landry for 20 years. He left the Texans for an assistant coaching job with the Denver Broncos.

Pearson, like Stautner, plans to prove he has what it takes to be a head coach.

"I'm going to make this a success," he says, "because I don't want to tarnish the success I've already had. I don't want people to say I was a great player but a lousy coach. I don't want them to think I was hired because I was a former Cowboy who had a good career."

Among the also-rans in the 1933 Kentucky Derby was Mr. Khayyam, later a pivotal figure in the play and movie, "Three Men on a Horse."

Now You're Cooking

BY KAY CRISMON
Staff Writer

Changing jobs can be traumatic but for Jean Watts the transition was easy.

"I love my new job at Tri-State Chemical Inc. and feel that I am back doing the type of work I was trained for. When I became administrative assistant, I didn't really understand what the title meant. I do different types of office work and feel I'm back in the bookkeeping field again," she said.

Some of her duties consist of processing hourly payroll, writing invoices for five locations in the area, processing end of the month statements, making deposits, keeping accounts payable and other office functions.

Watts graduated from Abilene High School and acquired a position with the City of Abilene following graduation.

She and her husband L. V. moved to Hereford in 1956. L. V. is director of the Emergency Medical System of Hereford. "I have gotten use to the scanner and seeing him run out the door in a big hurry. I don't like the to hear a 1032 (man with gun) on the scanner and I worry until he returns home," she said.

The couple has three children, Jettie Myers and Cherene Glidewell, both of Amarillo, and Larry Watts of Hereford. "I love my children and my grandchildren, Christopher, Mackenzie, Eric, Madilyn, and T.C. The best part of being a grandparent is that I can spoil the children rotten before I return them to their parents."

Her hobbies are cross-stitching, working in the yard and spending time with her grandchildren. She and her husband are members of the First United Methodist Church.

"I like to cook and make my own adjustments on most of the recipes I make," Watts explained. The following are some of her family's favorite dishes made with simple "adjustments".

PORCUPINE MEATBALLS

1 1/2 lbs. ground chuck
1/2 cup onions

JEAN WATTS

1/2 cup Green Peppers (optional)

1 cup minute rice
1 can tomato soup
1 can water

Salt and pepper to taste

Empty can of soup and a can of water in Presto cooker. Stir and warm soup. Mix remainder of ingredients and form into balls.

Cook in Presto cooker at 15 lb. pressure for 10 minutes. Gravy can be used on mashed potatoes and served with green beans or other vegetable.

SWISS STEAK

2 1/2 lb. cut of Swiss steak
1 large can tomatoes
1 small onion

Cover meat with flour, salt, and pepper, pound into meat. Brown steak on both sides. Remove grease from pan and pour mixture of tomatoes and onions over meat. Simmer meat until tender, turning a couple of times. Meat has a tendency to brown too fast sticking to pan. This takes about 2 to 2 1/2 hours usually.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please give me the definition of administrative assistant. Everyone seems to be so hung up on this title, it's ridiculous. It is MY title, but it means nothing to me. Here's why:

My boss refuses to use paper cups. He insists on ceramic mugs when he serves coffee to business associates during meetings. When guests ask where they can wash out the cups, he says, "Just leave it, my administrative assistant will clean up."

Often my boss will make microwave lunches and leave the dirty dishes, which he also expects me to clean. Sometimes he calls me from the front office to hand him things that are within his reach. Ann, this makes me so angry I could scream.

I'm no women's libber and wouldn't mind if these things occurred occasionally, but they happen all the time. I've been trying to think of a tactful way to express my displeasure. I find his behavior demeaning and inconsiderate.

I work very long hours to meet unreasonable deadlines. I'm reliable and competent. I bypass lunch regularly to get more work done.

When are women going to get a fair shake? If I wanted to be a housewife I'd stay home. Sign me -- Fed Up in Chicago

DEAR FED: I refer you to that old Ann Landers axiom: "Nobody can take advantage of you without your permission."

When the boss first asked you to wash out the coffee cups, if you didn't feel comfortable doing it, you should have said so. Now it is expected of you. The same goes for the lunch mess.

I'm sure you'd be much happier somewhere else. Start looking. And next time, get a firm job description before you sign on. Good Luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please help our family. We are having a problem with homework. All the children are good students, getting As and Bs. They are 19, 14 and 9. Our 9-year-old gets from one to three hours of homework a night. The other children never have anywhere near this much.

They always have been active in Boy Scouts, soccer and piano, and their grades never have suffered, but this year has been a nightmare. The 9-year-old can barely get his homework done on the days when he doesn't have an outside activity, but when he has soccer or piano, it is total chaos.

There is no time for playing with friends. Some of the other parents solve the problem by just plain doing some of the assignments for their children.

The 9-year-old already has decided to drop out of soccer and piano, but we are really trying to hold on to Boy Scouts. Don't suggest talking to the principal. He won't do a thing. And I should tell you that we can't afford private school. I feel that children should be allowed to enjoy their childhood and have no more than one-half hour of homework at night. What do you think? -- Too Much Homework, Oxnard, Calif.

DEAR OXNARD: Observe your child when he does his homework. Maybe he needs to learn how to read more rapidly and how to concentrate. Join forces with other parents and if five or six of them are having the same problem with their children, go together and speak to the teacher, not the principal.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone (SWBT) has filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to offer a new optional service called Family Space Listing.

Family Space Listing is a new optional service designed for residential customers. It will give customers the option to list the names or nicknames of household members within a customized space in the white page telephone directory.

The proposed monthly charge for this service is $7.00. No charge to set up the service is proposed. Customers electing not to subscribe to this optional service will continue to receive their non-distinctive directory listings at no charge. SWBT anticipates this new service will generate sales of approximately $63,000 in the first year that the service is available. If approved by the Commission, this service will be available beginning May 6, 1991.

This new service will not affect the directory listings that existing residential customers have in SWBT's white page telephone directories.

Persons who wish to comment on this application should notify the Commission by April 26, 1991. Personal grooming for spring

In the 80s, Americans became fascinated by the glamour of Beverly Hills. Nothing symbolized this infatuation better than the runaway success of designer perfumes. Now the cosmetic industry offers complete skin care lines to the public.

Since every woman wants to look her most beautiful ever on her wedding day, here are some tips for looking young and fresh on this momentous occasion.

-The over-30 bride always worries about those little lines that have appeared over the years. There are a variety of creams available to help smooth away those subtle signs of aging.

-Moisturize and protect your hands, and keep them well manicured. Hands do not have to tell a woman's age.

-Saturated tea bags, placed over your eyelids, are a natural way to help alleviate puffy eyes that often accompany those days of pre-wedding frenzy...and a short nap and/or meditation never hurt!

-Indulge and pamper yourself with a warm, fragrant bubble bath to relax your body and mind. After soaking, put on some perfumed body cream to look and smell terrific.

-Before you apply your makeup, be sure that your skin is thoroughly clean and fresh. Use a total eye makeup and facial cleanser and skin toner and firmer.

-You may wish to have your makeup done professionally; but make certain that you will feel natural with it all day. Ask your makeup consultant for quick tips to keep your face looking fresh all day long.

-Hair: Every bride, no matter how mature, should choose a style that best expresses her individuality. Don't wait until just before the wedding to experiment with hairstyles and don't get a perm two days before your wedding. Try a number of different looks until you are comfortable with the style and, if you choose to wear an elaborate headpiece, you should work that out with your stylist in advance—the fewer surprises the better!

-Before you kiss the groom, make sure your lips are in tip-top shape. A moisturizing lip balm is necessary to keep lips soft and supple. No matter what season it is when you get married, choose a balm with a sunscreen.

-Most importantly, your outer beauty is a reflection of your loving happy thoughts!

A Special Tribute to our Farmers & Ranchers.

Hamburger Day

Our farmers and ranchers produce all the ingredients necessary to fill the requirements of a good burger!

That's why we feel a hamburger cookout held in your honor, is an appropriate way to pay tribute to your efforts as producers.

Hereford State Bank, in conjunction with Hereford's NEW car and implement dealers, will honor America's Providers with an agriculture day celebration for Hereford, Saturday, April 6, 11 a.m. - 2 p.m. at Hereford State Bank.

Register for a FREE limited edition print "Tradition and Change" signed and numbered by artist Bart Forbes as well as drawings for Hereford Beef Certificates. Then join us for a delicious hamburger cookout featuring entertainment provided by Vanessa Gonzalez & Sharon Hernandez, while you view the lines offered by Hereford's NEW car and implement dealers.

In addition to the participating merchants listed below, K-Bob's Steakhouse, C. Ramirez & Sons and R&R Refrigeration have generously contributed hamburger patties, corn chips and ice for the festive occasion.

If you're planning to attend, you must pick up your tickets at Hereford State Bank or at any of these participating merchants; Stevens Chevrolet-Oldsmobile, Stagner-Orsborn Buick-Pontiac-GMC, Whiteface Ford/Chrysler, Ford-New Holland, Arrow Sales, Oglesby Equipment Co., Inc., and White Implement.
