Chapman realizes 10-year dream

By ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

Kathryn Chapman researched for 10 years in writing her Bible study — a lot of hours for a 70-page book.

According to her, though, God-inspired men labored 1,600 years to pen 66 books of the Bible, so a decade of work seemed minute in comparison.

"The book was at least 200 pages before I started cutting it," said Chapman, author of "Life Line," a chronological study of the Bible. "Everything in that book I checked out and prayed about and that's why it took so long. I bet I rewrote a couple of chapters eight or ten times. One time I got so disgusted I took the thing apart paragraph by paragraph, so it seems that everything I did with this book I did the hard way."

Chapman said she didn't actually give 10 years of her life to writing the book. Five of those years were spent digging into the Bible, cross-referencing and comparing with other studies.

"I saw a real need for my study because I taught a class of older women and they just didn't have a good understanding of where everything fits in with the Bible," said Chapman, hands clasped neatly in her lap. "This class asked me to teach on the Lord's second coming, so I was forced to go all the way back to Genesis and find the reason for his first coming."

"At the same time, my husband, Jack, was working on a time line for the Bible and out of both of these studies I got the idea for the book."

Chapman, who attends the Church of the Nazarene in Hereford, said the most difficult part in writing the book was mulling through Exodus' devotion for detail for building the tabernacle while the Israelites were in the wilderness.

Chapman admitted that making an altar 7½ feet by 3 feet would quickly bore the average reader, but she said everything in the Bible had a purpose.

"There are many pictures of what Jesus would do in the future and one of those pictures was the tabernacle," she said. "For instance, there was a curtain that shielded the room where only the priest could go and the congregation couldn't. That represented our relationship with God before Jesus died on the cross." But when Jesus Christ died on the cross, the curtain was ripped to show that man no longer needed the priest for intercession.

After 10 years of working on the book and when it appeared there were no stones unturned, Chapman had trouble getting the book published.

"I sent the book to a number of Christian book publishers and I kept getting rejected, but they never would tell me why," said Chapman. "I think a lot of them thought it was too short for binding — and after all that work I put into condensing it."

Chapman said another reason publishers rejected the manuscript was a three-color fold-out chart in the back illustrating the "life line" of the Bible from creation until God's final judgment on Earth.

"I guess I could have done it in black and white, but the chart would have lost a lot of its meaning. It just really said something in color."

Trafton Publishers in Amarillo saw its potential and signed a contract with her.

Bilbie Jooce, a friend of Chapman, said she swears by the book after having had Chapman as her teacher in 1979 at First United Methodist Church in Hereford.

"We had been going to church our whole lives, but this study put it all together for us," said Jooce.

"We've received our theology in bits and pieces, but we never had any background framework to put it in. It really changed my and my husband's lives so we could see what the Bible was all about."

Inspirational material

Kathryn Chapman was stumped as to what the cover of her Bible study book should be until one day while driving. She said she had been praying for God to show her what to put on the cover, when she happened to look up and saw a billowy cloud. "Clouds somehow seem eternal to me," she said.

Fiesta queen is crowned

Parade, dance on Saturday

By ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

A crowd of 180 Mexican-Americans, with a handful of Anglos, lifted their voices Friday night at San Jose Catholic Church in Hereford to commemorate Miguel Hidalgo's Cry of Dolores 178 years ago which sparked the Mexican revolution against Spain.

Friday was the first of a two-day celebration called Fiestas Patrias, a jubilee of dancing, speeches and parades to celebrate Mexico's cry for independence from Spanish rule on Sept. 16, 1810. The Mexicans won their freedom in 1821.

For the Rev. Darryl Birkenfeld, associate pastor at San Jose who helped organize the event, the celebration was meant to focus on the blending of the Mexican and American cultures and how Hispanics should not let their Mexican heritage slip through their fingers.

"Many of the older people in the Mexican-American community saw the need to tell the story of Mexican independence because it hasn't been told too much in the past," said Birkenfeld.

The Fiestas Patrias queen, 16-year-old Delinda Hernandez, spoke on the past, present and future of the Mexican-American woman. It was the same speech that won her the crown several weeks ago.

After presenting roses to several Hispanic women as well as her mother and grandmother, Hernandez was crowned queen and took the first dance with her escort, Edward Castillo.

Birkenfeld said this was the biggest crowd he has ever seen for Fiestas Patrias and was excited that one of the members of Hernandez's court had an Anglo escort — a first for Fiestas Patrias.

"I think that people in Hereford are noticing a change in the way we celebrate this," said Birkenfeld, "and that's very positive to me."

A parade traveling down Park Avenue to Main Street began at 3 p.m. Saturday and a dance was scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday at the Bull Barn.

Her royal highness

Edward Castillo, left, escorts this year's queen, Delinda Hernandez, as she bows to last year's Fiestas Patrias queen at Friday night's celebration at San Jose

Catholic Church. The crowning of the queen is important because it represents Mexico's tie with Spanish royalty before Mexico's independence in 1821.

Local Roundup

Police arrest one

Hereford police arrested a man, 18, on Friday in the 200 block of Lawton for assault, trespass, terroristic threat and disorderly conduct.

Offenses reported by the Hereford Police Department included theft of $3.02 worth of gasoline; a missing person reported in the 300 block of Avenue C; criminal trespass in the 300 block of Douglas and the 500 block of Knight;

Disorderly conduct in the 400 block of North 25 Mile Avenue; a domestic problem in the 600 block of Irving; and a window, worth $50, damaged in a criminal mischief incident in the 400 block of Barrett.

Police issued nine citations Friday. No fire calls or accidents were reported.

DSCHD board meets Tuesday

The Deaf Smith County Hospital District will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The agenda includes consideration of medical staff privileges; medical staff, administrative and operating reports; and a review of payroll and accounts payable.

City will meet Monday

Hereford city commissioners will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Hereford City Hall.

The commissioners will hold an executive session to discuss "pending litigation" in the Ed Wuerflein zoning case, and will also hold public hearings on three other zoning requests.

Those requests include a change from C-3 to M-H at the corner of Gracey and Main; a request to change from R-2 to C-2 at 207 Union; and a request for commercial zoning on the southeast corner of 15th and U.S. Highway 385.

The city will also hear a paving request; consider an ordinance establishing reinvestment zones and tax abatement guidelines; consider interim funding for the Hereford Area Economic Development Council;

Consider purchase of a mower for the Park Department; and look at Hereford's participation in the Panhandle Conference of Mayors.

Chemical People meet Tuesday

Chemical People will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the lounge at the Hereford Community Center.

Junior parents meet Monday

An organizational meeting for parents and sponsors of the junior class will be held at 7 p.m. Monday in the Hereford Community Center lounge.

Parents of all Hereford High School juniors are urged to attend the meeting to make plans for the junior supper.

SBOE candidates here Monday

Monte Hasse of Lubbock and Dr. Paul Dunn of Levelland, this area's two candidates for the State Board of Education, will be in Hereford at 7 p.m. Monday at the Hereford High School cafeteria.

The candidates will discuss their educational priorities and answer questions from the audience.

The post could be crucial for the future of education in Texas, and the meeting is designed to assist voters in electing the best candidate in the November election.

The meeting is sponsored by the Hereford Independent School District, the Hereford Educators Association and the Classroom Teachers Association.

Manning's death ruled self-inflicted

The Sept. 1 death of Renee Manning of Hereford resulted from a self-inflicted gunshot wound, Deaf Smith County Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine ruled Friday.

"After a thorough investigation by the detectives of the Hereford Police Department and the findings of the autopsy, it is my interpretation that Renee Manning's death was due to a self-inflicted gunshot wound," Turrentine said in a statement released Friday.

Manning's body had been discovered in a bedroom closet in a home in northwest Hereford, and authorities questioned several persons before the ruling was made.

Championship chili cookoff set Oct. 30

Carroll Shelby and C.V. Wood, Jr., Governors of the International Chili Society, announced that the 22nd Annual World's Championship Chili Cookoff will be held on Sunday, Oct. 30, at Tropic Goldmine in Rosamond, California.

"Chili Cookoffs have come a long way!" stated Shelby, builder of the Cobra Ford, Shelby Mustang and Chrysler's Shelby CSX. "When we held the first World's Championship on my ranch in Texas, back in 1967, no one knew millions of dollars would someday be raised for different charities from chili cookoffs. Last year the International Chili Society sanctioned over 300 events and over 2 million dollars was raised for charities."

C.V. Wood, Jr. (Woody) former Chairman of McCullough Oil and an ol' pal of Shelby's, won the World's Championship Chili Cookoff in 1969 and 1971. This was before he brought the London Bridge to Lake Havasu, Arizona. "Cookin' Chili is Americana," stated Woody. "Why we even have a bill in the House of Representatives to designate Chili as America's Official Dish. Chili was invented in America by cowboys on cattle drives. It is part of our Heritage."

The World's Championship Chili Cookoff has become a pilgrimage of chiliheads from every state in the Union, including foreign countries such as Australia, Canada, Mexico and Germany. Thousands of people arrive days before the actual event, camping in the mojave desert across from the abandoned Tropic Goldmine, site of the actual competition. Recipes are swapped, pins traded and campfires glow into the night over the aroma of Barbecue and Chili.

A World Record will be established by the Tulsa, Oklahoma Jaycee's who will prepare the World's largest bowl of Chili, with over one ton of meat and 2,000 onions, with a total volume of 750 gallons. The "Titanic Bowl of Red" will be appropriately sponsored by Maximum Strength Pepto-Bismol, and benefit Children's Hospital. Pepto-Bismol will also construct a "Pepto Relief Tent" for those who eat too much of the Red Stuff.

Entertainment will be highlighted by Buckwheat Zydeco, compliments of Tabasco Brand Pepper Sauce. Other activities will include Miss Chili Pepper, Mr. Hot Sauce, Shoot & Holler and an Air Show preceded with a fly-by of 2 Navy F-18's from nearby Point Mugu.

Hollywood celebrities in past years included Corbin Bernsen, Ernie Borgnine, William Conrad, Robert Mitchum, Joanne dru, Ben Johnson, Peter Marshall and Jeanne Cooper, Kate Linder, Tricia Cast and Jess Walton from the Award Winning Young & Restless. It is estimated that over 20,000 people will attend. Tropic Goldmine is located a few miles from Edwards Air Force Base and about 90 miles from Los Angeles. For additional information contact ICS, PO Box 2966, Newport Beach, CA 92663 or call 714-631-1780.

1987 WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP CHILI RECIPE

Margo Knudson
Margo's Chili

3 lbs. cubed (or coarsely ground) tri-tip cut beef

3 oz. sausage

2 tbsp kidney suet or Wesson Oil

1/2 oz. salt

2 oz. Gebhardt's Chili Powder

1/2 oz. chile powder

1/2 tsp. Hot New Mexico Chili Powder

1/2 oz. cumin

oregano tea (see note)

white pepper to taste

5 to 7 cloves garlic

2 med onions, chopped fine

1/2 tsp. coriander (optional)

4 to 6 oz. Hunts Tomato Sauce

1/2 pt. beef broth, add water if necessary

1 med ortega pepper (minced)

1/4 tsp. cayenne pepper dash of Tabasco

Oregano tea—1 tbsp oregano leaves in 1/2 cup hot, water, let steep.

Saute onions and garlic in suet about 3 minutes. Add Gebhardt's and chile powder, mix well. Brown beef in separate pan a pound at a time, pepper while browning, add onions and spices, use a little beef broth to keep from sticking. Saute sausage and ortega pepper together (about 2 minutes). Add to pot and cook about 15 minutes. Add remaining spices, Hunt's tomato sauce, water or broth, mix well. Cook about 30 minutes. Add oregano tea. Cook about 2 hours or until meat is tender, stirring occasionally. Last 20 to 30 minutes add salt and cayenne pepper if needed. serves 6 to 8

Open a can of Tecate or Pepsi; sit back and relax, you've just made the best bowl of chili in the world!!!

The Ladies Are Leading The Headache League

BY DR. GERALD GLASSCOCK
Doctor of Chiropractic

Health News...

Recently the magazine section of a Sunday paper included an item stating that women are more frequent victims of headache than men.

Quite frankly, I agree. It's certainly our experience that feminine headaches are more common than their male counterparts. And, when you examine the causes of headache, one can readily understand why.

First of all 70% of all headaches involve irritation of the nerves in the neck or muscles in the neck.

Take the typical housewife in her daily chores. In her housework, cooking, washing dishes, sewing, cleaning, scrubbing - she is constantly bending forward, stooping, stretching, etc., thus straining the neck and developing a neck posture that irritates nerves. These numerous daily chores actually cause displacement of vertebrae in the neck. And our clinical history shows that such displacements are the outstanding cause of headaches.

Incidentally, many women sleep on their abdomen and this, too, as surprising as it sounds, can contribute to frequent headaches. In this position the head must be turned to one side to breathe, changing the contour of the neck several hours a day and eventually causing a misalignment of vertebrae.

We strongly believe that the Doctor of Chiropractic is thought to be best equipped to deal with vertebral displacement and its corresponding nerve irritation and muscle tension.

Dr. Gerald Glasscock

This is a competitive world. However, I'm sure headache is not something in which the ladies wish to excel. As a matter of fact, I would think they would try to reduce their advantage by immediate and effective treatment.

(Note: Dr. Glasscock maintains Chiropractic offices at 1300 W. Park Ave., Hereford, Texas. Telephone (806)364-3277.)

Misuse of power?

A government of the people, for the people and by the people should do something to curb the power of federal judges.

These judges, appointed for life and accountable to no one, can issue all manner of outrageous rulings and nobody can challenge them, other than filing an appeal. Thus far, that seems only an expensive delay and never results in reversing the judge's decision.

A federal judge cannot be removed from office by the elected officials who appoint him. A judge can be removed only by proving malfeasance in office and that is difficult to do. In the past few years, two federal judges were removed from the bench in Utah and Florida, but not without a long, hard fight to prove downright dishonesty in office.

Judges, both elected and appointed, are charged with interpreting the laws and insuring that citizens adhere to the laws passed by their elected representatives. Nowhere in the Constitution is there a provision for allowing federal judges to act as a law unto themselves.

Most citizens in Texas are quite familiar with the rulings by Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler, who has threatened to fine the citizens of the state $8 million a day unless they build state prisons to his liking. A federal judge in Houston ruled that taxpayers in the school districts of the Rio Grande Valley must tax themselves to pay for the education of illegal aliens.

A federal judge in Oklahoma City made taxpayers of that city dig up millions to buy school buses and build schools to fit the judge's desegregation plan, and then he rejected two plans at a cost of hundreds of thousands simply because he didn't like them! Just recently, a federal judge ruled that Eastern Airlines, losing money every month, could shut down service to some cities but could not lay off union workers—regardless of how much money the company is losing!

The city council in Yonkers, N.Y. has really discovered the power of a federal judge. In that city, a federal judge ruled that the city must provide low-cost housing for minorities and should do so immediately. A majority of the council refused to take this step, stating that other needs are more critical for Yonkers.

The judge got angry and is fining individual councilmen $500 a day and the city itself was fined $100 the first day with the amount doubling every day. If his demands are not met and the judge goes this far, the city will have to raise taxes far beyond the ability of citizens to pay.

These examples may be termed exceptions rather than the general rule. However, many citizens feel that some judges have let personal prejudice dictate decisions that should not be allowed in a nation where the people are supposed to own and control government. Maybe the time has come for our elected representatives to pass a constitutional amendment that will curb the power of federal judges.

Schools Should Forsake Paddle

Search into the past of a child abuser and find out that more often than not he or she is the child of a child abuser. Search into the roots of family violence and find that it is deeply imbedded, a self-driven cycle.

Public schools should not be cogs in the cycle.

Schools should renounce violence as a means of punishment and concern themselves with strict discipline minus physical injury...

Defenders of corporal punishment cite the biblically abridged statement, "Spare the rod, spoil the child." Others, however, challenge that the word "rod" has been misconstrued. They say it is not meant as a weapon but as a shepherd's staff to steer children correctly.

Children need shepherding, not herding. Don't spare the rod. Just use it more wisely.

—Waco Tribune-Herald, Aug. 30

'Brady Bill' Good Law

Anti-drug legislation will be passed by Congress. ... Approval is assured because in this election year, everyone wants to look tough on illegal drug trafficking.

However, an amendment known as the "Brady Bill" for Jim Brady, the presidential aide seriously injured by a bullet from a handgun ... used in an attempt to assassinate President Reagan, will cause some debate.

The amendment provides for a seven-day waiting period between the request to purchase and the purchase of a handgun. This will allow time ... to check on whether the potential purchaser is a felon or mental patient. ... Also, it would provide time for an angry person to cool off.

National Rifle Association fears that this would be a first step toward control of all guns are unfounded.

... Since it is these handguns, often cheap and easily obtained, that account for so many deaths, and so many of these are accidental rather than related to crime, the limited control of the sale of these weapons would be beneficial.

Southwest Football Conference Should Play by Rules

Having a good college football team is certainly desirable. But the way some Southwest Conference schools are violating National Collegiate Athletic Association rules doesn't do much in the way of teaching young people about integrity and honesty.

With the latest NCAA ruling that Texas A&M University will be prohibited from playing in a post-season bowl game this year, will lose five scholarships, and will have its head coach, Jackie Sherill, placed on administrative probation, A&M becomes the fifth SWC school to be punished for rules violations within recent years.

Southern Methodist University paid the steepest price when its 1987 season was ordered scrapped because of recruiting and payoff infractions. It decided not to play football in 1988. Others still on probation or recently off probation include Texas Christian University, the University of Texas and Texas Tech. The University of Houston has until Oct. 17 to respond to a July 12 letter in which the NCAA formally notified school officials of its investigation into allegations of recruiting violations. After the response from the school, the NCAA will consider what penalties, if any, to assess.

The remaining SWC schools — Arkansas, Baylor and Rice — have not been investigated by the NCAA for football violations.

It is terrible that rules have been broken in efforts to build good football programs. The NCAA is correct in investigating the infractions and in imposing penalties. Let's hope the coaches and overzealous alumni at the penalized schools have learned a lesson.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

With the closing of the Parsons-Redpath and the Department of Energy's Salt Repository Offices almost upon us, I want to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all of the businesses and people throughout the city of Hereford, Deaf Smith County and indeed the whole of the panhandle area for their spirit of cooperation, understanding and support.

It is with regret that the Nuclear Waste Characterization Study for which we were under contract was cancelled but it is with pride that we will strike our flag and depart. I know that I speak for all the employees of Parsons-Redpath when I say that we have been enriched by the friends and memories we have acquired and we will all remember the warm hospitality accorded us by the wonderful people of Hereford, Texas.

Very truly yours,

The Penultimate Word

THE SECOND COMING

I wrote this column early. A book said the Second Coming was supposed to happen either Sunday, Monday or Tuesday of this week. If it happens I figure I would be gone and this would be my last shot.

My wife said that when the Second Coming happens only the good folks would be taken and the others would be left. She thought I would have plenty of time to write. She told me goodbye and for me to be good.

I am not a great Biblical scholar but one thing I do know is the Bible says no one can know, or will know when this event is going to happen. Anytime someone says they know, mark it down, they don't.

The strange thing is folks can write books setting dates without fear of reprisal. When the date passes they claim some error in calculation, or some event that caused a delay, and go write another book. They end up rich and we end up scared.

I have said that I knew when the Second Coming would happen. It will happen the first time I get to go to the Super Bowl, or 30 minutes after I win the Readers Digest Sweepstakes.

Someone asked me what I would do if I knew it would happen tomorrow. I am sure my answer was a disappointment. I would not put on ascension robes and go to some mountain. I do not think I would do anything different nor dramatic. If the Prince of Peace is coming it should be peaceful. I hope I would have the sense to go to bed early since I might have to get up rather early and rather quickly.

Like the song says, this is the "Great Getting Up Morning." Peace.

U.S. Chamber Voice of Business

Return of the 'national nanny'

By Dr. Richard L. Leshner,
President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON — President Carter appointed to top government posts a group of people who believed they knew what was best for the American people and were determined to impose their values upon the nation.

Perhaps the most notorious example of such meddlesomeness occurred at the Federal Trade Commission which launched a crusade to regulate advertising directed at children. Even the liberal Washington Post balked at that one, branding the FTC a "National Nanny." The label stuck and helped bring about a public reaction against excessive government regulation. Indeed, regulatory restraint was and remains a key element of the Reagan administration and a major reason for its success.

Unfortunately, the Reagan administration is nearing its end, and a new generation of National Nannies is waiting in the wings to pick up where the old one left off eight years ago. This time the issue isn't regulation of advertising. Rather, it is a growing consensus that the federal government is somehow obliged to help parents care for pre-school-age children.

Now I am well aware that child care is a growing problem for many American families. Indeed, few families these days can get by on one parent income. Both parents must work and that obviously creates a need for child care. In our increasingly tight labor market, it is becoming more and more difficult for parents to find the help they desperately need.

Still, I am astounded by the widespread assumption that this problem is government's responsibility. Young families need a great many things, such as food, transportation, housing, medical care, clothing, you name it. Should our government be responsible for those items too? Where do we draw the line? What principle is being invoked to demand our government assume responsibility for child care?

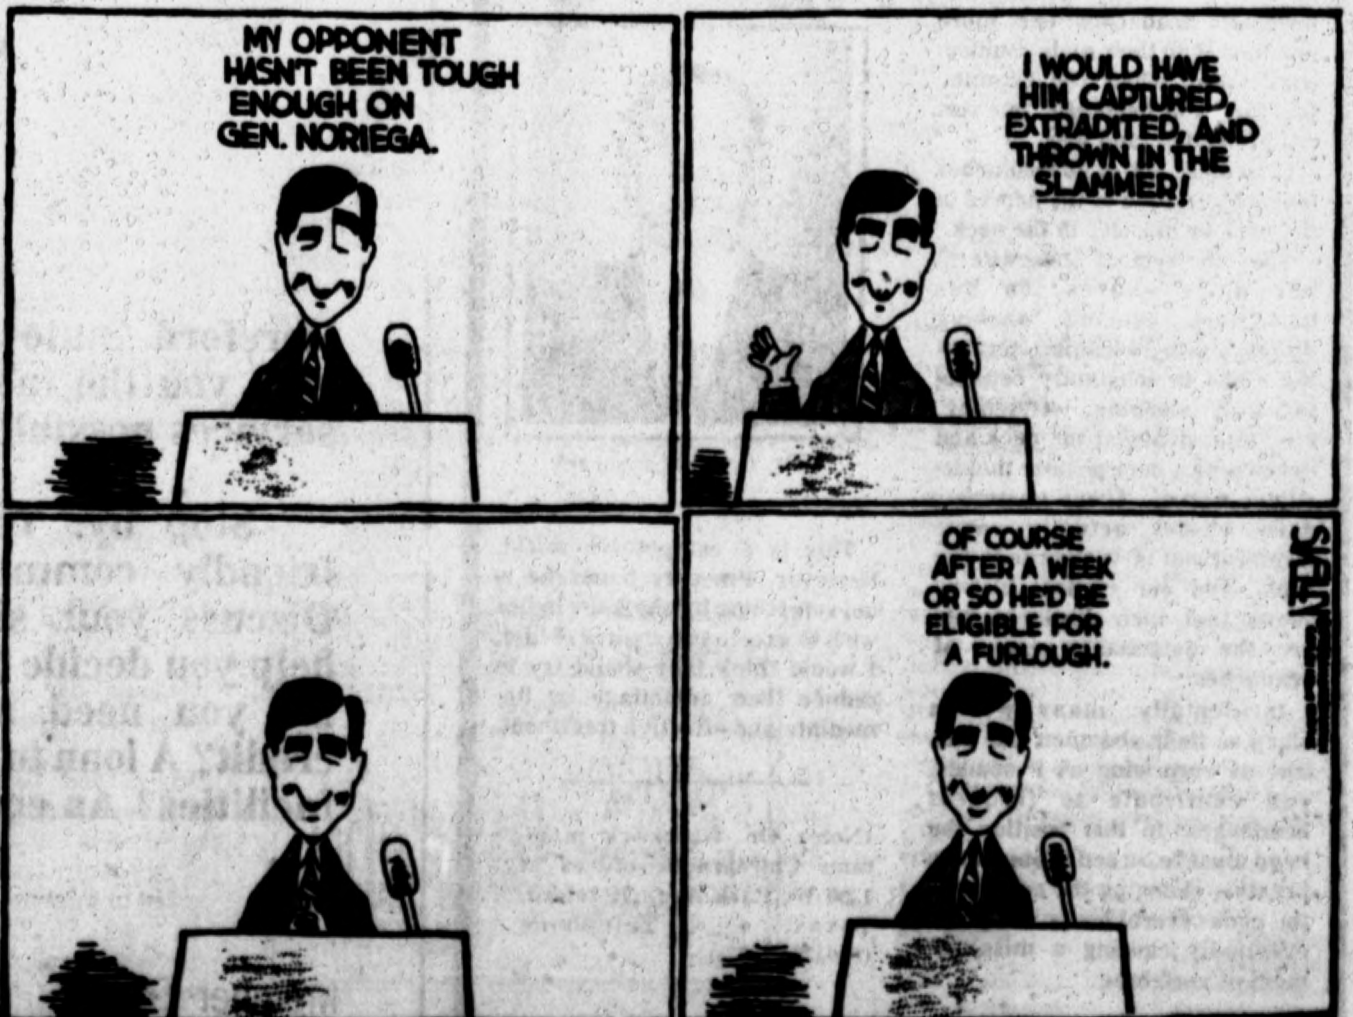

I really want to know because if history is a guide, government will spend 10 times as much money as necessary doing a mediocre job. Not only can't we afford the waste; our children are too important to be left to the inept caprice of bureaucracy.

Why would anyone in his right mind imagine for even a moment that our government should become involved in this?

We don't want government in the child-care business; we want government to get out of the child-care business. One of the greatest impediments to setting up new child-care facilities is illogical, burdensome and often duplicative government regulations. Such rules should be modified or eliminated.

Beyond that, our government should offer tax incentives to private business to set up child-care operations for employees. Already, millions of businesses are doing precisely that. With a little encouragement from the Internal Revenue Service, many more would do the same.

But Uncle Sam should not assume the job of National Nanny. Any such program will be a disaster, and the real victims will be our children.

First National Bank Says Thanks!

Nothing brings us more satisfaction than watching our city grow. There is no one who stands stronger or cheers louder for the Economic-Development efforts of our city leaders. The future of Hereford really depends on two things: a sound economic plan for growth, and businesses with a strong belief in the potential of this area. Hereford is blessed with both — and fortunate to have such businesses as Arrowhead Mills.

Arrowhead Mills has been a part of Hereford since 1960, and presently employs more than seventy area residents. The people at Arrowhead Mills are an active part of this community. And their growth and prosperity over the years are something they should be very proud of.

We at the First National Bank want to say thanks to Arrowhead Mills; we are proud for you, and for the many other businesses that give our economy such a big boost.

Special week designated

Mayor Wes Fisher recently proclaimed Sept. 17-23 as Constitution Week in Hereford. Witnessing the signing was Ruth Newsom, Constitution Week chairman of Los Ciboleros Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. In 1955, the DAR proposed devoting an entire week to the Constitution. A congressional resolution was approved Aug. 2 of that year authorizing the annual observance.

Newsom presents program

Ruth Newsom presented a history of the United States Constitution when members of Wyche Extension Homemakers Club met recently in the home of Beverly Jesko.

Audrey Rusher, president, conducted the business meeting and Argen Draper served as acting secretary. Club members repeated the T.E.H.A. prayer and the pledge to the American and Texas flags were recited.

Jesko gave the opening exercise, "My Country" and roll call of "my first memory of the fair" was answered by 10 members present.

The minutes of the previous two meetings were read and approved and committee reports were given. Also, members signed cards to be sent to Camelia Jones, Coreen Odom and Rev. and Mrs. Bruce Kochsmeier.

An auction was held for the finance project by members: Draper, Virgie Duncan, Jesko, Ethel Logan, Carol Odom, Pet Ott, Louise Packard, Audrey Rusher, Brenda Rusher and Clara Trowbridge.

The next meeting was set at 2:30 p.m. Oct. 6 in the home of Virgie Duncan, 313 Ave. K.

Accent on Health

Gov. William P. Clements, Jr. has proclaimed Sept. 18-24 "Emergency Medical Services Week in Texas." The event honors the specially trained persons whose timely actions often make the difference between life and death. The Texas Department of Health (TDH) and local EMS groups will sponsor activities throughout the week to educate Texans about EMS.

"Knowing how to call EMS, and what to do in the first few minutes of an emergency are sometimes crucial to a victim's survival," said Gene Weatherall, chief of the TDH Bureau of Emergency Management.

"When you call EMS," Weatherall said, "stay on the line until the dispatcher tells you to hang up the phone. In many cases, EMS is on the way while you are still talking to the EMS dispatcher."

"If possible, you should also turn on your porch light, and have someone wait by the road to direct the EMS crew," Weatherall added.

Zone meeting of American Legion set

Hereford Post 192 of the American Legion will host a zone meeting Tuesday, Sept. 20 at 7 p.m. in the Legion Hall.

American Legion Posts from Hereford, Nazareth, Tulia, Vega, Bovina, Dimmitt, Happy and Friona will be represented. The Hereford post will provide the meal as local members are asked to bring a covered dish of vegetables or salad.

The Hereford High School Civil Air Patrol unit will be present to post the colors and present a program on their activities.

Preparing for book fair

Omar Griego and Mr. Reading Bear of Northwest School will be among the participants at the Texas School Book Fair which begins Monday and continues through Friday. Each of the six local elementary schools in the community will host a book fair with times and other pertinent details listed in students' take-home pamphlets. Participating schools include Aikman, Bluebonnet, Northwest, Shirley, Tierra Blanca, and West Central. Book costs will range from 50 cents to $5 and bookmarks will also be available.

The first Presidential news conference to be televised was held by President Eisenhower on Jan. 19, 1955.

How to stop the Dodgers: Perfect game

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tom Browning didn't think about his earlier brush with a no-hitter when perfection was within his grasp.

There was no time to dwell on either the past failure or future fame.

The Cincinnati Reds' left-hander blocked out the distractions and threw a high fastball past pinch-hitter Tracy Woodson to complete the 14th perfect game in major-league history Friday night, a 1-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The fast-working Browning had come within two outs of a no-hitter in San Diego on June 6, only to have Tony Gwynn break it up with a single. It stood as one of six no-hitters broken up in the ninth inning in the majors this season.

"That was way back. I didn't think about it," Browning said. "I threw the ball much better tonight than in San Diego."

"I knew I had a no-hitter going into the eighth. I just kept talking to myself, saying what I need to do ... to maintain my composure, to move the ball in and out."

He did that all game long, and he did it perfectly.

"His concentration was intense the entire time," pitching coach Scott Breeden said. "He had the type of control that he could put the ball where he wanted. As a result, he didn't make any mistake pitches."

"You kind of just want to sit and watch. It's really something to dream about," said Dodger pitcher Tim Belcher, who threw a three-hitter but lost on an unearned run. "Sure I wanted to watch it. I'm a great baseball fan and it's a part of baseball history."

Baseball history will show Browning's effort was the first no-hitter in the majors since Milwaukee's Juan Nieves beat Baltimore on April 15, 1907. The last perfect game was by California's Mike Witt against Texas on Sept. 30, 1984.

The last perfect game thrown in the National League was by the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax on Sept. 9, 1965, a 1-0 victory over Chicago. Browning's perfect game was the first in the Reds' 119-year history and the first no-hitter since Tom Seaver's on June 16, 1978, against St. Louis at Riverfront Stadium.

Browning had trouble grasping the magnitude of his accomplishment.

"It hasn't sunk in yet. It's hard to believe it happened," he said, champagne dripping from his hair. "It's hard to believe nobody got a hit."

Nobody even came close to getting on base on this night, which started ominously.

The game was delayed for two hours, 27 minutes by rain. The showers lifted, and Browning opened the game by retiring Alfredo Griffin on a fly out — one of only nine balls hit into the outfield.

Browning, 16-5, struck out seven and didn't go to three balls on any batter. He threw 21 first-pitch strikes to the 27 batters he faced.

"He had great stuff tonight," Manager Pete Rose said. "The threw it where he wanted, when he wanted. He was in total control."

He didn't need any close plays to save him, either. The only ball that required an out-of-the-ordinary effort was a chopper down the third base line in the fifth by Mike Marshall. Chris Sabo backhanded the ball and threw Marshall out by a half-step.

"It wasn't that close," Sabo said of the play. "I had it all the way. As soon as it was hit, I thought I could get it."

For a while, Browning was locked in a no-hit duel with Belcher, 10-5, who allowed just one walk over the first 5 2-3 innings. Barry Larkin doubled into the right-field corner with two out in the sixth and scored an unearned run when Sabo grounded to Jeff Hamilton and the third baseman's throw to first was in the dirt, eluding Mickey Hatcher for an error.

It was the first run allowed in three games by the Dodgers, who haven't given up an earned run in 30 innings.

HONOR COLLEGE

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (AP) — Brooklyn College has been honored by more than 600 college basketball officials for the highest degree of sportsmanship among its players, coaches, administration and fans.

It was the second time in five seasons the school received the trophy, known as the Sam Schoenfeld Sportsmanship Award. The award is presented to the college which exemplifies the true spirit of sportsmanship. The Collegiate Basketball Officials Association singled out Brooklyn from more than 230 schools in 15 states.

Sophs defeat Randall, 27-0

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The Hereford sophomore football team improved its record to 3-0 with a 27-0 win Friday night at Randall High School.

"This was our second shut out in a row," said coach Ed Coplen. "Shea Brannon, Miguel Casas and Ciro Casarez played great" on defense.

Hereford racked up scores in each quarter, beginning with a 20-yard run by Stephan Banner. Amado Lopez added the extra point to give Hereford a 7-0 lead.

In the second quarter, Shea Brannon caught a 23-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Chris Blair, and Jesus Gonzales kicked the extra point to extend Hereford's lead to 14-0 at halftime.

In the third quarter, the defense got into the scoring act as Joe Olvera returned an interception 35 yards for a touchdown. Lopez's extra-point kick gave Hereford a 21-0 lead.

The final score came in the fourth period on a 10-yard run by Chris Steward.

"Both quarterbacks, Chris Blair and Max Mungia, played a great game," said coach Oscar Rendon. "The offensive line, led by center Patrick Newton, had a great game."

In Hereford, Randall held off two late scoring threats to down the Hereford freshmen, 14-6.

John McBride caught a touchdown pass from Clay Wallace with 2:04 left in the second quarter for Hereford's score.

Junior high teams began their seasons Friday and Saturday with scrimmages, while the Hereford JV and other squads were scheduled for action as well on Saturday.

Cumpton catch

Hereford split end Brent Cumpston heads for the ground after being tripped up by an Estacado defender after making a catch in Thursday's game at Lowrey Field in Lubbock. The catch, at the Estacado 20, kept a Hereford drive going, but the drive fizzled a few plays later at the Matador 11. The game ended in a 6-6 tie.

Giants have worries: Walker, voodoo

IRVING, Texas (AP) — In addition to trying to overcome Texas Stadium voodoo, the New York Giants will attempt to stop the magic of Dallas Cowboys Herchel Walker on Sunday.

New York coach Bill Parcells said the Giants' defense has a tough chore ahead in stopping Walker, who gained 149 yards in 29 carries against the Phoenix Cardinals Monday.

"Walker has just been terrific," Parcells said. "Dallas is using him a lot of ways. He can run, catch and block. They split him wide. If I had him that's what I would do."

GOLF A TOUGH GAME

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Dave Maurer, a former successful football coach at Wittenberg University, now coaches golf at that school and insists it is just as demanding mentally and physically as football.

Maurer's winning percentage of .842 is among the Top Ten for football coaches. He completed his third season as golf coach last spring.

"I can honestly say," he observed, "that in all the sports I have been involved in as player or coach, none is more demanding than golf. A golfer has pressure on every swing."

The Giants, 1-1, lost a heartbreaker 20-17 to the San Francisco 49ers on Joe Montana's 78-yard scoring pass to Jerry Rice with 42 seconds left.

"It seems like one thing after another has happened to us," Parcells said. "It causes you some consternation as a coach. Sunday was a blow."

Something always seems to happen to Phil Simms, when he's quarterbacking in Texas Stadium where the Giants and Cowboys meet at 3 p.m.

The New York Giants' offensive leader has completed 190 passes for 3,071 yards and 22 touchdowns in 14 appearances against the Cowboys.

The visitors have won only twice there since 1974.

In 1985, Simms had an Ed Jones batted pass returned by Jim Jeffcoat for a touchdown at Texas Stadium. The same thing happened again in 1987 with the same two players involved. He also injured a knee last year in Texas Stadium and sat out almost a month of the season.

"Dallas always attacks us well and the defense gives us problems," Parcells said.

The Cowboys have dominated the series, owning a 35-14-2 advantage. They won 16-14 and 33-24 last year. Dallas has won five of the last six meetings.

"We always seem to matchup well against the Giants," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

One of the Cowboys' long standing records will be tied by defensive tackle Randy White.

White will tie Bob Lilly's record by playing in his 196th regular season games.

"That's a lot of games," said White, who is playing in his 14th and final season. "Lilly was an iron man. He played a lot of games hurt."

White has been hurting himself, battling a pinched nerve which limits his duty to pass rush downs.

Giants' linebacker Lawrence Taylor is still on the NFL's suspended list.

The Giants rated field-goal favorites over the Cowboys who couldn't sell out their home opener in time so it could be televised locally.

Some 10,000 tickets remained on sale.

Dallas is 21-6-1 in home openers and 14-2 since moving to Texas Stadium.

18 long years for SWC since champion

The Freeman File
An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Has it really been 18 years since the Southwest Conference had a national football champion?

Will it be 18 more years before they have another one?

A lot's happened to the SWC, most of it bad, since the Texas Longhorns won the title in 1969.

Two SWC teams, the 1970 and 1981 Longhorns and the 1982 Southern Methodist Mustangs just missed The Associated Press national crown.

Unbeaten Texas was upset by Notre Dame and Coach Ara Parseghian 24-11 and dropped to third in the final AP 1970 poll.

The 1972 Longhorns were third in the nation after losing to Penn State 30-6.

The 1981 Longhorns were second after they defeated Alabama 14-12 in the Cotton Bowl.

The biggest heartbreak may have been the 1983 season. The Longhorns were unbeaten but lost to Georgia 10-9 in the Cotton Bowl on a fumbled punt in the last two minutes of the game. If Texas wins the game, it takes the title. The 'Horns blow it and finish fifth.

SMU had an unbeaten team in 1982, but came in second to Penn State in the balloting despite a 7-3 Cotton Bowl victory over Pittsburgh. A regular season tie with Arkansas cost the Mustangs a chance at their first and only national crown. The Nittany Lions with one loss won the ballot box.

Which gets us around to the current sorry state of SWC affairs. Defending champion Texas A&M has already been strapped twice by Nebraska and Louisiana State. A&M's sixth-place finish in 1985 has been its highest national ranking under Coach Jackie Sherrill.

Texas, which was supposed to be a power, almost joined Eric Metcalf in not showing up for a 47-6 nationally televised embarrassment by Brigham Young University.

Texas Christian, which has a senior-dominated team including a lot of sought-after talent, was humbled 38-10 by Georgia.

Arkansas, expected to contend heavily for the title, had to recover a fumble in the final minute to survive Tulsa 30-26 — in Fayetteville. The Razorbacks will certainly get their chance in the national spotlight on Nov. 26. That's when they meet the defending champion Miami Hurricanes, who beat them 51-7 last year.

Baylor has struggled against weak Nevada-Las Vegas and Kansas. The Bears' defense is fine but the offense is too inconsistent behind a young offensive line. Rice was drilled by Indiana. The Owls, sadly, need to be in Division IIA.

Texas Tech was whipped by North Texas and Arizona. Only Houston, yes, Houston, has given the SWC anything to be upbeat about.

The Cougars' NCAA-record shattering show in a 60-0 victory over Louisiana Tech was something to marvel at even though it was against a so-so foe.

A better reading of the Cougars should come after they play Missouri on the road this weekend.

What's happened to the SWC? The NCAA's swift and sure axe and some heavy recruiting by out-of-state schools, that's what.

Southern Methodist hasn't fielded a team in two years.

Texas A&M just got the word from the NCAA that it can't go to any post-season parties this year.

Houston can't get too giddy over its early success knowing full well that the NCAA's enforcement division has the Cougars under the microscope for a possible slush fund of payments to players. The Cougars could learn their fate by late October or early November.

Some out-of-state schools foot the fulltime expense of a Texas recruiter who is on the hunt for schoolboy talent.

You know who the schools with the heavy Texas recruiting tabs are. Just get a list of the Top Twenty.

The SWC isn't keeping the home kids in state and it shows.

You have to go back five years before you can find an SWC team that finished as high as fifth in the Top Ten.

Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, Nebraska, and Iowa lead the harvest of Texas talent but UCLA, Notre Dame, and others are coming on strong.

It could be the mid-1990s before the SWC establishes itself as a national title contender.

"We'll be stronger for all of this adversity," said SWC commissioner Fred Jacoby. "The waters will clear after the NCAA gets through with Houston."

Maybe Jacoby is right.

But the scandal-stained SWC must do a better job of keeping the home talent away from the raiders across the Red River.

Or the SWC has seen its last national champion of this century.

KOSAR IS MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernie Kosar, Cleveland Brown quarterback, failed to make the Super Bowl but he still was named the "People's Choice Most Valuable Player in the NFL," it was announced by the Gillette Safety Razor Co.

Kosar won the award in a vote of fans who picked from among six finalists, chosen by a panel of former NFL players and coaches who work as broadcasters. Kosar led the Browns to the AFC Central Division championship but they were eliminated by Denver in a high-scoring playoff game. Denver was then whipped by Washington, 42-10, in the Super Bowl.

Sweetwater keeps rolling

By CHARLES RICHARDS
 Associated Press Writer

Kenneth Norman rushed for 186 yards, including a 76-yard touchdown run, to lead Sweetwater, Class 4A's top-ranked team, to a 34-7 victory over Stephenville Friday night in a key Texas high school football game.

Two other No. 1 clubs, Daingerfield in Class 3A and Corrigan-Camden in Class 2A, also rolled on. Daingerfield beat Lindale, 35-6, and Corrigan-Camden beat Kirbyville, 21-6.

Willowridge, the kingpin of Class 5A, got the week off, courtesy of Hurricane Gilbert, whose move into the Gulf resulted in the cancellation of scores of games along the Texas Coast.

Bremont, No. 1 in Class 1A, was idle.

Gobblers made a date with at the last minute after its previously scheduled game was canceled.

Cuero, whose Robert Strait is trying this season to become the leading career scorer in Texas high school history, was scheduled to play at Beeville Friday night, but the game was scrubbed because of the proximity of Hurricane Gilbert, which eventually hit in northern Mexico.

Since Sealy's game at El Campo also was canceled because of the hurricane, Cuero and Sealy agreed to play on Thursday night in Sealy. Strait gained 178 yards, but fumble-prone Cuero lost, 9-8.

NAPB purchases select SeedTec assets

Nickerson American Plant Breeders, Inc. (NAPB) President Warren H. Melles has announced the purchase of select assets of SeedTec

International, Inc. These assets include SeedTec distribution centers, seed conditioning facilities and research stations east of the Rocky Mountains. The agreement gives NAPB exclusive marketing rights for SeedTec brand hybrid corn, sorghum, soybean, alfalfa and sunflower seeds in this region, as well as in Canada and Mexico.

quartered in Hereford, and the hybrid corn research location in Carrollton.

"We're committed to expanded service to our customers and increasing sales," Melles said. "With the addition of SeedTec's facilities, NAPB hybrid corn sales are projected to rise more than 20 percent. Secondly, the purchase allowed us to expand our sorghum research and distribution capabilities, better serving farmers in the sorghum growing regions."

NAPB will market SeedTec brand products east of the Rockies through a newly-formed sales division. Agripro brand products are marketed nationwide through three separate sales divisions within NAPB.

According to Ken Scarlett, who will remain president of all other SeedTec International operations not purchased by NAPB, the firm will not focus its efforts on expanding domestic sales west of the Rockies and on the international marketing of its proprietary seed products. SeedTec International retains extensive international safflower and sunflower operations.

In addition to the Carrollton and Hereford locations, NAPB now has research, production, distribution and/or sales and administration facilities in Tekamah, Neb.; Brookings, S.D.; Ames, Iowa; Eldora, Iowa; Napier, Iowa; Geneseo, Ill.; Princeton, Ill.; Waterloo, Ind.; Brookston, Ind.; Mitchell, Ind.; Fargo, N.D.; Berthoud, Colo.; Nampa, Idaho; and San Joaquin, Calif.

NAPB headquarters is in Mission, Kansas.

Lauderback named manager

Armon Lauderback, formerly with SeedTec International, has been named Manager of Administration and Production of hybrid sorghum and sunflower for the newly-formed SeedTec Brand Product Sales Division of Nickerson American Plant Breeders, Inc. (NAPB). NAPB recently acquired select assets of SeedTec International. Lauderback will continue to work at the Hereford production facilities.

4-H offering hunting safety

Deaf Smith County 4-H clubs will be offering Hunter Safety Programs from September through December to allow youngsters the opportunity to comply with new rules and regulations recently passed by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The program requirements, which went into effect on June 1, requires that all youngsters whose birthdate is on or after Sept. 2, 1971 complete the hunter safety education course.

The courses will be taught during meetings of the Citizens and Showmanship 4-H Clubs during the next four months. These clubs meet on Thursday and Monday nights. The dates of the meetings are Sept. 22 and 26; Oct. 13, 24, and 27; Nov. 3, 14, 17 and 27; and Dec. 1 and 5. All meetings will be held from 7-9 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

Course topics include hunter safety, hunter responsibility, hunting methods, handling skills, wildlife management and conservation and sportsmanship.

Youngsters or parents that desire more information on the program or that would like to enroll in the courses should contact the county Extension office at 364-3573 or come by the office on the fourth floor of the county courthouse in Hereford.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are open to people of all ages regardless of sex, race, color, religion, national origin or handicap.

FIRST THE SEED

Without a doubt, the one thing that determines the outcome of any crop is the seed that you put into the ground. Good seed produces a good crop - bad seed fails you.

We believe that insect and disease problems this last year have created a need to look at the crops and varieties you plant and your harvest intentions.

TAM 200 ; a new release from Texas A & M that appeared very promising in limited trials.

TRITICALE ; for known grazing or graze-out acreage - triticale showed less damage from insects & disease than wheat in 1988.

OATS ; Chilocco oats produce excellent grain and abundant forage for grazing.

HAWK ; 1987's best variety for milling & baking qualities. A consistent high yielding variety that makes excellent early grazing.

; a new release from NAPB that has excellent grain quality, yield and test weights.

TAM 105 ; need to update your seed. We have both certified and good quality select seed available.

Accent on Agriculture

By DENNIS W. NEWTON
County Extension Agent-AG
Deaf Smith County

Wheat streak mosaic virus was very prevalent this past year in Deaf Smith County and much of the Texas Panhandle and South Plains. Yellow and stunted wheat became evident in March of this year in many fields. Wheat curl mites were very abundant in much of the yellow-appearing wheat. Many samples were sent to the Texas Plant Disease Diagnostic Laboratory at Texas A&M University and most were diagnosed with wheat streak mosaic virus.

Symptoms of wheat streak mosaic are variable. Individual plant are yellow, stunted, wilted and tillers often are often prostrate. Root development is often weak. Wheat is usually infected with the virus in the fall, but the characteristic yellowish streaking and mottling of leaves is often not evident until the arrival of warm spring weather. The earlier the infection in the fall the more severe the impact on wheat. The virus must have living tissue to survive and is transmitted from plant to plant by the wheat curl mite.

The wheat curl mite is approximately 1/100 inch long, white, sausage-shaped with four small legs on the front. Mite feeding causes leaves to roll taking on an onion-leaf appearance. The mite does very little damage without the virus. If virus is present, leaves will take on a mosaic pattern in the youngest leaves. Mites reproduce most rapidly at temperature between 75 and 80 degrees. The mites crawl very slowly and depend almost entirely on wind for movement. The mite is most active during warm weather, and consequently the mite moves mostly on warm westerly winds, and as a result, most wheat streak mosaic virus symptoms develop from southwest to northeast across a field. Mites survive the summer on volunteer wheat and grass with volunteer wheat being the most important host for the mite as well as the disease. The potential for wheat curl mite and wheat streak mosaic virus is highest when these conditions exist. Early volunteer wheat emerges as a result of hail on wheat that is nearing maturity and good late summer rains. Volunteer wheat that is not destroyed until after planted wheat emerges. Early planted wheat is abundant. Cool summer allows for high mite survival and warm dry falls allow for optimum mite reproduction and movement.

Control of wheat streak mosaic virus is achieved by managing volunteer wheat and plant dates. The usual pattern of wheat streak mosaic virus is from wheat to summer grass of crop, to volunteer wheat or early planted wheat, then to later planted wheat. To control the disease this cycle must be broken. Clean tillage and complete destruction of volunteer wheat, especially near planted wheat, late planting so the wheat emerges after frost are helpful practices. There are some apparent differences in wheat varieties in their susceptibility to wheat streak mosaic, but none are totally resistant. Chemical control of mites has not proven to be effective. So, it still remains the best control of wheat streak mosaic virus and wheat curl mite is managing volunteer wheat and planting date.

With recent rains, producers will be wanting to plant to take advantage of the moisture, but if wheat is to be used for grain only, delayed planting may prove most beneficial. Those producers that plan to graze wheat must weigh the benefits of the grazing compared to the potential for loss from wheat streak mosaic virus.

For more information about the control of wheat streak mosaic virus please contact the County Extension office at 364-3573 or come by the office on the fourth floor of the county Courthouse in Hereford.

WHITEFACE AVIATION CORP.
Feeding time for dairy cows may be watched more carefully. Since feed costs account for 50% of the operation if a dairy business, Dr. Max Sudweeks, dairy specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says adjustments in feeding may yield big dividends. A study in New York found that cows will test better in hot weather if fed hay prior to grain feeding in the milking parlor. Though this required feeding small amounts of fresh hay prior to milking, the test results were good. Also, feeding total mixed rations has been shown to be a good method to increase the fat test. Computerized feed rations are available at most extension offices. Substituting good performing feed ingredients when prices are low saves. Finally, experts urged grouping cows according to production levels. While usually no more grain is fed, a greater percentage is fed early in lactation with higher milk production and greater returns.

Olympic security one of games' spectacles

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Unseen frogmen, sniffing dogs and a supercarrier or two cleared the way for Saturday's spectacular opener to the Olympics, 16 days of sport in which the Koreans, most of all, are going for the gold in security.

Balloons filled Seoul's skies, flowers carpeted the landscape — and even the blooms were being checked for bombs.

"There won't be any trouble," promised Jeon Sung-ho, one of the hard-eyed young policemen guarding the Olympic Stadium. "We have prepared very thoroughly. This is too important."

Important enough for the South Koreans to have mobilized the biggest security force ever for a sports event — more than 100,000 police and soldiers directly guarding sites linked to the Summer Olympics. The Los Angeles Games, in 1984, had only 15,000.

If that's not enough, the Koreans have some friendly back-up offshore, elements of the U.S. Pacific fleet cruising up and down the coast.

The Koreans had a worldful of worries as the Olympics opened:

—Dozens of the 160 competing nations are the favorite targets of terrorists who kill in the name of causes ranging from Irish nationalism to Sikh fundamentalism. Security specialists will never forget the Palestinian terrorism at the 1972 Munich Olympics, when 11 Israeli athletes were killed.

—Just 30 miles north of Seoul lies a hostile North Korea, blamed for a string of anti-South Korea terror attacks, including the apparent mid-air bombing of a Korean jetliner last year.

—Right here in Seoul, student radicals, veterans at firebombing, have denounced the Olympics as a political prop for ex-general and President Roh Tae-woo.

The possible dangers were enough to lead some nations to draw up contingency plans for evacuating their athletes from Seoul on short notice.

But the Olympics' security chief, Hwang Kyu-woong, said Friday that South Korea's years of preparation will protect the 22,000 athletes and officials and the expected 2.7 million spectators from any harm.

For one thing, the security director said, the student militants, hundreds of whom marched in a noisy protest Friday, will never get near the Olympic sites. "When we get information about their plans, we'll just deploy police to stop them."

Hwang insisted, "Our biggest concern now is the traffic."

The security focus fell on the Olympic Stadium, an architect's mammoth rendering of a graceful Korean bowl, for Saturday's opening ceremony.

Well-heeled Koreans reportedly offered $4,000 per $200 seat to get into the sold-out, three-hour extravaganza, featuring President Roh and a colorfully costumed cast of thousands, and to be run through a battery of metal detectors manned by combat policemen who spent earlier days in hand-to-hand battle with students.

Besides scanning each of the 70,000 spectators for knives, guns and other weapons, the security men were instructed to click a picture on every tourist's camera to test its harmlessness, and to seize all bottles.

"A broken bottle is a weapon," Jeon explained.

Dogs with a nose for explosives were sniffing around the sprawling stadium, and police used an electronic bomb detector to check banks of flowers.

Platoons of plainclothesmen were believed assigned to sit among the cheering crowds. If anything did happen, anti-terrorist commandos were primed to rappel by rope from the overhanging stadium roof and into the throng.

In the nearby Han River, Hwang said, scuba divers scoured the broad muddy waters for any sign of a terrorist attempt against the majestic 458-boat flotilla that led the opening-day schedule.

Out at sea, a U.S. Navy task force headed by the aircraft carrier Midway cruised on an alert pattern, and unconfirmed reports said a second force, led by the carrier Nimitz, was bound for Korean waters.

The U.S. government had announced it would make an Olympic show of force as a warning to the North Koreans. The 40,000-member U.S. ground force in South Korea is on "increased alert," and additional U.S. early-warning planes and F-18 jet fighters were dispatched to the peninsula.

YMCA Briefs

Registration is underway through Sept. 21 for the 1988 flag football leagues at the Hereford YMCA.

Play will be in three divisions: for first and second graders; third and fourth graders; and fifth and sixth graders.

The league fee is $9, plus the $20 YMCA membership fee for youth. The membership fee allows use of the YMCA facility for a year. Scholarships are available for persons who need assistance with the fees.

Children in the league will supply their own tennis or turf shoes. Cleats are not allowed.

For a registration form, go by the YMCA at 500 East 15th Street.

The YMCA will host a free coaches clinic on Sept. 25 from 1:15-8:15 p.m. at the YMCA.

Darwin Bennett of the Amarillo YMCA will hold the clinic, which is designed for all basketball, volleyball and flag football coaches.

The clinic is designed to help coaches to focus on their athletes' well-being first and winning second; reducing the risk of injury and providing better injury treatment; and teaching skills for playing sports and living life more effectively.

Coaches interested in attending the clinic should contact the YMCA by Sept. 22.

Registration is underway through noon on Sept. 22 for the YMCA fall volleyball league.

Mixed AA, A and B, men's and women's leagues will be available. The schedule will run for eight weeks before a post-season tournament.

Fees are $8 for YMCA members and $24 for non-members.

For more information on these activities, contact the YMCA at 364-6990.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for L.S. in Oregon, who said she became pregnant at 17 because she was emotionally and physically starved for affection.

I do not agree with your statement that "children from healthy families don't have sex at an early age." Our 17-year-old daughter always received a great deal of emotional support. There is no alcoholism in our family and no physical or verbal abuse, but "Linda" takes birth control pills, and yes, she has a sex life. We have a close and loving relationship and I am grateful that she trusted me enough to tell me she thought she should be on the pill.

Of course I wish she had waited, but let's be realistic. Teenagers do have sex and they have been having it since the world began.

Linda has one steady boyfriend and I don't feel that what she is doing is a crime. I was an unmarried mother at 19 and I do not want history to repeat itself.—M.S. in L.A.

turn out to be Hell's Angels, I harbor no illusions about their sexual behavior and involvement with drugs.

Is it possible that exposure to steamy sex on TV and in the movies, commercials that glamorize sensuality and the barnyard behavior of stars and athletes whom our kids idolize has something to do with the way they behave?

Frankly, I am sick to death of all the "experts" and their "answers." Never has a group tried so hard and been blamed so much as today's parents.

Let's face it. Our kids are living in a sick society that loves violence, greed and demands instant gratification.—A Pooped Parent in Michigan

DEAR PARENT: You're right on. I admit that there are no pat answers to this one. My thanks to all who wrote.

Everyone does drugs, right?

Wrong. And today, more and more people are aware of the dangers involved. If you want to be in the know, too, write for Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

TASTES GOOD

NEW YORK (AP) — Good taste and flavor seem to go along with fat and high calorie levels. But it's possible to get the same high aroma and flavor without the additional calories.

Dr. Susan Schiffman, director of the Obesity Clinic at Duke University and a member of the National Health and Sciences Advisory Board for Nutri-System Inc., gives these low-calorie seasoning and snack tips:

— As a substitute for chocolate topping, sprinkle a mixture of cocoa and a non-caloric sweetener.

New Golden Plains personnel

Golden Plains Care Center at 420 Ranger has announced the addition of three members to its staff. Beginning their duties in early September are, from left, Ann Mercer, assistant to the director of nurses; Rhonda Lee, activities director; and Cindy Walker, administrator.

Walker named administrator at Golden Plains Care Center

A new administrator began duties at Golden Plains Care Center Sept. 6 as did a new activities director. An assistant to the director of nurses was named Sept. 8.

Cindy Walker, previously of Amarillo, assumed the position of administrator after serving as assistant administrator at Country Club Manor and Park Place Towers, both of which are in Amarillo.

A native of Silverton, she graduated from Silverton High School and received a bachelor of science degree in 1981 from West Texas State University. In August she received a master's degree in business administration with an emphasis in health care from Wayland Baptist University. The niece of Clifford Arnold of Hereford, she moved to Hereford recently with her six-year-old son, Jon-Mac Edwards.

Hereford native Rhonda Lee began duties as activities director, bringing experience gained from working as a volunteer of Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center to her job. Married to Bruce Lee, she has a stepson, Brendan, age eight, and a son, Justin, age four.

Ann Mercer was named assistant to the director of nurses. A Hereford resident since 1958, Mercer has worked as an LVN at the center since June, 1987. Her primary duties will include assisting Mary Jane Anvik, director of nurses, and working toward a superior rating of the nursing staff. "I was proud that there were no deficiencies found during the July recertification review and it is our goal to be rated superior. We want to give the best care possible to the residents," she said. Mercer is the mother of two sons: Jackie, 28, and Pat, age 17.

Walker and Lee also noted some goals they hope to achieve as several ideas are already being implemented. "We want to be an asset to the community and lessen the stigma attached to nursing homes," said Administrator Walker. "We hope to work with volunteers from the community in making Golden Plains the best it can be, and we hope to patronize local vendors as much as possible."

Lee also hopes to establish a strong volunteer program and is planning an Adopt-a-Grandparent program. "Hopefully, local clubs and organizations will get more involved in our activities. We want to create a cheerful atmosphere encouraging visits from family members and youth."

Some activities already planned for the residents include dances, gospel nights, various forms of entertainment, a current events day, birthday parties, and an employee and resident of the month will be selected.

"I hope the public will come by and visit us and have some one-on-one contact with the residents," said Walker. "You can never love too many or be loved by too many people."

DEAR M.S.: The letter that sparked your interest resulted in a mail overload. Here's another one.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been blasted by yet another one of your blanket rules and prepackaged diagnoses. Again it's "blame the parent."

I have read the same reason for alcohol and drug abuse. Recently a TV evangelist credited his children's love of God to his wife staying home to raise the children. Strange. I also stayed home to raise the children.

I was the perennial homeroom mother, went on field trips, slept on lumpy cots next to hospital beds and never went to sleep until all the kids were in the house. While they didn't

YOUR EYES

UNEVEN VISION

Q. If one eye is nearsighted and the other is farsighted, are glasses necessary?

A. When one eye is nearsighted and the other is farsighted, the patient suffers from a condition called antimetropia. This could cause eye strain because the brain is receiving dissimilar images in the same way. Frequently, however, contact lenses are far more effective in correcting this condition.

If both eyes are nearsighted — or farsighted — but the visual acuity in each is significantly different, the condition is known as anisometropia. Here, too, glasses may correct the patient's blurred vision, but contact lenses are generally far more effective.

For more information on either of these eye conditions, see your optometrist.

Although they're still too young to be very concerned about looking fashionable, Holly Gallagher and Kaeli Urbanczyk, from left, still strike a pretty pose as they model clothes from Sylvia's. The store also carries a variety of stylish clothes for older children as seen on Bryan Vasek and Katerina Malouf. Sylvia's will be one of several local merchants that will be participating in 'Southwest September,' a benefit style show set at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 27 in the Community Center. Sponsored by Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, proceeds will go to Domestic Violence/Rape Crisis Center and the Lifeline program. Refreshments will be served and door prizes from approximately 20 local merchants will be provided. Tickets, priced at $2 each, will be available from sorority members or participating merchants, who include ETCetera, Pants Cage, J.C. Penney, Littles, Yiota's Korner Kloset, The Ginger Tree, Sylvia's, The Barn House, and Grandma's Corner.

Local association needs auction items

The Hereford Senior Citizens Association will be among 25 Panhandle senior citizens organizations that will be participating in the Antique and Collectible Auction planned Nov. 11-13 at the Amarillo Civic Center.

Proceeds from the auction will be used for present and future funding of the centers.

If local residents or businesses would like to donate items for the event, they may contact the Hereford Senior Citizens Center at 364-5681, or the following individuals: S.L. Garrison, president of the local association; Margie Daniels, executive director of the center; or Homer Garrison, president of the Hereford Senior Citizens Permanent Foundation. All contributions are tax deductible.

Auction items needed for the fundraising project include furniture, musical instruments and accessories, clocks, jewelry, war memorabilia and guns, books, crystal and glassware, china and porcelain, silver and silverplate, needlework and linens, kitchen utensils and home accessories, tools and farm equipment, sculpture and art work and toys.

NEW TRENDS IN PORTABLE APPLIANCES

The average American household contains 13 portable appliances and a lot of them arrived there as Christmas gifts. If you're planning on giving an appliance or requesting one on your Christmas list, here are some of the newer features you may want to consider.

When you're shopping for someone who has little work and storage space, consider under-the-cabinet models. Coffeemakers, mixers, toasters, can openers, toaster ovens and microwave ovens all come in these space-saving forms.

Think about how the appliance will be used before you buy it. For a single person or a small family, a smaller-size version may be most appropriate. For example, you can buy a full-size food processor or one with just a two-cup capacity. Microwave ovens can be large enough to roast a whole turkey, or just the right size for cooking frozen entrees.

Cordless operation is another feature to consider in appliances. These appliances are run by rechargeable, nickel cadmium batteries built into a storage-charger base. The appliance recharges overnight to full capacity in its special base, but can also be used on a partial charge after several hours.

The rechargeable batteries have a 5 to 7 year life expectancy and can be replaced at the company's service center. Cordless appliances perform as well as their cord-connected counterparts, yet eliminate the unsightly and sometimes unsafe tangle of electrical cords.

automatic shutoff is left unused for too long—generally about 30 seconds in the flat position and 10 minutes in the heel-rest position—it shuts itself off. An automatic shutoff is available on curling irons also.

Other electronic controls that can be useful include speed controls, timers, "ready" lights and automatic operations set by a timer.

By carefully considering the needs of the person you're buying for, it's more likely your gift will both be used and appreciated.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Western theme used at study club meeting

"Come to the Races" was the theme used by the yearbook committee for the first meeting of the season of the Hereford Study Club. The group met Thursday evening in the home of Mildred Garrison with Inez Witherspoon, Helen Spinks and Bessie Story serving as co-hostesses.

Following a barbeque dinner, each member received paper money to participate in a horse race.

The club members extended their appreciation to Story in planning the evening and the detail she used in preparing the scrapbook of the club's 50th anniversary year.

President Addie Cunningham presided at the meeting when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Joan Yarbrow, treasurer, gave her report and members approved a contribution to the Deaf Smith County United Way.

Recognized as special guests were two previous club members, Ruth Bartlett and Helen Thompson.

Members present included Jean

Ballard, Willie Braddy, Doris Bryant, Morgan Cain, Cunningham, Garrison, Betty Gilbert, Leta Kaul, Gladys Setliff, Spinks, Story, Mary Stoy, Virginia Winget, Witherspoon and Yarbrow.

The next meeting was set for 7:30 p.m. Oct. 20 in the home of Bessie Story. The guest speaker will be George Kernerer.

ROYAL COUNCIL

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The word "hustings," now meaning an election platform or the proceedings or locale of an election campaign, traces its roots to the Old English period before the 12th century.

It was borrowed from "husthing," from house ("hus") and assembly ("thing"), and originally meant a council held by royalty and attended by the immediate noble followers. It was different from an assembly of the common people, says "Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary."

Electronic controls are another innovation that makes small appliances safer. When an iron with

Doodeheefver, Lyles vows spoken recently in Houston

Ingrid Doodeheefver of College Station became the bride of William Keith Lyles of Fort Worth during a candlelight wedding ceremony conducted Saturday evening, Sept. 10, in the Memorial Drive Baptist Church of Houston.

The Rev. Anthony Webster, retired United Methodist Church pastor, officiated for the couple.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. A.L. Doodeheefver of Houston and Mr. and Mrs. V.F. Doodheefver, also of Houston. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Lyles of Hereford.

The church altar was flanked by two spiral candelabra intertwined with greenery. A united candle arrangement was placed to one side.

Serving as maid of honor was Gina Cucci of Euleess and best man was Brent Boyd of Midland.

Bridesmaids included Ann McDaniel of Connecticut, Corinne Donica of Dallas and Rebecca Adair of College Station. Groomsmen were Donnie Merkel and Jerry Bodey, both of Arlington, and Craig Lawrence of Fort Worth.

McKay Howard, daughter of Dr.

and Mrs. Robert Howard of College Station, was flower girl.

Bible verses were read by Margaret DeVinney of Dallas and Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Boyd of Hereford. The pianist played "Where There Is Charity" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a tea-length gown designed with an embroidered chantilly lace bodice accented with beads and pearls. The gown had French puffed sleeves with a dropped waistline and a full skirt of imported polished cotton.

The off-the-face veil of bridal illusion fell from a rosette fashioned from the same fabric as the gown.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of tea roses, fuchsia miniature lilies, stephanotis blossoms and wax flowers.

Bridal attendants wore fuchsia pink polished cotton tea-length gowns designed with sweetheart necklines and puffed sleeves in the same style as the bridal gown. Each carried a nosegay of the same flowers as the bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Andrew Bardach of Coppell.

the groom's sister, invited guests to the reception at the Patio of La Lorraine Restaurant in Houston.

The bridegroom's sister-in-law, Mrs. James Lyles of Maui, Hawaii, served cake.

The bride's three tiered white cake was decorated with fresh flowers and the groom's table held a lace hanger from which flew a stained glass biplane and gray kitten. The table was covered with a lace cloth and appointed with silver and crystal.

Following a wedding trip to Boston, Mass., and the New England states, the couple will make their home in Fort Worth.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Bellaire High School in Houston and is a 1986 graduate of Texas A&M University with a B.S. degree in biomedical science. She is currently working on her M.S. degree in genetics through the Department of Veterinary Pathology at Texas A&M. She is a May 1989 candidate for graduation.

The groom, a 1981 graduate of Hereford High School, graduated in 1985 from Texas A&M University with a B.S. degree in aerospace engineering. While at the university, he was a member of the Texas Aggie Band and Ross Volunteers, the governor's honor guard. He is presently employed as a flight test engineer at General Dynamics in Fort Worth.

Hereford residents attending the wedding ceremony were the bridegroom's grandfather, I.M. Atkins, and Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Boyd. Other wedding guests represented College Station, San Antonio, Bartlesville, Okla., Coppell, Fort Worth, Arlington, Connecticut, Lubbock, New York, N.Y., Groves, Dallas and Victoria.

'Fall Wardrobing' discussed by L'Allegra Study Club

L'Allegra Study Club met for a fall brunch in the home of Jan Weishaar, 102 Rio Vista Drive, on Thursday morning. Hostesses who welcomed members back for the new club year were Hilda Perales, Joyce Lomas, Carmen Flood, Karen Payne, Mary Kay McQuigg, and Brenda Reinauer.

During the business meeting, letters of resignations from three members who will be unable to continue active membership were read. These women are Janice Carr, Betty Martin, and Cathy Guseman.

A thank you letter citing the club's donation to Hereford Educational Learning Center was read.

After reports from the various standing committees were heard, club members discussed future participation in the WHO Program. This program is abuse prevention program will be presented to all 1st, 4th, 7th, and 10th graders in the Hereford School system, during the current school year. L'Allegra has sponsored the program since its inception in this community through a pilot program last spring.

A program on 'Fall Wardrobing' was presented by Alexanders of Amarillo.

Members present included: Maha Baddour, Juanita Bowles, Margaret Carnahan, Kay Lynn Caviness, Janice Conkwright, Kitty Gault, Poppy Head, Patsy Hoffman, Glenda Keenan, Barbara Kerr, Sylvia Khuri, Mary McWhorter, Shelly Moss, Susan Perrin, Jody Skiles, Suzanne Smith, Dee Anne Trotter, Ella Marie Veigel and Judy Wall.

Sunday School convention set in Amarillo

A Texas Baptist Regional Sunday School Convention will be conducted at Coulter Road Baptist Church, Amarillo, on Tuesday.

The Amarillo convention is one of 27 being conducted across the state by the Sunday School Division of the Baptist General Convention of Texas to help strengthen Sunday School work in local churches.

"The Year of the Sunday School" is the theme of the convention which will interpret goals for a special year of emphasis on the basics which make Sunday School a strong outreach and evangelistic arm of the church.

Areas focused on as part of the emphasis include increasing enrollment, starting or strengthening weekly workers' meetings, conducting Sunday School preparation week, training workers in evangelism, leading people to receive Sunday School leadership diplomas, emphasizing outreach activities, creating new units, conducting Vacation Bible School, starting a new Sunday School and beginning or conducting outreach Bible studies.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints was organized in 1830 by Joseph Smith at Fayette, N.Y.

Winston-Salem, N.C. was formed from the towns of Winston and Salem in 1913.

Featured speaker for the Amarillo convention is James Hancock, pastor of First Baptist Church, Canyon.

Age-group, general officers and a variety of special-interest conferences will be offered during the convention. The Amarillo convention features conferences for persons who attend Hispanic congregations.

Schedule for the convention is 2-4:45 p.m. and from 6:45-9:15 p.m. There is no registration fee and pre-registration is not required.

For more information about the convention, contact the Baptist General Convention of Texas, Sunday School Division, 511 N. Akard, Dallas 75201-3355; (214)720-0550.

Leta Kaul honored at anniversary tea

Leta Kaul was given special recognition for being a charter member of the Westway Extension Club when club women met for their 50th anniversary tea Sunday afternoon, Sept. 11, at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

Guests from other extension clubs were welcomed by the host club and its hostesses: Grace Covington, Joyce Cycock, Helen Brown, Elizabeth De Koster, Carolyn Evers, Mary Dee Hoelscher and Jeanette Ramey.

A variety of cookies and golden punch were served from the refreshment table covered with a lace cloth and centered with a silk arrangement of yellow and orange poppies. Further enhancing the table were gold appointments.

After being introduced to the group, Kaul gave highlights of her 50 years membership in the Westway Extension Club. She came to the Westway community as a bride in 1934 from eastern Kansas. In 1938, she and other community women met with the county home demonstration agent, Sadie Lee Oliver, to organize the Westway Home Demonstration Club. The first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. G.C. Hartman. Membership grew to 40 members.

Kaul explained that what the women learned was like "taking a course in home management from A&M University." They were informed of parent education and child development, home production planning, food preparation and preservation, landscape gardening, home improvement and clothing.

For many years, Kaul said, the club provided for many community gatherings including the annual Fourth of July picnic held at the Kaul home, Christmas programs, Valentine parties, etc.

Kaul has served as club president twice, elected as council chairman, and also worked in the county home demonstration agent's office for several months.

In summation, Kaul said, "Westway is a prosperous, fine community with fine homes and outstanding residents and several of today's club members are second generation of the club which started 50 years ago."

Anniversary tea held

Westway Extension Club members celebrated the club's 50 year anniversary at a reception-tea held Sept. 11 at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center. During the tea, Leta Kaul was given special recognition as being a charter member of the club. Among the guests were, at left, Beverly Harder, Deaf Smith County Extension Agent, and Jeanette Ramey.

Bay View Study Club members attend tea

Bay View Study Club members met for a tea Thursday in the home of Mrs. Don Graham, 128 Liveoak, to open their 1966-67 club year.

Mrs. J.A. Burran, vice president, presided over the business meeting and led the club collect. Minutes of the April 21 and May 5 meetings were read and corrected.

Club members voted to grant Mrs. John Gilliland the status of associate member and the resignation of Mrs. Jack Wilcox, who is moving from Hereford, was accepted with regret by the club. Also, a letter from Mrs. M.M. Morrow was read requesting resignation as recording secretary. It was also accepted by the club and it was announced that Mrs. Abel Ruga will fill the office.

Bonnie Futrell gave the treasurer's report and announced that dues are now payable. Mrs. Bob Josserand invited officers to have tea along with other members present. Refreshments were served by the social committee: Mmes. Josserand, Juston McBride, Milton Rudder, Futrell and Graham. Members served included Mmes. H.L. Benefield, Earnest Langley, N.C. Hays, W.K. Golden, Charlie Holt, W.S. Kerr, D.N. Garner and Austin Rose.

McBride presented the program on the growth and development of the Bay View Association in Michigan in the late 1800s and the expansion of these early efforts into reading and study clubs for women throughout the United States. This led a group of women in 1909 to organize the Bay View Study Club for study, enrichment and enlightenment.

Before the conclusion of the meeting, Langley distributed new yearbooks and reviewed upcoming programs with members.

MR. AND MRS. TRUETT WISEMAN

Reception planned

A reception is planned from 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 25, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Truett Wiseman of 109 Walnut Road. All friends and relatives are invited to attend the event which will honor the couple's 50th wedding anniversary.

Truett Wiseman and Oma D. Hinkle were married Sept. 23, 1938, in Abilene. They have resided in Hereford since 1954. Both are retired and are members of Avenue Baptist Church. Wiseman is also a member of the American Legion and his wife is a member of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Hosting the reception will be the couple's daughters, Shirin Finley of Hereford and Stella Jo Dudley of Tulsa, Okla. They also have five grandchildren.

Woman's Health

INFERTILITY IN WOMEN
By Robert C. Park, M.D.,

Infertility is a subject we hear a lot about these days. Much of what we hear is news of the exciting discoveries about the causes of infertility and some solutions to those problems. Yet, one thing that has not changed about infertility is the emotional stress and pain it causes.

Infertility is a problem for both men and women. About 40 percent of infertility problems stem from the man, another 40 percent from the woman, and 10 to 20 percent are either shared problems or the cause is unknown. For women, the problems are usually related to ovulation or the ability to produce an egg; problems with the fallopian tubes, uterus, cervix, or vagina; a problem in producing the correct amount of hormones; or infection.

The causes of infertility in a woman are complex. Infertility can be related to age (women 35 or older have less chance of becoming pregnant than younger women); past or present infections caused by sexually transmitted diseases; birth control devices such as the IUD; diseases such as endometriosis (when tissue from the lining organs such as the ovaries); previous surgery; birth defects, such as a misshaped or missing uterus; or an imbalanced hormonal system.

You may not know that you will have problems becoming pregnant until you try to do so. If you do not use contraception during intercourse for one year and do not become pregnant, you may wish to talk to your doctor about infertility testing.

Depending on your doctor's experience, he or she may wish to handle some or all of your infertility testing, or may refer you on to a specialist. Both you and your partner need to be tested to determine the cause of the problem and what treatment is needed.

Depending on the problem, treatment could include using drugs to regulate or stimulate hormones (which produce the egg and prepare the uterus for childbirth), surgery to repair damaged tubes or ovaries or to remove scar tissue, or even to help nature along with egg or embryo transplants (in-vitro fertilization).

Diagnosing and treating infertility problems can be expensive and physically and emotionally trying. So couples with infertility problems must find a physician they trust and with whom they can work, and above all, keep the lines of communication open between themselves.

Harder presents program

Members of Bippus Extension Club met Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Jerry Homfeld for their regular business meeting and program.

Beverly Harder, Deaf Smith County Extension agent, talked about 4-H clubs and the craft of stenciling. She suggested laying fabric to be stenciled on sandpaper to keep it from slipping.

During the business session led by President Mariellen Homfeld, members decided to sell Del Cero pecans as their money-making project. The pecans should be in by Oct. 1.

Those present included the hostess, Harder, Kate Bradley, Flora Homfeld, Juanita Perrin, and guests, Barbara Houston and Kathy Hammock.

Jr. meeting scheduled

Parents and sponsors of the junior class will meet Monday, Sept. 19 at 7 p.m. in Community Center Lounge.

Plans for the junior supper will be discussed at the meeting. All parents and sponsors of the junior class are urged to attend.

Womack is a graduate of Dimmitt High School. He is currently engaged in farming at Dimmitt.

Red Cross Update

Our local chapter will be accepting donations for Hurricane Relief. Checks may be mailed to our office or brought to our office.

Hurricane Gilbert has reminded us that disasters that may strike far away affect us, and we need to be prepared to assist other areas. That Chapter's volunteers may be involved in repairing or replacing their own homes and businesses and yet all of the regular work still needs to be done. Volunteers that can give two or three weeks doing mass care or family assistance or nursing care are really needed.

If you would like to help for the next big disaster, please call the Red Cross office at 364-3761 so that we may begin the necessary training.

The board of directors will meet Tuesday, Sept. 20th at noon, for their regularly scheduled meeting.

Special thanks to all of the volunteers that helped clean the office in preparation for Joe Norton's visit and to those that attended the luncheon.

A CPR class is scheduled to begin Sept. 22, 7 p.m. at the Red Cross office. The six hour class will be finished Friday, Sept. 23 at the same time. Those interested in taking the class are asked to call the Red Cross office.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency.

New 4-H Club holds social

A new 4-H club met at the Community Center Tuesday, Sept. 13, as there were 11 members present for the BYOB (Bring Your Own Banana) Nutritional Social.

After a program by Susan Hicks and Loretta Urbanczyk about the nutritional value of dairy foods, each of the members, four visitors and leaders (Mrs. Hicks and Mrs. Urbanczyk) prepared their own banana splits.

Afterwards, the following officers were elected: Wendy Peabody, president; Lori Urbanczyk, vice-president; Kinann Campbell, secretary; Misty Peabody, reporter; Jill Dutton, council delegate; and Karen Harder, alternate council delegate.

There was considerable discussion about a club name which will be decided at a later date. Community projects were discussed and will play a major role in this club's activities. The next meeting will be held Oct. 11 at 4 p.m. at the County Extension Office.

Abundant Life

A SMOOTHER WAY
By Bob Wear

The way of life will be rough enough at best, because there will be some rough places for all of us. It is strange, but true, that some people actually seem to deliberately try to make the way rougher for themselves and others. They quarrel, when there is no good reason to quarrel; they discourage, when they could encourage; they disapprove, when, in all honesty, they could approve; they make promises they know they cannot keep; they are unthankful, when they have good reason to be thankful; they find fault just for the sake of finding fault; they say and do things that make the way rougher than it would otherwise be.

It is mean and hurtful to place stumbling-blocks in the way, in our own way and in the way of others. People do this, you know; but you and I both know that it is a cruel kind of behavior. It is better for all of us, whenever and wherever we can, to help remove stumbling-blocks and make the way for someone a little smoother. When we help others in this way, we are usually helping ourselves, too. "I expect to pass through life but once. If therefore, there is any kindness I can show, and any good thing I can do to any fellow being, let me do it now, and not defer or neglect it, as I shall not pass this way again."—Wm Penn

In life's extremities, we usually work together to make the way smoother; and this is most certainly commendable. Why not be just as alert to do the same, and be the same, in our considerations of the ordinary, day-to-day experiences. A helping hand, a kind word or act, letting someone know that we understand, express appreciation when it is due, be thoughtful to offer encouragement, and helping others realize that they are somebody and are worthwhile are some of the things we can do to make a smoother way.

I helped to make the way smoother for someone I met, and found the way smoother for myself.

Master class scheduled

Cynthia Westaway, soloist with Feld Ballet, will teach a master class at West Texas State University dance studio, Tuesday, Oct. 4, at (noon).

The class is sponsored by the Lone Star Ballet, Inc. and is open to intermediate/advanced dancers 13 years and older. The class will last 1½ hours; cost is $5.

Westaway was born in St. Thomas, Ontario Canada. She studied with Ervington & Graham Studios, National Academy of Arts, Royal Winnipeg Ballet School, Academy of Arts, Royal Winnipeg Ballet School, Academie de les, Grands Ballets Canadiens, Richard Thomas, and Maggie Black. Westaway performed with Banff Summerfestival of the Arts, Les Grands Ballets Canadiens, Pacific Ballet Theatre and with Feld Ballet since 1984.

The class size is limited so register in advance at the Lone Star Ballet office in the Chamber of Commerce Building, 1000 South Polk Street, or call (806)372-2463, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Interest in model railroading as a hobby began after the Chicago World's Fair of 1933-34. Model railroad exhibits at the fair spurred this interest.

Resident's sister CHOF September feature artist

Mary Ingram of Colmesneil, Texas is the feature artist for September at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center, 515 Ave. B.

Ingram, sister of Georgia Sparks of Hereford, has been painting for five years and says of her work, "My painting is just a hobby for me, it just developed because it was something I really enjoy doing."

The artist has taken art lessons from Anne Harris and Shirley Kirkland, both of Houston, and Patsy Dainwood of Jasper, Texas.

The Hall of Fame is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Famine relief

Ruth King, left, chairman of the Uniformed Volunteers of the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the Red Cross, presented a $400 check to Joe Norton of Amarillo, field service manager of Territory 3, recently as local chapters director Betty Henson, right, observes. The money was earned during the June 24-25 garage sale held locally by the chapter; the money will benefit the African Famine Relief Campaign sponsored by the Red Cross. Food for famine victims, funds for clinics, dispensaries, hospitals, and pharmacies, vehicles for food transportation, workshops for victims of war, seeds and small tools for farmers to grow food for their villages are activities supported by the African Famine Relief Campaign.

'Anti-aging' creams challenged

Objecting to claims that certain cosmetics reverse the effects of aging on skin, FDA is sending Regulatory Letters to major cosmetic companies.

The following may be useful in answering questions stimulated by news stories on the issue:

Letters were sent April 17 to Alfin Fragrances Inc., Avon Products Inc. and Estee Lauder; on April 24 to Christian Dior Perfumes Inc., Cosmair Inc., and Shiseido Ltd.; and on May 1 to Adrien Arpel, Clarins USA Inc. and Orlane/Caron Group, all of New York City, and on May 5 to Max Huber Research Labs of Agoura, Calif. Letters will be sent to additional firms as additional problems are identified.

Each letter cites violations of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act and says: "A review of the labeling (of the cited product) reveals what the Food and Drug Administration believes are drug claims."

The FD&C Act makes a distinction between cosmetics, which are intended to cleanse, beautify or promote attractiveness, and drugs, which are defined as agents that treat disease or affect the structure of any function of the human body. The FD&C Act does not mandate pre-market approval for cosmetics, but does mandate pre-market approval of the safety and effectiveness of drugs. When a product's labeling make drug-type claims (that is, they suggest that the product is intended to treat or affect the structure and formation of the human body) the otherwise "cosmetic" product legally becomes a drug and must meet the pre-marketing testing and review requirements for the distribution and sale of drugs.

The Regulatory Letters are the result of intensive investigation by FDA of the products. In each case, FDA has found that the labeling makes drug claims rather than cosmetic claims. In each case, the FDA is unaware of any substantial scientific evidence that demonstrates the safety and effectiveness of these products for the intended drug uses.

Each Regulatory Letter asks the company to take prompt action to correct its violations. If such action is not taken, FDA is prepared to take appropriate regulatory sanctions "such as seizure or injunction", according to the letters.

In a Nov. 5, 1986, in speech to the Cosmetic, Toiletary and Fragrance Association's Scientific Conference, FDA Commissioner Young had warned, "Although our first aim in consumer protection has always been product safety, the law also requires us to protect consumers from misbranded products."

"We don't want to over-regulate; we just want (cosmetic) labels that are free of false and misleading claims (and that) make cosmetic claims, not drug claims. If a label claims to prevent or treat disease or otherwise affect the structure or function of the human body, it may be considered a drug for regulatory purposes. If FDA considers it to be a new drug, the marketer carries the burden of proving it is safe and effective before it can be legally marketed."

Over $11 billion. That's how much the world's largest restaurant chain—McDonald's—takes in every year. Not bad for a company that was merely a burger stand in 1955.

'Writing for Young People' set in Amarillo

The Society of Children's Book Writers is presenting its fifth annual conference "Writing for Young People" on Saturday, Oct. 1, at the Region XVI Education Service Center, 1601 S. Cleveland in Amarillo.

Featured speakers include Mary Downing Hahn, Texas Bluebonnet Award nominee for Wait Till Helen Comes. This outstanding novel also won the 1988 Dorothy Canfield Fischer Award and the Utah Children's Choice Award. Daphne's Book, another of her seven novels, won the 1986 William Allen White Award. Hahn will speak on the topics "Witches, Ghosts, and Mystery Men" and "Putting Your Own (and Other's) Experiences into Fiction."

Author/illustrator Sarah Wilson, California Young Reader Medal nominee for her book Beware the Dragons, will lead conference participants in creating their own picture books on the spot. She will also conduct individual portfolio reviews for attending artists.

Tracey Dils, an editor at Willowisp Press, will discuss trends in the marketplace and how to keep up with what's hot. She will also cover issues vital to writers, such as targeting publishers, and how to submit appropriately.

Ivon Cecil, whose children's stories have appeared in Highlights, Children's Magic Window, and Alive!, will conduct a special session for beginning writers attending the conference. Cecil teaches "Writing for the Children's Market" at Amarillo College.

Pre-registration is $30 for SCBW members and $35 for non-members. After Sept. 28, the cost is $40. Lunch is included in the fee, which may be mailed to: Conference Director, 1908 S. Goliad, Amarillo, Tx. 79106.

Advanced academic training credit for Texas teachers, and professional growth credit for AISD teachers and librarians are available.

Conference accommodations are available at a special rate through La Quinta Inn East, 1708 I-40 East.

Chocolate Lovers' Love for Children to aid Heart Assn.

The American Heart Association Panhandle Region is having a Chocolate Lovers Love for children reception and silent auction Saturday, Oct. 8, 7 p.m. at the Fifth Season Inn West Atrium Area.

The reception will include everything chocolate and an open bar and a silent auction with over 100 items up for bids.

Joyce Martin of Galaxy Catering will be in charge of the reception and promises many unusual treats for those who have a taste for chocolate.

Money raised from this event will help support the 'Heart Explores' program which was introduced this fall for grades 1,2 and 3 in the Amarillo Schools. The program includes a kit which has interactive tools like stethoscopes, bulb syringes, and computer diskettes, as well as curriculum guides, audiovisuals, posters and parent newsletters in order to teach elementary children how to develop positive health attitudes and behaviors. The program includes lessons on the structure and function of the heart, nutrition, physical activity, smoking avoidance, and blood pressure and pulse.

Another program introduced in 1986 called Heart Treasure Chest is designed for children in day-care centers, kindergartens, and pre-kindergartens. It also includes many hands-on tools for children and has been well received. These are only a few of the programs available through the Heart Association for the education of children. Some funds will also be used for research.

Tickets for the Chocolate Lovers Love for Children are available at the door or from Heart Association board members or office at 2404 West 7th. Cost of admission is $7.50 per person.

Cole still has TV doubts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Cole, about to make his TV series debut, admits he still harbors some of the stage actor's prejudice against television.

Cole, who lives in Chicago where he's a member of the Steppenwolf Theater, stars in NBC's new "Midnight Caller," which will make its bow in November. He plays a former San Francisco policeman who continues to fight crime as host of a late-night call-in radio show.

He'll also be seen this fall in the NBC movie tentatively called "Daddy" as a new father suddenly faced with raising his newborn son alone after his wife dies in childbirth.

Cole is perhaps best known to television viewers for his performance as Green Beret doctor Jeffrey MacDonald — who was convicted of killing his wife and two daughters — in the 1984 miniseries "Fatal Vision."

"Sure, I've had prejudices against television," he says. "I still do." But, he adds, "There is quality television around."

As for his new series, he says, "I hope that it relies on character as well as on how it looks. I want it to have quality and be gripping."

So far, Cole's only work on the series has been the pilot. During the writers' strike he went back to Chicago, but recently returned here for "Daddy." Work on the movie was completed in early September and he was off to San Francisco to start "Midnight Caller."

Cole plays Jack Killian in "Midnight Caller." He is still a San Francisco plainclothes inspector nicknamed "The Mouth" as the pilot opens.

"What happens is that he accidentally kills his partner during a shoot-out," he says. "By his own choice he decides to stop being a policeman.

Then he's offered this call-in radio show about crime prevention. It's people calling in about drug-selling in their neighborhood, battered wives, even a guy I busted as a policeman who calls in to harass me over the air."

"The pilot's about finding a female serial killer. She kills men. Married blond men. Then she begins to call the station. We try to trace the call. She winds up contacting me at home and we set up a meeting."

Other regulars in the series are Wendy Kilbourne as the station owner, Dennis Dun as the producer-engineer and Arthur Taxier as his former boss and now his conduit to the police.

Cole grew up in the Chicago area, and for as long as he remembers wanted to be an actor. As an 8-year-old, he lip-synched Bill Cosby's comedy albums. He studied acting at Illinois State University, but left after three years to return to Chicago to work as a bartender, house painter and occasional actor at the Steppenwolf Theater. He joined the Remains Theater in 1979 and then became an ensemble player with Steppenwolf in 1986.

"Steppenwolf has a company of 21 actors," he says. "Some of the people have been working together since 1976. I knew most of them in college."

His first film work was as Peter Strauss' younger brother in the TV movie "Heart of Steel," which told of the effect the closing a steel mill had on a community.

The turning point was his appearance in "Fatal Vision." "I was doing Sam Shepard's play 'True West' in New York and some NBC people saw it," he says. "NBC talent reps came to Chicago looking for people for pilots and I talked to them. I talked to them again when I did 'Miami Vice.' About three months later I got the role in 'Fatal Vision.' It turned out well."

Country Design Will Fit A Narrow Lot

LUXURY MASTER BEDROOM SUITE IN A SMALL PLAN

© By W. D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.
Through the front porch and the private foyer, traffic flows to daytime area, kitchen area and bedroom wing. The central great room is endowed with a private wet bar, central fireplace and flows to a spacious dining room with terrace and kitchen access. The kitchen is a foot-saving corridor style.

Immediate access is to the full-size laundry room with bonus pantry, cabinets and washer-dryer space. This room doubles as an entrance way to the double garage.

The master bedroom suite includes the popular garden bath with separate shower and two lavatories and is complete with spacious walk-in closet.

A central full bath services daytime use and the two remaining bedrooms.

The country exterior is embellished with a shed country porch, vertical siding and gable roof design. This is a computer plan. Some changes may be made from the plan stored in the CADD memory at less cost to you. Direct inquiries about CADD plan changes to the address below.

The plan is number 469. It includes 1,406 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements and include special construction details for energy efficiency. For further information write, W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

FLOOR PLAN

On the House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — We have used up all the extra space in our house, but now need additional room, so we have decided to add a room. We are fairly handy, but don't want to undertake anything that will be too much for us. Can you tell us some things we should know about adding a room to the house?

A. — Entire books have been written about this subject and the best advice that can be given to you is to read at least one of them. Meanwhile, the most important thing you should know is there are building codes that will affect anything you do. Many communities that have few regulations about remodeling the inside of a house have numerous rules to follow if anything is added to the outside. Don't even think about the kind of addition you want until you find out what is permitted. For instance, in most places, your addition must be at the rear. Some localities permit a certain amount of side additions. Most will not allow anything extra at the front. One thing you will have to discover is whether the addition must be set on a concrete slab and whether the slab must be reinforced with imbedded mesh. In short, the "hows" of your construction will be determined to a large degree by what your community allows. No matter how handy you are, have a local contractor assist you in making your choices. You then can determine how much of the work you can handle yourself.

Q. — Finishing a basement this fall and want to give everything a contemporary look. We have decided a suspended ceiling is one way of achieving this appearance. Have seen several displays and have about figured out how everything is done but want some information about how the panels are aligned properly.

A. — There will not be any problem if you follow the instructions about the installation. The basic components of the metal grid into which the panels are placed are interlocking. Once the grid is attached as per the directions that come with the ceiling parts, the grid automatically aligns the lay-in panels. If the grid is correct, the panels will be correct.

Decorating now begins at master bedroom

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures
Decorating times have certainly changed.

Instead of going all out on the living room, the public is now told to concentrate on the master bedroom before anything else.

"I advise doing the adult bedroom first because our attitudes toward the rest of the world emanate from this room which is a security blanket," said Elaine Ryan, an interior designer from Scottsdale, Ariz. Ryan says all adults benefit from what she calls a sensuous bedroom — "a private retreat in which they can relax and take off the mask they show the world."

The bed should be the focal point, according to Ryan who offered some suggestions for achieving this goal. She often places it on a four-inch-high carpeted platform or by lowering the ceiling in actuality or through the use of fabric. Another idea is to choose an "important" bed such as one with a canopy and curtains and then distinguishing it with soft fabric hangings.

Another idea is to choose a bed made of a different material from the rest of the furniture. Brass or white metal, wicker, upholstered headboards and beds with a painted design are some examples, suggested by Patrick O'Hayre, a New Yorker who designs studio settings for showrooms and mail order catalogues.

Making the bed the focal point of a room doesn't have to cost a lot of money, says Mary Meehan, a decorator in New York. She created a half-canopy over her own bed in a country home at minimal cost. "I can't sew so I stapled fabric to a half-moon plywood form attached to the ceiling."

To duplicate the effect, she said, have a lumber yard cut a half circle of plywood. The diameter of the half circle should be about half the width of a larger bed and a little more than half the width of a single bed, she added. Using brackets and angle irons, attach this form to the ceiling above the headboard. Hang a back curtain behind the bed and staple two fabric panels (sheeting is ideal) to the half circle. As you staple, pinch-pleat by hand and allow the extra fabric to hang down like a window curtain.

The two panels should meet in the center so they can be tied back like curtains to meet the drape behind the bed. Glue on fabric trim to hide the hardware and staples. "It looks great when it's all put together. But never, never let an upholsterer into the room," she advised.

A simpler way to make your bed the center of attention is to employ lots of pillows in different shapes and sizes with the largest nearest the headboard, said O'Hayre. He added that you can enhance the visual appeal of the bed by borrowing a few tricks from the photo stylist's bag. Since you won't be sleeping on most of the pillows, but will be using them for decoration, stuff tissue paper in the backs to fluff them up. A triangular wedge shaped bolster of foam at the back will make the pillows in front support them so they are standing up as they do in the photos. Put your sleeping pillows in the closet.

A skirted bedside table is a good place to hide them if you are short on closet space.

O'Hayre and Ryan both advised substituting a soft comforter for a bedspread for a more casual and softer look. O'Hayre's tips: tuck in sheets and blankets only if they hang below the comforter. Shake out the comforter a few times before tossing it on the bed. He prefers an askew look with a turned down top corner on one side.

Ryan includes a relaxation area where a couple can have a snack or a meal and talk or listen to music in the bedrooms she decorates. If the room is tiny, she arranges the furniture on the diagonal, a trick that works well to gain more floor space and create a sense of visual enlargement.

Depending on available spaces and client's preferences, the relaxation area may include a sofa, settee or two easy chairs as well as a coffee table high enough to use for meals. Good lighting and soft surfaces also contribute to a pleasant ambience.

Don't choose a scratchy or "hard" fabric such as raw linen, polished chintz or leather. Instead, opt for visually sensual fabrics such as shimmery silk-like synthetics and soft cottons. Any fabric chosen should be soft to the touch. Pastel colors — often known as ice cream or sherbet colors — and deep jewel tones are both terrific. Some colors which she says have wide appeal include mauve, peach, apricot, pale blue, strawberry and hot pink.

White or cream goes well with colors and floral prints are appealing because of their associations with fragrance.

Avoid bland beige, she advises. Two design choices to avoid are brown and hard-edge geometric prints. "I don't know why but brown and geometric prints just aren't sensuous — nice but not sensuous," she said.

She regards carpeting as essential and says fabric on the walls is preferable to paper because it is softer to the eye and touch. If attached to the wall with Velcro, shirred fabric has another advantage: it can be dismantled when you get bored with the familiar sensuous environment so you can dream up another.

Timer, remote unit among new products

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures
What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A seven-day lamp-appliance timer.

Manufacturer's claim — That the timer can be controlled to turn lights and appliances on and off 14 times a week ... that it plugs into standard wall outlets and can be used with television sets, radios and all lamps and appliances day and night ... that it will function for a minimum "on" time of three hours and a maximum "on" time of six days and 21 hours ... that it has a manual override on-off switch for operating during non-scheduled hours ... and that it gives unoccupied houses the appearance of being "lived in" without the predictable timer-controlled look.

THE PRODUCT — A remote control to open and close draperies.

Manufacturer's claim — That this control can be used with any drawcord drapery or curtain no matter what its size ... that the drapes or curtain can be opened or closed smoothly and quietly to any position ... that all the operation requires is to touch a button ... that it can be used with patio doors, large picture windows and other glass expanses where remote control is desired and even essential ... that it can be installed in less time and with the same tool required for the installation of a drapery rod ... and that the power unit can be mounted on the wall or on the baseboard.

THE PRODUCT — A self-drilling wallboard anchor.

Manufacturer's claim — That this anchor has deep threads that provide strong engagement in different sizes of gypsum board ... that it is easily installed with a Phillips screwdriver without the necessity of using an electric drill or other tool ... that its unique tri-cut point self-drills a clean small hole ... that it is made of zinc and is corrosion resistant ... and that it has a breakaway point that can be broken off behind the wallboard if the wallboard is too shallow.

THE PRODUCT — A device that simulates an alarm system control panel.

Manufacturer's claim — That this device is installed in seconds, is operated by a key and emits a bright, flashing red light visible from the street ... that it is powered by AAA batteries which keep it operating for up to three years ... and that professional security personnel, in a series of tests, were not able to tell it from the real thing.

(The seven-day timer is manufactured by Intermatic, Intermatic Plaza, Spring Grove, IL 60081; the remote control by TEP Inc., P.O. Box 104, Winona, OH 44893; the wallboard anchor by Buildex, 1349 West Byrn Mawr Ave., Itasca, IL 60143; and the alarm panel simulator by Overview Ltd., Box 211, Wood Ridge, NJ 07075.)

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much helpful data in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $2 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, NJ 07666.)

Q — I saw an advertisement for rubble masonry. I plan to do some masonry work soon and wonder whether it will be advisable to use rubble masonry?

A — Rubble masonry is a term used for stones which are not cut to shape. You would use it only if the project you are planning calls for irregular stones.

Q — The space in the upper part of my garage is wasted. I want to build a kind of crawl space there which will have only a limited amount of boards over the joists to serve as a sort of partial floor. Is this practical?

A — Not very. For safety sake, you should have a complete floor. Plywood half-an-inch thick will do the job. It is not necessary to get anything but the least expensive kind of plywood. Just make certain it is strong. I assume you will be using a folding staircase to get to the crawl space. The lumber yard or home center that sells it usually carries instructions for the building of an overhead crawl space.

Making wine

The grape harvest by Texas Panhandle vintners is now in full swing. Dino Ferraresi and Art Reinauer, from left, pressed grapes for La Escarbada XIT Winery of Hereford recently. Longtime cattle rancher Reinauer noted in a recent television interview that "wine is becoming increasingly popular due to an increased concern towards alcohol abuse and a lessened availability of drinkable water in the U.S."

President Lyndon B. Johnson sturred the country March 31, 1968, by announcing he would not seek reelection.

Stevens Chevrolet - Oldsmobile SAYS, "DON'T SLIP UP ON HAVING A TRANSMISSION TUNE-UP!"

The transmission is one of the most neglected parts of the car. Most people aren't even aware that it needs periodic maintenance, just as an engine does.

- Here's what we do:
- Drain the transmission fluid
 - Adjust the throttle linkage
 - Replace the pan gasket
 - Clean the valve body
 - Adjust the bands
 - Replace/refill transmission fluid
 - Adjust the linkage
 - Check the vacuum system
 - Conduct a thorough road test.
