JUDGE JOHN T. BOYD
...Reforms needed in judge selection system

Boyd calls for selection reform

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Judge John T. Boyd told the Hereford Lions club on Wednesday that the public should pay more attention to the judiciary system.

Boyd serves on the Seventh court of Criminal Appeals ("My job is not to turn people loose," Boyd told the crowd), and has been a judge for over 20 years.

He has also served on the Texas Commission for Judicial Conduct, including a term as chairman. Boyd has seen several cases come before him while on that board that have sold him on the idea of some type of reform on the way judges are selected in Texas.

"We are one of the few states that has had to discipline supreme court judges, and we had to discipline two of them last year," Boyd said.

Boyd said that the judiciary has more to do with "the day-to-day operation of life" than the legislative or executive branches, from the state district court judges all the way to the supreme court.

"The law is what judges say it is," Boyd said. "I think our system is a good system. Current events and history shows our system is the best, but it depends on the proper people being in place to administer the law."

Boyd said the judges, unlike persons in the other two branches of government, have no constituency to serve. "Judges need only administer the law fairly and equally to all persons," Boyd said. "It offends me when people seek the bench to represent a viewpoint. You are there only to make sure the law is administered fairly. If there is not a fair way to dispose of disputes then nothing else can exist."

Boyd said that Texas is one of 15 states that selects its judges in a "no-holds-barred" partisan election. "This system has a lot of disadvantages, but it does give a judge a sense of humility to have to run for election," Boyd said. He said the system could be approved upon, but there is a need for a limit on campaign contributions.

Other systems Texas might consider are a "merit" plan where a committee selects three candidates for consideration by the governor, with the governor's choice confirmed by the senate, or a non-partisan election.

"My preference is for a non-partisan election with a cap on contributions," Boyd said. "We need to look at all of our alternatives, look at our judiciary system and make sure it is operating as it should."

Boyd also said he felt there was too much turnover, especially among district judges, because of the partisan elections where their party may not be "the party in favor" and because of relatively low pay.

"A lawyer has to leave the security of a practice, that could be making good money, for a district judge seat that may only be his or hers for four years," Boyd said. "I don't believe enough money is being spent on the entire judiciary system. The state spends more money on painting the center stripes on highways than it does on the entire judiciary."

Meat reps happy with Hills

WASHINGTON (AP)--Meat industry officials say they're glad to have new Trade Representative Carla Hills representing the United States in a dispute with Europe over hormone-treated beef as both sides prepare for weekend discussions.

Hills met Tuesday with officials of five meat organizations, including Bob Josserand of Hereford, president of the National Cattlemen's Association, but representatives of some of the groups said she did not indicate whether she supports efforts by Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower to sell hormone-free beef to the EC.

They said she would press, however, for full access to European Markets for their products when she meets with the European Community officials Friday and Saturday.

The European Economic Community has banned imports of beef treated with artificial hormones, contending the growth stimulants are a health threat.

The U.S. claims Europe is using the hormone issue as an excuse to restrain trade and retaliate against the loss of a $100 million export market by setting higher tariffs on about $100 million in Common Market goods.

The EC has warned it would slap tough tariffs on American walnuts and dried fruits if no progress is made by Monday to end the dispute.

Tom Cook, director of the industry affairs for the National Cattlemen's Association, was at the meeting and said the organizations represented told Hills they didn't approve of Hightower's "demagoguing" the issue.

They also said they disapproved of the way Hightower was dealing directly with the Europeans, rather than through U.S. officials, Cook said.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is reviewing Hightower's proposal that a certification procedure be developed to certify cattle for European export were never given artificial growth hormones. Hightower has been working with EC officials to develop a verification protocol.

Hightower's proposal "is not a done deal," said American Farm Bureau Federation spokesman Don Lipton.

John Datt, executive director of the Washington office of the Farm Bureau Federation, was at the meeting. The nation's largest farm organization, the Farm Bureau has been opposed to Hightower's plans, saying they undercut the U.S. position.

Lipton said Hills did not indicate definitely how she would move on the Hightower proposal.

"It's our position that it's a matter of the administration talking with the Europeans to decide who will turn down Hightower," Lipton said.

Richard Pasco, director of legislative affairs for the National Pork Producers Council, said Hills will "try to come up with creative solutions for a very complex problem."

Rich Parker, a spokesman for the American Meat Institute, said "the meat industry came away reassured that the administration and Carla Hills are working hard to make sure we have access to these (European) markets" and that they are pursuing a solution to the dispute.

The AMI, however, does not see Hightower's proposal as a solution, because it "doesn't eliminate trade barriers and really wouldn't give us full access to that market," Parker said.

"We came out of the meeting with positive feelings," Cook said. "She has a good grasp of the issues. We were very, very pleased."

EDC tables support proposal

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor
The Hereford Area Economic Development Council decided to table consideration of a contract with any technical support group after hearing a presentation earlier this week from another concern.

The HAEDC had been leaning toward using the National Development Council for expert help in financial packaging and other needs the HAEDC might have in the future.

On Tuesday, the board heard from representatives of Ray Perryman, a Baylor University-based economist who, with a 15-person staff, also does a variety of work for entities wanting economic or industrial development.

Ray Perryman is one of the leading economists in the state," said Bud Eades, executive director of the HAEDC. "He's a whiz, and he has been doing many of the things NDC can do."

Mike Carr, executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and a HAEDC board member, said that Perryman is "geared to the Texas economy" and can work on an "as needed" basis instead of on a long-term contract.

Carr said that besides helping put together financial packages, the Perryman group can "custom-make proposals for specific prospects."

"They can figure the cost of production for any item, and produce the demographic information for any prospect we have," Carr said. "They can also do a comparison study of all sites being considered by a prospect so we know where we are in rank-order."

"If that information is in your favor it can certainly help you."

Carr said the Perryman group has been instrumental in bringing several large industries to Texas in the recent past, including a new Fruit of the Loom mill in south Texas and a General Electric facility, among others."

The board will continue to weigh the benefits of NDC and Perryman before making a decision next month.

Carr also reported on a food processing show he attended in Anaheim, Calif., two weeks ago on behalf of the chamber, and said he has already received two "very serious" inquiries from processors who may be interested in locating in Deaf Smith County.

"And we may end up with several more inquiries," Carr said. "It's rare to have two respond that quickly."

Eades said he has also had inquiries from several companies.

"We have no shortage of prospects," Eades said. "We will have plenty of opportunities to make presentations."

Industrial development leaders

Commerce director visits here

Tony Rogers, associate director of National Business Development for the Texas Department of Commerce, met with local industrial development committee members Wednesday morning.

Rogers was recently appointed as TDC's economic development director for West Texas and the Panhandle. He was introduced here by Bud Eades, chairman of the local committee. A native of Rotan, Rogers has a background in agriculture and oil business in Texas.

Other guests at the reception, held from 9 to 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Reddy Room, included two Southwestern Public Service Co. officials-

-Cheryl Pink, economic development consultant, and Thompson Mayberry, new economic development representative.

The two SPS officials were accompanying Rogers on a series of meetings in the area to introduce the new TDC director to local community leaders.

Chamber warns of solicitations

Would you like to win a new 1989 Ford Taurus for simply purchasing an item by telephone order? Or maybe a Hawaiian vacation for two, or-at the very least--a G.E. appliances?

Be extremely careful about buying products from telephone solicitors, the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce urged local residents today. Currently there are companies calling local residents and offering major prizes or gifts as an incentive to purchase such items as a water purifier or vitamins.

Reminding residents that there "is no free lunch," the chamber cautioned people not to buy under pressure that "it must be done today," and do not give your credit card number if you are not aware of the true identity of the person or company with which you are dealing.

"Do check out the company," urged Mike Carr, C of C executive vice president, "and do call the chamber if you have had any problem with any telephone-order purchases recently," said Carr. "Beware of anyone who calls and offers you something for free," added Carr.

Local Roundup

Iran offers $1 million prize for author's life

LONDON (AP) — Death squads from Islamic countries were reported en route to Britain today after Iran offered a million-dollar bounty for the murder of Salman Rushdie, author of the allegedly blasphemous "The Satanic Verses."

Rushdie on Wednesday canceled a planned U.S. tour to promote the novel that was to have begun Friday. British news media said he was hiding with his second wife, American novelist Marianne Wiggins, under police guard.

An Iranian cleric had followed up a call by Ayatollah Khomeini for Rushdie's death by offering the blood money, and hundreds of protesters attacked the British Embassy in Tehran with rocks to protest the novel.

The Times of London today quoted a former Pakistan government minister as saying death squads from Pakistan and other Moslem states were on their way to Britain to kill Rushdie.

The Guardian newspaper said police were believed to have stepped up surveillance of Khomeini supporters in Britain in a bid to foil any attempt to kill Rushdie, a Cambridge-educated British citizen.

Ian Gelderd, a researcher at the Institute for the Study of Terrorism, said about 1,000 radical Khomeini supporters are believed to be in Britain, either as students or on short-term visas.

Gelderd said the 41-year-old

Rushdie might need protection for the rest of his life. "No way will the Ayatollah rescind the sentence. There will always be those wishing to carry out hit orders," he said.

In a report from Pakistan, The Times quoted Moulana Kausar Niazi, a former minister of information and religious affairs, as saying Rushdie would be killed within a few months.

The Times said Moulana, an ex-senior member of Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto's party, was one of the leaders in Pakistan of the movement that got the novel banned there. It said Ms. Bhutto has accused him of using opposition to the novel to try to destabilize her recently elected government.

The paper said Moulana led the demonstration against the book in Islamabad on Sunday during which six people were killed after police opened fire. Another person also was killed Monday in a protest against the book in northern India.

"The Satanic Verses" has sold more than 100,000 copies since it was published in Britain in September to critical acclaim. At least five countries have formally banned the novel: India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Egypt and South Africa.

The Times report quoted Moulana as saying Khomeini expressed the sentiments of all Moslems by urging them Tuesday to kill the Indian-born Rushdie and his London publishers.

Another London paper, The Daily Telegraph, today quoted Hesham El Hessawy, chairman of the Islamic Society for the Promotion of Religious Tolerance, as saying an American Moslem was in London last week trying to find Rushdie and saying he planned to kill him.

The paper described Hessawy as a respected figure in Britain's 1.5-million Moslem community and quoted him as saying: "He (the American Moslem) wanted Mr. Rushdie's telephone number and address. He said he was going to kill him."

The paper did not name the American Moslem and gave no other details.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported Wednesday that a senior Moslem clergyman in Iran, Hojatoleslam Hassan Saneie, had offered cash for Rushdie's death.

It quoted him as saying: "If the executioner is a foreigner, he will receive a million dollars." But he said that if the killer were an Iranian, the reward would be 200 million rials, or $2.6 million dollars, IRNA reported.

Tehran Radio denounced the book as "a shameful onslaught on the sacred character of Islam's prophet" on Wednesday and a crowd of 2,000 protesters shattered windows at the British Embassy in Tehran.

A major character in the novel is named Mahound, a medieval corruption of the name of the prophet Mohammed. Moslems have complained the book represents the prophet's wives as prostitutes and suggests that he wrote the Koran, rather than receiving it from God.

North's Iran-Contra trial to be delayed no longer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government says adequate national security safeguards are in place for Oliver North's Iran-Contra trial, and Attorney General Dick Thornburgh is dropping his efforts to delay the case.

Thornburgh on Wednesday accepted an order from U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell barring the attorney general from filing affidavits continuously during the trial objecting to individual pieces of classified material that North wants to introduce in his defense.

The office of independent counsel Lawrence Walsh made it easier for Thornburgh to accept Gesell's order. Walsh devised a plan saying that he will, if necessary, seek an affidavit from the attorney general to prevent the disclosure during the trial of classified information which could harm national security. Walsh's statement added that he "is prepared to discharge his responsibility" under Gesell's order.

Thornburgh said Walsh's promise "provides the government with the substance of what we have been seeking for the past week."

As he left work, Thornburgh told reporters he was satisfied because "the independent counsel has agreed to be my representative" on all secrecy matters in the trial.

Late Wednesday, Acting Solicitor General William C. Bryson filed papers asking the Supreme Court to dissolve a stay that Supreme Court Chief Justice William Rehnquist issued Sunday at the Justice Department's request.

"In light of the district court's order and the report of the independent counsel, the attorney general believes that the concerns that gave rise to the relief from this court have been satisfied," the department said in its brief.

North is accused of shredding evidence and lying to Congress to cover up the Reagan administration's attempts to help the Nicaraguan Contra rebels during a period in which Congress had banned direct U.S. aid.

In a preview of their defense, North's lawyers have said President Reagan and other top officials directed that the efforts be kept secret.

The Justice Department on Feb. 8 sought a court order that would have barred North from disclosing any classified material without a court ruling that it is admissible and only when there was no objection by the government.

Gesell rejected the request and last Thursday, the same day a jury was chosen in the case, the Justice Department began seeking to delay the trial.

Walsh's statement said the independent counsel will notify Thornburgh if evidence in any of eight categories is to be introduced.

Those categories include information identifying undercover CIA officers, or revealing locations of CIA stations and U.S. covert activities other than paramilitary support for the Contras. Also included are details about specific CIA operations with foreign intelligence services and government officials as well as information identifying by name or description foreigners who cooperate with the CIA.

Walsh said that if the attorney general objects to release of any of the information, he will "ask the court to take appropriate action."

North faces 12 criminal charges. He is accused of concealing from Congress in 1985 and 1986 his efforts on behalf of the Nicaraguan Contras and of covering up from the attorney general the National Security Council's role in diverting money from the Iran arms sales to the Contras.

North also is accused of illegally accepting a $13,000 security system at his home from co-defendant Richard Secord, converting to his own use at least $4,300 in traveler's checks from Contra leader Adolfo Calero and conspiring to defraud the Treasury of tax revenue in connection with private contributions for the Contras.

Hospitals start cost-cutting

BOSTON (AP) — Americans are increasingly going to nursing homes to die as hospitals discharge terminally ill patients to keep them from running up big bills, thus helping reduce the nation's Medicare costs, according to two reports today.

One study, based on nationwide death statistics, suggests that the trend results largely from new Medicare rules that pay hospitals flat fees for taking care of the elderly. This approach gives them a financial incentive to keep patients' hospital stays as short as possible.

"What has to be said is that hospitals are in a bind because they are being pressured by cost cutting," said Dr. Mark A. Sager, who directed the study. "Nursing homes are in a bind because nobody wants to pay for nursing home care. Patients are in a bind because they are in a system that does not want to provide continuity of care and health care financing is fragmented."

His research showed that the number of elderly Americans dying in nursing homes rose sharply during the 1980s, while fewer died in hospitals.

Sager, a physician at Dean Medical Center in Madison, Wis., said that sending dying people to nursing homes rather than keeping them in hospitals "may be very appropriate and less costly."

"The issue is whether nursing homes can adequately take care of a sicker population today than they were seeing a few years ago," he said.

Medicare's new system began in October 1983, paying hospitals flat fees in advance. Hospitals get the same amount for each person with a specific disease, regardless of whether a patient stays in the hospital for a day or a month.

Another report provides evidence that the strategy is saving money.

That study, directed by Dr. Louise B. Russell of Rutgers University, estimated the savings to Medicare from the new payment system and compared Medicare's projections of rising costs with what actually happened.

In 1980, the Hospital Insurance Trust Fund, the federal government's branch that pays Medicare hospital bills, predicted that it would be spending about $55 billion by 1990. Instead, it appears the actual expense by then will be $43 billion in 1980 dollars.

The savings will amount to $12 billion in 1980 dollars or $18 billion in 1990 dollars.

Gramm likes Bush's S&L plan

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Phil Gramm says those who broke the law in the savings and loan scandal should be tracked down and punished.

And that's one of the good things about President Bush's plan for cleaning up the mess, the Texas Republican said.

"It commits resources to go after the wrongdoers and bring them to justice and to try to recover some of the money that was stolen. If the taxpayer is going to have to pick up the tab, I want the people that have done wrong brought to justice."

"In some cases, people are going to say you can't get blood out of a turnip, that some of the money is lost. My view is you can get a lot of satisfaction out of a turnip," Gramm said Wednesday.

The senator said he expects some criticism of the $126 billion Bush proposal and that Congress likely will amend it. However, he also said he expects lawmakers ultimately to enact a plan that basically follows the Bush blueprint.

"When you're having to pay off a $50 billion debt that somebody ran up — especially when part of the debt was run up by people who were engaged in illegal activities and who abused the public trust — a plan to deal with that problem is never going to be universally loved," Gramm said.

"I think there is a fighting chance we will get the taxpayers' money back, and that's an aspect of the plan I like very much."

A second reason he supports the proposal is its plan to give taxpayers first claim on the value of assets obtained when savings and loans are closed, Gramm said.

"As Austin recovers, as Texas and the Southwest recovers and these buildings (which some S&Ls invested in) regain their economic value — then that value will go first to pay the taxpayer back," Gramm said.

Board approves 7.2% property insurance hike

AUSTIN (AP) — Consumer representatives were disappointed, but insurance representatives were satisfied after the State Board of Insurance approved a 7.2 percent average rate increase in property insurance premiums.

Under the new rates adopted Wednesday, property owners statewide will pay about $104 million more in property insurance premiums. The new rates take effect June 1.

The bulk of the property rate increase — $95 million — will be shouldered by homeowners, who will see an average 8.2 percent increase.

In approving the increase, the three-member insurance board adopted its staff's recommendation.

The insurance industry had requested a 9.1 percent increase, and the Office of Consumer Protection, which represents consumer interests before the board, recommended a 0.5 percent decrease.

"The testimony indicates that an increase is warranted," said Board Chairman Edwin J. Smith Jr. "The staff showed that there were losses that justified such an increase."

But Kay Doughty, public counsel for the consumer protection office, said she was disappointed the board's decision was closer to the insurance industry's request.

"I felt like we had presented an adequate, convincing case. Obviously they felt otherwise, and we'll try to be more convincing in the future," Ms. Doughty said.

"I think homeowners are going to be paying about 7 and a half percent higher than they ought to for the next year," she said.

Insurance industry representatives were satisfied with the new rates.

"We are pleased that the state board recognized the need for an increase at this time," said Rick Gentry, spokesman for the Texas Insurance Advisory Association.

The increase will bring property insurance rates back to the same level of rates as in 1983, said board member David Thornberry.

Property insurance includes a number of coverage classes, with the largest being homeowners insurance. Different levels of insurance rates are determined by location, and with Texas having four rating territories.

Following is a comparison of the current rates and new rates for an annual insurance policy with a 1 percent deductible on a home valued at $75,000:

— In Corpus Christi, part of the seacoast rating tier, the cost on a brick veneer home will jump from $502 to $542, an increase of 8 percent. For a frame home, the cost will increase from 8.4 percent, $655 to $710.

— In Houston, part of the second seacoast rating tier, the cost for a brick veneer home will jump from $444 to $480, or 8.1 percent. For a frame home, the cost will increase from $568 to $615, or 8.3 percent.

— In Lubbock, part of the north, northwest rating tier, the cost for a brick veneer home will increase 6.5 percent, from $557 to $593. For a frame home, the cost will increase from $768 to $819, or 6.6 percent.

— In Dallas, part of the central, inland rating territory, the cost for a brick veneer home will increase from $364 to $397, or 9.1 percent.

Chili supper scheduled

Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 met Tuesday evening with 13 members present.

Noble Grand Marie Harris presided at the business session. Discussion was held concerning the lodge's annual chili supper planned Feb. 25. Tickets are priced at $3 for adults and $1.50 for children under 10 years of age. Those under six will be admitted free of charge. Tickets may be purchased in advance or at the door.

Twenty-nine visits to the sick and 23 cheer cards were reported.

Verna Sowell served as hostess to Harris, Rosalie Northcutt, Merle Boozer, Susie Cursinger, Erma Loving, Jim Loving, Sadie Shaw, Gene Bishop, Faye Brownlow, Ursalee Jacobsen, Ben Conklin and Tony Irbeck.

Root canal therapy may save teeth

You slip, fall and fracture a tooth, damaging it internally. You rush to your dentist, expecting the tooth to be extracted. But after a few more visits your tooth is as good as new. You've undergone root canal therapy.

Today, more and more internally injured and deeply decayed teeth are being preserved with root canal (endodontic) therapy. Just 25 years ago, extraction would have been the only solution to these problems.

Root canal therapy replaces the damaged tissue inside a tooth (the pulp) with a special filling material. It's a more complex procedure than that involved in filling a cavity in the outer layers of a tooth. But it's worth the extra effort. The alternative is extraction and replacement of the lost tooth with a bridge, a more costly procedure in the long run.

When the pulp of a tooth is infected or damaged, the tooth itself is at risk. The most common cause of pulp disease is a tooth fracture. Bacteria reach the pulp, causing an infection or abscess that spreads to surrounding tissues.

A blow to a tooth can also damage the nerves and blood vessels of the pulp so severely that the tooth dies. If the damaged pulp is not removed, the tooth and its surrounding tissues can become infected. If not treated, the tooth will have to be extracted.

Root canal treatment may take from one to three appointments. The dentist makes an opening through the crown of the tooth, carefully removes the pulp, and cleans the root canal. (Front teeth have a single root; back teeth have several roots.) If infection is present, medication may be placed in the chamber to eliminate bacteria. A temporary filling keeps the medication in place.

At the second or third appointment the dentist fills and seals the root canal with material that prevents bacteria from re-entering.

Finally, the crown of the tooth is restored. The type of restorative material depends on where the tooth is located in the mouth, tooth color, and the amount of natural tooth remaining.

Why shouldn't a tooth just be pulled? If a tooth is removed and not replaced, the surrounding teeth move into the empty space. This can result in the loss of more teeth. Tooth loss also impairs biting and chewing.

Today, root canal therapy is 95 percent successful. And according to the South Plains District Dental Society an endodontically restored tooth can last a lifetime. A healthy, natural tooth is always better than an artificial replacement.

Spring training opens

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Spring training begins today, with every team hoping to wind up where the Dodgers did last season.

"I know the Los Angeles Dodgers had no business winning the 1988 world championship, but they knew how to spell it T-E-A-M," New York Yankees manager Dallas Green said Wednesday in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. "And they took it to other guys who maybe didn't know how to spell it as well."

The Yankees were one of 13 clubs that opened camp today. Green is one of six new managers this year.

"I think I can create a certain atmosphere and bring a winning situation," he said. "I recognize there is some volatility here, but I don't think there are too many winning situations where you don't have that."

In Vero Beach, Fla., pitchers and catchers reported for the Dodgers. Among the pitchers being carefully watched is Fernando Valenzuela, who went on the disabled list in July with a shoulder injury.

"All the signs are very positive. He has been very encouraged and the trainers have been very encouraged with the way he's thrown during the off-season," general manager Fred Claire said. "Fernando's recovery to this point I would term as excellent."

In Tucson, Ariz., the Cleveland Indians opened camp. Joe Carter, the team's big hitter, is scheduled to have his salary arbitration hearing in New York on Friday, the day the Indians hold their first workout for pitchers and catchers.

Carter walked out of spring training in 1987 after the Indians renewed his contract for $250,000. This year, Carter is seeking $1.63 million and the team has offered $1.15 million.

"I would still be able to pay a few bills, wouldn't I?" Carter said. In the Dominican Republic, a rape charge against San Francisco shortstop Jose Uribe was dismissed.

The dismissal of the case by Jose Francisco Rodriguez, district attorney at the province of San Cristobal, clears the infielder of wrongdoing.

"There is no reason to indict or bring him to prison because there is no guilt," said Rodriguez.

Uribe will be able to leave the Dominican Republic, where he was born, after a judge writes an official report dismissing the charge. This is a routine step required to drop the case in the Dominican Republic, which has a legal system based on the Napoleonic Code.

Also, relief pitcher Don Aase signed a minor-league contract Wednesday with the New York Mets. Aase was injured for most of 1988 and did not get a decision or save in 35 games with Baltimore.

Bill Scherrer, another reliever for Baltimore last season, signed a minor-league contract with Pittsburgh. He was 0-1 with a 13.50 earned run average in four games with the Orioles and also pitched four times for Philadelphia.

Baseball: From 'Bull Durham' to bull market

HOUSTON (AP) — A baseball summer that began with "Bull Durham" is ending in the winter of the bull market.

Roger Clemens and the Boston Red Sox agreed Wednesday to a three-year contract worth $7.5 million, the highest average annual baseball salary ever.

"It's a long contract and a big one, so it took some time," Boston general manager Lou Gorman said. "We're buying out a year of free agency and two years of arbitration."

Clemens could have become a free agent after the 1990 season if he had not reached agreement on a multiyear contract.

"If players give up some rights, you have to pay for it," Gorman said. "Based on what Gooden got and Her-shiser is looking for, we felt this was in the ballpark."

Dwight Gooden's deal with the New York Mets is worth $6.7 million over three years. Hershiser is asking for $8.3 million over three years from the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Clemens' agents, Alan Hendricks and Randy Hendricks, wanted to sign a one-year contract but Gorman insisted on a three-year deal.

"We were adamant in going for a three-year contract," Gorman said. "The last three days we've been on the phone five, six seven hours at a time. We just kept working on it."

Clemens was just glad to get it over with.

"I'm happy to get it settled at this point," the two-time Cy Young Award winner said. "I didn't feel like going to arbitration because I've heard a lot of negative things coming out."

Clemens walked out of spring training in 1987 because of a contract dispute and finally agreed on a two-year deal after the intervention of Commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

Clemens was 18-12 with a 2.93 earned-run average last season and a league-leading 291 strikeouts in 264 innings. He is 78-34 in his career and won the Cy Young Award after going 24-4 in 1986 and 20-9 in 1987.

His pitching brought headlines, but in Boston this winter his words brought more. He complained that his family had been insulted by fans at Fenway Park last season and also about the club's seating policy for players' families. The fan reaction was angry.

"There won't be a lot of talking by me during spring training and it'll be real limited during the season because of some of the things that have gone on in the past," Clemens said.

Gorman said he planned to sit down with Clemens during spring training and go over the pitcher's complaints, point by point.

Meanwhile, Gorman must contend with Mike Greenwell, who wants a three-year deal from the Red Sox.

"If Roger's worth $7.5 million to the Red Sox, then I think I'm worth $3.8, $3.9, $4 million," Greenwell said.

Clemens' average annual salary of $2.5 million is the most ever in baseball, even though his 1989 salary will be only the sixth highest.

Including a prorated share of his signing bonus, Clemens will earn $2.6 million in each of the 1990 and 1991 seasons, the highest single-season salaries ever in baseball.

Don Mattingly's $2.5 million in 1990 with the New York Yankees was the previous high in straight salary.

Eddie Murray of the Los Angeles Dodgers will get $2.8 million in 1991, but $500,000 is deferred without interest, lowering its present-day value substantially.

Though Clemens' salary is a record, Randy Hendricks doesn't think it's longevity will rival Lou Gehrig's playing streak or Joe Dimaggio's hitting streak.

"While it may represent the highest salary per year ever earned in baseball, that's not going to last too long in my opinion," Hendricks said. "I believe that salaries are going to continue going up."

In addition to his salary, Clemens has the opportunity to earn $350,000 per year in bonuses. He would get $100,000 for winning the Cy Young Award and $50,000 for finishing second. He would get $100,000 for winning the American League Most Valuable Player and $50,000 for finishing second or third.

He would get $50,000 if he is MVP of the AL playoffs and $100,000 if he is MVP of the World Series.

Hendricks said Clemens also would donate $100,000 to the Boys and Girls Clubs of Boston to purchase tickets for Red Sox games.

Switzer 'embarrassed' about troubles

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Who better than Coach Barry Switzer to restore dignity to Oklahoma's football program, Switzer said of a team bogged down with troubles that started with an NCAA probation and ended — for now — with the arrest of quarterback Charles Thompson.

While Switzer admits he is "more embarrassed than anyone" about the three-year probation, which preceded felony charges against five players for a shooting, an alleged gang rape and Thompson's arrest Monday night on a complaint of selling cocaine to undercover FBI agents, state newspapers are calling for him to resign.

But Switzer, who has the winningest percentage of active coaches, remains undaunted.

He told The Associated Press Wednesday night that he has no intention of stepping down and was "committed to restoring the image" of a good football program. "If we work at it 24 hours a day we'll do it," he said.

The latest newspaper to join the ranks against Switzer is The Daily Oklahoman, which also called for his resignation in 1982 when problems surfaced concerning the football program and Switzer's financial dealings.

"Other newspapers have recently called for Switzer's ouster. We didn't bother this time," the editorial said in today's editions. "We called for that more than six years ago before the football program's troubles turned to probation, shooting, alleged rape and suspected drug dealing."

On Wednesday, the Tulsa World and the university's student newspaper, The Oklahoma Daily, also suggested that Switzer resign. The Tulsa Tribune called for him to step down after NCAA sanctions were announced in December.

Meanwhile, Thompson was released in the custody of his mother Wednesday while he awaits trial on a charge of selling 17 grams of cocaine on Jan. 26. Thompson's arrest came one week after he told a group of elementary students in Norman, Okla., to avoid drugs.

"Regardless of what anyone tells you about drugs, regardless of what anyone has told you, it's the quickest way to end your life ... the quickest way to be in jail," Thompson told the student assembly.

No trial date has been set for Thompson. Under the conditions of his release, Thompson must confine his travel to the court's Western District of Oklahoma and the Northern District of Texas, which would cover his hometown of Lawton, Okla., and the Dallas home of his mother, Willie Jean Yarborough.

Oklahoma's football program, which has produced six national champions, has traditionally been a source of pride for the university and the state.

Norman Police Chief David Boyett said that Thompson's arrest may have hampered an ongoing drug investigation.

Boyett said police did not have firm evidence that information was leaked to Switzer, who suspended Thompson hours before he was arrested, but said "there's a lot of speculation."

"We were still conducting the investigation at the time," Boyett said. "We had to go ahead and make the arrest."

FBI spokesman Dan Vogel said he could not comment on reports that obstruction of justice charges could be filed against whoever leaked the information.

Boyett said authorities were planning to attempt another drug deal when agents arrested Thompson.

The Dallas Times Herald reported today that FBI agents directing the investigation said they were outraged the investigation was compromised by a leak and that Switzer told Thompson he was involved. That, they said, forced Thompson's arrest and blew the broad investigation into cocaine dealing in Norman.

Authorities said they do not believe Switzer intended to interfere with the investigation. But they have been unable to determine how Switzer and possibly others on the university campus learned of the investigation.

Thompson's arrest "is going to prevent it from going any further," Norman police Lt. Leonard Judy said. He said "since the word is out," authorities now are hurriedly drawing up warrants for additional arrests in connection with the investigation, some possibly as early as today. He said none of the arrests were expected to involve other athletes.

Cavs clobber Knicks; Cheeks hits 10,000 mark

By The Associated Press
Once again, the Cleveland Cavaliers blocked the New York Knicks' path to the top of the Eastern Conference.

The Cavaliers blocked 17 shots, including seven by Larry Nance, and trounced New York 129-107 Wednesday night for their team-record 16th straight victory at home.

On the Knicks' other trip to Cleveland this season, the Cavaliers blocked 21 shots — 11 by Nance — in another rout.

"I didn't sense it was the difference in the game, but I sensed they were aware of me," said the 6-foot-10 Nance, who also scored 28 points. "If they see you and that makes them not take the shot, it's almost as good as a block."

In other games, Golden State routed San Antonio 133-86, Atlanta beat New Jersey 119-112, Philadelphia downed Indiana 113-98, Denver defeated Washington 117-106 and Phoenix foiled Seattle 135-112.

Cleveland shot 60.5 percent from the field, getting many fast-break baskets after blocking New York tries. Ron Harper scored 29 points and had nine rebounds and nine assists and Mark Price had a career-high 18 assists.

The Knicks shot just 41 percent. Johnny Newman scored 20 points and Patrick Ewing had 18, but Mark Jackson was just 2-for-12 from the field.

Nance scored 14 of his points in the second period to help Cleveland turn a three-point deficit into a 69-57 halftime lead.

Warriors 133, Spurs 96
San Antonio committed a franchise record-tying 40 turnovers and Golden State took advantage in sending the Spurs to their fifth straight loss.

The NBA record for turnovers in a game is 43, set by the Los Angeles Lakers against Seattle on Feb. 15, 1974.

The Warriors led 60-57 at halftime but turned 17 San Antonio turnovers into 19 points, making it 100-82 after three periods.

Terry Teague scored 23 points for Golden State. Michael Anderson scored 21 for San Antonio.

Hawks 119, Nets 112
Dominique Wilkins scored 36 points and Atlanta beat New Jersey for the 16th straight time.

The Hawks, who led by 18 points in the third quarter, broke a 91-all tie at the start of the fourth period with six straight points. Atlanta stayed ahead as the Nets made only one field goal in the final 5:05.

Reggie Theus had 23 points for the visiting Hawks. Buck Williams scored 25 points for New Jersey.

76ers 113, Pacers 98
Maurice Cheeks became the 146th player to reach the 10,000-point plateau, helping Philadelphia give Indiana its ninth straight loss.

Cheeks scored 10 points and increased his 11-year total to 10,002.

Scott Brooks scored all 13 of his points in the fourth quarter and kept the 76ers ahead. Hershey Hawkins added 23 points and Charles Barkley had 21.

Reggie Miller got 28 points for the visiting Pacers.

Suns 135, SuperSonics 112
Tom Chambers scored 35 points and Phoenix improved to 18-0 at home this season against Western Conference teams. The Suns, 22-4 overall at home, got 25 points each from Kevin Johnson and Eddie Johnson.

Phoenix broke a tie at 21 with six straight points in the first quarter, and led the rest of the way.

Dale Ellis scored 21 points for the SuperSonics.

Nuggets 117, Bullets 106
Alex English scored six of his 32 points during a second-half surge that sent Denver over Washington.

Ahead 66-46 at halftime, the Nuggets scored the first 12 points of the third quarter. Washington never got within six after that.

Fat Lever scored 24 points for Denver, but Michael Adams was shut out from 3-point range for just the second time this season.

Jeff Malone scored 21 points for the visiting Bullets.

No. 1 Oklahoma turns back Kansas threat

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Love may be lovelier the second time around, but being No. 1, says Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs, is "just nice."

And maybe that's the attitude the Sooners need to avoid being the fifth straight No. 1 team to lose and fall back.

Oklahoma was atop the polls two weeks ago for the first time in their history, but suffered a loss at Oklahoma State the next week.

"I promise you there was not one time tonight that I thought about being No. 1," Tubbs said Wednesday night after his Sooners beat the jinx and hiked their record to 22-3 with a 94-89 overtime victory over Kansas.

"And I doubt there was one time that Kansas thought about who was

No. 1 either," Tubbs added. "I don't think it makes much difference, one through five, or whatever. We don't mind being No. 1, and whether we deserve it or not, I don't know."

In other games Wednesday night involving ranked teams, it was No. 12 Seton Hall 72, Connecticut 69; No. 19 N. Carolina State 90, Clemson 75; and No. 20 Louisiana State 99, Kentucky 80.

Kevin Pritchard's layin at the buzzer knotted the rematch of last year's NCAA finalists at 80. Then Stacey King, the leading scorer in the Big Eight, took charge in overtime, scoring the first four points for the Sooners. Tyrone Jones, who hit three straight 3-pointers during one torrid stretch in the second half, made a three-point play to give Oklahoma an 87-82 lead, but Sean Alvarado's three-point play made it 89-87 with 2:17 left.

Lincoln Minor's free throw brought the Jayhawks to within a point, but a few seconds later King grabbed a rebound and converted it into a short jumper for a 92-89 lead.

Mike Bell's free throws accounted for Oklahoma's final points, and the Jayhawks, 16-9, 3-7, suffered their sixth straight loss, their longest losing skid since 1973.

For what seems like a month, Kansas has been trying to become the third team in NCAA history to win 1,400 games.

"We got off to a bad start in the overtime," said first-year coach Roy Williams.

For a stretch in the second half, it seemed no one could miss a 3-pointer.

After King's two free throws gave the Sooners a 63-61 lead with 10:23 left, Scooter Barry hit a 3-pointer for Kansas and Tyrone Jones answered with a 3-pointer for Oklahoma.

After Pritchard and Jones traded 3-pointers, Pritchard hit another bomb and Jones drilled his third.

Following a Kansas turnover, Mookie Blaylock knocked in Oklahoma's fourth straight 3-pointer.

King finished with 19 points and 10 rebounds, while Mike Bell led the Sooners with 22 points.

Mark Randall had 29 points for the Jayhawks and Milt Newton fouled out in overtime with 23. Randall also fouled out during the extra period.

No. 12 Seton Hall 72, Connecticut 69
Ramon Ramos had 27 points and Andrew Gaze 22 to lead Seton Hall past Connecticut in a Big East game. Gaze's total included six 3-pointers and a driving one-hander that iced the game.

Connecticut, which trailed by 10 points at the half, used an 8-0 run midway through the second half to come within a point. But the Huskies were never able to take the lead.

Gaze made his final 3-pointer with 5:15 left to increase Seton Hall's lead to five points. Ramos made nine of 10 shots from the field and all nine of his foul shots.

No. 19 N. Carolina State 90, Clemson 75
Avie Lester scored 17 points and Chris Corchiani 16 to spark North Carolina State over Clemson.

The Wolfpack raised its record to 16-5 overall and 7-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference on the strength of a nine-point run late in the first half and a bigger burst to start the second. Clemson dropped to 4-5 in the ACC and 15-7 overall.

No. 20 LSU 99, Kentucky 80
Ricky Blanton scored 18 points in the final 11:40 of the game as Louisiana State beat Kentucky.

It was the fourth straight defeat for Kentucky, 11-14 overall and 6-7 in the Southeastern Conference. It was the third straight victory for LSU, 16-6 and 10-3, and its ninth in the past 10 games.

Freshman Chris Jackson had 34 points for LSU.

Wallace tries to overcome Daytona troubles

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The eyes of Rusty Wallace narrowed to a harsh stare as he pondered a response to the suggestion that he wasn't having a very good week of preparation for Sunday's Daytona 500.

"I don't want you to write that," Wallace said. "That's not true."

Wallace, who along with Dale Earnhardt, went down to the wire before losing last year's Winston Cup title to Bill Elliott, is a driver of whom much is expected — perhaps too much.

"When you win four of the last five races and don't come down here and run away . . . everybody wants to know what's wrong," Wallace said.

Having made his point, Wallace began a technical explanation of mandated modifications to the rear deck and panel of the Pontiac Grand Prix, the model he and about 10 others will drive in a 42-car field in Sunday's $1.7 million race.

Wallace contends that the Grand Prix, from which sheet metal was removed and reshaped, is now shorter and slower than it should be.

"We were testing in 194 (mph), 193½," said Wallace, whose qualifying speed of 190.694 mph had him relegated to an 11th-place start today in the second of two 125-mile races that set most positions for the Daytona 500, the opening salvo in the 29-event Winston Cup season.

Ken Schrader already has the pole for the 500, flanked by Hendrick Motorsports teammate Darrell Waltrip, both in Chevrolets. Schrader, who qualified last Saturday at 196.997, and Waltrip, whose speed was 195.916, will have pole positions today in the 50-lap twins at the dangerous 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway.

The changes in the Grand Prix, which Wallace said also included a slight raising of the rear deck, were ordered by NASCAR, the sanctioning body of the world's most lucrative stock car circuit. NASCAR's credo — which translates to "there's nothing stock about a stock car" — has always been to attempt to equalize the competition.

This time, the Grand Prix, perhaps in part because of Wallace's late-season domination, has been altered.

"That took about three miles an hour off the car," the 32-year-old driver from St. Louis said. "I feel a little cheated."

Wallace says his car runs beautifully in the draft, but not so well on the lead. He insists, however, that he is satisfied with its overall performance, all things considered.

"We started 12th in the Busch Clash (a race last Sunday for 1988 pole winners — won by Schrader) and finished sixth," he said. "That's not easy to do in a 20-lap (50-mile) race."

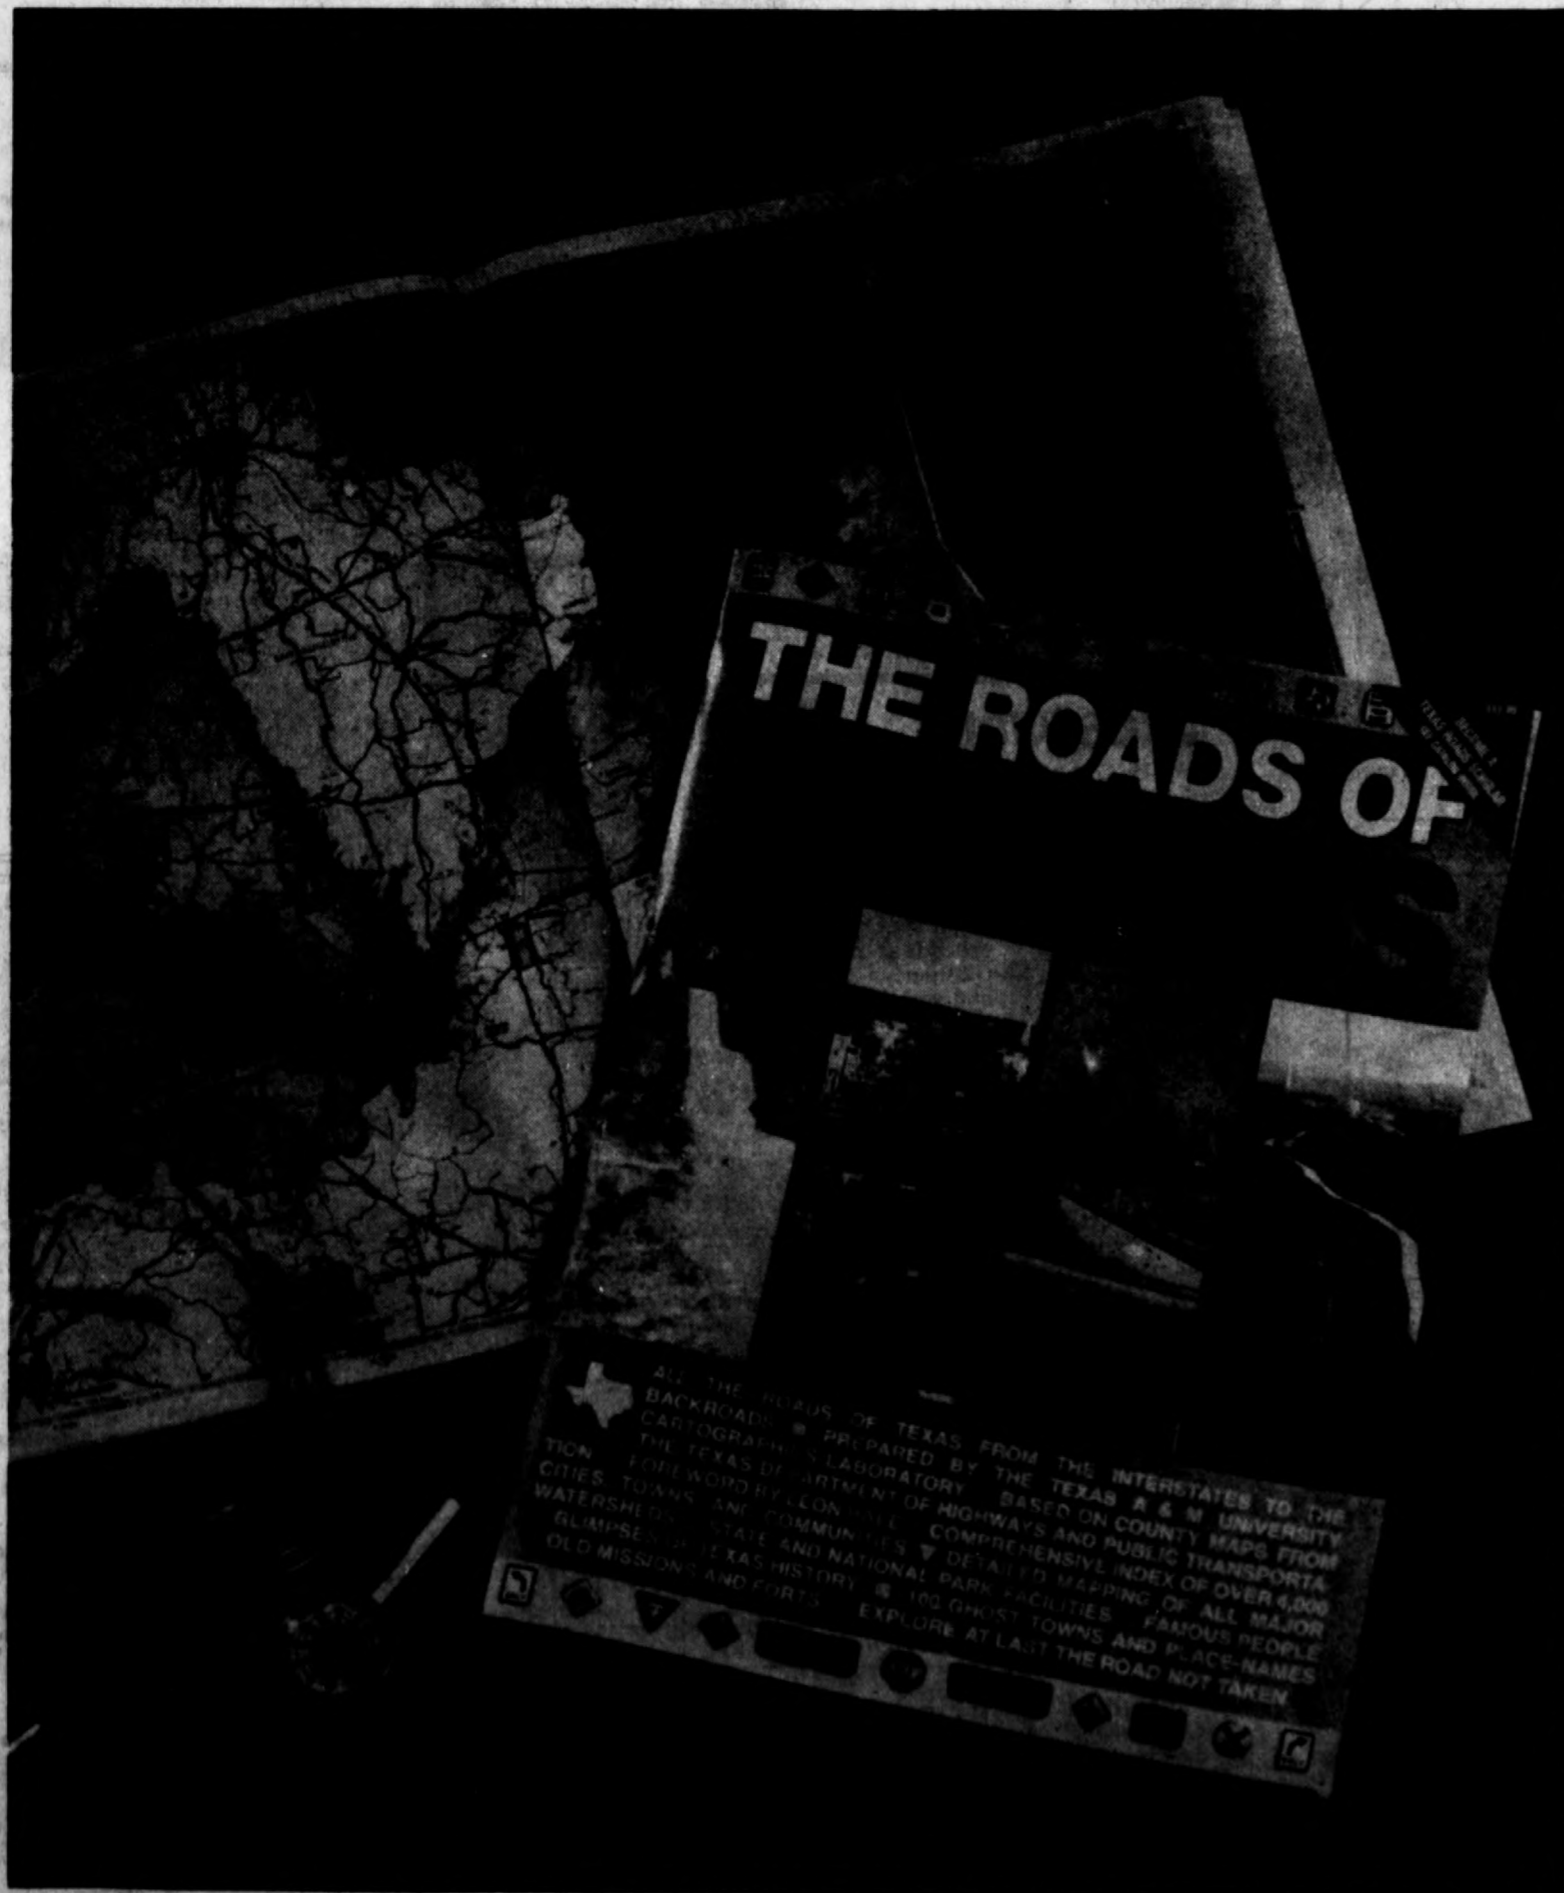

Indeed, it is not, perhaps contributing to Wallace's optimism about today's race.

Wallace, who now lives in Charlotte, N.C., says he needed a high finish in his qualifier to earn a good spot on the starting grid Sunday. But it was unlikely that the swashbuckler of a season ago would be overly aggressive.

"I have to run hard, but I can't take foolish chances," he said. "I can't afford to tear up the equipment and wind up starting Sunday near the back of the pack."

"If that were to happen, I'd have to come through all that traffic. I don't want to put myself in a position I'm not supposed to be in."

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Linda Evans says she's more secure and doubts she can ever make a man the center of her life again, thanks in part to a 35,000-year-old spiritual guide named Ramtha.

"As I've become more secure and wiser, I've attracted more secure and wiser men," the 46-year-old "Dynasty" star says in an interview in the March issue of McCall's magazine. "But making a man my whole life again? God knows I once would have been thrilled to do that. ... My relationships have become healthier as I have less and less need."

Evans said she has learned to value her freedom with help from Ramtha, who she says speaks through her close female friend and Tacoma, Wash., neighbor, J.Z. Knight. Mrs. Knight is the psychic and channeler mentioned in Shirley MacLaine's autobiography, "Dancing in the Light."

Evans says she ignores those who criticize her relationship with Mrs. Knight and Ramtha, whom she says "does not say follow me. He says, know yourself and love yourself."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Guitarist Keith Richards and singer Mick Jagger, who got little satisfaction pursuing solo careers, are planning to reunite the Rolling Stones to record their first album in three years and may go on the road again.

They apparently smoothed over their differences during a recent stay in the Caribbean, said Paul Wasserman, a spokesman for Richards.

"Nothing is official yet, but it looks like it's going to happen," said Wasserman. "Keith was down there. Mick was down there. And they talked about writing some songs. They might have even written some already."

The album would be the second in the group's $28 million, four-record deal with CBS, following the 1986 album "Dirty Work." The tour would be their first since the record-setting 1981 tour that brought in $54 million in ticket sales.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two weeks after their separation, "Moonlighting" star Cybill Shepherd has filed for divorce from her husband of nearly two years, chiropractor Bruce Oppenheim.

A divorce petition citing irreconcilable differences was filed Wednesday in Superior Court here, said publicist Cheryl Kagan.

Miss Shepherd and Oppenheim were married on March 1, 1987, and became the parents of twins, Ariel and Zachariah, seven months later.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former President Reagan's adopted son, Michael, won't be prosecuted on a telephone harassment complaint because he apologized to the man he called, a spokesman for the city attorney's office says.

The prosecutor suspended the misdemeanor case at the recommendation of a hearing officer who listened to Reagan apologize for leaving an obscenity-laced message on the telephone answering machine of photographer Roger Sandler, said the spokesman, Mike Qualls.

Sandler said he accepted the decision, though he didn't believe Reagan was truly contrite. "My inclination is that he apologized ... so as not to be prosecuted," he said.

Reagan, 43, wasn't immediately available to respond to the announcement, said his spokesman, Dale Olson.

The complaint against Reagan, the adopted son of Ronald Reagan and his first wife, actress Jane Wyman, was over a Jan. 15 message left on Sandler's answering machine.

A dispute arose over the use of two of Sandler's pictures in Reagan's 1988 book, "On the Outside Looking In." Sandler is seeking $1,500 in court for alleged copyright infringement because he wasn't given photo credit and says he didn't give permission for the photos' use.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Uecker, comic pitcher and a star of the "Mr. Belvedere" TV series, was resting comfortably after suffering what his agent called "a very mild heart attack."

"He's in a hospital in Burbank but we don't want to give out the name," said Deborah Miller, Uecker's agent. "He'll be returning to work after about four weeks' rest. The doctors said he's in extremely good physical shape so the prognosis is excellent."

According to Miller, the 54-year-old former major leaguer suffered the attack Tuesday morning at his Los Angeles area house. Paramedics then took him to the hospital.

Senator Bivins Reports

Lawns can trigger problems

O.K., I admit it. I am controlled by a single powerful special interest - our 2 year old daughter, Katie.

Nancy and I were invited to dinner at the home of Max and Gene Alice Sherman. Max, of course, is a former Senator from Senate District 31 and is currently the dean of the LBJ School of Public Affairs.

The only other guests were to be Lt. Governor Bill Hobby and Camilla and John Bordie. Camilla and John Bordie. Camilla was Hobbie's Parliamentarian for 14 years in the Senate. She is highly respected by Senate members and staffers alike.

Nancy and I were excited about the evening because the Shermans were old friends and it would be a good opportunity to get to know Lt. Gov. Hobby better.

A student from Amarillo was to baby-sit. On her arrival, Katie went into hysterics. She let it be known that the world would end if we left her. Because the sitter was new, Nancy decided she had better stay home with Katie. Nancy called Gene Alice to let her know but she wouldn't hear of Nancy not coming. She very graciously insisted that we bring Katie with us, since the evening was supposed to be very casual. So, yielding to our special interest, off we went with Katie in tow.

The dinner was terrific. Katie, knowing the trouble she had caused, was very well behaved.

Bill Hobby is a quiet man with considerable intellect and great wit. You often have to strain to hear him in conversation. He values reason and leans toward political pragmatism as opposed to ideology.

As you might expect, the conversation covered many topical items that related to state government, from public education to the condition of the states' financial institutions. The topic that drew the most discussion was the need for new prisons and how to pay for them.

I was most pleased to learn that Hobby shares my belief that Texas must have additional prison capacity. He is convinced that the revolving door of TDC has severely weakened any deterrent effect that the threat of incarceration may have.

Moreover, he told Nancy and me that his opinion of boot camp style incarceration for first offenders had begun to change. He was not a supporter of this concept in the past. However, he had recently visited an experimental boot camp style facility in Travis County. He told us that he was very impressed and was, in fact, re-thinking his position.

The conversation then turned to the always difficult question of how we should finance the much needed additional prison capacity.

The Legislative Budget Board, in its initial draft of the new budget for the 1990-91 biennium, assumed that some 10,500 new prison beds would be paid for out of general revenue. The cost: approximately $350,000,000. This was a big piece of the billion dollar short fall projected by the LBB for 1990-91.

One way to take the sting out of the budget--and still get those beds--would be to use general obligation bonds to pay for them. It is argued by some that this would be a legitimate method to finance an asset that has a 50-year useful life. Others argue that bond financing will force our children to pay, in the future, for our problems today.

Politically, there is a strong temptation for the legislature to use G.O. bonds to finance the needed prison beds. There's been a tax increase in each of the last three sessions of the legislature. Many of the members this session don't even want to say the "T" word. Unfortunately, there are also many members that do not want to focus on the spending side of the budget to find the revenue to build new prisons. Governor Clements, Hobby and Speaker of the House, Gib Lewis have all indicated support for using G.O. Bonds.

From the "it takes all kinds to make the world go round" department, one House member opposes issuing $350,000,000 in G.O. Bonds but would support $700,000,000!

Before you can decide if debt financing for prison construction is sound fiscal policy, you must focus on our current debt load in Texas. As of January, 1988 combined state and local debt in Texas totaled approximately $47,600,000,000. This level of debt ranked Texas 2nd among the 14 most populous states, yet when you just focus on Texas state bond debt, the numbers are very different. As of August 31, 1988, total state bond debt was only approximately $7,000,000,000. This level of state debt ranked Texas 49th among the 50 states.

Yet Texas state debt has increased 142 percent since 1980. This has caused many to argue that the legislature is using debt to circumvent the state constitutional requirement to operate on a balanced budget.

Hobby said that, in his opinion, it is uncertain which financing route the legislature will take. But he went on to say that regardless of the method of finance, he was optimistic about the legislature authorizing the new beds.

At this point in the evening Katie, who had been very good all night, let us know that she thought it was her bedtime. We gave Governor Hobby a ride home. Katie was far more interested in the fact that her bear, K.B. could see out of the window than the fact that the Lieutenant Governor of Texas was in the front seat.

"Pollen, spores, molds and dust!" Those are dreaded words to many who suffer from the multitude of afflictions that come from various types of allergies. And your lawn may be a source of these allergies.

"A lot of folks begin sneezing and develop eye irritations when mowing their lawns," said a turfgrass specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The secret is to select the right grass, follow a good maintenance program and use a reel-type mower," Dr. Richard Duple said. "Or avoid mowing the grass, or wear a dust mask to cover your nose and mouth when working outside."

According to the specialist, the right grasses are those with a relatively low leaf density that are adapted to the local environment. These include St. Augustine, tall fescue and buffalograss. Duple said that bermudagrass, particularly hybrid bermudagrasses, should be avoided because of their fine leaf structure and high leaf density that supports large populations of molds and fungi.

"How you take care of your lawn can impact your allergy problems," Duple said. "Close, frequent mowing, frequent fertilization and regular watering increase leaf density, providing a more favorable environment for pollen, spores, molds and dust--all those things that trigger allergies."

To keep a lawn attractive but less dense, Duple suggested mowing at 10-to-14 day intervals at a height of 3 inches.

He also advised fertilizing in the fall and again in late spring with about one pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of area. One pound of nitrogen would require 10 pounds of a 10 percent nitrogen fertilizer, nitrogen being the first number on a fertilizer label.

A lawn should be watered as needed to prevent severe water stress

(about 1 inch per week during summer months), Duple said. molds, spores and dust increase when lawns become dry.

"Regarding mowing, a reel-type mower cuts grass just like a pair of scissors and creates little air movement as opposed to a rotary type," Duple said. "And, if the other maintenance practices are followed, there is no need to bag grass clippings. That, in itself, is a bonus because it saves time and effort and also reduces city trash collection costs."

So, don't despair when allergy season comes around. There may be relief after all, Duple said.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: We are planning a skiing vacation before the ski season is over. We have been exercising regularly for the past three months by jogging and exercising daily. We know exercising at sea level where we live is not the same thing as exercising in a higher altitude. We would like to enjoy our vacation and not get ill. Do you have any good advice that will help us adjust to altitude as soon as possible?

DEAR READER: Getting in top physical condition is one of the best things you can do. That includes exercises that lift your toes up toward your shin against resistance to do the same kind of work you will have to do to lift your skis.

But you can't change the effects of altitude. In general the amount of oxygen that can be delivered to your cells decreases as you go to higher and higher altitudes. That is because the atmospheric pressure decreases. That means less pressure (oxygen tension) to move oxygen into your cells.

That can cause a problem known as acute mountain sickness. About 30 percent of people who go and stay at altitudes of 10,000 feet will develop acute mountain sickness within 24 hours. Some people develop these symptoms at 8,000 feet.

The symptoms include headache, nausea, sometimes vomiting, diarrhea and abdominal discomfort.

Your best bet is to do very little for the first three days and enjoy the surroundings. Then gradually begin to enjoy skiing. Or you can stop at a lower altitude, say 5,000 feet, for a few days before going on to higher altitudes. Exercise definitely increases the risk of mountain sickness and how severe the symptoms can be. There are other more severe and even life-threatening symptoms from acute mountain sickness.

I have discussed "Mountain Sickness," which can occur any time of the year when you first go to a higher altitude, in THE HEALTH LETTER 32-10. I'm sending you a free copy. Others who want this issue can send

$1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/32-10, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

One thing that helps most skiers is that the lodge or living quarters is usually not as high as some of the slopes. Often they are not at 10,000 feet most of the time. But again, you can have these symptoms at much lower altitudes if you exercise too much when you first go to altitude.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have a friend whose feet swell very badly. Her doctor doesn't seem to be of much help. She is a diabetic and takes medication for that and also other pills for her heart, blood pressure and Lord knows what else. I tell her I think her problem is too much medication. What kind of doctor would you recommend to help her?

She is 5 feet tall, 60 years old and looks 40. She is very good looking. I would like to help her.

DEAR READER: Swelling of the feet has many causes. One is congestive heart failure. Your friend's heart and blood pressure medicines may be essential to control that. It would be a serious mistake to stop her medicine and cause a sudden much greater accumulation of fluid.

Kidney disease, liver disease, varicose veins, protein deficiency and problems of lymph drainage from the legs all may cause swelling of the feet and ankles.

Your friend's family doctor can have consultations with a diabetic specialist, cardiologist or other specialists if needed. It is important that one doctor be in charge.

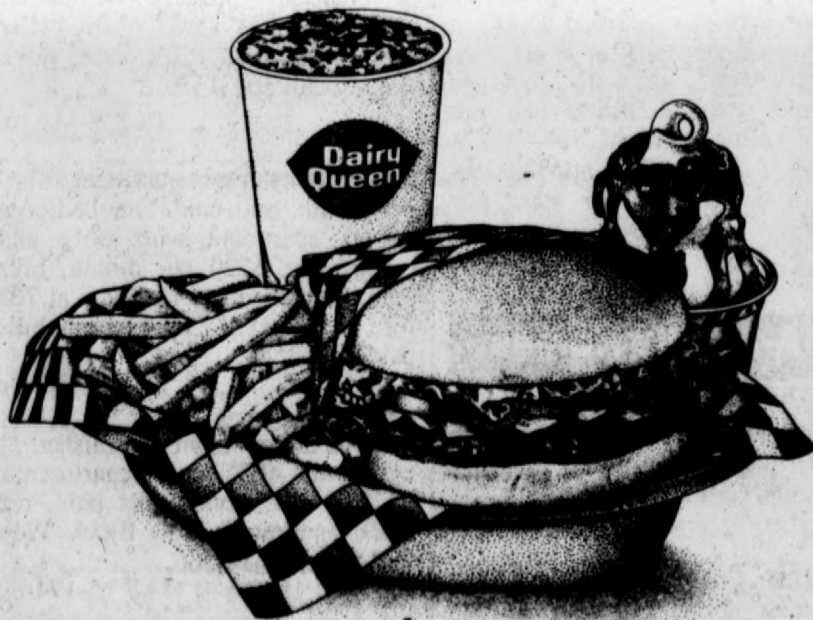

The first American to enter the Olympic Pentathlon was George Patton, later, General Patton.

State lottery getting support

AUSTIN (AP) — Support for a state lottery has formed among statewide organizations that would like to use the revenue for pay raises and possibly jobs for their members. Two lottery proposals do not allocate the projected lottery revenue to any specific areas of state government, but sponsor Hector Uribe says he would reconsider if his colleagues wanted him to do so.

Representatives of the Texas Public Employees Association and Texas State Teachers Association, both seeking pay raises for their members, endorsed a lottery Wednesday at a hearing of the Senate State Affairs Committee.

The lottery, which has been portrayed as a "job creator," also was favored by a representative of the Texas AFL-CIO, according to a witness card.

Uribe's proposed constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to establish a lottery operated by the state, and companion bill spelling out details, were sent to a subcommittee after a two-hour hearing.

The constitutional amendment would be on a Nov. 7 statewide ballot. "I don't think there's any need to sell the lottery to anybody. The people want lottery so that they can get basic state services without having to raise taxes," Sen. Uribe, D-Brownsville, told reporters.

He told the Senate committee 22 other states, plus Washington, D.C., have lotteries, and said a lottery "has never lost money for a state."

Kennedy exhibit open Monday

DALLAS (AP) — The sixth floor of the former schoolbook depository where Lee Harvey Oswald allegedly fired the shots that killed John F. Kennedy will open to the public on President's Day, for the first time ever, the exhibit's organizers say.

The Sixth Floor, which examines the assassination in the context of American cultural history, did draw not from the morbid past in its photos, films and other exhibits but from Kennedy's legacy, creators said Wednesday.

"This exhibit is an attempt to deal with it positively, in that it is educational," Conover Hunt, the exhibit's project director, said. "It is objective; I think it is extremely sensitive, and I think it is dignified."

"And I think in terms of matters of American history of great importance, it is treated accordingly,"

Built at a cost of $1.3 million, the 9,000-square-foot exhibit contains 350 photographs, 30 original artifacts, a 30-minute audio tour and six films running a total of 40 minutes. It was organized by the Dallas County Historical Foundation.

The assassination, 25 years later, remains an emotional subject for the Kennedys, a spokeswoman for Massachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy said.

"The family will not have any comment on the (exhibit) opening," Melody Miller, deputy press secretary in Washington, said. "They prefer to focus on President's Kennedy's life, not his death. They will remember him on May 29, his birthday."

Reporters in a media preview were ushered past a bookstore in a lobby area of the Dallas County Administration Building, then up twin elevators to "The Sixth Floor: John F. Kennedy and the Memory of a Nation."

An estimated 500,000 visitors yearly will view the exhibits, which span Kennedy's political career to the assassination on Nov. 22, 1963, and the investigations that followed, said Ms. Hunt.

Stacked near the southeast corner window from which Oswald allegedly fired the shots were replicas of schoolbook boxes. The area was sealed off, but visitors could look through the glass partition and adjacent windows to Dealey Plaza and the Kennedy motorcade route.

"The exhibit has extraordinarily famous photographs, taken by some of America's most talented photographers through the years," said Ms. Hunt. "We have been most fortunate in that these photographers have largely waived their fees for this educational use."

The exhibit in the former Texas School Book Depository attempts to recount, as accurately as possible, what happened the day of the assassination and findings of official investigations, she said.

An opening ceremony at 10 a.m. Monday in the Dallas County Commissioner's Court will be "low-key and dignified," after which the facility will open its doors, said Ms. Hunt.

She coordinated the efforts of more than 30 consultants in the exhibit, including designers and architects. She also wrote the text interspersed through the exhibits.

"We looked at thousands of visuals to select the 350 that are in this exhibit," said Ms. Hunt, adding that some materials, including rare photos, could not be acquired for the project.

Allen Mondell of Dallas, who with his wife, Cynthia, produced and directed the films, said one segment has the formidable task of chronicling "1,000 days of the Kennedy presidency in five minutes."

"We did not want museum visitors, through these films, to feel that they were in a morbid place that concerned death," Mondell said. "But we wanted to convey hope for the future — the Kennedy legacy."

All visitors will undergo a security check, using a metal detector and X-ray machine, before entering the ground-floor visitors' center, which was built at a cost of $2.2 million.

"Vandalism is a major concern in museums," Ms. Hunt said. "We have an historic space that we do not want to see destroyed."

Previously, thousands of tourists have come to the building but could not gain access to the sixth floor because it was closed. The rest of the building is used for government offices.

County officials have been developing plans to convert the building's sixth floor into an exhibit area since 1981, but the project was stalled by funding problems.

Lindalyn Adams, the historical foundation's chairman, said county employees who previewed the facility over the weekend had praise for the exhibit. Other residents said they planned to see it but one had reservations.

"It is unfortunate that it (the assassination) happened here, but it did," Lee Barton of Dallas said. "However, we have been far too preoccupied with it in the intervening years. Some are a little burned out on it."

Prices Effective Wednesday, February 15, 1989.

Social Security

Law Aimed At Misleading Ads

A recent change in the law offers some protection against misleading advertisements that prey upon the public's concern about Social Security and Medicare, announced Jim Talbot, district manager of the Amarillo Social Security office. "The rule gives the Secretary of Health and Human Services the authority to take action against firms that use the words Social Security or copies of the Social Security cards or emblems to give the impression that the government is endorsing the product, service or organization," said Talbot.

The rule covers advertisements, circulars, books, pamphlets, radio

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. What cheeses are low in cholesterol? E.M.E., Santa Maria, CA

A. Low cholesterol cheeses include farmer cheese, mozzarella (made with skim milk), grated Parmesan and processed low-fat cheese.

Q. What causes cupcakes to stick to baking cups? W.K., Hoyt Lakes, MN

A. All cupcakes tend to adhere to paper liners. Reduce the possibility by removing them immediately from baking pan and cool in on wire racks. They are less likely to become soggy minimizing sticking to liners.

and television broadcasts and other communications. Violators are subject to civil monetary penalties.

Talbot said the new rule represents a major gain in the Social Security Administration's fight against misleading advertisements. "Such ads are generally appeals for money in exchange for some service purporting to enhance their Social Security protection," he continued. Official-looking envelopes and titles may contain the words "Social Security" in some form.

The ads may offer to provide a Social Security number or earnings statement, or to change a name in the Social Security records. These services are provided free of charge at Social Security offices. Other ads offer to fight the "threat" to Social Security or to "save" Social Security and Medicare.

"We often get calls from confused beneficiaries wondering what the ad is all about," Talbot said. "We tell them to ignore the letter or ad and tell them that we provide the same service at no charge."

Talbot warned that some appeals allude to the "threat" of Social Security being taken away, or reduced. Many people who inquire about the appeal fear that their Social Security will be affected if they fail to contribute to the organization. "It is a shame that their misleading appeals can make so many people fearful of losing their benefits," he said.

At the national level, the Social Security Administration has been able to get some organizations to voluntarily correct their ads or solicitations. The new law should serve as a deterrent to potential violators.

Anyone wanting information about benefits, Social Security numbers or other Social Security matters are urged to contact the nearest Social Security office.

Snack foods can be tasty, versatile

NEW YORK (AP) — The Snack Food Association has declared February National Snack Food Month. Think pretzels, peanuts and potato chips.

Surveys indicate that 80 percent of the American population snacks — many in front of the television while watching videos. Frequent snackers range in age from 20 to 44, and most are married.

"Americans are watching more video, less TV, and when they watch videos, they tend to watch them in groups," the Association says. In addition, "now that Americans are working more and having less leisure time, they're spending more time 'cocooning' and more time snacking while they relax."

America's favorite snack foods include: potato chips, tortilla chips, salted nuts, corn chips, pretzels and popcorn.

Snack foods are versatile. You can garnish green beans with sliced salted almonds; use crushed pretzels in place of bread or cracker crumbs; or crumble corn chips into triple decker, toasted cheese, and bacon-lettuce-and tomato sandwiches.

Sprinkle coarsely chopped peanuts on curries and stew, toss them over salads, or mix them into buttered vegetables. Substitute long, thick pretzel sticks for breadsticks, or use them to accompany soups.

The following are some suggestions from the Snack Food Association:

CHEER-UP NACH-UPS

Cover a cookie sheet thickly with giant corn chips or tortilla chips. Sprinkle generously with coarsely grated Cheddar or Monterey Jack cheese. Dot with thinly-sliced canned jalapeno peppers or splashes of Tabasco. Scatter with thinly shaved olives. Broil until bubbly. Garnish with dollops of sour cream and finely chopped raw onions. Accompany with salsa and beer.

TUNA SNACKS

Make your favorite tuna fish salad, but substitute plain yogurt for part of the mayonnaise. Add chopped celery, sliced Spanish olives and chopped salted peanuts for color and crunch. Mound attractively in a small bowl. Place bowl in the middle of a pretty plate or platter. Surround with thick-sliced ridged potato chips and large triangular tortilla chips.

SWEET POTATO TOPPING

Saute honey-roasted nuts and diced apple in melted butter. Mash sweet potatoes and place in an oven-proof dish. Fold the apple-nut mix in to the potatoes. Top with chopped nuts and marshmallows. Bake for 20 minutes at 350 degrees F. Topping can also be used with scalloped potatoes.

QUICK AND NUTTY HOT FUDGE

Heat four or five different candy bars in a saucepan over low heat until melted. Stir in some cream to smooth out mixture and add 1 cup of chopped peanuts. Serve over ice cream.

TEX-MEX POPCORN

Melt some butter. Add 2½ teaspoons chili powder, 1 teaspoon ground cumin, a dash of ground coriander and a dash of Tabasco. Pour over popped popcorn.

PRETZEL CLUSTERS

1½ cups salted mixed nuts
2 cups pretzel sticks, coarsely broken

One 14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk

1½ cups peanut butter chips

In a large bowl combine salted mixed nuts and pretzel sticks. In medium saucepan, over medium heat, combine condensed milk and peanut butter chips. Cook, stirring constantly, until chips are melted. Pour over nut mixture, tossing to coat well. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto waxed paper-lined baking sheets. Chill until firm, about 2 hours.

BROCCOLI DIP

One package frozen chopped broccoli, defrosted and drained

1 cup cream-style cottage cheese

1 cup yogurt

½ package dried onion soup mix

Mix all ingredients and serve.

RECIPE OFFER

The Snack Food Association has created a "Snacker's Guide to the New Phenomenon of Video Parties." The guide includes video reviews, suggestions for holding video parties, and snack food recipes. For a free copy, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: That's Snackertainment, Snack Food Association, 1711 King Street, Suite 1, Alexandria, VA 22314.

GO FOR THE CRUNCH — What to munch when watching videos at home on your TV? The Snack Food Association says potato chips are the food most likely to be munched. Other favorites: corn chips, salted nuts, tortilla chips and pretzels.

Hints from Heloise

POWDER PUFF

Dear Heloise: I bought a brand-new powder puff to use for an idea I wanted to try. I placed the puff in my flour canister and when the directions for a recipe say to dust with flour, I get the puff out and dust the pan! Sure works well for me. — Jackie Kemp, Topeka, Kan.

LONELY SOCK

Dear Heloise: You know that one-time pair of socks that somehow mysteriously became a loner? Well, I know a perfect solution for their use! Besides using them as excellent dusters or wearing them as mismatched slippers around the house, I have discovered that they are great for glass sleeves. By slipping a glass of iced tea in a sock and rolling the top down, I prevent the sweating of the glass from making a puddle.
