Bush, Reagan set transition course

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ronald Reagan and George Bush set the wheels in motion for the presidentelect's ascent to chief executive as Reagan left instructions for his Cabinet officers and political appointees to resign by Inauguration Day and Bush conferred with leaders of his transition team.

After a series of meetings Thursday with the president, the Cabinet and his transition crew, Bush flew to Florida for a four-day vacation, his first post-election break.

The vice president made his first Cabinet appointment on Wednesday, naming campaign chairman James A. Baker III to be his secretary of state. He has told reporters he wants to name the balance of his Cabinet sooner rather than later, but has set no timetable.

> But for all the friendliness, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan reminded his men, "We are still in charge until Jan. 20 and are still responsible for making decisions of the government."

Duberstein told the Cabinet and heads of independent agencies to be prepared to submit their resignations. "It is probably fair to say that all political appointees at all levels should be prepared to resign or from the White House. But work was depart on Jan. 20," said Fitzwater.

"President Reagan of course is free to accept anyone's resignation desk was set up at the entrance ,at any time and the president-elect would have that decision to make after the 20th," he said. "There might be cases where he wouldn't have someone to fill that position, and would want someone to stay on for awhile," he said.

Bush on Wednesday promised a "brand new team" when he takes office. But Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, Attorney General Dick Thornburgh and Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos all have been mentioned as possible holdover appointments.

One man viewed as likely to receive a major post in the new administration, retiring Gov. John Sununu of New Hampshire, set his goals high. He told reporters in New Hampshire that he would turn down offers to be secretary of education or energy, but White House chief of staff "isn't on my 'no list." Sununu, who campaigned energetically for Bush and was instrumental in his critical victory in the New Hampshire primary last February, said he hadn't been offered any post.

Jim Conkwright, the director of development for Kings Manor Methodist Home of Hereford, outlined the Manor's plans to improve its support base while increasing the number of residents at the complex at the 23rd annual Founders Day Dinner at the Manor's Lamar Room on Thursday night.

Conkwright said that "prayers and contributions and help over the years have helped give a more fulfilling, satishying lifestyle than our clients would have had," but said the Manor's board of directors had realized that the uniqueness of the home, constructed 28 years ago, had dimmed.

Conkwright said the development would identify and cultivate prospective residents and donors, and establish support groups throughout the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church "that can explain our ministry, its needs and goals."

'We are going to be plowing and cultivating all of the fields,' Conkwright said.

Dr. Clifford Trotter, former pastor of the Hereford church and now the superintendent of the Amarillo District, inspired the crowd of over 200 with Jesus' mandate to "give everything."

The Last Man's Club was modeled after similar efforts by Revolutionary War veterans to maintain camaraderie, said Furrer. Its members all came from Contra Costa County, across the Bay from San Francisco.

The club's name was derived from the members' intention to leave a sizable endowment to the last surviving member through annual dues. At one point, its coffers held $30,000.

Among recommendations in the report released Thursday is establishment of a comprehensive drug and alcohol abuse education plan for school districts. It also suggests automatic suspension or deferral of drivers' licenses for juveniles who break drug or alcohol laws.

The report of the Governor's Task Force on Drug Abuse "will be useful as we attempt to choke one of the root causes of crime - drug abuse.' Clements said.

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

Goodness gracious, it's hard to believe I've been without my dad for 25 years.

I doubt if any of you ever knew my dad, but he got around quite a bit, so maybe you did. He was born in Seymour, raised around Pampa, and had enough wanderlust in him that he probably spent some time around here.

Like most dads, mine was special. He taught me how to bait a hook. One of my special memories is one time out in the middle of Apache Lake in Arizona. It was our last time to fish together.

Without going into all the lurid details, I'll just tell you that my dad's half-brother was my mother's stepfather, and this guy (I just called him granddad) and my dad and I were out in the middle of the lake on a beautiful summer afternoon in Arizona. It was probably not much worse than 130-140 degrees out there, and granddad and daddy had sucked down a few Falstaffs out there on the boat.

The fish were doing what we should have been doing: sleeping. Suddenly, I gotta bite.

When people have sucked down too many pops they can get excited, but can't move quickly. They tried to move quickly anyway, and they both almost fell out of the boat. I finally landed the fish by myself while they bailed each other out of the water.

the fish I caught is still the biggest smallmouth bass I have ever caught or seen. For several years it was an age-group record in Arizona, and I'm glad my dad was there to "help" me land it.

After we got the fish, daddy and granddad back in the boat, we spent several hours trying to find our way back. The fear of being lost, the warmth of the day, and the fear they might have to row us in if we didn't find our camp real

Dad would take me out on Palo Verde Avenue in our 1953 Mercury and tell me, "Johnny (when daddy died, so did that name), pucker your lips like this and hold your tongue down." We practiced for months, and I finally whistled.

Daddy also taught me how to drink beer.

I'm still a bit of a legend in Arizona and up in Pampa. People remember me being pulled into Skeeter's in Pampa and boosted up on a bar stool and drinking with the rest of the fellows.

'Course, it would take me two or three hours to drink a full beer, because I was too busy mooching nickels off everybody to play the pinball machine.

Daddy also taught me how to write my name in cursive. God gave me the gift of reading and printing before I was three years old, but left it up to me to learn advanced handwriting. I would bet I'm still the only three year old ever in Coolidge, Arizona to be able to sign, not print, my name.

Daddy also made an effort to get me everything he could get his hands on for me to read. He realized it was a special gift, and I know his help was missed when he was gone.

But Daddy died just a month before his 40th birthday, just two months before I turned eight.

His loss left a big void in my life then, and still does today. It was up to my mom to do some of the things daddy would have done. She did a great job, but there were just some things she couldn't do.

And just think of all the things your dad's done for you. If you still have the pleasure of your dad's company, why don't you give him a hug today? It'll do you some good.

And remember those of us who wish we could hug our own dads.

Gramm says atom smasher funding matter of priority

WASHINGTON (AP) - Super collider supporters will have to do some heavy lifting next year to convince Congress to build the giant physics project, but Sen. Phil Gramm says it's more a question priority and less one of money.

Gramm believes money can be carved out of next year's budget to move the project beyond the research phase and toward actual construction on Ellis County farmland south of Dallas.

But questions about financing the project erupted just hours after Energy Secretary John S. Herrington announced his decision to build the high-energy physics project

Senators from four of the six other states that had also sought the project warned that if the super collider is to have "the slightest chance of being funded," the president would have to prove the Texas choice was based soley on "scientific criteria utilizing a fair, open and competitive bidding process.'

Rep. Tom DeLay, a Texas Republican and member of the House Appropriations Committee, says that after fences are mended, the monumental work of nailing down enough money for the project

The Texas delegation, however, has the "wherewithal to get something for the super collider." DeLay said.

Speaker Jim Wright is from Fort Worth, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, is chairman of the influential Senate Finance Committee, and there are several other Texans on key commit-

The super collider will bring its host state thousands of jobs, international prestige in the scientific community, and spinoffs for transportation, medicine, communications and defense.

Yet Congress has been wary about funding the project, estimated by the Energy Department to cost, in 1968 dollars, $10.8 billion to build and operate over a 25-year period.

During the last session, President Reagan had proposed $360 million be spent on the collider, but backers say they were happy to finally get $100 million. The legislation, however, decreed that the money could not be used for construction.

DeLay said he believes the strongest opposition will come from supporters of social programs and the scientific community, with both fearing the money for the super collider will lessen their share of the federal dollar.

But Gramm and DeLay say new money can be found to finance the Gramm advocates a small fraction of that, or $500 million, be set aside for the super collider. But he and DeLay agree convincing their colleagues may be no small feat.

"The debate you end up in is a debate about priorities," Gramm said. "There is a big tendency in Congress to spend on programs that vield benefits in the next election rather than the next generation."

"Obviously, there is a lot of heavy lifing to do in trying to ensure the American people and Congress support an investment in science and technology important to our competitiveness in the market and to our future growth and prosperity," Gramm said.

Abortion ruling gets attacked

Reagan wants court to weigh other case

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration is making a new attack on the Supreme Court's landmark Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortion, proposing that the justices use a Missouri case to reconsider the 15-year-old ruling.

The proposal came in form of a brief filed with the court Thursday by Solicitor General Charles Fried, who said the Missouri case represents "an appropriate oppor-tunity" for the justices to review the 1973 decision.

Pro-abortion groups said the timing of the proposal, two days after the general election, was political.

"I guess they were afraid to do this before the election because they thought they might lose the votes of millions of women." said Eve Paul. Planned Parenthood's vice president for legal affairs.

But a Justice Department spokesman, Loye Miller, insisted that the timing was dictated by extended internal discussions at the Justice Department on the question and by extensive staff work that had to be completed.

Fried's brief said the Missouri case "is free of procedural defects and implicates a number of the legislative choices foreclosed by Roe v. Wade."

The solicitor general's brief noted that the Reagan administration's views on abortion were expressed in a case in June 1986, when the government urged that Roe vs. Wade be overturned.

The high court at that time voted 5-4 to reaffirm the earlier ruling, but since then another Reagan appointee has joined the court, Justice Anthony Kennedy. Anti-abortion groups hope that will tilt the court's balance and lead to scuttling of Roe vs. Wade, which held that a woman has a constitutional right to an abortion.

Missouri officials want the Supreme Court to reinstate a strict state anti-abortion law, struck down in July by a federal appeals court which said the statute was invalid under Roe vs. Wade.

The Missouri law declared that human life begins at the moment of conception and said no public funds, employees or facilities could be used to perform or assist in an abortion or to counsel a woman to have an abor-

A key issue in the Missouri case is whether it is unconstitutional for a state to declare when human life begins. The Missouri law did that, and went on to declare that "unborn children have protectable interests in life, health and well-being."

Carter out of 5A playoffs

DALLAS (AP) - Officials from the Dallas Independent School District and Dallas Carter High School say they will ask state officials to re-examine the test scores of a football player whose ineligibility led to the team's disqualification from the state playoffs.

"We're going to ask the UIL and the Texas Education Agency to come back (today)," DISD Superintendent Marvin Edwards said Thursday, just hours after Carter was disqualified from the Class 5A playoffs for using an ineligible player the final three weeks of the regular season.

The action came one day before the Cowboys, ranked No. 6 in the state in the final Associated Press poll, were scheduled to play Plano East in a bi-district game.

Carter was forced to forfeit its final three games, moving South Grand Prairie into second place in District 11-5A. The Warriors will play Plano East at 9 p.m. today at Texas Stadium.

"I've been in this business 25 years and I've never seen anything like this," said Don Murphy, athletic director of the Grand Prairie Independent School District.

The disqualification unfolded Thursday afternoon when officials from the University Interscholastic League and the TEA, acting on a tip they had received the previous day, walked into Carter High School unannounced and asked to see the grades of the unnamed player.

grading period, they found his average in one class to be 67, three points under the minimum passing grade and five below the grade that had been reported by the teacher.

"They misfigured a grade," said Buddy Berry, chairman of the District 11-5A executive committee and principal at Grand Prairie High School. "I don't think it's a case of grade tampering."

Under the Texas Education Reform Act's no-pass, no-play rule, . any student who fails even one class for a six-week grading period is ineligible for UIL play until the next grading period.

Carter was forced to forfeit its final three games, since the player In reviewing the player's test had participated in all of them durscores over the most recent six-week ing a period when he was ineligible.

Ditka back

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) - Coach Mike Ditka returned to the Chicago Bears eight days after suffering a mild heart attack and just hours after his release from the hospital, and said he wouldn't miss Sunday's game against the Redskins for anything. Ditka on Thursday talked to his players, held a news conference and took a telephone call from Presidentelect George Bush. He was released from the hospital late Wednesday after recovering from his Nov. 2 heart attack.

Running far ahead of schedule, Ditka said he also would go with the team to Washington on Sunday. "RFK is one of my favorite stadiums. I wouldn't miss it for anything," said Ditka, 49. He said his doctors approved, but added he wouldn't do much more than observe the game from the press box. "He looked very well," said linebacker Mike Singletary. "It means a lot to the team to have him back, knowing everything is OK. "I was surprised - I think a lot of people were surprised," he said.

'Nobody thought he'd be here today, but when you think about his personality, it isn't surprising," said tight end Emery Moorehead.

105 GREENWOOD

"He's a strong-willed young man," said running back Neal Anderson. The call from Bush surprised most everybody.

"Hello Mr. Vice-President, er, Mr. President," said Ditka.

"I'm happy for you. Now you have the weight of the world on your shoulders and I'll keep praying for you," he said, congratulating Bush on his election.

"Nothing against the other candidate. I was praying for you."

A&M-Arkansas tops SWC slate

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

Texas A&M claims the Arkansas Razorbacks won't be the true Southwest Conference football champions unless the Hogs beat them on Saturday.

Probation-stained Texas A&M figures it can claim the SWC title with an asterisk by defeating the Cotton Bowl-bound Hogs in Fayetteville.

"This is not a bowl game for us," said Texas A&M quarterback Bucky

"This is not a bowl game for us," said Texas A&M quarterback Bucky Richardson. "It's a game for the Southwest Conference championship. We're still the champs. They have to take it away from us."

A&M has won three straight SWC titles and is unbeaten in league play this year. However, NCAA probation has knocked A&M out of post-season play and the legal right to claim the league title.

The unblemished, 11th ranked Razorbacks have only A&M to beat to sweep through the SWC unbeaten. They have already clinched their first outright league title since 1965.

"Arkansas will have to put an asterisk next to its name if we win because we would truly be the (SWC) champions," said A&M linebacker John Roper

Arkansas coach Ken Hatfield believes the games of a team on probation shouldn't count in league play.

"If a school is on probation none of the results against other conferene schools should count in the league standings," he said.

The Hogs have sold out Razorback Stadium for the homecoming game against the Aggies.

"We'll be pumped up for this one," said Arkansas cornerback Richard Brothers. "We have a lot of incenA&M hasn't won in Fayetteville since 1967. Aggle Coach Jackie Sherrill is 0-3 in Arkansas and has been outscored 77-10 by the Hogs in the Arkansas rated a two-point favorite over A&M for the 1 p.m. clash. In other games, Texas was a one-point favorite over Texas Christian in a noon (Raycom Television) game in Fort Worth; Baylor was a four-point pick over Rice in Houston in a 1 p.m. game, Texas Tech was a four-touchdown favorite over Lamar in a 1 p.m. game in Lubbock; and: Wyoming was a two-point favorite over Houston in a 7 p.m. nationally televised game (ESPN) in the Astrodome.

Texas running back Eric Metcalf was doubtful for the game in TCU against the Horned Frogs as the troubled 'Horns try to win their second conference game of the year. Metcalf is troubled with a sprained ankle

Houston is fresh off a 66-15 slaughter of the Longhorns in which Andre Ware threw five touchdown passes. Houston could all but clinch an Aloha Bowl bid with a victory over the 10th ranked Cowboys.

A four-hour game was forecast because both teams like to pass.

"There ought to be plenty of scoring to keep it interesting," said Houston coach Jack Pardee.

Wyoming won 37-35 last year in Laramie on a field goal with six seconds left.

Mountaineers face traditions

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)

— For recommended reading this week, West Virginia coach Don Nehlen suggests his players try the Rutgers football media guide.

Especially pages 96 and 97, where they can learn that in 1979 Rutgers defeated Tennessee at Knoxville, lost by four points to defending national champion Alabama the following year, gave Tennessee fits in 1963 before losing 7-0, tied Florida at Gainesville in 1965, tied Kentucky at Lexington in 1966 and beat Kentucky last season. This year, Rutgers has victories over Michigan State and Penn State.

The message Nehlen would like to get across to his fourth-ranked Mountaineers is that Rutgers may be 4-5 and a three-touchdown underdog for Saturday's game at Giants Stadium, but isn't exactly chopped liver.

"Rutgers is a traditional team on our schedule and they're tough as nails," Nehlen said. "I don't think our kids would ever take Rutgers very lightly because if they did they'd get killed, and they know that.

"We play about seven teams every year and Rutgers is one of them and our kids have a great deal of respect for Rutgers. Plus, we have a lot of New Jersey kids. I'd be shocked if we took Rutgers lightly."

Nehlen knows that Rutgers coach Dick Anderson played and coached in the ultra-successful Penn State program and his teams are fundamentally sound.

"A lot of times, you go into a game and you don't have to win; just hang around long enough and the other team will give you the game," Nehlen said.

"But that's not true with Rutgers.
You've got to find a way to beat those guys because they're not going to beat themselves."

Anderson & Co. are well aware that West Virginia is 9-0 for the first time in its football history, which dates back to 1891, and is expected to face No. 1-ranked Notre Dame in the Fiesta Bowl — provided it gets past upset-minded Rutgers. The Fiesta Bowl's president and executive director will be on hand Saturday.

"They're a good football team, a very well-balanced football team," Anderson said of the Mountaineers. "You can see as you watch them on film the reason why they're undefeated and the reason why they're ranked so high and the reason why they score so many points (45.1 a game, fourth nationally) and average almost 500 yards per game (495.6, sixth in the country)."

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Two days after TV talk-show host Phil Donahue took on women wrestlers, Geraldo Rivera isn't making any bones about having his nose broken in a brawl on today's edition of his syndicated show, "Geraldo."

In the show, taped in New York on Nov. 3, a fight broke out between black activists and representatives of a professed racist organization. Rivera was hit with a chair and his nose is broken when he tried to stop the free-for-all.

In what is being advertised as an 'unprecedented" move, Rivera has taped a special introduction for today's "Geraldo" installment:

"As most of you already know, and as you can see by the way I look right now, today's program on 'Young Hatemongers' came to an unexpectedly violent conclusion," Rivera says. "Parents, be advised that the language and violence contained makes this show inappropriate for small children."

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) -Violinist Isaac Stern will be the honorary chairman of a committee to hand out awards named after opera great Marian Anderson and aimed at furthering the careers of young American singers.

The Marian Anderson Celebration Committee will seek to raise $500,000 for a permanent fund to finance the annual awards. Seed money of $25,000 has been provided by the Greater Danbury Arts Council, the Charles Ives Center for the Arts announced Thursday.

Other members of the committee include Harry Belafonte, Lloyd Richards, Kitty Carlisle Hart, and Vladmir and Wanda Toscanini Horowitz.

Anderson, who has lived in Danbury since she retired in 1945, was the first black opera star to perform at the Metropolitan Opera in New York and sang at the inaugurations of Franklin D. Roosevelt and John F. Kennedy.

NEW YORK (AP) - Singer John Cougar Mellencamp has failed in an attempt to regain publishing rights to songs he sold 11 years ago when he was a struggling rock 'n' roller.

The singer had sued Riva Music Ltd. in a federal court in Manhattan, saying its president, William Gaff, agreed to sell back the songs for $3 million.

But the court recently rejected Mellencamp's contention that Gaff shook hands on the deal, noting that such agreements are normally put on paper.

The native of Seymour, Ind., sold the songs when he was known as Johnny Cougar.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Over the years I have seen a great many kids go haywire. It's often difficult to determine exactly what went wrong, but once it happens, every effort should be made to learn why, in order to straighten things out.

Here is a pretty good formula for turning out bad:

RECIPE FOR BECOMING A DROPOUT

Take one child who has had some tough breaks. Mold into a chip on the shoulder. Press firmly into a tough shell of refusing to accept guidance. Add a heaping cup of hostility. Fold in equal amounts of arrogance and anger.

Mix well and take the easy way out. Add regular dashes of the wrong friends. Sift in the refusal to listen to people who know what they're talking about.

Stir vigorously with shortsightedness, excuses for not doing homework, and refusals to accept help. Sprinkle with a thick coating of caring more for what's cool than for what's right. Finally, cover with a thick layer of blame. There is always plenty to go 'round.

This casserole is called Adolescent Surprise. If you're surprised, you don't get it. If you get it, you're not surprised.-B.T. of Beantown

Women meet at YMCA

Trisha Lemons and Larry Ritter were the guest speakers at the Young Homemakers of Hereford meeting held Tuesday evening at the YMCA.

Lemons explained the importance of eating nutritious foods and how to incorporate these foods into the family's diet without having to make major adjustments. She also stressed the importance of reading labels. Ritter focused on the role physical fitness plays in maintaining good health. Before the conclusion of the program, the women were issued free two week passes to the YMCA to participate in the exercise programs.

The meeting adjourned following a brief business session where refreshments were served to those DEAR B.T.: There's a lot of wisdom in that essay. The key fac-tors are self-reliance and the willingness to accept help.

I believe it's a lot harder to grow up straight and strong today than it was when I was a teenager (the Stone Age, of course).

There weren't as many permissive parents in those days, nor was there the easy availability of drugs, guns and extra money. And we didn't spend thousands of hours in front of a

If I sound like a museum piece I apologize, but this is the way I see it - and I've been a close observer for a very long time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read the letter from the girl who held a grudge against her father because she felt he hadn't fought hard enough for his visitation rights. Actually her mother hated him and did everything in her power to keep him away.

I thought of my own son "Rob." He was 9 when I last saw him and would soon be 16. It was no big deal at the time, but as the years passed I began to realize how much I missed that boy. I thought often of contacting him but decided it would be awkward because I would be a stranger to him.

That letter in your column changed my mind. I decided to write to Rob and I sent him a copy of it. I said I didn't want to cause a major upheaval in his life, but if he wanted to see me I would meet him any

He phoned the day he received my letter. We set a date to meet. the last time I'd seen him he was a little boy and I had to squat down to button his collar. Now, here stands, before me very eyes, a 6-foot-tall person - a terrific human being!

We spent the day asking each other questions and becoming reacquainted. He met his grandparents, who hadn't seen him since he was a baby. They were thrilled.

Rob came up to see me again last weekend, and I'm sure we will continue to see each other on a regular basis now. Thanks, Ann Landers, for one heck of a present.-M.T.S., Fort Worth, Tex.

DEAR TEX: Don't thank me. Thank Rob's mother. She's the one who turned out that "terrific human being." I'm thrilled for all of you and delighted that my column brought you together.

Write for Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "Sex and the Teenager." Send $3 plus a selfaddressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, III. 60611-0562.

I'm not running for office, but I'd like to make an announcement.

Helpme, I'm SIXTY!

Where is he today We have a hunch, he's eating some cake, or gone to Slaton for a box lunch. (And maybe win a free pass.)

He's a grown man, so he doesn't cry, when a loss is applied to old football foe Hayden Fry. (That's back BEFORE he became "Speedy")

Back east, folks thought, "He's a Texas weirdo, Because on his burgers, he wants some Mayo.'

It's been a wonderful life, so we've been told. because he's done things that are, well, call it "bold." He's made a U-turn on a Boston freeway And has a new story Almost everyday.

About typos and blunders That have happened among us, Like the "free pass" And the "wife" from the circus. (Did they really run her picture in an obituary)

Perhaps making trades is his big knack, Like trading his car for a house that was no shack.

Since you own this newspaper we can't get too mean, so we'll have to say "Happy birthday, O--- G---."
