Perrin named EH Woman of the Year

By SANDY STAGNER
Lifestyles Editor

Juanita Perrin of the Bippus Extension Homemakers club was named as the 1988 Extension Homemaker club Woman of the Year at the annual Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council Appreciation Luncheon Monday at the Hereford Community Center.

Speedy Nieman, publisher of The Hereford Brand, presented a silver engraved tray to Perrin after citing her outstanding efforts in extension club work. The Brand has sponsored the event since 1952 when Mrs. Opal Norton of the Dawn E.H. Club received the first award.

Perrin has been very active in extension work for 35 years. She has served as reporter and has been a member of several committees including education, 4-H and program. She explained how being an extension club member has affected her life.

"Everything one does has an influence on their life," she said. "Some activities have a stronger influence than others. Being a member of an extension club has been a positive experience and I would have missed many learning opportunities had I not been an extension member."

"Through extension work, I have been taught pride; pride in my home, my state and my country. I have also developed leadership abilities which are needed in all family life and this should be combined with patience, understanding and cooperation."

Other 1988 Club Woman of the Year nominees included Grace Covington of Westway E.H. Club; Audrey Rusher of Wyche E.H. Club; Maudette Smith of Ford E.H. Club; Fannie Townsend of Cultural E.H. Club; and Tonia Vaughn of Draper E.H. Club.

These women were selected by their peers for their exceptional leadership, growth and development in extension club work and their commendable involvement in the community, church and family life.

Argen Draper, representing Wyche E.H. Club, gave special recognition to three club women. Pet Ott was presented a red carnation for her 58 years of extension work; and Leta Kaul and Vernis Parsons were given certificates of merit, each having been active in extension work for 51 years.

Nieman was presented a special Certificate of Appreciation from Jewell Hargrave of Cultural Club citing The Hereford Brand for its 38 years of support given to Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers. Thanks was also extended to KPAN Radio Station for additional news coverage and to the Deaf Smith County Commissioners for their support of the agricultural extension service program.

Also recognized were extension homemaker club members who had perfect attendance during E.H. Council meetings. They included Maudette Smith, three years; Johnnie Messer, eight years; and Naomi Brisendine, one year.

Women cited for perfect attendance at club meetings included Mariellen Homfeld and Kate Bradley, Bippus; Dean Bradley and Maudette Smith, Ford; Joyce Aycock, Leta Kaul and Carolyn Evers, Westway; Johnnie Messer, Tonia Vaughn, Sherri Blackwell and Carmen Rickman, Draper; Brenda Rusher and Audrey Rusher, Wyche; Nell Pope, Cultural; and Naomi Brisendine, Martha Lueb, Peg Hoff and Edith Higgins, North Hereford.

Wynon Mayes of Canyon, Randall county extension agent known as "The Poor Man's Minnie Pearl", entertained the 62 people at the luncheon with her humorous observations of life. The luncheon featured a variety of homemade dishes prepared and served by the Deaf Smith County Extension Club members.

The annual event depicted a patriotic theme. Tables were decorated with white cloths, red runners and centerpieces containing red, white and blue stars, the Texas flag, and streamers. Club Woman of the Year nominees wore red, white and blue corsages.

The 1987 honoree was Mariellen Homfeld of Bippus Club. Other past honorees include Johnnie Messer (1986), Carol Odum (1985), Mary Carter (1984), Louise Packard (1983), Gayle Carter (1982), Cindy Norvell (1981), Betty Thomas, (1980), Terri Johnson, (1979), Janet Coleman (1978), Wilma Bryan (1977), Jewell Hargrave (1976), Mrs. Bobby Kendrick (1975), Linda Welty (1974), Peg Hoff (1973), Carolee Smith (1972), Camelia Jones (1971), Mary Bradley (1970), Verna Schroeder (1969), Kate Bradley (1968), Bell Reid (1967), Nell Hodges (1966), Vida Jacobsen (1965), Robbie Fortenberry (1964), Jessie Wagner (1963), Bess Werner (1962), Helen Caraway (1961), Juanita Hershey (1960), Glenna Tooley (1959), Johnnie Turrentine (1958), Flora Homfeld (1957), Roberta Campbell (1956), Ruth DeHart (1955), Helen Parsons (1954), Pet Ott (1953), and Opal Norton (1952).

County okays maintainer bid

By ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

The third time's a charm for Deaf Smith County Commissioner Troy Don Moore, who finally selected to purchase a Caterpillar road maintainer Monday after bids were thwarted twice before.

Instead of using a repurchase agreement on Moore's 5-year-old Caterpillar a month ago, Moore chose to trade in a Gallion road maintainer that had a history of maintenance problems.

When bids were received the second time, Moore decided to advertise for bids again because the state attorney general's office wanted to see the specifications used the first time to check for any partiality given to equipment companies.

The attorney general's office OK'd the specifications and after 30 minutes of mulling over the bids at Monday's meeting, Moore decided the West Texas Equipment bid for a Caterpillar was the lowest-priced machine at $83,174.

However, Peck Industrial bid $77,820 and Waukesha-Pearce bid $75,369--$5,000 and $7,000 lower than the Caterpillar.

Moore explained that though the initial price was cheaper, maintaining a cheaper machine can cost more in the end.

"My Gallion just hasn't been satisfactory," said Moore, referring to the same type machine which Waukesha-Pearce bid. "The City of Hereford has recently purchased a Gallion and they've also been anything but pleased with theirs. The Gallion has the cheapest price, but not in the long run."

The 1978 Gallion Moore referred to has had its engine rebuilt, the transmission fixed, 75 percent of its hydraulic hoses replaced and is needing a major engine overhaul which could cost $5,000.

Other required repairs are estimated at more than $10,000.

Moore said he also checked with a Parmer county commissioner who purchased a Fiat-Allis (machine bid by Peck Industrial), and the commissioner said the machine was constantly needing maintenance.

Yellowhouse Machinery also bid a John Deere road maintainer at $84,500, but this exceeded the West Texas Equipment bid by $1,326.

"Another thing about West Texas Equipment and Yellowhouse is that they offer a buy-back agreement where they'll buy that machine back after five years for a certain amount of money," Moore said. "Peck and Waukesha-Pearce aren't willing to do that because they probably know their machines won't be worth that

Bid decision

County commissioner Troy Don Moore labors over four road maintainer bids Monday, but Moore decided the cheaper bids were not-as-good machines and would cost the county more in the long run.

Hereford Bull

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says it's tough to climb the ladder of success--especially when you have to keep your nose to the grindstone, your shoulder to the wheel, your eye on the ball and your ear to the ground.

"I've decided on a name for the baby," said the young mother. "We will call her Cleopatra."

The husband didn't like the name at all, but being tactful, he was careful not to object.

"Splendid," he said cheerfully. "The first girl I ever loved was called Cleopatra, and the name will bring back pleasant memories."

There was a brief silence, then the young wife said firmly, "We'll call her Elizabeth after my mother."

The Extension Homemakers surprised me Monday following the newspaper's presentation of the "Homemaker of the Year." The members gave us a plaque of appreciation for the sponsoring the award for 37 years, then presented this writer with a box of homemade divinity candy.

The ladies knew of my love for divinity, after I wrote several columns about the wife's problems in getting the consistency of the candy just right. Thanks, again, ladies for the recognition and for the "yummy" divinity!

A little better perspective might be in order for all those who decry how terrible public school students in this country do in comparison with other nations, reports James Roberts, the country editor down at Andrews.

A case in point is the recent rash of articles about high school students in this country performing dead last in math and science when compared to other nations.

And when compared to Germany, Korea and Japan, our students did perform poorly against students from those countries. But a detailed look at the makeup of the student body of the various countries is in order.

In those other countries, they are no Supreme Court mandate, under no national regulation that every child under the age of 18 must receive a public education.

In this country, even after waves and waves of immigration, every child must receive a public education that extends through 12 grades. Other nations have a weeding-out process that propels only the elite, the brainiest few, through the final years of high school.

If this nation chose only to educate the top 25 percent of the students after middle school, perhaps our students could score on an equal basis with those of other nationalities.

Unless democracy chose that unlikely process, to compare is to compare apples with oranges and for our students to suffer in the comparison.

Bush push begins for Tower in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush begins a last-minute lobbying blitz with Senate Democrats today in an attempt to salvage his nomination of John Tower as defense secretary and avert the most serious setback of his new administration.

With the full Senate prepared to take up the nomination this week, Bush rejoined the battle Monday night after returning to the capital from the Far East. He told reporters on Air Force One: "I haven't wavered one iota and I don't intend to."

Democrats have been largely unimpressed with Tower's pledge to swear off alcohol if he is confirmed, saying they are concerned with the issue of his judgment in general and his past links with military contractors. In an attempt to change their minds, the president scheduled meetings to lobby for Tower with a dozen senators, most of them Democrats.

On the list were Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, Sen. John Warner, R-Va., the ranking GOP member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and at least five Democrats whose votes will be crucial if the former Texas senator is to be confirmed. They are Sens. Charles Robb, D-Va.; Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas; Bennett Johnston, D-La.; Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Bill Bradley, D-N.J.

"We're going to work real hard," said White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater. "We're going to talk to a lot of people and ask them to keep an open mind and to read the FBI report and to talk to John Tower."

When Bush was asked whether Tower's no-drinking pledge would help, he shrugged his shoulders and said, "I don't know." Asked if Tower's cause will prevail, he replied: "Time will tell. I don't have any predictions."

Following a White House meeting Monday night, Senate Republican leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said there was no talk of pulling the plug on Tower's nomination. "There wasn't any plug mentioned," he said.

Senators are using the time before formal debate opens on Wednesday to troop into a guarded Capitol hearing room to read a confidential FBI report on the former Texas senator's drinking habits, alleged "womanizing" and the extensive and lucrative links he forged to military contractors after retiring from the Senate three years ago.

Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., considered by some a swing vote, told reporters in Miami that Tower's abstinence pledge helps but that his problems go beyond his drinking habits.

"It's a pattern of bad judgment - bad judgment in the 1970s in drinking, bad judgment by placing himself in compromising positions as the U.S. arms negotiator in Geneva in the mid-80s, bad judgment in accepting large sums from the defense industry in the late 1980s," Graham said.

"There is something of greater significance than Tower's pledge," said Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich. "Sen. Tower made representations in the Armed Services Committee of not using alcohol in certain time periods - and that turned out not to be true."

"The fact he needed to make that pledge was a double-edged sword," said Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., who said that as recently as two weeks ago the White House and Tower did not acknowledge Tower ever had a drinking problem.

"Yet on Sunday, in a move to allay fears, John made that pledge," Exon said. "It seems to me it might be interpreted as meaning he wants this job too badly."

"It's like marrying someone who says, 'Trust me, I'll reform,'" said Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill. "The experience with people who have problems with drink is that these pledges get broken much too easily."

But many Republicans said Tower's high-visibility promise before a television audience of millions would not be broken.

"John Tower's a man of his word," said Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. "If he says he won't drink, he won't drink."

"We have to accept it totally," said Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo. "He is an honorable man. I've never seen John Tower break a promise."

But would Tower's pledge change any votes?

"It may be it won't affect any," said Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss. "It may be it will affect one. It may be that one will be the difference."

The Democratic-controlled Senate Armed Services Committee voted 11-9 along party lines last Thursday to recommend the full Senate reject the nomination.

Democrats hold a 55-45 majority in the Senate. Tower must pick up at least five Democrats and hold all Republicans to assure confirmation.

A 50-50 split would mean Vice President Dan Quayle would break the tie and make Tower secretary of defense by a single vote.

Chicago goes to polls for mayor

By The Associated Press

Mayor Eugene Sawyer, lacking the monolithic support among fellow blacks that twice put Harold Washington in City Hall, bet his future on blacks voting in today's mayoral primary against front-runner Richard M. Daley.

"We must win this race," Sawyer told a crowd of blacks Monday night at his last campaign stop - a South Side church with Jesse Jackson.

"I've got to do it for Harold."

Daley, son of the quintessential political boss who ruled Chicago for more than two decades, remained confident in his quest for the Democratic nomination even though the most recent poll showed his lead reduced from 10 points to 7.

"From every community," Daley said in front of a Polish-American women's group, "you see some of the wealthiest people and some of the poorest people. You see them all reaching out to you."

Sawyer and Daley, the Cook County prosecutor, are the top candidates in a four-way race. The winner advances to the April 4 general election, which was forced by the death 15 months ago of Washington, Chicago's first black mayor.

Polls have indicated that Sawyer would get most of the black vote and Daley most of the white and Hispanic vote.

"I think the mayor's message has gotten through," said Sawyer's campaign spokesman, Larry Horist. "The black community has pretty much decided it's not right to abstain from voting, and they will turn out."

Blacks and whites each comprise about 40 percent of the city's population and Hispanics nearly 20 percent.

The nominee will face the winner of the Republican primary, whites Herbert Sohn or write-in candidate Edward Vrdolyak, and third-party candidate Timothy Evans, who is black, in April.

The winner of the general election will serve the final two years of Washington's four-year term.

The Chicago Board of Election Commissioners predicted 68 percent of the city's 1.55 million voters would vote today.

The Chicago campaign has been mostly devoid of the racial polarization that marred many previous campaigns. Yet Sawyer knows he must get some support from Evans' backers in order to block Daley and keep the seat he won during a raucous City Council meeting in December 1987, one week after Washington's death.

Among Republicans - who haven't had a mayor since William Hale "Big Bill" Thompson ran City Hall and "Scarface" Al Capone ruled the streets - the wild card was Vrdolyak and his bid to win the GOP primary through write-ins.

But Sohn, a doctor and the party's endorsed candidate, insisted he would beat Vrdolyak, former alderman and ex-chairman of the local Democratic party.

Vrdolyak's entrance into the race was seen by some as a threat to Daley. "What we don't know is the effect of Vrdolyak's personal campaigning in the last few days," said William Aukstik, a Daley worker who was promoting his candidate in Vrdolyak's home ward.

much in five years."

Waukesha-Pearce and Peek Industrial also did not meet four of the specifications.

The county commissioners also decided to pursue getting a security clearance from the Department of Public Safety concerning a teletype system which the sheriff's office is required to have by December.

Telets, the teletype system which would cost the county $5,000 or $5,796 depending on the style of system, would allow the sheriff's office to communicate with the DPS and possibly computerize the entire jail.

The commissioners said they wanted the security clearance so the county could attach the Telets system to the county's main computer, allowing other county offices to have access to part of the sheriff's office's system.

Instead of buying the system, the county could lease the system for $249 a month for five years, or a total of $14,940.

The Texas Department of Health is needing more space and wants the county commission to find it, said County Judge Tom Simons.

The TDH is working out of an 800 square-foot room at LaPlata Agency, 506 S. 25 Mile Ave.

"They also want to find another nurse and nurse's aide with us providing more building space - about 2,000 square feet," said Simons. "We guesstimated that it will cost the county about $1,000 a month with utilities."

Commissioner Johnny Latham said he wanted to find out exactly what the county's responsibilities are before pledging money for new space.

The commissioners also:

- Advised for bids for law enforcement insurance;
- Tabled approval of constructing a railroad crossing signal southwest of Hereford, east of Summerfield, because the commissioners said a crossing is needed at a railroad crossing at Dawn instead.

The county will have to pay $4,500 for the crossing, and the state will pay for the rest;

- Amended the Deaf Smith County Social Service Guidelines to state that before the county will pay a utility bill for applicants, the utility must be under the applicant's name.

This was installed because people not living at the households would request the county pay a utility bill. The county could not keep track of how many bills it was paying to applicants in this manner.

Lottery bill passes test

AUSTIN (AP) - The fears of people who oppose creating a Texas lottery are "not based on reality," says the sponsor of a proposed constitutional amendment for a lottery that was approved by a Senate committee.

"I think most people who oppose lottery just oppose gambling to begin with. They think it's sinful or immoral," Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, said Monday.

"Twenty-nine other states have adopted a lottery. There's never been a major scandal. There's never been any showing that lotteries don't work, that is that they don't generate revenues for the state," Uribe said. "I think the fears are unfounded. The fears are real, but they're not based on reality."

The Senate State Affairs Committee approved by a 9-4 vote the proposed constitutional amendment to create a Texas lottery, sending it to the full Senate. Uribe said a lottery could be raising an estimated $600 million annually for the state in five years if approved by lawmakers and voters.

Sen. Gene Green, D-Houston, voted against the proposal.

"I've always been against lottery," Green said. "My basic feeling is that the state, if we need funds for state programs and people aren't willing to pay taxes for them, then we're going to, by sleight of the hand, take their money from them ... I don't think that's being honest with our citizens."

The committee did not take up a companion bill that details how the game would work. That bill, which was changed before endorsement by a subcommittee earlier Monday, contains a "technical glitch" that must be corrected, said Uribe.

Sen. John Montford, a Lubbock Democrat who heads the committee, said he expects the panel to take up that measure Monday.

The subcommittee put stiffer penalties in the bill. Under the substitute, the penalty for forgery and fraud would be increased from a class A misdemeanor to a third-degree felony.

The penalty for selling tickets at a price higher than that fixed by the state commission, and for selling tickets to people under 18, was increased from a class B misdemeanor in the previous bill to a class A misdemeanor in the substitute. A second offense would be a third-degree felony.

The substitute measure also would not include the comptroller as a member of the State Lottery Commission, as the original measure did. The commission would include the director of the Department of Public Safety, Eloy Fuentes, was also charged with capital murder for Youngblood's death Feb. 17.

According to Fuentes' statement, both he and Montoya beat Youngblood as the three were traveling to Colorado.

Fuentes said in his statement that the two beat Youngblood for his money, netting $30 to $40, and threw him on the dirt road where an autopsy revealed that Youngblood died of a heart attack and sub-zero temperatures.

This small Greek "Elite Cafe", noted for its wonderful pastries, located in the village of Voula, becomes the scene of a violent and seemingly random massacre. Among the eleven dead and eighteen wounded are the members of the Vassos Family. Police officer Andreas Vassos had taken his wife, Soula and son Stephanos on a holiday to the beach, just a short distance from the cafe. Now Andreas is listed among the wounded, but his wife and son were not so lucky. Passports were found identifying the two killers as Frank Simmons and George Cutler, both U.S. citizens from New York City. Four Thousand U.S. dollars and photographs of the two Greek policemen, also among those killed, were found in the auto used by the murders. It soon becomes evident that the answer to the killings will only be found in New York and who should go, but Major Andreas Vassos. The trail leads to ancient manuscripts, the world of multimillionaire collectors and traffickers in stolen artifacts. This compelling, high speed narrative, Black Sand by Williams J. Caunitz will hold the readers attention from Beginning to end.

All I Really Need To Know I Learned in Kindergarten began as a statement of belief Robert Fulghum wanted to share with his congregation as a Unitarian Minister. Senator Dan Evans impressed and touched by the speech, requested a copy and took it back to Washington D.C. Resulting in it being read into the Congressional Record. The speech eventually made its way into the Kansas City Times, and portions appeared in Deaf Abby and Reader's Digest as well as being presented by Paul Harvey and Larry King. Among the things learned in Kindergarten are: "Share everything; play fair; don't hit people; put things back where you found them; clean up your mess; don't take things that aren't yours; say you are sorry when you hurt someone; wash your hands before you eat; flush; warm cookies and cold milk are good for you; Live a balanced life; learn some; think some, draw, paint, sing, dance, play and work some every day; take a nap every afternoon; when going out into the world watch out for traffic, hold hands and stick together; be aware of wonder. Remember the little seed in the Styrofoam cup; the roots go down and the plant goes up and nobody really knows how or why, but we all like that. Gold fish and hamsters and white mice and even the little seed in the styrofoam--they all die. So do we. And then remember the Dick and Jane books and the first word you learned--the biggest word of all--LOOK." After reading this book you come away feeling wiser, gentler and with a better attitude toward yourself and others. This is one I recommend highly!

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. What causes bread to crumble?
 E.A. Monessen, PA

A. Underkneading, insufficient rising time or excess flour can cause crumbly bread. Excess flour may be the most common reason. And during baking, the loaf dries further. For best results, add as little flour as possible during kneading so that dough is smooth and blistered.

Lavon and Speedy Nieman are proud to report:
 It's a granddaughter!

Golf teams in middle of tourney pack

The Hereford boys' and girls' golf team competed Friday and Saturday at the Fort Stockton High School Invitational tournament, and finished in the middle of the pack in each division.

The boys' team placed ninth in a field of 17 teams with a team score of 361 on Friday and 341 on Saturday for a 704 total. Big Spring won the tournament with a team score of 630.

Individual scores for Hereford players included Scott Simons, 88-82-170; Jason Walterscheid, 92-85-177; Todd Schroeder, 90-84-179; Max Mungia, 91-88-179; and Robert Jones, 98-88-186.

The girls' team was eighth in the 13-team field, with a score of 422-397-819. Andrews won the girls' division with a 673, 58 strokes better than second place Snyder.

Hereford's individual scores included Naomi Grijalva, 91-87-178; Melissa Grijalva, 98-94-192; Lori Lacey, 121-101-222; and Krystal Sims, 112-115-227.

"We played pretty well, especially when you consider most of the teams have already played one tournament and had more practice time," said golf coach Stacy Bixler.

The Hereford teams will play this weekend in the Andrews Tournament.

Hall of Fame jockey, Laffit Pincay, Jr., says Affirmed is the best horse he has ever ridden.

I tried to tell them that this crisis will pass, that you have to keep moving forward."

Landry's farewell speech preceded a mini-camp for the players Monday.

About an hour after his 9 a.m. talk with the players, Landry reappeared and walked around the team's weight cage as the players took strength tests. Landry reminded them to stay in shape.

He gave some television interviews at noon, then met with his coaching staff. Shortly after 2 p.m., Landry embraced his longtime personal secretary, Barbara Goodman, and said it was time to leave.

Landry stepped into his black Cadillac and drove away from Valley Ranch, the Cowboys' headquarters about 25 miles northwest of Dallas, as employees peered out of glass windows.

"He told us that we'll forget about him in two weeks," Walls said. "No way. Anytime anyone walks into Texas Stadium, we'll be looking for Tom Landry. And in a way, he will always be there. It's the end of an era, but we'll remember him for the rest of our lives."

Weekend tee times needed at Pitman

Golfers planning to play on the weekend at Pitman Municipal Golf Course in Hereford will need to make tee times in advance, beginning this weekend.

Golfers should reserve tee times by Thursday to play on either Saturday or Sunday.

Golfers may continue to play six to a group through April 1, when groups will be limited to five players.

Tee times may be reserved by calling the pro shop at 364-2782.

Landry bids farewell to team

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Tom Landry carried several pages of notes with him as he walked into a lecture hall to deliver a farewell message to his Dallas Cowboys football players.

But as the 64-year-old Landry began to speak, the players somehow sensed that the coach - known over his 29 years as the team's coach for not showing his emotions - would be unable to hide them this time.

Landry, who was fired and replaced with University of Miami coach Jimmy Johnson when the club was sold Saturday to Arkansas oilman Jerry Jones, broke down about five minutes into the private meeting with his players Monday morning.

Defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones and defensive tackle Randy White, who each played 14 seasons for the Cowboys, didn't attend the meeting.

"After all they had been through with the man, I don't know if they could deal with it," linebacker Eugene Lockhart said.

Landry thanked his players for their loyalty and asked them to give their best for Johnson, who Landry said was a proven winner and deserved their maximum effort.

"He said the best thing we could do for him was work hard and turn the Cowboys around," defensive end Jim Jeffcoat said.

All the while, his voice was trembling. Landry had to stop and restart several times.

"It was the most emotional I've been as a pro," linebacker Jeff Rohrer said. "It was history in the making. It was a great honor and privilege to be in that room."

Next, linebacker Garry Cobb said, "Coach Landry looked at us and said, 'The thing I'm going to miss the most is being around the coaches and you players.' That did it. He couldn't hold it any longer. He broke down and cried like a baby. He tried to avoid it, because that's the way Tom is, but the tears flowed everywhere."

Rohrer said: "Tom wasn't the only one in the room who broke down. It was tough, he was saying goodbye to 29 years."

Momentarily, Landry collected himself and delivered his final words to his players. By now, he no longer was using his notes.

"He was speaking from the heart," linebacker Steve DeOssie said.

"There wasn't a dry eye in the room," linebacker Eugene Lockhart said. "Coach told us he loves us all and although he couldn't be with us in person from now on he would be with us in spirit."

Quarterback Danny White said he had never seen his coach so emotional. "I felt for him," White said.

Cornerback Everson Walls, who in the past was often outspoken in his criticism of the way Landry ran the Cowboys, was a strong admirer on Monday.

"I almost wished that I had brought a video camera to tape this. It was a special moment, something none of us will ever forget and will want to preserve," Walls said.

Landry appeared tall and proud as he entered the room for his farewell address, still an image of strength despite what he had been through over the previous several days, Walls said.

"Nothing would take him down. Tom Landry is a statue, a monument," Walls said.

Later, a red-eyed Landry talked to reporters.

"It was one of the most difficult things I've had to do. It was hard saying goodbye to the players. It was hard to keep your emotions under

We will win, we must win, winning is what it's all about.

"We are in a new day and we're going to make it a new day and we're going to win."

Jones said he felt inadequate when he and Cowboys president Tex Schramm met with Landry in Austin on Saturday, before the sale was announced.

"I was so sensitive to his feelings, I was so sensitive to the speculation," Jones said. "It did mean everything to me for Coach Landry to hear what I had to say in the manner I had to say it as quickly as possible, and that was done. We made every effort in the world."

Landry told The Associated Press Sunday, "No one had to tell me. I would have had to be pretty stupid not to know when they got on the airplane to come see me. They could have saved the trip because all they did was tell me I was fired."

"I resent the way that it was handled, too," Jones said Monday, but added, "I couldn't have done it any better."

The new owner wanted to look to the future.

"The Cowboys are my queen now, along with everybody else's queen," he said, adding that he was relieved the transaction was complete. "I was ready for my queen to quit dancing with everybody. When you get married, you want her to quit dating as quick as you can, and that's what we did."

Jones said he and Johnson have discussed dreams of running a professional team for years.

"We talked seriously about it Friday night," Jones said. "I think everybody down there knew there would be a coaching change if I bought the team." He said it was "not like I slipped in here with a dagger overnight."

Jones said Johnson will not own part of the team. He credited Johnson with having brains, and himself with lots of luck.

"Someone upstairs has given me my time," Jones said. "They've pitched the ball to me and I'm ready to run with it."

He declined again to reveal the price for the team, and said seller H.R. "Bum" Bright agreed with that position. The pricetag has been reported at around $140 million.

In response to a question, Jones said he might consider naming Texas Stadium after Landry. "I think enough of him to do it," Jones said, but added that the idea hadn't occurred to him until a reporter mentioned it.

New Dallas owner regrets way Coach Landry was dismissed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - Arkansas oilman Jerry Jones said his ownership means a new day of winning ways for the Dallas Cowboys. But Jones expressed regrets about his handling of Coach Tom Landry's dismissal.

During a news conference Monday, Jones deferred questions about staff changes to Landry's replacement, Jimmy Johnson, who scheduled a news conference today at the Cowboys' Valley Ranch headquarters.

Jones said he was sensitive to Landry's feelings about being sacked after 29 years as the team's only head coach. But Jones said he never considered having a Cowboys coach other than Johnson, his college roommate at Arkansas and teammate on the undefeated 1964 Razorback football team.

"My business background is such that I'm not afraid of something new. What is important to me, though, because I'm going to be in that dark hole, I want somebody familiar standing there with me helping walk down that ol' black tunnel," Jones said.

"I wanted him bumping around as we walked down that darkness down there, trying to build our football team.

Giamatti won't step in to prevent baseball strike

NEW YORK (AP) - A. Bartlett Giamatti says he will not step in to prevent a possible baseball strike in 1990 unless owners and players ask him.

"That's not the commissioner's role," he said Monday, just more than a month before he takes that job.

"I'm not going to do anything to stop a baseball strike if both sides are intent on having a strike," he said. "If both sides want to come to me and want me to adjudicate, then I'll perform that function brilliantly."

While president of Yale University, Giamatti saw labor and management fight during a bitter strike by clerical workers.

"I learned that if people really want to have a strike, there's not much you can do to stop them," he said. "But I've also learned that both sides usually don't come out as happy as when they went in."

Giamatti doesn't see that it's inevitable that there will be a strike, he said. "I would think it's possible to avoid one. Is it probable? That's up in the air."

Giamatti, who replaces Peter Ueberroth on March 31 and begins a five-year term, brings a much different background than his predecessors.

Warriors win 11th in a row; three Texas teams are beaten

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

The Golden State Warriors are doing on the West Coast what the New York Knicks are doing in the East.

While the Knicks are grabbing headlines with their 3-point shooting and a 21-game winning streak at Madison Square Garden, the Warriors won their 11th consecutive game at home Monday night, 141-132 over Denver, by hitting 7-for-13 from 3-point range, including two by 7-foot-7 Manute Bol.

The Warriors led by 23 points with 23 seconds left in the third quarter, but Denver closed the gap to 129-128 on a pair of free throws by Dan Schayes with 3:06 remaining.

The Nuggets were still close, trailing only 133-130 with 2:02 left before Rod Higgins hit two 3-pointers to seal the outcome and snap Denver's four-game winning streak, all at home.

In other NBA games, it was Utah 109, New Jersey 96; Atlanta 105, Dallas 83; Milwaukee 105, San Antonio 96; Washington 104, Houston 98; and Seattle 116, Sacramento 107. Hawks 105, Mavericks 83

Atlanta won for the seventh time in eight outings as Moses Malone scored eight of his 18 points and Dominique Wilkins six of his 20 during a decisive 23-11 run in the second quarter.

Rolando Blackman led Dallas with 22 points.

Bucks 105, Spurs 96

Milwaukee handed San Antonio a club-record 11th consecutive loss with the help of two 10-0 runs in the fourth quarter.

The Spurs trailed 70-46 with 9:44 to go in the third quarter, but outscored the Bucks 34-10 to tie the game at 80-80 with 9:53 remaining.

Milwaukee then scored 10 straight points - eight on free throws - to take a 90-80 lead with 7:09 remaining. The Spurs rallied again with seven straight points to get within three before the Bucks scored 10 consecutive points for the second time.

Terry Cummings led the Bucks with 19 points and Ricky Pierce had 11 of his 18 in the fourth quarter. Frank Brickowski had 22 points for San Antonio.

Bullets 104, Rockets 98

Washington won for only the sixth time in 28 road games as Bernard King scored 34 points against Houston, which lost its fifth straight.

Rookie Ledell Eackles added 25 points for the Bullets in relief of injured starter Jeff Malone.

Houston lost despite 27 points and 18 rebounds from Akeem Olajuwon.

Bridget Baker and Wendy Connally placed second in girls "A" doubles to pace the Hereford High School tennis team at the West Texas High School Tennis Championships last Friday and Saturday at San Angelo.

Georgetown, Michigan win

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) - Rarely has Georgetown coach John Thompson gotten so much satisfaction from a victory that meant so little.

Charles Smith scored 10 of his 24 points in a decisive second-half run that lifted Georgetown to a 76-62 Big East victory Monday night over Villanova.

Since the Hoyas have already clinched the conference regular season title, the game was virtually meaningless to them. Still, Thompson savored it because Georgetown fell behind by nine points in the second half before rallying to win.

In the only other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 10 Michigan 79, Michigan State 52, and No. 18 Nevada-Las Vegas 84, UC Santa Barbara 75.

The Hoyas, 23-3 and 13-2, have now won five in a row overall and 20 straight at home.

Villanova, which lost its third consecutive game, got 16 points from Gary Massey and 15 from Rodney Taylor.

No. 10 Michigan 79, Michigan St. 52

An 18-0 run that spanned the latter part of the first half and the early portion of the second was decisive for the Wolverines, 22-6 overall and 10-5 in the Big Ten. Glen Rice, the top scorer in the conference at 26.1 per game, was held to nine points.

No. 18 Nev.-Las Vegas 84, UC Santa Barbara 75

David Butler scored 25 points as Nevada-Las Vegas clinched its seventh straight Big West Conference championship.

The Rebels, bouncing back from a last-second 88-87 loss Saturday at Louisiana State, improved their Big West record to 14-2. They are 21-7 overall.

Ask Dr. Lamb

BY LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I had a biopsy on my right temple two years ago. The doctor told me I had temporal arteritis. At that time my sedimentation rate was 126. He told me that I could have a stroke or go blind, so they put me on a high dose of prednisone — 80 mg a day.

I go every week for a sedimentation rate test and am still on the prednisone. I have had many bad side effects from the prednisone, but the doctor thinks I need to stay on it. As of now, I am taking 7 mg a day, but my sedimentation rate keeps going up and down — 38, 50 or 49. I would like THE HEALTH LETTER on this. I am 76 years old and still keep active.

DEAR READER: I would say you were very fortunate to have had an early diagnosis and appropriate treatment. These days, the condition is called giant-cell arteritis. It is an inflammation of arteries and the inflammation often involves the temporal artery. That produces a severe headache. The diagnosis is established by removing a segment of the artery and examining it with a microscope. The same inflammation may involve an artery to the eye and cause permanent blindness in that eye. That is why early diagnosis and large doses of prednisone are so important.

It is closely related to polymyalgia rheumatica. This causes muscle pain and stiffness, usually involving the shoulder muscles on both sides or the pelvic area. The main laboratory test that helps identify both conditions is a significant elevation of the sedimentation rate. This test measures how fast the red blood cells settle in a tube of blood. Yours was very high. And if the symptoms of muscle soreness and stiffness are then relieved suddenly after taking prednisone, the diagnosis of polymyalgia rheumatica is rather certain.

After the initial treatment to control giant-cell arteritis, the fluctuations in the sedimentation rate are not so important and the treatment or use of prednisone depends on how you are getting along otherwise.

I'm sending you my discussion of these two conditions, Muscles, Arteries, Blindness and Death, per your request. Others who want this issue can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/28-03, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Don't let that title scare you. But the inflammation of the arteries can involve arteries to the brain and result in a stroke. Since you have been treated and are under good management, that would be unlikely in your case.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am confused about blood types. Does the child always have the same blood type as the father? Is it possible that the child ever carries the mother's blood type? If a father has A positive blood, can his child have O positive blood or does this mean the child with O positive blood cannot be the child of a man with A positive blood? Someone told me that the child only carries the father's blood type.

DEAR READER: Someone told you wrong. A child's blood type is dependent upon both the mother and father's blood type. Each parent has two genes for blood type and only one of those genes can be transmitted to the child.

If the man's two blood type genes are A and O (no type), he will have type A blood, but his one gene for type A blood may not be transmitted and the child will get his gene that results in O type blood.

Myths dispelled about chocolate

Chocolate lovers, take heart! A recent study published in the Journal of Nutrition indicates that cocoa butter, the main source of fat in chocolate, may be less absorbed by the body than other saturated fats—and even less than corn oil, an unsaturated fat.

This means that, when eating a chocolate bar, the amount of calories consumed may be less than the number listed on the wrapper.

The study was conducted by the Nutrition Research Department of the Hershey Corporate Technical Center, under the direction of Dr. Stanley M. Tarka, Jr., director of food science and nutrition. In the study, laboratory rats which were fed cocoa butter excreted more fat than rats fed corn oil.

In addition, fat stores from the cocoa butter fed rats contained a higher percentage of unsaturated fat, indicating that only a small amount of cocoa butter is stored in the body, with less potential to raise blood cholesterol levels.

Preliminary work conducted with humans at Pennsylvania State University supports the results of this study. Additional studies are underway to explain why cocoa butter has a neutral effect on blood cholesterol and will explore whether it has a cholesterol lowering effect.

What does chocolate have in common with coffee, cola, and tea? If your guess is high levels of caffeine, you're wrong.

Contrary to popular belief, chocolate actually contains very little caffeine. Caffeine occurs naturally in the cocoa bean, but in very low amounts.

One ounce of milk chocolate, for example, contains just six milligrams of caffeine; in fact, you would have to eat 50 one-ounce milk chocolate to reach the lowest level of caffeine response.

Foods and their caffeine count, as established by The Food Additive Chemistry Evaluation Branch of the Food and Drug Administration, follow:

*Coffee (5 oz. cup), brewed, drip method yields 115 milligrams of caffeine. If brewed via a percolator, that cup has 80 mg, and instant coffee has 65 mg.

*Tea (5 oz. cup), brewed, major U.S. brands, has 40 mg. of caffeine while brewed, imported brands contain 60 mg. Instant tea has 30 mg.

*Soft drinks (12 oz. serving): Coca Cola, 46 mg.; Diet Pepsi, 36 mg.; Mountain Dew, 54 mg.

*Chocolate (various forms): 5 oz. cup of cocoa beverage, 4 mg.; 8 oz. glass of chocolate milk beverage, 5 mg.; 1 oz. milk chocolate, 6 mg.

MANAUS, Brazil (AP) - The Amazon River, which flows 4,000 miles from the Andes to the Atlantic, is the world's second largest. But it carries more water than any other river - more than the Nile, Mississippi and Yangtze combined.

The Amazon is wide and deep. It ranges from 1 1/2 to 6 miles wide in its course, and broadens to about 90 miles at its mouth. The river averages 40 feet in depth and is 300 feet deep in parts.

Marine life in the Amazon includes the notorious piranha fish.

The Amazon basin, covering about 2.4 million square miles, contains the world's largest tropical rain forest, which is about two-thirds the area of the United States.

The American Kitchen

Beef is an American favorite

Beef has always been an all-American favorite. It's great tasting and provides essential nutrients. In addition, today's cattle have about six percent less fat than in the past, making beef even healthier for you and your family.

Another reason for beef's nationwide appeal is the wide variety of ways in which it can be prepared. From Buffalo to Los Angeles, and Chicago to Dallas, local ingredients are used with beef to create distinctive regional dishes.

Recipes identified with one area often become so popular that they cross its bounds to be enjoyed in other sections of the country.

One example of a regional favorite turned all-American favorite is Beef Enchiladas. This tasty southwestern dish is ideal for a family dinner or for company. And it's so much fun to make, the kids or your guests may even want to pitch in and help.

Gum disease threat to dental health

RESEARCH TO SAVE YOUR GUMS

Unlike wrinkles, another adulthood phenomenon--gum disease--is largely preventable. Meticulous attention to oral hygiene and semi-annual professional cleanings and examinations can help adults ward off this serious dental health threat.

Despite its preventability, however, gum disease remains one of the most widespread of adulthood diseases. According to the South Plains District Dental Society, it afflicts three out of four adults over the age of 35.

Dental scientists, fully aware of gum disease's omnipresence, have focused much attention on finding new ways to combat periodontal disease, the number-one cause of tooth loss in adults.

Gum disease is a bacterial infection caused by plaque, a sticky substance constantly forming in the mouth. Gum disease gradually destroys the tissues and bones that support the teeth. The almost-inevitable result is tooth loss. New insights into the nature and behavior of this bacterial infection may lead to some solutions.

For example, researchers have determined that gum disease is really several different diseases, each caused by different bacteria. Identifying those bacteria will improve diagnosis and treatment.

Other research implicates as many as 10 different types of bacteria in gum disease. The bacteria, the theory speculates, behave somewhat like dominoes in that the presence of one type of bacterium paves the way for the next. The longer plaque is left in the mouth, the more types of bacteria emerge. The theory also suggests that disease-related bacteria can be passed person-to-person through oral contact. One day, dentists treating a patient's gum disease may also treat the patient's spouse in order to stop the repeated passing back and forth of harmful bacteria.

Though dentists stress gum disease prevention, surgery has been the traditional mode of treatment for advanced cases. Scientists are now exploring non-surgical treatments as alternatives to this drastic measure. One treatment under scrutiny involves the temporary insertion of small, porous plastic strips containing an antiseptic or an antibiotic drug directly into diseased gum sites to reduce disease-causing bacteria.

Scientists have also zeroed in on finding ways to stop plaque before it damages gum tissue and bone. Mouthwashes now under development may one day be used along with basic brushing and flossing to inhibit plaque buildup. Potential plaque-fighters include sanguinaria, an extract of the bloodroot plant, and chlorhexidine.

As research provides more clues to the many mysteries remaining about gum disease, dentists will move closer to eradicating it.

Stir-fry tips given

Why stir-fry? Because stir-frying is a fast cooking method that uses little fat and lets you create almost endless fresh-tasting combinations. These tips will make stir-frying even easier.

MEATS

— Choose boneless cuts such as beef top round steak.

— When a stir-fry recipe calls for boneless pork, your best choice is boneless pork sirloin roast. It's a lean cut that's less expensive than pork tenderloin. Second choice? Boneless pork shoulder roast. Select as lean a piece as possible and trim excess fat as you cut it up.

— Beef, pork and lamb slice more easily when partially frozen. Freeze meat just until firm (about 30 minutes) when you plan to slice it into bite-size pieces. For thin slicing, freeze the meat until partially frozen (45 to 60 minutes). If your meat is already frozen, let it thaw to the desired stage. Chicken and turkey, link sausage, and fish slice easily without freezing.

— Yes, you can stir-fry fish. Firm fish, such as salmon, tuna, sea bass, cusk, monkfish and swordfish, withstand the jostling of a stir-fry without breaking up.

TIME-SAVING

— Up to 24 hours before mealtime, slice the meat and vegetables. Also, combine sauce ingredients. Refrigerate each ingredient in a separate, airtight container. Pour the sauce mixture in a screw-top jar so you can shake it before using.

SERVE WITH

— What goes under a stir-fry? Hot cooked rice, couscous or pasta; cooked vegetables; fried wonton strips; toast points; chow mein noodles; tortilla chips.

— If your stir-fry has plenty of sauce, serve it over the base. Serve a less saucy stir-fry alongside the base.

VEGETABLES

— Let someone else do the chopping for your stir-fry. You can buy cut-up vegetables at your supermarket's salad bar.

— To thaw frozen vegetables in a flash, place them in a colander. Run cold water over the vegetables until they thaw. Drain well before stir-frying to avoid splattering fat.

LOW-FAT STIR-FRYING

— To save fat and calories, spray your cool wok or skillet with non-stick spray coating before heating. As you stir-fry, add cooking oil sparingly. Never spray coating on a hot surface—it is flammable.

WHAT WOK?

— The classic round-bottomed wok needs a ring stand for support. Use it on a gas range with the wide side of the ring down. On an electric range, use the ring stand with the wide side up. Or buy a flat-bottomed wok that sits directly on the heating unit.

— Electric woks are portable so you can cook tableside.

— You can use a 10-inch skillet for stir-frying. For more than 4 cups of ingredients, you'll need a 12-inch skillet.

HIGH FLIER

GRAND SALINE, Texas (AP) - Wiley Post, a pioneer American pilot who was the first man to fly solo around the world, was born near here in 1899.

In 1924, he lost an eye in an oilfield accident and used the compensation money to buy his first airplane.

In 1931 and 1933, Post set two around-the-world speed records in a Lockheed Vega named Winnie Mae. He also was among the first to experiment with high altitude flight.

In 1934, he used the first pressurized flying suit to reach a height of 50,000 feet.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Something is haywire in our school system. I type resumes and term papers and am appalled at what goes through my hands.

Seventy percent of the students can't spell. They can't write, and they have no idea what punctuation marks are supposed to do.

I am not blaming the students. I simply cannot understand why they were promoted when they have failed to master the fundamentals.

The students I am referring to are in high school and college. I wasn't able to get a college education, but I thank God for that hard-boiled teacher in our one-room country school who refused to give an A, no matter how correct the information, if the paper was messy or contained misspelled words or improper punctuation.

I have had college seniors come in to have their theses typed and offer to pay extra if I will correct "all the mistakes." Some of the papers look as if they were done by sixth graders.

Parents should keep an eye on their children's work from first grade on. If the children keep repeating the same mistakes, the parents should take a good look at the teacher. I speak from experience. I insisted that one of my sons remain in third grade until he could master the basics. His teacher said she hated to embarrass him by holding him back. I told her he'd be a lot more embarrassed in later years if he didn't know how to speak and write properly.

Please, Ann, urge parents to become involved. If they want their children to do well in school, they have to show their care.--Madison, Wis.

DEAR WIS.: Thanks for hitting on a point that is too often overlooked.

The teachers can't do it all. And, as you pointed out, not all teachers are terrific.

If we value our children, we must put our money where our mouth is. We need to put more dollars into education. If we want top-notch teachers, we should pay them what they are worth. We need better facilities, smaller classes and parental participation. The world is becoming increasingly competitive and our position as a leader hangs in the balance. Our children will make the difference.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you will print one more letter on "call waiting." I'd love to toss in my nickel's worth.

The basic concept of "call waiting" is to put the existing caller on hold in order to take what may be a more urgent call. I acknowledge the legitimacy of this intrusion for physicians and emergency-type businesses, but it is irritating to hear that click-click in the middle of a social conversation. Anyone who is honest will admit to feeling slightly deflated when put on hold.

Recently I asked a friend who was expecting "an important call," "What do you do when you are talking on the 'important call' and another call comes through?" She hemmed and hawed, looked embarrassed and was unable to answer.

Someone should invent a phone that flashes a light when another call rings in so the conversation could come to a gracious end. Do you agree?—Culver City, Calif.

DEAR CALIF.: I do, indeed. The flashing light instead of the click-click would be applauded by millions. The phone company that develops this feature could hit the jackpot.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell your female readers not to put their underwear in the microwave to kill the bacteria that causes yeast infections. A Utah woman scorched her walls and ruined her microwave when her undies burst into flames. No charge for this, Ann. Love your column.--Appleton, Wis.

DEAR APPLETON: Underwear in the microwave? Holy smoke! What next? Thanks for the warning.

How much do you know about pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? Think you can handle them? For up-to-the minute information on drugs, write for Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Cut beef fat but keep great flavor

Since February has been designated as both National Meat Month and National Heart Month, this is a good time to evaluate family meat preferences and preparations, said a nutrition expert.

Dr. Mary Kinney Sweeten said trimming fat from meat before cooking reduces calories and cholesterol but does not alter tenderness, juiciness and flavor.

"Researchers at Texas A&M University found that meat with the fat trimmed after broiling retained 19 percent more fat than meat trimmed before broiling," said Sweeten, a registered dietitian and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

A study by professional tasters compared matched pairs of choice-grade beef cuts, half with the fat trimmed before cooking and half with the fat trimmed afterwards. Meats trimmed before cooking retained their flavor, tenderness and juiciness without the extra fat, she said.

"Good flavor with less fat is not the only advantages of trimming before you cook," the dietitian said. "Pre-trimming eliminates the need to remove the fat from juices to be used in sauces."

The lean beef campaign is putting more fat-free meat in retail cases, she said. Selecting well-trimmed meats or trimming the fat at home before you cook is a good way to have your meat and less fat, too.

Smithee supports merger

State Representative John Smithee, (R-Amarillo), said Friday that he fully supports Senator Teel Bivins' resolution mandating a study of the merger between West Texas State University and one of the university systems.

Smithee was also pleased by the action of the WTSU board of regents in deciding to study the merits of the merger. Representing District 86, which includes Randall and Deaf Smith Counties, Smithee noted that he feels strongly that the move could be beneficial to the Panhandle area and could result in attracting new jobs and industry to the area.
