Soviets soldier

MOSCOW (AP) - The Soviets today accused a U.S. military attache of spying and ordered him expelled. a move that follows Washington's expulsion last week of a Soviet officer allegedly caught trying to buy computer secrets.

Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov said Army Lt. Col. Daniel Francis Van Gundy III. an assistant military attache at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, had been given 48 hours to leave the country.

Gerasimov said Van Gundy, who had been assigned to the embassy for about two years, the normal Moscow diplomatic tour, was declared unwelcome because he engaged in espionage.

Van Gundy lives on the U.S. Embassy compound with his wife, Susan, and two of their three daughters.

His expulsion follows the U.S. government's announcement Thursday that it had ordered Soviet Lt. Col. Yuri N. Pakhtusov to leave the United Gerasimov, at a hastily called briefing, charged that Van Gundy attempted "to enter a closed area, deliberately diverting from the officially permitted route, clandestinely photographed military sites and committed other gross violations" of the rules of diplomatic conduct.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Richard Gilbert rejected the Soviet charges against Van Gundy, saying they were 'unwarranted, inappropriate, without justification and certainly in no way in keeping with the positive tone of the U.S.-Soviet relationship."

Gilbert, the embassy press attache, denied the 42-year-old U.S. Army officer had engaged in activities inconsistent with his work as a diplomat and suggested the Soviet action was simply in retaliation for the U.S. expulsion of Pakhtusov.

Gerasimov said: "The U.S. administration is revealing its foreign policy, and we have this problem of Soviet relations.

"We're not the ones who initiated this process," Gerasimov said, tacitly acknowledging the connection between last week's incident and the expulsion of Van Gundy.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Administration officials are describing their ban on imports of AK-47s and other semiautomatic firearms as "temporary and reversible," but say it was necessary to head off an imminent flood of the assault weapons into the United States.

The action Tuesday appeared to be a softening of President Bush's oftstated opposition to gun controls, but White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said it merely enforces current law that allows imports of guns only if for sporting purposes.

Bush, a member of the National Rifle Association, "shares the public concern" over the proliferation of semiautomatic weapons, but he is not changing his position against a ban on such guns, Fitzwater said.

Bush had asked national drug control director William J. Bennett last week to recommend what should be done about the weapons. Calls for a ban have been prompted by scores of drug-related shootings and the recent killing of five California

Schools banning apples from menu

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Schools across the country are banning apples from lunchrooms even as one health expert mocks educators' fears of the farm chemical Alar as a "toxic bogeyman."

On Tuesday, school systems in Chicago, Minneapolis-St. Paul and in Virginia joined districts in New York City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Sacramento, Cincinnati, Atlanta and elsewhere in suspending sales of apples, applesauce and apple juice. The bans follow a report that children faced increased cancer risks from the chemical that's used to make some apples crisper and brighter.

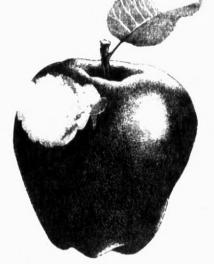

Seeking to slow the spread of apple bans and soothe consumer alarm, California's top health officer said educators were acting hastily.

Kenneth Kizer, director of the state Department of Health Services, pulled out a shiny red apple and took a bite as he explained that current research on Alar, a trade name for the compound daminozide, shouldn't prompt anybody to quit eating the fruit.

'In a nutshell, I and the Department of Health Services think this was reactionary and premature and indeed our fear is they have really created a toxic bogeyman," Kizer said.

The bans were prompted by a report last month from the Washington, D.C.based Natural Resources Defense Council, which estimated that the average preschooler's cancer risk was about one case for every 4,000 reschoolers exposed to UDMH, a breakdown product of Alar. It found the risk greatest for children because of the large amounts of apple products they consume.

Farm groups maintain little threat from the chemical exists, and the manufacturer, Uniroyal Chemical Co. of Middlebury, Conn., estimates it is used on only 5 percent of the nation's apple crop. The federal Environmental Protection Agency plans to ban the use of Alar on food crops in 18 months, pending further study.

Public lobbying against Alar by actress Meryl Streep and a broadcast on the CBS-TV program "60 Minutes" have fueled the growing Kizer said the risk of getting cancer from agricultural chemicals is dwarfed by the cancer threat posed by a bad diet overloaded with sugar and fat.

"This should not change what parents are putting in their kids' lunch or what schools are serving the kids," Kizer said of the controversy. "When we send a message to our kids that apples aren't safe, what are they going to eat? They're going to eat Twinkies and Zingers.

Vicky Scharlau, a spokeswoman for the Washington (state) Apple Commission, which represents the nation's largest apple crop, said it was frustrating that school districts were choosing to disregard EPA assurances that apples are safe.

'They are taking the issue into their own hands and playing judge and jury," she said. "They are instilling fear in children whose favorite products are apples and apple products.

Chicago officials said the ban was temporary, pending suppliers' assurances that the products were free

In Virginia, bans were announced by school officials in Fairfax County outside Washington, D.C, and in Richmond.

The federal government's school lunch program will continue providing apples, applesauce and apple slices to students, said Gene Vincent, a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Discovery's lights were dimmed and some computer screens were darkened today as engineers decided if a hydrogen tank problem was serious enough to bring the five-man crew home a day early.

New grassfires throughout the state prompted the Texas Forest Service on Tuesday to upgrade its fire alert to a moratorium on all outside burning in East Texas. Officials said 208 fires have consumed more than 45,300 acres statewide since Saturday and weather officials were predicting no rainfall before Sunday.

A New Mexico team that has been fighting the Big Bend fire since Sunday planned to relinquish operations to park officials and head to the Lincoln National Forest in the Guadalupe Mountains just north of the Texas border. A fire there has burned an estimated 1,000 acres, said Ed Wood, fire information officer with the Southern New Mexico Class Two Incident team.

'I would say approximately half of the 615 acres was burnt hard and the rest of it was burnt in varying degrees," Wood said. "I believe part of it was actually a healthy burn.

Gays protest AIDS bill

AIDS infection may become criminal said a bill allowing attempted murder charges to be brought against people who try to infect others with AIDS will do nothing to solve the AIDS epidemic.

Glen Maxey, executive director of the Lesbian-Gay Rights Lobby of Texas, said Tuesday, "What we have here ... is what can be called feel-good legislation.

"It will make all of these people who are concerned about the transmission of HIV (the virus that causes AIDS) to innocent victims sleep a little better at night because some words are in a lawbook somewhere. This virus doesn't read lawbooks," he

The bill by Sen. Carl Parker, supported by the state's largest police officers association, was sent to a subcommittee of the Senate Criminal Justice Committee. Parker, D-Port Arthur, said people who try to transmit the deadly affliction to others should be treated just the same as a person who puts strychnine in someone's coffee. 'It's just as deadly to knowingly infect someone with HIV, or the AIDS virus, knowing that death is certain to follow," he said.

The bill would also give law enforcement agencies another tool in preventing prostitutes who know they have AIDS from working, he said.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission allowing security clearances to slide

WASHINGTON (AP) - The personal problems that made them Nuclear Regulatory Commission has put national security at risk by allowing newly hired personnel to start work without security clearances and by failing to reinvestigate many veteran workers, a government auditing agency said today.

The General Accounting Office said it found that since 1983 about 10 percent of NRC employees who began working before their security investigations were completed later left unacceptable security risks. It said nearly all workers are granted this security waiver.

The report was the subject of a public hearing today before a House Government Operations subcommittee, which requested the GAO investigation in 1987.

At NRC headquarters in Rockville, Md., spokesman Robert Newlin said, "We are planning improvements in our programs that are responsive to the the agency because the checks GAO recommendations." He said disclosed drug-related or other details of these changes would be revealed to the House panel.

The GAO report criticized the NRC for failing to reinvestigate nearly half of the approximately 10,600 peop'e who hold security clearances. Only those holding the most sensitive jobs are subjected to reinvestigation, but the GAO said results of those probes indicate a need to extend the practice to all workers.

'Reinvestigations revealed cleared persons with histories of child molestation, drug abuse and criminal activities," the report said.

"Periodic reinvestigations can highlight these problems and provide NRC information needed to determine whether an employee could be a possible candidate for activities, such as espionage, that would endanger national security."

The GAO said it reviewed a sample of NRC's personnel security files for clearances since 1983 and found several cases that underscored the need for stronger security rules.

State senators hitting hard for helmet law

AUSTIN (AP) - Requiring motorcyclists to wear helmets is "strictly a concern for public safety," not for personal freedom, a state lawmaker proposing such a measure

"Even the most ardent civil libertarian will agree that ... when a person neglects his personal and physical safety to this degree, all of society suffers," said Rep. Mike McKinney, D-Centerville.

McKinney testified Tuesday before the House Transportation Committe which is considering his bill. The committee heard testimony from numerous witnesses, including state agency spokesmen, bikers and a Maine college professor.

A similar bill by Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, was recommended favorably to the full Senate Tuesday by the Senate Committee on Health and Human Services, which passed it with little debate and no amendments.

The Senate panel three weeks ago heard lengthy public testimony for and against the measure.

The state repealed a mandatory elmet law in 1977, and state statistics

Dr. Jonathan Goldstein, economics

professor at Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine, testified against the bill in behalf of a motorcyclists group, ABATE, or American Bikers Against Totalitarian Enactments.

Goldstein said his studies show most fatal motorcycle accidents involve high speed and alcohol-factors not affected by helmets. "People who don't wear helmets are inherently risk-takers ... more tikely to drive fast and use alcohol and not have insurance," Goldstein said.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. Can "bread" flour be substituted for all-purpose flour? R.D.W., Seattle,

A. Yes. Bread flour is especially good for yeast-raised breads because its slightly higher protein content contributes to gluten development and higher volume breads and rolls. The dough is more elastic and should rest about 20 minutes after punching down and before shaping. The rest period allows the gluten to relax, making rolling or shaping easier.

> Ceballos got out of the inning, then shut the Demons down in the fifth and sixth, while the Herd suffered from several mistakes.

> "The fifth inning just killed us," Sartor said. "They got three outs in the fifth and we never hit the ball for an out." One Hereford runner was picked off of first, and another was thrown out at second. "We had a chance to take advantage there, but just didn't do it."

About that time, the wind changed direction, too. The batters had been taking advantage of a strong southwesterly wind during the first four innings. By the time the sixth inning rolled around, fans, players and coaches were looking for jackets to brace against a strong northerly wind.

"Fidel did a great job," Sartor said. The lanky lefthander struck out five of the ten batters he faced before giving way to Jason Scott after walking the leadoff batter in the seventh.

The first man Scott faced fouled off a bunt for a strikeout, and the second hit a nubber to McCracken for an out at first, then, Scott came back to strike out Dale Venhaus on a 3-2 pitch to end the inning.

With the sun sinking below the horizon, the Herd got a couple of baserunners aboard, but Dumas got out of the inning on a good catch by the second baseman on a hard liner by Jared Victor.

The Herd will next play on Saturday at Pampa.

NCAA tourney: exclusive club By HAL BOCK

AP Sports Writer Meet college basketball's most exclusive fraternity, a private club of outsiders with just five reluctant members, each of them yearning to leave.

Getting into this society is no small trick. You have to win 20 games and then not be invited to any postseason tournament. This is obviously difficult to do, but Boston University, Montana, Lafayette, Florida A&M and Appalachian State somehow managed.

For them, with 64 teams going to the NCAA tournament and 32 more headed for the NIT, there were no bids. The club cheer is: "We are No. 97." You may laugh, but they do not. 'It's happened to us before," said Stew Morrill, coach of Montana, VOLLEYBALL BOOST MISSION, Kan. (AP) - Coaches of women's volleyball teams think there is a surge in fan interest in that sport.

"Media coverage has increased tremendously in the last five years," Coach Doug Dannevik of California-San Diego said. "Remember, volleyball has been around a long time and is finally beginning to attract notice."

Other coaches said there is a potential for attracting major television coverage and cited changes in the game that make it more appealing to spectators. They also claim younger and better players are taking part.

In Larry Bird's rookie season with the Boston Celtics, 1979-80, the team won 32 games more than in the previous year.

Witt ready for good year

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) -Bobby Witt arrived in the minor leagues last season with a 7.68 earned run average and and 0-5 record as a member of the Texas Rangers' starting

He was an accident that had already happened, trying to piece together his shattered mechanics and gain control of his 90 mph fast ball.

But out of the rubble of one of his most frustrating experiences, Witt returned two months later and finished the season with an 8-5 record and 2.93 ERA in his final 16 starts.

He led the Rangers with 13 complete games and ranked third in the American League.

"I think most people who watched Bobby Witt the last half of last year feel confident he's going to be a good starting pitcher," General Manager Tom Grieve said.

Witt is assured of a spot in the rotation this season for the first time and he hopes the trend of his career will follow that of his new teammate, Nolan Ryan.

"Nolan struggled his first three or four years and I have too," Witt said.

"He started to turn it around about at first: after about four years so I hope that's a good sign."

Ryan and Witt both throw their fast balls in the 90 miles per hour range. They have similar size and Ryan was 29-37 in his first four years. Witt is 27-29 for three seasons.

Witt hopes to benefit from Ryan's

"He's got unbelieveable mechan-ics," Witt said. "I know that myself and the rest of the younger guys can learn a lot from him."

Witt was signed by the Rangers in the June 1985 free agent draft. He pitched only 11 games in the minor leagues before going straight to the major leagues.

He had an 11-9 record with the Rangers and 5.48 earned run average in 1986, leading the league with 143

He again battled wildness plus a sore shoulder in 1987 prior to his 1988 return to Tulsa.

'It hurt more than anything," Witt said of his demotion. "I had two years in the major leagues and noone wants to get sent down. I was really dejected

"A lot of times you'll see a guy go down to the minors after being in the major leagues and never see him re-

"I went down and worked on my mechanics and didn't raise any type of stink. I kept a positive attitude.'

Witt was finally able to sort out all the problems with his mechanics. He basically went back to his college

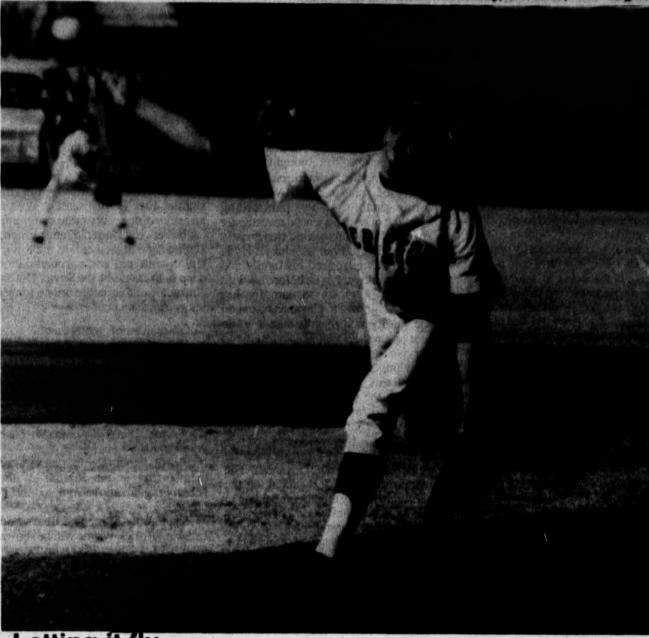

"At the start of last year every time I went to the mound they were telling me to do something different." Witt said. "The mechanics I was using were just not right for me.

"I didn't feel free and easy, I felt confined. I decided to go back to what got me here."

Witt said he was delighted when he heard that the Rangers had signed

"I didn't worry about him taking my job, I knew he'd get a spot anyway," Witt said. "I was just really excited along with all the younger guys on the team. He's one of the nicest men I've ever met.

"We've got a lot to learn and I'm sure we'll learn a lot from Nolan.'

Ontiveros is latest victim for Philadelphia

By The Associated Press

Remember these quotes: You will hear them often from Philadelphia Phillies' pitchers this year.

"This was another step back for me. I was awful in my first inning." Tuesday's victim was Steve Ontiveros and the score of the Phillies' latest loss was 4-1.

Ontiveros, the second of three Phillies pitchers to face the Expos on Tuesday, gave up three runs and five hits in three innings. The other two, Boston 7-6, Minnesota beat Kansas

"I think they have the common sense to realize that it's time to start getting people out," Levva said. "And that's what's so good about how Mike threw today. He was just outstanding." The Phillies saw another outstand-

At night, Baltimore's other squad beat Miami of Florida 5-0.

The former Baltimore Oriole manager, Earl Weaver, never played big league baseball but spent player and manager.

Hereford left fielder Glenn Parker, right, looks on in disbelief as umpire Brad Lamb, center, explains his call to Hereford baseball coach T.R. There are several best sellers available for you this week. Among them is The Edge by Dick Francis. Young Tor Kelsey, an undercover operative for the British Jockey Club, is masquerading as a waiter on a horseracing junket called the Great Transcontinental Mystery Race Train. Tor has been warned to expect trouble from one Julius Apollo Filmer, but what awaits Tor is totally unexpected. Mishaps begin effecting a privately owned railroad car belonging to one of the richest racing families. Sabotage on the Mystery train itself threatens many affluent owners and racing fans with a full speed collision. Then the body appears. Julius Apollo Filmer, a genius of blackmail, is clearly the master mind, but Tor is unable to outwit the clever opponent. This man who murders without qualm and destroys reputations without guilt must be stopped, and Tor vows to trap Filmer with a particularly shocking surprise. Moving at a lightning pace characters The Edge will be enjoyed by many readers.

Murder in Little Egypt by Darcy O'Brien has already been requested by a number of you. An unforgettable true tale of greed, hatred and revenge begins on December 1984, with the arrest of Dr. John Dale Cavaness. This prominent and respected southern Illinois physician and surgeon is charged with the murder of his son Sean. Little Egypt is the inverted triangle of Southern Illinois bounded by the Wabash, the Ohio and the

on the South and by an indeterminate line drawn east from St. Louis on the North. In this secretive isolated place, the residents of this community are outraged at the arrest of this selfless humanitarian. The thought of this skilled medical practitioner being guilty of such a crime was totally unimaginable. The painstaking research of an experienced investigator revealed the truth behind two ghastly crimes. Dr. Cavaness' Jekyll-Hyde personality terrorized his family and many employees even before his wife Marian left to try to care for her children alone. Dr. Cavaness pursued the family with deadly intent while marian and the four boys struggle to survive and escape their fathers appalling abuse and oppression. The oldest son, Mark, had been shot to death in the woods of Little Egypt 7 years before the murder of Sean occurred. That crime has not been solved until the investigators of two states combine their efforts in securing evidence against Dr. Cavaness. The and crowded with a host of fascinating reader shares in the ordeal of the surviving family members deciding to testify against the doctor. This tragedy takes on the overtones of stay with mother pitted against father, and father against sons.

/s/ LAVADA W. BAT-TERMAN Independent Executrix of the Estate of AN-DREW S. BATTERMAN, Deceased, No. 3697 in the County Court of Deaf Smith County,

Celebrate March with pie recipes

The month of March is full of special dates to be remembered...the Ides of March on the 15th, St. Patrick's Day on the 17th and St.

Joseph's Day on the 19th. St. Patrick's Day is by far the most popular-even to the non-Irish have been known to wear "Kiss Me I'm Irish" buttons and dine on corn beef cabbage and green beer. Don't forget to finish the meal with a slice of Paddy's Pistachio or Irish Lace Pie. On the other hand, if you are of Italian heritage and like to celebrate St. Joseph's Day with a huge feast of Italian delights the recipe for Spumoni Pie fits in perfectly.

What ever your special day is always remember a quick and easy pie will make Irish eye's smile...and everyone's else's.
