Hereford EMS enjoys success

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

Eleven people hold the lives of Hereford in their hands.

They are the Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs) who man the Emergency Medical Services department of Deaf Smith General Hospital. If there is an accident or a sudden illness in or near the city of Hereford, they frequently make the difference between life and death.

The work of emergency medical personnel from across the country is being recognized this week during National Emergency Medical Services Awareness Week.

Hereford's EMS averages 70 emergency calls per month. Approximately 50 percent of the patients involved are in critical condition, according to Brad Walser, the new EMS director for Hereford.

Walser recently replaced Rex Lee when Lee moved to Randall County to take a teaching position at West Texas State University.

The work performed by Hereford's EMTs is vital during emergencies.

"We have to treat everything as though it's life threatening," Walser said.

In all too many instances, Hereford's EMTs must deal with just that, life threatening situations. Even when a life isn't at stake, prompt response to an emergency situation can make a big difference in a patient's recovery time.

"There are lots of circumstances where, if we had not been called, they would have been admitted (to the hospital) rather than treated as an outpatient," Walser said.

Walser is the only full-time employee of Hereford's EMS.

Most of the 11 EMTs work as paid volunteers. These individuals provide emergency medical care in addition to their regular jobs.

The life of an EMT is a story of dedication to his or her community. Almost all of the emergency medical technicians here were born and raised in Hereford, and the people whom they serve are their friends and neighbors.

"There are lots of times when you have to go pick up a relative or a good friend. That kind of situation is not fun," Walser said.

Although caring for someone to whom the EMT is close makes a difficult job even tougher, there are benefits. It serves as a reminder of the policy to treat every patient as though they were a family member.

"They're all somebody's relative," Walser said.

Speed of response is an important factor in the quality of emergency care. An emergency call from anywhere in Hereford has a maximum response time of four minutes, Walser said.

When a major emergency is broadcast over the paging system, response time is even shorter. In such a case, all EMTs, not just those on call, go to the scene. This insures that the EMT closest to the mishap will be responding.

"The way we're spread out around the city, there's going to be somebody on that person's doorstep in two minutes," Walser said.

This time factor can be especially critical in cases needing cardio pulmonary resuscitation (CPR).

Ready for anything

Hereford's Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs) are ready for an emergency call 24-hours of every day. Brad Walser, director of Emergency Medical Services, takes his post in Hereford's "first out" primary ambulance.

County awaits word on decision on eviction appeal

The Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that Opal Lee Walker has the right to have her eviction case heard in Deaf Smith County Court.

Deaf Smith County Judge Tom Simons learned of the ruling Thursday from an article published in the Amarillo Daily News. As of 9 a.m. today, the county court had not received official notification of the supreme court's decision.

The Walker case is part of an ongoing legal struggle which began in 1986 when she received an eviction notice from Blue Water Gardens Apartments. That notice alleged that Walker owed $583 in back rent in addition to $250 in attorney's fees.

In the Daily News article, Austin attorney Sam Jackson, formerly of West Texas Legal Services, asserted that Blue Water Gardens sued Walker after she filed a housing discrimination suit against the apartment complex in federal court in Amarillo.

The supreme court's action on Wednesday is the latest in a series of appeals filed by Walker and her legal counsel since a default judgement against Walker was handed down by the Deaf Smith County Justice of the Peace on Nov. 14, 1986.

The original appeal to county court was dismissed on March 19, 1987. The Seventh District Appellate Court in Amarillo overruled Walker's motion for a rehearing on July 5, 1988.

A hearing date in the case will be set in Deaf Smith County Court after official notification has been received from the Texas Supreme Court.

Hugo slams at Carolina coast

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) - Hurricane Hugo slammed into South Carolina with winds of 135 mph today, killing at least three people, leveling dozens of buildings and peeling others open "like a can opener."

The accident stunned Alton, population 3,000, and the larger neighboring city of Mission, where the junior high and high school students were headed for school.

"Mi nina!" (my child), cried Gregoria Gonzalez, upon learning her granddaughter, 13-year-old Ruby Lopez, was one of the dead. Aurora Hernandez sat with teary eyes in the lobby of Mission Hospital Thursday afternoon, after visiting her 18-year-old daughter, Sara Hernandez, in intensive care. Doctors, she said, were pumping water out of Sara's lungs.

Mrs. Hernandez said she had rushed to the pit after learning the bus carrying Sara had plunged into the water, and "I only saw they were pulling out the drowned."

"I was looking and looking, not knowing where she was," she said.

One body was found in Eastover outside Columbia, S.C., and a second in Berkeley County near Charleston. An infant was killed in Union County, N.C., when a tree fell on a house, officials there said.

The hurricane passed through the city with winds of 135 mph and gusts even higher, the National Hurricane Center reported. Riley called the hurricane a "disaster of extraordinary dimensions." Hundreds of thousands of people were without electrical power.

Thirty major buildings in downtown Charleston were flattened, houses collapsed all over the city, and several people were trapped in a collapsed condominium complex, said Elizabeth Tam of the Charleston County Police.

"I can't believe it isn't going to be a terrible devastation," said Rhett Bickley, a spokesman at the state's Emergency Operations Center in Columbia.

The impact happened at the worst time in terms of flooding. Hugo carried with it a tidal surge, or a wall of water, 10 to 15 feet high that coincided with high tide at 2:13 a.m.

At least 20 boats washed ashore, including a 50-foot craft that washed up on a city street, Police Chief Ruben Greenberg said.

Hugo was downgraded to a tropical storm at 6 a.m. by the National Weather Service. Winds had diminished to 70 mph and further weakening was expected as Hugo moved across land.

The storm center was just south of Charlotte, N.C., and moving northwest at 25 mph. It was expected to turn to the north, and rainfall amounts of four to eight inches are possible in the path of the storm.

Some tornadoes are likely in North Carolina and Virginia today, the Weather Service said.

Tens of thousands of coastal residents, warned well in advance, spent most of Thursday boarding up homes and businesses, then driving inland to stay in shelters and hotels or with relatives and friends.

"We've only had one patient brought in, a lady went into early labor at one of the local shelters and was brought here by ambulance," said Capt. William McDaniel, commander of the Naval Hospital in Charleston.

"We lost all of our front windows in our front lobby of the hospital, we've got that area blocked off now. Otherwise other than just water damage we've done very well."

Heavy showers, thunderstorms and squalls were expected to cause severe flooding in rain-saturated Eastern states as Hugo moved up the Appalachians, said Bob Sheets, director of the hurricane center.

"It looks like it's going to move through South Carolina, into central North Carolina, into the Virginias and, finally, into Pennsylvania and New York ... in the next 24 to 36 hours," said Jim Gross, a forecaster at the center.

The hurricane-force winds first hit the South Carolina coast at 9:15 p.m. Thursday. It was the first major hurricane to strike Charleston since Hurricane Gracie came ashore 70 miles to the south in 1959.

Hugo knocked down two houses, blew roofs off houses, snapped trees, downed power lines and caused utility transformers to explode.

The roof caved in at a school being used as a shelter for 200 evacuees in the Charleston suburb of Mount Pleasant, but no injuries were reported.

The eye of the hurricane passed over this 300-year-old city of antebellum mansions about midnight. A wall of water gushed into City Hall when the roof on the 188-year-old brick building cracked during the storm. Phone and electric service to the city's command post was knocked out.

Late Thursday, Hugo apparently knocked out power to the entire city, said Lt. K.D. Kennerly, a state police spokesman.

Tax statements from the local governmental units will be going out the first of October. There are a number of industries and businesses who shoulder a big load of the tax burden. We'll have a story in Sunday's Brand on who the top 10 taxpayers are in Deaf Smith County.

If there's one thing that all citizens in Hereford pull together on, it's the Whiteface football team. That will be apparent tonight when the Herd opens District 1-4A play against the tough Lubbock Estacado Matadors.

We look for the stands to be packed and it should be a great football game. The two teams have a history of playing each other close and also having a say in who represents the district in the play-offs. Our guess: Hereford 20, Estacado 17.

The worker's comp insurance problem in Texas resulted in a major company passing over the state in searching for a site for a new plant, according to an article in The Dallas Morning News.

Chicago-based Rymer Foods Inc. announced it will build a $40 million poultry center in Madill, Okla., that will employ 1,500 workers.

Charles R. Trego Jr., Rymer's chief financial officer, said Oklahoma was selected after a four-state search that did not include northern Texas.

"We did not look at northern Texas," Mr. Trego said. "What scared us away was the high cost of doing business, especially workers' comp."

Just another reason why the Texas Legislature must do something about the workers' comp problem.

Alton, Mission mourn

ALTON, Texas (AP) - This small South Texas town prepared today to bury the first of 19 victims of a school bus accident as investigators try to determine why a truck rolled through a stop sign and rammed the bus into a water-filled pit.

Funeral rites were scheduled for 3 p.m. today for at least two of the dead students, said the Rev. Frank Gomez of San Martin de Porres Catholic Church in Alton, about 15 miles from the Mexican border.

"Normally I have very few funerals in a year," Gomez said of his youthful parish, of which he estimated more than half the 81 students on the bus were members. Another young victim's funeral will be held there Saturday afternoon, the priest said.

At about 7:40 Thursday morning, two miles down the road from the church, the packed bus plunged more than 40 feet after being struck by a soft-drink delivery truck that ran a stop sign. Bus driver Gilberto Pena had picked up the last students when the bus was hit at the intersection just east of Alton.

Caliche pits unregulated

DALLAS (AP) - Thousands of caliche pits like the one in Thursday's fatal school bus accident line roads throughout south Texas, a little-regulated legacy of contractors who dig up the gravel-like material for road base and then move on.

Nineteen students were killed when the bus plunged into the pit following a collision with a soft-drink delivery truck. The bus became submerged in about 12 feet of water at the bottom of the 40-foot-deep chasm.

No guard rail separated the pit from the roadway 20 feet away and no road signs warned of its presence. Texas Department of Public Safety Sgt. Israel Pacheco said there was no fence around the pit, though there may have been one before some recent road construction nearby.

There are no state regulations governing the pits, said officials of Pena and four students were in intensive care at area hospitals.

Investigators Thursday evening combed the accident scene and prepared to examine the vehicles for clues as to what went wrong.

More than 50 area residents gathered at the edge of the pit until dark Thursday, many still having trouble believing what happened. "Half the school was crying," said Rosie Gil, 15, talking to friends at the tragic scene Thursday evening.

She said she knew seven victims, including two from her algebra class at Mission High.

David Rayburn with the National Transportation Safety Board said the investigation would include weighing the soft-drink truck and the school bus.

Investigators from the Texas Attorney General's office also probed the roadway and edge of the caliche pit, which had no fence or railing.

Caliche, a Spanish word, is defined as gravel, sand and desert debris cemented by a porous calcium carbonate, according to the state Railroad Commission, which governs surface mining, and the General Land Office, which oversees the state's geology.

Federal mining regulations govern caliche pits while they are being mined, said Bill Driscoll, executive director of a state contractors' association, but those regulations do not apply to inactive pits.

Officials were unsure who had excavated the pit involved in Thursday's accident just outside Alton or who owned the land on which it is located. A nearby homeowner, Roque Sosa, said the pit had been there for 30 years. Alton incorporated just four years ago.

Caliche, a Spanish word, is defined as gravel, sand and desert debris cemented by a porous calcium carbonate, according to state geologist Bill Farr.

The material occurs naturally through the Southwest and Mexico, and "is used quite a lot in making road base material," Farr said.

"You'll see caliche pits lining the highways all throughout the Southwest," he said.

Such a pit is "not unusual in (Rio Grande) Valley," Hidalgo County Sheriff's Deputy Rene Torres said. "We see that a lot down here ... I used to go swimming in them as a kid."

Farr said caliche will not withstand transportation long distances, requiring the material to be mined near where it will be used.

Contractors lease the ground from owners of land adjoining a project, dig out the caliche they need, then move on, he said. All that remains is "the hole in the ground that left when the caliche is removed."

"What they're removing is 99 percent of what they're actually using, so there is really nothing to fill the pit with, other than to go dig a hole somewhere else," Farr said.

BABBLING BROOKS

By John Brooks

All of these underground gasoline storage tanks you've seen being dug up all over Hereford, and in other areas of the United States, are going to cost you big, big bucks in the not-too-distant future.

How many bucks?
Are you going to enjoy paying $2 a gallon, or more, for gasoline for your automobile? We, you and I, may have no choice.

Underground fuel storage tanks installed before 1965 must be inspected before Dec. 21. How do you test a tank? Well, you have to dig out all around it. Then you check the tank, and the soil, for leaks. That will cost about $600 per tank.

If these or other tanks that will be tested in the near future must be repaired or replaced, that will cost at least $25,000 per tank.

All other tanks are going to have to be tested in the near future, says the Environmental Protection Agency.

The soil around the tanks, whether or not it's contaminated, must be removed and replaced with new soil if the tanks don't pass muster. The cost for that new soil is not yet known. How much does new dirt cost? And how many millions of dollars will EPA waste to "safely dispose" of the "contaminated" soil.

On the new tanks, special equipment must be installed to monitor the tanks and the earth around them for leaks. These little machines cost about $2,000 each, and there must be one monitor for each tank.

Remember through all of this that most gas stations have at least three tanks: one for "regular," one for "unleaded," and one for "super unleaded." Many also have "diesel" tanks, and there could be others.

Gas station owners are facing an insurance crisis that makes Texas workers' compensation crisis look smaller. At least Texas employers can purchase workers' compensation insurance. Lloyd's of London won't even touch liability insurance for underground gasoline storage tanks.

If Lloyd's won't touch it, they must think there is going to be a big bunch of claims.

I don't like to think that gasoline is contaminating the earth around us, but there comes a time for a trade-off. I believe that the EPA has gone way overboard on this one, and we are going to be hit with double-whammy of higher gasoline prices, and a bigger tax bite so EPA can "do its thing" to enforce these rules.

Hance suggests crime victim on parole board

AUSTIN (AP) - Republican gubernatorial hopeful Kent Hance said crime victims should be placed on the state parole board, as he blamed state parole officials for the release of a man charged in the death of a Fort Worth girl.

Speaking Thursday to a task force on crime victims, Hance also called for the construction of 25,000 more prison beds at a cost of $631 million. He said the prisons could be paid for through bonds, either state or local.

Hance and state Rep. Sam Johnson, R-Plano, said the state Board of Pardons and Paroles are responsible for the release of man who has been charged in the sexual assault and slaying of 14-year-old Amy Lynn Thatcher, who was abducted last week as she walked to school.

Kenneth Reed Smith, 20, has been charged in the slaying.

From February 1987 to August 1988, Smith had been in and out of state prison two times, first for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and later for revocation of parole.

He was released from prison in December 1988, but the next month was arrested on a charge of aggravated sexual assault. His parole revocation hearings were closed after police said the victim failed to appear. The victim, a 39-year-old woman, said she did appear but the hearings were postponed.

On July 13, Smith was released from the Tarrant County Jail.

"Here's a guy that was released from prison, he was charged with another crime, he was charged with another crime. There is no reason for that little girl to be murdered. That has to stop," Hance said.

"The parole board has full responsibility for what happened in the Fort Worth case," Johnson said.

But a spokeswoman for the parole board said it was not to blame for Smith being released. "As far as we can tell, the parole board conducted itself in the way the law dictates all the way down the line," said Karin Armstrong.

New packaging makes tofu palatable

In survey after survey, tofu tops the list of foods Americans dislike most. This is unfortunate because tofu is one of the most healthy and nutritious foods available.

Rich in protein, with zero cholesterol and low in saturated fats, sodium and calories, tofu has been the protein staple of the Oriental diet for thousands of years.

Why then, does tofu have such a bad reputation in health-conscious America?

The answer lies in the traditional methods of making and packaging soybean curd. Most supermarkets today sell tofu which is made first and then packed in water-filled plastic tubs.

Also, most other protein-rich foods, like milk and yogurt, are sold in refrigerated dairy cases. Tofu, however, is usually sold in the produce department, where temperatures may not conform to U.S.D.A. recommendations of 41 degrees F. or lower. This inadequate refrigeration may lead to premature spoilage and sour-tasting tofu. Hence the "bad taste" image.

In contrast to standard water-packed tofu, Mori-Nu's Silken Tofu is aseptically packaged. Mori-Nu's sterilized liquid ingredients are hermetically sealed in the airtight container, blocking out light, microorganisms and other factors, which could lead to spoilage. The result is fresh tofu made right inside the package. Unless opened, Mori-Nu will remain fresh and bacteria-free, without preservatives, for 10 months.

Aseptic packaging, recently voted the top food/science innovation in the past 50 years by the Institute of Food Technology, has been used in making Mori-Nu Silken Tofu since 1976. As explained by the institute's expert panel on food safety and nutrition, aseptic packaging's short-term, high-temperature sterilization increases nutrient retention and flavor while ensuring protection against any forms of bacterial contamination.

Mori-Nu Silken Tofu is available in two forms: Soft, for soups, dressings and dips, and firm, for entrees such as quiche, lasagna, enchiladas and souffles. This year, Mori-Nu will also introduce a new extra-firm tofu that will be excellent for stir-fry and as a meat substitute in a variety of dishes.

For a free recipe booklet with traditional American favorites using Mori-Nu Tofu, send a stamped self-addressed envelope to: Morinaga Nutritional Foods, Inc. Box 160 Dept. M., Pico Rivera, Calif. 90665

Frosh Maroon, sophs top Randall

The Hereford Whiteface freshman Maroon scored on their first two possessions Thursday and never looked back as they handed Randall a 40-0 beating at the South Field.

Quarterbacks Richard Sanderson and Jake Head had perfect passing days as Sanderson hit on all five attempts for 143 yards and two touchdowns while Head connected on three passes for 54 yards and a pair of scores.

Tailback Chris Brummett was the leading rusher for Coach Jimmy Rowton's squad, now 3-0, with 81 yards on 10 carries for two touchdowns and also caught a pass from Head for a 22-yard score. Wingback Jason Tatarevich led the receivers with four catches for 135 yards including a 31-yard score from Head and a 77-yarder from Sanderson.

In other Hereford High games Thursday, the sophomores downed the Randall JV, 20-7, at home while the freshman white tied Plainview Red, 18-18, and the junior varsity dropped an 18-8 decision to Monterey in road games.

The frosh opened the contest with a 14-play, 77-yard drive after a Randall punt that ate up more than seven minutes of the first quarter. Brummett put the score up when he went over on fourth and goal from inside the Randall 1-yard line. Sanderson added the extra two on a bootleg around right end.

Hereford's next score was set up when defensive end Joel Gaytan grabbed a fumble at the Randall 37. Sanderson hit Tatarevich for 22 yards on the first play and connected with tight end Ruben Gutierrez from the 11 for six points as the second quarter started.

Another fumble recovery put the Herd back in business at the Randall 38. Brummett accounted for the last 37 yards and the score as he rushed twice for 15 yards and took Head's pass from the 22 all the way.

Linebacker Vince Castillo gave Hereford a shot at another score when he hauled in an interception on Randall's fifth play after the kickoff. Tatarevich did all the work with a 6-yard run and a 31-yard reception from Head to make the score 26-0 at the half.

The Herd gave the scoreboard a rest in the third quarter as a series of fumbles and penalties halted drives, but needed only one play in the fourth to get started again.

Randall took a Hereford fumble 32 yards to the Maroon 23, but three straight incomplete passes turned the ball over on downs.

Sanderson then found Tatarevich behind the Raiders defense for 77 yards and the score.

On the conversion, Sanderson lined up to kick, but the snap wound up in his hands instead of Head's, the holder. Sanderson scrambled right before finding Gaytan in the end zone for two more points.

Brummett added the final six points on a draw that went for 31 yards. Brummett ran for 46 of the Herd's 54 yards on the drive.

Herd sophs 20, Randall JV 7
Tailback Leo Brown rushed for 202 yards and scored all 20 Hereford points as the sophomores upped their record to 2-1 at Whiteface Stadium.

Hereford got on the board early when a fumble recovery at the Randall 40-yard line set up a nine-play drive that culminated in a 2-yard run by Brown.

The Herd defense forced Randall to punt following the kickoff and Brown spearheaded a 12-play drive before going in from 9 yards out and adding the conversion run.

The defense showed their stuff in the last four minutes of the first half, stopping two Raider drives on downs inside the 20.

A shanked punt into a stiff breeze gave Randall first down at the Herd 19, but the visitors could get no closer than the 5-yard line.

The Herd's next possession ended with a 6-yard loss on fourth down and Randall took over on the 24, but could not gain a first down before the clock ran out.

Randall finally got on the board late in the third quarter when fullback Buddy Stevens pushed through from the 6.

The Herd took the kick and moved 62 yards in six plays with Brown scoring on a 42-yard sprint.

Frosh White 18, Plainview Red 18
Split end Ronnie Gomez caught three passes for 107 yards and two touchdowns as the freshman White team made its first road trip of the season.

Tailback Pety Colvin ran for 102 yards with a touchdown and quarterback Chad Sandoval threw for 132 yards in the game as Coach Joe Cabezucla's team dropped to 2-0-1 on the season.

Monterey 18, Herd JV 8
Moses Diaz scored on a 1-yard dive in the fourth quarter and Max Mungia hit Amado Lopez for the Junior varsity coach Stan Carter said the Herd moved the ball well on its first two possessions before a leg injury to tailback Larry Brown sidelined him for the rest of the game.

Harriers ready to host meet Saturday

The Hereford Whiteface cross country teams will host runners from more than 50 area high schools Saturday at their annual meet at Veterans' Memorial Park.

"This is the only meet I know of in the Panhandle this week," Coach Martha Emerson said. "Everybody we usually run against will be there."

The meet will have races for six divisions with the junior varsity girls getting underway at 10 a.m. That race will be followed by the small school (Classes 1A through 3A) girls at 10:30 and large school (4A and 5A) girls at 11 a.m.

Boys' races start at 11:20 with the JV followed by small schools at noon and large schools at 12:30 p.m.

Emerson said both girls' and boys' teams have performed well in the first two meets of the season.

"The girls haven't been beaten by anyone in the our district," she said, "but Borger and Randall have been right behind us."

"The boys' have been running second to Randall, but they're the defending state champs and have everyone back from last year. Nobody is going to catch them."

Emerson added that the course, which begins in the picnic area at the park before crossing Tierra Blanca Creek twice and extending to the park's south end, is in good condition for the meet.

"The city has worked real hard getting it in shape for us. They've had people out here mowing the last three days and cleaning up. We really appreciate all they've done for us this week."

Hereford cross country captains Tim Stagner (left), Blas Cantu, Teresa Castillo and Sally Garza will lead the Herd runners Saturday when Hereford hosts runners from more than 50 schools for a meet at Veterans' Memorial Park.

Mustangs' miracles all used up

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Odds makers don't believe in football miracles striking the same team twice in one season.

A case in point are the Southern Methodist Mustangs whose "miracle on Mockingbird Lane" last week gave them a 31-30 victory over Connecticut, their first since a two-year NCAA-imposed exile for paying players.

SMU coach Forrest Gregg, who played on three Super Bowl winners, called it "the finest victory I have ever experienced."

The well-rested Texas Longhorns, who haven't played since

Sept. 4, are rated 40-point favorites over the Mustangs, who start 18 freshmen, in Saturday's 12:07 p.m. (Raycom TV) game at Ownby Stadium.

All 23,733 seats have been sold to witness the possibility of the Mustangs pulling off another surprise.

However, Texas isn't Division I-AA Connecticut.

Texas, which lost 27-6 to powerful Colorado, doesn't consider SMU a 90-pound weakling.

The Longhorns have yet to score a touchdown this year. When he heard how much they were favored, Texas offensive coordinator Lynn Amedee said "Right now we couldn't score 40 points against this air."

In other games involving SWC teams on Saturday, winless Baylor tries to bounce back from defeats to Oklahoma and Georgia in a 7 p.m. home opener against the Kansas Jayhawks; unbeaten Arkansas and Mississippi tangle again for the 36th time in an 81-year rivalry at Jackson, Miss., in a 6 p.m. game; unbeaten and surprising Texas Tech tries to make it a non-conference sweep for the Red Raiders in a 6:30 p.m. meeting with Oklahoma State at Stillwater; Houston travels to Tempe, Ariz., in a 9:30 p.m. meeting with Arizona State; Texas Christians hosts Southern Mississippi in a 7:30 p.m. game at Amon Carter Stadium; and Rice entertains Southwestern Louisiana in a 6 p.m. game at Rice Stadium.

Odds makers made Baylor a 20-point pick over Kansas; Houston a 7-point choice over Arizona State; Oklahoma State a 5-point nod over Tech; Rice a field goal favorite over Southwestern Louisiana; Arkansas an 8-point pick over Ole Miss; and Southern Mississippi a 5-point choice over TCU.

Texas A&M is the only school in the nine-team league idle.

Arkansas puts its top 10 ranking on the line against a surprising Ole Miss team that has gone 3-0.

"Ole Miss always gets good crowd support and it's a tough place to win," said Arkansas linebacker Ted Shimer. "This is still a big game for both teams. It's been quite a rivalry."

Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes knows about tough places to play. He has to take the Raiders into Stillwater where Oklahoma State (0-2) plays tough.

"We are going into a hornet's nest," Dykes said. "It's their first home game and they'll be mad.

They've won 30 games over the last three years so they aren't used to losing two in a row, much less three."

Baylor coach Grant Teaff hopes the Bears can bounce back from losses to Oklahoma and Georgia.

"We haven't made the big plays we should be making," Teaff said. "Kansas has been moving the ball and will be a good test."

Houston opened its season on Sept. 2 with a 69-0 victory over Nevada-Las Vegas. Andre Ware set an SWC record by throwing five touchdown passes in the first half.

Walsh ready to move

IRVING (AP) - Rookie quarterback Steve Walsh says he hopes the Dallas Cowboys will trade him to another National Football League team in the next three weeks, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

The newspaper also reported that Walsh told them Thursday he would pursue the trade possibility later this month when he meets with his agent, Marvin Demoff.

Walsh said he needs to discuss the matter with Demoff because the NFL trading deadline is Oct. 17.

The former University of Miami star said he planned to urge Demoff to fly to Dallas to meet with him and possibly Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson.

"I'm going to ask Marvin to come out here in a week or so, because I think Marvin knows about some of these things," Walsh said. "For the type of deal Jimmy wants to work out, Marvin is the guy to help do it."

"He's probably one of the few agents capable of pulling off the kind of deal the Cowboys are looking to make," Walsh said.

"He's good at that." Demoff was involved in the trade that sent quarterback Jim Everett to the Los Angeles Rams from the Houston Oilers after he could not reach agreement with Houston on a contract.

Walsh is the backup behind rookie first-round draft pick Troy Aikman and his inactivity in that role has made him "frustrated," he said.

Walsh has not played since the Cowboys' Aug. 26 exhibition game against the Denver Broncos.

Although Walsh emphasized he is not demanding a trade, he considers it inevitable and believes it in his best interest to try to complete one in the next few weeks.

Johnson said Thursday he does not favor trading Walsh.

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said, "When we do something with Steve Walsh, it's going to be big-time."

Both Jones and Johnson say that several teams contacted the Cowboys this week to inquire about Walsh's availability.

The Cowboys have been involved in trade discussions about Walsh since they selected him with the first pick in the NFL's supplemental draft in July. Walsh's acquisition cost the Cowboys their No. 1 pick in next spring's draft.

Johnson would not identify the teams he had conversations with this week, but Minnesota, Kansas City, Green Bay and the Los Angeles Raiders are known to have been among the clubs once interested in trading for Walsh.

Johnson said he hopes to use Walsh some in upcoming games.

"I would like to get Steve in there, but a lot of that depends on timing and opportunity," Johnson said. "With us having the ball so little against New Orleans, we couldn't. And with the ballgame against Atlanta going down to the wire, the opportunity didn't present itself."

Michigan to feel at home in Rose Bowl

By The Associated Press

It's not Ann Arbor, but the Michigan Wolverines should feel right at home when they play UCLA in the Rose Bowl on Saturday. It will be their 13th appearance there.

The other 12, of course, came in post-season appearances representing the Big Ten Conference.

This time, it is only a regular-season game, but it is a big one as far as Coach Bo Schemblechler is concerned. His fifth-ranked Wolverines lost their opener to top-ranked Notre Dame last week and are still trying to find their identity this season.

"We're both struggling, so it should be interesting," Schemblechler said, referring to 24th-ranked UCLA, which has a 1-1 record to show for its season so far.

The contest will be one of two college football games in the state of California featuring continued rivalries between the Big Ten and Pac-10 Conferences. In the other, No. 25 Ohio State visits No. 12 Southern Cal.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, Michigan State is at No. 1 Notre Dame, No. 2 Miami is at Missouri, No. 3 Nebraska is at Minnesota, Maryland is at No. 7 Clemson, No. 8 Arkansas plays Mississippi at Jackson, Miss., No. 9 West Virginia is at Louisville and No. 10 Syracuse is at No. 13 Pittsburgh.

Also, No. 11 Washington is at No. 23 Arizona, Kentucky is at No. 15 Alabama, No. 17 Houston is at Arizona State, North Carolina is at No. 18 North Carolina State, No. 19 Washington State is at Wyoming, Utah State is at No. 20 Illinois and No. 22 Oregon is at Stanford.

Michigan and UCLA haven't met since the Bruins won a 24-14 Rose Bowl decision in 1983, and the Trojans will play the Buckeyes for the first time since Southern Cal won the 1985 Rose Bowl 20-17.

UCLA and Southern Cal are perennial contenders in the Pacific-10 Conference.

After their 24-19 loss to top-ranked Notre Dame, the Wolverines will try to regroup in a setting almost as familiar as home. Michigan defeated Southern Cal 22-14 last January and only Southern Cal has appeared in more Rose Bowl games.

Michigan holds a 5-2 advantage in the series with UCLA.

Southern Cal's Rose Bowl rivalry with the Buckeyes goes back three decades with the Trojans holding a 4-2 edge. But USC coach Larry Smith is looking for his first victory against a Big Ten team in four outings, including losses to Michigan State and Michigan in the last two Rose Bowls.

Southern Cal is 1-1 after a 66-10 thrashing of Utah State last weekend, while the Buckeyes beat Oklahoma State 37-13 in their first game of the year.

While Pitt appears solid defensively again this year, it is Syracuse that has proven to be the stingiest team in the East this season.

In a 10-7 victory over Army, the Orangemen held Army's prolific wishbone offense to 212 rushing yards and permitted it just two second-half first downs. In addition, the Cadets didn't complete a pass against the Orangemen in four attempts.

"We just got through playing against a wishbone team," said safety Rob Thomson, who has helped extend to 50 the string of quarters Syracuse's starting secondary has gone without giving up a touchdown pass. "We've got some big games coming up, and this (Pitt) game is huge."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to address this letter to all those thoughtless fools out there who like to play "I Can Top That."
I finally became pregnant. Then "Selma" let me know that she was in labor 36 hours and screamed the entire time.

After my mastectomy, another "dear friend" told me about her Aunt Bertha who had what I had and died from it. My surgery was more than a year ago. I healed quickly, and my doctor has said that I have an excellent chance for total recovery with no recurrence. Just when I started believing that they got it all and I'm going to live another 40 years, some crepe-hanger starts telling me how many of her relatives have died of "exactly the same thing."
Give me a break. Psychologically, I'm doing pretty well, but your one-upmanship can really hurt! When a person tells you she has cancer, please don't tell her about your dead Aunt Bertha. Tell her instead about your cousin Maggie who beat it and is going to Hawaii next week.

And while you're at it, listen to how great I feel. I'm not telling you about my cancer for sympathy.

I'm surrounded by loving family and friends and I don't need more. I'm telling you so if you find a lump, you will know that going to the doctor immediately could mean the difference between life and death.

If this letter prevents even one person from spreading gloom, it will be worth the trouble it took to write it. -- Loving Wife in Austin

DEAR LOVING: For the life of me, I cannot understand why people tell horror stories to pregnant women or folks who are fighting to recover from serious illnesses. They must have oatmeal where their brains belong.

Those morons should be told in no uncertain terms that their remarks are depressing and to please shut up.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What has come over you? Your advice to "Tom in Reseda, Calif." was terrible. Instead of advising that wishy-washy wife to make up her mind and choose either her forgiving husband or the father of her child, you divided everybody right down the middle -- wife, baby, and both "fathers."

Did you give any thought to the long-range consequences when you advocated visiting rights for the natural father? (Incidentally, when was the last time you gave such advice to the natural mother of an adopted child?) What happens when this irresponsible man marries and has a family of his own? What happens to the generous husband, supporting another man's child, but allowing him "a role in raising it"? What about the dizzy wife, who can't decide where her loyalty lies, so she tries to have it both ways? Which father is she going to listen to? And, more to the point, what about the child who grows up with two fathers and three parents who can't make up their minds?

You should have advised the husband that his wife should be told that she has to make a decision -- it's either him or the other man. If she chooses him, he adopts the baby legally and the other man is out of the picture. If she chooses the baby's father, let her go, and good riddance.

Tough choice? Sure, but it's a tough situation. -- J.D.E., W. Redding, Conn.

DEAR RED: You are right, on all counts. My advice would not win any blue ribbons at the county fair. Thanks for cleaning up after me. You did a beautiful job.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (This includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada sent $4.45.)

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My nephew says his baby son is allergic to all milk products. Instead of milk, he gives his child Gatorade in his bottle several times each day. I have read the list of ingredients on the Gatorade bottle and it seems to me there is very little food value. I have always heard that children need protein in their diets for growth and development, and I feel this child may suffer ill effects from his protein-deficient diet. Please advise.

DEAR READER: Gatorade certainly will not provide the protein needs of a baby still on the bottle. If the child is allergic to milk, there are infant products in most supermarkets that can be used as milk substitutes. Yes, the growth years are years when the body needs extra protein because the body structures that develop are largely made from protein. Protein and sufficient calories are essential to good brain development too. Try to get your nephew to talk to his doctor as soon as possible about providing adequate protein, calories and calcium for his son.

The protein requirements of the body is one reason why the balanced diet requires items from the meat and dairy group. They are essential for all age groups, but especially so during growth. These requirements have been recommended by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences. They are included in Special Report 90, Balance Your Diet for Health, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/90, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

While on the subject of protein requirements, I recently read a copy of a letter from a "health" institute complaining about my recommendation to use fish, chicken and lean meat and low-fat or skim milk for protein. Besides other misrepresentations in it, the letter claimed that there are a variety of non-animal foods that contain all of the amino acids in the right mix and the necessity to use complementary sources of amino acids was passe. That's wrong. Individuals who try to subsist on non-animal food fad diets that do not include the right combination of cereals and vegetables to meet the essential amino acid requirements will have health problems. It is better to stick to the recommendations of the national authorities in nutrition for the basic four food groups and the recommended daily dietary allowances of the National Academy of Sciences.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have planned on marrying my girlfriend of the past two years. We get along very well except for one thing. She smokes and I am a non-smoker. I have tried everything I know to convince her to quit, from telling her it will make her look old with a wrinkled face before her time and that it smells bad on her breath. But she won't quit.

I have told her that when a non-smoker is exposed to second-hand smoke it increases his risk of lung cancer and heart disease, but she doesn't believe me. If you commented on it, that might help.

DEAR READER: Your girlfriend is addicted to nicotine, and in her presence, you are subjected to passive smoking. Addicts often have a problem in giving up an addictive drug. A recent study suggests that passive smoking may be the leading preventable cause of death after alcohol and actually smoking. Some estimates are that passive smoking causes 3,000 lung cancer deaths, 11,000 deaths from other cancers and 32,000 deaths from heart disease in the United States each year. Clearly, non-smokers have a right to complain about having this health burden forced upon them.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

She is a 1980 graduate of Hereford High School.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - The same chemical that keeps backyard swimming pools clean also helps the body fight off infection.

When chlorine and acid is added to water in swimming pools, hypochlorous acid is formed and kills bacteria in the pool. The same chemical is formed through a different chemical process in certain blood cells and helps the body fight off bacteria in the bloodstream.

Club members open fall season with special supper

Members of La Plata Study Club opened their new club year when they met Tuesday evening in the home of Betty Taylor.

The yearbook committee served a Mexican stack supper at quartet tables decorated in a Mexican motif. Those assuming hostess duties included Taylor, Lois Matchett, Julie Helms, Rosemary Shook and Mildred Fuhrmann.

Doctors recommend that mothers carefully follow the instructions of diluting powdered formula for their babies. If not enough water is added, the formula is too concentrated and the baby's immature kidneys cannot handle the extra protein and salts, says Beech-Nut Nutrition Corp.

During the meeting, members visited concerning their summer activities and viewed two recently re-decorated bedrooms in the Taylor home.

President Fuhrmann presided over the business session and called attention to the club's next program that will be held at Arrowhead Mills. A tour of the business will be conducted and refreshments prepared from mill products will be served.

Members present were presented the club's 1989-90 yearbook. They included Audine Dettman, Fuhrmann, Helms, Dorothy Mercer, Mozelle Neill, Dorothy Prowell, Margaret Schroeter, Shook, Yvonne Simpson, Taylor, Avis White and guest, Dorothy Ott.

NEW YORK (AP) - Pink, peach, white and pastel blends will be among the trendiest tulips during this fall's bulb planting season and in next spring's garden.

Dutch growers have been devoting more time and acreage to the cultivation of these bulbs, according to the Netherlands Flowerbulb Information Service.

Bulb production has nearly doubled since 1985 for the pale salmon-colored "Apricot Beauty".
