Is new Miss Hereford

Gina Griffin wins crown

By O.G. NIEMAN
Publisher-Editor
Gina Griffin, 18-year-old college sophomore, was crowned as Miss Hereford, 1983, Saturday night—winning the judges' nod over 16 other talented and lovely candidates.

Reflecting on the moment of truth Monday, Miss Griffin said she was "sad" when the pageant ended. "I was surprised and happy, of course, but I had so much fun and made new friends during the pageant that I hated to see it end."

Gina, the daughter of Jack and Marie Griffin, was the first runner-up the past two years. She sang a medley of popular songs as her talent presentation. Her pageant sponsor was Helm Properties. Her first duty comes fast—she reigns as queen of the Town & Country Jubilee this week.

Cathie Weldon, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Weldon was named as first runner-up Saturday night. Her sponsor was The Brass Spike. Dana Cabbiness, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cabbiness, was selected as second runner-up. Her sponsor was Louise's.

Miss Weldon sang a medley of country-western songs as her talent presentation, while Miss Cabbiness sang "Woman in the Moon" for her talent. Judges rated each contestant in three areas—talent, personal interview, and evening wear.

Miss Hereford Crowned

Gina Griffin, right, was crowned as Miss Hereford 1983 Saturday night by Lisa Snyder, last year's reigning queen. Gina, 18, is a college sophomore and daughter of Jack and Marie Griffin. She was chosen from a field of 17 contestants at the Miss Hereford Pageant and will reign as queen of the Town & Country Jubilee this week. (More Pageant photos, Page 5)

County taking applications

Search for sheriff begins

By BOB NICH
MANAGING EDITOR
Deaf Smith County Commissioners began the task of finding a new county sheriff Monday after formally accepting the resignation of Travis McPherson, who had announced his intention of leaving his post as of Aug. 15.

figures on other applicants were available. The court was nearly inundated by bids for a new telephone system for the courthouse and sheriff's office Monday, a testament to the changes in the telephone industry.

Six firms submitted bids on phone systems to the court Monday, including Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., West Texas Services, Inc., Executone, Central Business Systems, Audio-Video Corp., and Communication Corp. of America.

Of the six, only WT Services, Inc. is a local firm, with the others from Amarillo. The court agreed to table action on the bids until their next meetings on Aug. 22 to have time for the commissioners to study the proposals in detail.

The court did accept a proposal concerning long distance phone service from Kelly Denny of Valu-Line, Inc. of Amarillo, which offers discount rates for such service. Value-Line, Inc., which will begin operations in Hereford later this month, offers a 20 percent discount under Bell rates for calls totaling from $25-$500 per month; a 25 percent discount on calls totaling from $500-$2,500; and a 30 percent discount for calls totaling over $2,500 per month.

POWER reps gather 'bad news' in Denver

Local representatives of People Opposed to Wasted Energy Repositories (POWER) attended a seminar in Denver, Colo., this past weekend, and they came back with bad news, according to Dr. Tim Revell.

The controversial issue has been relatively quiet since public hearings were held in the spring at Hereford, Tulla and Austin. However, Revell said POWER members have been continuing their efforts to inform and educate the public on the issues involved.

Warner, geo-chemist from Washington, home of the Hansford site. She said state officials are supportive of the repository because the Hansford area already boasts a low-level waste site. State officials claim it has boosted employment. New Mexico delegates refuted that claim, saying only 15 percent of the workers at the WIPP site, for military nuclear waste, are local workers.

White says Block could give drought aid with nod of head

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block could give West Texas farmers and ranchers drought relief with just "a nod of his head."

White commented shortly after he asked Block to reconsider his denial of federal drought relief for West Texas counties.

"Anybody who has witnessed the devastation in that area should recognize very quickly that this is a matter of grave concern, not only to those people there but to our nation," White said. "Secretary Block could have by the nod of his head given some large measure of relief to those farmers and ranchers who are impacted so heavily by this drought," he said.

Thieves grab Jubilee bunting

An unknown number of thieves are putting a damper on this year's Hereford Town & Country Jubilee celebration by stealing bunting from storefronts. The decorations, which cost from $25-$50 depending upon their size, have been put into place by the Hereford High School Key Club.

Key Club sponsor Gene Brock said that the club has placed over 300 sets on bunting on local businesses this year. Thieves have taken the decoration from the KPAN studio, and from the front of Shirley Elementary School.

White told Block in a letter that the drought-stricken area — "which is not a great deal smaller than your home state of Illinois" — would normally have received 6.26 inches of rain in the last six months. However, Van Horn has had less than an inch, Fort Stockton only 1.26 inches, Pecos, 1.48 inches and Presidio only 1.3 inches.

Biking for a Cause

"It's been worth it, without a doubt," agree Finn Amble and David Brown, two young bicyclists who passed through Hereford Friday evening on their way from Washington D.C. to California.

The two college students, both 20 years old, have braved steep grades, high winds, temperatures, strong winds, and trucks on narrow highways and have raised their own money to finance a unique 3,300 mile Trans-American Bike-A-Cross to publicize American Red Cross disaster relief.

Downtown developers offering free rent

HOUSTON (AP) — Slightly more than 10 percent of the office space in downtown Houston was vacant in the second quarter of this year, and the amount of empty office space has more than tripled in the last year, officials said.

Although the office vacancy rate in downtown Houston has increased, however, it still is below the national rate of 11.7 percent, according to figures from national real estate firm Coldwell Banker.

"Vacancies in downtown office buildings have increased, but they are below the national index and lower than some other cities, said Bruce A. Endendyk, vice president and general manager of Coldwell Banker's downtown office here.

In Dallas, the vacancy rate in the second quarter of this year was 13.1 percent. Manhattan had a office vacancy rate of just 4.2 percent, while nearly one-fifth, or 19.3 percent, of office space in Denver was empty.

There are two main reasons why office vacancies in Houston have increased in the last year, Endendyk said.

"One is the lack of demand created by the slowdown in the energy business," Endendyk said. "The other is that Houston's economy appears to be coming out of the recession very late."

Woman shoots intruder

SEGUIN, Texas (AP) — A woman awakened by a man who bumped her bed while she slept shot the intruder as he advanced, fired twice more as he struggled for the gun and a fourth time as he tried to flee through a door, police said.

Police said they found the man collapsed and bleeding early Monday not far from the apartment door, sent him to Guadalupe Valley Memorial Hospital.

He was later transferred to Methodist Hospital in San Antonio, 30 miles west of here.

Hospital officials in San Antonio said a bullet was lodged in the man's spine and he may be permanently paralyzed.

Seguin police detective Reno Reiley told the San Antonio Express that the 35-year-old nurse, who police would not identify, said the intruder threatened to rape her and then kill her 4-year-old son.

He said the woman told the man she wanted to get a tissue from a nightstand and pulled a pistol instead.

The woman said the man then came at her and she fired once, sending the wounded intruder staggering out of the room, reports said.

The would-be victim said she followed the man as he made his way through the still-darkened apartment toward the front door where he turned and a struggle ensued, investigators said.

The man shoved the nurse, sending her reeling into the kitchen where he grabbed her and tried to wrestle the gun away, she told officers.

The man strained to turn the barrel of the weapon toward her, the woman recalled, but she managed to keep the gun pointed at her assailant and pulled the trigger twice during the struggle in the kitchen.

As the man fled out the door, the woman told officers, she went to the door and fired another shot at him.

The woman fled to neighboring apartments with her son and a neighbor called police.

Patrolmen Harold Burns Jr., Thomas Neeley and Sylvester Vasquez Jr. arrived and said they found a badly wounded man about 20 to 25 feet from the door of the woman's apartment.

Officers said they recovered a knife, a nylon stocking and other evidence.

The nurse was badly shaken and had some bruises and scrapes, but was not seriously injured.

"The woman acted in obvious self-defense," Reiley said, "no charges (against her) are contemplated."

Police said the man had apparently been shot three times, but the hospital spokesman would not immediately confirm the number of wounds.

Man arrested after bank robbery

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Police say a 22-year-old Jordanian who used a woman hostage as a shield during a bank robbery later exchanged gunfire with police officers before he dropped his weapon and surrendered.

The hostage, Natalie Wickman, was not harmed and no one was wounded during the shootout in suburban Haltom City that occurred after police rammed the getaway car at the end of a chase involving six squad cars Monday afternoon, said Fort Worth Police Sgt. Ray Clark.

"He jumped out and fired one shot, and the officers from Haltom City and North Richland Hills fired some, so he gave up and dropped the gun," Clark said.

Ms. Wickman, 23, had jumped out of the getaway car a few minutes before the chase ended, said Clark.

An undisclosed amount of money and a gun were found in the car.

Paul Harvey News

Reagan can't sell foreign policy

President Reagan sells himself very well but he has not been able to sell his Latin American foreign policy.

The president's personal approval rating is improving—though public opinion remains strongly against United States involvement in El Salvador and-or Nicaragua.

Indeed, a recent survey revealed that only eight percent of voting-age Americans are aware which side we are on down there.

Politically invincible as this president presently appears, running for re-election he could slip on a banana-republic.

Nobody wants another Vietnam.

Our military leaders do not want ever again to deploy United States armed forces in a war which does not have solid public and congressional support.

And while the president insists that "we have no plans to send combat troops" he adds that "presidents must never say never."

President Reagan is convinced that if guerrillas, with Communist support, are not stopped south of Guatemala we can awaken one day to find a Communist government on the other side of our Rio Grande.

That implied threat does not terrify Americans as it once might have. We have lived for 24 years with a Communist dictatorship within 90 miles of Florida.

Indeed, if every Communist in all the Americas were to drop dead at 10 tonight — at 10 tomorrow morning most of those nations would still "require some kind of dictatorship."

With or without intervention, El Salvador will have to have a dictatorship allowing few if any of what we call "civil rights."

American-style freedom cannot be superimposed by force, for then it isn't "freedom" any more. A nation has to be educated to and prepared for the responsibilities implied by democracy.

Korea and Vietnam were no-win wars from the outset. The most we could have left those nations — even with a total and unconditional military victory — would have been a military dictatorship.

In El Salvador — for all our good intentions — 27,000 regular army troops cannot defeat 6,000 insurgents.

Nor can all our American dollars make those reluctant 9-to-5 patriots into a potent fighting force.

Once upon a time we led the world. Just watching and emulating our example, Mexico, Central America, South America, were motivated to free themselves from Spain. We did it by minding our own business so well that we were a lighthouse for the world. We need to make our own light more bright.

Gina

After completing college, she hopes to travel abroad and perhaps teach in another country.

As Miss Hereford, Gina receives a silver platter and a $600 cash award. Miss Weldon received a $300 cash award, and Miss Cabiness received a $200 award. Both were also presented silver platters, as were the winners of the talent award and Miss Congeniality title.

Phil Woodall served as master of ceremonies for the annual pageant, which is sponsored by the Women's Division of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Janis Kelley was chairwoman of this year's steering committee, and Keith Ann Gearn was the pageant director.

In keeping with the theme song of "Let's Get Physical," special entertainment included a tumbling presentation by Donann Cummings of Hereford and Kimmie Joe of Amarillo. Both young ladies placed in the National Tumbling Finals in Cleveland, Ohio.

The pageant judges were Lila and Don M. Vars of Canyon and Lisa Watkins of Plainview. Assisting Mrs. Kelley on the steering committee were Mary Herring, Francyne Bromlow, Carrell Ann Simmons, Lanette Leasure, Marilyn Culpepper, and Women's Division President Olivia Denning.

Mike Carr, executive vice-president of the chamber, and Mrs. Denning were introduced by the emcee and made brief appreciation talks at the pageant.

Other sponsors of contestants included Park Avenue Florists, Hereford State Bank, Buy Wise Beauty Supply, Top Properties, Toler's Taxidermist, The Feed Store, Pants Cage, A-I Beauty Salon, HCR Real Estate, Etcetera, Little's, Kelley's Employment Agency, Kester's Jewelry, and The Vogue.

rain each month in the summer than our drought area has had all year," White said. "It was an arbitrary decision on his part and it's one that he can change," the governor said.

White noted that Block and his family recently make a much-publicized effort to live on the average food stamp allotment.

"We have just seen him survive on $58 of food this past week, but we don't know that he could survive on the one inch rain that those farmers and ranchers in West Texas have received this year," White said.

"He would be a pretty dry secretary."

He said West Texas ranchers have been forced to buy expensive feed and, in some cases, even haul in water when cattle tanks dried up. "Now, ranchers are being forced to sell herds ahead of schedule, which will have a devastating effect on the economy of West Texas as well as a significant impact on the nation's consumers of beef," White said.

White suggested some

relief might come from "the large stockpiles of corn stored by the USDA in the Texas Panhandle since the grain embargo of 1980.

"Much of that corn, I am told, is beginning to deteriorate and while it may not be appropriate for human consumption, it would be ideal feed for our West Texas livestock."

Biking

began biking, Finn arrived in Washington D.C. to start making preparations. David arrived six days later. They purchased 18-speed bicycles and most of their supplies — 50-pound packs, sleeping bags, all-weather gear, tents, first aid kits, cameras, and cooking equipment.

They are both taking pictures of their trip, and with picture stops and rest times, they average something like 10 miles an hour, although that varies widely according to the terrain, and cover an average of about 57 miles a day.

As they travel from city to city, Finn and David stop at Red Cross chapters and visit with local volunteers. "We learn more and more about the Red Cross and disaster relief each time we stop," says David.

In Hereford, local volunteers hosted a covered dish supper for the pair to give volunteers a chance to visit with them before they headed on to Clovis, N.M., early Saturday morning.

Friday morning in Amarillo, before coming to Hereford, they headed up a parade of local bikers and were featured on the evening news. Another highlight was learning to dance "Texas-style." In Oklahoma Finn attended his first rodeo.

"Sometimes we race trains, and people are always waving and honking while we're out on the road. Others just look at us like we're crazy and say 'how can you do something like this?'" laughs Finn.

"For us, this has really been the chance of a lifetime and an opportunity to see the United States," comments David. "It's also been very eye-opening — we've been routed through some of the disaster areas and seen it firsthand."

"We have been inspired by all the dedicated and generous people we've met, too," adds Finn. "We've found the typical stereotype of a Red Cross director to be 'overworked, underpaid, extremely generous, and very capable at his or her job.' Every day we are more and more happy that we chose the Red Cross."

"Each day holds something new to be encountered. It's really been an adventure," smiles David.

Although David had not traveled widely in the United States, he had also been to Europe. When his sister was an exchange student in Scotland, he and his brothers saved their money and went over to visit her in 1978. Finn has traveled all over Europe and has also visited Africa.

Both would like to stay involved with Red Cross after the trip and they are looking into the possibility of being youth service directors at their respective campuses. They had both taken Red Cross swimming lessons when they were young and are certified by the Red Cross in advanced first aid and CPR, as well as giving blood to the organization.

"We really believe in what the Red Cross does," state David and Finn. "Wherever we have been and are going, we just want to let people know that the Red Cross needs their response this year more than any other year. There have been so many disasters recently and the U.S. is now so far in debt that other countries have even sent funds, which is a first."

Every inch of the U.S. is covered by a Red Cross chapter and each local chapter is required to raise a certain quota or percentage for national disaster relief, according to Finn and David.

They note that all one needs to do to have funds forwarded to the national level for disaster relief is to make checks payable to the National Disaster Relief Fund in care of the local American Red Cross chapter.

MAUDIE CLARK Services for Maudie Lavada Clark, 84, will be at 2:30 p.m. today in Rose Chapel of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home with J.W. Pinkston, of the Assembly of God in San Antonio, officiating. Burial will be in Friona Cemetery.

Mrs. Clark died Saturday at Deaf Smith General Hospital. She was born in Gholson and married Robert C. Clark in 1923. He died in 1948. She moved to Hereford from Friona in 1960 and was a homemaker and a Methodist.

Survivors include two sons, Robert Lee of West Columbia and Raymond of Amarillo; a daughter, Maurine Helmke of Hereford; two sisters, Ethel Corley of Waco and Dorothy Faye Denson of Garden Grove, Calif.; four brothers, Sam, Yancy, and Herschel Stowers, all of Garde Grove, Buddy Stowers of Friona; four grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren.

DELMA GARZA Services for Delma Garza, 32, are pending with Rix Funeral Directors. She died at 3:05 a.m. today at Deaf Smith General Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Garza was born in Tyler and had been a Hereford resident since 1957. She was a member of the Catholic Church.

Survivors include one son, Michael Garza of Hereford; one daughter, Delia Garza of Hereford; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Marry of Hereford; two brothers, Johnnie Marry and Ruben Marry Jr., both of Hereford; and five sisters, Angie Vela of Michigan, and Silvia Salzar, Nancy Cantu, Ida Murillo, and Debbie Marry, all of Hereford.

SANDERS INFANT DIMMITT — Services for Barry Brent Sanders, 3-month-old son of Bill and Suzan Sanders, were at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at First United Methodist Church with the Rev. Vernon O'Kelly, pastor, officiating. Burial was in Westlawn Memorial Park Cemetery under direction of Parsons Funeral Home.

The infant died Thursday in Lubbock.

Survivors in addition to his parents, include a brother, Kevin Sanders of Dimmitt; grandparents, E.M. and Joy Jones, Mrs. Polly Sampson and Aileen Smitherman, all of Dimmitt, and Virginia Simpson of Hereford; and great-grandmothers, Edna Jones and Frances Garvin, both of Abernathy.

Queen and Princesses for Rodeo afternoon performance. Queen for the three day event is Crystal Finley at left; Thursday night princess is Jennifer Smith, Friday night princess is Jill Johnson, and Saturday afternoon princess is Mica Harland.

Ann Landers

Son is an embarrassment

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our experiences in parenthood lead us to believe that whoever wrote "as the twig is bent..." was a bachelor. We have bent a lot of twigs through the years, but eventually they grew in the direction of their choice once the pressure of bending was released.

Being the parents of children who are social slob is an embarrassment. We know we aren't the only ones, so perhaps this letter will end up on some refrigerator doors and bulletin boards. Here's the message: Dear Friends and Relatives: We know that not one of you who sent gifts for our son's 18th birthday and high school graduation has heard from him. We are deeply ashamed but decided not to nag him about it. We feel it is high time he accepted responsibility for his own thank-you notes.

In the future, please do not feel obligated to send him a gift. Chastise him or continue your generosity as you wish. Also, if he doesn't RSVP to an invitation, invite someone else and notify him the day before the party that his place has been filled. Stop including him. If he doesn't return your calls, replace him with a more responsive friend and companion.

We have done what we can to teach this young man decent manners, which are nothing more than consideration for others.

When HE can't collect postal insurance without the embarrassment of asking if HIS gift arrived, maybe he will get the message. We are, of course - His Parents

DEAR PARENTS: Thanks for a terrific letter. I applaud every word of it and recommend that others who find themselves in your position follow your example.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I made up my mind when I was 11 that I would stay a virgin until I got married. But everything changed when I was 15. I met this guy I will call "Johnnie." At first we'd just go riding and talk. After three dates he started to pressure me to go all the way. I didn't really want to, but he sweet-talked me into it.

Now, a year and a half later, I have had sex with 14 different guys, from ages 16 to 20.

I know if I hadn't given in that first time, I never would have turned into such a pushover. I know it's wrong but whenever I get the chance to sleep with a guy, I can't refuse. Am I sick, or what?

Ann, I want to stop behaving like this. I know I shouldn't be taking such chances and it's morally wrong. Please don't tell me to see a psychiatrist. I don't have the money. I just need some good advice. I'm praying you will help me. -Messed-up n Alabama

DEAR MESSED-UP: You're heading for big trouble, dear. Intensive counseling is needed to get you to value yourself so you can say no and mean it. I hope your school has some good counselors. If not, look in the phone book under mental health. There are free (or very reasonable) health services in your city, and you need to get help at once.

Abundant Life

WE ARE NOT ALONE
By Bob Wear

Many people care about, are interested in and concerned with supporting and upholding truth, goodness, virtue, patriotism, law and order, and other good things. From time to time, however, there seems to be a tendency for each concerned person to think otherwise.

There are persons who seem to feel that they are carrying the whole world on their shoulders, that they are standing alone. This is not a justified attitude, and it destroys personal happiness, makes us less effective, and may stand between us and pleasant associations with others.

All of us have the privilege to do our best to uphold all that is honorable and desirable, but we must never feel that we stand alone. To think that we are about the only person who cares, is a terribly distorted attitude. We are being presumptuous, if we do assume the view that we are the only one who cares, or the only one who knows what needs to be done.

We are not alone in our love for country, or in our desire to preserve our heritage. We are not alone in our regard for decency and morality in human behavior. We are not alone in our respect for law and order. We are not alone in our honest efforts to live by the best available standards of behavior.

All of our know that there are serious problems, and seemingly insurmountable obstacles. We also know that there are folk who are determined to create more problems and difficulties. Nevertheless, there are many persons, probably more than we realize, who are devoted to the preservation and the protection of all that is essential to our well-being. We can see evidence of this fact every day, and this should be a source of encouragement to all of us.

Let all who love and appreciate the good life take heart that in our wish to preserve it, we are not alone.

Concert Scheduled Sunday

The First Christian Church will host a concert by the Continental Singers and Orchestra Sunday morning, Aug. 14. The presentation, entitled, "Praise His Name and See it Happen," will include many contemporary Christian favorites, as well as a medley of hymns and gospel songs. The public is invited to attend this special service.

Ronald McDonald House dedication set Sunday

AMARILLO — Through the efforts of concerned citizens across the Texas Panhandle and eastern New Mexico, the Ronald McDonald House of Amarillo has become a reality.

A formal dedication and public open house of the facility, aptly heralded as "the house that love built," has been scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 14, at the Ronald McDonald House site, 1501 Streit Drive in the Amarillo Medical Center Complex.

Individuals and civic organizations from throughout the area dedicated time, energy and money to the funding of the Ronald House. Beginning Aug. 15, the Ronald House will open as a temporary lodging facility for the families of critically ill children who come from outside Amarillo to receive treatment at one of the nearby hospitals or treatment centers.

For the families of critically ill children, the problems surrounding the care of a sick child can be monumental—the need for good medical attention, constant care, and the staggering costs of treatments.

And when families have to travel from their hometown to a medical center in another city, the additional burden of travel and hotel expenses, plus the emotional strain of being away from other family members for an extended time, can be overwhelming.

The Ronald McDonald House was conceived to alleviate some of this burden. It provides families with a warm, home-type atmosphere, a haven for rest and support, a place where they can be together as a family.

Besides easing the physical and emotional stress of travel and separation, the Ronald House lightens the financial burden faced by families confronting a major illness. Families using a Ronald McDonald House pay a maximum of $10 per day for their stay. In cases of financial hardship, the payment is waived.

The Amarillo Ronald McDonald House will house ten families at a time, on a first-come, first-served basis. Recommendations for families to use the House are expected to come from area doctors, as well as from the social service departments of hospitals in the five-state service area.

Minimum requirements for residency will be outlined to applicants and the recommending agencies.

The Amarillo Ronald McDonald House is owned and operated by the Children's Oncology Services of the Texas Panhandle, a not-for-profit corporation created for the purpose of building and operating the Ronald McDonald House in Amarillo.

The corporation was formed in December 1981 by 27 concerned citizens from Amarillo and other Texas Panhandle cities; spearheaded by the research and efforts of Ronald C. McVean, owner-operator of the McDonald's Restaurants in the Texas Panhandle and eastern New Mexico, Jim Mathews, and Father Joseph Tash, and aided by George Bentley and John Banasik.

Early in 1982, a financial steering committee, headed by Dr. Winfred Moore, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Amarillo, undertook a capital fund drive to raise $1 million for the construction of the Ronald McDonald House.

A $25,000 grant from the Ray Kroc-Ronald McDonald Children's Fund backed the venture, as did fundraising promotions by the McDonald's Restaurants in Amarillo, Canyon, Hereford and Pampa, Texas, Clovis and Portales, New Mexico, and Guyton, Okla. Kroc is the founder of McDonald's Corporation.

Pledges and donations came from everywhere in the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles and eastern New Mexico. Within 2½ months, the goal set for construction of the Ronald House was met.

Dr. Moore said that the efforts of the volunteer committee and the giving spirit and financial support of the area's citizens were responsible for the speedy realization of the committee's goal.

Once the building fund goal was reached, the Ronald House construction and operations committee, chaired by Elizabeth Pounds Carter, moved ahead with location and building plans for the Ronald House.

According to Mrs. Carter, the Ronald House has ten bedrooms, each with its own bath, as well as a full apartment for a live-in manager. Mrs. Carter said that the community kitchen and dining areas, as well as a family living area, are intended to foster a more home-like atmosphere.

As the Ronald House neared reality, board president Banasik announced that Mrs. Sharon Dodd of Pampa had been selected as the full-time resident manager of the House. Mrs. Dodd assumed the position on July 15 as she and her family took up residence in the manager's apartment of the facility.

Banasik cited Mrs. Dodd's experience with her own critically ill child, Zachary, as uniquely qualifying her for the position. Mrs. Dodd became involved with the local Ronald House when Zachary was undergoing treatments for leukemia. Zachary later died as a result of his illness.

Mrs. Dagg is retained as resident manager by the Children's Oncology Services of the Texas Panhandle. She will be in charge of the day-to-day operation of the House as it becomes fully operational. Mrs. Dodd said that a staff of volunteers is necessary to keep a Ronald McDonald House running smoothly and that anyone interested in volunteering in any capacity is invited to call the Ronald McDonald House for further information.

The physical operation of the Amarillo Ronald House will depend solely on donations, as it is run by a not-for-profit corporation.

An endowment fund for the operation of the House has been organized, according to Father Joseph Tash, director of pastoral care at St. Anthony's Hospital. Father Tash said that anyone wishing to make donations should contact the Ronald McDonald House, 1501 Streit Drive in Amarillo.

A Ronald McDonald House van, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Don Judd, will soon be available to provide necessary transportation for families to and from hospitals and treatment centers.

The concept of a home-away-from-home for families of critically ill children began in 1974 with the first Ronald McDonald House in Philadelphia. It was so named because of the fundraising efforts of the Philadelphia McDonald's restaurants, and because of the fun-filled and inspirational relationship of the McDonald's clown with children.

Since that time, Ronald McDonald Houses have opened throughout the country; as many as 50 or more are operational or underway in the U.S. and Canada. Each Ronald House is owned and operated by a not-for-profit corporation created for that purpose. Each has a full-time, paid resident manager, as well as volunteers to provide assistance for decoration, maintenance and operation.

Concert to benefit

MDA

Matt Morgan and the Flaming Stars will present a benefit concert, a tribute to Elvis, at 9 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 17, at the Hereford Community Center.

Admission is $1 and all proceeds will go to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Continental Singers to perform here

The Continental Singers and Orchestra, currently on their yearly 75-day summer tour, will present a live concert of contemporary Christian music on Sunday, Aug. 14, at 10:50 a.m. at the First Christian Church, 401 W. Park.

This year's presentation, entitled "Praise His name and See it Happen," will feature portions of a new musical, "Dreamer," based on the life of Joseph. The program will include such contemporary favorites as "Sing Your Praise to the Lord" by Richard Mullins and "He Will Carry You" by Scott Wesley Brown.

A medley of favorite hymns and gospel songs will be sung. Also featured are songs from such writers as Michael and Stormie Omartian, Steve Taylor, Georgiyan Banov, and Don Francisco.

The 25 vocalists and 11-piece orchestra are highly trained and talented musicians selected by audition from thousands of high school and college-age young people from across the nation and in foreign countries. Auditions are held after each local concert for singers, instrumentalists and technical staff.

The program has proven so popular among young performers wanting to join the tours that they have grown from one group in 1967 to sixteen groups this year.

Since Cam Floria organized the first group, various editions of the Continental Singers and Orchestra have made over 7,000 live domestic appearances and over 2,200 foreign appearances before more than 4 million people. The philosophy of Floria is that "regardless of the country or religion, music is the common language."

Traveling from 100 to 500 miles seven days a week by bus, boat and plane, they perform nightly during the summer tour. Concerts are held in churches, auditoriums, outdoor pavilions, military bases and hospitals. They are completely self-contained with their own sound and lighting equipment.

In addition to performing in all 50 states, they have toured Canada, Great Britain and Ireland, Eastern and Western Europe, plus Russia, Poland, Yugoslavia, the Middle East, South America, Australia, New Zealand, the South Pacific, the Far East, and the Caribbean Islands.

This year, the Continental Singers and Orchestra will perform throughout all 50 states and American Samoa, Austria, Bahamas, Barbados, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Fiji, Finland, France, Great Britain, Holland, Hungary, Indonesia, Israel, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Korea, Norway, Philippines, Poland, Puerto Rico, Singapore, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Taiwan, Tonga, West Germany, Western Samoa, and Yugoslavia.

Floria, president of Continental Ministries headquartered in Thousand Oaks, Calif., has perfected techniques to turn 320 singers and 200 instrumentalists into 16 professional-sounding performing groups in a short 10-day training period. Sound and lighting technicians and bus drivers also receive specialized training.

While each member of the group has been rehearsing independently at home prior to coming together, the tour begins with an intensive rehearsal camp in the Los Angeles area, where they meet as a group for the first time.

Financing for this non-profit group is unique. Each member raises part of his or her expenses on his own, with the remainder being supplied by local churches and organizations.

They have recorded 12 record albums on the Word and Light labels, plus nine albums on Christian Artists Records. Their newest albums are "Dreamer," a musical based on the life of Joseph, and "Come Love the Lord," on Christian Artists Records (distribution by Sparrow Records.)

4-H Firsthand

Broiler projects are popular

By BRAD MORRISON
County Extension Agent
Broiler projects are becoming increasingly popular with 4-H members and parents because they offer many advantages with little initial expense or space needed.

Members working with broiler projects receive intensive training in feeding and caring for the chicks and in selecting broilers for show during the short eight-to-12 week life of the project.

Requirements for starting a broiler project are small. A minimum amount of space is needed, making the project ideal for urban members and those with limited space and facilities.

Broiler chicks require a clean, dry shelter which can be properly heated and ventilated. A small poultry house or even a partitioned area in the garage or storage building will do. Most broiler projects consist of 25 to 50 pullet chicks, and two square feet of floor space per broiler should be provided.

A good quality commercial broiler ration containing at least 20 percent protein must be fed for best growth and performance.

Broiler projects are low-cost compared to large animal projects. And most cost can be recovered by slaughtering and freezing the broilers for home use.

4-H'ers interested in learning more about broiler projects may contact the county Extension office.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Good Timers schedule square dance lessons

The Good Timers Square Dance Club met for its regular dance Friday at the Community Center. The members finalized their plans for square dance lessons.

Lessons will begin Sept. 12 at the Community Center. Anyone interested is invited to come that night for an introduction to square dancing. The club plans to have an evening of fun, food and fellowship for those who think they might like to square dance. Anyone desiring more information about the lessons may call Forrest McDowell at 578-4390.

Several club members attended the Chris Year dance in Canyon on Saturday night. As announced by McDowell, club president, the Panhandle Square and Round Dance Association Jamboree will be at the Civic Center in Amarillo, Saturday, Aug. 13. All area dancers are urged to attend.

Mets prevail 6-5

Viridon sees Expos lose 'good game'

MONTREAL (AP) — Even in defeat, Montreal Expos Manager Bill Viridon conceded he had watched a good baseball game.

"It was an exceptional game; it's too bad we had to come out of it on the losing end," said Viridon after the Expos bowed 6-5 in 10 innings to the New York Mets, who have won eight of their last nine games.

The defeat, which snapped Montreal's four-game winning streak and dropped the second place Expos two games behind Philadelphia — 14-5 winners over Pittsburgh in the only other National League game Monday night — in the East Division, was not among the easier ones for Viridon to handle.

The Expos trailed 5-1 after a five-run sixth inning by New York, but rallied to tie the score in the seventh.

In the 10th, Mets rookie Darryl Strawberry hit a one-out triple.

Montreal reliever Jeff Reardon, 5-6, threw a couple of pitchouts in case Bob Bailor, the next batter, planned to squeeze home Strawberry from third. He finally issued Bailor an intentional walk, which promptly played a prominent role in the outcome.

After making one attempt to pick Bailor off first, Reardon tried it again and fired the ball past first baseman Al Oliver, allowing Strawberry to score the winning run.

"I was really surprised he threw over to first," said Strawberry. "But you can't underestimate Bobby Bailor; he's a good base stealer, and you've got to hold him close, which is what Jeff was trying to do."

Reardon declined to discuss the play because he said he didn't see it clearly. He referred reporters to Oliver, who said: "The ball was low and it bounced into the runner's leg as he headed back into first base. But that one play didn't lose the game for us.

"You can't put the blame on one player. When you lose, you lose as a team."

Jesse Orosco, 10-5, got the victory with three innings of relief. He has five victories and two saves in the last eight days and hasn't allowed an earned run in the last 19 1-3 innings.

"I don't know how to explain it," said Orosco. "It's never happened to me before, but I may as well lap it up while it's happening."

Another highlight for the Mets was a pinch-hit, RBI single by Rusty Staub in the five-run inning. It was his 18th this season, beating the team record held by Ed Kranepool.

"Pinch hitting is all that's available for me right now, so I'd better do it good," said Staub.

Tim Wallach's 15th home run in the fifth had provided the Expos with a 1-0 lead. But George Foster tied it in the sixth with the Mets' third straight single off starter Ray Burris.

A walk by Strawberry loaded the bases and Bailor drove in a run with a fielder's choice. Staub then ripped his run-scoring single, scoring Foster. Bailor also scored when center fielder Andre Dawson's throw went past third base for a two-base error.

Jose Oquendo, pinch running for Staub, who took third on the error, scored on a suicide squeeze by starting pitcher Tom Seaver.

The Expos tied the score in the seventh. Gary Carter singled behind Warren Cromartie's double off Seaver to drive in the first run. After Wallach singled and pinch-hitter Terry Crowley moved the runners up with a groundout, pinch-hitter Mike Stenhouse scored Carter with another groundout.

Tim Raines was safe on an error by second baseman Bailor that allowed Wallach to score. Raines, after stealing both second and third, made it 5-5 by scoring on Bryan Little's bloop single to left.

Phillies 14, Pirates 5

In Philadelphia, Mike Schmidt was a one-man wrecking crew, hitting two home runs, driving in five runs and scoring four. Schmidt, who moved into 25th place on the all-time home run list with 375, also took over the NL lead in homers with 26, one more than Dawson.

The Phillies overcame a three-run deficit with five runs in both the fourth and fifth innings.

McPhail hopes KC-Yank tilt won't need ending

NEW YORK (AP) — Imagine this scenario:

It's the last day of the regular season and the Kansas City Royals win at Oakland to climb within a half-game of the White Sox for the American League West title. Or, the New York Yankees lose at Baltimore to fall a half-game behind the Orioles, Brewers, Tigers or Blue Jays for the AL East flag.

But, wait. There's one more game on the schedule — or four more outs to be precise — at Yankee Stadium where the Yankees and Royals would complete their July 24 game suspended because of a controversial home run by George Brett.

Brett's pine tar-ladened bat, center of a furor 10 weeks earlier, indirectly would decide one or even two division titles the day after the season and one day before the scheduled start of the League Championship Series. The ensuing logistics problem created by a completion of the game on Oct. 3 would create another sticky situation for American League President Lee MacPhail.

He hopes it never comes to that. MacPhail, who earlier ordered the game be resumed from the point of the controversy, has asked the teams to do it Aug. 18.

Players on both clubs apparently would have to approve that date because it would fill an off-day and force the Yankees to play on 31 consecutive days and the Royals on 37 straight. The players' contract says teams can play no more than 19 days in a row.

lose their day off in the middle of a pennant race.

"We are very much opposed to playing on the 18th," said Murray Cook, the Yankees' general manager. "We would prefer to wait until the end of the season to see how things stand. Hopefully, by doing that, it will turn out we don't have to complete the game after all."

Bob Fishel, MacPhail's assistant, foresaw complications if the game is not completed until the season ends. "If the game was completed after the season and it created a tie, we would have to have a playoff," Fishel said. "That could create an unfair disadvantage for a team going into the American League championship series."

The contest reverted from a 4-3 Yankee victory to a suspended game when MacPhail overruled the umpires' decision and reinstated Brett's two-run, two-out homer in the top of the ninth inning which gave the Royals a 5-4 lead.

When MacPhail upheld Kansas City's protest two weeks ago, he said the game could be completed Aug. 18 or after the season if it had a bearing on either team's pennant hopes. Both teams have only one other coincidental day off — Sept. 15.

"We're looking at a number of dates and Aug. 18 is the first practical choice," MacPhail said. "It's probably also the best choice and, realistically, maybe the only choice."

New York wins two

Toronto falling quickly

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

It seems now that the Toronto Blue Jays may be an endangered species.

"We were out for a little bit of revenge because of how we were treated in Toronto and we got it tonight," said Dave Winfield, whose hitting helped the New York Yankees to a doubleheader sweep of the faltering Blue Jays, 8-3 and 11-3 Monday night.

The sweep in Yankee Stadium not only extended the Blue Jays' current losing streak to six games and dropped them 3½ games back in fifth place in the American League East, but avenged a bad time in Canada last week. The Yankees lost three of four games to the Blue Jays and were further humiliated by Winfield's arrest for killing a bird.

Winfield became a cause celebre when a ball he threw between innings struck and killed a seagull. He was charged with cruelty to animals — seagulls are a protected species in Canada — and had to post a $500 bond. However, the charge was dropped the next day, and an official for the Toronto police came to New York to apologize for the incident.

In other AL action, Cleveland beat Baltimore 9-4, Texas stopped Boston 12-7, Chicago tripped Detroit 5-4 in the opener of a doubleheader before losing the nightcap 7-2, Kansas City split with Milwaukee, winning the first game 5-4 and losing the second 8-5, Minnesota stopped California 4-2 and Oakland edged Seattle 2-1.

Winfield had two singles, a double and two RBI in the opener and hit a solo homer in the nightcap. The homer-happy Yankees also got shots from Oscar Gamble in the opener and a grand slam homer by Ken Griffey and solo blast by Don Baylor in the nightcap.

"When you initiate the offense and have the other team down, you can play your game," said Winfield. "They took it to us in Toronto, and we tried to do it in our home park. Fortunately, we were able to take the first couple of games."

Though the Yankees said they wanted to resume the game after the season, owner George Steinbrenner already has said he would rather take the loss than have his players

Ashford among several stars hurt at Helsinki

By BERT ROSENTHAL AP Sports Writer

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Evelyn Ashford, the world record holder in the women's 100-meter dash, crumpled to the track, grabbing her right hamstring and writhing in pain.

She was the latest victim in a series of injuries that have robbed the inaugural World Track and Field Championships of some of their expected heroes and heroines.

With only two days of competition completed in the meet that ends Sunday, the growing injury list already contains some impressive names.

Ashford, who had reached a peak in her brilliant career last month by taking the world record (10.79 seconds) from her heated rival, Marlies Gohr of East Germany, broke down Monday in the 100-meter final.

"I'm very disappointed, but I will be back next year," Ashford promised after learning that she had suffered a torn hamstring muscle and her recovery period would be 8-10 weeks.

"I have a few scores to settle," she added.

One of the scores will be against Gohr. The former world record holder, capitalizing on Ashford's frightening fall, won the 100 in 10.97, leading a 1-3 East German sweep.

She was not very sympathetic after capturing the gold medal.

"That is her problem, not mine, that she couldn't make it," Gohr said about Ashford's injury.

"I know how to beat Ashford now," she added. "I let Ashford win yesterday (in Sunday's second-round heats)."

The injury to Ashford overshadowed a 1-2-3 American sweep in the men's 100, led by Carl Lewis, and a surprising victory by Zdzislaw Hoffmann of Poland in the triple jump.

Lewis, after a slow start, zipped past Calvin Smith near the 60-meter mark and went on to win in 10.07 seconds.

Smith, the world record holder, was second in 10.21 and Emmitt King was third in 10.24, just ahead of 1980 Olympic champion Allan Wells of Scotland (10.27).

The little-known Hoffman equalled the eighth best jump in history, soaring 17.42 meters (57 feet, 2 inches). Willie Banks of the United States and Ajayi Agbekoku of Nigeria tied for second at 17.18 (56-4/8), but the popular American was awarded the silver medal on the basis of a better second jump.

Marita Koch of East Germany and Diane Williams of the United States won the day's other medals, placing second and third respectively, in the women's 100 in 11.02 and 11.06.

Afterward, Williams put the meet in perspective.

"This World Championship has been a very sad one," she said, reflecting on the injuries.

Ashford's breakdown followed by one day injuries to Cuba's Alberto Juantorena and Italy's Sara Simeoni, both Olympic gold medalists and former world record holders.

Juantorena, winner of the 400 and 800 meters in the 1976 Summer Games, underwent surgery Monday after suffering torn ligaments and a broken bone in his right foot as he fell while crossing the finish line in an 800 heat.

Simeoni, the 1980 Olympic champion in the women's high jump, suffered a pulled leg muscle during Monday's qualifying and had to be carried off on a stretcher.

For Cougar offense

Yeoman to adopt I formation

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Coach Bill Yeoman, inventor of the veer offense, is joining the trend toward the I formation.

"We'll probably run some of the offensive formations from the I, everybody else does," Yeoman said. "Being in the I is not going to bother us."

Yeoman hopes use of the I formation will help the Cougar offense dig out from the doldrums that contributed to last season's 5-5-1 record.

Another change, however, has nothing to do with offensive formations.

"At the quarterback spot, and this doesn't come as a shock, we're going to have to get more careful play," Yeoman said. "We can't have the fumbles and the interceptions that we've had the last couple of years and still expect to play the way we should."

Lionel Wilson established 12 UH records and gained 3,766 total yards in the last two seasons for the second highest total in UH history. But fumbles and interceptions have checked his performance.

"Wilson is a very gifted athlete but he has to be more careful with the football to play," Yeoman said.

The Cougar offense was stalled by 34 turnovers last season, 17 fumbles and 17 interceptions. Wilson threw 13 of the interceptions last season and had 11 the previous year.

"I am kind of encouraged (offensively) because it appears as if we have a little more size and speed at running back and there's every indication that we have the same thing at receivers," Yeoman said.

Senior Dwayne Love will line up at fullback and Donald Jordan will get the starting nod at tailback. Love led the Cougars' No. 2 rusher last year with 831 yards and led the team with 10 touchdowns.

"Our offensive line, although it is not real deep, looks like it can play a little better," Yeoman said.

Guard Scott Marshall is the lone returning starter in the offensive line.

right tackle and Earl Jones, a 300-pound senior from Houston, at right guard.

Audrey McMillian has moved from quarterback to free safety, leaving Wilson as the lone returning letterman at the position. Wilson's early fall practice will be critical because he missed spring drills because of arthroscopic knee surgery.

"Lionel definitely could have used the work in the spring. There's no doubt about it," Yeoman said. "He really needed to work on his timing with the receivers."

Houston returns a strong receiving corps including split end Larry Shepherd, flanker David Roberson and tight end Carl Hilton.

Houston opens its season against the Rice Owls and closes out Nov. 26 in Tokyo against defending Southwest Conference champion Southern Methodist.

After Oilers cut him

Perry looking for other squad

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Vernon Perry, a four-year Houston Oilers veteran who has been placed on waivers, says he will try to play for another National Football League team.

If he is not claimed by an NFL team, Perry will become a free agent and probably will "try with the Gamblers," Houston's United States Football League franchise, he said.

"I was kind of talking to them for a while," the 29-year-old strong safety said Monday.

"I've done a lot of thinking," Perry said, "and I know I can still play. I feel like I can go anywhere and play. I just need a shot to prove myself. Since I wasn't getting that chance here, I just felt like it was time for me to get out of here."

Oilers Coach Ed Biles said Perry was waived Monday because he was rated behind veteran Carter Hartwig and rookie Keith Bostic.

Perry is due to go on trial next month on a cocaine possession charge and three misdemeanor charges alleging violation of state liquor laws and resisting arrest. He was arrested during the off-season in a highly publicized incident at his nightclub in Jackson, Miss., his hometown.

Biles said Perry's arrest "had absolutely nothing to do" with the decision to put him on waivers.

"We'll only keep three safeties, and Vernon wasn't rated at the top of the group," Biles said. "There's an awful lot of competition among the defensive backs, and the coaches felt like the others were doing better."

"By waiving Vernon now, he'll have a better chance to catch on with another team than if we'd have waited until the final roster cut-down," Biles said.

Perry said he was "not bitter" about his release, but added, "I don't think I was given a chance to prove myself."

"I was knocked down from first- to third-team, so I felt it was best to go to Eddie (Biles) and tell him to put me on waivers so I'll have a chance to catch on with another team."

If Perry is claimed by another NFL team, he still faces a possible suspension by Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Perry is trying to get the charges dropped. However, if he is convicted of possession of cocaine, he could face a penalty similar to that given to Pete Johnson, Ross Browner, Greg Stenrick and E.J. Junior. All four were suspended July 25 through the fourth game of the regular season because of their involvement with cocaine.

Tourney slated August 19-21

August 19-21 has been set aside for the YMCA Deaf Smith County Closed Tennis Tournament at the Hereford High School courts.

Entry deadline for the consolation tourney is Wednesday, August 19. Play will begin each of the three days at 8 a.m., with nine-point tiebreakers and two out of three sets being the format.

There are 22 events for the tournament, of which anyone is able to enter in three. Competition is for female or male first graders through adults. Youth divisions are slated to compete on Friday, August 19 with adults to play the following two days.

Adult and high school competitors will be charged $6 per event if they are members of YMCA and $7 if not. Junior high school and elementary division players must pay $5 if they are not YMCA members and $4 if they are. Entry fees must accompany entry forms.

More information may be obtained from the YMCA office (364-6990) in the Sugarland Mall.

Trainer thinks his man set to fight

An AP Sports Analysis By ED SCHUYLER JR. AP Sports Writer

The "practice" for the vacant World Boxing Council welterweight champion is just what Colin Jones needed.

At least that's the opinion of Eddie Thomas, a cool Welshman, who knew how to fight and knows how to handle fighters.

Jones, also a Welshman, lost at least the first five rounds against lanky Milton McCrory of Detroit last March 19 at Reno, Nev., then battled back to gain a 12-round draw in a fight for the title left vacant when Sugar Ray Leonard retired last November.

"Now he knows how being a champion feels ... or being a half champion," said Thomas of the 24-year-old Jones, who will fight McCrory in a title rematch in the desert heat of Las Vegas, Nev., the kind of heat that has made good fighters blow their cool.

Thomas feels that the 12 rounds against McCrory in March can only help Jones.

Jones has scored 21 knockouts in winning 24 fights — his only loss was on a disqualification — and between his knocking out Sakrai Ve in the second round at London Sept. 14, 1982, and his March fight against McCrory, he fought less than two rounds.

On Nov. 6, Jones, already the British welterweight champion, won the European title by knocking out Henrik Palm of Denmark in Round 2 at Copenhagen in a fight that had been postponed when Jones developed appendicitis.

But what about 12 rounds in 90-100 degree heat? McCrory is an Emanuel Steward fighter and is used to training in the hell-like heat of the Kronk Gym in Detroit, which can get pretty hot at times outside, too.

But Thomas feels Jones has prepared for the heat.

Don't drink the water, beware of some foods

Most people who plan to travel abroad, especially to Mexico, are already alert to the fact that drinking the water may cause a severe case of diarrhea, but many tourists are not aware of other food items which should not be eaten, or of the dangers lurking in swimming areas, mosquito bites or dog bites when traveling to other countries.

"Poor hygiene and an ineffective sewer system account for most of the contamination in Mexico," states Dr. Douglas Hurley, director of infectious disease at Scott and White in Temple.

"One of the most unsuspected, yet highly contaminated, foods in Mexico are the red or green hot sauces which are served with other food dishes," noted Dr. Hurley. "These sauces are often left out all day, and most people think that since they are 'hot' with pepper seasoning they couldn't possibly be contaminated." Dr. Hurley added that if the hot sauces are processed and are in labeled containers, they are probably safe.

Some safe foods recommended by Dr. Hurley are raw vegetables and fruits which can be washed and peeled. "Handling of fresh fruits and vegetables by the farmers and vendors is responsible for a great deal of the contamination," Hurley explained.

"Also, if meat is well cooked (not rare) and arrives at the table still steaming, one may consider it safe to eat," said Dr. Hurley. Asked what is safe to drink, he replied, "Bottled water, wine, and bottled soft drinks, but be careful of the ice cubes. It's easy to forget that they're made from water." If silverware and dishes look and feel clean, they are probably safe enough to eat from, he added.

There are several strains of viruses which are common only to certain parts of the world, and when travelers are visiting those areas, they are likely to contract the viruses which local inhabitants have become immune to. "If people from Mexico, Central America, or Africa come to visit the United States, they may experience similar viral illnesses for which they have not developed an immunity because the viruses are common only to our area," explained Dr. Hurley.

Medication recommended by Dr. Hurley includes antibiotics such as sulfamethoxazole-trimethoprim or a tetracycline drug. For business or other travelers who must visit foreign countries frequently, or for the elderly, Dr. Hurley suggests preventive measures such as prophylaxis with one of these drugs.

When considering swimming in a lake or stream in a foreign country, a good rule of thumb is to see if the water looks clean or if it is a clear running stream. "Since more parasites live in standing water, a clear running stream or clean-looking water is probably safe to swim in," noted Dr. Hurley.

Dog bites and should be considered much more seriously in other countries, said Dr. Hurley. "Rabies is much more prevalent in Mexico than in the United States," he added. "However, rabies has been totally eradicated in England because of the strict quarantine rules."

Exotic tropical diseases such as malaria and yellow fever (a viral disease carried by a mosquito) are common to Africa, India, Southeast Asia, and South America, Dr. Hurley stated. "Yellow fever is an equatorial zone problem and travelers to those areas should obtain a vaccination."

When travelers apply for a passport, it is not required that they obtain vaccinations to get in or out of a country, explained Dr. Hurley. "Even

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 9, the 221st day of 1983. There are 144 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Aug. 9, 1974, Gerald Ford was sworn as the nation's 38th president as the resignation of Richard Nixon took effect.

On this date:

In 1831, the first steam locomotive in the United States made a run between the cities of Albany and Schenectady in New York.

In 1942, Britain arrested Indian nationalist Mohandas Gandhi, not releasing him until 1944.

In 1945, the United States dropped its second atomic bomb, destroying much of Nagasaki, Japan, near the end of World War II.

In 1969, three men and two women, including actress Sharon Tate, were found slain in a secluded home near Beverly Hills, Calif.

Ten years ago: The bodies of 17 teen-age boys were uncovered in a boat shed in Houston, and a 17-year-old told police that he — and a man he had killed — were involved in more than 25 slayings.

Five years ago: A truce was announced in Lebanon in fighting between Lebanese Christians and Syrian troops.

One year ago: A federal judge committed presidential assailant John Hinckley Jr. to a mental hospital for an indefinite period.

Today's birthday: former Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., is 70.

Thought for today: "Judge a man by his questions rather than his answers." — Voltaire, French writer (1694-1778).

Chronic stuttering needs intervention

COLLEGE STATION — While parents should not be alarmed if their pre-schooler stutters, they should be concerned if that speech disability persists as the child gets ready to start school.

"Parents should be assured that 80 percent of all children between two and seven frequently stutter, but will outgrow it by adolescence," says Dr. Delores Steglin, a family life education specialist with Texas A&M's Agricultural Extension Service.

In fact, many speech pathologists hesitate to intervene with young children because it might intensify a problem that will diminish with age, she notes.

But for children whose stuttering becomes more pronounced with age, early detection and treatment is best, says Steglin. Recent research shows that when children do not outgrow their stuttering, the problem often becomes chronic by the time they enter school.

The demands of school activities and classroom recitation then tend to increase the child's stuttering and lead to feelings of failure or the inability to relate to others.

The United States buys nearly half the global supply of coffee. More than a billion dollars a year is spent to provide each U.S. resident with an annual average of 750 cups of coffee.

Over 600 freshman will be registered

When the fall semester begins Aug. 24 at West Texas State University, more than 600 freshman students will be registered through participation at summer orientation sessions.

Beginning freshmen may enroll to take the American College Test at 8 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 20. On Monday, Aug. 22, students who did not attend a summer orientation session may become acquainted with campus at 8:45 a.m. in the Activities Center Ballroom.

Students participating in the Monday orientation session may receive academic advising and schedule planning on Tuesday, Aug. 23, at 1 p.m.

Registration for the fall semester is Wednesday, Aug. 24, at the Activities Center with classes beginning the following day.

Dr. Bob Stout, associate director of the University Counseling and Testing Center, directs orientation sessions.

Seventy percent of the people in the United States live in 2 percent of the total land area of the country.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Causes of coughs

DEAR DR. LAMB - My husband had a heart attack three years ago. He is now 66 and doing well. He keeps his weight down, does not smoke, eats sensibly and goes for a checkup every three months. His blood pressure is always normal and his cholesterol good but he has a cough and brings up phlegm.

He also has a nasal drip which makes his nose stuffy at night. His doctor is not concerned about the cough. The doctor says many people have this, that it has nothing to do with his heart and always finds the lungs clear.

A few months after his heart attack we flew to Florida. Two days later he coughed during the night and was out of breath. We went to the hospital clinic. They took X-rays and told my husband he would have to take water pills as they found fluid in his lungs. He felt fine for the rest of our vacation. He also takes digoxin as well as the water pills.

He walks a few miles in good weather, lifts weights and never gets pains in his chest. If it is windy he gets a little out of breath. I would like to know if the coughing is a symptom.

DEAR READER - It's a symptom, but the question is, of what? It can indeed be a symptom of fluid in the lungs. A very small amount from congestive heart failure is often enough to cause an annoying cough.

I wanted to include your husband's story in my column to remind readers that a cough does not always mean a cold, allergy or respiratory infection. That is why a persistent cough must always be evaluated by a physician and not just ignored.

While your husband's cough in Florida evidently was from fluid in the lungs, that doesn't mean that that's the cause of his present cough.

To give you an appreciation of the causes of cough I am sending you The Health Letter 8-10, Cough: How and When to Treat It. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

They've developed a record-like gizmo that plays scents. It's arguable that many recordings have smelled for a long time.

Health aspects of VDTs given

High technology has changed the workplace drastically in recent years, and the most noticeable addition has been the video display terminal (VDT).

This combination of a typewriter keyboard and a television screen showing what has been typed has greatly increased efficiency. But with these advances have come reports of health-related problems associated with VDTs.

The Texas Medical Association notes four general areas of reported problems: alleged radiation hazard, vision problems, physical strain, and job stress.

The first allegations relating to the potential radiation hazard came from several journalists who developed cataracts within a year after their newspapers switched to VDTs. More recently, some pregnant women who worked with VDTs had miscarriages or abnormal offspring. Both groups attributed these problems to radiation leaking from terminals.

Repeated testing has shown, however, that radiation leakage from VDTs is well under the current acceptable limits for occupational exposure. Meanwhile, cases of cataracts have not increased at a rate one might expect with the widespread use of VDTs. The pregnancy question is not as definite. The National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health is about to conduct a major study on pregnant women who use VDTs, but results will be unavailable for about two years. Still, there is no evidence that VDTs cause reproductive problems.

Vision problems include irritation, fatigue, and blurriness. Fatigue, the most common complaint, can continue from the end of one day to the beginning of the next. Most of these problems occur because work areas are not designed properly. Room lighting or natural light may be too bright, causing a glare on the VDT screen.

Physical strain such as back pains are common among VDT users because the terminals tend to eliminate the need to move around. Sitting for long periods puts a strain on the back and neck, slows circulation in the legs, and reduces muscle tone generally. For these reasons, VDT users are encouraged to take frequent breaks to walk around.

Job stress from VDTs generally results from a lack of planning by the employer. Employees inadequately trained may become frustrated with the machines. In addition, workload requirements tend to be based on the capacity of the machine rather than the operator.

Lufkin teacher criticizes system

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) - Louis Killingsworth, who now works in a wholesale plant nursery, said he knew his 16-year teaching career was over shortly after one of his female students was badly beaten just outside of his classroom.

Killingsworth, who taught science, said the February incident was for him the culmination of a months-long process of teacher "burn-out."

He now criticizes what he said is a lack of discipline inside and outside the classroom, and a general unwillingness of the community to get involved in the educational process.

"In the last six years, teaching has definitely changed," he said, adding, "the classroom is a war zone now."

The 40-year-old teacher left Lufkin High School shortly after the February incident and went into a hospital for several days. For five months, he struggled against uncontrollable crying and deep depression.

Seven months later, Killingsworth says he has regained control of his emotions, but he still can't return to his former profession.

"I resent what happened to me, resent the fact that society allowed it to happen by letting the educational system get in the shape it's in," Killingsworth told the Lufkin Daily News.

The incident began when two students began fighting over some books that had been knocked off a desk onto the floor.

It ended with the female involved going to the hospital for plastic surgery and the male who fought her sentenced to prison.

The violence put Killingsworth in shock.

"I had just been teaching the girl, and when I looked down at her, I had to ask another student who she was," he said.

Killingsworth said he wishes he had recognized what was happening to him before the Feb. 1 incident. He wishes he had paid more attention to the warning signs that had been developing for six months - loss of memory and periodic shaking.

Teacher burnout is an emotional and mental condition that recently has gained the attention of medical and school authorities throughout the country. It is brought on by prolonged periods of stress and leaves the teacher helpless to cope with normal classroom situations.

Killingsworth said he thinks many parents do not care about their children's education, and do not discipline them enough.

He stopped calling the parents of children who were not doing well in his classes because most of them just didn't care, he said.

"There is too large a percentage of parents who don't care, too large a percentage of kids who don't care, and the kids are given too much," Killingsworth said.

"There were kids going around with more spending money than I had as a teacher, and they were driving new cars."

Killingsworth said he is optimistic about his future. But he isn't so sure about the future of the educational system.

"I've gotten back on my feet again, and I know with my education, background and drive I'll come out all right," he said.

"But the community has got to become involved in education. The parents have got to get involved in what the kids are doing, what they're taking in school, and what the school board is doing.

"I would like to see the school board become more concerned about the educational system," Killingsworth said. It seems like they think they are up there to manage the money, and what they're really managing is the future of this community."

A member of the lily family, tulips apparently first sprang up in Asia and southern Europe. The Turks tamed and perfected the plant. An Austrian ambassador to the Turkish sultan's court brought specimens back to Vienna in 1554. Tulip culture quickly thrived in the ideal soil of the Netherlands. Holland still grows some 16th-century varieties, prized for their vigor and fragrance.

Veggies for fall

DEAR POLLY - What kinds of vegetables can be planted as a "second crop"? That is, I'm looking for vegetables that can be planted in mid to late summer and will mature before frost. - JANICE

DEAR JANICE - Any fast-growing vegetables that mature well in cooler weather should do well: Radishes, turnips, peas and lettuce, for example. Chinese radishes (they come in black and long white varieties) seem to do better than ordinary red radishes in the fall. You can also plant vegetables that survive frosts well. Plant kale now and leave it in the garden all winter. To harvest it, just brush aside the snow and pick fresh, green leaves when nothing else is growing! When you're double-cropping (planting a succession of crops in the same soil), be sure to add extra fertilizer so the soil doesn't become too exhausted to support the second crop. For more help for your fall plantings as well as next year's spring gardening, I'm sending you a copy of "Polly's Vegetable Garden Pointers." Other readers who would like this brochure should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, P.O. Box 488, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101. Be sure to include the title. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - After laundering my fine table linens, I put them away in a drawer, unironed. I then iron them just before using. Embroidered cloths should be dampened and ironed on the wrong side for the prettiest look. - FRAN

DEAR POLLY - I keep a folded piece of cloth attached with rubber cement to the top of my sewing machine. On this piece of cloth, I've marked off sections with a marking pen and marked each section with a different size of sewing machine needle - "14 B" for ball needle, size 14, etc. When I change the needle in the machine, I slip a pin into the cloth in the section marked with the correct size needle. That way, I can tell at a glance what needle is in the machine. - BETTY

Farmers eliminate middleman

Textile mill proves competitive

By PHILIP BRASHER
Associated Press Writer
LITTLEFIELD, Texas (AP) — When a farmer makes just a dollar off the cotton in a $20 pair of blue jeans, it's easy to see why some Texas growers felt they weren't getting a fair deal.

So those farming on the High Plains decided to eliminate the middleman by setting up their own textile mill.

Dairy and produce farmers have long avoided middlemen by selling their commodities to the public through cooperatives, but until the mid-1970s cotton growers had never tried the idea.

About 2,000 High Plains farmers, members of 25 ginning associations, sold bonds in 1974 to finance a $43 million textile mill that experts say is already rivaling the giants of the Southeast.

The sprawling plant, believed to be the only cooperative textile mill in the world, turns out enough denim for Levi Strauss and Co. each year to make 19 million pairs of blue jeans.

That's "enough jeans for everybody in the state of Texas every year with a little left over for the state of Oklahoma," boasts plant manager Robert Hale.

The plant — its gleaming machinery a far cry from the sweat shops of "Norma Rae" — is the pride of this agricultural community of 7,500 people. A billboard outside town proclaims that Littlefield is the "Denim Capital of the West."

Indeed, the mill is the only denim plant west of the Mississippi River. It's also a moneymaker, Hale said. The American Cotton Growers, a cooperative based in nearby Lubbock that owns the plant, does not release earnings figures for the mill, but Hale says it has made money every year since it opened in 1977.

The farmers, who sell their cotton to the plant and then share in the profits of its operation, normally make $60 to $80 more a bale than they would have made selling on the open market, Hale says. At 60 cents a pound, cotton normally sells for about $300 a bale.

The High Plains grows more cotton than any other region in Texas, the nation's biggest producer of the commodity, but American textile manufacturers have generally spurned the weaker, short-staple cotton grown on the dry High Plains for varieties with longer fibers.

High Plains farmers were forced to sell their cotton overseas for lower prices, so they thought they could get a better deal at home.

And, said Texas Tech University researcher Harry Arthur, "A lot of them had the feeling that the next guy up the ladder was making more of the money."

The farmers started the plant "to move their product one step closer to the consumer," Hale acknowledged. They "felt the need to advertise West Texas cotton."

"We had thought about it a long time when Levi Strauss let it be known that they would buy the product," he said.

It wasn't until researchers developed methods for differentiating between stronger and weaker bales of the short-staple cotton that farmers could hope to find a market for a mill, Arthur said.

But with the new technology the mill promised a "darn good product" that attracted Levi Strauss into signing a contract for the plant's entire annual production and eventually proved "pretty good competition" for manufacturing giants like J.P. Stevens, Arthur said.

"I think," Arthur said of the farmers, "that they've been pleasantly surprised."

Donated for food help program

Juarez store selling U.S. butter

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Cases of butter and cheese filling a 7-foot-high cooler in the rear of a Juarez store all bore the same markings: "Donated by the United States Department of Agriculture for food help programs."

Stamped in capital letters, the cases and individual packages read: "MAY NOT BE SOLD OR EXCHANGED."

But the American butter and cheese was for sale Monday at Super Henry, a small convenience store just across the Paso del Norte bridge, the El Paso Times reported.

The bargain butter was selling for 30 cents a pound — about 15 cents cheaper than Mexican butter, which often is hard to find, and about one-fifth the price of butter in the United States, the newspaper said.

Word that USDA products were on sale in Juarez surprised officials involved with the distribution of surplus commodities, a USDA program administered by the Texas Department of Human Resources.

"I have no idea how they got them," James R. Chilton, DHR's commodity distributor for West Texas, said Monday from his office in Lubbock.

The store manager at Super Henry offered no help.

"I can't give you any information," he said nervously after ushering a reporter and photographer away from his cooler.

When asked his identity, he said "I have no name."

Moments earlier, a cash register clerk said the products were bought in Juarez from an individual he did not know.

Chilton said even if the seller were known to authorities, little could be done about it now. But that will change, he promised.

"All we can do now is turn it over to fraud and investigate, but we don't know of any state law against the sale, and USDA doesn't know of any federal law," he said. "But under the new program, it is against the law."

Chilton and other officials were unaware when the new law governing the Emergency Food Assistance Program takes effect or of the penalties for selling commodities that are supposed to be free to the poor.

Super Henry's cooler contained at least two 32-pound cases of butter, eight 30-pound cases of American processed cheese and 27 blocks of cheese weighing 5 pounds each, the Times reported.

The butter was selling for about 30 cents, and the cheese blocks were priced at about $3. USDA values the butter at $1.52 a pound and the 96 blocks at $7.35 each, the newspaper said.

Until June 6, USDA commodities were being distributed by two El Paso agencies. Distribution was halted while new eligibility guidelines were written and implemented.

Alderman Joe Divis said he thinks the stray commodities came from one of the agencies. He said he received complaints that one of them was giving away large quantities to anyone who wanted it.

Conwell Ritch, a USDA official in El Paso, said he was aware of the complaints and has passed them on to Chilton.

"I can't do anything. It's the state's program," he said.

Ramon Morales, an official of an agency known as Project Bravo, said word has gotten back to him that food given organization for distribution was being sold in Juarez.

"Once we get it out, it's out of our control," Morales said. "We have no strings on it."

No one, he said, should have been given a full case of butter or cheese.

Growers eyed from ground, air

By JANE SEAGRAVE
Associated Press Writer
GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — Marijuana growers in the Oregon woods are being watched this summer from high and from low.

As the feathery plants grow tall, cameras will be clicking in high altitude U-2 spy planes. On the ground, authorities are enlisting the aid of hikers to help spot the hidden fields where the illicit drug is grown.

But officials say some Oregon pot growers are responding by moving their crops indoors to avoid detection.

Douglas County Sheriff Norm Neal said three recent raids on rented homes in that southwestern Oregon county turned up rooms full of plants flourishing under lights.

"Indoor operations are even more difficult to discover, and present a growing direction for illicit drug cultivators," Attorney General Dave Frohnmayer said in a recent letter to a congressional committee studying marijuana trafficking in the United States.

Marijuana growing, Frohnmayer concluded, "is at a critical stage in this state."

Cultivation of marijuana has become big business in Oregon. Law enforcement authorities acknowledge that the 50,000 plants seized last year account for no more than 10 percent of what was raised.

The National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, or NORML, estimates the value of the state's 1982 marijuana crop at $500 million, making Oregon one of five states where pot is the most valuable agricultural commodity.

The 1983 marijuana season is just beginning here. So far, only a few thousand plants have been seized, said Major Doyle Watson, who heads the Oregon State Police criminal division.

But police agencies are gearing up to beat growers to a crop at least as large as last year's.

"My perception is that we've had a vigorous enforcement program in Josephine County for several years," said county Undersheriff Jim Carlton. "In spite of that, we still seem to find about the same number of gardens, the same number of plants."

As the marijuana industry has burgeoned, pot farmers have become more sophisticated, both in the art of gardening and the craft of staying one step ahead of the sheriff.

At least 80 percent of the marijuana grown commercially in Oregon is sinsemilla, a potent and high-priced hybrid that gets its name from the Spanish for "without seeds," according to David Hoover, a spokesman for the federal Drug Enforcement Administration in Washington.

Over the years, many marijuana growers have shifted their farms from backyards to remote public lands, gradually improving fertilization and irrigation techniques to maximize production in the smallest possible areas.

After drug enforcement agents started using planes to look for illegal cultivation, growers began dividing their marijuana farms into smaller plots that are harder to detect from the air, Watson said. Others have moved their plants into greenhouses, garages and houses, where a chance sighting is unlikely and the growing season is year-round.

But if the growers have become trickier in their efforts to hide their produce, police agencies have countered with a few innovations of their own.

Although DEA officials refuse to confirm the reports, county sheriffs and state police say Oregon is participating with the federal agency in an experimental surveillance program using U-2 spy planes.

Carlton said Josephine County officials expect to receive detailed aerial photographs later this summer taken from the high-altitude planes and "interpreted by photo-analysis technicians at the federal level."

In addition, Bureau of Land Management and U.S. Forest Service officials are posting signs in public areas that ask hunters and hikers to call a toll-free state police number if they see signs of illegal marijuana growth on public land.
