Like Mother, Like Daughter

Businesses flourish with special partners

By DANEE WILSON
Staff Writer

Mother's Day is a special time set aside to remember the special things moms do for their children. Some cook, clean and pick-up after their kids, while others make money off their children...by owning a joint business of course.

Rhonda Banner and Joyce Duggan have been in business together for over two years as owners of Perfect Touch Salon.

"We were both working in separate places and I was basically working for myself doing booth rent," said Rhonda. "That is when we decided to put in our own business."

"We have the perfect combination," she joked. "I do skin care, make-up and nails and my mom does hair."

"I have big expectations for our business," Joyce, who has been in the business for 26 years, said. "I keep thinking of things we can add to be a full service salon."

Both agree they would not have started their own business without the other.

"We can't work without each other," they said simultaneously.

"It is much easier to make business decisions," Joyce said. "With someone else you're always worried that you made the wrong decision, but not here. I don't ever worry about it."

"I can't imagine facing a business decision or managing the salon alone," said Rhonda. "I know that I'm not being taken advantage of. It is easy to have a second opinion."

The Perfect Touch Salon offers basic hair care plus nail and skin care.

"We're looking to get into permanent cosmetics," Rhonda said. "The process is like tattooing. It was designed for people who have trouble seeing good enough to put on their own make-up. I think it is really good for the older clientele."

They also offer deep cleansing facials which Rhonda deems essential for good skin.

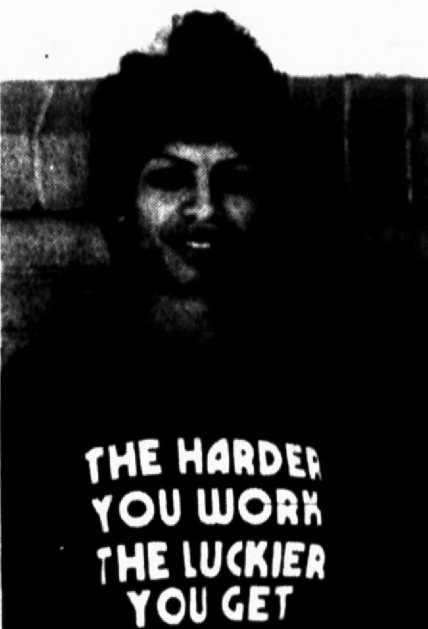

Both would agree that working together is a pleasure.

"My daughter is so professional and I'm so proud of her," said Joyce. "I look and see how she acts with the clients and I think, Gosh that's my daughter. She appreciates her clients and they appreciate her."

"I do what mom does," Rhonda said proudly. "She has been my example in business and in my personal life. She has always been my idol."

Being around Joyce and Rhonda one feels the closeness of a special mother-daughter relationship.

Sue Kester and Kelly Ramirez have a close relationship but sharp contrasts in tastes and personalities, which makes them a special pair.

CONGRATULATIONS

Teresa Castillo blew away the field (and her own school record) at the State Track Meet Friday evening in the 3,200 meters, winning in 11:19.6. Second place was a distant 14 seconds back. Teresa also finished third in the 1,600 meters later Friday night.

SENIORS BUSY

It's crunch time for Hereford High School seniors. Here's a quick look at their schedule for this month:

- Wednesday-graduation practice, 4 p.m., Whiteface Gym
- Thursday-Senior awards, 7:30 p.m., Whiteface Gym
- Saturday-Senior prom, 6 p.m., community center.
- May 19-Baccalaureate, 8 p.m., Whiteface Gym.
- May 31-Graduation, 7 p.m., Whiteface Stadium.

COMMUNITY BAND

If you're interested in playing in a Community Band, there'll be a meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the HHS band hall. Fingering charts will be available; nothing was said about oxygen. Organizers hope the band can participate in upcoming parades and other activities.

BLOOD DRIVE

The Hereford High School National Honor Society will sponsor a blood drive Wednesday from 2:30-7 p.m. at the HHS auditorium. High school students participating will be entered in a contest for a new car; adults will be entered in a drawing for a trip to Mexico, shopping spree at Furr's, a freezer with a 1/4 beef, color TV and 200 gallons of gas.

TONIGHT

It is still "sweeps" time, and the networks roll out more heavy artillery Sunday night: "Manhunt in the Dakotas" on Ch. 4 at 8 p.m.; "Inconvenient Woman" on Ch. 7 at 8 p.m.; and "Mrs. Lambert Remembers Love" at 8 p.m. on Ch. 10.

RAIN CHANCES

There's a chance of showers and thunderstorms, some possibly severe, through Tuesday. There is a possibility some of the storms could be severe, so keep an eye on the sky this weekend.

SUE KESTER (l) AND KELLY RAMIREZ

Sue and Kelly own Mom and Me Photography and Frames.

"We have a ball," said Kelly. "We have totally different tastes," Sue added. "I'm tradition and Kelly is jewel tone."

Their different talents help them to build a strong business.

"I did a lot of the darkroom work and the bookkeeping," said Sue. "Kelly was the photographer and creative one."

Their interest, although different, compliment each other for an ideal business situation. Kelly enjoys photography and Sue enjoys hand work such as framing.

"I got into photography when I couldn't play sports any more," said Kelly. "I made my gas money by standing on the sidelines taking pictures of the football team."

"Mom and I work well together. We very seldom disagree."

"We are our best and worst critics," Sue added. "We like to talk. I respect her opinions."

Kelly says she would have branched out on her own and started her own business.

"I've always wanted to try my own business," she said. "I'm glad to have (See MOM, Page 2A)

Month is prime time for storms

May is definitely "tornado month" in Texas.

More tornados and tornado-related deaths have occurred in Texas during May than in any other month, state weather records show.

The two worst tornados in state history tore through Texas in May: 114 people were killed in Goliad on May 18, 1902, and 114 died in Waco on May 11, 1953.

Since 1953 (when the state began keeping more reliable tornado records) twice the number of tornados have occurred in May than in April or June, the other two months in the state's prime tornado season.

More than 37 tornados hit Texas per year in May, compared to 19 in April and 18 in June. All other months averaged less than 10 tornados annually through 1988, according to data from the State Climatologist's office at Texas A&M University.

Texas averaged 126 tornados a year between 1953 and 1983, more than any other state, according to meteorologist George Bomar in his book Texas Weather.

Texas has so many tornados in May because atmospheric conditions are most favorable for them during the month, said Jon Zeitler, an assistant in the State Climatologist's office. The state's location between the Rocky Mountains to the West and the Gulf of Mexico to the southeast also makes it prime tornado country.

In the spring, early summer and autumn, cold fronts from the north converge with warm, moist air from the gulf near the earth's surface. At the same time, warm dry air at higher altitudes ("The Lid") flows from the

May 14, 1923	Howard County	F5	23	100	50,000

Available statistics show the month of May averages more tornados and more tornado deaths in Texas than any other.

All other months averaged fewer than 10 tornados per year.

All other months averaged fewer than two deaths per year.

*Fujita Scale rankings are based on estimated wind speed and damage caused. The scale starts at F0 for winds of 40 to 72 miles per hour. F4 tornados raise winds estimated at 207 to 260 miles per hour. No tornados reaching wind speeds greater than F5 rankings, from 261 to 318 miles per hour, have ever been recorded.

Storms pepper parts of Panhandle

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Hereford proper missed out on beneficial rainfall Friday night, but also avoided potentially deadly storms that struck portions of the region.

Hereford officially received just .05 of an inch of rain from showers that fell Friday evening; however, portions of the county to the west and the east received over an inch of rain.

There was a 30 percent chance for more rain Saturday and Sunday, and the long-range forecast by the National Weather Service called for rain chances to continue through Wednesday.

Hereford volunteer firefighters were out spotting storms by 6:30 p.m. Friday, and remained out until 9:30

Industrial Technology students win top honors at Waco meet

END TABLES BY KIRK MARNELL

TABLE BY JERRY GALLEGOS

LINCOLN DESK BY JUSTIN THOMAS

DESK BY LEWIS ZEPEDA

HHS students earn first place awards

southwest out of Mexico.

Scientists have identified several characteristic behaviors of the converging airstreams that can form tornados, but they don't know precisely what causes the storms or how to predict them, Zeitler said.

Meteorologists do know that when the airstreams converge, the forces can create large, spinning thunderstorms, as well as violent updrafts and downdrafts. The "lid" can provide a capping effect that can keep rising, moist air from going higher. But if the ground temperature exceeds the temperature of the hot air in the lid, the moist air bursts through in a powerful updraft, creating thunderstorms that grow explosively upward and contribute to tornados.

May tornados have killed the most people in Texas, averaging just over six deaths per year while April averages just under four. All others average less than two. Meteorologists point out that such statistics may be misleading. The 1953 Waco disaster skews the May death total upward, but without question the heaviest tornado activity, both in number of storms and related deaths, has been recorded between April and June.

The deadliness of tornados has much to do with wind speeds. Those can only be estimated because wind measuring devices usually don't survive in winds of much more than 100 miles per hour. Estimates based on Doppler radar and other measurements, and special engineering studies of structures damaged by tornados, have helped scientists deduce that wind speeds can exceed 300 mph.

Such information has been used to develop the Fujita scale of wind speeds, a 12-level scale for ranking tornados. None are expected to reach wind speeds of more than 316 mph, or the F5 level. F12 on the scale puts wind velocities at about 750 mph, or the speed of sound.

F5 tornados are powerful enough to lift well-built frame houses off their foundations and carry their great distances before disintegrating them. Many of Texas' most infamous twisters were probably F5 tornados. Among them were those that hit Waco in 1953 and Lubbock in 1970, both by dark coincidence on May 11.

The Waco storm hit in the heart of the downtown area just before 5 p.m. on a weekday, killing 114 people and injuring almost 1,100. Of the dead, 94 were found in a two-block area that included the square around City Hall. Damage totaled more than $51 million and included 196 buildings destroyed or damaged beyond repair, as well as 850 homes demolished.

The Lubbock tornado plowed through some 15 square miles, nearly a quarter of the city, from near the Lubbock Municipal Airport north of the City. Twenty-six persons died and over 500 were injured. Eighty percent of the downtown's plate-glass windows were shattered, and cars were smashed into pancakes.

The worst May tornado in recent years struck Saragosa, the tiny West Texas community that lost 30 citizens on May 22, 1987. All were in the town's community center, celebrating the accomplishments of a preschool education program when a tornado (rare for the area) struck the building.

Zeitler said that tornado reporting and recording have improved dramatically since World War II, but many tornados go unnoticed because they occur in rural areas.

For all their ability to do major damage, tornados have relatively little impact on agriculture, said meteorologist Rusty Billingsley, a division of the National Weather Service, at Texas A&M.

"Tornados hit in a relatively small area compared to the damage to crops caused by a heavy rain or hail," Billingsley said. He added that a tornado is capable of stripping away rich topsoil, but in most cases the path of destruction is relatively narrow and short, usually less than several hundred yards wide and no more than a few miles long.

p.m. when the threat of severe storms had lifted.

Two spotters, David Spain and Jay Spain, went south-southwest of Hereford into Parmer and Castro counties Friday evening to watch storms that were moving northward toward Hereford. They spotted two funnels at about 6:45 p.m. near Lazbuddie. At 7:45, they spotted what may have been a "super" tornado, which David Spain estimated to be at least a quarter-mile wide at its base. The tornado had, at times, four smaller tornados around it and stayed on the ground about 10 minutes before lifting back into the clouds.

Other spotters closer to Hereford reported heavy rain and some intermittent small hail in the area, but no tornados.

Mayor proclaims Nursing Home Week

Mayor Wes Fisher (center, at top) was joined by employees and residents of golden Plains Care Center in Hereford when he proclaimed the week of May 12-18 as Nursing Home Week in Hereford. Golden Plains plans many activities through the week, beginning with a carnival at 1 p.m. and a balloon launching at 3 p.m. Monday. The week is designed to provide an opportunity for persons in the community to learn more about nursing homes.

the opportunity to start one with my mother."

"We've talked about owning a business," said Sue. "When this became available we thought, 'This is our chance.' Kelly already had the name picked out."

The Mom and Me store not only services all photography and framing needs, but they also sell art supplies. Oil painting and doll making classes are also taught at the store.

Not only are their talents compliments of each other, but their personalities are contrasting enough that a dull moment at Mom and Me is rarely found.

"Kelly has always been fun," said Sue. "Her friends call her a clean Roseanne Barr. When I started working here I had to pull an imagination out of a box. Kelly is always come up with these off the wall ideas."

Sue and Kelly go beyond just business associates; they are best friends.

"She is my best friend," Kelly said. "We enjoy our time together. I like to drop by her house after the store closes. We've always done things together."

"We're very close and I enjoy doing things with Kelly," Sue said.

Family businesses aren't limited to just two generations. Merle Norman is a three generation business.

Rosemary Parks (grandmother), Cyndi Walker (mother) and Heather Johnson (daughter) run the downtown cosmetic and gift shop.

"I always wanted to be in business," said Rosemary. "Cyndi has the artistic talent and Heather knows cosmetics, it all fell together."

"Working here is like not having a boss," Cyndi said. "It is easier to get time off whenever we need it."

"I like working in this atmosphere because everyone's opinion counts," Heather said. "Sometimes a boss doesn't listen. This way you can get a word in."

Heather worked at the store for its former owner.

"Heather already had experience and her cosmetology license," said Rosemary. "I think it has worked well for all of us."

All three enjoy the quality time they are able to spend together in their working environment.

"Mother and I recently got back from a Merle Norman convention in Nashville," Cyndi said. "That was a lot of fun. We got to spend time together."

"It is real satisfying to know that Heather knows so much about cosmetics and can relate to the customers," Rosemary said. "I enjoy that."

The Main Street store offers the full line of Merle Norman cosmetics and skin care products as well as gifts and accessories.

The family has been in business for one year.

"I think that because we're a family the customers feel like a family," Cyndi said. "I hope our store reflects how much our Lord loves us and how much we love people."

Each business contributes in a special way to the community and to their family. Special mother-daughter quality time, for these families, is part of the job.

Tornado safety tips

If you're like many Americans, there are a number of things about tornadoes you might like to know. Separating myth from reality can mean the difference between injury and safety. Here are helpful facts that may do just that.

A good start is knowing the difference between a watch and a warning.

A tornado watch simply means conditions are favorable for tornadoes to develop. In this case you should take precautions to protect yourself and your property and listen to the radio to keep informed.

A tornado warning means a tornado has actually been sighted. If one is issued, seek shelter immediately! There is little time for closing windows or hunting for flashlights.

Before the storm hits -- a little planning can prevent unnecessary panic and confusion if a tornado does strike.

* Learn the warning signals used. If a siren sounds, stay inside and take cover.

* Consider setting up a neighborhood information program where you hold briefings on safety procedures as tornado season approaches.

* Put together an emergency storm kit, including candles, matches, transistor radio, flashlight, batteries and simple first aid items in a waterproof container.

* Make a complete inventory of your possessions for insurance purposes. Keep the list in a safe place away from home.

* Conduct drills with your family in the home.

Remember, one of the biggest myths is that you can outrun a tornado in your car. The fact is, you shouldn't bet your life on it. A tornado is unpredictable; you can't know which way it's going to go, or how fast. If you're in a car and a tornado is near, get away from the car and lie in a ditch or low area, protecting your head with your hands.

BALTIMORE (AP) - As the first female team president in National Basketball Association history, Susan O'Malley says there is added pressure on her to be a role model.

"Being the first woman, it's important that I don't mess it up for others," said O'Malley, 29. "I just plan to work hard and do the right thing ... I am both honored and challenged by this promotion."

Washington Bullets owner Abe Pollin announced O'Malley's appointment Thursday. She has been the team's executive vice president since 1988.

"It sounds corny, but this has been a dream of mine since I was 11 years old," O'Malley said. "I just didn't think it would happen before I was 30."

All this talk about a depression doesn't impress Tom Draper, the old possum hunter out south of town. "Back during the Great Depression days, the seat of my pants got so thin that I could sit down on a dime and tell whether it was heads or tails!" claims Draper.

Americans are saving more these days, according to an item in The Wall Street Journal. Statistics show that the average American family saved only 2.9 percent of their income in 1987. That figure rose to 4.5 percent last year, and some economists predict it will rise to 9 percent by the end of the decade.

The figures reflect that many wage-earning families live from paycheck to paycheck with no cash reserves for an emergency. Most of these folks claim that it requires all of their income to pay the bills and taxes and meet the cost of living.

A lot of folks have noticed, however, that the cost of living is always a little more than their income, regardless of increases in the paycheck. The idea of spending every dime you make and going into debt to buy more has not always been with us.

A previous generation learned to save in a less affluent society—even in the Great Depression. Some of these folks will tell you that saving involves priorities and willpower.

Saving money means you first have to learn to do without some things you'd like to buy. It means learning that you don't have to keep up with certain friends and neighbors. You can learn it's not always necessary to postpone big-ticket items right now—that the item will still be there later.

The item in the Journal says the trend toward more savings is because the baby boomers are approaching their 40s and realize they have to do something to prepare for their future. America has long lagged behind other industrial nations in savings. Maybe it is time for a change.

The Texas Chamber of Commerce has launched a program, called "Texans Against Lawsuit Abuse," (TALA), which is aimed at changing public attitude toward large damage awards by juries. The program supports legislation to limit businesses' liability for damages suffered by consumers.

Another big target is the issue of punitive damages. The anti-lawsuit forces say that the tendency of juries to side with plaintiffs leads to punitive awards all out of proportion to any wrong involved or damage incurred.

The Texas Chamber says this is not an anti-lawyer campaign and is not meant to discourage any individual's right to file a lawsuit for a legitimate wrong. At issue is the cost of unreasonable and unfair awards which result in high insurance premiums and loss of jobs.

As an example of unfair punitive damages, consider this case: The Supreme Court recently refused to hear an appeal from a punitive damage lawsuit involving Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. A policy holder, who had bought a health insurance policy from a Pacific agent, found that when she went to collect that she had no policy. The agent has taken her premium money and kept it rather than sending to the company.

In the lawsuit, the company showed that they knew nothing about the agent's failure and the company accepted responsibility for paying all claims submitted by the client. Yet a jury awarded the plaintiff the $3,800 in medical bills plus another $1 million as punitive damages. The plaintiff's lawyer got a third of the award.

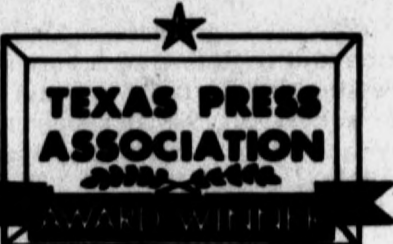

The company was responsible for the agent, of course, but when it demonstrated good faith in paying the claims, why should the policy holder get $1 million? Is the worry of a few weeks on losing $3,800 really worth $1 million?

The way these lawsuits have been going, you'd have a much better change at getting a million dollars by claiming some kind of damages than trying to win a million in a lottery or sweepstakes!

An AP News Analysis

Tax fairness is campaign issue

By WALTER R. MEARS
 AP Special Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaking of fairness, the Democrats are

The tax equity issue served them well in the last campaign, so they're trying it again. They haven't agreed on what to do about it in Congress, and there's little prospect for enactment of the middle-class tax cuts that go with the tax fairness slogan.

Still, proposals are sufficient to start making the campaign case, and that process already is under way. Four Democrats, one a possible presidential candidate, have proposed a measure they say would cut taxes for 134 million Americans and raise them for the richest 15 million taxpayers.

Lest anyone miss the political point, it's right there in the title of the bill: The Working Family Tax Relief Act of 1991.

For Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., one of the sponsors, it is a potential issue for a 1992 campaign challenge to President Bush. Bush swallowed an increase in the top tax rate in 1990 to get a budget agreement with Congress, but said he would oppose further increases. The bill seeks one, to 35 percent for upper income taxpayers. It also would impose an 11 percent surtax on people with incomes over $250,000 a year.

A White House that wouldn't accept a surtax on millionaires in 1990 isn't going to accept that. In the politics of tax fairness, that serves the Democratic argument, since the point is to cast Republicans and the administration as defenders of wealth and privilege.

"We have to take the issue head-on," says Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Tex., insisting that high income taxpayers actually are bearing a larger share of the income tax burden now than they were a decade ago, even though rates are lower.

"For more than a decade, the rich have gotten richer and the poor have gotten poorer," said Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., one of the sponsors of the tax relief bill.

Each side can make its case because fairness depends on who is doing the judging and statistical arguments depend on which numbers are being compared.

"More than at any time since the Roosevelt era, the Democratic Party's fundamental position is based on envy and greed," Gramm said in an appraisal published by the conservative Heritage Foundation. "The Democrats are trying to create a class-based economic and political structure to benefit themselves..."

He said they won't succeed. But even conservatives acknowledge that the tax-the-rich fairness argument worked to Democratic advantage in the 1990 campaign. They hope to win a piece of the fairness issue on the strength of administration proposals to cut federal programs that benefit upper income Americans.

So far, though, the fairness debate is all about taxes. Setting their 1991 agenda, Senate Democrats said they would demand tax fairness "by insisting that the wealthiest and most powerful Americans bear their fair share..."

"Senate Democrats intend to lessen the tax burden on working families while asking those with the ability to pay to bear a greater share of the income and Social Security tax responsibilities," they said.

But the Democratic votes weren't there when the Senate voted down a proposal to open the way for a cut in the Social Security payroll tax, a measure Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said would "provide a fair tax cut to 132 million American workers."

Moynihan's measure was rejected 60 to 38 on April 24.

Now the talk is centered on income tax relief for middle-income Americans.

Rep. Richard A. Gephardt, D-Mo., the House majority leader, said at a Democratic conference in Cleveland last week that with the economy in recession "we need a tax cut, and that's what we're going to pass in Congress this year."

Without a Democratic consensus on terms, and with Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, skeptical about a tax bill in 1991, that pledge of passage may not hold.

But cut or no cut, the tax fairness issue is back.

Remedy for Bush?

BY JAMES ROBERTS
 The Andrews County News

We tried our best to get in touch with the White House Sunday without any success.

We were trying to save the taxpayers some money over President Bush's heart problem but all we ever got was a busy signal.

We were going to try and give the folks up there a simple home remedy on how to stop the fluttering or the fibrillation of the President's heart. Oftentimes, after a long and hectic 18-hour stint on publication day, we may wake up in the middle of a sound slumber with the heart fluttering or going pitty-pat and racing uncontrollably.

We swing our legs out of bed, take three or four deep breaths and if that doesn't re-install regular beating, we whop our chest a couple of times like Tarzan used to do.

And if that doesn't stop the fluttering, we grab our tongue between thumb and forefinger and give it a hard yank—and that stops it.

We've passed this remedy along to others in Andrews who occasionally suffer the same problem and the tongue-yanking works for them also.

We would've called Bethesda Naval Hospital but we didn't believe those doctor colonels and majors would pass along our simple remedy to the president. Simplicity in anything is not a strong suit of the federal government.

Our governor once declared that President Bush was born with a silver foot in his mouth. Now that he has proven otherwise, perhaps there's room for a little simple tongue-yanking.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor,
 Cal Farley said, "It is easy to smile when someone cares."

I want to thank everyone who participated and donated items to the Hereford Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center garage sale on April 29. Hereford is a wonderful place with wonderful people and it is very gratifying to know that people care about this community and its residents.

Thank you,
 Ross W. James,
 Chairman of the Board

Dear Editor:

Congratulations to all the winners in last Saturday's elections! I believe the city, school and hospital district will be well served by those elected.

Now, a word about our hospital. There seem to be many doomsday rumors floating around out there. To begin with, much effort has been spent through the years to make this the very best hospital our community can afford. We have a hospital and medical staff second to none anywhere. Just in the last four years, of which I am most familiar, solid improvements have been made. Here is a partial list:

Retirement benefits for employees; standardization of wage rates; money to fund depreciation; major improvements on the structure; improvements in billing and bookkeeping; two new ambulances; purchase of a C-Scan and a mamography unit, and other pieces of equipment; establishment of a program to compensate employees for furthering their education; strengthening of quality assurance reviews, and an active program of physician recruitment.

It seems to be widely circulated that our physician recruiting program has failed. That simply is not true. Of course we would have liked to be successful in every placement, but that did not happen. But the effort did produce very fine doctors who are still here and who are a credit to their profession and the community.

Granted, there are doctors who have left. No one regrets this more than I. At the same time, it's nothing new. If you have been here for a number of years, count the ones you have seen come and go. To me, a good doctor is much like a good marriage—he or she will endure the good times and the bad times alike and hang in there.

Are there money problems? Of course! But they could be solved so easily and without a substantial tax increase. Most folks say we must keep the hospital open. I agree. But, for whom? For you. It makes no sense whatever to maintain the splendid institution we have if most paying patients decide to go elsewhere for medical care that could just as well be done here.

Good hometown medical care is essential in order to have a chance at economic growth. In order for our hospital to survive and flourish, we must all make a concerted effort to use it or we will certainly lose it.

I thank all for the privilege of giving me the opportunity to serve the hospital district the past four years. Sincerely,
 Ralph Detten

Babbling Brooks

Well, I got my first vote (that I know of) last Saturday. Someone voted for me (and Jim Bullard and Tim Revell, and a couple of others) for the hospital board.

No thanks. But I appreciate the thought.

Note to readers of past columns: I haven't heard any response on why the hospital felt it necessary to pay someone $1,000 a month to write stories for and about the hospital when the Brand would have provided the same service for free. If someone else has, please let me know.

To any nurses who may have been upset about names not being included with the pictures for the National Nurses Week story: no one gave us the names.

Local school officials are in a quandary about what to do with the high school cafeteria.

The cafeteria is not the same old cafeteria we dreaded back when I was in school. Over in Dimmitt, it was so bad that the superintendent passed an edict that chicken a la king would never again be served after a rather unfortunate citywide epidemic one night following a chicken a la king lunch. I'll never forget me and Martha Jane Bates sending semaphore signals via the bathroom lights across the alley most of the night.

In Dimmitt we were a captive audience. The campus was "closed," so we had to skip school if we wanted to go downtown or some friend's house for lunch. We ate in the cafeteria because we had to.

Things have changed in the school lunchrooms. Even at the elementary schools, the meals are better than what I remember. At junior high there's even a snack bar line.

But the coup de gras is at high school.

At the HHS cafeteria, you can get a "regular" school lunch, or you can get an individual pizza and Coke for only $1.25 (beat that anywhere else in town!), or you can eat off a great salad bar (I've tried it) that includes hot food and all kinds of stuff.

However, the high school cafeteria is more shunned than Saddam Hussein. Students that have cars drive all over town to get whatever they want. Students without cars walk all over town to get whatever they want. The students may have to drive or walk right past the cafeteria to get where they are going.

School officials are trying to figure out why 20,000 fewer meals have been served in the cafeteria this year, with a loss of $30,000 revenue. Good food, obviously, isn't going to work.

The Babbler has a few ideas (sorry, but the pizza and beer just ain't kosher, although it would draw a bigger crowd).

—Music could be a drawing card. Not elevator music. MTV. Why not put a huge screen up on the wall and blast 'em with 60 minutes of the latest Madonna or whoever else videos.

—This one could really work: why not open it up for bids among all the places kids go. Why go across town to McDonald's when McDonalds (or anybody else) is across the street from the high school. Or how about three or four places. You could have KFC (by the way, Bob, the honey BBQ wings are delicious!) and a Mexican food place, and maybe Hunan's.

—Put the graffiti back on the outside wall, but make it artsy. Let everyone that eats in the cafeteria be responsible for decorating part of the wall.

—I suppose it would be unthinkable to build a giant grill outside and let the kids cook their own hamburgers? How about hibachis.

Surely there are other ideas out there. School officials are open to any suggestions.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been an avid reader of your column since it began in the 50s. I decided early on that if I ever had occasion to write to a newspaper about anything I would do it through you.

As a veteran of World War II, I was distressed recently to hear that Martha Raye appeared on TV at an awards ceremony in a wheelchair. Ann, this dear lady, in my opinion, is one of the great heroines of World War II. I hope and pray that she is in good health.

I was privileged to be Martha Raye's jeep driver for a few days during the North African Campaign when she entertained the troops of the Second Armored Division. At one of her appearances, Miss Raye tripped on the steps leading to a hastily constructed outdoor stage. She suffered a painful ankle injury but refused to have a doctor check it out until after she had put on a terrific show for the 20,000 assembled soldiers.

Martha Raye was nothing short of fabulous when it came to entertaining the troops. She was always full of energy and smiling, never missed an engagement or let on that she might be exhausted.

Our division made Miss Raye an honorary captain in recognition of her gutsy resolve to make the morale of our combat servicemen her top priority. She endured the most primitive living conditions with never a word of complaint.

Miss Raye's autograph with the message, "Bless you, Pat," is one of my most treasured mementos. Please, Ann, find out and let us know if Martha Raye is OK. And let her know that she has not been forgotten. -- An Appreciative WWII Vet from Buffalo, N.Y.

DEAR VET: What a heartwarming letter. I, too, am a Martha Raye fan and will never forget her rendition of "Mr. Paganini" in the film, "Rhythm on the Range." Her beautiful eyes and great legs were striking, and she could really belt out a song.

Martha, let's hear from you. We want to know that you are OK. And thanks a million for all the hearts you have lifted over the years.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing to you because you have millions of readers who seem to respect your advice. Please help me get the word out.

There are an awful lot of indifferent, dumb, stupid, inconsiderate, reckless and life-threatening drivers on the highways in the U.S.A. Most of them are in Florida. They insist on driving in the dark, the fog and the rain without headlights because they believe it is a drain on the battery. This is not so. Once the car is started, the generator/alternator takes over and even if you were to disconnect the battery the car would still run.

Scandinavian countries require headlights to be on during the fall and winter which makes a lot of sense considering their weather. I hope you readers who are guilty of not using headlights when visibility is poor will see this and shape up. Remember, keeping the lights on does NOT run down the battery after the car is started. -- J.M.H. in Deltona, Fla.

DEAR FLORIDA: My Chicago "battery expert" says you are right. So that settles it, folks. Keep those headlights on when it's dark, foggy and rainy. Nothing will be worn out and you might avoid a serious accident.

Gem of the Day (submitted by Helen Huseby, Hightstown, N.J.): Speak when you are angry and you will make the best speech you will ever regret.

Martinez, Valdez united in marriage

Lisa Martinez and Rodney Valdez, both of Fort Collins, Colo., were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, May 4, in First Christian Church of Hereford with Pastor Raul Valdez officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Herman and Barbara Martinez of Fort Collins, Colo. and the bridegroom is the son of Eulogio Valdez of Garland, Texas and the late Lucy Valdez.

The bride's sister, Rayann Aiken of Cheyenne, Wyo., served as matron of honor and the bridegroom's brother, Mark Valdez of Garland, was best man.

Guests were escorted by the bride's son, Lino Martinez, and the groom's brother, Freddie Valdez.

Serving as flower girls were Nicole Martinez, daughter of Mike and Katherine Martinez, and Amanda Gonzales, daughter of Tomas and Lina Gonzales.

Candles were lit by Marcelino Martinez and Freddie Valdez.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory satin and lace tea-length dress and a floral headpiece made by her mother.

Her jewelry consisted of a pearl necklace given to her by her paternal grandmother.

Daniela Villegas invited guests to register at the reception held in the church. Maggie Gamez made the cake and rice bags were distributed by the groom's cousin, Raylene Villegas, and the bride's niece, Amber Aiken.

The bride graduated from Rocky Mountain High School and Larimer County Vo-Tech in Fort Collins, Colo.

The groom, who graduated from Garland High School, is serving in the United States Navy Reserve. He is employed at Woodward Governor in Fort Collins, Colo.

Pricing a house is one of the most important steps in selling it. As a broker, doing an appraisal, here's how we go about pricing and why. The first step is to determine what similar houses in the same neighborhood have sold for recently; they are called "comparables." Of course, no house is exactly comparable to another, so we adjust the price according to special amenities or circumstances available. Then we consider mortgage availability and other market factors. The last step is a small cushion for bargaining. Finding the just right price is important. Sell it too low, and the owner loses out on maximum return on equity. Set it too high, and the house won't sell. The most likely customers will be put off by an inflated price; prospects who can spend that much will want more house for it. Result, no sale, and the house gets stale in the market. When it does sell, it usually will be for less.

Healthy eating with coconuts

Many Americans are discovering what some nutritionists have long known: the coconut, which offers calcium, iron, thiamin, riboflavin, niacin and vitamin C, also yields a nutritious oil that can increase your energy without endangering your cholesterol level.

It's no longer scientifically correct to say all saturated fats raise cholesterol. Some people have avoided coconut oil because it highly saturated.

Castillo rules 3,200 field for state title

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Teresa Castillo said she would bring two medals home from the State 4A track meet in Austin, and she did, including a gold medal from a dominating performance Friday in the 3,200-meter run.

Castillo ran the 3,200 in 11:19.6. She beat second-place Melinda Pletcher of Highland Park (11:33.4) by almost 14 seconds. Castillo's time beat her previous personal best by 37.2 seconds. It also set a new Hereford High School record, smashing the 11:33 set by Selma Moreno in 1984.

Castillo took over in the third lap of the eight-lap race, she said, and led the rest of the way.

"At about the 100-yard mark, I had a big smile on my face, because I knew it was my race," Castillo said.

The Hereford senior, who also came in third in the 1,600-meter run Friday, said the typical Austin weather wasn't a problem for her.

"The weather was great," she said. "It was hot, it was humid, but it was good. It didn't really bother me at all." The 3,200 was run early Friday evening, with the 1,600 coming just three hours later.

"It was hard," Castillo said of the 1,600. "They took off real fast."

She was running in fifth going into the final lap, she said, when she remembered her promise to bring home two medals. So she turned it on, she said, and moved up to third to add a bronze medal to her collection.

Her time in the 1,600 was 5:18.9. Just edging her for second was Sunshine O'Neal of Georgetown with a time of 5:18.2. Melony Patterson of Crowley won in 5:09.3.

Hereford girls track coach Martha Emerson said Castillo's performance in the 3,200 was one of the best she's seen. "Sometimes it gets down to the heart, and that's how she ran," Emerson said. "She ran a great 3,200."

Emerson said Castillo is the first state champion she has coached, and is even the first Hereford girl to get a medal at the state track meet during her long coaching tenure.

Golfers improve-- but not enough

The Hereford High School girls golf team improved in Friday's second round of the State 4A golf tournament, but so did the teams ahead of them, leaving Hereford eighth.

Hereford shot 377 Friday after a 387 Thursday for a two-day total of 764. Despite the improvement, the team still finished seven strokes behind Sulphur Springs and Corpus Christi Tuloso-Midway, which were two strokes and one stroke, respectively, after the first round.

Andrews won the title by shooting

336 Friday to go with a first-round 327 for a total of 663. They finished 57 strokes ahead of second-place Bastrop, which totalled 720. Wharton was third with a 734.

Coach Stacey Bixler said the ground at Austin's Jimmy Clay Golf Course was so wet it affected the Lady Whitefaces' play. He compared the ground in Austin to a wet sponge, whereas his girls were used to hitting off dry, hard ground.

Bixler also said that although they finished eighth of the eight teams in the tournament, the other teams all had seniors while Hereford's team consisted of junior Paula Britten and four sophomores. He said the experience would really help the team return to the state tournament in 1992.

Britten led the team with an 89 Friday for a two-day total of 180. Dusty Saul shot 93 both days for a 186 total. Jennifer Prater improved from a 105 Thursday to an 89 Friday for a 194 total. Following her were Cecelia Albracht, 101-106--207; and JoJo Lytal, 102-111--213.

Medalist honors were taken by Silsbee's Caren Felps at 76-73--149, followed by Angela Wray of Cypress Mauriceville, 76-76--152; and Andrews' Lisa McQuarters at 74-79--153.

Britten was 14th on the individual list, and Saul was 19th.

Following are the final scores for all eight teams in the 4A field:

Andrews 327-336--663
Bastrop 370-350--720
Wharton 377-357--734
Cypress-Mauriceville 369-376--745
Henderson 374-380--754
Sulphur Springs 385-372--757
Midway-Tuloso 386-371--757
Hereford 387-377--764

Reinauer falls in close match

Hereford's Brenna Reinauer went down to the wire in the first round of the State 4A tennis tournament Friday in Austin, but lost a third-set tiebreaker to Correne Stout of Austin's Anderson High School 3-6, 6-3, 7-6 (7-5).

The girls singles match was played at Penick-Allison Tennis Courts on the University of Texas campus.

Reinauer played well, Coach Ed Coplen said, but Stout was good. Both of Anderson's girls singles players made the state tournament, he said, with Stout being the runner-up to her teammate at the regional tournament.

"She had a great forehand," Reinauer said. "She could put her forehand anywhere."

Reinauer said that at times she worried about Stout's forehand so much that she would make bad shots trying to hit to Stout's backhand.

Reinauer took the first set 6-3 but lost the second set 3-6.

"I think maybe I didn't jump in with as much intensity into the second set," she said.

In the final set, Reinauer was down 3-5 but came back to lead 6-5 before Stout won a game to force the tiebreaker.

"It was a great match," Coplen said. "She just didn't get the breaks."

Student moonlights as wrestling announcer

By ANTON RIECHER
Bryan-College Station Eagle
COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP)
- Wrestling announcer Dawn Batiz finds quick reflexes valuable in her work - particularly when people fly out of the ring and across the announcer's table.

"I have no idea what moves they will use next," said Batiz, a Texas A&M University graduate student majoring in biomedical science.

Batiz spends most weekends in Dallas providing color commentary about such extremely colorful characters as Abdula the Butcher, "Bamm Bamm" Terry Gordy, California Stud, Iceman King Parsons and the fabled Von Erich brothers, stars of Texas Championship Wrestling. The show airs Saturday nights on a Dallas independent channel.

A recent show illustrated the danger of working too close to the ring. A bald, mustachioed giant dubbed "The Angel of Death," weighing 320 pounds, careened backwards into a cameraman poised on the ropes. Man and equipment crashed to the arena floor, narrowly missing Batiz and co-anchor Bill Mercier.

Batiz has had to dodge wrestling enthusiasts outside the ring as well. One fan cornered her parents at the arena and insisted that they order their daughter to date him. The man was permanently evicted from the arena.

Batiz' hazard pay goes to pay for her education. It's also great experience for her stated career goal to specialize in physical therapy.

Her interest in the sport traces back to her junior high school days in Lewisville when she worked as manager for the wrestling team. But to handle the professional wrestling scene, Batiz had to acquire a whole new vocabulary.

A "stinger" is when a 300-plus behemoth delivers a knee drop to the inside of his competitor's knee. A "pile driver" means dropping him on his head. For a "back breaker," the wrestler simply pretends his opponent is kindling and tries to snap him over his knee.

The best observation she could offer the audience in her first on-camera first locker room interview was to note that the wrestler's wardrobe was not color coordinated. She now weighs in from ringside talking about butt bucks, swinging gates, head scissors and the Boston crab.

The strange thing about professional wrestling is the pace. To give one wrestler the time to set up these exotic ploys, the other must feign bewilderment after some stunning blow, staggering dumfounded into whatever obvious trap his opponent has set.

Batiz will admit that only some of the allegedly spontaneous action is "more or less staged to get the audience into it." She compares it to a coach sending in plays during a football game. Still, accidents and flukes do happen.

When Texas wrestling legend Kevin Von Erich returned to the ring after a long absence, he surprised everyone by using a deadly hold known as the Iron Claw. Simply fit the thumb and little finger on one hand into the victim's temples and squeeze.

"He split the guy's scalp and blood went everywhere," Batiz said. "Then he did the same thing to the guy's brother."

As a child, Batiz once froze with fear while presenting a paper in an English class. Her solution was to challenge herself by competing in beauty contests. She is also interested in physical challenge, having tried target shooting, rock climbing, scuba diving and martial arts at one time or another.

Batiz originally became a regular around the Metroplex Arena in Dallas dropping by to visit a friend competing in roller derby. A promoter asked if she was interested in trying out, but a recent knee injury in a skiing accident prevented it.

Then, when the arena switched from roller derby to wrestling, promoter Gary Hart remembered Batiz. Her first appearance was in an evening gown. She was introduced as "the beautiful Dawn Batiz." Her major chore was to hand the microphone to the main announcer.

Today, the promoters are trying to sell wrestling as entertainment for the entire family. For two recent shows, Batiz' bosses have asked her to "dress like a CNN reporter," she said.

Other than interviewing the wrestlers, Batiz often ventures into the audience with her microphone. Slowly but surely, more fans are asking for her autograph. Her favorite fans are the kids. Elderly women liken her to their granddaughters.

"And, of course, there are the guys," Batiz said. "I am the only female on the show."

Between Texas A&M and the wrestling arena, Batiz leads a double life. The show is not aired in the Bryan-College Station area, so few of her class acquaintances are familiar with her Metroplex popularity. Tight scheduling made it necessary to take some people into her confidence.

"I went to class in what I was going to wear at the arena - shorts and a vest," Batiz said. "I had to drive to Dallas and be there by 2 p.m. so everything about my hair and clothes had to be done before class."

The promoters now pay to fly Batiz to Dallas on weekends. She missed one recent show because her flight was grounded by bad weather in Houston. It would have been her show at the TCW's new home, the Bronco Bowl in Dallas.

Wrestling announcer is only one of three jobs Batiz holds down to pay for college. For Texas Girl Productions, Batiz poses for swimsuit posters and videos and acts as hostess at grand openings. She is also a waitress at the Baja Yacht Club in Bryan.

Batiz has managed to hold up a 3.0 grade point average.

"I have some very understanding teachers who know I'm working my way through school," Batiz said.

Foyt: Indy changed in his time

By A.J. FOYT
For The Associated Press
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - This is the weekend I try to qualify for my 34th straight Indianapolis 500.

To be truthful, I can't believe I've been here that long. I can still remember how proud I was to qualify for the race the first time. I ran 143 miles an hour. On the timing equipment they have here now, it doesn't even tell you lap speeds if it's under 150 - it just reads "Under 150 mph."

Back when I started, 150 was the magic number to reach. Now 200 won't even make the race. Hard to believe I'll have to run 225 just to start up front.

Pole Day. It's always a tough day on a driver. It's very important to try to get qualified the first day because if you don't, you have to start behind all those that do. If 30 cars qualify the first day, and you run 300 miles an hour the second day, you'll start 31st.

So, a lot of times you'll settle for less speed than you normally run just so you get in the field. It's not worth the gamble.

This year's going to be a tough one for me, and not because it'll be my last as a driver. Actually, I'm not even looking at it as my last time. I can't. And I don't look at Indy as the biggest, most important race of the year. I look at it as just another race. Or at least I try to.

This year'll be tough because it'll be my first race behind the wheel since my accident last September.

I've been easing into it this week. I've never been the type to get too pumped up early in the week because the track changes constantly. By Thursday, I started getting serious.

My Copenhagen Racing Lola has been driving pretty good so far, but we did have a problem with buffeting earlier this week. It's a problem for everyone here at Indianapolis because your head sticks up in the wind. It'd be like sticking your head out an airplane at 230 miles an hour. It shakes your head where you can't like I usually do because I've still got quite a bit of pain in my feet.

The last time I was in a situation like this was in 1965. I had a bad accident in a stock car at Riverside, Calif., in January. I broke my back, my leg and had chest injuries. They said I'd never make it to Indy.

Nobody laughs at House's theories now

By T.R. SULLIVAN
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - They laughed at Jimmy Stewart until John Wayne stood up and stared the bad guy down.

At least that's the way it happened in "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance," when Rance Stoddard, attorney, came to town, vowing to establish law and order where it had never been before. The townsfolk just laughed at his newfangled ideas, particularly the villainous Liberty Valance, played by Lee Marvin.

As the story goes, Stoddard can't find work as an attorney because nobody's interested. So he takes a job waiting on tables at the local chop house where, one busy Saturday night, Valance trips him up while he's about to deliver a dinner, spilling food, drink and Stewart across the floor.

The place goes wild with laughter until The Duke stands up, hitches up his gun belt, looks at Valance and intones: "That was my steak, Valance."

The laughter stopped immediately. Dr. Tom House came to town in much the same way Rance Stoddard did, vowing to bring new ideas and information to major-league baseball, a sport resistant to ideas that didn't originate before 1900. A sport where the most common piece of pitching advice before was: "Throw strikes, Babe Ruth's dead."

The old guard stood around the batting cage, shook their heads, spit their tobacco and chuckled, especially when Rangers pitchers started throwing footballs in the outfield.

Said former Yankees manager Dallas Green one night after Kevin Brown had beat his team: "He's going to be a good pitcher if he doesn't take up football."

Then the Rangers signed Nolan Ryan and when reporters flocked to his locker, few could resist asking if he also threw the football.

"Yep," Big Tex would draw without even a hint of a smile. "That's part of my training program."

The buck stopped at Harry Truman's desk; the criticism of House stopped at Ryan's locker. Ryan sells pain reliever, business equipment, blue jeans and boots, but his best selling job has been House's theories about pitching and physical conditioning.

"I've been very fortunate to have been around two knowledgeable pitching coaches," Ryan said. "One was Tom Morgan, who helped me get my career turned around when I was pitching with California Angels, and the other is Tom House."

Once he started saying that and throwing the football, the criticism of House waned.

"Since he started throwing the football, I haven't received one phone call or one question, people asking me, 'Don't you know throwing the football is bad?'" House said. "After all, how can people possibly trash me when Nolan Ryan and his sons do 99 percent of what Tom House is all about?"

Throwing the football always has been the most visible part of House's program and the one most criticized because it was such an easy target. But in actuality, it's a small part of the program.

"Really, all it is is a change of pace to the normal workout, sort of a diversion," Ryan said.

There is so much more to the program that isn't seen on a baseball field: motion analysis through computer, weightlifting and biokinetic research. All of that too has been embraced by Ryan, some of it before he came to the Rangers. For example, most of what House and Ryan know about weight training came separately from Houston Astros physical trainer Gene Coleman.

Being compatible in their pitching theories, Ryan and House got together this winter and combined on a book called "Nolan Ryan's Pitching Bible." It's mainly House's theories all over again, but as Ryan said, "It's written in biscuit-and-gravy language that people can understand."

Most importantly, the book has Ryan's name on it and is told in his words, giving it a stamp of authority. And with a nationally visible spokesman like Ryan doing the selling, House's programs are starting to gain wider acceptance around baseball.

There are now weight rooms in every ballpark. Physical therapists, including the Rangers' Marty Stadjuhar, are being added to teams' medical staffs. Even the dreaded football has cropped up in other organizations. Also, prominent baseball physicians, including Arthur Pappas with the Boston Red Sox, Frank Jobe with the Los Angeles Dodgers and James Andrews of the Alabama Sports Medicine Clinic, have adopted motion analysis in their diagnosis procedures.

"The information would have gotten out," House said. "Good information always wins out, but Nolan has expedited the process. I'm very thankful for that. He's been a great spokesman and nobody has been more appreciative of, No. 1, the friendship, the credibility

No. 2 and the fact that a genetically superior human has taken new information and proved that it works. Plus, I have to be appreciative that (general manager) Tom Grieve and (manager) Bobby Valentine have been supportive of me. I mean, how much static did they have to take while I was going around being the mad professor?"

He's no longer known as the mad professor around baseball. Ryan has seen to that.

Golf to use television replays

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Remember when golf was viewed as a gentlemen's sport where players were their own policemen? Television and instant-replay changed that at the Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

When the PGA used a videotaped replay to question the judgment of Tom Kite and playing partner Phil Blackmar, it changed the image of this rule-filled sport which requires a certain amount of integrity from those who play it.

A rules violation wasn't the question when Kite hooked his tee shot into the water on the short but dangerous 331-yard No. 11 at the TPC Course at Las Colinas.

But honest judgment was. Kite and Blackmar thought the ball crossed land at one point on the parallel water hazard. They thought Kite should get a drop near it.

The PGA then used the judgment of an official watching TV's instant replay to correct their eyesight.

Kite was ordered to play a provisional ball. He eventually made double bogey. Kite made bogey off his original ball. The ruling cost him momentum and money. He trailed only by a shot but ended up losing to Nick Price by five strokes.

He also was $8,800 poorer if the final list.

Kite was understandably livid. He said it was unfair and discriminatory because only the leaders are on television and subject to such eye-of-the-camera evaluation.

Had Kite just played on and not paid attention to the PGA he would have been perfectly within the rules, richer, and perhaps looking at the Nelson trophy following his first victory in his native Texas.

"Tom would have been OK had he played on because it was a judgment call," said tournament tour director Mike Shea. "But since we had the television which recorded the shot on tape we (the PGA) felt we had a better angle on it."

"In my judgment, Tom wasn't entitled to a drop where he thought he should drop the ball. Where the ball crossed land was about 40 yards back. But he didn't want to drop there so he went back to the tee for the provisional."

Kite called the whole thing a "cop-out" by the PGA which has been nervous since the Paul Azinger incident at The Doral Open.

A television viewer claimed Azinger had "built a stance" when he dislodged a rock while standing in water. After a review of the tape, Azinger was disqualified the next day.

Then the PGA started putting an official in the television booth.

"I think it's a sad statement we have to have TV to make the decisions," said Blackmar. "The players on the course are the ones with the best vantage point."

Now, the PGA is saying the players can't be trusted.

"Television has no business doing what they are doing," Kite said.

In the NFL, instant-replay doesn't get into the judgment business. If an official rules a defensive back is guilty of interference it stands even if a replay shows different.

The PGA has taken it one step farther.

Unless the PGA changes its policy in a June board meeting, the organization now has a "Tom Kite" rule on its hands and a weekly watchdog

YOUR EYES
CATARACT PROGRESSION

Cataracts don't happen all at once. Rather, the natural lenses of the eye cloud up gradually and the change may not even be noticed at first. Indeed, the cataract is usually discovered by the optometrist during a routine eye examination.

In the earliest stages, the cataract does not interfere with vision, but as it progresses, vision begins to get hazy. The glare of bright lights may be uncomfortable. Seeing becomes more difficult. At this stage, various kinds of eyeglasses can help the person see better. Sunglasses may be effective for some people. Others get better results with a glare-control lens that filters out blue light.

Once the lens becomes cloudy enough to impede vision, the cataract is said to be "ripe" or "mature" and ready for surgical removal. Afterward, a lens implant or contact lens will replace the natural lens. Glasses will still be needed for near-vision tasks and sometimes for clear distance vision, too.

HAS EMPATHY
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) - Steve Alford, now a pro basketball performer, knows how Damon Bailey felt when he reported to University of Indiana basketball coach Bobby Knight.

Bailey, a brilliant player in high school, was widely recruited, as was Alford in 1983.

"Bailey has gotten a lot of hype but he deserves it all," Alford commented. "He's handled the whole situation well. He has the kind of talent that makes the people around him so much better. I think he has even more on his shoulders than I did."

STATE HONOR
CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind. (AP) - A Sagamore of the Wabash: It may not be a big thing in the other 49 states but it is in Indiana.

It's the highest honor the governor of the state can bestow on a private citizen. It is presented to persons who serve Indiana in an unusual manner, designed to bring attention to the state.

Wabash football coach Greg Carlson won it for his success in coaching the Wabash team, known as the Little Giants.

Installation ceremony held

Members of Toujour Amis Study Club met recently for their officer installation ceremony and to honor their mothers in observance of Mother's Day. Officers installed for the 1991-92 club year include, from left, Becky Reinart, parliamentarian; Marsha Winget, reporter; Kim Buckley, historian; Cindy Simons, treasurer; Tami Charest, secretary; Judy Barrett, vice president; and Sarah Lawson, president. The theme of the installation dinner, catered by Mary Herring and Lois Lemons, was "Spring Gardening."

Do you need emotional support?

A new self-help support group is being formed in Hereford to help persons suffering from anxiety, phobias or depression.

"One of the ways that we can help ourselves is with the support of others," said an organizer of the group. "Experts say there are millions of Americans that suffer from such disorders. We want to help others who want to lead a happier life. We may not have all of the answers, but at least we can steer people in the right direction and help find the answers."

"The group is for persons of all ages, and no problem is too large or too small. We encourage anyone who may be facing problems to contact us."

Persons interested in learning more about the support group may write to Support Group, PO Box 673NTS, Hereford 79045. All correspondence will be held in strict confidence.

The Indian tribes of North and South America do not contain all the blood types that are found in the general population. The tribes of Central and South America, for example, are all blood group O.

BIRTHDAY CAKE

Q. I tend to be the birthday-cake baker of the family and usually do a pretty good job. My problem is that even though I only fill the pans half-full and tap the batter flat, the cake still comes out dome-shaped. I use the correct temperature and don't live in a high altitude. How can I prevent this?

I'm desperately hoping for an answer to this dilemma and thought if anyone would know, Heloise would! — Melanie Iacobucci, La Habra, Calif.

A. My secretary was really excited when she saw your question because she just learned the answer in a cake-decorating class. Baking the cake at 250 F for 1 hour and 20 minutes is the trick. She tried it on the cakes she had to bake for class and says it worked great!

If, however, you don't want to take the extra time, there is something you can buy that wraps around the outside of the pan and keeps the top from bubbling up. Check at a store that sells cake-decorating supplies, and good luck with your next cake. — Heloise

DENIM POTHOLDERS

Dear Heloise: I save old towels and the legs of blue jeans that have been cut off to make shorts, and I make them into potholders.

I cut everything into circles (or squares if you prefer) of the same size. Then I put several pieces of towel between the denim circles and stitch it all together. The towel makes it thick and the denim seems to last forever. — Laurie King, Reno, Nev.

Beauty Hints

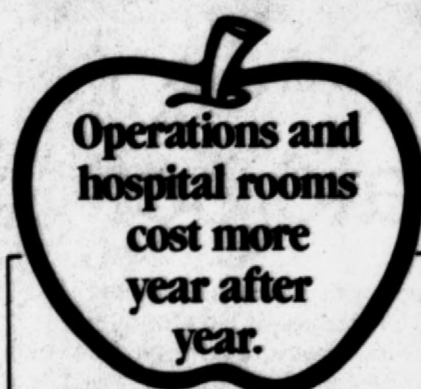

AS PROM TIME APPROACHES

We're seeing more blondes, a lot of highlights and two colors, with current hair styles. Young women are turning to more dramatic looks. The prom look is now, more fun, more natural. Girls are opting for side sweeps or high, fluffy bangs. Even the makeup is a little more dramatic this year. Bright colors, with lots of natural highlighting to compliment, special effect hair coloring. And more than ever, hair stylists are working with fashion designers to create well-coordinated looks. Professional seminars and conventions are offering better education, than in previous years. This allows stylists to become more "in tune" with clothing trends. Hair stylists have finally taken their place and earned the respect of the fashion industry.

If it's a facial, pedicure, manicure sculptured or fiberglass nails you're looking for: come by La Plata Beauty School. All work done by my students is supervised closely by qualified instructors. So call or come by.

KRISTI POWELL, JASON CULPEPPER

Wedding date set

Wedding vows will be spoken by Kristi Powell and Jason Culpepper, both of Lubbock, Aug. 2 in Avenue Baptist Church of Hereford.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Powell of Summerfield and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Culpepper of Hereford.

Miss Powell, a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School, is a senior English education major and an August candidate for graduation from Texas Tech University.

Culpepper, also a 1987 HHS graduate, is a senior exercise and sports science major at Texas Tech University. He is a December candidate for graduation.

Decorations need to be completed

All parents of Hereford High School seniors are desperately needed to help work on decorations for the class prom.

According to Linda Daniel, "We will need as many parents as possible to get the decorations completed in time for the prom. In conjunction with the prom's theme of 'Underwater Fantasy', we have been recycling many items for decorations including cleaner bags, foam packing used for furniture, packing for clothing received from local stores and even tumbleweeds."

The parents are meeting at the Hereford Community Center. The following is a schedule of decorating dates and times:

May 12: 2-5 p.m.
May 14: 6-11 p.m.
May 15: 6-11 p.m.
May 16: 1-5 p.m.
May 17: Beginning at 1 p.m.
May 18: Finish decorating, time will be announced.

The prom is scheduled Saturday, May 18, from 9 a.m. until 1 a.m. at the Hereford Community Center. For additional information, contact Linda Daniel at 364-2701.

Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers capture wins

Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers participated in District Roundup recently at West Texas State University.

Over 182 youth from 11 counties participated and Deaf Smith County brought home a total of 16 wins out of the 27 contest areas. Senior winners in first and second place will be traveling to College Station and Texas A&M for State Roundup in early June.

4-H participants and winners for the contest included: (senior first place winners) Lori Urbanczyk and Wade Johnson, safety; Lee Harder and Shelia Teel, health; Jennifer Hicks and Jill Dutton, horticulture; and Amanda McMeen, natural resources.

Senior second place winners were Kinann Campbell, horse, and Keith Flood, public speaking.

Senior 4-H'er Don Metcalf participated in the contest for critiquing but will represent Deaf Smith County in dairy judging at State Roundup.

Other senior 4-H'ers participating at State Roundup will include Jeffery and Michael Carlson, Jim Bret Campbell and Greg Urbanczyk in livestock judging.

Junior first place winners include: Julie Schlabs and Kristin Fangman, family life; Karon Harder, citizenship, Brent Carlson, farm and ranch economics; Amber Vasek, health; Craig Campbell, horse; Robin Bell and Jaime Steiert, clothing; Kyle and Kurtis Flood, share the fun; Erin Auckerman and Justin Betzen, horticulture; and Amber and Joanna Brumley, cooperative.

Junior second place winners were Cady and Kylee Auckerman in landscape horticulture and Cindy Harder in public speaking.

4-H'ers are available to present these special programs in the community. To book a 4-H presentation, call the individual 4-H member or the County Extension Office at 364-364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Sound financial management steps can help you handle a tight money situation.

Don't wait for a job layoff, a health emergency, or an impossible mortgage payment to jog you into action. By adopting a few smart money measures, your finances will be easier to manage if your economic situation worsens.

Here are some tips:
Begin now to organize your financial papers. Select a central location and accumulate family financial information. Record all bank accounts, retirement plans, investments and other assets. Include the institution where they are held, phone numbers and contact person if you know a name, account numbers and amounts.

List mortgage information, including financial institution address and phone number, account number, balance, monthly payments and contact person. Also, record all charge cards. Include the financial institution through which they are held, phone numbers for customer service and account numbers. Write down insurance companies, agents and phone numbers for health, home, life and auto insurance. Keep a record of social security numbers for all family members. This will all be useful information in time of crises.

Analyze your financial situation. Calculate the total amount of cash available to you in case of an emergency. Every household needs an emergency fund, preferably equaling three to six months' worth of income. Most households have nowhere near this amount on hand.

List any amounts you owe and total them so that you can get a picture of your overall debt situation. Track how much you spend for one month and compare to your income. Note what items could be trimmed down if necessary.

Lower your debts. Pay off a little at a time, and do not continue to charge. As a general rule, monthly payments other than mortgage should total less than 20 percent of take-home pay. If you are feeling over your head in regard to debts, consider going to a no-charge credit counseling office for assistance.

Increase your cash on hand. If your family's emergency fund needs beefing up, try to come up with ways you can add to the total. Make a practice of adding any raises, bonuses, overtime pay, or "extra" money directly to the emergency fund.

Consider your job situation. If your company or individual job situation seems at danger during hard economic times, prepare for the worst. Begin to notice what jobs are available for which you would be qualified if you lost your job. Update your resume. Do not change jobs unless you can see major advantages in the change, so that any seniority you have accrued will be safeguarded.

Find ways to entertain yourself and your family that don't cost much. Concentrate on having fun, not saving money!

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Chamber Singers to perform

The Hereford Chamber Singers will present their spring concert for the community at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, May 26, at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center and at 7:30 p.m. May 27 at the Hereford High School auditorium. There will be no admission charged, but donations will be accepted to defray expenses of the group.

The theme of the concert will be "We're Proud to be Americans" and will feature a variety of patriotic numbers. This concert is dedicated to and is in honor of this nation and the thousands of brave men and women who serve in the armed forces. Special recognition will be given to active members of the armed forces and to the veterans who have served in any branch of the service.

Jan Walser serves as director of the Chamber Singers and Dee Anne Trotter is the piano accompanist. Gene Streun is the president of the board of directors and Joe Flood serves as music chairman.

All local citizens are invited to the concert to enjoy good American music and to pay tribute to this country and the military personnel who will be the special guests.

Breast screening clinic planned in Hereford May 24

A breast screening clinic, in cooperation with the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and High Plains Baptist Hospital of Amarillo, will be held at the South Plains Health Care Providers, Inc., 603 E. Park, from 10 a.m. until 2:30 p.m.

Exams will be done by appointment only. For more information, call the clinic at 364-7688.

Funding for the breast screening community outreach clinics is available through the Texas Cancer Council for screening mammography for Texas residents qualifying for financial assistance.

Early detection of breast cancer is the major goal of cancer control for each woman seen in the clinic. The clinic provides low cost screening which includes a breast exam by a registered nurse trained in breast cancer detection, teaching of breast self-examination and a mammogram.

Currently, the most effective method known to win the battle against breast cancer is early detection. Early detection is best done by following the guidelines recommended by the American Cancer Society for breast cancer screening for women who have no signs or symptoms of breast cancer. The guidelines are:

1. Learn and perform breast self-examination every month.
2. Have a physical examination every year.
3. Have a mammogram according to the recommendations by age.

Age:

- 35 to 40-One baseline mammogram.
- 40 to 50-A mammogram every one to two years.
- Over 50-Yearly mammograms.

Rethinking the sandwich

America's favorite portable meal has the advantage of being fast and satisfying, but is often loaded with calories, sodium and fat. The "grab a sandwich" tradition may be bad news if you're on any kind of diet unless you take a fresh approach.

We can learn a lot from people of other cultures, most of whom have their own variations on this universally popular theme. The Chinese roll up lean meats and vegetables in lettuce or cabbage leaves. Greeks stuff ingredients into healthful pita shells and Mexicans use corn-based tortillas. Norwegians layer thinly sliced fish or beef, onions or radishes and cheese on high fiber, cholesterol-free crispbreads...and the cheese is usually made using part-skim milk.

There are many cheeses available that are very low in fat, calories and sodium.

LEAH RUCKER, TIM LEE-SHAFFER

Engagement announced

July 20 is the wedding date set by Leah Robin Rucker and Timothy W. Lee-Shaffer, both of Hereford. The couple plans to exchange nuptials in Westway Baptist Church.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Rucker of Clovis, N.M. and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred R. Lee of Route 3, Hereford.

Miss Rucker, who received a bachelor of science degree in education from West Texas State University, is currently teaching math at Hereford Junior High School.

The prospective bridegroom, a 1985 graduate of Hereford High School, is presently employed at Al's Diesel and Automotive in Hereford.

Workshop planned Monday

The "Family History Is Fun" workshop is planned at 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 20, in the game room of the Hereford Community Center. This will end the spring sessions of workshops which have been sponsored by members of the Deaf Smith County Genealogical Society.

Sylvia Murray of Amarillo, a certified genealogist and teacher, will conduct the program on researching Virginia. Since so many people landed in Virginia Colony and descendants migrated across the state on the journey south and westward, it is a favorite and essential place to search.

Murray has several pages of handouts for each of those present and brings from her personal library resource books for examination on the spot. A $2 contribution is suggested to aid in defraying cost of handouts. The public is invited to the regular monthly meeting of the Deaf Smith County Genealogical Society at 7 p.m. preceding the workshop.

The local library has excellent in house genealogical resources. New books and materials arrive frequently. A fiche reader and two microfilm readers are available for public use. The genealogy society provides census film ordering through the library and interlibrary loan service is available. The librarian can furnish names and phone numbers of members who are available by appointment for assisting beginners in genealogy research and use of the facilities.

Between the Covers

BY REBECCA WALLS

For another "can't-put-it-down" book Daniel Pollock presents us with Duel of Assassins. The cast of characters include:

Marcus Jolle - a former American dare devil and soldier of fortune who has adopted the Soviet Union as his mother country. Marcus has sworn loyalty to General Marchenko and like a samurai warrior will fulfill his duty at any price.

General Rodin Marchenko - a Red Army general of the old guard who finds his life coming to an end deep in the Siberian woodlands.

Taras Arensky - one of the most highly trained killers in the world who has defected to the U.S. Taras is called to the White House and given the unusual assignment of protecting the Soviet President Rybkin from assassination. President Rybkin wants to insure the Soviet participation in a unified European community. To achieve this goal Rybkin has brutally crushed all opposition.

Jolly and Arensky served together in the Afghanistan conflict, sharing hardship, death, pain of a brutal crime in which they swore to seek vengeance. Now Jolly and Arensky are about to meet again on the moonlit cliffs of Yalta, the Soviet Presidents summer retreat. It marks the beginning of a duel that will call on all the deadly skills and cunning these two men have acquired over a lifetime. All around them is history in the making, and hope for a world order that will be shattered should anything happen to Rybkin.

In Jade by Gwen Davis the year 1997 is looming along with the imminent takeover of Hong Kong by the mainland Chinese. As the transition nears, the dangerous arcs of the roller-coaster society intensifies. The people feel they only have so much time to make their fortunes, fall in love and escape. A frenzy of greed, and lust abound.

Claire Black has come to Hong Kong in an effort to heal some of the pain she feels as a result of a premature and unexpected widowhood. Claire's friend, Judith Taylor, a journalist who finds Hong Kong's future frightening and exciting, has invited Claire to visit for a while. In Hong Kong the rules for women are very different whether the woman is American, Chinese, married or single. Claire and Judith along with many others find the city vibrant with white-emotions.

Maggie Evens, a designer of Jade jewelry, has fallen victim to horror when her teenage daughter is brutally murdered. When Judith attempts to unravel the mystery surrounding the girl's murder she becomes entangled in the murky side of the British Colony and with Police Superintendent Clement Leslie, the man who know it best.

Antonia Fraser's new book The Cavalier case introduces Jemima

Shore a television reporter who is researching a television project on ghosts and their owners.

Decimus Meredith, a seventeenth century Cavalier poet, soldier and first Viscount of Lackland Court, casts a spell over Jemima from the depths of a portrait. Jemima is now in love with a man who has been dead for more than three hundred years.

When she hears that Decimus has been stepping out of a similar painting hung above the staircase of Lackland Court, and that his appearance preceded the violent death of his sixteenth successor Jemima simply cannot stay away.

The new lord of Lackland Court, "Handsome Dan" Meredith, a former tennis star, his plans to convert the stately Elizabethan mansion into an exclusive country club. On the eve before Dan is to reveal the secrets surrounding the Cavalier's last appearance, the seventeenth viscount's butler takes a plunge off a parapet and the Cavalier's case becomes a case of murder.

With the headlines screaming, the family feuding and the body count rising, it's up to the intrepid Jemima Shore to unmask the flesh-and-blood killer behind the romantic ghost. That is if there is one.

What do you do when you are granted God's power for a whole year -- no strings attached -- by an urbane, baldheaded heavenly messenger named Chet? That is the question facing Charlie Wiggins, a hapless car salesman who chronicles his run in with omnipotence in the outrageously funny Almighty Me by Robert Bausch. JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) - Steven Gustafson of the folk-rock group 10,000 Maniacs said the band will return to its hometown to organize a cleanup of the polluted Chadakoin River.

"We had to leave this town to become successful, but, I'll tell you, we love coming back and we're proud of Jamestown," Gustafson said Thursday in announcing the band's participation in the May 18 cleanup. Gustafson and three other band members are from this area 70 miles south of Buffalo.

BRANDED Women

By Sandy Stagner

Even though I have never had the inclination to have more children (I already have two and that's quite enough), I guess there's still a desire hidden deep in my subconscious to hold, caress and nurture a baby. I'm such a glutton for punishment.

Occasionally that old motherhood longing surfaces with a vengeance and I react irrationally. Most often, however, I can usually contain myself and fill the void by playing "temporary mommy" to a friend's baby. When I tire of changing diapers and hearing it fuss and cry, I simply hand the infant back to his mother.

Unfortunately, the "empty nest" syndrome caught me by surprise last week. I was just sitting at my desk gazing through the want ads when I spied an ad saying some puppies needed a home. I had no control over my hands. They grabbed the phone and started punching buttons. After a two-minute conversation, I told the owner of the dogs I would be at her home within 45 minutes to select a pup. This was going to be "my baby." (Acquiring a baby this way is a heck of a lot easier than going through labor pains!)

I chose the runt of the litter, carried the dog home and instructed my daughter to "hide" it from my husband until I got home. I was going to have to break the news gently to him. John is really getting exasperated with me dragging home animals. If I'm not nursing a sick bird back to health, I'm bringing home an old blind cat. Last summer, a skunk was making nightly visits to feast on cat food left on the patio. I thought it would make a unique pet so I tried to catch it. Lousy idea and a very stupid one if you get my drift (or scent).

Actually, the Stagner household already has two cats but they no longer "need" me. Their cute kitten antics and innocent attitudes have changed to "the-only-reason-I-need-you-around-is-to-feed-me" demeanor. My family does that to me now, why should I have to take this aloof air from some snotty-nosed felines?

Unfortunately, John got home from work before I did. Not good. Candi had hidden the puppy in her room, but she couldn't keep it from crying. She said her dad took one look at the mongrel, frowned and walked out. He was so darned angry at me, the sight of the dog left him speechless.

Not knowing John had already discovered the puppy, I came home to find a very unhappy husband and I was quite unprepared to deal with his wrath.

"Sandy, let's go to the bedroom for a major talk," he growled. "Let me make one thing perfectly clear..." he babbled on and on. (He did a perfect imitation of Richard Nixon: Speech, scowl and body language.)

"Why? Why? Why?" John demanded as he closed the bedroom door so our daughter wouldn't hear. "I simply can't figure out what possesses you to bring all these animals home. Can't you find another hobby? You are a sick, sick, sick person!" Boy, he can certainly over dramatize insignificant things.

I didn't dare speak, so I just sat on the edge of the bed like a kid preparing to get spanked or grounded. This punishment was going to be worse than the times he has put me on "credit card probation" or reprimanded me repeatedly for "misplacing" some silly little income tax papers.

"The animal is going to be yours and yours alone. I will have nothing to do with it. You can care for it, pay the vet bills and more importantly, if that animal chews up any of my shoes, you can replace them, comprehend?"

Oh, what's the big deal, I thought. How much trouble could an adorable little pup be, for goodness sake? For the next two days, I found out that trouble is spelled PUPPY.

I went to the grocery store, stocked up on dog food, bought a brown studded collar to match her soulful eyes, a rubber doggy bone for her to satisfy any chewing needs and a box of disposable diapers. Yes, diapers! People with pet chimps put diapers on them, why shouldn't I use them on the dog. It was a brilliant idea, no puddles on my carpet and no mad husband.

I'm sure no sane person has ever tried to diaper a puppy, but I've never had a normal thought in my head so I didn't think it was a strange thing to do.

Turning "Mandi" on her back in the diapering position (she now had a name), I spent 30 minutes struggling to get a Huggies on her bottom. (I couldn't figure out what to do with her tail. Do I tuck it inside the diaper or do I cut out a little "peep hole" and pull her tail through that?) She kept wiggling free because the diaper was too big. (I tried, but I couldn't find a diaper size that would fit a one pound puppy.) I finally and very gently sat on top of her.

After I got the diaper secured, she waddled around the house for several minutes before deciding she was a free spirit and would rather be naked. She chewed that diaper to shreds. So for the remainder of the day, I followed her around the house with a towel and a can of carpet cleaner.

The next problem was attempting to keep her from crying all night. I tried everything. I put a loud ticking clock next to her. I placed a hot water bottle beneath a snugly blanket in her bed in the garage. I went to visit her every hour on the hour during the night, muttering words of encouragement and cuddling her. It was hopeless. She had the lung capacity of a full-grown basset hound!

About 5 a.m., John had had enough. He stomped out to the garage with nostrils flaring, looked at me, then the pup, then back at me. "Keep that animal quiet," he demanded. "I have to go to work tomorrow!" And I didn't?

With no other recourse short of administering over-the-counter sleeping medication to John, me and the dog, I gathered the pup in my arms and went to the spare bedroom. I turned back the covers, nestled her next to me and we napped for several hours. We repeated this the next night.

I can happily report that Mandi is now a well-adjusted little dog (potty trained and everything!)

I'll reveal a secret—I observed my husband teaching her to fetch and shake hands while conversing to her in baby talk. He talks a mean game but he is as soft as a marshmallow. Thank goodness he's such a softy at heart, that's the only reason I'm still alive.

Dance recital set May 18

The public is invited to attend a dance recital presented by Kim's School of Dance at 7 p.m. Saturday, May 18, at the Hereford High School auditorium.

Young ladies ages 3-15 will be performing a variety of dances for the evening.

Admission is free.

New Year's Day has its origin in Roman Times, when sacrifices were offered to Janus, the two-faced Roman deity who looked on the past and forward to the future.

Safe driving hints

Safety experts report that 85 to 90 percent of the information we need for safe driving comes through our eyes. Here are some tips that will help your driving vision.

- Do keep your windshield and windows clean, inside and out. Dirt on windshields acts as a filter, reducing and scattering light and intensifying glare.
- Don't add tinting to windshields or windows. This will reduce your vision.
- Do keep wiper blades clean and replace them when they start to streak or smear your windshield.
- Do keep all mirrors clean.

To make sure your car is more visible to other drivers, follow these suggestions:

- Keep your low beams (not parking lights) on when driving in the daytime.
- Select a car with a light, bright exterior color. These are easier for other drivers to see than darker colors, especially at night or in the rain.

“NO!”

Are the politicians doing a good job for Texas?

Are Texas schools teaching our children to read and write? Are streets safer? Are we winning the war on drugs? Are we nurturing our economy so it creates jobs and opportunity? Are taxes fairly imposed? Are we getting a fresh flow of new ideas surging through the Capitol?

Of course not. There's not one Texan in a thousand who's really happy about what's going on in Austin. Problems aren't being solved because the politicians spend too much time thinking about the next election — instead of the next generation.

Government has become one endless campaign. Incumbents cozy up to special interest groups to raise the money needed to get reelected, so they can cozy up to special interest groups to raise the money needed to get reelected again. All of this doesn't leave much room for ethics—or much time for problem solving.

In fact, there's no incentive for a politician to make good public policy today. Because when a politician does that, he risks offending somebody. And when that happens, he takes a chance of losing.

So everybody in Austin plays it safe. And our problems just get worse.

Whatever Happened to Citizen-Representatives?

We've got a new class of people in Texas and all over America — a tightly knit group of professional politicians who owe just about everything they have to the special interests that keep them in power. And right now, the career politicians have a strangle-hold on government. They own it. And they're doing everything possible to keep other people out.

They can't afford to lose an election, because politics is just about the only thing they know how to do anymore. So they've made a career out of getting reelected. And they're winning with alarming regularity.

Only four Texas House incu-cumbents were defeated in the general election last year, and no incumbent Senators lost. Altogether, the members of this year's Legislature have been in office 1,100 years.

There's more change today in the Supreme Soviet than in the Austin statehouse.

Getting Reelected is Today's Top Priority

Our founding fathers didn't envision a government run by a ruling class of career politicians. They saw a democracy where common people served, then returned home to live under the laws they passed.

Our founders wanted to open government to people who could make a difference: Scientists, teachers, farmers, laborers, business people — citizen-representatives who would bring new ideas to government.

The ethic of government back then was public service, not politics. People ran for office to solve problems, not build a career for themselves. Today, getting reelected has become the number-one priority for most politicians. And we're paying a terrible price for it.

At a time when we should be doing everything possible to encourage the best and brightest among us to run for office, we're slamming the Capitol doors in their face. There are few vacancies and even fewer opportunities to unseat incumbents.

As a result, we've got a government that's dominated by career politicians who are afraid to act. Government has become so far removed from most Texans that it doesn't hear what we're saying. And it just isn't working the way it should. All you have to do is read a newspaper or look around your neighborhood to know that government is failing.

Term Limits: An Idea Whose Time Has Come

There's only one way to take back our government and make it work the way it should, and that's to throw the rascals out. And we do that by limiting the number of terms people can serve in government. It's that simple.

Term limits will push aside the professional politicians and invite "just plain folk" back into the process. We'll get the new people we need in Austin, all of them bringing new ideas, new visions, and a new determination to solve the problems facing Texas.

The notion of term limits isn't some wild-eyed revolutionary plan that's never been tested. It's an idea that's sweeping the nation. California, Colorado and Oklahoma have already enacted legislative term limits. And 21 other states are right behind them.

Recent polls show that over 70% of all Texas voters want term limits. To give you an idea of how popular the idea of term limits has become, consider this: George Bush and Ralph Nadar both have embraced the concept.

They're not alone. Thomas Jefferson and George Washington spoke in favor of term limits. So did Abraham Lincoln, James Madison, Harry Truman, Dwight Eisenhower and John Kennedy. Governor Ann Richards and Lt. Governor Bob Bullock also say they support term limits. Even some Austin legislators have said they would consider term limits.

We want to take them up on their offer.

We Won't Lose Good People, We'll Get Better Ideas

Those who oppose term limits argue that we'll be forcing good people out of government right along with the bad. But good people who want to continue serving the public have all kinds of other opportunities. They don't have to park themselves in the Legislature forever to make a difference.

Critics also say we'll be losing the people who know how to run government. But in a state of 17 million people, do you really believe the only ones who can govern Texas are already in office?

Besides, if they've been doing such a great job, why is government so bad?

We'll Make the Politicians Take Notice

We're not Republicans or Democrats who want to get an advantage for one political party or another. We're Republicans, Democrats and Independents who are concerned about the decline of government in Texas — and we've come together to make it better.

Right now, we're working to gather over 500,000 signatures from Texans who agree it's time to limit the terms of Austin politicians. By collecting that many signatures, we figure the Legislature is bound to sit up and take notice. And when it does, we'll be on our way to better government.

Specifically, our plan will:

- Limit the Governor, Lt. Governor, Attorney General, Comptroller, Treasurer, Land Commissioner and Agriculture Commissioner to two four-year terms.
- Limit State Senators to two four-year terms.
- Limit State Representatives to four two-year terms.
- Limit Railroad Commissioners to one six-year term.
- Limit U.S. Senators to two six-year terms.
- Limit U.S. Representatives to four two-year terms.

Sound crazy? Of course it doesn't. Our plan is the most effective, responsible and sensible way to ensure continuity in government while making room for new people with new ideas.

Here's How You Can Help Limit Terms

It's simple: Just complete the coupon below and return it in an envelope to: Texans for Term Limitations, P.O. Box 1906, Houston, Texas 77251. But hurry, we need your response as soon as possible.

Before you return your coupon, be sure to make several photocopies to pass around to your friends and co-workers. If you can afford a small donation to help us out, put that in your envelope, too — we'd appreciate it. But be sure to send us your completed coupon no matter what.

We're going to make some big changes for the better here in Texas. We're going to take back our government. We're going to open up the doors to the statehouse. And we're going to solve some problems.

We'd love to have you come along. Mail your coupon today!

Walden receives award

Bill Walden of Hereford received the Master Pork Producer Award at the 1991 Texas Pork Industry Conference held recently.

Walden, a 1957 graduate of Texas Tech University with a degree in agronomy, returned to the farm where he produced large quantities of grain. With the abundance of grain he produced, he needed a viable means of utilizing it and chose to feed hogs. His hog operation has grown steadily for 21 years.

In addition to his large farrow-to-finish operation west of Hereford, Walden farms 1,300 acres of sugar beets, corn, wheat and sorghum. He is also very active in the Texas Pork Producers Association, serving as vice president and chairman of the Government Relations Committee. He gives a great deal of credit to his wife, Norma, for being a supportive, driving force behind his success.

European policies attacked

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States for years has attacked the European Community for its policy of subsidizing agricultural exports and is seeking an end to such practices under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

But an Agriculture Department report says the EC is not alone in the export subsidy business and that some relatively minor wheat exporters have been using subsidies to gain larger shares of the world market.

The United States, through its Export Enhancement Program, or EEP, also is a subsidizer of farm exports, primarily wheat.

The report, issued Tuesday by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service, examined seven countries where wheat export subsidies are or have been in place.

In Saudi Arabia, for example, wheat production has tripled since 1983 as that oil-rich country has tried to gain self-sufficiency.

Saudi wheat price guarantees to small producers is $530 per metric ton, or the equivalent of more than $14 per bushel. The guarantee to larger wheat producers is $400 per ton, or about $10.90 per bushel. There are about 36.7 bushels of wheat in a ton. By comparison, the U.S. government offers a target price of $4 per bushel on wheat grown under federal programs.

As a result, wheat output in Saudi Arabia rose to around 3.6 million tons in 1990-91, compared with an annual consumption of about 1.5 million tons.

Thus, with production expanding, the Saudis have turned to subsidized exports to reduce the surplus.

"The major buyers of Saudi wheat exports have traditionally been Portugal, Indonesia, China, Turkey, Kuwait and other Middle Eastern countries," the report said.

Wheat crop moves closer to harvest

WASHINGTON (AP) - The 1991 winter wheat crop, the mainstay of U.S. bread grain production, is moving closer to harvest far more rapidly than usual in the South and parts of the Great Plains.

A report Tuesday by the government's Joint Agricultural Weather Facility said an estimated 39 percent of the crop was headed, compared with last year's mark of 23 percent and the five-year average of 29 percent.

"The crop was completely headed in Georgia and nearly all headed throughout the Southeast," the report said. "Oklahoma's winter wheat was 95 percent headed, compared with 45 percent last year and the historic average of 65 percent."

In Kansas, the largest producer, about 40 percent of the crop was headed, well ahead of last year's 10 percent and the average of 20 percent. The Texas crop was heading at a normal pace of 61 percent, compared with 60 percent last year and the average of 57 percent.

The report, which covered the week of April 29-May 5, said the U.S. winter wheat crop was in "mostly good to fair" condition, except in Washington, where wheat and barley crops were rated as mostly poor.

No production estimates were included in the weekly report issued by the weather facility, which is operated by the Agriculture and Commerce departments.

Planting of spring wheat in the five major states of Idaho, Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota was reported as 71 percent completed, one percentage point behind last year but nine points ahead of the average.

"Spring barley seeding continued," the report said. "Frost and wind damage in south-central Colorado made reseeding of some fields necessary. Texas small grains received some moisture relief, but many dryland fields were beyond help. Seeding of oats and rye were well along in most producing areas."

Corn planting continued to be held back by rain in the Corn Belt. Nationally, planting was 32 percent complete, down 15 percentage points from a year ago and 16 points behind the historic average.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

The Survival Plan

Quickly. Tell me which of the following choices is the No. 1 reason that businesses fail:

A) A bad economy
 B) The bank won't extend credit.
 C) Too much competition
 D) Lack of planning

The correct answer is "D." Most young businesses -- those that are under five years old -- fail because adequate planning wasn't done before the business opened. Older businesses decline or go under because they do not have an on-going plan.

Typically, the economy, the competition or the banker gets the blame. However, objective examination usually reveals that the failure was the fault of the management. Even when the economy is slow, credit is tight and the competition is tough, some businesses prosper.

How do businesses prosper in hard times? The management sticks to the plan. Successful managers always find time to plan. They change the plan to adapt to changing business conditions and stay on course.

The plans vary greatly because of the differences in the entrepreneurs. Some planning is done in a very formal fashion, while other plans are simple statements of goals and objectives. The common factor is not the type of plan or method of planning, but rather that there is a plan.

A Step in the Right Direction

If you don't know where you are going, you may end up where you've already been. Even worse, you might end up some place where you don't want to go. Putting together a good plan is like taking a step in the right direction. It's just a start, but you're on your way.

A business plan will help you focus on where you want to go. It will also help you analyze where you are now. Once you know where you are and where you want to go, your plan will help you establish a clear-cut path.

For an existing business, the planning process should begin with a determination of your company's current position. Start with an analysis of your internal environment. What are your firm's strengths and weaknesses? What resources are available to you? Do you have reserves of cash and inventory? Can you identify areas where your company is unique?

Next, examine the external environment. Look at the local, regional and national economies. Are they conducive to growth for your business? What trends are affecting your industry? How are your competitors reacting and performing? The main question becomes "does this environment offer opportunities or pose a treat to your existence?"

After you know your strengths and weaknesses and have listed the opportunities and threats, you are ready to formulate your plan. Don't underemphasize the analysis part of planning. This becomes the foundation you must build upon.

Two Types of Planning

Business owners and managers need to understand the basic differences between strategic planning and operational planning. The strategic plan concerns the big picture, while the operational plan spells out day-to-day activities.

The strategic plan details the company's mission and purpose. It answers philosophical questions such as "why does the business exist" and "what are the general objectives?"

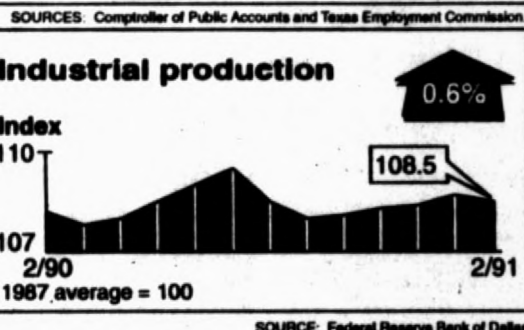

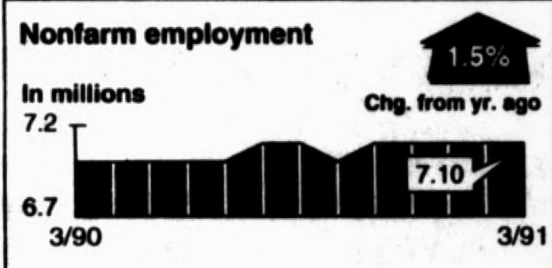

The operational plan finds the most efficient way of doing the tasks outlined by the strategic plan. The operational plan becomes the working plan. The company mission is broken down into definable and manageable operations. Company resources are allocated in the most efficient and productive manner.

Entrepreneurs are frequently guilty of being too busy to plan. The small amount of time they are able to devote to planning is used in operational planning. This can result in doing the wrong things very well. Unfortunately, it doesn't matter how efficiently you produce manual typewriters if the world wants word processors.

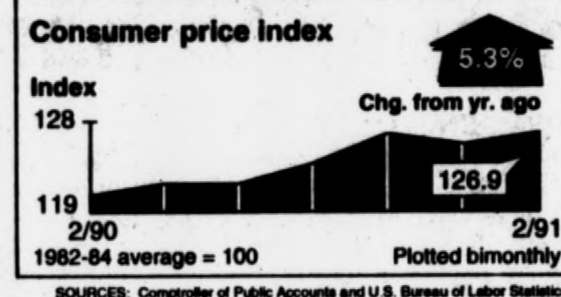

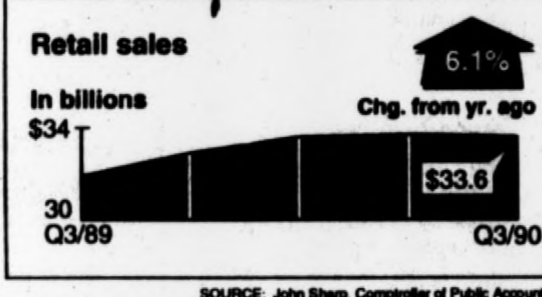

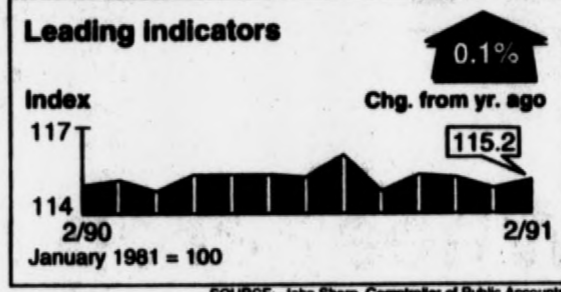

Planning may be your best insurance for success. Although a good plan will not guarantee success, lack of planning will hasten failure.

Duval Co. to cash in SAN DIEGO, Texas (AP) - George B. Parr controlled a South-Texas political machine for decades, doling out favors in exchange for votes.

He also is credited, or blamed, for Lyndon B. Johnson's tainted 1948 election to the U.S. Senate.

Yet by the time the so-called "Duke of Duval" killed himself in 1975, he had become an embarrassment for Duval County residents weary of scandal and corruption. It was no accident that the Duval County Museum created in the early 1980s contained no trace of the family that ruled the area for six decades.

Now that more time has passed, though, community leaders finally want to take another look at their history. They plan to capitalize on Parr's notoriety with a museum exhibit to attract tourists curious about the "Duke of Duval." The George Parr room is scheduled to open next month.

"The concept is we're trying to turn something negative into something positive," said County Judge Gilberto Uresti, a reformer first appointed by a state district judge in 1975, when courts temporarily took over the scandal-plagued county government. "The positive aspect is attracting tourists. My position is we cannot ignore the past."

The exhibit may even feature the infamous "box 13" that contained just enough missing votes to propel LBJ to the Senate.

Lydia Canales, chairwoman of the Duval County Historical Commission, said tourists from time to time visit and wonder why the museum has nothing on George Parr.

"They're shocked that we don't have it," Mrs. Canales said. "We've been so much in the news."

George B. Parr was "El Patron," the boss. He could get you work, groceries and cash if times were tough.

Political cronies in courthouses and school districts spread public money around like butter in exchange for loyalty to handpicked Parr candidates at election time.

They also had more than charity in mind with schemes such as a phony "general store" that did thousands of dollars worth of county business, control of county construction contracts and bank accounts that kept the money flowing.

The Parr family rose to power in Duval and surrounding counties during a 1911 political feud in which three Anglos from Alice shot three Mexican Americans at the Duval courthouse in San Diego. George Parr's father, Archie, the county's Democratic leader, sided with the Mexican Americans and won over the predominantly Hispanic South Texas brush country.

And now the Women's Christian Temperance Union has declared war on tobacco in all forms and asks that all addicted to its use be barred from teaching in public schools. There is no rest for the weary! If this organization, like the Federation of Women's Clubs, will take up the fight against the bandbox as a traveling companion for women, and against the wearing of tight corsets, and against the senseless massacre of song birds to be used for purpose of personal adornment, its efforts will be appreciated and more to the point.

Ceiling Variations Contribute to Openness

RANCH WITH SPLIT FLOOR PLAN HAS EXTRA APPEAL

BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

This L-shape European ranch includes three bedrooms and two baths. The elegant master bedroom suite features a tray ceiling and access to a large sun deck, while double vanities, his-and-her walk-in closets, garden tub, and separate shower contribute to the luxury of the master bath. The other bedrooms provide a spacious, open atmosphere: one with a vaulted ceiling and the other with offset roof lines that allow extra light to enter the room. The large activity room features a fireplace and vaulted ceiling. It opens off of the foyer and is accessible to the sun deck and the kitchen area. The kitchen is designed for easy food preparation and service with modern appliances, central island, lots of cabinets, and easy access to both the breakfast room and formal dining room. The dining room overlooks the activity room through decorative wooden spindles. A convenient, oversized laundry room and a double garage complete the interior floor plan.

This home is built on a basement foundation. The stairway is conveniently located next to the great room.

The stucco exterior is embellished with a combination of arched top and multi-lite windows, decorative quoins, multiple roof breaks with hip and gable styles combined, and a covered front stoop.

This is a computer generated plan. The plan is Number 2072. It includes 2,094 square feet of heated area.

All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information, write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Skylight tips offered

By POPULAR MECHANICS
A Hearst Magazine
For AP Newsfeatures

Q. - I will be installing a skylight in my living room and I'm a little confused about whether I need a light shaft, and how to go about constructing one. Can you shed some light on this?

A. - When you are dealing with a ceiling other than a cathedral, you will have a space between the skylight unit and the ceiling below. The size and shape of this light well or shaft depends on various factors - the construction of the roof and ceiling, the desired amount of light to enter the room, and the appearance of the entire area.

If you want a light shaft, simply frame out the area between the roof rafters and the ceiling joists with appropriate lumber. Keep in mind that this shaft can be designed to extend straight down into the room or be aligned perpendicular to the roof opening so it comes into the room at an angle. Box in the shaft with plywood, drywall or paneling. Finishing off with white paint will better help reflect exterior light into the room.

Steiger gets education for movie role

Michael Gross and Academy Award-winner Rod Steiger star in the fact-based drama In the Line of Duty: Manhunt in the Dakotas. The telefilm, premiering Sunday on NBC, chronicles the FBI's search for a right-wing tax evader and killer who vowed never to be taken alive.

Rod Steiger stars in the volatile story of a Midwest farmer who let his ideals lead to murder in In the Line of Duty: Manhunt in the Dakotas airing Sunday, May 12, on NBC.

The story revolves around North Dakota farmer Gordon Kahl, a staunch tax evader who evokes a fanatical following of other down-and-out Midwest farmers. But Kahl takes his vehemence of the law too far, resulting in the deaths of two federal marshalls and a cross-country chase.

He is hunted by Richard Mayberly (Michael Gross), a big city FBI man out of his element dealing with farmers in the Midwest. A massive manhunt ensues for this criminal who eludes the FBI through a sophisticated underground railroad of supporters.

Steiger, who plays Kahl, is a veteran performer who has learned that to play a character well, an actor must not make judgements. Although the man he portrays in In the Line of Duty was considered vicious, Steiger tried to glean a different perspective.

"I have to find a way to believe in what the character's doing, and if society calls it right or wrong, that's fine. That's not my job. As far as I'm concerned Gordon Kahl was protecting his family and his farm and all the farms around him. And he wouldn't have his daughter or his son contaminated by any other race or creed or culture. With a part like that I start identifying with the family. I have a daughter who I love very much and I start with that and have to use a little imagination — pretend she's in danger."

An Academy Award-winner and three-time nominee, Steiger has considered his career a lifelong education. Having completed only one year of high school before serving five years in the Navy during World War II, the actor said his characters have brought history to life for him. He is considered to be one of the foremost actors in playing real-life people, having portrayed Benito Mussolini, Napoleon, Rasputin, Rudolf Hess, Al Capone, Pope John XXIII and W.C. Fields among others.

"When I go to work on a character I try to read as much about them and find out about the social life and the psychological life of the time and the period and the people and things like that," Steiger said. "And I pick up, I hope, unless I'm completely an idiot, I pick up some knowledge."

Perhaps the role he is most noted for, however, is his Oscar-winning performance as fictional Police Chief Gillepsie in the theatrical version of In the Heat of the Night in 1967. Another of Steiger's noteworthy parts was the title role in The Illustrated Man, a movie that taught him a lesson other than history — makeup. Was that tattooed body a body suit?

"Oh no, my dear. That was the longest makeup job in the history of film. It took 10 men three-and-a-half days to complete it. And then I'd only shoot a day and a half and then it would smear," Steiger explained. He figured over a seven-week shooting period, 28 days were spent solely in makeup.

While his career has indeed been successful, Steiger apparently has managed not to get lost in his success, as often happens.

"Would you do me a favor?" he asked while winding down our interview. "When you write it would you just say I've been thankful for the people who have been kind to me all these years? The public." © TV Listing Inc.

Ellen Burstyn, Walter Matthau remember love in TV drama

Academy Award-winner Ellen Burstyn plays an elderly woman struggling to retain her memory and custody of her grandson in Mrs. Lambert Remembers Love, Sunday on CBS.

Pair co-star again after 27 years

By Amy Schmidt

"Mrs. Lambert Remembers Love is really a life-affirming story about the power of love," says Ellen Burstyn of the new telefilm in which she stars. Burstyn, who won an Academy Award for her performance in Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore, co-stars with Walter Matthau in the heart-rending drama Sunday, May 12, on CBS.

Mrs. Lambert Remembers Love marks the first time Burstyn and Oscar-winner Matthau (The Fortune Cookie) have co-starred together since their 1964 performance in Goodbye Charlie. In their new project, Burstyn plays an elderly woman named Lil Lambert, whose failing memory leads to a custody battle for her young grandson, played by 9-year-old Todd Ryan. Matthau plays Clifford Pepper, a man, an old friend of the Lambert family who remains a loyal ally to Lil in her struggle.

"I did a lot of research for this picture," says Burstyn. "Lil has these occasional memory lapses — she just can't remember who people are or what events actually happened. She finds it terribly frustrating, and that's exactly what happens to people when they first become affected by Alzheimer's. They know something's desperately wrong, but they can't figure out what it is."

Burstyn has high praise for both her co-stars. "When you watch Walter, you're getting the real thing, not some actor acting. Walter doesn't let on he's acting at all, he just has you believe he's being himself on screen — and as I say, that's the mark of a fine actor."

"Todd is a very special little being. He's so curious and bright, so open and warm.... After a while, I really saw Todd and his character Jared, as one. Jared is very close to his grandmother Lil; Todd became very close to Walter and me."

Essentially, Mrs. Lambert Remembers Love is the story of three people whose love and loyalty triumphs over greed and hurt: Ergo, nice guys don't finish last. "I think people who watch this are going to be moved," says Burstyn optimistically. "It may even influence some people to offer help to loved ones who need help." © TV Listing Inc.

SOAP TALK

Storyline may help back pain sufferers

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: Please express thanks to the writers on The Young and the Restless for the storyline about Nikki and her back problems.

Although most people don't resort to drugs and alcohol for relief, no one knows the agony of a back problem unless they have experienced it. Perhaps this segment will help people with pain seek correct medical care and enable those around them to give support to those living in constant pain. —Beech There, Elaine Heywood, Columbus, Miss.

Dear Candace: I want the producers of The Young and the Restless to cut the foolishness. Do they really think viewers would buy the new storyline of a grown-up Victoria? We watched her grow from birth to school age. Suddenly she is taken out of the show in the fall only to return during the Christmas season 10 years or so older. Come on, Nicholas remains a child while Victoria rapidly advances to a teenager ready to go out on her own? Let's not take the believability too far!

I presume this new Victoria is fit into the traditionally teenage focused summer lineup. However, I truly recommend reconsidering by finding another teenage angle and bringing back the young Victoria, closer to her brother's age and more fitting to be Nikki's daughter. Should the storyline become too outlandish, longtime viewers will begin to drop away. I, for one, have dropped other soaps as they became too unbelievable. The Young and the Restless is my last hold out, and I would like to remain a follower. —Kathy Manney, Las Vegas, Nev.

Dear Kathy: I am certain several Y&R viewers agree with your thoughts. Aging characters to fit a new storyline is one of my pet peeves for any show. I wish it were all a bad dream that maybe Nikki had while under the knife for her back surgery, but I really don't think that is going to happen. I think if you'll take a closer look, you'll notice little Nicholas isn't so little anymore. Wasn't it only a year ago that he was a tiny baby who swallowed a nickel and was saved by his father? Now he is a wonder child who can play Nintendo! I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, TX 76161-1009.

STAR NOTES

Harry Connick Jr. not taking a breather

By Lisa Otoupal
After putting in nearly two decades of hard work, singer/composer/actor/pianist Harry Connick Jr. is finally becoming well-known to the public.

The Grammy Award-winning singer was born 23 years ago in New Orleans. His parents, both lawyers, owned a record store and continually encouraged their son's talents. When he was 6 years old, Connick performed the national anthem at his father's swearing-in ceremony as district attorney and was soon playing in clubs on New Orleans' famous Bourbon Street. He later won numerous awards at New Orleans College for the Creative Arts.

At 18, Connick moved to New York to attend Hunter College and Manhattan School of Music and, at the urging of a longtime friend, recorded an album which won a Grammy and rave reviews from the New York critics.

The movie When Harry Met Sally gave the film industry its first taste of the talented man's music, and the next year he made his acting debut in Memphis Belle.

Barely stopping to breathe, Connick composed and performed "Promise Me You'll Remember" for The Godfather Part III, garnering him an Oscar nomination. He recently made his prime-time television debut on PBS' Great Performances, has just finished performing on Broadway, and plans to go back into the recording studio soon.

Sir John Gielgud is a lecherous grandpa in a four-part Masterpiece Theatre beginning Sunday on PBS.

LET'S TALK

Gary Cole relates to role as the 'Midnight Caller'

By Polly Vonetes

Q: Please tell me something about Gary Cole of Midnight Caller. Is he married? How old is he? Where can I write to him? —Frances Bolster, Jonesboro, Ark.

A: Gary Cole was born in Park Ridge, Ill., on Sept. 20, 1957. He was a theater major at Illinois State University but left school after three years to pursue an acting career. After a variety of odd jobs, he began working with the renowned Steppenwolf Theatre. He was first featured as an ex-steelworker in the 1983 TV movie Heart of Steel. Then he attracted attention in 1984 as a result of his performance as Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald in the NBC miniseries Fatal Vision. There was subsequent praise for his role in the miniseries Echoes of Darkness and in the telefilm Vital Signs. Of his current role as a talk-show host on Midnight Caller, Cole says, "Jack Killian's not that far from my personality. He's a little off-center, aggressive and fair-minded." Cole is single and still considers Chicago his home, although he currently resides in San Francisco during the filming of Midnight Caller. You may write to: Gary Cole, c/o Midnight Caller, Lorimar Television, 300 South Lorimar Plaza, Burbank, CA 91505.

Gary Cole

Pan, a Greek god, was believed to delight in frightening travelers. The word "panic" derives from his name.

Q: I am an admirer of Anthony Andrews, who starred in The Scarlet Pimpernel, Ivanhoe and The Woman He Loved. Can you tell me anything about him, mainly his age and if married? —Tricia Terry, Kerrville, Texas

A: At age 39, Anthony Andrews attributes much of his success as an actor to his wife, Georgina, "who has a talent for organizing." He was born into a theatrical family; his father was a musician and his mother a dancer. The death of his father at an early age forced Anthony into a public school education. Not academically inclined, Andrews left school to pursue various careers including catering, sweeping the stage and eventually working his way into small parts. Anthony lives near Wimbledon Common in London with his wife and their two children. His favorite sport is horseback riding.

Q: For years now I have been watching the TV listings for a movie that I think is called Indian Love Song with Howard Keel, and I can't remember the leading lady. It was a musical, and Bert Lahr was in it with the woman who played in other movies as Mrs. Kettle. Is there any chance this movie can be found in a video and if so, where? —S.L. Franklin, Arcade, N.Y.

A: The film you are seeking was titled Rose Marie and starred Howard Keel, Ann Blyth, Mervyn LeRoy, Fernando Lamas, Bert Lahr and Marjorie Main. Released in 1954, I do not have it listed as available on video tape. It was a remake of the original starring Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald, which is on tape. However, a new video rental service has been brought to my attention that may be of service to you. Write to Video Library, Inc., 7157 Germantown Ave., Philadelphia, PA 19119 or call 215-247-6616. Their listings include new and old hard-to-find videos.

Q: I would like to know if John Wesley Shipp of The Flash is married. Also, how old is he, has he been on TV before? Where can I write to him? —Gail Jones, Lufkin, Texas

A: John Wesley Shipp was born Jan. 22, 1954, in Norfolk, Va. He has won two Daytime Emmy Awards for his roles on As the World Turns and Santa Barbara. He also had a continuing role on the daytime series Guiding Light. He is not married, though he does have a steady girlfriend. Write to him c/o The Flash, Warner Bros., 4000 Warner Blvd., Burbank, CA 91522.

BITS AND PIECES

NBC has announced it will pick up the comedy series Wings, starring Timothy Daly, Steven Weber and Crystal Bernard, for the 1991-92 season. After replacing Grand on Thursday nights, the show consistently won its time period.

Crystal Bernard

Goodbye Girl Marsha Mason says, "hello" to network TV. James Brooks, winner of three Academy Awards for Terms of Endearment, will produce a new half-hour comedy series for ABC in which Mason will play the eldest of three sisters.

Deborah Norville, a new mom and former Today host, has reportedly accepted a multi-million dollar settlement on her contract with NBC. Norville "accepted a settlement of several million dollars on the remaining years of a five-year, no-cut contract that called for more than $1 million annually," reported the Washington Post, citing an unidentified source.

Nightmare on Elm Street continues with Freddy's Dead: The Final Nightmare, now in production and due out in October. Roseanne Barr and Johnny Depp will be making cameo appearances.

Cast to spread its 'Wings' again after successful season

An "archaeological dig" is being conducted in Guadalupe, Calif., where almost 70 years ago Cecil B. DeMille filmed The Ten Commandments. Old sets used in the movie are being unearthed from sand dunes.

Grammy winner Will Smith has chalked up another award. His comedy series, Fresh Prince of Bel Air, copped an honor at the 12th Annual Youth in Film Awards as the "Best New Family Television Comedy Series." The highest-rated new situation comedy of the 1990-91 season, the show has been picked up for the fall.

FOOD AWARENESS By Ann Crowley R.D., Ph.D.

Lower Fat Means Lower Calories

An interesting nutrition fact is that fat has twice as many calories as either protein or carbohydrates. In calculating calorie intake, the fat provides nine calories per gram whereas the protein or the carbohydrates supply only 4 calories per gram. Thus the easiest way to reduce the calories is to reduce the fat in the diet. Many low fat foods can be substituted for a high fat product without significantly changing the taste.

Product	Amount	Fat	Calories
Whole milk	1 cup	10	150
Skim milk	1 cup	0	85
Sour cream	1 Tbsp.	2.5	25
Plain non-fat yogurt	1 Tbsp.	0	6
Ice cream	1/2 cup	10	50
Non-fat frozen dessert	1/2 cup	0	50
Whole egg	1	6	80
Egg white	2	0	32
Regular salad dressing	1 Tbsp.	5	60
Fat free salad dressing	1 Tbsp.	0	20
