

Murder defendant's statement ruled admissable

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

A statement given by murder defendant Eloy Garcia Fuentes was ruled admissable as evidence by 222nd District Judge David Wesley Gulley this morning at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse in Hereford.

The trial began Tuesday after a lengthy review of potential jurors. A nine woman, three man jury was announced at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Actions accusing Fuentes, 27, of the Feb. 4 murder of Robert Lee Youngblood of Amarillo are currently underway in 222nd District Court. The first day of proceedings included lengthy jury selection and a hearing on a defense motion to suppress the witness' statement. The statement was made by Fuentes to officers shortly after his arrest on Feb. 18.

Almost immediately after taking their seats in the jury box, members of the jury were sequestered away from the courtroom. Judge Gulley then heard testimony and reviewed evidence concerning the admissability of Fuentes' statement.

Judge Gulley postponed his decision concerning Fuentes' statement until court reconvened at 9 a.m. today.

This morning Gulley ruled that the statement was admissable as evidence.

Defense attorney J. Edward Line contended that Fuentes was not given adequate opportunity to obtain legal representation before giving his statement to Texas Ranger Alvin Schmidt and Deaf Smith County Deputy Jimmy Hudgens.

"The defendant never asserted his right to an attorney," said District Attorney Roland Saul during the hearing's closing arguments.

During questioning of witnesses, Saul brought out the fact that Fuentes was repeatedly informed of his rights, including the right to the presence of an attorney during questioning and the right to terminate an interview at any time.

Line countered that Fuentes had expressed an interest in counsel, but an attorney was not obtained for him.

Fuentes took the stand on his own behalf as defense and prosecution attorneys attempted to clarify the exact sequence of events following the man's arrest up until the time he gave his statement. Much of the focus during examination and cross-examination dealt with the exact phrasing Fuentes used in reference to his right to an attorney.

Investigation in the case, which eventually led to Fuentes' arrest, began last February. A local farmer found the frozen body of Robert Lee Youngblood 19 miles northwest of Hereford. Both Fuentes and Alfredo Montoyo were accused of beating Youngblood during a robbery and then abandoning the 61-year-old man along the roadside during freezing weather.

Montoyo pleaded guilty on Oct. 16 and was sentenced to 60 years in prison.

While a suspect in the case, Fuentes was arrested in Plainview on Feb. 18, by Ranger Schmidt and Deputy Hudgens. The original arrest was made on two different traffic warrants out of Amarillo.

Before dismissing the jury from the first day of proceedings, Judge Gulley admonished jury members to build a "shell" around each of them. No jury member is to discuss the case with anyone nor are they to read any article or listen to any newscast relating to the trial.

Rose will seek return to office

Austin Rose, Deaf Smith County Commissioner for Precinct 2, announced Tuesday his intention to file for reelection early in December.

AUSTIN ROSE

Rose has lived in Deaf Smith County most of his life. Rose pointed out that during his tenure, he has secured several grants which funded a variety of needs in the county.

He is immediate past president of the West Texas County Judges' and Commissioners' Association, served as chairman of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission for six years, and is presently serving as a director of the Texas Association of Counties.

Rose also serves on a 7-member statewide committee that plans and oversees the continuing education program for county commissioners. The 1989 Legislature enacted a law requiring each commissioner to receive six hours of classroom credit each year.

Treasured ornament

Elaine McNutt and her son, Wade, display her handpainted Christmas ball to be hung on the Christmas tree at the governor's mansion in Austin. The scene is of the E.B. Black House built in Hereford in 1909. Ruth McBride, chairman of the Historical Commission of Deaf Smith County, was recently contacted by the Friends of the Governor's Mansion and asked to participate in the statewide tree decorating project.

Special ornament to hang in Austin

A special ornament depicting the E.B. Black House in Hereford will hang on the Christmas tree in the Governor's Mansion in Austin.

Elaine McNutt painted the house, which has been honored with an official Texas historical marker detailing its history.

She was commissioned by Ruth McBride, chairman of the Deaf Smith County Historical Commission, to paint the ornament.

Over half of Texas' counties will have ornaments on the tree, which will be unveiled during an open house at the mansion and remain on the tree for viewing by the general public throughout the Christmas season.

East Germans turn down offer

EAST BERLIN (AP) - Communist Party leader Egon Krenz strongly rejected Chancellor Helmut Kohl's call for an eventually united Germany but welcomed the West German leader's proposal for closer cooperation.

In a rare moment of agreement with the embattled Communist leadership, some prominent East German dissidents also said they opposed reunification.

After Kohl made his proposal on Tuesday, Krenz said a united Germany could conjure fears of a Nazi-era Germany, "and I know no one in the world who would like such a Germany."

Many Europeans worry that with its economic and political might, a reunited Germany of 80 million people would dominate the continent. Germany was divided into two states after the Nazi defeat in World War II.

The prospect of reunification seemed distant less than a month ago, but sweeping changes in East Germany have revived the idea.

With East Germans disillusioned with Communist rule fleeing in droves and taking to the streets by the hundreds of thousands, the party leadership ousted hard-liner Erich Honecker last month and launched a radical program of reforms with the promise of free elections.

DOE: Nevada site won't open before 2010

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Energy Department says it will be 2010 before the nation's first permanent dump for highly radioactive nuclear waste opens - seven years later than the original date.

"The plan I'm announcing sets the operating date for a repository at 2010 and assumes that there will be no unexpected setbacks in the program's progress and that the science proves that Yucca Mountain is a suitable site," Deputy Energy Secretary Henson Moore said in a speech Tuesday night.

"I am convinced that the 2003 date was driven more by a political desire than by science or engineering," Moore told the American Nuclear Society and the U.S. Council for Energy Awareness, a nuclear industry group, in San Francisco. A copy of the speech was released in Washington.

Moore also said the department would:

- Seek to sue Nevada to force granting of permits for certain tests at the Yucca Mountain site near Las Vegas that the department is considering.
- Delay sinking exploratory shafts at Yucca Mountain.
- Ask Congress to let it build an interim storage facility before the permanent depot is in hand.

The department is required by law to take title in 1998 to the highly radioactive spent fuel stored at more than 100 operating civilian nuclear power plants.

The 1982 legislation establishing the waste repository program envisioned that a waste depot able to hold spent fuel for 10,000 years would be in operation in 1998.

The department has long wanted a plant, capable of temporary storage, to package the waste for permanent storage and ship it to the permanent repository.

A temporary storage depot is called "monitored retrievable storage," or MRS. Congress, fearing an MRS plant would end up being the permanent repository, has forbidden construction of such a plant until the permanent repository is too far along to be stopped.

"By decoupling the MRS option from the permanent repository, the department could be able to accept spent fuel from utilities in 1998, or soon thereafter," and would be able to show that it can package, ship and handle the spent fuel safely, Moore said.

He said the department will delay shaft-sinking until 1992 and "perform only surface-based testing," starting in 1991, to make sure there is nothing that would rule out Yucca Mountain before the expensive shafts are undertaken.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission told the department this summer that it should delay sinking the shafts until it understood better the earthquake and volcanic potential of the site.

Moore said the department had not received its first state air and land use permits two years after requesting them, and the state was refusing to consider the federal applications. The state Legislature has passed a bill forbidding the storage of nuclear waste in the state.

"This is not a reasonable response but one we can only conclude is driven by politics and a lack of desire to cooperate in the proper scientific evaluation of the site. Court is not our preferred course of action, but enough is enough," Moore said in announcing that the department had asked the Justice Department to sue for the needed permits.

Soviets really are loosening: almost everyone laughing at Gorbachev

MOSCOW (AP) - The actor stuck out his chin, pursed his lips and flipped his wrist in a questioning gesture - and the laughter that exploded from the disbelieving audience proved everyone knew who he was supposed to be.

Only one person, a young woman in third row center at Moscow's Satire Theater, bent her head and appeared more traumatized than amused by the parody of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

She was his daughter, Irina. Clearly upset, she left Friday night's performance of emigre writer Vladimir Voinovich's courtroom comedy, "The Tribunal," before the curtain call.

But if she could not laugh at her father, the rest of the audience could, in a way they could never publicly laugh at a Soviet leader before.

In one of the ironies of Gorbachev's policy of glasnost, or greater openness, he has become the butt of jokes by a growing group of fearless comics, who once could not have dreamed of mocking the country's leader - at least not in public and not while he was alive.

"The Tribunal" is not especially biting. The new "court chairman," played by Vyacheslav Bezrukov, speaks with a southern Russian accent that turns g's into h's, darts his eyes constantly, and proposes a commission as the best solution to festering injustice.

The light mockery would roll off the back of a Western leader accustomed to unflattering caricatures and tasteless scatological jokes. But it is still scandalous in Moscow.

Even the outspoken host of one of Soviet television's most daring programs, "Vzglyad," or Glance, said in a recent broadcast that when he heard a mild joke about Gorbachev on the nightly news, "my heart jumped."

"It's hard to get used to relating to state leaders without standing at attention," Alexander Lyubimov said.

GORBACHEV

The broadcast featured Moscow comic Mikhail Grushevsky, who performed a telephone imitation of Gorbachev that captured not only his throaty timbre and homey style but his habit of speaking in fits and starts and veering off from phrases before finishing them.

"Telephone is not the best way to communicate," Grushevsky's Gorbachev said. "Although, you know, sometimes it's also a way to solve some kind of knotty problem and some, so to speak, to move ahead..."

Grushevsky said his audiences seem to laugh partly because they are so unaccustomed to hearing the voices of political leaders coming from the stage.

"And some laughter comes from relief, that it's OK, that the concert is going on and no one will come afterward and take me away," he told Lyubimov. "Now people have started to get used to it, and thank God for that."

The Satire Theater's 80-year-old artistic director, Valentin Pluchek, said authorities have closed him down often in the past when shows were too politically salty, but he didn't expect that kind of trouble any longer.

"That's all over," Pluchek said after Friday's performance of "The Tribunal."

Told that Gorbachev's daughter was in the audience, Pluchek's wife, Zinaida, warned, "Now Papa will come and forbid it."

But Pluchek dismissed her worries.

"He shouldn't be offended," he said. "We respect him. In a democratic society, an artist should have the right to make a friendly caricature of the leader."

Several days later, the theater director, Alexander Levinsky, said he had not received any reprimands from above.

Legislature may face judicial reform

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas lawmakers could reform judicial elections in 48 hours if they put their mind to it, says a state Supreme Court justice and former state senator.

"I have every confidence in this Legislature ... that once a problem is called to their attention, and they understand the gravity of the situation, they will do whatever a majority thinks is appropriate to solve that problem," Justice Oscar Mauzy said Tuesday.

"This Legislature in 48 hours, if they make up their mind to do something, they can get it done. I've seen us write and pass entire appropriations bills in 48 hours," Mauzy said after testifying to the House Committee on Judicial Affairs.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton ruled this month that the at-large system of electing judges in nine urban counties violates the federal Voting Rights Act by diluting black and Hispanic votes. The counties are Dallas, Tarrant, Harris, Bexar, Ector, Jefferson, Lubbock, Midland and Travis.

Those who brought the lawsuit have said judges should be elected from single-member districts, but Bunton did not order such a system. Instead, he urged lawmakers to change the judicial election system during the current special session, which Gov. Bill Clements called to address workers' compensation reform.

Bunton said he would consider halting further elections in early January if the Legislature has not made progress on the issue by then.

Clements has said he would look at adding judicial selection to the session agenda, which he controls, after lawmakers address workers' compensation reform.

House Speaker Gib Lewis has said lawmakers may need another special session to do the job.

Mauzy - who last month wrote an opinion for the Supreme Court ordering an overhaul of the Texas public school finance system - said it is too bad courts have become heavily involved in legislative issues.

If Clements does not open the special session to judicial selection reform, he will bear responsibility for the consequences, Mauzy said.

Luce touts importance of TV ads in upcoming gubernatorial race

AUSTIN (AP) - Campaign officials for Republican gubernatorial candidate Tom Luce said television advertising will be extremely important during the GOP primary, but that the public is getting fed up with negative ads.

Jim Oberwetter, co-chairman of the Luce campaign, said Luce's new ads, coupled with a mail out to 650,000 Republican households, will increase his name identification just as a group of ads boosted Midland oilman Clayton Williams' popularity, another GOP candidate for governor.

But Oberwetter said negative advertising, especially if the primary results in a runoff, "is very risky business."

Oberwetter said a candidate who uses negative ads will have a tough time of picking up support from the losing candidates during the runoff.

The Luce campaign unveiled three television ads it said will run in seven major markets over the next two weeks.

The ads focus on Luce's successful lobbying for education reforms in 1984 and his "problem solving" abilities, such as when he worked for the release of two of H. Ross Perot's employees who were taken hostage in Iran.

"He's a can-do kind of a guy. The kind of person you can call on when you've got a problem," said John Deardourff, of the Falls Church, Va.-based firm of Bailey, Deardourff & Associates Television Production.

The GOP field for governor also includes Texas Railroad Commission

Chairman Kent Hance and former secretary of state Jack Rains.

Mona Palmer, a spokeswoman for Williams, said the campaign bought five more days of television time at a cost of $200,000.

Oberwetter declined to say how much Luce's TV ads would cost, but said the campaign will spend $2 million to $3 million in advertising before the March 13 primary.

Deardourff said the ads are simply to get Luce's name before the public. He said support in the race for any particular candidate is "very mushy, very soft."

In other developments:

- U.S. Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, introduced legislation to take 10 percent, or $16 billion, the U.S. spends in defending Europe, Japan and other allies and reallocate the funds for law enforcement education. Bryant is a Democratic candidate in the race for Texas Attorney General.

- Ken Boatwright, a Republican candidate for Texas Agriculture Commissioner, blasted incumbent Jim Hightower, saying the Democrat asked the Legislature to relax laws on inspecting weights and measures, such as in service station gasoline pumps.

Andy Welch, a spokesman for Hightower, said the laws were relaxed because the newer high-tech gasoline pumps are tamper-resistant and don't need to be inspected annually. He said the department will inspect a pump every day if there were complaints.

- Gov. Mark White scheduled news conferences today in several cities to announce his Democratic candidacy for governor.

Ignored problems leave trail of government waste

WASHINGTON (AP) - Seven years after Congress sought to improve government management, major problems still are ignored or corrected slowly, leaving a "seemingly never-ending" multibillion-dollar legacy of waste, a watchdog agency said today.

"Management deficiencies, program abuses and illegal activities cost the taxpayers billions of dollars and undermine their confidence in government," the General Accounting Office said.

"This situation is unacceptable under any circumstance but becomes even more serious in light of overwhelming budget deficits," said GAO, the investigative arm of Congress.

The GAO's chief, Comptroller General Charles A. Bowsher, said in testimony prepared for a hearing today that the Office of Management and Budget had taken recent steps to demand improved agency management, but said the OMB alone could not do enough.

GAO said it found that myriad examples of mismanagement, fraud, waste and abuse had been uncovered in annual assessments of government agencies required under the 1982 Financial Integrity Act.

But many of the problems persist years after being identified, the report said, blaming a lack of agency leadership, shortsighted decision-making and a failure of Congress and the White House to aggressively oversee government management.

"There is a seemingly never-ending and costly trail of mismanagement, abuse and illegal acts involving federal programs," the GAO said in the report to the Senate Government Affairs Committee. "Most of the problems are known, and in many instances have been known for years, but they remain uncorrected."

Bowsher said GAO had decided to launch a government-wide review to identify areas most ripe for abuse. He called on Congress to expand its oversight and to demand evidence of improved financial management as part of the budget-writing process. GAO also suggested a businesslike approach to government management, recommending creation of a chief financial officer for the government as a whole and for each major agency, and requiring them to submit detailed annual reports to Congress and to outside auditors.

Hints from Heloise

BATH HELP

Dear Heloise: Because I have arthritis, I sometimes have trouble getting out of the bathtub. I have metal guard rails around the tub, but they get slippery from the moisture and I don't like to take a chance on falling. I've found a handy trick, though.

I wet a terry washcloth or small towel and hang it over the rail. It won't slip and it gives me a good grip on the bars. I use another on the side of the tub, too, for extra security. They're always handy and I feel a lot safer. — Spry Senior Citizen, Dearborn, Mich.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite a nervous Park Service lift operator, first lady Barbara Bush managed to get close enough to the National Christmas Tree to crown it with a white plastic star.

In front of the press corps and preschool playmates of her 3 1/2-year-old granddaughter, Marshall Bush, Mrs. Bush took a bumpy ride in a hydraulic lift to the top of the 35-foot tree where she used a silver pole to place the star.

When the ride down was briefly halted, Marshall called out cheerfully, but insistently, "Hey, when are we going down? Get me down here!"

Back on the ground, Mrs. Bush took Marshall to pose for a picture with lift operator Kevin Guard.

"I thought she was coming over to chew me out," Guard said later. "She just said thanks."

Lady Whitefaces fall, 30-22, to Levelland in District 1-4A play

The Hereford Lady Whitefaces opened the District 1-4A season Tuesday with a 30-22 loss to four-time defending state champion Levelland Loboettes at Whiteface Gym.

"We played really well," Coach Dickie Fought said. "We played smart and kept our heads in the game and still had a chance to win in the last few minutes."

Stacy White led the Herd with nine points, all on three-point field goals, while Shanel Cornelius had six and Chandra Brown four. Brienna Townsend added a three-pointer.

Levelland's Twylana Harrison led all scorers with 10 points with Michelle Echols getting nine.

In other Hereford High School basketball games, the junior varsity girls dropped Levelland, 32-28, while the varsity and JV boys both lost at Dimmitt, 95-50 in the varsity contest and 63-48 in the JV.

The Lady Whitefaces and Loboettes opened the game intent on establishing a half-court game. The result was a 4-0 Levelland lead on field goals by Tammy Fine before Chandra Brown put the Herd on the board nearly five minutes into the contest. White gave Hereford the lead with her first three-pointer with seven seconds left in the quarter.

Brown and White repeated their scores in the second quarter but the Loboettes regained the lead as Echols scored five points and Harrison three. A late bucket by Brittany King gave Levelland a 14-10 halftime lead.

The Herd added another five points to their score in the third period with Townsend hitting for three and Cornelius for two to keep pace with the Loboettes. Hereford had a chance to cut the margin to two with the last shot of the quarter, but Harrison stole Townsend's pass and went in unmolested to make the score 21-15.

Hereford never got closer than three points after that and Levelland put the game away by hitting five of six free throws in the final quarter.

For the game, Hereford shot 36 percent, hitting nine of 25 shots. Levelland hit 11 field goals, all from two-point range, out of 28 attempts. The difference in the game came at the free-throw line, where the Loboettes were eight of 11 while Hereford never shot from the charity stripe.

The Lady Whitefaces are now 3-4 on the year and 0-1 in district. They will face Nazareth in the first round of the Canyon Invitational Tournament on Thursday.

Lady Whiteface JV 32, Levelland 28

The Lady Whiteface junior varsity ran its record to 2-1 in holding off Levelland.

Hereford was led by Melinda Holmes with 10 points while Jennifer Hicks had eight and Brek Binder six.

Teresa Baker and Lori Sanders each added three points and Lindsey Radford had two.

Levelland was led by Shelley Swackhammer and Amy Reasoner, both with eight points.

Hereford took a 9-6 lead after the first quarter, but Levelland outscored the Herd, 10-4, in the second to take the halftime lead.

Hereford returned the favor in the third period as Hicks and Holmes had four points each while holding the Loboettes to four points.

The junior varsity girls will meet the Vega varsity in the first round of the Vega Tournament this weekend. Dimmitt 95, Herd 50

The Whiteface varsity dropped its second game of the season by a large margin, but Coach Jimmy Thomas said improvement was made.

"We hustled all game long and played hard," he said. "We stayed pretty close to them for the first quarter, then they started hitting three-point bombs with people in their faces."

Hereford was led by Dee Nall's 17 points while the Bobcats had four players in double figures.

Russell Backus and Leo Brown added eight points apiece for the Herd while Chris Steward had five and Anthony Tijerina four. Keith Kelso, Chuck Lemons, Chad Schroeder and Matt Bromlow each scored two points.

The Herd will compete in the Amarillo Tournament over the weekend. Dimmitt 63, Herd JV 48

The Hereford junior varsity opened its season with the contest.

Andrew Tijerina scored 14 points to lead the Herd while Ben Weatherly and Miguel Casas added eight each. Chris Blair scored seven, Blake Buckley six, and Jerry Hardisty five.

The JV will spend the weekend at the Vega Tournament.

Free agent market booming with high-dollar contracts

NEW YORK (AP) - Fiscal restraint is out, wild spending is in. It's back to the old days for baseball salaries and the prices are even higher.

Rickey Henderson broke the three-year contract barrier that had been in place since 1985 when he agreed Tuesday to re-sign with the Oakland Athletics for $12 million over four years.

Bryn Smith, a 34-year-old right-hander with an 81-71 career record, left the Montreal Expos and signed a $6 million, three-year contract with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Candy Maldonado, a 29-year-old outfielder who batted .217 last season with the San Francisco Giants, signed a one-year, $825,000 contract with the Cleveland Indians. The Giants signed infielder Dave Anderson away from the Los Angeles Dodgers with a two-year deal.

"What we have right now," Expos president Claude Brochu said, "is a market that's out of control."

The market got an additional player Tuesday, when California Angels catcher Lance Parrish was declared a "new look" free agent by George Nicolau, baseball's impartial arbitrator. Parrish, part of the second collusion case, has until Jan. 8 to sign with a new team or return to the Angels.

Henderson got the big deal of the day, perhaps the most significant in four years. No club had given a guaranteed contract for more than three years since Oct. 11, 1985, when Ken Oberkfell and the Atlanta Braves reached a $3 million, four-year agreement.

"It's welcome news, and one of the things we've been looking for: returning to contracting patterns of past years," Donald Fehr, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, said.

Since Oberkfell's deal, two arbitrators have found clubs guilty of conspiring against free agents. A third collusion grievance was filed and is pending. The union claims salaries were suppressed by millions.

Henderson's deal came less than 24 hours after Barry Rona, accused by the union of being one of the architects of collusion along with former Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, resigned as head of the owners' Player Relations Committee.

"Who knows, if there wasn't collusion, how high the salaries would be now," said Am Tellum, the agent for free-agent pitcher Mark Langston. "I still believe there's an effect on this market, that players are being damaged by prior years' collusion."

Henderson, a Bay area resident, said the reason he re-signed with the Athletics was simple.

"My heart was set on playing in Oakland," he said. "I love Oakland. Deep down inside, I felt I probably would be playing here no matter what the terms."

Henderson, the Most Valuable Player of the American League playoffs, joined Kirby Puckett as a $3 million player. Henderson, who made $1.95 million in 1989, gets a $1 million signing bonus, a $2 million salary in 1990 and salaries of $3 million in the 1991, 1992 and 1993 seasons.

While Henderson's deal was monumental, Smith's was shocking. He was 10-11 in 1989 with a 2.84 earned-run average and made $550,000. His contract with St. Louis calls for a $500,000 signing bonus, $200,000 to cover relocation expenses, $1.4 million in 1990, $1.9 million in 1991 and $2 million in 1992.

"I'm still kind of stunned by the whole thing," Smith said. "It's taken 15 years to finally get something that I've been searching for."

Montreal owner Charles Bronfman was outraged. Last week, his team lost pitcher Pascual Perez, who signed with the New York Yankees for $5.7 million over three years. Langston also left the Expos, rejecting a $10 million, three-year offer.

"People are being financially irresponsible," Bronfman said. "I mean, you can have bidding for players but you don't have to be a damned fool about it."

Hanifan named to head Falcons for rest of year

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP) - Jim Hanifan knows up front he's on a limited run in his second stint as an NFL head coach. He says it doesn't bother him that he won't be considered for the Atlanta Falcons job for the 1990 season.

"Not at all," Hanifan said Tuesday after being named interim coach of the Falcons when Marion Campbell announced his immediate retirement.

Hanifan, 56, has been Campbell's assistant head coach, handling the offensive line. He was head coach of the St. Louis Cardinals from 1980-85, compiling a 39-49 record and taking the team to the playoffs in 1982.

Campbell, 60, decided to call it quits after Sunday's 27-7 loss to the New York Jets, a setback that came just two days after rookie tackle Ralph Norwood was killed in an automobile accident.

Campbell, in his second tour as Atlanta coach, stepped down with an NFL record of 34-80-1 in a career that spanned six full seasons and parts of three others. He was in the final year of a three-year contract.

Campbell was head coach of the Falcons from 1974-1976 and coached the Philadelphia Eagles from 1983-85.

Ware, Bailey make All-America team

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Colorado and Notre Dame, who will meet in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night, each placed three players on the 46th annual All-America team announced today by the Football Writers Association of America.

Defensive end Alfred Williams, offensive lineman Joe Garten and punter Tom Rouen were chosen from top-ranked Colorado. Notre Dame was represented by defensive lineman Chris Zorich, defensive back Todd Lyght and split end Raghib Ismail, who was selected as a kick return specialist.

The team is loaded with underclassmen. There are 11 juniors and two sophomores, a contrast from a year ago when only seven juniors made the team. All of the Colorado and Notre Dame choices have at least one year of eligibility remaining.

Southern Cal and Duke each placed two players on the team. The Southern Cal picks were defensive lineman Tim Ryan and defensive back Mark Carrier, while Duke had wide receiver Clarkston Hines and offensive lineman Chris Port chosen.

Ryan, Hines and Indiana tailback Anthony Thompson were the only three repeaters. Thompson was joined in the backfield by Emmitt Smith of Florida and Johnny Bailey of Texas A&I, a Division II school.

The team's quarterback is Andre Ware of Houston.

Oilers, Vikings struggle

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

One of the more popular projected Super Bowl matchups when the NFL season started was the Houston Oilers and Minnesota Vikings.

And that was before the Vikings acquired Herschel Walker.

Three-fourths of the way home, with each team 7-5, it's clear that each may be carrying too much excess baggage to make it to New Orleans. In the Vikings' case, it's Walker; in the Oilers' case, it's a well-deserved reputation for foul play.

Sunday provided perfect examples of each team's problems.

The Vikings lost their second straight 1-point game - 20-19 to Green Bay, following a 10-9 defeat in Philadelphia.

The Oilers, who haven't won three straight since 1985, were embarrassed 34-0 at Kansas City, their fourth road loss in six games. It was a game that turned on a penalty against Coach Jerry Glanville, the guy who encourages all that "House of Pain" stuff.

In fact, after a season-high 16 penalties for 115 yards, Houston moved ahead of the Los Angeles Raiders, traditionally the league leader in penalty yardage.

"I've been coaching for 26 years and I've never been penalized," Glanville said. "But you cause your own problems."

This time, the key play came with

DALLAS (AP) - The 1990 Mobil Cotton Bowl classic is a sellout, officials said.

Ticket manager Marty MacInnis said Monday there are no tickets remaining for the Jan. 1 contest.

Arkansas, the Southwest Conference champion, will meet eighth-ranked Tennessee (9-1 and 5-1 in the Southeastern Conference). The ninth-ranked Razorbacks (9-1 and 6-1 in the SWC) will represent the conference for the second year in a row.

Herd's All-District First Teamers

Eight of the Hereford Whitefaces on the 1989 playoff team captured first-team berths on the 1-4A All-District team as selected by the coaches. Clockwise are offensive picks Matt Bromlow, running back; quarterback Jason Walterscheid, receiver Russell Backus, center Chris Solomon, tackle Anthony Tijerina and guard Benny Gonzales; and defensive picks Aaron Savage (MVP) and defensive back George Madrigal.

the Chiefs leading 3-0 in the first period and, ironically, involved quarterback Warren Moon, the most peacable of Oilers and a man who has publicly rebuked his teammates for their rough stuff.

After Walker Lee Ashley intercepted his pass, Moon got into a shoving match with Kansas City's Derrick Thomas. Moon was called for a penalty, although Thomas apparently initiated the shoving. When Glanville protested, he too was flagged, and the ball ended up on the Houston 8-yard line, setting up a touchdown that put the Chiefs up 10-0.

"I definitely think that play had an impact on the game," Thomas said. "I think it raised our intensity level."

That's one problem with the Oilers' style - it invariably fires up opponents. Moreover, it leaves officials looking more closely at the Oilers. If Moon was unjustly penalized for a fracas started by Thomas, Glanville was only reaping what he had sown. He's the one who tacitly encourages rough play.

The Vikings? A team with nine Pro Bowlers last season, they added Mike Merriweather in the off-season and acquired Walker from Dallas seven games ago in return for six players and as many as six draft choices.

Yet the Vikings are just 4-3 in those seven games and they simply find ways to lose - both when they use Walker and when they don't. It's almost one of those cases of "whatever can go wrong will go wrong."

Leading Philadelphia 9-3 in the fourth quarter a week ago, for example, Walker burst loose for 13 yards, running the ball out of a deep hole on the Minnesota 5. But with the ball at the 44, he fumbled, setting up what turned out to be the winning touchdown.

He wasn't in the game in the final two minutes, when the Vikings moved to the Philadelphia 36.

After being criticized for underutilizing Walker, Coach Jerry Burns turned to him with Green Bay leading 20-16, the ball on the Packers' 6-yard line and six minutes left. He carried three times to the 1, then Burns decided to kick a field goal that made it 20-19. There it stayed, although even if the Vikings hadn't scored, the Packers would have been bottled up.

"We knew they were going to give him the ball because they gave up all those guys to get him," said Blaise Winter, one of the swarm of Packers who barely stopped Walker on third down. "I was glad they decided to go for the field goal."

Especially since the Packers won. It was another example that, for the Vikings and the Oilers, whatever can go wrong, will go wrong.

Hereford area boasts best pheasant hunting in Texas

16-day season more than seasonal sport, it's a time when country folks roll out welcome mats for city cousins

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

Predawn breakfasts and tall tales over coffee on the second Saturday of December will mark the opening of the 1989 High Plains pheasant hunting season, a 16-day run which has been called the 13th month for the Panhandle tourist business.

The post-harvest sport has also become an added cash crop for area farmers and ranchers who have joined the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department rangers in setting up hunting leases for the winged game.

Though Texas hunting leases alone are expected to total over more than a million dollars, the big business in pheasant hunting is found in the sporting goods stores and highway drive-ins—motels, restaurants and service stations.

Though hunter head-counts are difficult to establish, it is estimated that more than 10,000 non-resident hunters will make tracks in Panhandle soil during the 16-day Texas pheasant hunting season that runs Dec. 9 to Dec. 24. Bag limit is two per day, possession four.

As an added service to both landowners and hunters, a Texas Hunting Clearinghouse was established in 1986 to link hunters with available hunting leases. As an example of its popularity, the Clearinghouse in its first year of operation catalogued more than 5,000 hunters and 1,000 landowners. The statewide unit is operated jointly by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, the Texas Farm Crises Hotline and the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Hunting leases vary with the type of game, with a price range as wide as Texas—from $10 to $1,000 per gun...and from the exotic game ranges of the Texas Hill Country.

Though a county-by-county lease estimate was not available, the TDA recently reported that almost 5 million acres of land had been placed under hunting leases, generating a multimillion-dollar cash flow for Texas. Landowners or land operators must record and report all game, taken from their land under hunter lease, to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

But pheasant hunting in the Golden Triangle of the Greater Hereford area is more than just another seasonal sport—it's a time when country folks roll out welcome mats for their city cousins. Nearly every town and hamlet from the Oklahoma Panhandle to the Texas Caprock stage all kind of festivities for the autumn nomads—evening social hours, early-morning breakfasts and high-noon feasts. The opening weekend is fence-to-fence funfest for the Texas High Plains which has become one of the finest pheasant hunting regions of the United States.

And smack in the middle of the lucrative hunting ground is Hereford, the hub of Texas' giant grain and cattle industry that sets the stage for the propagation of this colorful upland bird of the Plains. Grain sorghum, wheat and corn fields abound—and the giant threshers never quite get it all. Harvest trash and stalks provide excellent cover for Pheasants which thrive and grow fat on the golden kernels left in the turmrows. And this giant farming industry is no weekend hobby. There are about 5 million acres under irrigation on the Panhandle High Plains and nearly an equal amount in dryland production, prior to the CRP programs. However, the CRP land is adding to the welfare of all upland game, such as pheasants. In addition to added cover for the prairie fowl, CRP grasses provide an abundant of various high-protein seed (bird food) since the land cannot be grazed or harvested under most circumstances.

Pheasants are among the most colorful birds of the land and provide a tasty delight at the dinner table, but the survival of the young is critical—by the time the average

Texas brood has reached 10 weeks of age, more than 30 percent will have perished. Thus, the CRP acreage is expected to add greatly to the domestic population.

There was a time, not many years ago, when Panhandle hunters headed north to the vast corn fields and grasslands of Kansas and Nebraska when fall pheasant season rolled around. But these migratory hunters reversed their treks when some far-sighted Panhandle businessmen and landowners discovered that pheasants would thrive in the flatlands of Texas just as in Kansas or Nebraska if adequate food and cover-shelter were available.

The Gunn family of Amarillo is generally accredited with being among the pioneers of domestic pheasant stocking in the Texas Panhandle, followed by dozens of other commercial breeders in later years.

Then came the big irrigation boom of the 1950s, lending to vast production of grain sorghum and corn...ideal cover crops for pheasant production. In addition to ditch water of irrigation wells, the Texas Panhandle is also pock-marked with playa lakes left in the wake of the last Ice Age thousands of years ago. These playa lake beds, many of which contain water the year-around, also provided excellent breeding grounds for pheasants.

But it's the grain fields which hold the pheasants when the cool days of autumn rolls around. Due to the strict enforcement of state laws by the Texas game wardens, flocks of pheasants can frequently be seen along the roadsides of the Deaf Smith County area 11 months of the year. But when December arrives, it takes a skilled hunter to bag these screeching bundles of feather. They can make nearly 40 miles an hour in 40 seconds, pace a pretty good saddle pony and sneak through forage without wiggling a twig.

HUSTLE HEREFORD

They'll lie in wait until a foot-step is almost inches away, then explode skyward while novices grabble for their trusty guns...leaving behind surprised hunters with empty bellies and empty hunting bags.

One community on the North Plains of the Texas Panhandle devised a set of homespun hunting rules for the non-resident guests whereby everyone generally came home with a bird. The rules said that no matter who shot the bird in a given hunting party, "no one got two (daily limit) until everyone had "one."

Bird dogs add greatly to the excitement of hunting—and generally to the daily bag—if the hunters are as smart as the dogs. But frequently inexperienced hunters either over-run the dogs or under-run the dogs which then become an advanced guard for the pheasants—as sages of old have said, "It's not the catch, but the chase that counts." Plenty of weekend hunters, however, will say that this adage is for the birds when they attempt to rationalize a three-day outing and 500 bucks to a waiting woman.

Service clubs perhaps have done more to promote upland hunting on the High Plains than any other groups. Lions, Kiwanis and Rotarians have all added to the community involvements of this natural asset. In recent years, various chambers of commerce committees have also organized special events for the hunters, but in most cases, it has been the service clubs which have blazed new trails for the big city hunters.

One nearby town has its own hunter clearinghouse at the chamber of commerce office where interested hunters are directed to participating landowners. Hunting fees in the past have averaged around $100 per gun, with the chamber retaining 25 percent for its services to the landowners. In addition, the chamber throws a real sunrise shindig for these weekend walkers of the turnrows—sizzlin' bacon, sausage and scrambled eggs serves as a delightful attitude adjustment link between the city hunters and their country hosts.

In Hereford, the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce acts as a clearing house to match hunters with landowners. "We do this as a public service and no fee is charged by the chamber, reports Mike Carr, executive vice president. "We send a list of 50 to 100 landowners, and we make telephone calls when requested by hunters." He said the hunters and landowners make their own deals.

Several communities of the Texas Panhandle have private hunting clubs known as Pheasants Unlimited, while a handful of the larger landowners or operators have their own little hunting niche where only invited guests are allowed through the gates for a country time of fun and folly.

Texas wildlife specialists say that the area between Vega and Dimmitt—right down the pike on U.S. 385 through the city of Hereford—is regarded as the best pheasant region in the Lone Star State. This rich agricultural center not only provides an abundance of food and cover crops for the wildlife, but also has an adequate supply of fresh water as result of the extensive field irrigation systems and playa lakes.

Since a pheasant's diet must include liberal amounts of high protein ingredients, mosquitoes and other insects around these lakes become a valuable food source for the non-migratory birds. Then when the cool weather of autumn drives the insects into oblivion, the pheasants head for the nearby grain fields and the green forage of young wheat sprouts.

Though the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department does not control the amount of trespass fees charged by land-lease operators, each landowner must keep a record book of all participating hunters, the number of birds taken and the number of days they hunt.

Add 'Fat Pheasant Country' title to other claims of Hereford area

Though pheasant has been served as a delicacy since the dawn of civilization in the Orient and Asiatic countries, this colorful fowl did not reach the United States until about 1881, coming to North America by the way of Europe.

Prairie chicken abounded across the High Plains when the first buffalo hunters arrived, but there were no pheasants.

Being natives of China and the Black Sea region, two of the best-known pheasants are the so-called English pheasant, which the Romans supposedly brought to England, and the Chinese ringneck pheasant, which is the most common type found around Hereford.

The "Landed Gentry" of England developed large hunting preserves which were used only by the upper-class landowners, with only a few city-cousin hunters found here and there. This game was one of the more popular varieties during the reign of Henry VIII, and thus evolved the dish of kings—pheasant under glass.

The name pheasant comes from Phasis, the name of a river in the ancient country of Colchis located on the eastern shore of the Black Sea. The English and Chinese ringnecks have been inter-bred to a degree that it is difficult to find one of purebred descent in this part of the country.

Several other species of game, such as elk, antelope and prairie chicken, can only be hunted on a permit basis, allowing state control of legalized culling. Wildlife specialists say that culling, (hunting in this case) is frequently just as important to the welfare of wildlife areas as restocking or restricted hunting. Any area that becomes "over-stocked" with a given species of wildlife will result of either the game dying of starvation or migrating into other regions in search of food.

Since the common ringneck pheasant abounds throughout the Great Plains, there are no state or federal restrictions on how many can be taken from a given acreage. This is controlled by the landowners.

Each landowner must obtain a shooting preserve license before leasing any land for hunting purposes in Texas. The cost of the license depends on the size of the acreage, with fees ranging from $15 to $60.

Majority of leasing licenses in the Texas Panhandle are issued for pheasants, but some are also issued for other game, such as dove and deer. But regardless of a hunter's track-record or history of a landowner's operation, everyone involved in hunting or hunting leases should contact local game wardens or the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department in Austin for updated rules or restrictions which may change from season to season.

Hereford's Golden Triangle—Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer Counties—holds the undisputed titles of being the Fed Beef Capital of World, Panhandle Salad bowl and the Texas Sweet King. And in addition to the cattle, vegetable and sugar beet industries, vast irrigated acreages of grain sorghum, corn and wheat not only add to its national stature in production of natural resources, but also to the reproduction of upland wildlife—Pheasants, quail, ducks, geese, cranes and dozens of four-footed animals of the Plains.

But when winter holidays roll around each year, Texas hunters may have turkey on the plate, but they'll have pheasants on the mind. And the 50,000 residents of the Golden Triangle declare that this is also the land of the finest fat pheasants in North America...Fat Pheasant Country, if you please.

For a real taste of Texas pheasant, try these award-winning recipes from the Pheasant Cook-Off held recently in Amarillo:

Partners buy all interests in Southwest yard

Southwest Feed Yards, Ltd., announced recently that Ben R. Murphy and Wayne B. Chastain have purchased all interests owned by current partners.

Chastain, as general manager, will further expand the development of the Hereford operation. Steve Johnson will continue as assistant manager.

Murphy, as principal owner, will be actively involved in the Hereford operation, continue to feed cattle and develop other projects. In commenting on the reason for the purchase, Murphy and Chastain expressed their "strong confidence in the longrange future of the industry in general, and the performance of Southwest Feed Yards in particular."

Southwest Feed Yards, located just east of Hereford, has a modern facility, a capacity of 42,000 head with attendant pasture locations, and extensive financial and cattle management capabilities, said Chastain.

Game warden covers 14,200 square miles

Larry Nutt, game warden for Deaf Smith, Castro, and Parmer Counties, pointed out that weekends bring the largest number of non-resident hunters to the Hereford region.

A native of Amarillo, Nutt graduated from Greenville High School in 1969 and later attended Grayson County Junior College on a baseball scholarship. He was scouted by a number of representatives in the pro leagues for his ability to throw a 95 mile an hour ball. Other than a stint in semi-pro baseball his pitching career more or less ended with college work.

"It took me 10 years to get to be accepted as a game warden by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department," said Nutt while relating to the high standards set by the department. He also pointed out the high number of applicants presented each year for positions with the Texas Parks and Wildlife.

Nutt worked as a park ranger for two years and then after graduating from the Game Warden Academy in Austin in 1985, he went to work as a game warden at Humble, located near the Houston-Galveston metropolitan region of the Texas Gulf coast.

He assumed duties a year ago at Hereford where he is in charge of 14,200 square miles of farm and ranch country in the Golden Triangle. There are about 450 game wardens in Texas with around 250 of this number assigned to the Gulf Coast regions. The remainder are in charge of an area bigger than all of New England and a portion of the upper Midwest. He and his wife, Sallie, have two children—a daughter, Sarah, and a son, Catfish.

Nutt said that his love for the out-of-doors dates back to his childhood days when most of his leisure time was spent hunting and fishing.

Colorful bird draws hunters

More than 10,000 non-resident hunters will make tracks in the Panhandle soil, according to best estimates, when pheasant season reigns in the area Dec. 9-24. The ring-neck pheasant is common to this area. The pheasant did not reach the U.S. until 1881, coming to North America by way of Europe. The season serves as an economic boost in the Hereford area, especially for restaurants, motels and service stations.

What happened to recession? It may have come and gone

NEW YORK (AP) - The 1980s have been financially successful years for millions of Americans, but they also have been years of repeated warnings about great financial collapses and recessions to come.

There has been little sense of security, almost no comfort in material achievement, because of the constant threats that all could disappear in a wink.

One reason for the sense of insecurity has been the problem of debt - of personal, business, municipal, state, federal, international debt, the multibillion-dollar likes of which had never been seen before.

Debts on houses, debts on cars, debts to Uncle Sam, education debts, credit card debts, debts to the Japanese, uncollectable debts owed by Third World nations to big Western banks. Easy credit, it was said, was undermining human and financial values.

In such an atmosphere of fear, some critics went to extremes. They reasoned that if everyone is screaming, they have to scream even louder to make a point. Nothing short of total collapse could get a listener's attention.

It led to "The Coming" style of analysis - the coming Great Depression, the coming banking disaster, the coming great inflation, the coming interest-rate surge, the coming decline of the United States.

So, where have those coming events gone?

Oddly, some of them might already have taken place, not in their ultimate, extreme, catastrophic form, but in smaller doses.

The financial system hasn't collapsed in its entirety, for example, but repeatedly there have been large and painful financial disasters.

Thousands of farmers lost their land in the decade, many of them after violating their own conservative beliefs. They borrowed money and bought land at inflated prices. Some of that land fell to a third of its purchase price.

Some of the richest, most independent, glamorous entrepreneurs the country has ever produced were wiped out when crude oil prices collapsed. Their buddies in real estate speculation went down with them.

Simultaneously, commercial banks were forced to write off billions of dollars in debt to the less developed nations, after making loans that almost everyone in the nation except bankers knew were overly risky.

Savings and loan institutions collapsed, at a cost to the country of scores of billions of dollars. Junk bond deals have fallen apart, wiping away billions in paper profits. The stock market has collapsed twice in two years.

Who said there haven't been financial and economic earthquakes?

Edward Yardeni, a Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. economist, who doesn't allow such terrible events to lead to despair, calls attention to some positive considerations. Assets well exceed debts, for example, and savings continue to exceed credit demands. Moreover, personal savings are now rising.

What about the coming recession? Well, to some extent that, too, may have happened. It wasn't officially recorded as a recession, but conceivably it could some day be recognized as such.

It occurred in mid-1986, when by some statistical measurements there might have been more than 30 states in recession. Offsetting this, however, were booms on the coasts. In national statistics, the booms hid the busts.

The Telstar communications satellite was launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., July 10, 1962, to relay TV and telephone signals between the U.S. and Europe.

The average time lapse between a mosquito bite and mosquito itch is about three minutes.

Housing not national or regional market--it's local

NEW YORK (AP) - Residential real estate is a local rather than national market, and no better illustration can be found than in the latest report on median prices gathered from realtors across the country.

Those figures show, in fact, that real estate cannot even be viewed on a regional basis or maybe even a city basis, because huge price differences exist between cities in the same region and between neighborhoods within cities.

Based on the latest survey by the National Association of Realtors, prices in the Northeast rose 1.5 percent over a year ago, but there were strong advances and strong declines within the region.

In Albany-Schenectady-Troy, New York, where increases had for months lagged those in other Northeast areas, prices rose 17.7 percent. In Buffalo they rose 11.4 percent, but in metropolitan New York the median price fell 5.1 percent.

In the Midwest, prices increased 5.1 percent from a year earlier, but Cleveland prices rose 11.6, and the median price of a single-family home in Grand Rapids, Mich., rose 11.4 percent. In Detroit, prices fell 0.3 percent.

In the West, where prices rose 11.7 percent, there was an enormous variance in the latest report. In the Seattle-Tacoma area prices rose 23.7 percent, but in Spokane, Wash., the price increase amounted to only 3.5 percent.

Prices in Houston jumped 8.2 percent and in the Fort Worth area they rose 10.7 percent, but in Tulsa, Okla., they fell 1.7 percent and in Oklahoma City the decline amounted to 4.1 percent.

There are many lessons in the figures:

1. Never rely on national figures to determine the direction of the demand or price of housing - or even the cost of financing.

This is a hard rule to follow, because generalizations about both demand and price follow almost automatically the release of figures out of Washington. But, while the statistics are national, the market is not.

2. While a great deal is made of the inability of first-time buyers to find affordable homes, they are available. The median is a midpoint; it means that half the houses are priced higher and half lower.

3. Studies of housing prices sometimes show big price differences between nearby communities, often reflecting temporary conditions - perhaps political or cultural - that may be temporary. Economics tends to close such gaps.

4. Price and demand react to mortgage rates. As almost every potential buyer has discovered, the price of the house may not be as important as the monthly charge, which can vary by hundreds of dollars.

If interest rates continue to fall deeper into the single digits, you may expect to see a lot of buyers in the market who felt they had been shut out before. After a time, their presence will tend to force prices higher.

But the most important lesson of all is that the numbers - national, regional or local - don't always tell the whole story. There are exceptions to every one of the numbers and good buyers where the numbers say there aren't any.

What are your rights if you can't pay tax bill to TEC?

Dear Commissioner Nabers, I recently received a letter from TEC concerning some changes to the unemployment law made by the legislature. I do not understand the part called Administrative Assessments Instead of Court Judgments to Collect Penalties/Interest and Taxes, (H.B. 1941). What does this new law mean? It sounds to me like employers will have fewer rights?

T.S.
Beaumont, Tx.

Dear T.S., The new administrative assessment authority was recommended to TEC by both state and federal auditors as a better way to recover delinquent taxes. A delinquent employer will continue to receive several notifications over the course of several months prior to implementation of the assessment procedure.

If an employer ignores the default notices, he will be served with a notice of assessment. This notice gives the employer 30 days to appeal the notice of assessment by filing a petition for judicial review in Travis County District Court. IF THE EMPLOYER DOES NOT FILE SUIT AGAINST THE TEC IN TRAVIS COUNTY, THE NOTICE OF ASSES-

TEXAS BUSINESS TODAY

MENT RIPENS INTO THE EQUIVALENT OF A DEFAULT JUDGMENT. IF, HOWEVER, THE EMPLOYER DOES FILE SUIT, THEN THERE WILL BE THE SAME OPPORTUNITY FOR A FULL COURT HEARING AS THERE HAS ALWAYS BEEN. ANY AND ALL DEFENSES AVAILABLE UNDER LAW REMAIN AVAILABLE TO AN EMPLOYER WHO INSTITUTES A SUIT. IN SHORT, THE MAIN DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE OLD AND NEW PROCEDURES LIES IN THE EMPLOYER'S HAVING TO FILE SUIT AS OPPOSED TO FILING AN ANSWER TO A SUIT BROUGHT BY TEC.

The new procedure could actually save an employer money. The great majority of suits for delinquent taxes end in default judgments because the business does not contest the suit. An employer against whom a default judgment is rendered is also liable for the court costs involved in getting that judgment. Under the administrative assessment procedure, the delinquent employer who does not appeal to court will at least save himself court costs.

Dear Commissioner Nabers, We have a recurring problem that we need help with. An employer who works for us on an as needed basis is always filing for unemployment benefits and although we always protest the claims, we still lose. Why does the TEC never take into account that this man has another job and this is not his main livelihood? A recent column of yours said that a worker who is hired for regularly scheduled, part-time work cannot supplement the part-time job with unemployment benefits. If this is true, please explain why it does not apply in our situation.

R.W.
Longview, Tx.

Dear R.W., I am glad you wrote. It sounds like this does need clarification.

An employee who works on an "as needed basis" is NOT a regularly scheduled, part-time employee. The latter is guaranteed and works a set number of hours every week according to an agreed schedule. An employee who is used only as needed is considered to be laid off at the end of every work assignment because he has no guarantee of receiving any more work. If your employee has other part-time work, then he must report earnings from that job and his benefits will be reduced.

SWC enjoys perfect Tuesday

By The Associated Press
Guard Travis Mays, who led the Southwest Conference in scoring as a junior last year, is picking up right where he left off. Mays scored 25 points in Texas' season opener, a 116-66 rout of Texas-Arlington.

Texas Tech and Baylor also whipped opponents in a perfect night for SWC teams Tuesday evening.

Mays, the reigning SWC Most Valuable Player who averaged 21 points last year, scored 18 points in the first half as UT built a 58-27 lead at the break.

Mays hit three straight 3-pointers and Lance Blanks added another to close the first half on a 12-0 run.

The 50-point margin of victory was the third-biggest in Longhorn history. UT's biggest margin was 77 points in a 148-71 victory over Northern Montana in 1978. With the loss, UT-Arlington fell to 1-2.

In Lubbock, J.D. Sanders scored 21 points to lead Texas Tech past a spunky Midwestern State team, 85-63.

The Raiders won their second straight game at home to improve to 2-0 on the year while the Indians fell to 4-5.

Tech turned 15 Midwestern turnovers into 22 points in the second half to break open a close game.

Tech couldn't shake Midwestern before the half and needed a 22-foot jumper by Jerry Mason to take a 38-36 lead at halftime.

The Raiders held a 33-3 advantage on points off turnovers, despite being out-rebounded 47-38.

Baylor's Julius Denton scored 21 points as the Bears jumped off to a 11-0 lead and coasted to a 112-81 victory over Southwest Texas State University in Waco.

The Bears never trailed against the Bobcats, who played their first game of the season. Baylor improved to 2-1.

It was the most points scored by a Baylor team since a 112-67 victory over John Brown in 1984.

Baylor led 58-40 at halftime, but came out flat and allowed the Bobcats to close the gap to nine points at 60-51 with 15 minutes left.

Led by Denton, however, Baylor regrouped to go on a 21-3 spurt that clinched the victory.

Denton, a senior forward, led a parade of six Bears in double figures. Joining him were guard David Wesley with 20 points, forward Ivan Jones with 16, guard Kelvin Chalmers with 11, guard Tim Schumacher with 10 and forward Alex Holcombe with 10. Jones also had 11 rebounds.

Texas, known last year for its sharp shooting at long range, continued that legacy by hitting 10 3-pointers in its victory over UT-Arlington.

Blanks, a senior forward who was second to Mays in conference scoring last season, followed him again Tuesday night with 24.

By The Associated Press
Akeem is a dream again. Akeem Olajuwon, Houston's 7-foot center who missed the preseason with leg problems, had 12 rebounds, scored five of his 17 points in the closing minutes and had a key block of a James Worthy layup to help the Rockets stave off a Los Angeles rally and end the Lakers' nine-game winning streak 110-104 Tuesday night.

"The guy always comes through. That's why he's the star of this team. He gets us the wins," Coach Don Chaney said. "He always seems to get the big rebound, the big free throw or the big block."

Magic Johnson, who led the Lakers with 24 points, agreed.

"Akeem is an All-Star, and proved it again," he said. "Akeem made the biggest play of the game on that block. That could have changed the outcome of the game."

Associated Press Writer
Freshman Kenny Anderson is good, Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins will tell you, but he's not perfect. That's why he still needs plenty of practice.

Anderson sparked the Yellow Jacket offense with 24 points, nine assists and five steals as No. 21 Georgia Tech beat visiting Richmond 87-74 Tuesday night. Very nice, Cremins agrees, but defense counts, too.

"We went to the match zone and it hurt them for a while," Cremins said. "Then our freshman, Kenny Anderson, got lost in the defense. It's a little tricky, the match zone, and of play and you can get easy baskets. Everything we're getting right now is coming the hard way."

The Mavericks experimented with the press during former coach Dick Motta's last season, in 1986-87. But under MacLeod, the Dallas players get back downcourt following missed shots and concentrate on setting up their half-court defense.

"Lots of times your personnel is not geared to press," Harper said. "You need those short, fast guys."

MacLeod showed his team some videotaped from Saturday's 117-70 loss to Seattle, but they did not watch the second half. It was the team's worst loss ever in Reunion Arena and their second worst in franchise history.

Asked if the players learned anything from the part of the game they watched, Mavericks center James Donaldson was quick to respond.

"Yeah," he said, "what not to do."

DALLAS (AP) - Fans of the Dallas Mavericks don't like what they're seeing, and coach John MacLeod says a change is in order.

MacLeod said the Mavs will switch to a pressing defense to boost their intensity level.

"We're not a bad pressing team," the Mavericks coach told the Dallas Times Herald. "We just have had very few opportunities to use it."

The Mavs are 5-6, and team owner Donald Carter said he is concerned about the club's seeming lack of effort at times. Carter has instructed Rick Sund, the team's vice president of basketball operations, to investigate the matter and report back to him.

Meanwhile, MacLeod said he hopes a pressing defense will produce steals and create more double-teaming situations.

"I think it will help us," said Mavericks guard Derek Harper. "It puts you into a more aggressive style

The Lakers, who trailed Houston by 18 points in the third quarter, got within three with 31 seconds left before John Lucas made four key free throws. Otis Thorpe led Houston with 21 points, followed by Buck Johnson with 20 and Mitchell Wiggins with 19.

"We had a great run, but you can never be satisfied in this league," Los Angeles coach Pat Riley said.

Cavalliers 92, Bullets 91

Randolph Keys sank a short half-hook shot with three seconds left, capping Cleveland's rally from a 16-point third-quarter deficit. Washington led 53-37 early in the second half before consecutive 3-pointers by Craig Ehlo and Steve Kerr started Cleveland's comeback.

The Cavaliers scored the first 12 points of the fourth quarter - six by rookie Chucky Brown - for a five-point lead. Ehlo led Cleveland with 25 points and Brown scored 18. Jeff Malone had 20 and Bernard King 18 for Washington.

Magic 104, Heat 99
Rookie Nick Anderson scored a career-high 24 points and keyed a fourth-quarter burst.

Rony Seikaly scored 19 points and Glen Rice added 17 for the Heat, which led after each of the first three quarters.

Terry Catledge led the Magic with 26 points.

Bulls 113, Hawks 98
Chicago's Michael Jordan was held to 22 points but Scottie Pippen scored 24, including 12 in the first quarter. Shooting 55 percent in the third quarter, the Bulls twice built 21-point leads.

Atlanta's Dominique Wilkins scored 29 points and reserve Kevin Willis added 22.

Spurs 117, SuperSonics 104
Terry Cummings scored 32 points, Willie Anderson had 11 of his 24 in the fourth quarter and rookie David Robinson added 21. The Spurs led 100-93 with 6:58 left, then pulled away with an 11-4 run which included technical fouls on Seattle coach Bernie Bickerstaff and assistant Tom Newell.

Seattle was led by Dale Ellis' 37 points and Nate McMillan's 14 assists, 12 points and 11 rebounds.

Nuggets 141, Warriors 120
Walter Davis came off the bench to score 26 points, Lafayette Lever added 24 and Michael Adams 22 and Denver rallied from a 16-point first-period deficit. The Nuggets led 75-72 at halftime, then broke the game open with third-period runs of 13-2 to begin the quarter and 15-0 late in the period.

Mitch Richmond led Golden State with 27 points.

Pistons 93, Kings 81
Joe Dumars scored 12 of his 16 points in the fourth quarter, 10 on free throws, and Isiah Thomas added 14 points as seven Pistons scored in double figures. Danny Ainge topped Sacramento with 20 points and Rodney McCray had 15.

A 10-0 run capped by two baskets by Thomas gave Detroit a 53-38 lead in the third quarter.

Trail Blazers 116, Clippers 94
Clyde Drexler scored 21 points and held Ron Harper to 10 in leading Portland to its sixth consecutive victory. Harper, who came to the Clippers on Nov. 16 in a trade with Cleveland, had averaged 26.3 points in his first three games with Los Angeles.

Ken Norman, who was ejected in the third period for throwing the ball at official Dick Bavetta, led the Clippers with 16.

Robinson and Joe Fredrick getting four each.
No. 22 Memphis St. 91, Wyoming 75
Elliot Perry scored 24 points and had eight steals as Memphis State won a game marred by 46 turnovers and 59 personal fouls.

Wyoming (0-2) committed 24 turnovers while the Tigers (3-0) were charged with 31 fouls. Four players fouled out, three for visiting Wyoming.

No. 23 Oklahoma St. 94, North Texas 66
Royce Jefferies scored 21 points as Oklahoma State, playing without leading scorer Richard Dumas, opened its season with a victory over North Texas.

Dumas is serving a one-game suspension because he missed a team curfew. Bryon Houston scored 17 points and Corey Williams and John Potter added 16 each for the Cowboys.

McLeod says Mavericks will install press

DALLAS (AP) - Fans of the Dallas Mavericks don't like what they're seeing, and coach John MacLeod says a change is in order.

MacLeod said the Mavs will switch to a pressing defense to boost their intensity level.

"I think it will help us," said Mavericks guard Derek Harper. "It puts you into a more aggressive style Kenny didn't have all of the concept of it yet. We've really got to work on that."

Richmond coach Dick Tarrant was more forgiving of Anderson.

"He creates tempo by himself," Tarrant said. "It's awful hard to control tempo against a team like this, that pushes it so well with such a fine point guard."

"I thought we had tempo early in the game, but after awhile, it got really up and down, and that's what Bobby (Cremins) wanted."

In other Top 25 games Tuesday night, it was No. 8 Illinois 83, Mississippi 72; No. 14 Indiana 79, Kent State 68; No. 16 Temple 55, Cremins had no complaints with Dennis Scott, who led all scorers with 30 points, but the coach was unhappy when his team blew a 13-point halftime lead and let Richmond (0-2) tie it at 57 with 10:42 left in the game.

"I thought with the inexperience that we would get ourselves in trouble," Cremins said. "Richmond just runs a tremendous offense. That was a very hard-earned victory."

Johnny McNeil came off the bench to hit a pair of free throws that started Tech (2-0) on a 20-5 run and the Yellow Jackets took control of the game.

No. 8 Illinois 83, Mississippi 72
Kendall Gill scored 23 points and Marcus Liberty added 16 to lead Illinois.

After a close opening 15 minutes, the Fighting Illini went on a 12-2 run to take a 41-32 halftime lead. Illinois, playing its season opener, didn't trail in the second half and led by as much as 20 points.

No. 14 Indiana 79, Kent St. 68
Freshman Greg Graham scored 22 points and Indiana held off visiting Kent State by making 17 of 19 free throws in the second half.

The Hoosiers (2-0) stopped a Kent State squad that came back from a 17-point deficit to pull within 65-61 with 6:22 to play on a basket by Rich Blevins, who led the Golden Flashes with 19 points.

No. 16 Temple 55, Penn 54
Mark Macon scored 21 points and heavily favored Temple shut out homesteading Pennsylvania for the final 1:40 of the game and won its season opener.

Penn's Paul Chambers hit a jumper with 1:40 remaining to make it 55-54, but the Quakers then failed on several scoring opportunities.

No. 18 Pittsburgh 101, Siena 89
Brian Shorter led three Pittsburgh 20-point scorers with 29 points.

Darelle Porter, subbing for the injured Sean Miller at point guard, had 21 points - including 15 in a 56-point Panthers' first half - and Bobby Martin added 21 in Pitt's season-opening victory.

No. 19 Notre Dame 84, San Francisco 64
Keith Robinson scored 26 points and led two key runs for Notre Dame.

The visiting Dons (1-1) trailed 33-27 with 5:19 left in the first half when Notre Dame, playing its season opener, went on a 12-0 run, with

Robinson and Joe Fredrick getting four each.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I read those comments about affairs with married men, I became angry because so many people blamed the "other woman." As one betrayed wife put it, "I will never feel anything but contempt for the bimbo who tried to break up my family." Other readers blamed the wife because she was too self-involved, too demanding, too boring, too cold, etc. etc.

violating a solemn vow to be faithful in good times and bad. No one forced him to have an affair. It did not "just happen." He made a deliberate decision to cheat on the woman he promised to love and cherish. If there was a problem in the relationship, he had several options. He could have discussed it with his wife and sought the help of a marriage counselor. By so doing, he lets her know that his marriage is important, that he is willing to work to improve things and that he is a man of integrity. Men need to get this message. Please tell them. Minneapolis

Accent on Health

Daily smoking rates for Texas 12th graders are eight percent lower than those for 12th graders nationwide, according to the Texas Department of Health (TDH). Dr. Robert Bernstein, Commissioner of Health, said that more than 4,200 students in grades seven, eight, ten and 12 were surveyed last spring by the University of Texas Health Science Center in Houston. Funds for the survey were provided by the TDH Office of Smoking and Health and the Texas Cancer Council. Fifteen Texas school districts participated. The researchers found that daily smoking rates for the state's seniors were 4.5 percent lower for males and 8.5 percent lower for females than those reported at the national level. Dr. Bernstein added that, compared with the national levels, a similar proportion of Texas students in the seventh, eighth, and tenth grades said they had experimented with smoking 30 days before the survey.

Of those surveyed in all grades, 23 percent of the males and 21 percent of the females reported having smoked at some time during the past year. Fifteen percent of seventh graders, 24 percent of eighth graders, 25 percent of tenth graders and 29 percent of 12th graders reported having at least puffed on a cigarette at some time during the past year. Smokeless tobacco use remains high in Texas, according to the survey, with 13.6 percent of the male students in grades seven, eight, ten, and 12 reporting some use in the past 30 days. Use of chewing tobacco among males increased by student age, from 7.9 percent among seventh grade students to 19.5 percent among 12th graders. Preventing tobacco use by young people is particularly important because those who begin using tobacco early are less likely to quit and are more likely to die from tobacco related diseases such as cancer and heart disease," Dr. Bernstein said. "It is encouraging to see lower daily smoking rates among Texas 12th graders, and we certainly hope this trend continues. However, we cannot become complacent with our efforts to reduce tobacco use. Children are surrounded by cigarette advertising on billboards, in magazines, newspapers and at sporting events that depict smoking as a safe, if not healthful activity. It is unfortunate that we, as a society, allow the most common preventable cause of death to be one of the most heavily advertised consumer products," Dr. Bernstein said. He said smoking still is estimated to cause nearly 17,000 deaths in Texas each year, or 14 percent of the total deaths in the state. In addition, smoking costs Texans $3.3 billion annually in direct medical costs and indirect mortality and morbidity costs.

County Food Show winners

Gifts for eye, palate suggested

Looking for a great gift which you can make yourself, allowing the recipient to savor the special pleasures which a homemade gift provides, while saving yourself money? Why not put together tins or baskets of home-baked cookies?

DEAR MINN.: You've zeroed in on a problem that drew a great many responses. Here's another: DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from the reader who has been both the "other woman" and the cheated-on wife. What I want to know is this: Why doesn't the lying center of this triangle get some well-deserved heat? Why does everyone hat the bimbo or the inadequate wife? Why is a man who is sexually active called a "stud" or a "playboy" and a woman who does the same thing called a "tramp" or worse? Why is an unmarried man viewed with envy and called an eligible bachelor while a single woman is accorded a pitying glance and called an old maid? Why are there shelves full of books written to advise women on how to open up to men, how to make men open up to them, and how to get a male to the alter. I see no books telling men how to stop being abusive, how to stop using women to prop up their sagging egos, how to stop being wimps, mama's boy's, liars and cheats, or how to get a woman to make a serious commitment. The double standard with which we raise our children is enormously destructive. It's keeping women unhappy, unfulfilled and self-denigrating. It keeps men from becoming emotionally healthy, responsible members of the human race. No name, please just -- Frustrated in San Jose STAR BREAK Gem of the day: A sweater is something you put on when your mother is cold. ## National Agri-Marketing Association meeting Dec. 5

Dr. Bonner Teeter, interim director for the Oklahoma Conference of Churches and Ag-Link will address the Caprock Chapter of the National Agri-Marketing Association Dec. 5 in Plainview. The meeting and dinner will begin at 6 p.m., preceded by a social period at 5:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, I-27 and U.S. Highway 70. Teeter will outline the programs offered by his organization and discuss how the Conference markets the programs to farmers. Dr. Teeter will outline these and other programs offered by Ag-Link and discuss how the Oklahoma Conference of Churches has marketed its program to the agricultural public. All area farmers, ranchers and agricultural professionals are encouraged to attend. The cost is $15 per person. This toll-free hot line allows farmers to talk with a counselor who can provide information on services available in his area to help deal with stress, depression or other related difficulties. In addition to Ag-Link, the Conference offers a mediation service, which works with a farmer and his creditors during crisis situations to help determine an equitable arrangement for both parties. Financial analysis is also provided. SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - Former rock star Sly Stone was ordered held without bail on felony drug possession charges after being extradited from Connecticut.
