$1000 Bond Set As Man Charged With Exposure

Bond was set at $1000 as a 24-year old Latin American from Adrian was arraigned here Thursday on charges of indecent exposure in Justice of the Peace Ccurt, C. B. Miles presiding.

Charged with the felony offense is Jose M. Rodriguez, who is reported to live on Star Route, Adrian, He was arrested by a Hereford Police Department patrolman late Wednesday afternoon.

Allegations against the man charge him with exposing himself to a 10-year-old girl as shewas on her way to the grocery Base acreage for grain sor- store.

The alleged offense is reported to have occurred here on Aug. 23. Another such offense is also reported to have happened on the same date. In a statement to Hereford police officers, the man is repating in the grain sorghum ported to have admitted committing both offenses.

Arrest of Rodriquez is reported to have taken place when an unidentified woman stopped patrolman Don Brush, while on mount of land in production, patrol, and reported that a man tried to get her little girl into his car.

The woman stated, according to the investigation report, that He predicted that the actual the youngster had been on her reduction of the land in pro- way to the grocery store at the Brush, who had seen the car allegedly driven by the suspect.

When Rodriguez was brought fied as the man allegedly committing the first offense occur ing in Hereford on Aug. 23.

The man was released Friday from Deaf Smith County Jail as the $1000 bond was posted. Grand jury action is pending.

"This was a prophetic state ment . . . one hour of farm labor today produces four times as much food and other crops as it did in 1919-1921. Crop production is 65 per cent higher per acre now than then. Output per breeding antmal is 88 per cent higher."
Irwin pointed out that the American farmer at one time raised enough for himself and three others. In Russia today, he said, the agricultural worker produces enough for himself and four or five others.

"Khrushchev, a man who is quick with a boast when he has is usually quiet as a tomb about his system's shortcomings, has this complaint about his country's agriculture: 'Soviet farmers are using more than seven times as much labor to produce grain as the United States ... over five times as much labor to grow potatoes . . . over six times as much to grow beets ... over 14 times as much to raise cattle, over 16 times as much to raise pigs." Irwin said the average American farmer was good, but the outstanding American farmer was superlative. He stated that farming employs 7.1 million workers - more than the combined workers in transportation, public utilities, the steel industry and the automobile in-dustry. When food processing and distributing companies and those providing products and services to farmers are included, four out of every ten jobs in private industry are related to agriculture.

"The nearly $200 billion invested in farming equals about 75 per cent of the value of the current assets of all corporations in America . . . Farmers buy about $26 billion dollars worth of production supplies each year and spend an additional $15 billion a year for personal and house holds needs," he said.

"In a world where most of its peoples spend at least half of their income for food, Americans spend only one-fifth of their disposable income for this necessity. It is no wonder our standard of living can be so high when 80 ner cent of our high, when 80 per cent of our disposable income can go into housing, into the products of industry, into education, recreation, medical care and so fourth," he declared.

"We believe that farmers deserve our commendation for what they contribute to the strength of the American economy and to the well-being of nomy and to the well-being of its people," he concluded.

Measured against the standard established by the Ford Almanac, Cole stood higher than any other grain sorghum producer, although he insisted that the Panhandle has many other maize producers who are as good or better. The standards of measure included 100 bushels per acre, with a cost of $1 per hundred-weight and a profit per hundred of $2 cents. Cole produce. dred of 52 cents. Cole produced 111 bushels per acre at a cost of 78 cents per hundred, for a profit of 87 cents per

Under the proposed budget, total disbursement for the year are expected to be about $867,000, lower than the actual and estimated $899,000 for the current year and the $878,610.53 spent in 1961

It is expected the Road and Bridge Fund will be lowered about $13,000, while the General Fund will be raised about the same amount. The Officers Salary Fund probably will be slightly higher, offset by a larger decrease in the Hospital Maintenance Fund. The Right-Of-Way Fund probably will be cut drastically, from $20,000 to about $6,800. The Jail Building Interest and Sinking Fund will be up about $10,000.

No major improvements are planned for the year and the only change expected is a slight increase in salaries for county employees.

More Participation Goal Of Revised Athletic Plan

bout junior high school athletics in Hereford and how it is being "de-emphasized"

If carried out as it is planned, the change in attitude toward junior high school athletics should be a good thing.

Of course, all of us need to remember that the school must have our backing in order to make the program work properly. For too many years, all of us have been

No Polio Shots For Hereford?

Perhaps it merely tweeks our local pride, but we always note with envy the list of other communities which are sponsoring the current campaigns for mass vaccination against polio. At the same time, if is just as possible that polio could strike here as in other towns and cities across the nation. Frequently, we are asked why Hereford is not included — and we do not have the answer. In fact, we do not even know who would be responsible for scheduling such a program, or whether it would be of any great service in this particular community. Our guess would be that any program of this type would originate in the city or health departmens but, on the other hand, the program might require a local sponsor outside of these two spheres.

Still, when we read about these mass innoculations it makes us wonder. Hereford is usually one of the first towns to appear in Panhandle drives, and it doesn't sound like us to be sitting around while other communities line up for shots.

Russian Misses In Space Probe

Some of the most encouraging news we have seen in years was a release Wednesday pointing out that Russia had failed on five of its six attempts to send spacecraft to Mars and Venus. When you consider that even the sixth effort was only a partical success, it should definitely help morale of citizens in this country.

This information focuses a complete new light on the space race, and pretty well confirms a sneaking suspicion which most of us harbored, chiefly that the Russians are more adept at propaganda than at space probing. Always, in the past, we have heard only of the Red successes, while Uncle Sam has pretty well given us the bitter along with the sweet — and that is the way Americans like things.

While the United States announces its space flights in advance and even "shoots the works" by putting them on T-V, we notice that Russia still announces flights after their success is assured. Whether they cannot face reverses, or whether they consider "good news" the only news, we do not know, but we do believe that most people around the world appreciate honest and forthright information — even behind the Iron Curtain, where government controlled press is the fashion.

Meanwhile, we can speculate on the tremendous number of possible other failures -by Russia — and our own score looks much better.

in favor of "winners" and "champions". But this desire to be on top has been carried too far at the junior high school level. We have only ourselves to blame for the situation, and some of its unfortunate re-

The school has been considering such a change for the past two years, working carefully to build a program that will provide the best benefits for the most partici-

And therein lies the key to the junior high school athletic program - participation. Not just in Hereford, but in most places, the emphasis to win, win, win has overshadowed everything else. This has caused coaches to use the better players to the exclusion of those not so far advanced. not so well-coordinated, not so large.

But this has killed the interest of many who practice faithfully each day and sit faithfully on the bench each game.

Take for example the case of a wellknown coach and former All-American player, Darrell Royal. When he was a boy in Oklahoma, he didn't even play football in junior high school because he wasn't large enough.

But the small boys grow and often match desire with ability.

The school has pointed out that the boys will still be encouraged to win — that's important, too - but it won't be at the expense of allowing maximum participation.

Another reason behind this change is to reserve more of the honor and glory for the high school, where it belongs. Too often, junior high players have dropped out of athletics at the high school level. It offered nothing new, nothing they hadn't received

The new junior high program will be aimed at moving the maximum number of boys from the generalized athletics program in junior high to the more specialized competitive play of high school with the lowest number of drop-outs.

This has been a failing of long-standing in Hereford. Each year, the high school has gotten only about one-third or one-fourth of any freshman team. This is a tragically high percentage of drop-outs.

Athletics, especially at the junior high school level, should include the largest possible number of students, not just on the squad, but participating in the competition.

We think the new junior high school program is a big step in the right direction and hope that its aims and purposes are carried out to the intended goals.

Senior Citizen Misleading Label

"If anyone ever calls me a senior citizen, I'll senior-citizen him right across the chops! That threat — from a husky, healthy man who happens to be 65 years old — is long overdue. It's about time that people quit patronzing those over 65 and got down to the fact that these people are people - not addities or statistics.

That statement, made by a man as wise as his years would indicate, appears in a new common-sense book about the "mature" period in everyone's life - one of several now concerned with this one period

These writings indicate a new concern for "Senior Citizens" (if you insist on calling them that), and for their juniors as well. For instance, it is reasoned that the problem stems from our fixation on youth and everything youthful.

It's time we gave up this sophomoric thinking, or fixation. There are now over 17 million people in this country who are over 65. By the year 2000 that number will be doubled! This is too large a group of people and capabilities to put on any shelf — even if the self is under a palm tree in a shiny clime.

Today's elders represent a great reservoir of largely by-passed talent, wisdom and energy. But they do need help in adjusting to a society oriented to youth. They need advice and council on everything from how to spend their time usefully and profitably to how to get along with their own children and even where to live.

There's no reason for despair because you're approaching your later years. This is the time you can do the things you've always wanted to do with the wisdom gained from maturity and experience.

Hereford's Irrigation Setting Pace In Plains

Hereford is the pioneer in irrigation for the Plains of Texas. She is still in the fore front and forging far ahead. For the number of irrigation plants and the amount of water lifted to the fertile fields, she outstrips all other sections. She has set the pace; her wells are the"talk" of the whole country. There is not a day but that from one to 25 people are here for the purpose of seeing "how it is done at Hereford." At the present time, Hereford has thirty wells; there are thirteen of the McDonald style, each capable of furnishing from 1000 to 1800 gallons of water per minute; four on the Walter-Perkins project, each furnishing from 1000 to 2000 gallons, nine of the plunger make, put in by Hough, furnishing from 50 to 175 gallons; three pumping from the creek, each furnishing from 1500 to 3000 gallons; one run by automobile power and pumping 600 gallons; and two of the Roth rotor pumps just installed that will furnish from 600 to 1200 gallons and one or two small pumps. All of these pumps, if run continuously for a 24-hour period, would furnish Thirty Five Million Gallons of Water. This amount in figures represents on a big volume, but when placed in concrete form will give some conception of the immensity of the quanity. This amount of water would furnish each of the 95,000 inhabitants of Dallas with 365 gallons of water per day, more than they have been used to, but perhaps not more than they need or deserve. 25 YEARS AGO

Following a general meeting of the Panhandle Water Conservation Association in Amarillo Wednesday, the possibilities of a large dam and lake at Hereford seemed brighter than at any time since the movement started. Although little mention as to specific location of lakes, a meeting of the association delegation was held prior to the general session, but indications point toward immediate action. Some 40 delegates from Hereford attended the session Wednesday - including businessmen, farmers, ranchers and public officials — helping to form a part of the 800 persons who crowded and thronged the meeting place to capacity. Prior to the Amarillo meeting, a joint meeting of the commissioners' court, the WPA planning board for the county, and the special lake committee was held in the courthouse here Monday morning. At this joint session, the group voted unanimously to place construction of the dam as major WPA project - and submit a petition to WPA asking the change.

I enjoyed it too for the open spaces were wonderful after being cooped up in four walls for so long.

"Many times Mr. Pierce would come to Hereford for supplies using only the front wheels of the wagon as the snow was so deep it was difficult for the team to pull the whole wagon. He would go across the Hawkins place where Bess and Arthur Denning lived. So far as I know there is no one living at Westway now that lived there at that time, or when the settlement was organized. We had a four-teacher school for tour years. Some of the teachers were Misses Fern High and Lela Watson, Tom Burnett, B. M. Keys and Spec Dodson. POLIO VACCINATION DRIVE MAPPED

Dimmitt Jaycees have plans underway for launching a county-wide oral polio immunization drive in Castro County in the near future. "This drive will be an attempt to provide every resident of the county a chance to receive the new Sabin oral vaccine for the prevention of polio," Bob Du-laney, Dimmitt Jaycee said. Tentative plans are to have immunizations on Sundays at either one central location or two or three stations throughout the caunty. Administering the vaccine is reportedly done in conjunction with sugar by placing the vaccine on sugar cubes before swallowing. Three different dosages, spaced approximately six weeks apart, are required for complete immunization.

SWEETWATER CREEK DAM PLANS MOVE AHEAD

The Red River Authority of Texas is moving forward rapidly in preliminary planning for the construction of a reservoir on Sweetwater Creek in Wheeler County, according to Fred Parkey, general manager of the authority. In a letter received last week by Wheeler's mayor, Thomas Daughtry, Parkey outlined steps that have been taken since the authority's meeting in Shamrock a few weeks ago. An inspection has been made of the eight flood prevention structures on Gageby Creek in northern Wheeler County. Making the inspection were Glarence Zybach, Farmer Hefley, H. J. Finsterwalh, and B. THE BOOTLEG ---Philosopher

(Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his bindweed farm has found out about the suggestion to reduce the farm population, his letter this week indicates.) Dear editar:

A lot of farmers around the country I understand are up in arms because the Committee for Economic Development, a group of 200 leading industrialists and business executives, having studied the farm problem, has come out with the pronounmement that the way to solve the problem is to move two million farmers off the farms in the next five years.

It seems to me that what the Economic Development Committee is saying is that if you move two million farmers to town, the ones still left may not make any more, but there'll be less of them to complain.

I have thought about this proposal all week now and I find it doesn't disturb me, mainly on account of I ain't going. The reason I'm not going to a city is that in the first place I like it out here on this bindweed farm, and in the second place, where would you find a city so hard up it'd need me?

I know it's kind of galling to a farmer to look up from his problems and have some city people tell him the only solution is to move in with them, but the Committee for Economic Development could have come up with a lot worse solution.

For example, what if they had decided the solution was the other way around, that more city people ought to move to the country? If there's anything that'll make a farmer madder than telling him he ought to quit and get a job in town, it's telling him he ought to make room for city workers in the country.

What some people don't understand is that, as bad as the farm problem is, it's not as bad as us farmers make out. We make it sound worse than it is mainly to keep city people from crowding in on us.

Solving the farm problem by moving two million farmers to town is like solving the problem of under-paid school teachers by cutting the number of teachers in half.

I suppose there are some farmers who wouldn't object maybe to moving to town, but the trouble is they've already looked around a little in town, studied the financial status of a lot of town people, and had just as soon stay in the frying pan as jump in the fire.

If you can't quite make ends meet anyway, why move to town when you can do it just as well in the country? Yours faithfully,
