Fisher urges support

Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher today urged support for "Wheels Across America" when it rolls into Hereford on Thursday morning at about 10:45 a.m.

Fisher, County Judge Tom Simons, the Hereford Hustlers and others will be on hand on the courthouse square to officially welcome Bill Duff to Hereford. In case of inclement weather, the reception will be at the Hereford State Bank.

"The project not only shows that the disabled are not limit in what they can accomplish if given the chance, it also draws attention to a very important program: The Miami Project to Cure paralysis. Mr. Duff and those involved in Wheels Across America should be commended for their effort to raise money and public awareness for disabled persons and the project.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Most of notes other attractions in Germany, Sen. Daniel Inouye's colleagues on a Italy, Egypt, Spain, Israel and Turkey. Senate panel have spurned his invitation to join him on a six-nation tour, despite his promise that the taxpayer-paid trip will mix pleasure with business.

Inouye, D-Hawaii, the new chairman of the Senate Appropriations defense subcommittee, has invited 17 panel members to accompany him to the Middle East and Europe for an "on-the-scene evaluation of the changes which are occurring in several areas of significance to our nation's defense requirements."

Investors ripped off; feds probe alleged fraud

Several Hereford residents have been contacted by the fraudulent currency investment program which allegedly took $150 million from investors in 10 states

DALLAS (AP) - Federal investigators say a currency investment program under criminal investigation in Dallas may have taken $150 million from investors in 10 states.

Investigators said Tuesday the investment plan, operated from last July to Feb. 15 by WWG Investments Inc., a brokerage firm in the suburban Las Colinas development, is the target of state securities investigations or criminal inquiries in Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

The program was banned Feb. 15 by the Kansas securities commissioner after an investigation produced evidence that more than 100 Kansas residents had been recruited for it by a Fort Worth marketing firm.

Principals in that firm, H&O Marketing, filed suit in a Tarrant County court Friday seeking more than $17 million, representing about $4 million in investor funds and $13 million in interest owed, from two principals in WWG Investments. Johnson was indicted Friday and Gray was indicted Feb. 16 by a Dallas County grand jury on charges of failure to register the investment program with the statesecurities commission. Federal investigators seized more than $820,000 in cash during a search of Gray's home.

Investigators also said they also have uncovered evidence that Johnson moved almost $7.6 million through his Oklahoma bank accounts while the program was in operation.

Jay Oman, assistant director of the Texas Securities Commission's enforcement division in Dallas, said Texas officials are considering additional criminal charges.

"We have reports from investors that ... (Johnson and Gray) had raised over $50 million with the program, Oman said, "It may even exceed $150 million. It involves more than 10 states. To find out how far it goes, just follow I-35. It's throughout the Southeast and Southwest."

A federal affidavit unsealed on Monday in U.S. District Court in Tulsa said at least two and possibly four similar investment programs run by Johnson had been uncovered by FBI agents in San Diego and the New Mexico attorney general's office.

Secrecy issue stalls trial over a new secrecy issue, following the judge's discovery that memos the government claimed were classified had already been made public.

At a hearing Tuesday, U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said he will reconsider how he will handle classified material at North's trial.

"For 2[weeks, a jury has been ready to try this case and hasn't been able to try it," said Gesell. "Now I hear we are dealing with classified documents that can be classified ex post facto," or after the fact.

The memos written by Robert Owen, a onetime courier for North, were censored before the trial by U.S. intelligence agencies, which claimed that release could endanger national security. However, the same memos had already been turned over to a private group in a separate legal case eight months before.

Owen's lawyer, Thomas Hylden, turned over copies of the memos last June to the Christic Institute as part of a lawsuit the activist group filed alleging a criminal conspiracy to supply the Nicaraguan Contra rebels. In the memos, Owen spelled out for, his boss a wealth of detail about the private Contra supply network overseen by North.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Oliver efforts to aid the Contras when North's Iran-Contra trial is in disarray Congress had banned U.S. aid to the rebels.

The trial was halted Monday when North's lawyers wanted to use the name of a Costa Rican official, former security minister Benjamin Piza, from one of Owen's memos in crossexamining Owen. Piza's name had been censored by U.S. intelligence Owen's lawyer, Thomas Hylden, had informed independent counsel Lawrence Walsh's office on Feb. 10 that the Christic Institute already had the memos. But North's lawyers said they didn't find out about it until Monday night when they were notified by Hylden.

Prosecutors working for Walsh said inaction by the office security director and inattention on their part, rather than any intent to hide information, was the reason North's lawyers hadn't been notified.

The defense alleged prosecutorial misconduct, but Gesell said he was "not trying to look for sanctions" against anyone. However, the judge said he was concerned about "getting to the bottom of what's going on" regarding the use of classified information at the trial.

"My concern is whether this presents an example of looseness in governmental dealings with this problem of classified information,"

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Now I know why people write to you. I have a problem I can't discuss with my son or daughters or close friends, and here I am. Just like the rest of them.

My husband had a fling 45 years ago with a young woman in his office. I forgave him and he has been faithful and loving ever since. The problem is that this so-called lady tires to contact him periodically.

Bill retired from a large company 10 years ago. Two years later a letter from her (mailed from Florida) was forwarded to our home. I did not show it to him because it was near Christmas and I didn't want to spoil our family holiday.

Last year on Sweetest Day he received a card from her addressed to "Sweet William." It was sent to our home. This year she became even more brazen and telephoned him to say "Happy New Year."

My husband has serious health problems. I want to know if I should confide in someone close that my life is being shadowed by this person. It's an eerie feeling and I don't like it .--Overcast in Ohio

DEAR O.O.: You ought to confide in a therapist and find out why you are making yourself miserable over something that doesn't amount to a hill of beans.

Reception scheduled for Lees

Otis and Costaline Lee will be honored at a reception from 2-4 p.m. Sunday, March 5, at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center. The couple is celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

Friends and relatives are invited to attend the event which will be hosted by their family. The Lees have one daughter, Mrs. G.C. Merrit of Hereford.

Otis Lee and Costaline Griffee were married March 4, 1939, in Abilene. The Lees have resided in Hereford all but six years of their married life.

The honored couple requests that no gifts be brought to the reception.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) - Art Donovan, a former Baltimore Colts football player and perpetual jokester, tried a joke out on an anti-abortion crowd but no one thought it funny.

My teenage grandson is a high school wrestler. Most of his teammates hang out at his house. Jim's little stepsister, who is 8, turns on the stereo, gets up on the living room coffee table and dances to the music.

At a rather elegant party, a woman who wanted to show off her knowledge went over to Shaw and said, "Do you know that there is only one word in the English language that begins with 'su' but sounds like 'sh'? That word is sugar."

Shaw looked at her for a moment and replied, "Are you sure?"--J.B., Bloomfield, Mich.

"I think after people learn Jimmy, they'll learn to love him," Johnson said Tuesday after his son was introduced as the new Cowboys coach. "He had the same reception when he came to Miami."

Tuesday's reception was a 50-minute media grilling during which Johnson responded repeatedly to questions about his actions last week as the sale of the Cowboys from H.R. 'Bum' Bright to Jerry Jones

Johnson contacted at least two Miami Dolphins assistant coaches as early as Thursday, two days before longtime Cowboys coach Tom Landry was told he was being replaced. College key: right roomie

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Today's lesson for college football layers is to make sure you pick the ight roommate. You never know when the guy in the next bed might just become a millionaire.

If that happens, you could wind up on Easy Street. Or, at the very least, at Valley Ranch, one of North Dallas' more fashionable communities and home of a prominent pro football team's offices and training complex.

Middle guard Jimmy Johnson, No. 60 on your 1964 Arkansas program, had the great good sense to room with No. 61, guard Jerry Jones. This turned out to be a particularly fortuitous turn of events when Jones went into the oil business and came out of it with enough money to indulge the fantasy of a middle-aged, ex-football player. He bought himself the Dallas Cowboys.

How's that for indulging? Now if Jimmy Johnson had gone into insurance or some other line of work after college, the story might end there. But he became a football coach instead, and when his old roommate charge.

bought a football team, well now, what a coincidence.

That combination of circumstances led last weekend to the sudden and rather unceremonious exit after 29 years of Tom Landry as coach of the Cowboys.

Understand that Landry, the third winningest coach in NFL history, began standing on the Cowboy sidelines when Johnson and Jones were still in high school. He had become a permanent part of the Dallas landscape, earning that distinction with a career of excellence that included five trips to the Super Bowl.

Those accomplishments should have afforded Landry the right to retire gracefully. He had one year left on his contract. The team had survived with him for 29 years. One more season wouldn't have been so terrible.

Instead, the Cowboys' new proprietor allowed the coach to twist slowly in the Texas wind last weekend while rumors swirled about the impending deal and the impact it would have on him.

Jones pleaded innocent to the

"I was so sensitive to his feelings," he said. "Coach Landry saw my baby blue eyes (to get the news of his dismissal firsthand) as quickly as humanly possible under the circumstances. I was so sensitive to the speculation." So sensitive, in fact, that his old buddy, Johnson, was shopping around Miami for assistant coaches to take with him to Dallas a day before the deal was officially done.

Johnson recruited David Shula and Dave Wannstedt from the Dolphins immediately and is expected to grab a few of his old staff at the University of Miami. That means two teams besides the Cowboys have been disrupted by this bit of business. The coaching underground communicates daily and you can bet Landry, sitting in Austin, heard what was going on. Having been promised a kinder, gentler America by another prominent Texan, Landry must have wondered if that pledge included America's Team as well.

Jones, of course, had every right to bring his own man with him on this

It's his money and he intends to be a hands-on operator. "I plan to be into socks and jocks," was the way he put it. "I want somebody familiar standing there with me, helping walk down that ol' black tunnel."

Enter, good ol' No. 61.

So now the Razorback roommates, partners on an undefeated team in '64, are together again, feeling their way through the tunnel. One wonders though, if there is no light at the other end soon, whether Johnson will be around the Cowboys for as long as Landry stayed.

Barlick, known for a booming voice that projected balls-and-strikes calls loud enough to be heard on radio broadcasts, was one of the youngest umpires ever to make it to the majors when he was called up to the National League in 1940.

He was only 25 then, but earned the respect of players and managers over a career that spanned 27 full seasons and part of another. He worked seven World Series and seven All-Star games and has served as an umpire consultant for the NL since retiring
