In features, the Brand was honored for "Walking Tall," a story on Everett Davis, who had lost his legs in an accident several years ago. The story was written by Managing Editor John Brooks. Brand Publisher Speedy Nieman, a former TPA president, was re-elected to a three year term on the board of the Texas Newspaper Foundation.

Bush pressured to pick minority for high court

WASHINGTON (AP) - The retirement of the Supreme Court's first and only black justice, Thurgood Marshall, puts pressure on President Bush to name a minority to the court, members of Congress and others say. Whoever is selected, the court will certainly be more conservative. Marshall, an undaunted civil rights advocate and the court's leading liberal, announced his retirement Thursday, citing his "advancing age and medical condition." He is 82. Bush promised to "move very swiftly" to name a replacement, but gave no clue as to who might be considered other than "somebody who believes in the Constitution of the United States, somebody who will be able to serve for a while." Black, Hispanic and female judges were expected to be given strong consideration. Early speculation centered on Clarence Thomas, a conservative federal appeals court judge in Washington who once chaired the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission; Amalya Kearse, a black federal appeals court judge in New York City; Ricardo Hinojosa, a federal trial judge in Texas; and Ferdinand Fernandez, a federal appeals court judge in Los Angeles.

Tracked down by reporters at his home, Marshall displayed some of his gruff wit. Asked what he would do in retirement, he said, "Mind my own business." Asked what is the court's most important task, he replied, "Get along without me." Marshall's 50-year career brought him from the legal rough and tumble of the courtrooms of the segregated South - where he argued the cause of civil rights fervently - to the decorum of the nation's highest court. Over his 24 years as a justice, Marshall championed individual rights and the abolition of the death penalty. He has been a staunch defender of the court's 1973 decision that legalized abortion. Marshall had contended he never would retire. But earlier this year, he said he would leave when his wife or doctor told him it was time. The time came five days before his 83rd birthday. At the Justice Department, key officials involved in judicial selection assembled quickly Thursday to discuss prospective candidates. "Somewhere there must be a black David Souter," said conservative activist Gary Bauer.

Souter, Bush's only Supreme Court appointee, joined the court in October and has proved far more conservative than the man he replaced, retired Justice William J. Brennan. Marshall was appointed to the court in 1967 by President Lyndon B. Johnson but already had established himself as the most influential black lawyer in U.S. history. He argued the case that resulted in the 1954 Supreme Court decision outlawing racial segregation in public schools and helped change race relations in other areas of life. For decades, Marshall traveled the nation as the recognized legal champion of the poor and powerless. For many blacks in Southern hamlets, a holiday atmosphere accompanied the news that "Mr. Marshall's coming to town." In an interview with The Associated Press last June, Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun, now 82, called himself, Brennan and Marshall the "three old goats" whose inevitable departure would solidify conservative domination of the court for the next 40 or 50 years. Since the interview, Brennan and Marshall have retired. "That pendulum swings," Blackmun said.

Audits hot item in Austin

AUSTIN (AP) - The books are blue-and-white, paperback, entitled "Breaking the Mold" and instant best sellers at the Capitol. Copies of Comptroller John Sharp's 1,200-page audit, recommending billions of dollars in savings, topped the state government reading list when they went on sale Thursday. All 1,000 copies of the 170-page summary were snapped up in two hours, and the comptroller's office also sold all available copies of the full report - at $5 for one volume or $10 for a complete set. "We were going to open our doors at 8 o'clock this morning. I got here at 7:30, and people were lined up," Pam Wagner of the comptroller's office said Thursday. Ms. Wagner said the summary was distributed free of charge while the two larger volumes, detailing all 975 specific cost-cutting recommendations, sold for $5 per book. "They went like hot cakes," she said. "The presses are running 24 hours now. We're doing our best to meet demand and will have more by Monday." State agency officials and others were anxious for a close look at the audit and its proposals to save and raise $5.2 billion through spending cuts, agency mergers and about 1,000 layoffs. State agency heads were given audits, and Ms. Wagner said many of the purchasers were rank-and-file workers. "We had an awful lot of folks who were state employees who just wanted to read it," she said. Gov. Ann Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Gib Lewis all endorsed the plan when it was first released on Wednesday. Reaction from other quarters was mixed. The chairman of the governor's special tax study committee, former Gov. John Connally, said the audit was "a monumental work" that likely would "evoke a great deal of criticism and opposition" from supporters of the status quo. While several of his committee members, including former Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and former San Antonio mayor Henry Cisneros, had endorsed creating a state income tax, Connally said the audit likely lets the air out of that balloon. "I'm probably going to come out Saturday (when a vote is scheduled) with nothing more than a suggestion that the Legislature look at the Texas business tax and the lottery," he said. Budget experts have projected that a state lottery, which has failed repeatedly to win House approval, could generate $700 million or more annually. Sharp's audit recommended eliminating 1,043 jobs. Lane Zivley, executive director of the Texas Public Employees Association, told the Austin American-Statesman he hoped laid-off employees would fill jobs vacated by attrition.

County okays tax 'increase'

A vote to increase taxes of Deaf Smith County property owners passed quickly during a regular meeting Thursday of County Commissioners. A tax rate of 46.97 cents per $100 of value and budgets of $3.8 million will be adopted formally by the commission at the next meeting, on July 8. The vote Thursday affirmed the county's intention to increase taxes by approximately 14 percent. However, the rate remains the same as last year and property that has not been re-appraised or improved will be assessed no more than last year. In other business, commissioners took no action on a suggestion from County Clerk David Ruland that special State Constitution elections in school districts and the county be combined in August. Ruland was not present at the meeting. He has been attending a training session for clerks all week. The commission decided to wait for his return to discuss the item. A request from Commissioner Johnny Latham of Precinct Four to advertise for bids for purchase of a new motor grader was approved. Bids will be opened at the July 22 meeting. Latham reported that he plans to trade in two maintainers and buy only one as replacement. Commissioners approved a list of election officials for the August vote.

Group unveils Pantex package

AMARILLO (AP) - Several incentives have been put together by a Panhandle task force in a proposal to entice the Energy Department to expand the Pantex plant. Pantex, located about 20 miles northeast of Amarillo, is the nation's only final assembly plant for nuclear bombs and missile warheads. The Energy Department is considering a plan to revamp the nation's nuclear warhead production complex and Pantex is one of five sites under consideration for possible expansion. Panhandle officials are trying to get operations of the Rocky Flats plant near Denver moved to the Amarillo area. Members of the Panhandle 2000 task force, which was appointed by the Amarillo City Commission to draw up a proposal to expand Pantex, revealed the lengthy series of documents during a news conference Thursday. Incentives offered by the group include proposed water developments, highway improvements, land offers and breaks on bank loans. No cash incentives were offered by the city, said Mayor Keith Adams. The Pantex task force effort is the only one of five such proposals to be released to the public, an Energy Department spokesman in Washington told the Amarillo Globe-Times. Other sites submitting proposals for expansion include the Savannah River Site near Aiken, S.C.; the Y-12 Plant near Oak Ridge, Tenn.; the Hanford Reservation near Richland, Wash.; and the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory near Idaho Falls, Idaho. Officials said the proposal includes strong language to ensure that safety concerns are addressed. "I think that a reasonable person reading the provisions on safety would have to agree that we've covered all the bases on safety," said Wales Madden Jr., task force co-chairman. A congressional study released in April cited Pantex for "persistent health and safety problems," saying workers were exposed to depleted uranium dust for years. The General Accounting Office report cited Pantex for being unprepared to handle emergencies involving radioactive releases. Madden said the city or county government should oversee the proposed plant consolidation and its potential environmental, safety and health effects. Madden said the city could help obtain land around Pantex now owned by Texas Tech University. One provision of the proposal discusses condemning property around the plant, if needed. Amarillo's geographical location, low population density, low utility rates, a diversified industrial base, a regional airport and available land are all factors in the city's favor, officials said. A DOE hearing is scheduled for July 24 to gather information about the expansion for an environmental impact statement.

DALLAS (AP) - Several political candidates, including Gov. Ann Richards and former opponent Clayton Williams, are trying to recover some of the millions of campaign dollars they spent during a television ad blitz last fall.

Former Republican candidates Kent Hance and Rob Mosbacher also are trying to recoup some advertising dollars from the TV stations that broadcast their political commercials last year.

Attorneys in Atlanta representing some of the politicians estimate that candidates in Texas and 10 other states were overcharged by tens of millions. The lawyers said they expected to represent more Texas candidates, but declined to name them.

"This is not based purely on greed," said Matt Towery, a lawyer in Atlanta who is representing Williams, Hance and Mosbacher. "This is money that was in fact taken from them that shouldn't have been in the first place."

The politicians are asking TV stations statewide to provide information on their advertising rates and practices in an attempt to determine if they were overcharged.

The complaints stem from a national audit last year by the Federal Communications Commission, which found that "a majority of stations" in five TV markets charged political candidates more for commercial time than general advertisers.

The audit included stations from the Dallas-Fort Worth area, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Portland, Ore.

Federal law prohibits TV stations from charging political candidates more than general advertisers.

Buddy Barfield, a spokesman for Williams, said Wednesday that the Texas investigation is "purely business."

KDFW-TV vice president and general manager Jeff Rosser said he received a letter on behalf of the three Texas GOP politicians. The station is working with its legal counsel to compile advertising information for the candidates, he said.

KDFW was audited by the FCC last year, as were WFAA-TV and KXAS-TV in Dallas-Fort Worth. Spokesmen and the other two stations said they hadn't received letters requesting advertising information from the Texas politicians.

10 million missed in count

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Census Bureau missed nearly 10 million people during last year's population count, and it counted more than 4 million people twice, congressional auditors say.

The 14 million errors occurred as census-takers counted 248.7 million Americans, L. Nye Stevens of the General Accounting Office told the House Post Office and Civil Service subcommittee on census and population.

"The 1990 census appears to have had at least 50 percent more errors than it had in 1980," Stevens said Thursday.

The Census Bureau has estimated

5.3 million people weren't counted. Blacks and Hispanics were said more likely to be missed than were whites.

The bureau's estimate was based on a survey taken shortly after the census rather than on the count of errors used by Stevens.

In Texas, the Census Bureau said earlier this month that it missed an estimated 560,000 people. The latest estimate pushed the state's population from the 16.9 million counted in April 1990 to 17.5 million.

Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher must decide by July 15 whether to replace the population count with the Census Bureau's estimate. A federal court set the deadline after states and big cities sued to force a census correction.

Under the court order, Mosbacher can't decide to correct the numbers unless the estimate is more accurate than the count.

Census officials blame census errors on a number of problems. Among them are the tendency of poor people in big cities not to mail back their census forms and difficulty in getting correct address lists in some areas.

Census numbers are used to determine how many representatives each state sends to Congress. They are also used to draw political districts for state legislatures, city councils and other government bodies.

A study prepared for the Census Bureau concludes that fewer than half the nation's local governments will receive more federal money if the census is corrected.

And those governments that do get more money won't exactly be smothered with wealth.

Each person added to their population in a correction would bring in only $56, the study said.

Hospital requests TDH help

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) - Officials at Wichita General Hospital have asked the Texas Department of Health to investigate an alarming increase of infant and fetus deaths during the past two months at the facility.

Dr. Garland Dean, the hospital's medical director, said 19 deaths in May and June have brought this year's total to 29. He said there were only 17 such deaths in all of 1990 at the hospital.

"The numbers are going up," said Dr. John Montgomery, chairman of the hospital's department of obstetrics and gynecology. "We're getting alarmed. We want to get some people in here who know what to look for."

Area obstetricians and family practitioners met this week at the hospital to discuss the disturbing mortality rate, but were unable to find any common or underlying factors.

"It is strange. I haven't seen anything like this since I've been here for four years," Montgomery told the Wichita Falls Times Record News.

Lucci misses out on Emmy - again

NEW YORK (AP) - Soap opera queen Susan Lucci's record Emmy-losing streak remained unbroken as daytime Emmy voters gave the best-actress nod to Finola Hughes of ABC's "General Hospital."

Lucci, nominated a record 12 times for a daytime Emmy, lost again Thursday night in the 18th annual Daytime Emmy Awards ceremonies, broadcast by CBS in prime time for the first time.

Lucci, 42, plays the bad-tempered Erica Kane of ABC's "All My Children." Hughes didn't attend the ceremonies because she was in London on personal business.

Peter Bergman was near tears as he accepted his best-actor Emmy for his work in CBS' "The Young and the Restless." He praised his wife as "my conscience, my best friend."

Two established series also won Emmys. CBS' 35-year-old "As the World Turns" was named best soap opera. PBS' 22-year-old "Sesame Street" was named best children's series.

CBS won the most Emmys - five. Cable's only winner was the Disney Channel's "Lost in the Barrens," a Canadian film honored as best children's special.

Bob Barker, the show's master of ceremonies, won an Emmy as best game show host. An animal lover, the star of CBS' "The Price is Right" joked that his Emmy's inscription read: "Have your pet spayed or neutered."

The syndicated "Jeopardy" series won an Emmy as the season's best game show.

Talk show star Oprah Winfrey, a previous winner, was honored both for her show and as television's top talk show host. Last year's talk-show winner, Joan Rivers, was among the losing nominees for the honor.

But Rivers was full of tart-tongued mirth as a presenter, joking about Lucci, and film star Julia Roberts, who shocked Hollywood earlier this month by abruptly calling off her scheduled gala wedding to actor Keifer Sutherland.

"She thinks AT&T's motto is 'Reach out and dump someone,'" Rivers said. She characterized Lucci's Kane character as "the touch tone of the daytime tramps."

Jess Walton of CBS' "The Young and the Restless" and Bernice Barrow of ABC's "Loving" won best supporting actress and supporting actor in the early awards, while Rick Hearst of CBS' "Guiding Light" and Anne Heche of NBC's "Another World," won Emmys as best younger actor and actress.

Steven Spielberg's syndicated "Tiny Toon Adventures" won as best animated program. A best-performer Emmy went to Tim Curry, voice of Capt. Hook in Fox's "Peter Pan and the Pirates."

Thirty-three other awards were announced last weekend by the Los Angeles-based Academy of Television Arts & Sciences and the New York-based National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences.

White-clad Agassi wins match

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Tenth-seeded Goran Ivanisevic blasted 25 aces as he defeated local favorite Andrew Castle in straight sets today before rain made its daily appearance at Wimbledon.

Women's seeds Amy Frazier and Katerina Maleeva also won on a day on which officials had hoped to make up a huge backlog of matches rained out during the tournament's opening four days.

Ivanisevic, who lost in a semifinal thriller to Boris Becker last year at Wimbledon, completed a 7-6, 7-6, 6-2 victory over the London resident in a match that started Tuesday.

Maleeva, seeded eighth, defeated Julie Salmon 7-5, 6-3. Frazier, seeded 14th, beat Karin Kschwendt 7-6, 6-4.

On Thursday, Andre Agassi was a ghostly vision at his long-overdue Wimbledon coming-out party, wearing white denim shorts over white biking shorts, a white shirt and a white headband.

The fluorescent lime shirt was gone. The neon pink shorts were left at home. A dangling gold earring was the only hint of his unique sartorial style.

The player whose flashy wardrobe has infuriated the tennis establishment looked like Frosty the Snowman as he stepped on the grass courts Thursday for the first time since 1987.

And he played like Frosty for a half-hour against Grant Connell, serving poorly and moving as if his feet were stuck in slush as he lost the first set 6-4 to the Canadian.

Agassi rallied to win the second set 6-1 and was tied 1-1 in the third before getting washed off court by a thunderstorm as Wimbledon waded through its fourth straight wet day.

The rain that has tormented Wimbledon since Monday delayed the fifth seed's appearance at a tournament that insists on predominantly-white attire. Fashion buffs and teen-aged groupies had eagerly awaited the debut of Agassi's summer line.

Ian Hamilton, director of tennis marketing for the clothing company that makes the outfits, said Agassi chose the all-white look because "he didn't want to come here and start off on the wrong foot."

The tournament itself has gotten off to a miserable start, with only 52 first-round singles matches completed in the opening four days. The entire first and second rounds, a total of 192 matches, usually are completed by the opening Thursday.

The backlog of unplayed matches was causing the All England Club to consider playing this Sunday, a huge break with tradition. The first Sunday has always been a rest day since the tournament began in 1877.

Players such as Jimmy Connors and Aaron Krickstein were scheduled to play Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday - and never got on court in that time.

About 1.3 inches of rain has fallen on Wimbledon, and weather forecasters said this has been one of the wettest, coldest and darkest Junes in local history.

London bookies have slashed the odds against rain disrupting play every day of the tournament from 100-1 to 10-1.

Cold, drenched fans have bought 66,020 cups of tea and 26,848 cups of coffee, a 100 percent increase from last year. Wimbledon gift shops sold 1,350 umbrellas during the tournament's first three days.

Thursday was another day of frustration for players and fans as the tarpaulins went off and on, off and on.

Top seed Stefan Edberg finally completed a 73-hour victory over Marc Rosset on Thursday, but not before the rain mocked him by halting the match at the start of the final game.

Edberg won 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 in a match originally set to begin at 2 p.m. on Monday. Edberg wrapped up the victory at 2:44 p.m. Thursday - exactly 72 hours and 44 minutes after the scheduled start.

"I have to consider myself lucky, because I played two sets Tuesday," the defending champion said. "Some guys have been here without hitting a ball on grass yet."

Joining Edberg in the second round were men's seeds Pete Sampras and Michael Stich, both of whom also won in straight sets.

Sampras, the eighth seed, completed a 6-1, 6-2, 6-2 defeat of Danilo Marcelino in a match that began Tuesday. Sixth seed Stich eliminated Dan Goldie 6-4, 6-1, 6-2 in another match that had started two days earlier.

Around the defense

Sutherland in St. Jude chase

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - David Sutherland has good reason to be cautious despite his lofty standing on the leaderboard after the first round of the St. Jude Classic.

The 25-year-old former Fresno State golfer turned in a tidy four-birdie, one-eagle, no-bogey round for a 6-under-par 65 over the 7,006-yard, par-71 TPC at Southwind

Thursday to trail Rick Fehr and Jim Thorpe by a single shot.

But it's also fact that Sutherland, who has made the cut only once in his last nine tournaments, opened with a 67 at the Buick Open, but finished tied for 63rd.

Sutherland thrust himself into the chase by carding an eagle-3 at the 527-yard fifth hole - his 14th hole of the day - with a 25-foot putt.

Fehr and Thorpe hold a two-stroke lead over Billy Mayfair, Russ Cochran, Brian Tenyson and Lee Janzen, who all shot 66s in the chase for the $180,000 winner's check.

McHaffie leads LPGA

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) - Colleen Walker had seen it dozens of times before. A relative unknown enjoys the round of her life to take command in the early stages of an LPGA tournament.

Sort of like what Deborah McHaffie did Thursday, when she shot a career-low 66 to take the lead after one round of the LPGA Championship. It was only the second time in 36 rounds this season that she broke 70.

That gave McHaffie a one-shot lead over Walker, Barb Mucha and Deb Richard. Walker was not

Tyson to kill Ruddock

LAS VEGAS (AP) - Beating Donovan "Razor" Ruddock won't be enough for Mike Tyson this time around.

Not after his last win was tarnished by controversy. Not against a fighter he professes to genuinely dislike.

"I'm going to kill this guy," said Tyson, who meets Ruddock for the second time in three months tonight in a scheduled 12-round heavyweight fight. "I'll knock him out this time so there's no questions."

There were questions when the two best heavyweights without a title last fought March 18 in the same ring where both will again make millions in what could be the most lucrative non-title heavyweight fight ever.

Most of the questions, however, were posed by referee Richard Steele, who made a controversial decision to stop the fight in the seventh round with Ruddock dazed and battered but still on his feet.

"This time he'll be knocked out cold," Tyson promised. "It's not going the distance."

Tyson, who will be 25 Sunday, is a 5-1 favorite to hand Ruddock his second straight loss. Oddsmakers say it's even money that the fight won't last 4 rounds.

Tyson has made the fight somewhat of a personal vendetta, calling Ruddock a transvestite at a pre-fight press conference and threatening to make him his "girlfriend."

"To be honest with you, I totally have no respect for Razor Ruddock as an individual," said Tyson, who makes no secret of the fact he feels he didn't get his full due for beating Ruddock in the first fight.

Tyson, despite rumors he trained lightly for the fight, was a trim 216 at Wednesday's pre-fight weigh-in, a pound less than he weighed for the first fight.

Ruddock, on the other hand, was 238 pounds - a full 10 pounds heavier than for their first meeting.

"I think I came in too tight for that fight," Ruddock said. "I just came in at my natural weight this time."

Pirates come back on Cubs

By The Associated Press
If the Pittsburgh Pirates win the National League East title, they should really send the Chicago Cubs a thank you note.

The Pirates scored four runs in the ninth inning Thursday night to beat the Cubs 4-3 at Three Rivers Stadium. But that's only part of the story.

The come-from-behind victory was the Pirates' third in their final at-bat against the Cubs in Pittsburgh this season. That's right, THIS season.

The Pirates scored six runs in the 11th inning to beat the Cubs 13-12 on April 21, the greatest extra-inning comeback in major league history. Two nights before, Andre Dawson hit a grand slam in the top of the ninth, but Pittsburgh scored two in the bottom of the inning to win 5-4.

This time, Heath Slocumb's two-out wild pitch scored Barry Bonds with the winning run and completed Pittsburgh's ninth-inning rally.

The victory enabled the first-place Pirates to maintain their four-game lead over St. Louis in the East. The crumbling Cubs have lost 11 of 12 and finished a 13-game road trip 2-11.

"This wasn't a very good trip for us," Cubs manager Jim Essian said in a slightly understatement. "I think everybody here will be glad to get home."

Frank Castillo, a 22-year-old right-hander making his major league debut, limited Pittsburgh to three hits over eight innings and had retired nine straight batters entering the ninth, but quickly got into trouble.

Orlando Merced singled to end an 0-for-13 streak and Jay Bell singled, chasing Castillo and bringing on Paul Assenmacher (3-4). Andy Van Slyke singled in Merced and Bonilla hit a sacrifice fly to slice the lead to 3-2.

Bonds, 1-for-21 lifetime against Assenmacher, then coaxed a walk to load the bases and Lloyd McClendon, a former Cub, singled in Van Slyke to tie the score. Slocumb replaced Assenmacher and walked pinch-hitter Don Slaught to load the bases.

Slocumb struck out Jose Lind on a pitch in the dirt, but his first pitch to pinch-hitter Mitch Webber bounced away from catcher Rick Wilkins and scored Bonds standing up.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Cincinnati 3, San Diego 0; St. Louis 4, Philadelphia 2; New York 4, Montreal 3; and Atlanta 3, Houston 0.

Braves 3, Astros 0
Charlie Liebrandt (7-5) pitched a three-hitter and Terry Pendleton drove in runs with his fifth and sixth consecutive hits. Liebrandt struck out three and walked two for his 16th career shutout.

Pendleton, who had four straight hits in Wednesday night's 3-2 victory, grounded out in the fifth inning, ending his streak.

Mark Portugal (6-4) had his string of 10 consecutive victories in the Astrodome snapped.

Cardinals 4, Phillies 2
Ken Hill pitched 7 1-3 innings of no-hit ball and St. Louis got consecutive homers in the second inning from Todd Zeile and Rich Gedman.

The Cardinals beat Tommy Greene (5-1). Hill (7-5) allowed only Dickie Thon's one-out triple in the eighth before giving way to Lee Smith to start the ninth. Smith allowed two hits and a run while getting his 20th save.

Yankees sweep Sox at Fenway

By The Associated Press
Fenway Park was a nightmare for the New York Yankees last season. This week, it was paradise.

The Yankees lost all seven games in Boston last year, but completed a satisfying three-game sweep of this season's first visit Thursday night as rookie Wade Taylor allowed three hits in seven innings of an 8-0 victory.

Taylor had a two-run lead before he threw a pitch as Roberto Kelly tripled home a run and scored on Don Mattingly's sacrifice fly. The Yanks made it 7-0 in the third on Mel Hall's two-run homer and Bob Geren's three-run shot off Tom Bolton (7-5), and Kelly added a blast over the screen in left in the fourth.

For Yankees manager Stump Merrill, a Maine native whose major league debut came last June in one of New York's losses at Fenway, completing the sweep was especially sweet.

"We beat a good team, and to do it in this arena makes it extra-special," Merrill said. "It's one of the most satisfying series I have seen since I joined this club."

Taylor (3-2) said the Yankees - whose last sweep at Fenway came when they won the last four games of the 1986 season - simply caught the Red Sox at the right time.

"It was nice to beat them three in a row, but I'm sure they'll be swinging the bat better the next time we see them," said Taylor, who walked five and struck out four before Greg Cadaret and Lee Guetterman completed the shutout.

In other American League games, it was Texas 9, Oakland 6; Toronto 1, Minnesota 0; Baltimore 7, Cleveland 2; Milwaukee 9, Detroit 3, and Chicago 5, Seattle 2.

Rangers 9, Athletics 6
Texas became the first team in a year to sweep the Athletics at the Oakland Coliseum as Dean Palmer hit his first major league home run and Steve Buechele added a three-run homer.

Brian Downing's pinch-hit single broke a 4-4 tie in the seventh and Buechele put the game away with his second three-run homer in as many games.

Reliever Wayne Rosenthal (1-0) earned his first big-league victory despite allowing two runs and three hits in 2 1-3 innings. Jeff Russell finished for his 15th save. Rick Honeycutt (0-1) was the loser.

Blue Jays 1, Twins 0

Toronto, which leads the majors with eight shutouts, capitalized on Shane Mack's fourth-inning error.

With Kelly Gruber on first and two outs, Rance Mulliniks' liner went off Mack's hands for an error. Mack, considered the Twins' top defensive outfielder, then overthrew cutoff man Al Newman, allowing Gruber to score easily.

Juan Guzman (2-2) allowed three hits over 7 2-3 innings.

Orioles 7, Indians 2

Randy Milligan drove in three runs with his second four-hit game of the week and Cal Ripken had three hits to increase his American League-leading average to .355.

Steroid doctor found guilty

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) - A suburban Harrisburg doctor facing more than 40 years in prison for illegally selling anabolic steroids says he will appeal his conviction with "every force in my body."

George T. Zahorian III, 43, was found guilty by a federal jury Thursday of distributing the drugs to four professional wrestlers and a weightlifter.

"Justice will prevail," Zahorian said after the verdict. "The appeal process has already started."

The jury deliberated for three hours before returning its verdict against Zahorian, who became the first doctor in the country convicted under a 1988 act that prohibits selling steroids for performance enhancement or other non-medical reasons.

He was convicted on 12 of 14 counts: eight counts of distributing steroids and four counts of illegally distributing prescription painkillers. The jury found him innocent of one count of possessing steroids with intent to deliver and one count of possessing painkillers with intent to deliver.

Zahorian faces up to 44 years in jail and a $3 million fine. A sentencing date was not immediately set.

Defense attorney William Costopoulos said he will appeal both the convictions and the forfeiture.

"It's hard for me to believe what's happened," Zahorian said after the verdicts were read. "I will appeal with every force in my body to have all the truth."

None of the wrestlers will be charged because steroid use was not illegal in the period covered by the indictment.

The case gained national exposure because of the involvement of the wrestlers. Four of them - Brian Blair, Rick Martel, Rody Piper and Dan Spivey - testified that they purchased steroids from Zahorian after distribution was made a crime in 1988.

Also, former World Wrestling Federation champion superstar Billy Graham testified Thursday that he bought steroids from the doctor but never received medical advice or detailed examinations from him.

Zahorian admitted on the witness stand that he sold steroids to a number of wrestlers, including WWF champion Hulk Hogan and those who testified.

The doctor said he did not know the law had changed, and the defense called several other doctors to say they learned of the change in law when they read about Zahorian's indictment.

William Dunn was the weightlifter who bought steroids from Zahorian. As part of a plea agreement to steroid-related charges in Virginia, he wore a tape recorder so FBI agents could monitor his visits to Zahorian's office.

Southwest Outdoors

with Mel Phillips

Good news from the Coast Guard--For the fifth consecutive year, boating fatalities are down. The numbers are an improvement, but are of little comfort to the families of the 865 fatalities. The U.S. Coast Guard notes that "the fatality count has fallen 36 percent in the last ten years." The decline is attributed to an increase in public awareness of the dangers of drinking and driving in cars and boats.

After looking at all the fancy boats with huge engines, it is remarkable that fatal accidents are few and far between. It is estimated that nearly 20 million recreational boats are on the water each year.

Outrage of the Year--People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA) raised some $10 million from the public and then killed 32 "rescued animals" that had been liberated from research experiments. According to the monthly newsletter of Sportsmen Conservationists of Texas (SCOT), Ingrid Newkirk, director of PETA, confirmed the killing of 32 roosters and rabbits was done "with a great deal of concern." Maybe PETA should quit the self-righteous antics about animal rights and admit that their real concerns are fund-raising and staff salaries, not concern for the animals.

Next time some animal rights group shows an animal in a leg trap and wants your money, think about the 32 "rescued" animals that were not worth a few hitches and pens. PETA, of course, does have money to file lawsuits and other legal harassment of animal research projects.

By the way, SCOT is an excellent and reasonable conservation group that is worth the support of hunters, fishermen and real conservationists. For more information on the group, contact Alan Allen; 807 Brazos, Suite 311; Austin, Texas 78701. The legislative updates in both Austin and Washington are worth far more than the $25 dues.

The anti-hunting, anti-fishing and animal rights crowds have banded together. The hunters and anglers need to unite before it is too late. Check out SCOT because it is one of the best groups in Texas. Good luck and enjoy the great outdoors.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I must comment on the letter from "Home-work Blues," the woman who complained because her child had too much homework.

As a substitute high school teacher, I am disheartened and alarmed by the poor academic performance and apathy of our students. Three hours of daily homework is the norm in Japan. They attend classes six days a week and three months of summer vacation is unheard of.

It is predicted that within a decade, America will face a critical shortage of mathematicians, scientists and engineers, which bodes ill for the future of our country. It is clear that American students need more work and less play.

If we fail to heed the warning signs, we will surely slip from our role as a world leader to that of a second-rate nation. -- B.C., Clark, N.J.

DEAR B.C.: I agree, but with Lamar Alexander as the secretary of education and David Kearns as his deputy, I am optimistic that things will improve dramatically. Here's another point of view:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The public schools in New Orleans are not very good so I put my children in private school. Believe me, Ann, just because you pay a fortune for private school doesn't mean it's better.

After two years, I discovered that my daughter's teacher had never been to college. I then put my kids in church school where they had several hours of homework a night. I talked to the teacher and she said the students had plenty of time to do the work in class and that my kids were goofing off.

I decided to take my kids out of school and teach them at home. They were more relaxed and happier without the pressure of competition. If they were having problems with math in school, they received a low grade and went from there. At home, if they didn't understand something, we stuck with it until they did.

If you print this letter, the National Education Association will jump all over you because it is against home schooling. But tests show that home schoolers do just as well or better than regular school students.

After two years, my kids took an achievement test and they were above grade level in every subject. When we moved to Florida, I put them in a public school and they did beautifully. I'll sign this -- It Worked For Me.

DEAR YOU: Wonderful, but it wouldn't work for everybody. I'm not giving home schooling blanket approval. Each situation requires careful assessment. Here's someone who agrees with you:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 10 years old. My mother teaches me at home. I have time to play with friends. I am in a choir and take violin and ballet lessons. I learn about the real world firsthand, and I am very good in math, language and visual arts. I am tutored in French by a university student. I am now in the sixth grade French book while my friends at public school are still in the grade five book.

Northrop Frye, the famous scholar, did not go to school until the age of 8. After that, he regarded it as "one of the milder forms of penal servitude." And he is right. Home schooling allows me to be the way every child should be. Free. -- A Kid in Canada

DEAR KID: If you are a 10-year-old and wrote that letter without help, you are a great ad for home schooling. Congratulations.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

SHE WAS FAIR TO BEHOLD!
(ESTHER 1:10FF)

HER NAME WAS VASHTI. VASHTI NEVER HEARD OF MALE CHAUVINISM, BUT SHE SUFFERED IT. VASHTI NEVER HEARD OF WOMENS LIB, BUT SHE WAS ITS SISTER!

HER HUSBAND, KING AHAZERUS, RULER OF THE PERSIAN EMPIRE (485-464 B.C.) WAS ENTERTAINING HIS NOBLES, AND PRINCES, WITH AN ENORMOUS FEAST WHICH LASTED DAYS ON END. "ON THE SEVENTH DAY WHEN THE HEART OF THE KING WAS MERRY WITH WINE" HE SENT ORDERS FOR THE QUEEN TO COME AND PARADE HER BEAUTY BEFORE HIS GUESTS.

VASHTI REFUSED! SHE DID NOT SAY "I REFUSE TO BE A SEX OBJECT!" BUT THAT'S SURELY WHAT SHE MEANT. "THE KING WAS VERY WROTH," AND VASHTI'S DISOBEDIENCE COST THE LOSS OF HER THRONE FOR THIS EARLY REBELLIOUS ACT IN FAVOR OF WOMENS INDEPENDENCE!
