And beyond the Kremlin's red-brick walls, Russians often sound like ordinary Americans - frustrated and helpless - over the arms

"I think this process is almost out of control," said electrical worker Yuri Smirnov, 43. "Everybody is interested in ending the arms race, but no one trusts anybody else."

Western leaders describe the Soviet arms buildup as a threat to world peace. But Maj. Gen. Yuri V. Lebedev, a missile forces commander and Soviet arms negotiator, defended it in an interview.

"All of the steps taken by the Soviet Union were to counteract the United States," said the toughtalking general. "In the 1950s and 1960s, the Soviet Union was far behind the United States in nuclear potential. The United States could dictate its views. It wasn't good for the Soviet Union, or for many countries...

"There is rough parity now, and we believe it is the best point for freezing our nuclear forces and then to reduce them."

Over and over, the phrases "parity," "equality," "equal security" appear in Soviet speeches and in the tightly controlled press. The Kremlin is determined to resist what it sees as Reagan administration plans to restore the U.S. nuclear edge.

"First strike" is the term for a pre-emptive nuclear attack in which one superpower would fire its most accurate warheads to knock out the other's land-based missiles.

But the Soviet fears are mirrored in Washington, where a Soviet first strike is an ever-present concern for U.S. strategists.

Lebedev stiffens at that suggestion. "The memories of World War II are still here," he said, speaking through an in-terpreter. "If you talk to anybody in the street, they do not want war. The Soviet Union is not planning any first strike."

The Kremlin's plans remain wrapped in secrecy. But it appears to be pressing ahead with new weaponry as earnestly as the Pentagon.

U.S. officials say the Soviets tested a new ballistic missile comparable to the planned U.S. 10-warhead missile, the MX. They also are developing long-range cruise missiles, and have test-flown a new strategic bomber, dubbed "Blackjack" by the Pentagon.

Moscow's most urgent priority is political - blocking deployment of U.S.

The Soviets are especially worried by the 108 Pershing 2 missiles slated for bases in Germany. From there, these accurate new rockets could knock out missile bases in the western U.S.S.R. in 10 minutes. The Kremlin describes them as part of a U.S. first-strike strategy. The NATO deployment of 572 U.S. cruise and Pershing 2 missiles is designed as a counter to a similar number of Soviet SS-20 and other midrange missiles within striking distance of Europe.

House panel kills withholding bill

With no hope of winning in the House, the Reagan administration is counting on the Senate to produce a plan to catch tax cheats without having to withhold taxes from interest and dividends.

Withholding is dead, the administration conceded to the House Ways and Means Committee on Thursday.

The panel, under intense pressure from other members due in part to a record mail campaign backed by the banking industry,

WASHINGTON (AP) - then approved a repeal bill by

That set the stage for a vote in the House next Tuesday, where repeal is expected to be approved by a lopsided margin. The issue then would return to the Senate, which last month voted 91-5 to keep the withholding law but prevent its use unless Congress voted for it again in 1987.

But although it now appears withholding will not go into effect as scheduled on Ju-

WASHINGTON (AP) -The Republican-controlled Senate, deeply and perhaps irrevocably divided over whether to defy President Reagan and raise taxes next year, has temporarily set aside efforts to approve a budget plan for 1984.

Despite intensive efforts over two weeks to pull together a majority from among his own ranks, Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr. failed Thursday to get a compromise budget blueprint through the Senate.

Senators voted 52 to 48, to defeat a budget resolution supported by the president that called for a 7.5 percent defense increase next year, nominal tax increases and a $190 billion deficit.

The decision marked a significant legislative and political defeat for both Baker, R-Tenn., and the Reagan administration.

Seven Republicans voted against the plan, along with 45 Democrats, continuing a budget deadlock which has bedeviled GOP leaders determined to find a combination of spending, tax and military increases which can get through an increasinglyrebellious Senate. Only one Democrat, Howell Heflin of Alabama, supported the compromise drafted by Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., who planned to meet today for still one more try at compromise with Lawton Chiles of Florida, the senior Democrat on the panel.

During a speech to a Republican fund-raiser Thursday night, Reagan attacked Democratic foes of his economic program, but did not mention the split in his own party or the Senate vote.

Reagan argues that the economic recovery now under way depends on allow-ing the third piece of a 25 percent income tax cut enacted in 1981 to take hold as plann-

The plan is also contingent on Braniff getting its old landing slots back from the Federal Aviation Administration. The slots have been parceled out to other airlines, and Putnam said he had talked to the FAA but had not received a commitment that they would be returned.

But if Putnam foresaw any major stumbling blocks in the proposal, he did not indicate so at the news conference. He said the committee representing Braniff's unsecured creditors told the board that it approved the plan "in concept" and that he expected the unions and secured creditors to also support the deal.

No Hyatt representatives attended the news conference, and telephone calls to the office and home of a Hyatt spokeswoman were not answered Thursday night.

Deadly immune disease linked to another virus

WASHINGTON (AP) - AIDS, the deadly immune system disease that leaves the body helpless against infection, has been linked to yet another virus. But scientists say the cause still is unknown.

Researchers reported Friday that a rare cancer virus may have a relationship to AIDS, but they say it is much too early to tell if this virus actually causes the disease.

AIDS, formally called acquired immune deficiency syndrome, is a condition first noticed four years ago that irreparably breaks down the body's disease-fighting immune system. Among other things, the disease knocks out a type of defensive white blood cell called a T-cell.

Reports linking human T-cell leukemia virus (HTLV) to AIDS were published in Science magazine by researchers at the Harvard School of Public Health, the National Cancer Institute and the Pasteur Institute in Scientists are not sure if the virus plays a primary role in AIDS or if it is just another infectious agent picked up after victims lose their defenses againt all disease.

Of the more than 1,350 people known to have acquired AIDS in the United States, 500 have died.

Winter storm warnings were posted for central and northern Montana early today despite signs that the spring blizzard that dumped heavy snows in the northern Rockies was abating.

Snow continued falling overnight in eastern Montana while freezing rain glazed sections of North Dakota.

Thunderstorms rumbled over the Southern Plains and across the lower Missouri Valley. Hail almost 3 inches in diameter fell near Erick, Okla., and winds gusted to more than 70 mph as a thunderstorm blew through Marshall, Seven tornadoes were sighted Thursday night in Kansas and Oklahoma as a large system of thunderstorms drenched that region.

Fair skies prevailed over the Southwest, Northwest and extreme Southeast, while the rest of the nation was experiencing thunderstorms, showers or fog.

Bernie Hobson, assistant district attorney in Fort Bend County, had asked for the maximum punishment of life imprisonment for Ortiz, who is from Nuevo Laredo, Mexico.

Ortiz' first trial ended in a mistrial in March when a Richmond, Texas, jury deadlocked 11-1 for conviction. The trial was moved here on a change of venue.

Ortiz was charged with murder in the death of 15-year-old Roman Turcios, who was found slain with three other Salvadorans in July 1982. All four were found along the banks of the Brazos River in Fort Bend County, bound and shot at close range.

The slayings occurred July 4, but the bodies were not discovered until 12

Prosecutors contend Ortiz was a member of the Los Tejas alien smuggling ring. Twelve other alleged members of the ring were indicted after an investigation into the Salvadorans' deaths.

Turcios and the three others killed were held captive at a Fort Bend County house while the alien smugglers awaited ransom from the Salvadorans' friends and relatives, Fort Bend County prosecutors said.

HOUSTON -- Society's fascination with slimness and the pressure to become slim may cause a greater health problem for the moderately se person than the extra weight, according to a Baylor College of Medicine resear-

John P. Foreyt, Ph.D., associate professor of medicine and psychiatry, says fewer than five percent of the individuals who begin diets--one person in 20-actually lose and maintain a significant weight loss.

"The chances that an obese person will lose to an ideal body weight and maintain it are much less than the cure rates for many types of cancer," Foreyt said.

Most dieters tend to lose weight, then regain it, and wind up trying to lose the same pounds over and over.

Foreyt said the major emotional and physical problems for the moderately obese person (not more than 120 percent of ideal body weight) often lie not with the obesity fat. This becomes more pronounced with each diet. What we end up with is a group of people who are obese, because of a high percentage of body fat. They may, however, end up maintaining their weight on a diet that is restrictive for people with normal weight." The emotional stress of obesity, rather than the condition iteself, may also lead to apparent and real physical so low in calories it would be

"Too often obese people are denied attention because of the unattractiveness of obesity. If they develop physical symptoms, and those symp toms get attention from a spouse, friends, or a physician, it may serve only to reinforce the symptoms," Foreyt said. -

Every decision to diet brings initial feelings of hope and elation that usually are followed by depression and possibly anxiety caused by the sense of failure, Foreyt explained. Then come feelings of weakness, nervousness, irritability and patterns of eating at night, insomnia, and the lack of desire to eat in the mornings. For some the daily movement of the scale becomes the roulette wheel governing their lives. If they have gained, they're depressed or anxious. If they lose, it's a high.

"The sense of failure in weight loss is probably more damaging in women than in men, since the ability to control food may become an index of the ability to control life in general," Foreyt said. "They use that failure to view themselves as a failure psychologically. The fear of failure then pervades other areas of their lives."

The real problem, he said, lies in the overemphasis on slenderness in our society. Combatting that problem means accepting one's body size and recognizing that everyone doesn't have to be as slender as the ads and society expect. It means understanding that lifestyles today are built around laborsaving devices and much less physical work than that of our ancestors. That, coupled with an adequate supply of food,

Ann Landers Hope pastor changes tune

DEAR ANN: I cheered when I read the letter from the clergyman who was displeased with parents who let their kids cry and talk and disrupt the congregation while he was trying to deliver a sermon he had worked on all week. I hope our pastor read it and changes his tune.

Our church has an average attendance of 225. We have two nurseries - one for babies and one for toddlers and older. A couple behind us chose to bring their twomonth-old infant into the church. The child cried LOUD throughout the service. Several people gave the parents long, hard looks. We even turned around and stared a couple of times. They ignored all signs of displeasure.

Two weeks later the pastor said he had something on his mind and proceeded to give us a scorching lecture on lerance." He said he had worked hard and long to get a certain couple to join the con-gregation and because we had the audacity to give them dirty looks when their baby cried they resigned their membership. He ended by saying, "I can talk louder than any baby can cry! Don't ever let this happen again!"

The tone of his voice was like that of a parent reprimanding a child. We felt insulted. May we have your opinion?-Just PEW

DEAR PEW: I don't wish to speak unkindly of a servant pastor has cornflakes where his brains belong. To chew out his congregation becaues they resented having their Sunday sermon ruined by a crying baby (whose parents could easily have taken him to the nursery) was childish. I

Invisible speed is 200

By MIKE HARRIS AP Motorsports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The invisible speed people come to see at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway is 200

It's invisible because racing people insist the human eye can't tell the difference between 190 mph and 200. But it's the attraction nevertheless simply because of the thrill of it all - the awe, danger and suspense it promotes.

And there has been plenty of it this year. Where even approaching 200 used to be difficult, topping it has become an everyday experience as drivers prepare for this weekend's qualifications for the May 29 Indianapolis 500.

The 200 mph mark already has been topped by 13. drivers in practice this month.

"You used to be able to sneak up to 200, but now it's a must just to be competitive," said Mario Andretti, who has yet to reach the magic figure this week and whose best effort of 199.115 mph is only 15th fastest.

The reason is science - aerospace designs and aerodynamics. Skill is less a factor now.

'As good as most of these cars are today, you could go out there and drive 190," noted Roger Penske, the owner of the fastest car ever to speed around this track. "That means just about any race driver should be able to do it."

To approach 200 in the early 1970s, with almost. unlimited horsepower, a driver had to charge down Indy's two long straightaways - both about three-quarters of a mile long - at more than 210 mph, then ride the brakes through the turn, hoping to scrub off just enough speed to keep the car from skidding off into a wall or the infield grass and still have enough momentum to reach top speed at the top of the next straightaway.

The new aerodynamic designs, shaped with modern

technological aids like wind tunnels and comp engineering, as well as the consumate skill of today's Indy-car mechanics, have bypassed attempts by the rules-makers to slow the cars down for safety's sake.

Today, if the combination of strong motor and sleek aerodynamics is present, a driver can not only whistle down the straights at between 210 and 215 mph but keep his throttle foot to the floor through the turns.

Maximum downforce created by channels funneling air beneath the car, as well as rear wings and front spoilers, keep the cars solidly on track - if nothing breaks and the driver makes no serious errors in judgment or reaction.

There's still a bit of awe when a Rick Mears, an Al Unser or an Andretti — all of them past winners of this ultimate racing spectacle - soar upwards toward the unofficial track record of 208.9.

But there is also concern and more than a bit of consternation when people like Indy-car rookies Al Unser Jr. and Teo Fabi and less-heralded veterans like Howdy Holmes and Tony Bettenhausen top the magic figure seemingly at will. And the list of drivers averaging more than 195 contains names that do not ring with familiarity.

"Who would you rather have out there running next to you at 200, A.J. (Foyt) and Mears, or some of these guys who have never gone that fast and suddenly find themselves in a car capable of going over 200?" Johnny Rutherford asked rhetorically. "The problem is, you can buy these cars now that will go as fast as almost any of them right out of the box. But they don't have instructions in the box for the driver, something to explain to him what to expect when something goes wrong at those speeds."

So the element of danger in a sport already rife with danger is heightened. Yet, the big name drivers preach in virtual chorus, that's racing.

Spurs seeking 2nd win

(AP) — San Antonio's George Gervin says the National Basketball Association defending champion Los Angeles Lakers might have been thrown off balance by this year's version of the Spurs.

Game 3 of the Lakers-Spurs Western Conference final is here tonight, with the best-ofseven series deadlocked 1-1.

That's already better than last year, when Los Angeles humiliated the Spurs in the conference finals by sweeping four straight games.

'We're not that same team that used to fall apart in the past," Gervin said. "They might have hoped we would collapse, just like we wanted them to collapse, but it didn't

The biggest difference on the San Antonio team this year is 7-2 center Artis Gilmore, acquired in an offseason trade after Lakers center Kareem Adbul-Jabbar steamrollered the Spurs in the playoffs.

Lakers coach Pat Riley said both teams are in for a rough time.

'This is going to be a tough series, going at least six or seven games," he said.

The fourth game will be played Sunday afternoon in San Antonio, with the action then shifting to Los Angeles for the fifth game on Wednes-

"You asking me how long I think it will go?" Gervin asked. "Hey, it's a seven-game series. I'm not making any predictions."

Riley said he's counting on the NBA playoff experience of his championship team to pull Los Angeles through this series, especially that of Jamaal Wilkes, Michael Cooper, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Norm Nixon and Earvin "Magic" Johnson.

"We have a core of players who have been through it before - Silk, Cooper, Kareem, Nixon and Magic," he said. "These guys are real strong-minded when it comes to big games. They know how to win.'

smart.'

MILWAUKEE (AP) -Moses Malone, Julius Erving and Andrew Toney are Philadelphia's resident superstars, but they aren't the only reasons why the 76ers lead the Milwaukee Bucks 2-0 in the National Basketball Association Eastern Conference finals.

Consider Maurice Cheeks and Bobby Jones.

Both have been NBA All-Stars, although they haven't had nearly as much recognition as Malone, Erving and Jones. But unless the Bucks devise ways to contain Cheeks and Jones in Game Three here Saturday, at 1:30 p.m. CDT, the 76ers could be in prime position to sweep the best-of-seven series.

The Bucks feel they have to double-team Malone and Erving along the baseline and provide extra defensive help against Toney's outside shooting.

Those tactics often have left Cheeks unattended, and he has responded with 41 points in the series.

Not only is Cheeks, in the opinion of Bucks' Coach Don Nelson, one of the best point guards in the NBA, he also is one of the quickest. Only Paul Pressey and Sidney Moncrief among the Bucks' guards have enough quickness to stay with Cheeks, but they have had to provide doubleteam help against Malone and Toney.

Cheeks was considered a mediocre outside shooter when he came out of West Texas State five years ago, but he has worked hard and has become a dangerous shooter up to 18 feet from the

Krukow pitches without pain; beats Reds, 4-2

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

For the first time this season, Mike Krukow was pitching without pain. And for six innings, he was pitching

Then, suddenly, he was gone, given the hook by San Francisco Manager Frank Robinson, But Krukow mi not at all. He knew he'd gone as long as he was expected to against the Cincinnati Reds Thursday night.

Reliever Jim Barr lost the no-hitter in the eighth inning and the Giants had to settle for a two-hit, 4-2 victory.
"I knew before I went into the game that I was not going to go longer than six innings," said Krukow, who came to the Giants from Philadelphia last winter in the Joe Morgan trade. Krukow injured his right elbow in spring training and was making his first appearance since coming off the 21-day disabled list.

"I'm not going to second-guess," he said. "This is the first time since this spring that I've pitched in a game without pain. I enjoyed it."

But what about Robinson's decision to send up a pinchhitter in the seventh inning?"It wasn't much of a decision to make," Krukow said. "I'll back Frank's decision 100

Elsewhere in the National League it was Pittsburgh 6, New York 2; Chicago 6, Philadelphia 3; St. Louis 4, Montreal 0; Los Angeles 4, San Diego 3 and, in 10 innings, Houston 4, Atlanta 3.

Robinson said he never hesitated in taking Krukow out. "He's too valuable to this ballclub," the Giants' manager said. "I was thinking about that and thinking about his future. He had just come off the disabled list, had had a bad arm . . . I know he wouldn't have wanted to stay out there because one more pitch or one more inning could have blown his arm."

Krukow said Giants pitching coach Herm Starrette "told me earlier in the week they wanted five or six innings out of me . . . "I had butterflies (at the start of the game). It had been a while since I'd been out there. You don't realize how much you miss this game until you sit out for 21 days.

"It's a lot of fun out there to throw without pain."

Barr gave up Ron Oester's leadoff triple in the eighth and Dave Concepcion's one-out single in the ninth, then Gary Lavelle got the last out and with it his third save.

The Giants took a 2-0 lead in the first off Bruce Berenyi, the first run coming on Darrell Evans' double that stretched his hitting streak to 11 games. Krukow had a sacrifice fly in the second inning and Berenyi wild-pitched a run home in the third. Grounders by Johnny Bench and Wayne Krenchicki accounted for the Reds' runs.

Dave Parker, a macho man in his own mind, decided it was time to admit to his own shortcomings and, by doing so, broke out of one of the worst slumps of his career.

He switched from a 36-ounce bat to a 33-ounce model and came through with three hits, including a pair of doubles, two runs batted in and three runs scored in the Bucs' victory that dropped the Mets into last place in the

"It was a macho thing," he said of his reliance on heavy lumber. "I still feel macho, but I'm getting older and I'm not as young and not as strong as I was . . . I had to prove to myself I couldn't use the big bat anymore, and when you go 3-for-32, that proved it to me.

The older you get, the more you have to make adjustments," added Parker, who turns 33 next month.

Cubs 6, Phillies 3 Larry Bowa has only 15 home runs in his career - and two of them have come in the past five days. His three-run shot helped the Cubs beat his former Philadelphia team-

Porter's double and singles by Ken Oberkfell and Tommy Herr gave the Cards a fourth-inning run and they made it 2-0 in the fifth when Lonnie Smith doubled and Willie McGee singled. Porter hit his homer in the eighth. Dodgers 4, Padres 3

Pedro Guerrero, who hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning, drove home Ron Roenicke in the eighth with the tiebreaking run that gave Fernando Valenzuela and the Dodgers their victory over San Diego.

Luis Salazar hit a two-run homer in the second inning for the Padres, Guerrero tied it in the sixth, Steve Yeager put the Dodgers ahead by a run in the seventh with a homer and Steve Garvey's sacrifice fly made it 3-3 in the bottom of the seventh.

Astros 4, Braves 3 Joe Cruz singled to open the 10th inning, was bunted to second and came home on Luis Pujols' single to give Houston its victory. Frank DiPino, with 1 2-3 innings of nohit relief against the Braves, has a streak of 10 1-3 hitless

Boros plays 'computer ball', Murphy plays 'homer ball'

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Steve Boros played "computer baseball" against the Detroit Tigers, and it paid off in big numbers for the Oakland A's.

The Oakland manager had been considering dropping Dwayne Murphy from fourth to fifth in the batting order due to a slump, but changed his mind when he saw a computer readout on Murphy's achievements last year against Detroit pitcher Dan Petry.

Houston to join USFL in 1984

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - A home-owned United States Football League franchise will be born next week in Houston.

And, after announcing the sale of his USFL rights in Texas, league founder Dave Dixon said Thursday that he is donating $850,000 of the money he received to Loyola University of New Orleans. He said he was grateful to the school because its Jesuit priests prayed for six weeks that the USFL would succeed at a time when he himself had grave doubts.

"If there's a father of the USFL, I think it's the fathers of Loyela," said Dixon.

The wealthy New Orleans art dealer and entrepreneur told a news conference he also would spend part of the money to reacquire rights to and create a USFL franchise in New Orleans in time for the 1985 season.

Dixon would identify neither the Houston owners nor the price paid for the rights to a Houston or New Orleans franchise he originally reserved when the league was created.

He said the league's commissioner would introduce the Houston owners next Tuesday in Houston, but disclosed the first Texas franchise should be operating in 1984 - the new league's second season.

Dixon said it was mere 'speculation' that the Houston group includes agent Jerry Argovitz.

Argovitz steered one No. 1 National Football League draft choice into the USFL last week and said he would

Kitchens remodeled to fit modern lifestyle

COLLEGE STATION - "In the past, kitchens were planned for efficiency; not they are planned for lifestyle," says Dr. Peggy Owens, a housing specialist.

"The kitchen is usually one of the first rooms that homeowners want to remodel," says Owens, who is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Americans spent $18.5 million last year on building and remodeling kitchens, says Owens. The sale of the kitchen cabinets for remodeling projects alone, has risen 76 percent since 1975, she Studies show that kitchens are remodeled on the average of every 12 to 15 years. So with the tremendous number of homes built in the 1960's coming "due" for remodeling, even more homeowners will be involved with kitchen projects, says Owens.

According to Owens, the current trend is to remodel separate kitchen, dining and living rooms into one "great room" with more open space.

"In fast-paced, dual-earner families, the kitchen is where people meet, so a space arrangement where living areas flow into the kitchen make more sense," she says.

Remodelers now tend to create multi-purpose areas for eating, hobbies, or home record-keeping as well as cooking.

Using all available space for storage is another trend, especially in smaller kitchens. Open shelving on walls and shelf space on the top of cabinets are often added to kitchens to increase storage, she notes.

In addition, remodelers are adding tile and warm woods to their kitchens for both function and decoration, says

Lawmakers' joke backfires

lawmaker whose mischievous colleagues paid a stripper to perform for him says they apparently did not know what kind of dancer they had hired for the practical joke. The gyrating woman sug-gestively stripped down to a G-string and pasties in a public lobby of the Texas Capitol Thursday as Rep. David Patronella, D-Houston, sat watching, red-faced and smiling.

House Speaker Gib Lewis condemned the stunt as in "very poor taste" and said those responsible had apologized.

"I don't think they realized it was going to be that kind of stripper," said Patronella. who celebrated his 26th birthday Thursday and was the victim of the intended joke. "She was a little more suggestive than I think anybody would have intended.'

He said the stunt took him 'completely by surprise."

The incident occurred during the afternoon when the House was in session. "I was asked by a lobbyist to come outside. I thought I was going to see a constituent," Patronella said.

Instead, he was asked to sit in a chair in the lobby outside the House chambers and a shapely blonde dressed in black appeared and begin to perform bumps and grinds directly in front of Patronella.

A crowd ringed the couple and watched in amazement as the woman took off her clothes while making suggestive movements at times less than an inch in front of Patronella's face.

Rep. Charles Gandy, D-Mesquite, acknowledged that about 10 fellow House members had chipped in $5 apiece to pay for the stunt.

"It was to be a practical joke, but it got a little out of hand. It was an embarrassment to the House. None of us were interested in embarrassing the membership of the House or David to that extent," Gandy said.

Patronella said later he was embarrassed by the incident and said such antics should take place in private. "I don't think it was

WHO IS THIS WHO CASTS OUT DEMONS?

Once as Jesus was teaching in the synagogue, a man possessed by a demon began shouting at Him, "Go away! We want nothing to do with You, Jesus from Nazareth. You have come to destroy us. I know who You are--the Holy Son of God."

lesus cut him short. "Be silent!" He told the demon. "Come out!" The demon threw the man to the floor as the crowd watched, and then left him without hurting him further.

Amazed, the people asked, "What is in this man's words that even demons obey Him?"

The story of what He had done spread like wildfire throughout the whole region. After leaving the synagogue that day. He went to Simon's home where He found Simon's mother-in-law very sick with a high fever. "Please heal her," everyone begged. Standing at her bedside He spoke to the fever, rebuking it, and immediately her temperature returned to normal and she got up and prepared a meal for them! As the sun went down that evening, all the villagers who had any sick people in their homes, no matter what their diseases were, brought them to Jesus; and the touch of His hands healed every

Some were possessed by demons; and the demons came out at His command, shouting, "You are the Son of God." But because they knew He was the Christ. He stopped them and told them to be silent. Early the next morning He went out into the desert. The crowds searched everywhere for Him and when they finally found Him they begged Him not to leave them, but to stay at Capernaum. But He replied, "I must preach the Good News of the Kingdom of God in other places too, for that is why I was sent." Luke 4:33-43

Lewis later addressed the House about the incident in a somber tone.

"What was meant to be a prank turned out to be more serious than certainly intended," he said. "It was in very poor taste."

"I hope you understand that the situation that happened was certainly not condoned" by the members who set up the practical joke "and certainly not condoned by anyone in this House because it was certainly in bad taste," Lewis said.

Patronella, who addressed the House after the incident to discuss a bill, said jokingly, "I've enjoyed my first and only term in the House.

Diets start in kitchen

DEAR DR. LAMB - I need your Health Letter on kitchen power to control weight. I have been very sick and have had to take large doses of cortisone. I am now off it but I gained a lot of weight and need to lose about 20 pounds.

I cannot do much exercise but am starting to walk more since I have been taking arthritis medicine. I had idiopathic thrombocytopenia with purpura and had to have the cortisone. I also had blood clots in my leg and lung.
DEAR READER - For

many people the major part of a diet to control weight begins in the kitchen. Very satisfactory food can be prepared that doesn't contain a lot of calories. Most people are conscious of the role of sugar in the diet as a calorie source but they are not aware that fat is usually the major source of calories in the diet. The point is best illustrated by comparing a teaspoon of sugar, which contains 15 calories, with a teaspoon of butter or margarine which contains 34 calories. In the United States many people get 40 to 50 percent of their calories from fat in their food.

Of course, in food preparation you should eliminate fat and concentrated sweets as much as possible if you want to control calories. However, don't go on a crash diet. Lose gradually. It's in your favor that part of your weight gain with cortisone was fluid retention, but cortisone makes you gain body fat as well.

You need to concentrate on raw vegetables, such as those found in salads, without adding any high calorie dressings. You can snack on raw vegetables such as carrot sticks and you can use lean meat. Some meats have a lot of fat that you can't see. If you boil or roast meat

the hidden fat will come out and can be separated. You don't really have to follow a drab or uninteresting diet to eliminate a lot of the fat that is hidden in your food. I'm sending you The Health Letter 9-18, Kitchen Power for Weight Control, as you requested. It will give you some good guidelines on developing a new food habit to solve your problem. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station,

New York, NY 10019. DEAR DR. LAMB Please settle an argument my husband and I have been having for several years. Since retirement he has become a heavy drinker and refuses to shower, saying it washes his vitamins away. Consequently he goes weeks without a shower. I say if he wants to smell like a goat he should go live with them. He also smokes a pack a day.

DEAR READER — If he were a vegetable and soaked he might wash away watersoluble vitamins. Since he is not, there is no way he could lose vitamins from bathing. Animals that get some vita mins from licking each others' fur might but I don't think he need worry about that.

er that he is depressed. A loss of interest in personal hygiene is often an indication of an emotional disturbance or depression. So is the increased use of alcohol. And depressions often occur in people when they retire or there is a significant change in their life. If he doesn't shape up and clean up, you may need to insist that he have an evaluation by a psychiatrist. If he does have a depression, some professional help could really improve the quality of his

Faith Lets You Discover

A New World Of Happiness

FAITH DOES NOT FLUCTUATE WITH THE SEASONS

ne waning days of summer are often accompanied by a feeling of lethargy and depression of the spirit that occurs when the pleasures of the season have begun to pall, but the oppressive heat persists. However, help is always at hand for faith in God is never restricted by the boundaries of climate and season; it is a continuing source of energy, vitality and inner joy that can be yours whenever you seek it. The best remedy for your sagging spirits can be found in the Church of your choice. It's as near as next Sunday.
