SUNDAY BRAND

90th Year, No. 252, Deaf Smith County, Hereford, Tx.

NEWSDIGEST
A quick look at today's news

Local Stuff

FIREWORKS

•There's no donation too big or too small to make the community's July 4th fireworks a success. If you can make any donation at all, take your check by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office at Seventh and Main. Added to the list of those who have made donations are BPOE Elks Lodge No. 2269, Margaret Schroeter, Pants Cage, Barrett-Fisher Produce and KPAN. Your donation can make a difference.

CHALLENGE

•It's not too late for you to get a team up to compete in the 2nd Annual Feedyard Challenge at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame's Rhinestone Roundup on Friday and Saturday. The details are in today's Brand.

JULY 4TH

•If you'd like to enter the parade, call 364-4670 (HCR Real Estate) or the Chamber of Commerce office at 364-3333. There are divisions for children, businesses and organizations. If you'd like to pitch in for the fireworks show, go by the chamber office at Seventh and Main. Your help, and dollars, are needed, and we'll list all contributors in the Brand. Children who would like to participate in a choir for July 4th are urged to attend practice sessions at 5 p.m. Wednesdays and 9:30 a.m. Saturdays at the music room of the Nazarene Christian Academy (use the La Plata Drive entrance).

RECYCLING

•You can help do your part to help the environment at the recycling collection sponsored by EnCoRe at the Red Cross office on S. Main, everyday. If you have glass, recyclable plastic, paper goods, newspapers or anything else you want to recycle (that is recyclable), take it by the collection station. There are new bins to help you sort your goods.

Sports Stuff

BEANBALL II?

•Will the Angels and Tigers wait until prime time Sunday to renew their beanball war, begun Thursday? That's among Sunday's TV sports offerings, which include the Mets vs. Braves and Cubs vs. Giants. Other sports include auto racing and golf; find out more in "Entertainment" in today's Brand.

Weather

HOT AND DRY

•It's summer, and that means there's always a chance for a shower to pop up. However, it should be hot and dry Sunday, with a high around 90 degrees (not bad for this time of year, if you think about it).

L.J. CLARK

...Standing in front of the underpass on U.S. Highway 385

Clark recalls career as highway engineer

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Attention, all you walking fanatics. One person in Hereford has walked every mile of every highway in Deaf Smith County, and practically every mile of highway in Randall County.

He didn't do it for his health, though. L.J. Clark did it because it was part of his job as an engineer technician for the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation for 35 years.

Clark was raised in Summerfield and spent his entire 35 years with the state in Hereford. There were other projects in the community which forced him to commute, including the building of U.S. Highway 287 around Clarendon and Hedley, and the construction of Interstate 40 from the New Mexico state line to Conway, just east of Amarillo.

"I'm happy I was able to build my house here and live here all this time," Clark said.

Clark said, more than once, "to be sure and tell 'em that I didn't build any of these roads around here. But somebody had to supervise all of these projects, and make sure that everybody did their work. I think I did a good job of doing that."

Whether he never laid an inch of blacktop or not, Clark had to be out there, day in and day out, as roads were built. Every road in the county, and there are hundreds of miles of pavement in the county.

Clark's first involvement with road building in these parts came after World War II, where he spent 2 1/2 years with the Seabees and gained his engineering background. He went to work for a Lubbock company that built most of the non-brick streets in Hereford.

"Everything that wasn't paved in bricks was caliche, and we spent about two years before building most of the streets we have today," Clark said. After that project was finished, he went back to Texas Tech where he was pursuing an architectural engineering degree. The lure of a 50 percent pay increase, from $50 to $75 a week, enticed him to go to work for the state and come back to Hereford.

Because he didn't have a degree, Clark never became a full-fledged engineer. "Oh, I could have if I had gone to Austin and taken all of the tests, but I didn't think it was necessary and really haven't regretted it," he said. Clark rose to the rank of Engineer Technician 5, the highest you can go without being a fully-qualified engineer.

Clark came to Hereford just as the intensive farm-to-market road system was being built in the county. Clark said that county commissioners gave the state $100,000 as seed money for most of the projects in the county, beginning with Farm Road 809, which runs from Dawn to Wildorado.

"We built that road for $7,000 a mile in the early 1950's," Clark said. Today, plans to widen the road require an expenditure more than 10 times that amount.

Clark's next project was Farm-to-Market 1412 in the western part of the county. It was there that Clark was faced with (and resisted) a small bribe.

"We were building a bridge out there and had to sink a piling nine feet deep," Clark recalled. "It would only go about five feet deep, and we found out there was a big 'bird's-eye rock under there. Well, when you tell one person about something like that, everyone finds out about it. The next morning they offered me a brand new color TV if we'd just leave that piling right there. Now in the 1950s a new color TV was big and it was expensive. I told them no and we got that rock crushed and the piling put where it was supposed to be."

The achievement of which Clark is most proud is the underpass on U.S. Highway 385 under the Santa Fe Railroad in south Hereford.

Clark was under duress from his superiors because the crew was only proceeding about 90 feet a day. He was able to cajole them to quicken their pace to about 150 feet a day, then came up with a plan to increase their work even more.

"I told them that if they could get up to 240 feet a day, I didn't care what time they went home," Clark said. "Well, the next day they had 240 feet by 2 p.m. and I sent them home. The supervisor came up to me and asked what I was doing, but I explained to them how much more work they were doing and they never said another word."

Clark's expertise was called on when old U.S. 66 was finally expanded to become Interstate 40 through the Western Panhandle, especially on the overpasses in Vega and Wildorado. Since bridge and overpass work was his special area, Clark also oversaw much of the construction on Interstate 27 when it was finally completed from Amarillo to Plainview and on the initial stages of Loop 335 around Amarillo.

Clark grimaced with regret about his retirement in 1985, when state cost-cutting measures forced him out. But he's focused his passions into genealogy, where he and his wife, Wilma, spend much of their time nowadays.

Clark is also still active in baseball. He grew up playing baseball, and has spent much of his free time since he quit playing into umpiring everything from Little League and Irrigation League games many years ago to slow-pitch softball today.

Tickets on sale for CHOF event

Tickets are now available for activities for the Rhinestone Roundup Weekend, Thursday through Sunday, at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame in Hereford.

Live entertainment of all types will be featured throughout the weekend.

Four women will be inducted into the CHOF at the Honoree Induction Ceremony, at noon June 28 at the Hereford Senior Center: Mary Ann "Molly" Goodnight and Georgia O'Keefe, Western Heritage honorees; and Lynn Jonckowski and Nancy Sheppard, Cowgirl honorees.

Joan Wells and Roberta Courtney Meyers will perform at the induction luncheon.

Wells, a 1989 Cowgirl honoree of the CHOF, will perform her black light trick roping routine. Wells, who will also perform Friday evening at the CHOF, has performed at fairs, rodeos and on television and is known throughout the country for her talent.

Meyers, from Taos, N.M., is presenting a dramatic monologue on the life of each of the four 1991 honorees. The theater is Meyers' full-time career, and she spends her time researching, writing and producing her shows as well as composing music and free-lancing as a journalist.

Friday evening's entertainment at the CHOF Rhinestone Roundup will feature the country two-woman duo Rocking N-B from Denver. The two women perform traditional western music accompanied by guitar.

Patsy Montana will also perform a mini-concert Friday evening. Montana, a 1987 Western Heritage honoree, was the first female country singer to sell a million copies of a record, "I Want To Be A Cowboy's Sweetheart," in 1936.

A Mexican food buffet will be featured, and items will be sold in a silent auction to benefit the CHOF.

On Saturday, the feature band will be Slow Motion, a country band from Adrian. The six-member band headlines for the XIT Reunion and Rodeo and plays a variety of music. All of Slow Motion's members are from the Panhandle. The group began at Clarendon College and has been together for six years.

The Rhinestone Roundup will also include colorful competition in the Feedyard Challenge, with teams from feedyards in the region competing in several events. The challenge will kick off with a "calcutta" on Friday night, and will include team stray sorting, paint gun shooting, tennis, golf and washer pitching.

Tickets are available by calling the CHOF at 364-5252 or going by 515 Ave. B in Hereford.

Annual Jamaica planned Sunday

The annual Fiesta Fun Jamaica will be held Sunday from noon until 7 p.m. at Dameron Park in Hereford.

The Jamaica (pronounced "Huh-my-kuh") is an afternoon celebration of summer fun and features food, games, music and a flea market. All proceeds will benefit San Jose Catholic church in Hereford.

A variety of Mexican and American foods will be on sale at the park, including a wide variety of Mexican food, German sausage, hamburgers, barbecue and snacks.

Games and other booths will include picture buttons, bingo, fortune telling, a baby photo contest, greased pool climbing and other games for children and adults.

A "mercado" will feature a flea market-type atmosphere with bargains available for shoppers.

Throughout the day there will be live music provided by area bands, including Animacion, the Rough Riders, Los Nortenos De Chihuahua, The Moondogs and Diamante.

Putting the squeeze on it

Tommy Carnahan, left, pulls down on a hardwood rack as Roger Morris III of Vega bands their work together over a side of beef. The two were among the volunteers who worked Friday in preparation for the King's Manor Founders Association barbecue that was planned Saturday night at King's Manor.

City gearing up for fireworks

Sales of fireworks legally begin Monday at stands outside Hereford's city limits, but it will still be illegal to bring the fireworks into town.

Hereford Fire Marshal Jay Spain said the city will again be strongly enforcing the city ordinance that prohibits the possession or use of fireworks within the city limits. If fireworks are found, Spain said, they will be confiscated and the persons possessing or using the fireworks will be liable for a fine of up to $200.

The law was strengthened a few years ago because of a growing number of fires. In 1985, before the stronger law was put into effect, there were 18 fireworks-related fires in Hereford (including two house fires) and 198 complaints made by residents to police. In 1989, when the law was strengthened, there were only 44 complaints made to police. Police issued 21 citations for use or possession of fireworks in the city limits, and Spain issued another 5 citations. In all cases, the unused fireworks were confiscated.

Last year, there were only six fires in the county caused by fireworks (all were small grass fires) and only five citations were written.

"I think the law has done a lot of good," Spain said. "People know now that we are not going to tolerate fireworks in the city limits."

Spain said that persons using fireworks in the county should be careful, despite recent rains, of still-dry grass and wheat fields.

"Those fields will burn, even if they look green," Spain said. "Everyone needs to be sure they have the

Crimestoppers offers reward

Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers is offering a reward of up to $300 for information leading to an arrest and indictment in the Crime of the Week. Hereford police are investigating a house burglary in the 700 block of Thunderbird which occurred June 7, between 6 a.m. at 2:30 p.m. Items taken included a VCR, Nintendo game box and controllers, Sony jam box and Emerson clock radio.

If you have information about this or any other crime, call the Clue Line at 364-2583. You don't have to give your name; all callers may remain anonymous by using a code name or number. All final rewards are determined by the Crimestoppers board of directors.

Five persons arrested Friday

Five persons were arrested Friday by Hereford police, including a man, 19, for reckless driving at Ave. D and Park; three men, 20, 30 and 34, for public intoxication; and a man, 31, on a county warrant for sexual assault. Reports included failure to report an accident in the 500 block of Sycamore; unauthorized use of a motorcycle in the 700 block of Knight (the cycle was later returned but had been damaged in an accident; criminal mischief in the 800 block of N. Miles and in the 400 block of Hickory; and criminal trespass in the 200 block of Vera Cruz.

Police issued 7 citations and responded to 2 accidents Friday.

A GUIDE TO WORRY-FREE VACATIONS

Save this handy vacation checklist for those trips you plan to make this summer.

- Leave the air conditioner at about 80 (depending on how hot your home gets).
- Notify the post office to hold or forward your mail.
- Discontinue your newspaper (you can call Circulation Manager Charlene Brownlow at the Brand, 364-2030, and she'll put together a Vacation Pac for all the papers you'll miss).
- Install an inexpensive timer to turn inside lights on and off.
- Leave your key, forwarding address and phone number with a friend or neighbor.
- Close the faucets to your washing machine, and post a note to that effect.
- Remove perishables from the refrigerator. Turn off the ice maker.
- Make sure all doors and windows, including sliding glass doors, are secured.
- If you can't get anyone to water your houseplants, set them in the bathtub in several inches of water.
- Ask a neighbor to park in your driveway.
- Put a cup of bleach or disinfectant in toilet bowls and leave the seat up.

Decorating contest set for July 4th

Hereford residents should see red, and white and blue, too, on July 4, if a block-decorating contest draws a patriotic response from homeowners. Each block — both sides — entered in a contest sponsored by the Hereford Chamber of Commerce must have a majority of homes participating to be eligible for the cash prize.

Entry blanks are available at the CoC office and should be turned in by 5 p.m. on July 1.

Winning block will receive the $100 prize.

Although no prizes or judging are planned for Hereford business participation in the July 4 decorating project, the planning committee hopes stores will cooperate, also.

"The Fourth of July decorating committee would like to encourage businesses to decorate exteriors, with banners, bunting, flags, painted windows or anything else," said Elaine McNutt, a committee member.

Patriotic decorations are another phase of the gala July 4 celebration in the works for Hereford.

A parade, dedication of a memorial, free watermelon and a giant fireworks display are among activities on the day's agenda.

Neighbors planning decorations are reminded that no block will be judged without an official entry.

Winning block will be announced during activities during the evening activities at Veterans Park.

FIREWORKS

landowner's permission and there should always be adult supervision.

Spain believes the public fireworks display planned July 4th will cut down on the use of fireworks in the city.

"I hope everyone just decides they're going to wait for that, and maybe support that show with the money they were going to spend on fireworks," Spain said. "There's really no reason for anyone to buy fireworks with this great program we're going to have."

To cut down on the possibilities of accidents, vehicles and persons entering Veterans Park for the July 4th festivities will be searched for fireworks and alcohol.

Spain said the fireworks show is the best way for all persons to enjoy fireworks. He said statistics show that fireworks-related injuries per year have doubled since 1974, with over half of the injuries being burns. Fireworks also cause about $600,000 worth of property damage in the state each year.

Student, teacher attend conference

Jason Gearn, left, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Gearn of Hereford, and James Perkins, chemistry and physics teacher at Hereford High School, were among the 400 students and teachers at the 31st annual Texas Energy Science Symposium held recently in Austin. The four-day symposium featured tours and presentations on subjects including fusion and the superconducting super collider. Gearn and Perkins were sponsored by Southwestern Public Service Company.

GSPA to hold meeting

Producers in the Hereford area are invited to an informational meeting conducted by the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Association and the National Grain Sorghum Producers (NGSP). The meeting will be Thursday, June 27, at K-Bob's Restaurant. The 7:30 p.m. meeting will begin with a meal sponsored by First National Bank of Hereford and Production Credit Association of Texas.

Jack Eberspacher, executive director of NGSP, will speak to producers on the new farm bill, possible technical amendments to correct problems with the bill and issues that NGSP is working on.

"We want producers to let us know if new farm bill regulations are adversely affecting them," said Eberspacher. "There are inequities caused by the farm bill that must be corrected."

For example, producers in the Hereford area contacted Eberspacher earlier this year because they felt they were unfairly losing irrigated acreage due to an Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) rule.

Under that rule, producers were seeing a reduction in their irrigated acreage maximum if their farm had a history of growing both irrigated corn and irrigated grain sorghum, had participated in the acreage reduction program during one or more of the years 1988 through 1990, and had planted only one of the crops.

After reviewing information provided by NGSP on farms affected by the rule, Keith Bjerke, ASCS administrator, said that the rule has been changed and that producers who were affected will be notified of higher farm irrigated acreage maximum and will have their final 1991 deficiency payments computed using the new figures.

"By ourselves we were unable to resolve our problems as a result of the 1990 farm bill," said Don Simpkins, sorghum producer from Hereford who was affected by the rule. "However, the National Grain Sorghum Producers effectively communicated the inequities to Washington and resolved our problems."

WPA legacy found in many areas of U. S.

Eight million worked in Depression program

EDITOR'S NOTE - The most far-reaching relief program in American history ended 50 years ago. But the WPA did not go away, not completely. It gave work, and a measure of dignity, to 8 million victims of the Great Depression. All across the nation evidence of that remains, the legacy of the desperate.

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
DEEP GAP, N.C. (AP) - Russell Wellborn was sitting on his tractor tire in his shed the other day talking about hard times. He is 81, still a workman, and has seen his share of them.

"I'm down to a crew of three, just me and two other carpenters," he said. "There's no work to be had. We've found a few scattered jobs here and there but most times nothing at all.

"If it keeps on like this, it could get worse than the '30s. At least back then everybody had a little farm, or everybody around here did. We didn't need much money. Now all the small farms are gone and you have to have cash to get by.

"And of course," he said, as if no more needed saying, "back then we had the WPA."

America's Great Depression of the 1930s could well have been named for this one remote corner of the land deep in the Blue Ridge Mountains, where Russell Wellborn was birthed by a midwife and educated in a log school. Here, unemployment was almost total. And, yes, evidence abounds a half-century later that the beleaguered souls who survived it did indeed have the WPA. Its legacy is everywhere.

In Boone, the next town west of here, the old native-stone post office with its granite counter and brass inkwells is evidence of the WPA. So is the heroic mural above, honoring the town's eponymous Daniel Boone, signed in 1940 by a forgotten artist named Alan Tompkins. So is the Boone school evidence of the WPA and 49 other school buildings in Watauga County. So is the county library and so is the 635-page "Guide to North Carolina" on its history shelf. All evidence that for six years of American history the WPA flourished, and left its mark.

The WPA - Works Progress Administration - was the basic social and economic program of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal. It began in the summer of 1935 and ended, 50 years ago, in the summer of 1941.

In those six years more than 8 million unemployed men and women across the nation, 20 percent of the labor force, built 20,000 schools, hospitals, libraries, gymnasiums. They built water lines and sewer lines and mile after mile of farm-to-market roads where none existed. It was in many respects a clumsy, bureaucratic monster - it took the president four press conferences to explain it - but "the essential fact remains," according to historian Nathan Miller, "that it was the largest and most successful relief operation in American history."

Certainly its most durable. If, for example, out in the American countryside you should come across a mossy old stone bridge still doing its job you likely will find on it a date in the late '30s. The reports of the nation's infrastructure falling apart do not, ironically, include many of its oldest structures. Those WPA bridges were built to last.

"The highway people want to widen 221 out east of here," Russell Wellborn mentioned. "But they would have to rebuild the bridge where 221 goes under the parkway and they can't find masons who do that kind of stone work anymore. So they're hung up."

The parkway he's talking about is the Blue Ridge Parkway, a 470-mile stretch of extraordinary scenery along the sinuous spine of the loftiest ranges east of the Rockies. It connects the Shenandoah National Park in Virginia with the Great Smokies National Park in Tennessee, passing through North Carolina. Breathtaking. It was one of Roosevelt's pet WPA projects.

The bridge that crosses over U.S. Route 221 at Deep Gap is one of 105 bridges, culverts and retaining walls built along the parkway between 1935 and 1941, all good as new, showing for all their age only a reassuring patina of long service.

They were built of native stone taken, so the geologists tell us, from some of the oldest mountains on the planet. Taken, sculpted and returned. The 22 million people who visit the parkway annually can still see on the rock faces the marks of the hand drills of the blasting crews. Hand drills, not power drills, because the idea of the WPA was to put to work as many people as possible as close to home as possible with as little cost as possible in machinery and materials.

And to start them working as quickly as possible. Hundreds of men began building the parkway simultaneously in segments all along the route and joined them later. It was the practice throughout the land.

"I guess there are more efficient ways to build a road," said Harley Jolley, "but the main purpose of WPA was relief, not efficiency." Jolley is a retired history professor at Mars Hill College just up the parkway from Asheville, N.C. (The high school at Mars Hill, still in use, was WPA-built.) He has made a lifelong study of the parkway and its builders.

"Most of these mountain people would rather starve than go on the dole," Jolley said. "So to them the WPA was a godsend. It saved their lives and also their self-respect."

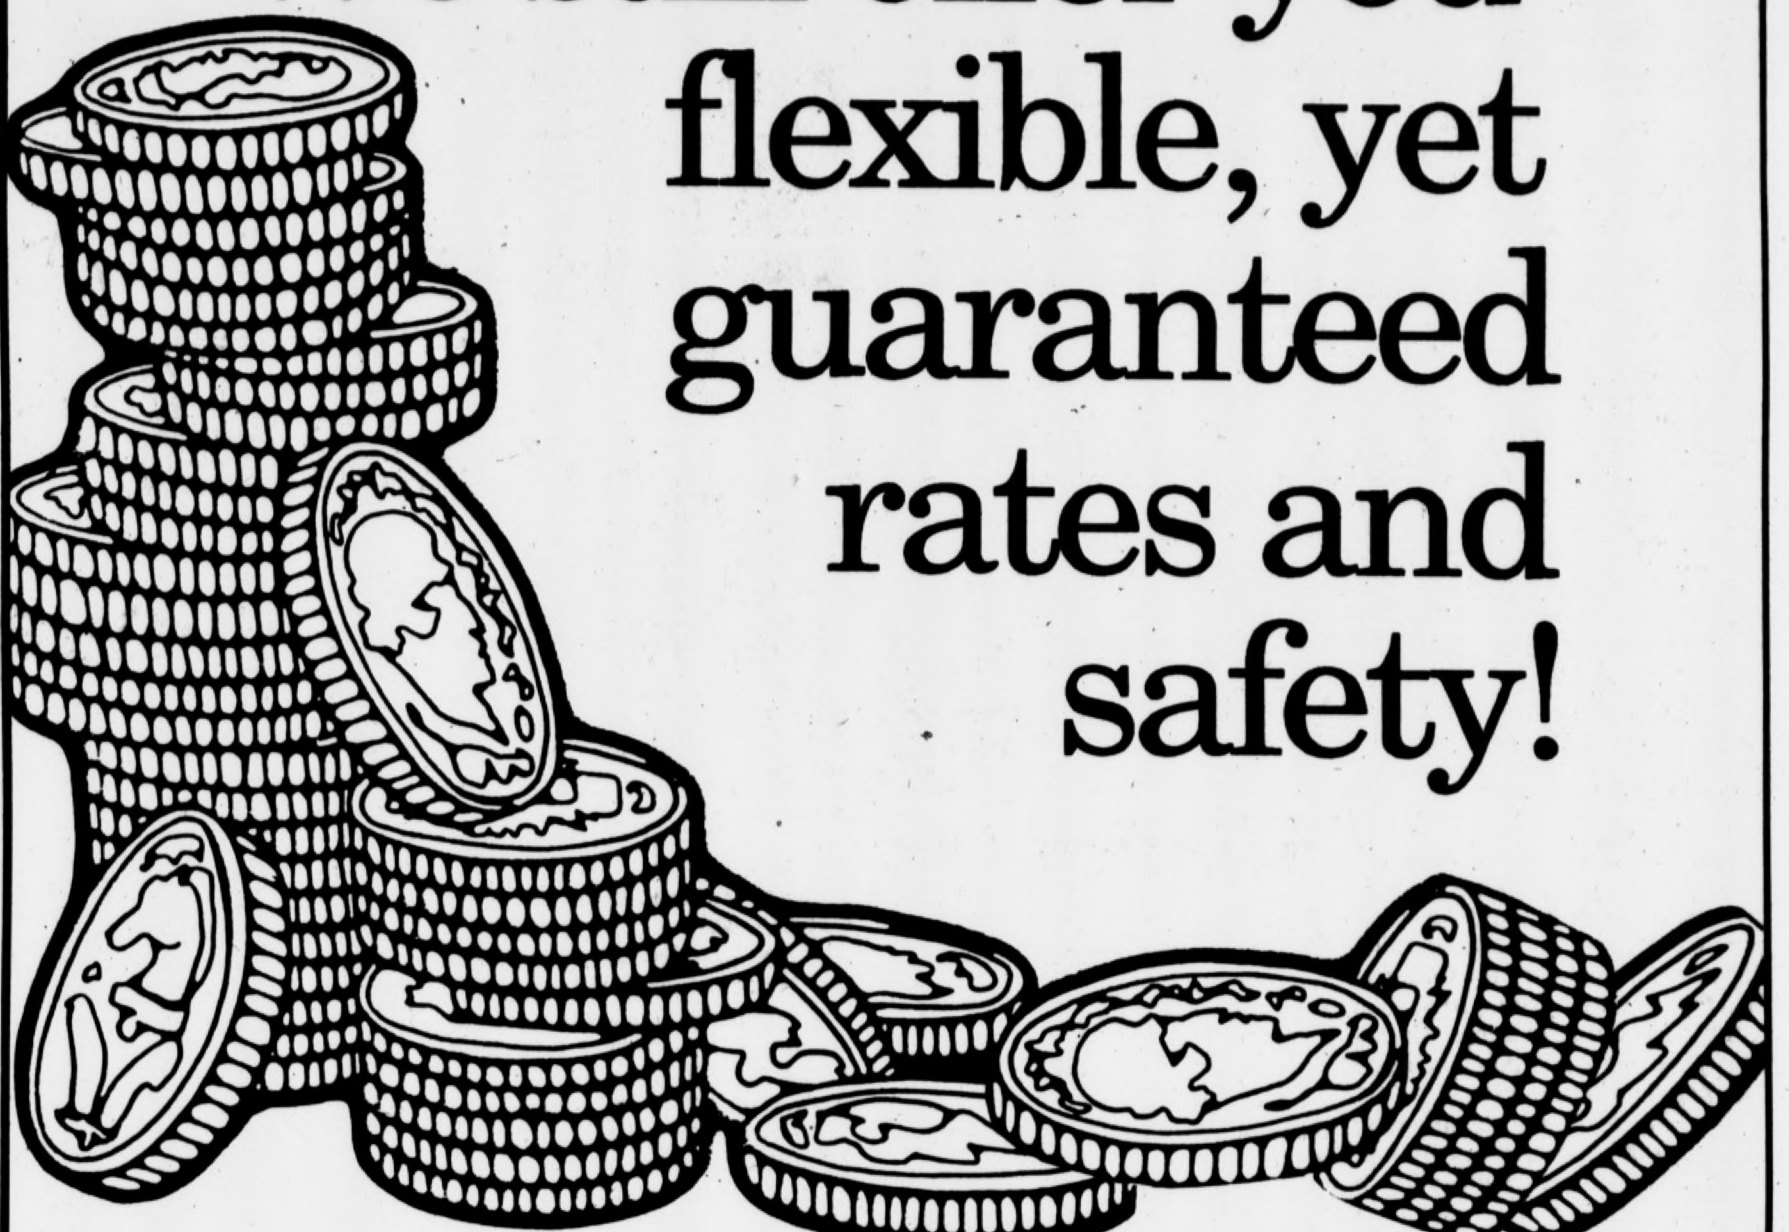

The WPA was a model of inefficiency, all right. It added the word boondoggle, a Scottish import meaning "an unearned reward," to the American idiom. Cartoonists of the period had a field day showing men leaning on shovels. Indeed, even Roosevelt, during the 1936 election campaign, told one of his speechwriters, Judge Samuel Rosenman, how much fun he would have if he were his opponent.

"I would cite chapter and verse on WPA inefficiency," he said. "There's plenty of it - bound to be in such a vast emergency program." He considered that a moment, Rosenman told an F.D.R. biographer, and grinned. "You know," he said, "the more I think about it the more I think I could lick myself." Criticized it may have been, but when Roosevelt passed through Marietta, Ohio, an old woman knelt where he had stood, bent down and kissed his footprint in the dust.

Russell Wellborn found work on the Blue Ridge Parkway, cutting brush. His brother Ed worked on a drilling crew. The parkway fed the families, and the dignity, not only of out-of-work manual laborers and Congress is such a strange place. A person gets up to speak and says nothing, nobody listens, and then everybody disagrees.

Plans for the big July 4th Celebration in Hereford are about complete, but help is still needed from citizens. If you'd like to help defray the costs of the big fireworks display (which is free to the public), go by the chamber of commerce office at 7th and Main and leave a contribution!

The Cowgirl Hall of Fame will hold its annual Rhinestone Roundup events next Friday and Saturday. The special weekend events include the induction ceremony for honorees, an art show and open house at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame, Feedyard Challenge events and dinners and dancing. Look for all the details and call the Hall of Fame for tickets!

A guest editorial on this page may appear too lengthy, at first glance, to wade through but it should be required reading if you are concerned about taxes.

While elected officials in Austin keep screaming that Texas government needs more money and that a personal income tax or some other taxes are necessary, it's refreshing to read this column by State Rep. John Smith. He learns that things may not be as some politicians paint them and that there is an alternative.

The most revealing statement by Smith is that the state could adopt an "existing revenue" budget which would equalize public education funding, open new prisons, increase funding for higher education, increase social services, give state employees a $604 million pay raise, and still leave a surplus! With no tax increase, says Smith, Texas would still have a 13 percent increase in all funds. This type budget would not cut spending--it simply holds increases to a reasonable rate!

Take time to read the editorial, then take time to write Smith, State Sen. Teel Bivins, and any other state official.

Speaking of state government, do you remember our new governor's campaign promises to cut waste and to install fiscal responsibility that will eliminate the need for new taxes?

She recently let a controversial state retirement law go into effect without her signature. With our state elected officials screaming for more funds, this doesn't do much for fiscal responsibility. We should point out that Gov. Ann Richards made good on one promise--a raise for state employees.

It's a bill that will double the benefits of most state employees and cost taxpayers of Texas millions of dollars. Rep. Buzz Robnett of Lubbock slipped in an amendment to the retirement bill in those closing hours of the session and it is part of the law.

Robnett's amendment calls for legislators to receive full retirement benefits at age 50 if they have 12 years of service. Would you believe that Robnett is 50 and has served 12 years? Maybe it's a coincidence!

Remember, too, that retirement pay is tied to a percentage of the salary of state district judges. And guess who sets the salary of these judges? If you guessed the state legislature, you're right!

A confident young man applied for a job and presented his resume to the personnel manager. The manager looked over the application and said, "I see you've got recommendations from your church minister and your Sunday School teacher. That's great, but I'd like to see a recommendation from someone who knows you on weekdays!"

John Brooks

Babbling Brooks

See, life is so great. I couldn't have said that a few months ago, maybe not even a few weeks ago, but it is great.

I guess life is great when you're really in love with someone you care very, very, very much about.

Love may not be the only thing that makes the world go around, but it is at least the fuel if not the impetus.

I used to be one of those folks that took up the old adage, "Once burned, twice scorned" when it came to love. I was more than cynical when it came to matters of the heart, and the callouses had pretty well been built up over the last few years.

However, all it takes is one person, just the right person, to peel all those callouses away, to heal the hurts. Maybe it's always been this way, but do you feel better when you're with someone you love? You know, you can be yourself, you can be free. No false pretenses, no false front, just let your hair down and let 'er rip. When you're in love, you can call a spade, a spade, not a metal implement with a wooden handle used for the recycling of dirt. You can speak your piece and know that the listener really cares.

You can live life again, and that counts for more than anything else in the whole world. I hope you can tell that I'm really fired up about life right now. We'll see how things progress and hope for the best.

One of the most important things you can have, I have learned only recently, is a love for yourself. You gotta love yourself before you can love anyone else.

Pardon me while I preach for a minute, but we need to work on everyone else's self-esteem around here.

I have become more cognizant in recent months of how we all (me included) do a much better job of tearing other people down instead of building them up. All that does is destroy everyone around us, and no one gains from that.

Why can't we all have a genuine, full-time concern for those around us. Not a meddling concern, but the affirmation that everyone else really is okay.

I have on my office wall a "Declaration of Self-Esteem." Mind if I share it with you?

I am me. I am unique. There's not another human being in the whole world like me. I have my very own fingerprints and I have my very own thoughts. I was not stamped out of a mold like a Coca-Cola top to be the duplicate of another.

I own all of me: my body, and I can do with it what I choose; my mind, and all of its thoughts and ideas; my feelings, whether joyful or painful.

I own my ideals, my dreams, my hopes, my fantasies, my fears.

I reserve the right to think and feel differently from others and will grant to others their right to thoughts and feelings not identical with my own.

I own all my triumphs and successes. I own all my failures and mistakes. I am the cause of what I do and am responsible for my own behavior. I will permit myself to be imperfect. When I make mistakes or fail, I know that I am not a failure (I am still OK) and I will discard some parts of me that were unfitting and will try new ways.

I will laugh freely and loudly at myself, a healthy self-affirmation.

I will have fun living inside my skin.

I will remember that the door to everybody's life needs this sign:

HONOR THYSELF
I have value and worth.
I am me, and I am OK.

'Existing revenue' budget needed

BY JOHN SMITHEE

Gov. Ann Richards struck the populist chord in us all in her February state-of-the-state address when (speaking on the lottery issue) she remarked, "The people have a right to choose. In these times of fiscal belt tightening, I believe they will choose what is best for Texas."

The same logic should be applied to the present budget debate. The people of Texas should have the right to choose whether they want a balanced budget with no new taxes, or an inflated budget with higher taxes.

If you were like me, you were horrified when you recently read that the Governor's Task Force on Revenue was considering two proposals. One would impose a 6 percent personal income tax, a 6.5 percent corporate income tax, plus large increases in the sales tax. The other plan would almost triple the gasoline tax (resulting in a 20-cent per gallon increase), double college tuition, impose a new $4 billion "business tax," and raise a myriad of other taxes. This is all in addition to the $223 million in increased "fees" recently passed by the legislature.

Each proposal averages out to more than $350 a year per person in additional tax burden, or more than $1,400 for a typical family of four. Does your family have an extra $1,400 lying around waiting to be handed over to the state--not to mention what additional damage we receive from federal and local tax increases? And what do we receive in return? Certainly not fiscal stability.

In an article for the Reason Foundation published in the December 1990 Reader's Digest, Stephen Moore examined the experience of other states in raising taxes and concluded, "New taxes may in the short term seem to promise fiscal relief, but over the long haul they will usher in budget crises worse than those they were intended to solve." In accord is a recent study by the National Center for Policy Analysis, which concludes that an income tax in Texas would lower the state's output by 2.7 percent, or about $10.6 billion a year, not even mentioning the certain loss of thousands of jobs.

All this screaming from Austin about the acute need for higher taxes points up the accuracy of Nobel Prize-winning economist Milton Friedman, who observed: "Political Rule No. 1 is that government spends what government receives plus as much more as it can get away with." Calvin Coolidge had a response to a similar problem several decades ago, when he opined, "Collecting more taxes than is absolutely necessary is legalized robbery." Will Rogers put it best when he said, "I remember when a liberal was someone who was generous with his own money."

Editorial opinion around the state

Here is a roundup of editorial opinion in Texas newspapers:

Houston Chronicle on Term-Limit Vote

The people and those who govern them seem to be at one of those fundamental crossroads.

If conventional wisdom is correct - and there is much evidence it is - the public, nationwide, is ready, even eager to limit the number of terms elected officials can serve, and limit them at every level of government.

... City Hall is confronted with a 26,000-signature petition which seeks to legally force, under provisions of the City Charter, a term limitation referendum on Aug. 10.

Elected officials, including our own at City Hall, are for the most part quite leery of this suddenly fashionable political groundswell.

... But if the will of the people is the bedrock of democracy, officialdom is going to have to yield on term limitation. The people should be given their say - and not an unreasonably stage-managed say.

We are well aware of the deeply troubling aspects of term limitation. They trouble us. The most basic is the most simple: placing an artificial limitation on whom people may elect to office. It seems to us that an equally bedrock principle of democracy is that people should be able to elect whomever they wish.

Beyond that, there are foreseeable long-term consequences which are worrying. In the incredibly complex world of modern government, inexperienced and short-term elected officials inescapably mean a much more powerful and influential non-elected and non-accountable staff and bureaucracy.

... Still it seems to us that such unease is most properly the stuff of debate about whether to vote a particular form of term limit, not whether there should be a vote at all.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram on Jail Crowding

Once again, Texas is about to reap what its legislators have sown. Harris County rejected a compromise settlement with the state to pay counties for past and future housing of convicted felons and thus torpedoed a legislative plan accepted by 12 other counties, including Tarrant. Those counties agreed to drop the lawsuit in exchange for the state's promise to provide $1.1 billion for 28,500 new prison beds and partial reimbursement for state prisoners held in county jails.

Had Harris accepted the bargain - certainly an unattractive and unfavorable bargain for the counties - at least modest progress may have moved the prison system toward improvement, although such an outcome was not certain.

The Legislature has a long history of being untrustworthy in fulfilling its constitutional responsibilities. The court victory by the counties was yet another instance of aggrieved parties being forced to resort to judicial relief to compel the state to do what it should. ...

Harris officials showed courage by taking a stand on principle, despite the intense public pressure to capitulate and the unfortunate delay brought on by the rejected agreement.

Yes, the failed compromise will be considerably more expensive for the state than the meager bargain offered by legislators. Yet such is the consequence of shortsighted, parsimonious rigidity. Will legislators ever learn?

El Paso Herald-Post on Persian Gulf military intelligence

How pleasant it was to see Gen. Norman Swarzkopf back on the tube again, as he testified Wednesday before a congressional committee ...

His major complaint: The intelligence that gulf commanders received from Washington was too cautious and too general to be of much use. Intelligence during the gulf war was coordinated by the Central Intelligence Agency and carried out by the Pentagon's intelligence outfits ...

The intelligence agencies offered far more cautious estimates of battle damage among the Iraqi forces than the assessments of commanders on the ground. Those estimates were crucial in determining when the land war should begin.

The intelligence also was late. The assessments made in Washington couldn't be transmitted to the field in "real time," resulting in delays as long as a full day.

Such glitches, serious as they are, should surprise no one, and it would be a mistake to make too much of them. We did win the war, after all, quickly and with a minimum of casualties. The success was due largely to our technological superiority. The mistakes we can learn from; the victory we can still savor.

Dear Editor:

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank all the Hereford City Park employees for doing such a good job on our parks.

Holly Sugar had his annual employee's picnic at Veteran's Park last Saturday, and I was very proud of the up-keep of the park. The park was clean and neat, making it possible for all of us at Holly to have a good time and to utilize our local facilities.

I'd like to say thank you for a job well done and hope you continue to take such pride in your jobs and in our community!

Dear editor,

On behalf of the American Legion Auxiliary, I would like to say thanks to the people and merchants of Hereford for the generous participation and support of our recent poppy distribution.

Your generosity will help promote our projects for our veterans and pay tribute to all who died in service.

We would like to say thanks to Mayor Tom LeGate for proclaiming May 22 as Poppy Day; the Hereford Brand and staff for coverage and picture in the newspaper; KPAN for coverage on radio; and thanks to our local merchants who generously provided space for us to distribute our poppies, which are emblems of sacrifice.

Last but not least, thanks to the ladies who gave their time to make it all a success. With everyone working together, it was a success.

WPA legacy remains around country skilled craftsmen but also engineers and landscape architects and accountants and countless clerks and paper shufflers in three states. "They all held on to their talents and skills until good times returned," Jolley said.

Honoring the past, the WPA restored Fort Raleigh on Roanoke Island, N.C., and the historic Dock Street Theatre in Charleston, S.C. Looking ahead, the WPA built airfields, mainly in medium-sized cities such as Asheville, Charlotte and Pinehurst in North Carolina, but also in New York City where 5,000 men working three shifts six days a week built LaGuardia Airport in two years. A year later it became the world's busiest airport.

And, as if to promise that good times would indeed return some glory day, they built 313 public golf courses and remodeled another 389. Bobby Jones, the most celebrated golfer of the era, served as unpaid consultant.

For many Depression schoolchildren a WPA lunch was their only hot meal of the day. This generation's Head Start program, the most successful enterprise of Lyndon Johnson's Great Society, had its origin in WPA nursery schools. WPA workers staffed dental and medical clinics, rural and urban. They translated millions of pages into Braille and taught thousands of illiterates to read, the seedbed of adult education programs in many cities today. When Key West, Fla., went bankrupt, the WPA took over municipal functions to keep the city operating.

From coast to coast, WPA sewing rooms sprang up in attics and basements of public buildings. In one nine-month period, 700 women in Buncombe County, North Carolina, recycled Army uniforms into 68,000 overalls, dresses and baby garments for distribution to the indigent.

Across the continent, at Mt. Hood, Ore., recycled sewing room scraps were recycled again into bedspreads, curtains and hooked rugs; abandoned railroad tracks were recycled into andirons and chandeliers and recycled railroad ties sculpted into newel posts. The project provided 500 jobs. The result was the grand and soaring Timberline Lodge. The purpose was not so much to build a national landmark, which it is, but to provide 500 jobs for artisans, which it did.

Looking back, it is hard to find an area of American life not touched by the WPA. But perhaps its most notable innovation was the inclusion in a federal relief program of unemployed actors, musicians, artists and writers.

"Why not?" Roosevelt said. "They are human beings. They have to live."

The arts enterprises cost only a fraction of the $10 billion laid out for the WPA over its six-year span. But the four projects, lumped together under the shorthand reference Federal One, may have attracted the most attention.

This generation's National Endowment for the Arts is a descendant of Federal One, complete with controversy. But for all the squabbling, the records show that in one year, 1936, more people in the United States attended WPA shows and listened to WPA music than all other performances and concerts combined, mostly in places that had never known live theater or symphonic music.

More than 150 resident acting companies put on everything from Shakespeare in school auditoriums to puppet shows in orphanages and children's wards. WPA dance bands and orchestras showed up for free concerts in city parks and hoedowns in Grange halls and mining camps.

Box-office counts showed that 30 million people attended Theater Project productions. The project introduced to America many whose names would later appear in lights: Orson Welles, Arthur Miller, John Huston, Joseph Cotten, E.G. Marshall, Arlene Francis, John Houseman, George Izenour to name just a smattering. Burt Lancaster began his career as an aerialist in a WPA circus.

The Music Project as well exposed America's untapped talent. Besides bringing cheer to a nation desperately in need of it, it produced 5,300 original works composed by 1,500 WPA musicians, an undreamed of creative opulence. Musicians who got their start in the WPA wound up in a dozen of the nation's symphony orchestras, two as conductors. Indeed, the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, the whole shebang, began as a WPA group.

Federal One's even more conspicuously successful effort was the Federal Arts Project. It was, says historian William McDonald, "in material, size and cultural character unprecedented in this or any other nation."

The centerpiece was its murals program. Private patronage had dried up for America's artists, but walls were free and paint was cheap. Murals blossomed in hospitals, schools and public buildings, from the airport in Cincinnati to the post office in Boone, N.C. In all, more than 6,000 artists, eager to earn the standard rate of $23.86 a week, went to work in all 48 states.

Well, 46. The WPA director in Vermont felt that needy artists ought to do manual labor, "something worthwhile." The Texas director was afraid the artists might try to sneak some subversive message on a Texas wall. Both refused to participate.

The murals, though, tended more toward heroic themes and local history, such as the mural in the Boone post office. But unlike the Boone mural, which remains, others, neglected over the past half century, are long gone.

Even those, however, seem to have taken on the fascination of sunken treasure, especially if the artists who painted them became famous.

It was known, for example, that Archille Gorky, a premier American painter of the day, had painted 10 panels for the Newark Airport. Two of them have been recovered under 14 layers of wall paint.

A recent survey by New York's Municipal Art Society found that only about 200 WPA murals remain of more than 500 commissioned, and some of those too far gone to restore. But others were deemed well worth saving and the society is raising money to do that. One, by Ilya Bolotowsky, had been painted over five to seven times in a hospital on Roosevelt Island. Another, by Charles Alston, one of the black artists who got his start in the WPA, is peeling off the wall in Harlem Hospital. Both will be saved.

No less than the Theater Project, the Art Project produced its own long list of illustrious names: Jackson Pollock, Ben Shahn, Willem de Kooning, Anton Refregier, Yasuo Kuniyoshi, Aaron Bohrod, Stuart Davis.

So did the Federal Writers Project. Future Nobelist Saul Bellow worked for the WPA. So did Ralph Ellison, John Cheever, Conrad Aiken, Studs Terkel, Nelson Algren and Arna Bontemps. Richard Wright wrote by day for the WPA, which sustained him while he wrote "Native Son" by night.

The Writers Project is most remembered for the detailed guidebooks for every U.S. state and territory. But its 6,000 writers also gathered first-person narratives of more than 10,000 Americans, people who likely never would have left a record, including the life stories of more than 1,000 former slaves.

The program ended before all but a handful were assembled and published. The rest were stuck away, unorganized, in the National Archives, about 150,000 pages of manuscript.

The WPA was inefficient, the pay miserable - $55 a week was the nationwide average. But it fed some of the hungry and clothed some of the naked. Driving down the Blue Ridge Parkway or gazing up at Timberline Lodge, it is hard to think of them as what they are, the legacy of the desperate.

Still just as sweet and innocent at "16" We're proud of you! Love ya.

They didn't call it "True Grit" in those days.

It was simply a matter of gettin' on with life!

The strength, spirit, stamina and courage illustrated by western women will be recognized and remembered once more here as the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center of Hereford unbridles its annual Rhinestone Roundup June 28th - 29th.

One-hundred seven women have been honored and recognized for their pioneering efforts in all walks of life. Those chosen for their contribution to Western Heritage have been inducted for their pioneering spirit of the West. Cowgirls have been inducted for promoting the sport of rodeo and allowing the wild west to live on.

The First National Bank of Hereford is proud the center calls Hereford home, and we encourage you to support it in its aim to honor all women who represent the pioneering spirit, dedication, and even "True Grit" which has helped shape the rugged face of the American West.

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) - Scientists Friday irradiated parts of the remains of President Zachary Taylor in a uranium-fueled reactor to determine if the nation's 12th president died of arsenic poisoning.

Hair and nail samples taken earlier this week in an exhumation in Louisville, Ky., were delivered to Oak Ridge National Laboratory on Thursday.

The samples were placed in the lab's High Flux Isotope Reactor, the Department of Energy's most powerful research reactor, and bombarded with neutrons.

Larry Robinson of the lab's analytical chemistry division said arsenic releases a distinctive gamma ray after irradiation, which means the nuclear technology can detect and measure microscopic quantities of the poison.

PROFESSIONAL NEGOTIATORS PART 1

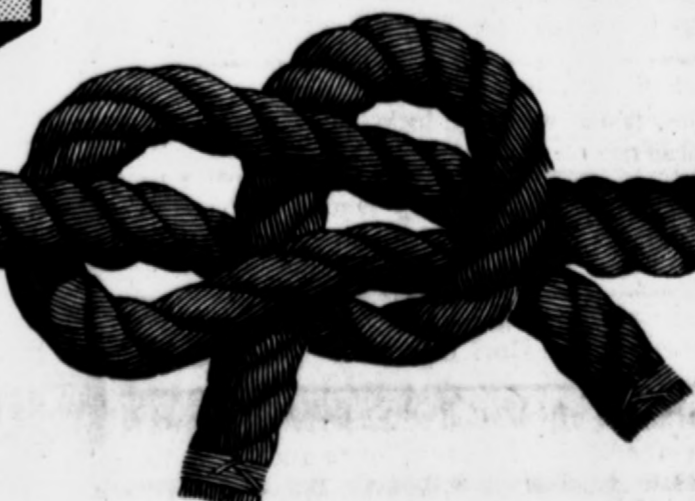

When home buyers buy, and home sellers sell, would you say they share the same needs? Even if they are friends or relatives, sellers and buyers live in two completely different worlds, at least during the short period in which they are participants in a real estate transaction. Just take a look. Buyers want seller financing with a low down payment, sellers want cash for their home. The buyers don't want to pay closing costs, neither do the sellers. The buyers want the swing set in the yard and the gas barbecue grill on the patio, the sellers can be adamantly opposed. This is why a professional third party can make an impartial difference. Next week we will explain why there is conflict in their positions.

Awards given at golf camp

The Hereford Whiteface Summer Golf Camp concluded Friday with camp director Stacey Bixler handing out certificates and special awards to 15 golfers.

The Best All-Around awards were given to Bryant McNutt, Daniel Edwards and Kate Bone, while Cody Sargent and Jami Bell were chosen Most Improved over the course of the week-long camp.

Receiving the Hardest Worker awards were Michael DelaCerde, Todd Dudley, Tori Walker and Britney Binder.

Most Enthusiastic awards were given to Curt Cantrell, Sara Maclaskey and Stephanie Bixler, and Best Attitude awards were given to Clint Robinson, Jennifer Phipps and Krista Beville.

Bixler said the camp was a success, with 37 young golfers attending.

Spurs need point guard

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Rod Strickland is all alone and the San Antonio Spurs want to do something about it during this week's NBA draft.

The only problem is the Spurs have the 49th pick in Wednesday's draft, and they'll be lucky if a solid guard is still available.

"When you draft there you look for the best basketball player," Spurs coach Larry Brown said. "It would be nice if we could come up with a guard, but I think we're going to just look for the best basketball player out there."

The Spurs say that Strickland, a 6-3 point guard, needs backcourt help. He was the target of most full-court traps and double-teams last season because he was the only player capable of bringing the ball up the floor.

"There were certain situations in transition where Rod was doubled," Spurs spokesman Matt Sperisen said. "The fast-break was lost a lot of times because we were relying on one person to lead the break constantly."

The Spurs, 55-27 last year, intend to have a two-guard front with both guards able to shoot, pass, and, most of all, handle the ball in the transition and half-court game.

With the 49th selection, though, a point guard with a keen shooting eye may be an unattainable fantasy.

"I don't think a guy with any size will float down to our slot that will have the talent to play in the NBA," said Bob Bass, the Spurs' vice president of basketball operations. "So it'll probably be a guard, if we can get one that we think has a chance of making our team."

The Spurs also feel their reserves didn't produce as expected last season and that the team needs players who can contribute off the bench immediately.

Strickland and Terry Cummings, both starters, were hampered by injury for parts of last season and no one picked up the slack. No reserve averaged more than 8 points per game last season and only Paul Pressey, with 8.3 points per game, averaged more than eight in the Spurs' lone playoff series against the Golden State Warriors.

None of the Spur's draft picks from 1990 established themselves as the finishing touch to the 1987 draft, when San Antonio took David Robinson.

Dwayne Schintzius, Tony Massenburg and Sean Higgins averaged just 10.6 points and 5.9 rebounds per contest combined.

Houston hopes for forward

By JAIME ARON
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - The last time the Houston Rockets had the 20th pick of the NBA draft, they selected Buck Johnson.

On Wednesday, five drafts later, the Rockets return to the 20th spot. This time, they will try to select someone who can immediately help Johnson at small forward and possibly replace him in the future.

"We really need someone who can give us some scoring at that position," Rockets coach Don Chaney said. "Whether it helps force Buck to move his game up, or whether this person will step in front of Buck and Buck comes up, it doesn't really matter to me. I just want to strengthen myself at that position."

Chaney said he was disappointed Johnson did not attend a summer mini-camp the coach felt would improve Johnson's overall game.

Houston's small forward deficiency did not stop the team from setting franchise records for overall victories (52) and consecutive victories (13).

But in the first round of the playoffs, the Los Angeles Lakers exploited Houston's weakness, sweeping the Rockets in three games.

The Rockets say they will take the best available player when they get their turn Wednesday, but Chaney has his fingers crossed that that player is a small forward.

"If we had a dynamite small forward there, I'd be smiling all the way," said Chaney, who called Billy Owens of Syracuse, an expected lottery pick, his dream choice.

But Rockets General Manager Steve Patterson said that because his team has a late first-round pick they must concentrate on taking the best available athlete rather than trying to fill a position.

"We're looking for a guy who can develop over the next two or three years into a starter or a player that's in the rotation," Patterson said.

Speculation about who the Rockets will pick has focused on LaBradford Smith of Louisville, a native of Bay City, Texas. The 6-3, 200-pound guard averaged 16.6 points his senior year while setting school career records for assists and 3-pointers.

Houston also owns the 47th and 51st picks, two of the final eight choices in the two-round draft. Chaney said the team has tried to package those picks with the 20th choice, but has received little interest from around the league.

Mavericks repairing with youth

By ARNIE STAPLETON
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Last year the Dallas Mavericks went for broke by trading three first-round draft picks for veterans Rodney McCray and Fat Lever, seasoned pros who could help Roy Tarpley bring home the NBA trophy.

They came up broke. After a 4-1 start, Lever and Tarpley got hurt, and in their absence, the Mavs lost 53 of their last 77 games. McCray averaged 11.4 points, slightly more than another seasoned addition, Alex English, who got his walking papers.

Now, they've got the No. 6 pick in Wednesday's draft and a chance

Dykes to attend Coahoma team reunion

By BILL HART
Abilene Reporter-News
COAHOMA, Texas (AP) - In 1964, Coahoma High School needed a head football coach, so it hired a young assistant at San Angelo Central named Spike Dykes.

Yes, that's the same Spike Dykes who is the head football coach at Texas Tech University.

Coahoma hadn't been setting the woods on fire, although it was 4-5-1 the year before Dykes arrived, but most of the players were returning.

The Bulldogs caught fire under Dykes, going 10-1 the first year and 12-1 the next. The team hadn't been in the playoffs in 11 years until Spike came on the scene.

people turned out to be the warmest community I've been in."

No wonder. His Bulldogs averaged 36 points a game the first year and 43 the second. They averaged allowing about a touchdown a game, so it's easy to tell which team won.

It might not have been all coaching, because there was a lot of talent. All of his starters made all-district and 13 were offered college scholarships, most to small colleges. The Saturday Evening Post magazine even came to town and included the Bulldogs in an article comparing high school football in Texas and Pennsylvania.

To save the team's neck, Eddie McHugh took a pitchout and went around end on the first play of the second half for a 60-yard touchdown, fueling the Bulldogs to a 24-13 win.

"After the game, he told us how much he loved us, that if we kept working hard, we'd have a season to remember for the rest of our lives," Wolski said. "Then he hugged each one of us, getting blood and sweat all over his white shirt."

"That was the last time that year we were behind at the end of the first half."

Success begets success, and the fans rallied around the young coach and his players. Coahoma met Aspermont in the ninth game of the season for the District 6-A championship, and portable stands were brought in from Big Spring, 10 miles away. Many still had to stand, so the next year, a new stadium was built to seat 3,200 fans. It turned out to be too small.

Fans would arrive at the stadium four hours before gametime just to get a seat, and when the playoffs rolled around, the Bulldogs played before 7,500 fans. The locals formed police escorted caravans that extended in excess of three miles behind the bus carrying the Bulldogs to their games.

Seagraves ended Coahoma's first unbeaten season under Dykes, 34-26, in bi-district, although the Bulldogs took a 20-18 lead into the fourth quarter and despite 205 yards rushing on just 13 carries by McHugh, who was injured late in the game.

"The boys didn't lose that game, coaching did," Dykes said. "A.D. Shaver (of Seagraves) outcoached me 7-1 and we still almost beat them with that 1."

The next year, Coahoma romped and stomped through the regular season and none of the games was really close. The Bulldogs bit Plains, 51-14, in bi-district, then ousted a Sonora team in regional that had allowed only 53 points in 11 games, 25-14.

White Deer ended the dream in the quarterfinals, 27-23, although at one time in the third quarter the margin was 27-7. The Bulldogs were deep in White Deer territory in the waning seconds, but an incomplete pass and fumble ended the threat.

White Deer went to the finals before losing to Wills Point, 14-0.

"I was just dumber than a box full of rocks," Dykes said. "We should have won that game, too, but we had a lot of fun."

But the players have a different opinion of Spike.

"Coach was dedicated to what he was doing and he expected you to do your best," said backup quarterback and defensive back Wayne Oglesby, who preaches for the Calvary Baptist Church in Abilene. "He made certain we knew what we were supposed to do and he expected us to do it. I remember driving by the fieldhouse late at night and he and the other coaches would be there working on plays. He knew what he wanted when he came on the field. We had a lot of respect for him and the staff."

Coahoma's success wasn't limited to just football, which tells the kind of athletic ability Dykes had to work with. The basketball team, coached by the late Bill Easterling, averaged 20 wins the next two years. One came in the Trent tournament, 128-26, and Coahoma only had two players on the court in the fourth quarter.

The track team finished second at the state meet in 1967 to Goldthwaite, but Mike Mosley won the 880 (1:55), the late Tony Butler won the discus

After the second season, Dykes called the team together and said they were special and that they ought to have reunions every 10 years. But something always got in the way until this year.

The 25th anniversary will be celebrated on June 29 with a reunion. Dykes has his bags packed. So do most of the players.

"That's the only time that I've ever applied for a job," Dykes recalls. "I was ready to try head coaching, so I applied at Snyder, Colorado City and every little bitty town around."

"Coahoma wasn't very picturesque, and I think Sharon (his wife) was crying when we were going across the railroad tracks, but she did that at every job I've taken. But those Six of the players went into coaching. Others have been successful in other ventures.

What kind of a coach was the rookie Dykes?

"He scared me to death at half time of our first game and we were down only 7-0 to Rankin," said Eddie Wolski, now with the Texas High School Coaches Association in Austin. "He came in, kicked over some trash cans and told us to take off our uniforms, that we were an embarrassment to him, ourselves, the school and the community. Hey, we thought we were doing pretty good, but he told us differently."

"He said if we didn't score the first time we had the ball in the third quarter to just head on to the dressing room and he'd follow. I was afraid he was going to kill us."

on. Lee Trevino once said he would put on a gravel road if somebody would put up the money. Since most golfers don't get paid to play, give us good greens or close the course.

5. Blind holes, most Pete Dye courses, and 2-inch bermuda rough. Ben Hogan said blind holes where you can't see your target should be plowed up. Dye's courses are too penal for the game to be enjoyed. Who wants a 200-yard carry over a green protected by a moat and railroad ties. There's no rough at Augusta National Golf Club. Which makes it the best course in America.

6. Crowded golf courses. Quit jamming the course with more players than it can hold.

7. Fire ants. Is anybody doing anything to rid golf courses of these detestable creatures? Soon there won't be a safe place to take a stance.

8. Florida scrambles. Unless you can gorilla the ball 300 yards or you are lucky enough to draw someone who does you don't stand a chance in these events. Go back to handicap play.

9. Bunker madness. There are too many bunkers and too many of them placed directly in front of the green, denying a pitch-and-run shot. Ben Crenshaw recently built a course at Barton Creek where you can actually run a ball on the green. That's the way golf WAS meant to be played.

Golf has good, bad points

An AP Sports Analysis

DALLAS (AP) - Nine reasons golf is the best sport invented and a "back" nine why it's "a good walk spoiled" as some detractor once suggested.

hole-in-one. (Never made one in my life).

8. Recipe for a good night's sleep. Although most of us slobbs ride an electric golf cart, many courses make you stay parked on the cart path. Eighteen holes is equal to about five miles. You're tired when it's over.

9. Conversational topic. Talking golf swings, equipment, and courses beats talking about the weather.

1. Absolutely the best place on earth to avoid ringing telephones, unless you're dumb enough to clip a pager to your belt.

2. The ultimate test of mental and physical dexterity. Ted Williams always argued it's more difficult to hit a baseball than a golf ball. When someone suggested that striking a golf ball is harder because you have to play out foul balls, Williams had no comeback.

- Absolutely the best place on earth to avoid ringing telephones, unless you're dumb enough to clip a pager to your belt.

 - A shot struck true as you planned and envisioned it as satisfying as a chocolate malt. How rare is the perfect shot? Jack Nicklaus said, "Golf is a game of controlled misses. If I hit three perfect shots a round I've had a good day."
 - The euphoria from the combination of a round in which you beat your handicap and help your team win a tournament, plus a cold beverage and a good dinner afterward, gives everything a rosier hue.
 - Golf buddies. There's no friend like a good golfing buddy friend. Golf is a bond forger.
 - A social sealer. You can do more business, make more friends, and get to understand somebody better on a golf course than at any office picnic or board meeting.
 - The best excuse in the world to leave the house. Honey, I have to go hit a bucket of balls and work on my putting for the big charity tournament coming up next month. You know there's a car in it if I make a

 - Ill-mannered sorts who hit into groups, throw their clubs, and make life miserable for their playing companions.
 - Golfers who should be on the driving range instead of the golf course. On the Old Course at St. Andrews you can't play unless you have an established handicap of 18 or better. That's a little severe since most of America's golfers can't break 90. Let's say someone should be a 24 or better before being allowed on the first tee.

to repair with youth. But the talent pool doesn't look deep enough to give the Mavs a quick fix.

"I think this draft compares to the last couple of drafts," said Rick Sund, Mavericks vice president of basketball operations. "There will be some players who in a couple of years will be very solid NBA players, but I don't know how many superstars will be there."

"We'll just generally be looking to draft the best player we can, regardless of position."

Dallas has at least one glaring need.

With the release of English and the suspension of Tarpley for continued violations of his NBA-mandated drug aftercare program, the Mavericks are thin at forward.

Dallas' top pick in 1989, forward Randy White, will be entering his third season. He started 29 times last year and averaged 8.8 points.

"This year's draft seems to be deepest at the forward position, with Larry Johnson and Billy Owens leading the pack," Sund said.

Even though UNLV's Johnson and Syracuse's Owens probably will be long gone by the time the Mavericks' pick comes up, several other bright prospects at forward should remain.

Michigan State's Steve Smith, who can play point guard and small forward in addition to his natural off-guard position, would be tempting if he's available.

But 7-2 center Luc Longley of New Mexico might be the best athlete left at No. 6.

Longley, from Australia, is the tallest player in the draft, a shade taller than Georgetown's Dikembe Mutombo and Nebraska's Rich King.

"Like most foreign players, Longley has not played basketball for very long and that gives him a nice upside," Sund said.

The Mavericks hold two second-round selections, their own (No. 33) and Washington's (No. 35). The Washington pick was acquired from Sacramento as part of the McCray deal last summer.

JOE AND VIRGINIA WOOD...First United Methodist Church pastor

Wood welcomed as pastor

By DANEE' WILSON
Lifestyles Editor

Hereford will be seeing new faces around town as the First United Methodist Church welcomes Joe and Virginia Wood as the pastor of the church.

The Woods came to Hereford Wednesday from Alamogordo, N.M. to take over the pastorate.

"Our first impressions of Hereford is friendly people," said Virginia. "We found everyone to be warm and friendly. When we came here three weeks ago, we had some car trouble and we found the business people very helpful."

"When we came here, we were greeted by a group of people ready to unload," Joe said with surprise with people's willingness to help out.

Joe brings to the Hereford church 22 year of ministerial experience. Prior to becoming a preacher, he worked at Humble Oil and Refinery Company in the marketing department.

"It was truly a call from God to get into the ministry," Joe said. "I was actively involved in the church and it became more and more obvious to me that was God's will. It was something I could not deny."

Joe has set some preliminary goals for the church.

"I want to get to know people, not just in the church, but in the community," he said. "I hope to get involved in the community. Of course as a pastor-preacher, you have to start in the local church."

"I would like to see the church grow, not just in numbers, but in application of the Christian life. I would like to do more preaching outside the church, whatever form that takes."

To work with the public everyday and to help members deal with the wear of everyday life, someone needs to have a special love for people.

"I like the people and it is a real joy to be in the ministry," Joe said. "One of the biggest joys is when someone comes to you later and says that because of you, they made a commitment to God or they have been strengthened because of you. When people share that you have things that don't shout out at you. I think that is where most of it is at."

"Christ wants us to live a good solid Christian life and have a humble walk with God. These people are always there when you need them for support and they are dependable. You can't beat people who have a godliness about them."

The Woods, who have two sons and four grandchildren, say they like to total community life and are earnestly looking forward to being active members of the community.

"I like the total community life," said Virginia. "We like the size of Hereford. Here, we can make hospital calls, visits and be in the community."

When the Wood family isn't busy with church work, Virginia enjoys sewing, reading, flower gardens and people.

Joe's interests are fishing and golf. He also played football for Eastern New Mexico University in Portales, N.M. where he received his degree in marketing, economics and business administration. He attended seminary at Iliff School of theology in Denver Colo.

been instrumental in their lives, it's thrilling."

Throughout his ministries, Joe hasn't experienced anything that he would consider outstanding or uncommon.

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent

Certain claims have been made recently that some herbs help people lose weight as the "cleanse impurities from the blood."

One group instruct weight loss customers that "a large amount of the body's waste products (from general metabolism) are stored in fat cells, and that for proper metabolism and weight reduction, the proper blend of herbs to activate this cleansing activity is needed." However, most of the "waste products" of metabolism are carbon dioxide and water and the liver and kidneys ultimately remove all waste products from the blood.

Some of the misleading herb claims suggest using the following for weight loss:

* Fennel seed -- "to curb appetite"
* Echinacea root -- "to clean the blood, especially useful against obesity"

* Chickweed -- "activates the body's burning of fat"

* Parsley -- "a remarkable remedy for expelling watery poisons"

* Yarrow flower -- "purifies the blood of waste materials"

No scientific evidence supports such claims. Advertising that goods "have ingredients, uses, benefits...which they do not have" is illegal in Texas, according to the Texas state code, Deceptive Trade Practices 17.46:b5.

If weight loss is your goal, follow the suggestions of the American Medical Association Council on Scientific Affairs which recently emphasized the importance of nutritionally-sound weight reduction diets and changes in lifestyle to promote long-term weight control.

A study in the American Dietetic Association Journal looked at the long-term effectiveness and predictors of success of the intensive multi-disciplinary program including exercise, changing eating habits and using the time calorie displacement diet--a low-fat, high complex carbohydrate diet--to promote and maintain body weight.

In 213 obese adults consecutively entering the program--including dropouts--weight loss averaged about 14 pounds. Results suggest that a nutritionally sound diet, prescribed in a multi-disciplinary program and emphasizing lifestyle changes, can result in long-term weight control in a majority of individuals.

March of Dimes arrests sheriff

Gay Duggan, sales person for Whiteface Ford, drives the get away car as Gary Hinkle (l), general manager at Whiteface Ford, and Teddy Twombly (r), Energas district manager, arrest Deaf Smith County Sheriff Joe Brown as a part of the March of Dimes fundraiser, luau lock-up. The lock-up is set for Monday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Hereford luau lock-up benefits March of Dimes

By DANEE' WILSON
Lifestyles Editor
The March of Dimes will be on a march around Hereford, locking up local "outlaws" to raise money for their child saving efforts.

The Northwest Texas Chapter of the March of Dimes is sponsoring a luau lock-up Monday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Whiteface Ford.

"We have never been in Hereford before," said Sheryl McNutt, division director. "We have contacted the jailbirds through a letter and scheduled a time for them to be picked up and brought to jail."

Refreshments for the event are being provided by Sirloin Stockade. Bail is set at $200, which the participants have had about 10 days to collect.

"We already have about 15 business people from the community who have volunteered to be locked up," McNutt said. "Anyone can have someone locked up for $20. Call us and we'll set up a time to pick them up. All bails will be $200. If bail cannot be met, they will be let out in an hour."

The luau lock-up is part of the annual fundraiser for March of Dimes.

March of Dimes helped set up a Northwest Texas Hospital neonatal satellite clinic in Hereford. With the grant given by March of Dimes, satellite clinics were set up around the area with visits to places with the highest concentration of babies needing care.

Hereford's clinic is now self supporting.
Education is a key factor in the March of Dimes quest to prevent birth defects.

At their Amarillo office, they have tapes that can be checked out. The tapes are over what smoking, drinking and drugs can do to the unborn baby.

"We want kids to start thinking about good pre-natal care," McNutt said. "Our focus is on prevention. It is pretty scary when you think that there are 31 girls 13-years-old and younger who are pregnant in Amarillo. Most girls this age deny that they are pregnant and they miss the critical months in pre-natal care."

Groups needing funding for health education programs can apply at the March of Dimes office in Amarillo.

In their efforts to prevent birth defects, research is done sometimes through amniocentesis (the method of removing amniotic fluid from the womb to detect defects and other problems), but McNutt clearly points out that they do not in any way support abortion. She says that they try to correct the problems before the child is born.

The March of Dimes was started in 1938 by Franklin D. Roosevelt to fight polio. In 1958, they extended their focus to address the health problems associated with birth defects and low birthweight.

One in every 14 babies born in United States is born with a birth defect. Defects can range from Down syndrome to spina bifida.

Currently, the March of Dimes is conducting a campaign for healthier babies. The campaign funds programs for community service, advocacy, research and education.

CHAD BRUMMETT, CANDE ROBBINS

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was very much interested in the letter from the man who signed himself, "Don't Want To Be Another Statistic in Falls Church." His wife's anxiety attacks were exhausting his patience, and he was considering an affair. I saw myself a dozen different times as I read what he had written.

I have suffered for the past 29 of my 49 years with anxiety attacks and depression. It is like being in hell. I've been taking medication for so long that I am terrified of what will happen one day when the medicine no longer works.

I live with a wonderful man who is some kind of a saint for putting up with me. The man who wrote to complain said he loves his wife but she is no fun anymore and he is tempted to have an affair to see if he is still alive. I pray he doesn't go that route. Cheating is never a solution. Invariably it leads to more problems. -- Islip, N.Y.

DEAR ISLIP: Thank you for a letter that could have been written only by someone who had experienced the problem. Rarely have I seen such compassionate and sympathetic mail as that which resulted from that column. Read on:

FROM SOMERVILLE, MASS.:

The woman who had panic attacks in

The first modern Olympic Games took place in 1896 in Athens, Greece.

Falls Church, Va., was a wonderful wife and mother during their 26 years of marriage, according to her husband. She had five children, which suggests that her life has been pretty much devoted to child-rearing. When children leave home, a strange and frightening gap remains. That woman should be encouraged to build a new life--become involved with community work and civic groups. And she should get some counseling to help her find what resources she has and how they can best be used to find new interests. Any woman who can raise five children who turned out wonderfully well must have intelligence, creativity and strength.

NEW CASTLE, PA.: So "Falls Church" is toying with the idea of having an affair because his wife, who was recently discharged from a psychiatric hospital, is no longer "cheerful and fun-loving." Well, isn't that just peachy? He should be told that nobody chooses to be mentally ill. I know what mental illness is about because I have suffered with it for several years. He needs to read everything he can lay his hands on about his wife's sickness, so he can help her get well. He also should find a support group, such as Recovery, Inc. Please tell him again, and again, and again.

KANSAS CITY: After our first child was born, my wife suffered from postpartum depression. It would never have occurred to me to find fun elsewhere. Several years later, I had a serious heart attack. That dear woman pulled me through by sheer determination and round-the-clock encouragement. This is what love is all about.

FRESNO: I boiled when I read the letter from the man whose wife was mentally ill. Whatever happened to "in sickness and in health, 'til death do us part."? What a jerk.

DALLAS: My mother has been clinically depressed and phobic for 12 years. She is on some wonderful new medication that is working a miracle and her life is 100 percent better. So is my dad's. He never once cheated. He has been a model for his sons to follow. What a giant he is in the eyes of his children. Such integrity and gentleness are rare. How lucky we are to have him.

When planning a wedding, who pays of what? Who stands where? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" has all the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.45.)

The couple plan to marry in Our Lady of Guadalupe Church.

Toni is a graduate of Dunbar-Struggs High School and is attending Texas Tech University.

Louis is a graduate of Hereford High School and attends Texas Tech University and is serving in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Outdoor barbequing history, hints

People throughout the world have been cooking meat over fiery hot coals and wood for hundreds of thousands of years. Cavemen stalked and secured their prey, then placed the entire animal over a roaring fire, almost smothering the flames, letting the meat slowly cook and barbeque.

For 500,000 years, people have developed a taste and method for barbeque. Southeastern Indians constructed a wooden frame to cook fish and wild game over the hot coals after a successful hunt. The Indians cooked seafood over grills made of weeds, so that the fish was cooked from the smoke of the fire, not the flames.

The word "barbeque" originated in Spain after Spanish explorers discovered the Indian's cooking method and named the wooden structure "barbacoa." Through the years, the word evolved as "barbeque."

Throughout the U.S., from the west to the Deep South, people have perfected barbeque methods that distinguish one region from another. Different combinations of meat, woods and sauces can create an entirely unique flavor and meal.

Early American colonists were fond of barbeques. The appealing climate and flavorful food led to pleasant outdoor socializing. In the 1700s, barbeques became events for social and political causes.

Kansas is one of the most historic barbeque states. Henry Perry began the tradition by digging a pit into a deserted streetcar barn and selling meat wrapped in paper. Barbeque became widely popular in the community, serving as the impetus for social gatherings.

Always known for cowboys and cattle, Texans brag about having the best barbeque around. One of the most popular methods that Texans use to barbeque is the slow-cook in a closed pit over smoldering mesquite. The Hill Country region of Central Texas is known for the German-rich marinated and smoked meats. The Mexican influence affected the southern and eastern areas of the state with spicy hot seasonings and spices.

Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee are known for what is considered truly Southern barbeque -- pork cooked in a pit with a tangy red tomato sauce. Alabama barbeque is frequently served with beer and homemade white bread to sop up the juices. In Georgia, the meal may be complemented with stew made of wild game and vegetables.

Barbeque is basted with vinegar and hot peppers in North Carolina, challenging the mustard sauce that Kentucky has remained famous for mutton barbeque since the 1830s. Mutton is slow-cooked and served either dry or with a tangy red sauce.

Arizona, New Mexico and other western states offer chunky tomato, onion and vegetable spices and sauces for marinating meats.

Red Cross Volunteers of the Year

Lupe Chavez (center) presented JoAnn Mondragon (l) and Ronny Sanders, (r) with Red Cross Volunteer of the Year award.

Betty Crocker

Q. What does it mean to braise a beef roast? F. R., Topeka, KS

A. To braise meat is to brown all sides slowly in a heavy pan. Season meat as you like with salt, pepper and such herbs as oregano, sage, tarragon or thyme. Add 1/4 to 1/2 cup liquid, such as water, bouillon, wine or vegetable juice, and cover tightly. The meat may be simmered on the rangtop or in a 300 to 325 degree oven until it is tender.

Q. What cherries could be substituted for maraschino cherries in home-canned fruit cocktail. The color in maraschino cherries runs into other fruit. Mrs. G.R., Byron Center, MI

A. Use white cherries in a home-canned fruit mixture. If desired, add maraschino cherries at serving time.

Red Cross Update

The second session of swim classes will begin July 15 at the city pool. Registration for the classes will be held Wednesday and Thursday, July 10 and 11 at the Red Cross office.

An emergency water safety class, formerly junior lifesaving, will begin July 1 at the city pool. Mike Manchec will be the instructor for the class. Register for the class by calling the Red Cross office.

All disaster committee members and others interested in disaster work are invited to attend a disaster conference in Lubbock on July 20. Call the office for further details and to register for the classes. The workshops will review and discuss changes in the procedures for disaster assistance.

Ronny Sanders and JoAnn Mondragon were recognized as Volunteers of the Year at the annual membership meeting held at the Community Center.

Special thanks to the Hereford Bluegrass Band for providing the entertainment and to Jack Nunley and Dale Henson for taking care of cooking the hamburgers. The new members of the board of directors elected are Lisa Formby, Lucy Chavez, Jerry Walker, Kim Sanders and Ernest Brown. The first meeting for the board will be July 16 at noon at the office.

MR. AND MRS. DARREL BLEVINS

Parents announce recent marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Blevins announced the marriage of their son, Darrel Roy, to Tonya Gayle Straskulic, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Straskulic of Dalhart.

The couple married May 17, 1991, at the Deaf Smith County Museum Chapel with Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine officiating.

The bride attended school in Perryton.

Mr. Blevins is a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School and completed two years of study at South Plains College in Levelland. He is presently employed by Crofford Automotive and Transmission.

The couple reside in Hereford.

YOUR EYES

PARTIAL VISION

The various eye diseases that affect mostly elderly persons can destroy sensitive parts of the retina that allow the eye to see. Sometimes the damage is total, and the person becomes blind; more often the damage is only partial.

When vision loss is only partial, the elderly can utilize more of their remaining vision with the use of low-vision aids such as magnifiers, telescopic-lenses and prisms.

Who can be helped? The optometrist can usually determine good candidates for low-vision aids by specific tests, questioning whether:

- remaining vision has been stable for two or more years;
- the patient can recognize faces or signs from four feet away;
- he or she can see color better than black or white;
- the person can read large print with a magnifier;
- the individual has the motivation to be self-sufficient, and
- the patient will try new things to improve eyesight.

How long since you've updated your business insurance?

That's one question our business clients never have to worry about. As an independent insurance agency, it's our business to watch for the changes that come with growth—new locations, additional employees, new equipment. Then we analyze how these changes affect our clients' insurance needs, and recommend the best protection available.

Years of working with major insurance companies, like CNA, have given us the experience to make business insurance protection keep pace with our clients. If you're responsible for your company's business insurance, give us a call.

89 YEARS AGO
Last Tuesday a number of young people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G.R. Whitney for the purpose of deciding who could dress the tackiest as well as to have a good time. After due consideration the judges decided that the prize for the "Tackiest" dressed lady (a jar of snuff) belonged to Miss Rena Whitney. To the "tackiest" boy was given a pipe, which was awarded to Bill Harris.

Words of Wisdom II

Thanks to you, there is a Column II. Three months ago, I wrote a column that included my favorite quotations. I promised to share some of your favorites if you would send them to me.

Hundreds of quotations came pouring into our post office box the first week, and they are still coming. I've enjoyed reading every one of your notes and quotes.

The first two quotes in today's column came from ladies who are more than 90 years young. Their words of wisdom and their lives have withstood the test of time.

• Willful waste woeful want. --Lilian Murrell

• Time is like moving away but not having time to pack. --Laura Guthrie

Thank you, ladies. I hope you are still reading this column when you celebrate your 100th birthdays.

From the Mail Box

• The right to be heard does not automatically infer the right to

- be taken seriously. --Unknown
- I have been driven many times to my knees by the overwhelming conviction that I had nowhere else to go. --Abraham Lincoln
- Be bold in what you stand for and careful what you fall for. --Unknown
- Don't let what you can't do interfere with what you can do. --Unknown
- Good management consist in showing average people how to do the work of superior people. -- John D. Rockefeller, Jr.
- Most rules for success won't work unless you do. --Unknown
- The time you enjoy wasting is not wasted time. --Unknown
- If you aren't fired with enthusiasm, you will be fired with enthusiasm. --Vince Lombardi
- Our ends are joined by a common link, with one we sit, with one we think. Success depends on which we use, heads we win...tails we lose. --Unknown
- Behold the turtle. He only makes progress when he sticks his neck out. --James B. Conant
- Doing business without advertising is like winking at a girl in the dark. You know what you are doing but nobody else does. --Unknown
- It is the customer and the customer alone who casts the vote that determines how big any company should be. --Unknown

Just for Fun

• the secrecy of my job prevents me from knowing what I am

- doing. --Anonymous Oklahoma bank auditor
 - Political bedfellows share not only the same bed, but also the same bunk. --Unknown
 - To make money, buy some good stock, hold it 'til it goes up and then sell it. If you want time to pass quickly, take out a 90-day loan. --Unknown
 - Don't borrow trouble. Just be patient and you'll have some of your own. --George Gobel
 - A diplomat is one who always remembers a woman's birthday, but never her age. --Robert Frost
 - Man is the only animal that can be skinned more than once. --Unknown
 - Journalists don't live by words alone, although sometimes they have to eat them. --Adlai Stevenson
 - Can you remember when drug abuse was merely another dose of castor oil? --E.C. McKenzie
 - I am old and have known a great many troubles, but most of them never happened. --Mark Twain
 - I never graduated from the University of Iowa. I was there only two terms...Truman's and Eisenhower's. --Alex Karras
- Will we join the likes of Rambo, Rocky and Star Trek? Will there be a "Words of Wisdom III?" Only if you share your favorite quotations. Send them to Quotations II, c/o Minding Your Own Business, P.O. Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105
- I love to get mail. --Don Taylor

The Texas Economic Roundup

Lone Star 5 ★★★★★
Charted here are five top statistical indicators that reveal Texas' economic status for the past year. The data, compiled by the Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts, are seasonally adjusted except for the Consumer Price Index.

Texas economy up

Led by a 7.4 percent increase in retail sales, the different components of the Lone Star 5 confirm a Texas economy that is performing better than it did one year ago, according to State Comptroller John Sharp.

The Lone Star 5 was developed by the state comptroller's office to track different segments of the Texas economy. The Lone Star 5 is comprised of Texas employment, industrial production, retail sales, inflation, and an index of leading Texas economic indicators, which includes oil prices, unemployment claims, stock prices and other key factors.

"While the Texas Consumer Price Index rose by 4.9 percent between April 1990 and April of this year, matching the national inflation rate, retail sales in Texas rose faster than the rate of inflation," Sharp said. "Over the same 12-month period, U.S. retail sales increased by only 3.3 percent."

The Texas employment picture also shows improvement. Between April 1990 and April 1991, Texas added almost 100,000 new jobs, a 1.4 percent increase, compared to a .9 percent loss of 1 million jobs nationwide over the same period.

The index of leading Texas economic indicators is also up .9 percent above its level of a year ago. The comparable national index is 2.1 percent below a year ago, but has risen over the past three months.

Family Reading Challenge 1991

You're the Tour Guide
Pretend that a family from a foreign country is visiting your town, and you have been chosen to be their tour guide. Use this newspaper to plan what you will show them.

Clip photos of interesting things to see, historical sites, tourist attractions, parks and recreation areas. Look through ads for shops and restaurants to visit. Watch for entertainment possibilities—festivals, concerts and movies. Would they enjoy a garage sale or flea market? Check the classified ads to find several that look interesting.

Paste all of your newspaper clips into a notebook, then describe the tour you have planned to your parent, guardian or other adult.

We hope you enjoyed this. Don't forget to complete the entry form below as soon as you have met the requirements of the challenge.

Between the Covers

BY SHIRLEY WALLICK

It's not too late for boys and girls to enroll in our summer reading club, Camp Wanna-Read. Next Tuesday morning, children enrolled in Camp Wanna-Read are invited to the county library for a craft activity that will begin at 10 a.m. Parents, encourage your children to join Camp Wanna-Read and come by the county library and sign up in the reading club. We have a lot of fun activities planned through July 16.

The new books this week have some interesting and exciting titles! Our first new title is Cross-Fire by David Hagberg is a breathtaking suspense novel from the author of Countdown. This red hot thriller may curl your hair as we meet characters that might remind you of those created by Ian Fleming, an atmosphere like John Le Carre and a submarine subplot worth of Tom Clancy.

Glasnost and perestroika are in and KGB is out. The Politburo slashes the foreign operations budget in order to save hard currency. The hard-line KGB commander, Colonel Didenko, decides that he will finance his agency by hijacking a vital United States middle east gold shipment. This would bring glasnost crashing down. Didenko assigns the project to Russia's top agent and most deadly assassin, Arkady Kurshin.

America's top agent who is as fast and deadly as Kurshin is CIA man Kirk McGarvey. Kurshin frames McGarvey for bombing the CIA's Paris headquarters. McGarvey finds himself on the run in South America, being hunted by friend and foe. The action is non-stop, suspense throat clutching and surprises wall-to-wall as we see if McGarvey can stay alive long enough to solve this 50 year old billion dollar mystery and save the United States gold shipment half a world away.

T. Jefferson Parker's Pacific Beat is a spellbinding mystery that reminds you of his earlier novel Laguna Beach. This novel begins on a May night in Newport Beach's Back Bay. A brutally murdered woman with roses bound to her body was found. The victim is Ann Weir Cruz, the wife of police lieutenant Ray Cruz. This sets off a manhunt the police and their families dread because it appears that her killer is one of their own.

Ann was eight weeks pregnant with a child she and her husband desperately wanted. The only clue seems to be worse than no lead at all—a police patrol car had been spotted near the scene, disappearing into the fog. The delicate and dangerous undercover investigation of corrupt city politics in the police department falls to the victim's brother. Jim Weir is a former detective who has left the force respecting its many secrets but now he must expose them one by one.

His relentless pursuit of his sister's tormentor is a perfect cover for Jim as he silently probes. But his ex-partner and brother-in-law Ray Cruz is also trying to find the killer first to kill him. As Jim penetrates Newport Beach's sub rosa alliances and family secrets, the plot and suspense tightens their grip on the reader. The truth emerges and it comes from an unexpected and heartbreaking corner of Jim's past. The finale will move you, surprise you and stay with you for a long time.

In Iris Dart's novel Beaches we fell in love with Cee Cee Bloom, a dazzling redheaded movie star and singer who captivates audiences around the world with her outrageous humor and extraordinary voice. Beaches is a story about an unlikely lifelong friendship between Cee Cee and Bertie Barron. Their friendship survived the best and worst of their dramatically different lives. This novel ends when Bertie tragically dies and entrusts Cee Cee with the care and upbringing of her eight-year-old daughter, Nina.

Our next title is the sequel, I'll Be There. Cee Cee is not prepared for her most demanding role of her life—the role of motherhood. Nina is a quiet, thoughtful girl who now finds herself thrown into a glitzy Hollywood existence—world famous friends and an extravagant lifestyle complete with beach houses, limousines and private airplanes.

Throughout her life Cee Cee must still keep up the superstar front that is demanded of her by her public and producers. We get firsthand look at what goes on behind the scenes in the entertainment world. Cee Cee manages to make it all work for awhile. She even finds time in her life for romance. As the years pass her bond with Nina is strengthened. But this secure life with Nina is shattered by a startling discovery. A nightmare straight from the headlines, one that parents pray will never happen, forces Cee Cee to come to terms with depth and complexity of her commitment to Nina. This novel not only gives us an insider's view of Hollywood but a universal view of parenting.

Sharleen Cooper Cohen's Lives of Value is a novel about contemporary life and love. This is a tale about two unforgettable women—blood sisters, bitter rivals, and best of friends. Suzanne Winston is on top or the world when her newest novel makes the New York Times best seller list. Her younger sister, Steffani Blacker, thinks Suzanne has it all—a successful writer of popular fiction, mother of three and a beautiful woman recently free of an unhappy marriage. She seems to be someone to admire and envy.

Steffani, also brilliant and beautiful, is desperately ill with Gaucher's disease that is a hereditary disease that has plagued her since childhood. Steffani is unable to have children and is easily led into wild, intense relationships with the wrong men. She is determined to live every moment. Terrifically brave, yet terrified of dying, Steffani is tempted to settle old scores and get even with perfect Suzanne.

What Steffani doesn't see is the deep insecurity and dark feeling that shadows Suzanne's carefully controlled family, home and career. Suzanne has been left scarred and distrustful of men by her ex-husband Alex. A disturbing anonymous letter threatens to destroy Suzanne's reputation and leave her financially ruined. Her comfortable Los Angeles life-style, her family and friends, and her fabulous success are suddenly slipping away. Suzanne's loyalties and values are suddenly shaken and her life endangered. In this crisis Suzanne must learn whom she can trust—a new man who holds an irresistible promise of passion, the sister she resents and loves and parents who are wrapped up in their own pain.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sex therapist Dr. Ruth Westheimer is offering help to a political bedfellow.

She is one of 21 people organizing a Monday night fund-raiser in New York for Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn. Those who attend are being asked to contribute $250 to $1,000. Dodd is expected to seek a third term next year.

Westheimer said she supports him because of his strong stand in favor of the right to an abortion.

"Anyone who is willing to speak up on that issue, it behooves me - you know, I speak for contraception - to be helpful," she said.

We thank each of you for the many acts of kindness that was shown to us during the illness and loss of our mother and sister.

DE-TANGLE WET HAIR CAREFULLY

Are you in a hurry and yank a comb through your wet hair and let the broken ends fall where they may? Worse yet, do you brush wet hair, stretching its natural elasticity until it breaks? Either way, to save a little time de-tangling after a shampoo, you end up sacrificing your hair. Follow these directions for smooth de-tangling. Always use a wide-tooth comb. (Check the teeth to make sure they are smooth and snag free.) Divide your hair into sections and begin de-tangling by combing downward, about two inches from the ends. When the ends are tangle free move up a few inches and comb down again. Continue working in sections until you can slide the comb easily from your scalp to the tips of hair. Using a conditioner or creme rinse will also help to keep hair tangle free.

LaPlata Beauty School is open Tues-Fri, 8-5 and Sat 8-4. Stop in and meet our students and instructors. Have your hair styled by tomorrow's professionals! We are located at 921 E. First and our Phone is 364-4571.

Three Quarter Circle of Cabinets Included in Modern Kitchen OLD FASHIONED CENTRAL HALL RUNS FRONT TO BACK

BY W. D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

The full depth entrance hall provides access to the full depth great room, formal dining room or the kitchen breakfast area. The open rail stair is open to both the foyer and great room and basement access is below the stair to the second floor.

A bay window, fireplace and deck access are provided for the gigantic great room.

The formal dining room will definitely accommodate a large gathering and the breakfast room is picturesque with windows on four sides of the bay area and deck access on the fifth side. A garage entry is adjacent and a full separate laundry is close by. A central half bath services daytime use.

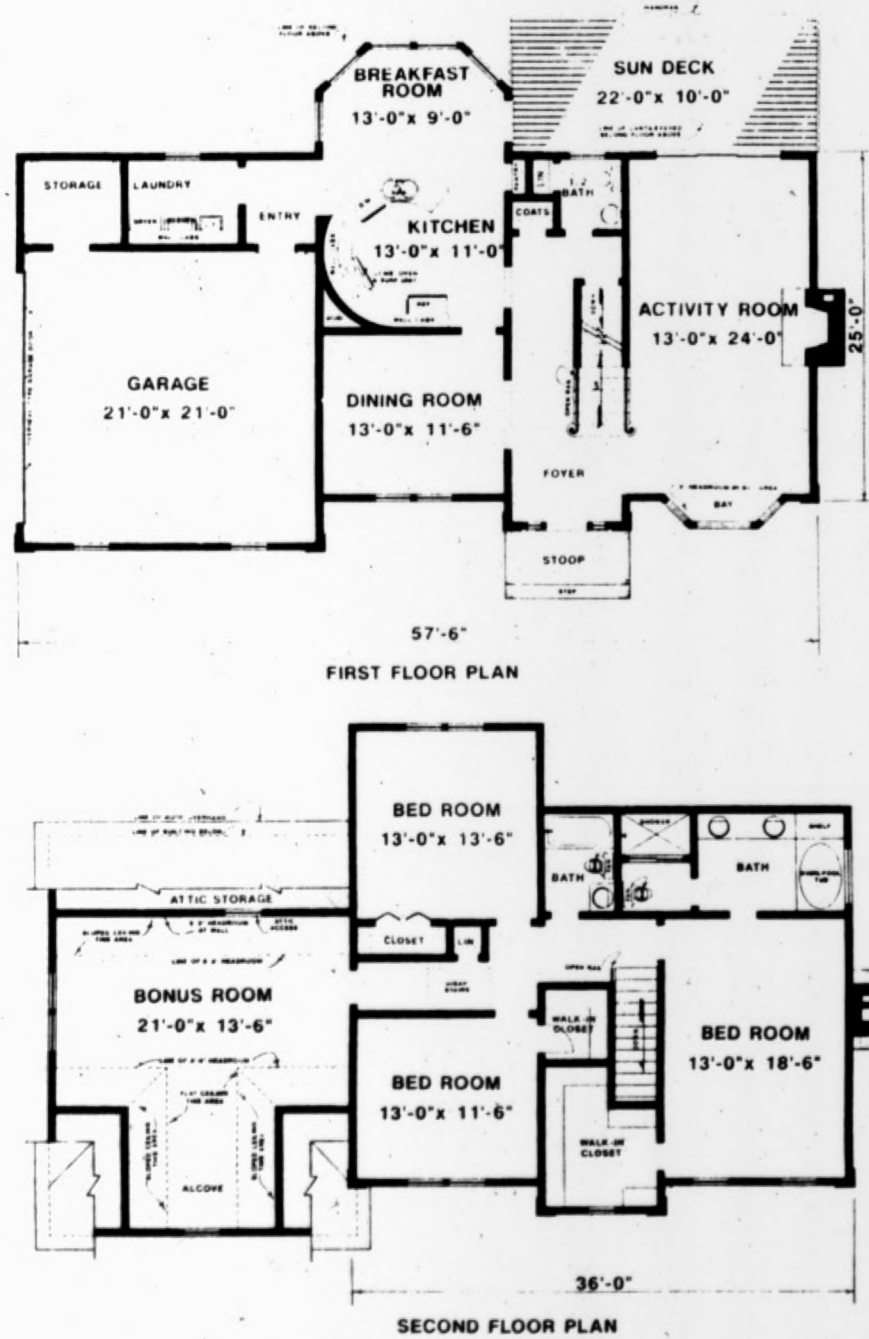

There are three bedrooms and a bonus room on the second floor. The bonus room may be utilized as a play room or extra bedroom.

The master bedroom suite is provided with a luxury bath, large walk in closet and a central bath services the two remaining bedrooms.

The home may be built of brick but is shown with a stucco finish, corner quoins, hip and gable roof and multi-lite windows.

The plan is Number 2655. It is a computer generated plan and includes 2,602 square feet if you finish the bonus room or 2,190 square feet without the bonus room. All W. D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements.

It takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home.

Sure, you could go on stumbling through the housing market. Running into dead ends and getting cornered with too little information.

Or you could nail down that new home the easy way. By consulting an experienced real estate agent.

An agent can point out options you may have missed. Get you inside interesting homes that you may never have seen otherwise. Even do a lot of the groundwork, so you don't have to.

Like researching financing packages. Checking through the multiple-listing service for homes that fit your needs - and your pocketbook. Negotiating with the seller. And arranging for inspections. He or she will even be there at closing.

So instead of forging ahead without knowing what's out there, get some help from an expert. A real estate agent.

Inside The Hereford Brand, you'll find both qualified agents and valuable information about home buying. Everyday, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And The Brand's Sunday housing section examine the latest market trends and housing opportunities.

With the right guide, hitting your mark can be child's play.

HEREFORD'S

SENIOR SCENE

Supplement to The Hereford Brand

JULY 1991

Margie's Notes

We have a lot of activities going on around the Center in the month of July. We had to change the date of our "Senior Prom" to Saturday, July 13, at 7 p.m. We will have a banquet dinner followed by a dance and games. It will be an evening of fun for only $10. You need to buy your tickets soon. We have to know how many to prepare for.

-SS-

Our Garage Sale is on Friday and Saturday, July 26-27. This is an annual fund raiser for the Association. We need a lot of donated items. If you have something to donate, please bring it to the Center. If you can't bring your items, we will pick them up.

-SS-

I would like to share with you a need we have in our services. Our home delivered meal program serves a very important need of our people. With the rising cost of food, carry-out supplies and gas, it is costing more to fund this program. Donations to help fund the program are also lower than usual. If you, your Sunday School class or other organizations would like a project to help with, we would really appreciate your donations.

-SS-

The time has come that I've always dreaded! Rose Lee Thames, my secretary, is retiring the last of June. She has always been a delight to work with. Rosa Lee, who has worked with me for 11 years, is a special person. She's very loyal, meticulous in everything she does, so faithful, and not only been my secretary but also my friend. She always has a smile and pleasant greeting for everyone. We're going to miss her so much!

There will be a retirement party for her at the Center on Wednesday, June 26, at noon. Everyone is invited. Please come and wish her and Truett, her husband, a happy retirement!

President's Corner

It's hard to believe that the year is half gone. A lot has happened, most of which is a lot better than we anticipated on January One. What has happened gives us cause to be proud of our dedicated armed services. We all have a good opportunity to show our gratitude for the men and women who gave their services, as well as those who gave their lives, by flying Old Glory—especially from Flag Day through July 4th. Respect for the Colors can also be shown when the flag is raised or passes in a parade by standing, removing your hat and covering your heart. Don't feel ashamed if you feel a choke in your throat or a tear on your cheek.

If it sounds like I get carried away on this subject, you're right. I do. July is also dues-paying time. If you haven't already joined Hereford Senior Citizens Association, this is a good time to do so and enjoy the many activities, meals and fellowship.

Now, a single policy with double protection.

Imagine a life insurance policy that protects your family's future in more than one way. Suppose it also protected you from the financial consequences of long term health care while you're living, without reducing the life insurance benefit.

That's the policy our independent agency recommends for many customers thinking about retirement. It's called the Total Protection Plan from the CNA Insurance Companies, one of several we represent. It's the first policy that pays the full cash value or death benefit of your life insurance even after you receive long term care benefits.

Exploring different forms of guardianship

PLANNING FOR GUARDIANSHIP

By Sid Ham,
Attorney At Law

What happens if you have not made simpler plans to take care of affairs upon your disability or incompetency? Often a guardianship is the only course of action available for the continuation of affairs. Even when a person can no longer take care of his own affairs, his debts and other concerns will continue.

In Texas, there are several forms of guardianship. There is a limited guardianship, passed by the legislature initially for concerns of the mentally ill or mentally retarded. However, the one most often used is the plenary or full guardianship.

Under a full guardianship, several results occur. A guardian can only be appointed for a minor, a person who is chemically dependent upon drugs or alcohol, or a person of "unsound mind." Very little guidance is given to the court to determine whether a person is of unsound mind. Very little guidance is given to the court to determine whether a person is of unsound mind. Often, only evidence submitted by the proposed guardian is considered by the judge.

Ordinarily the person applying to the court asks to become the guardian. There is a priority list for persons to serve; the spouse, the next of kin, or any other qualified person. If the applicant is lower on the list, the persons above can either take over or waive the right appointment. If the court feels the applicant will not serve the best interests of the ward, the applicant is disqualified. If the applicant is disqualified, the court cannot appoint him.

The following people are disqualified as guardians: a person who is under age 18; a person who has conduct that is notoriously bad; one who is himself incompetent; one who is a party to a lawsuit concerning the ward; one who owes money to the ward or who is asserting a claim against the ward; or one who is not experienced is shown to be unable to help the ward.

Normally only the ward is told of the proceeding with little or no chance of any other person asserting a defense of the ward's interest. However, if the ward is over age 60, the spouse, any siblings, and all children must be notified. If the judge approves the guardianship, the ward is stripped of the right to enter a binding contract, to vote, to get married, to buy or sell real property, to control assets and to make medical decisions.

The guardian has the right to make all decisions in place of the ward. Very little protection is given under the statutes in case the guardian misbehaves. It is extremely difficult for a ward to have his rights restored.

You can control the decisions of the court if someone tries to take a guardianship to control your affairs, if you make plans while still able. Since 1985, a person may make a "Declaration of Guardian" in case the need for a guardian later arises. The statement must be in writing and follow the terms of the statutes. A person may disqualify any person he does not trust, or who he feels may have ulterior motives in serving as his guardian. Once disqualified, that person or persons may not be named as a guardian under any circumstances. A designation of preferred guardians, in their preference order, also may be made. If your spouse is your choice for a guardian, but there is later a divorce, the spouse is automatically disqualified.

If you choose to take control of a possible future guardianship you should contact an attorney who has undertaken necessary training to advise you in these areas as well as other concerns of senior citizens. You may come by our office or contact us for advice or for a referral in your area.

This article is presented as a general discussion of the law about the areas involved and is not intended as individual legal advice for your circumstances. There is no substitute for consulting a professional trained in the area of your concerns as a senior.

A pitch to strike out stroke

You can help strike out stroke by reducing your risk factors.

A form of cardiovascular disease, a stroke is a sudden and often severe attack caused when a blood vessel bringing oxygen and nutrients to the brain either bursts or is clogged by a clot or another particle. The rupture or blockage then prevents blood from flowing to the brain, killing brain cells.

The results are often disabling if not deadly.

Stroke is the number three killer in America, behind heart attack and cancer, claiming about 150,000 lives a year, according to the American Heart Association. The type of stroke and the brain area affected could alter your behavior and through patterns, memory, senses, speech and your ability to understand speech. You could also suffer paralysis. About half of all acute nerve disease patients are stroke victims.

According to the American Heart Association, the estimated 500,000 people who suffer stroke each year in the United States usually have one or more of the following risk factors that can be changed or treated.

-High blood pressure: You can control a major risk factor for stroke by eating a healthful diet, staying at your proper weight and, if necessary, taking medicine.

-Cardiovascular disease: This includes heart attack, angina, congestive heart failure and other abnormalities of the heart.

-Transient ischemic attacks: TIAs, or "mini-strokes," which are strong predictors of stroke are usually treated with drugs that prevent clots from forming.

The major risk factors for stroke that cannot be changed are:

-Age: The incidence of stroke more than doubles every 10 years if you're over 55.

-Male sex: The incidence of stroke is about 30 percent higher for men than women.

-Race: Black Americans have more than a 60 percent greater risk of disability and death from stroke than white Americans.

-Diabetes mellitus: Although diabetes can be treated, having it still increases your chance of suffering a stroke. This is even more true for women.

-Prior stroke: The risk of stroke if you've already had one is many times that of someone who has not.

-Heredity: Stroke risk is eaten if your family has a history of stroke.

Other contributing facts for stroke include:

-Asymptomatic carotid bruit: A bruit is an abnormal sound heard when a stethoscope is placed over the carotid artery in your neck.

-High red blood cell count: A marked, or even a moderate, rise in your red blood cell count could help increase your risk of stroke.

Because early detection is the best weapon against stroke, it's wise to listen to your body reveal these telling signs:

-Sudden weakness or numbness of the face, arm and leg on one side of your body.

-Loss of speech or trouble talking or understanding speech.

-Dimness or loss of vision, especially in only one eye.

-Unexplained dizziness, unsteadiness or sudden falls.

Strike back against stroke by learning about it and what puts you at risk.

Technology improves eyeglasses

Thanks to outstanding new optical technology, today's eyeglass wearers can see their ways clear to greater comfort and good looks.

That's because new lenses made from strong, lightweight polycarbonate are now available through many eyecare professionals. No more thick, heavy, uncomfortable lenses—these new high index polycarbonate lenses are half the weight of glass and up to 25 percent lighter than regular plastic lenses. They can be made about 20 percent thinner too, for a nicer look in any prescription.

In addition to making your glasses look better, polycarbonate lenses really look out for your eyes. They offer excellent protection because polycarbonate is the strongest optical material available—at least 10 times more impact resistant than either regular plastic or glass.

Polycarbonate lenses also block 99 percent of the sun's ultraviolet rays. That protection is built right into the material, not added on in a secondary operation.

For the fashion conscious, polycarbonate lenses offer a multitude of advantages. They're thinner for a more attractive profile and are tintable to just about any fashion or sunglass shade. A variety of surface and edge treatments are available, including anti-reflective coatings, edge polishing and edge faceting. Both sides of the lenses are coated to resist scratching under normal wearing conditions.

Polycarbonate lenses are available in all popular styles—single vision and multifocal—and in most prescriptions.

NUTRITION UPDATE

Sports Nutrition: A Career for the Nineties

If you engage in regular athletic activity, you know how important it is to feel your best. Finding a routine that suits your particular body build, sport, and lifestyle is essential. So is developing a nutrition program that allows you to perform optimally.

General Nutrition Goals:

The Rules of the Game

"Variety...for the competitive edge.

Eating a variety of foods from among the different food groups is the best way to ensure getting all of the nutrients that are essential for good health and optimal physical performance. Some athletes think they need to supplement their diet with vitamin and mineral pills, or with protein. But the fact is, even the most active people need only 1,800 calories derived from a variety of foods to meet all their nutrient requirements.

Maintain a healthy weight...to keep the ball in play. Controlling your weight so that you are neither too fat or too thin is a function of balancing the energy (calories) you eat with the energy you burn. The number of calories you need varies depending on your body size, gender, age, particular activity, and training level. Where your calories come from is as important as how many you get - both for general well-being and for performance.

-Carbohydrates...to go the distance.

Complex carbohydrates from whole grains, breads, cereals, beans, pasta, and starchy vegetables should provide the great majority of an athlete's calories. They are the most efficient body fuel, the primary source of energy for muscle function, and the protein-sparing component in the diet.

Eating adequate amounts of complex carbohydrate foods can also boost the amount of glycogen (that is stored carbohydrate in muscles and the liver) available for energy during exercise. And, importantly, it seems that larger glycogen stores can delay the onset of exhaustion during physical activity and markedly improve performance.

There are other carbohydrates: simple sugars. These are found in fruits, juices, table sugars, syrups, and honey, and are sometimes referred to as "quick energy" sugars. Fruits and juices especially are a valuable part of a nutritious diet. Yet, research suggests that they can lower blood sugar levels and decrease performance when eaten up to 45 minutes before exercise. So, save them for after your workout or competition.

-Low-fat...to go into overtime.

Fat mobilized from fat stores in the body are an important source of fuel at certain stages of exercise. These free fats are preferentially burned instead of carbohydrates during prolonged physical activities. As a result, they can have a sparing effect on muscle glycogen stores and improve athletic endurance.

-Protein...to build a good defense

We know that protein is needed in the diet to build muscle mass and to repair tissues. Dietary protein at 15% of calories is more than enough to meet the needs of most athletes. Try to choose lean meats, non-fat or lower-fat dairy products, egg whites or cholesterol-free egg substitutes, and grain/legume/Dairy combinations. They are rich sources of protein and lower in fat.

-Fluids and electrolytes...buoy your performance. Keeping your body adequately hydrated before, during, and after physical activity is essential for general health and for optimal performance. Water is instrumental both in maintaining a normal body temperature through perspiration and in preventing cramps, exhaustion, and even heat stroke that can cause dehydration.

There are steps you can take to make sure you get enough fluids. Drink liberal amounts of water, juices, milk, and soup as part of your usual diet. Avoid alcoholic and caffeinated beverages since they can increase fluid losses in the urine.

You can drink approximately 2 cups of water 1 to 2 hours before exercise; another 2 cups of water 15 minutes before exercise; 3 to 6 ounces of water every 10 to 15 minutes while exercising, and ample amounts of water after exercise to replace lost fluids and glycogen. Drink your liquids cool, not ice cold to promote stomach emptying.

Although there can be substantial losses of some electrolytes (sodium, potassium, and magnesium) in perspiration as well as water losses, they can easily be replenished through the diet with foods like low-fat dairy products, spinach, celery, bananas, and grapefruit. Salt and potassium pills are not necessary or advised.

Before the Event: What and When to Eat

What and when you eat before competition can influence how you perform. It is also a highly individualized decision based on previous experience, physical comfort, and emotional or mental consideration. In general, you should maintain a high complex carbohydrate, low-fat diet throughout the training period. Then choose a pre-competition meal that works well for you. Include complex carbohydrates and fluids, and limit fat. Eat 2 to 4 hours prior to the event and eat familiar, carbohydrate-rich foods to avoid intestinal distress. Drink ample amounts of water, milk, or juice with the meal. Substitute frequent carbohydrate-rich snacks and fluids for full meals if it makes you more comfortable.

Next month we will review Sports Nutrition for Adults who have special concerns.

Egg gets break from USDA

In the spring of 1989, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) gave the egg a long-overdue break.

The USDA announced that newer, more sophisticated measurements show that an average large egg contains about 213 milligrams of cholesterol. For many years, the accepted figure had been 274 milligrams.

The American Heart Association (AHA) responded to the news by revising its egg consumption guidelines. The organization now says that to limit dietary cholesterol to 300 milligrams a day, healthy American adults can eat up to four, rather than three, egg yolks a week.

Even though this newer guideline allows more freedom for including eggs in a heart-healthy diet, the egg still is a concentrated source of cholesterol. Yet you can take advantage of the egg's culinary versatility without its cholesterol.

Whether you have high blood cholesterol or follow the AHA's recommendations for a healthy diet, these tips offer more options for enjoying egg dishes while controlling your dietary cholesterol:

-Use egg whites-Substitute two egg whites for each whole egg in any recipe calling for whole eggs. An egg's cholesterol is contained entirely in its yolk. The white has protein but no cholesterol.

Because an egg white also is fat-free, some recipes such as muffins, omelettes and scrambled eggs work better if you substitute egg whites for only half the total eggs. For example, a healthier version of a standard muffin recipe that calls for two eggs is one egg plus two egg whites.

Use commercial egg substitutes. For every whole egg you replace with the white, you're left with a yolk to toss or store for future use. That's not always convenient.

A few manufacturers have solved this dilemma by offering frozen and refrigerated egg substitutes. To use them, substitute one-quarter cup of liquid egg substitute for one whole egg. Because they're typically made entirely of egg whites, these products contain no cholesterol. Color is added to more closely resemble whole eggs.

Favorite Mashed Potatoes

It's true! Mashed potatoes can be part of a healthful diet for the whole family. But remember, go easy on the trimmings.

10 medium potatoes, unpeeled, about 3 lbs.
1 cup skim milk
6 tbsp. non-fat "butter" granules Freshly ground black pepper to taste

Steam potatoes until they can easily be pierced with a fork.

In a small saucepan, heat milk until warm and set aside. Peel potatoes. Place potatoes, milk and "butter" granules in a large bowl and mash with a potato masher until smooth. Add pepper to taste. Serve warm.

Makes 10, approximately ¾ cup servings.

Golden Line Dancers

Olga Harris, Instructor

The Golden Line Dancers haven't had much spare time in May because of graduations and family reunions.

Geraldine Frank attended her Mays family reunion at Kicappoo Lake near Wichita Falls.

The whole town of Hereford is proud of Camille Betzen being named valedictorian of Hereford High School. She is the granddaughter of Clarence and Mildred Betzen and daughter of Tommy and Cheryl Betzen.

Dr. Phillip Cain, son of Morgan and B.F. Cain and nephew of Virginia Holmes, was recently inducted in the American College of Physicians. Dr. Cain, a graduate of Hereford High is a member of faculty at Scott and White.

Leona Schilling celebrated Frances Kahljick's 86th birthday at Slaton. Bertha Tiefel had guest Clyde and Mary Hussey from Seattle, Wash.

Edna LeClair was visited by Vel and Olga Bowles from Riverside, Cali., and Wanda Oerline and family from Abilene.

Floyd and Junaita Coker went fishing at Ute Lake. Juanita caught the most fish.

Audrey Powell attended a family reunion of the Felix Gilbert family.

She visited with cousins she had not seen since 1942. She also had as her guests, Ellan Davis or Amarillo and Nina Vera of Irving. They both taught school with Audrey years ago.

Betty Jo Carlson attended graduation exercises for her granddaughters, Deborah and Dana Bouldin; Deborah from SMU and Dana from Gainesville High.

Ed McCreary has zipped around to reunions in Ft. Worth and elsewhere, but always making sure to include some golf and square dancing.

Bessie Story traveled to Laughlin and Las Vegas, Nev., came home, went back to Las Vegas, Ruby Carmicheal's home at Lake Havasu; didn't slow down till she traveled to Chicago to see the Cubs and Dodgers play before returning home.

Olga Harris, dance teacher, reported that her latest check-up with her surgeon and Harrington Cancer Center gave her a good report. Olga plays an important part in our line dancing and in our hearts.

Jolene Bledsoe, who is the regular reporter for this column, has been ill and we miss her cheerful smile.

Care may eliminate necessity of dentures

Here's a thought to bite on. Dentures will not only soon be obsolete, so will tooth loss in this country. That's the prediction of health officials who are launching an ambitious program to improve the dental health of American adults.

Tooth loss is so common among older people that many regard it as a normal part of aging. Teeth don't fall out because they are old. They're lost because of trauma, or more often, dental disease.

To wipe out the diseases that lead to tooth loss, we need to understand the factors that influence oral health. These include dental hygiene practices, behaviors such as tobacco use that harm oral tissues, socioeconomic status, general health status, dental treatment methods and the diseases themselves.

To meet the challenge, the NIDR is spearheading a national program of research and action to improve the oral health of American adults.

NIDSR will lead the research side of the program, supporting studies on the biological, behavioral and epidemiological aspects of adult dental health.

For a free fact sheet on oral health for seniors, write: Age Page, National Institute of Dental Research, P.O. Box 54793, Washington, D.C. 20032.

Since last February, I have had the privilege of serving the Hereford Senior Citizens Center as "Benefits Counselor." This program is for our senior and I am very pleased to be able to help each of you with any of our services.

If you need help filing your Medicare Claims, Medicaid, S.S.I. or any of the Social Programs available to the seniors, I will try to assist you with any of these that may fit your situation. If you think you might qualify come in and let's talk about these.

Margie, Sid Ham and I had the honor to attend a conference in Dallas on Law and Aging May 29-31. This was a very informative meeting and we received a lot of good information.

I am in my office at the Center from 8-12 each day to serve you.

Eye Openers

by Dr. Hugh B. Currie
Ophthalmic Surgeon
Currie Eye Institute
DID YOU KNOW.....?

Many patients often ask, how do I know if I have glaucoma?

Some patients will say they don't have to worry about glaucoma because their peripheral vision is just fine! They have heard somewhere that glaucoma causes a loss of peripheral vision, so they feel that if they can see way out to the side, they don't have glaucoma. This is a false notion. Glaucoma causes loss of the side vision in an area which is fairly close to the straight ahead position. Checking the side vision with one eye closed may not result in picking up this deficit of vision. Loss may be severe and a person still may be able to see a hand moving far out in the periphery.

Glaucoma is also thought to cause discomfort in the eyes by some people. However, in most cases of glaucoma there is no discomfort of any kind.

The fact is that a person may have severe glaucoma with marked damage, and be totally unaware. It is very important that people have a periodic, professional eye examination to make sure that they do not have signs of glaucoma. This is not a diagnosis that anyone can reliably make on their own. Don't take a chance with your vision. Glaucoma causes permanent, irreversible damage to your eyesight.

Dana Delany moving on from TV's 'China Beach'

Actress Dana Delany (right) won an Emmy Award last year for her portrayal of nurse Colleen McMurphy on China Beach, a dramatic series about the lives of men and women who served during the Vietnam war. The series' last seven episodes are currently airing Tuesday nights on ABC.

By Suzanne Gill

Even while the last episodes of China Beach are being aired this summer on ABC, actress Dana Delany is returning to the movie career she left three years ago when she won the series lead.

In China Beach, Delany became a full-grown television star, setting a new standard in women's dramatic roles that viewers of both sexes could appreciate. A beautiful, green-eyed brunette, Delany infused the role of nurse Colleen McMurphy with her own cool strength and intelligence, offering a portrayal of compelling integrity. Her hard work was rewarded with the 1989 Emmy Award for Best Actress in a Dramatic Series.

The series concludes in late July with an episode that takes McMurphy and other China Beach characters on an emotional post-war visit to the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C.

"It was our last week of filming," says Delany, "and the cast got to go to Washington and be at the wall, and that was wonderful. It was a great way to end it."

With the end of the series, Delany felt it was important to re-establish her career in motion pictures. Having had small roles in five films, including Almost You, Moon Over Parador and Patty Hearst, Delany picks up with a lead in Light Sleeper, a drama about the glittering and dangerous world of New York after dark. Delany plays a troubled ex-addict who's romantically linked to co-star Willem Dafoe.

Far from dwelling on the dark side of life, Delany says she would like to make a comedy.

"(Comedy is) something I haven't gotten to do in a while, and I really enjoy that. But you've got to prove to people that you can be funny when you've been playing serious parts for three years."

Dana Delany looks forward to new challenges in film and television.

An avid fan of murder mysteries, Delany once thought of becoming an FBI agent and would relish the chance to play a detective on the screen. But she's not hoping to age into a Miss Marple role; Delany's idea of a lady sleuth is an Emma Peel (of The Avengers fame) or a pavement-pounding female counterpart to Sam Spade or Mike Hammer.

Although she says she prefers a closed film set to a theater stage ("I don't need the applause."), Delany confesses there is at least one stage role she covets.

"I went to see 'Cat on a Hot Tin Roof' on Broadway, and I was jealous. I would like to have done that part." The rigors of such a role don't daunt her.

"I had a hard time doing a sitcom," she recalls of the late, unlamented Sweet Surrender, in which she played a woman who interrupted her career to tend to her family.

Hard work pays off for Joan Rivers

By Lisa Otupal

Joan Rivers has worked long and hard to get to the top. Her unfailing energy and determination have made her talk show a success, seen in 80 percent of the United States.

Last year she bested veteran talents to win an Emmy Award for Outstanding Talk Show Host. She's won two Clio Awards for Outstanding Performance by an Actress in a Commercial. She's been presented awards and honors by Harvard University and has won the Jimmy Award for Best Night Club Performer. And she makes it look so easy.

Yet Rivers' career has been anything but easy. In 1960, she joined Chicago's Second City comedy club to hone her skills. After Second City, she wrote for Candid Camera and other television shows.

As an aspiring comedian in the 1960s, Rivers auditioned six times for The Tonight Show and was turned away each time. But by 1983 she was named permanent guest host and stayed on the show for three years, until the Fox network offered her a late-night show of her own. Despite a loyal following, Rivers and Fox soon parted company.

After the suicide of her husband, Edgar, Rivers bounced back with her own daytime talk show.

Rivers' career has soared in the past few years, but she has said it's been "just hard, hurting little steps."

TIME OUT

Wimbledon crown lures tennis' best

By Steve Paschal. The changing of the guard that marked the tennis world in the late 1980s may just about be complete, but the queen will still be looking down on the best players in the world this week when the royalty of tennis gathers at the All-England Club for the 66th Wimbledon Lawn Championships.

The old guard has been slower to surrender on the women's side, where Martina Navratilova won for a record ninth time in 1990. However, Navratilova, who lost to Steffi Graf in the 1988 and 1989 finals, will have a tough time holding off the challenge of younger players such as Graf, Monica Seles and Gabriela Sabatini in her bid for a 10th title.

Gerald McRaney plays one not-so-mean fatherly Marine on Major Dad, Mondays on CBS.

James Earl Jones in Gabriel's Fire

For next fall ABC is revamping the excellent, but underrated, series Gabriel's Fire, with the hope of drawing a bigger audience. Veteran actor Richard Crenna is joining the show, which will be retitled Bird and Katt. Crenna says the relationship between his character (Katt) and that of James Earl Jones (Bird) will be "antagonistic, but mutually respectful."

Mary Higgins Clark, the world's highest paid female mystery writer, recently took in a few more bucks for the film rights to her latest book, Loves Music; Loves to Dance. Producer Dodi Fayed (Chariots of Fire, F/X 2) has acquired worldwide rights and expects production to start in about a year. The book, currently a bestseller, tells of a serial killer who selects victims via the personal ads.

Nike has joined forces with PBS and the Children's Television Workshop for a multimedia literacy project titled Ghostwriter. Not only will there be a weekly television series based on the concept, but free mini-magazines for students, study guides for teachers and a weekly, syndicated newspaper column. Spokespersons say the project will have a bold, graphic appearance similar to that of MTV.

LET'S TALK

Frankster Arleen Sorkin

By Polly Vonctes

Q: I would like to know more about Arleen Sorkin of America's Funniest People. Has she ever appeared on any other show? —Bud Woolery, Lebanon, Ind.

A: Arlene Sorkin was born in Washington, D.C., on October 14, 1966. She made her acting debut at age nine at Washington's Arena Stage, where she appeared with Robert Prosky, Ned Beatty and Rene Auberjonois. After attending Boston's Emerson College where she majored in theater arts, she moved to New York City to become a dancer. Instead, she joined a comedy group called The High Heeled Women. During her seven years with that troupe, she performed in Carnegie Hall and Lincoln Center. She is perhaps best known to television viewers as Calliope Jones Bradford, the offbeat fashion designer and would-be psychic on Days of Our Lives. She was one of the first performers to introduce comedy to daytime soap dramas. She has also appeared for three seasons as Geneva, the wisecracking maid on Duet and Open House. Her recent performances include a role in the TV special Funny You Should Ask, a guest appearance on the series Room for Romance and a cameo in the feature film Love in Venice.

Q: If you have the time would you please answer a couple of questions for me? Is Gary Cole (Midnight Caller) any relation to Mark Singer? And who was the actor called Conrad Birdie in the movie Bye Bye Birdie? —C.L.F. Perryton, Texas

A: Gary Cole grew up in the Chicago suburb of Park Ridge, where his father was a director of finance and his mother was a school administrator. Mark Singer was born in Vancouver, B.C., where his father, the late Jacques Singer, conducted the Vancouver Symphony. He grew up in Oregon and Texas. The two are not related. Jesse Pearson played the role of Conrad Birdie in the 1963 film Bye Bye Birdie.

Broadway star Evan Handler walked off stage in the middle of a performance of I Hate Hamlet. Handler exited after star Nicol Williamson lectured him in front of the audience and then hit him over the head with a sword during a dueling scene. An understudy finished the show, and Handler has quit.

Have mercy on the planet. The Discovery Channel takes a week-long look at The State of the Natural World. The event begins on Monday, June 24, with Legacy of War, an examination of the aftermath of chemical warfare and environmental terrorism resulting from the Desert Storm conflict.

Test your ecology awareness on Thursday, June 27, with A&E's A User's Guide to Planet Earth, hosted by Tom Selleck. From Thoreau's Walden Pond, celebrities including Roseanne Barr, Candice Bergen and Don Henley offer tips on grass-roots environmental projects.

As long as grass grows, people will fight for it. Environmentalists take issue with ranchers over protected lands being used for cattle grazing in The New Range Wars, premiering Sunday, June 23, on TBS.

For a more classical rivalry over real estate, June 23 marks The Disney Channel's exclusive TV debut of Henry V, Shakespeare's tale of the young English king who challenged the French army at Agincourt. Kenneth Branagh directed himself in the title role of this Academy Award-winning film, which features brilliant performances by Derek Jacobi (I, Claudius), Paul Scofield and Ian Holm.

The biggest battle that starts with love is still Wimbledon, and HBO is there with all the excitement of the ultimate in tennis competition. Live coverage commences on June 24. © TV Listing Inc.

FAMILY FAIR

By Sherry Jones

This month, HBO brings Beatrix Potter's classic story The Tale of Peter Rabbit to life in an animated musical narrated by Carol Burnett and featuring songs by Sheldon Harnick (Fiddler on the Roof).

When Mrs. Rabbit sends her children Flopsy, Mopsy, Cottontail and Peter off to pick blackberries, she warns them to stay clear of Mr. McGregor's garden and ignore the tasty looking vegetables growing there.

Peter, being an average rabbit, decides the temptation is too great and proceeds directly to the forbidden vegetables. After having a joyful time stuffing himself with lettuce, radishes, carrots and more, who do you think Peter encounters — none but the dreaded Mr. McGregor himself.

Realizing how terrified Peter must be as he leads the angry gardener on a high-speed chase through the tool shed and dodges the farmer's hungry white cat, some kindly sparrows come to Peter's rescue, but he learns his lesson well.

Carol Burnett supplies the voice of Mrs. Rabbit, Mr. McGregor's cat and sings many of the songs. With its last airing of the month on Thursday, June 27, The Tale of Peter Rabbit is a heartwarming story that shouldn't be missed.

Veteran broadcaster Bob Barker serves as host of The 18th Annual Daytime Emmy Awards, in their first-ever prime-time presentation, live Thursday on CBS.

Nominee Bob Barker emcees Daytime Emmy Awards

A couple of firsts marks this year's Daytime Emmy Awards, airing Thursday, June 27, live from New York City: One, the ceremonies will be presented during prime time for the first time in the show's 18-year history; two, All My Children star Susan Lucci will compete for an unprecedented 12th time in the Outstanding Lead Actress category. CBS leads the field with 78 nominations. ABC trails with 37 — less than half. NBC scored 29, PBS 22, Cable 14 and Fox 3.

Not new to the show is this year's repeat-host, Bob Barker (The Price Is Right). Barker, a five-time winner, could win his sixth game-show trophy during Thursday's CBS telecast.

What does Barker think of Lucci's chances? "If I were Susan Lucci," says Barker, "I would be sitting around hoping I did not win, because she gets more publicity for not winning the Emmy than the winner gets for winning the Emmy."

Far from bitter about her dubious honor, Lucci has, in fact, capitalized on the scenario. Most recently she appears on a Nutrasweet commercial as a pampered, powder-puffed star who gets everything she wants — "except the Emmy!" she suddenly shouts, throwing an on-set temper tantrum. The creative spot also copped a Clio nomination.

TRIVIA, ETC.

Think back to vintage TV

By Steven Alan McGaw
Folks, I was a little mean last week. I asked you who was the first choice to play Joe Buck in Midnight Cowboy (Michael Sarrazin), but neglected to say who finally won the role. It was, of course, Jon Voight. Sorry...

- Questions:
1. What landmark television series made its debut on January 12, 1971?
 2. Remember Highway Patrol? Who was the star and what was the name of the character he played?
 3. Identify the actress who played the title role in the '50s series My Little Margie. (BONUS: What was Margie's last name?)
 4. Who was the star of the early '60s series Burke's Law?
 5. They made 104 episodes of Superman in the '50s. Can you A) name the actor who played the Man of Steel, B) identify the two actresses who took the role of Lois Lane, and C) name the theatrical feature that was edited into the two-part series premiere?

- Answers:
1. All in the Family.
 2. Chief Dan Matthews.
 3. Gale Storm played Margie.
 4. Gene Barry.
 5. A) George Reeves B) Phyllis Coates, for one year, Noel Neill for the remaining four C) Superman vs. The Mole Men.

Networks set for fall

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The major television networks, while steadily losing viewers to fierce competition from cable channels, are digging in for a defensive battle this fall.

Once the only game in town, the networks have a dwindling audience that is down to 62.4 percent of those watching television. Viewers are turning to cable and pay channels, independent stations, videocassettes - or simply not watching at all.

The declining audience crisis would seem to call for a counterattack with innovative and provocative programming in the 1991-92 season. Instead, ABC, CBS, NBC and Fox are playing it safe.

It'll be a season of familiar shows and familiar faces. There are more comedies than ever - 50 compared to 44 last fall. There are more reality shows, fewer dramas.

NBC, after six years in first place, is slipping and vulnerable. ABC is abandoning such innovative but low-rated shows as "thirtysomething," "Twin Peaks" and "China Beach." CBS, which has regained its momentum after faltering for several seasons, sees a chance to pull ahead.

The networks are in a tight spot. A bold move could put ABC or CBS on top. Yet, a bold move could also come a cropper and hasten the erosion of audience and ad revenues.

ABC, after killing off three shows that appealed to a small but loyal audience of young adults, takes a bold step - backward. A new Friday night comedy called "Step By Step" brings together in a new marriage a man and a woman who each have three children. Shades of "The Brady Bunch."

Helping fill the schedule are more reality shows, which are cheaper to make and can pay off just as big in the ratings. ABC's "America's Favorite Home Videos" and CBS' "Rescue 911" are leading the way.

Returning in new shows are Dabney Coleman, Richard Crenna, Alex Rocco, Patrick Duffy, Suzanne Somers, Robert Guillaume, Alex Rocco, Kate Mulgrew, Mark Harmon, Kathryn Harrold, Redd Foxx, Carol Burnett, Connie Sellecca, Greg Evigan and Earl Holliman. Plus such familiar stars as Teri Garr, David Keith, Sam Waterson, Marlee Matlin, Della Reese, Twiggy Lawson and Marsha Mason.

Although the 1991 fall schedule seems like more of the same, network television is changing rapidly. It's doubtful it will go the same way as network radio. But to survive, network television by the end of the century certainly will not look as it did in the 1950s.

The audience has been fragmented by a bewildering choice of channels on cable. The rise in production costs is staggering, and at the same time too many outlets are competing for too few advertising dollars.

For the fall, ABC has four new comedies, CBS has four plus a new version of Carol Burnett's variety show from the 1960s and '70s, and NBC has seven new comedies.

Comedies particularly appeal to the networks. They're more likely to grab an audience than a drama. They appeal to a broader spectrum of the audience. They're easier to shift around on the schedule. And, unlike dramas, comedies can attract huge audiences when re-run.

None of the networks had a major new hit last season, and an early look at the shows for the fall is unpromising.

Here's a look at what each network is offering:

ABC - Four new comedies: a reality show based on the files of the FBI; two new dramas; and one returning drama, "Gabriel's Fire," that has been revamped and is now "Bird and Katt." The most promising is "Grownups," about three sisters, starring Marsha Mason, Jami Gertz and Alex Rocco (the third sister hasn't been cast yet). It's from James Brooks, an Oscar winner for "Terms of Endearment" who is associated with such hits as "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "Taxi" and "The Simpsons."

CBS - Redd Foxx, along with Della Reese, is in a comedy called "The Royal Family." Its Wednesday night partner is "Teech," about a black teacher in an exclusive boarding school for boys.

NBC - James Garner and Robert Guillaume in comedies. Garner is a con artist who takes over the city council seat of his late wife. Guillaume is a detective in the Venice beach section of Los Angeles. Oscar winner Marlee Matlin is a hearing-impaired assistant district attorney who teams up with a police investigator played by Mark Harmon in "Reasonable Doubts."

Fox - Offering programs on five nights in the fall, it has Dabney Coleman as a con artist (Is this television's most prevalent occupation?) sentenced to teach the fourth grade. It smacks a little of "Kindergarten Cop," but Coleman is more like W.C. Fields among the kids. Charles Dutton, from Broadway's "The Piano Lesson," heads a black working class family in the comedy "Roc."

CITY SLICKERS: Starring Billy Crystal, Daniel Stern, Bruno Kirby and Jack Palance.

Any film that relies on character actors to tell its story is a pretty sure bet to be a good film. Enter City Slickers. Yes, it is good. It has warmth and humor. It has nimble acting. It is well-written with sharp dialogue. It is a fantasy movie about supposedly real people, with real problems.

However, it is all treated in a predictable, simplistic way. The script (if not the conclusion) is inventive. The story is about three friends, each in a mid-life crisis, who go on a cattle drive trying to obtain a "new lease on life." Yep, revelations of bravery, sincerity, honesty and forthrightness just start to flow from these three likable characters. And, you do get your money's worth. There is a death along the way, plus a birth, a cattle stampede, and a lot of gorgeous scenery thrown in for good measure. But mostly, it is a story played for laughs - and, laughs it does deliver. Jack Palance, the ornery trail boss, is positively brilliant doing a satire of Jack Palance. Considering the movie fare that has been offered to date, City Slickers is a hit, and a nice way to spend a couple of hours. Rated PG.

VIDEO RENTAL GEMS

In answer to letters asking for more "hidden gems", more films "from the archives, and more "golden goodies":

THE FALLEN IDOL: (1948/British/Black & White) Starring Ralph Richardson, Bobby Henry and Jack Hawkins.

Beautifully directed, this movie is a thriller set in a foreign embassy inside London. A small boy, the ambassador's son, hero-worships the embassy butler, who is suspected of murdering his wife. Told from the child's point of view, the movie is definitely a pulse-raiser. Director Carol Reed skillfully blends camera movement, angles, lighting, and performance into a fascinating and suspenseful motion picture.

Richardson is superb as the accused murderer. His tender treatment of the boy, his cultured bearing, and his gentlemanly demeanor convey supreme nobility in face of ruin. Bobby Henry, as the young boy, is nothing short of wonderful in his arresting portrayal of glee, fear, joy and childish frustration.

The Fallen Idol received the Best British Film award and director Carol Reed was honored as Best Director by the New York Film Critics. Not rated. Would be PG-13.
