BILL HELTON

SPS chief bullish on area economy

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor
The chief executive officer of Southwestern Public Service Company paid an official visit to Hereford on Wednesday, visiting with community leaders to give an overview of the utility and its progress in aiding economic development in the region.
Bill Helton met with community leaders on Wednesday and spoke to the Hereford Lions Club at noon, and explained that the company, which serves the Texas Panhandle and South Plains, Eastern New Mexico, the Oklahoma Panhandle and a sliver of Kansas, impacts the region in many ways. The company serves 96 communities and about 1 million people.
The company does more than provide electricity to area homes and businesses, Helton said. The company has been involved in intensive economic development in the region. "We're doing everything we can to stimulate the economy," Helton said. "Our goal is to land 30 new industrial plants in the region, and we have helped secure 25," that has results in 3,600 new jobs in the SPS service area and millions of kilowatt hours of electricity sold by the utility. Those efforts and a decision made by the company in the early 1970s to focus on coal-fired generation at new plants have helped the company become one of the most efficient, and profitable, electric utilities in the country. The company used only natural gas in its plants before 1976, but now produces 76 percent of its electricity from coal-fired generators, with 24 percent coming from gas and other sources.

Helton said the company has been able to build its coal-fired plants at half the national average cost, and the plants operate very efficiently. "We are ranked No. 6 in our ability to convert raw energy to power," Helton said. "We also were able to save $1 billion, from 1976-86, in fuel costs by using coal instead of natural gas."
With the emphasis on coal, the company has significantly lower rates than other utilities in Texas and surrounding states for residential customers, and the rate for business and industry is very much below the national average rate. Helton said that is a strong selling point in economic development efforts. "Electric power availability and price are incentives we can offer," Helton said.

The executive believes indicators point to the area coming out of the recession, with the number of customers served by the utility up significantly. In 1990, the wholesale sales of the firm were up 7.2 percent, and retail sales increased 3.4 percent.
Helton said the company is still looking for ways to be more effective despite a customer survey showing that 97 percent of SPS customers are satisfied with the utility. The U.S. average of customer satisfaction is only 73 percent.
Helton also outlined special programs launched by the company, including the "Sparky the Mouse" safety campaign; the "Kidcare" program, where children in trouble know they can find safe haven at any SPS vehicle; and the "Gatekeeper" program that assists senior citizens who may be facing problems.
"We're not shade tree social workers or anything like that," Helton said. "We just refer persons to existing agencies so they can get the help they need."

Nurses 'specialize' in many areas

Nurses at Deaf Smith General Hospital play an integral role in providing quality health care, and being honored this week during National Nurses Week.
"We're proud of the service we offer the community," said Renee Hammock, director of nursing at DSGH. "This is our home; our patients are our friends and neighbors. We're dedicated to providing the best possible health care at the local level."
Gary Moore, DSGH administrator, noted some of the qualities that warrant public recognition.
"During emotionally and physically debilitating times, nurses enhance and promote health care and the well-being of patients and family members," said Moore. "They work long hours, they work hard hours, and they continue their training throughout their careers so that their patients can enjoy the best of health care."

Moore said the number of health services offered by DSGH demands many areas of training among staff nurses. Smaller hospitals, he said, require that nurses be specialists in many areas, requiring ongoing training. DSGH works with area colleges and universities and provides inservice training for nurses. DSGH employs 56 nurses in areas including surgery, emergency room, obstetrics, recovery room, medical/surgical, utilization review, discharge planning and intensive care.

Gun bill opponents push Senate action

WASHINGTON (AP) - Gun control opponents are looking to the friendlier confines of the Senate to shoot down a House-passed bill that requires a seven-day waiting period for handgun purchases.
"This is far from over," said James J. Baker, chief lobbyist of the National Rifle Association.
The House on Wednesday approved 239-186 the so-called Brady bill after first defeating an NRA-backed plan to scrap the waiting period in favor of a national hotline for instant criminal checks. The Justice Department had said it would take years and millions of dollars to implement a computer hotline in all 50 states.
It was the biggest victory for gun control advocates in Congress since the 1968 gun control act, which banned interstate gun sales. Just three years ago, in a similar confrontation, the NRA plan won over Brady, 228-182.
"The stranglehold of the NRA is now broken," said Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y. "They had this aura of invincibility... and they were beaten."
Lawmakers on both sides said the dramatic change in the House stance reflected some anti-NRA sentiment and, more importantly, public frustration with rising gun violence in the country - symbolized by the bill's best-known advocate, former White House press secretary James Brady.

Gun Control
Disabled since he was wounded in an attempt on President Reagan's life in 1981, Brady watched from his wheelchair as the House approved the bill.
"I told Ronald Reagan that in the end, truth wins out," Brady said. "Truth did win out this time. The little guys won. This is not gun control, it's crime control."
If the Brady bill becomes law, gun dealers would pass along to authorities the names of potential gun buyers. The police could, but would not be required to, then check for histories of crime or mental disorders.
The Senate, however, has a different orientation than the House. Since its membership is based on population, the House has a far more urban tilt than the other chamber.
Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, a Brady bill supporter, predicted a tough fight.
In the Senate, the gun control issue will become formally entangled with other anti-crime measures. Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, has said he wants to produce an overall crime bill - an approach supported by the White House.

"The president is committed to a comprehensive approach to combat violent crime, not to partial solutions," Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said in a statement following the House vote. He repeated Bush's threat to veto the Brady measure if it were sent to his desk alone.
Democrats have served notice, however, that Bush's anti-crime proposals don't face smooth sailing, whether attached to Brady or not.
House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., went out of his way Wednesday to blast Bush's anti-crime plan for "excessive death penalty symbolism" in place of real support for crime fighters in the streets.
Thirteen states already have waiting periods of various lengths and nine others require first-time gun purchasers to obtain a permit.
The Brady bill would not supersede longer state waiting periods but would require at least seven days, except where states already have instant criminal checks. Once a national check system is in place, the waiting period would be ended.

Texans backing rural healthcare reform package

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Charles Stenholm is backing a package of rural health care reforms designed to ease shortages of health care professionals in rural areas and boost struggling hospitals.
"Our package covers the full gamut of rural health care concerns and while ambitious, it is also very realistic, both politically and fiscally," said Stenholm, co-chairman of the House Rural Health Care Coalition.
Members of the coalition introduced 13 bills Wednesday, including measures that seek to improve obstetrical care in rural areas and provide financial incentives to young physicians who practice in rural areas.
Another bill would protect community and migrant health centers from legal liability. Others address mental health care in rural areas and air medical transport systems.
Stenholm, D-Stamford, said the package "addresses some of the most pressing health care concerns facing rural communities today."
Rep. Greg Laughlin, D-West Columbia, said he's given top priority to a measure that focuses on the recruitment of new physicians and legislation that would allow states to apply for grants to create or enhance air medical transport systems.

"I believe these bills are essential to attract and retain qualified doctors in rural areas and to provide victims of medical emergencies with the access to necessary treatment centers," Laughlin said.
Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., said enhancing access and the quality of health care in rural areas is vital to the success of any rural development initiative.
"For too long, rural communities have had to contend with substandard health care services when compared with their urban counterparts," English said.
As rural areas prepare for the 21st century, he said, they should have the same advantages as urban populations in terms of medical and technological advances.
"Geographical preference should not prove a handicap when it comes to the ability to obtain quality and affordable health care," English said.
According to Rep. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., one-fourth of the nation's rural hospitals are bankrupt and physicians continue to move away from rural areas to urban hospitals.

World, National

WASHINGTON - Gun control opponents are looking to the friendlier confines of the Senate to shoot down a House-passed bill that requires a seven-day waiting period for handgun purchases. "This is far from over," a National Rifle Association official says.

WASHINGTON - A House committee slashed two major procurement programs and, in recognition of women's increasing prominence on the battlefield, gave the military the green light to assign female pilots to combat missions.

WASHINGTON - Over at Langley, he's known as Mild Bill. But the moniker is not meant to be unkind, for CIA Director William Webster is well liked, a straight arrow who has brought the intelligence agency much-needed reassurance and balance during troubling times.

ZAKHO, Iraq - Iraq's army sends more reinforcements to a Kurdish city the U.S.-led allies consider occupying to encourage more refugees to return, a U.S. official says. As the U.S. commitment deepens in the north, the last American troops pull out of southern Iraq.

DHAKA, Bangladesh - With barely a dozen helicopters to help millions of cyclone victims threatened by disease and starvation, the government pleads for the world to send more aircraft. But foreign aid donors say communications is also a key problem.

NEW YORK - The Food and Drug Administration is getting tough with food companies that it says have no right to label their products "fresh." "I think the companies had better be pretty frightened now of any deception," said Steve Gardner, Texas assistant attorney general. "It's open season."

NEW YORK - Scientists today said they had made female mouse embryos develop as males by injecting a gene, offering new evidence the gene is the "sex trigger" that determines gender.

JERUSALEM - Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh comes to Israel as the highest-ranking Soviet official ever to visit, but there is little of the fanfare usually drummed up for such occasions.

MONROVIA, Liberia - The dark streets of the Liberian capital, lit only by small cooking fires set up in bombed-out buildings, now boom with the rap of discos offering an evening of escape from 16 months of slaughter.

Texas

WASHINGTON - Eight Texas Democrats have bucked the National Rifle Association and voted to require a seven-day waiting period for handgun buyers.

NEW YORK - The Food and Drug Administration is getting tough with food companies that it says have no right to label their products "fresh." "I think the companies had better be pretty frightened now of any deception," said Steve Gardner, Texas assistant attorney general. "It's open season."

Moderates cause rift in church

Fourth in a series
 By DEBBIE NEWBY
 Associated Press Writer
 ATLANTA (AP) - Moderates in the Southern Baptist Convention are caught between two powerful emotions: their dismay at the church's fundamentalist bent and their sense of tradition and religion.

Against that backdrop, many may decide soon whether to stay or to walk away.

"It may be a split. We don't know yet," said the Rev. William Self, former pastor of the 5,400-member Wieuca Road Baptist Church in Atlanta and a leading voice in the moderate movement.

On one hand, moderates argue Baptist doctrine is being trampled by fundamentalists. Moderates say Baptists should be allowed to interpret the Bible for themselves. The fundamentalists, with steadily increasing control of money and jobs, are favoring Baptists who believe every word of the Bible is literally true.

On the other hand, moderates have regarded their very souls as Southern Baptist.

"How do you give up your family?" Self asked. "My heritage was Baptist. It's like being torn away from your mother and dad."

Last year, about 2,500 moderates established a new funding plan, the Baptist Cooperative Mission Program. The goal was to withhold money from the SBC, based in Nashville, Tenn., and dominated by fundamentalists since 1979.

Moderates report collecting $1 million for the new fund, but the contributions are evidence of moderates' mixed emotions. The pastor of Dunwoody Baptist Church in Atlanta, the Rev. Daniel Vestal, is head of a moderate steering committee, but his church has not yet diverted money from the SBC.

The Rev. James Pleitz, pastor of the 8,000-member Park Cities Baptist Church in Dallas, said, "We are refraining from giving to some of the seminaries that are being taken over by the fundamentalists. But the mission programs, the Home Mission Board and the Foreign Mission Board and all the work here in Texas, we're just as supportive as we've always been."

So there is no clear plan of action as the moderates prepare to gather in Atlanta Thursday to organize the Baptist Fellowship. They deny the fellowship is the embryo of a new denomination, but Self said many of the 12,000 Southern Baptists expected to attend may skip the SBC's annual convention in Atlanta in June.

"I'm sure some of them are (attending the SBC convention), but I sure can't find anybody who is," Self said. "I think, in general, basically our group is meeting in May and their group is meeting in June." Promotional literature on the three-day meeting tells Baptists, "Don't be afraid of the future. Don't try to hold on to a past that will never return."

"We're not angry, we're not fighting, we're just trying to serve Christ," Vestal said. "I don't think that a split defines what is happening. We're going to give hope to some people who have been shut out of the decision-making process for 12 years."

Hope may be measured in dollars. Vestal said the new moderate fund may reach $4 million to $5 million by year's end. Meanwhile, the SBC reported donations to its central budget for seminaries and missions increased 2.4 percent in 1990 to a record $140.7 million.

"I would pay attention to somebody who took $5 million from my budget," said Self, now president of the Stoneworth Group, an Atlanta-based company that provides financial services for ministers, churches and non-profit organizations.

"I believe there will be an honest effort to try to starve the convention financially," Self said. "I think they can starve it. The economic situation is pretty lean and (Baptist) institutions are pretty hungry. We have 6,000 missionaries at home and abroad."

If the moderate approach sounds political, rather than religious, they argue it was the fundamentalists who first used power plays while proclaiming allegiance to the Bible. "The Bible is a smoke screen," said Self, who was the losing candidate for SBC president when the conservatives' drive to power began in 1979. "It's a struggle over the power and control of the world's largest non-Catholic denomination. But they get at it by talking about the Bible and using hot-button issues like abortion and women's rights. That's the way to stampede a denomination."

Vestal said he believes the Bible is literally true. He said most Baptists, moderate or fundamentalist, are theologically conservative.

"The only reason I was willing to identify politically with the moderates was again to try to be a reconciler. But that failed," said Vestal, who was defeated for SBC president at conventions in Las Vegas in 1989 and again in New Orleans last summer.

The Rev. Charles Wade, pastor of the 7,100-member First Baptist Church in Arlington, Texas, said, "To be candid, there are people in the fundamentalist side of the house who would like for all of us to just leave."

"It's just like a divorce," said the Rev. Jody Wright, a moderate and assistant minister at First Baptist Church in Savannah, Ga. "When a marriage that is based on trust and cooperation is broken, it's a sad thing."

Nancy Ammerman, professor of sociology of religion at Emory University's Candler School of Theology, said a split would ask moderates "to leave behind a great deal about who they think themselves to be."

"They have felt proud to say they belong to the largest Protestant denomination in the country. They have gloried in a huge mission that formed a badge of pride," she said.

Webster boosted CIA morale

WASHINGTON (AP) - Over at Langley, he's known as Mild Bill. But the moniker is not meant to be unkind, for CIA Director William Webster is well liked, a straight arrow who has brought the intelligence agency much-needed reassurance and balance during troubling times.

In a town where reputations are tarnished easily, Webster, a former judge and FBI director, earned distinction for his trouble-shooting skills, his ability to root out misconduct in government and fix it without making too many people angry.

His successor, however, will need to be able to plot the course of the U.S. intelligence community on a new world map drawn by the demise of communism and the rise of well-armed Third World powers.

President Bush announced the 67-year-old Webster's retirement Wednesday. No date was set for his last day.

CIA insiders say Bush has wanted to replace him with someone who can craft the nation's intelligence mission to fit U.S. needs in a quickly changing world.

Robert Gates, currently President Bush's deputy national security adviser and the former No. 2 man at the CIA under the late William Casey, is one of two front-runners on a short list known to administration and congressional officials.

The other is James Lilley, a former CIA case officer and friend of the president's who is ending his job as ambassador to China this week.

Gates was nominated for the CIA job in 1987 by President Reagan but withdrew his name in the face of questions about his role in the Iran-Contra arms and money scandal. However, many members of the Senate Intelligence Committee say they would recommend the 25-year agency veteran for the post if he's picked.

Gates would have Webster's backing, insiders say.

Webster's detractors say he was almost too straight for an agency whose role is often synonymous with dirty deeds. He has also been faulted for lacking the ideas needed to adapt the intelligence community to a changing world.

But there's broad agreement that Webster did exactly what he was asked to do by Reagan when he was handed control of the CIA four years ago.

Webster inherited an agency shaken by accusations that Casey broke the law in the Iran-Contra affair and lied about it to Congress.

"There was a perception in the agency that the CIA was the whipping boy over the Iran-Contra affair," said Vincent Cannistraro, who served as the CIA's counterterrorism chief until last summer.

Not only did Webster restore morale, he greatly eased tensions with Congress by reporting and consulting regularly with the intelligence committees on Capitol Hill.

Casey "basically didn't like oversight and resisted it in a way that Bill Webster did not and does not," said Sen. William Cohen of Maine, the senior Republican on the Senate Intelligence Committee.

Webster, a former U.S. attorney and federal appellate judge in St. Louis, has a firm grounding in the law that made him an invaluable asset in cleaning up the FBI and CIA.

His reputation was such that Jimmy Carter picked him to head the FBI in 1978, even though he was a Republican.

In nine years at the helm, Webster instituted tough rules against misconduct that earned him bipartisan respect in Congress.

At the CIA, too, one of Webster's first tasks was to discipline those who were accused of aiding in the Iran-Contra affair.

Webster intends to go into private legal practice.

willing to devote time and effort to the place in which they live. But these willing workers need to pool their efforts and work together, and the Chamber is one place where they can get involved.

Of course, not everybody wants to work for nothing. In every community there are critics who sit back and complain why "they" don't do something about certain shortcomings. Others pitch in and help, without expecting rewards or special recognition, and these are the kind of folks you'll find working within the committees or on the board of the Chamber.

Contributions made by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce are taken for granted by a large portion of the population. The complainers will tell you "the Chamber doesn't do anything for me," while those who work on projects can feel rewarded for helping make a difference in the community.

The Chamber can make an even greater contribution with more paying dues members and more involvement. Citizens who want to be a part of the solution might consider joining the chamber during the special membership drive next week.

Residents attend convention

Rosemary Parks and Cyndi Walker, owners of the Merle Norman Studio in Hereford joined more than 2,000 other studio owners at the 60th annual Merle Norman Convention at the Opryland Hotel in Nashville, Tenn., May 1-3.

"Simply the Best" was the theme for the '91 convention which was sponsored by Merle Norman Cosmetics headquarters in Los Angeles, Calif. The three-day event featured all the latest news about beauty, fashion and cosmetics and included an array of exhibits, workshops, mini-seminars, new product presentations and speeches.

The convention closed with a formal banquet which featured singer and songwriter Neil Sedaka.

Spring time for home improvement

At any time of the year, cleaning up the house can mean cleaning up on savings.

Some homeowners have learned how to benefit from their cleaning projects by making energy saving improvements that will help to save money year-round on home fuel bills.

-Insulate your home's attic-adding extra insulation can help reduce the amount of energy you use to cool your home in the summer and heat it next winter.

-Weatherize. Air leaks can account for up to 30 percent of a home's wasted energy.

-Replace any incandescent light bulbs with fluorescent bulbs, which convert electricity to visible light up to five times more efficiently and last as much as 20 times longer.

There's no better time to improve your home, especially when you can profit in the long run through energy savings.

Sheep will not drink from running water.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope it's not too late to respond to "Southern California Mom" whose 17-year-old son is being pressured by girls to have sex.

In the state of California, it is against the law for a 17-year-old boy to engage in sexual relations with a minor. He can be prosecuted under Penal Code No. 261.5, which prohibits "unlawful sexual intercourse with a minor female under 18." If the girl is under 14, he can also be charged with a felony -- "performing a lewd act on a female."

In both cases the boy can be a minor and still be prosecuted, but NOT the female, even if she is a willing participant and the aggressor. The maximum penalty is three years in jail on the first count and eight on the second.

My son is setting in Juvenile Hall as I write this letter. I believe most parents and teens are unaware that this law exists. It is the responsibility of all parents to make sure their teenage children know about this law and are informed on contraception, sexually transmitted diseases (especially AIDS) and safe sex.

When this incident occurred, my son was 15, and the girl was one month sort of 14. She waited five or six weeks before filing the complaint. We feel certain that she filed because he started to date another girl and she was seeking revenge.

I hope you will print this letter, Ann. I wish our son had seen one like it two years ago. No name, please. Just -- Concerned Bay Area Parents

DEAR CONCERNED BAY AREA PARENTS: We checked with the Alameda County District Attorney's Office and learned that those laws were designed to protect children from adult or teen-age molesters.

Generally when the sex was agreed upon the boy is not charged, but since the girl in this case was under 14, she was considered too young to make an informed decision. Chances are that your son will not be sent to jail but will receive counseling and be required to do volunteer work.

I'm glad you wrote. Your letter and my response will let the teenagers of California know what the law says.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your latest zipper story made me laugh out loud. It also reminded me of another zipper story that I would like to share. This happened to a friend of mine in Chicago.

While riding the bus to work, my friend glanced at the man seated opposite her. He was reading a newspaper. Suddenly she noticed the man's zipper was open and the gap was most embarrassing. She managed to get his attention when he turned a page. Using gestures, she directed his attention to the problem. The man was horrified and set about to close the gap at once.

The very moment he yanked up his zipper, the bus lurched and the woman seated next to him flipped the tail of her fox fur over her shoulder. The fur got stuck in the man's zipper and they were hopelessly entangled.

The woman, furious and not at all accepting of the man's apologies, suddenly yelled, "This is my stop!" She got up to leave and of course, the man had to get off the bus with her. The last my friend saw of this ill-fated couple was the two of them on the street corner, struggling to get free from one another -- Vera R., Hemet, Calif.

DEAR VERA: Thanks for a hilarious story. That's enough to make a man want to go back to buttons.

A bridal shower was held for Kamille Martin, June 7 bride-elect of Chris Urbanczyk, Sunday in the home of Janice Conkwright. Greeting guests with the honoree were, from left, the prospective bridegroom's mother, Loretta Urbanczyk; the honoree; the honoree's mother, Betty Martin; and grandmother of the honoree, Louise Ferguson.

Bridal shower held for Kamille Martin

Kamille Martin was honored with a bridal shower Sunday in the home of Janice Conkwright. The honoree and Chris Urbanczyk plan to exchange wedding vows June 7 at St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Welcoming guests with Miss Martin were her mother, Betty Martin; the prospective bridegroom's mother, Loretta Urbanczyk; the honoree's grandmother, Louise Ferguson; the honoree's sister, Kim Martin of Houston; and Janice Conkwright.

The bride-elect's cousin, J.J. Hill, and Farron Avery registered guests. The prospective bridegroom's sister, Lori Urbanczyk, and the bride-elect's cousin, D'Ann Hill, served refreshments of assorted cookies, fresh fruits, fruit Ka-Bobs, cheese balls, crackers and peach party punch. The table was covered with an ecru inlaid lace cloth overlaying an emerald green satin cloth. It was adorned by an arrangement of Sonja roses, daylilies and baby's breath in a brass compote with ecru lace draped around the vase. Also, decorating the table were crystal appointments.

The shower honoree was presented a food preparer by hostesses: Gladys Merritt, Carol Gerk, Dolores McCuistian, Janice Conkwright, Ann Meyer, Carolyn Baxter, Gwen Hacker, Nancy Paetzold, Reta Reinart, Judy Detten, Jeri Bezner, Sue Sims, Carol Sue LeGate, Kathy Allison, Joyce Allred, Oleta Diller, Mary Beth White, Sue Powell, Elizabeth Vogel, Betty Kalka, Linda Block, Gay Roberts, Karen Payne, Judy Williams, Lucy Rogers, Gail Binder, Carolyn Clark, Tenna Reinauer, Joan Latham, and Marline Watson.

Q. What is the best way to remove bumper stickers without damaging the car? I can't enjoy a bumper sticker without worrying about the horrors that will be left behind when it at last comes off. — Kassie Halpin, Fresno, Calif.

A. Try using your trusty blow-dryer. If you heat the sticker well, you should be able to lift the corner with a sharp knife and peel it off. Be careful not to scratch the bumper!

If you can't get it all, repeat the process.

When you put new stickers on, only remove a 2-inch strip of the backing from around the edges and leave the center intact. Removing it will be easy — split the center and pull it off. — Heloise

Now You're Cooking

BY KAY CRISMON
Staff Writer

She has the spirit of a 20-year-old; the gait of an energetic teenager; and the motivation that belies her age, 86. Chronologically, Gladys Setliff is an octogenarian but her attitude and eagerness to embrace life are envied by persons half her age or younger. Not content to sit idly, Miss Setliff, who retired from the teaching profession, is an active member of Central Church of Christ, Hereford Study Club, Retired Teachers Association, Hereford Senior Citizen Association, and is a volunteer at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage and for the local literacy program.

Miss Setliff was born in August 1904 in Chapel Hill, Ark. and moved to Oklahoma when she was six. Following her graduation from high school in Eldorado, Okla., she attended Oklahoma University, Colorado University, and Texas Tech University.

Her teaching career began in 1924 in Oklahoma where she taught school and served as principal of a grade school and junior high school. From Oklahoma, she taught in Montana and then was selected as an exchange teacher to England.

"After 32 years of teaching, I thought I was prepared to retire," she said. "Instead I moved to Hereford and taught 11 years in the Hereford schools and three years at Walcott

Miss Setliff had always been innovative in her teaching techniques and tried to keep her students excited and interested while learning. When she was instructing fifth grade students at Walcott, she devised a plan to get the children actively involved in a project to prepare for an open house. She purchased yards of fabric and told each student to select a small "square" and decorate it with a favorite drawing so that their parents could see their artwork.

The students painted pictures of the sun, flowers, animals, homes and other favorite things before signing their names to their creations. The children were unaware that their teacher would not just display their work on a long display table but would sew a dress from it and model it during parents' night.

While teaching at Northwest Elementary School, Miss Setliff wanted her students to understand the process of making charcoal. They put wood in a can punched with holes and placed it on a hot oven to "cook" for hours. She and her class were not aware of the odor escaping from the room and waiting down the halls of the building. Miss Setliff explained, "Principal Charles Duvall became frantic when he thought his building was burning. He traced the smell to my classroom and after discovering the origin of the smoke decided it was not necessary to call the fire department. After the excitement had died down, the children drew their charcoal pictures."

Miss Setliff loves to sew and explained, "When I was younger I had red hair and had made myself a linen tan dress (to compliment my hair) and monogrammed the front of it. I liked everything about the dress. I was asked, 'Where are you going to wear it?' I replied, 'Everywhere!' I had the opportunity many years later to model the dress at one of the meetings of the Hereford Study Club.

"I have sewn many of my clothes. I had the best teacher of all, my mother," she added, noting that her mother would see a picture in the Sears Catalog and would sit down and make it.

One of Miss Setliff's favorite hobbies is reading. "My mother used to tell me I'd sit and read even if the house was on fire. I just get great enjoyment from reading and learning new things. A person is never too young or too old for new experiences."

She has done a "little dabbling" painting pictures in various media but her "first big painting job" occurred when she was 60 years of age when she moved into her present home at 202 Sunset Drive. "Each wall was painted a dark color, so I'd paint one room at a time," she said.

"Although it's very satisfying to stay at home, I also love to travel and have been to 11 European countries, Hawaii, Alaska, Canada, and Cuba. I have many fond memories of my excursions.

"I like to cook but I'm certainly not the wonderful cook my mother was because I have never had to prepare three nutritious meals a day. I do bake my own bread and cook for myself and when the occasion arises I cook for other people. I guess my favorite recipe is one a friend gave me many years ago. It is called Uncooked Cake."

UNCOOKED CAKE

Cream 1/4 lb. butter, 1 1/2 c. sugar then add 3 egg yolks beaten. Stir in 1 small can grated pineapple and 1 can chopped nut meats. Line pan with oiled paper. Spread a layer of vanilla wafers first, then pineapple mixture—alternating until mixture is used. Put a layer of the wafers on top. Pack by weighing with heavy object such as smoothing iron and set in cold place for 24 hours.

LEMON ICE BOX PUDDING

1 1/2 cup vanilla wafer crumbs
1 envelope gelatin in 1/2 c. cold water

4 eggs (separated)
Beat 1/2 cup sugar in yolks, juice and grated rind of 1 lemon and 3 tsp. butter. Cook in double boiler until thick. Stir in gelatin while hot and set aside to cool.

Beat egg whites, add 1/2 cup sugar and fold into mixture.
Whip 1/2 pt. whipping cream and fold into mixture.

Line pan with wafer crumbs, pour mixture into pan, sprinkle wafer crumbs over top. Do not use tin pan.

Hobbies vary

Miss Gladys Setliff has always found time for numerous hobbies even when she was busy teaching school. She is still very active in the community but finds time for quilting and painting. In the photo at right, she displays a dress she made from material that her former students designed.

Helping new grads

After the excesses of the 80s, the 90s look sober and sensible. More than ever, young people starting out today need an edge.

For over 10 years, Felice Willat, co-founder and vice president of Consumers Affairs for Day Runner, Inc., has been helping people deal with a challenging world. Here are her tips on how you can assist that new grad in your life.

An attention-getting resume. Many photocopy shops offer laser typesetting. For writing help, ask the shop for a referral or take a look at their bulletin board. Costs vary, with typesetting and reproduction averaging about $50.

A briefcase. Leather, of course. Stay away from metal versions and unusual colors. Include a pad holder so your grad can look professional while taking notes. Plan to spend $100 and up for the works.

A good personal organizer. This is more than a calendar and a phone book. A good one has pages for tracking objectives, contacts and expenses and includes a brief introduction to time management. Cost? Less than $50 to over $100.

A great first impression. Why not boost self-confidence by treating your favorite grad to an interview outfit? Stick to classic cuts and colors. But stay current; Men's ties are wider now and women's skirts are shorter.

An ear. Most important of all is your support: Non-judgmental listening, advice when it's asked for, faith and love. Cost? Nothing. Value? Priceless.

The pizza pies have it

It's been a long day at work; you're tired and you're hungry. You: A. Crawl into bed with an old copy of Moby Dick. B. Do a few sit-ups and fix a four-course meal. C. Dial out for pizza delivery?"

If you picked "C," you are not alone. Pizza is an American favorite, as much a part of the culinary culture as hot dogs and apple pie. Connoisseurs across the country prize the pizza pie, and are rapturous over the convenience of home delivery.

When do most of those deliveries take place? Seven p.m. is the magic hour, with Friday and Saturday as prime pizza eating days. Most pizza orders are placed by women.

What will most pizza lovers have on that pie: Fresh vegetables? Small, salty fish? Pepperoni? The little rounds of spicy sausage are America's favorite pizza topping. An average of 42 slices of pepperoni make their way into American homes atop each delivered Pizza Hut pie.

When placing their orders, pizza lovers say cheese. Pizza wouldn't be pizza without plenty of creamy, bubbly mozzarella cheese. The nation's largest user of mozzarella, Pizza Hut uses 200 million pounds each year. More than 120,000 cows produce the necessary 200 billion pounds of milk—a portion of which the company "hoofs" into American homes. The pizza delivery company also uses 80 million pounds of tomatoes each year and 350 million pounds of flour.

The company's pies-voted American's favorite for seven years in a row—are the reason many Americans are switching to Pizza Hut Delivery. The delivery people range in age from 18 to 80.

Retreading—putting new treads on worn tires—is a rapidly growing industry.

Castillo out for state wins

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Unlike any of the other girls from Hereford who are going to state tournaments this week, Teresa Castillo has competed in Austin before.

After trips for band, cross country and track, Castillo has participated in several state competitions. She knows the Austin area well enough that Martha Emerson, her coach, can explain to her which motel they're staying in by telling her which other motels are nearby. She even remembers how to drive to Austin, she said.

So maybe butterflies shouldn't be much of a problem when she runs the 1,600- and the 3,200-meter races Friday at the State 4A Track Meet in Austin. Then again, for band and cross country she was one of many, and her one trip for track was as a member of a relay team. Now, for the first time, she's by herself.

"It's scary," Castillo said. Still, Castillo has a chance to get a medal in both races, Emerson said. She has been improving her time every time she runs either event.

"She's improved the mile every time she's run it this year," Emerson said, "and the two-mile the last few weeks."

There are two problems which could keep Castillo from improving again in both races. The first is the extra heat and humidity she'll encounter in Austin, but she's been there before and has an idea of what to expect. "Plus I'll be running kind of late," she said.

The other potential problem is that both her races are on the same day. She'll run the 3,200 at 6:15 p.m. Friday, then she'll have very little time to rest before the 1,600 starts at 9:35. For some, running two distance races in a short period of time would be too much. Will it cause any problems for Castillo?

"It probably won't," Castillo said, "but I wish I was running one Friday and one Saturday."

Emerson added that many of the girls Castillo would be running against would also be running in both events, so they'll have to deal with it, too.

Emerson said she doesn't know much about most of the girls Teresa will be going against—except for their times, and those aren't much to go on.

"You can look at their times—how people have done all year—but this time of year you throw all that out the window," Emerson said.

"Sometimes it's how bad you want it," Emerson said. "Teresa's going to dig down deep, and if it's there, she's going to find it."

"I've coached Teresa long enough to know she'll give it her best shot—and a little more."

Castillo said she has definite plans for a victory celebration when she comes home.

"Because I am coming home with two medals," she said.

Castillo ready to run

Hereford's Teresa Castillo, left, pictured with Coach Martha Emerson, will run in the State 4A Track Meet in Austin Friday.

Unlikely trio gives Warriors win

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Magic Johnson and Chris Mullin played the starring roles before an unlikely trio decided the outcome in favor of the underdog Golden State Warriors.

Los Angeles Lakers rookie Elden Campbell committed two devastating fouls in the final 28 seconds and Rod Higgins and Mario Elie took advantage of them as the Warriors rallied for a 125-124 victory Wednesday night.

Now, the second-round series moves to Oakland for games Friday night and Sunday afternoon. The Warriors, seventh-seeded in the Western Conference, now have the homecourt advantage over the third-seeded Lakers by splitting the first two games at the Forum.

"We'll be back, we'll play, we've been here so many times. We know how to play on the road," Johnson said after scoring a playoff career-high 44 points in defeat.

The Warriors won despite being outrebounded 49-28, but the rebounds by Higgins and Elie were the most important ones in the game.

Although Campbell hadn't been used much during the regular season and in the Lakers' first-round victory over Houston, he played the entire fourth quarter Wednesday night.

"I used him because of his presence," Lakers coach Mike Dunleavy said. "He rebounded well and intimidated others. If I had to do it all over again, I would leave him in the game."

Campbell made significant contributions before committing the two fouls.

"It was a wonderful win for us," Warriors coach Don Nelson said. "(But) you have to win four games to win the series."

"I don't know if we can win the series, but you have to win one to get started. We knew we had to win one here, and I think we will have to win more than one here."

The Warriors-Lakers game was the only NBA playoff action Wednesday. Detroit, leading 1-0, was at Boston in an afternoon game today, and Utah is at Portland tonight with the Trail Blazers leading 1-0.

Chicago, ahead 2-0, is at Philadelphia on Friday night.

The Warriors are fresh off an upset victory over second-seeded San Antonio in the first round, when they also lost the opener before winning the series 3-1.

The victory broke an 11-game playoff losing streak at the Forum, where the Warriors hadn't won in the postseason since 1969.

Mullin, who missed Game 1 of the series with an injured right knee, matched his career playoff-high with 41 points. He was 16-for-21 from the floor and perfect on his four attempts from 3-point range.

Mullin said he wasn't surprised he had a big game.

"When the pain was gone (during pregame warmups), I knew I'd have a good night," he said. "You get into a rhythm and it just gets better and better. It's hard to stop anybody when you're that hot. The main thing to me was that I felt good physically."

Elie, who was cut by the Lakers in training camp last fall and spent much of the year in the Continental Basketball Association, said he expected to make the winning foul shots.

"I feel my free-throw shooting is the best part of my game," he said. "I work hard at it."

Tim Hardaway had 28 points, 14 assists and eight steals while Mitch Richmond scored 22 points before fouling out with 7:01 remaining.

Sam Perkins had 24 points and James Worthy had 23 for the Lakers, but Worthy was held to three points in the second half. Johnson had 12 rebounds and nine assists to go with his 44 points.

Top senior golfers to play in Frisco

FRISCO, Texas (AP) - Lee Trevino, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Arnold Palmer highlight a solid field for the 54-hole Murata Reunion Pro-Am which begins Friday at Stonebriar Country Club.

Seven of the top 10 senior tour money leaders and 27 of the top 29 in career earnings will be on hand for the 54-hole event. Jack Nicklaus will miss the event as he takes time off in Florida and Gary Player didn't enter.

Defending champion Frank Beard's victory last year was an emotional one. He hadn't won a professional tournament since 1971 but finished with a two-shot victory over Walter Zembriski.

"It was one of my biggest thrills in golf to come back and win one after so long a time," Beard said.

Palmer, 61, hasn't played here since 1987 when he tied for 19th. He will team with Dick Ferris in the pro-am division.

"Palmer's commitment means a lot," said tournament founder Joe Denton. "He gives us some credibility. The gallery just loves him."

Some 25,000 tickets have been sold for the event.

Trevino will be making his first senior appearance in Dallas where he learned to play the game at Hardee's pitch-and-putt, sometimes using a soft drink bottle to play the little par-3 course on the grounds.

"Lee coming back home also helped," Denton said. "People in Dallas always like to follow him. He has a lot of friends in the area. He is always a big draw."

Trevino said he looked forward to playing.

"I just hope I can get some sleep," he said. "I've got a lot of golfing buddies here."

Rodriguez if a former Reunion champion and has won three times on the tour this year. In 1987, Rodriguez shot 65 in the final round to win at Bent Tree County Club.

Rodriguez won last week in the Las Vegas Senior Classic.

The Super Senior division will feature a duel between two old Texas buddies, Don January and Miller Barber, who turned 60 on March 31 and is eligible for the older division. January has won 13 Super Senior division tournaments in just a year and half.

The Pro-Am format is similar to the one used at the AT&T Pebble Beach tournament with daily cuts being made.

GOLF

One team was 7-under par and two teams were 8-under in the nine-hole Wednesday Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course Wednesday evening.

Tommy Weaver, Pat Goforth, R.L. Blakely and Earl Stagner carded a 28 to win the weekly event.

Two teams recorded 29s. One was composed of Ken Roberts, Jesse Hernandez, Joe Brown and Dee Hamilton, while the other team was a threesome of N.D. Kelso, Vink Miller and Avis Blakey.

The weekly scramble is open to all interested golfers. Signup begins each Wednesday evening at the end of play. Teams are selected by the golf pro on basis of handicaps.

Clemens bests Twins to stay unbeaten

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Roger Clemens was on, Nolan Ryan was off and Dave Stewart was out.

Clemens stayed unbeaten and almost unhittable, winning his sixth straight start as Boston beat Minnesota 8-3 Wednesday night.

Ryan lost his bid to match Johnny Vander Meer's feat of consecutive no-hitters in the third inning, and was the loser as Toronto topped Texas 4-2.

"The other night was one of those special nights," Ryan said. "What you compare is the command of your pitches. I didn't have the command tonight. I lost it in the third and was never consistent after that."

Stewart, meanwhile, did not get a decision. He left in the second inning of Oakland's 9-3 victory over Baltimore with a strained left rib cage and may be sidelined for at least a week. He has made 166 straight starts for the Athletics and never been on the disabled list in his 10-year career.

"There's reason to be concerned," Stewart said. "People who've had this same injury, sometimes it takes two or three weeks to get better."

Blue Jays 4, Rangers 2

Roberto Alomar tripled home two runs with one out in the third inning for the first hit off Ryan. Joe Carter followed with a double for a 3-0 lead.

Ryan (3-3) only gave up those two hits in six innings. He struck out six, but walked five batters and hit another.

Vander Meer is the only pitcher with consecutive no-hitters in the majors, doing it in 1938 with Cincinnati. Ryan has tried seven times to tie him.

Todd Stottlemyre (4-0) allowed two runs on five hits in 7-2-3 innings. Duane Ward finished for his eighth save.

Athletics 9, Orioles 3

Mark McGwire hit a pair of three-run homers for a career-high six RBIs as Oakland swept the two-game series from Baltimore.

McGwire connected in the first and fifth innings. Rickey Henderson also homered for the Athletics.

Curt Young (1-0) pitched 3 2-3 scoreless innings for the victory. Mike Flanagan (0-1) lost in his first start since May 4, 1990. Flanagan was 11-1 at Oakland before giving up five runs on seven hits in four-plus innings.

White Sox 2, Brewers 1

Ozzie Guillen's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning lifted Jack McDowell and the White Sox over Milwaukee.

Dan Pasqua singled with one out in the ninth against Jaime Navarro (2-1) and pinch runner Joey Cora stole second. Frank Thomas was intentionally walked and Sammy Sosa walked on a 3-2 pitch before Guillen hit a fly ball to center field.

McDowell (5-2) gave up seven hits, including Greg Vaughn's seventh home run, in his third complete game.

Mariners 6, Indians 2

Edgar Martinez hit a two-run homer as the streaky Mariners won their fifth straight game.

The Mariners lost their first six games of the season, won the next eight, then lost five in a row.

Brian Holman (3-3) allowed one run on seven hits in six innings. Charles Nagy (1-2) was the loser.

Yankees 10, Angels 5

Roberto Kelly hit a two-run homer and Mel Hall hit a three-run homer as New York broke loose in the third inning against Kirk McCaskill (2-4).

Hall added two singles and Kevin Maas went 4-for-4 with two doubles and three runs scored.

Scott Sanderson (3-1) gave up four runs on nine hits and two walks in five innings.

Tigers 7, Royals 3

Lloyd Moseby, activated from the disabled list earlier in the day, got three hits and scored twice as Detroit won at home.

Moseby and Milt Cuyler hit RBI singles in the second inning. Moseby tripled and scored on Travis Fryman's single in the third off Storm Davis (2-3).

Frank Tanana (2-2) left in the sixth inning with a slightly pulled right hamstring.

Cox makes good on comeback with Phillies

By The Associated Press

While Orel Hershiser was starting his comeback from injury in the minors, Danny Cox was quietly reaching a milestone in his own rehabilitation battle.

Cox, who missed all of 1989 and pitched in the minors last season until going on the disabled list on June 19, allowed five hits and two runs in six innings Wednesday night as Philadelphia defeated San Diego 5-2.

It was Cox's first major league victory since July 21, 1988, the same year Hershiser won the Cy Young award. Hershiser pitched five shutout innings in a minor league game at Bakersfield, Calif.

"The last time I got a win, Reagan was president," Cox said. "It has been a while. It's a good feeling."

Cox was 18-9 for St. Louis in 1985, but his career has been on hold since March 31, 1989, when he had a ligament transplant in his right elbow.

Ricky Jordan gave Cox the victory with a sixth-inning grand slam against Padres starter Andy Benes (0-4).

Cox (1-1) walked four and struck out two in six innings before Roger McDowell pitched three hitless innings for the save.

"I felt like I struggled," Cox said. "I didn't have the greatest location in the world. I walked four in six innings. That's too many walks."

Pirates 7, Reds 2

Pittsburgh completed a sweep of the three-game series at home in a battle of defending division champions.

Jay Bell hit a two-run inside-the-park homer and Zane

Smith (4-1) allowed four hits in eight innings for the Pirates, who outscored the Reds 17-5 in the series.

Pittsburgh jumped on Norm Charlton (1-3) for a 3-1 lead in the first on Barry Bonds' two-out RBI single and Don Slaught's two-run double.

Bell made it 5-1 in the second, following Gary Redus' leadoff single with a sinking liner that rolled to the outfield wall after Paul O'Neill couldn't make a diving catch.

Dodgers 3, Mets 1

New York manager Bud Harrelson opted to face Juan Samuel instead of Darryl Strawberry with the score tied 1-1 in the eighth, and Samuel's two-run single won the game for Los Angeles at Shea Stadium.

Ramon Martinez (5-1) gave up one run and four hits in seven innings for the Dodgers before Jay Howell finished for his third save.

Martinez, who had a streak of three straight complete games snapped, has allowed one earned run in his last 34 innings. He beat the Mets for the first time in four career decisions.

Braves 17, Cardinals 1

At Atlanta, the Braves routed St. Louis as Ron Gant snapped out of a slump with a homer, double and three RBIs.

Tom Glavine (4-2) extended the Cardinals' longest losing streak of the season to four games while Atlanta won for the fifth time in six games.

Gant, who had not had a hit in 15 at-bats, homered in the first inning off Ken Hill (2-2), giving the Braves a 2-0 lead. In the third, Gant doubled in another run and later scored on Sid Bream's groundout.

Astros 4, Cubs 2

Houston avoided a three-game sweep at home as rookie Luis Gonzalez drove in three runs with a double and a triple against Chicago.

Pete Harnisch (2-1) gave up two runs and six hits in seven innings for the victory, but his NL-leading earned run average went up from 1.07 to 1.33. Curt Schilling, who came to the Astros with Harnisch in the Glenn Davis deal, pitched the last two innings for his fifth save.

Shawn Boskie (2-3) was the loser, allowing four runs on six hits in six innings.

Expos 5, Giants 4

Ivan Calderon's fourth hit of the game, a solo homer in the seventh inning, broke a tie and lifted Montreal past slumping San Francisco.

Calderon's fifth homer of the season came off reliever Francisco Oliveras (0-1) as the Expos completed a three-game sweep of the Giants and finished a homestand with a 6-2 record.

Barry Jones (1-0) pitched the seventh inning for the victory. Tim Burke worked two innings of hitless relief for his third save.

Hershiser on road back

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) - It was only five innings and only Class A, but for Orel Hershiser it was a major miracle.

A little more than a year ago, he was under the surgeon's knife, having his right shoulder rebuilt. He didn't know whether he'd pitch again, let alone when.

Now he knows. The Los Angeles Dodgers right-hander pitched five scoreless innings Wednesday night for the Bakersfield Dodgers in a 9-4 victory over the Reno Silver Sox.

"There's no bigger thrill for me to go out and get people out and be competitive," he said after allowing two hits, striking out two and walking none.

He threw 44 pitches - 32 strikes and 12 balls - in windy conditions, leaving the game with an 8-0 lead.

"I thought it was outstanding, really," he said. "It was a whole lot of fun. It's just unbelievable to feel the adrenaline pump again and be in a competitive situation."

The start was the first in a 30-day rehabilitation stint for the 32-year-old Hershiser, who underwent surgery April 27, 1990.

He said his shoulder felt fine afterwards, but Dodgers physical therapist Pat Screnar, who has been the pitcher's almost constant companion since the surgery, said the next 48 hours would be the most telling.

Hershiser's shoulder will be watched for signs of stiffness and soreness today. And the condition of his arm will be tested after four days.

Despite his optimism about his performance, the 1988 Cy Young Award winner said he still has a long way to go before returning to the majors. But he's now sure he will be back.

"It's going to take quite a few games for me to see a lot of situations," he said, adding he doesn't know when his next start will be.

Relying mostly on his sinker, Hershiser was pleased with his mechanics but said he didn't really get going until the second inning.

The physical part was relatively easy, but he said it took a while to feel comfortable with a crowd.

170,000, cozy Sam Lynn Park was the place to be Wednesday.

Fans brought lawn chairs and lined up several hours before the game started. The park, which seats about 3,500, held 4,048 people and team officials said between 2,000 and 3,000 more were turned away at the gate.

The crowd greeted Hershiser with shouts of "Orel, Orel" and cheered every out loudly. But the pitcher avoided both the fans and a throng of Los Angeles-based media before the game.

Hershiser last played in Class A in 1979, when he went 4-0 with Clinton of the Midwest League.

He last pitched on April 25, 1990, leaving in the seventh inning complaining of shoulder pain. Tests found damage to his right rotator cuff, and two days later he underwent surgery to rebuild the anterior capsule and inner labrum of his shoulder.

In 1988, when Hershiser pitched a record-breaking 59 scoreless innings and led the Dodgers to the world championship, he was 23-8 with a 2.26 ERA.

Hershiser's excitement was obvious as he gushed praise for Dr. Frank Jobe, who put his shoulder back together, and Screnar. But he was happiest for himself.

"It was an emotional evening," he said, "but it's going to be even more emotional when I do it in the big leagues."

Loss of baby very traumatic experience

The death of a baby is a sad and painful occurrence. If you have lost a baby either during pregnancy or following birth, you've probably experienced feelings of intense grief. This grieving is normal. It is a natural part of the healing process that will allow you eventually to cope with the loss.

Both expectant mothers and fathers develop bonds with an unborn baby or newborn infant that can be very strong. When this unborn or newborn child dies, parents feel a profound emptiness and sorrow that they must deal with in their own ways and at their own speeds.

Grieving for the death of a loved one typically follows a certain pattern. Usually the first reaction is shock and numbness. Parents may try to deny what has happened or they may experience a complete lack of feeling.

When the initial shock has passed, parents often begin to try to search for a reason for what has happened. Sometimes the woman feels guilty about the death, even though she is seldom to blame. Sometimes anger toward others—the doctor, her partner, or women with healthy babies, concurs.

Depression and loneliness usually set in next, a time when parents may feel tired, sad and helpless. Eventually, however, the parents begin to accept the loss and the baby's death no longer dominates their thoughts.

There are many individuals and support groups that can help you through these hard times, and you should not hesitate to turn to them. Talking to others about your pain can help you accept and understand what has happened.

You will have a number of important decisions to make after the death of the baby. For one, you will need to decide if you want to see your baby. Many bereaved parents say that seeing and touching their infant helped them realize the loss more fully and made it easier to let go of him or her.

You will also need to decide whether you want to keep any mementos of the child, a lock of hair, a footprint, or an ID bracelet. Parents often treasure these mementos later.

Another consideration will be whether or not to arrange a religious or memorial service. Some parents find great comfort in having family and friends acknowledge the life and death of the baby.

Losing a baby is a devastating event. It may take many months to be able to accept the loss. The hurt may never go away completely, but the grieving process will help you come to terms with the death and go on with your life.

LITCHFIELD, Conn. (AP) - Actress Susan St. James, her husband, NBC Sports President Dick Ebersol, and MTV creator Robert Pittman are among a group of local partners granted a permit to build an FM radio station here.

The Federal Communications Commission granted the permit May 1. The group still needs an operating permit for the station.

The station's music format won't be decided until after local residents are surveyed about their preferences, Ebersol said Wednesday.

Ebersol, who grew up in the area, said he has long dreamed of running a media outlet in his hometown.

Performance Friday

The public is invited free of charge to see the Jeremiah People perform a musical comedy play at 7 p.m. Friday at the First Church of the Nazarene, 1410 La Plata. The program, which the entire family will enjoy, deals with everyday problems and how they can be solved.

GREENEVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Oliver North is traveling the country selling bulletproof vests.

North, who is chairman of Guardian Technologies International, was mobbed by admirers when he arrived in this Tennessee town Wednesday to pitch his company's product to police officers from Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

North said he helped found Guardian Technologies three years ago after leaving the Marine Corps.

The retired lieutenant colonel was convicted in 1989 of aiding and abetting obstruction of Congress, destroying National Security Council documents and accepting an illegal gratuity in connection with the Iran-Contra scandal.

How to make those birthday celebrations inexpensive

In today's difficult economic climate, family budgets are tighter than ever. But though times should't prevent you from celebrating family birthdays. After all, birthdays only come once a year and are a "special" day in one's life.

Celebrating a birthday doesn't have to cost a lot of money and can be fun for the entire family. There are many things to do that are free and they aren't difficult to find. Following are some free birthday celebration ideas:

-Spend the day at the park and have a picnic lunch. This seemingly ordinary suggestion can become a real adventure if you use some imagination. Try to find a park with skate or bike rentals. And remember, during the summer months, many parks have festivals and concerts for the entire family to enjoy. A cookout at the park can be fun, too.

-Go to a museum, who says that birthdays can't be cultural and fun?

But don't limit yourself to art museums. Most cities offer many other types of exhibits such as science, history, baseball, rock 'n roll, etc. Check the arts and entertainment section of your local paper for special exhibitions as well.

-Take a family bicycle ride, exploring areas you have never seen before. Choose a route that is unfamiliar to the family so that it will be a real adventure. Try contacting the local parks and recreation department to get a map of bike routes in your area. It's exciting to see new place, plus it's great exercise too!

-Make popcorn and watch family movies and slides. A family film festival is a novel addition to a stay-at-home celebration and it helps build family history and tradition too. You might even consider a family version of "This is Your Life," complete with friends and relatives from the past.

Girl plays baseball in lieu of softball

By GREG SELBER
Harlingen Valley Morning Star
RAYMONDVILLE, Texas (AP) - You couldn't tell from looking at a box score or linescore. The name just reads: Sandoval, or C. Sandoval.

But at Raymondville High School, Sandoval, or C. Sandoval, is a definite big name on campus these days. It stands for a senior baseball player named Clara Sandoval, who is the only girl on a boys high school baseball team in the Rio Grande Valley.

She completed the season Tuesday, with two at-bats against Roma in Raymondville's season finale.

Baseball coach Carlos Moreno first became aware of Sandoval's talents while watching her play in the girls' summer softball wars. And teased her about playing for him.

"When are you coming out for our team?" Moreno recalls saying to her on several occasions when Sandoval was an underclassman. He was kidding at the time.

But, she unexpectedly showed up at Moreno's office early in the spring of this year.

"I was surprised at first, sure, everyone in the program was," admitted Moreno. "But soon we decided to give here an opportunity to prove herself."

For her part, Sandoval had given the idea a little thought as a freshman, but had not come close to pursuing the notion. However, as her senior basketball season ended, she decided to go for it.

"I figured why not, what did I have to lose?" reasoned Sandoval, a 15-point-per-game scorer for the girls' hoops team and one of the school's top all-around athletes. "It didn't take long for me to show that I had some skills, and after that the guys accepted me for the most part."

"Since I grew up with most of the guys, they knew me and didn't really get on my case too much."

Moreno said that "the guys" were a little wary at first, but then did an admirable job of adjustment and support.

Bearkat infielder Juan Posas, a senior who starred at linebacker on last season's football team, gave Sandoval his full endorsement.

"She can play, and after we saw that we didn't give her a hard time. Shoot, she is so good an athlete, she could have played some football if she wanted to," he laughed.

Sandoval, who is pursuing possible softball scholarship opportunities to Stephen F. Austin and Texas A&M, said that the hardest part of the whole affair was learning to deal with the speed of the pitching.

"I felt okay in the field and throwing," she said, "but for the first couple of weeks in the batting cages, I didn't even see the ball - it was that fast to me."

But, the 5-foot-8 outfielder got used to it, and in her 10 appearances during the year, she came through with some key plays.

A definite highlight came against Roma in the Sharyland Tournament early in the year. Sandoval strode to the plate facing a bases-loaded situation late in the game.

"The pitcher was looking at her, like, 'what do I do, can I throw it full speed?'...stuff like that," said Moreno.

The Roma pitcher went to work, and on his second pitch Sandoval slapped a clean, hard single into center field for two runs.

Both coach and player hope to use this successful crossover of Sandoval's to alert Valley officials to the lack of sufficient support for girls softball in the various high school systems.

There are no programs locally. "I would hope that other girls wouldn't be afraid to try and play baseball," said Sandoval. "But I would be more interested in a permanent girls' high school softball program."

Whether this happens or not remains to be seen. But, the steps that Clara Sandoval has taken at Raymondville make it clear that the name of Sandoval, or C. Sandoval, will reserve a special place in Valley sports history.

WLAF searches for new cities

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - The new World League of American Football has done so well in major cities that commissioner Mike Lynn says the spring league will try to put teams in at least two more big cities next season.

The decision will almost certainly mean that the WLAF will put one expansion team in a city that has an NFL team.

The additions would increase the number of WLAF teams to at least 12, and Lynn said there is a possibility that four teams might come aboard next season.

"We have decided we have overcome our major concern, which was the success of the league in major markets," Lynn said, noting the success of the WLAF's New York-New Jersey franchise as well as those in Montreal, London, Barcelona and Frankfurt. "That was the biggest obstacle we had to overcome."

Lynn said the league's board of directors would meet June 8 before the World Bowl in London to further discuss expansion and the list of potential team sites. He said he hoped the franchises could be awarded by September or October.

While Lynn refused to say specifically what cities were the leading contenders, he said the WLAF planned to choose cities in the top 15 metropolitan areas, either in the United States or Europe.

In the United States, 11 of the top 15 cities, according to the 1990 census - New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Houston, Philadelphia, San Diego, Detroit, Dallas, Phoenix, Indianapolis and San Francisco - already have NFL franchises, while San Antonio already has a WLAF team.

San Jose, Calif., Baltimore and Jacksonville, Fla., are the top 15 cities without NFL teams.

Lynn said people in Paris; Moscow; Helsinki, Finland; Stockholm, Sweden; Budapest, Hungary; Madrid and Seville, Spain; Manchester and Birmingham, England; Dublin, Ireland; Milan, Italy, and Rome have shown an interest in buying a WLAF franchise. He ruled out expansion to South America or Mexico this year.

"We want to go into the best cities, with the best ownership and the best chance of success," Lynn said.

The price of a WLAF franchise was $11 million when the league was formed last year. Lynn did not give a specific answer when asked if the price would increase for expansion teams.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Three months ago I had a colonoscopy and four polyps were removed. One was an adenoma. I had rectal bleeding once prior to the colonoscopy. Your column on colon polyps was comforting, but I'm worried because you say a person is highly susceptible to colon cancer if they have polyps. I have heard of some people living long lives after having colon cancer, if caught soon. The only thing my gastroenterologist said was to take Metamucil daily, eat a high-fiber diet, and come back in a year for another colonoscopy.

I don't want to wait a year in case these polyps appear again. Can I routinely have my stool checked more often for blood? How long does it take a polyp to grow, and how long before they become adenomatous, or are they adenomatous right from the beginning?

I just turned 40 last months, am married and have two girls ages 5 and 10.

DEAR READER: You will be happy to know that if colon cancer is detected early enough it can be completely cured. Early detection includes finding polyps that may become cancer. The tendency for polyps to become malignant is why they must be removed.

One of the main reasons colon polyps and cancer are not found early is because they may cause no symptoms until they have progressed. Colon cancer is a slow-growing cancer and doesn't spread rapidly. But since it is silent, sometimes for years before it is found, recurrent examinations, such as for blood in the stools, colon X-rays and direct examination to detect any polyps, is essential.

Rectal bleeding is one of the signs and may be caused by a large polyp. That is why anyone who has unexplained rectal bleeding must have an examination.

An adenomatous polyp means its cells come from glandular tissue. That does not mean it is malignant, but adenomatous polyps often do contain a nest of cancer cells, or have the potential to become malignant. Since the adenomatous polyp was removed in your case, that removed any threat it posed.

It is true that individuals who have adenomatous polyps are much more at risk of developing colon cancer. That is why they must have repeated examinations. Again, if new polyps develop, they can be removed to prevent colon cancer. Since the polyp removed from your colon did not contain any cancer cells, a repeat examination at one year is fine. If your gastroenterologist had a reason to think more frequent examinations were necessary, he would have scheduled them. Since polyps grow slowly, and become malignant slowly, it is highly unlikely that you will develop any threatening changes in less than a year.

If it is an adenomatous polyp, it will be so from the beginning. There are also hyperplastic polyps. These do not become malignant, but it may not be possible to be sure which kind of polyp a person has without removing it.

Read Special Issue 33-10, Colorectal Cancer Is No. 2 Killer, for more information on polyps. I'm sending you a free copy. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-dressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/33-10, P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908. Yes, you could have more frequent stool tests for blood, but it is probably unnecessary if you have an annual examination for polyps.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Is there a correlation between menopause and high blood pressure? I am 54 years old, 5 feet 9 inches and weigh 128 pounds. I have had some signs of the menopause, including hot flashes. Last week I went to my gynecologist and my blood pressure was 140/100. I have always had low-normal blood pressure. I have been monitoring my blood pressure ever since and my readings on seven days were as follows: 123/84, 127/87, 138/100, 128/88, 153/90, 128/87 and 122/92. I run three miles at least four times a week and for years have followed a low-fat, high-carbohydrate diet. I do not drink or smoke. No one in my family has high blood pressure. Should I see another doctor and get a complete examination or what?

DEAR READER: You are certainly on the edge. The Joint National Committee on Detection, Evaluation and Treatment of High Blood Pressure has defined a normal diastolic pressure for anyone 18 or older as below 85, and a normal systolic blood pressure as below 140. By that definition your diastolic pressure is slightly elevated. The old criteria was 90 or above for the diastolic pressure. The menopause alone does not cause high blood pressure, although weight gain and other changes that occur at that stage of life may. That is not likely to be your problem. Hypertension often starts in middle-age with mild elevations that become progressively higher.

Blood pressure is dependent on how much blood is pumped by the heart and how open your small arteries are. The common form of elevated blood pressure is associated with constriction of the small arteries. Exercise does help to open these. And your statistics do not suggest that you are overweight.

Read about the causes for high blood pressure in Special Report 72, Controlling Your Blood Pressure, which I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/72, P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908. As it explains, there is considerable controversy about the treatment of mildly elevated blood pressure.

Computer goes to Community School

Richard Selmon, left, manager of Furr's Supermarket in Hereford, presents a certificate for a new computer, monitor and software to Eric Alexander, principal at Community School. The school was drawn from entries in a recent Furr's promotion.

School receives computer

Community Christian School in Hereford has received a free IBM PS/2 computer, valued at $1,973, in the Furr's Big Forty Computer Giveaway, a promotion recently held at the Hereford Furr's Supermarket. Between April 3 and May 3, customers registered the school they wanted to receive a free computer at any participating Furr's supermarket. Drawings were held in 14 cities last Saturday, with 40 computers given away. The school will receive an IBM PS/2 Model 25 computer with color monitor, keyboard, DOS 3.3 and Typing for Beginners software. In addition to the Big Forty Giveaway, Furr's has sponsored the Computers for Classrooms program since January 1990, giving away over 380 computers and thousands of dollars in software.

City affects country

AUSTIN (AP) - Decisions lawmakers make in the next 2 1/2 weeks about legislative district lines in Texas' biggest cities also will affect other parts of the state.

Under redistricting law, the Legislature has some leeway in making that determination. Harris County, for example, could have as many as 26 House seats or as few as 24.

Such decisions have a number of effects, lawmakers say. The more urban seats that are created, the fewer are left for rural areas. Also, urban and suburban districts tend to favor minorities and Republicans.

"You can't do the rest of the state until you know how many districts you've got," said Jeff Archer, a Texas Legislative Council staff member working on redistricting.

For political and procedural reasons, legislators must decide the urban allocations before they can do anything else.

Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, the chairman of the House Redistricting Committee, said the redistricting bill could be laid out for lawmakers' inspection as early as Thursday.

Ideally, based on the 1990 Census figures, each House district would include 113,243 Texans. The law allows districts to be 5 percent higher or lower than that target number. Districts may cross county lines only if failure to do so causes them to exceed the 5 percent limits.

Israelis scrutinize Soviet visit

JERUSALEM (AP) - Israelis are anticipating the arrival of Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh with reserve and curiosity as to how his visit will fit into the international impetus for Middle East peace.

Although Bessmertnykh on Friday will become the highest-ranking Soviet official ever to visit, there is little of the usual fanfare planned for the occasion.

Israelis are talking about Bessmertnykh's visit in terms of what it will mean to the ongoing shuttle diplomacy being carried out by Secretary James A. Baker III, rather than the prospect of achieving the Israeli goal of renewing relations with Moscow.

The prevailing mood is not to cajole the Soviets into opening the diplomatic door they shut after Israel seized Arab land in the 1967 Middle East War. It is to maneuver Moscow into extracting concessions from its Arab allies.

This is especially true since the United States asked Moscow to join the Mideast peace effort.

Soviet emigres who fought for years to get Russian Jews to Israel and the daily Maariv indicated that they are less than excited about the visit, saying the Soviets need ties with Israel more than the other way around.

Natan Sharansky's emigre group noted that Israel's previous goal of Soviet Jewish emigration is already well in place. More than 250,000 have immigrated to Israel since Moscow eased exit policies in late 1989.

Maariv said the Soviets will have to accept an Israeli demand - to renew relations - before they can achieve their goal of joining in the Middle East peace process.

Deputy Foreign Minister Binyamin Netanyahu said Wednesday that the Soviets "have made in all likelihood a decision in principle to resume full relations" and now it is simply a matter of timing.

Netanyahu and other politicians have been saying that it is Moscow that could influence the Arabs to drop demands for a U.N.-sponsored international Middle East peace conference and accept Israel's wish for separate, direct talks with each enemy state.

Other concessions are also being suggested.

On Tuesday, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Moscow should reconsider its support for the Palestine Liberation Organization, which Israel considers a terrorist group.
