HATAB says no, for now, to Aero-Span

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer
Custom fitting Hereford Area Tax Abatement Board guidelines to the needs of a new feed grain processing plant has, at least temporarily, eluded abatement board members.
During a meeting Tuesday, the board decided to deny a request for tax abatement filed by Aero-Span Feeders, Ltd.
Guidelines require that a newly-established business must increase the value of the property by at least $500,000 in order to qualify for tax abatement. During its first year of operation, Aero-Span Feeders, Ltd. proposes $345,000 in improvements to what was formerly the A & A Pipe Coating plant off Dairy Road.

"We're not criticizing them (Aero-Span) in doing this. It's just a matter of policy," said Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher.
Aero-Span's future expansion plans indicate that the business should be eligible for abatement in future years. Board members qualified their rejection of the current request by expressing a desire to consider subsequent applications for abatement submitted by Aero-Span.

"We'd really like to see this thing (Aero-Span) work," said Fisher.
Debate concerning Aero-Span's application had included the possibility that the business might qualify for abatement by considering its over-all, five-year expansion proposal. In the end, the board voted to review each year's expansion separately.
"In principal, it's got the cart before the horse," said City Manager Darwin McGuill. "When we drew up the guidelines, we expected the initial expansion to be greater. This case is different."

The abatement board's guidelines require only a $250,000 increase in taxable value for an established business to qualify for abatement.
Aero-Span's case is unique in that the plant will begin with a research and development stage. The larger investment will come in subsequent years when the business begins full production.
"Every one of these things (abatement applications) is going to be a new ball game," said County Commissioner Johnny Latham, HATAB chairman.

The Aero-Span application is only the second case to be considered by the board, and members are still struggling to establish a working policy. The issue is greatly complicated by the fact that each case is unique.
"If we start bending our guidelines, we're going to bend them all over the place," said Raymond Schlabs, a representative from the Hereford school board.
Following the decision concerning Aero-Span, the board reviewed a map of an Enterprize Zone proposed for Hereford.

If the Enterprize Zone is approved by local taxing entities, an application will then be sent to the Texas Department of Commerce. If, in turn, that application is approved, tax incentives will be made available for qualifying businesses within the specified zone.
In the application to the Texas Department of Commerce, the city, county and Hereford school district will all include an expression of support for the district.

City awards bid to Appian

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer
A decision to call for re-submission of bids on a project to seal coat specified city streets was rescinded in a special Hereford City Commission meeting Tuesday evening.
The commission voted to award the seal coating bid to Appian Corporation of Hereford.
Confusion concerning the project began when two companies submitted the exact same bid of $91,492 at the March 20 meeting. One company, Appian, is a local business, and the second, Fuller Contracting, is based in Amarillo.

L.A. Fuller, representing Fuller Contracting, was at the earlier meeting and presented a persuasive case, asking board members to reconsider a recommendation to award the bid to Appian.
"I think to exclude our company because we don't live locally... I don't think that's fair," Fuller said at the March 20 meeting.

After much discussion, the commission voted to re-open the project for bids.
An investigation following that meeting found that state law directs local officials to award a tie bid to the local bidder. That discovery caused the calling of Tuesday's special meeting.

"Right or wrong, we did, at that time, vote to re-bid the job," said Mayor Wes Fisher.
City Attorney Earnest Langley indicated that, while the commission is permitted by law to re-bid projects, he did not believe this provision was intended for this type of situation.

"I think you can reject all bids, but (the intention) is for other reasons, not tie bids," Langley said.

Burglaries plague city

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer
A rash of burglaries has plagued Hereford residents over the past four days.
The Hereford Police Department investigated five burglaries to residences and two to storage buildings during that four day period. Officers from the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office investigated one report of a burglary to a building.

About $3,500 worth of goods has been reported stolen during the burglaries. That amount may increase as additional items are added to the list. It is not yet known what was taken from a rental storage building at 815 W. Park Ave. Neither police nor the building's owner have yet been able to contact the individual renting the storage unit.

The watchfulness of Hereford police officer Roy Rector led to discovery of a break-in at Hereford Mini Storage early Saturday morning. While on patrol, Rector noticed that a door on one of the storage units had been torn from its hinges.

City officers have been especially vigilant at the storage facility since two policemen foiled an apparent burglary Thursday night when they surprised two suspects attempting to break into a building. The suspects were able to elude police in the following foot chase.

Albert Cherry, 626 Stanton, reported that a storage building behind his home had been burglarized sometime Saturday night. A pickup belonging to Cherry was also broken into during that incident.

Three microwaves and a stereo were taken from the storage building, and a number of tools and other assorted items were taken from the pickup. Estimated value of the missing goods was $371.

A VCR valued at $400 and $300 in coins were taken in a burglary of a residence at 203 Ave. H sometime Saturday or Sunday. Hortencia Garcia, one of the residents, reported that the items were found to be missing when they returned home after having been out of town overnight.

Entry had apparently been gained through the back door of that residence.

Thieves entered a home at 620 Blevins by tearing a hole in a screen and opening an unlocked window. The burglary took place sometime between 1:30 p.m. and 11:10 p.m. Sunday.

The incident was reported by Geneva Casarez. Items taken were valued at $280.
A VCR valued at $350 was taken in a burglary at 401 Ave. C sometime between 4 p.m. and 11 p.m. Sunday. Kay Lynn Ortez reported the theft.

Suspects apparently gained entry through an unlocked front door.

Another home at 342 Ave. G was burglarized sometime between (See BURGLARIES, Page 2)

Seeds are political pawns

PAUL RAEBURN

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite repeated vows not to play politics with the genetic resources critical to the world's food supply, the United States is quietly maintaining seed embargoes against six countries it regards as adversaries, government documents show.

The embargoes contradict stated U.S. policy that these resources should be the common property of humanity, to be shared as freely as the air and the sea. The availability of this "germplasm" from all nations is the key to breeding crops able to withstand pests and such climatic changes as greenhouse warming.

While America may be the world's breadbasket, it is gene-poor. The traits responsible for Iowa's hearty corn or the miles of wheat in Kansas didn't come from this continent. The only native U.S. crops are the pecan, a few species of berries and an obscure tuber called the Jerusalem artichoke.

U.S. breeders thus depend on the good graces of gene-rich nations in Latin America, Asia and Africa to obtain the germplasm necessary to ensure future bountiful harvests.

Yet a three-month investigation by The Associated Press revealed the United States has put six countries on a germplasm "blacklist": North Korea since 1950, Cuba since 1963, Cambodia and Vietnam since 1975, Nicaragua since 1985 and Libya since 1986.

The seed embargoes are part of overall trade bans the federal government has imposed over the years against countries it considers adversaries.

Agriculture Department officials fear that including germplasm in the embargoes could prompt retaliation by developing countries, leaving U.S. agriculture the prime victim.

Those officials have struggled for two years to get germplasm exempted from the embargoes. The State Department has blocked those efforts, officials of both departments said.

"The very great majority of our germplasm resources come here from overseas, and if I thought there were any impediment to that exchange, I would raise holy hell," said Rep. George E. Brown Jr., chairman of the House subcommittee on Operations, Research and Foreign Agriculture, who expressed shock upon learning of the embargoes in an interview.

The California Democrat, whose committee oversees the nation's germplasm system, called the embargoes "an example of that age-old adage: 'there ain't no damn reason for it; it's just our policy.'"

Germplasm is "an inherent part of our biological system. We depend on all countries for our germplasm," said Henry L. Shands, head of the USDA's germplasm program and a leader of efforts to end the embargoes.

"I don't think it bodes well for us as a country to say, 'We support a free policy of exchange,' and then have others be able to say, 'Well, you don't send it,'" Shands said.

Even with the embargoes, American gene banks are unrivaled in making their resources available to researchers around the world, said George White, head of the USDA office that approves plant imports and exports. Each year, 1,500 to 2,000 shipments are sent to as many as 120 countries, White said.

"I really think our record is second to none in making materials available freely to anyone around the world," he said.

USDA officials note the United States is not alone in restricting germplasm exchange for political reasons. Ethiopia, for example, forbids exports of coffee germplasm. Turkey embargoes export of tobacco germplasm. Egypt bans export of cotton germplasm.

Furthermore, germplasm embargoes are so easily circumvented that they amount to little more than a symbolic slap at the targeted nations.

Scientists need only slip seeds into an envelope and mail them.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says nothing makes temptation so easy to resist as being broke.
Little Tommy was about to buy a ticket to the movies. The box office girl asked him, "Why aren't you in school today?"
"Oh, it's all right," explained Tommy earnestly. "I've got the measles."

The Hereford community has a real pride in its school athletic teams, and a public meeting Monday night underlined that fact.

About 100 interested persons showed up at the school board meeting to offer input on the basketball programs in the school system. Pros and cons were discussed, and it is apparent the school board and Athletic Director Don Cumpston are prepared to make changes to improve the programs. We were told that it was a very constructive session.

Only in America... He drove his German car made of Swedish steel and interior of Argentine leather to a gasoline station, where he filled up with Arab oil shipped in a Liberian tanker and purchased two French tires, composed of rubber from Sri Lanka.

"At home, he dropped his Moroccan briefcase, hung up his Scottish tweed wool coat, removed his Italian shoes and Egyptian cotton shirt, then donned a Hong Kong robe and matching slippers from Taiwan.

"More comfortable now, he poured a cup of hot Brazilian coffee into an English coffee mug, set a Mexican placemat on an Irish linen tablecloth atop a Danish table varnished with linseed oil from India. Then he filled his Austrian pipe with Turkish tobacco, lit it, and picked up a Japanese ballpoint pen with which he wrote a letter to his Congressman demanding to know why the United States has an unfavorable balance of trade."

The above story was printed in a recent Hereford Lions Club bulletin and we thought our readers would enjoy it.

U.S.-Cuban relations continue to be poor

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State James A. Baker rejects speculation that U.S.-Cuban relations are about to improve, saying American policy will not change until Cuba ends repression at home and "unacceptable behavior" abroad.

Baker's views are outlined in a confidential memo drawn up to counter suggestions that Cuba's pledge in December to withdraw its troops from Angola will improve the climate between Havana and Washington.

"U.S. policy has not changed in the wake of the southern Africa accords," Baker said in the memo.

The memo has been distributed to diplomatic posts abroad and to selected government agencies. The document is dated March 1989 and is stamped "confidential." A copy was made available to The Associated Press on Tuesday.

The memo indicates that no changes are planned from the hard-line Cuba policy of the Reagan administration. Under President Reagan, the United States tightened the U.S. trade embargo against the island and waged an international campaign against alleged human rights abuses by the regime of Fidel Castro.

"No modification of U.S. policy is contemplated in the absence of significant changes in Cuban repression at home and unacceptable behavior abroad inimical to U.S. interests," Baker said.

Baker rejected the arguments of some, including Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman

Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., that U.S. policy toward Cuba over three decades has failed and should be changed.

"Cuba provides the U.S.S.R. major political, strategic and intelligence benefits that it otherwise would not have," Baker said.

Two arrested for patrolman's death

'Scared of police' suspects state

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Saying they were scared of police, two brothers accused of killing a patrolman with his own gun surrendered to prosecutors and were ordered held without bond.

Under tight security, Henry David Hernandez, 25, and Julian Hernandez, 28, were taken before state District Judge James Barlow, who ordered the pair held without bond on capital murder charges.

The brothers were arrested Tuesday afternoon at the office of their attorney, who had arranged with Bexar County prosecutors for the suspects' surrender.

Attorney Joe Hernandez, no relation to the suspects, requested during the five-minute hearing that no police officials or prosecutors speak to the men without their attorney being present.

"They were concerned about their safety," Joe Hernandez said. "They wanted to surrender. They were very concerned about the police department because of the charge against them."

"The deceased was a San Antonio police officer, and that's the reason they preferred to surrender to an agency that was not under the San Antonio Police Department," he said.

"We are concerned that they are safe now ... We wouldn't want them to be out on bond," said Hernandez, who has represented the suspects on previous charges.

Rodriguez said he did not know whether the vehicle or the weapon used in the slaying of Patrolman Gary Williams had been recovered.

The suspects, looking scared and declining to answer reporters' questions, were led down a hall by about 10 district attorney investigators. One of the suspects was wearing a suit and the other was wearing slacks and a vest. They had been strip-searched before entering the courtroom, Rodriguez said.

He said the suspects' attorney contacted him Tuesday morning after the suspects said they wanted to surrender.

"They were scared. Mr. Hernandez was scared for them. He wanted my word that they would not be harmed," Rodriguez said.

"I find it a little ironic that he was asking me for help and that he didn't want them harmed and I told him, 'Joe, more than likely I'm going to do more than harm. I will probably seek the death penalty,'" said Rodriguez, who said he did not foresee a plea bargain.

Police spokeswoman Sandy Perez said police would not comment on the suspects' claims that they feared police retaliation.

Police had intensified their search for the brothers Monday and Tuesday after the slaying of Williams.

The 37-year-old officer died Monday morning while undergoing surgery at Brooke Army Medical Center. The two-year department veteran was shot once in the lower abdomen below his bulletproof vest and once in the left side of the neck, apparently with his own .357-caliber Magnum revolver, police spokesman Sgt. Paul Buske said.

Capital murder warrants with no bonds were issued for the brothers' arrests while police officers staked out several locations.

Mayor Henry Cisneros on Tuesday asked the city manager to look into the cost of two-man police patrols during overnight shifts.

The shooting incident began about 3 a.m. when Williams was dispatched to the city's northeast area to investigate a report of a suspicious vehicle parked behind a closed restaurant, said homicide Lt. Albert Ortiz, who is heading the investigation into the shooting.

Williams said he would ask for a backup unit once he determined the situation, Ortiz said.

When Williams approached the car, a 1967 beige Mercury, it pulled onto the access road of Northeast Loop 410.

After stopping the men, he took a driver's license from one of them and typed in the vehicle's license plate number in a mobile display terminal, Ortiz said.

Two men got out of the car and while Williams was making a check on the car and one driver's license, the two men jumped Williams, took his revolver and shot him twice, Buske said, quoting an unidentified security guard, who witnessed the shooting.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, March 29, the 88th day of 1989. There are 277 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On March 29, 1973, the last U.S. troops left South Vietnam, ending America's direct involvement in the Vietnam War.

On this date:

In 1638, Swedish colonists settled in present-day Delaware.

In 1790, the 10th president of the United States, John Tyler, was born in Charles City County, Va.

In 1812, the first White House wedding took place as Lucy Payne Washington, sister-in-law of President James Madison, married Supreme Court Justice Thomas Todd.

In 1867, the British Parliament passed the North America Act to create the Dominion of Canada, effective July 1.

In 1882, the Knights of Columbus was chartered in Connecticut.

In 1932, a vaudeville comedian made his radio debut by saying, "Ladies and gentlemen, this is Jack Benny talking. There will be a slight pause while you say, 'Who cares?'"

In 1943, World War II meat, butter and cheese rationing began.

Ten years ago: Radioactivity continued to leak from the crippled Unit Two reactor at the Three Mile Island atomic plant near Middletown, Penn., one day after human and mechanical errors combined to damage the reactor's uranium core.

Five years ago: "The Wall Street Journal" reported that one of its columnists, R. Foster Winans, was being investigated by the Securities and Exchange Commission for leaking inside information. Winans, later convicted of securities fraud charges, admitted giving tips to a broker in exchange for a cut of the broker's profits.

One year ago: Two top Justice Department officials resigned over Attorney General Edwin Meese's legal problems. Republican Sen. Bob Dole ended his presidential candidacy. Michael Dukakis won the Connecticut Democratic primary. Leaders of the Assemblies of God ordered the Rev. Jimmy Swaggart to stop preaching for at least a year because of "moral failure."

Today's birthdays: Former U.S. Sen. Eugene McCarthy is 73. Singer Pearl Bailey is 71. Actress Eileen Heckart is 70. Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., is 47. Comedian Eric Idle is 46. Singer Bobby Kimbal is 42. Actor Bud Cort is 38. Gymnast Kurt Thomas is 33.

can ask the Soviets, or the French, or an international agency," said Shands.

So slipshod are the embargoes that White's plant introduction office itself approved delivery of 13 varieties of cotton seed to Vietnam in 1977, two years after trade with Vietnam was embargoed, according to a USDA tally of overseas shipments.

The same tally indicates 73 germplasm samples were sent to Nicaragua in 1987 with USDA approval.

White acknowledged the Vietnam shipment. He said he could not locate the file describing the Nicaragua shipments.

"I imagine that those were sent out by people unaware of the embargoes, or simply forgot about them," said White.

The issue could open the United States to charges of hypocrisy at a meeting on germplasm trade of the Food and Agriculture Organization scheduled for April 17-21 in Rome.

Embargoes "bother me not because I know of any specific thing we lose," said Orville G. Bentley, U.S. Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for science and education. "It bothers me because of the inconsistency. All the people I talk to believe in free exchange."

Mourning concern prompted Shands to call several private meetings over the last two years with officials from the departments of State, Treasury and Commerce, the three departments besides Agriculture involved in the import and export of germplasm.

He drafted a proposed "memorandum of understanding" which he hoped all four departments could sign to exempt germplasm from embargoes.

The memo, made available to the AP, set criteria for "authorizing the importation or exportation of germplasm to or from a country as to which a ban on trade exists under U.S. law."

Shands said he had hoped the memorandum would be signed before the April meeting of the FAO.

But a State Department official who participated in the last meeting eight months ago said others in the department remain "opposed to making any exception."

"That's pretty much a general, across-the-board position they take," he said. "They say the same thing to the Coca-Cola company. There are people all the time trying to get exceptions for a particular interest. If you start making exceptions to trade embargoes, they'll be like Swiss cheese."

The official, who oversees FAO affairs for the State Department, spoke only on condition of anonymity.

USDA officials said the United States had never rejected a direct request for germplasm by embargoed countries because no country had asked.

Yet USDA correspondence shows the United States did reject a request in 1986.

Nicaraguan researchers wrote the Rodale Research Center in Kutztown, Pa., for samples of amaranth, a high protein crop also known as pokeweed.

Leon Weber, a researcher at Rodale, sent the seeds to White's office at the USDA. After some delay, Weber was told that "there was no channel to forward the germplasm to Nicaragua because of the embargo."

"That's the tragedy of these kinds of regulations," Weber said. "For political reasons, we're hampering researchers from freely exchanging germplasm."

Examining pageant rules

A Coke party was held March 23 for girls age 16-20 who are interested in entering the upcoming Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant. Several potential entrants were at the information party, as steering committee member Lacy Driver, seated, and Deanna Hobbs, the current Miss Hereford, gave tips and advice concerning pageant details. The pageant will be held Saturday, April 22 in the Hereford High School auditorium at 7 p.m. Entry forms are available at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office, 701 N. Main, and must be returned to that office by Friday, April 7.

Entry forms available for Miss Hereford Pageant

Plans are being finalized for the 1989 Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant featuring "The Times of Your Life" as its theme.

The annual event is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. Saturday, April 22 in the Hereford High School auditorium. Tickets are priced at $2 per person and will be available at the door. Master of ceremonies will be Tom Simons.

Sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, the pageant is open to girls age 16-20. Applications are available at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office, 701 N. Main. Entry forms must be turned in to that office by Friday, April 7.

Each contestant will participate in an interview by judges, talent competition, and evening gown competition. According to Lanette Leasure, who, with Betty Drake is co-chairman of the pageant's steering committee, the interview portion of the event will be held the morning of the contest, Saturday, April 22.

Contestants will receive goodie bags composed of items from local merchants. Prizes and scholarship money will be offered to the winner and two runners-up will be chosen at the pageant.

A modeling session for pageant entrants, complete with makeup tips, has been scheduled tentatively for April 9 or 10, noted Leasure.

Although freshman girls cannot compete in the pageant, they may help with the production backstage. They may participate in the pageant's dance numbers; boys are also needed for the opening number.

Dress for the opening number will include white shorts and tennis shoes and colored T-shirts with matching socks.

For more information, contact Leasure at 364-5045 or Drake at 364-3263.

Planning pageant

Karen Bankston, seated at right, and Karen Keeling have been named as this year's co-chairmen of the Little Miss Hereford Beauty Pageant to be staged April 15 in the Hereford High School auditorium. The annual pageant, sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division, will be staged in two segments again this year with the Cutest Miss division contestants being judged at 5 p.m. that day and the remaining contestants to compete at 7 p.m. The chairmen look at a picture of the reigning Miss Hereford Deanna Hobbs who will be one of the featured entertainers at the Little Miss Pageant. Deadline to enter is Friday, April 7. Entry fee is $5 per girl and forms are available at the Chamber of Commerce office, 701 N. Main.

American Legion Auxiliary to present scholarship

Members of the American Legion Auxiliary will be presenting a $250 scholarship to a Hereford High School graduating senior girl during the HHS Annual Awards Assembly in May.

The applicant must be the daughter of a veteran of World War II or the Korean or Vietnam Wars. On the application, dates of the parents' military service must be given including date of entry and date of discharge. Also, the applicant must give her grade average for the last seven semesters as well as naming the college or university (and its location) they plan to attend.

Applications may be obtained from Willie Braddy at HHS; or calling Troyce Hanna at 364-1932 or Argen Draper, 276-5263.

Deadline to turn in applications is April 14.

NEW YORK (AP) - Finding good pre-trip medical information has gotten easier.

The Centers for Disease Control have a new 24-hour malaria information service, according to the Travel & Leisure Information Center. You call 404-639-1610 and you get a choice of four recorded messages about malaria, its treatment and its prevention.

If you still have questions after the message, you can stay on the line and talk with a CDC expert. The hotline is important because of the increase in chloroquine-resistant malaria in areas such as East Africa that have become more popular with American tourists.

Women's Division quarterly meeting set

The quarterly meeting of the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will be held Thursday, April 6, at 7 p.m. in Hereford Country Club.

Reservations must be made by calling the Chamber office, 364-3333, by noon Wednesday, April 5. A salad and dessert dinner will be featured at a price of $5 per person. Guests are welcome. Committee reports will be given and general business conducted, according to Donna West, president of the Division. A special program will also be held.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS STORY

"Everybody Already Knows My Store And What I Carry."

Sound Familiar?

Advertising is news about the marketplace, if you don't advertise, you're telling consumers there's no news from your store. But your competition is fighting for the public's interest with regular ads; if you want to keep your share of the market, you need to be in the same arena, bidding for the business. You need to advertise in the newspaper. Plus, people move out of the area and new people move in. Advertise to bring new customers into the store. Sell your store and your service through newspaper advertising.

NOT CONVINCED?

Newspaper advertising is unlike any other media choice. You're reaching a friendly, receptive audience with your advertising message. So receptive that they pay to have the paper delivered to their home. No wonder consumers consider newspapers the most believable advertising medium.

Newspaper advertising can help your business. It can increase sales and in a competitive market, it can give your business and edge over the other guy.

Don't tempt fate. Join the many successful businesses who know what works for them and what doesn't. Advertise in the newspaper and get results.

Rhoden set for Astros

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) - Houston Astros pitcher Rick Rhoden almost had his athletic career cut short before it began.

A backyard accident as an eight-year old forced him to wear a leg brace for four years, walk with a cane and restricted his playing to pickup games.

"I cut my knee on a rusty pair of scissors in the backyard and it got infected and I developed a fever," Rhoden said. "I didn't play organized ball until I was 14."

Rhoden became an over-achiever when he got clearance to play organized sports.

His persistence led to 11 years in the major leagues, including the last two with the New York Yankees, until the Astros obtained his services in December.

"When I finally got an opportunity to play, I probably put a lot more into it than a normal kid because I had been held back so long."

Rhoden pitched two seasons for the Yankees, compiling records of 16-10 and 12-12, but he didn't feel distracted by the media glare.

"They have a great bunch of guys and I enjoyed the years I spent there," Rhoden said. "I had no problems. As long as you go out and play hard you don't have any problems."

Rhoden spent his first 11 major league seasons in the National League with Los Angeles and Pittsburgh.

He came to the Astros for minor leaguers John Fishel, Pedro DeLeon and Mike Hook and is expected to fill the No. 4 spot in the rotation.

Astros Manager Art Howe isn't worried about Rhoden being ready for the season.

"The last time out Rick told me he felt terrible and he just gave up one run," Howe said. "I can't wait to see what happens when he feels good."

Rhoden pitched six innings last week against Boston, allowing one run.

Prior to Tuesday, he had six strikeouts, six walks and 26 hits in 20.1 innings pitched and 12 earned runs.

"When I went to the Yankees, no one knew me there and I felt I had to earn their respect more," Rhoden said. "Over here, I've played against most of these guys for a lot of years, so they know what I can do."

Rhoden has been a consistent pitcher throughout his career, mostly as an Astros adversary.

He has only two seasons under .500 and last season led with Yankees with 30 starts and 197 innings.

He reached double-digit victories for the seventh straight year, becoming one of only five pitchers to have such a string.

"I don't consider the move over here much of an adjustment," he said. "It's a great atmosphere here. Everybody has worked hard to get ready for the season. I'm really enjoying myself."

Rhoden also expects an enjoyable season for the Astros staff.

"From one to 10 we have as good a staff as there is in baseball," Rhoden said. "There are a lot of young guys here here that aren't going to make the team that have big league experience."

"There are a lot of teams wishing they had this problem."

The Astros had hoped to parlay some of its pitchers in a trade for another power hitter to help out first baseman Glerin Davis.

Rhoden says the Astros can make do with what they have.

"They've followed the Dodger way of winning with pitching, speed and defense," Rhoden said. "As long as you have pitching and defense you have a chance everyday."

Short-term outlook rosier

Pete Rose's long-term future no clearer today

PLANT CITY, Fla. (AP) - Pete Rose's long-term future is no clearer today, but his short-term outlook is rosier: he'll be in a Cincinnati Reds uniform for Opening Day.

The lawyer heading major league baseball's investigation of Rose said Tuesday that the probe is likely to take several more weeks. Baseball has indicated that it won't take any action against Rose until the investigation is complete.

In addition, Reds majority owner Marge Schott said Tuesday the ballclub won't do anything regarding Rose until the baseball commissioner acts.

That would appear to remove any obstacles to Rose managing the club in the traditional National League opener next Monday against the Los Angeles Dodgers at Riverfront Stadium.

"All I'm trying to do is get ready for Opening Day and forget all this, get on with baseball," Schott said, in a telephone interview Tuesday night from Cincinnati.

John Dowd, leading the investigation for major league baseball, released a statement Tuesday through his law office in Washington, D.C., indicating the matter will stretch into the regular season.

The investigation reportedly centers on Rose's gambling. If he's found to have bet on baseball, he could be suspended for a year. Betting on Reds' games could bring a lifetime ban.

A source has told The Associated Press that the investigation concerns allegations that Rose bet on baseball teams other than the Reds.

"I have advised Commissioner (Peter) Ueberroth and Commissioner-elect (A. Bartlett) Giamatti that in my judgment it is likely the investigation will require at least several more weeks," Dowd said in the statement. "Rumors to the contrary are inaccurate and prompted this clarification," the statement added.

Rose was at the Reds' training camp in Plant City, when he learned of Dowd's statement saying the investigation is at least several weeks away from completion. "I can't control that," Rose said. Asked if he was anxious for the matter to be resolved, Rose said: "Would that be that hard to figure out? Would you like to go through what I've gone through for the next month?"

Rose has been followed around by cameras since major league baseball revealed last week that it is investigating "serious allegations" concerning Rose. Particulars of the allegations haven't been revealed.

Dowd, a special counsel to the commissioner, characterized his committee's work as complicated and time-consuming.

"The investigative team is working diligently to find and evaluate all the available facts," he said.

Schott said the commissioner's office hasn't given her any details of the allegations under investigation.

She didn't express any dissatisfaction with the pace of the investigation. "The only thing is, I think they're trying to do a thorough job and a fair job," she said.

Brown on a roll

Keith Brown, pictured here as he rounded third after his second home run in last Saturday's win over Levelland, went 2-for-2, with another home run, and drove in four runs in the Herd's 15-1 win at Borger on Tuesday.

Happy Trevino on final tour

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) - Lee Trevino is leaving the PGA Tour the same way he came in - talking, and loving every minute of it.

"My career is over as far as playing this Tour," said Trevino, who will be in the field for Thursday's first round of the $800,000 Independent Insurance Agent Open.

"I don't expect to go out there and get on the leader board and do this and do that. If I do, it's a plus."

Trevino, who hasn't played a Tour event since last September, is using this year's PGA Tour to prepare for his debut on the PGA Senior Tour in December.

"I think I'll do very well (on the Senior's Tour) but it won't be as easy as it has been the last three or four years," Trevino said. "It's competitive out there."

The man who has won 27 PGA events and captured the hearts of millions of fans with his jovial personality, has lost none of his gift for gab.

He still loves the interaction with the fans, as he proved in Tuesday's practice round, playing in the same group with Seve Ballesteros.

"My legs are killing me, you could play a tune on these legs right now because they're as tight as a drum," Trevino said.

Ballesteros enjoyed his round of practice and patted with Trevino, recalling an anecdote from Tony Jacklin, who once told Trevino he didn't want to talk during a round.

"Trevino told Tony he didn't have to say a word, just listen," Ballesteros laughed.

His best year on the Tour was 1980 before back problems forced Trevino to curtail his tournament participation.

Since back surgery in 1982, Trevino's best year was 1984 when he won his second U.S. Open and finished 12th in money earnings with $282,907.

He has since dropped each year in earnings because of contract commitments and his work as a network analyst.

"I was doing 13 tournaments a year but I couldn't get into the flow of it," he said. "You have to play with these guys every week to get the feel and confidence to play."

Trevino has lost none of the brashness that has made him a Tour favorite since he won his first U.S. Open in 1968.

Despite his rustiness, he's ready to tee it up.

"Nobody intimidates me, I'll play with anybody," Trevino said. "If I don't play well, I'll play fast."

"If I'm playing with someone who's shooting 65 and I'm shooting 82, I'll do it just as quick as he does the 65. I'm not going to hold anyone up."

Trevino says he goes on to the Seniors Tour gladly, leaving behind many good memories, and a few bad ones.

"When you talk as much as I do, there are times when you put your foot in your mouth," Trevino said.

"The thing that bothered me more than anything was if I did one bad thing out of 20, only the bad thing would be publicized. I guess people don't buy newspapers when you do good things."

Trevino says a six tournament run from this week to the U.S. Open in June will get his game in top shape.

"It makes a difference how I play," Trevino said. "Somewhere along the way, I want to be in contention and play some good scores, make some good shots."

"It'll give me some confidence going into the Seniors."

Trevino turns 50 on Dec. 1 and will be eligible for two of the final three Seniors Tour events.

Laettner is key to Duke's title chances

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) - Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski remembers his first game as a collegian, and he's quick to point out that night at Army is a far cry from the first year of his prized freshman, Christian Laettner.

"We played Princeton and I scored four points, which is a high game for me. We lost, but I felt good that it was my first game and I did well," Krzyzewski said Tuesday. "This kid's playing against Georgetown in such a big game and he's having a lot of fun."

That Georgetown game further established the 6-foot-10 Laettner as one of the keys to Duke's bid for a national championship in Seattle.

Krzyzewski touted Laettner last November as a player who could have an immediate influence on the Blue Devils. That impact became apparent when he scored a game-high 24 points in leading Duke to an 85-77 victory over the Hoyas in the NCAA East Regional finals.

So much for the freshman jitters, Krzyzewski said.

"He's not just one of the better freshmen. He's one of the better players," Krzyzewski said. "Christian's a very good player and he's going to get a lot better."

Krzyzewski said Laettner's enthusiasm for the game was quite apparent when he brought the Angola, N.Y., native to the Durham campus as well as when he visited Laettner at his home.

"One of the things we had to bring up for one of our visits with him was a copy of the press conference that our kids did in '86 in Dallas," Krzyzewski said of that Sunday gathering in which the Blue Devils delivered a memorable package of one-liners.

"For him to like it that much, not just basketball, but all the stuff. It's refreshing, it's really nice, and it's not phony."

"He's looked at playing in the ACC with so much anticipation," Krzyzewski said. "I remember when we recruited him, how awestruck he was by the whole situation. He's dreamed of it for so long. And he's an even better player than he thought he'd be."

Excitement doesn't come too hard to Laettner. His play in the NCAA tournament, and throughout the season, has been spiced by fists thrust into the air in confidence, fiery looks of celebration after a great play and red-faced rage when he commits a mistake.

His teammates often have to calm him down to prevent the possibility of a technical foul, but they also feed on his natural high.

"Some of the teammates walk up to me after the game and say 'That gave me such a personal lift' when they saw me having a really good time out there," Laettner said.

Laettner is hitting 72 percent of his field goals, and while he is averaging eight points per game, he has been in double figures in his last five games.

Recruiter leads Illini

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) - In a state known for its fertile farmland, the asphalt playgrounds of Illinois' cities have produced one of the most popular crops this spring: basketball players.

The Fighting Illini have reached the NCAA Final Four by relying almost exclusively on home-grown talent - 11 of the 12 players dressing for Illinois are natives of the Land of Lincoln.

"We're very pleased that the talent we've got are all from the state. It's exciting," Coach Lou Henson said Tuesday.

In the past, many of Illinois' budding basketball stars were harvested by universities in other states. Henson estimates at least 25 top players were wooed out-of-state in his 14 years at Illinois.

But that trend has been reversed, due largely to the work the past six years of Henson assistant Jimmy Collins, who is described by the players as "a father figure and the emotional key to the team."

Collins, 40, personally recruited nearly every member of the squad and has developed a rapport with the players that has made him more than just a coach.

"I used to be a big brother to them, but the older I get, the more they call me a father figure," Collins joked Tuesday as the team went through a light workout in a campus gym.

"There's not anything mystical about recruiting. It's a 24-hour-a-day job. It's just hard work and persistence."

Seton Hall coach is 'basketball junkie'

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - P.J. Carlesimo sat at a table in his hotel room eating breakfast.

He wore Seton Hall gym shorts and a tee-shirt. His feet were bare and his hair was a mess.

On top of the video recorder sat nine or so black tape boxes, each marked and bearing the names Illinois, Duke and Michigan. Each was game tape and Carlesimo had seen each more than once. His eyes showed it.

The newest rising star on the national collegiate coaching scene looked tired and overworked and not the glib coach seen recently in postgame news conferences during the NCAA tournament.

Within a couple of minutes, he would lie on his bed and handle a telephone conference call with New York and New Jersey area writers. Most he would address by first name.

It was classic Carlesimo, from a who in his late 30s admits to being a basketball junkie, a workaholic and a nice guy who has managed to beat the odds and finish first.

P.J. Carlesimo is at the top these days, and Seton Hall, 30-6, is heading toward a Final Four showdown against Duke on Saturday in Seattle for one reason. Carlesimo has never stopped working to get them there.

He still gets to work about noon and many times answers the phone in his South Orange office near midnight.

A little more than a year ago, the Final Four may have seemed the most inaccessible place for Seton Hall. It was January, 1988 and the Pirates had stumbled to a 2-6 mark in the Big East and were in their familiar spot in last place in the league.

Many on campus called for Carlesimo's ouster despite improvement by the team in each of his seasons.

"That's the kind of thing I don't try to pay too much attention to," said Carlesimo, who since has signed a five-year contract and twice been named Big East coach of the year. "My concern was whether (athletic director) Larry Keating and (Chancellor) Monsignor (John) Petillo were satisfied. I never lost their support."

Things turned around quickly. Seton Hall finished the 1987-88 season by winning six of eight Big East games, completing the season 22-13 and earning its first NCAA bid.

What has followed this season is even more remarkable. The Hall captured both the Great Alaska Shootout and the Sugar Bowl tournaments early, stayed in the Top 20 most of the year, finished second in the Big East with an 11-5 mark and went 26-6 to earn a second NCAA bid.

Victories over Southwest Missouri State, Evansville, Indiana and UNLV have moved the Pirates within two victories of their first NCAA title.

Michigan star prefers to stay in shadows

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) - It took a while for the organizers of the University of Michigan's most recent news conference to prod Glen Rice into the spotlight.

When they finally got the Wolverines' star to come out like teammates Sean Higgins, Loy Vaught and Demetrius Calip had done for more than an hour to meet with reporters and photographers Tuesday, there was a slight change in the format.

"I do not expect to keep Glen Rice for as long as I had the other players, so we are going to gang him at once right here," Sports Information Director Bruce Madej said as he motioned reporters to the center of the conference room in Crisler Arena.

It was example of Rice's disinclination to puff out his chest and run to the microphones every time someone asks about the ability he's displayed - like the 34 points he scored Thursday against North Carolina in Michigan's 92-87 NCAA tournament quarterfinal victory.

"He works with a quiet sort of resolve," said interim coach Steve Fisher, whose Wolverines, 28-7, are scheduled to leave tonight for Seattle where they will meet Illinois, 31-4, in an NCAA semifinal game Saturday.

"By nature he would prefer not to come out and deal with the media, but the responsibility comes with his position," Fisher said.

It's true that Rice, whose 24.8 average in Big Ten play made him the conference scoring champ for the second straight season, likes to find the shadows when he can.

Two weeks ago, when the Wolverines were at Detroit Metropolitan Airport getting ready to leave for their first tournament game in Atlanta, Rice tried to politely dodge a reporter.

Asked his name, the 6-foot-7 senior forward said, "Terry Mills," and proceeded to spell the other Wolverine forward's name. Then he smiled, said his own name and took a seat in a lounge away from reporters and photographers.

Rice said his shyness is one reason he often steps out of the spotlight. But he also says he's thinking of the team.

"I really don't want to be getting too focused in the media because I really just want to concentrate on the games that we have to play," said Rice, who's sure to be a media darling in Seattle.

"They just tell me (not to) get caught up into all the media and don't go get caught up reading about myself," Rice said.

Higgins and Calip say Rice is the kind of player who leads by example and shows his intensity only on the court.

Higgins, a sophomore guard, said Rice "is the type of guy who, if he made first team All-American or 20th team All-American, it wouldn't make much difference. He just likes to play."

Help reduce heart disease

More than half of all adult Americans have high blood cholesterol levels which increases their risk for coronary heart disease, says the Texas Medical Association.

"For many years we've known that high cholesterol increases your risk to develop heart disease. Now we know that lowering cholesterol can decrease that risk," said Dr. Ellison Wittels, Medical Director of the Institute for Preventive Medicine at Methodist Hospital in Houston.

There are other factors that contribute to your risk of heart disease. If you are male, have a family history of heart disease, smoke cigarettes, have high blood pressure, are overweight, or have diabetes; and you also have a blood cholesterol level of 200 or more, you are probably on the borderline of high risk for stroke or heart attack. "All adults over age 20 or children from a high risk family should have their cholesterol checked," said Dr. Wittels.

NEW YORK (AP) - To prevent muscle soreness, make sure you cool down before hitting the hot showers, says the Reebok Aerobic Information Bureau.

Cyclists tested at the Harvard University Human Performance Laboratory in Washington showed that their lactic acid levels were 50 percent lower if they ended their workouts with a slow, cool-down period instead of stopping abruptly.

Lactic acid, a waste product that develops during exercise, causes muscle soreness and cramping.

If your cholesterol level is 200 or more, and you have two or more contributing risk factors, you should work to lower your cholesterol level. For many, lowering cholesterol levels means a change in lifestyle and dietary habits. This includes losing weight immediately if you are overweight. On average, each two pounds of excess body fat contributes one point to your blood cholesterol level.

Cholesterol is manufactured by the liver from fats, proteins, and carbohydrates you eat. The body uses cholesterol to form cell membranes and other vital substances and makes all the cholesterol it needs (about 1,000 milligrams a day). You don't need to consume any to stay healthy. However, the average American consumes between 400-500 milligrams of additional dietary cholesterol each day. Meat, eggs, fish, poultry, and dairy products, as well as oils and butter, are examples of dietary cholesterol.

This excess cholesterol accumulates in the walls of the blood vessels and causes coronary artery disease. Over time, blood clots can form, which ultimately may stem the flow of blood to the brain, causing a stroke, or clog the coronary arteries, leading to a heart attack.

To lose weight and maintain a desirable blood cholesterol level, limit your intake of dietary cholesterol. Choose fish and poultry without skin and lean cuts of meat. Drink skim or one percent fat milk, eat low-fat yogurt, cottage cheese, and farmer or pot cheeses, instead of all natural cheeses. Avoid egg yolks, one of the richest sources of cholesterol. Eat fresh, frozen, or canned vegetables-but do not prepare them in butter or other sauces. Choose rice and pasta, and whole-grain breads and cereals. Avoid all fats and oils such as butter, coconut oil, palm oil, lard and bacon fat, as well as food cooked with them. Substitute unsaturated vegetable oils including corn, olive, safflower and soybean; and instead of butter, have a pat of margarine made with one of these unsaturated oils.

To have your blood cholesterol checked, see your physician or participate in a "finger-stick test" if this type of screening is offered in your area. In this procedure, a few drops of blood are drawn from your finger and the results are available in about three minutes.

"The only way you'll know what your cholesterol level is, is to have it checked. And the earlier you become aware, the more able you are to do something about it," said Dr. Wittels.

The Texas Medical Association reminds you to exercise and lose weight, don't smoke, and consume less dietary cholesterol if you want to reduce your risk of coronary heart disease.

The Texas Medical Association is a professional organization with more than 29,000 physician and medical student members. It is located in Austin and has 116 component county medical societies around the state.

It takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home.

Sure you could go on stumbling through the housing market. Running into dead ends and getting cornered with too little information.

Or you could nail down that new home the easy way by consulting an experienced real estate agent.

An agent can point out options you might have missed. Get you inside interesting homes that you may never have seen otherwise. Even do a lot of the groundwork, so you don't have to.

Like researching financing packages. Checking through the multiple listing service for homes that fit your needs--and your pocketbook. Negotiating with the seller. And arranging for inspections, he or she will even be there at closing.

So instead of forging ahead without knowing what's out there, get some help for an expert. A real estate agent.

Inside The Hereford Brand, you'll find both qualified agents and valuable information about home buying. Every day, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And the Brand's Sunday housing section examines the latest market trends and housing opportunities.

With the right guide, hitting your mark can be child's play.

THERE'S MORE Hereford IN THE BRAND.

Abundant Life

DON'T WAIT TO LIVE
 By Bob Wear

Waiting to live is one of the most deceptive of all views. We know that there are appropriate seasons for doing some things, and these must be respected; however, in general, we will be suffering great loss if we do not make the most of each day of time.

This is the day for self-improvement; for being kind and thoughtful; for helping others; for serving God; for being happy and cheerful; for being thankful; for telling others, especially our loved ones and friends, that we love and appreciate them. This is the day for doing all the things that we know to be important to the fullness of living. Why wait?

"It is too late now" may be some of the saddest words to fall from human lips, and they usually come from the people who have the faulty view of "waiting to live." Today is for living, and living in the best way we know how. Tomorrow may be a good day for some things, if there is a tomorrow; but it is a mistake to wait until some day not yet born to think about doing the things that belong to this day.

"Tomorrow! It is a period of nowhere to be found in all the registers of time, unless per chance in the fool's calendar. Wisdom disclaims the word, nor holds society with those who own it." 'Tis

Amy Greer awarded certificate

Amy Mason Greer of Hereford, a senior graphic design major at West Texas State University, was awarded a certificate of merit for a poster promoting a telephone operators' convention. Her design will be exhibited April 21-22 at the Dallas Society of Visual Communications Student Show.

Greer's poster, a project for an advanced design class taught by Bob Caruthers, was one of 74 selected for the show. More than 610 entries representing 18 colleges and universities and six states were submitted for consideration.

fancy's child, and folly is its father: wrought on such stuff as dreams are: and baseless as the fantastic dreams of the evening."--Cotton

Some of the deeds essential to satisfactory fulfillment of life must be done, if they are ever done, in the face of great difficulties. We cannot afford to wait until all difficulties have vanished, and then try to begin to live. If we do, there will be no living, just a miserable kind of existence. "He who observes the wind shall not sow and he who regards the clouds shall not reap."

Each day has its own special privileges and opportunities and challenges to be used that day or not at all.

CLASSIFIED ADS
Classified advertising rates are based on 14 cents a word for first insertion ($2.00 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN.
1 day per word	.14	2.00
2 days per word	.24	4.00
3 days per word	.34	6.00
4 days per word	.44	8.00

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines—those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are $3.95 per column inch; $3.25 an inch for additional insertions.

LEGALIS
Ad rates for legal notices are 14 cents per word first insertion, 10 cents per word for additional insertions.

ERRORS
Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

Checklist offered for well-prepared kitchen

Today's American cooks need convenience, yet many people like to treat themselves with a touch of elegance in their menus. It is possible to achieve both and create appetizing meals quickly when you keep a well-stocked kitchen.

Your kitchen should be equipped to get you through the culinary rigors of drop-in guests, nutritious family meals and demands for different, tasty snacks. Thinking about your family's needs and preparing a kitchen checklist makes stocking shelves easier.

Following is a checklist of food "staples" that can create a wide range of fast and attractive meals. Even basic items, when used creatively, are versatile ingredients for a variety of dishes.

Canned Broth-serves as base for gravies and sauces; an alternative for cooking rice and making "homemade" soups.

Olives-serve as hors d'oeuvres or garnishes for drinks, ethnic foods or main dishes.

Assorted Nuts-peanuts, pecans and almonds are convenient snacks or hors d'oeuvres. Walnuts and slivered almonds make excellent garnishes.

Soups-keep a variety for snacks, appetizers, sauces or gravy bases. Different colored creamed soups (e.g. tomato and cream of potato) can be swirled together for an attractive appetizer.

Canned seafood-a collection of canned tuna, salmon, mackerel, crabmeat, clams, etc., can make dips, chowders, casseroles and cold salads in a snap.

Pasta-a must for quick, elegant salads or hot main dishes. A variety of pasta on hand, including different shapes and colors, allows for most creativity.

Rice-a fast base for Oriental stirfry or many one-dish meals, especially those created from the shelf.

Canned mushrooms-great quick additions to omelettes and soups, they add texture and taste to homemade pizzas, vegetable and meat dishes, and casseroles.

Pastry shells-the frozen variety is easy and elegant for filling with meat and gravy dishes such as Beef Wellington or Creamed Chicken.

Assorted crackers-several kinds to accompany soups and serve with quick spreads and cheeses.

Canned fruits-favorites packed in syrup or juice for breakfast side dishes, cereal or pancake toppings, snacks and desserts. Keep some chilled. Heat peaches, pears, pineapple and plums in a brown sugar and butter glaze for an elegant topping on ice cream or cake.

Canned meats-Including chicken, ham and luncheon meats for salads, sandwiches and main dish ingredients.

Canned vegetables-keep a variety to add to soups or main dishes. Expand and dress up with spices, pasta or garnishes for fast side dishes.

Canned tomato products-Whole tomatoes, tomato sauce and tomato paste for red sauces of all kinds.

Assorted legumes-these are very high in fiber, and the canned varieties require no soaking or cooking. Kidney beans, garbanzo beans and peas are excellent additions to soups and salads.

Ice cream and sherbets-serve a scoop with nuts or fruit topping for an elegant dessert.

Canned beverages-keep a supply of fruit and vegetable juices for drinks, punches or snacks (keep some chilled).

Pudding-a can of prepared pudding makes a fast, elegant parfait layered in a wine glass with whipping cream and topped with chocolate shavings or nuts.

Sour cream, cottage and cream cheese-good bases for seafood or vegetable dips and sauces; ingredients or toppings for vegetables and desserts.

Eggs-versatile protein component for all meals, basis for omelettes, quick-hearty sauces and baked goods, as well as a garnish (hard boiled).

Lemon juice-can add flavor to various dishes, from vegetables to seafood.

Dried parsley flakes-another garnish to add zest and dress up off-the-shelf meals.

Spices-allspice, cinnamon, ginger and cloves for desserts; paprika, garlic, seasoned salt and pepper for main dishes. Capers add zest and elegance to sauces for fish and light meal; thyme, oregano, rosemary and basil are good additions for most meats.

Cooking sauces-soy, horseradish, Worcestershire and hot pepper sauces add zest to meats, soups, main dishes.

Oils, vinegars and wines-Olive oil, wine vinegar, cooking sherry, white wine and white vinegar are important ingredients for sauces.

The key to this checklist is versatility. Each item can be used in a variety of recipes for different situations. Here is a three-course meal that can be created in no time with items from this kitchen checklist:

- SALADE
ELEGANT
- 4 cups tort romaine
 - 1/2 can (14 oz.) hearts of palm, drained
 - 1 can (11 oz.) mandarin oranges, drained
 - 1 can (4 oz.) artichoke hearts, drained
 - 1/2 c. walnut meats, toasted
 - 1/3 c. olive or salad oil
 - 3 tsp. vinegar
 - 1/2 tsp. chopped fresh or 1/4 tsp. dry chervil
 - 1/4 tsp. chopped fresh or 1/8 tsp. dry thyme
 - 1/4 teaspoon sugar
 - 1/4-1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- Put romaine in a chilled salad bowl. Cut half of hearts of palm into 1-inch slices, refrigerate remainder for another day. Add hearts of palm, mandarin oranges, artichoke hearts and walnuts. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over salad. Toss.

- LINGUINE WITH
CLAM SAUCE
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
 - 1 large clove garlic, minced
 - 1 small onion, finely chopped
 - 1 can (10 oz.) whole baby clams
 - 1/4 cup chopped parsley
 - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 - 12 oz. linguine, cooked
 - Shredded Parmesan cheese
 - Heat oil in medium skillet, saute garlic and onion until soft, not browned. Add clams, parsley and lemon juice. Heat. Serve over hot, cooked linguine, sprinkle with Parmesan cheese as desired.

- CINNAMON
GINGER FRUITS
- 1 can (1 lb.) plums, drained
 - 1 can (1 lb.) peach halves, drained
 - 1 can (8 1/2 oz.) pear halves, drained
 - 1 can (5 1/4 oz.) pineapple chunks, drained
 - 8-10 maraschino cherries
 - 2 tablespoons butter
 - 3 tablespoons light brown sugar
 - 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon, or to taste
 - Large pinch ginger, or to taste
 - Grand Mariner or light rum, optional
 - Have all fruit well drained, melt butter in a 10-inch frying pan. Over medium heat, add sugar, cinnamon and ginger. Stir until the sugar mixture is thick and syrup-like (around 1 minute).
 - Add fruit to pan. Shake pan and gently turn fruits until all are coated with spiced syrup. Aim only to heat the fruits, not cook them.
 - Fruit may be sprinkled with a few drops of Grand Mariner or rum. If you wish to flame the fruits, place 1/4 cup liquor in a small pan and heat to a simmer. Light a match to the liquor, then pour liquor over the fruit. Shake the fruit in the pan until all flames are extinguished.
 - These fruits may be eaten plain or over ice cream or pound cake. Serves 4-6.

- TROPICAL OIL OUT
ELMHURST, III. (AP) - Several food companies say they won't use tropical oils and lard in their foods in order to help reduce cholesterol.
- Tropical oils are high in saturated fats, which can be converted by the body into artery-blocking cholesterol. These oils include coconut oil, palm oil and palm kernel oil. Other vegetable oils will be used instead.
- Tropical oils had been used because they helped extend the shelf life of food products.

The Hereford Brand

Contacting Panhellenic members

Officers of Hereford Panhellenic Association are contacting members this week to remind them of Sunday's rush information tea. The annual event, open to senior college-bound girls and their mothers, will be held in the parlor of First Baptist Church at 3 p.m. Sunday with HPA members to meet at 2:30 p.m. The tea will provide HPA members with a chance to get to know area girls for whom they may write college sorority recommendations and girls can learn more about sorority life. Contacting members are, from left, Ange Lauderback and Kim Buckley.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: The man I am now dating told me that the woman he was seeing before me was terrific. But they had some "irreconcilable differences." She had an unusual "career." She was a surrogate partner and refused to give up her job. I asked, "What is a surrogate partner?" When he told me I almost went into cardiac arrest. He said, "She helps men with sexual problems by talking to them and having sex, if it is indicated." This is supposed to help them become more confident about their sexuality.

Ann, this sounds to me like the oldest profession in the world. In my opinion, for a woman to get paid by the hour to have sex is just plain prostitution, and a psychiatrist who would refer the patient is nothing but a pimp.

Haven't surrogate mothers caused enough trouble? Who needs more? I thought it was the psychiatrist's job to talk to patients and help them with their anxieties and hang-ups, not send them to someone for a show-and-tell.

I asked a psychiatrist-friend about this "treatment" and he said that only the doctor has to be licensed, not the surrogate. The surrogate need only take some classes and then she can teach her patients what to do.

Ann, I think this is the biggest bunch of bull I have ever heard. Will you please check it out and tell me what goes on? - DISGUSTED IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR DISGUSTED: I spoke with Dr. Domeena C. Renshaw, professor of psychiatry at Loyola Medical School Sex Clinic in Maywood, Ill. This is what she said:

"Using surrogates is a radical and controversial method of treatment that raises some serious ethical questions. In my opinion, it is unnecessary because of the positive results obtained with more conventional methods."

AN OLD CITY WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) - Worcester, which is midway between Boston and Springfield, was established as a town on an old Indian camping ground in 1684.

It is the home of the College of the Holy Cross, Assumption College, Clark University and Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

During Revolutionary days, Isaiah Thomas published the Massachusetts Spy newspaper here, encouraging the move toward independence.

In 1828, a canal connected Worcester with Narragansett Bay and the city grew as an industrial center.

Robert H. Goddard, the father of modern rocketry and space flight, was born here and conducted his first scientific experiments with rockets in Worcester.

Lime Pepper Chicken tart, hot

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens Food Editor

Combining something tart with something hot seems to accent both flavors. Here the simple seasonings are lime juice and peel and cracked black pepper.

LIME PEPPER CHICKEN

1/2 teaspoon finely shredded lime peel
1-3rd cup lime juice
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
1 teaspoon cracked black pepper
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
2 to 2 1/2 pounds meaty chicken pieces (breasts, wings, thighs and drumsticks)
Preheat the broiler. Meanwhile, for sauce, in a small bowl stir together lime peel, lime juice, oil, thyme, pepper and garlic salt. Set mixture aside. Place chicken, skin side down, on an unheated rack in a broiler pan. Brush with sauce. Broil 4 to 5 inches from the heat for 15 to 18 minutes or until lightly browned, brushing often with sauce. Turn chicken. Brush with sauce, broil 10 to 15 minutes more or until no longer pink, brushing often with sauce. Makes 4 servings.

CHILD CARE

ORADELL, N.J. (AP) - Nursing homes are beginning to offer on-site child day care programs as a benefit that attracts and retains nurses.

Today's Nursing Home magazine says 15 homes in Massachusetts are pioneering this concept as well as others from Junction City, Kan., to Angel, Ore. While employees reap the greatest benefits, residents and children find the arrangement an enjoyable experience.

NOTICE To The Public Direct From

SINGER

UNCLAIMED SCHOOL SEWING MACHINES

These HEAVY DUTY SINGER Sewing machines were ordered for school sales by a dept. of o.s.m.s. A limited number were not sold and we are now releasing these Singer Sewing Machines for sale to the public. These HEAVY DUTY SINGERS sew on all fabrics: Denim, Canvas, Upholstery, Nylon, Stretch Vinyl, and even on leather. These machines make button-holes, zig-zags, over-edges, monograms, plus Twin Needle Sewing and many other Singer features without the need of old-fashioned cams. All these Singer Sewing Machines are new and come in factory-sealed cartons, with a 10-year warranty and are 1989 models.
