Race for sheriff becomes heated

By ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

The roadside becomes a red, white and blue blur as a passer-by whizzes through a Hereford street.

Easing up on the accelerator, he notices the blur isn't coming from flags. It isn't Columbus Day or Washington's Birthday. The blur is campaign signs touting Hereford Police Lt. Ted Langgood or Sheriff Joe Brown as the best man for Deaf Smith County sheriff.

A drive through Hereford can tell anybody this race is hot.

"My campaign has been very positive and issue-oriented," said Langgood, who has served 10 years in law enforcement, including three as lieutenant. "I have brought up issues that people should know about that are going on in the courthouse, but I wouldn't call it mud-slinging."

Langgood's most recent allegation against Brown (sheriff since September 1983, in law enforcement for 17 years) is that Brown allowed Refugio Pesina to be a jail trustee only days after incarceration.

Pesina is being held in the county jail on charges of burglary of a habitation in Deaf Smith County. He has already been sentenced to five years in the Texas Department of Corrections for theft in Potter County.

In a letter to the Brand, Langgood said, "In the case of Pesina, many county residents will remember the torty and uncertainty of the past summer wondering if they would return to find a house violated by burglars. Yet when this burglar is finally caught and returned to the Deaf Smith County Jail, our sheriff allows him the benefit of the 'easy life' of being a jail trustee."

Langgood was correct in saying that Pesina was placed on a trustee status shortly after being jailed, but Brown and the jailers had known Pesina because Pesina had been in the jail several times before and was a good worker each time.

"We've used him in the past. We know him," said Brown. "We've used him to paint the courtroom when it was being renovated and he did a really nice job. He's really a handyman. Right now we have him painting the jail, and if we didn't have a trustee to do it, we'd have to hire outside help."

Langgood also said the trustees in charge of washing patrol cars beside the courthouse have no supervision.

A county jailer said, however, that if trustees are washing cars, a jailer checks on them every 20-30 minutes and a camera monitors them constantly.

The last escape by a trustee was Feb. 2, 1987, when a trustee charged with forgery dropped a case of Kool-Aid on a jailer's foot and ran. He was captured several hours later.

At a local Republican party gathering three weeks ago, Langgood said that inmates were allowed to watch Home Box Office (HBO), a private movie channel which, Langgood said, "glorifies drug abuse, violence and explicit sexual situations."

Brown later said that the only movies that existed in the jail were in the jailers' office and the dispatchers' office and the inmates were never allowed in either of these offices.

"Joe lied when he said the HBO wasn't in there," said Langgood. "He also lied when he said the inmates never went into the jailers' or dispatchers' office. And what business do dispatchers have watching movies?"

According to County Treasurer

Vesta Mae Nunley the county has never paid a bill to Hereford Cablevision for HBO, and jail administrator David Castillo said he has never paid for the service out of the jail commissary fund which receives its money by selling toiletry items or cigarettes to the inmates.

"The cable company forgot to scramble the HBO signal when we first got the regular 12 channels," said Castillo. "They finally got the signal scrambled and we've never had it since. We sure haven't been paying for it. And the 12 channels we get are free. Even the police department can get it free."

Brown defended his use of television in the offices because "these people are confined for eight hours a day. They can't leave. I've never had problems with the TVs and if I did, they'd be gone. Besides, we don't let them turn the volume up. They can just watch the TV screen."

These aren't the only slip-ups Langgood is accusing of Brown.

"The atmosphere that surrounds the sheriff's office is too loose. Their radio traffic is unprofessional, their personal conduct is unprofessional and they're inconsistent with the dress code because some guys wear felt hats and others don't or some wear black boots and some wear brown."

"We at the police department have all the persons going in one direction (See SHERIFF, Page 2A)

Happy Homecoming

Wendy Connally, right, was crowned Hereford High School's 1988 Homecoming Queen on Friday. Connally, 17, is a senior. It wouldn't be a happy Homecoming without winning the football game. That happiness was provided by Pat Mercer (below), who begins to celebrate in the end zone after catching a 50-yard pass from Jason Scott to give Hereford a 32-26 win.

Local Roundup

Commodity distribution is Thursday

Panhandle Community Services will hold a commodity distribution Thursday beginning at 10 a.m. at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn in Hereford.

Senior citizens may enter from the east door, and seating will be provided so they do not have to stand in line. All other recipients should enter through the west door.

Ramirez takes stand at trial

Paul Ramirez told a Randall County jury on Friday that he did not recall shooting his wife, Mary, last Nov. 22 at a roadside park near Umbarger.

Ramirez testified in his own behalf at his murder trial at the Randall County Courthouse in Canyon. He is charged with killing his estranged wife as they were sitting in her car on a late Sunday afternoon.

Ramirez explained how the couple's relationship had deteriorated after 18 years and led to a separation in July 1986.

On the day Mary Ramirez was killed, Paul Ramirez said his wife called their Hereford home from Amarillo and said she was returning to Hereford. Ramirez said he packed his bags and left for Amarillo at about 4 or 4:30 p.m.

Ramirez said he saw his wife driving west from Umbarger and motioned for her to stop.

Ramirez said he got into her car and tried to discuss their relationship. Ramirez said his wife said she hated him and called him names, pulled her wedding ring off and threw it at him, then threatened to leave him and take two of their children with her.

Ramirez said during this time she had started the car, but he reached over and turned off the ignition. He said his wife reached over and grabbed a .32-caliber handgun he was wearing on his right hip. He said he pulled it away from her with both hands and the gun went off.

He said he realized when she stopped screaming that she had been shot. "She wasn't saying anything and I looked at her and she had blood in her mouth," he testified. "I looked at her. I cleaned her mouth."

He said he then put the gun in his mouth and it went off.

Under cross-examination, Ramirez denied throwing away the weapon or shooting himself for sympathy or to avoid arrest. "Ramirez yelled, 'I wouldn't hurt her. I wouldn't hurt her for the world.'"

Final arguments in the case were heard Friday night.

Dukakis was busy man at Swarthmore

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
SWARTHMORE, Pa. (AP) — Looking back on those halcyon (also the name of the yearbook) days, college chums are undecided whether Michael's barber shop on the third floor of Wharton Hall or courses nicknamed "Ditch Digging and Sewage Disposal 1 & 2" gave distant early warning of a future Democratic presidential candidate.

Of course it was the "D" in general physics that discouraged freshman Michael Dukakis from becoming a physician, like his Greek immigrant father, and inspired Swarthmore's now best-selling T-shirt: "Anywhere else, it would have been an A."

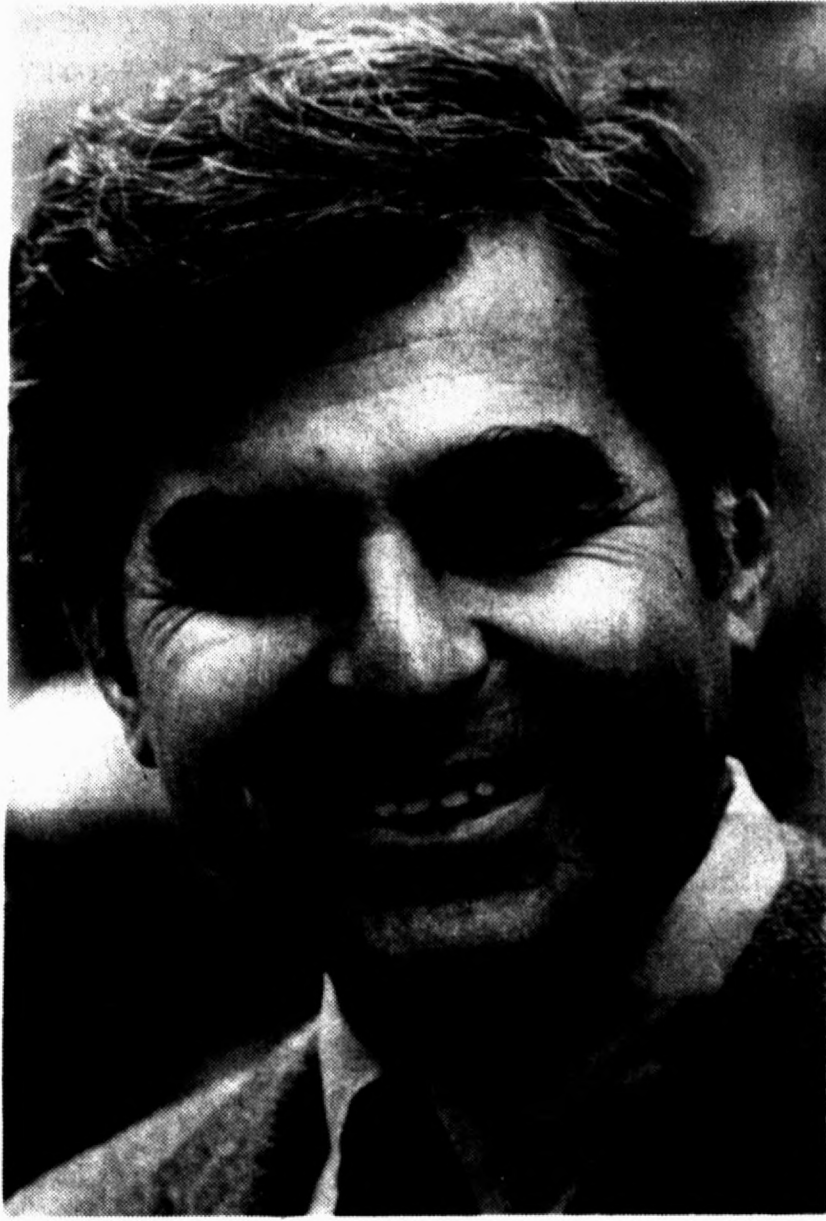

Practical politics, solving problems in state and local government, as taught in the early '50s by Paul Ylvisaker, intrigued the scholarship student who had graduated second in a class of 439 at intellectually top-drawer Brookline High School in the suburbs of Boston. In a matter of weeks, Michael, who in those days was never called "Duke" and rarely "Mike," was ringing doorbells in West Philadelphia and handing out campaign literature for Joe Clark, the reform candidate who became the first Democrat in 70 years to capture Philadelphia's city hall.

"Swarthmore has always been pretty liberal, an egghead campus, where kids think they can change the world," says Leighton Whitaker, who was a year ahead of Dukakis and now is director of psychological services at the college. "But Michael wasn't a rah-rah guy. He'd sooner do something about an issue than attend rallies and demonstrations."

"Theory wasn't his bag," adds professor emeritus J. Roland Pennock, summoning up a memory of a dark-eyed lad seated Buddha-style on his living room floor for those afternoon seminars on political theory. "His arguments were sound, well-researched, but he was less aggressive and less talkative without a real problem to sink his teeth into."

Actually it was Jonathan Fine, his Brookline buddy and now head of Physicians for Human Rights, who proposed boycotting the three barber shops down in "the vill," the village, when they refused to cut the hair of three Nigerian students. Dukakis made it work by wielding the comb and clippers in the dorm and sometimes out on the lawn.

Some recall his charging 50 cents, others say 65 cents, for a "flattop," the only styling offered.

MICHAEL DUKAKIS
... To him, BMOC meant "Busy Man On Campus"

"There may have been a two-tier price structure, depending on what the trade would bear," mused associate provost emeritus Gilmore Stott, who as admissions officer back then coaxed Dukakis into entering Swarthmore over a dinner cooked by his wife Mary. "He was being penny-wise as well as striking a blow for racial equality. Barbering gave him some pocket money."

Classmate Ted Perkins, a Philadelphia patent attorney, surmises the barber of Wharton may have been a youthful edition of the tightwad governor who picks his suits off the rack in Filene's bargain basement, still shops for specials at the supermarket, grew his own lettuce on the front lawn when the price hit 89 cents a head, pushes a 25-year-old snow blower and often rides "the T," the suburban trolley, from Brookline to the Massachusetts State House.

"But with a captive audience in the chair, Michael never could resist politics," Perkins recalls. "Frank Sieverts, his roommate, told us the hotter the argument got, the faster the hair flew."

Visiting a Philadelphia high school for a week in a senior class exchange program, Dukakis was attracted by the beauty of the campus. Its being coed and small enough for nearly half the student body to take part in varsity sports also proved persuasive.

Brookline High had conditioned him for Swarthmore's heady intellectual climate.

"He was brilliant, got all A's — isn't that disgusting?" marvels Sandra Cohen, now Bakalar, his high school sweetheart. She was secretary of the student council when Dukakis solved the problem of broken milk bottles in the lunch room by having the distributor deliver paper cartons. "But Michael lost a big election in senior year: Bob Wool beat him out for class president."

Dukakis was a cross-country track star, captain of the tennis team and, at only 5-foot-8, a guard on the basketball team emulating the backcourt hustle of rookie Bob Cousy, his idol on the Boston Celtics. He played first trumpet in the band, suffering chapped lips in the Thanksgiving Day football classic with ancient rival Newton.

"Oikonomia" — economy, as preached by his physician father — dictated chores after school and odd jobs like working as a garbage collector during summer vacations.

Fibbing about his age, 17-year-old Dukakis entered the 26-mile Boston Marathon. Practically the whole senior class turned out to cheer him up Heartbreak Hill and beg cups of water from the drugstores along Beacon Street as he finished a respectable 57th.

As recorded in Murivian, Brookline's yearbook, Dukakis was elected president and "pledged allegiance to the ideals of the Honorary Society, Alpha Pi."

"Big Chief Brain in the Face," as the book dubbed him, was too busy that frantic senior year to notice Kitty Dickson, a pretty freshman and already outspoken feminist, who a dozen years later would be introduced to her future husband and now presidential candidate by her best friend Sandy Bakalar.

"Running as if chased by Republicans," as The Phoenix, the campus weekly noted, marathon man Michael continued to excel in cross-country at Swarthmore.

Two months after arriving on campus, Dukakis on Nov. 3, 1951, celebrated his 18th birthday by registering for the draft. There were recurrent reminders in the Phoenix from Gen. Lewis Blaine Hershey that students were not exempt but deferred from the draft if they maintained a C-average.

Fraternities were a big issue on campus in the early '50s. Swarthmore was and is a dry town, and the five frat houses offered beer along with brotherhood.

"A wild Friday night party might go on until 12:30," says Leigh Whitaker, who like Preston, belonged to Delta Upsilon when their Wharton dorm mate Dukakis signed a letter in the Phoenix telling freshmen they didn't need to join a fraternity to have a good time at Swarthmore.

His main objection was a clause in some national charters discriminating against Jews and blacks. When a campus poll favored retaining fraternities, two of which still survive, Dukakis served on a bipartisan committee which recommended severing ties with national fraternities that discriminated.

As congressional anti-subversive investigators began questioning professors at nearby Temple University, young Dukakis joined and soon became campus president of Students for Democratic Action. He lobbied rural lawmakers to oppose a loyalty oath bill in the Pennsylvania Assembly and, according to Victor Navasky, now editor of the Nation Magazine, talked one out of every four schoolmates into joining the American Civil Liberties Union.

"Sen. Joseph McCarthy's excesses had a great deal to do with my seriously thinking about entering politics," Dukakis recently recalled.

In the election year of 1952, he was president of Students for Stevenson, who by a healthy margin became the first Democrat to win the campus straw vote. Although Republicans were "thin on the ground" to test the Dukakis debating skills, Preston recalls a bull session on the third floor of Wharton "when someone mentioned that Michael had it in him to go all the way, meaning the White House."

Ted also remembers the spring of their junior year "when murmurs of real excitement ran through the dining hall as Jo-Jo Black spread the word that her father, Justice Hugo Black, had just telephoned news of the Supreme Court decision outlawing school segregation. At Swarthmore, that was bigger than a World Series result."

Swarthmore's liberalism rankled many of the neighbors in the rest of Delaware County where Republicans outnumbered Democrats 8 to 1.

Dukakis recently recalled for an alumni group in Boston how the conductor on the West Chester local always sang out as the train approached the station before Swarthmore: "Morton, the stop before Moscow."

His admission to the honors program, which Swarthmore pioneered, put him in the top echelon of a remarkably brainy student body. His campus contemporaries included Howard Tenin, a quiet member of the wrestling team who would win a Nobel Prize in medicine; Carl Levin, the future U.S. senator from Michigan; Rhodes scholar Frank Sieverts, budding novelist Hugh Nissenson and future physicians Jon Fine and Richard Burtis, his hitchhiking buddy on summer vacations.

But the undergrad going wasn't all grind. There were midnight sleigh rides down Parrish Hill on cafeteria trays. "Freshman Serenade," a fall fertility rite, erupted into a party raid his first year. The girls on the top floor of Parrish Hall defended their lingerie by dumping wastebaskets of water on the male marauders and inserting toilet plungers into the handles of the dorm's double doors.

Dean of Men Everett Hunt appeared out of the shadows to restore order and was promptly deluged with a tub of sudsy laundry water. "Proves the campus isn't completely lifeless," he sputtered philosophically, taking to his bed with a bad case of chills.

Then there was the outrageous Adlai hoax that brought reporters and photographers swarming to the campus from the Philadelphia dailies. At the beginning of the 1953 spring term, Swarthmore was seeking a replacement for President John Nason, who was leaving to head the Foreign Policy Association. Frank Irish, who ran with Dukakis on the cross-country team, raced through the night to the firm that printed the Phoenix and substituted a bogus front page that proclaimed in tabloid-sized headlines "Adlai Prexy!!!"

The story spuriously quoted outgoing president Nason, "if our students thought Mr. Stevenson would make a good president for the country then he ought to be good enough for our college."

The administration was aghast and embarrassed, but Stevenson on vacation in the Caribbean was amused and cabled his "hope that the college will not deal harshly with my beloved and youthful friends."

Elected to Phi Beta Kappa, as well as president of the student council, Dukakis was one of five in a class of 210 to graduate with highest honors.

Young football fans

The Bright Sparks group of Camp Fire created their own homecoming mums for last Friday night's Hereford-Lubbock Dunbar football game. The youngsters, who are in the four- and five-year-old age group, also attend First Baptist

Smith beginning sexuality series

Dorman Smith will begin a five-week program on "Teen Sexuality" at 7:30 p.m. Sunday as part of the non-denominational "Kids In Christ" ministry.

The seminars will be held at the First Christian Church, on West Park Avenue. The youth wing may be entered through the southeast door.

ing their youth group to hear these lessons. Let's unite our kids and stand up for Jesus Christ."

Smith said he plans to speak "honestly and bluntly to the kids about why God demands that sex be reserved for the marriage. Television, movies, magazines and music do nothing but lie to our youth about life, alcohol, drugs and sex.

"We as parents, as Christians, and as church members cannot begin to compare to the 40 hours per week spent watching television and listening to music. It is no wonder our youth are so influenced by what they see and hear: We are being outmaneuvered by the media in teaching time, and the media are not teaching Christian principles to our youth."

Smith said there are 1,700 students in Hereford in junior high and high school that are not actively involved in a church youth program. "I believe that it is time that we take a stand and talk to our kids honestly and bluntly about sex and other areas of life," Smith said.

"The abuse of sex, alcohol and drugs are growing at an alarming rate among our youth. Some parents do not know what is happening, some are afraid to hear what is happening, and some are just scared to death. The bottom line is that our kids are hurting and reaching and searching for help for their problems and their pressures. I believe God commands us to answer that call.

"I want to teach the kids that God loves them, cares for them, and does not want them to experience heartache. I want to teach them that they can be a follower of Jesus Christ and still have a good time."

Security Federal in merger

IRVING, Texas (AP) — A cable television operator says he put up $80 million cash to acquire 11 insolvent Texas thrifts with government help Friday because he believes there is opportunity in the state's savings and loan industry.

Don A. Adam, 53, of Bryan, said he has divested a substantial number of cable companies operated by the Adam Corp.-Group of Bryan "primarily to posture myself for this opportunity that I have had a great interest in for 18 months."

Federal regulators on Friday pledged $1.3 billion to rescue the savings and loans located in West Texas and the Panhandle. The thrifts will be merged under the name of Olney Savings and Loan Association as part of the federal Southwest Plan to consolidate ailing thrifts across the nation.

The 11 institutions being acquired by the Adam Corp. are:

- Olney Savings Association, Olney;
- First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Amarillo; San Angelo Savings Association, San Angelo; Odessa Savings Association, Odessa;
- Southwest Savings and Loan Association, Abilene; Banc Home Savings Association, Midland;
- Southern Savings and Loan Association, Brownwood; Heart O' Texas Savings Association, San Saba; Shamrock Federal Savings Bank, Shamrock; Petroplex Savings

Association, Midland; and Security Federal Savings and Loan Association, Pampa.

"Financial institutions at this time, in my judgment, offer more opportunity than any investment opportunity that I'm aware of," Adam said during a news conference. "The opportunity to own a franchise such as the new Olney Savings and Loan and the areas in which it will operate I think are second to none."

and we all have one goal. We're consistent. It's a proven fact that the public will look at a peace officer first and base their impression of the whole department on that first impression," Langgood said.

Brown said Langgood's intentions of rearranging the sheriff's department were typical of a police officer because Brown, who worked on the Hereford police force before becoming sheriff, had the same ideas.

"I was the same way when I came over here," said Brown. "But now I know the system over there (police department) and I know the system here. It doesn't work the same. Does the city have a jail to administrate over? Does the city have courts other than Municipal Court to mess with? A lot of what they have to handle over there is handing out citations, manning the school zones and answering phones. It's a different ballgame over here."

KPAN, Hereford's radio station, has asked the two candidates to debate issues on the air. Langgood has agreed to the challenge, Brown has not.

"I'm not afraid to debate, but why should I give him any exposure?" said Brown. "Besides, Langgood is a good talker and I'm not. I don't like it and I never have. I don't mind talking to people one-on-one, but I'm not a politician and Ted is."

Workshop planned

A workshop for substitute teachers and anyone who would like to be a substitute teacher is set for Oct. 22 from 9 a.m. until noon in the Hereford High School cafeteria. Co-sponsored by HISD administration and Deaf Smith County Classroom Teachers Association, the workshop will address such subjects as making lesson plans and guidelines will be offered. Presenters will be local teachers, principals, and Superintendent Charles Greenawalt. CTA officers examining the meeting's agenda are, from left, Wanda Nall, president; Teddie Poindexter, district director; Judy Bullard, president-elect; and Nan Coneway, treasurer.

Former resident shares poetry writings with club

Former Hereford resident, Oline Caraway of Stratford, was the guest speaker at the Pioneer Study Club meeting Tuesday morning in the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Caraway writes poetry and has won numerous awards for her creative work. She is a member of Prospectus Study Club, is district chairman of the Home Life Department, and is a leader in the district and state Federation of Womens' Clubs. The speaker recited some of her poetry and Mary Panciera read one of Caraway's poems entitled "Have you Hugged Someone Today?"

Billie Johnson opened the meeting with the invocation and Etoile Manning led the Pledge of Allegiance to the United States Flag and Lucy Fay Cocanougher led the Salute to the Texas Flag.

During the business meeting with President Panciera presiding, reports were received from Bessie Hill, secretary; Fern Ford, treasurer; Gladys Miller, chairman of the M.C. Anderson Cancer Clinic needs; and Mable Heard, fundraising chairman.

Heard reported that she had received a large order of tulip bulbs from the Borger club women and she also displayed the new G.F.W.C. Centennial Cookbook which may be purchased from any club members. The cookbook, which come packaged in a mailable gift box, is illustrated in full color and features family favorite recipes selected from 12,000 recipes submitted by club women throughout the federation. The cookbooks are priced at $12 each plus the additional $1.50 charge for postage and handling. The cookbook commemorates the 100th birthday of Things you should know about Chiropractic:

- Massage & Manipulation
- No Harmful Drug Use
- Thorough X-ray Exam

The whole body is the most important concern of chiropractic. It deals with the inter-relationship of the central nervous system, the brain and the spinal column and their single and combined effect on the rest of the body, especially when malfunctions occur.

Cure for Backache

One of the most important functions of your chiropractor is manipulation of the spine to release aches and pains and to allow normal transmission of nerve impulses from the brain through the spine to every part of the body. If you suffer periodically from the nagging symptoms of backache, a simple adjustment for proper spinal alignment may be all it takes to make you feel great again. Call us today!

In the first place, the leave will not be with pay! In addition it is not the seventh year, nor is it for rest or travel. Research was the only appropriate word. Doug claims he needs time off to work on a book which is scheduled to be published soon.

Speaking of stress, we read where a school near Dallas is trying to remove stress at the junior high level. or, at least the principal is hoping to get rid of his stress. Every 8th-grade girl who wants to be a cheerleader just signs up. There are no tryouts, no personality contests, and no broken hearts.

The school has 150 cheerleaders who participate both as yell leaders and as the pep squad at all junior high games. I doubt that the principal got much relief with this solution. You can't legislate morality and you can't make everyone equal in all respects. Achievers must be recognized.

JFK Not the President Bentsen-Quayle Exchange Would Indicate
The mystique around former President John F. Kennedy haunts us so much that mere mention of his name still carries an explosive power.

"It tells you all you want to know about the vacuous hype of the 1968 presidential race that its most electric drama erupted around a president who's been dead 25 years," wrote Sandy Grady of Knight-Ridder Newspapers after last week's vice presidential debates.

A big segment of the population wasn't alive during his presidency. They know him only through a nostalgic gauze of films, books and television docudramas.

Yet historians don't rate him among the first rank of U.S. presidents.

The historical magazine American Heritage asked prominent scholars, journalists and others to judge who, in all of American history, is "the single most overrated public figure."

The front-runner ... ? John F. Kennedy ...

Despite his soaring rhetoric, Kennedy presided over some major strategic defeats: the botched invasion of Cuba, the erection of the Berlin Wall.

Many remember the Cuban missile crisis as a victory. But withdrawal of Moscow's missiles came at a price that Kennedy did not need to pay: his pledge to accept the continuation of the Castro regime, now the globe's most aggressive exporter of Communism.

Whatever one thinks of Kennedy's domestic program, the important point is that he failed to enact it.

Public housing, Medicare, tax cuts and civil rights legislation all were achieved by the more skillful but far less stylish Lyndon Johnson.

The last president to be assassinated before John Kennedy was William McKinley. McKinley's faults, too, were forgotten in the grief that followed. ... But more balanced judgments came with time.

Whistleblower Bill

The House of Representatives has moved admirably to shore up the protection of whistleblowers who expose government mismanagement and waste. The Senate should now concur on the latest strengthening of the law designed to ensure that whistleblowers are not railroaded out of government service just because they report wrongdoing.

The bill passed the House 418-0 and would make the Office of the Special Counsel a stronger defender of whistleblowers and expand protection of government employees so that they can, for example, refuse to obey an order if it violates the law.

Sentiment was strong among House members that the Office of the Special Counsel was not doing its job. The Senate should pass the bill and send it to the president for his signature.

Pinochet Should Step Aside Next Year

It was an astonishing vote for democracy in Chile ..., astonishing because it is rare that a military dictator, with no reservations about the use of force to retain power, allows himself to lose an election, but Gen. Augusto Pinochet did.

It was astonishing, too, that Gen. Pinochet apparently thought he could win after 15 years of a brutal dictatorship. But the general, who once compared himself to "the best Roman emperors" made a miscalculation, one that could now allow the return of democracy to a country that was once one of Latin America's finest democracies.

... So what happens now? Pinochet could hold on to power for 18 more months; his term of office doesn't end until 1990. But he should step aside now in favor of a return to democracy next year. The United States should encourage the general to step aside and try to facilitate the return to democracy. The Chilean people deserve it.

Texas Guest Column

Stuck for Presidential choice?

By CAROL RUST
Beaumont Enterprise
BRIDGE CITY, Texas (AP) — Once again, folks, it's that very exciting (yawn) time that comes but once every four years (zzzz...) when we the American people have the duty and privilege of choosing our most exalted leader (zzzzzz...)

Hey! Wake up! I'm talking about the president here.

And, once again, all you excited voters, we've been served up some pretty slim political pickings with little more than feeble jokes for garnish.

Slim political pickings, except for Fred Bailey, this guy you probably don't know unless you've been to his fish camp here (a lot of people have), but the person you WOULD vote for if you knew him.

I discussed the presidency with Fred recently, and in all seriousness, I think he'd do well as our country's chief executive. At least, he'd make a better president than George Bush, whose joke-telling abilities are matched in weakness only by mixed drinks at gyp joints.

What's even worse is that Democratic presidential hopeful Michael Dukakis stoops to respond to Bush's jokes with attempts at humor that must have been written by brain-dead shoe salesmen.

So Fred Bailey brings a fresh new approach to the presidential race: he won't tell bad jokes about his opponents.

Furthermore, he DOESN'T CARE IF HE WINS. He'd rather sell a beer to either Bush or Dukakis or both down at the fish camp and tell them good-natured jokes that have nothing to do with politics.

He doesn't see any point in getting folks bent out of shape over something as insignificant as the presidency.

He'd add a laid-back atmosphere to a campaign that Bush and Dukakis have approached like a couple of mud-wrestlers.

And another thing about Fred Bailey as president: he wouldn't bore watchers of television and readers of newspapers with public appearance after boring public appearance once he was elected.

He'll be the first to tell you he'd rather just stay at home in his weathered old building near the ferry landing on Sabine Lake than get out and kiss a bunch of babies.

I'll bet if Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev visited the United States, Fred would make him come down to the fish camp for any high-level negotiations, but not without serving him a beer and showing him around the place first. He'd probably even let Gorbachev and his interpreter have the first couple of rounds on the house, paving the way for lasting world peace.

Since Fred doesn't have a wife, readers wouldn't be bored with story after story about the first ladies getting along-not getting along-spitting in each other's soup.

And Fred has a real dog that smells like a real dog, not one of those fluffy, yappy excuses for a dog that Nancy Reagan lugs around on a leash for the benefit of television cameras.

Of course, Fred's term as president wouldn't be without its changes.

For one thing, if he were elected, he rather have "Joli Blanc" played instead of "Hail to the Chief" at important functions.

That is a small sacrifice indeed on the part of the American public to have a president who doesn't put you to sleep the second he opens his mouth and starts talking.

Furthermore, Fred is a man for all seasons: oyster season, deer season, duck season and alligator season. And he knows what seasonings to use when cooking them.

With all these credentials, Fred still isn't sure about accepting my nomination.

"I wouldn't mind being president," he says, "but who'd run the bar?"

And that, ladies and gentlemen, is a man who truly has his priorities straight.

Family and work: a new era

by Frederick J. Krebs
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

As the end of this decade approaches, balancing work and family responsibilities has become a major concern for many Americans. A dramatically changing work force has transformed a traditionally private concern for parents into a workplace and a political issue.

The driving force behind these changes is the increasing number of working women. According to a recent Department of Labor report:

"Today, 70 percent of women between the ages of 25-34 are employed, compared with 35 percent in 1950.

"Forty-five percent of the entire work force are women. In 1950, only 30 percent was female.

"By the year 2000, 61.5 percent of all women will work outside the home. And between now and then, it is estimated that three-fifths of new entrants to the labor force will be women.

"Of women with children under 6 years old, 57 percent work now, compared with 12 percent in 1950.

Given the increasing numbers of working women, no one disputes the fact that a need for child care exists. Indeed, this issue has become a political football for liberals and conservatives alike.

All camps have their own versions of how to improve child care services. Some members of Congress believe the government should have an active role in regulating and providing access to child care. Others would opt for a less intrusive federal role, preferring to encourage voluntary private-sector options that would make child care more affordable and available. Thus, this debate centers around the extent of involvement by the federal government.

Meanwhile, the private sector—without a government mandate—already is addressing the child care issue. For many companies, child care is, or soon will become, an economic question. According to a recent study of 56 firms, parents lose an average of eight workdays each year due to child care problems. Nearly 40 percent of workers with children actually consider leaving their jobs because of difficulties in finding good child care.

An employer who assists in child care can increase productivity, reduce absenteeism and improve overall morale. In addition, employers giving child care benefits likely will find they have a recruitment advantage and an enhanced public image. Such competitive benefits will become increasingly important as the labor pool shrinks in coming years.

The need to balance work and family responsibilities affects businesses of all sizes as well as all groups of workers—rich or poor, two-parent or one-parent. As a result, no one solution will satisfy everyone.

Many believe that the only way business can address the need for child care is to offer on-site care. However, this is short-sighted. Such a program is not always feasible nor affordable for businesses. Cost, lack of space and other factors may discourage small businesses from opening on-site centers. In addition, parents may not want to use the services of the facility. They may prefer to leave their children closer to home in a familiar environment. But there are other options available to the business community.

An information and referral system may provide greater satisfaction for both employer and employee than on-site care. Materials or services provided by local chambers, workplace seminars, management consulting services and electronic data base references often are used by small companies to provide child care assistance to their employees.

In 1985, the Delaware Chamber of Commerce recognized the need for the business community to become involved. The result was the Child Care Connection, a private, nonprofit organization which is a centralized information center for child care services for working parents, employers, child care professionals and children in Delaware. The Child Care Connection provides parents with information through an electronic data base. In addition, it offers workplace seminars and management consulting services to help employers address their employees' child care needs. More than 6,000 parents from 815 companies have received assistance.

Consortium-supported child care facilities are another way for small businesses to become involved in child care. While small firms may not have the resources to operate an on-site child care facility, they can overcome hurdles such as acquiring liability insurance and finding space by joining with other companies.

Other businesses are developing innovative methods for addressing the work/family dilemma. The Polaroid Corp., for example, pays a direct subsidy to cover a percentage of an employee's day care bill. The percentage varies according to a sliding scale based on income. Polaroid also has a referral service that compliments their voucher system.

"Flexitime," job sharing, purchased slots in care centers, voucher systems and direct payments are other popular options. Direct payments can offer tax benefits to both employer and employee through section 129 of the tax code.

All these policies have a dual advantage. They allow business to respond to their employees' child care needs by helping them "buy into" existing systems. Yet, they also enable businesses to respect the privacy and freedom of choice of the parents and avoid potential liability problems.

It is clear that the business community, without interference from the government, is responding to the needs of workers. On-site child care is not the only, or necessarily the best, answer. Businesses must have flexibility to continue to address work/family needs by using creative ideas that are mutually beneficial to the employer and employee.

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek is startled to find out something about ex-Congressman.

Dear editor: News people are concentrating on who's going to get elected President and neglecting who's going to get elected to Congress.

Regardless of how a Presidential candidate stands on issues or how he dodges them, Congress is the outfit that passes the laws that affect you and me.

One reason not much attention is paid to Congressional races is that 95 percent of Congressmen generally get re-elected. Once in, they're there for life if they aren't caught taking a bribe instead of a campaign contribution. It's easier to defeat a President than a Congressman.

Some thinkers say this is deplorable, that a Congressman ought to be limited to, say, two terms. Under that arrangement he, knowing he wasn't there for life, could vote his conscience if he hasn't misplaced it and, at the end of two short terms, go back home and do whatever he was doing before he got to Washington.

However, an item in the paper the other day has thrown a small amount of doubt on this idea.

According to it, when a Congressman retires he draws a pension equal to the salary of an acting Congressman. There are ex-Congressmen drawing $89,500 a year, the same as those still in office.

Thus, when a Congressman retires somebody of course takes his place and we then have doubled the tax burden—$89,500 for the retired member, $89,500 for the new member. The trade-in price of the old one is equal to the price of the new one.

You can see there's considerable saving in using the same Congressman over and over, regardless of how threadbare his tires are.

Yours faithfully
J.A.

First National Bank Says Thanks!

"The area itself offers many built-in advantages for running a successful business." This has been the consistent messages from the variety of businesses and industries we at First National have gotten to know over the past weeks. And the praises of Hereford and this area are no different from the Hereford Grain Co-op.

Thirty-four years ago, about 50 farmers formed the Hereford Grain Co-op to assist other area farmers in merchandising their product and since 1954, the Co-op has seen good success with more than 800 farmers participating today. With 25 employees, the Co-op attributes much of its success to another of Hereford's important industries — cattle feeding. For Hereford Grain Co-op, this area really provides the best of both business worlds — the supply and the demand.

We are the First National Bank want to say thanks to Hereford Grain Co-op for the services you offer to our valuable farming industries, as well as the quality product you provide to our cattle feeders. You are a shining example of the importance of our strong industrial base, and of how industries work hand-in-hand in Hereford.

Herd rallies for wild 32-26 win

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Hereford wide receiver Pat Mercer only caught two passes Friday night but both were for touchdowns and one came with 54 seconds left in the important District 1-4A contest as the Whitefaces came from behind for an exciting 32-26 victory over Lubbock Dunbar.

Big plays and miscues made the game a thriller for the fans, most of them celebrating HHS Homecoming and the Herd's 20th straight home-field victory.

Tailback Keith Brown rushed for 113 yards on 24 attempts, scoring touchdowns on runs of 9 and 2 yards and lofting a 40-yard scoring pass to Mercer. Quarterback Jason Scott ran 9 yards for a score and hit Mercer with the game winner. He connected on 7 of 11 passes for the night for 141 yards.

The Herd defense played better than the score indicated, but two roughing-the-punter penalties, a bad snap over the Whiteface punter's head, a few missed tackles and the failure to convert extra points kept Dunbar's Panthers in the game.

Trailing 14-12 at halftime, the Whitefaces came back to limit the Panthers to 10 yards rushing in the second half. Take away a 44-yard scoring pass that shouldn't have been, and Dunbar had only 33 more passing yards in the second half.

Hereford fell behind by 20-12 early in the third period after taking the kickoff and being forced to punt after three plays. Dunbar quarterback Leon Roberts fired a quick strike to Jeff Johnson in the flat on the first play. Johnson sidestepped a tackler behind the line of scrimmage, broke a couple of tackle attempts and raced down the sideline 44 yards for a quick score.

Hereford came back and drove the ball to the Dunbar 16, but a fourth-down pass to the end zone went incomplete. Five plays later, however, the Herd defense pounced on an errant pitch, with Mercer recovering at the Panther 32. Brown, Kyle Andrews and Steve Steward contributed good gains, and Brown went to the right and cut back for a 9-yard scoring run. Hereford made its only conversion points of the night when Brown fought his way across the goal line for 2 points and a 20-20 tie.

Disaster struck Hereford on the next series. After forcing a Dunbar punt, Hereford posted a first down and then stalled. The snap to punter Brian Fowler sailed over his head. Fowler chased down the ball but was tackled for a 20-yard loss at the Herd 24. Five plays later, Patrick Lewis plunged 3 yards to put Dunbar back on top, 26-20 with 7:54 left in the game.

Hereford made one first down on the next possession and had to punt. But defensive back Clint Cotten picked off a Dunbar pass and returned it 48 yards to the Panther 14. It took Brown three plays to cover the 14 yards, with the touchdown coming on a 3-yard run with 4:02 left in the game. Andrews' point-after kick sailed to the right and the game was tied at 26-26.

During a timeout, Hereford learned it was ahead in penetrations and first downs, but Whiteface players were determined to keep the home-field win streak intact.

A third-down pass play netted Dunbar one first down on its next possession, then two sacks of the quarterback by Brad Smith forced a Lubbock punt. Hereford took over on its own 30 with 1:53 left in the game.

Brown carried twice for 11 yards and a first down on the Dunbar 49.

Then Scott found Mercer streaking down the west sideline and hit him about the 20. Mercer raced on in to the end zone for the deciding score. Roger McCracken's kick missed the mark, but Hereford had the lead with just 54 seconds left. Dunbar hit one pass for 6 yards but missed on three others.

Dunbar scored on its first possession of the game. Hereford stopped the Panthers for just three yards on the first series, but the Whitefaces were flagged for roughing the kicker on the punt.

With a first down on its own 42, Dunbar struck quickly. Bobby Savedra got behind the Hereford secondary and took a pass 57 yards to the Whiteface 1-yard line. Lewis plunged over for the score and the Panthers used a "swinging gate" to tally two extra points on a run.

Hereford came back to drive to the Panther 10, with Glenn Parker's 17-yard run being the big play in the drive. The Panthers held, however, and a fourth-down pass to Andrews was not enough. Dunbar retaliated with its own drive, moving to the Herd 9. But on a third and 13 pass attempt, Mercer saved the day with an interception on the 1.

Hereford then cranked up a 99-yard scoring drive to get on the board. Brown and Andrews accounted for most of the yardage on the drive, with Parker contributing a 20-yard run and Scott passing to Andrews for 15 yards. Brown climaxed the march by racing around the left side from 6 yards out. Carl Delozier's pass try for two points missed the mark and Dunbar still led, 8-6, with 6:37 left in the first half.

Hereford finally took its first lead on the next possession. After Brown got 11 yards in two tries, Scott pitched to Brown on what appeared to be another run.

But Brown pulled up and lofted a pass to Mercer who had worked his way behind the Panther secondary. Mercer raced the remaining distance for a score. Scott was trapped trying a 2-point pass attempt and Hereford led by 12-8 with 4:35 left.

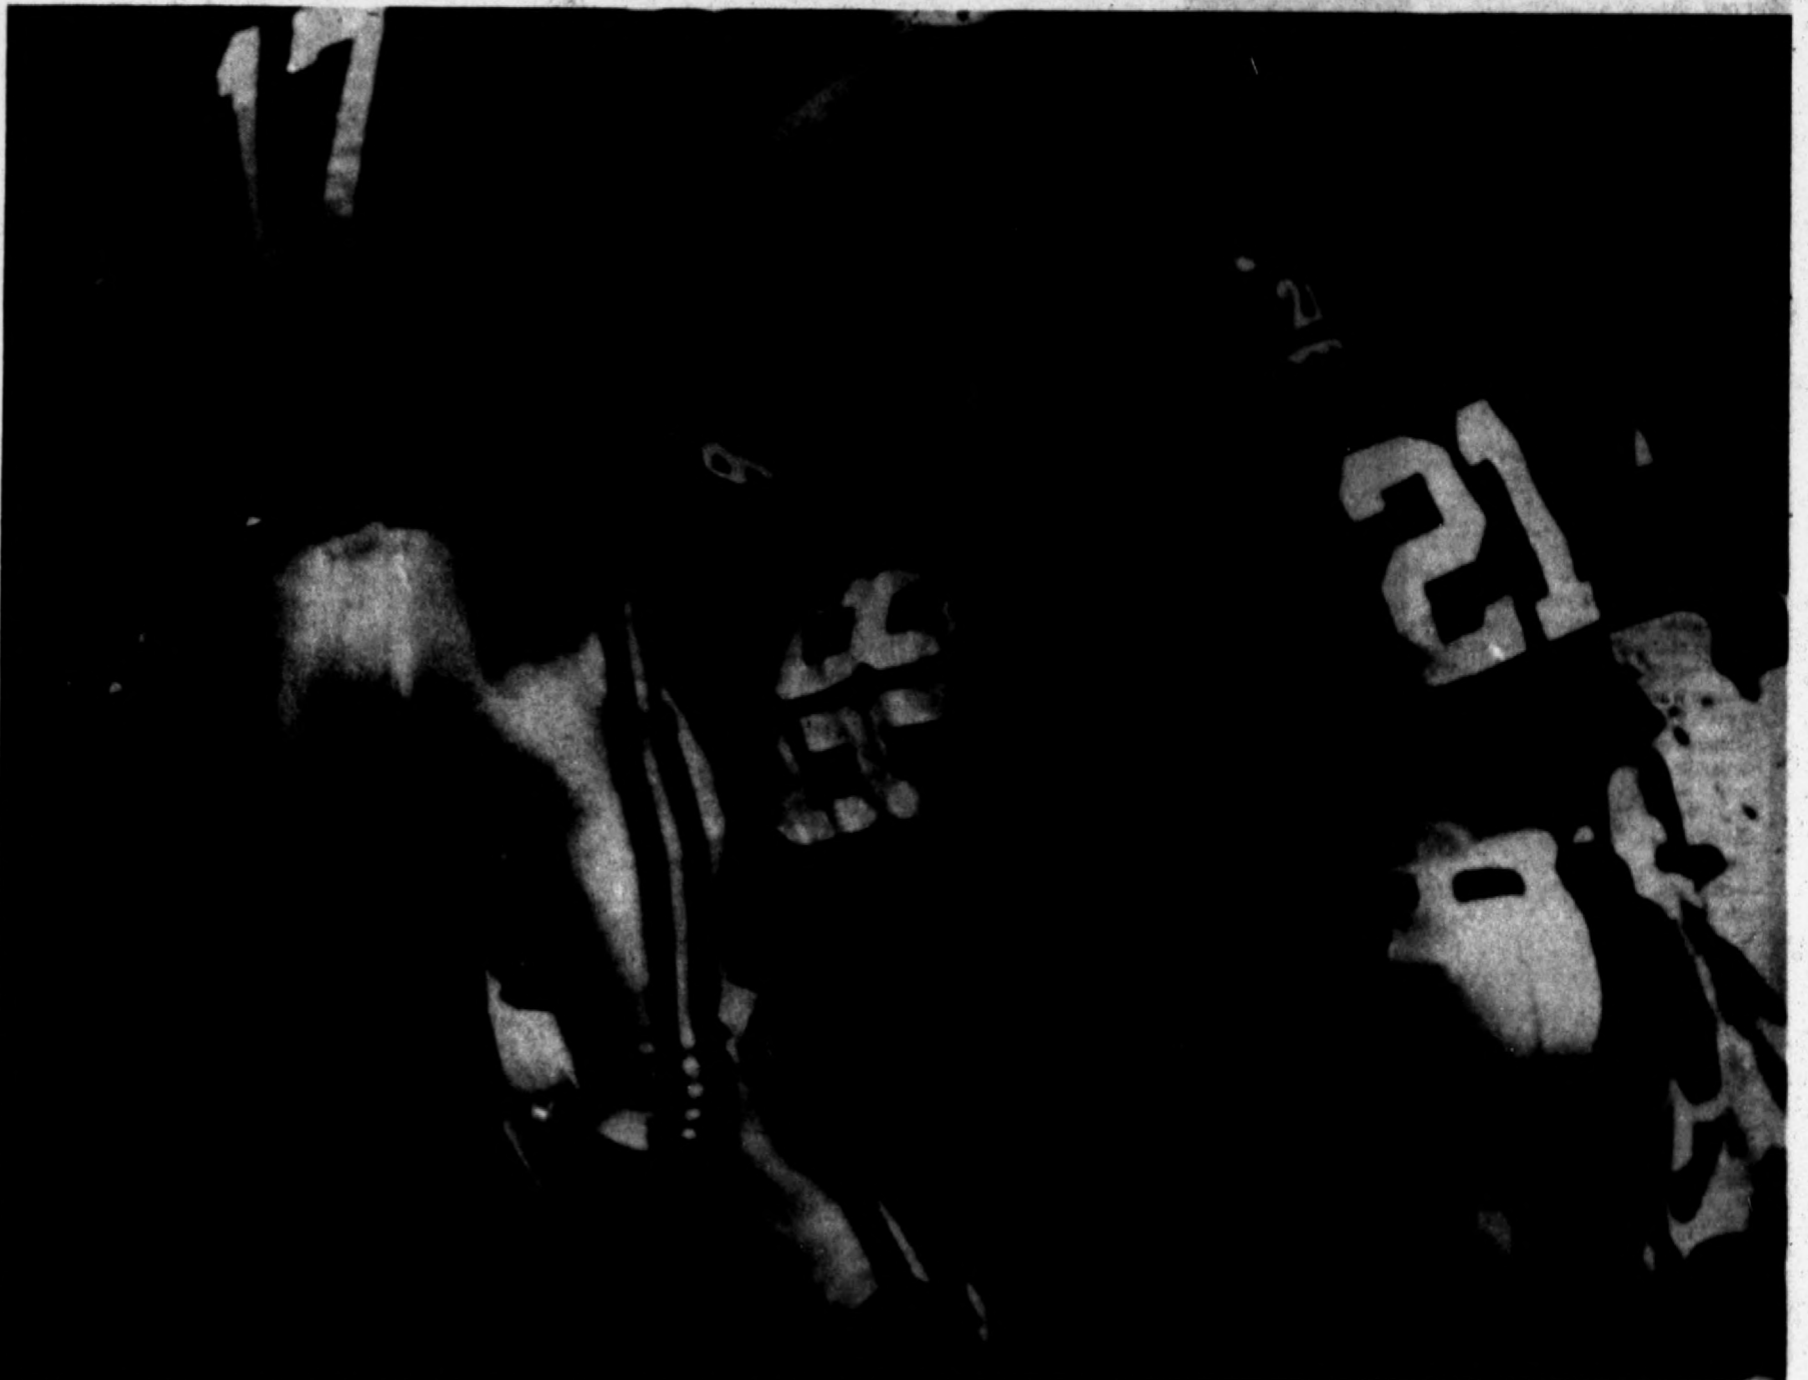

After the ensuing kickoff, Hereford held but was again penalized for roughing the kicker when trying to block the punt. With new life, Dunbar drove 56 yards for another go-ahead touchdown. Lewis climaxed the drive by diving over from the 1. The PAT was no good but Dunbar led by 14-12 with 1:04 left in the first half.

A 16-yard run by Steward and a 23-yard gainer on a pass from Scott to Mercer and lateral to Andrews moved Hereford to the Dunbar 35 on the next series. A 15-yard penalty was assessed the Panthers on the end of the play to move the ball to the 20 with 1 second left in the half. A 37-yard field-goal effort by Andrews just missed on the last play of the half.

Besides Mercer's two big catches, Andrews hauled in 4 of Scott's passes for 53 yards. Parker carried the ball only four times but gained 50 yards, while Andrews had 37 yards on 11 trips with the ball.

Hereford rang up 196 rushing yards and added 181 passing for a total of 377. Dunbar ended with 105 rushing and 170 passing for a 275 total. Michael Robles, starting Dunbar quarterback, was 2 of 5 for 72 yards and one interception. Roberts played most of the game, however, and was 5 of 16 for 96 yards and one interception. The Panthers also lost one fumble.

The important victory left Hereford at 4-1-1 for the season and 2-1-1 in district competition. The Herd travels to Randall next Friday. Dunbar fell to 3-4 and 2-3 in league play.

Happy together

Somewhere at the bottom of this pile is Hereford split end Pat Mercer, who scored the winning touchdown on a 50-yard pass from quarterback Jason Scott in the last minute to give Hereford a 32-26 win over the Dunbar Panthers. Identifiable Whitefaces are Clint Cotten (17), Brent Cumpton (88) and Glenn Parker (21).

Smith introduction

Hereford defensive end Brad Smith (72) introduces himself to Dunbar's Patrick Lewis (20) during Friday's football game at Whiteface Stadium. Ready to help Smith are Moses Casas (48), Darren Nikkel (53) and Marcos Marquez (58). At left is Dunbar's Fred Williams (26). The Whitefaces came back to defeat Dunbar, 32-26.

Cumpton: Kids gave fans money's worth

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

A multiple-choice question. Who has had the most comebacks on Friday nights?

A. Jamie in all those Friday the 13th movies.

B. The Hereford Whitefaces against the Dunbar Panthers on Friday night.

"We knew we had to play as hard as we could and never give up," said Hereford quarterback Jason Scott after Friday's 32-26 win over Dunbar at Whiteface Stadium. "We knew it could be our last chance as seniors to come back and pull it out like this."

Last week, Hereford head football coach Don Cumpton gave his team some reminders about great Hereford efforts in the past: A 1988 game against Perryton, when the Rangers were ranked No. 1 in the state, and Hereford won 13-12; a 1971 20-8 win over Dumas, Hereford's first win over the Demons in nine years; a 21-14 win over Plainview in 1982, when the Herd scored 14 points in the last three minutes; and the 1986 8-3 win over Levelland, when the Herd drove the ball 65 yards in the final minutes to win.

"This win was just Hereford football," Scott said. "It's starting to be like the Celtics at Boston Garden."

The win was Hereford's 20th straight home victory, but it didn't come easy.

"We had a tough time, but we did it," said defensive tackle Darren Nikkel. "Dunbar was definitely the fastest team we've played. Even their linemen were fast."

"They were so fast," said defensive back Clint Cotten, who got his sixth interception in as many games and two knock-downs. "They were the fastest people I've ever covered."

Dunbar unleashed some new offensive weapons, including a guard-around play with Joe Blue, but the Whitefaces unleashed two new weapons, the "UT" kickoff return which almost broke for a touchdown early in the game, and a halfback pass from tailback Keith Brown to split end Pat Mercer for a 40-yard touchdown.

"We worked on that on Thursday," Brown said. "We ran it about seven times in a row to make sure we had it down right. When we ran it, I had the confidence I could get the ball to Pat, but I wasn't sure it was ever going to get there."

The pass gave Hereford a 12-8 lead, but Dunbar came back to take a 14-12 halftime advantage. Dunbar scored early in the third quarter to take a 20-12 lead. Later in the quarter, Jason Scott kept the ball on the option for a nine-yard score and Brown scored on a PAT run to tie the score at 20-all.

Dunbar scored in the fourth quarter to grab a 26-20 lead before Brown again knotted the score on a two-yard dive with 4:03 to play. It was literally a dive: Brown jumped over a stacked-up defense to score.

"One dude was coming at my legs, so I went up and managed to get it in," Brown said. "I managed to make it in."

The Whitefaces held Dunbar in check, and Scott hit Mercer on a 50-yard pass in the last minute to give Hereford the win.

Mercer gave his defender an inside fake, then cut to the sideline where the pass was waiting for him.

"I beat him, exclamation point," Mercer said. "Jason did a great job of getting the ball right there to me, and Keith did a good job on his pass. Both of those passes were thanks to the offensive line, they did a great job tonight."

"I needed to catch those passes because I didn't have a great game on defense. I missed a couple of tackles, and I apologize for that. But the coaches helped us prepare for everything this week. Thanks to the coaches, we won."

"You can put this win right next to all those others on that sheet," Cumpton said. "It took a lot of courage to come back five times, but we did."

"I told the kids they gave the fans their money's worth tonight. There were some big plays from both sides. It was a heckuva game and a heckuva win."

"Our first drive made me optimistic. We drove the ball 99 yards (after a Mercer interception at the Herd 1). We had intended to throw the halfback pass on our first drive, but we had some momentum going and I didn't want to break that."

"Our old offensive line did a great job tonight. We came in wanting to run the football, and we were able to do that. Jason played a great game, and our receivers did a great job."

Whiteface Stadium. The scoreboard in the background tells the story at the time.

Oilers, Steelers eye 'war'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Even Mike Tyson and Robin Givens aren't sniping at each other these days as much as the Houston Oilers and Pittsburgh Steelers are.

"The Oilers and Steelers just don't like each other — never have and never will," Oilers defensive end Ray Childress said. "When we get together, it won't be to bake a cake." "You're never safe against them, not even in the huddle," Steelers running back Dwight Stone said. "When we played them last year, it was ugly, like a street fight."

"There's a lot of extra stuff done after the play," Oilers tight end Jamie Williams said, mentioning extracurricular activity such as fists to face masks and knees to stomachs.

Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll hopes playing one of his team's most vocal rivals Sunday will provide the swift kick the Steelers, 1-5, need to end a five-game losing streak, their longest in 20 seasons.

"They've led the league in personal fouls wherever Jerry (Glanville, the Oilers' coach) has been, but they never get called for it," Noll said. "I think they have the philosophy that the officials get tired of throwing a flag on every play."

The cross country finger-pointing between the Oilers and Steelers resulted from a pair of intense, fight-marred games last season.

Steelers running back Earnest Jackson bruised his back in the Oilers' 23-3 victory in Pittsburgh, the result of what Noll charged was an illegal spear by nose tackle Charles Martin.

Later in the season, two Oilers and a Steeler were ejected in the Oilers' 24-16 victory in Houston, prompting Noll to accuse Glanville of teaching dirty tactics.

"There's no doubt that (Noll's remarks) started everything they're saying about us," guard Mike Munchak said, referring to the Oilers' league-wide reputation for aggressiveness.

"That was the main thing as far as it getting national attention. We were getting a lot of (penalty) flags the first few weeks, but it's calmed down the last few weeks."

The rivalry certainly hasn't calmed down.

"Our defense has always played that way, aggressive, since I've been here," Munchak said. "The difference, I guess, was that we've started to win with it. The Steelers always had the same kind of defense, and I never considered them cheap or dirty."

"I've got enough problems with my own crew," Glanville said. "I can't make any comments about the Steelers. I think I'll let Chuck talk about his team and I'll talk about mine."

Despite Pittsburgh's record, Glanville expects the Steelers to have plenty of fight in them for Sunday's 1 p.m. game. Houston has never won consecutive games in Pittsburgh since division play began in 1970.

The Steelers have the NFL's second-worst pass defense and one of the league's worst rushing offenses. In addition, they will be without starting quarterback Bobby Brister, who has a chipped bone in his right hand.

"We'd like to start building on the good things we've been doing and eliminate the destructive things ... the turnovers, the mistakes," said Noll, whose team has committed 18 turnovers in their last four games.

"We can either live with embarrassment or start doing something about it," he said.

The Steelers trailed by two-touchdown margins in the fourth quarter of their last three games, including last week's 31-14 loss in Phoenix.

A's are back, so is Finley

By HAL BOCK
 AP Sports Writer

It's been 14 years, a long time between sips of champagne, but the Oakland A's are back in the World Series. And, naturally, they've got Charley Finley with them.

You expected otherwise? Good ol' Charley O., the owner with all those goofy ideas, like night games in the postseason, a designated hitter in place of the pitcher, and gaudy colored uniforms, will make a triumphant return to Oakland when the Series moves there Tuesday night.

"(A's manager) Tony LaRussa invited me," Finley said. "He and the judge here in Chicago, Abraham Lincoln Marovitz. I'm going as their guests."

"I signed LaRussa to his first pro contract, you know. Signed him right out of high school in '62 for Kansas City. He was a second baseman-shortstop. I gave him a $90,000 bonus. That was a lot of money then. He never got a chance with us because we had (Bert) Campaneris and Dick Green. But he was a good one. And he came from a nice family. His dad was a milk truck driver."

"Signed the pitching coach, (Dave) Duncan out of high school, too. He was my No. 1 catcher in the World Series years. And the first base coach (Rene) Lachemann. I signed him, too. Right out of high school. Got 'em all right out of high school."

Nobody ever questioned Finley's nose for baseball talent. It was his zest for new ideas that got him in trouble.

Charley O. owned baseball's last dynasty, the outrageous A's of Reggie and Bando, Catfish and Rudi, the teams that squabbled their way to three straight world championships for Oakland from 1972-74.

They tweaked the baseball establishment with uniforms that looked more appropriate for softball teams and a high profile owner who didn't mind dancing on the dugout when the occasion arose.

"We beat the Reds in '72," he said. "That was the best one because it was the first one. Seven games. Six of 'em decided by one run. I remember in the ninth inning of the seventh game with Cincinnati at bat, I leaned over to my wife and said, 'Get ready, honey. If we get this guy, I'm going to put you on the dugout and give you the biggest hug and kiss you ever had.'"

Finley, always a man of his word, did just that and almost immediately was joined by his manager, Dick Williams, and Williams' wife. They hugged. They kissed. And they danced.

The scene was repeated in 1973 when the A's survived a seven-game struggle and the Mike Andrews soap opera against the New York Mets, and in 1974 when Oakland won an all-California Series from the Los Angeles Dodgers in five games.

"In '74, every game was 3-2 except one," he said. "I've still got the telegram from Walter O'Malley, congratulating us."

The Andrews episode overshadowed the '73 Series. The reserve second baseman made a game-turning error in the second game and found himself on the disabled list before the team plane left town. Then commissioner Bowie Kuhn intervened and ordered the infielder restored to the roster. Finley still hasn't forgiven his longtime sparring partner for that one.

"I was just getting over a heart attack and I had a cardiologist with me. The doctor cooled me down. If I was in shape, I'd have told that kook to get lost. I always liked a good fight if I knew I was right."

Finley fight? Nah, not Charley O. He did have a way of irritating the establishment though with those outlandish ideas of his. There was, for example, his crusade for night games in the World Series. Twenty-five years ago next month, he wrote a lengthy letter to then-commissioner Ford Frick, trumpeting the idea.

Then there was the matter of the rather drab color scheme Finley found when he arrived in baseball.

Finley had snazzier ideas and dressed his A's in Kelly green and gold — the same colors they're wearing this week.

 SWINE PRODUCERS SHOULD MAKE FEED EVALUATIONS once a year, according to a University of Missouri swine specialist, who goes on to say that a re-evaluation should also be made at any time a major ingredient in rations changed. He also suggests that a feed formulation for a particular weight class should be used only for that class. Before switching to a feed substitution, a study should be made by the producer to insure that the substitute being considered is going to meet the nutrient requirements of the swine being fed. The Missouri scientist also issued a warning against feed that is exceptionally low priced. Before buying such feed, he said, find out why the feed is priced low. He cites moldy or damaged grain as examples of feed which may have had its prices slashed. They may be used, he said, but only with care.

Wilcox feted

A farewell brunch honored Meredith Wilcox, left, Thursday morning in the E.B. Black House. Hostesses for the occasion were Deaf Smith County Historical Society board members. Wilcox, who has served on the board for 12 years, will move to Oklahoma City, Okla. Presenting her with a friendship plaque from the group was Judy Detten, president.

The Massachusetts legislature authorized the incorporation in 1870 of Wellesley Female Seminary, which later became Wellesley College.

STRAIGHT TALK

By Gerald McCathern

During the past seven years, the U.S. budget deficit has averaged nearly $80 billion dollars a year, which means that $1.4 billion has been added to the national debt, tripling it from its level only seven years ago to $2.4 trillion. The interest on the national debt is now over $200 billion annually.

The President and Congress have approached solving the deficit problem from two directions, budget cuts and increased taxes—neither of which will be totally successful.

Additional productive, taxpaying jobs should be the number one priority in solving this deficit problem. This would create more taxpayers and reduce the number of tax recipients. That is why it is so important to take immediate steps to curtail the tremendous increase in imports of everything from textiles to beef to automobiles to electronics.

Nearly 50% of our nation's citizens pay little or no taxes as a result of unemployment or low incomes.

Growing or manufacturing what we consume as a nation rather than importing them will build industry, create jobs and take people off the welfare rolls and put them on the tax-paying rolls.

We don't need more taxes, we need more taxpayers.

Homeowners invited to program

Homeowners looking for a "competitive edge" in selling their homes can get some help at the upcoming "Package Your Home to Sell" program, Thursday Oct. 27. The program will be held at the Texas Agricultural Research & Extension Center in Amarillo.

Selling a home may not be far different from selling hamburgers, cars, clothes or anything else: the product has to have appeal to the buyer. Especially in a competitive housing market like we currently have, adopting a "marketing strategy" may help homeowners sell.

Homeowners will learn ways to maximize the return on their investment through marketing techniques, and fix-up, spruce-up techniques. This program will be repeated in Deaf Smith county during May of 1989. For more information or reservations, please call the Extension office at 364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

CABLE TV GROWING FAST

NEW YORK (AP) — The advances made by cable television are reflected in a report published by Multichannel News, a television-industry trade journal.

Cable television is being seen in 47 million households in 1988, 3.5 million more than the 1986 figure.

The publication says that, according to industry estimates of 300,000 new cable TV households each month, cable television should reach a penetration figure of over 54 percent early in 1989.

Farewell brunch held for Wilcox Thursday

A farewell brunch was held honoring Meredith Wilcox Thursday morning in the E.B. Black House.

Hosting the event were members of the Deaf Smith County Historical Society board of directors. They presented her with a friendship plaque.

Wilcox, who is moving to Oklahoma City, Okla., has served on the board for 12 years. She was in charge of the luncheons; her replacement will be Kitty Gault.

Refreshments of quiche, an assortment of breads, and a fresh fruit compote were served from a table centered by miniature pumpkins and containing mums of fall colors. Coffee tea, and punch were poured.

Youth invited to enter Health Fair poster contest

A poster contest for youngsters will be held in conjunction with the Oct. 25 Health Fair set 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. at the Community Center.

"Blue Ribbon for Good Health" will be the theme for the poster contest being sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers.

Youth from grades kindergarten through eighth will be eligible for cash prizes by submitting the best poster in one of the three age divisions: K-2nd; 3rd-5th; and 6th-8th. Posters may be submitted on art paper or poster board not smaller than 11"x14" and should reflect the theme.

Posters should have the student's name, address, phone number, school, teacher's name and grade on the back of the poster. Posters are due by Oct. 21 at 4:45 p.m. at the County Extension Office located on the fourth floor of the courthouse.

Winners will be notified and awards presented at 4 p.m. in the afternoon on Tuesday, Oct. 25 at the Health Fair.

If more information is needed call the County Extension office at 364-3573.

Public invited to attend Survivorship Celebration

Joe Kogel will be one of the guest speakers during the second annual Cancer Survivorship Celebration planned from 9 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22, at the Harrington Cancer Center in the Amarillo Medical Center.

High acclaim has followed Kogel throughout his two-year national tour of "Life and Death." The production debuted internationally last year. The one-man show consists of stories, humorous and dramatic, which deal at length with the experience of cancer.

Kogel graduated cum laude from Southern Oregon State College in 1980 with a degree in communications. He pursued a writing career and began studying acting. A year later at age 25, Kogel was diagnosed with malignant melanoma, the most serious form of skin cancer. A recurrence was diagnosed eight months later, but that didn't stop Kogel from winning a national writing award that same year. He has continued to enjoy success writing and producing documentary and theatrical productions.

"I talk about cancer because I will not let tragedy intimidate me and make me mute. In doing this, I invite my audience to become less afraid of cancer and, thereby, less afraid of themselves. The stories are not about cancer. I create a world in which the problem is not cancer but how one faces problems," explains Kogel.

There is no cost to attend the celebration but pre-registration is required. Contact the Harrington Cancer Center for additional information.

Master Bedroom and Formal Dining Room Boast Tray Ceiling

EUROPEAN FACADE ACCENTS A LAVISH FLOOR PLAN

© By W. D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

A formal entry foyer leads to living/library, dining room, or family room. The living room is shown with a bay window and the dining room is embellished by a tray ceiling. The kitchen, breakfast, laundry and rear garage are shown in line to the right. The family room forms a central hub and there are four bedrooms and two baths located in the bedroom wing. The master bedroom is offset to the rear allowing terrace access and private access to a luxury garden bath. An additional bay window is shown around the garden tub. The remaining three bedrooms are serviced by a central full bath. Closets are plentiful throughout and a bonus pantry is shown in the laundry room. Permanent stairs are shown to the attic as well as to the basement.

The European exterior is embellished with ornate window treatment, bay window, multiple roof breaks and stucco finish. This is a computer plan. Some changes may be made from the plan stored in the CADD memory at less cost to you. Direct inquiries about CADD plan changes to the address below.

The plan is number 2544. It includes 2,553 square feet of heated space. All W.D. Farmer plans are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements and include special construction details for energy efficiency. For further information write, W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Q. — I once used pumice powder and oil to smooth a newly finished wooden surface and small circles were left. Now, I have to do a similar job. How can this be avoided?

A. — By rubbing only with the grain of the wood. Circles are left when the rubbing is done in a circular fashion.

Q. — Expect to have our kitchen remodeled completely in the near future. Is there any special layout that is best?

A. — In an ideal work triangle, each major center of activity is at one point of the triangle. But kitchen layouts are guided to some degree by the dimensions of the room and the location of the doors and windows. What you should be striving to achieve is the elimination of cross traffic. Your remodeler (the wording of your letter indicates that you are having the remodeling done by a professional) should be able to advise you of the possible layouts that will suit your kitchen. You then can make a choice.

Wood is enjoying resurgence

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Wood is enjoying a tremendous resurgence in popularity as a design element. This is especially true in the case of hardwood doors, particularly paneled doors made of mahogany and oak.

Choosing unfinished hardwood doors can save you money if you are willing to take the time and trouble to do the finishing yourself. This usually involves a four-to-five-step process for exterior doors and a three-to-four-step process for interior doors. Some companies that sell unfinished hardwood doors include complete instructions for finishing the type of door you select.

If you want a mahogany door, be sure it has a classic ribbon-striped grain and a natural red tint. If you are choosing an oak door, look for the characteristic swirling grain that distinguishes top quality. Examine the door panels closely. They should be squared, matched as to color and grain, and all joints should fit precisely with no gaps. Surfaces should be smooth and uniformly sanded with no bumps or ridges. Ask about moisture content. Larry Bennett, president of Bennett Industries, North American importers of hardwood doors from Spain, says the moisture content should be 7 to 8 percent, similar to that of fine furniture, a percentage that should make the doors stable and durable.

Doors from a reliable manufacturer will have been sanded to a smooth, satiny surface on all parts, including difficult-to-sand molding and panel rise areas. This makes the surfaces ready to receive the stain and final finish.

In exterior doors, leaded glass panels have become a popular addition to the entryway system. Opaque, water glass, glue chip and beveled glass are available as components in many stock pane designs. Glass panels in the door itself and in fixed panels aside the main door let in natural light and offer the visitor a bright welcome. When choosing leaded glass panels, examine the "caming" or metalwork that holds the glass in place. It should be uniform, with straight lines and clean joints.

Triple-glazed units in which the decorative glass panels are encased within two other panels of clear, tempered glass are another assurance of top quality. It offers excellent insulation and low maintenance, and is safer because tempered glass will not shatter into small pieces.

If you are handy, you can install the door yourself. But keep in mind that a door made of mahogany or oak is heavier than a softwood door. Be sure the hinges are installed correctly so the door swings freely and meets the door jamb and locking mechanism precisely. Because of the weight of the door, consider using solid brass or brass-plated hinges. A distributor who has everything in stock can get together a complete package that will include, besides the door, solid brass hinges, triple-glazed glass panels with matched brass caming, possibly sidelights and transom, and a solid brass mortise.

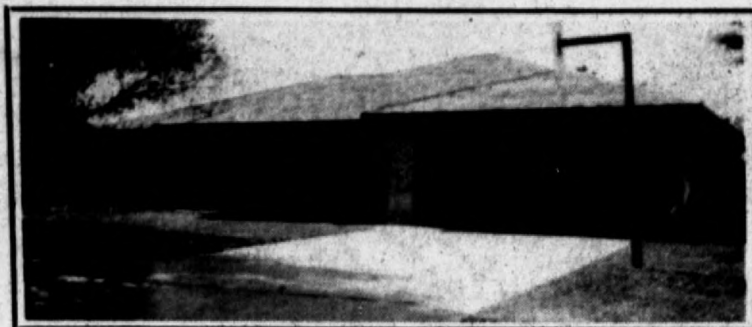

At many building product dealers, hardwood doors are a stock item, so you should be able to find samples on display, as well as cutaway sections that show how the door is constructed. Look for informative literature and knowledgeable sales help. One item sometimes overlooked but important is an assurance of quick delivery from a local stocking distributor.

Keeping houseplants alive

Are you worried about keeping a houseplant alive while you are away on vacation?

Water it well, wrap it in a clear plastic bag, tie it closed and place it in northern light. It will stay healthy up to a month. When you return, untie the top and let the plant adjust to room air for a day or so before completely removing the covering.

Here's another solution to a pesky problem: When arranging long-stemmed flowers in a wide-mouthed vase, crisscross strips of cellophane tape across the top of the vase and insert the stems into the spaces between the tape.

These tips are two examples among thousands in "Household Hints and Handy Tips," published recently by the Reader's Digest Association.

According to general books editor Norman Mack, the tips have been tested and proven workable as a condition of inclusion. "We scoured every hint we could come up with. If we found a good one, we felt we shouldn't leave it out just because somebody else published it." So the company acquired the rights to use it.

As its title suggests, the book tells in brief paragraphs how to do almost anything around the house. Subjects include managing paperwork and home chores indoors and out, caring for children, pets and belongings, decorating, entertaining and buying, storing and preparing food.

Browsing through the one-volume compendium is a bit like eating salted peanuts. It's hard to stop once you get started; so you read on, learning how to clean a chandelier without taking it down by spraying it with liquid window cleaner and letting it drip onto newspaper you've spread below the fixture. You find out how to make a "window" on a windowless wall by hanging a mirror directly opposite a real window; how to create a dramatic decorative effect by inseting an area rug into wall-to-wall carpet and then using the cut-out portion of the carpet for the children's room or basement.

It took about two years to produce the household hints volume, plus a year or two more in shaping the product, according to Mack.

The project was all in a year's work for the staff of about 80, many of whom personally tested hints and tips. The tales of self-sacrifice this practice engendered can in retrospect be quite funny. For example, one editor kept putting his shoes stuffed with water-filled plastic bags in the family freezer. He wanted to see whether this particular method of stretching shoes worked. It doesn't, which is why the tip was not published.

According to Mack, the public appetite for practical guidance on almost any subject you can think of is one of the reasons why the books the company publishes routinely have large sales within the first month of publication.

"Household Hints and Handy Tips" sold 1.3 million in the first month after publication in June. Reader's Digest claims to have marketed over 330 million books worldwide since 1963, mostly through mail-order.

The idea for the book originated in a brainstorming session. After further development, a blurb describing the project was sent to 4,000 consumers who rated their degree of interest at the suggested selling price.

Later, focus groups met all over the country to offer opinions on sample pages. Potential buyers endorsed the idea for the book, but said they were more interested in practical household information, and less so in food, decorating and grooming.

Changes that occurred along the way in response to consumer comment included reworking the book from a six-volume paperback set packaged in a storage case to a single volume. Even the title was changed from an earlier incarnation as the Carolyn Davis Cope Book.

Title research showed the word cope was not a good one. It had negative connotations, engendering feelings of difficulty and helplessness.

MR. AND MRS. JOLBY LYNN SPRINGER

Marriage announced

Angela Dawn Anderson and Jolby Lynn Springer were married Oct. 7 in an intimate ceremony at the Mervin Schneider home in Amarillo. The bride is the daughter of Randy and Susan Anderson of Amarillo and the bridegroom is the son of Charles and Daleine Springer of Route 3, Hereford.

Schwertner honored

Eileen Schwertner, bride-elect of Lester Womack, was feted with a bridal shower Oct. 8 in the Friendship Room of Hereford State Bank. Guests attended from Hereford, Dimmitt, Farwell, Summerfield and Slaton.

Serving as hostesses were Joann Jesko, Annette Albracht, Mary Dee Hoelscher, Genevieve Kuper, Agnes Schilling, Pauline Albracht, Alice Hund, Oleta Hoffman, Renee Kuper, Viola Wagner, Blanche Marnell, Mary Schlabs and Leona Miller.

A professional perfume tester is known in the trade as a "nose."

Realtors may participate in training

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is offering a training for Real Estate Agents on "Packaging the Home for Sale" on Thursday, Oct. 27 from 9 a.m. until 12. The training will be held at the Texas Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Amarillo. Real Estate Agents will receive computer software and training materials for more effective customer service.

Realtors wishing to attend should contact the Deaf Smith County Extension Office at 364-3573 to preregister. A registration fee of $10.00 to cover materials will be collected at the training site.

Public invited to chili supper

The public is invited to a chili supper from 5:30-8:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22, in the Odd Fellow Hall, 205 E. 6th St.

The annual fundraiser will be sponsored by Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228. The menu will consist of chili, pie and drinks.

Tickets are priced at $3 for adults and $1.50 for children under 10 years of age.

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — John Kessler never has been a man of a few words. He's usually chanting about 500 a minute.

That's the pace Kessler keeps up as the reigning World Tobacco Auctioneering Champion.

At age 25, Kessler already has been an auctioneer for seven years. He learned the trade from his auctioneer father, Wayne, as a youngster and has been perfecting his chant ever since.

Can Say is,

"Vote For Me!"

"WHY?"

We have contacted KPAN Radio Station and they have attempted to set up a 25 min. forum between the two candidates for Sheriff. The Chamber of Commerce has attempted to set up a Debate between Joe & Ted. Joe Brown has refused to set a date for a debate with no good reason. We feel he has many things to hide from the tax payers of Deaf Smith County.

1. What about the unwritten Policy not to arrest DRUNK DRIVERS?
2. Why did he attempt to cover up that inmates have access to explicit HBO programing.?
3. Why is there a strong lack of supervision of Deputies during PEAK-CRIME HOURS?
4. What about his misappropriation of Funds?

FALL FASHION 1988

Wrap up the season in one word: Elegant. Tone down the frills, dress up the look. Night and day, simple, understated lines and rich colors become a canvas to showcase the new opulent accessories.

Featuring a close look at local fashions as seen in area style shows!

Find out what the newest swings are in fashions for today's attire!

designs from Yiota's Korner Kloset while Kathie Kerr, center, offers a fashion by Pants Cage.

Season's jewelry colorful

Color appears to be returning to fashion this fall, and jewelry is no exception.

Colors from bright greens to hot pinks, soft blues and rich golds are adorning jewelry from necklaces to earrings, according to a professional association of jewelers.

"Many people are just discovering that there's a gemstone for every color in the rainbow," says William G. Underwood, president of the American Gem Society. Underwood says many colored stones are also quite affordable.

He suggests that potential buyers examine the stone under a constant light source and choose a color most appealing to them.

"Certain colors are more flattering against some skin tones. What looks great on your best friend may not be right for you," Underwood says.

"The optimum color varies with each gemstone, but the best color is usually in the medium range, not too dark or too light. There should be an even distribution of color throughout the stone."

Jewelry designer Henry Dunay, in his newest collection, prefers ebony, "a warm material both in color and texture. Coupled with the rich quality of 18-karat gold, this becomes a staple piece for any accessory wardrobe," Dunay says.

Nancy Brewer, president of Nancy B and Co., says black onyx will play a big part in the working woman's jewelry wardrobe this season. "Other favorites coming this fall," she says, "are amethyst, blue topaz, and most importantly, citrine (lemon yellow)."

Choose skirt length that's right for you

PARIS (AP) — The winds of change are shifting fast in French fashion. Having barely coaxed women into knee-baring minis, several important designers did an about-face to long skirts in winter ready-to-wear collections.

The different lengths shown give a wealth of options to women who choose to bare or hide their legs.

In the crowd still showing knees are influential creators Yves Saint Laurent, Valentino, and Christian Lacroix.

But saying he's tired of minis, Karl Lagerfeld showed some nearly ankle-length skirts in his own collection. His skirts for Chanel were both short and long.

Yohji Yamamoto's somber looks were all long. But many others, including Rykiel, Kenzo and Ungaro, offered the short-long option.

Trousers are back in a big way, another boon to women who have never given them up for city wear, no matter what Paris has decreed lately.

Claude Montana featured nearly all slim pants, and only a few ankle-length skirts, in his sharp collection. The "clothes sculptor" outlined his handsome jackets with enormous funnels or big collars turned down to eclipse the shoulder, the waist looking tiny over trumpet-shaped jacket hems.

Other pants ranged from gray flannel and straight with pleats from the waist, as at Scherrer, Saint Laurent and Cerruti. At Chanel they appeared full, as "pant-skirts." At Ungaro they were slightly draped.

Besides these developments, there's a big range of silhouettes, although a note of sobriety has crept in. In a competitive market characterized by a shaky and lower dollar, designers are aiming to sell to a more cautious consumer, looking for wearability rather than gags in their clothes.

Overpadded shoulders are out. Belted or boxy coats were topped with big collars or wraps, handsome in dazzling colors at Lacroix. Ankle or knee-length princess or redingote styles swept down the runways, as did tent-like greatcoats, capes and caped shoulders.

Suits came back in force, silhouettes lean and sophisticated, or full-skirted for ingenues. Jacket options were often fine for adventurous businesswomen who like to dress with style, in everything from lively boleros to sharply-pointed spencers. Saint Laurent's stunning classics were fronted with geometric or cubist patchwork effects.

Christian Lacroix topped his high-waisted checked suit with a cropped V-neck bolero. Lagerfeld opted for pencil-slim very long jackets for his own and the Chanel collection, along with good short jackets at the latter. Another easy topper is a wrapped surplice blouse or sweater.

The new quiet looks featured plenty of easy lines in jersey. There were belted bicolored tunic outfits at Saint Laurent, layers of flowing A-line jerseys at Issey Miyake. Even fashion's former "bad boy" Gaultier went into easily fluid clothes, leaving behind his weird padded corset-looks.

Ungaro varied his complicated, waist-cinched puff-sleeved looks with a big line of flowered baby doll flyaway dresses in light fabrics, which should please the full-figured woman. He also brought back the chemise, shaped mainly by a low knotted drape in back.

Daytime fabrics featured bright windowpane plaids, gray or black and white checks, chevrons, tweeds and pinstripes. Dressier were the flowered light wool fabrics at Lanvin and Ungaro. Paisleys looked lovely in the new suits, as did tapestries or Oriental-rug motifs at Lacroix.

For evenings, most party girls were dressed up in "ooh-la-la" sexy styles. But here again, simpler clothes were offered along with the fancy.

Body-hugging little black suits and dresses were dolled up in all sorts of ways — chandelier crystals at Saint Laurent, billiard balls, silver nails or pearly hearts at Patrick Kelly; sequins, lace, bows and rhinestones nearly everywhere.

Smooth satin slithered out nearly everywhere, dazzling short dinner suits at Dior, with belted tunic or cardigan-topped pajama suits another choice. The flightier nightlife wear was often topped by fluffy marabou or ostrich-feather jackets, though some rooster feathers popped up as well.

Less elaborate evening choices were some strikingly simple at-home or dinner outfits. They were great at Chanel in a drape-fronted ivory crepe number topped by a long cable-knit cardigan and pearls. Also elegant were Lagerfeld's velvet and satin "medieval" gowns with very high waists to emphasize the décolletage.

Accessories were oxfords or pumps — depending on how sporty or dressy the clothes were — invariably worn with dark or colored tights. There were also a few booties and suede hip boots with the minis.

Pants revived

A wide selection of pants will be offered to the fashion-conscious consumer this fall and winter as the wardrobe staple is becoming stylish again. Marsha Winget, left, models a casual style of pants topped

Trousers come on fall scene

NEW YORK (AP) — Fashion has many virtues, but consistency is not one of them. That was apparent this spring when designers unveiled their fall and winter collections.

The short skirt has fallen from grace, and its triumphant successor is the trouser. Not dowdy, boring everyday pants, but creations that stir the hearts of even skirt lovers. Most exciting are the wide, flowing evening trousers, usually black, worn with elegantly beaded and brocaded jackets.

Oscar de la Renta triumphed when he matched a long-sleeved T-shirt striped with horizontal rows of sheer chiffon and velvet with flowing black cashmere pants. And Donna Karan won enthusiastic applause for a little beaded bronze jacket that simply sparkled over wide black trousers.

"Sportswear for evenings" is how Sidney Bachman, vice president and fashion director of Bergdorf Goodman, describes this latest dressy look. "I love the idea," she said.

But trousers are only part of the picture. Fashion has entered "a new, quiet era," says Women's Wear Daily, the prestigious trade magazine for the fashion industry, which has dubbed the fall and winter look "Quiet Chic."

"Everything was extreme and poufy and big and showy and dramatic" for spring and summer, said Elyse Kroll, president of E.N.K. Productions. Her company puts on exclusive trade shows that give up-and-coming designers a chance to show their wares to retailers.

"Now everything is more real, you know?" said Ms. Kroll. "And they almost had to do that. They had to come back from that costume kind of look."

In terms of hemlines, that means most dresses and skirts barely graze the knee, although plenty of long, slender silhouettes dip to mid-calf. But don't look to skirt lengths — or trousers' widths, for that matter — in planning your fall wardrobe.

The key to the new look is rich fabrics and strong shapes that don't need fussy extras.

Ralph Lauren, the master of understated elegant clothes, is right at home designing "Quiet Chic" clothes. His lean and straight gray cashmere pants were worn with a matching turtleneck and a thigh-length camel hair swing coat.

Once again, he proves the theory that less is more — more refined, more classic, more flattering. But simplicity also means modern and fun — and nobody does that better than Calvin Klein.

"I'm always trying to achieve modern clothes ... for American women," Klein said. "They want attractive, good-looking clothes that work for them."

Klein used double-faced wool cloth that takes to well-defined shapes. And the silhouettes were decidedly architectural — long thin columns for evening gowns and short chemises, distant cousins to rectangles, for daytime wear.

The thoroughly modern Klein stamp came in high-voltage colors: chrome yellow, fuchsia, shocking purple and acid green matched with basic black.

De la Renta and Carolina Herrera also played with bright-and-black color combo. And Lauren and Ms. Karan, though they didn't go with neon shades, were successful using brilliant reds, bronzes and golds.

All in all, this is a season of choice. Women can wear above-the-knee rounded skirts with short-fitted jackets; long slim knit skirts under easy-looking tunics; slim pants or wide-legged trousers with creamy blouses or black turtlenecks; coats that are full and swing with the breeze or belted and flared.

"I think fall is going to be one of the most versatile times we've had," said Ms. Kroll.

High-fiber foods help in weight loss

High-fiber foods can help you lose weight. Since they are bulky, these foods move through the digestive system quickly, and fewer nutrients are absorbed, resulting in weight loss.

Fiber also makes you feel full, so you're more likely to be satisfied after eating a high fiber meal. Finally, most foods that are high in fiber are also naturally low in fat. There are three times as many calories per gram of fat as there are in a gram of carbohydrate.

If fiber speeds weight loss, then should you try fiber-based weight loss supplements? Experts at the National Institutes of Health and the American Dietetic Association say no. "It is possible to get sufficient fiber from a diet rich in fruits, vegetables and whole-grain breads and cereals," says Allison Boomer of

NURTURE CURIOSITY

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Too much emphasis on achievement tests can have negative consequences, says a University of Rochester motivational psychologist.

"We should nurture children's basic curiosity and help them enjoy challenges," says Richard Ryan.

the ADA.

MEETING FIBER NEEDS

Increasing your fiber intake is really quite easy. Follow these steps to help ensure that your diet contains an adequate amount of roughage:

- Use brown rice instead of white rice.
- Choose fresh fruits over canned fruits or juices.
- Select whole-grain breads.
- Leave the peels on fruits and vegetables.
- Have a salad every day.
- Use oats as a filler in casseroles or meat loaf.
- Eat beans and peas often.
- Use whole-grain flours when you bake.
- Have a high-fiber cereal or muffin daily.
- Snack on raw vegetables and fresh fruits.
- Eat foods in their natural states.
- Increase fiber intake gradually, by just a few grams per day. That's the equivalent of about three prunes, one apple or a bowl of bran cereal.
- Drink plenty of fluids to help minimize the bloating and gas that some people experience when they increase fiber in their diets.

Give lips soft, impact for fall

This season lips are played up with wonderful tawny reds, fuchsia shades are passe.

Applying lip color is simple: prime lips with a lip balm; to prevent lipstick from feathering apply a cream foundation with a cotton swab just outside natural lip line and blend away from the lip; use a lip brush to place color.

Fragrance a fashion accessory

There are a few fragrance facts that the buyer should know before purchasing perfume.

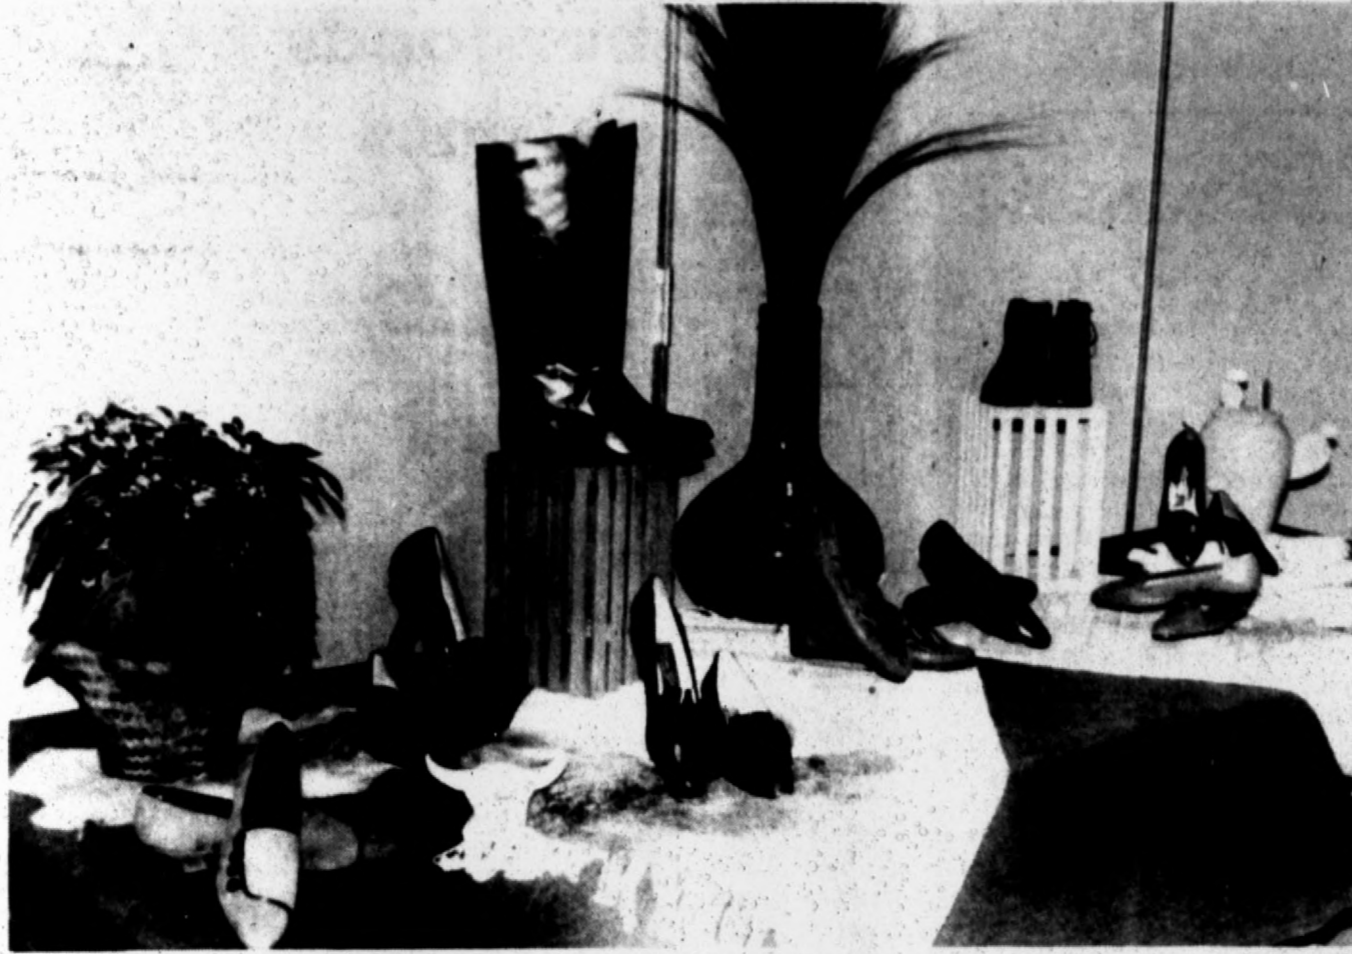

-If you live in a warm climate, choose a light fragrance; heat and humidity can make a scent overpowering. If you live in a cooler climate, go for a heavier scent. A moderate climate calls for alternating between light and heavy scents, depending the season.

-Live near the beach? Be sure to wear a strong fragrance, because the sea air can "erase" lighter scents.

-When you are ready to buy, remember that perfume is the most expensive and lasts four to six hours. Eau de toilette, eau de parfum, and esprit de parfum cost less and last two to four hours. Colognes, spritzes, and splashes are the less expensive and last one to two hours.

To make the most of your scent, wear it where it counts. Pulse points of the body, such as ankles, behind the knees, the crook of the arms, the wrist, behind the ears, and at the base of the throat are some examples. Two other spots to try include a dab on your cleavage and spritz in your hair.

Think of your fragrance as a fashion accessory.

Seasonal shoes shown

Ouida's of Hereford offered this varied selection of shoes during a fall style show. Experts note that the right shoes should balance the total silhouette; with pants making a strong comeback this fall, choosing the right shoe is deemed even more important.

Formal attire

The three Fangman sisters, Belinda, Ashley, and Kristan (from left) were decked out in dresses featuring scalloped hems and lacy collars during a recent style show. These fashions were from Sylvia's; young Belinda also modeled fashions by The Barn House during the event.

British collections show 'no new captivating look'

LONDON (AP) — The British autumn fashion collections, shown in London this spring, were long on wearability and saleability but short on the zany eccentricity and innovation that some buyers associate with London.

London's designers offered something for everyone, with hems ranging from micro-mini to the floor, and trousers as an alternative. There was no new captivating look.

Jaspar Conran's asymmetrical Z-line jackets and skirts were considered too bizarre for most customers and avant-garde designers including Katherine Hamnett and Vivienne Westwood turned from raunchy protest clothes to traditional Edwardian or Victorian styles.

Ellin Saltzman, vice-president and fashion director for New York's Saks Fifth Avenue chain, said: "The best of British fashion looks very cleaned up and elegant."

At the top of the market where elegance was the byword, the soaring British pound didn't seem to affect orders, even from American buyers.

"We've had much larger orders than we've ever had from America, Japan, Hong Kong, Australia and we've picked up new accounts in places like Sweden," said Bruce Oldfield, one of Princess Diana's favorite designers, whose feminine black velvets were big sellers.

"You can't have fireworks every season," he said. "It annoys me that London gets knocked when it tries to be professional. We've got to make clothes that sell. Otherwise, we wouldn't be in business."

Benny Ong, whose short, snappy evening gowns were big hits, said there was a market for the "smart, chic and more elegant" clothes at the top of the line, because women who buy them can afford to pay a little bit more.

In the middle and lower end of the market, however, it was a dismal story for some designers.

Beth Brett, who has been selling designer sweaters to Saks, Neiman-Marcus, Bendels and dozens of U.S. boutiques for 10 years, said "we haven't had one American order."

Select right shoes for pants

Pants are making fashion headlines this fall but you can ruin the look with the wrong type of shoe.

The right shoes should balance the total silhouette. They should be strong enough to carry the pant.

Choose modern shapes that are structured and textures that are feminine such as black patent leather. When shopping, look for shoes with high, covered vamps and wide, low heels. With wide pant legs, midheel (1½ to 2 inches) is the highest you should go.

Helpful hints for fingernails

If you nails are ridged, splitting or weak here a few helpful hints for beautiful nails.

RIDGED NAILS

Once a week, softly buff ridges in one direction with a buffing disk. Next, massage a drop of oil on each nail and leave overnight. The next day use a ridge-filling base before applying polish.

PEELING/SPLITTING NAILS

Clip nail tips then file to shape.

Soften tips with buffing disk and apply moisturizing gel on bare nail twice daily. When nails improve, use gel once a day over polish.

SOFT/WEAK NAILS

Always keep polish on nails but don't remove polish more than once a week. Increase nail hardness by applying a nail strengthener every day.

Hard work, ingenuity pays off for sisters

ROME (AP) — When Carla Fendi was a little girl she organized the games she and her four sisters played together. Today Carla is the coordinator of their multimillion-dollar fashion empire.

Fourth of the five Fendi sisters, whose double F trademark produces furs, leather accessories and ready-to-wear clothing, Carla is in charge of public relations and the press office as well as promotion of the Fendi label outside of Italy, particularly the United States.

"My sisters always thought of me as the organizer in the family and so it seemed natural that I should take on the same role in the company," she told The Associated Press in an interview.

Sitting at the large round 18th-century mahogany table the sisters use as their conference table at Palazzo Ruspoli, Fendi headquarters in downtown Rome, the lively brunette reminisced about the modest beginnings of the Fendi label, which in 1987 rang up sales of roughly $200 million.

The Fendi parents, Edoardo and Adele, owned a small but successful leather and fur shop in Rome. Despite the hardships of World War II, the girls led the typical life of any schoolgirl, classes, homework, and the first boyfriends. Then one day their father fell ill.

Carla remembers that mama Adele gathered them around the dining room table and tersely said, "Girls, life has changed." To symbolize the rough times ahead she removed the mineral water, a luxury item in those days, from the table.

One by one the sisters left school and joined forces with their mother.

"How often mama had to hear about her 'crazy daughters,'" Carla mused, recalling the skepticism their new techniques and shapes caused in the traditional Italian fur industry.

A standing ovation at the high fashion showings in Florence in 1964 bolstered their confidence and increased their private clientele, but it was the teaming up with virtuoso designer Karl Lagerfeld in 1965 that put the Fendi sisters on the road to fashion stardom.

"Together we transformed the fur coat from a rigid status symbol to a soft, easy to wear and above all becoming garment," Carla said.

Beauty Tips

Q. Even though I'm thin, my stomach sticks out. What can I do?

A. Tone up the tummy with aerobic exercise. You need to participate in an activity like running, cycling, or swimming for 20 minutes three to four times a week. In addition, try this tummy-tightening exercise: Lie on the floor with your legs elevated. Supporting your head with your hands, curl your body up, keeping your lower back on the floor, then return to starting position. Do as many as you can. Another tip: Always check your posture. If you stand straight and tall with your stomach muscles pulled in tight, you'll secretly be toning your abdominals.

Q. I'm trying to grow out my old hairstyle, but I'm getting impatient. Is there any way to make it grow faster?

A. Eating a nutritious diet of fresh fruits and vegetables and essential minerals will keep your hair in good shape and encourage its growth. According to hair professionals, how often you eat is also a key to hair growth. The energy level of the hair follicles diminishes four hours after you eat—so it's important to eat frequently. Massaging your scalp before or during shampooing also increases circulation and stimulates hair growth. How to survive the growing-out stage? Try different hairstyles. One day dress up your hair with a few great accessories; the next, change your part. Or for a totally new view, pull on a pretty hat.

Q. My eyebrows are thick, and I don't want to pluck them. How can I keep them neat?

The best way to keep brows in shape is by stroking on one of the new brow gels. To apply: Using an eyebrow brush, brush brows up. Then lightly apply gel over brow. Let set for one minute before applying other eye makeup. Your neat brows will create an expressive frame for your eyes and make them appear larger.

Q. How can I get rid of dark circles under my eyes?

A. Peel a small raw potato and cut it into chunks. In a food processor fitted with a steel blade, process until a paste forms (potato may turn slightly pink.) Apply the paste to the undereye area and lie down for 10 minutes; rinse well. The drawing effect of the potato will give the illusion of bleaching the skin. For a quick makeup fix, smooth on a liquid concealer (it's less likely to cake) over your foundation.

Q. Help! How can I de-frizz my hair?

A. Dry hair and split ends are common complaints after a summer of sun and chlorine exposure, which strips hair of moisture. Hairstylist Susan Houser offers some tips:

-After shampooing, apply a conditioner and comb through hair—don't rinse.

-Don't blow-dry because it causes further damage. Instead, using a spray filled with a mixture of water and condition, spritz hair and scrunch to style.

Q. I try to stick to my diet, but I always get the late-night munchies. Any suggestions?

Most people lose control of their diet late at night because the foods they've eaten during the day haven't provided them with enough flavor or texture, said Dr. Susan Schiffman, head of the Weight Loss Clinic at Duke University in Durham, N.C. If you want to stick to your diet at night, be sure to eat tasty and filling foods during the day. Some suggestions: for lunch, fill a small plate with rice or pasta salad, then add a lot of seasoning or cucumbers for extra crunch. At snack time add egg whites to a skim-milk and fruit shake to make it creamier and thicker. Still crave an after-hours treat? Try some taco shells topped with spicy tomato sauce.

Q. I love bright nail polish but hate the mess when I take it off. What can I do?

A. One manicurist believes the right way to remove polish from nails can be summed up in three words: Don't attack them! Suggestions include: 1) Dampen a cotton ball with remover (try a gentle remover with moisturizing ingredients, like Cutex Strong Nail Polish Remover) 2) Press the ball between your fingers to make it as small as possible. 3) Beginning at the base of the cuticle, stroke the ball down to the tip of the nail, squeezing lightly to release the remover.

Renowned fashion designer has ability to bounce back

NEW YORK (AP) — Oleg Cassini, the 74-year-old fashion innovator who created Jacqueline Kennedy's wardrobe, has designs on a new harness racing career to rev up his on-the-go lifestyle.

"I think I'm a young man with white hair," he says. "It's dangerous. When you concentrate for two minutes in a sport that is dangerous and exciting, you forget about the past."

On Feb. 25, he was thrown from his sulky on his first day of professional racing after becoming the oldest man to get a provisional harness driver's license. He returned to racing the following day — and finished first.

"This is part of the philosophy of my life," he added. "Forget the age. You can slow down aging to such a degree that it becomes imperceptible. I hope you don't laugh but I feel any new adventure I can handle just as well as when I was 25. I'm not as strong or quick, but I'm smarter."

His ability to bounce back also was demonstrated after the October stock market crash when he lost what he said was "a bundle."

He said his losses were "sufficiently large that I felt depressed. But if you have a bad day at the stock market, you say, 'I made a mistake and I'll do something else.'"

Cassini marched on: — Just as he did when his family lost its fortune and status while fleeing revolutionary Russia, rendering his "count" title worthless.

— Just as he did when his first daughter was born blind, deaf and severely retarded after a fan with German measles approached his pregnant wife, Gene Tierney.

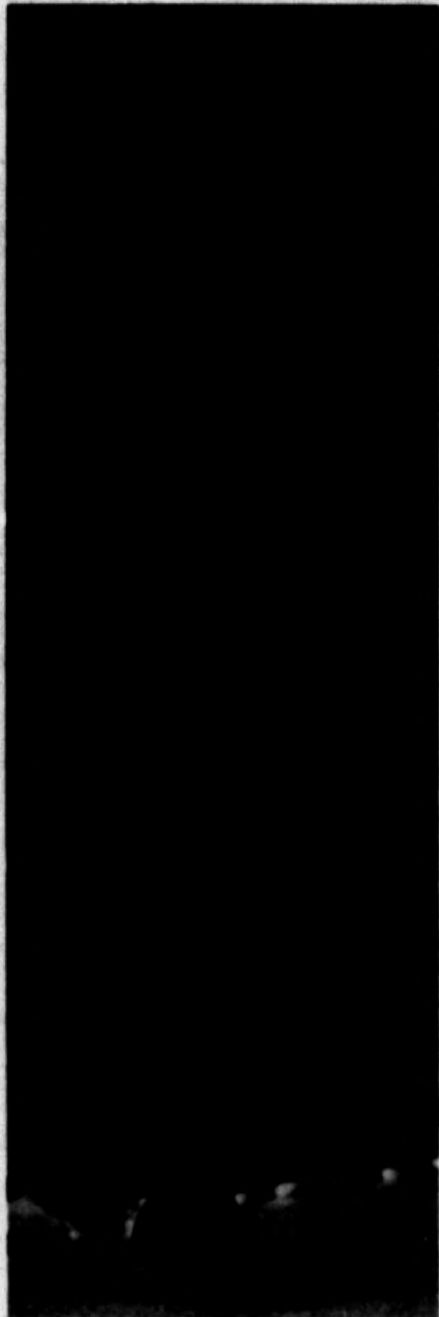

The designer called his life a story of "riches to rags to riches." Cassini describes in his autobiography, "In My Own Fashion," how he had so little when he moved from Europe to New York in 1936 that he lived for a time at the YMCA.

He later moved to Hollywood, where he entertained some of the glitzy community's more glamorous women, including Marilyn Monroe. He was once engaged to Grace Kelly.

He returned to New York and became famous designing clothes for Mrs. Kennedy. Because he was treated as a close friend of the Kennedy family, the status of designers was raised, he said.

Now, he said, he continues to design clothing and is "enjoying a very good moment in my business."

Foundation should match skin tone

An even, polished complexion begins with foundation in a shade that matches your skin tone.

First, apply foundation in an even layer and blend with a makeup sponge. Spot-apply foundation to correct dark areas with a Q-tip applicator and then blend in with a makeup sponge.

To set your makeup, dust face with sheer, translucent powder and to finish, lightly mist face with water, using a clean atomizer.

Perm tips for every hair length

Full bodied hair, worn in soft waves or all-out curls, is making big news this season. For a volumizing boost, try a perm.

A perm will "take" better if hair is squeaky clean; so before perming, shampoo hair twice to remove residue left by mousse or other styling products.

Color-treated hair needs extra care. Perm at least two to three weeks before coloring to prevent damage. Be sure to do a test curl. Here's a styling hint for permed hair: blow-dry hair on low setting, squeezing gently with fingers. Then add shine by pinching ends of hair with a dab of pomade.

PERM TIPS FOR HAIR LENGTH

Short

To create softness at bang area set hair, beginning at hairline, in two rows of stand-up in curls, spaced 1/4 inch apart; loop in direction in which you style your hair and secure with plastic clips at base of curl. Wrap remaining hair around rods.

Medium

For a natural look, vary size of waves. On layered hair, use rods 1/4 inch larger in diameter at crown than those used on rest of head. For hair that's one length, wrap entire hairline around larger rods.

Long

To maintain even curl, use two rods "piggy-back" for each section of hair. Place one rod midway between roots and ends; wrap hair up and under toward root and secure. Place second rod at end of remaining hair and wrap to lie underneath first rod.

The Oval Face

The Square Face

The Round Face

The Heart-shaped Face

Harmonize jewelry with facial shape

The first thing you notice when you look at someone is their face. With all of this attention directed toward your face, the jewelry you wear near it should be given primary consideration.

Every woman has inherited one of the four basic facial shapes: oval, round, square or heart-shaped. It's impossible for all earrings and all necklaces to look good on all women. Your jewelry works best when you use it to harmonize with your special facial shape.

OVAL FACE

Women with an oval shape face have few restrictions on the jewelry they wear around their face. Any shape earring works well—from buttons to hoops or dangling drops—as well as any type or length of necklace. Your only limitation with an oval face are those of proportion. It's important to scale the size of your earrings and necklace to the size of your face and body.

SQUARE FACE

A square face tends to look as wide as it is long with easily distinguishable angles. If this is your facial shape, your best jewelry is round, oval or soft-edged. Long or dangling earrings, which emphasize vertical lines, work well for a woman with a square face. Generally look for earrings that are longer than they are wide. Simple necklaces ending in a "V" and those with a pendant attached also elongate and slim a square face. Medium to long chains, or chains with pendants attached, help the eye travel in a vertical line and make the face appear longer and narrower. Chokers and other necklaces that form a horizontal line should be avoided as they tend to emphasize width.

ROUND FACE

A round face is the most easily identified. In addition to being shaped like a circle, it usually has no discernible angles at the cheeks or jawline. If this is your face shape, your cheekbones and jawline are also probably softly curved.

If you want your face to appear more oval, choose earrings with vertical lines, like drops or oblongs—any shape that does not add width. Avoid circular earrings; they not only add width but also emphasize the circular shape of your face by repeating the circle at the ear. Large, round hoops have the same effect. You can add more definition to your cheekbones by choosing jewelry with angularity and sharpness in the design.

Just as jewelry with curves softens the angularity of a woman with a square face, jewelry featuring strong angular designs adds definition to a round face. Wear necklaces of opera length or longer perhaps knotted at the end for more emphasis. "V" type necklaces or necklaces also work to slenderize the face.

HEART-SHAPED FACE

A heart-shaped face is wide at the forehead and cheeks, then narrows to a point at the chin. You should wear earrings and necklaces that visually add width to the lower half of your face. Earrings that are wider at the bottom than at the top do this. Try some with a triangular shape, their point turned to the top. Round hoops with their curved edges can also soften the pointedness of the chin.

Long, narrow earrings should be avoided because they add length and accentuate the pointedness of the chin.

Necklaces that end in a "V" don't flatter your heart-shaped face because the "V" repeats the sharp lines of the chin. A choker or princess length works well, as their curved lines work to soften and widen the angularity of your chin.

Men moving away from tradition

NEW YORK (AP) — Maturing baby boomers are changing the roles for menswear as they look for clothes somewhere between jeans and T-shirt and the pinstripe suit.

"Most of the younger guys who are working grew up on MTV and rock 'n' roll," said award-winning designer Bill Robinson, whose label is starting its third year.

This generation, he says, is "breaking down barriers of how and where you wear things."

The experimentation is evident in clothes shown for fall.

The look includes round, softer shoulders on sportcoats; high-waisted sweaters meant to be tucked in; mock turtle-necks to be worn under vests; buttery, "antique leathers" and suedes. Browns, grays and blacks are popular, but some designers are throwing in reds, yellows and what one called "vegetable colors."

"I think men are ready to wear color," said Ronaldus Shamask, a relative newcomer to menswear whose minimalist designs in such shades as mustard, teal and wine have won acclaim. "Men are becoming much more comfortable with experimenting."

The classic Polo line by Ralph Lauren, who's been designing menswear for more than 20 years, is trying out American Indian styles, suede shirts and "antique ski and expedition clothing."

Even the business suit is "loosening up," said Tom Julian, associate fashion director of the Men's Fashion

Association. "Men are more aware (of fashion) today."

Jack Herschlag, executive director of the National Association of Men's Sportswear Buyers, says suits are appearing in a variety of silhouettes this fall and even the double-breasted suit will attempt a comeback.

Men are moving away from the investment-dressing era and into a stage of experimentation, Herschlag says.

He and others in the field attribute the development partly to the influence of movies and TV shows like "thirtysomething" and "L.A. Law" that feature smartly dressed young professionals.

That's not to say the new looks are for everyone. The conservative business suit is not dead yet.

"There'll always be a Brooks Brothers element in the society," Robinson said.

Abundant Life

LIFE MOVES ON

By Bob Wear

Life moves on, regardless of the desirability or undesirability of the happenings which concern and affect us.

We can choose to live, to accept the challenge, to carry the burdens, to cope with the problems, to appreciate the blessings, to be strong in faith, to do good; and, thus, we choose to live. We must not drift with the tide of time; discouraged, disappointed, frustrated, defeated, always criticizing and otherwise ineffective.

Living is not easy, but it can be made much more difficult than it has to be. Comparatively speaking, life is easier for some than it is for others. Nevertheless, life moves on. For some, the relative easy living becomes the source of their strength that brings victory. It all depends more upon the life quality of the person than upon the life situation.

Life moves one day at a time, and this is the way to live it. Each day is important, too important to waste or to misuse. No day of living should ever be wasted in self-pity, in complaining, in fault-finding, in self-condemning, or in condemning others.

We must make each day as complete as we can. "Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could; some blunders and some absurdities crept in—forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day. You shall begin it well and serenely, and with too high a spirit to be encumbered with your old nonsense."—Emerson.

Tomorrow may be a better day for some things, but not for living. Today, this day, is made for living; and if we do not appreciate it and do the best we can with it, we have just lost that much of life.

With the passing of time, life passes, too. Life moves as time moves, and we will be wise to fill the present with courage and good will, and look to the future with hope and good cheer.

Community invited to Health Fair Oct. 25

Health Fair '88, sponsored by the Family Living Committee of the Deaf Smith County Extension Service and Deaf Smith General Hospital, is planned from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Oct. 25 at the Hereford Community Center.

Citywide cholesterol screening planned

Elevated blood cholesterol is a major cause of coronary heart disease. That's why the American Red Cross is sponsoring a city-wide cholesterol screening Saturday, Oct. 29 from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. The screenings will be conducted at the Hereford YMCA.

These screenings are being offered to area residents as a basis of estimating their relative risk of heart disease. By seeking further medical assistance, moderate to high risk individuals can then take steps to reduce their risk.

A small fee of $6 will be charged for this quick, painless, and accurate test. You will have your results within three to five minutes.

Only seven percent of individuals know our cholesterol level. Yet, health officials agree it is a vital statistic to know. Of those tested at portable while-you-wait analyzers at malls...50 percent took the advice of testers and followed up with a doctor's visit. Of those, 70 percent said the test outcome was confirmed.

These results prompted the American Heart Association and the National Institute of Health to recommend the use of wide spread mail-style screening, combined with education for the purpose of early detection.

The notorious outlaw, Jesse James was shot to death in St. Joseph, Mo., in 1882 by Robert Ford, a member of his own gang.

The fair will feature educational displays and information and medical screenings. While most screening will be free of charge to health fair participants there will be a nominal charge to cover supplies for three of the testings offered by Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The Care-Link emergency aeromedical helicopter service from Lubbock will be a Health Fair display and will be present at the fair only from 10 a.m. until noon. The helicopter will land behind the Community Center and the Care Link's team will be on hand to answer questions.

Health concerns for all ages groups will be featured ranging from hearing tests, pregnancy test, glucose and blood pressure testing, delay of children from 0-3 years by the Region 16 Educational Service Center - Early Childhood Intervention, spinal and muscle listing, cardiac strips and many more.

Deaf Smith and area residents are invited to take part in this special event. More information may be obtained by calling the County Extension Office at 364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

O'Leary, Johnson wedding vows exchanged in Amarillo

Jolynn O'Leary of Amarillo became the bride of Tedd Carl Johnson, also of Amarillo, during an early evening wedding ceremony Saturday in Coulter Road Baptist Church in Amarillo. The marriage was officiated by the Rev. Donnie Lane.

The bride is the daughter of Ralph O'Leary of Amarillo and Mrs. Donnie South of Houston. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Johnson of Dalhart.

The church was decorated with two 15-branch heart-shaped candelabra, two seven-branch candelabra, a kneeling bench, six aisle candles, a unity candle and fresh lemon leaves.

Lisa Lucero of Hereford served as the bride's honor attendant and Chris Johnson of Lubbock was his brother's best man.

Bridesmaids included Cindy Wardlow and Martha McCaslin, both of Amarillo, and Jennifer Burland of Austin, the bride's cousin. Groomsmen were the groom's brother, Dan Johnson of Lubbock, Rick Stepp of Lubbock, and Mike Hyer of Dalhart. Guests were ushered by Joe Marr Wilson of Amarillo and Royce Howell of Dalhart.

Crystal Silva, daughter of Barbara Silva, was flower girl and candles were lit by Jason and Cody O'Leary.

Becky Seal of Dalhart sang "To Me", "Just You and I", "Wedding Prayer" and "Whither Thou Goest" accompanied by Shirley Williams of Amarillo.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a designer's gown of white regal satin fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and a bodice crowned with lace and pearl ornaments on shimmering satin and European laces. The waistline was princess-style and the ballroom-shaped sleeves were gathered with satin bows. The back of the V-shaped gown was adorned with a designer bow atop a European bustle.

Ballroom-length tiers of bridal illusion were attached to a headdress with streamers of sequined and pearl flowers on one side. She carried catalaya orchids, seed pearls with black velvet and lace streamers and wore diamond and pearl earrings which were given to her by the groom.

Each bridesmaid wore an all black dress fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, candy box bows on gathered sleeves and princess-styled waistline. The back plunged low and was accented with a French bustle on a taffeta skirt and a designer bow at the center back. The skirt was length in front and flowed to ballroom-length in the back.

The maid of honor carried one red and one white rose and other bridal attendants carried a red rose with baby's breath and streamers.

As the couple left in a limousine for the reception at the Sheraton Towers in Amarillo, black and white balloons were released.

Stacey Hitchcock invited guests to register and cake was served by Margaret Gamez and Linda McGlaughlin. Punch and coffee were poured by Jayn Looper assisted by Lisa McLellan and Vickie Copley.

The Queen of Hearts bride's cake, made by Margaret Gamez of Hereford, was topped with Precious Moments bride and groom and was placed on a table covered with a white pleated cloth with black bows. The groom's cake was decorated in black and red symbolizing Texas Tech University.

The couple will make their home in Amarillo after a wedding trip to the Bahamas.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Hereford High School and is pursuing a career in radiology technology at Amarillo College.

The groom attended Iowa State University and graduated from Texas Tech University in 1987 with a degree in agricultural economics finance. Special out-of-town guests included the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph O'Leary Sr. of Houston, and the groom's grandmother, Jennie Anderson of Waterloo, Iowa. Other towns represented were Austin, Killeen, Ankeny, Iowa, Milwaukee, Wis., Waterloo, Iowa, Augusta, Mich., and Aurora, Colo.

ROBIN UMSTED, BRADY SLIMAN

November wedding set

Former Hereford resident, Robin Umsted of Bethany, Okla., and Brady Sliman of Oklahoma City, Okla. plan to wed Nov. 12 in Western Oaks Nazarene Church in Oklahoma City.

The bride-elect is the daughter of former residents, Lee and Doris Umsted of Dickson, Texas, and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Loretta Sliman and the late Jamiel Sliman.

Miss Umsted, a 1982 graduate of Hereford High School, graduated from Bethany Nazarene College in 1987. Her fiancé, a graduate of Southwood High School in Shreveport, La., also attended BNC.

Family film to be shown

The public is invited free of charge to view "Brother of the Wind", a family film to be shown at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library.

The thrilling outdoor adventure, set in the Canadian Rockies, is the story of a lonely mountain man who saves four wolf pups from starvation when their mother is killed. The frisky "youngsters" make themselves at home in his cabin where they become his constant companions. Their comic behaviour is delightful, but the old man realizes that they must be taught to become self-sufficient.

The film is approximately one-and-a-half hours long.

Legion meeting Tuesday

A special meeting of the American Legion Post 192 is set for Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Post Home in Veterans Park.

The program will feature a salute to the U.S. Navy whose birthday is approaching. Local attorney Ed Line will be the main speaker. He was a pilot in the Navy during World War II.

The Hereford squadron of the Civil Air Patrol Cadets and their parents will be special guests of the American Legion. The Cadets, under squadron commander Jim McMorris, will post the colors for the program.

All American Legion members, families, guests, and friends are invited to attend. The Post will serve ham and navy beans. Others attending may bring a salad or dessert.

Preparing for book sale

The annual Friends of the Deaf Smith County Library Book Sale has several Friends members busily examining and pricing books for the fundraising event. They include, from left, librarian Becky Walls, Carmen Angel, Janie Nino, Giles Boone, and Mildren Brown. Friends members may attend the sale from 7-9 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21. The sale will be open to the public Saturday, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. and Sunday, 2-5 p.m. A wide variety of books and materials will be available with copyright dates ranging from the late 1800's to 1987. Some of the magazine titles to be sold include National Geographic, Collector's Showcase and Audubon; books focusing on crafts, trains, finance, religion, antiques, romance, etc. will be offered. Proceeds from the sale will go to expand the 40 volume collection of talking books, family film, film, and other projects planned by the friends group.

Armstrong-Hultman selected as featured artist at CHOF

Joan Armstrong-Hultman of Clovis, N.M. has been selected as the feature artist for October-November at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

Although the professionally trained artist has used all mediums including watercolor, graphite and prisma color, pencils, and pen and ink, she prefers gouache because of the clarity and relative opacity of the medium. She says it gives her such a range of colors, from bright brights to subdued hues, which gives her the freedom of choice she needs to create her realistic paintings. Armstrong-Hultman chooses to paint peoples and places of the Southwest. In her paintings, she readily captures the ease of life in the West and the caring, friendly nature of the people.

The major influences in this artist's life have been Andrew Wyeth, Gordon Snidow, James Bama, Joy E. Armstrong, her family and her friends. She has a B.S. in commercial art from Eastern New Mexico University in Portales, N.M. and she has studied special oil techniques under Dr. D. Merritt. Her art has been judged best of show at the 1987 Pintores Spring Fling and the People's Choice Award at the 1987 New Mexico State Fair.

The Hall of Fame invites the public to come view Joan Armstrong-Hultman's most interesting and creative art display. Some 30 pieces of art are currently on exhibit. The Hall is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Preregister for Run

The Golden Heart Run will be held rain or shine Saturday, Oct. 22 at 9 a.m. in the parking lot of Golden Plains Care Center, 420 Ranger.

Participants will receive gold T-shirts with black lettering on the day of the race with preregistration. Entry fee at preregistration is $8; the fee is $9 on the day of the race.

Divisions open include the one mile walk and the one mile run with each offered in categories for males or females. Age groups will be divided into 13 and under, 14-39, and 40 and up. Medals and trophies will be awarded.

Entry blanks are available at Golden Plains Care Center, Save 'n' Gain, The Store, Moore's Jack 'n' Jill, Deaf Smith General Hospital, K-Bob's Steak House, Sirloin Stockade, Deaf Smith County Library, Hereford YMCA, Gibsons, Vi's BBQ, Kerr-McGee Gas Station, and Hereford Senior Citizens.

"We urge everyone to return their entry forms to us as soon as possible so we can order T-shirts," said Cindy Walker, Golden Plains Care Center's administrator. "We would like to have all entry blanks in by Monday."

Kelley presents program

Sweet 'n' Fancy Cake Decorating Club members watched several demonstrations given by President Carol Kelley when the group met recently at the Hereford Community Center.

Kelley showed how to make candy molds designing haunted houses, ghosts, skeletons and pumpkins, and also gave a demonstration on how to make candy bars from melted chocolate.

During the brief business session, Kelley recognized special guests, Cave and Bernita Wann, Kelley's parents, and Cherie Neville, and Corina Garcia.

Those present included Kelley, Melody Willis, Margaret Gamez, Elizabeth Flora, Nina Lewal, Betty Henson and Evelyn Crofford.

The public is invited to attend the club's next meeting at 9:30 a.m. Nov. 17 at the Hereford Community Center. A program on "Creative Cakes" will be given by a company representative in Amarillo.

Composer Ludwig van Beethoven died in 1827 in Vienna.

JENIFER BANKSTON, SHAUN RICKMAN

Couple to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bankston of 546 Willow Lane announce the engagement of their daughter, Jenifer Lee Bankston, to Shaun Patrick Rickman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Rickman, 239 Ave. D.

The couple plans to exchange nuptials Jan. 7, 1989, in First Baptist Church of Hereford.

Miss Bankston is a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School and has attended West Texas State University. She is presently employed by M&W Carrot.

Rickman, a 1985 HHS graduate, also attended WTSU and is currently employed by Keyes Electric.

86th anniversary observed by Hereford Rebekah Lodge

Members of the Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 observed the organization's 86th anniversary when they met Tuesday evening.

Susie Curtsinger gave the lodge's history explaining that the Hereford F.O.O.F. Lodge No. 476 was established Sept. 30, 1899, and the women's lodge was created in Oct. 11, 1902, with 10 charter members. There are currently three Rebekah members who have been members for over 50 years: Verna Sowell, Ursalee Jacobsen and Ruth Rogers. There have been 727 members since the Hereford lodge began.

Lydia Hopson, Sowell, and other longtime Rebekah Lodge members also spoke to the group.

Noble Grand Dorothy Lundry presided at the business session in which plans were finalized for the annual chili supper set from 5:30-8:30 p.m. Oct. 22 at the IOOF Hall, 205 E. Sixth St. Tickets are priced at $3 for adults and $1.50 for children under 10

Parents of sophomores are urged to attend Monday's meeting set at 6 p.m. in the Community Center.

The upcoming Sophomore supper will be discussed at that time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just received something in the mail that made me sick. It's a flier put out by people who love animals. They want the public to know that rabbits, cats and dogs are being tortured in laboratories not to find cures for illnesses or to produce vaccines to protect us against terrible things like AIDS, but for developing cosmetics!

These pictures show monkeys being blinded and rabbits with big patches of fur and flesh cut out of their sides. Dogs are strapped to boards and needles are sticking all over. I cried when I saw it.

I know you favor the use of animals in laboratory experiments to save lives, and I can understand that, but what about the cruelty perpetrated on helpless creatures in order to make cosmetics? Please address this in your column, Ann. I'm sure a great many readers would be interested. -Molly in Maryland

DEAR MOLLY: The flier you received is incorrect. Monkeys, cats and dogs are NOT used in experiments to test cosmetics—only rats, mice and rabbits.

Dr. Frank Young, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, has repeatedly said animal testing is needed to ensure that consumer products are safe for human use. Dr. Young's sentiments are echoed by thousands of scientists.

No one likes to use animals in this way, but we must make certain that face cream, hand lotion, mascara, deodorant, lipstick, nail polish, perfume, soap, shampoo, toothpaste, permanent wave solution, hair-coloring and hundreds of other beauty and hygiene products are safe to the skin and eyes. We must also know how to prevent serious illness or death if any of these substances is swallowed.

Young children love to eat lipstick, rouge and eye shadow, and many even try drinking perfume and shampoo. If we were not able to test these products on animals we would end up testing them on humans in the emergency rooms of hospitals all over the country.

Because of animal testing we were able to develop sunscreens that have prevented countless cases of skin cancer. This is an enormous contribution.

For those who say, "We can stop testing now. We know enough!" I reply, "Not true. We do NOT know enough." If those people had had their way, it would not have been possible to develop the products that millions enjoy today.

The United States Department of Agriculture under the Animal Welfare Act has established guidelines and surveillance techniques to protect the animals used in laboratory testing. These regulations were set up to make certain that no animal suffer needlessly. It is advantageous to all concerned that laboratory models be kept reasonably calm. Stressed-out animals do not make good subjects for testing.

In the next few years there are bound to be improvements on all cosmetics, hair supplies and household products. Researchers are constantly working to improve existing products and develop new ones.

I love animals, too, but I love humanity more.

Dr. Benjamin Trump from the University of Maryland Medical School said in a recent interview, "We in the medical profession find it painful to accept a dead child over a dead mouse." Dr. Trump's sane sentiments are shared by millions, and you can put me at the top of the list.

What are the signs of alcoholism? How can you tell if someone you love is an alcoholic? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It,

How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. To receive a copy, send $3 and a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

The animal with the largest brain in proportion to its body size is the ant.

Ham presents program to La Madre Mia Club

Priscilla Ham presented an informative program and demonstration on weaving when she spoke to members of La Madre Mia Study Club Thursday evening in the home of Susan Robbins. Ham demonstrated how to use a spinning wheel and loom after preparing raw wool for spinning. She also displayed pieces of her pottery. During the business session conducted by President Gladys Merritt, roll call was answered with "your favorite art medium." Also, a year-book committee report was heard from Georgia Sparks.

4. Proceeds from this major fundraising event will benefit the community. Robbins and co-hostess, Joyce Allred, distributed plate favors consisting of baskets filled with candy and nuts and banners with "Go Herd." Maroon plates and napkins were also used in honor of the homecoming game Friday.

Those present were Allred, Black, Merle Clark, Sharon Hodges, Betty Lady, Beverley Lambert, Merritt, Lavon Nieman, Nancy Paetsold, Robbins, Lucy Rogers, Tricia Sims, Sparks, Betty Taylor, Pat Walsh, Mary Beth White and Judy Williams.

Total wellness topic of Delta Kappa Gamma program

Members of Delta Kappa Gamma Delta Xi held their monthly meeting Monday in the banquet room of the Hereford Community Center.

Vice president Nina Brown presided in the absence of President Betty Mercer. Collect was led by Betty Sue Worthan.

Rose Mary Shook gave her inspiration for becoming a teacher and secretary Dolores Foster called the roll and read the minutes. Audrey Powell, acting treasurer, gave the treasurer's report and submitted the year's budget which was accepted by the group. Corresponding secretary Julia McNaney read a letter of resignation from Adele Clements.

Special recognition was given to Dorothy Brownlow by Karen White. White also acknowledged ladies who had birthdays during September and October. Legislation chairman, Betty Volkman, reminded all members to read about the candidates, especially those running for state school board, and to exercise their voting rights.

The program, "Focusing on Total Wellness" which dealt primarily with stress and ways to release it, was presented by Nina Brown, Pat Montgomery, Louise Witkowski, Pat Simmacher and Lois Miller.

Refreshments were served from a table of fall decorations by hostesses: Murlene Streun, Judy Phipps, Ann Cummings, Eloise McDougal, Betty Volkman and Mary Dzuik.

The next meeting will be at 7 p.m. Nov. 7 at the Community Center. The program will be "Enhancing the Human Environment."

Christmas Crafts Festival to feature handmade items

The public is invited to attend the Christmas Crafts Festival planned from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Dec. 10 and from noon to 5 p.m. Dec. 11 at Sugarland Mall.

Interested individuals and groups may obtain rental space to sell handmade items only. No commercial booths will be allowed and no food items may be sold except in designated food booths.

Each exhibitor will be responsible for collection of sales tax on merchandise sold as well as payment to the state comptroller. Also, each artist will be responsible for his booth and property therein. Exhibitors are not permitted to have small children with them during Festival hours. No refunds on booth space rentals will be made after Nov. 15.

For further information contact Euman Lyles at 364-5571.

ELIZABETH CARRILLO, VICTOR HOLGUIN

Wedding date set

Elizabeth Carrillo and Victor Hugo Holguin, both of Hereford, plan to wed Oct. 22 in the E.B. Black Historical House.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gumersindo Carrillo of 609 Bowie and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurilio Holguin of 110 Campbell.

Miss Carrillo is a junior student at Hereford High School. Her fiancé, a 1988 HHS graduate, is currently employed by H&R Manufacturing of Hereford.

Veleda Study Club meets

The Veleda Study Club met in the home of Juanita Brown. The meeting was called to order by President Norma Walden.

The club collect was read by the members and roll call was answered with each member's way of renewing her personal faith. A short business meeting was conducted by the president.

Marcella Bradly reviewed the book "I Dared To Call Him Father" by Bilquis Sheikh. This true story of a Muslim woman tells of her dramatic dreams which launch her on a quest for knowledge of the Holy Bible and Christianity.

Her studies lead her to the question: "How could it be the same God if the God of the Korean is one of vengeance and punishment and the God of the Holy Bible is one of mercy and forgiveness?" In her fascinating story she leaves the Muslim faith and give her life to the God of the Christian faith.

Giving up her home, gardens, family, friends and country, she has made a new life in the United States witnessing for the Lord she dared to call Father.

Refreshments were served to guest Della Hutchins and to the following members; Marcella Bradly, Ruth Fish, Betty Gilbert, Marjorie Lasiter, Joyce Ritter, Tommie Savage, Suzanne Stevens, Norma Walden and Margaret Zinser.

BECKY NICHOLS

Engagement announced

Rebecca Ann "Becky" Nichols of Hereford will become the bride of Michael Stephen Lee of Comiso Air Force Base in Sicily on Jan. 14, 1989, at the Church of the Nazarene in Hereford.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Ward of 605 Stanton, Hereford, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Monte Lee of Cotton Center.

A 1986 graduate of Hereford High School, the bride-elect is currently enrolled at West Texas State University where she is pursuing a degree in elementary education.

The prospective bridegroom, a 1984 graduate of Cotton Center High School, is presently in the U.S. Air Force, stationed overseas in Sicily.

Noland serves as hostess for Garden Beautiful Club

Members of Garden Beautiful Club met recently in the home of Dorothy Noland for their monthly meeting. Margaret Young served as co-hostess.

After refreshments of fresh fruits, date nut coffee cake, coffee and hot cider were served, Young distributed several of her recipes to members.

President Marguerite Newell conducted the business meeting and garden tips were given by Louise Axe, Newell, Young and Ruby Carmichael. Minutes were read and corrected and the treasurer's report

The first White House wedding took place in 1812 as Lucy Payne Washington, sister-in-law of President James Madison, married Supreme Court Justice Thomas Todd.

Madagascar is home to 140 different kinds of frogs and as many as 8,000 plants found nowhere else on earth.

A letter was read from the Hereford Pilot Club and members were reminded of the November auction.

Newell introduced Helen Spinks who presented a program on her recent trip to the Northeast and Canada. She explained the highlights of her 6,000 mile vacation. She visited many historical sites as well as touring an Amish farm.

Members present included Phung Emmons, Bessie Story, Carmichael, Bobbie Metcalf, Louise Axe, Dottie Darden, Inez Witherspoon, Ina Mae Gilbreath, Newell, Hilda Haven, Winnie Wiseman, Lousella Cowser and Gilbreath.

Red Cross Update

Thanks to the VNP (very nice person) that mowed the lot next to the Red Cross office and to Jim Scott for finishing up the job on the lot.

An extra special thanks to Mrs. Suggs for donating several pieces of antique furniture to our Chapter. We will be taking bids on the furniture. The funds raised will help to buy a new CPR mannikin. The chest of drawers iron bed frame and several chairs can be seen at the Red Cross office.

A cholesterol screening will be held Saturday, Oct. 29, at the YMCA. The tests will cost $6 and appointments are being taken at the Red Cross office and the Y.

The Territorial meeting will be held Thursday, Oct. 27, in Amarillo. All volunteers are invited to attend this meeting of volunteers and staff. Registrations need to be in by the 19 of this month. Cost of the meeting is $4.50 for the lunch. A tour of the Harrison House is also planned and is by registration in addition to the meeting. Call the Red Cross office at 364-3761 to register.

Special thanks to the students at St. Anthony's School for raising money for the relief efforts for the victims of Hurricane Gilbert.

The Health Fair will be held Tuesday, Oct. 25, at the Community center. We are urging everyone to attend to learn more about health related matters and to take advantage of tests that will be available.

Extra Special thanks to all of the United Way workers that are out raising money for all of the agencies supported by the United Way. Our Chapter is one of those agencies. Please give to the United Way.

Nazarene C.A. sets meeting

The Nazarene Christian Academy will have a Parent Teacher Fellowship meeting Thursday, Oct. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Church of the Nazarene sanctuary.

There will be an election of officers and general plans for the year will be discussed.

Mrs. Morton and her kindergarten 4 class will present a musical program.

For more information, contact Doris Huckert a 364-6078.

Festival of Arts, Crafts planned

Wesley United Methodist Church will be hosting its 8th Annual Festival of Arts and Crafts on Dec. 3, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

Only a limited number of booths are available with applications being screened. Booth fee is $10.

Applications may be obtained by writing Ellen Collins 801 Miles, St., Hereford, Tx. 79045 or call (806)364-0774.

Kingdom Seekers meet

Velma Carroll was hostess to the Kingdom Seekers Sunday School Class of Avenue Baptist Church Tuesday. By special request, she opened the meeting with a reading of "A Deck of Cards."

Erma Bain voiced the opening prayer and Fannie Townsend gave excerpts from the book "Man in Black" by Johnny Cash as the devotional.

Luella Thomas presided over the short business meeting when reports of the ill were heard. Pauline Landers led the closing prayer.

Refreshments were served to Wilma Bryan, Nita Houle, Dora Barnett, Trudie Gray, Dorothy Sargent, Townsend, Bain, Landers and Thomas.

In 1955, the Salk vaccine against polio was declared safe and effective.

Air Force pilot and is now attending fighter pilot training at Holoman Air Force Base in Alamogordo, N.M.

Upon completion of this training, he will be flying the F-111 aircraft stationed at Cannon Air Force Base in Clovis, N.M.

While in Hereford High School, Caudle was active in vocational agriculture, Key Club, band, National Honor Society and First Baptist Church. He received a degree in mechanized agriculture in May, 1987, from Texas Tech University, where he was in ROTC.

Caudle is the son of Miles and Ella Caudle of Hereford. His fiancée is Jennifer Burnett of Austin. She is a student at Texas Tech University and will be a candidate for graduation in December with a degree in Interior decorating.

Toastmasters Weaver, Cook win awards

Hereford Toastmasters Club met Thursday morning at the Ranch House Restaurant and recognized local winners of the Oct. 8 Area II Contest held in Amarillo.

Joe Weaver won the humorous speech contest with his talk on "Words Fitfully Spoken." He will represent the local club in district competition set in Plainview Oct. 22. Clubs from Hereford and Amarillo participated in the Oct. 8 contest.

Lynn Cook placed third in the evaluation contest, hosted by Club 1875, "Natural Gassers Toastmasters" of Amarillo.

President Joe Cummings conducted the business session. Cook handled the table topic session. The award for best table topic speaker was shared by Doug Anderson, a guest from Amarillo, and Larry Leon. Anderson's topic concerned a ping pong paddle and its benefits toward children's discipline. Leon provide an insight on Yo-Yos, which he said are really space alien detectors.

Chuck Danley was welcomed back after an absence of several months.

The main program speakers were Clark Adams, talking on "Apple Butter Days" and Bill Devers on "Silent But Deadly". Clark told about a town in Missouri where there is an annual apple butter day and how they peel, cook and prepare large vats of the apple mixture. Dever's speech addressed the topic of heart disease and its symptoms. He recommended that everyone have their blood checked for cholesterol levels and triglyceride levels.

Milton Adams served as general evaluator, Rocky Lee as word master, and Bob Lohr as toastmaster. The Hereford Club meets each Thursday at 6 a.m. in The Ranch House Restaurant.

Weaver wins award

Joe Weaver, left, received first place for his speech, "Words Fitfully Spoken" entered in the humorous speech contest held by Division North District 44, Area II in Amarillo Oct. 8. Presenting him with the award was Joe Cummings, right, president of Hereford Toastmasters Club. Taking third place in the annual event's evaluation contest was local toastmaster Lynn Cook. Weaver will advance to district competition Oct. 22 in Plainview.

Tax practitioner workshops set in Amarillo

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is cooperating with the Internal Revenue Service in offering many tax practitioner workshops across the state, reports Beverly Harder, County Extension Agent-H.E.

Twenty-eight general workshops will be held in all major Texas cities. The general workshop nearest our county is in Amarillo on Dec. 5-6. There will also be 15 advanced workshops offered in major cities.

The general tax workshops will concentrate mostly on personal taxes—the advanced workshops' emphasis will be on business tax problems and will be in Amarillo on program has been highly successful. Last year about 6,000 people participated in this state-wide series. These practitioners reported filing more than 635,000 tax returns. For additional information, please contact the Deaf Smith County Extension office for a brochure explaining more about the program and registration information.
