

Tour to feature surge irrigation demonstration

By REED PARSELL
Staff Writer
Surge irrigation, a relatively new development in agriculture, will be demonstrated during Tuesday's annual Deaf Smith County crops tour.

to be as water-efficient as center-pivot-sprinkler systems, which he claimed recent studies have shown to be around 40 times more expensive to purchase.

The new form of irrigation is also thought to use about half the amount of water required by standard fur irrigation, the most common non-sprinkler method to water crops. This conservation factor is important to Schlabs, who said the cost of his standard fur irrigation has increased tenfold in the past decade.

Schlabs earlier this week explained surge irrigation with help from Deaf Smith County Agricultural Extension Agent Justin McBride and David Reed, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service (SCS).

Surge irrigation involves sending water down rows on a rotated basis. An example would be one half of the rows to be irrigated would receive a one-hour water flow followed by the other half getting the same amount. Then the pipes would go back to the original rows for another hour of watering, with the second half after that to continue a cycle which might last 12 hours.

Schlabs thought that to water an identical field with standard fur irrigation would take 24 hours.

According to Reed, the staggered watering gives the soil at the start of rows less "opportunity time," which in standard fur irrigation causes the head of rows to receive too much water while the ends are often insufficiently irrigated.

Tuesday's demonstration will be the first of surge irrigation in Deaf Smith County, according to the three men. Though Schlabs said the new method "is not widespread in use," Reed claimed he has heard some farmers are trying to purchase equipment for it.

One aspect of surge irrigation no doubt attractive to farmers - aside from savings in water use - is that its cycles can be operated automatically. A control box, as shown in the accompanying photograph, allows farmers to determine how long each water "surge" will be and how many times it will be repeated.

"This will be nothing but a demonstration," Schlabs said about Tuesday's 3 p.m. tour stop. He has not yet made any plans to purchase any surge irrigation equipment, he explained.

Schlabs has been hosting crops tour demonstrations for around 10 years. Regarding this year's exhibition, the farmer said, "This surge irrigation is probably something that people (in this area) have only read about."

The crops tour will begin at 1 p.m., leaving from the Deaf Smith County Museum parking lot on the north side of the County Courthouse. The first destination is Joe Grotegut's farm, where at 1:30 p.m. grain sorghum production and variety will be demonstrated by Dr. Robert Berry, Paul Gross, Leon New, Dr. Carl Patrick and Dr. Dale Pennington.

At 2 p.m. the tour is slated to move to Raymond Schlabs' farm, where sugar beet production will be the topic. Cal Jones will join Dr. Berry, Dr. Patrick, Dr. Pennington and Raymond Schlabs for the presentation.

Weed identification and control will be the topic for the next stop, targeted to start at 2:30 p.m. Dr. Allen Weise of the research station at Bushland will give a presentation.

Following Schlabs' exhibition of surge irrigation and sugar beet production and irrigation is supposed to be a demonstration of cotton production at the farm of Weldon Stephens. Gross, Dr. Patrick and Stephens are to host the fifth and final tour stop.

Strain case prompts plea

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's office has issued a plea for persons who have had business dealings with Robert Strain over the past three years to contact the office.

Chief Deputy Dean Butcher said any information received from the public would be kept confidential as law enforcement officers continue their probe into an apparent fencing operation here.

Strain, an area farmer, was charged with two counts of theft over $200 and under $10,000 Wednesday. Officers confiscated nearly $150,000 worth of reportedly stolen items from the Strain farm Monday.

Galveston patrolled by National Guard troops

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer
GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — National Guard troops carrying shotguns and rifles patrolled this storm-battered island city early today, helping enforce a strict nighttime curfew imposed to discourage looting in the aftermath of Hurricane Alicia.

Hundreds of homes throughout the stricken area were flooded. The storm surge flooded both highways leading to the mainland, completely isolating Galveston for a time.

When floodwaters receded, the highways were left littered with broken limbs and other debris.

Expensive yachts were left piled in heaps like children's toys.

Five of the dead were crushed by falling trees. One man drowned. Several other victims were hurt in the storm, but amazingly, there were no serious injuries.

"I've stayed through hurricanes before, but no more," vowed Milton Carter, 44, of Galveston. "This is the worst I've ever seen."

The storm spawned about a dozen tornadoes in the Galveston-Houston area as it slammed ashore. Later, Alicia was downgraded to a tropical storm and rolled north toward Dallas with heavy rains.

By Thursday night, remnants of the storm were centered east of Waco, its violent power spent.

Houston Lighting & Power officials estimated 330,000 homes in southeastern Texas remained without electric power late Thursday.

"It's the worst damage we've ever had," said spokesman Graham Painter. The storm ripped down hundreds of electric power lines, setting at least 10 homes on fire, and Painter said it would take at least a week to restore all power.

Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, said damage left by Alicia could run "in the billions," but an insurance industry spokesman in Austin said any damage estimate this soon would be "irresponsible."

President Reagan directed all federal resources be used to help residents cope with the damage.

'Say Hi to Mick Jagger for me'

Russian denies asylum plea, goes home

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Andrei Berezhkov, the 16-year-old son of a senior Soviet diplomat, is flying home to Moscow after denying he ever begged President Reagan for asylum. His last words on American soil: "Say Hi to Mick Jagger for me."

The teen-ager's departure ended a week-long diplomatic standoff between the two superpowers marked by exchanges of accusations and demands.

The impasse was resolved Thursday in an elaborately orchestrated operation involving senior U.S. and Soviet Embassy officials with the participation of major American news organizations.

First behind the walls of the Soviet residential compound in Northwest Washington, then in a waiting room at Dulles International Airport in suburban Virginia, Andrei Berezhkov denied to reporters that he had written the president and The New York Times to plea: "I hate my country and its rules and I love your country. I want to stay here."

On Thursday he twice declared: "I want to go home and not stay here."

Those words untied the diplomatic knot.

They met the criteria set by the State Department that the teen-ager be permitted to express for himself what he wanted his future to be.

And they cleared the way for the boy and his parents, Valentin and Valeriya Berezhkov, to board a Trans World Airlines jet for Paris en route to Moscow.

The plane took off at 7:09 p.m. EDT, almost a week to the hour of the State Department's announcement that the youth was believed to have written a letter to the president asking to remain in the United States and that the department was insisting on a personal interview with him "to ascertain the young man's intentions."

But on Thursday the department backed off and agreed to a pair of stage-managed news conferences — one of them free of Soviet controls — and said it would be satisfied by the results.

And when the Soviet teen-ager, in the presence of two senior U.S. officials, had made his final statement at the airport to reporters for The Associated Press, United Press International and The Washington Post, the department said the Berezhkovs could go.

"He stated clearly and firmly that he wished to return to the Soviet Union with his parents," the department said in a written statement.

Richard Burt and Assistant Secretary of State for Human Rights Elliott Abrams made the determination that he was voluntarily departing the United States," the department said.

As he walked to the door, reporters asked Andrei what he wanted to do with the rest of his life.

To become an actor, he replied.

And where would he like to learn that profession, in Moscow or America?

"In Moscow," he said.

And then, allowing himself a small smile, he said, "Say Hi to Mick Jagger for me."

Jagger is the lead singer of the rock music group, the "The Rolling Stones," which has been widely popular with teen-agers in the United States and abroad for more than a decade.

Earlier, at the Soviet compound, the youth's father, First Secretary Valentin Berezhkov, 67, acknowledged his son had taken the family car and was reported to the police as missing from the family apartment in suburban Bethesda, Md., for more than 10 hours on Aug. 10.

That was the day before President Reagan and The New York Times received a handwritten letter signed "Andrei Berezhkov" asking to remain in the United States.

Plane hijacked by man 'ready to die'

By FRED GOODALL
Associated Press Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A man who claimed he was "ready to die" hijacked a Delta Air Lines jet to Havana by waving a liquid-filled detergent bottle and repeatedly flicking a cigarette lighter, passengers said today after their safe return.

Flight 784, carrying 72 passengers and a crew of seven, returned safely at 2:39 a.m. after refueling in Cuba, the second air piracy this month and the 10th to Havana since May 1.

The pilot of the Boeing 727, which took off from Miami at 9:47 p.m. Thursday for Tampa and Cincinnati, radioed air traffic controllers shortly before 10 p.m. to say the plane had been hijacked, according to Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Jack Barker in Atlanta.

The hijacker said over and over, "I want to go to Havana. Tell the pilot," said a passenger, U.S. Air Force Staff Sgt. Donald Moseley.

The man carried a plastic detergent bottle in his left hand and flicked a lighter on and off with his right hand, Moseley said.

but later indicated that only could be confirmed by the FBI.

Henry Derricks, of St. Croix, Virgin Islands, said he was sitting across the aisle from the hijacker who drank from the bottle after pouring some of the liquid on his body.

"When he started pouring it on himself, he took at least two swigs," Derricks said. The hijacker then said, "I'm ready to die. I don't care."

Whenever anybody tried approaching the man, he held both hands in the air and threatened to light the bottle, said passenger Robert Glantz of Tampa.

The hijacker's nationality was not known, said Barker, who added the man was reported to be "calm."

The plane landed in Havana at 10:58 p.m., where the hijacker was taken into custody, Barker said.

There were no injuries, said Louis P. Vinciguerra, Delta district marketing manager in Tampa. Hollis Powell, Delta district director of marketing in Tampa, said there was no sky marshal on the flight.

Nine other south Florida flights have been skyjacked to Cuba since May 1, with passengers thwarting two attempted diversions to the island.

Police report

Camera, watches taken

Hereford police this morning reported camera equipment and two watches, worth an combined estimate of $1,000, were stolen Tuesday 8 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Thursday from Emory Brownlow. Brownlow, who lives at 718 Baltimore, had the items taken from his 1981 Ford pickup, parked at Great American Food and Beverage on Highway 60. Police said the driver's window of the Ford was broken in order for the thief or thieves to gain entry. Police also reported a $400

Senators skeptical of weapons offer

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov used a meeting with nine Democratic senators to propose a ban on anti-satellite weapons, but the Americans were skeptical and took the opportunity to object firmly to his foreign and domestic policies.

Delegation leader Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island said the "only degree of optimism" came from Andropov's proposal to "dismantle" existing anti-satellite weapons and ban development of new ones.

In Washington, the State Department said the United States will study "any serious Soviet proposal on space arms control."

Alan Romberg, the deputy department spokesman, said President Reagan 982, that the United States and equitable space arms control measures that would ban or otherwise limit testing and deployment of specific weapons should those measures be compatible with U.S. national security.

Thursday's session was the first time a U.S. government delegation met Andropov since Vice President George Bush and Secretary of State George P. Shultz talked with the newly appointed Communist Party leader for 30 minutes just before the funeral of his predecessor Leonid I. Brezhnev, delegation, bassell Long of Louisiana; Dale Bumpers, Arkansas; Patrick Leahy, Vermont; Howard Metzenbaum, Ohio; Donald W. That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says if you're all wrapped up in yourself, you may be overdressed.

The teacher wrote on the blackboard: "I ain't had no fun all summer." Then she asked a small boy in the front row, "William, what should I do to correct that?" "Maybe get a boyfriend," he suggested helpfully.

The Hereford Senior Citizens Association last week withdrew its claim on city park land next to King's Manor, explaining to the city commission that it was taking the action "in an effort to promote community unity."

We believe the senior citizens should be commended for their spirit of cooperation, because they thought the construction of a new center at the site would be a benefit to the entire community.

Even though the HSC had gone about the request in a proper manner and had received city approval, a controversy developed when the Methodist home asked the commission to reconsider its decision. The city had approved, by a split vote, leasing the land to the HSC.

King's Manor, which had no legal claim on the land, said it might need the tract sometime in the future. The Methodist home, however, did not formally ask to lease the tract itself.

City Mgr. Dudley Bayne, in reviewing the background of the land, said the commission in 1980 decided to buy the land for several reasons. One was to help King's Manor build at the site, since they did not have funds for the entire tract. Too, the city decided it could use a water well on the property and have the site as a park without playground equipment or picnic tables.

No agreement was made, according to Bayne, for the city to hold the land for possible future need of King's Manor. With the city maintaining the tract for 23 years, it has been a good arrangement for the Methodist home and we don't blame them for wanting to keep the status quo.

We're not taking sides. We have supported and will continue to support both organizations. We do feel that the senior citizens' building committee drew some unfair criticism. They made a legitimate request on city land that was not being used and on which no prior claim had been made.

Some of the critics of HSC's plan are still not happy. They blame the senior citizens for bringing up the idea in the first place, opening the door on several possibilities, including some land-use questions which may have to be determined by the city commission.

Four convicted in migrant slavery trial

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Four men accused of picking up alcoholic drifters, promising them short-term jobs and providing plenty of cheap wine were found guilty of enslaving the migrants in labor camps in Florida and North Carolina.

A U.S. District Court jury deliberated nearly nine hours before convicting Willie Warren Sr., 49; his sons, Willie Jr. and Richard; and Michael Moore, all of Orlando.

U.S. Attorney Robert Merkle hailed the jury's decision Thursday as "extremely significant."

"In this day and age we are beyond the point that human beings can be held as slaves," Merkle said.

The East Coast Farmworker Support Network, based in Raleigh, N.C., applauded the convictions, but was critical that the prosecution "ignored those who are most responsible... that is, the farmers, who have continued to hire crewleaders like the Warrens to do their dirty work for them."

The men were found guilty of four counts of conspiring to enslave migrant workers from July 1979 through December 1980 and two counts of holding two migrant workers in slavery in November 1980.

Willie Warren Sr., Willie Warren Jr. and Moore were also found guilty of holding a worker in involuntary servitude in December 1979. Each faces up to 20 years in prison and a fine of $25,000 when sentenced Aug. 30, and Judge Ben Krentzman ordered all three taken into custody after the verdicts were read.

Richard Warren, who was allowed to remain free on bond until sentencing, could be sent to prison for 10 years and fined $20,000.

"There was a machine out there, working those crops, and the fuel the machine ran on was cheap wine," Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Hart told jurors in closing arguments.

Prosecutors said the Warrens zeroed in on drifters with alcoholism problems because they were easily controlled. The workers were rounded up across the nation, plied with wine and taken to isolated labor camps.

Too late, the men would realize they had been tricked. Threats of beatings kept them from complaining about the $2.50-a-week pay.

At the end of a work week, the migrants would find out they had not earned any money but in fact owed the Warrens for wine and cigarettes. Penniless and friendless, they were unable to get away.

The government called witnesses who detailed alleged crimes at the camps and described beatings, threats, drunkenness and unfair wages.

Six men testified that they were coaxed into working at the labor camps between July 1979 and December 1980. They said they were then forced to remain at the camps through intimidation and threats.

Thumbed ride to Vatican, thanks driver

PALESTRINA, Italy (AP) — Papal aides say Pope John Paul II hitchhiked a ride from a local bus driver five years ago so he would not miss the Vatican conclave where he was named pontiff.

The Pope returned here Thursday and thanked Candido Nardi, 48, shaking his hand and chatting with him before delivering a homily in the town square.

Papal aides said the pope, then Cardinal Karol Wojtyla of Krakow, Poland, was visiting a shrine run by Polish priests in the Italian town of Capranica on the morning of Oct. 15, 1978, several hours before he was to be locked up with other cardinals for a papal conclave at the Vatican.

But he missed the bus that would have taken him to Palestrina for an express bus to Rome. Clad in a cardinal's cassock, he walked to the main road just outside Capranica and flagged down Nardi's bus.

Nardi, who was driving to Palestrina from another town, covered the 12 miles of mountain roads in 17 minutes, arriving in Palestrina in time for his passenger to make the connection to Rome, 23 miles to the northwest.

DA says grand jury probe to continue

AUSTIN (AP) — Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle says a grand jury investigation of Attorney General Jim Mattox will continue for "a few more weeks."

"It will be over when it's over," he told reporters.

The grand jury met Thursday without hearing any witnesses. Earle would not say if the panel discussed Mattox.

For several weeks the grand jury has been investigating Mattox's 1982 campaign finance records, an alleged threat to a private law firm over a personal dispute, and other allegations of misconduct.

Mattox has said he has done nothing illegal and even if he were guilty of everything alleged, it would amount to nothing more than misdemeanor offenses calling for fines.

The grand jury began a study last week of telephone records and other documents surrendered by Mattox after being subpoenaed.

Earle said Thursday his office had finished going through the records but had made no final decision whether he would ask for other documents.

He said Sam Boyd, a Seattle bank official previously subpoenaed, probably would testify before the grand jury next week.

The panel has said it wants to question Boyd about a $125,000 loan that Mattox's sister and brother got from a Seattle bank just three days before Mattox personally contributed $125,000 to his campaign.

Man found dead in tent

MORRISON, Colo. (AP) — Sheriff's deputies said Thursday they had no clues in the shooting death of a 20-year-old Texas man whose body was found in a tent near this foothills community west of Denver.

Don Shook, a spokesman for the Jefferson County sheriff's office, said Rocky Lee Lambert of Farmers Branch was found dead in a camping tent on Sunday. He had been shot in the head, Shook added.

Investigators said Lambert apparently died on Aug. 9.

Shook said a murder investigation continued and officers did not know whether Lambert had been camping with anyone else.

Weather

West Texas: Fair southwest, otherwise generally partly cloudy through Saturday. Not quite as warm north today. Scattered showers and thunderstorms. Some locally heavy in Concho Valley and eastern sections today and tonight. Isolated showers and thunderstorms elsewhere in Panhandle and south plains today and tonight. Highs today near 90 north to mid 90s south with near 102 Big Bend valleys. Lows upper 60s north to mid 70s south except near 60 southwest mountains. Highs Saturday low to mid 90s except near 102 Big Bend.

State committee told taxpayers to tote burden for injured farmworkers

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — The state director of the United Farm Workers says field labor is "the most dangerous occupation in the country" and should be included under workers' compensation benefits.

Rebecca Flores Harrington testified Thursday before the Joint Committee on Farmworker Insurance, holding its first meeting in the state.

The 25-member state panel was formed after the 1983 Legislature failed to pass a measure extending workers' compensation benefits to farmworkers.

"Once growers are required to provide insurance, the workplace will be safer," said Mrs. Harrington, who estimated Texas has more than 100,000 seasonal farmworkers.

Hospital administrators and attorneys representing farmworkers testified the cost of medical care for farmworkers injured on the job is paid by taxpayers and paying patients.

Farmworkers unable to work because of injury often cannot support their families and must seek public assistance, another drain on taxpayers, the committee was told.

"The consumer pays one way or another and indirectly subsidizes the agriculture producer," said Harlingen attorney James Herrmann.

Frank Ambriz, administrator of the Harlingen Su Clinica, a federally funded clinic, testified that farmworkers suffering minor job-related ailments often do not seek medical attention until the problem has become serious.

"The breadwinner is usually the one that will not seek treatment until the condition is worse," he said.

The reason, according to Ambriz, is that farmworkers cannot afford to miss work to recover from minor ailments or injuries because they receive no income when they are not working.

"Health care costs money," said John Mims, McAllen Methodist Hospital administrator. "If an injury is work related it should be paid by the employer."

But much of the discussion Thursday centered on determining who employs farmworkers — the producer or the labor contractor who is responsible for the workers.

"The responsibility for workers' compensation should be placed on the producer-owner for whose economic benefit the workers are employed," said Herrmann.

But, he said, "the crewleader system" provides a shield between the producer and the worker.

Crewleaders, or field bosses, provide trucks for hauling laborers and supervise the workers on the job. The crewleader, also responsible for wage payments and record keeping, recovers his costs from the field workers' labor, said Herrmann.

"The labor contractor is just another farmworker who happens to have one or two trucks," said Rep. Juan Hinojosa, D-McAllen.

Scott Toothaker, an attorney who represents Valley growers, said some laborers work for as many as 25 growers each season.

The crew leader is the employer, he said.

Hinojosa, a committee member, sponsored a measure in the House last session which would have extended workers' compensation benefits to field laborers by requiring the growers to pay the insurance costs.

"These hearings will educate the public and the committee members as to how unfair the present system is," he said.

Hinojosa said the Farm Bureau, a strong opponent of the measure, "does not care about the societal costs involved that are paid by the taxpayer."

"Something needs to be done or the federal government is going to do it or the courts are going to do it," said committee member Sam Sparks, a San Angelo attorney who handles personal injury cases.

Agriculture workers, he said, "should not be treated like second-class citizens."

The committee's recommendations will be given to Gov. Mark White and the Legislature by January, said panel chairman Tony Korieth of Austin.

The next hearing will be held in Austin Aug. 25 and 26, he said.

Texans increase spending on local public schools

AUSTIN — Texans increased spending on local public schools by $900 million last year, as trustees in 1,071 school districts adopted school budgets totaling $8.5 billion. That provided more than $300 in additional funds for each of the 2,678,000 students in the state, according to the Texas Research League.

State foundation school aid was upped by $346 million, but local property taxpayers were tagged for an additional $425 million to pay for the increase. The remainder was funded by increases in special state and federal aid programs and by higher local fees and other revenue.

The figures come from the latest issue of "Bench Marks for 1983-84 School District Budgets in Texas," an annual publication of the League. The Texas Research League is a private, nonprofit, Austin-based, educational corporation engaged in governmental research.

School budgets adopted for 1982-83 called for spending $2,610.23 per student for current operations. The Hereford ISD's budget provided for $2,512.64 per student based on the 4,594 students in average daily attendance in 1981-82.

Locally, the Hereford ISD's tax levy was increased by 1.4 percent for 1982-83 as compared to a 14.8 percent increase for the average school district in Texas.

The average salary for classroom teachers paid by the Hereford ISD in 1981-82 was $16,420, which was 12.6 percent above the minimum salary prescribed by the state. The average among all school districts in Texas was $17,537 per classroom teacher, or 20.6 percent over the minimum. The legislature further increased the state minimum schedule by $88-196 a month for 1982-83.

Bullock sends checks totaling $103 million

AUSTIN, Tex. — State Comptroller Bob Bullock last week sent checks totaling $103 million in local sales tax payments to 974 cities that levy the one-percent sales tax.

"So far this year, we are just a little ahead of 1982 payments," Bullock said. "This is about where we expected to be by this time when we put out our revenue estimate for the state."

Bullock said seven of the 20 Texas cities that collect the most local sales tax — Houston, El Paso, Beaumont, Odessa, Abilene, Midland and

There was an average of one teacher for 14.4 students in the Hereford ISD compared to a statewide pupil-teacher ratio of 1 to 16.4. The pupil-teacher ratio is not the same thing as the average class size because teachers and students are not necessarily in class the same number of hours each day.

The report noted that the share of the total school payroll paid to classroom teachers has dropped from 73.4 percent of the total in 1969-70 to 60.4 cents of each payroll dollar last year as many more nonteaching personnel have been hired. Locally, classroom teachers were paid 64.2 percent of the school payroll in 1981-82.

Tyler — continue to lag behind last year's receipts. But the August payment to all seven showed they had gained ground since last month. Hereford received a rebate of $80,324.80 this period, a vast increase over the $66,894.57 received for the same period a year ago. The city's 1983 year-to-date total through Aug. 6 is 7.05 percent ahead of 1982 with $348,770.48 received this year as compared to $325,800.68 for the same period a year ago. Houston got the biggest check, $19.6 million. Dallas received $11.6 million.

because he is annoyed that the Senate has not ratified the SALT II treaty and because there are "signs of very, very modest improvements" in U.S.-Soviet relations.

He apparently was referring to the recent U.S.-Soviet grain deal, and the compromise at the Madrid Security Conference.

However, the official news agency Tass said Andropov told the senators U.S.-Soviet relations are "tense virtually in every field" and Pell said it would be premature to talk of "thaw HEALTH. Pell said he spoke "vigorously.... What he really needs to do is his mind and it seemed absolutely first class."

Tass, which announced the Soviet anti-satellite-weapons moratorium offer as a "flash," quoted Andropov as telling the senators "the U.S.S.R. is prepared... to agree on the elimination of the existing anti-satellite systems and the prohibition of the development of new ones."

But Pell said the Soviet Union, believed to be the only nation with an operational anti-satellite weapon, is "well ahead" of the United States in the field and added:

"It could mean very little other than a desire to forestall planned tests with which the United States hopes to close this gap. We hope it is not a ploy."

Texas hurricane damage surveyed by government

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials have already begun assessing hurricane damage in Texas as part of the process of deciding whether to declare parts of the state a disaster area in the wake of hurricane Alicia.

Bob Blair, a spokesman for the Federal Emergency Management Agency, which recommends to the president whether such a declaration should be made, said late Thursday that the agency was in the "very, very early stages of damage assessment."

He said Air Force planes had been taking photographs of areas hit by the hurricane but that damage surveyors had not yet been able to fly over the areas because of high winds.

"In a situation like this...it's difficult to get around to assess the damage," said Blair. He also said that "it's difficult to evaluate flood damage by air."

However, Blair said "that should not delay us" in making a recommendation to the president on a disaster declaration.

For an area to qualify for such a declaration, damage must be of such a magnitude as to be "beyond the capacity of the state and local governments" to respond, said Blair.

He said that about half the state requests for such declarations are turned down.

Blair said that such a declaration would make hurricane-ravaged areas of Texas eligible for a variety of special federal aid, ranging from temporary housing for the homeless to funds for repair of public facilities.

Under the program, 75 percent of the cost of repairing or restoring public facilities would be paid by the federal government and 25 percent by state and local governments, he said.

Disaster assistance centers would be established to make available in one place the resources of federal, state and volunteer agencies that process disaster aid, he said.

Grants of up to $5,000 would be available for people not covered by regular disaster programs, Blair said.

Alicia

"We deeply sympathize with the people of Galveston and South Texas," he said.

Texas Gov. Mark White asked the president to declare six counties that were in the path of Alicia a disaster area, and scheduled a helicopter flight over the stricken area later today.

White also ordered National Guard troops into Galveston to help the city's 135-member police force prevent looting.

Twenty-five accused looters were arrested on the island before midnight, and another 21 pedestrians were picked up for violating an 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew. One shop owner armed with a gun chased three looters from his store on the island's seawall.

Galveston Police Capt. Leon E. Lewis said the curfew was being "strictly, strictly" enforced, and applied to all civilians including working news reporters. He said the curfew would remain in effect as long as electric power to the island is out.

Police were accompanied in their patrols by 85 national guardsmen from companies in La Marque and Brenham sent in by the governor.

Police in Houston were also patrolling on foot among shattered glass storefronts for looters, and 40 suspects were arrested late Thursday.

Officers sealed off 20 blocks of downtown Houston Thursday to keep out sightseers and possible looters. Downtown streets were littered with twisted metal, broken glass, and other debris.

The storm rattled skyscrapers with 94 mph winds in Houston, causing widespread damage. At Hobby Airport, one of the city's two major airports, one hangar was picked up by the winds and deposited on a nearby street.

In Webster, south of Houston, a shopping center wall collapsed.

The fatalities included one man who was not identified, whose body was found in Seabrook, south of Houston. Police there said he apparently drowned in floodwaters.

The others killed were Elisa Lopez Flores, 71, Robin Norman, 21, both of Houston, and Cynthia Gaye Bingham, 15, of Porter and Richard L. Furstenfeld, 54, of Conroe. All were killed by falling trees, authorities said.

Later Thursday in Dallas, winds from remnants of Alicia blew over a traffic sign and sent it crashing into two trucks on the LBJ Freeway, police said. One driver was killed and another trucker was injured. The name of the man killed was not immediately released.

The weakening storm also triggered a series of tornadoes.

In Corsicana, about 50 miles southeast of Dallas, a tornado touched down Thursday afternoon, leaving behind an estimated $1 million in damage, authorities said. No injuries were reported.

The twister damaged a home, collapsed the wall of an office building and tore the front from a livestock barn before damaging two mobile homes, according to Police Chief Vern Ellis.

"I never thought that this would be interpreted as my intention of staying here," the youth told reporters at the embassy compound. "I ask the American authorities to leave me alone and let me go home...."

At the airport he denied he was speaking under duress.

"I don't feel I am under any pressure," he said. "I say what I feel and do what I want to do."

When the senior Berezhkov was asked if he would have objected if the boy had wanted to stay, he replied: "Grown-ups only have the privilege of emigration, not children."

embassy's liaison officer with the USA-Canada Institute in the Soviet Union, said he has "no doubt" he will work in the institute on his return.

When asked whether his son can expect punishment for any embarrassment caused the Soviet Union by his escapade and the resulting publicity, he replied, "Certainly not."

Old photographs needed for history

Interest in preserving and restoring historic buildings has reached every corner of Texas. However, it is still difficult for people who care about Texas' heritage to find photographic documentation on buildings because material is scattered over the state. But now the largest collection of interior photographs of Texas homes and public buildings to date is being compiled.

Already more than 200 views have been located and more are being sought both in public and in private photographic collections. Area residents have a chance to use their old photographs to help this effort.

This project, "Images of Victorian Texas: 1860-1920," which has the support of many preservationist groups throughout the state, aims to locate photographs of the interiors of Texas buildings, especially houses, taken before 1920.

These interior views show what kinds of furniture, draperies, carpets and accessories were in use at a point in time in a specific place. They document characteristic room arrangements, seasonal changes, special efforts to accommodate the climate as well as ethnic and regional variations in interiors.

Ann Landers 'Nice guy' never home

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Boy, did that letter from "Boss's Wife" ever hit home. I, too, am the wife of an executive who has time for everything and everyone but the children and me.

In every place we have ever lived our friends and neighbors said, "Oh, you have the nicest, most thoughtful husband!" It made me want to take an axe to them.

They don't know that Mr. Nice Guy is willing to stay late at the office and help anyone who asks, so he or she can "get home to his family." He doesn't give a hoot about his.

Never mind that our house is falling down and the yard is a disaster. Never mind that he hasn't made it home in time for a meal with his kids in three months.

When he's sick, he goes to bed and sleeps until he's well. When I was laid up with the Hong Kong flu, it didn't slow him down one iota. He went to the office as usual, then came home in time to grab his shoes and glove so he could play softball. He tells me, "Go to bed if you don't feel well." Sure, and what do I do with the baby?

How do I cope? I learned long ago that if I let his selfishness and complete lack of consideration get to me I would end up destroying MY health and sanity, not his. So, I've made a life of my own and have adjusted.

When the time is right, I'm getting out of here and he'll never know what hit him.—Biding My Time In The South

DEAR BIDDING: You don't want advice — you just wrote to unload. I hope you feel better. Write again any time. That's what I'm here for.

DEAR ANN: I've read all kinds of crazy letters in your column, but I think I have a brand new one for you.

A bride, when asked by a member of the groom's family (seven months after her wedding) why she hadn't sent out her thank-you notes for the wedding gifts, replied, "I sent notes to my side of the family. Now my husband has to send them to his side of the family."—Bug-Eyed In Sarasota

DEAR SARA: Sounds like that marriage is off to a terrific start. I should be hearing from either her or him in a bout three months.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A word, please, to the guy who signed himself, "No Saint—Just Average in L.A."

I would like to let him know he should be proud of himself and I hope he sticks to his values and moral standards. I'm a 17-year-old girl from Long Island and it's almost impossible to find a guy who wants any kind of a relationship with a girl who keeps her clothes on.

You sound like a nice guy. Stay that way.—No Saint, Just Average In N.Y.

DEAR NO S. JUST A.: You sound like a nice girl. Stay that way.

Eggs, nutritious food

COLLEGE STATION — An egg is a bundle of nutrition sealed in its own package by the hen and delivered to consumers as fast as possible, practically untouched by human hands.

Americans spend millions each year for "health foods" and "natural products," yet often overlook the healthful qualities in ordinary foods like eggs, says Dr. Dymple Cooksey, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Eggs are a "natural" food in part because there's so little interference in the production process. If a hen receives enough proper nutrients, she will form an egg, and all hens of the same species produce eggs of about the same composition.

According to Dr. David Mellor, poultry specialist with the Agricultural Extension Service, the commercial laying hen probably receives a better balanced diet than any other animal. The ration consists mainly of ground corn, sorghum grain, soybean oil meal, calcium, phosphorus and a vitamin-trace mineral mix.

Any difference a consumer might notice between eggs is minor and really has nothing to do with the composition or nutritional value of the eggs. For instance, the natural yellow color of the yolk is from fat soluble pigments in green or yellow plant products such as alfalfa, grass or corn in the hen's ration. Slight variations are due to the mixture of feed given the hens and don't affect the quality of the egg.

Eggs can also vary in flavor, although you don't find this often with commercial eggs, says Mellor. If a hen eats onion grass, field garlic or even cabbage, its eggs will be highly flavored.

Since most consumers prefer to add their own flavoring to egg dishes, however, commercial eggs are produced so that the bland natural flavor is not masked.

"It's most important for consumers to realize that when it comes to nutrition, an egg is an egg," states Cooksey.

All of the fat soluble vitamins A, D E and K in the diet of the hen transfer well to the egg. This makes eggs a good source of vitamins as well as an efficient and inexpensive source of protein.

Consumers should look for eggs that meet the Texas egg law which requires that eggs be graded, have a clean, sound shell and be maintained under 60 degrees F.

Even though special eggs, like "organic fertile" and "araucana" eggs may be sold as health food, there is no evidence to support the idea that they are any more nutritious than ordinary commercial eggs from the grocery store, adds the specialist.

Preheating oven wastes energy

COLLEGE STATION — Most recipes for oven-cooked foods traditionally call for a preheated oven, but recent studies have shown that preheating is not essential for food quality and may even waste energy.

Researchers at the United States Department of Agriculture's consumer nutrition laboratory compared a variety of foods prepared in preheated and non-preheated ovens and found few significant differences in the quality or size of the items, reports home economist Bonnie Piernot.

The non-preheated ovens required five minutes or less extra baking time than the preheated ovens, says Piernot, who is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The energy savings from not preheating averaged about 10 percent.

"Overall," Piernot says, "the findings confirm that preheating the oven is not essential for good quality baking, so it's an unnecessary use of energy."

The foods used in the research study included pies, cakes, casseroles, souffles and meat loaves. The dishes were prepared in preheated and non-preheated standard gas, continuous-cleaning gas, standard electric and self-cleaning electric ovens.

The variability in baking times reported between preheated and non-preheated ovens was often less than that reported among the different types of ovens, adds the specialist.

Church news

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Morgan

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

Hereford Church of the Nazarene welcomes Gary and Ronda Morgan and their 17-month-old son, Joshua, from Franklin, Ohio. Morgan will assume the position of youth pastor starting Sept. 4.

A graduate of Mount Vernon Nazarene College in Mount Vernon, Ohio, Morgan has been involved in youth ministry for almost four years. He will be in charge of all youth activities at the church, according to the Rev. Bob Huffaker, pastor.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Start of school brings a new year for choirs in First United Methodist Church; regular rehearsals begin next week for youth and children's groups. After an August vacation the Sanctuary Choir will start rehearsing Aug. 31.

A Choir Roundup is being held this week for children in grades two through six, directed by Jeff Wakeley, music minister. They will sing at the morning worship service Sept. 11, when the Youth Singers will join with the Sanctuary Choir in an anthem.

Youth Singers' opening rehearsal will be at 6 p.m. Wednesday; they will have a pizza party with a Christmas theme, "Deck the halls with lots of pizza," and take a first look at the cantata they will perform at Christmas.

The Ladies Handbell Choir started rehearsing Aug. 15. There are two other ringing groups, the beginners who will practice at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday and Youth Ringers who rehearse Aug. 28.

Children's choir rehearsal times are: Cherub Choir, ages 3 and 4, at 3:15 p.m. Monday; Angelic Choir, kindergarten and first grade, 3:45 p.m. Wednesday; Sunshine Choir, grades 2 and 3, at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday; and Carol Choir, grades 4-6, at 4 p.m. Monday.

Tina Langehennig is accompanist for Youth Singers and Carol Choir; Donna Ruland for the Sunshine Choir.

Family violence increases

Family violence has increased because of attitudes condoning physical punishment to solve problems, the need for dominance, and the inability to cope, according to an article in Texas Medicine magazine.

"One of the paradoxes of the family as an institution is that while people look to it for love and support, it is also characterized by a high level of violence," writes Dr. Blair Justice, a psychology professor at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston. His article appears in the August issue of the Texas Medical Association's monthly journal.

The National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect says about 250,000 children are physically abused each year. These are only the reported cases. A nationwide survey recently showed that 14 of every 100 children ages three through 17 were abused.

As an example of the increase, Justice says confirmed cases of child abuse in Harris County rose from 30 a month in 1972 to 69 a month in 1973 and 279 a month in 1982. He notes that "few agencies if any" have compiled statistics on spouses that batter one another.

Justice also cited these statistics on family violence: —Parents whose own fathers hit them as teenagers have a child-abuse rate that is one third higher than parents under equally high stress who did not receive such treatment as adolescents.

—The child-abuse rate by parents whose own fathers hit their mothers was 44 percent higher than the rate of parents who fathers never hit their mothers.

—The child-abuse rate was found to be 72 percent higher in families where parents approved of slapping their spouse.

—Most men treated for violence toward their wife had experienced violence during their childhoods and had observed violence between their parents.

Justice notes that hospitals can help lessen the odds of child abuse by allowing new mothers to have earlier and more extended contact with the infant. He also cited community programs in San Antonio and Spring, Texas, that deal with preventing and stopping family violence.

Boy born to Henry and Stacey Winkler

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Henry Winkler and his wife, Stacey, became parents for the second time and both mother and son were reported in good condition, a publicist for Winkler said.

The boy, named Max, weighed 7 pounds, 6 ounces, was 20 1/4 inches long, and had bright red hair, said Richard Grant of Lippin & Grant of Beverly Hills.

"They're both doing great," Grant said after the birth Thursday, referring to Mrs. Winkler and Max, who were at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in West Los Angeles.

Winkler, who is starring in the 11th season of the television show, "Happy Days," and his wife have a daughter, Zoe Emily, who will be 3 on Sept. 30, Grant said. Mrs. Winkler has a 12-year-old son, Jed, from a previous marriage, he said.

Yanks down in order

Royals wrap up pine tar game

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — After 26 days of protests, lawsuits, acrimony, a threatened forfeit and never-ending oratory, the great pine tar soap opera finally reached its conclusion ... but not before one last-gasp protest by the New York Yankees.

Anticipating that the Yankees would have something up their sleeve in the form of a counter-protest at Thursday's completion of the suspended game, American League President Lee MacPhail was one step ahead of them and armed his umpires with an affidavit that they produced right there on the field.

And then Dan Quisenberry retired the Yankees in order to complete the ninth inning of a game that began on July 24 and "ended" when George Brett's two-run homer with two out in the top of the ninth that gave the Royals a 5-4 lead was nullified by a quartet of umpires who ruled he had too much pine tar on his bat and sent the Yankees home as apparent 4-3 winners.

MacPhail overruled the umpires a few days later and ordered the game to be resumed Thursday despite countless beefs from the Yankees. After the Yankees fanned the flames a little longer, it turned into a 12-minute anticlimax and a 5-4 triumph for the Royals.

The Yankees took the field with left-handed Don Mattingly at second base — Bert Campaneris, the July 24 second baseman, is injured and Mattingly was scheduled to be the first New York batter and — so as not to waste a possible pinch hitter or pinch runner — pitcher Ron Guidry in center field, replacing Jerry Mumphrey, who has been traded to Houston.

Before the first pitch, George Frazier stepped off the mound and threw to first, appealing that Brett had not touched the base on July 24 when running out his home run.

Umpire Tim McClelland gave the safe sign, but McClelland never saw Brett touch the bag because these were not the same umpires who worked the suspended game and his signal brought Yankee Manager Billy Martin to the top step of the dugout.

Play it again, Sam. Now, Frazier threw to second and this time umpire Dave Phillips signaled safe. Enter Martin for a brief discussion. But instead of the rule book, Phillips pulled out a piece of paper.

"Billy said he wanted to protest," Phillips said later, "and I showed that we had a notarized affidavit signed by all four umpires that Brett had touched every base. He said he had reason to believe he missed first."

So the Yankees played the final four outs under protest. The judge and jury will again be MacPhail.

Martin was disconsolate. He hid in the players' lounge — off-limits to the media — and eventually ordered the clubhouse cleared of newsmen who waited more than an hour for him to come out.

He came to the door just long enough to tell The Associated Press: "I talked to the first base umpire (Drew Coble) by phone last week and he told me he wasn't looking at first base and didn't see Brett touch it. Then they flung that affidavit at me and his name was on it."

Coble could not be reached for comment.

An announced crowd of only 1,245 was on hand in 56,000-seat Yankee Stadium to witness one of baseball's historic games, which finally took place after two court rulings earlier in the day. First, the Yankees obtained an injunction blocking resumption of the game — two fans from the July 24 contest had filed suits contending they should not have to pay to see its completion — and then the AL got it overturned by an appellate court.

While all that was going on, the Royals flew from Kansas City to Newark, N.J., where they waited a half-hour before busing to the stadium when no word was forthcoming. After their brief visit to New York, the Royals flew on to Baltimore for a weekend series.

Whatever happened to the infamous bat? It was broken two weeks ago and now is good for nothing but firewood.

Two one-run homers

Pair of NL tilts won in 10th

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Andy Van Slyke of St. Louis said he wasn't looking to hit the ball over the wall. Philadelphia's Bo Diaz said he wasn't expecting to hit the ball — period.

Each got a 10th-inning pitch he liked and each pounced on it, Van Slyke's home run giving the Cardinals a 5-4 victory over Houston, Diaz's homer boosting the Phillies past San Diego 4-2.

In the rest of the National League, Cincinnati edged Pittsburgh 6-5, Chicago blanked Atlanta 3-0 and San Francisco defeated Montreal 5-3. New York's game at Los Angeles was rained out.

In the only American League action, the Kansas City Royals concluded their 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees in the Pine Tar game suspended July 24 following George Brett's controversial home run.

Van Slyke, said he was just trying to get on base when he drilled his liner to right field. "I was really busting my tail going around first," he said. "When I heard the crowd roar as I reached second base, I thought that I did it ... I try not to pressure myself. I don't consider myself to be a pure power hitter."

Van Slyke also singled, tripled and walked, scoring each time. His triple preceded Willie McGee's single that tied it 4-4 in the eighth inning. The loss was only the third in 12 games for the Astros and prevented them from gaining ground on Atlanta in the NL West. The third-place Astros trail by seven games.

Diaz said that with two outs, a runner on first and a 3-0 count, he expected to take a pitch from Gary Lucas, perhaps to draw a walk. But third base coach Dave Bristol was wig-wagging different signals.

"It was kind of confusing to see the hit-and-run sign in that situation," said Diaz. So he decided to check the dugout. "I kept looking in and (coach) Bobby Wine and (manager) Paul Owens were going, 'Yes, yes.'"

"We were going like this, telling him to swing at it," Owens said, swinging an imaginary bat. So Diaz swung his real one and crashed Lucas' next pitch into the left-field bleachers to snap the Padres' four-game winning streak.

The Phillies' other runs came on Joe Morgan's sacrifice fly and RBI single. Reds 6, Pirates 5.

Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner kept throwing relief pitchers at Cincinnati, and the Reds kept jumping on them, Duane Walker administering the coup de grace with a three-run double that wrapped up their five-run ninth inning and halted the Pirates' five-game winning streak.

"We've been winning and coming back like that, but this is the first time in a while it's happened to us," said Tanner.

The Bucs took 3-1 lead into the ninth, thanks in part to homers by Tony Pena and Jason Thompson, Cincinnati's run coming on Johnny Bench's homer. And with Kent Tekulve, unscored upon in his last 19 appearances, warming up, it looked safe for the Pirates.

When Gary Redus led off with a homer off Cecilio Guante, Tanner went to Tekulve. He got two outs but also gave up a single to Bench and a walk to Nick Esasky.

So Tanner brought in Rod Scurry, who walked Eddie Milner and Ron Oester, forcing in the tying run. In came Manny Sarmiento — and up came Walker, who ripped his double off the right-center field wall.

"I go up and look for a pitch I can handle," Walker said. "I don't have too much scientific stuff. I do what I can."

Cubs 3, Braves 0

Chicago's Jody Davis broke up a scoreless tie in the fourth inning when he followed Keith Moreland's bloop double and Leon Durham's infield hit with a towering home run off Pete Falcone that saddled the Braves with their fourth consecutive loss and cut their NL West lead over Los Angeles to 3½ games.

Ferguson Jenkins pitched 8 2-3 innings of seven-hit ball and got last-out relief from Lee Smith.

Giants 5, Expos 3

Darrell Evans hit his 25th homer of the season, a two-run shot in the first inning, and Tom O'Malley homered in the seventh to lead the Giants past Montreal.

Manny Trillo, traded to the Expos by Cleveland on Wednesday, reported to his new team but was not activated for the game.

Finale like soap opera

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — "Take note of what you see, son," said the well-dressed bearded man as he led a small tyke out of the elevator at Yankee Stadium. "This is something you will remember all your life."

In 12 swift minutes, it was over — the end of baseball's longest running single drama, the notorious "Pine Tar Epic."

"If I had wanted to watch a soap opera, I'd have stayed home," growled the New York Yankees' Don Baylor, jerking off a No. 25 pinstripe shirt that didn't have a drop of sweat on it.

Baylor could do nothing about it as the Yankees went down 1-2-3 in the ninth inning of the unfinished July 24 game — thus finally losing 5-4 to Kansas City on the George Brett home run that was, then wasn't and finally was again.

Now, 26 days later, after endless bickering and acrimony, two last-day court decisions and a somber threat by Yankee owner George Steinbrenner to sue the American League for libel, it was over.

"I've had pine tar up to my ism," said the Yankees' Roy Smalley, the second batter to face the Royals' relief ace Dan Quisenberry in the ninth inning. "I'm sick of hearing about the stuff. Now maybe we can play baseball."

First, Don Mattingly fled out to center. Then Smalley skied to left and pinch-hitter Oscar Gamble grounded weakly to second — all mown down in 10 pitches by the submarining Quisenberry.

It was more vaudeville than sport, but only a few people laughed.

Billy Martin, the Yankee manager, went immediately into the players' off-limits lounge and stared blankly at a TV screen for a long time. He agonized.

Yankee Stadium, "The House That Ruth Built," was a cavern of empty seats — 56,300 of them — while small knots of 1,245 human beings, most of them kids, dotted the rest of the vast arena.

"This a footnote in baseball history," said Jerry Holtzman of the Chicago Tribune, who deserted his own red-hot Chicago White Sox to be in attendance.

"It's wild but it's a happening. Too bad not enough people appreciate the romance of the game."

Air game fells Bengals

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals usually prosper through the pass.

On Thursday night, they buried themselves by it, with New York Jets kicker Pat Leahy tossing the last shovel of dirt.

Bengal quarterbacks were intercepted three times, with the last one setting up Leahy's 31-yard field goal in overtime that gave the Jets a 20-17 victory in a nationally televised National Football League exhibition game.

"We wound up killing ourselves throwing the ball,"

Bengals Coach Forrest Gregg said.

The Jets, who boosted their exhibition record to 2-1, tied the score in the fourth quarter behind backup quarterback Pat Ryan. He engineered a 55-yard scoring drive, tossing an 8-yard touchdown pass to rookie Mike Harmon with just over six minutes to play.

After a Cincinnati fumble, Ryan then drove the Jets 43 yards to the Bengals' 28. But with 44 seconds to play, Leahy missed his second straight field-goal attempt.

At Pan Am Games

Prado stops U.S. swim streak

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Ricardo Prado said he had heard the "Star Spangled Banner" played once too often at Pan American Games awards ceremonies, so he did something about it.

Through the first six swimming races and two diving events, the United States was a winner every time, but Prado, a 5-foot-6, 142-pound Brazilian who trains in California and Texas, ended the streak Thursday night.

"I was tired of hearing the 'Star Spangled Banner,'" a chuckling Prado said after winning the 400-meter individual medley, his world record specialty, in Pan Am record time of 4 minutes, 21.43 seconds.

Prado eclipsed the 1979 meet standard of 4:21.63 by Jesse Vassallo of the United States and finished six seconds ahead of silver medalist Jeff Kostoff of Upland, Calif. Mike O'Brien of Mission Viejo, Calif., tied with Canadian Peter Dobson for the bronze.

When Kathy Bald of Canada set another meet record in the next race, the 200-meter breaststroke, beating Susan Rapp of Eden Prairie, Minn., and Kim Rhodenbaugh of Cincinnati, the American hope of equalling the 1979 feat of winning 28 of 29 races ended.

But the U.S. team still isn't doing badly in the water, or on land, either.

Matt Gribble of Miami lowered the games record in the 100 butterfly twice Thursday and he and Cynthia "Sippy" Woodhead, who won the 200 freestyle for her sixth overall Pan Am gold medal, led two 1-2 American sweeps. The U.S. team also won the men's 800 freestyle relay, and Greg Louganis of Mission Viejo put on another in a long string of impressive diving performances in winning the three-meter springboard.

U.S. boxers Dennis Milton and Louis Howard easily won their bouts, the baseball team stayed undefeated after four games and U.S. shooters won four more golds for a total of 18.

In the medal standings, the United States has 39 golds and 77 overall. Cuba's count is 29 golds and a total of 63, while Canada has 6-40 and Venezuela 2-21.

Louganis, the world and defending Pan Am champion in both the springboard and 10-meter platform, dominated the springboard so completely that he could have skipped the last of his 11 dives and still won.

He finished with 724.02 points, while Abel Ramirez of Cuba was second with 631.26 and David Burgering of Mission Viejo third with 616.15. Going into his final dive, Louganis already had 640.32.

Gribble became the third swimmer to lower the Pan Am record in the men's butterfly in qualifying with a clocking of 54.64 seconds. He erased the meet record times of 55.54 by Canadian Tom Ponting and 55.27 by Morales, from Santa Clara, Calif., set in earlier heats.

Then Gribble came through with a 54.25, with Morales following .37 later for the silver.

Woodhead, of Riverside, Calif., the star of the 1979 Pan Am championships in San Juan, Puerto Rico, with five gold medals, one world record and five meet records, and Mary Wayte of Mercer Island, Wash., finished 1-2 in the 200 freestyle final. Woodhead was timed in 2:01.33, more than three seconds slower than her own world record.

In boxing, Milton scored a third-round knockout of Jamaica's Anthony Logan in the 156-pound class. He scored a pair of standing eight counts, and the referee stopped the bout with six seconds remaining. That moved Milton into the semifinals, and all semifinalists in boxing are assured of at least bronze medals.

Howard, from St. Louis, won a unanimous decision over Segundo Quintero of Ecuador in the 147-pound class.

Both U.S. basketball teams lost key players. Lataunya Pollard, the college women's player of the year with a 30-point average last season, flew home with an injured ankle, while men's forward Michael Cage left to be with his ailing father in Arkansas.

In shooting, Terry Anderson, 38, of Dallas captured the men's rapid fire pistol and led the Americans to a second team title. Jim Meredith of Fort Benning, Ga., scored a similar gold-medal double in men's air rifle, both with Pan Am records.

In baseball, Kevin Penner and Mark McGwire each hit three-run homers to lead the United States past Puerto Rico 11-2.

Coach Holtz claims

Maturity difference for 'Backs

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Maturity is the big difference between this year's Arkansas football team and the 1982 edition of the Razorbacks, says Coach Lou Holtz.

"Last year's team was mature," he said. "During the day, they would watch 'All My Children' and 'Search For Tomorrow.' This year's team watches 'Romper Room' and 'Captain Kangaroo.'

Old clubs used by tourney co-leader

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Victor Regalado had gotten pretty used to the old golf clubs he'd used since 1965, when he was a teenager.

But in June, just before the Western Open, he decided he needed a change and broke in a new set of clubs. Though he said he played well, "I wasn't scoring," Regalado said.

He missed the cut at the Western, tied for 53rd and 51st the following two weeks and hasn't made the cut in a Professional Golfers Association tournament for more than a month.

Regalado decided on Monday that he'd had it. He picked up his old clubs again. Three days later, he was one of four first-round leaders in the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

"I probably have more feel with the old clubs," Regalado said after shooting birdies on five of the last six holes he played Thursday for a 7-under-par 64 on a soggy Wethersfield Country Club course.

That tied him with Fred Couples, DeWitt Weaver and Payne Stewart.

"I've been playing with the old clubs since 1965, when I was 14 or 15," said the

"We're starting the season with a lot of unknowns. That doesn't bother me. I just hope they're not unknowns at the end of the season."

Ten of the Razorbacks' 22 starting spot figure to be filled by sophomores.

Gone are defensive end Billy Ray Smith, the fifth player taken in the National Football League draft; running back

Gary Anderson, a star in the United States Football League; guard Steve Korte, the first player selected by New Orleans in the NFL draft, and defensive back Danny Walters, a fourth-round pick. Also gone are center Jay Bequette, offensive tackle Alfred Mohammed and defensive linemen Richard Richardson and Earl Buckingham.

"If it were just the offensive line or just the receivers or just the running backs, it would be one thing, but there are so many question marks, there is trepidation," Holtz said.

In the offensive line, Holtz said, there are about a half-dozen players who have won his confidence. Up front on defense, Ron Fautot is the only experience. The other end should be Robert Brannon, a 6-foot-7, 248-pounder, who played basketball last fall. Four sophomores are in the secondary.

"Our linebackers would have to be the strength of our football team right now," he said. "It's probably the best group we've had since I've been here."

Bert Zinamon and Milton Fields were starters last year. Calvin Shaw played quite a bit. Mike Castleberry transferred from Oklahoma.

The four tailbacks in the Razobacks' I formation in the spring have a total of 21 carries. The top six rushers are gone from last year, as are the two top receivers —

Derek Holloway, who caught two scoring passes in the USFL championship game, and Anderson.

Quarterback Brad Taylor, brilliant at times behind Tom Jones during the past two years, is the No. 1 quarterback. "I can't think of anything more important to us or to his teammates than Brad Taylor having a good year," Holtz said. "It's going to be difficult because the supporting cast is young. When you lose 10 starters on offense, it's hard to put the whole thing together."

In six years, Holtz is 18-0 against competition outside the Southwest Conference. This fall, those three non-conference games could be the key to the Razorbacks' season.

They open against Tulsa in Fayetteville, then play New Mexico in Little Rock and Mississippi on the road. Tulsa's only loss last year was to Arkansas. New Mexico, with 18 starters returning, was 10-1.

Local residents attend annual reunion

One hundred fifty-seven registered at the 15th annual Urbanczyk reunion held Sunday in Thompson Park, Amarillo. The occasion, hosted by children of the late Felix Urbanczyk, was dedicated to Anton Urbanczyk and all his descendants. Pictures were viewed and stories exchanged in remembrance, which contributed to an enjoyable afternoon.

Family members and guests came from White Deer, Pampa, Panhandle, Groom, Vega, Hereford, Lubbock, Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Celina, Corpus Christi, Wichita Falls and Lefors in Texas, and Miami, Fla., and Tateyama, Japan.

Present from Hereford were Arhart and Edna Reinart; Sam and Leona Mazurek, Sammie, Mandy and Tori; Bridget and Angie Williams; Connie and Connie Urbanczyk, Heath and Chad; Al Dziuk; Irene and Ed Dziuk Sr.; Rosalie and Philip Stengel; Mark and Kathy Urbanczyk; Loretta and Tony Urbanczyk, Brian, Chris, Greg and Lori; Mary and Ed Dziuk Jr.; Aurelia (Bunny)

Urbanczyk; and Evelyn Morrison, Melanie and Mikey.

A memorial service was led by Tony Urbanczyk. Relatives who died the past year were Rosie Urbanczyk, Vincent Urbanczyk, Dick Ober and Alfred Diering. A short eulogy on each was given.

Clara Dillman from Pampa was recognized as the oldest descendant present and Charles Edward Dziuk from Amarillo as the youngest. Jonathan Urbanczyk from Miami, Fla., was the relative who traveled the farthest distance.

In 1910 the John Urbanczyks were the second family to move to White Deer. By the time his brothers Ben and Felix came in 1911, there were already six families in the new settlement. Their sister, Adela Bichsel, joined them in 1921 and is the only surviving member of Anton's family. She resides in St. Ann's Home, Panhandle.

A sister-in-law, Annie Urbanczyk, lives in Rhineland. Rosie Urbanczyk, John's wife, was buried a few days prior to the reunion. She would have been 90 in three weeks and up until 1981 never missed a reunion.

Anton Urbanczyk was 3 years old when he came with his parents to the United States in 1884 from upper Silesia, Poland. One hundred families boarded the 295-ton wooden bark WESSER and after a long 9-week voyage they reached Galveston.

They walked 200 miles along the Ox Cart Road toward San Antonio and eventually reached a spot 60 miles southeast of San Antonio where the first Polish Catholic colony, Panna Maria, was established.

By the turn of the century, the area around Panna Maria was overcrowded and the Urbanczyks and other families migrated to White Deer. For the 60th anniversary of dedication of the new Catholic Church in White Deer, the State of Texas historical marker was located in front of the church. It tells briefly the historical beginning of the immigration of Poles to Texas and their firm faith and love of God.

Greece presses tax dispute with Christina Onassis

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Christina Onassis' summer vacation on her private island has been marred this year by a tax dispute with Greece's Socialist government that could cost her more than $40 million in inheritance duties.

The government wants the 33-year-old shipping heiress to pay four billion drachmas — $44 million — in taxes on her late father's properties in Greece. They include luxurious villas, some undeveloped real estate and the island retreat of Scorpios off the western Greek coast.

Authorities say it is the biggest inheritance tax claim ever made in Greece. But Miss Onassis, according to her lawyers, is convinced she does not owe the Greek state any money.

Legal observers say it may reflect a hardening of official attitudes toward wealthy Greek expatriates who fly in occasionally on vacation but make few investments here.

"My client is being persecuted. She is being treated infinitely worse than the average Greek citizen," Stelios Papadimitriou, Miss Onassis' lawyer.

The plump, dark-haired heiress, who shuns publicity and rarely visits Greece, went to Scorpios early this month for a holiday with friends.

Her arrival coincided with a tax court rejection of her lawyers' request to defer starting death duty payments pending an appeal court hearing of the case.

"It is an unusually high amount, but given her substantial means Miss Onassis is able to pay," the court ruled.

She is required to pay $31 million in inheritance taxes and another $13.3 million in interest and fines for failing to file a Greek tax return after her father, Aristotle Onassis, died in 1975.

To help secure his claim, the court already has sequestered a one-acre lot near Athens that belongs to Miss Onassis.

But her lawyer claims that Miss Onassis is not liable to pay Greek taxes.

He said four Panama-based companies owned the Greek firms that controlled Aristotle Onassis' property in Greece. He added that Onassis, a Greek born in Turkey, held an Argentine passport and was never an official resident in Greece.

Onassis began building his shipping empire in the 1930s and after World War II married a daughter of Greek shipowner Stavros Livanos. He then became the brother-in-law of Stavros Niarchos, another shipping magnate, and the three men became a powerful force in the world's shipping industry.

Miss Onassis lives mostly in Paris and Switzerland. The Onassis business empire is run from London, New York and Monte Carlo. She carries a Greek passport.

From the legal point of view, there are no Onassis business interests in Greece, Papadimitriou said.

"The Panamanian company arrangement was typical of Onassis. He ran all his affairs like Chinese boxes — one company owning another and controlled by a third," said a former business associate who asked not to be named.

However, the Finance Ministry, which last year sent a special investigator to Panama, says the Panamanian companies were owned by Onassis at the time of his death.

It valued his Greek estate at $61 million.

"That was ridiculously high," Papadimitriou said. "Scorpios was estimated at more than $33 million."

Onassis bought the island in 1963 for $110,000. His daughter, who inherited it jointly with Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, the shipowner's second wife, paid an estimated $8 million to obtain full control of the property in 1975, family friends said.

When Onassis died, half his assets, valued then at $800 million, went to found a Lichtenstein-based charity, set up in memory of Alexander Onassis, the tycoon's only son, killed in an air crash in 1973. The foundation awards scholarships to Greeks studying abroad and will build a $35 million heart surgery center in Athens.

Miss Onassis, the tycoon's only daughter, received the bulk of the remainder, under the terms of his will.

According to the lawyer, the tax dispute won't prevent Miss Onassis from spending an annual vacation in Greece, but there have been cryptic hints that the activities of the foundation may be affected.

"Due to the harassment and abuse suffered through publicity, neither myself nor others concerned in my dispute shall be in a position to perform their duties undisturbed," Miss Onassis said in a statement issued earlier this year.

Government officials expect the case to drag on for years.

Man sleeps in evacuated hotel

HOUSTON (AP) - Guests at the downtown Hyatt Regency hotel had to step over broken glass and other debris and get past hotel employees urging everyone to stay out of their rooms Thursday morning as Hurricane Alicia crashed through town.

Hotel workers feared more of the high-rise structure's huge plate glass windows would shatter and endanger guests in their rooms. Most guests heeded their warnings and remained in lounge areas downstairs or left town.

But I had not slept for more than 24 hours, and I had about six hours to kill before I had to return to the Associated Press bureau a few blocks away.

Hotel workers permitted me to get past them and go to my 19th floor room after I told them I just wanted "to get something."

All utilities remained on in the hotel, but managers turned off the elevators as a safety precaution. So I had to walk up the fire exit stairs to my 19th floor room, and after that the king-sized bed in Room 1919 looked more inviting than ever.

The plate glass window in my hotel room was covered by a double curtain, and I did not see any great danger, especially when compared with the pleasure of a few hours of sleep. Seemed to me the real danger would be to someone on the street beneath my room.

I had told the hotel guard I came to my room to get something, and that was not a lie - I came to get a few hours of sleep. It was 7:45 a.m. I crawled between the sheets and closed my eyes. Sleep came quickly. But it didn't last long.

About an hour later, I was waked up by a banging at my door.

"Sir! You'll have to leave," a man's voice shouted.

"I'm not leaving," I shouted back from my bed, angry at the intrusion.

"All right," the man's voice said. He left.

I went back to sleep. About an hour after that, another banging on the door.

"Sir, if you're going to stay, you'll have to sign a disclaimer."

Sleepily, I came to the door and signed a document that I did not even read. It had words like "hold harmless" and "indemnify" and apparently released the Hyatt Regency of any liability, which sounded fair enough to me.

I went back to sleep. About two hours later someone with a pass key banged on my door, reached in and turned the lights on without explanation, and left. By then it was 1 p.m. I got dressed and walked down 19 floors to the lobby.

I asked the desk clerk for a room on a lower floor so I wouldn't have so far to climb, but was told there would be no room changing until the evacuation order is lifted.

A hotel floor manager told me stiffly that I shouldn't be in the hotel in the first place, but I told him I had signed a disclaimer. He said walking up 19 floors should help discourage me from returning to my room.

Drug has side effects

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 20-year-old female with a very noticeable problem - bad acne. I've had it for seven years. I've been given a prescription by my dermatologist that he says will cure me in four months. The drug is Accutane.

It's new on the market. I realize there are bad side effects such as dryness of the mouth, eyes and nose. He also told me not to get pregnant while on this drug or I might create a "monster."

I haven't taken any pills because I worry that, if this drug is powerful enough to damage an unborn child, what will it do to my body five years from now?

What are the chances of my having a normal child in the future? Will the drug give me cancer later in life? Your advice would be greatly appreciated.

DEAR READER - It is a personal choice because acne will not harm your health, only your appearance. That can be very devastating to some people and it depends upon how much it affects your appearance.

The medicine is not for everyone by any means. It is not for the usual case of acne. It is as powerful as you suggest and it has enough bad side effects, mostly related to its causing dryness of the skin, to make you pause and think about using it unless you have a severe problem.

This new medicine is a derivative of vitamin A. There is no evidence that it will cause cancer. And while it can cause birth defects if taken during pregnancy, there is no evidence that it will have any such effect on future pregnancies. So don't refuse to take the medicine for those reasons. Individuals with the usual degree of acne should first use all other methods to control the problem. These are outlined in The Health Letter 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Only when these measures fail and a person has severe cystic acne should Accutane be used.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Several months ago I was hospitalized with chest pains. After several tests my doctor ruled out a heart attack. His diagnosis was that I had pericarditis. I would like to know more about this. What causes it? I still get the chest pains but they do not last very long. I'm not taking any medicine.

DEAR READER - The pericardium is a sac around the heart. It looks like plastic wrapping material. One layer is plastered to the surface of the heart. The other layer is the loose-fitting sac around the heart that holds a small amount of fluid.

When the sac, the pericardium, is inflamed, it is called pericarditis. It usually involves the surface of the heart itself as well.

Such inflammations are usually viral, but they can be caused by chemical irritation as well. And some of the pericardium is often inflamed immediately after a heart attack.

The pain is usually different from a heart attack in that it is affected by respiration. And in most cases there is complete recovery without medicines.

Wash plaster wall

DEAR POLLY - I have an unpainted plaster wall that has gotten slightly soiled. Is there any way to clean it? - MRS. B.N.

DEAR MRS. B.N. - Unpainted plaster can be washed with a warm water and detergent solution and a rough sponge. If the soil is greasy, wash with one-quarter cup ammonia in a quart of water. After either the detergent or ammonia cleaning, rinse with clear water. Allow to dry thoroughly. A coating of thinned shellac would protect the plaster and make the wall easier to clean in the future. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - I don't care for the odor of frying fish, so I prepare it this odorless way. I put the raw fish in a bowl and sprinkle it liberally with lemon juice all over. I let it soak for a couple of minutes, then let it dry on a paper towel for another minute or two. Now the fish is ready to fry without any odor. - MRS. P.R.

DEAR POLLY - When using cake mix, omit two tablespoons water and add two tablespoons cooking oil. The cake will rise higher and stay moist longer. - MRS. E.L.B.

DEAR POLLY - Here's a way to protect the fancy frosting on a cake when you have to transport it. Cut a waxed paper cup into rings. Place a ring on top of the center of the cake and one on each corner. Then cover the cake with waxed paper. The rings will hold the paper off of the frosting. - MRS. N.

DEAR POLLY - A recent Pointer recommended straining and saving mixed liquid pesticides. Most pesticide manufacturers recommend mixing only what you use at one time. Certain concentrated materials change in keeping quality when mixed with water. As they age, they may become less effective or even toxic and dangerous. Also, storage in an unlabeled container can lead to accidental poisoning. Please advise all your readers to keep spray materials in the original containers and read and follow label instructions carefully. - J.S., agricultural consultant
