Irrigators Looking At $2 Gas

BY JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Area irrigators were told they can look for their natural gas bills to climb to $2 per thousand cubic feet of gas (mcf.)

Nude Vega Inmate Easy To Locate

VEGA (AP) - The resident of this Texas Panhandle community must have thought the streak phenomenon had finally arrived.

But the naked man running through the town's streets Thursday was no laughing matter for the police.

The man had escaped from the Oldham County jail.

Vega Police Chief Dave Thompson said the 30-year-old California native set fire to the mattress in his cell and hid in the shower when police and fire officials entered to battle the blaze.

"While we were fighting the fire, he just bolted from the shower and ran down the street stark naked," Thompson said.

Officers found the man hiding in a building only a few blocks from the jail, Thompson said.

"At least he wasn't hard to spot," one deputy sheriff said.

Thompson said the man, who had been arrested Wednesday night on drug charges, was taken to an Amarillo hospital Thursday night for psychiatric observation.

during the High Plains Irrigation Conference held at the Bull Barn Thursday.

BILL MARQUIS of Hereford, an associate with the Witherspoon, Aikin & Langley law firm here, informed farmers that the $2 price level is virtually inevitable while addressing the topic of price and availability of natural gas for irrigation.

Agriculturalists were also told that in the future, electricity will probably become the most practical fuel for irrigation, but that power management systems would be required to restrict the use of electricity for irrigation. Those comments were made by Dr. LaVerne Stetson, an engineer with the University of Nebraska.

Marquis told those in attendance that members of the Plains Irrigation Gas Users Association met recently with top officials of the Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

K.B. Watson of Pioneer told the PIGUA during that meeting that Pioneer currently has reserves sufficient for 17 years of service in the Panhandle. He also indicated that the cost of gas will continue to rise at a rate of about two cents per mcf

Light Snow Covers Ground

The moisture from the light, blowing snow Thursday night was barely enough to wet the dusty leaves of area crops, but it did satisfy area residents as the precipitation settled the cloudy air momentarily.

According to KPAN radio gauges, the snow measured about .05 inches, of moisture. Since it was blowing, a radio spokesman said it was hard to measure accurately giving the indication that more for the next two years, or until the price is over $2 per mcf.

MARQUIS OUTLINED pending state legislation on natural gas for irrigation which would establish agricultural gas priority second only to home heating. He also pointed to a bill which would place irrigation gas under the Public Utilities Commission, but added, "the bill probably doesn't have much of a chance of passing."

A third bill outlined by Marquis would require a gas company to come before the Railroad Commission 90 days after a cost pass-through in order to justify it.

James Hull, manager of the Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, introduced the presentation by Dr. Stetson on load management with electricity.

"We are now receiving requests for electrical service faster than generation equipment can be installed," said Hull. "We allow for a growth rate of six per cent per year, but we are getting requests for 25 per cent expansion per year, and for the first time, we are being forced to decline service to customers. We realize that this poses a hardship for those who need power, so the cooperative is now considering a load management program.

snow fell than was accounted for.

It surprised those waking up early for work this morning as their windshields and car hoods collected up to an inch of snow. With the fairly warm temperatures, it melted fast revealing some of the scarce moisture in this area.

Reports from the rural sections of the county were much the same as in the city area.

Under the system, a clause in the contract would allow curtailment of power four hours per day in July and August, up to 50 hours per month. This would help even out the load considerably," Hull explained.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Stetson, the problems of irrigation loads on an electrical system include high summer power demand and low winter demand, resulting in unused capacity for a generating system. Irrigation systems can also overload the power generating system during peak use periods of the summer, and customers can be subjected to penalty payments.

"Peak demand is a real concern, because the power supplier must be equipped to provide this peak power, even if it is only for a few hours every year. This means considerable power supply investments in transmission equipment and substations, distribution lines, transformers and other items, which may not be used extensively but nevertheless are required," said Stetson.

The Nebraska engineer explained that hard-pressed power supply firms may be forced to resort to restrictions of electric irrigation or use of some off-peak system where pumps are turned off at a noon or evening peak, or one day each week.

"In our trials in Nebraska, we have found that a 16 to 18 hour irrigation day is enough, even during the peak use periods," Stetson indicated.

THE ENGINEER explained that effective load control relies on load monitoring to determine when pumping units are shut down, and added that off-peak irrigation can allow for expansion of electrical irrigation.

"In our own area, we have found that off-peak assures adequate irrigation and helps manage the power load," said Stetson, referring to a system which includes 75 operators in central Nebraska, 271 in the southwest portion of the state and 30 in North Central Nebraska.

"There is some inconvenience with the system, but farmers have found that there are no yield reductions, and there is a savings in cost and a savings in water. Most have indicated they would be willing to continue under the system," he added.

Dr. Bill Lyle, research engineer with the TAES at Halfway commented on designed irrigation wells, using as an example a sand-free well which was drilled at the Halfway facility last year.

"WE ARE DISCOVERING that the well itself is tremendously important. Regardless of how efficient a pump you put in the well, a poor well will pump sand. Designing a well properly from the start will cut problems and minimize drawdown for the amount of water produced. Well design is not a guessing situation, you need information to base your decisions on," said Lyle.

Lyle outlined steps in the construction of a well which could help insure a better well and more water. They included a test hole to obtain the information on which to base the design, designing of the well, drilling, development, test pumping, pump selection and a pumping efficiency test.

He emphasized that an electric log of the test hole is important.

"Many wells are put in without adequate open area in the casing and this can mean encrustation problems. And when you begin to pack a well, it is critical to size the gravel to the aquifer. A well-designed well could save 20 to 30 per cent in energy requirements," he commented.

Five accomplished young women from this community will perform special entertainment for the audience at the Miss Hereford Pageant Saturday night in the high school auditorium. The production, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division, will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The hit song, "He Ain't Heavy (He's My Brother)," will be performed by Miss Kendall, who will receive piano accompaniment from Jan Walsler. Michelle Cleveenger, also to be assisted by Mrs. Walsler, will entertain the expected full house with a medley of "Ragtime Annie," "Milk Cow Blues" and "Boil Them Cabbage Down." In a change of mood, Patty Hendon will perform a ballet dance to the strains of "Nadia's Theme."

County Museum Observes 10th Anniversary Sunday

The Deaf Smith County Museum opened its doors to the public 10 years ago, on Sunday, March 12, 1967, when an estimated 3,000 visitors came to inspect the new storehouse of the county's memories.

To mark the anniversary the museum officials are issuing a special invitation to area residents to visit the building and grounds at 400 Sampson between 2 and 5 p.m. Sunday.

On the opening day 10 years ago so many visitors thronged the building that attempt to register them had to be given up; so many that the slowly moving line waiting for admittance stretched south past the courthouse. Museum board members hope as many will come for the anniversary.

Since its opening, more than 50,000 guests have registered, including a other states and even foreign countries.

The diversity of visitors is still typical of that noted by The Hereford Brand in an editorial a week after the opening.

Noting that members of the sponsoring County Historical Society and the Commissioners Court which made possible use of the building were surprised at the huge turnout, the writer commented that the crowd included "people from all walks of life...oldtimers...teenagers...middleagers...quite a few Latin-Americans, generally considered newcomers to the area."

Impetus for establishing the museum began April 12, 1966, at a meeting in the Bull Barn sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Historical Survey Committee.

It was voted to organize the Deaf Smith County Historical Society Inc. with its

Mercenaries Invade Zaire

KINSHASHA, Zaire (AP) - Zaire said today its forces recaptured two towns from an "army of mercenaries" that invaded the country from neighboring Angola.

At least seven Americans were being held under house arrest at a United Methodist mission, but there were no reports of any injuries or damage, church officials said.

Officials said a battalion of Zaire troops had retaken the small towns of Divuma and Kasaji and were moving toward the captured towns of Kapanga, Kisengi.

Carter Hostess Unusual

CLINTON, Mass. (AP) - Eva Hester's neighbors have given her 100-year-old frame house a spring cleaning and want to make homemade Irish bread and spaghetti and meatballs for Jimmy Carter's supper. But loyal Democrat Hester may be out as presidential hostess because of a political tempest over where Carter will spend the night in this mill town during his first "meet-the-people" visit March 16 and 17. A political rival said Miss Hester, 56, is not the "regular, everyday, down-to-earth person" Carter wants to meet because she's too involved.

Voter Gets White House Meal

WASHINGTON (AP) - When Jimmy Carter came to town to announce he wanted to be president, John Shanklin was one of the few who noticed. He promised Carter his vote, and Carter promised him a presidential breakfast. The 71-year-old John Shanklin, in his best gray suit and checkered tie, is having coffee, juice and a Danish today in the Oval Office.

He invited his daughter, Nancy, and his boss, Rose Narva, along. "I'm ready to go on down the road now," said Shanklin.

Congress Rebukes President

WASHINGTON (AP) - In President Carter's first major legislative defeat, the Senate is defying his plan to scrap 19 water development projects.

The Senate took one of Carter's economic proposals Thursday and attached a requirement that he spend all of the water project money Congress has appropriated.

Democrats joined Republicans in telling Carter also that "such projects should not be discontinued" unless Congress specifically votes to end them.

Ann Landers Change Dentists

DEAR ANN: Today I had a disturbing experience and I wonder if you can tell me if my feelings are justified.

I took my six-year-old son to the dentist. It was his second trip. When he started to whimper, the dentist snapped, "Sit up here and let's get this over with!" The child started to cry. The dentist switched off the light and told the boy to leave. He turned to me and said, "When your son can act like a gentleman," bring him back."

I tried to explain that the child didn't know much about dentists. He said, "discipline is YOUR problem, not mine." I told him I didn't think it was a matter of discipline, but fear. He ignored me and called the next patient.

It seems a few kind words from the dentist to the child could have worked wonders. Am I wrong? Please comment. Mrs. E.E. In New Mexico

DEAR E.E.: If you have described the incident accurately you need to find a new dentist, and that bird could use a short course (or maybe a long one) on how to deal with young patients. I hope you will send him this column with my compliments.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Before even reading the other two letters in your column I must stop right now and answer "Seeking Answers" - the woman who wonders how people cope with a marriage "in name only."

She is right. At times it is very depressing. But I've been a partner in a "name-only" marriage for nearly 20 years. Although there is no joy in my heart, I have found peace of mind because I've rationalized it this way:

We are "trading favors." My husband and I have very little in common, but he provides me with the financial necessities of life and some luxuries. (I'm not the career type.) I enjoy keeping house. I'm a good cook, and I do his laundry. To the outside world we get along as well or better than most married couples.

So an arrangement that gives us both something we need can't be all bad, can it? I'll sign this - Just Living Here

DEAR JUST: That's LIVING? It may be your idea of living, but it's not mine. If you are willing to settle for a joyless marriage with no love, no affection, no fun of sharing ideas, not even companionship - then face it, you aren't a wife. You're a housekeeper. And he's not a husband. He's a checkbook. I'm not saying it's wrong. I'm saying it's empty, hollow and pathetic. Moreover, you are missing it all - and so is he.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a friend who is trying to help me improve myself but she has pointed out so many things that are wrong with me I've become very unsure of myself. She says others have noticed these same things that need correcting and then she tells me who they are.

Once I've heard their names I become so rattled when I'm around these people I can't open my mouth. I've gotten so I have no personality at all. What should I do? - Miss Blah

DEAR MISS: People who try to "remake" their friends often feel inadequate themselves. A real friend wouldn't pick you to peeces, nor would she quote others to strengthen her case.

Tell Miss Pygmalion that her constant criticism is destroying your self-confidence and that she must accept you as you are - or not at all.

BEING BEAUTIFUL

With the Miss Hereford Pageant transpiring this week, I feel it appropriate to reflect on the subject of beauty. The words "beauty" and "beautiful" are words we are waiting for others to use, in some way, to describe us. A compliment to our person, which, when given, we too often don't believe or accept.

I can remember, as a young girl of 14, waiting in a corner for a boy to ask me to dance, wanting someone to acknowledge my specialness. Sometimes that someone never comes, and the belief in our own beauty never develops. But this belief in ourselves must develop before we see the beauty in those around us.

We must learn not to compare ourselves to someone else or them to us. Each of us is unique. Others may follow, but none will ever be you or me.

Though it sounds simplistic, as I enjoy me more, I treasure you more. When my laughter comes from a pool of joy inside me, I can share it more freely with you and appreciate the sound of your laughter.

Look for your beauty a little piece at a time, nurture it, then share it. Accept a kindness, share a kindness. Then beauty will abound.

Cut Food Cost-- Not Nutrition

COLLEGE STATION— Consumers can cut food costs-- and still eat nutritionally-- by following several guidelines. Frances Reasonover, a foods and nutrition specialist, says. She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

--Plan food shopping to make fewer trips to the grocery store and shop at fewer stores. This lowers fuel costs for driving the car--cutting down on food costs.

--Buy some of the less expensive foods and cook some foods from scratch. Foods to be cooked from scratch often are less expensive than convenience foods.

--Cut down on snack foods.

--Plan meals that include some of the unsaturated fats. Cut down on total calories if overweight, and eat foods that carry adequate amounts of needed nutrients.

--Eat a dark green or deep yellow vegetable at least every other day.

--Check the day's total intake of food to see that foods from the basic four food groups are included-- even when some of the meals are eaten away from home.

"The basic four include: two cups of milk for adults or the calcium equivalent in dairy products, two servings of meat or meat alternates, four servings of fruits and vegetables including one rich in Vitamin C and one rich in Vitamin A, and four servings of bread.

--Check with the doctor before going on a weight reduction regimen.

--Learn basic nutrition knowledge needed to choose a nutritionally adequate diet.

--Attend continuing education classes or some other group under the leadership of a dietitian, nutritionist or home economist. Adequate nutrition not only is an aid to keeping healthy but can help prevent disease and costly medical bills.

--Grow fruits and vegetables at home if there's time and space. Fresh fruits and vegetables can add zest to family meals, possibly save some money and develop into a new hobby.

--Use sound food safety practices when handling food-- from the store to the table. Foodborne illness causes discomfort, loss of money and sometimes loss of life.

--Use a variety of foods from the meat group in family meals-- beef, pork, lamb, poultry, fish-- and don't forget meat alternates such as beans, peas, lentils, and nuts. They not only add variety to meals, but help save money, too.

--Plan to cook a whole meal in the oven in order to cut down on fuel cost.

--Preparing some meals in a slow cooker helps lower fuel cost.

By The Garden Gate With Glad

By GLADYS MANJEOT

"Star light star bright, first star I see tonight. I wish I may I wish I might have the wish that I wish tonight." When I was a child I often repeated this wish, as the evening glow would fade into darkness, and the stars started twinkling. However today I want to mention another STAR that we all should know about.

BLUE STAR memorial highway. Many people have asked me questions relative to the Blue Star Highway. One of the questions is what is the Blue Star Highway, and how did it come into being? Others inquire how it is decided where the markers will be placed, and if we could have one near Hereford?

The Blue Star Memorial Highway is a project of National Council of Garden Clubs Inc. and all states included in the National Garden Council, are eligible to participate in the project. The following information was published in a recent issue of The Lone Star Gardener, it is the official magazine of The Texas G.C. Inc.

Texas accepted this project and purchased the first two markers from The National Garden Clubs, Inc. They were erected at Laredo, and Gainesville in 1949. By 1959, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen Highway miles had been designated as memorial and soon 19 markers were purchased and placed in Texas. When the original project was completed the program was temporarily discontinued.

In 1969 the National project was reactivated to include new approved highway miles, road side parks, rest areas, and scenic turnouts. In a short time one thousand one mile and 2 tenths of a mile was added to the previously approved highways, and eleven new markers were installed. Seven of them were placed in 1976 at the following locations: GrapeLand, Palestine, Lufkin, Texarkana, Midlothian, and Seminole. The last named marker ceremonial was in 1976 and the one which Mrs. O.G. Hill Sr., and I attended, and assisted in the dedication. This marker was placed in a rest area, on highway 385, and this highway goes through Hereford.

There are nine districts in the Texas Garden Club, Inc., All of these have one or more of the Lone Star Memorial Markers. There is a number of designated miles left where other markers could be placed. In the meantime other highways have been approved, they are HW. 59, (Houston to Texarkana) 155 (Palestine to Linden) 385 extends on from Seminole to Colorado. Another HW. which is 287 (Anderson, Houston County Line to Johnson-Ellis County Line). Markers may be placed no closer together than 75 miles.

The Blue Star Memorial Highway is named for the STAR in the Service Flag.

The Service Flags were placed in the windows, of homes where there were sons, husbands, or daughters who were in military service for the USA. It was a very beautiful flag, and I will remember hanging the first one in my grandmothers window, and then many years later, I placed a Service Flag in our front window. The star was centered in a red-and-white background, and if a soldier was one who paid the supreme price for his nation, the star was changed to a gold star. The Blue Star Memorial Highway was a memorial to all military who have served or will serve in our armed forces.

Mrs. Hill and I talked about the possibilities of having a Blue Star Memorial Marker in our area, and we are going to make some inquiries relative to the project. It would be an excellent project for our Garden Clubs, with the assistance of other civic organizations, and the aid of the Highway Department. It is a possibility, if we will but try.

TERRARIUM. Several years ago there was a great interest in Terrariums. It became a most interesting project and many gardeners and homemakers joined in the fun of planting and growing plants in jugs, bottles, urns, and any other type container of glass which could be securely covered.

As I visit in homes, I find that Terrariums are still popular. They are like other house plants they need attention and maintenance, however it can go for years with minimum care. This last week I re-did one of my smaller terrariums. It had become so crowded and discolored on the glass walls, that I decided to clean and replant it.

I removed it from its placement on a lighted glass shelf in the bathroom. Took it to a work table, and first I removed the figurines, the plants, rocks, and then the soil. I spread newspapers with several sheets for thickness, on this I placed the soil, which included sand, pebbles, potting soil, and the last was to keep the soil and container sweet and keep down foreign growths and mildew.

The figurines and rocks, also shells were thoroughly cleaned, and soaked in chlorine water. Use care in adding the chlorine to the water, if too strong it will cause colors to fade. I used 1 tsp. to 1 quart of tepid water. When cleaned I rinsed thoroughly with warm water and placed the articles on newspapers to dry out. The plants I groomed, pruned, and placed them in tepid water in which I had put a light feeding of plant food. All of these articles I left to completely dry and to dry out the soil to be purified, in the sunshine. After several days (approximately 5) I cleaned the glass container carefully and then replanted it, using the strongest of the plants, and the figurines, etc. Covered it carefully with a glass plate which fitted tightly. It is now in a placement where it will receive sifted sunshine. Looks nice and clean and plant materials are perking up. Color is good. I'm looking forward to eagerly enjoy the clean, fresh terrarium.

The history of the Terrariums is interesting. It was by accident, over 100 years ago that the idea of a terrarium was conceived. Dr. Nathaniel B. Ward, an English surgeon who was also a natural hobbyist, found that he was unable to grow the bog ferns he wanted in his indoor London garden. He blamed the failure on quantities of factory smoke.

While experimenting with crystals of a moth buried in moist earth and placed in a bottle, he noticed a fern and a grass seedling sprouting. He was astounded to find the same fern that had failed to live in his own garden was flourishing.

He continued to experiment with other plants in different bottles and found if plants had light they could thrive for years without care or even fresh water. His findings were compiled and published. So the popularity of covered glass gardens grew rapidly. They were constructed in a variety of shapes and sizes. Plant exchanges were started, others became interested in growing under glass. Plants could be shipped from other countries, so botanical gardens were able to receive exotic rare plants from all over the world. Many plants which are grown in our gardens, and in the terrariums are being grown today and are available to indoor gardeners who grow in glass, all due to Dr. Ward and the moth.

BEAUTY SPOTS: There are many beautiful spring flowering bulbs in full bloom. Daffodils are adding that certain splash of bright yellow, and with a green background of boxwood, they really are lovely. Crocus are very pretty too, it is always a big thrill to see the first crocus bloom... this year I found the blue striped crocus in full flower while I was feeding the birds, near the fountain, yellow blossoms have been added and they all look like a very pretty arrangement. Mrs. Markham on Douglas has the loveliest bed of bright yellow crocus that I have seen, she told me last night that the corms had been planted in the same location, for over 12 years, they are pretty and interesting even when they have gone to sleep. Form, color, and arrangement is lovely. The planting of grape hyacinths and large white hyacinths, which the Garden Beautiful planted at D.S. General Hospital is beautiful. Colors are bright and clear, and it is really an eye catcher.

Archbishop's Last Contact Alive Was Amin Summons

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - "His excellency, the president, wants to see the archbishop in private." That polite word from a military guard, summoning Archbishop Junai Lumum before Uganda's President Idi Amin, marked the archbishop's last contact with church colleagues before he was killed, one of them related here.

"I wouldn't be surprised if Amin himself shot the archbishop," said the fellow bishop who was present on that final occasion and who subsequently slipped out of the country under threat to his own life while military men hunted for him.

"Everybody in Uganda knows the archbishop was murdered," he said. "There's no question about it. He was murdered on orders of the one who had him arrested." Just who pulled the trigger remains indefinite, "but we know he was shot on the president's orders."

The fellow bishop, one of four Anglican bishops who have fled Uganda in the last month with a fifth exiled, spoke only with assurance he would not be identified, pointing out this would endanger the lives of many others still in Uganda.

He gave the first, full, eyewitness details of events on the archbishop's last day at the capital in Kumpala to which all of the country's top church leaders had been summoned on Feb. 16. The bishop recounts: At 9 a.m., the church leaders, Anglican, Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and others, along with government officials were assembled in an outdoor square, ringed with soldiers and security guards.

On display in the center were weapons alleged to have been smuggled into the country to overthrow the government. Three prisoners were forced to read documents outlining the purported plot. Officials made the lengthy speeches denouncing "These subversives."

"What shall we do with these people?" demanded Amin's president. "Kill them!" shouted the soldiers. "Kill them now!" The churchmen sat silently. A senior military officer made remarks insinuating they also were involved. They then were ordered into an adjoining conference center. It was 2 p.m. Just before Amin himself arrived to speak, the churchmen were ordered into a separate room. They could hear his voice and applause but not what he said.

Afterward, a military guard of the president entered and told them they could go home, but that "his excellency, the president, wants to see the archbishop in private."

Another bishop sought to accompany the archbishop, but was stopped at the door. "No, no, you're not wanted," the guard said. "Only the archbishop."

Others visited for him outside at his car for two hours. On seeing the archbishop being led by the two military officials into the Nile Hotel, the waiting bishops went to inquire. They were told he still was busy with Amin, and were ordered to leave. It was just after 5 p.m.

Several bishops drove to the archbishop's house and informed Mrs. Lumum. She drove to the conference center area to check, but was turned back by armed guards at the gate. Meanwhile, the bishops joined in a half hour of prayer for the archbishop. At 6 p.m. radio report announced that he and two cabinet ministers were under arrest.

"We had all sorts of apprehensions," the fellow bishop said. "It was a terrible night."

Next morning, papers carried the story that the archbishop and the ministers were killed in an accident. Churchmen went to the hospital to claim his body, but were never allowed to obtain it nor even see it.

"The archbishop was too straight for Amin's hierarchy," the bishop said. "He had had a session with Amin earlier that week at the statehouse and made representations asking defense of human rights and human life. He left no truth unsaid." The price: his life.

Despite Tax Policy Briscoe To Get Hotel Texas Bill

AUSTIN (AP) - It might or might not violate his no-new-taxes policy, but a bill allowing cities to increase their hotel occupancy taxes should be on its way to Gov. Dolph Briscoe's desk.

House members expected to take a final vote on the Senate-passed bill, which they advanced Wednesday, 82-56.

The bill allows city councils to raise hotel occupancy taxes from three to four per cent and designate a penny on the dollar to tourist and convention advertising.

Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, said he hoped the governor would veto the bill.

"This is a selfish private interest bill introduced by the Republican senator from Dallas Ike Harris for the benefit of the motel and hotel chains... Let's stand up and be men and say no new taxes on people when they travel in this state," Hollowell said.

"Anybody who believes in local option can believe in Senate Bill 333," said sponsoring Rep. Chris Semos, D-Dallas. He denied the bill imposed no new taxes and said every dollar spent on tourist promotion returns $85 in tourist spending.

The House also passed and sent to the Senate, 111-26, a bill limiting natural gas contracts that require purchasers to pay for specific quantities of gas, even when they cannot use it all.

The measure give buyers three years to make up shortfalls in their gas purchases and limits the take-or-pay provisions to 80 per cent of a producer's deliverable gas.

Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. has said in public testimony that there have been months when take-or-pay provisions added 10 cents per 1,000 cubic feet to its costs, which are passed on to consumers.

In other action, the House passed to the Senate a bill imposing a 12 surcharge on traffic tickets and criminal convictions to finance the State Commission for Law Enforcement Training and Standards.

Marijuana Joins List Of Habits

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite its illegality, marijuana may be following alcohol and tobacco into the nation's catalogue of popular habits, says the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

Marijuana "is more than a fad and may well prove to be an enduring cultural pattern in the United States," the institute reported.

Some 36 million Americans have tried marijuana, Director Robert L. Dupont said Thursday.

Dupont, who stressed that marijuana is "an intoxicating drug," fears that its widespread use may drive up the rate of serious automobile accidents, just like drunk driving.

He said marijuana reduces physical coordination and long-term uses causes possible lung damage that may resemble the harm done by heavy cigarette smoking.

The loss of physical coordination is what worries Dupont most.

"As marijuana becomes more acceptable to society, more users are likely to drive cars while under its influence," he said.

A recent study of 300 drivers responsible for fatal auto accidents in Boston found 29 per cent were intoxicated on alcohol and 16 per cent had used marijuana, the institute said.

Dupont said he is trying to develop a simple test to detect at the scene of an accident whether a driver was high on marijuana.

The institute, in its annual report to Congress, noted that a survey showed 53 per cent of the high school seniors who graduated last spring had smoked marijuana, compared with 47 per cent in the class of 1975.

The report's statistics indicate that the American marijuana user is most likely to be a young man in a big city of the West or the Northeast. More men than women use marijuana; more young adults than any other age group; and more big city residents than small town dwellers.

One out of every 10 men between the ages of 20 and 24 uses marijuana daily, the report said. Excluding those who never smoked marijuana, the ratio is one out of every five.

Dupont had good news and bad news for marijuana smokers.

He reported that new experiments last year contradicted a 1971 British study that suggested heavy use of marijuana would shrink the user's brain.

FAITH DIVERTS OUR CHILDREN FROM MENTAL "CRUTCHES"

The turmoil of today's life, for which all too many of our young people emerge ill-equipped from a sheltered, over-indulged childhood, has resulted in an ever-increasing dependence upon mental "crutches", in the form of alcohol, drugs, tobacco, tranquilizers, etc. We have somehow produced a generation devoid of any values; unwilling or unable to cope with the real world and its responsibilities. In too many cases, the guiding hand of faith has been tragically absent. Begin now a family program of regular attendance at the Church of your choice, so that your children will enjoy a life filled with meaning and purpose. They will never then resort to "crutches", because their dependence on God for guidance, protection and happiness will eliminate any need for them.

No boy who hopes to be successful in any line can afford to contract a habit that is so detrimental to his physical and moral development.

A former Bellview pioneer, the late Miss Edna King was enrolled into the Curry County Hall of Fame recently. Miss King, 94, passed away in Sept. 1976. She had homesteaded with her folks north of what is now Rosedale (later the community was known as Bellview). In 1954 she related this story:

"In four weeks we had our house built (this was in 1908). Soon the young people began to meet with us on Sunday evenings for singing as we had an organ and I could play. Father got in the habit of bracing the floor with cedar posts from the caprock brakes because old and young came from 10 miles around and the big crowds made the floor sag. "Soon the community began to feel the need of a school for their children. As I was the only school teacher in the neighborhood they asked me to teach a subscription school in the basement in our house. I accepted and had 25 pupils.

"They brought different sizes boxes and boards to make seats and desks. All would have been well if the children's dogs had not decided to come to school too. They had all been prairie dog hunting so much they were alive with fleas.

"We soon became aware of their presence and let it be known that no dogs were allowed at school. We scrubbed our floor with coal oil in the water and used it in our bath water, stood on chairs to undress for retiring, to keep fleas out of our beds.

"It was welcome news to use when they began a built Blue Goose School house two miles west of us. When it was completed, I taught there. Even though it was a dirt floor it soon became packed until it was hard. As I remember, I had sme very bright pupils who did their school work well inspite on the many hardships.

"The outstanding thrill of this term was the day a neighbor, who had lived in Oklahoma, came to school and said she was afraid of a cloud which looked black. She suggested that, we all go out of the school house and stand in the road, hand in hand. While standing there, the wind began to blow and we saw the school house rise up about four feet on the west side.

Needless to say we were glad we were outside though we could hardly see or hold on to each other. The next morning the school house had righted itself and everything looked serene."

(Editor's Note: The following story was written by Don McAlvey for "Moments From the Past," High Plains Historical Foundation.

A.C. Johnston of Clovis of former Broadview retired rancher and farmer was released from an Albuquerque Hospital Monday after being hospitalized for tests and installation of a peacemaker. His son Mansel Johnston drove to Albuquerque to bring back his father and Mrs. Johnston.

Wesley Mote, junior high student at Grady school recently received a $5 prize for a drawing he submitted to the Enchantment Magazine of New Mexico. The picture was carried in the February issue and depicted the life of George Washington.

Wesley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Mote of Broadview and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Nelse Pearce of State-Line.

Jerry Blandford, superintendent of Grady School, recently received a letter from Mrs. Clara Apodaca, wife of Governor Apodaca, stating that a piece of art work of Kelly Powell's had been chosen for display in the New Mexico Elementary School Children's Art Exhibition in the Governor's Art Gallery in Santa Fe.

Exhibits from children through the state will be on display Feb. 7-March 18.

Kelly is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Powell of Grady, is 11 years old and is in the 6th grade at Grady School.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Broadview Church of Nazarene has recently sent two food parcels to foreign countries. Mrs. Opal Moore president of the society stated the first parcel was sent to Rev. and Mrs. Wendell Woods in Chiba-Shi, Japan, which weighed 13 pounds of food items not available there. There second package was sent recently to Africa. The society has also sent linens to the Nazarene Indian School in Albuquerque supervised by Rev. and Mrs. Merle Gray, brother of Mrs. Hoage Chandler.

Maturity is the key to responsibility and happiness for any human being, says Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

IF YOUR PIANO COULD ONLY TALK!

It would complain because "as a new piano it isn't getting the three to four tuning" during the first 12 months to undergo the proper "break-in", to overcome the stretching the new strings and to "set" the new piano parts that counterbalance the 37,000 to 41,000 pounds or more string tension within the instrument.

As an older piano it would complain that even the least amount of regular service recommended by most manufacturers (two tunings each year), isn't being followed.

That someone bragged that their piano hasn't been tuned for x number of years or never has been tuned and someone said it still sounds good. But when Mr. Piano tuner-technician checked it, it was in a disastrous state; rusty tuning pins & strings, pin block dry and not holding pins tight, action screws loose, hammers wobbly, hammers bubbling on the strings, a split bridge, several splits in soundboard and very low in pitch.

So the piano would say that it is suffering both tonally and mechanically and is now near ruined.

If your piano could talk, it would tell you that no matter whether it is in storage, in the garage, sitting in the house never being played, etc., it should have at least two tunings each year to keep the string tension up and to preserve the instrument.

But the piano cannot talk because if it could it would tell you many other things.

Actually, the piano is a miniature Orchestra because it can play in several stratum of sound at the same time but only if properly cared for.

So even though a piano cannot speak, I will speak for it because I care.

Have pity on that wonderful instrument and have it not only tuned, but serviced and/or repaired soon.

Mr. Boone a registered piano tuner-technician will be in the area March 16 - 18 and would be glad to do whatever your piano needs.

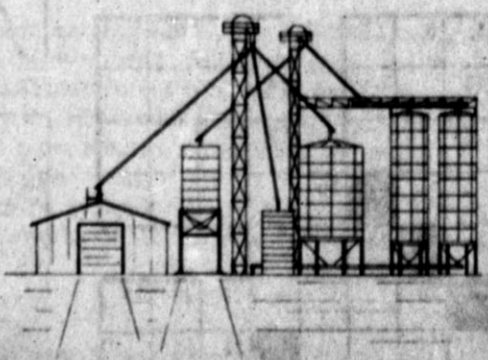

Please call him at 1-806-765-6043 or write to him at 3113 Parkway Dr., Lubbock, Texas 79403. Doing work for Mrs. Hacker, Evers, Bradley, Mannings, Upshaw, Betzens, Walser (all piano teachers)

Happy Hitter

Herd slugger Donald Johnson is greeted at home by his teammates after connecting on a three-run homer in the fifth inning of the 'Faces game against Caprock Thursday. The blast wasn't enough, however, as the Longhorns took a 17-3 win in the midst of a dust storm. [Photo by Bob Nigh]

Johnson Collects Homer

Longhorns Drop Herd

Hereford centerfielder Donald Johnson blasted a three-run homer in the fifth inning, but that glory was short-lived as the Caprock Longhorns breezed by the Herd 17-3 in Amarillo Thursday afternoon.

Johnson's towering blast over the centerfield fence was but the third hit the Whitefaces could manage off Caprock hurler Tim Flores, who took the win in a four walk, five strikeout performance.

Herd starter Chris Hill struggled in the early going before settling down in innings three, four, and five. But, the Longhorns erupted for nine runs on nine hits, most of which were bloopers over the infield, in a long sixth inning.

Caprock took a 2-0 lead in the first when Stan Errington reached base on a Herd error and Bruce Nipp followed with a two-base hit. Marty Reneau added a safety, and Timmy Frost connected for a double.

Frost finished the contest with four hits in four times at bat, including the double and a triple.

The Longhorns added five tallies in the second frame to move ahead 7-0, and added a solo run in the fifth for an eight-run advantage.

In the Hereford sixth Mitch Guinn, who had garnered a single in the fourth for the Herd's single safety up to that point, got on base due to a Longhorn error.

Jim Lawson followed a sharp Herring pop-up with a Kent single up the middle to put Herd runners on first and third.

Johnson wasted no time getting the 'Faces on the scoreboard, connecting on Flores' first delivery for the homer over the centerfield fence.

The Longhorns put the game away in the sixth with nine runs, most of which came after the Caprock hitters continually got bloop hits on check swings.

"Chris really did a good job, but we just didn't give him any help," Herd mentor Rick Stewart said following the game referring to a total of six Hereford miscues in the field.

"We're a very young team and inexperienced," the coach added.

The Herd will face Palo Duro next Tuesday before opening defense of their title in the Dea Smith C of C Tournament next Thursday.

The loss drops the 'Faces to 1-3 on the year, while Caprock improved its mark to 4-2 with the win.

Weather Causes Sports Havoc

Mother nature gave local sports enthusiasts fits today after a snowfall necessitated the cancellation of the Hereford Invitational Tennis Tournament and other events.

Also knocked out by the weather were a scheduled baseball game between the Herd and Amarillo High, the boys junior high practice track meet, and the junior high girls trip to a track meet in Muleshoe.

The Hereford tennis tourney will be made up on April 8-9 after a decision to cancel the tourney this weekend was made in a meeting of concerned coaches and Hereford Athletic Director Fred Upshaw.

Teams already on hand for the tourney, Abilene High and Borger, were to play in a triangular practice session with the Herd netters this afternoon beginning at noon.

The netters were forced inside to the high school and Stanton Junior High gyms due to the snow and blowing winds.

The Herd golf team was reported already on the way this morning to Plainview for the second round of district action.

The high school girls track team are tentatively all set to travel to Lubbock Saturday for a meet there, while the Stanton girls are scheduled to go to Pampa the same day.

Last Second Shot Jousts Knights

By KEN RAPPORT
AP Sports Writer

Glenn Hagan waited one year for another shot at Rutgers. He got it Thursday night -- and Tom Young will remember it for a long time.

"I'm tired of seeing a team hit the last shot and beat us," the Rutgers coach said after Hagan's field goal just before the overtime buzzer pulled out a 79-77 victory for St. Bonaventure in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament.

It was the third this season the Scarlet Knights were beaten on a last-second shot. Hagan was happy that he pulled the trigger on this one.

"I wanted to play against Rutgers...I was waiting for this game," said Hagan, who remembered when the Bonnies had a chance to spoil Rutgers' perfect season last year, but buckled under a late rally by the Scarlet Knights.

Hagan almost did not have his revenge, considering the way the Bonnies held the ball near the end of regulation. Leading 71-65, St. Bonaventure went into a freeze and did not score a point in the last 3:30.

"Last year, we had a lead over Rutgers and decided to play, and we lost it," said St. Bonaventure Coach Jim Satalin. "Tonight we decided to hold the ball -- and we almost lost again."

Alabama defeated Memphis State 80-63 and Massachusetts nipped Seton Hall 86-84 in other first-round NIT games, completing the quarter-final field for the 40th annual tournament.

In Monday night's quarter-final games at Madison Square Garden in New York, Alabama will play Virginia Tech and Illinois State will face Houston. Tuesday night, it will be Villanova against Massachusetts and St. Bonaventure vs. Oregon.

Hagan scored 15 of his 21 points after intermission, helping St. Bonaventure rally from a 37-30 halftime deficit in the game at Princeton, N.M. The Bonnies went ahead 48-47 lead early in the second half and the lead changed hands several times until Rutgers center James Bailey tied the score 71-71 with 22 seconds left, sending the teams into overtime.

Reggie King scored 26 points and a quick, tenacious defense turned a close game into a rout as Alabama, the nation's 12th-ranked team, beat Memphis State at Birmingham.

Mark Donaghue's layup with five seconds left lifted Massachusetts over Seton Hall at Amherst, Mass. The basket by Donghue, who led all scorers with 26 points, came just seven seconds after Nick Galas' shot had put Seton Hall in the lead.

In quarter-finals of the NAIA tournament at Kansas City, Campbell, N.C. defeated Alcorn, Miss., State 77-63; Grand Valley State of Michigan stopped Central Washington 75-71; Texas Southern hammered East Texas State 87-68, and Henderson State upset Illinois Wesleyan 87-73.

The NCAA playoffs begin Saturday with 32 teams starting the long road toward the national championship.

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP) - The Texas A&M Javelinas skipped by Angelo State 78-77 1/2 Thursday to wrap up the men's competition at a track and field meet here.

Tag Team Match Tops Mat Card

Lions Club wrestling again presents an unusual main event at the Bull Barn next Saturday night, as tag team action highlights a great card. Popular Nick Kozak returns from East Texas to team up with high-flying El Bracero against toughies Rip Hawk and Swede Hanson. The latter pair, at a combined weight of 570 pounds, have ripped and torn their way through formidable opposition all throughout their native south and here in the great golden spread.

From North Carolina, Hawk and Hanson are two of the most disliked wrestlers to hit the Panhandle. El Bracero, at 215 pounds, and his 218 pound partner Kozak, will be spotting their foes 140 pounds in weight, but the two combine agility, skill and speed to compensate.

Kozak, now a Texan, is a fitness buff who hits the gym every day. He was originally from Vancouver, Canada, and laughingly calls himself a "Northern Wetback". El Bracero is from Mexico City.

In other action, The Lawman takes on the Iron Sheik. The Iron Sheik is Kosrow Vasiri of Iran, a former amateur great who helped coach America's Olympic team in '72. A great greco-roman stylist, and a European and international champion for years, he discovered that winning was more important than sportsmanship, moneywise, since turning professional.

He has become a violent and vicious competitor, breaking furniture and bones with equal zest. The Lawman, Don Slotton of Abilene, is a towering 240 pound ex-deputy sheriff from Taylor County. A former golden glove of note, he is a prime stock holder in a buggy whip factory.

Slotton once arrested the noted financier-swindler, Billy Sol Estes, who was rumored to be carrying round a sack with $100,000. Shortly afterwards, Slotton resigned his peace officer commission to become a promoter and devote his full time to wrestling.

In opening action, Randy Brewer, 240 pound Minnesotan, returns against big Nick Roberts of Lubbock. Roberts stands 6'4" and also weighs 240.

Owing to illness and injuries, many changes were made on last week's card. Lions Club officials expressed regret, but pointed out that injuries are unavoidable in the grappling world, and lead to many adjustments.

Action will commence at 8:00 p.m. Saturday night at the Bull Barn.

Hogs Open NCAA Bid Against Wake Forest

J. LELE CARRIER
AP Sports Writer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) - Arkansas, noted more for its football than basketball, takes its No. 7 national ranking into Saturday night's NCAA Midwest subregional against Wake Forest, noted more for its basketball than football.

Kansas State, Big Eight champion, meets Providence in the other game.

It'll be only the third time the Razorbacks have met a team from the Atlantic Coast Conference, generally considered the toughest basketball conference in the country. Arkansas, Southwest Conference champ, has met Clemson twice, winning both.

"We certainly have to respect a team like Wake Forest," says Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton. "They come from one of the strongest conferences in the country. We know Skip Brown is a great guard and Rod Griffin is one of the top percentage shooters in the nation. They led the ACC into the final week of the season so we know they have an outstanding team."

The Deacons, picked to finish sixth in the seven-member ACC this year, led the ACC most of January and February before dropping four straight to end the season in a tie for second with Clemson. Deacon publicist Pat Gainey blamed fatigue for the late slump.

Gainey also credited the 6-6 Griffin with much of the Deacon's glory this season.

"We'd always been an outside shooting team," says Gainey. "But with Griffin we developed an inside power game." Griffin is the first team scoring leader in over a decade who was "someone other than a guard," added Gainey.

However, Griffin probably will be matched against Razorback forward Jim Counce, a 6-7 defensive specialist.

Sutton says Counce "is one of the best defensive players in the country. It's a shame great defensive players don't get the recognition in basketball they get in football because Counce and Steve Stroud would be defensive all-American players."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Gil Steinke, Texas A&I University athletic director, will be presented the 1976 National Athletics NAIA Football Coach of the Year award here Friday.

Steinke, who is also head football coach for A&I, will receive a silver bowl during the 24th annual NAIA-Hillyard Hall of Fame Banquet.

It will be Steinke's third consecutive award. No other coach has been voted to the honor more than once.

Stroud, 6-10, will be matched against Deacon center Larry Harrison, 6-11.

For Kansas State, the subregional, and regional perhaps, will be quite literally an uphill battle. KSU does not start a man over 6-5, but makes up for the lack of height with quickness and determination. Needless to say, they also rely heavily on Mike Evans, considered one of the best guard in the Big Eight.

FORT WORTH (AP) - Texas Christian University's nationally-ranked tennis team will begin Southwest Conference action Saturday by hosting the University of Arkansas.

TCU has met three SWC teams so far this season, but none in league play. TCU's Horned Frog netters smashed Texas A&M 8-1 and Houston 5-4 in a recent Corpus Christi tournament.

Last season, TCU topped Arkansas 6-3 enroute to a 41-31 SWC record.

Television Donated

A television was donated this week by Jimmy Roberts, owner of Roberts Appliances, to the Tierra Blanca Elementary School learning disabled class. Shown representing the class is Mrs. Elaine Rowan, center, a teacher of the class. Mrs. Robert Dobbins, left, is president of the Association of Children With Learning Disabilities, which arranged the donation. The television was to be used for a Pong game which the class already had.

Bartenders, Hairdressers Offer Advice To Forlorn

FARGO, N.D. (AP)—Got a problem? Don't know where to turn? See a Fargo bartender or hairdresser. They may offer you more than booze and beauty and tell you where you can get help.

Some area bartenders and beauticians—daily recipients of woe and worry from troubled customers—are being groomed to help patrons find ways to deal with life's challenges.

Workshops for barkeeps and beauticians are being held because they "are in unique professions to promote mental health and prevent mental illness," says Lois Quam, publicity director for the Cass County Mental Health Association, a workshop cosponsor.

"Patrons have found that bartenders are willing listeners who don't make damning judgements when they hear of a person's problems," she says.

Seventy beauty college students recently completed a workshop, called "Shampoo, Set and Sympathy," to help guide women who don't know where to turn with their troubles.

"What we're trying to do is train them to be good listeners, and to recognize people in trouble and inform them as to where mental health resources are available" in such problem areas as family, job and alcoholism, says Mrs. Quam. "This is for anybody with problems."

Workshops consist in part of role playing so that participants might learn how to react to a client who, for example, suddenly cries because of a heavy burden, she says.

Mrs. Quam says workshops also stress that troubled people are usually reluctant to seek professional help because they feel it carries a stigma, but will readily confide in a bartender or beautician.

Dr. Will Wells, director of the alcohol program at the Southeast Mental Health and Retardation Center, a cosponsor of the workshops, says drinkers with problems often unload on the bartender, giving the barkeep an opening to respond with helpful suggestions about professional help.

Sooner or later, most everyone wants to talk to the bartender, and familiarity with him breeds some degree of comfort, says Dr. Wells. "With comfort comes openness."

But whether a troubled drinker will respond to the bartender's advice isn't known, Wells says. "We encourage bartenders to call us and tell if he's making a referral."

Bar owner Kenneth Habinger, 44, Casselton, is one of the workshop speakers.

"I'm sure almost every bartender on occasion has had a chance to help somebody out when they have a tough situation to face," says Habinger. "The main thing to remember is that a bartender is not a psychiatrist. He should just try to refer customers to the proper people who will help him."

CONDUCTOR LEONARD BERNSTEIN HONORED NEW YORK (AP) — Conductor Leonard Bernstein received the first annual Arnold Gingrich Memorial Award at the recent "Encore Awards" Luncheon of the Arts and Business Council of New York.

The award, a tribute to the late founding editor of Esquire Magazine, was given to Bernstein in recognition of "his exceptional contributions to the furthering of international understanding through music."

WTSU Student Traveled By Book When She Trekged Across Europe

With a 45 pound pack on her back and a bright smile, Linda Welch travelled Europe last summer for $10 a day!

The West Texas State University nursing major said she was religiously by the book. "Europe on $10 a Day," which introduced her to inexpensive travel, lodging and Europe's myriad cultures.

After purchasing a $125 Inter Rail pass which gave her unlimited train travel for a month, Linda and a friend left Luxembourg to travel southeast.

Equipped with backpacks, bedrolls, a few extra clothes, personal items and some food for the girls soon went different directions. New friends however, were never very far away.

"You would be on the train and someone else would have a back pack, or you would just start talking," Linda said.

The friendships would last as long as the individuals were travelling in the same direction. Groups would form, only to have the members go their separate ways to the places they wanted to see.

Linda's trip took her through Switzerland, Austria, Paris, the Riviera, Italy, Upper Germany and Holland. She took a month off in the middle to work at Ramstein Air Force base near Frankfurt, Germ. where her father, Col. Jerry Welch, is base commander.

She found the people "very friendly and very interested in the American way." Linda loved the Germans in south Bavaria "because they are always dancing," and liked Italy for its excitement.

"It is a fast moving country," she said.

Switzerland is tops on her list in beauty. One side adventure took her hiking up the base of the Matterhorn.

It is the prettiest spot in Europe," she said. "It was hot, yet there was snow all around."

Linda's five to ten dollar a day budget prevented frequent meals in restaurants. She would eat simply, and save money to have one good meal a week.

"My first meal in Paris was at McDonald's," she said. "I wanted a hamburger."

Linda spent her nights in pensiones, travelling on the train to save money on lodging.

"Pensiones are like a family apartment type thing which they rent to students," Linda said. The rent averages $2 a night, and the renter must be out by 8 a.m..

Her photograph album has several pictures of the couples who ran the pensiones, friendly people she remembers.

Going the right direction and making the right connections may have been her biggest challenge yet it gave her the most fun.

"Trying to read a map in a different language doesn't work," she noted. Lost after the wrong connection, she might end up in a small town with no autos and friendly people in native costumes.

"That is when you meet people," she said. "People like you in." And you don't see the native costumes on the main roads.

To correct her mistakes, she did a lot of walking, but "never hitchhiked."

These casual excursions brought her into contact with people who sometimes would feed her and her friends, entertain them and then send them on their way in expensive taxicabs.

"I wouldn't travel Europe any other way," she exclaimed. That is obvious, because Linda and her backpack are going back again this summer to tour the British Isles, Holland and the Scandinavian countries.

WT Coach At Kiwanis

New West Texas State football coach Bill Yung spoke to Noon Kiwanians Thursday. The Buff mentor outlined a program concerned with the growth of his players not only mentally and physically, but also spiritually. Fielding questions from the audience, the former Baylor coach revealed the Buffs would use a multiple offense similar to that used by the Baylor Bears.

Instant Replay Helps Jurors

BROWNSVILLE (AP)—Instant replay made its debut to mixed reviews in a Texas criminal court.

The nine-man, three-woman jury in a capital murder trial asked to review the testimony of four witnesses Thursday and 197th District Court Judge Darrell Hester asked them to switch on their TV set in the jury room.

"I believe that's the first time it's ever been done in a criminal court in the state," said Hester. "We have a pilot program here, testing it for the rest of the state."

The jurors were allowed to look and listen to the testimony as Hester, the defense and prosecution attorneys closely monitored the proceedings on a TV screen in the judge's chambers.

Hester controlled the jury's viewing with a master switch to assure the jurors watched only the requested testimony.

Normally, the jury would have listened to a court reporter read the testimony.

"I feel the court reporter could have done the same job easier," said Cameron County Assistant Dist. Atty. Joe K. Hendley. "The machine has to warm up and you've got to be very careful to play back the exact testimony requested. We could have saved time with the court reporter."

The $28,000 audio-visual system, funded by a grant from the governor's Criminal Justice Division, records the entire courtroom proceedings.

"We hope this will be accepted to the point we can send tapes of trials to the appeals courts when the need arises," noted Hester.

A safe driver is one who obeys all the traffic rules and manages to dodge all the drivers who don't.

SINCE THE FIRST of February, only a small percentage of the motorists in Deaf Smith County have bought their new license plate stickers. The rest of us have only three weeks to get ours.

This means, of course, that the lines are going to get long by the end of the month unless more of us get a move on and go over to the tax office. Despite the state's efforts to make this chore easier with their computerized registration applications, motorists still seem to wait until the last minute. It's not just a local problem—tax collectors across the state are reporting that they are running way behind schedule.

THE FOOD AND Drug Administration announced Wednesday it is banning the use of saccharin because it causes cancer in laboratory animals. Sometimes I don't think headline writers on newspapers look far enough down in a release to get the full message. Most of the headlines in the papers left the message that "Saccharine Causes Cancer".

In you look far enough down in the story, a more appropriate headline might be: "Drinking 800 Diet Soda Pops A Day May Cause Cancer". The report from the FDA revealed that rats were fed a diet of 5 per cent pure saccharin for their entire lives. In order to consume an equivalent amount of saccharin, a person would have to drink 800 12-ounce diet sodas a day for a lifetime, the FDA said.

I know Uncle Sam is trying to take care of me from cradle to grave, but I just can't get too excited about saccharin doing me in.

Irrigation

IRRIGATORS WERE also given pointers on engine performance by a spokesman for Cummings Rio Grande, an El Paso engine firm.

The spokesman indicated that farmers should make sure that they have proper power, and pointed out that a 10 per cent reserve of horsepower means better performance and less fuel use. He also stated that pumps should be checked more frequently for efficient performance, and warned against overfueling the engine.

"Line up your engine, don't just set it up on the blocks. If the engine is set with the drive line at the right degree, you'll get better efficiency. And the engine is only as good as the man running it. The air cleaner should be serviced every day, because one thimbleful of sand can ruin your engine," he said.

The spokesman also recommended tune-ups every 500 hours, and a maximum of every 1,000 hours.

Thursday's conference was sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Water Association, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and the Panhandle Economic Program.

Museum

function to be establishment of a local history museum.

All members of the Commissioners Court were present and voiced their support by offering the building which the museum still occupies. On the court at that time were County Judge Hank Williams, Donald Hicks, Marcus Latham, Bruce Coleman and Earl Holt.

Society members went to work to ready the building. The first solid evidence of community support came from the Jaycees, who donated night labor to paint walls and ceiling on the main floor. Scores of volunteers have assisted since then, some devotedly through the past decade.

Aim of the museum is to show how pioneer families here lived and worked. This is done in displays of objects for work, comfort and culture they brought with them in settling the county around the turn of the century.

The theme has been developed to give an accurate historical picture and a feeling of a lively community, warm with sentiment and pride. Displays are not static; they are changed several times a year to show varying aspects of society and commerce.

Two major displays that have been developed are the country store, completed in 1972, and the chapel, 1974. Items from early ranches, farms, homes and business houses attract continuing interest.

With growing interest, the Commissioners Court recognized the need to open the museum to the public full-time so it engaged Lois Gilliland as executive director to begin duties Jan. 1, 1975. This permits open hours from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 2 to 5 p.m. each Sunday.

Membership dues for the Historical Society are $2.50 as set in 1967. Membership renewal commences in May with an annual meeting.

Initial membership is open at all times. Mrs. George Turrentine is president of the society.

Pageant

Miss finalists will include Cutest Miss, Miss Petite, Little Princess and Miss Junior High. Directing the junior pageant are Donna Warrick and Nanah Braly.

This is the fifth Miss Hereford Pageant to be staged by the Chamber Women's Division. Chairman of the 1977 pageant steering committee is Lucy Rogers. Pageant directors are Wynelle Robinson and Sharon Hodges.

Composing the steering committee are Joy Bunch, Kathy Johnson, Lavon Nieman, Mary Herring, Linda McDowell and Donna VanderZee. Other committees coming under the pageant umbrella are chaired by Sarah Clark, entries; Carolyn Baxter, sponsors; Linda McDowell, advertising; Carrell Ann Simmons, tickets; Marcia Snyder, auditorium; Georgia Sparks, judges; Kyleen Gentry, parties; Nancy Russell, banners; Lavon Nieman, program books; Ruth Black, judges notebooks; Sherry Hoover, publicity; Nancy Hall, decorations; and Mysedia Smith, backstage.

Pageant tickets, priced at $3 each, are on sale today at the Chamber office, Hereford State Bank and First National Bank. Admission may also be obtained at the door Saturday night. Program books will be presented with tickets.

Pre-pageant parties which have occurred during the previous months include a tea that was held at the Country Club for entrants and their mothers. The contestants were also treated Thursday night to supper at McDonald's.

Several Hereford merchants have donated wardrobe articles for the pageant participants. These firms include C.R. Anthony's, La Boutique, Mode-O-Day, The Rafters Shop, Susie Short's, Glenn's Footwear, Latham's Tree House, The Pant's Cage, Rutherford's, TG&Y, Harman's, Little's, J.C. Penney's, Sue Ann Inc. and The Vogue. Also, cosmetics were contributed by Merle Norman Cosmetic Studio.

Shown above are the Bluebonnet Spelling Bee winners. They are Holly Veigel, left, and Pam Nichols. Miss Veigel was the champion and Miss Nichols was the alternate.

Students Win Bluebonnet Spelling Bee

The top winners in the annual Bluebonnet Elementary School Spelling Bee competition were Holly Veigel, champion, and Pam Nichols alternate. Miss Veigel is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Veigel of Route 4 and Miss Nichols is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Ward of 605 Stanton.

They were the winners of the 6th grade classes of Mrs. Carol Sims.

Other winners were as follows: Becky Cardenas, Mrs.

Jane Coplen's 6th grade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cardenas, Hereford; Max Middleton, Miss Bea Barrett's 5th grade class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Middleton, Route 1 Wildorado; and James Rudd, Mrs. Sandra Saul's 6th grade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rudd, Route 5 Hereford.

Coordinators for the event were Mrs. Belmont Watson and Mrs. Lores Teters.

Farm Labor Unions To Split

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP)—Cesar Chavez says a truce between his United Farm Workers of America and the huge Teamsters Union should be good news to California's farmers.

"The more enlightened growers will welcome it as the beginning of a new era," Chavez said Thursday after signing at five-year agreement ending bitter years of strife with the rival Teamsters.

The pact gives the UFW full rights to representation of field workers, while Teamsters will have jurisdiction over cannery workers, farm truck drivers and other non-field workers.

"I want to call on growers' unions in California to give up their anti-union fight and realize the time has come for them to recognize the workers' rights and join with us so we can together enhance the industry," Chavez told a news conference.

Some growers said they welcomed the agreement, but not for the reasons voiced by Chavez and Teamsters International President Frank Fitzsimmons, who was on hand for the signing.

Instant Attention Motivates Terrorists

NEW YORK (AP)—Potential terrorists are all around us, the isolated groups or individuals who take violent action for the sake of a brief moment in the bright glare of public attention.

That is the picture that emerged Thursday from interviews with policemen who deal with terrorists, psychiatrists who study them and government experts who watch the terrorist trend in growing dismay.

"What really is going on in depth right now is a broad fringe group has learned that they can bring their social discontent to maximum public attention instantaneously," said Dallas psychiatrist Dr. David Hubbard.

"For a moment their name and face can be seen right along with the President's on the evening news. The chance for one man to lift himself up out of 220 million citizens is a powerful and explosive force," said Hubbard, who began his study of terrorism with skyjackers during the early 1970s.

Those interviewed agreed that media coverage plays a key role in terrorist acts such as the hostage drama in Washington, D.C. It provides a spotlight the participants would not otherwise have.

Authorities divide terrorist situations into three categories: political or ideological terrorists; criminals who take hostages, such as in a bank robbery gone wrong; and psychotics, usually suffering from a severe lack of self esteem, who seek publicity.

Dr. Frederick Hacker, a Beverly Hills, Calif., psychiatrist, sums up the three categories as "Crusaders, Criminals, Crazy" in a recent book by that name on terror and terrorism.

"Those in Washington belong to the crusading category, which doesn't say that they're not crazy," he said in a telephone interview.

"The whole point is that this is not senseless violence. Unfortunately it's a focused violence that in the terms of the terrorist is meeting with very great success," he said. "How else can you get that type of interest and publicity?"

"That's why I call terrorism a mushrooming growth industry with a lot of glamour stock and have predicted, along with many other people, that we are going into a period of escalated terrorism," said Hacker.

"The sad thing is that we are almost totally unprepared to meet the challenge," said Hacker, who urges creation of skilled negotiating teams with experts from various disciplines including psychiatry, anthropology and linguistics.

Hostage negotiating teams exist in many cities. Their primary members usually are police officers. Their aim is to establish contact and then try to wait until the terrorist is ready to give up.

Several experts said that one difficulty encountered in such a situation occurs when reporters try to contact the gunman or his hostages.

"One of the things on the authorities' side is the isolation and loneliness this person feels as the hours pass," explained Brooks McClure, international security adviser for the U.S. Information Agency.

"When you have the media calling up and getting interviews and playing them back on the radio and television they are constantly reinforced by the attention they get," said McClure, himself a former reporter.

His concern was shared by Hubbard, who said that when the media gives coverage to one terrorist "then by example they guarantee it to every other man who will start a similar sort of thing." The result is to create a "disparate mob" of potential terrorists, he said.

"What happens one day in Indianapolis is imitated in Silver Spring, Md., and Cincinnati and so on," he said, referring to the recent series of highly publicized hostage incidents that began on Feb. 8 with the seizure of a mortgage company executive in Indiana.

McClure commented, "The reason this happens, especially with the psychotic type or disturbed person, is that you've got number of these people always walking around and suddenly a dramatic event develops and they see their solution in some kind of highly romantic, dramatic act and they're pushed over the side by this."

Hacker said he believes the recent individuals have helped make hostage terrorism "an in fashion" but added that he does not advocate censorship of such events, only guidelines to reporting them.

Front Stirs Up Weather

By The Associated Press
A cold front dumped rain, light snow winds and blowing dust across a wide area of Texas, but the severe weather forecasted for the state never materialized.

Texas escaped far luckier than their neighbors north of the Red River. Winds gusted to 59 m.p.h. at Oklahoma City, knocking down power lines and breaking windows and uprooting signs.

The cold front, moving eastward on a line from Wichita Falls to near Del Rio early today, kicked up some thunder-shower and thunderstorm activity as it crossed Northwest and North Texas, but a tornado watch expired at 2 a.m. today with no reports of twisters being sighted in the state.

Blowing dust is expected in West Texas today, but wind velocities have dropped considerably since the hurricane force winds struck the El Paso and Guadalupe Pass area late Thursday. A high wind warning is in effect today for the northern portion of the Panhandle.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 30s in the Panhandle to the upper 60s along the gulf coast.

Forecasts called for shower activity over most of East and South Texas today. Cooler temperatures were forecast statewide, with afternoon highs expected to range from the 40s in the Panhandle to the 70s along the coast and in South Texas.
