Making EDC plans

John Perrin, chairman of the Hereford Area Economic Development Council, looks over proposals from consultants during Wednesday's EDC meeting at the Hereford City Hall.

EDC to look at near-term

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

A subcommittee of the Hereford Area Economic Development Commission will be formed to look at more immediate goals and objectives for the HAAEDC before deciding on what to do about consultant and technical support services.

The HAAEDC had been considering contracting with either the National Development Corporation or with M. Ray Perryman, a Baylor University economist who also performs economic development services.

"We need a task force to identify our specific goals for this year, define our immediate goals and objectives and priorities, and to assemble a data base, then see what kind of technical assistance we might need," said HAAEDC chairman John Perrin.

"We're still in our infancy," said HAAEDC member Tom LeGate. "We need to decide what we need and want to do."

Perrin, LeGate, Troy Don Moore, Mike Carr and Bud Eades will serve on the subcommittee.

"We need to decide what we want our program to be," Perrin said. "If all we want is prospects coming to us and us giving them site information, then we're probably in good shape. If we want to develop and build our economic development program through aggressive recruiting and seeking growth from within, then we are talking something different."

The proposals from Perryman and NDC would cost from $30,000 to $50,000 for the complete package offered. However, much of the work described by the two companies was done last year, when the Economic Development Strategy Council developed a strategic plan.

"From everything we've heard, 90 percent of our growth is going to be from within," said HAAEDC member Craig Smith. "If we are going to spend $40,000, or any dollars, I'd rather spend it here to help someone grow."

The board also discussed contacting Dr. Steve Murdock of Texas A&M University to see if he could update demographic information compiled for the EDSC's plan in 1988.

Bud Eades, the executive director for the HAAEDC, reviewed presentations made to two prospects and discussed future prospects.

LeGate and Carr also praised Eades for the work he has done in getting the HAAEDC's message to the public.

Eades has made presentations to several civic and service groups in Hereford.

"Bud spoke to the Board of Realtors luncheon last week and gave them some foundation information and explained some of what we're trying to do," LeGate said. "I think Bud will be a great salesman for the HAAEDC."

Russian happy for freedom

By ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

Taxes rise each year, 8-year-old children are well-versed with drugs and how to use them, political officials are caught with their hands in the till.

These 50 United States seem to be a quagmire of ills, but for Yuri Vetokhin, this land of decay was the Promised Land and something worth risking his life.

The 60-year-old Russian tried three times to escape the Soviet Union's restraints and was successful the third time only after 10 years in a concentration camp designed to alter his perception of the USSR.

Vetokhin is touring the country with his story and a book he wrote, "Inclined to Escape"—a narration that embodies stubbornness, sheer guts and a man's desperate attempts for freedom. He visited in Hereford earlier this week.

"I got the title for my book from the KGB files they had on me," says Vetokhin. "The KGB had a line drawn where it said 'inclined to escape' while I was at the concentration camp. This statement gave them cause to give me worse treatment than the other prisoners."

Vetokhin wasn't imprisoned until after his second escape attempt. His first attempt was in 1963 at Batumi, but the man discovered escape was virtually impossible through a land border.

So, Vetokhin utilized his training for long-distance swimming as his next strategy.

"I swam with a snorkel off the Crimean Peninsula and with a deflated boat I pulled behind me with a rope. After I swam about 10 miles, a patrol boat caught me and the captain turned me in to the KGB because there is a law saying that if a captain captures someone in the ocean, he will receive 600 rubels."

Any citizen of the Soviet Union caught escaping is brought to the Serbsky Institute (for psychiatric studies) and Vetokhin was no exception.

"They view the Soviet Union as paradise; therefore, a person must love living in the Soviet Union. He must be a madman to want to leave," Vetokhin says.

The escape was subsequently placed under psychiatric evaluation and doctors decided the man was definitely anti-Communist and needed to be re-educated at a special concentration camp with cramped quarters, rotten food and painful drugs, all designed to adjust attitudes.

"The camp was in the Ukraine where I was put in a cell not even large enough to walk in. Food was often covered with worms and I got up to two shots of sulphur a week. After 20 shots, you became like a skeleton.

"They'd ask 'Do you still not like Communism?' If you persisted in denouncing Communism, they would give you poisonous tablets where you couldn't go to the bathroom and you had cramps all the time," Vetokhin says.

Vetokhin spent 10 years in the camp, but he was undaunted by his suffering and formulated another escape attempt—this time by boat.

He saved his money from his 60-rubels-a-month salary and bought a cruise ticket for 480 rubels.

"This wasn't the kind of cruise where you ported anywhere," says Vetokhin. "We just sailed south in the Pacific Ocean. When the time was right, I jumped from a porthole and tried to avoid being cut up by the propellers. The captain knew someone jumped off, but when he saw an empty life jacket, he assumed I was dead.

"I swam all night and all day, about 30 miles, and I ended up in Indonesia near New Guinea. I came to a heavy jungle and just rested the first day and looked for water but found none. I then heard a motorboat and I cried out and four young Indonesians brought me to a policeman's home."

Vetokhin had started his story before he booked with the cruise, but the Russian had to leave the story behind because he knew he had to swim and the paper would impede his progress.

Struggle for freedom

Yuri Vetokhin, a Russian who tried three times to escape from the Soviet Union, is touring the nation and telling his story relayed in his book, "Inclined to Escape." He spoke earlier this week to the Hereford Rotary Club.

"While I was living with the policeman, I tried to recall everything I had written and wrote everything on cigarette paper."

More than two years ago, Vetokhin's dream of becoming a U.S. citizen was realized.

When asked if he ever wanted to step foot in the USSR again, Vetokhin simply replied "no."

"In the Soviet Union, ordinary people such as myself don't have any rights. We have no right to vote or opportunity to occupy a political office. Only the elite can do that and that's just 7 percent of the population. And don't believe Gorbachev's new policy of openness. It's all propaganda."

Tower vote still unsure

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans are promising a vigorous and lengthy Senate debate over John Tower's nomination as defense secretary, even as his chances of confirmation fade under the mounting weight of Democratic opposition.

Tower's GOP allies made their fighting intentions clear late Wednesday while the man at the center of the storm said he has no intention of giving up. "Never surrender or retreat," the former Texas senator said, quoting the commander of the Texas forces at the Alamo.

The full Senate arranged to begin debate shortly after noon today, although no vote was expected until next week at the earliest, and there were fresh Democratic pleadings that Tower withdraw his nomination.

Tower on Tuesday renewed his vow to abstain from drinking if he is confirmed. Asked during a National Press Club appearance if he had broken any previous pledges, the twice-divorced Tower said he had broken his marital vows.

Tower also said he would not return to the defense consulting industry even if his confirmation fails.

Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, said there would be a "vigorous" debate on the Senate floor, adding that the issue involved is more important than a single nomination.

In a reference to the Senate's majority Democrats, Republican leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said, "We hope the door is not closed on the other side."

But not a single Democrat has thus far supported Tower, and two Democrats announced their opposition in speeches on the Senate floor.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell had been expected to vote no, but the decision of Sen. David Boren of Oklahoma to oppose Tower was a blow to the Republicans.

By day's end Wednesday, an Associated Press survey showed 36 Republicans in favor, 36 Democrats against and the remainder undecided or not answering. Democrats hold a 55-45 majority in the Senate.

Bush met at the White House with additional senators in his effort to win Democrats over to support the nomination. He summarized his appeal this way: "Do what you've got to do, but remember fair play, remember decency and honor and then remember also historically the concept of advice and consent where reasonable doubt is given historically to the president of the United States who after all is responsible for the executive branch of this government."

But if Bush's lobbying was paying dividends, there was no public evidence of it.

Boren is one of the most conservative Democrats in the Senate. He met privately with Bush at the White House on Tuesday and said he looked forward to supporting the Republican president on numerous issues in the future.

But he said the nation needs a defense secretary for whom "there is broad support, a person about whom there is not deep division of opinion or strong debate about his qualifications to hold office."

Boren said he hoped Tower would decide "that it is in the best interests of the country, the best interests of the president ... and in his own best interest to withdraw prior to any vote on this nomination."

Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., complained in a speech that information about Tower should be made public, rather than kept hidden in a confidential FBI report.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says it's okay to believe in yourself... but don't be too easily convinced.

A teenager was sprawled on the sofa watching television when the telephone rang. It was his father, who asked to speak to the boys' mother.

"She's out weeding the garden," the boy said.

"What!" barked the father. "Your mother isn't as young as she used to be, so why aren't you out helping her?"

"I can't," the son said. "Grandma's using the other hoe."

While I admire and respect Tom Landry, I think the big city press and TV people are over-reacting to the dismissal of the Cowboy coach. The same writers and commentators who are criticizing the handling of the deal are the ones who jumped the gun on announcing that Landry was on the way out.

Who knows, maybe new owner Jerry Jones would have handled things differently if the press hadn't leaked the story. I do think the suggestion to rename Texas Stadium to Landry Stadium is a good idea.

We all have a tendency to come up with excuses for something we don't want to do. Recently, Ann Landers was asked to come up with the three biggest lies in the world. She pinpointed two: "I'm from the government and I'm here to help you;" and "The check is in the mail."

She solicited help from her readers and here's a sampling of what poured in to her:

"But officer, I only had two beers."

"You made it yourself? I would have never guessed!"

"Sorry, dear, no tonight. I have a headache."

"I promise to pay you back out of my next paycheck."

"Of course, I will respect you in the morning."

"It's a terrific high, and I swear you won't get hooked."

"The river never gets high enough to flood this property."

"Go ahead, tell me. I promise I won't get mad."

"The doctor will call you right back."

"I gave at the office."

"You can tell me. I won't breathe a word."

"Put the map away. I know exactly how to get there."

"You don't need it in writing. You have my personal guarantee."

"Our children never caused us a minute's trouble."

"Sorry about your statement, it was the computer's fault."

Local Roundup

Boys assaulted

The Hereford Police Department reported that a juvenile boy struck another juvenile boy across his face with a steel bar at the YMCA parking lot Wednesday. The case was turned over to juvenile authorities.

A woman has filed charges against a man for striking her vehicle at a convenience store; a 26-year-old man forged $500 of his father's checks but no charges were filed; a woman reported that she was beaten by her estranged husband in the 100 block of Norton Street; a vehicle was broken into at the Office Club with damages estimated at $150; a tire valued at $50 was slashed at the Blue Water Garden Apartments.

BABBLING BROOKS

By John Brooks

I was watching CNN the other night, and they had a story on about how Hollywood, California, wants to copyright the name "Hollywood." On its face it sounds simple enough.

The only people who are perturbed are the people who live in other Hollywoods, like Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas.

In those towns, like we have in Hereford, you have businesses named Hollywood this and Hollywood that.

If the California bunch gets its copyright, then these businesses would have to pay royalties for use of the name Hollywood.

The fight is on. There was even a summit meeting of officials from all of the other Hollywoods. They wanted to get together to plan a strategy to fight the Californians.

The Hollywood, Calif., action is not atypical of Californians. The only citizenry more egotistical is Colorado.

I don't get to Colorado very often (heck, I went to Amarillo a couple of weekends ago for the first time in five months), but the last few times I've been there, I figured either they were being very protective of their state or just had a "thing" about Texans.

I think the first clue was a piece of graffiti on a bathroom wall at a truckstop in Trinidad. It was enough to let me know I was in enemy territory.

Most Californians I've run across are, well, weird ducks.

I figure there's a primary problem with those people in the first place for even living there. You figure it: why do so many people live in a place that has a good chance of being an undersea island?

In the Panhandle, when the earth moves, it means the wind is blowing. Out in California when the earth moves you start saying the Lord's Prayer while watching the books fall out of the bookcase.

You see a lot of things in California that make you grateful you live anywhere else: Didja ever watch "Colors?" What about the mud slides, forest fires, Michael Jackson videos?

It's a crazy place. If those guys want it all to themselves, let 'em have it.

House panel approves workers' comp reform

AUSTIN (AP) - The author of a bill that would overhaul the Texas workers' compensation system predicted passage of the bill in the House, but organized labor said the measure is "unacceptable."

The Business and Commerce panel on Wednesday sent the 190-page bill to the House on a 7-1 favorable vote.

"It's unacceptable in its present form," said Willie Chapman, a spokesman for the 225,000-member Texas AFL-CIO. "It would set up a system where it would be difficult for employees to gain legal representation," he said.

Chapman also said the bill falls short on workers' safety provisions.

But the bill's author, state Rep. Richard Smith, R-Bryan, said the proposal will provide incentives for employers to reduce the number of injuries at work.

"And, he said, workers' comp premiums paid by employers, would decrease.

"We believe very strongly there will be an improvement in the rate structure," Smith said.

The bill would make expansive changes in the state's method of compensating workers injured or killed in on-the-job accidents.

Businesses have complained about the skyrocketing cost of workers comp premiums, while labor groups say benefits paid to injured workers are inadequate.

The bill would expand the oversight and regulatory powers of the state's administrative agency for workers' comp, raise some benefits for injured workers, and lessen court involvement in the adjudication of disputed claims.

"I don't consider House Bill 1 to be the final answer. I'm prepared to defend it, but I don't think it's perfect," Smith said.

Smith said the bill remained essentially intact after nearly 2 1/2 weeks of committee hearings and some 270 proposed amendments.

He said he expects the House to debate the bill Tuesday and predicted it would pass with only a few additional amendments. Speaker Gib Lewis supports the proposal.

The bill's opponents, which include the Texas Trial Lawyers Association, are expected to wage a tougher fight in the Senate than in the House.

Senate Committee Begins Review of School Dropout Measures

Fight looms over North trial matter

WASHINGTON (AP) - Another fight over classified material looms in Oliver North's Iran-Contra trial after defense lawyers cross-examine a former Army officer who worked closely with North to help the Nicaraguan Contras.

On Wednesday, John Singlaub, a retired Army major general, testified about a series of contacts with North from 1984 to 1986 when Congress had banned U.S. military aid to the Contras.

The government is trying to prove that North lied to Congress and the attorney general about his efforts to help the Contras during the aid ban.

Prosecutors introduced a letter that Singlaub sent to then-CIA Director William Casey a few days before North - then a National Security Council aide - told a House panel he hadn't had any contact with Singlaub for 20 months.

Singlaub's letter to the CIA suggested otherwise, and Singlaub testified that he in fact met with North "maybe six times" from the summer of 1985 to August 1986.

In addition, Singlaub said he had contacts "perhaps one or two times a month" with North through Robert Owen, North's courier to the Contras during the period, and said he spoke to North on the telephone on "four to six" occasions.

The letter to Casey included a list of weapons available for shipment to the Contras. The letter said the list was developed "in conjunction with a member" of the National Security Council "who is knowledgeable of the urgent needs of the United Nicaraguan Opposition with which the U.S. has a continuing interest." Singlaub testified that he was referring to North.

After Singlaub is cross-examined by North lawyer Brendan Sullivan, U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell plans to send the jury home for the weekend in order to deal with a motion by North's lawyers to have the indictment against him dismissed.

North's lawyers contend that restrictions placed on the defense in the use of classified information are an unconstitutional infringement on his right to a fair trial.

The most recent dispute over such material came this week, when the judge learned that memos the government was trying to censor on national security grounds had already been made public eight months before.

The office of independent counsel Lawrence Walsh opposed the motion to dismiss the charges, saying the government's ability to restrict use of classified material as evidence "is not, as North contends, a reason to conclude that the trial is unworkable."

Prosecutors called Singlaub to the stand to bolster their contention that North lied to Congress. On Aug. 6, 1986, North told the House Intelligence Committee in the White House Situation Room that he had not had any contact with Singlaub in the previous 20 months.

Texans 'near revolt' on taxes

AUSTIN (AP) - Local government leaders say they like a lawmaker's proposal to require the Legislature to pay for programs it forces onto cities, counties and school boards.

Rep. Dan Morales, D-San Antonio, said Wednesday his proposed constitutional amendment would be more fair to cities, counties and school boards - and their property taxpayers - than the current practice of forcing them to pay for requirements dictated by the Legislature.

Tarrant County Judge Roy English hailed the plan, saying his county is scrambling to pay the cost of holding state prison-bound inmates in its jails.

"For 100 years, it was the responsibility of the state" to imprison felons, English said. "A year ago, we had 50 convicted felons; today we have 750 convicted felons in Tarrant County. Our costs have gone up $30,000 a day.

"That, I think is indicative of the type of thing that can happen to a lower level of government," English said.

Morales said Texas property taxpayers are fed up.

"Texas is headed straight toward a property tax revolt. Our homeowners are sick and tired of watching state government place its obligations on the backs of already overburdened local taxpayers," said Rep. Dan Morales, D-San Antonio.

Morales said he thinks the House and Senate will vote to place the proposal on the election ballot.

"Texans will not stand for a tax structure which threatens the homes and property they worked so hard to obtain. State government has a moral obligation to pay for its mandates," Morales said.

"The voters of Texas deserve the opportunity to decide for themselves whether local property tax burdens have reached their limits. In my judgment, local property taxpayers deserve relief and they deserve it now."

Morales said his amendment, if approved by voters, would require the Legislature to fund most programs it requires of local governments.

There would be a few exceptions, such as meeting court orders, but he said the amendment generally would make the Legislature provide funds when new programs are ordered or require the state to reimburse local governments that do what lawmakers tell them.

"Our state's fiscal problems will not be solved by simply transferring those problems to local taxpayers," he said.

Property taxes are one of the few methods local governmental bodies have to raise money. Property tax rates in the state are among the nation's highest.

Morales said 14 other states already have a requirement for the state to pay for its mandates, and several others are considering one.

In recent years, the state has imposed a number of major financial burdens on the local governments.

The 1984 school reform legislation, House Bill 72, for example, imposed class size limitations that school officials say has forced them to hire more teachers and build more classrooms.

The Legislature also ordered an indigent health care program that some county hospitals say has forced them to care for many more patients than they had budgets to handle.

Larry Granado, left, receives a cap from Boss Lion David Ruland for being named "Lion of the Month" by the Hereford Lions Club. Granado was honored for his work with the club's recent bean supper, which raised money for Girlstown USA.

Sales tax option offered for new jails construction

AUSTIN (AP) - A proposal that would allow counties to hold local option elections to increase their sales tax rate will be part of a House-backed prison program, Speaker Gib Lewis said.

The proposal is aimed at helping reduce county jail overcrowding.

Under the proposal, county officials could ask voters to raise their sales tax rate by up to one-half cent, Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said Wednesday.

"What I am endorsing is allowing the counties to vote on a local option basis whether or not they want to impose a sales tax for that county, to be used for the criminal justice system in that county," Lewis said.

The current state sales tax rate is 6 cents per dollar, while both cities and metropolitan transit authorities are allowed to assess one cent. The sales tax rate in Austin, Dallas and Houston is 8 cents per dollar.

Lewis said the House prison program will be completed in several days. He said the program calls for construction of 11,000 prison beds, reimbursing counties for "boot camp" operations, and amending the law to allow state prisoners held in county jails to accrue "good time."

The House took a step toward finishing its prison proposal, as the Corrections Committee approved a $139 million bond issue for the construction of a pair of 2,250-bed maximum security units and a 500-bed psychiatric unit.

The committee, on an 8-0 vote, recommended approval of the bond proposal to the full House.

But Lewis said the bond issue will not solve state prison overcrowding, which has backed up about 8,000 convicts in county jails.

"Bonds are not going to take care of the problem. Once you have the brick and mortar, just the maintenance and the operation and the people that's involved in the system has to increase too," he said.

The proposed prison construction funded by bonding will cost about $57 million per year to operate, Texas Department of Corrections officials told the Corrections Committee.

Lewis said he favored a local option sales tax increase, rather than a statewide increase because, "The problem is not statewide, it's urban. The people in Muleshoe don't have the prison population that the people in Harris County have or in Dallas.

"My attitude on this is this, let the voters decide what they want to do," he said.

Lewis said Tarrant County Judge Roy English approached him about the local option proposal.

"The county officials are desperate. There is such a strain on their budget right now, it's really making it almost impossible for them to address the other needs of the county," he said.

County Judge English said such a proposal would help the Tarrant County prison problems. "It's either you turn the prisoners loose or you pay for their housing," he said.

"Our jail is overflowing. We've had six different construction projects in the last 26 months and we're drowning up there," he said.

Lawmaker urges 'unpopular' personal state income tax

AUSTIN (AP) - A state lawmaker urging creation of a state income tax says he's willing to be a political "sacrificial lamb" in supporting the measure because it's the best way to end Texas' budget woes.

"I was told by the (Texas House) speaker when I introduced this bill last session that I was way ahead of my time," said Rep. Garfield Thompson, D-Fort Worth.

"I guess I'm still way ahead of my time, because I'm not going to give up. Somebody's got to be a sacrificial lamb, so I'm it," Garfield said. "I know a number of my colleagues can't go home if they mention income tax, but I'm going home anyway."

Thompson testified on his proposed bill Wednesday before the House Administrative Tax Subcommittee.

"Mr. Chairman, this is a very unpopular bill," Thompson said. "Our president said, 'Read my lips. No taxes.' Our governor said, 'No taxes.' The (Texas House) speaker and the lieutenant governor say, 'No taxes.'"

"But every agency in the state of Texas wants the same level of funding, and we still don't have any money," Thompson said. "All kinds of people are saying 'cut' ... but we can't do any more cutting."

Thompson's bill, estimated to bring in $2.5 billion in three years, would tax income of residents and non-residents earning more than $50,000 yearly.

The tax rates would range from 1 percent for income between $50,000 and $65,000 per year, to 5 percent for income over $200,000 per year.

Under current federal law, a state income tax is deductible from federal taxes, which Thompson said is one point in the bill's favor.

Thompson said only five states do not have a personal income tax, and he believes such a tax in Texas would not scare away business.

"As you know, the last few years have been tough on Texas and indications are things are going to get worse before they get better," Thompson said, pointing to funding needed for prisons, public school financing and services

Miss USA is a real Texas cowgirl

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Four of the five were chosen by one man and all were trained by the same team.

Gretchen Polhemus of Fort Worth, the latest Miss Texas to win the Miss USA crown, was discovered by Joe Rinelli, area director for North Texas-USA pageant.

She was trained by Richard Guy and Rex Holt - GuyRex Associates - just as the four who preceded her.

Rinelli said all the women had "a certain spark of magic," in addition to being beautiful.

Miss Polhemus, 23, who will spend her year-long reign in Los Angeles where she'll live in an apartment provided by the Miss USA pageant, is a Fort Worth model and part-time cattle broker.

Plans are already under way for a Stockyards parade when she returns later this week from Mobile, Ala., where the pageant was held Tuesday, said Pam Minick of the North Fort Worth Business Association.

"She's a real Fort Worth cowgirl, and we're pretty proud of her," Ms. Minick told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Miss Polhemus said she will pursue an entertainment career while continuing her real estate and broker businesses in Fort Worth.

"It's fantastic," said Mayor Bob Bolen, who sent a congratulatory telegram to Ms. Polhemus. "She represented us very well."

Some $200,000 in prizes and gifts goes with the title, including $88,000 in cash, a $40,000 personal appearance contract, a car, a boat and a full-length mink coat.

She also will represent the United States in the Miss Universe contest in Cancun, Mexico, in May.

The Miss USA runner-up was Jill Scheffert of Oklahoma City.

One woman from every state and the District of Columbia competed in categories of swimsuit, evening gown and personal interviews.

Miss Polhemus assumed the crown from Miss USA Courtney Gibbs, 22, also of Fort Worth, who succeeded the 1987 winner, Michelle Royer of Keller. The 1986 winner was Christy Fichtner of Dallas. Laura Martinez-Herring of El Paso won the 1985 title.

None, however, went on to win the Miss Universe crown.

Linda Cumpton will be among many Hereford residents observing March 6-10 as Special Education Public Awareness Week.

Cumpton's interest in the special week is two-fold as she has a son enrolled in a class for children with learning disabilities and Cumpton teaches at Stanton Learning Center.

"David, my youngest son, is autistic and he is enrolled in a special program. I think next week will provide a good opportunity for the community to learn what is offered for special needs children."

Additionally, Cumpton teaches the Community Class for Pregnant Women at the Center, and notes that the Center now serves over 600 special-needs children in Hereford. Cumpton also tutors homebound students.

Cumpton has taught many subjects, ranging from home economics to child development, in schools in Hereford, Fritch, Hawley, and Abilene. While she does not consider herself to be career-oriented, she has taught for 12 years and finds a great deal of her time devoted to being a coach's wife. "We've led an interesting life since Don has been a coach," she said of her husband, football coach at Hereford High School.

The couple has been married 19 years and has lived in 10 different homes. "We've lived in Hereford three different times beginning in 1970. The last time we came back was in March, 1986."

She admitted that being a coach's wife can be rewarding but there are drawbacks, too. "Some women hate being a coach's wife, but I've enjoyed it and it has been interesting following Don's coaching career. Some people glamorize a coach's job, but Don has to work to find time to spend with his family."

The Cumptons married when she was student teaching in Tulia after receiving a degree in home economics education from Texas Tech University. Born in Vernon, she grew up in Floydada and graduated from high school there in 1965. They are the parents of Brent, 18, and David, 14.

The petite, energetic woman has studied the subject of autism and attended seminars in an attempt to aid David's progress. She keeps a poem in her desk that she found years ago from Rotary, International, which is as follows:

HEAVEN'S VERY SPECIAL CHILD

A meeting was held quite far from Earth.

"It's time again for another birth,"

Said the angels to the Lord above.

"This special child will need much love.

His progress may seem very slow,

Accomplishments he may not show

And he'll require extra care

From the folks he meets way down there.

He may not run, laugh or play;

His thoughts may seem quite far away.

In many ways he won't adapt,

And he'll be known as handicapped.

So let's be careful where he's sent,

We want his life to be content,

Please, Lord, find parents who

Will do a special job for you.

They will not realize right away

The leading role they're asked to play

But with this child sent from above

Comes stronger faith and richer love,

And soon they'll know the privilege

Given

In caring for this gift from Heaven.

Their precious charge, so meek and mild

Is Heaven's very special child."

Cumpton is well-versed in the subject of autism and finds studies linking diet to hyperactivity inconclusive. "Some experts believe there is a link between sugar and hyperactivity, but it hasn't been proven to me. Consequently, I make sure my family eats a well-balanced meal."

Cumpton tries to serve family favorites while preparing fast, simple recipes. "Brent really enjoys my Spaghetti Pizza and the Bacon-Beanie Sandwiches make good children's lunches. You can use low-salt bacon and the Gold Sparkle Punch is very low in sugar while being full of fruit juices."

Cooking since she was seven years old, Cumpton learned to cook by watching her mother. "My Cornbread recipe came from her--she didn't have it written down so I watched her and composed it myself," she said. "My Meat Casserole with Chow Mein Noodles resembles a Chinese Casserole."

Once belonging to such clubs as Young Homemakers and the Young Mothers Study Club also allowed Cumpton to refine her cooking skills. She was a member of the American Association of University Women when there was a branch of it here. The family belongs to the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and they attend First Baptist Church.

When she isn't teaching young people, including Bible School youngsters in the summer, Cumpton enjoys reading and thrives on yard work. "I like to garden and sometimes I can vegetables in the summer. I created several of my recipes--they didn't come out of cookbooks."

Some of Cumpton's favorite recipes follow:

SPAGHETTI PIZZA

Cook a 1 lb. package of spaghetti. Drain and toss with 1 Tbsp. oil. Spread evenly into a 9x13" Pyrex pan.

Top with spaghetti sauce made of:

- 1 lb. ground lean meat
- 1/2 medium onion, chopped
- 1 envelope American Beauty Sauce Mix
- 2 - 6 oz. cans tomato paste

Then top with:

- 1/2 lb. grated mozzarella cheese
- 1/4 lb. grated parmesan cheese
- 1 - 8 oz. pkg. sliced pepperoni
- 1 - 4 oz. jar sliced mushrooms

Cook in 325 degree oven for 20 minutes.

GOLD SPARKLE PUNCH

1 can (1 quart, 14 oz.) apricot nectar, chilled

1 can (1 quart, 14 oz.) pineapple juice, chilled

1 can (6 oz.) frozen limeade concentrate, thawed

3 c. cold water

1 qt. lemon-lime soda, chilled

Combine nectar, pineapple juice, limeade concentrate and water. Stir well; chill.

Just before serving, pour into punch bowl. Add soda. Serve immediately. Float an ice ring frozen with lime slices and seedless green grapes as a colorful contrast to this golden punch.

Makes 40 servings of 1/2 cup (4 oz.) each.

Per serving: 62 calories, no protein, fat, or cholesterol; 16 g. carbo.

BACON-BEANIE SANDWICHES

Toast 6 slices of bread, laying them flat on cookie sheet.

Mix together:

- 1 can pork and beans
- 3 Tbsp. catsup
- 1 tsp. mustard
- 1/4 c. brown sugar

Top each slice of toast with bean mixture; set aside.

Cook 12 slices of bacon, leaving limp, not crisp. Cut in half and place on top of bean mixture. Top with 6 slices of cheese (such as Velveta).

Place under broiler 1 to 2 minutes or until cheese melts.

CORNBREAD

Beat together:

- 1 egg
- 1 1/2 c. buttermilk

Add:

- 1/2 t. soda
- 1/2 t. salt
- 1/2 c. flour
- 1 3/4 c. cornmeal
- 3 Tbsp. fat, as bacon fat

Heat and grease 8" square pan. Bake 15-20 minutes at 375 degrees.

MEAT CASSEROLE WITH CHOW MEIN NOODLES

2 lbs. ground beef

2 medium chopped onions

1 1/2 c. chopped celery

1 can cream mushroom soup

1 can cream chicken soup

1 1/2 c. warm water

1 c. Minute Rice

1/4 c. soy sauce

1 large can Chow Mein Noodles

Brown meat in deep skillet; add onions and celery. Heat soups and water and add to meat. Stir in rice and soy sauce. Turn into greased 9x13" casserole or into two-8x8" pans.

Cover with lid or foil; bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Uncover and spread noodles over top. Return to oven for 15 minutes longer.

This casserole also freezes well; remove from freezer and bake, then add noodles.)

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I grew up in southern California and spent a lot of time at the beach. As a result, I have many red blood vessels on the surface of my nose. I went to a dermatologist and he prescribed Sulface-R lotion. It helped some, but the problem is still there and quite noticeable. Is there any alternative that would work better?

DEAR READER: If you just had dilated small veins a dermatologist could use electrocautery and fry them into oblivion. A fine needle is inserted into the vessel and a small electrical current does the job. It is painful.

But your doctor must have thought that you had an acne condition or acne rosacea rather than just dilated veins since he prescribed a sulfa preparation used to treat such conditions. Acne rosacea causes a red nose along with excess oily secretions. It can also be treated with tetracycline, perhaps more effectively. And you need to avoid anything that will cause flushing or increased heat such as hot drinks, hot coffee, spices and, of course, alcohol. It does occur in people who never drink alcohol at all.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - It wasn't exactly "God Is My Copilot," but only because that seat was taken by an instructor as Archbishop Roger Mahony took off in a $400,000 helicopter given to the Archdiocese of Los Angeles.

Mahony, 53, will use the helicopter to drop in on the 275 parishes in the nation's most populous Roman Catholic archdiocese, which covers an area larger than Israel.

"It's part of the Southern California scene now. Traffic is really a problem," said the archbishop, who took the gift out for a spin Tuesday.

Workers' Compensation In Texas Is Sick!

House Bill No. 1 has been introduced and the indications are that this reform bill will pass the Texas House of Representatives.

The real fight is expected to be in the State Senate. Our state senator, Teel Bivins, has indicated he is in favor of this reform. However, you should flood his office with letters urging him and fellow senators to support this reform.

Please write your legislators TODAY!

State Sen. Teel Bivins, State Capitol, Austin, Tx. 78769
State Rep. John Benoit, State Capitol, Box 2910, Austin, Tx. 78769
Amarillo Office: P.O. Box 12056, Amarillo Tx. 79101.

This editorial from the Dallas Morning News illustrates the importance of this bill to economic development.

EDITORIALS WORKER COMP

Reform bills are gathering steam

The worker comp reform express gathers steam this week as a bill is heard by the House Business and Commerce Committee.

The bill -- as authored by Rep. Richard Smith, R-Bryan -- addresses all the major defects in a system that has left Texas with among the highest worker comp premiums in the nation but some of the lowest benefits for the most seriously injured workers. This out-of-whack system has driven costs of worker comp coverage so high that thousands of jobs have left Texas.

The most critical element of this reform is amending the system of trial de novo. Any reform that leaves it in place will have been largely wasted. Trial de novo allows someone who has been injured to go to a trial in which the proceedings and findings of the Industrial Accident Board are inadmissible.

Texas trial lawyers and other reform opponents correctly assert that very few cases go to trial. Of 80,000 cases contested before the Industrial Accident Board in 1988, only 2,000 were taken to trial, only 500 were taken to a jury.

But trials set settlement values. A personal-injury lawyer will demand a settlement only slightly less than the top jury award, and insurance companies tend to pay. There also is the problem of legal costs. However preposterous the suit, it may be cheaper to settle because of the cost of litigation.

Rep. Smith's system allows for a prehearing examiner to recommend a settlement. There then could be a contested local hearing before an administrative panel. The case then could be taken to an appeals panel. Only then could the case be appealed to a district court, which could review the findings of the Industrial Accident Board only for error.

The bill does far more than address trial de novo. It requires tough safety plans for plants. It also prohibits lump-sum settlements for a period of time to assure workers they will have benefits when needed to pay medical costs, not immediate lawyer's fees.

There is no action the 71st legislature can take to do more to revive the still ailing Texas economy than to pass this bill as written, but the battle will be tight. Texans must speak up loud and clear. They should start with the members of the House Business and Commerce Committee: Steve Wolens, D-Dallas; Harold Dutton, D-Houston; Barry Connelly, R-Houston; Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring; John Gavin, D-Wichita Falls; Paul Hilbert, R-Spring; Anita Hill, R-Garland; Jim Horn, R-Denton; and John Smithee, R-Amarillo.

Aikman: sale won't affect Cowboy deal

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Agent Leigh Steinberg says the sale of the Dallas Cowboys to Jerry Jones won't affect contract negotiations with his newest client, UCLA quarterback Troy Aikman, the anticipated first pick in next month's NFL draft.

"We're making the presumption that the new owner is a sophisticated businessman who knows the cost of doing business," Steinberg said Wednesday. "He was skillful enough to beat out a lot of bidders to buy the franchise, so he's skillful enough to negotiate contracts."

Jones, an Arkansas oilman, paid a reported $140 million for the team, Texas Stadium and the team's training facility.

Steinberg compared the additional cost of signing the former UCLA quarterback to an incident in his life.

"I just purchased an enormous new house with my wife, and she decided we needed to spend 'X' amount more to make it really perfect and special," Steinberg said.

Aikman said Wednesday at a UCLA news conference that he was contacted by more than 100 agents, but did not begin the selection process until after the Japan Bowl all-star game on Jan. 15.

Steinberg was not among those 100.

"As a lawyer, there are certain ethical problems with doing that," Steinberg said. "It was like in the old, sexist days if you were a beautiful woman at a dance and really wanted to dance with someone, but you had to wait until a man asked you."

Aikman and attorneys Mike Massad and Greg McKenzie met with six agents in Oklahoma City last week.

"Once they ended their five hours of questions, you could get confirmed for any cabinet position," Steinberg said.

The Cowboys announced in December they would make Aikman the top pick in the NFL draft, a plan which remains unchanged despite last week's change of owners and coaches.

Aikman impressed former Cowboys coach Tom Landry during workouts in Dallas preceding the Bruins' Cotton Bowl victory over Arkansas. New coach Jimmy Johnson also is an Aikman supporter.

"There's no player Johnson thinks any more of than Aikman," Jones said during last Saturday's news conference which revealed the ownership and coaching changes.

Aikman nearly began his collegiate career playing for Johnson at Oklahoma State, verbally committing to. But Aikman then visited the University of Oklahoma and signed a letter of intent with the Sooners.

Aikman broke his left leg four games into the 1985 season at Oklahoma and, after losing his starting job, decided to transfer.

He said Johnson, by then at the University of Miami, was one of the first coaches who contacted him.

"I like Jimmy Johnson," Aikman said. "He's an outstanding coach. He has a lot of enthusiasm for the game and his track record speaks for itself."

Aikman also expressed his admiration for Landry, who had coached the Cowboys for their first 29 years before being fired last Saturday.

"I would have loved to have played for Coach Landry," Aikman said. "He's a coaching legend."

Steinberg declined to speculate about the amount of money he would seek for Aikman. But the agent drew a scenario in which Aikman would emerge with at least a near-record contract.

"There are no guideposts," Steinberg said. "The highest-compensated player on the rookie level would be a quarterback, chosen first, perceived as a franchise quarterback with the ability to lead a team for many years."

Steinberg represents 11 current NFL quarterbacks and his clients have included 27 first round draft choices.

Steinberg gained the most attention in 1984 when two of his clients made history. Warren Moon jumped from the Canadian Football League's Edmonton Eskimos to the Houston Oilers, signing what at the time was most lucrative contract in NFL history. Also that year, Steve Young signed the largest contract in sports history, a $40 million deal with the Los Angeles Express of the now-defunct USFL.

Late Arkansas run earns win over Rice

By The Associated Press

Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson credits a scoring run late in the first half with giving the Razorbacks a victory over Rice, allowing them to pull back into a first place tie with the Texas Longhorns.

Lee Mayberry scored 26 points and Keith Wilson had 23 to lead the Arkansas Razorbacks to a 83-70 victory over the Rice Owls Wednesday night.

In other SWC games, Texas A&M defeated Texas Tech, 71-60 and Houston whipped Baylor, 75-69.

Arkansas improved its record to 20-6 overall and is tied for first in the Southwest Conference with Texas with a 12-3 conference mark. The loss snapped a four-game winning streak for the Owls, who are now 12-15 and 6-10.

The Razorbacks build a 42-24 halftime lead and that was the deciding factor, Richardson said.

"The key point was the 18-point lead at the half. With Rice playing at home, I knew they would come back sometime," Richardson said. "This is a great win for us. Give Rice credit. They never gave up."

Rice Coach Scott Thompson was pleased with his team's effort.

"Close, but no cigar. Our kids got down and we fought back like we have all year," Thompson said. "We needed some key baskets and some key defensive situations that didn't come through."

Dana Hardy had 20 points to lead Rice, while Kenneth Rourke and Andy Gilchrist followed with 14 points each.

Donald Thompson scored 25 points to lead Texas A&M to a 71-60 comeback victory over Texas Tech.

The Aggies improved to 7-8 in the SWC and 14-13 overall, while Texas Tech fell to 7-8 and 12-13.

Doug Dennis came off the bench to score 12 points for the Aggies, who are back in the middle of the logjammed conference race.

Aggies Coach Shelby Metcalf credited his seniors, Thompson and Dennis, with spurring the comeback.

"I felt the key point of the game was the end of the first half," he said. "That's when our seniors took a little command. Doug and Donald hit some key buckets."

Texas Tech held a 29-26 halftime lead, but the lead had been 29-17 until the closing minutes.

"We gave up a nice lead at the end of the first half and that really hurt us," said Red Raiders coach Gerald Myers. "I think they scored six points in the last minute and that was important."

The Aggies tied the game 9:40 remaining on a basket by Tony Milton, who finished with 16 points.

The game stayed close until the Aggies began pulling away in the final three minutes.

Sean Gay led Tech with 15 points. Richard Hollis scored 20 points and grabbed 11 rebounds Wednesday night to pace Houston to a 75-59 victory over Baylor.

Hollis, who made all 10 of his free-throw attempts, scored 12 second-half points as the Cougars improved to 17-12 overall and 8-7 in the SWC.

Baylor, losing its ninth straight contest, drops to 5-12 overall and 1-14 in league play.

Craig Upchurch scored 19 points and grabbed seven rebounds for Houston.

Michael Hobbs led Baylor with 18 points, while Kelvin Chalmers came off the bench to score 14 points and grab eight rebounds.

The teams traded leads in the opening half before the Cougars settled for a 34-32 halftime lead.

Houston coach Pat Foster said he was glad to see the Cougars emerge from their first-half daze.

"We started moving the ball around in the second half and got some shots to go down for us. We started off flat in that first half," he said. "We were in trouble until Derrick Daniels hit some key three pointers down the stretch which got us back in it."

Johnson, others used drug often

TORONTO (AP) - Ben Johnson's track coach says his star athletes used banned steroids for years and were well aware of the need to clear their systems before getting caught by a drug test.

Coach Charlie Francis said Johnson, who maintains that he never knowingly used drugs to enhance his performance, first decided to take steroids in 1981 and by 1985 was describing a new one's effects in "not repeatable" slang.

Francis detailed a steady pattern of steroid use in hours of testimony Wednesday to the Canadian commission investigating drugs and athletics. The federal inquiry was opened after Johnson was stripped of his 100-meter gold medal after testing positive in the biggest scandal of the Seoul Olympics last September.

The events of 1988 were not discussed in Francis' first appearances Tuesday and Wednesday, but were expected to be outlined today as he returned for a third day of testimony.

Johnson and Dr. Jamie Astaphan, named by Francis as the administrator of his athletes' steroid programs since 1984, are scheduled to be among some 30 witnesses to testify in later weeks in the commission's extended review of track and field. Astaphan has denied providing banned substances to the athletes.

Short-handed Clemson upsets Duke

By The Associated Press

Six Clemson players who missed the Tigers' first meeting with Duke because they were suspended for violating study hall rules gave the ninth-ranked Blue Devils a basketball lesson.

Three of the returnees - Dale Davis, Elden Campbell and Tim Kincaid - were the top scorers with 19, 18 and 17 points, respectively, in Clemson's 79-74 victory over Duke on Wednesday night.

"We only had six players last time and they kept their starters in for most of the game," Campbell said, referring to Duke's earlier 92-62 victory. "They didn't call off their dogs then ... and we didn't call off ours tonight."

Duke was one of four members of The Associated Press Top Twenty to taste defeat. The Blue Devils were joined by fifth-ranked North Carolina, a 76-74 loser to Georgia Tech; No. 7 Missouri, which bowed to Kansas State 76-75, and No. 14 Louisville, which continued its recent slump by losing to Cincinnati 77-71.

Missouri's setback, coupled with No. 4 Oklahoma's 111-108 triumph over Oklahoma State, enabled the Sooners to win their second consecutive Big Eight title. Elsewhere, third-ranked Indiana clinched at least a tie for the Big Ten crown by downing Ohio State 73-66; No. 12 Seton Hall beat Providence 80-68, No. 15 West Virginia held off Penn State 71-61 and No. 19 Ball State defeated Miami of Ohio 78-60.

Danny Ferry led Duke with 19 points but made only seven of 21 shots. Duke shot just 39.2 percent, its poorest game of the season.

Georgia Tech 76, No. 5 N. Carolina 74

Dennis Scott stole an in-bounds pass and hit his seventh 3-point basket of the game with two seconds left. Scott, who scored 28 points, slapped Kevin Madden's pass out of Scott Williams' grasp and hit the game-winner from the left corner.

Tom Hammonds added 19 points for Georgia Tech, which blew a 63-56 lead in the final six minutes. J.R. Reid scored 20 points for the Tar Heels. Kansas St. 76, No. 7 Missouri 75

Tony Massop tipped in Steve Henson's missed shot at the buzzer to spoil a career-high 31-point game by Missouri's Greg Church, whose two free throws with 11 seconds left had given the Tigers a 75-74 lead. Henson led Kansas State with 23 points.

No. 4 Oklahoma 111, Oklahoma St. 108

Stacey King scored 27 points, including a key basket from inside with 12 seconds left, and Mookie Blaylock added 21 for the victorious Sooners.

Blaylock fed King on the final basket. The assist was his 11th of the game and made him the first player in NCAA history to record 200 assists and 100 steals in consecutive seasons.

Richard Dumas scored a career-high 34 points for Oklahoma State. Cincinnati 77, No. 14 Louisville 71

Louis Banks scored 24 points and Cincinnati made 10 straight free throws in the final minute to cap a comeback from a 55-45 deficit in the final 11 minutes. Two free throws by Levertis Robinson with 4:26 remaining capped an 18-7 spurt.

Cincinnati's Andre Tate scored 18 points, all in the second half. Pervis Ellison scored 24 points for Louisville. No. 3 Indiana 73, Ohio St. 66

Jay Edwards scored 27 of his 34 points in the first half as Indiana raised its Big Ten mark to 14-1. Edwards hit 10 of 12 shots - including five of six 3-pointers - in the first half. Perry Carter scored 20 points for Ohio State. No. 12 Seton Hall 80, Providence 68

John Morton hit three consecutive 3-point baskets and scored 19 points and Seton Hall rallied from a 42-30 deficit. Providence lost its scoring touch in the second half, hitting just eight of 28 shots and going more than nine minutes without a basket midway through the half.

Seton Hall finished with its best conference record ever at 11-5.

No. 15 W. Virginia 71, Penn St. 61

Ray Foster scored 15 points and Herbie Brooks added 13 as West Virginia rebounded following the end of its 22-game winning streak Sunday night. West Virginia finished the regular season 24-3, its best record since a 24-2 mark in 1981-82, and 17-1 for its first Atlantic 10 title since 1984-85.

No. 19 Ball St. 78, Miami, Ohio 60

Keith Stalling came off the bench and scored 12 of his 14 points in the second half as Ball State rolled to its 11th straight victory. Stalling had 10 points in two key second-half runs as Ball State improved to 24-2.

Girls' state tourney opens

AUSTIN (AP) - Two of the top college prospects in girls basketball - Cineira Henderson of Duncanville and Trena Tillis of Grapeland - will get a chance to show recruiters, as well as other fans, their skills at the 38th annual state basketball tournament.

The tournament started today, with championship games in five divisions scheduled for Saturday.

Henderson, 6-foot-4, scored 60 points and snared 28 rebounds in leading Duncanville to a state Class 5A title a year ago. She is averaging 20 points and seven rebounds a game, and is being considered by all the top women's basketball schools in the country.

The Pantherettes have won 58 consecutive games and are 37-0 this season. The other 5A teams are LaPorte, Lewisville and Victoria.

Lewisville and LaPorte - Duncanville's semifinal opponent Friday - are making their first trips to the tournament. Victoria, like Duncanville, is making its 12th appearance.

"She's tough," LaPorte Coach Sharon Higgins said of Henderson. "I watched her in the finals last year, and she does what she wants to inside. She's good enough to be playing with many, many college teams right now."

No one seems to know what school Henderson likes as she refuses to talk to recruiters or reporters until after the season.

Duncanville Coach Sandra Meadows has indicated that Henderson may stay close to home and attend Southern Methodist.

Tillis, a 6-footer, visited Texas and Texas A&M in the fall, and has scheduled trips to Stephen F. Austin, Louisiana Tech and Missouri.

Tillis, who averages 28 points a game, and the 32-4 Sandiettes will have a big obstacle in trying to prevent Abernathy from winning its sixth 2A title.

Abernathy, 25-9, plays Marion, 32-5, in its semifinal match, while Grapeland takes on China Spring, 28-6.

In 4A, Levelland will seek its fourth consecutive title and fifth since 1983. The Loboettes, 32-1, have given up more than 40 points only twice this season.

Nazareth, 31-2, is seeking its 10th state championship in the past 12 years. The Swiftettes have a 27-game winning streak, and will be tested in the semifinals by Moulton.

Moulton, 30-4, has appeared in the tournament 12 times but has never won a title.

Adams: 4 years of bars, booze, more

NEW YORK (AP) - Margo Adams, the kiss-and-tell former paramour of Wade Boggs, says she spent four years in a world of booze, bars and skirt-chasing ballplayers before realizing she had to get out and stay out.

Embarking on a two-week U.S. tour to publicize her two-part interview with Penthouse magazine, Adams characterized most of the ballplayers she knew from 1984 to 1988 as hard-drinking, immature womanizers.

"They are unbelievably protected," she said. "They don't get the chance to face responsibility, and that breeds immaturity."

Boggs, Boston's five-time batting champion who is married with two children, has admitted his four-year love affair with Adams, once saying to reporters he may have been the victim of sex addiction.

"I'm a 33-year-old woman, and if Wade had a sex disease, if he thought he was oversexed - well, I didn't say no to sex any more than he did," she said at a news conference Wednesday.

"On our last road trip together, though, in Milwaukee, we were having dinner together, and he said to me,

"Maybe I should go to a psychiatrist, maybe I should get some help."

Adams said that when she met Boggs in 1984 and became his "helpmate," she hardly took a drink of liquor at all. Then, she began to make all the Red Sox' road trips with Boggs - 64 by her count - and she fell into the lifestyle.

"When you're out five hours in a bar every night, which is what they do, you can only drink mineral water for so long," she said. "Then, I'd have a little wine, and by the third year, I was drinking martinis."

"You hear about hard liquor. I didn't see a lot of hard liquor. What I saw was 12 or 13 or 14 beers a night. They'd be riding back in a car, and one of them would say, 'I didn't get any hits tonight, so let's pound back a few quick ones.'"

She said she saw very little drugs, however. "I did hear amphetamines talked about," she said. "I don't use drugs, and Wade never did as far as I saw."

The only thing that made Boggs different from the others was he was with her all the time, "while a lot of the others had a different woman every night," she said.

The first of Adams' interviews appears in Penthouse's April issue. The second interview, along with some soft-core nude photos of Adams, will be in the May issue. "I was very pleased with the pictures," she said.

The raven-haired Adams wore a black, knee-length skirt with pink polka dots and a pink blouse with black polka dots - garnished with a double strand of pearls - to her first formal meeting with the press since the story of the love affair broke last June.

The news conference was held at the Broadway office of Penthouse, which reportedly paid Adams $100,000 for the articles, pictures and publicity tour. The first interview contained explicit information about her sex life with Boggs, a subject that does not seem to particularly embarrass Adams.

As her affair with Boggs fell apart, Adams said she used to sit at her desk at work, where she was a mortgage banker, look straight ahead and say to herself: "Just give me the strength not to go back."

Big bass weren't Florida 'superfish'

FORT WORTH (AP) - A Texas Parks and Wildlife Department official says the department was not trying to mislead the public when it stocked North Texas lakes with largemouth bass of unknown genotype and told the public they were Florida bass.

Stocking records at the Fort Worth district from 1988 show that the 364,004 bass stocked in Lake Grapevine were pure Florida bass, but Bill Rutledge, chief of the hatcheries branch of the department's fisheries division, acknowledged Wednesday that the fish stocked at Grapevine were produced in brood ponds that were stocked with wild bass taken from Sam Rayburn Reservoir.

Florida bass are a subspecies of largemouths that grow faster and reach larger sizes than the native Texas variety. In recent years the state fisheries management agency has been stocking Florida bass in an effort to establish a higher-quality strain of largemouth in the state's lakes.

Rutledge said the contamination of brood stock occurred when it became apparent that the department did not have enough brood stock on hand to meet hatchery production goals. A biologist was told to collect additional brood stock from Rayburn.

The department's labeling of the fingerlings as Florida bass was an oversight, Rutledge told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"It definitely wasn't any intent to mislead," Rutledge said. "We're certainly not in the business of trying to pad numbers."

"What we were trying to do last year was produce as many bass as we could," he said. "Any time you go out to the wild and pick up brood stock, we don't know until we spawn them what the results are going to be."

The misinformation about the genetic makeup of the fish stocked in 1988 angered a number of the agency's biologists.

A management biologist who asked not to be identified said, "I think nobody ever realized what the implication of this was."

The Florida bass-stocking program is an outgrowth of experiments conducted in the early 1970s by Bob Kemp, then a fisheries biologist at Tyler who later became chief of the department's fisheries division.

Kemp theorized that something other than the Florida habitat caused the bass there to grow larger. He used his own money to have Florida bass shipped to Texas to study them.

Since 1980, about 50 largemouth weighing in excess of the 13 pounds, 8 ounces, the state record set in 1948, have been in caught in Texas. In nine cases in which the genetic makeup of the bass has been determined, the fish was either a pure-strain Florida or hybrid between Florida and native largemouths.

In all, five lakes received stockings of fish of questionable genetic makeup. In four of those cases, additional pure Florida-strain largemouths were also stocked in the lakes, Rutledge said.

Only Grapevine was entirely stocked with bass of suspect heritage.

"We assumed we were getting Florida largemouth bass," said Clell Guest, fisheries management supervisor with Parks and Wildlife in the Fort Worth district. "We don't know what beneficial effects stocking fish of unknown genetic composition will have."

"We were attempting to stock the Florida bass to improve the growth rate of the bass population in Grapevine and increase the probability of producing trophy-sized fish in the reservoir," Guest said. "We would not have recommended stocking anything but Florida bass."

Test your grocery shopping savvy

TEST YOUR GROCERY SHOPPING SAVVY

Sharpen your shopping skills and make the most of your time and money when you shop for groceries. This short quiz will show how your shopping habits measure up.

1. DO YOU PLAN MENUS FOR SEVERAL DAYS OR A WEEK AHEAD?
Give yourself two points if you take time to plan menus before you shop. If you think you're too busy for this, remember that you'll save time in the store and avoid time-consuming extra trips to the store.

2. DO YOU SHOP WITH A LIST?
Score a point if you always prepare and follow a shopping list. Compile your week's menus first, then a list based on the menu plan. This helps avoid impulse buying and ensures that you have everything you need when you begin to prepare a meal.

3. DO YOU ADJUST MENUS AND
The Baltimore Orioles reached a new low for won-and-lost percentage in one month in 1988. They were 1-22 in April for a percentage of .043.

YOUR LIST AS YOU SHOP?
It's worth a point — and cash savings — if you're flexible enough to adjust your menus to accommodate good buys you may discover. For instance, when the price is right, buy boneless pork instead of beef for a stir-fry. Choose fruits and vegetables from those that are in season; they're cheaper and have peak flavor and nutritional value. Substitute frozen or canned vegetables when fresh are out of season.

4. DO YOU ORGANIZE YOUR LIST ACCORDING TO YOUR SUPERMARKET?
Give yourself an extra point if you list similar grocery items, such as produce, together and group foods according to their locations in your supermarket. This saves backtracking and lets you bypass aisles where there's nothing you need.

5. DO YOU CHECK NEWSPAPER AND MAGAZINE ADS FOR SPECIALS AND COUPONS?
Score a point and save money if you regularly note and take advantage of items on special. Sort coupons and group them according to the order of your list.

6. DO YOU KNOW WHEN YOUR SUPERMARKET STOCKS

SHELVES AND COUNTERS?
For best selection, find out when your supermarket re-stocks the grocery shelves and meat and produce counters. Often that's early in the day. But many supermarkets now cater to evening shoppers and put out fresh produce and meats in the evening.

7. WHAT'S YOUR TOP SHOPPING SPEED?
Shop quickly. The longer you're in the store, the greater the chance for impulse purchases. To save time and money, avoid sections that offer items you don't need.

8. DO YOU SHOP BEFORE OR AFTER A MEAL?
Subtract a point if you shop when you're hungry. That's when anything to eat looks most tempting and it's hardest to resist extras. Avoid shopping with a hungry child; a snack first will make a youngster a better shopper, too.

9. DO YOU CHECK THE ENDS OF THE AISLES FOR SPECIAL PROMOTIONS?
Keep your eyes open and score a point. Watch aisle-end displays for new products, unadvertised specials, and good buys on seasonal items such as canned cherries in February or barbecue sauce in July.

Post-nuptial shower held for Erika Lucero

Erika Avery Lucero, Jan. 21 bride of Danny Lucero, was honored with a household shower Saturday, Feb. 25, in Ward Parlor of First United Methodist Church. Refreshments of shrimp puffs, cucumber sandwiches, pumpkin roll, butter mints and nuts were served accompanied by coffee and iced tea.

Serving as hostesses were Elaine Calkins, Oveta White, Sharon Bodner, Jeannine Shackelford, Tina Langehennig and Bonnie Hamilton. The women presented the honoree with a food processor. The couple make their home in Amarillo.

Hints from Heloise

FUN CAR GAME

Dear Heloise: We live in the city and just about every weekend our family travels to the country to visit our grandparents. At first, these trips were fun since the children got to watch all the passing sights. Now they have seen them all and get bored easily and become distracting to the driver.

So, I have come up with a game that they like and it keeps them occupied. I cut out pictures from newspapers and magazines of anything they may see while traveling. Examples are cars, trucks, animals and buildings. Then I paste the pictures on index cards.

I give the cards to the children when we leave the house and they deal them out so each one has the same amount. Then as they see the object they put the card down. The child who "sees" all his cards first is the winner! — A Reader, Dallas, Texas

What a wonderful game! This would be ideal for the coming summer vacations when children become bored easily while riding in a car. — Heloise

GREETING CARDS

Dear Heloise: Here is a tip that helps save me time and effort. When I go to store to buy birthday cards, I always buy several. This way I need not go to the store each time I need a card. I also buy several rolls of wrapping paper so I always have some on hand. — Josie Morales, Pagosa Springs, Colo.

"Misleading" labels may increase sales

COLLEGE STATION -- Label jargon can be misleading to consumers who base buying decisions on information found on product packages.

Dr. Mary Kinney Sweeten, a registered dietitian and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said the Food and Drug Administration requires a food label to state the name and address of the manufacturer and to list ingredients in descending order of weight.

"Calorie information is optional," she said. If included, the label must give the serving size; per-serving amounts of calories, protein, fat, carbohydrate; and the percentage of the recommended daily allowances of five vitamins, two minerals and protein.

She said labels get confusing when terms such as "lite" or "light" that have no standard definitions are used to appeal to consumers.

"Lite can refer to color, taste, texture, calories, or weight," Sweeten said. "Consumers should look at the ingredient list or nutrient chart to determine why a product is lite."

This list of possibly deceiving terms was published in the American Institute for Cancer Research Newsletter to help consumers make informed food choices when reading labels.

-Lean: No more than 10 percent fat by weight—not by calories.

-Extra Lean: No more than 5 percent fat by weight -- not by calories.

-Leaner: At least 25 percent less fat (by weight) than the original product.

-Dietetic: One or more ingredient has been changed, substituted or restricted. Not necessarily low in calories.

-Sugar-free/Sugarless: Contains no sucrose; might contain corn syrup, fructose, honey, sorbitol or other sweeteners. Not necessarily low in calories.

-Sodium-free: No more than 5 mg sodium per serving.

-Very Low Sodium: No more than 5 mg sodium per serving.

See Our Selection Of COOKIES
Troy's Sweet Shop
1003 E Park Ave

-Low Sodium: No more than 140 mg sodium than the original product.

-Reduced Sodium: At least 25 percent less sodium than the original product.

-No Salt Added and Salt-Free: No salt added in processing. Can have natural sodium, or sodium from other sources such as soy sauce.

-Low in Calories: Less than 40 calories per serving.

-Reduced Calorie: One-third fewer calories than similar product. Meat and poultry must contain 25 percent fewer calories than similar product.

-Enriched: Replacement of nutrients lost in manufacturing.

-Fortified: Addition of nutrients to foods that did not originally contain them.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. I'm not sure of the word "soft" when a meat loaf recipe calls for "soft" bread crumbs. What should I use? Mrs. G.K., Tinley Park, IL

A. Use soft bread; pull into pieces. Measure lightly in a cup and use immediately.

Q. How does the nutritional quality of dried fruit compare to undried? V.K., Fort Atkinson, WI

A. Most vitamins and minerals are retained. Vitamin C is an exception and will be reduced greatly during drying. Vitamins, minerals and calories in dried fruit are more concentrated. If you eat dried apricots to equal the weight of four fresh apricots, you get more than five times the vitamin A and more than four times the calories.

Donation made

Pilot Club President Wanda Cobb, right, presented a donation to Rebecca Walls of Deaf Smith County Library recently. The donation will help buy materials and supplies for the Adult Illiteracy Class which has volunteer tutors teaching adults how to read. Pilot Club is an international organization of professional women who try to better their community. As one of their main fund raisers, the local Pilot Club will host a Mexican Stack Supper Friday from 5-8 p.m. at the Hereford High School cafeteria with proceeds planned to benefit the community. Tickets, available at the door, cost $4 for adults, $2.50 for children age 12 and under. Take-out orders are welcome.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

- All 172 pages in full color
- Each page measures a large 15 x 11 inches
- Presents the entire state in stunning detail
- Appendices and specialty maps of many different features

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Become one of the first in our community to own a copy of this magnificent atlas.

What they're saying about "The Roads of Texas"

"When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS... you'll wonder how you ever travelled the state without it."
Texas Highways Magazine
October, 1988

"For details of Texas terrain, oil company maps and the State's Official Highway Map can't match THE ROADS OF TEXAS."

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 14 cents a word for first insertion ($2.80 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN.
1 day per word	.14	2.80
2 days per word	.24	4.80
3 days per word	.34	6.80
4 days per word	.44	8.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines—those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are $3.96 per column inch; $3.25 an inch for additional insertions.

LEGALS

Ad rates for legal notices are 14 cents per word first insertion, 10 cents per word for additional insertions.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

CABLE LAYER
NEW YORK (AP) — Capt. Henry Griffin has been in command of an unusual vessel since 1976.
The 70-ton Cable Queen, owned by New York Telephone, is used to lay underwater cables in the waters around New York City and elsewhere.
Griffin, 59, said the ship, which sometimes carries a diver, is the only one of its kind in the U.S. It has laid more than 100,000 miles of cable since it was launched in 1951.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a single woman (30 years old) and a successful professional who lives in a nice neighborhood in a Chicago suburb. My parents live two miles away and we get along well, except for one problem.

My mother is an inveterate worrier. I gave her a set of keys to my apartment in case of an emergency. If she telephones and expects me to be at home and I am not, she comes over and lets herself in to see if I am OK.

If my answering machine isn't on, she worries that something is "wrong" and comes over to check. Once she came in and scared the daylights out of me. I thought someone was breaking in. Her reason for not knocking was that the lights were out.

I can think of several things a 30-year-old woman might be doing with the lights out, during which she would not welcome a surprise visit from her mother. I fear it is just a matter of time before something very embarrassing happens.

I don't want to offend Mother by asking her to return the keys, but I can't think of any other way to solve the problem. Can you?—Grown Up in Evanston

DEAR EV: Have your lock changed for security reasons and inform your mother you have done so. Tell her that you think it is best that she not have a set of the new keys because you don't want to be scared out of your wits again. That should do it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your response to the Paducah woman who couldn't understand why the old geezers in the office were coming on to her was typical of the blame-the-victim mentality that is so prevalent today.

You asked, "Were you standing too close?" Do you engage in too much small talk? Are you too informal, excessively chummy perhaps? Really!

Before you make this woman (and others who have this problem) crazy with guilt and paranoia, please bear in mind that old geezers are just as capable of sexual harassment as the younger men. Sometimes more so.

At the very least, Ann, you might have acknowledged that the writer's complaint could have been legitimate.—Annette in Minneapolis

DEAR ANNETTE: An awful lot of women didn't like my answer, and after giving it some thought I can get-acquainted stage and the question was asked, "How did you and your husband meet?" Before I could say anything, my husband said, with a perfectly straight face, "Doris was a hooker."

I was so shocked I just sat there and couldn't think of anything to say. The women looked stricken and the men seemed somewhat amused. Our hostess quickly changed the subject.

On the way home I was in tears, but my husband insisted that they knew he was kidding. I saw no evidence of this.

We see these people once a week and I sense a definite coolness. I am sure they thought my husband was serious. How do I handle this?—Miserable in Oregon

DEAR OREGON: Your husband made the mess and it's up to him to clean it up. Tell that clown he owes it to you to set the record straight, in your presence, complete with an apology. What a tasteless remark!

Abundant Life

THERE IS POWER IN PRAISE
By BOB WEAR

There is something in the life of most people that is worthy of praise, the praise that we can give. It may be their work, the way they groom themselves, in their talk, their generosity, their helpfulness, their thoughtfulness, their unselfish service, their courtesy, in something or in many things about them. It is not difficult to speak honest words of praise, if we just keep it simple, and straightforward.

In the family, most of the friction will disappear if each person will resist the inclination to criticize; and replace it with the determination to praise each other. This action should not be confined to the family. It will be helpful and constructive in business life, social life, and in every facet of human society. It always makes the

Cooper begins duties as Baptist youth minister

Monday was officially Bryan Cooper's first day as minister of youth at First Baptist Church.

Cooper accepted the Hereford position after serving as youth minister of Oak Grove Baptist Church in Mount Carmel, Tenn. He had previously served as youth minister to Baptist Churches in Comanche, Clayton, and Darrouzett, and spent one summer in Hawaii working with youth.

He received a B.A. degree in theology from Wayland Baptist University, then attained a Master's degree in religious education from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth.

The 28-year-old's wife, Kay, is an Amarillo native and received a B.A. degree in business management from WBU, where she minored in church music. The couple reside at 229 Greenwood; he enjoys swimming, snow skiing, and hunting and she is proficient in playing the flute.

"We are delighted to return to West Texas because we believe the nicest, friendliest people live here," said Cooper, a Dalhart native.

"I hope to see young people grow spiritually and help them realize they are important, too," topped Cooper's list of goals. He will work primarily with youth in the 7th through 12th grades in addition to some college-age students. "I hope to involve a lot of youth and their parents, but my ministry will not be restricted solely to Baptist youth. I hope to minister to any of Hereford's young people."

He noted that Campus Reach Out (CRO) will continue to meet each Wednesday at the church from 7-8 p.m. A recreation time will follow in the Family Life Center from 8-9 p.m.

Woman's Health

TREATMENTS FOR BREAST CANCER

By Robert C. Park, M.D.,
College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

What we know about breast cancer and how to treat it has grown tremendously in the 110 years since the first breast cancer operation was performed. Today, not only are there different treatments, but the chances of controlling or curing the disease are better than ever.

Treatment today includes several forms of surgery, along with radiation, or therapy with drugs or hormones. The type of treatment for breast cancer depends on a number of things, the most important being how early the cancer is detected. Other factors include the type of breast cancer, its location, the size of the tumor, general health of the patient, and the risks and benefits of the various treatments available.

The first step in treating breast cancer, after it has been diagnosed by biopsy, is surgery. How much of the breast needs to be removed depends on the size of the lump and if the cancer has spread to other tissues.

Along with surgery, your doctor may recommend radiation therapy. Radiation or x-rays are used to kill the fast-growing cancer cells that may have escaped surgery. The radiation treatment may be done externally with an x-ray machine, or in some cases, tubes or needles containing radioactive materials may be inserted into the breast tissue. Radiation has been helpful with more advanced cases of cancer, but there are risks and side effects that must be considered.

Chemotherapy is a treatment method that uses cancer-killing drugs to reach cancer cells that might have been missed through surgery. Unlike surgery or radiation, chemotherapy acts on the entire body. It will kill cancer cells anywhere in the body, not just in the breast. As with radiation, chemotherapy has risks and side effects that must be evaluated.

A new and somewhat experimental form of therapy for certain breast cancers is hormone therapy. Some tumors are sensitive to hormones, and by either performing surgery to suppress the body's production of hormones, or giving large doses of hormones, the tumor's growth can be slowed or symptoms relieved.

The ability to arrest or cure breast cancer today has a much brighter future, thanks to improved treatments and better detection methods.

REDUCING HEALTH RISKS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Medical experts say 65 percent of all deaths and disabilities occurring before age 65 are preventable. With preventive measures 400,000 American lives could be saved annually, it is estimated.

The major causes of premature death and disability in adults are heart disease, cancer, stroke and motor vehicle accident, according to the NewHealth Center here. The center conducts a health status evaluation program to assess an individual's medical risk factors and offer a corrective action plan.

WT sets "Extremities"

West Texas State University's art, communication and theatre department will present "Extremities" March 2-5 in the Branding Iron Theatre.

Performances on Thursday-Saturday, March 2-4 will begin at 8 p.m. The Sunday, March 5 performance begins at 3 p.m.

This dramatic and controversial play portrays a violent and realistic tale of one woman's battle against rape.

"It is a deadly game of power and control," said Director Royal Brantley. "All of the characters are pulled into an aggressive 80-minute of justice, with everyone involved taking on the shifting roles of judge, jury, prosecutor and defender."

The cast includes eight WT students: Missye Pillow, Odessa; Lee

Colette, Canyon; Jayme Cotton, Dimmitt; Christie Schmidjell, Amarillo; Michelle Rebollo, El Paso; Christopher Besett, El Paso; Amy Yonker, Gallup, N.M.; Stacy Bennett, Pampa.

The play contains violence, foul and abusive language as well as adult situations and is not recommended for children under 17.

In the interest of public service, the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center will be conducting brief seminars after each performance.

Tickets are $5 at the door and are free to WT students and faculty with ID. For more information call 656-2798.

Bell serves as hostess

Wesley United Methodist Women met recently in the home of Marilyn Bell for a salad supper and program, "Call to Prayer and Self Denial."

Those present included Bell,

Charlene Brownlow, Georgia Riley, La Nell Kendrick, Pam Ruckman, Margaret Hare, Kee Ruland and Clara Trowbridge.

The next meeting will be at 7 p.m. March 8.

burden of our humanity a little easier to carry.

This may not be a cure-all, but its regular practice will do much to improve all aspects of human relationships. It seems that we are cheated with a built-in need for the expressed approval of others, but this is not all. We are sure to remain something less than our best, if we refuse to or neglect to 'praise' the worthwhile things in the lives and actions of others.

"The greatest efforts of the race have always been traceable to 'the love of praise.' Actually, it is more than the 'love of praise'; it is the 'need for praise'.

The story is told of a man who committed suicide, and he left his employer this note: "I have worked for you thirty years, and in all that time, I cannot remember your saying a single nice thing about my work." This is perhaps extreme; but living without praise from those with whom we work and live is not the best of living.

Praise has been called "a spiritual vitamin." Honest praise is a source of great good and great power for all of us.
