County, State To Split $ for Right of Way

Deaf Smith County's four commissioners Monday were given contracts to sign for 50-50 participation with the state for purchasing right of way for the four-lane expansion of Highway 60 from the Randall County line westward 11.2 miles into this county.

Representing Texas Highway Dept. district engineer Chili Smith at the court's regular meeting was W. V. Young of Amarillo. Each of the commissioners, except ailing Otto Massie who is home recovering from a recent heart attack, was given a contract to sign.

AT THE SAME TIME Young was meeting with the Deaf Smith governing body, engineer Smith was in Randall County in a meeting with its similar group. Smith told the men in Canyon that appraisals on right of way needed to make Highway 60 west from Canyon into E-way type construction have been sent to Austin and should be approved soon.

An announcement by the Texas Highway Department a week ago stated $114,500 had been allocated for the state's participation in purchasing right of way in Deaf Smith County 11.2 miles west from the Randall County line, which adjoins the part of the highway Smith was talking to the Randall commissioners about.

Deaf Smith County commissioners voted to hold off signing the contracts until they had first consulted with county attorney Edward Line and then with the Randall County commissioners, who they feel have had sufficient experience in such matters during the past two years.

"I HAVE NO DOUBT that the commissioners will sign the contracts," stated county Judge Homer Henslee Tuesday after the meeting. "But they want to know more about such matters before jumping in on anything which con-

'Steam Played Out After Waxahachie,' Says Coach

"I don't feel bad about losing to Waxahachie, I think if we had beaten them we would have won the whole works," said Hereford High's basketball coach Cuby Kitchens Monday after returning from the Class AAA state championship at Austin.

Hereford, playing in its first state tourney, lost to Waxahachie, 73-66, Friday and to Beaumont French, 48-37, in the consolation round Saturday. Waxahachie went on to win the championship over South San Antonio, 77-63, Saturday night.

"THE BOYS gave all they had Friday. The steam was just let out of us Saturday. There's no excuse, though, we just played lousy ball against French," Kitchens said.

"The team never said die against Waxahachie and we almost had them there in that last minute," the coach continued. "I think we had as good a team as was down there, but you can't win them all," Kitchens said.

Jim Curtsinger, 6-4 senior forward for the Whitefaces, was named to the AAA all-tournament team Monday by Texas Sportswriters Assn. members covering the meet. Curtsinger scored 26 points in the two games.

"Dub" Monday has been named as manager of the Hereford store, which is under supervision of Morris McCartt, zone manager of this area and former McCartt Super Market manager in Amarillo.

"We plan to bring one of the outstanding stores in the area to Hereford," said McCartt, who pointed out that Safeway first became interested in Hereford when the organization tallied up the total amount of vegetables purchased by the organization in the Hereford area. "Safeway has great hopes for the future of Hereford — and we want to grow with the community," he declared.

"Safeway keeps a buyer on the spot in Hereford during vegetabel season," McCartt pointed out, then added, "In some past years Safeway has bought as high as 75 per cent of the entire Hereford potato crop." He reviewed 1957 purchases by Safeway as follows: cantaloupe 64,000 pounds, carrots 273,385 pounds, bell peppers, 5,250

The survey was made last summer by members of the Agriculture Research Dept. of the USDA, which included Deaf Smith, Floyd, Lipscomb, Moore and Swisher counties. Similar surveys were made in Maine, Wisconsin, South Carolina, South Dakota and Oregon.

Hereford Lawyers In Supreme Court

Two local law attorneys, Jimmy Witherspoon and Earnest Langley, left Tuesday for Austin, where they will argue a case before the State Supreme Court in defense of the Dumas Independent School District.

According to the Dumas school board, the case is being watched by a number of school districts over the nation in the same circumstances.

Witherspoon said Tuesday the Phillips Company owed somewhere in excess of half a million dollars in back taxes, not including penalty and interest.

Hereford Woman Turns Seeds Into Colorful Works of Art

SEED ARTIST—Mrs. Roy Botsford displays a picture which she made by gluing various types of seeds onto masonite. (Staff Photo)

Seeds can be artistic as well as productive and Mrs. Roy Botsford, 339 Ave. B, is just the person to prove that statement.

For about a year Mrs. Botsford has been making 'seed pictures," that is, gluing seeds of a great variety of colors, shapes and textures together and coming up with a "painting."

She glues the seeds to a painted background of masonite or plywood and creates a vase of flowers, a landscape or a school of fish. After the picture is completed and the glue dries, she adds a frame — hand-made incidentally — and it's ready for exhibition and/or sale.

"I'VE ALWAYS been interested in art and have been interested in seed pictures since 1949," Mrs. Botsford says.

She came across a story in a farm magazine about a lady who made enough money from selling seed pictures to put two of her daughters through college. "I thought I'd like to try it and started collecting seeds.

And seeds she does have. Poppy, watermelon, sorghum, wheat, pine cone, lettuce, Johnson grass and even careless weed seeds. She doesn't know exactly how many different types of seeds she does have. "Several dozen, at least."

It takes her about six to 10 hours to make one of the pictures. She

"I already have seeds from Texas, California and Oklahoma and I want more," she added.

"We will discontinue many products on the present shelves," McCartt said, "replacing them with Safeway brands and other nationally known lines. Safeway specializes in USDA graded meats and fresh vegetables from Hereford and other areas. We hope to buy even more Hereford produce in the future."

The store will feature Gunn Bros. stamps in the future, but will also continue to offer Frontier stamps for 30 days in order to allow old customers to fill out stamp books.

Clem Boverie, president of Furr's Incorporated, Amarillo division, said the local store was sold in view of Furr's policy of building larger stores. He said that Furr has also sold stores in Portales, Tucumcari, Guymon, and other points.

DA report.

"FARMERS IN the 10 Great Plains States," the report states "where a long and severe drought was ended in 1957, were the top users of the Conservation Reserve in 1956 and 1957. About two-thirds of all cropland placed in the program during those two years came from these 10 states. And two-thirds of all grass planting scheduled on Conservation Reserve land under 1956 and 1957 contracts was there. The 1957 rains enabled farmers to obtain good stands of perennial grasses, or to establish temporary cover which is being followed by seedings of perennial grasses."

Deaf Smith county, to date, has 103,916 cultivated acres retired to grassland under 272 contracts, according to a count from the local ASC office.

Collier estimates Deaf Smith has approximately 586,650 acres of cropland under cultivation at the present.

"I don't think the weather will effect our contract signing any. I haven't talked with any farmers who said they had intended to wait on signing to see if the weather was going to change," stated the ASC manager.

Contracts beginning in 1958 and running for three, five and 10 years will be available to farmers through the deadline, April 15.

"If they (the government) want reduction of wheat land, we've got it here," says Faust Collier, ASC manager. "We have wiped out 26 per cent of the wheat land, or 55,960 acres."

Collier estimates only 155,000 acres of wheat seeded in the county, unless some of the farmers have over-seeded their acreage allotment. Actually, 211,701 acres of wheat land have been allocated for Deaf Smith.

"The county used to have about 450,000 acres of wheat before allotments were made," stated Collier.

cerns so much money."

The Texas Highway Department's announcement of right of way money allocation also stated $828,000 had been set up for construction of the 11.2 miles of highway in Deaf Smith.

Engineer Young told the commissioners it was the county's responsibility to negotiate with the property owners for the right of way, and asked that they sign the contracts as soon as possible because, "It's a little bit slow doing appraisals and buying the land."

In talking about the Hereford City Commissioners already working on the program of expanding the width of Highway 60 through town, Young said, "We know it's (width) not adequate, but it's all we can do without moving all those buildings. The highway commissioners don't like it, but we've pretty well talked them into it."

ONE PROPOSAL other than expanding the highway's width through the city limits was to build the highway around the townsite to the north. If the expansion through Hereford is approved by the state department, all that will be lacking approval will be approximately two miles from the point already approved east of town to the east city limits.

"The highway west has already been improved, but the time will come when we'll have to improve it even more," stated Young.

Young also told the commissioners the highway plans call for building "straight through Dawn." "It would cost more to go around."

The present width of Highway 60 between Hereford and the Randall County line is 125 feet. An additional 175 feet must be acquired for right of way, and all will have to come from the north side of the road because of the Santa Fe's holdings on the south.

When asked about bridge construction over the creek on south Main St., Young replied, "Bridges like the two north of Dawn, Frio and Highway 51's crossing of the Tierra Blanca will have to be widened before the Main Street one because they have more traffic. The Main Street one will, of course, have to come up in the future. It must be a strong one for taking all the traffic it has with the detour, but it does need a new flooring now."

A roadside park is in for future plans which is to be located where the old dump grounds are presently being covered, according to Young. The park will have covered picnic tables, fire places and the accessories.

Later on in the meeting after Young had left, Bill Patton was called in for information on county vehicle insurance. Patton is representing five different local insurance companies handling county property.

After the vehicle problem had been solved, Patton informed the commission it had $14,000 insurance on the boiler room building at the county hospital, not including the boiler which was covered under a different policy, but yet held a policy for only $7,500 insurance on the entire contents of the court house.

Patton told the commissioners they had talked on the subject once before in the past, but no official action had been taken.

A report on the county library estimated its value at $30,000, with many of the publications nonreplaceable.

The commissioners had the policies changed so that the hospital boiler house was covered by a $3,000 policy and raised the court house content coverage to $20,000. No actual increase in insurance payments was made in that the premium was higher on the boiler house than the contents of the court house.

The court house building itself is covered for $212,000.

MRS. JEWELL SMITH, county welfare officer, reported to the commissioners her department now has care of 13 children, each costing the county $10 per

Mrs. Smith listed as the b expenses through the past being $400 hospital bills, $19 cery bill — but of which $12 paid by the Salvation Army for prescriptions and $15 bills.

The Salvation Army, Mrs. told the commissioners, are ing for all milk bills and no dent needy clothing.

Even the ir- on farmers will make some on wheat this year, due to g savings on pumping costs. also highly probable that 1959 e another "wet" year in this ry.

T WEEK-END I was at A to attend their 9th annual paper clinic. Things sure have changed a lot around lace in recent years, espec- since J.W. Robinson. Bill Pat- Jack Gililland and Bill Stan- were there. The Aggies were btedly the most pelite and erate group of students I ever seen anywhere. I was impressed and heard sever- her people express the same ents. The boys are in some- of an uproar over the possi- of coeds invading the cam- but many of the leaders fig- will happen — possibly next l Rudder, vice president around Feb. 1, 1958, looked p to send greetings to Lefty as, new Deaf Smith County Mr. Rudder said that he efty were roommates at John on — but he wouldn't say year. Rudder was captain of otball team and Lefty was erback. Jim Myers, new Ag- otball coach, also spoke at one of our meetings, and everyone got the idea that Jim may be the boy who will lead the Aggies out of the gridiron wilderness.

Myers said that the team will use single wing, which is a Myers trademark in this day of "T" formations. He said the rapid fire single wing saps the strength of the opposition. He also said that scholastics will be stressed on the A & M squad. He hopes to have at least three "All-American Scholastics." Myers figures you've gotta be smart to play football these days if you want to win — and the Aggies generally do their best to come out ahead. Myers, incidentally, has three children — all daughters.

A LOT OF KIDS are right now making a mistake by not improving their grades. This is especially true concerning future engineers and technicians and, naturally covers all other fields. The colleges are becoming crowded and the trend is to accept the top 50 to 60 per cent of the high school graduating classes. In another five to 10 years, it is possible that only the top 15 to 25 per cent will be accepted for college enrollment. Applications now far outnumber possible enrollment. If you plan to attend college — no matter what school — you had better start building up those grade points in high school. This is straight dope. The bigger and more famous the school, the more the rule applies.

Folks at Dawn, meanwhile, seem to have more pressing problems in the mill. W. V. Young, Senior Resident Highway Engineer, was in Hereford Monday to meet with the County Commissioners, and it looks as if the whole town of Dawn will undergo some radical changes. Highway 60 is now 125 feet wide — and will be extended north another 175 feet, giving a 300-foot right-of-way. This, of course, will cut sharply into the hotel, a historic landmark which houses the post office, as well as other buildings along the road. Plans through Hereford call for 121½ feet more, with approximately five feet coming off the north side. Few, if any, business firms will have to be renovated, according to present plans.

THE MAN ALSO said that the Highway Department expects to put up one of those fancy roadside parks on the site where the Hereford dump grounds now stands east of town.

Basketball season is over and I would say our boys hung up quite a record. They sure did. Like the players, many of us were disappointed, but you sure never have to apologize when you get as far as our boys went this year. We are proud of every one of them. I couldn't get the games on radio, but kept track of them through the Dallas, Houston and Austin newspapers. Hereford got a lot of publicity out of the games. This is not an alibi, but the humidity and heat did have a marked effect on all West Texas players.

Nor did all of the tense moments occur on the basketball courts. If you doubt this, just ask Bert McCarty, high school science teacher, and any of the six boys who made the trip to Austin with him. The boys included Douglas Womble, Bill Drake, Stanley Furhmann, Aaron Wirtenberger, John Gililland and Reid Green.

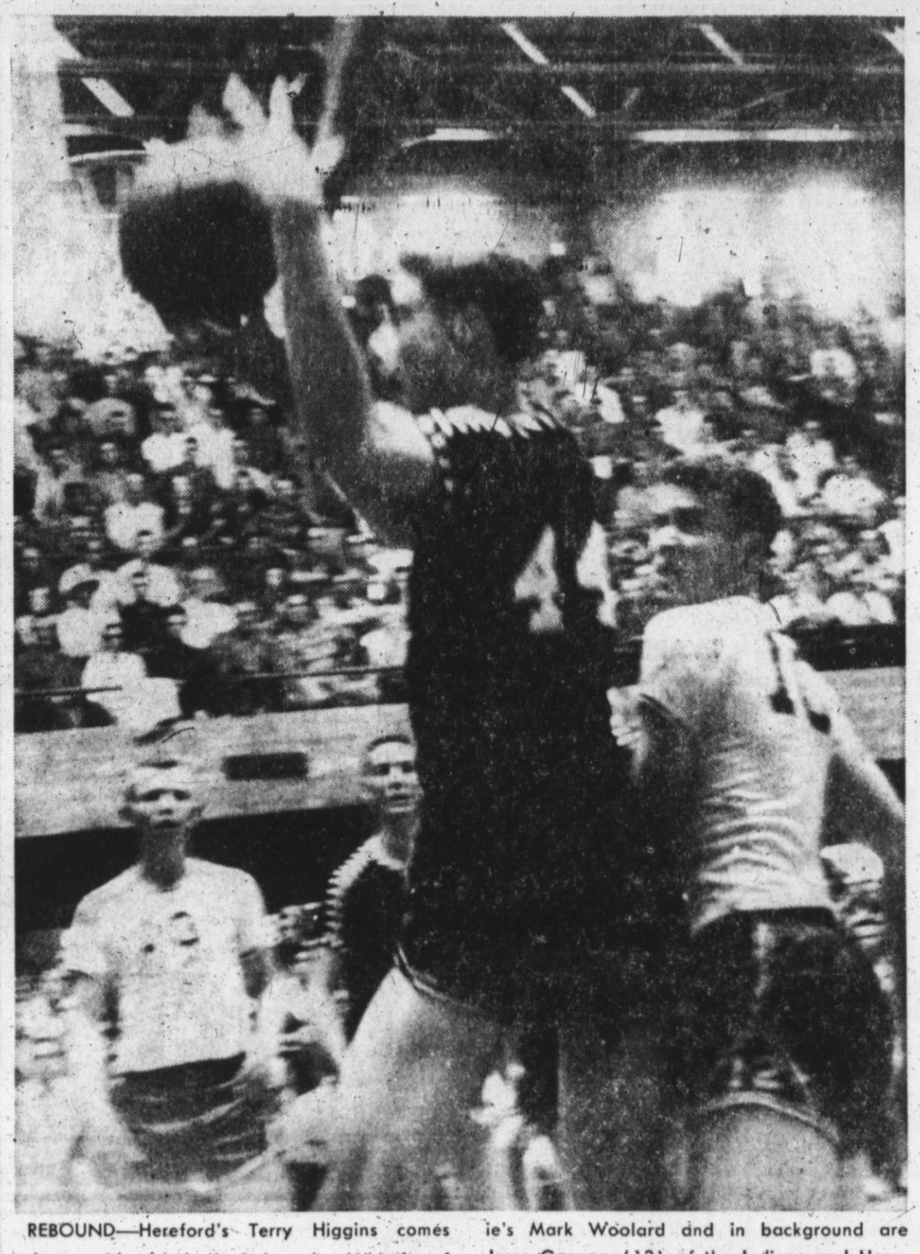
This "honest looking" delegation chartered their course via of Abilene and ran into their first trouble some 18 miles south of Dickens when they turned up with a flat tire on McCarty's panel truck around 2 o'clock Friday morning. Their bumper jack wouldn't work in the mud but, after several futile attempts, they managed to flag down a passing motorist. The driver looked them over carefully, went back to his car under the guise of securing a flashlight — and came back with a pistol. The "nice man" then levelled the gun on the boys and directed one of them to get his jack. Still holding the group at bay with the pistol, he delegated assistants and thoroughly supervised changing of the tire, assigning helpers from time to time. When the change was finally completed, the man still kept the group covered with his pistol until they were loaded up and ready to roll, whereupon he waved them a fond farwell and said:

"Good luck, boys. I hope you win your game!"

Needless to say, the Hereford delegation was just as frightened as was their benefactor during the incident. Everyone says it is the longest single period John Gililland ever went without excess chatter.

AND THAT WAS just the first episode. They decided to make the return trip through Big Spring and San Angelo. About 20 miles out of Angelo, they were again halted at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, this time by the Highway Patrol, which had an alert out for a panel truck stolen in San Antonio. Bert dug up his driver license but, for the life of him, couldn't remember the name of their motel in Austin. Neither could he produce his certificate of title. The car pulled over to the side of the road and wound up spending around an hour while the officers radioed Abilene, Amarillo and relayed to Dimmitt to check registration of the panel and a description of McCarty. Finally cleared, the delegation made it on home without further incident.

The boys were plenty happy when they at last drove into Hereford around 5 o'clock Sunday morning but any of them will tell you, without mincing words: "It takes 13½ hours to drive back from Austin, counting one stop for eats and gasoline."



REBOUND—Hereford's Terry Higgins comes down with the ball during the Whitefaces' state Class AAA semifinal game with Waxahachie in Austin Friday. Hereford, Dimmitt Slate Golf Match

An inter-city match between Hereford and Dimmitt golfers will be played Sunday, beginning at 12:30 p.m., at the municipal course.

The competition will be based on 18-hold match play with one point for the front nine and one point for the back nine and another point for the entire 18 holes.

Golf pro Bud Posey has asked Hereford linksters wanting to play in the match to contact him at the course club house.

Easter Bonnet Decorates Table

EASTER BONNET CAKE is a lot of fun and easy to make.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

FRENCH CHEFS have always gone in for decorating food elaborately. Americans have taken over the custom but have adapted it to their own tastes and skills.

So even if you're not a cake-decorating expert, you can prepare this amusing Easter Bonnet dessert. Two white or yellow layer cakes (made from a mix), some chocolate filling and seven-minute frosting are its foundation, and morsels of semi-sweet chocolate dot the top of the cake in a polka-dot effect. The only skill necessary is forcing some of the chocolate filling through a cake-decorating tube around the base of the hat's crown, and trimming with a bow.

You will need a set of tier cake pans to bake the cake. These are widely available in dime, hardware and other stores and come four to a set. Baking the cake in the 7- and 9-inch pans achieves a perfect tailored-hat effect!

EASTER BONNET CAKE

Ingredients: 1 regular-size package white or yellow cake mix, 1 package (6 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate pieces (1 cup), 6 tablespoons condensed milk, 1 tablespoon light corn syrup, 1 tablespoon water, 1/8 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ½ recipe for seven-minute frosting or 1 package (6 ½ ounces) seven-minute frosting mix.

Method: Have ready greased and floured 7 by 2½ inch round layer cake pan and a 9 by 1½-inch layer cake pan. Prepare cake mix according to package directions. Fill each pan two-thirds full. Bake according to package directions, baking the 7-inch layer 5 to 10 minutes longer, or until sides cake pull away from pan and c tester inserted in center comes clean. Here's the Answer

By ANDREW C. LANG

Question: Can you tell me what to do about squeaky floors? We have just recently purchased a home that was about 6 months old when we bought it. It has wide subflooring and hardwood over that in the bedrooms, and plywood over subflooring in the kitchen and living room. There is no basement, just crawl space under the house.

Answer: If there is room in the crawl space to get at the floors from the bottom, drive wedges between the beams and the flooring in the areas where the squeaks are. If not, drive nails into the floor from the top so that they go through both thicknesses into the beams. When finishing nails are used, drive them at angles so that they form V's inside the wood. When modern threaded nails are used (usually when the floor is to be covered), drive them straight into the wood.

Question: The exterior of our one-story ranch house, 5 years old, is stucco, with portions of the lower half clapboard. The interior has plastered walls. The heating unit is oil with a blower system. Our problem is damp walls in clothes closets, in cupboards and behind large pieces of furniture placed next to outside walls. How can we correct this condition?

Answer: First, see if your heating unit has a humidifier attached to it. If so, have it disconnected. When using any appliances which let off steam or humidity, open a window while they are being operated. If none of this works, you will have to install small ventilating louvers (about the size of a half dollar) in 3 or 4 of the affected areas. All this advice is on the assumption that the dampness is not coming from the outside, such as during rainy periods, in which case you will have to find the source of the entry of water.

Question: I left a glass of water on a table finished with shellac. A white ring has been left. How can I get it off?

Answer: Dampen a cloth with denatured alcohol and rub the ringed area lightly. The trick is not to rub too hard or you'll take off part of the shellac. In that event, a refinishing of the table top will be necessary.

Texas' Farm Income Increased in 1957

By TEX EASLEY
AP Special Washington Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm income figures just released by the Agriculture Department show that the total farm and ranch income in Texas in 1957, including government payments, amounted to just over two billion dollars.

The exact figure is $2,027,552,000 compared with a total of $1,900,630,000 for 1956. The U. S. total for 1957 wws 31 billions, about 100 millions over 1956.

The average realized net income per farm in Texas last year — the amount available for spending after the farmer or rancher has paid all his production expenses, which were up three per cent in 1957, amounted to $2,358. This was 12 per cent over 1956.

"Higher cash receipts from cattle, hogs, wheat, peanuts and sorghum grain, combined with increased government payments, more than offset lower receipts from cotton," the department said.

"PRODUCTION expenses, especially for hired labor and feed, were substantially higher. Inventory accumulations of cotton, hay, sorghum grain and corn were substantial, increasing total net income per farm 56 per cent over 1956."

The report noted that total net income is "realized net income plus the increase in inventories" of crops and livestock.

Government payments accounted for 112 million dollars of the 1957 total Texas farm and ranch income. These payments in 1956 amounted to only 55 millions. The soil bank accounted for 82 million dollars of the 1957 payments.

Sales of livestock and livestock products in Texas last year brought 893 million dollars, sales of crops just over a billion. The total: $1,914,885,000.

AROUND THE CAPITAL:

On a 93-acre tract just three miles from the Capitol dome is Gallaudet College, the only institution of its kind in the world. It was founded in 1864 and is operated exclusively for the deaf and speechless.

Among its 350 students are six young men and women from Texas: Robert E. Bevill, Pasadena; Joy Gibson, Humble; Carlos Holdridge, Sweetwater; Melvia Miller, Houston; Alton Silver, Fort Worth; and Wanda Wood, Shamrock.

A century ago a member of Lincoln's Cabinet, upset at the sight of a group of deaf children soliciting funds from door to door, under the direction of a man who had brought them down from New York to exploit them, gave his farm to start the school. Its first instructor was Dr. Gallaudet.

About 65 per cent of Gallaudet's operating costs are provided by Congress. Students come from many states and those able to do so pay their way.

On the board of this fully accredited college is Rep. Homer Thornberry (D-Tex). whose mother and father were teachers at the Texas State School for the Deaf in Austin for many years.

Paying tribute to Thronberry at a recent capitol luncheon, Gallaudet President Leonard Elstad said he had cited the congressman in more than 600 speeches around the nation to show that children of deaf parents can make their mark in the world.

Like Thronberry, Dr. Elstad can converse with nimble fingers. He is scheduled to address a banquet at the Texas School for the Deaf on May 23 when that institution celebrates its 100th year.

Mrs. Dorotha Prowell gave a demonstration on pastry for the Merry Maidens 4-H club at a meeting Wednesday, March 5, in the home of Patsy Stoy.

For opening exercises Patsy Stoy led the ritual and Muriel Carmichael led the 4-H song. Roll call was answered with a favorite kind of pie.

During business meeting, minutes were read and approved. The report of the committees were given. Unfinished business and the demonstrator's report were discussed.

Present were Gwen Albracht, Barbara Clements, Cathy Brilbrey, Muriel Carmichael, Linda Boardman, Babs Gholsen, Glenda Fuhrmann, Mandy Moore, Nancy Parsons, Jennifer Hagar and Becky Jackson.

P. I. B. Club Is a New One Around Here

By ARGEN DRAPER

Lizzie Wilson was showing me the newest grandson. He belongs to Vernon and wife. Lizzie said, "You know Gladys Manjeot used to make fun of the P. I. B. Club." It was new to me but the P. I. B. Club is Picture-In-Billfold Club. Understand that the fun making was before Gladys had pictures to show.

I know about the S. O. G. (Silly Old Grandma Club) and the F. G. Club (Ford Grandpa Club) but, I hadn't heard of the P. I. B.'s.

Speaking of names: the Self Improvement Club or the Reducing Club in Dimmitt has named itself The Elephant Club. I understand there are two women who are small — one is Mrs. Goose Ramey — who want to belong so those two joined but the two just count one member because of their size. The two get one vote.

Have been encouraged by the number of club women who tell me oatmeal cookies are the family's favorite. You know oatmeal is a whole grain cereal. A lot of publicity is being given the recent findings that whole grain cereals, which the B vitamins are deficient in the diet, of large per cent of U. S. families. If the diet is deficient in B Vitamins it causes a lot of disagreeable things. Mainly nervousness, depression and a tendency to tire easily.

Senator and Mrs. A. J. Rogers have a new baby. We understand there's a lot of excitement at the Rogers household.

Mrs. N. A. Brown is the delegate to the District Meeting in Stratford, instead of Mrs. Ernest Brown.

We've gotten some new cellar plans in the extension offices. Come by for a copy if you're going to dig a cellar. I hope Hazel Sparks, the Dick Walkers or the Frank Smiths have a cellar or will have by tornado season.

Marlin Wayne is the new 9 lb. 10 oz. son of the Wayne Wilcox.

The winner of the rural minister of the year will be picked April 18. The judging committee will meet at College Station to choose the winner. Let's keep hoping Eugene Naugle is that winner. Reagan Brown, rural sociologist for extension service, says, "There has been considerable interest shown all over Texas this year and the man that comes out winner is certainly to be commended."

The Homemakers group meets on April 10 which is the day we go to Stratford to the District Meeting. I would like to take the group to Stratford with me. I'll meet you at the Ford Community House about 7:30 a.m.

Dorotha Prowell gave Gladys Miller a recipe for pound cake. For two fine cooks like they are to recommend the recipe its sure to be good. Here it is:

Pound Cake

1 c. butter
1 c. sugar
4 eggs
2 c. flour sifted, or 1 7/8 c. all purpose flour
¼ t. baking powder
½ t salt
2 T lemon juice or
2 T lemon extract
1 T grated lemon rind

Cream butter, for 2 minutes, at medium speed. Add sugar gradually, taking 10 minutes, to beat it in. Add eggs 1 at a time, beat 1½ minutes after each egg is added. Add extract or lemon juice. Sift flour, salt, and baking powder together, add all at one time, beat just until it's blended. Pour in a prepared loaf pan, or tube pan, bake at 300 degrees 75 to 90 minutes: 90 minutes if loaf pan is used, 75 minutes if tube pan is used.

If you missed the county wide Share-The-Fun Party, Friday night, you missed a lot of fun.

Approximately 200 4-H boys and girls, their parents, and friends, attended the party in spite of the weather.

We were honored to have Rep. Jessie M. Osborn of Muleshoe and state Senator Andy Rogers of Childress, as special guests.

We are real proud of our new 4-H Club, King and Queen, Pete Plank, and Linda Tooley. We think they will represent 4-H Clubs very well.

Japan Interesting, Says Hereford's Tourer

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of letters written by Mrs. E. C. Eubanks, 711 East 3rd St., who left Feb. 22 from Hereford on a world tour which is to last some eight or nine months. She has consented to write letters from various stopping points on her trip for publication in The Brand.)

WITH SO MANY impressions of new country crowding in it is difficult to select those of interest to others. But, I'll try.

One of the first things I noticed in Tokyo Japan was numerous persons wearing gauze pads over their mouths held in place by straps over their ears. These were for prevention of Asiatic Flu which has been prevalent here, which my guide assured me is now dying out. As for me, I'm glad I had immunizing shots before I left home.

The thing which strikes me forcibly in every country I have ever visited is how alike they are. The babies all laugh and cry just the same whether they are in a pram in America or on the mother's back in Japan. The teenage girls giggle and laugh behind their hands just the same on both sides of the Pacific. One difference I noted was that the shoe-shine boys in Japan are women. The sling baby is worn over here as well as the wooden platform shoes.

The city of Tokyo seems drab after Honolulu. Too early and too cold for flowers. Japan's pine trees are like no other pines in the world and have a rugged, natural, asymetrical form found no where else and to me are beautiful.

The Emperon's palace looks to me as if it might be a big pavilion built for an exposition, not a palace. That does not mean it may not be magnificient inside. A great land beautiful mote surrounds the palace bordered by grotesque and artistic looking trees.

The main native shopping center was decorated with great branches of plastic pink plum blossoms almost meeting in the center of the street. It takes a lot of imagination to think up a thing like that.

Tokyo, which means new capital, is a city of 8,000,000 people. Few old people are on the streets. Hundreds of school children were being taken on tours of the museums and art galleries, today. If you didn't look at their faces you would think they were our own children being taken on a tour of various industries.

The Japanese do bow. They bow and bow. The elevator girl nearly bends double when I get out of the elevator and she murmurs, "So sorry, thank you." She is pretty and young.

The men in the hotel are all young and very nice looking. They are very trim and clean cut.

It seems terrible to me that old hatreds should be cultivated. One woman of the group snapped, "I can't agree with you." This was when I mentioned that two tiny boys about two and four years old were cute as a bug and pretty. I am sure it was old wartime prejudice speaking. I played with these two little fellows at the airport and they were bright, friendly and happy. In fact I would like to have adopted both of them.

There are many fine buildings here but very far apart in a wide spread city. One has to go far to see anything. I have one free day here and shall try to get a guide and take in the museum. 88,000 articles of art. Some are sure to be beautiful.

I am leaving here tomorrow for three days, I don't mind leaving at all. I will be back for another two or three days before leaving for Hong Kong.

Perhaps I can learn more about Tokyo by the time I leave. I'm getting thin in the waist from bowing so much, as I find myself returning curtisies of the hotel staff.

AUSTIN HIGHLIGHTS

State's Coffers Are Empty Now

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN — State's fiscal cupboard is bare at the moment. By the end of the month it'll probably be about $20,000,000 short, says State Treasurer Jesse James.

Texas' treasury has been running in the red during spring months for several years. Situation corrects itself sometime after April when sizable state tax payments come in. For more than a decade the state has come out solidly in the black by the end of each fiscal period.

This year Treasurer James predicts incoming revenue will wipe out the deficit by May or June.

But there's a difference this year. Lagging oil revenues have choked off a sizable hunk of expected tax income. Comptroller Robert S. Calvert, the state's official income estimator, sees another — and worse — deficit by next fall. By the end of the present budget period in August, 1959, he estimates the state will have spent $32,000,000 "on the cuff."

This estimate holds even if oil production picks up within the next few months.

Meanwhile, state banks are still cashing the state's warrants and holding them until the state gets money in to pay them.

A PENNY SAVED — With an eye on the state's depleted coffers, the Legislative Budget Board is asking state departments to look for ways to pare expenses.

Board's letter calls on department heads to "review . . . each activity in your organization to determine if there is anything that can be eliminated without detriment to the citizens of Texas."

DEFENSE NEED CITED — It won't be just Texas that will suffer if oil importing continues, says Railroad Commission Chairman Olin Culberson.

In an Austin speech to members of Texas Service Stations Associated, Culberson took the usual swat at imports for draining some $1,000,000 a day from Texas economy.

But above this, he said, is the danger to national security if the domestic oil industry is strangled and the country becomes dependent on oil fields "half a world away."

"It's suicidal," said Culberson.

He doesn't see prospect of cheaper gasoline from imports, said the Railroad Commissioner. Europeans, who get all their oil from the Middle East, pay from 80 cents to $1.10 per gallon, he said.

NO TREND YET — Texas Employment Commission's latest report showed a slight drop in number of jobless — from 79,604 to 79,079.

But the change was not enough to indicate a 'turning point," the hoped-for spring up-swing in job activities.

TEC's figures include only those unemployed persons covered by unemployment insurance.

DIFFERENCE IN VIEW —Texas Supreme Court is considering the arguments of rival groups of optometrists who don't see eye to eye on advertising.

One group, associated with Texas State Optical, contends a law passed by the last Legislature prohibits eye glass advertisements mentioning price. Opponents from Lee Optical declare the section of the law limiting advertising is unconstitutional because it wasn't mentioned in the caption of the bill.

Suit is part of a long history of legal maneuvering between competing optometry firms.

LOAN STUDY SET — Small loan study group of the Legislative Council will hold a series of fact-finding hearings over the state. First will be April 4 in Houston.

Numerous organizations and officials have, for some years, called for an overhaul of loan laws, charging that small borrowers have been exploited. State Junior Bar of Texas set the "loan shark problem" as its principle target at its recent meeting in Austin.

Sen. Abraham Kazen, chairman of the study committee, said any interested person with information or recommendations is invited to appear before the committee.

ANNUAL SESSIONS URGED — House Speaker Waggoner Carr of Lubbock wants Texas voters to approve a proposed constitutional amendment to provide annual sessions of the Legislature.

Carr is campaigning over the state for re-election to the speakership. Voter approval of annual sessions also is being urged.

Budgeting on an annual basis would be much more businesslike and efficient, he said, than on the present two-year plan.

SALARY SQUABBLE FLARES — Plans to supplement the $15,000 salary to get a qualified executive director for the state hospitals and special schools has bumped into a lawmaker's indignation.

Sen. William S. Fly of Victoria said the supplement would violate

Retail Market In Deaf Smith Was Good in '57

(Special to the Brand)

NEW YORK — A comprehensive survey of consumer buying in the nation's retail stores in the 12 months preceding the business setback shows that the Deaf Smith County market was a vigorous one in the period.

With local incomes at a high level, consumers spent freely for goods and services. The buying surge was in evidence, for the most part, in stores selling nondurables, which attracted the biggest part of the household dollar.

The retail spending picture is revealed in the annual report of the Standard Rate and Data Service for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1957.

In Deaf Smith County stores, it shows, consumer spending reached a total of $19,764,000 in the year. This was three per cent above the previous year's volume of $19,172,000.

THE GAIN exceeded that chalked up in the rest of the United States, 2.4 per cent.

Not all of this retail strength can be credited, however, to increased buying on the part of the public. The creeping rise in the cost of living had much to do with boosting the dollar volume. Nevertheless, the higher costs were more than counterbalanced by the better incomes that prevailed.

Locally, per household, the amount available for spending, after taxes, averaged $6,421.

How did Deaf Smith County residents apportion their expenditures in the year? The answer is to be seen in the gross volume reported for the various kinds of retail business. Included are:

FOOD STORES, whose sales came to $3,414,000, equivalent to 17 per cent of the total retail outlay.

Places selling automobiles and other automotive equipment, $5,371,000, equal to 27 per cent.

Stores selling general merchandise, $941,000, amounting to five per cent.

Apparel stores, $886,000, or over four per cent.

Home furnishings establishments, $606,000, equivalent to three per cent.

The consuming public proved to be the bulwark of the economy, continuing to buy at a high level despite the talk of a forthcoming recession. Even now, in the midst of a broad decline, the confidence persists that a resumption of good times cannot be too far off. This is evidenced by January retail sales volume, which was four per cent above that of January, 1957.

Ford H. D. Club Has Two Topics

Subjects discussed at a recent meeting of the Ford Home Demonstration Club were "What Social Security Means to Women" and "How Does Social Security affect Farm Families." Mrs. Earl Dyer discussed these topics at a meeting in the home of Mrs. J. L. Fite Wednesday.

Next meeting will be March 19 in the Ford Community House.

Present for the meeting were Mesdames Marvin Finley and Sammy, Effie Charlton, Hardy Benson, L. J. Strafuss, Earl Dyer and S. T. Wiseman.

REP. WALTER ROGERS WRITES:

HR 8002 Is Hot Topic

To the people of the 18th District:

The initials and numerals HR 8002 do not mean a great deal to many of you, but they represent probably the first hot-contested bill that has come before the present Congress. Although only two days were consumed in the debate and in the passage of the bill, every moment of this time was taken up with heated argument.

The bill, in its original form, proposed to limit the power of the Congress to appropriate more money during one year than could be expended during that year. This sounds very good on its face and would certainly appeal to everyone if such practice could save money. If it were possible to conduct the government's business on a basis to the best interests of the people I do not think there would have been one vote against the measure when it came up in the House.

However, there is a keen division of opinion on the subject. The opponents of the measure argue that by adopting this procedure, it would make it impossible for the several agencies of the government to carry over appropriated but unspent funds from year to year. They further contend that this would enable the Congress to channel unspent funds into other projects and require less demand upon the taxpayers for additional funds. Certainly we would all agree that the bill should be passed. This was the case.

On the other hand, it was argued that the adoption of this bill would measurably curtail the freedom of movement on the Department of Defense, so necessary in fighting the missile development-cold-war now in progress.

It was argued that the adoption of the measure would void the contracting authority of the government in matters that could not be included within one year; that the development and production of many items in our armament program, such as jet planes of all types of guns and equipment, atomic items, and especially missiles and associated items could not be manufactured and delivered within a 12 months' period and, therefore, these long-lead-time items had to be the object of firm contracts.

In this connection it was contended that the only way such contracts could be firmed would be to make appropriation of the money at the time the contract was let, so that the department having the responsibility of carrying out the contract would see to it that the cost would be held within the limits and would not be driven back to Congress for more money than was estimated but not appropriated.

Several amendments were offered but one was adopted which actually constituted a substitute for the bill. It placed in Congress certain powers of limiting the amount of expenditures of the several departments each year which is, of course, very good. Whether or not the amendment went far enough to effect measurable savings is difficult to determine. I felt that the bill should be returned to the Committee for some additional study on this phase, and then returned to the House for approval. However, the House did not choose to give further study to the measure in this particular and wanted to either pass or refuse the bill as amended. Under the circumstances I voted for the measure, because I think it will afford an opportunity to explore an area whereby some savings can be effected. However, very close vigilance should be maintained in the application of this law so that immediate corrective steps can be taken in the event the stepped up missile program is even slightly jeopardized.

OTHER ISSUES

Congress is now moving into that period of each session when the hotly contested issues begin to come to the Floor. Up until now all of the work has been progressing in the several committees, perfecting the particular bills to be debated. One of these will be the Alaskan Statehood Bill. Efforts are being made at the present time to push this through at an early date.

The Hawaiian Bill is still in committee, but it is understood the Alaskan Bill will not be brought before the Congress until the committee passes favorably upon the Hawaian Bill and recommends its passage. There is little question that the Hawaiian Bill will be approved by the committee, because the Alaskan Bill was approved last year, and I believe that only six of us voted against it. There will probably be a few more votes in committee against the Hawaiian Bill, but it will pass out of the committee with a good margin.

The Reciprocal Trade Bill, which I have mentioned several times in these newsletters, will probably be the hottest issue before the House this session. This bitter controversy could be avoided if the Administration would take some corrective steps under its present powers to protect many businesses and industries in this country, including the oil business. Oil imports have now put the oil business in this country at its lowest ebb in many years.

The Foreign Aid Bill is another issue that will meet with heated debate. There is little chance of avoiding a head-on collision, insofar as this bill is concerned, because of the deep feeling of both the proponents and opponents.

TOP AWARD

The highest award for a masterpiece of understatement goes to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson for a remark he made in a recent news conference and which I quote: "If our critics say we are doing too much for the farmer, I don't agree."

I am sure this is one statement on which Benson and the farmers fully agree.

VISITORS

This week's welcome visitors from the Panhandle to the Capital include James H. Eubanks, Ralph D. Lemons and Earl Plemons, all of Amarillo; Ernest Rea of Tell; and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Renfro from Hereford.

Furniture Topic For Dawn H. D.

The Dawn Home Demonstration Club met at 2:30 p.m. Friday, March 7, in the home of Mrs. H. D. Fowler for a program on "Household Furnishings."

Mrs. Ray Stewart who presented the program gave the group a few pointers on the care of carpets, upholstery and accessories. Then she led a round table discussion of problems met and solved with the care of upholstery, carpets and accessories by the members.

For opening exercises Mrs. LeRoy Johnson read a short feature written by a woman who became a H. D. club member and learned to organize her house keeping and time so that she waited for her husband to be ready to go rather than her husband waiting for her. Many members could see themselves in the same situation.

Following the council report the members elected Mrs. Ray Stewart their nominee for club woman of the year and Mrs. Murl Little was asked to write up the recommendations for Mrs. Stewart.

After adjournment of the business meeting a white elephant sale was held. Seven dollars and 97 cents was contributed to the club treasury.

Present were Mesdames W. T. Beavers, Zed Stewart, H. D. Fowler, Marion Russell, J. E. McCabe, Murl Little, Ray Stewart, R. L. Johnson, H. S. Fuller and H. D. Moore.

Progressive H. D. Studies Home

A program on "Home Improvement" was presented to the Progressive Home Demonstration Club by Mrs. Cecil Boyer and Mrs. Cecil Billingslea March 4 in the home of Mrs. Floyd McGee.

Mrs. Boyer told the group to cut down on the carpet cleaning bills by learning how to use things that are handy around home. For instance, using equal amounts of water and vinegar to remove stains from the carpet. Sour milk will also remove ink spots from a carpet.

"Do not let the television take away from family life and do not let it take away from the amount of reading that each person should do," Mrs. Billingslea told the group.

During the business meeting Mrs. Wesley Reznik was accepted as a new member.

Mrs. Mabel Henry was the one visitor present.

Present were Mesdames V. C. Burgess, H. L. Hershey, A. C. Hammett, T. J. Parsons, Earl Plank, Taft McGee, P. L. Carmichael, Cecil Billingslea, Leon Coffin, Cecil Boyer and Floyd McGee, the hostess.

Double Main Event Set at Bull Barn

Headlining a double main event at the Bull Barn Saturday night will be a wrestling match between Nature Boy Rogers and Rip Rogers.

In the second main event Dirty Don Evans, who was defeated last week by Dory Funk, will meet Johnny Barend.

Both matches are scheduled for two out of three falls or one hour.

First bout will begin at 8:30 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for ringside, $1 for general admission and 50 cents for kids. Tommy Phelps will referee both bouts.

Last week Judy Grable and Doll Paige teamed up to down Peggy Allen and Gypsy Rose in a girls' match. Miss Allen and Miss Rose won the first fall in nine minutes, but Miss Grable and Miss Paige rallied to win the last two falls.

In the second main event last week Funk gained his victory by winning the second fall with a spinning toe hold and Evans was disqualified in the third fall. Evans had won the first fall with an arm twist.

VISITING HERE

Glyna Masten of Sudan and Marilyn Nix of Amherst visited with friends and relatives in Hereford over the weekend. They returned to Amherst with Marilyn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Nix Jr., Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Nix had been to Texline to visit with relatives there.

Hot Cross Muffins for New Cooks

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

EVEN A NEW COOK can bake Hot Cross Muffins with a simplified recipe.

NOTE TO NEW COOKS: making a batch of Hot Cross Muffins is a simple procedure that will give you the satisfaction of baking with yeast. For these muffins we resurrected the idea of adding a package of yeast to some prepared biscuit mix — a basic quick recipe popular some years ago because no kneading is required. The addition of a little sugar, dried currants and glaceed fruit (if it's on hand), plus the traditional frosting produces a bread that's light in texture and brown and crusty on the outside.

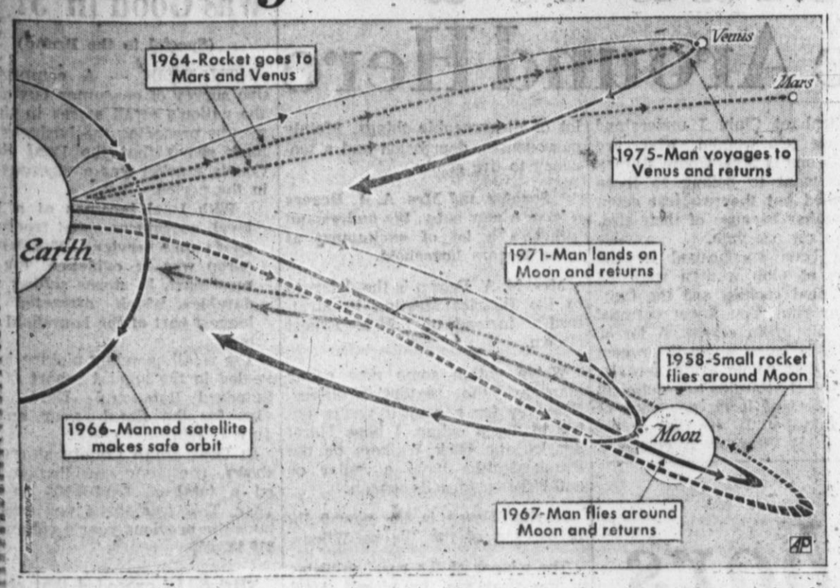
HOT CROSS MUFFINS

Ingredients: ¾ cup plus 2 tablespoons warm (105 degrees) water, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 package active dry yeast, 2½ cups prepared biscuit mix, 1/3 cup dried currants (rinsed in hot water and drained), 2 tablespoons finely diced glaceed fruit (if desired), ½ cup sifted confectioners sugar, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, 1 to 1½ teaspoons cold water.

Method: Put the warm water in a medium-sized mixing bowl; add sugar and yeast; stir until every grain of yeast is dissolved. Add biscuit mix, currants and (if used) glaceed fruit. Beat with a spoon until well mixed. Spoon into buttered muffin cups, filling them about two-thirds full. Let stand in a warm place, free from draft, about 1 hour. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven about 25 minutes. Remove to wire rack to cool. Mix until smooth the confectioners sugar, vanilla and enough cold water to make a rather thick consistency. With a small spoon mark a cross on each muffin with the frosting. (Experienced cooks may wish to use decorating frosting in a decorating tube to mark crosses.) Makes 12 medium-sized muffins.

Note: You may use this method for letting the dough rise in a "warm place, free from draft." Place the dough-filled muffin cups on a middle or top rack in the unlighted oven; on the rack below place a roasting pan filled with boiling water. In about 20 minutes or so, when the water will be cool, empty the pan; refill it with boiling water and replace it in the oven. Take both pans out of the oven when you have to turn it on to preheat it for baking. Cover the dough in the muffin cups with a tea towel and place it near the range (out of a draft) so it will keep warm until the oven is the correct temperature.

Scientist Sets Space Traveling Timetable



LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of America's foremost sufferers of moon madness is a tall, bespectacled scientist who, in his own words, 'insists on plowing relentlessly toward the stars.'

Not that Dr. John L. Barnes is superstitious and is really hexed by the light of the moon. But he does have a powerful interest — almost a fixation — in the earth's only natural satellite.

Chances are that when a U. S. spaceman becomes the real-life man on the moon, part of the credit will belong to Barnes, a part-time professor and full-time head of a firm of consultants specializing solely in space travel.

Why the moon?

The first reason, obviously, is that it's the nearest," answers Barnes. "Then there's the adventure of just going there. Scientific exploration is important, too, as is the military aspect.

We must protect ourselves for the next war which may come from space."

When will man be able to see the "other" side of the moon — the dark and mysterious side that has intrigued man throughout the ages?

Dr. Barnes says America could send a rocket around the moon within six months. A camera-carrying vehicle appears to be several years in the future and it won't be until 1967 that man will be able to voyage around the moon and return, he predicts.

Dr. Barnes' firm, Systems Corp. of America, is an outgrowth of two similar companies he helped found and it specializes in consultation and research for private businesses working under government missile or related contracts. Barnes' work nearly is all classified.

However, some of the findings of Barnes and his associates are startling. Here is his projected timetable for America's space age — providing funds are made available for an all-out program:

1958 — Small Rocket with instruments or small animal flies around the moon.

1964 — An instrumented vehicle goes to Mars and Venus.

1966 — Manned earth satellite makes safe orbit.

1967 — Man flies around moon and returns safely.

1971 — Man lands on moon and returns.

1975 — Man voyages to Venus and Mars and returns.

Dr. Barnes says America — if it wanted to spend the money — could send a rocket around the moon and return within six months, using existing hardware.

"It would burn up, however, when it hit the earth's atmosphere," he said.

He does not believe life exists on other planets in our solar system. Other galaxies? Perhaps, says Barnes, but propulsion limitations will prevent earthmen from finding out for decades.

Propulsion — the power used to propel a space vehicle — is the toughest, although not insuperable, problem of today's would-be space adventurer, Barnes says.

Other obstacles man must overcome to make successful planetary flights include controlling the space vehicle, navigation, communication, re-entry into the earth's atmosphere and biological and psychological limitations.

Barnes' firm, he admits, has conducted studies touching on most of these problems.

The research and final flight to the moon "will not be cheap," the space expert says. "Space travel will have a high dollar price."

Barnes, a native of Haddenfield, N. J., got his bachelor and master degrees at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and his doctorate, in mathematics, at Princeton. He taught at MIT and Tufts University before coming to UCLA in 1947, where he teaches engineering.

the appropriation bill he helped to write. He said the $15,000 salary was purposely set below that of several other staff members to reflect that the executive director was "serving" and not "over" the higher paid staff members.

Six applicants for one of the higher paid jobs reportedly turned it down because of the "unworkable" situation.

'TAINT'T THAT TAINTED — No point in throwing away money, says the GOP, even if it's "tainted" oil money.

Texas Republican State Committee, meeting in Austin, voted to use $100,000, raised by National Committeeman Jack Porter for its state budget. National GOP wouldn't touch the money after Eastern fund-seeking letter which reminded Texas oil and gas men they needed GOP support to pass the natural gas bill.

State committee gave Porter a vote of confidence in a resolution saying that New Dealers had distorted his intent.

SHORT SNORTS — Texans' driving habits seem to have improved thus far in 1958. Reports (not final) from the Department of Public Safety for the first nine weeks of '58 show a traffic death toll of 267 compared to 319 for the same period last year. Almost twice as many degrees are awarded in teacher education than in any other field in Texas state colleges and universities. Business administration, liberal arts, engineering, sciences follow in that order. Listing is by the Commission on Higher Education. State revenue collections from liquor sales dropped $300,000 in January below collections for the comparable month a year ago, Liquor Control Board figures show. January collections this year totaled $2,201,306. Governor Daniel, as hard-beset as any Texan in this year of flu sieges, took to his bed for the third time. Members of the governor's family also have had the flu.

FAILURE

NEW ULM, Minn. (AP) — If you don't succeed, don't try again, says Alfred Polta, a reformed do-it-yourself artist.

Polta, preparing to do some shellacking in his home, bumped a lamp off the wall.

It fell on a jug of paint thinner and broke it open. The light bulb broke and set the thinner afire. Damage ran to $1,000.

"The house will have to be repainted inside," said Polta, "but this time I won't be doing it."

Polynesian men are said to prefer the muumuu to conventional, form-fitting dresses.

One Hawaiian says: 'The muumuu keeps you guessing. It adds a touch of mystery to a woman and works on your imagination.'

A somewhat different view is taken by Society Editor Betty Wilder of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin. She says: "Some people spell it moomoo. That's not surprising because it's big enough to cover a cow."

Miss Yoshi Sameshima, a fashion designer, says: "Hawaii is showing the fashion world that the islands had the chemise before Paris fashion experts came on the scene."

Jack Gillett, president of an organization known as the Waikiki Unmarried Bachelors' Association, says:

"The muumuu is charming and has its place."

He did not say what place.

A sampling of opinion in the U. S. Navy at Pearl Harbor boils down to this:

"The muumuu will never replace the grass skirt."

HOT CAT

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — While Mrs. Bill Lyon loaded the automatic clothes dryer, her pet cat, Velvet, lolled at ease.

Mrs. Lyon took out the first dry load, put more clothes in the dryer, and went upstairs while it ran.

Loud squalls, heard above the noise of the washer, sent her scurrying back to open the washer door and let Velvet out of the 200-degree heat. A veterinarian checked Velvet and couldn't find any injuries, says Mrs. Lyon, "but I think she lost about eight of her nine lives."

WHALE OF AN ODOR

BELLEVILLE, N. J. (AP) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. has taken the odor out of whale oil at its laboratories here.

The oil is used to coat light bulb bases to prevent them from adhering to lamp sockets. Unhappily for employes who handle the bulbs, the oil smells.

A staff scientist came up with the answer — a few drops of perfume to each gallon of whale oil.

Lonely Lion Gets Owner in Trouble

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Among all the animals in Alaska, Gil is unique.

The territory is famous for its brown and black bear, moose, deer, arctic polar bear, mountain goat, dall sheep, reindeer, caribou, musk ox and even buffalo.

But Gil stands alone as the only one of her breed in Alaska. She's a lion — or a lioness, if you prefer. And her life, although complicated in the past by frequent court disputes, is a bit more soft than that of other game animals in the territory.

She doesn't roam the rugged [illegible] in search of food or a place to sleep. Even Alaska's frigid winter weather is no problem.

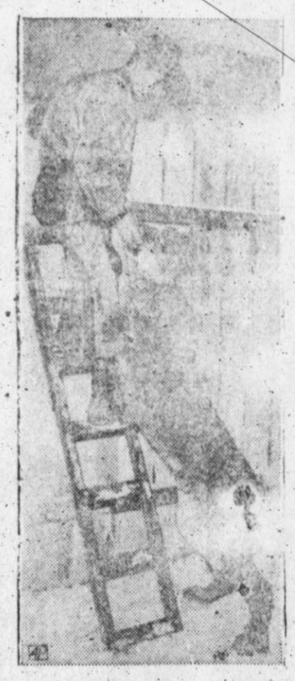
Gil is a pet — and about as domesticated as a 2-year-old lion anywhere could be.

She's owned by S. Sgt. and Mrs. Glenn F. Diel, and lives mostly in the garage of the Diel home in suburban Hidden Valley.

Her grazing land, the back yard of the Diel home, now is enclosed by an eight-foot wooden fence topped by a heavy wire mesh. The barricade was ordered by U. S. District Judge J. L. McCarrey Jr., after a number of complaints had been filed against Gil's neighborhood ramblings.

Gil's most serious bout with the law came as a result of a $5,000 damage suit filed against Sgt. Diel, who is stationed at Elmendorf Air Force base here. The parents of a young girl contended the lion had scratched their daughter. A federal court jury awarded $59 in damages to cover a doctor bill.

With winter snow on the ground, and temperatures around the zero level, Gil doesn't venture outside of the garage much more than 15 minutes a day. Her paws get cold.



AFFECTIONATE PET — Gil, the only lion in Alaska, indicates disapproval of fence repairs by his owner, Sgt. Glenn Diel.

Gil was born in captivity at the Chase Wild Animal Compound at Halifax, Mass. Mrs. Diel chose the animal's name — in honor of a former employer in Sacramento, Calif.

BLAZE DESTROYS DOWNTOWN BUILDINGS—A pumper truck plays a stream of water on a fire wwhich caused an estimated quarter of a million dollars damage to a business house and a motel in Wichita Falls. Three persons were injured in the fire. A fireman suffered a broken foot and face cuts when he slipped from a second story ladder. (AP Photo).

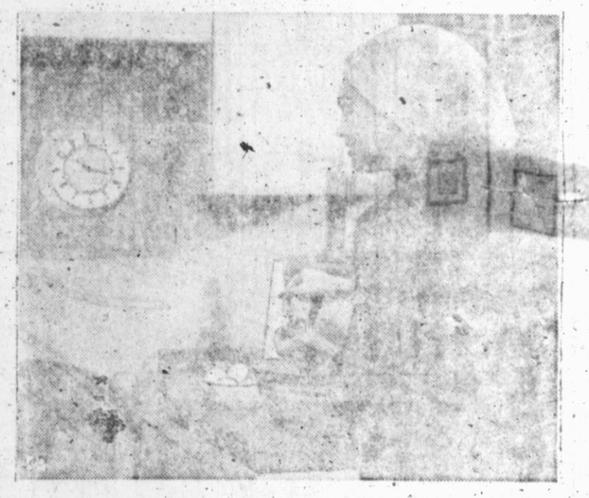
Set Your Clock To Beauty Time



SHE'S AN OLD CLOCK WATCHER—She mixes a cake, does kitchen chores as her permanent wave sets.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

THE AVERAGE HOUSEWIFE may not admit it to her husband, but she has plenty of time on her hands these days.

As a matter of fact if she can keep her eye on the kitchen clock, she'll have little else to do. There are so many push button features in today's kitchen, with gadgets spinning, washing, percolating, baking, blending, chopping and mixing, that all one needs is a good sense of timing and an electric kitchen clock that needs no winding to get through the day.

But not a second need be wasted. The kitchen mechanic may put this time to good use in enhancing her appearance. Three minutes to mix a cake? Just enough time to put on a fresh coat of nail polish. Sixty minutes of clothes in the dryer? That'll be just right for setting a home permanent wave.

The kitchen basin is an ideal place for the shampoo, too, if you have a spray attachment in the sink. So that can be timed to the dishwasher. When your hair is clean so will be the dishes. Take time out now to put them away.

Exercises may be timed to the washing machine. Vibrations from the machine will reach you in the living room, no doubt, so plan your exercises from wash to spin. Then there will be time to remove your clothes from the washer in between glamor treatments.

After the casserole is in the oven, soak your feet in a basin of sudsy water as you relax with a newspaper or magazine. If the children can be kept at bay maybe you can run this session into a pedicure. If you can't, it'll make you feel good to have this end-of-the-day foot bath.

Every kitchen should have a mirror in a convenient place, and there should be room in the ice box for a bottle of astringent or skin tonic. A good face creaming in the middle of the day as you labor over your chores will set up your complexion for that man's arrival.

Many a beauty session is postponed because Mom is on kitchen duty. But if you get in the habit of doubling up your beauty tricks with your work tricks, you can be a beautiful work horse.

TIPPLER'S TRAINING

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Police Sgt. Lee Swing, on a rush assignment, observed a familiar figure in a familiar condition near the court house.

Not having time to stop, Swing shouted from his cruiser:

"Go on and register in, Allen."

Returning some time later, the sergeant found, as he expected that "Allen" had charged himself with being drunk and was sleeping it off.

"It's all a matter of training 'em right," said Swing.

LINCOLN IN SIOUX

WESTFIELD, N. J. (AP) — The Rev. Dr. Joseph L. McCorrison Jr., pastor of the First Congregational Church here, has an unusual biography of Abraham Lincoln — written in Sioux Indian dialect.

THE SKETCH SHOWS some of the changes Architect York would make in his own home if he were to redesign it today.

WHAT DOES an architect design for his own family? And why? And, after having lived in the house for some time, what changes would he make if he were to build the house over again?

We put these questions to Herman H. York, a prominent eastern architect, who has achieved national prominence for his award-winning residential designs. Here is the story of his house, as he built it two years ago and as he would change it now if he were to redesign it.

First, the architect decided he would want all principal rooms toward the rear for greater privacy and he, therefore, selected a plot with the proper compass direction. He explains:

"This gives the important rooms the most desirable exposure. Orientation varies in different parts of the country. If the plot is large enough, it is sometimes possible to turn the house to whatever exposure is desirable. However, best results are obtained where the plan layout takes into consideration the plot and its compass relationship."

Any house, whether it be a one story, a split level or a two story, must be planned for efficient living. York says:

"Good space relationship and proper circulation is the key to a successful plan. In my own house, I realized that as an architect I must include some eye catching ideas, enough unusual detail to create interest for our guests.

"But, basically, the house must be one in which our family could live with the greatest comfort and with the least maintenance."

In his house, York planned three general zone areas:

1. Living.
2. Sleeping.
3. Service.

"There is seldom a problem in separating the living and sleeping areas" the architect says. "However many plans do not have a proper relationship between kitchen and garage between the kitchen and the dining terrace and between the living areas and the outdoor terrace.

"MOST OF US buy a house partly because a plot of ground surrounds it. The house therefore should be planned to make utmost use of this outdoor area."

In his house York gave top consideration to such a circulation pattern and to the relationship between the three general areas.

What would he change, if he could build the house all over again? The architect answers:

"1. Provide direct access from the children's bedroom area to the outside. There is a constant stream of traffic in and out of these rooms for everything from bubble gum to baseball gloves.

"2. Use more materials designed to lower maintenance costs. Although the interior finish of my house is largely brick wood and tile additional areas could be done in these low maintenance materials.

"3. Arrange for more built-in furniture. This should be done before the house is framed.

"4. Pay more attention to the lighting. Study the Color characteristics of light — and determine where to use fluorescent lighting and where not to use it.

"5. Call in the decorator earlier. Locations of electric outlets can be accurately done if the furniture layout is known in advance."

Paris Glorifies the Sack

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

NOW THAT THE FINAL scores in from the Paris spring fashion showings, any lingering doubts as the continued reign of the sack are banished. We might as well face it — the sack is here to stay for quite a while.

Whether you like it or not, it's a safe bet that you're going to see yourself wearing some version of the bag next spring or summer. New York manufacturers already are turning out adaptations of the Paris French chemise, balloon, sack and bloused silhouettes in sizes up to 20. And buyers from all over throughout the country are placing them.

Although spot checks around the country show that many women are violent on the subject of the sack, there are indications that the resistance is slackening. Frequently heard nowadays in the nation's fitting rooms are such remarks as these:

"Well, when you get used to it, it really not so bad, is it?"

"My husband will probably have a fit when he sees me in this — but it does look new, doesn't it?"

"I never supposed I could get into one of these things — but I think it sort of makes me look slender, don't you?"

"Say, it's nice not to have to cinch in your waistline any more!"

The sack designers have developed a number of variations on the basic theme. The most popular of these tapers toward the hemline and ignore the hips.

The balloon chemise is a current favorite. It seems the sack becomes a balloon when draping is added, usually at the back.

Some of the new sacks are cut from shoulder to hem, others are loosely bloused at the waist, some have great billowing effect of a tent — but it stopped the show at the opening and produced cries of "Bravo!" from the assembled buyers and press.

SACK COAT—This bulky knee-length coat by Catillo of Lanvin is made of a deceptively light-weight, fluffy fabric of nylon, mohair and wool. New notes are the square cut, low-priced kimono sleeves and wide standaway collar.

Newest is the trapeze silhouette launched by young Yves Saint-Laurent, successor to the late Christian Dior, who slopes the fullness outward and downward from a narrow shoulder line, with a slight indentation just below the bust. This produces somewhat the

With skirts up to the knees and belts down to the hips, there's no use denying the facts — the flapper rides again.

Boys Need To Practice Manners

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Is the American youth ungallant?

There are strong indications that he is not the little gentleman his daddy was at the same age. Or was it grandpa?

A recent editorial in the Meriden, Conn., Record laments the situation asking "What is the matter with young men today that they don't give a lady a hand with her bundles? It used to be fun to carry a girl's books home from school, but today it is a do-it-yourself proposition."

It could be girls like their independence, the Record points out. "Our own theory," the Record says however, "is that the boys are either lazy or unmannerly or both. Surely the age of chivalry is dead when a boy can detain a girl on a street corner for half an hour, holding her in conversation while she holds a pile of books."

Here's hoping the Recod can jog up the boys in Meriden, and that good manners will catch on. But how can a young man in a modern household identify himself with gallantry when he doesn't often see evidences of it at home? Mom's doing chores that were considered only a man's work in other generations — mowing grass, chauffering the family, chopping and hauling wood, painting and remodeling the homestead. Could be that when a young man permits a girl to walk with him loaded down with books, he's just conditioning her for marriage by bunding up her muscles.

Then, too, has anyone heard a mother (or father) say recently to a son. . ."Take off your hat when you come into the house". . . "Stand up, when a lady enters a room". . ."Pull back the girls' chairs at the dinner table". . . "Stand up and give that lady your seat (on the bus, etc.)"

"A woman doesn't deserve a man's bus seat if she works for a living too". . ."She should be able to take the office cuss words if she wants to work there."

Everybody knows that the woman maybe doesn't need the car seat any more than the man offering it, and that she can take a few swear words. But giving her a seat and protecting her delicate ears from swear words used to give man an opportunity to feel superior to women in a nice way. It seldom happens anymore.

If a boy has never been taught to be gallant, feeling the surge of masculinity that results from admiring femals, how's he going to know that it can make a pygmy feel like a giant?

After all, if the boys of this country had never been given a spoon to eat their cereal maybe they'd still be eating with their fingers.

A maritime law says that all U. S. vessels doing internal or coastal shipping in this country must be built and manned by Americans.

Confederacy Conquers Union In Battle of Bands & Ballads

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

IF THE CIVIL WAR had been fought with bands and ballads instead of bullets and bayonets, the South would have won by a couple of octaves.

That is the impression gained from comparing "The Union," Columbia Records' new and long awaited historical album, with "The Confederacy," its highly successful predecessor of three years ago.

Musically, the Rebels got the best of it. They had "Dixie," "The Bonnie Blue Flag," "All Quiet Along the Potomac," "The Yellow Rose of Texas," "My Maryland" and the tender and touching "Lorena."

The Federals, as the new album shows, managed to battle down to the last note, thanks mainly to the genius of composer George F. Root, who must have been the George M. Cohan of his day. Root rallied to the Union cause with songs like "Just Before the Battle Mother," "The Battle Cry of Freedom," "The Vacant Chair" and the rousing march, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching."

Finally, the Northern side could count among its musical war trophies the bugle call "Taps," believed to have been written by Gen. Daniel Butterfield and first played at Harrison's Landing on the James River during the Seven Days Battle around Richmond.

As in "The Confederacy," Columbia has dressed up the war songs in an elegant album-book, replete with learned essays by Confederate historians Bruce Catton and Clifford Dowdey and Yankee historian Allan Nevins.

Produced by Goddard Lieberson, president of Columbia Records, the 60-page album (twice as long as its Confederate counterpart) is generously illustrated with authentic Civil War photographs from the Library of Congress and other archives.

Among them is a famous shot of Gen. U. S. Grant at his field headquarters at Cold Harbor, Va. It shows him leaning on a tree outside his tent, looking wan and dejected, as if he expected to be called any minute before some congressional committee to say whether he thought Lincoln's war budget was up to snuff.

Musically, the album is inferior to its packaging. It beings, like "The Confederacy," with a cantata of war songs by Richard Bales, music director of the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C., who also conducts the National Gallery Orchestra on the record.

The cantata is memorable chiefly for a woefully slow rendition of "Tenting Tonight" by the choir of Washington's Lutheran Church of the Reformation. Since the accent was on authenticity, this is no doubt how the song was sung in those days. If so, it probably explains why Gen. George McClellan took so long getting his Army of the Potomac into action. George had to wait until the boys slogged through a couple of choruses of "Tenting Tonight."

Mid-way in the album, craggy-faced Raymond Massey recites Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, the bit that made him famous on Broadway and in Hollywood instead of the celebrated p tribute of silence at the en speech gets the TV specta treatment. An Alleluia c comes in with a strong "C Glory, etc." and Massey marching on, hand in hand Lieberson, into the Union tw

The Union album is at its when the brass bands are b a martial air, but unlike "The federacy," it drags dismally it attempts the sentimental o profound.

This time, however, Colu doesn't have to root around f other "Yellow Rose of Texa revive into a pop tune. Elvis ley beat them to it with his Me Tender" version of th Union ballad "Aura Lee."

Whiteface Fans Attend Regional Game in Lubbock

It seemed as though the entire town of Hereford was in Lubbock Feb. 28 and March 1, to see the Whitefaces take Region 1-AAA Championship for the first time in history.

As the end drew near everyone was sitting on pins and needles, then Fred Lookingbill sank the ball after a decision of "sudden death."

Suddenly there was a deafening roar from the Hereford fans and everyone was huging and grabbing everyone else, some people were even smoking two cigarettes at once, cheer-leaders were doing cart-wheels and the basketball boys were being smothered with congratulations.

The fans who were unable to make the game were sitting at home by their radios biting their nails and wringing their hands in anxiety. They had their own cheering squad in the living room of their homes beating the floor and yelling "Come on Herd."

Another little incident happened as the F. H. A. girls and their sponsors were returning home from Amarillo after attending an area meeting. When the news came over the radio they started honking the horns and yelling. Can you imagine what the other drivers on the road thought!

This is one incident in the history of basketball which will always be remembered by the Whiteface team and their fans!

H. H. S. Holds Final Pep Rally Of the Season

The Whitefaces were given a rousing send-off Tuesday, morning March 4, at pep rally held in the Whiteface gym. This was one pep rally which will never be forgotten by the students of H. H. S. Never before has the student body shown such enthusiasm and spirit as was shown Tuesday morning.

Fred Lookingbill, Steve Slagle, Mrs. Buck and Coach Kitchens gave short speeches.

Dub Reeves told the boys that the entire town was backing them and were very proud of the ability that they had already shown.

Coach Alex Glass was presented a $100 check by Mr. J. W. Robinson.

The keys to a 1958 Ford station wagon were turned over to Coach Kitchens by Dean Herring.

The pep rally was broadcast over station KPAN.

Austin, Here We Come!

"Austin, here we come," was the main topic around H. H. S. last week. Everyone was going around like 'chickens with their heads cut off.' The basketball team left for the State Capitol March 5. School was dismissed at 2:30 on Thursday afternoon for those who wanted to leave on that day.

A chartered bus was taken for those who wanted to go; others went with parents, friends, and relatives in cars, and some even hitch-hiked.

Those registered for the buses were Betty Paetzold, Lynda Phillips, Jane Pool, Dolly Prowell, Jeanette Rayburn, Sandra Roberson, Linda Russell, La Nell Short, Marilyn Sigle, Carlie Smith, Karen Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Springer and Twyla, Bill Stanford, Jean Terry, Lynn Thompson, Randall Vaughan, and Bobby Viegel.

Ella Marie Williams, Mrs. S. S. Williams, Paula Wright, Ronald Anderson, Lee Blocker, Margaret Boomer, Betty Cates, Sue Channer, Sandra Childers, Mrs. Viola Chisholm, Lois Christman, Danny Cleveland, Mary Lois Coker, Jimmy Conkwright, Patsy Cowart, Roxie Lynn Faughn, Silvana Felizia, C. D. Fitzgerald, and Reed Green.

Phillis Goettsch, Cherry Holt, Bill Kester, Carolyn Knox, Alice Leub, Susie Loerwald, Sue Minor, and Carol Ann Newell.

The bus left at four a.m. Friday and was in Austin in time for the game which was held at 3:10 p.m. that afternoon.

Sunday morning the persons who went on the bus attended church and returned to Hereford on that day.

How Much School for You?

People tell you, 'Stay in school as long as you possibly can." And everyone has told you about the advantages of an education.

Is there anything to be said on the other side? Should you go out and get a job and start earning money? Should you finish high school? Should you plan to go beyond high school? These are serious questions, and ones which you should answer thoughtfully.

Let's look at the picture first from this angle: Most state governments require that you stay in school until you are 16. Many people think that the minimum age for leaving school should be 18.

The cost to the public to keep you in school is somewhere between one hundred and four hundred dollars a year, depending upon which state you live in, and what school system you attend.

Why do you suppose there is a tendency to raise the minimum age for leaving school? Why do most states want to spend more money on you?

The lowest age for leaving school in England used to be fourteen. When, after World War I, the minimum age requirement was raised to 15, Englishmen said their country had taken a significant step forward. Why do you suppose England wanted to do this just at the time it was struggling to meet the problems of reconstruction after a devasting war?

When our country was founded, Jefferson and thinkers like him fought hard for free education for everyone, and got it. Others said that the common man — and in their eyes "common" meant "worthless" and "vulgar" — was not worth it. Who was right? Why has more and more education for everyone been considered important? Why do men who ought to know call our educated young people "our most valuable natural resource?"

The answers to these questions go back to the values of education which we talked about in the last chapter. They have something to do with democracy, for one thing. The marvelous idea which dawned upon colonial America was that common men were intelligent enough and dignified enough to govern themselves. It takes intelligent people to govern themselves — people who can decide their own affairs practically, who will not be swayed by demagogues or superstition, who can assign responsibility to the right people. This means that everyone must be educated, and the results will be worth the cost.

People who live in a democracy need to know others things, too. They need education which teaches sportsmanship, history, art, literature, and how to understand other people, other nationalities, races, religions.

And people who live in a democracy need to develop their potentialities to the fullest. Every man needs to do the best job he can do (and to get the preparation for it), he needs to lead the most satisfying life he can lead (and to get the education to do it).

It's hard for some young people to see the value of staying in school when it would be easy to be a good worker at the mill, with a lot of money in your pocket besides. If you get to thinking like this sometimes, ask yourself, "What about five years from now? Or ten years? Will it be easier for me to be a good worker then (or to find the job I want) if I get more education now?"

Of course you can't see into the future. But you can judge from the past. The best answer that you can get for a question of this kind is from men and women who are working now. Ask some men who finished high school, some who didn't, and some who went beyond high school.

Mr. Drew, for example, works in a steel mill. He makes good money now, but he wanted to be a doctor. 'I had the brains, I guess. Everyone said so. But I didn't use them when it came to getting an education, my father used to tell me. I was too sure I wanted to make money and be independent. I did what I wanted to. But I can see now that it would have been better to listen to some advice.'

Mr. Endress returned from World War I and settled into his old job again. "It was about all that I could do. I'd married, and had a family — and I couldn't afford to go to school then, even if the government did help out with my expenses. So I took my old job back. But things looked different to me when I got back. I certainly wish that I had finished school when I had a chance.'

Mr. Tate doesn't believe in education. "I got me a job, ain't I? I bet I make more than a lot of the guys that teach the kids, so why should I holler? Sure, I don't understand lots of the fancy talk in the papers every day, but I should worry. I eat three meals a day and have fun."

Of course people leave school for various reasons. Sometimes they have to work to help support their families. Although we have a system of free public education in our country, going to high school still costs you and your parents a lot of money every year. Textbooks, food, clothing, and spending money add up quickly; then there is the salary that you're not earning while you go to school.

Sometimes people drop out because they feel they aren't succeeding at school. If you're a person who doesn't learn easily from books, ask yourself if you've exhausted all the possibilities of your school. Is it possible to change your courses and take different subjects? Are there shop courses or other "experience" courses which you can take? You will find that school principals are anxious to make every possible adjustment in your program to help you succeed. Have you talked with your principal? Have you talked with your teachers? Are you thinking the whole thing through?

If lack of finances make it impossible for you to continue in high school, try to discover what you to help yourself. Could you opportunities there are for work part time? Or, if you must work full time, can you go to night school? Or can you take

'Whiteface Whims'

By JANICE JACOBS

"Does your husband always lie to you?"
"No, some nights I'm too tired to ask questions."

'What's the matter, Roger? You look terrible.'
"My wife's on a diet."

"Mamma, what is a 'second-story man'?"
'Your father's one. If I don't believe his first story, he always has another one ready."

Young husband — 'It seems to me, dear, that these pancakes are rather heavy.'
His bride — "Then I'm afraid your a poor judge, for the cook book says they are light and feathery."

Cynthia — 'How is your husband?'
Dorothy — "I haven't seen him for five years. I think I must have said something to annoy him."

'My wife always has the last word.'
"You're lucky. Mine never gets to it.'

Modern girls are fond of nice clothes, but they are not entirely wrapped up in them.

Did You Know That—
50 per cent of all married people are women?
9 per cent of all car accidents in which women are involved, happen on or near the road (Other per cent in the garages!)?
99 per cent of all the female students in the schools of America are girls?
99 per cent of the actresses are women?

I like men who tell me lies,
About my face, my hair, my eyes,
I like men who never swear,
I like men who swear they care,
I like men!

The following ad appeared in a Southern newspaper: Found — Bird or hat, which flew or blew into Murphys' Service Station. It's sort of round with green and red feathers or quills on it. If you've lost a bird or hat, or even if you haven't, drive by and see it; it's worth the trip.

One machine can do the work of 50 ordinary men, but no machine can do the work of one extra-ordinary man.

Ethel was playing her new accordion for a friend.
"Why, do you cry?" asked the listner. 'I didn't know you were so sensitive.'
'It's not the music. It's the accordion, its pinching my stomach!'

Mother — "Who gave you that black eye?"
Junior — 'No one. I had to fight for it.'

The four delegates chosen to attend the State Distributive Education Convention, Pat Dawson, Nancy Godwin, Wade Crist, Jim Culpepper, and sponsor J. C. Reese, left for Austin Thursday morning, Feb. 27. The Convention took place in the Driskill and Stephen F. Austin Hotels; the Hereford delegates stayed in the Austin Hotel.

The first business meeting was held at 1:30 Friday afternoon. This was the meeting for election of State D. E. Officers. At 7:30 Friday afternoon, Nancy Godwin entered the Job Interview Contest held in the Austin Hotel. At 9:30 to 11:0 p.m. there was a dancing and get-acquainted mixer.

Saturday morning Mr. Reese attended the complimentary breakfast for the co-ordinators held at the Driskill. The delegates then attended the Sales Demonstration Contest and appeared as the audience for this contest where they viewed many outstanding student salesmen. On Saturday afternoon a general meeting was held for delegates and sponsors. At this meeting two skits were presented and a report on the D. E. C. A. was given.

Saturday night at 7 there was a banquet held for delegates and sponsors with the host-The Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

The newly elected officers were announced and the four D. E. Duchesses were presented. Contest and Award Winners were announced and scholarships were presented. Cecil Hunter, formerly "Stuttering Sam" of Amarillo was the guest speaker. Immediately following the Banquet was a dance. The Vic Sterzing Orchestra played for the dance.

As well as attending the Convention meetings, the delegates enjoyed touring the State Capital Building and the University of Texas and seeing all the sites of Austin. On Friday afternoon the delegates visited with Mr. Buck Overall, who is now living in San Marcos. The group started back to Hereford early Sunday morning.

stantly stopping to say that they had never seen such a well-behaved student group.

The first meeting was held in the Regency Room of the Adolphus Friday at 2:30. From there the group was taken on a conducted tour of the beautiful Public Library, where in addition to the books, they saw the remarkable bonze decorative screen which aroused such a furor when it was placed in the library. Some members of our group especially enjoyed the Fine Arts Department.

After the library tour, the group walked nine blocks to the First Methodist Church for dinner.

After the dinner, everybody went to the Cinerama, "The Search for Paradise." There was a thrilling airplane trip through the high Himalayas, a dash down a mountain side in a jeep, and a dangerous trip in a rubber boat down the rapids of the Indus River. If you've ever seen Cinerama, you know that the spectators are made to feel that they are really on the plane, jeep, or boat.

Saturday morning the T. A. L. A'ers again met in the Regency room for the business meeting. Abilene won the meeting for next year by promising that there would be no walking. We were told, sub rosa, that the 1950 meeting has already been aranged for the Shamrock Hotel in Houston.

In the elections, Sue Darden of Borger automatically became president for 1958-59, since she is now vice president; Rebecca Seward of Nederland was elected vice president; Fran Nobel of Texarkana was elected parlimentarian after a stiff battle with Bill Cornett of Canyon; Sally Sullivan of Amarillo will be the Historian; Ruth Harlan of Bishop, the treasurer; and Cathy Brummer of Abilene will be next year's recording secretary.

Following the business meeting, luncheon was served in the Grand Ballroom of the Adolphus. Dr. Elizabeth Bently, Dean of Women at North Texas State College was the principal speaker. Among others who were introduced were Miss Eleanora Alexander, Supervisor of Libraries at Houston, and the President of the American Library Association; Miss Mattie Ruth Moore, Supervisor of Libraries in Dallas; a student from Iran who is in this country studying our library system; and the recipient of last year's T. A. L. A. scholarship, who is attending North Texas State at Denton. A scholarship is given each year by the T. A. L. A. to a worthy student in his junior college year towards study in libarary service.

The Hereford students stayed at the new Statler-Hilton. Before coming home, they went back to the Library (Saturday afternoon) here they could look without being rushed. They were shown the photostatic charging machine which takes pictures of the book card and the recipient's card just as rapidly as the librarian can press a button.

Mrs. Legitt, Jane and Anne toured Neiman-Marqus. Mrs. Leggitt can testify that the girls tried on every hat in the store — that was out where they could reach it, that is. You should have seen them in a huge mixing bowl shape covered with large roses of various colors!

How Much...

extension courses? Or short courses from your state college?

Of course leaving school doesn't mean that your education is over. There are lots of ways to continue your education informally. Reading and travel are only two of these. It has been said that a man who is willing to devote a couple of hours a day for several years to the study of worth-while books can gain the equivalent of a high school or even a college education. True as this may be, there is one big pitfall. Too few of us have the will power necessary to carry out such ambitious, long-term program without any external prodding. Most of us seem to require the stimulus of thinking and working along with some deadlines to meet.

If you can't decide whether or not to stay in high school, go to some adult you respect and talk the matter over. This is a situation in which experienced people can be of real service to you. You will find them very considerate. Don't try to solve this sort of thing by yourself. Go to someone with experience, put this situation up to him squarely, and weigh his opinions carefully. You owe this much to your future.

Suppose, however, that you have decided to finish high school, but are undecided about going on to college. Do you think everybody who can afford it should go to college. Do you think a student who does average work in high school should go?

What about other types of education besides college? There are trade schools, technology schools, and training schools in amazing variety. The essential difference between college and training school is that the latter offers you only specialized education. College, like high school, gives you a broad outlook and broad experience.

What about boys and girls who can't afford college? Should they work their way through? Would two years of college be of any value if that is all you can afford? Many educators definitely say 'yes.'' And there are many junior colleges which give the student two years of general education. Two-year terminal courses, they are called.

These questions and others like them have to be thought through in your own terms. You have to make your decisions in the light of your own case, and not on the basis of any generalization. What kind of training do you want? What kind of job do you want? How much education should you plan?

THE REAL SACK LOOK—If milady wishes to achieve "the sack look" real easy she can do so and still look quite chic by taking a plain old feed sack and going to work with scissors, as Claudia Kaszynski, Beaumont Lamar Tech sophomore, demonstrates, while Don Dixon, center, and George Harvey, also Lamar students, look on admiringly. Claudia modeled the sack in preparation for Lamar's annual "King's Ball." (AP Photo)

CHICAGO PRESCRIPTION

Ailing Man NeedsLady Doctor

CHICAGO (AP) — What most sick men need in this country is a good woman doctor.

That's the conviction of 51 doctors on the staff of the Mary Thompson Hospital here, one of the few all-women medical institutions in the country.

Although the hospital stays close to its founder's concept of medical care "for women by women," men are welcomed within its walls. Male doctors are admitted to the consulting and courtesy staffs and 20 per cent of its patients are men.

"A woman physician can develop a closer relationship between the doctor and patient," says Wallace C. Fischer, president of the hospital's board of trustees. "Women give a more personal, sympathetic service. We actually feel that our men patients recover better and faster with personalized care."

The hospital, founded in 1865 by Dr. Mary Harris Thompson, has just added 11 beds in a new diagnostic center for in-patient use. The project cost $250,000 and brought total beds to 130. Continued expansion is planned for the next two or three years to bring total beds to 150, the amount needed for certification for surgery training and internship. The nation's only other all-woman hospital is in Boston, Mass.

During its nearly 100 years of activity, the hospital has engineered several firsts: It was Chicago's first nursing school, the Midwest's first cancer prevention clinic, and set up Chicago's first mental hygiene clinic for working girls.

Non-profit and non-sectarian, the hospital specializes in obstetrical cases.

"Here's the way I feel," says Dr. Evangeline E. Stenhouse, president of the hospital's medical

Woman Psycholgist Helps Adapt Machines to Man

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — As aircraft go higher, faster and farther, will frail man — who hasn't changed much physically in thousands of years — have to stay behind?

"Not so long as we can adapt machines to man's capabilities," says Dorothy Johnston, who, in her early 30s, quit counselling college coeds to become one of the few women psychologists in the aviation industry.

"Besides, we don't really know what man's maximum capabilities are. . .in certain areas."

Working as a team, she and fellow psychologists at North American Aviation here seek to help engineers by trying to find answers to such questions as:

How much must a flier push, pull, reach and stretch while flying this aircraft? Is this control placed so a man with short arms can reach it but a man with long arms won't be cramped? In an emergency, can this item be reached quickly and operated easily?

"We want to know, so far as is possible, before the conditions arise in actual flight," Miss Johnston says. "We use wooden mockups of the aircraft under study, and place people — not necessarily fliers — in them to test proposed designs. We talk with test pilots. And once the equipment is in use, we ask the men who use it how they like it."

Did she have any idea psychology would lead to something like this?

"No," she says. "My interest in industrial psychology crystalized when I left Tallahassee, where I was counselling at Florida State University, and took a job at Douglas Aircraft in Tulsa, Okla.

JUST THE FACTS, MAC—Dorothy Johnson, North American psychologist, gets a report from test pilot George Ferguson.

"I got in on the 'human factors' research there and became very interested. Then I came here in 1957."

Before deciding to leave the campus, Miss Johnston had earned her undergraduate degree at the University of Arkansas and her master's at the University of Denver, while counselling at the University of Colorado's School of Nursing.

But if this new field is a surprise, it's also very much a thrill, she says:

"The future in this space age is limitless."

staff. "We women are hard workers and can hold our own with men in our specialties. But what we need is a million dollars; then we could expand the way we want to."

STAR THEATER

Cattle Empire: Joel McCrea returns to a town he is accused of wrecking by permitting his cowhands to get drunk. This resulted in the destruction of property, the crippling of some townspeople and the blinding of the area's biggest rancher, Don Haggerty. Gloria Talbott, a youngster when he left years ago, is now grown and in love with him. The trouble is cleared and so is McCrea's name. He leaves the town hoping to find a new start in the northwest. Friday and Saturday.

EYE BLOCK

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — When a second grader at Grace A. Greene School here reported he couldn't see the blackboard from the back of the room, teacher Joy Haas sent him to the school doctor for an eye examination.

The doctor's report said the boy's eyes are normal, but added: "He can't see the blackboard because the other children stand up in front of him."

Long Time Ago

45 Years Ago

Several of the young men of Hereford have organized a club for athletic training. The first meeting was held last week, but officers have not yet been elected. Physical exercises of all kinds, including dumb bell and Indian club swinging, glove contests will be in the program.

C. R. Smith has resigned his position as cattle inspector to engage extensively in the cattle commission business. Mr. Smith has served as inspector for a number of years and is very popular with the cattle men. The Brand predicts success to Mr. Smith in his business venture.

25 Years Ago

Learning several weeks ago that the Lions expected to plant some park trees, Ray Hershey told their committee members he had an over stock of Chinese elms and would let the club select as many as they wished to put out, as a present from him to the beautification plan. Between 25 and 30 of them were brought in Tuesday by John McLean, A. H. Streu and W. L. Davis, who also secured five red locusts and a number of cottonwoods and had them ready for setting out Wednesday afternoon.

Bible Words for Today

I JOHN 1:10 — "If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us." (King James Version)

Some do away with sin in their lives, not by the grace of God, but by a simple mental trick. They say there is no such thing as sin. It is just an old-fashioned concept conjured up by religious folk to keep people from being happy.

To do away with sin thusly is a nice trick if you can do it. But our text says you can't do it. You only trick yourself. "If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves."

The evidence is all in favor of this statement. Those who try to dismiss the whole idea of sin are the very ones who end up with all sorts of vague and morbid feelings of guilt and frustration and unhappiness.

When we run away from reality, we become the victim of unreality and illusion. If we start out from what we aren't, we won't have much of a chance to become what we might be.

INDIRECTION

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Traffic Judge James Demopolos offered advice to a young college student who was charged with making a U-turn on a bridge so he could pick up a pretty girl.

"The trick is not to make a U-turn on the bridge," Demopolos said. "Just drive to the end of the bridge and wait for her. There are only two ways a pretty girl can get off a bridge."

The lesson cost the student $7.

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (AP) — Some time ago Doyal Plunkitt traded in his 1953 model car for a new one. The used car traveled a circuit among dealers that took it to Muncie, Anderson, Indianapolis and finally back to New Castle, where Plunkitt bought it again to give to his daughter.

Lady Fichu Spring Suit Provides Frosting

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Smartly dressed women are finding that the fichu is one of the most useful accessories in their wardrobes. Worn at the neckline of a suit or dress, it provides a touch of softness and stays firmly in place all day long, without the frequent readjustments necessary with a scarf.

The fichu is easy to make, if you follow these suggestions from local sewing center experts. Select 1¼ yards of a soft fabric such as nylon tricot or chiffon. Add 1¼ yards of 5/8-inch grosgrain ribbon. Trim with 5¼ yards of nylon lace, available at notion counters or ten-cent stores.

SUIT ACCESSORY—Lace-edged fichu is easy to make.

Cut fabric 26 inches wide and 45 inches long. Fold lengthwise. Stitch raw edges together, ¼-inch from edge. Turn raw edges inside and press. Sew four rows of lace along the folded edge, ½-inch apart. This will be the front of the fichu. For extra decorative interest, use one of the pretty stitches easily accomplished on a new automatic sewing machine, or with an automatic zigzagger attachment. You may want to do the decorative stitching in a contrasting color thread.

Fold fabric to find center back. Pleat fabric to reduce width at center back to 3 inches. Stitch pleats in place.

Overlap center front edges 9 inches and stitch in position. Turn under raw edges, and center ribbon on fabric to cover raw edges. Stitch in position on both edges of ribbon, to secure front. Use loose ends of ribbon to tie the fichu around the waist.

The fichu may be worn with a suit instead of a blouse, or to fill in the neckline of a dress. In this season of bright colors and gay prints, you may want to choose a printed chiffon to add interest to a solid color outfit. For instance, a carnation-print chiffon in tones of gold would be effective with a beige suit. The same fabric might be used to trim a matching hat.

Nylon lace is available in colors as well as white, or can be dyed to match an unusual color.

CLEANING A NYLON RUG—A detergent solution will remove most spots. Oily or grease stains respond best to household spot remover or a dry cleaning solvent. Use a sponge.

HERE'S HOW

New Aids in Home Cleaning Help Ease Spring Chores

By VIVIAN Brown
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The poets say lovely things about spring, but just ask any housewife what's on her mind, come those first few balmy days. She's thinking, no doubt, that it's dust-ridding time — time to air the house, ferret out cobwebs, make refurbishing plans.

One clue to a good housecleaning program is to assemble a collection of work aids. These should make cleaning a breeze, if you use cleaning accessories properly.

Tune up those old standbys, the vacuum cleaner and mop. Make sure your vacuum accessories are in good shape, that you have bag refills for the cleaner. If your mop needs a new sponge, replace it. If you are partial to string mops, there are new string type mops of sponge.

Stores should be combed for new cleaning aids that help lighten work. Be wary of some cleaning aids that advertise miracles in cleaning upholstery and rugs. Most housewives have had their fill of these cleaners which clean, but then manage to attract more dirt by the very chemicals that helped the cleaning action.

There are special cleaners available designed for specific action — cleaners for hard-surface flooring, linoleum, vinyl tile, asphalt tile, that require just a quick once-over mopping and no rinsing to clean the floors perfectly.

There are cleaners designed especially for painted surfaces and for bathroom and kitchen fixtures. New window cleaners may be sprayed out of a can and wiped off with a clean cloth or a paper towel.

A chamois buffer wrapped around a shoe or scrubbing brush is a wonderful duster to produce a mirror-like gloss on furniture. The little sueded fibers in the oil-tanned chamois help keep a lovely sheen on furniture.

It's a good idea to have an assortment of sponges in your work basket. Large sponges are ideal for cleaning walls and woodwork, smaller ones are good for cleaning bathroom fixtures, window sills and small areas. Strips of sponge glued to a long stick are good for hard-to-get-at corners.

Sponges come in handy, too, for spot cleaning of rugs. Nylon rugs may be cleaned easily with a soft brush and a diluted detergent solution applied with a sponge. A dry cleaning solvent may be necessary for oily or greasy stains.

Cotton rugs may be more difficult to clean on the floor, but a new type of rug cleaner with a built-in detergent vehicle makes the job easier. Vacuum the rug first, then use the rug cleaner. Let it dry, then vacuum again to remove excess detergent.

One big lift for the housewife's morale is that cleaning accessories have taken on color. Hand cleaners and dust mops of nylon are in luscious pastel hues, may be removed from their handles and washed in sudsy water, dried in a jiffy and returned to their place. Pails come in chic colors, too, and are lighter in weight.

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Some children are way ahead of their parents.

The parents of a college girl home from school for a between-semesters vacation complained that they saw so little of her. As she drove off with her boy friend to spend Sunday away from her family, her younger sister commented:

"Look at it this way: It isn't that you have lost a daughter but that you have gained a car."

"2,000-lb.-Per-Acre Increase From Irrigated Maize."

Melvin F. Walter, who farms 1,100 acres near Kress, Tex., says: "I put down 100 pounds of Phillips 66 Agricultural Ammonia on irrigated maize and got a 2,000-pound increase in grain per acre. I also made 50 bushels of wheat per acre using 100 pounds of Phillips 66 ammonia."

Other Southwestern farmers have discovered that the 82% nitrogen in top quality Phillips 66 Agricultural Ammonia helps them get more profit per acre through higher yields. They get more cotton that classes higher at the gin ... yields of grain sorghum and ensilage are increased ... more marketable vegetables are harvested ... and profits on wheat are increased through better forage and higher yields of grain.

Phillips 66 Agricultural Ammonia contains 82% nitrogen and gives you more nitrogen per dollar than any other form of commercial fertilizer available.
