By JOHN BROOKS Managing Editor

Local attorney David Clyde was indicted by the 222nd District Court grand jury last Friday on a charge of sexual assault.

Clyde, a former assistant district attorney who resigned his post last

Oct. 18 after being charged with Class C misdemeanor assault in connection with an incident in Randall County, is free on $15,000 bond pending formal arraignment.

Clyde voluntarily surrendered Monday.

Because of Clyde's past association with the district attorney's office, District Attorney Roland Saul did not present the case to the grand jury. The case was presented to the grand jury by Potter County District Attorney Danny Hill and Randall County District Attorney Randy Sherrod.

Grand jurors had been hearing testimony in the case for over three months before handing down the indictment last Friday.

222nd District Court Judge Wes Gulley also recused himself from the case, also citing his former close work 🐇 with Clyde. Gulley has asked the state to appoint another judge to hear the case.

The attack is alleged to have occurred last Nov. 22, more than a month after Clyde resigned as assistant DA. The attack allegedly occurred in a Hereford office which Clyde was visiting.

City selects auditing firm

By KAY PECK Staff Writer

Hereford City Commissioners voted Monday evening to retain Brown, Graham and Co., certified public accountants, as the city's auditor. The firm has been auditing city accounts since 1984.

Two firms asked to be considered in the selection of city auditor. Gerhardt and Puckett also submitted a proposal to city officials.

"Since it's going to be an appointment situation, we'd like to be considered," said Bill Allen, Gerhardt and Puckett's representative at the commission meeting.

Choosing between the two firms was complicated by the fact that state law forbids local officials from using a bid system in selecting professional services. Both firms did submit proposals to the city which included estimates of fees charged by those firms for their services.

Brown and Graham submitted an estimated range of $8,000 to $10,- YAWWWWWWNNNN!

We've made it through another time change.

I heard someone Sunday say that if they could find the guy that invented Daylight Savings Time, they'd kill him. Well, Ben Franklin's body is rather cold. Franklin had some good ideas. He invented bifocals. Someone told him to go fly a kite, and he did. Had he told them to go do something, this computer would have horses hooked up to it.

Franklin also came up with the idea of Daylight Savings Time. What I've never figured out is how Franklin could think up DST, yet every town in America had a different time. There was no atomic clock.

Later there were railroads, and everybody had a little different time, based on the railroad. If the railroad said the train was going to be here at 8:32, and the town clock says 8:56, it must be fast.

Anyway, Franklin came up with the idea of DST.

Like most brilliant people, Ben must not have had much common sense. On its face it sounds like a good idea.

Roll the clock ahead one hour, and you get an extra hour of daylight. But Ben probably didn't work for a living, so he didn't have to get out of bed on Monday morning after DST kicked in.

bb We had our first major accident at the still-new traffic light at Fifteenth and North U.S. Highway 385 on Saturday afternoon.

It's a blooming wonder there has not been one earlier. I came close to having one myself at that intersection not too long ago.

I was sitting there on the east side of the intersection and was fixing to head west when this car, blatantly disregarding the light, came blaring through the red, heading north.

Some folks may not even be aware of the light. Sometimes, folks are in a hurry. Sometimes folks are driving a truck. I know there are some good, law-abiding truck drivers, but some truckers feel that 25 Mile Avenue is a dragstrip, from the light at the intersection with 60 right on through the light at Fifteenth.

I've seen that light "run" a half-dozen times and I don't even live in that area. Folks who live out there tell me it's much worse than that. We can't afford to have a policeman out there patrolling the intersection. We just have to decide to live by what these traffic control signals say.

In 1969, a surgical team in Houston led by Dr. Denton Cooley implanted a temporary artificial heart in a 47-year-old patient while awaiting a human donor heart. The patient, Haskell Karp, died April 8, one day after receiving a human heart.

In 1974, Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves tied Babe Ruth's home-run record by hitting his 714th round-tripper in Cincinnati.

In 1975, more than 130 people, most of them children, were killed when a U.S. Air Force transport plane evacuating Vietnamese orphans crashed shortly after take-off from Saigon.

Dressing hints given

By The Associated Press

Here are some shopping pointers to keep in mind if you're 5feet-4 or less and prefer not to dress like someone's little girl: a long tunic to make the waist appear longer. The idea is to visually soften and blend the proportions.

A key fitting point is at the shoulders. Collars and necklines shouldn't bunch up. Alterations are simpler for other parts of the garment if you start with a proportional shoulder fit. Choose softer versions of classically tailored suits. The details should be scaled down, with narrowed lapels and one-button closures. Jackets cut at hipbone length will look most natural with a smaller frame. Shoulder pads make the waist look smaller by extending the line of the shoulders, but make sure Horizontal lines will make you look chunky. So avoid square necklines or horizontal stripes or seams. By contrast, verticals, Vnecks, vertical stripes and seams, will smooth and narrow your lines. Let color help, too. Monochro-matic colors will help you maintain an unbroken visual line. You could match hosiery and pumps to solid colors in pants or skirts.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I did not agree with your comments to "Disillusioned in Ottawa," the person who had seven siblings and not one offered a kidney although she had been on dialysis for 12 years.

My mother's sister lost both her kidneys at a fairly early age. She received a transplant from an unrelated donor and it served her well for 10 years, then her body rejected it. Now she must be dialyzed three times a week and has had 30 operations. The woman has gone through more hell than any human should have to endure.

My mother was tested as a prospective donor but her tissue was not a good match. Soon after, Mom began to have trouble with kidney stones and bladder infections. Had she donated a kidney to her sister, she would probably be on dialysis today.

We all love our aunt, but my sisters and I are in our 30s and we have young children. Our decision not to be donors was an extremely difficult one.

Yes, Ann, to give up a part of your body is an extremely generous thing to do, but please have compassion for those who decide not to. We go through enough agony and soul-searching every day without having to feel guilty, too. - NO who are much closer to the problem than I am wrote to express a similar point of view.

NAME, JUST SALINAS, CALIF. DEAR SALINAS: Many readers

I now know why some relatives are reluctant to be donors. We should not sit in judgment unless we have walked in those very same moccasins.

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column about clothes that are hard to wear, "Sacramento" mentioned lousy shoe styling that causes bunions, corns and blisters.

I have a worse problem. I was born with something shoe salespeople call a "Dutch foot." It is a size 6EE or WW.

About eight months ago, size 6 could no longer be found in WW. WWs now start size 7. Sevens are too large for me. The arch doesn't fit and the shoe flops up and down in the back. Dear Ann Landers: Somewhere my mother read that if you put a clay flowerpot over a burner on the stove, it would act as a heater. Please tell people not to try it. The fumes could kill you.

My parents were asleep in their motor home. It turned cold, so Mom put the clay pot on the burner. A few hours later, my 9-year-old, who was sleeping close to the stove, seemed to be having nightmares. I checked and she was nearly blue! Please warn your readers. - VIDOR, TEXAS

DEAR VIDOR: You did and I thank you!

Scott, Herd romp past Raiders, 12-1

By JOHN BROOKS Managing Editor

Hereford Whitefaces--the The whole team--were darned near perfect on Saturday in a 12-1 win homer to right center. Andrews over Randall in District 1-4A baseball game at Whiteface Field.

Pitcher Jason Scott improved his record to 6-0, giving up a fourthinning home run for Randall's only hit. Scott walked one batter, and another reached on an error.

Scott struck out seven over his five-inning stretch, giving him 60 over six games.

"That was the best he's pitched since we played Estacado in the Abilene Tournament," said Hereford coach T.R. Sartor. "When you flew out to center, Brown homered, consider the wind (25 mph in hitting a car beyond the left field Scott's face), he did awfully well. He was staying in the black a lot."

While Scott was shutting down the Raiders, Hereford batters tore into two Randall pitchers for 13 hits, including home runs by Roger McCracken, Glenn Parker and Keith Brown

McCracken followed with his singled, then Clint Cotten struck out for the first out of the inning. Victor drew a walk, then Mitts doubled to center, scoring Andrews and Victor. Parker then stroked his single, scoring Mitts to giving the Herd a 7-0 lead.

In the third, Victor singled and was sacrificed to second by Mitts. Parker, batting ninth, hit the scoreboard in left field for his first homer to put Hereford up 9-0.

After Scott singled and Backus fence to give Hereford a 12-0 lead.

Only two Randall runners had reached base in the first three innings, on a second-inning error and on a walk in the third. Scott gave up the homer in the fourth, and had a little trouble in the fifth, walking one, before striking out the final batter.

80-79 in overtime Monday night, making Steve Fisher the first rookie coach with an NCAA championship. Fisher took over on an interim basis for Bill Frieder just before the NCAA tournament began and won all six of his games.

He called the victory "a moment and an event that we will all have with us forever." But Fisher may be with Michigan a much shorter time.

Michigan athletic director Bo Schembechler has given Fisher no assurances, yet Fisher maintains he is a company man. And he is in some pretty good company at Michigan.

Glen Rice scored 31 points for the Wolverines, breaking Bill Bradley's 1965 NCAA tournament scoring record. In six games, Rice wound up with 184 points for an average of 30.6. That was seven more than Bradley had for Princeton, although that was in five games.

"It's a great individual achievement," Rice said, "but being the type of person I am, I feel I owe most of it to my teammates and coaches."

Rumeal Robinson, the junior point guard, hit two free throws with three seconds left, giving Michigan its victory in the first overtime title game since 1963. Robinson had 21 points, and his 11 assists were a single-game touranment record.

And Sean Higgins scored 10 points while holding Seton Hall's hired gun from Australia, Andrew Gaze, to just five points, including a lone 3-point field goal that did not come until the opening seconds of overtime. In Gaze's virtual absence, John Monton took over, scoring 25 of his 35 points in the second half, including 20 of Seton Hall's final 26 points in regulation.

Michigan led by as many as 12 points in the second half, 51-39, on a driving, reverse slam-dunk by the 6foot-2 Robinson, the top of whose head is 3-feet 10-inches below the rim.

· Seton Hall went on its own run, outscoring Michigan 14-6 and trailing 59-57 with 6:51 to play after a short Morton jumper. Morton hit a 3-pointer from the left side of the key with 24 seconds to play, forging a 71-71 tie that stood at the end of regulation when Rice missed a short turnaround jumper in the lane.

"I was shocked that I missed," Rice said.

With 2:41 left in overtime, a Morton 3-pointer put Seton Hall ahead 79-76. After Rice and Higgins each missed umpers, Gerald Greene was fouled at e other end of the floor by Robinson. There was 1:17 left, and Greene went to the line for a 1-and-1. His first shot bounced off the back rim, and, with 56 seconds left, was controlled by Michigan. Terry Mills

Robinson brought the ball upcourt for the Wolverines, drove into the lane and, before he could put up a shot, was fouled by Greene.

With 10 seconds left, Morton threw up an off-balance airball from the lanc,

Greene thought the call by referee John Clougherty could have gone either way.

"I saw him pentrating to the hole, and I tried to cut him off," Greene said. "We collided, and the ref called it on me. I thought he could also have called it an offensive foul."

Seton Hall had a final chance as center Ramon Ramos took the ball out of bounds under the Michigan basket with three seconds left. He threw a baseball pass downcourt. Both Greene and Seton Hall forward Daryll Walker went up for it. Walker came down with the ball, but his awkward, onc-handed push shot bounced hard off the glass and fell into Rice's hands as the game ended.

The Pirates were held scoreless over the final 2:41.

'They played a little bit better than we did today," Seton Hall coach P.J.

Carlesimo said. "It's very difficult to (Scott 14-8), (n) put this in perspective. I'm enormously proud of the team and the way we played.

Books tell how to lighten meals

NEW YORK (AP) - Two books of interest to people interested in maintaining healthy hearts include "Choices for a Healthy Heart" and "Don't Eat Your Heart Out," both by Joseph C. Piscatella.

"Don't Eat Your Heart Out," now in its 20th printing, was first published in 1982. It contains more than 450 heart-healthy recipes, including Seafood Chowder, Ratatouille and Country Pot Roast.

The companion volume, "Choices for a Healthy Heart," published in 1987, includes 250 recipes. Selections include Steamed Tortillas, Pasta with Chicken Salad, Grilled Veal with Mustard Sauce and Chinese Vegetable Stir-Fry.

Piscatella's wife, Bernie, developed these heart-healthier versions of her family's favorite recipes for both cookbooks.

"It's unrealistic," she says, "to throw away all your old recipes. Rather, a better way is to analyze the recipe, remove the unhealthy ingredients and replace them with healthier choices."

The Piscatellas became interested in heart-healthy cooking after Joe's emergency cardiac bypass surgery 10 years ago.

"Don't Eat Your Heart Out" includes diet guidelines recommended by the National Cholesterol Education Program. Both books contain dietary and nutritional information. Dr. Denton A. Cooley, a surgeon at the Texas Heart Institute, wrote the foreword for both books.

("Don't Eat Your Heart Out Cookbook" by Joseph C. Piscatella. Workman Publishing. 559 Pages. $14.95) ("Choices for a Healthy Heart" by Joseph C. Piscatella. Workman Publishing. New York. 580 Pages. $14.95)

The following sample recipe shows how family favorites can be translated into lower-fat dishes.

ITALIAN MACARONI AND CHEESE

2 cups cubed low-fat Cheddar cheese

1 cup skim evaporated milk

1 tablespoon Dijon mustard 21/2 cups cooked elbow macaroni

1/2 teaspoon dried basil

One 16-ounce can plum tomatoes with liquid, diced

1 tablespoon bread crumbs

In a medium saucepan, combine cheese, milk and mustard. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until cheese melts. Add pasta and mix well. Add basil to tomatoes.

In an ovenproof baking dish, layer one-third of the macaroni and cheese; top with one-third of the tomato mixture. Repeat layers, ending with macaroni and cheese but reserving a generous dollop of the tomatoes to put in the center of the top layer. Sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake, covered, at 350 degrees F for 30 minutes, or until mixture is hot and bubbly.

Nutritional information per serving: 285 cal., 16 g pro., 73 g carb., 39 mg chol., 11 g fat, 447 mg sodium.

Concerteens to be feted

The Community Concert Association will feature their final concert of the season Friday at 8 p.m. in the Hereford High School auditorium as the production of 'Pinocchio' will be staged. The Concerteens, a group of high school girls who hand out programs and assist with seating at the concerts, will be presented at the beginning of the event Friday. All seniors at HHS, they include,

The Kristoffersons, parents of three young children, would like permanent custody of the nanny's three girls, ages 4 to 12.

Maria Juana Aguilar, 32, asked two years ago that the singer and his wife take care of her children should anything happen to her. The Kristoffersons were awarded temporary guardianship a year ago.

But relatives of Ricardo Arauz now want guardianship of the two youngest girls, fathered by Arauz.

Kristofferson said in court documents he wants to provide a warm, loving, supportive and stable home environment for the children of his Salvadoran housekeeper of 10. years.

A hearing was scheduled for May

3. Arauz, 38, shot and killed the housekeeper a year ago at the Los Angeles home of a relative. Arauz pleaded guilty March 17 to seconddegree murder and faces 17 years to life in state prison when sentenced April 21.

Census shows increase of U.S. centenarians

Did you know that by the year 2000 there will be more than 100,000 Americans who are 100 years of age and older?

One of the popular morning television shows spotlights centenarians with photographs and birthday greetings. One lady, a legal secretary ets and self-service laundries, author Herbert Gold says.

John Lacey, played by Judd Hirsch, makes "the same mistakes every suddenly single (that is, ignominiously dumped) 40-ish male makes," said Gold, also a former husband.

This season, John even got involved with a 17-year-old student. "Did you forget that you have fillings in your teeth older than she is?" Gold asked in this week's TV Guide magazine.

HONG KONG (AP) - Pamella Bordes, a former Indian beauty queen at the center of a British political sex scandal, was in "good shape, relaxed, calm but very tired" after being injured in a motorcycle accident, a hospital says.

Wayne Woodhams, spokesman for the private Adventist Hospital, said three specialists, including a plastic surgeon, had examined the 27-yearold Miss Bordes after she was admitted Sunday.

Miss Bordes had abrasions on her right cheek when she was spotted upon her arrival in Hong Kong. She suffered the injuries in the Indonesian island of Bali.

Miss Bordes was a researcher in the British Parliament when British newspapers said she led a double life in London, working as a researcher fora member of parliament and a highclass call girl who mingled with politicians.

In fact, the over-80 crowd is the fastest growing segment of our society. The latest census figures show that this age category alone will double from its present number to more than 25 million by the 2050.

And, according to the U.S. Senate Special committee on Aging, the number of Americans over the age of 65 is expected to grow by the year 2030 to almost 65 million, or 21 percent of the total population. That figure is more than twice what it is expected to be in 1990.

So, why should we care?

As a youth-oriented society, we tend to think of the elderly as an allencompassing group of those 65 and older who are informed and mentally impaired.

In biological terms, it is true that eyesight, sense of smell and hearing at high registers can weaken with age, although it is not a hard and fast rule. Both metabolism and reflexes do slow down.

However, there is a difference between the average 65-year-old and are estimated to be in the range of a monumental $22 billion annually, and with the prolongation of life comes the prospect of even higher costs. "We must ask ourselves now who will care for these people, and what kind of life are we offering," stated Dr. Nicholas J. Pisacano, executive director of the American Board of Family Practice.

"With all that medical science and technology has done to extend life, it comes down to the question of quality of life. Should mere extension of life really be our goal? It seems that society should be prepared to pursue qualitative goals," he added.

Clearly, "quality of life" raises important and pressing questions, and they cannot be answered by the medical community alone.

In terms of health care for the elderly, currently there are estimated to be only 2,000 trained geriatrician of the approximately 450,000 practicing physicians in the U.S. But the medical community has recently turned a corner.

In response to the anticipated critical shortage of doctors qualified to provide the special health care needs of this burgeoning group of Americans, the American Board of Family Practice and the American Board of Internal medicine will award a new Certificate of Added Qualifications (CAQ) in Geriatric Medicine to candidates who satisfactorily meet post-residence training requirements and pass an objective examination.

About 4,000 physicians have enrolled; these have prepared and taken the first exam to become eligible for the CAQ, and enrollments have already begun for the next one.

The two boards responsible for this important move represent the nation's two largest medical specialties-Family Practice and Internal Medicine. Currently, they treat 96 percent of the elderly.

While the medical community continues to address the health care needs of the "young" and "old" elderly, the federal and state governments must be urged to address the sagging Medicare system and other legislative matters, and the community at large must begin to seriously address the many social issues that affect the quality of life in our later years.

quality of life in our later years. Without the latter, the medical community will be hard-pressed to help prevent illness among the elderly and effectively treat their ills.

And, Americans of all ages must begin to dispel the myths about getting older. After all, if we are not yet senior citizens, it is almost a certainty that we will be one day.

Accent on Health

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) has, for the second time, presented the legislature with proof that use of protective helmets by motorcyclists and their passengers is vital to saving lives, reducing the number of head injuries in motorcycle accidents, and saving millions of dollars in medical costs.

The 71st Legislature is reviewing the results of two recent studies conducted in the San Antonio and Corpus Christi areas by TDH and the Department of Public Safety (DPS), between Sept. 1, 1986 and Dec. 31, 1987. In both studies, unhelmeted motorcyclists involved in accidents suffered more serious injuries, required hospitalization more often (including intensive care and rehabilitative or nursing home services), and were less likely to have the means or insurance to pay their medical bills.

Commissioners of Health, said, per 10,000 registered motor bikes "The results of these studies echo die each year now, compared to an "Motorcycles are inherently more dangerous for their riders than are automobiles," Dr. Bernstein said, "if only because they lack the wrap-around protection and stability of cars. But since the state repealed its law for mandatory helmet use by all motorcycle riders 18 and older in 1977, tragedies associated with motorcycles have soared."

Dr. Bernstein said that since repeal of the mandatory helmet law, motorcyclists annually have accounted for some nine percent of all traffic fatalities, although their bikes constitute only about two percent of all registered vehicles in Dr. Robert Bernstein, Texas the state. Preliminary statistics, compiled by DPS, show that there were 462 motorcycle fatalities in Texas between June, 1987 and November ,1988. Of those, 365 (about 80 percent) were unhelmeted.

At the same time, there were 2,204 non-fatal head injuries involving motorcyclists. Of those whose helmet use or non-use was reported (2,173) some 1,874 (86 percent) were not wearing helmets.

Hospital and physicians costs for the initial hospitalization for head injuries of each unhelmeted motorcyclist are estimated at $17,172. Therefore, initial treatment of the 1,874 victims listed by DPS cost at least $32 million. Of those victims, about three percent (56) were later discharged for continued care in rehabilitation centers or nursing homes, at an estimated daily cost of $400 per patient, or about $672,000 each month for all 56 patients.

Also, according to a joint study by TDH and DPS, about 59 percent of motorcycle injury patients in 17 hospitals throughout the state did not have their own health insurance. Consequently, the bulk of their medical expenses are borne by the public sector, and eventually by the Stair climbing dangerous for obese.

A new form of exercise equip-ment is popping up in health clubs and sporting goods stores, a station-ary stair-climbing device marketed for the health conscious. This apparatus is fine for the physically fit, but a recently published study conducted at The University of Texas Medical Branch (UTMB) at Galveston and the Transitional Learning Community has found that overweight people should avoid stair climbing as a form of exercise. "Stair climbing is excellent exercise unless you're overweight," says Marque Hunter, M.D., Fellow in the Pulmonary Division. "An excessive amount of work is required to climb stairs, even at a modest rate in obese individuals." Performing such an activity places dangerous amounts of stress on the heart, including abnormally high heart rates.

Working on the project with Sam Kuna, M.D., assistant professor of internal medicine, Dr. Hunter says walking and bicycling provide safer, obese people, as the amount of energy required depends less on Using a stair-climbing device called a Stairmaster, Dr. Hunter HUMPLESS studied 29 subjects, 22 to 40 years old and weighing 120 to 280 pounds. Of this group, 19 subjects were close to their ideal weight and 10 exceeded ideal weight by more than 40 percent. Subjects were tested walking up the "down escala-tor" at 40, 50, 60 and 70 steps per minute for five minutes at each speed.

"The amount of oxygen consumed was directly proportional to a subject's body weight," Dr. Hunter said. "The overweight subjects developed very high heart rates at relatively slow speeds."

Scientists predict a person's maximum possible heart rate by more effective forms of exercise for using a formula of 220 minus a person's age, "with the obese subjects, the

A person's heart rate is the number of heart contractions per one minute.

CAMELS

LIMA, Peru (AP) - Not all camels have humps.

The vicuna, smallest member of the camel family, lives in the Andes mountains above the snow line. It stands about 3 feet high, weighs 75 to 100 pounds and has a finer fleece than any other wool-bearing animal. It has no hump.

The reddish-brown guanaco, another wild member of the camel species, also lives in the Andes and also has no hump.

The domesticated alpaca and llama are other South American relatives of the camel. They, too, have no humps.
