WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration Thursday proposed a 5.3 percent boost in the U.S. sugar prices it controls to remedy what is called a critical situation.

The proposal would add about four cents to the retail price of a $1.30 five-pound bag of sugar at the end of this year. However, it would increase grocery bills even more because about 80 percent of the sugar consumed is in beverages, baked goods and other products.

Howard W. Hjort, the agriculture department's chief economist and policy analyst told the House Agriculture Committee that the administration cannot accept its chairman's sugar proposal - which would add a quarter-cent per pound to prices now and 0.85 cent when the 1979 crop comes in October.

Hjort said it would accept a federal subsidy of up to a half-cent a pound at the end of the crop year, but only if it starts with the next crop. None are paid now.

Minimum wages for workers on sugarcane plantations and sugarbeet farms would be hiked at the same rate, he said.

Chairman Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., and Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., proposed a smaller subsidy, starting with the crop now on the market, in addition to higher market price levels.

Future prices would rise in line with increases in production costs, up to 7 percent. Hjort advocated more flexibility saying more than costs must be considered.

All raw-sugar prices in the United States are geared to the cost of foreign sugar, about 45 percent of the total used in this country, after import duties and fees are paid.

By raising duties three times in 18 months, Congress and President Carter have raised the raw price to 15 cents a pound, adding almost 17 cents to the five-pound bag's price and about 1 percent to over-all food prices.

The new Carter proposal would bring the price to 15.8 cents and, with the full subsidy, a return to growers and processors of 16.3 cents a pound. The up-to-$60 million in subsidies would come out of the Treasury.

Hjort said that the world sugar market is already shaky because prices are depressed - to below 8 cents a pound - and the United States, the largest importer, has not ratified an international agreement to keep prices between 11 and 22 cents.

Ratification of that pact, defeated by the House last fall as part of another sugar bill, is the first section of both the administration and Foley-Ullman bills.

If prices fall more, Hjort said, the administration will run out of authority to impose high-enough duties to keep prices at the 15-cent level.

Without the pact, he said, surpluses would flood world trade, economies of some developing nations would collapse and U.S. sugar growers and processors would see prices fall even further below production costs.

THE FEBRUARY issue of Texas School Business, a news magazine for school management, carried an interesting piece regarding leadership. After reading the article we felt that it was worthy of sharing with our readers:

There are seven qualities of leadership that a leader must possess. There may, of course, be other qualities, styles or characteristics that may be considered but these seven are essential, and it would be difficult to say which is most essential: integrity, perseverance, faith in the triumph of right, ability to plan, vision, initiative, and courage.

There is an unknown author who wrote the following "Beatitudes of a Leader:"

BLESSED is the leader who has not sought the high places, but who has been drafted into service because of his ability and willingness to serve.

BLESSED is the leader who knows where he is going, why he is going, and how to get there.

BLESSED is the leader who knows no discouragement, who presents no alibi.

BLESSED is the leader who knows how to lead without being dictatorial; true leaders are humble.

BLESSED is the leader who seeks the best for those he serves.

BLESSED is the leader who leads for the good of the most concerned, and not for the personal gratification of his own ideas.

BLESSED is the leader who marches with the group, interprets correctly the signs on the pathway that leads to success.

BLESSED is the leader who has his head in the clouds but his feet on the ground.

BLESSED is the leader who considers an opportunity for service.

We figure we're lucky we have a majority of area leaders who are indicative of the "Beatitudes."

Floating Ceiling Introduced

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A Perryton legislator has introduced what he calls is a "moderate and workable solution" to the present problem of home mortgage loans.

Rep. Bob Close, a Republican, proposed a floating ceiling on mortgage interest rates, compared to the present 10 percent limit.

Other bills in the Legislature would raise the limit to 12 percent.

His bill would set the maximum rate of mortgage interest at one of three levels:

- 1 percent higher than the discount rate on 90-day commercial paper in effect the day the loan is made, or

- 12 percent a year maximum if the discount rate exceeds 12 percent, or

- 10 percent a year maximum if the discount rate is less than 10 percent.

"A problem exists, and it must be met," he said. "To arbitrarily raise the mortgage limit from 10 percent to 12 percent could, conceivably, result in a permanent freeze by some 'loan shark' lenders that would simply keep their rate at 12 percent and reap windfall profits by lending to purchasers who could not find lower interest rates elsewhere."

Vietnam Rejects Offer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) - Vietnam today rejected a Chinese proposal for negotiations to end their two-week old war as the fighting continued around Lang Son.

Hanoi Radio said the proposal was "a trick" that Peking authorities are using "to fool the public and to cover up their war intensification."

"Chinese troops have been invading Vietnam, destroying villages and causing numerous crimes against the Vietnamese people. So what do they mean by proposing negotiations?"

The broadcast said that the Vietnamese people are "far from being deceived" and demanded China withdraw all its troops from Vietnam and undertake to respect Vietnam's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity.

Meanwhile, Japan's Kyodo news service quoted Chinese Deputy Premier Ku Mu as saying China's assault has been progressing smoothly and that Peking "will be able to pull out its troops as originally scheduled." But Ku said if Vietnam attacked China that "China will punish Vietnam again in a limited space and degree."

The Chinese offer was made in a note Thursday delivered to the Vietnamese Embassy in Peking. It said it was repeating a proposal made Feb. 17 - the day Chinese troops invaded Vietnam - to "discuss the restoration of peace and tranquility along the border...and to settle disputes concerning the boundary and territory."

Expressing regret that the Vietnamese "failed to make a positive response" to the earlier statement, the note proposed that vice ministers of foreign affairs from each government "meet as soon as possible...for concrete negotiations of ending the current border conflict...any constructive measures that can ensure peace and tranquility along the border, and the proceed to settle the disputes between the two countries concerning the boundary and territory."

Hanoi has replied to all previous talk of peace negotiations with the demand for withdrawal of all Chinese forces from Vietnamese territory.

Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, said on Wednesday that the Chinese would withdraw if Vietnam withdrew from Cambodia, where a Vietnamese invasion in January drove the Pol Pot government, China's ally, from Phnom Penh. But the new Chinese note made no mention of Cambodia.

In Moscow, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin said Thursday the pro-Hanoi government the Vietnamese installed in Phnom Penh was "irreversible." He also said the Kremlin would not abandon Vietnam "in time of trial" and repeated earlier pledges to honor Soviet treaty commitments to Hanoi.

Committee Seeks To Reimburse Districts for Lost Revenue

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A House committee voted, Thursday to use a carrot-and-stick approach in reimbursing school district revenue losses caused by the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

In 1980, a district would be reimbursed dollar-for-dollar for its lost revenue.

But after that, a district could receive as little as 90 cents on the dollar if its property appraisals for tax purposes stray from market value by more than the state average.

On the other hand, school districts whose appraisals are at least as good as the statewide average would get more than their actual losses.

A computer printout indicates there are 253 such school districts, but there could be more in the 1981 fiscal year when the carrot-and-stick treatment would begin.

"We are not cutting anybody out. ... This will make them all get out and do a good job and actually lower taxes because they will reappraise," said committee member Wayne Peveto, D-Orange.

The committee expects to take its final vote on legislation implementing the Tax Relief Amendment on Monday. Speaker Bill Clayton says he wants the House to debate the bill March 12.

Clayton disagreed with using reimbursement as a lever to improve school district property appraisals.

"My perception of reimbursement was reimbursement dollar-for-dollar. I would think anytime you mandate somebody to do something that costs them money, you are required to reimburse that full dollar loss," Clayton told reporters.

But committee Chairman Bob Davis, R-Irving, says federal courts held dollar-for-dollar reimbursement unconstitutional in a Louisiana case.

Davis said the courts found Louisiana's scheme rewarded districts for underappraising real estate for taxation.

The committee had voted earlier in the week to limit a district's reimbursement "reward" for accurate appraisals to 15 percent, but decided 6-3 on Thursday to

Begin: No 'Sham' Documents for Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter and Menachem Begin, publicly ignoring the Israeli prime minister's tough arrival statement, are casting their efforts at reviving stalled Mideast peace talks in a hopeful light.

After meeting alone for nearly two hours Thursday night, Carter and Begin planned morning and afternoon sessions today in the crucial talks which could lead to a new Camp David summit. They also agreed to a festive evening dinner with their wives at the start of the Jewish Sabbath.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance also arranged a luncheon meeting with the prime minister at the State Department. The encouraging tone was in sharp contrast to the blunt thrust of Begin's vow, voiced upon arrival at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., that his government "cannot be pressed into signing a sham document" with Egypt.

Mincing no words, Begin said, "We are asked to sign documents which are in contradiction of the Camp David peace agreements reached last September and enabling our southern neighbor Egypt at any moment to declare the treaty null and void and to make war against Israel."

Later, though, declaring himself encouraged by his initial discussion with

Carter at the White House, Begin told reporters, "There was not even one difficult moment."

As he entered Blair House, the official guest residence across Pennsylvania Avenue, Begin added, "I think it was one of the most important and constructive talks I ever had with the president."

Before their discussions in the White House Oval Office, Carter and Begin stood shoulder to shoulder and talked with muted optimism about the task before them.

"There may be ups and downs," Begin told reporters, "but when it comes to a time of crisis, we make another intellectual effort and we overcome the difficulties. Hopefully, this will be the case also during my several days in Washington." There has been no indication when the talks will conclude.

Although Carter acknowledged "we still have some way to go," he declared: "We're determined to succeed. We'll be tenacious in our efforts...hopefully leading to the conclusion of a comprehensive peace in the Middle East."

Before Begin's arrival, diplomatic sources made it clear the United States backs Egypt on issues blocking completion of a treaty which once was expected to be signed by last December at the latest.

As he left Israel, Begin expressed unhappiness with the U.S. position, saying "the American delegation should think again and change their attitude." He said U.S. officials also should work to change Egypt's stance.

It was understood that if the talks go well both men would consider asking Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to join them for a renewal of the Camp David summit.

The obstacles are formidable, however. "It is not our intention to pressure

Farmers Protest Interest

WASHINGTON (AP) - Protesting farmers drove 150 tractors to the headquarters of the Federal Reserve Board Thursday to protest high interest rates which they said are "strangling" American agriculture.

Six farmers met for nearly an hour with staff members of the board. They had sought a meeting with board chairman G. William Miller, but neither he nor any other board member was present.

The tractorcade, rumbling a distance of about 20 blocks in two columns of tractors from the foot of the Capitol to the Federal Reserve building on Constitution Avenue, was expected to be the last of the farmers' motorized demonstrations as their three-week Washington protest drew to a close.

Under an agreement reached Wednesday, most of the farmers and their tractors were expected to leave for home by Sunday.

Protest leaders called their meeting with Federal Reserve officials "productive," but they appeared to make little progress in convincing officials that the Reserve's interest rate policy should be changed. In the past year, the board has supported higher interest rates in an effort to curb inflation.

Theodore Allison, the board's secretary, said he was "sympathetic" toward the farmers' problems but said high interest rates were a product of inflation. He and other officials said any lowering of the rates would only add to inflation.

But Bitner, a farmer from Walsh, Colo., said farmers are paying 13 percent to 18 percent interest on loans. Unlike some other sectors of the economy, he

REC Meeting To Be Saturday

The Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative will conduct its 41st annual membership meeting tomorrow, beginning at 5 p.m. at the Bull Barn.

A barbecue dinner, served by the Catholic Daughters Society of Nazareth, will get the session underway at 5, and the REC's business meeting is set to begin at 6 p.m.

Those members of Deaf Smith REC who purchased electricity during 1966 and 1967 will receive capital credit checks totaling nearly $400,000 during the business session.

Among names submitted by the nominating committee for election to the board of directors are Noel Gollehon and Donald Wright of Dimmitt, and Clark Andrews and Jerry Sublett of the Deaf Smith County area.

Sloan Osborn, president of the board of directors, is unopposed, and the completion of a three year term will extend his period of service to the cooperative to 40 years.

Parents Sue City For Ticketing Son

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) - The parents of a 7-year-old boy who was ticketed for jaywalking after he was hit by a car driven by an off-duty policeman have sued the city of Springfield and the ticketing officer for $920,000.

"Whoever heard of ticketing a 7-year-old kid?" Bryan Powell's father, Ronald, said Thursday.

The civil damage suit, filed Wednesday in state Circuit Court here, alleges that Patrolman John Wilson took steps not regularly a part of the legal process "to protect a fellow officer from civil liability."

As a result of the incident, the suit claims, Bryan suffered "humiliation, nervous shock, loss of sleep, mental anguish and was placed in contempt and derision among his friends and acquaintances."

Bryan was struck Oct. 8 by a car driven by off-duty Patrolman Mark Harms. In his police report, Harms said his car struck Bryan. He settled out of court for Bryan's medical costs.

Bryan was taken to a hospital with cuts and bruises. While there, Wilson, who investigated the accident, showed up and issued the youngster a traffic citation for crossing a street at other than a crosswalk, the suit alleges.

Bergland Comes Out of Hiding

WASHINGTON (AP) - After staying out of his office for three weeks to dodge protesting farmers, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has resumed almost normal daily activity at the Agriculture Department.

Bergland ate lunch Thursday in the department's cafeteria, where he is a regular customer in normal times. Also, co-workers said, he began a few days ago to work in his office.

When the American Agriculture movement marched its tractors and farmers into the city on Feb. 5, security officials advised Bergland not to follow his regular work routine.

So he set up temporary operations in an executive office building near the White House to avoid confrontations with the protesters, who blockaded entries at USDA in the early stages of their demonstration for higher government price supports.

Bergland continued to keep out-of-town appointments this month, however. He also appeared before congressional committees on Capitol Hill, but always with security guards.

The farmers have started to move their tractors back home but plan to keep about 50 around the Mall areas as they continue to lobby individually and in small groups for higher federal supports.

Chinese To Pay Restitution to U.S.

SHANGHAI, China (AP) - China agreed today to pay $80.5 million in cash and in record time to settle U.S. claims for property seized by the Communists when they took over the Chinese mainland in 1949.

With the U.S. claims totaling $196.34 million, China will pay 41 cents on the dollar, the same basis on which most other Communist governments have settled with the United States. But a senior U.S. official said the period of payment - five years - is the shortest achieved in a claims settlement with a Communist government. He said most settlements are paid over 20 years.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said the settlement was "very good and very fair." He initialed the agreement with Finance Minister Chang Ching-fu at the Peking airport just before he flew to Shanghai to tour local industries and visit his boyhood home during World War II, after his parents fled with him from Nazi Germany.

A senior member of Blumenthal's party said the next step will be to negotiate a trade agreement with China, and this is expected to be accomplished in the next few months.

The United States in exchange for the claims settlement will release $80.5 million in Chinese bank accounts and other assets in the United States that it froze in 1950 in retaliation for the Communists' expropriation of U.S. property.

Priscilla Claims Cullen Promised

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Priscilla Davis says her millionaire husband Cullen promised before their August 1968 marriage to give her "nine million times more" than her previous husband could.

"He said he would always care for me and give me far, far more than Jack Wilborn, her former husband could," the buxom blonde testified Thursday in the Davis' high-stakes divorce trial here.

Mrs. Davis also testified that although she spent up to $20,000 a month for clothing and other personal items during her often-stormy marriage to Davis, she "really wasn't aware" of the extent of his wealth when they were married.

Cecil Munn, an attorney for Davis, asked Mrs. Davis if she ever had any intention of claiming Davis' inheritance?

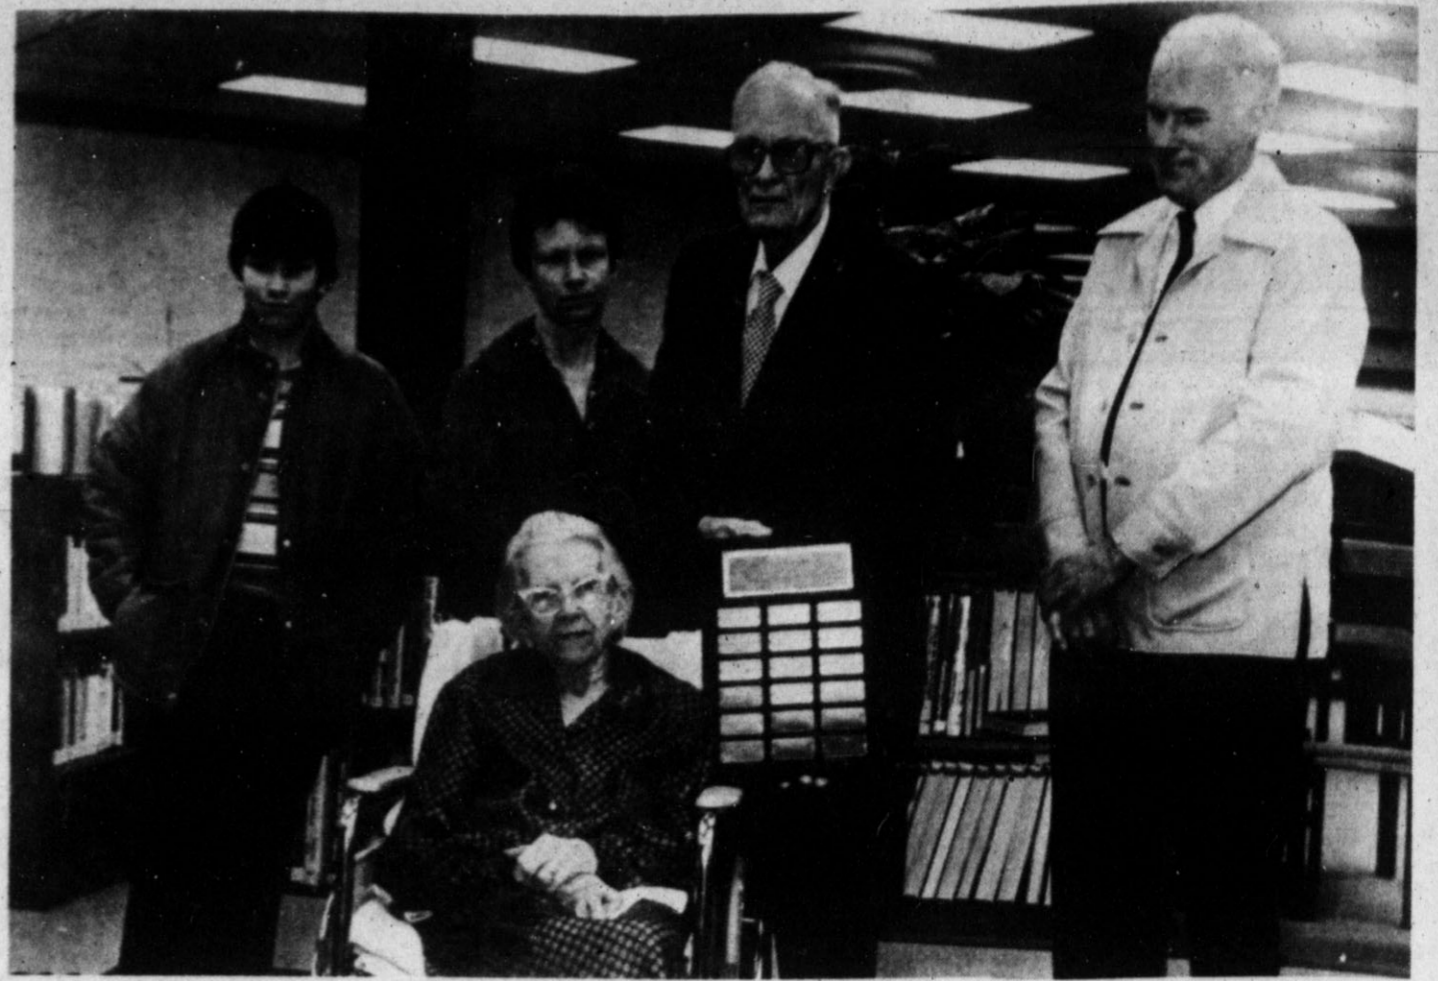

"I never gave it any thought," Mrs. Davis answered.

During the hour and a half she testified Thursday, Davis stared straight ahead and never looked at his estranged wife. Mrs. Davis had never looked at her husband during his earlier testimony.

Mrs. Davis, in disavowing knowledge of the extent of her husband's wealth, testified, "I signed our joint income tax return, but I was never allowed to look at them...he just told me to sign it."

said, "we have to borrow money no matter what the interest rate."

He continued, "It (the Fed's policy) only has a negative effect on us... It's strangling us in the agriculture sector."

Today's tractorcade, running under strict police supervision, took place without incident.

Police declared earlier they would not allow any more parades because of an incident near the White House Friday in which several farmers were arrested. District of Columbia officials decided to allow today's final parade as part of the agreement which will see most of the farmers leave the city this weekend.

The farmers came to Washington with about 2,000 vehicles Feb. 5, seeking higher price supports for their crops. The protest has drawn much attention, from disruption of commuter traffic to damage on the Mall grounds where the tractors were parked, but the farmers could claim no specific results.

However, some farmers believe they have made their point.

"Last year when we demonstrated they (congressmen) thought we were here just griping. This year they understand that we've got problems," said Ken Lane of Haskell, Texas.

The farmers appear to be leaving gradually. "It's no big exodus," Lane said. But, he added, some farmers aren't ready to go home.

The city will allow 50 tractors to stay, parked on side streets near the Capitol. Farmer Lee Scheuffer said those tractors will serve "as a constant reminder to the public...that the farmers were in town."

remove that ceiling. Davis said a district could receive as much as 48.3 percent more than its actual dollar losses.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock now estimates the two-year cost of reimbursement at $420.7 million. The Legislative Budget Board's recommended general appropriation bill includes $450 million for reimbursement.

The Tax Relief Amendment would cost districts revenue because the amendment requires taxation of agricultural land on its productivity - instead of market value - and raises homestead exemptions from school taxes.

Clayton said there is sufficient incentive with dollar-for-dollar reimbursement for districts to reevaluate property.

"I believe dollar-for-dollar for two years...would be incentive enough for them to get their house in order because there is no guarantee after that," he said.

One of several printouts furnished by the comptroller showed how each school district's "self-reported" appraisals of taxable property compared with true market values determined by the state School Tax Assessment Practices Board.

As interpreted by Peveto, it showed a number of major districts would get back more than their actual dollar losses if the committee sticks with its reward-and-punish approach.

These include Waco, Austin, Amarillo, Corpus Christi, Wichita Falls, Kerrville, Lubbock, Borger, Galveston, Killeen, Houston, Beaumont, Fort Worth, Texas City, Denton, McAllen, Victoria, Denison, Midland and Ector.

In its current draft, the tax relief implementation bill also would:

-Exempt $15,000 of the market value of disabled persons and those over 65 from school taxes, without regard to income and in addition to exemptions granted by local school boards. Taxes on homes owned by the elderly would be frozen for their lifetimes.

-Exempt two cars or light trucks per family from property taxes, starting in 1980.

-Evaluate agricultural land, including that owned by American-owned corporations, by dividing a "capitalization rate" of no less than 10 percent into the estimated average five-year yield. The maximum capitalization rate would be the Houston Federal Land Bank's interest rate on Dec. 31 of the preceding year, plus 2 1/2 percent.

The Tax Relief Amendment automatically exempts $5,000 of the market value of all homesteads from school taxes. Old persons and the disabled would get $10,000 on top of that if the committee bill passes.

Begin

anyone," White House press secretary Jody Powell said Thursday. "The pressure is on us all."

Powell said "it is not a matter of the United States having and insisting on a position" but rather one of Egypt and Israel resolving their treaty differences.

The talks between Carter and Begin are being held amid growing signs of strain between the United States and Israel.

Carter has expressed frustration over the deadlock, and the Israelis, unhappy because the United States is supporting key Egyptian demands, have said they will not be pressured by the United States.

Carter, reflecting his frustration, told governors at a White House dinner Tuesday that differences blocking the treaty are "absolutely insignificant."

Begin, however, has said the differences are major, affecting Israel's security.

In addition, Powell has emphasized the administration's concern about "the consequences" if no agreement is reached.

However, when asked if he was implying failure would mean a resumption of hostilities between Israel and its Arab neighbors, he declined further comment.

The major unresolved issues include:

-A timetable for establishing Palestinian autonomy in Israeli-held territory.

-Whether the treaty should take priority over Egypt's military ties with other Arab countries.

-Sadat's refusal to exchange ambassadors with Israel until all of the Sinai territories held by Israel is relinquished and steps are taken toward Palestinian autonomy.

Union is sending war supplies to Vietnam but gives no indication of preparing to attack the Chinese across their long Asian border. Official U.S. and Japanese observers said they had no evidence to substantiate rumors Thursday that Moscow might announce today it is sending volunteer troops to Vietnam.

Intelligence sources in Bangkok said Thursday that Vietnamese forces had repulsed Chinese troops near Lang Son, 80 miles northeast of Hanoi, and at Loc Binh, 15 miles east of Lang Son on the highway to the coast. They said the Chinese launched tank-led counterattacks and made some gains in both areas.

Siamese Twin Killed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Four tiny hands flailed in the air as surgeons separated Siamese twins in a court-ordered operation, taking the life of one so her sister could have the heart they shared since birth.

The surviving infant, called "Baby A" or "Twin A" since she was delivered first by Caesarean section on Feb. 20, was listed in critical condition.

The six-hour operation - performed Thursday at St. Christopher's Hospital for Children - commanded the skills of eight doctors, six nurses and three heart pump technicians.

"Twin B was sacrificed in order to save another life," Dr. Laurence Somers, the chief surgeon, told reporters an hour after the operation. "I'm quite optimistic. Twin A...is doing as well as can be expected."

The surgical team knew from the start that one girl would have to die if the other was to live.

After an anesthetic was administered, the team gingerly positioned the lone, six-chambered heart and a common liver in the chest and abdominal cavities of Twin A.

At 1:28 p.m., Dr. R.K. Balsara clamped off Twin B's primary heart artery.

"The baby was then taken out of the operating room, dead," Somers said. "It wasn't difficult to detect an emotional upheaval among the nurses when the life support systems were unhooked."

"We did something today that resulted in the death of an individual," he said. "We ended up in court yesterday to get a court order for the separation in order to protect ourselves and the hospital" from liability.

"That's only been done once before. But we were participating in a procedure in which someone would die. In effect there was a homicide," the surgeon added.

The twins' parents, a Philadelphia couple who have requested anonymity, have two other children - a boy and girl.

"They knew it would be twins, but not Siamese twins," Somers said. "It took a while for us to get consent for the operation. Birth of such twins is a shock to any parents. The prospect of surgery is another shock. But of course the biggest shock is the realization one of your children is going to die."

Before Thursday's surgery, four operations had been performed on Siamese twins sharing a common heart. None survived infancy.

The last such operation was performed Oct. 11, 1977, at Children's Hospital here, also with a court order.

The survivor of that operation, also a girl, lived for three months.

Siamese twins occur when a fertilized egg begins to divide, but fails to complete the separation into two embryos. This occurs in one out of every 65,000 or so births. Babies with joined hearts occur only once in 100,000 births.

Success needs a plan. How are you coming on those resolutions? Come on now, chins up — let's get it together.

People keep telling me about their New Year's resolutions! Oh, they sound so great. If you, like myself, have not come up with any you thought were feasible, let me share.

These are super ideas ... have a good attitude, be a more spiritual person, lose 25 pounds, be a better mother, be more organized (this was from a male), be more friendly ...

All of these aspirations are admirable, but I always need a plan.

Here are a few example plans for:

Improving your attitude:
*say everything positive for just one day
*make a list of things to be thankful for Being a better mother:
*attend a parenting course
*spend 15 minutes each day with each child
Losing weight:
*plan a sensible low calorie menu with balanced meals
*be patient
Being more spiritual:
*thank the Lord for what you have *pray for others everyday
Now, having found your key to success, think of all the fantastic things you will accomplish.

The Fear Sticks

DEAR ANN: I was a virgin until I was 17. Then I met Rick. We went together several months and he talked me into "proving my love" -- you know the old line.

Well, I was crazy about the guy and didn't want to lose him, so I gave in. Two months later, Rick dropped me for another girl. I cried for three weeks. It took me a year to get over him. Eventually I met a terrific person and that's what I am writing about. Whenever I run into Rick he gives me a sexy wink. I know what he's thinking and it makes me very uncomfortable.

What I remember most about our love affair was that I was always scared I would get pregnant. Like so many other dumb kids, we had the idea that any attempt to prevent pregnancy made our relationship "cheap" and unnatural.

kind of information is foolish. Such confessions might be considered good for the soul (some people call it "clearing the air") but my mail tells me it can be a time bomb that could explode later and destroy a relationship.

DEAR ANN: Yesterday afternoon a pack of my husband's in-town relatives arrived (two carloads, to be exact). I was lying down, trying to take a nap after having been in the kitchen for several hours preparing dinner for 18 people who were invited the next evening.

Would you believe my husband offered the pack of locusts the food I had prepared for my dinner party the following night? The group made hogs of themselves and wiped me out. After they left I had to clean up the mess and start cooking and baking all over again. I was in the kitchen till midnight.

My husband isn't speaking to me. He says I humiliated him because I wasn't charming and hospitable. I'd like your comments. -- Mad In Wyoming

Castro County Commission Seeking Family Histories

The Castro County Historical Commission met Wednesday afternoon in Castro County Museum in Dimmitt to study their duties and set goals for the next two years. The Commission was appointed by the Commissioner's Court January 8 and two changes made February 12.

All eight members appointed were present for the Wednesday afternoon meeting. They were Mrs. L.B. Bowden, chairman; Edwin Ramey; Helen Richardson; George Bagwell; Lou Woodburn; Georgia Henderson; Mrs. Tom Annen and Mrs. P.P. Robb.

They set as their primary goal the compiling and publishing of a Castro County History, hopefully by 1981 when the county will be 90 years old. They are asking all residents and former residents to submit historical sketches of their family in 500 words or less as soon as possible.

Those who wish to include more than 500 words will be asked to contribute 10 cents per word over 500. Two pictures per family may also be included. Memorial pages for pictures of pioneer parents and grandparents are also being considered. A price for these will be determined at a later date.

Family histories should be sent to Mrs. L.B. Bowden, Rt. 1, Dimmitt, Texas 79027 as soon as completed. The Commission will also at the same time be trying to get historical markers at several locations in the county. If one has suggestions or if one can volunteer to help with this monumental task, they are asked to call the chairman at 847-2534. All assistance will be appreciated.

My question is, should I tell my mature, highly-principled fiancé about Rick before we marry? Or should I live in fear that the guy with the sexy wink will one day brag about his conquest and do me in? -- No Name Please, Just Sorry

DEAR SORRY: If you fiancé is as mature and highly-principled as you say, he won't ask. Any woman who volunteers this

Beautification Program in Jeopardy

Letter To The Editor

WASHINGTON (AP) - Along the nation's interstate and primary highways there are 197,791 signs and billboards the government would like to get rid of and 10,608 junkyards it would like to see screened. But some states aren't cooperating, and even if they did, Uncle Sam hasn't got the money to pay for the removal.

As a result, America's highway beautification program, launched with fanfare in 1965 by President Lyndon Johnson and his wife, Lady Bird, is in trouble.

President Carter didn't include a penny for the program in his fiscal 1980 budget. After earmarking $13.1 million for it this year.

Richard W. Moeller of the Federal Highway Administration said the Office of Management and Budget decided not to seek funds in 1980 because it wanted a complete reassessment of the program.

"We're contemplating a series of public hearings on the program, and we hope soon to appoint an advisory committee to analyze and give direction," said Moeller, chief of the agency's junkyard and outdoor advertising branch. "The committee would include industry representatives, environmentalists, highway users, consumers and others."

Moeller said that in 1978 states asked for $52 million for highway beautification, "but I had only $9.5 million to give out."

The concept started in 1958 as a voluntary program, with states receiving an incentive of one-half of one percent of their federal highway funds if they controlled advertising signs within 660 feet of interstate highways.

But only about half the states participated, and in 1965, prodded by Johnson and his wife and over the objection of the outdoor and industry, Congress passed the Highway Beautification Act.

The act extended billboard control to other primary federal highways and to junkyards and offered incentives for landscaping around highways. States not complying could lose 10 percent of federal highway money.

Signs along the designated highways were allowed only in areas zoned commercial or industrial and junkyards only in industrial areas.

The act also said "just compensation" must be paid to those whose signs were removed and those who screened junkyards. However, many local governments claimed authority in this area and did not offer compensation. A 1976 amendment to the act required local governments to make such payments - which are provided by the federal government.

How is compensation determined?

"It's the same as evaluating real estate," Moeller said. "We appraise the structure, the site, the number of cars which pass by and the fair market value."

He said payment could range from $50 for a small sign to several thousand for an elaborate electronic billboard, with the nationwide average about $2,000 for each.

So far only four states have had federal highway money withheld because of non-compliance, and three, New York, Alabama and Oklahoma, had the funds restored when they quickly came into compliance.

The government withheld $4.08 million from South Dakota in fiscal 1978 and $4.298 million in 1979. Last November, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams ruled South Dakota could not recover the 1978 funds but that the 1979 money would be restored if the South Dakota legislature acts to put the state in compliance by March 31.

Under the just compensation plan, 98,215 signs have been removed from beside highways nationwide, but 197,791 remain only 1,413 of 12,953 junkyards have been shielded.

Several states, including Florida, Georgia, Wisconsin, Missouri and Tennessee, do not have good records, Moeller said. He added that even if they wanted to improve, there is no money to pay the compensation.

"If I proposed penalizing Missouri, for example, and Missouri said give me $5 million, I do not have the funds to give Missouri," Moeller said.

How much federal money would it take to remove all non-complying signs and screen all junkyards? "At least $52 million a year," Moeller replied.

Sen. Robert T. Stafford, R-Vt., has proposed legislation to let states decide if they want to be involved in highway beautification, and Moeller said his will be discussed as part of the reassessment.

"It would help us in one way," he said. "States that did not want to cooperate could get out. That would leave more money to spend on states interested in highway esthetics."

"I feel a substantial number would get out."

Dear Editor:

Far be it from me to stand by while Wes Fisher gets the upper hand in this new-found sport called "Letter to the Editor." I could give him a phone call but the power of the pen and the press is much more challenging.

Wes has dubbed my letter "Romilda's latest epistle." I take that to mean, in the encyclopedias definition "a thoughtful letter meant to shed the light of encouragement or instruction."

However, I did not make a misstatement. If Wes will get out the Feb. 5 Brand and reread the letter, he will see that George Bush Jr. is not mentioned. Wes is making an assumption not unlike most people who read what is printed. People also read things into what is printed and some can also "read between the lines."

I have my facts straight Wes - the President, the big press, the USDA among many others can say a lot of things without ever telling a lie, and without telling the truth. Thank you for helping me to prove it.

Economic Index Drops Again

WASHINGTON (AP) - A key government indicator of future economic trends plunged by the sharpest margin in four years last month, providing a strong sign of an economic slowdown, it was disclosed Thursday.

A steep decline in building permits and the average work week caused the index of leading economic indicators to drop 1.2 percent in January, the Commerce Department said.

The dropoff followed declines of 0.4 percent in November and 0.1 percent in December.

In summer of 1977, however, the index also declined for three consecutive months but the economy kept on growing.

This time the government wants economic growth to slow somewhat as it tries to dampen inflationary pressures. It was not clear from the latest report whether the nation faces an orderly slowdown or a recession, as anticipated by some private economists.

Besides building permits and the workweek, there were sharp declines in the money supply, which is considered bad for economic growth but an encouraging sign in fighting inflation.

Five of the indicators actually increased, including stock prices, factory orders, plant and equipment spending, vendor deliveries and a smaller layoff rate. The January decline was the biggest since a 3 percent drop in January 1975.

The figures are adjusted for seasonal variations. The index has declined in five of the last six months of January.

The decline in building permits was important because the housing industry often feels the brunt of a slowdown first. New housing construction already has begun to drop sharply.

The economic indicators were combined with two other reports Wednesday showing continued inflation and a mounting trade deficit.

Estes Trial Date Scheduled for May

DALLAS (AP) - Paroled West Texas swindler Billie Sol Estes and three co-defendants pleaded innocent Thursday in federal court to charges of mail fraud, interstate transportation of fraudulently obtained securities and conspiracy.

U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes set trial for May 14 in Judge Robert M. Hill's court.

Estes pleaded innocent to four indictments returned by a federal grand jury Feb. 22. The indictments also named his former longtime secretary, Sue Goolsby; and former associates Raymond K. Horton and M.L. Copenhaver.

Attorneys for the four defendants indicated they would file either motions to delay the trial, motions to separate the defendants and/or motions to dismiss the indictments.

Estes' wife, Patsy, three of his four daughters and his son were with him in court.

The co-defendants did not look at or speak to one another during the 20-minute proceeding.

The indictments charge that Estes devised schemes to bilk investors and the federal government and arrange to have businesses run by an associate in violation of his parole.

In the 1950s and 60s, Estes built a fortune on mortgage loans using non-existent and/or dross ammonia tanks as collateral. He was convicted of fraud, sentenced to 15 years, and paroled in 1971.

According to the terms of his parole, he was barred from self-employment or from promotional activities.

One of the Feb. 22 indictments spells out an almost-identical scheme using oilfield steam cleaners that did not exist.

Another indictment charges he reported his income on a 1975 tax return as $11,000, when his actual income was $45,000.

The Lighter Side

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) - One legislator didn't like it. Another chortled that maybe the House could amend it.

But it wasn't a piece of legislation the lawmakers were talking about - it was a prayer.

During his prayer before the beginning of business in the House on Wednesday, the Rev. Milton Hunt intoned, "... and sometimes we have felt the pinch as we have traded votes for some bill which reflected narrow interests, rather than the good of all Alaskans...."

State Rep. Charlie Parr said: "I don't feel I've done this."

State Rep. Russ Meekins said voting to publish the prayer in the daily journal, a tradition, would suggest that legislators were seeking forgiveness for trading votes for narrow interests.

"Maybe we can amend it," joked one legislator.

Hunt said: "Today is Ash Wednesday, so I had a short confession of sins in the prayer."

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - The state Legislature has been pulled into the Jung T. Wang aphrodisiac elk antler controversy.

Wang, a Korean who has a food business in San Francisco wants to bring a herd of Rocky Mountain elk to a farm he set up on more than 100 acres near Tomales, just north of San Francisco.

Last week, Wang won permission of the California Fish and Game Commission to bring the elk into the state and harvest the antlers "to cure impotency." For centuries, powdered elk antlers and rhinoceros horns have been valued in the Orient as sexual stimulants.

But state Sen. David Roberti stepped into the picture Wednesday when he introduced a bill to forbid the importation of any kind of elk, except for zoos.

He also contended that it was inhumane to remove antler while "in the velvet" or soft bone stage. The antlers eventually harden, and the fuzzy covering is rubbed off on shrubbery or other elk.

Wang's firm said his product would be sold in Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Singapore and Japan.

IT'S UP TO ME

BY BOB WEAR

WE CANNOT CONTROL EVERYTHING that may be involved in our associations with others, but we can control the most important aspect of these associations. We can control ourselves; the way we think, the way we respond, and our general manner of behavior. It is wise for each person to keep remembering, "It's Up To Me." You and I have a great capacity for learning to manage ourselves, and the better we do this, the better we can perform in all of our associations with others.

WHEN EACH ONE OF US ASSUMES the maximum responsibility for maintaining satisfactory interactions, the whole human scene will be better; not perfect, but better. This will apply in the family and in every other situation in which other people are present. We must not depend upon other persons to make all of the right moves, to say all of the right things, to take all of the initiatives, to make all of the overtures, to do all of the compromising, and everything else necessary to desirable relationships. In most situations, the individual should be guided by the rule, "It's Up To Me."

EACH PERSON IS BEING WISE AND MATURE, in accepting responsibility for trying to make all associations satisfactory. There is no reason to hold back and wait for others to make the first move, but many reasons to be positive in trying to make the right moves; in saying the right things; in taking the first step; and in doing everything else we can. Don't wait, but go ahead and make your move in the right direction. Most responses will be pleasing. We must never think of any "small" things as being unimportant, because the right word and right action will always be helpful in creating better relationships.

"SMALL KINDNESSES, small courtesies, small considerations, habitually practiced in our social contacts, give a greater charm to the character than the display of great talents and accomplishments." - M.A. Kelly.

TO A VERY GREAT DEGREE, people respond to us according to our manner, our words and our actions. This is true to the extent that our most prudent behavior is justified at all times. Regardless of the response from others, however, our most prudent behavior must be maintained. Each one of us, so far as it depends upon us, has the power to make our interactions with others pleasant. Instead of shifting the responsibility to others, I must remember that "It's Up To Me."

OTHER PEOPLE HAVE RESPONSIBILITIES, too; but I must not let everything in my life situation be fashioned by what they say and do; or by how I react. If I do this places me in a very undesirable position; letting others control me, and this manner of life is inferior. "It's Up To Me."

Scott Tries For Third Medalist Honor

Golf Team To Defend District Title

By MARCHERRING
Brand Sports Editor

With only one returning varsity letterman, Miles Go-forth, the Hereford Whiteface team will be hard pressed to repeat as district champions in golf this year.

Although the 'Faces are short on experience, Hereford Coach Terry Russell feels that the Herd can successfully defend its title if the players perform to their capabilities.

"Miles has a definite chance to win medalist honors," Coach Russell said. "And the members of the team are all capable of being winners if they play their best."

"Right now we have three seniors playing on the varsity, Miles, Keith Pagett, and Jeff O'Rand, one junior Bill Kirk and a sophomore John Foster," Russell said. "Along with these varsity members, we have a strong junior varsity made up of three sophs and two juniors, all of who are capable of making the varsity."

The district competition looks to almost overwhelm the Whitefaces as the other four district teams each return at least four of their five starters from last year, with Plainview and Monterey in the best shape with five lettermen from last year.

District play this year will have the teams meet twice in each district town, i.e. twice at Lubbock, twice at Plainview and twice at Hereford to play an 18 hole round each visit. Standings will be determined on a total stroke basis with the lowest overall total score of the six rounds to determine the champ.

The first round of district play is today at Lubbock Hillcrest, termed the toughest course the teams will play on this year, according to Coach Russell.

"Today will be the true test of how we do in district, if we can stay close to the other teams in the meet today then we have a really good chance to win the overall title," Russell said.

"The advantage of playing here helps us and the other teams have always had a hard time with the Hereford course, so it's here that we will have to do a whole lot better than the other teams to retain the championship," Russell said.

Both teams, the varsity and the JV squad will be entered in each tournament, so in reality the Herd has two chances to win the title.

"Our junior varsity is almost the equal of the varsity and after the round today, if some changes need to be made in the personnel on the teams, I can adjust the rosters to give us our best shot at the title," Russell said.

The team has 12 participants out for the squad this year, with juniors Kurt Beard and Dean Howard playing as individuals in this first round.

On the girls side of the team, there is two time defending district medalist Barbara Scott, one of the best golfers in the area according to Coach Russell.

"Barbara should win the title again this year. District competition starts next week in Lubbock for the girls," Coach Russell said. "Last year she had to come on strong in the last tournament to beat the girl from Plainview and she did that at the Plainview course."

Scott has played in one tournament in Lubbock thus far gaining runnerup status with a 78.

"We feel that she is the top female golfer around and now that she has her opening round problems out of the way, she should be able to improve rapidly," Coach Russell said. "The Plainview team has yet to play a round in competition, which really hurts the player, so this is another advantage that Barbara has."

A&M Favored In Border Track Meet

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) - Texas A&M, featuring four winners from last year's meet, is the favorite to capture this weekend's 47th Annual Border Olympics track meet here, according to the coach of the team that edged the Aggies here last year.

"Texas A&M won the conference easily and they should be the favorite, but that will depend on how far along they are this early," said Rice coach Bobby May.

May's Owls surprised the field last year by piling up 120 points to take the crown. The Aggies were second with 116 points.

The annual meet, billed as the first major outdoor event of the year, was set to begin today with junior college and high school division preliminaries.

The university division competitions, including seven Southwest Conference schools, and the college division events, featuring powerful Abilene Christian, begin Saturday.

Although Rice beat Texas A&M in a dual meet last week, May still thinks the Aggies are the team to beat. The Rice win came over an Aggie team minus Curtis Dickey. The muscular sprinter watched from the stands after returning from a New York meet.

Dickey took the 100-yard dash here last year. Other returning Aggie winners are Leslie Kerr in the 440, Mike Mosley in the 120 high hurdles and Steve Stewart in the discus.

Rice and Texas return two winners each. Rice's Bruce Gingrich took the 880 last year while teammate Darrell Mouton flashed to a win in the 220.

The Longhorns' Frank Lyons won the javelin and Robert Robinson took the shot put.

Baylor returns one winner in miler, Todd Harbour. Tom Marino of SMU returns to defend his three-mile crown.

Other university division teams here are Texas Tech; Texas Christian, Lamar and North Texas.

A&M also seems strong in the relays - bringing back three members of its sprint relay champs and two runners from last year's mile relay winners.

The college division is expected to be topped by Abilene Christian. The Wildcats scored 111 points here last year to easily take the meet over second place Angelo State with 75 points.

ACU brings two pole vaulters who have topped the 17-foot mark - Billy Olsen and Frank Estes. The Wildcats also sport Carl Williams - the top collegiate long jumper in the nation last year.

Ex-con Attempting Baseball Life With San Francisco

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP) - "I've never seen anything like this before," said Curtis Charles, looking around the San Francisco Giants' spring training clubhouse as he took off his uniform.

No one else in the Giants' camp has ever seen anything like Charles' last stop in baseball. His team last year played only home games - at San Quentin.

"We were in a Sacramento semipro league. I hit .154, but this is an awful big transition. I never saw pitching like this, and the guys here aren't even throwing hard yet," Charles said after practice Thursday.

The 24-year-old second baseman, freed from a prison in January after serving 3½ years for manslaughter, chuckled over complaints about the spring training camp infield.

"There are a few rocks. At the 'Q' we had rocks, glass, knives and razor blades on the field. And I'm not kidding. One day last year, I tried to smooth the dirt with my foot and kicked a knife someone had stashed," he said.

Charles was brought to Candlestick Park from nearby San Quentin late last season for a workout, and the Giants followed that up over the winter with the invitation to spring training.

Charles hopes to win a contract with one of the Giants' minor league teams.

"I'm realistic. I've never had a lot of good coaching and I know I need experience," said Charles. "But I think I'm a good enough athlete that I could make it."

"If I could, it would be the greatest thing in the world to me."

Manager Joe Altobelli plans to use the slightly built infielder during the exhibition season that begins next week.

"That's where he'll get the true test. Who knows? Maybe he can do it, like Ron LeFlore did with the Tigers," Altobelli said, referring to the Detroit outfielder who came out of prison and began a baseball career at age 25.

CINCINNATI (AP) - Free agent defenseman Bryan Watson has been signed by the Cincinnati Stingers and will join the club tonight for its World Hockey Association game against the Edmonton Oilers.

The 5-foot-9, 175-pound Watson appeared in 20 games this year with the National Hockey League Washington Capitals, for whom he had one assist and 36 minutes in penalties before being released.

Watson, 36, began his NHL career in 1963 with the Montreal Canadiens. He played with the Detroit Red Wings and the Pittsburgh Penguins before joining the Capitals in 1976.

Watson's best year offensively was in 1971-72 with Pittsburgh, when he scored three goals and 17 assists for 20 points.

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) - Kathy Mueller and Elise Burgin posted victories Thursday to move to the singles finals of a $7,500 women's tennis tournament here.

Mueller defeated 17-year-old Caryn Copeland, 6-1, 2-6, 6-2, and Burgin ousted Gretchen Galt of Burbank, Calif., 6-4, 6-2. The winner of the tournament, sponsored by Avon, gets $1,200.

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) - University of Oklahoma athletic trainer Kenneth Bouch Rawlinson, 63, died Thursday after a two-week illness.

Rawlinson was admitted to Norman Municipal Hospital Feb. 15 after suffering an apparent heart attack.

Rawlinson became the Oklahoma trainer on Feb. 1, 1953. He doubled as head swimming coach for the Sooners the first few years, leading Oklahoma to several Big Seven conference titles.

He was the official trainer of the U.S. Olympic team in the 1960 Rome Olympics and his book, written in 1961, "Modern Athletic Training" is considered by experts the definitive book on athletic training.

Rawlinson was elected to the Helms Foundation National Trainers Hall of Fame in 1968.

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) - St. Peter's College has fired head coach Bob Kelly in part of an administration move officials said was designed to upgrade the school's basketball program.

Kelly, 52, compiled an 18-33 record in two seasons as a part-time coach while serving as vice principal of Lincoln High School. Also fired Thursday were Peacock assistants Tony Holm and Bill McKeever, two high school instructors. The college said it would search for a full-time coach to succeed Kelly.

Bean Leads Citrus Golf

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Andy Bean shot a 64 - then apologized for it.

Arnold Palmer shot a 70 - his best round of the year - and was fuming.

"They used all the soft pin placements," said Arnold, his discomfort growing as more and more subpar numbers were splashed across the scoreboard. "And they used two members' tees. I can fix that. I'll plow 'em up. That's what I'll do. I'll get a tractor and plow 'em up."

Absolutely ideal playing conditions - mild to warm temperatures and no wind - and the perfect condition of the golf course combined for some extremely low scores Thursday in the first round of the $250,000 Bay Hill Citrus Golf Classic. In all, 53 players - more than one-third of the field - was at par or better on the Bay Hill course, owned by Palmer and being used as the site of a PGA tour event for the first time.

Bean's superb, 7-under-par effort was the best.

"Arnold's not gonna like you shooting that kind of number on his golf course," chided Jack Nicklaus, who had a 68 that left him in solid contention.

"I know," said Bean. "I apologized to him, but I told him I'd like to have three more just like it."

"We haven't played a golf course in this good condition in several years," said Leonard Thompson. The touring pros generally agreed. And, as to the weather, Ray Floyd called it "absolutely perfect playing conditions."

The enormously powerful Bean didn't make a bogey and flew a four-iron second shot to within a foot of the dropping flag for a tap-in eagle on the 511-yard first hole.

Jim Colbert, ranked by the burr of a $200 fine assessed for slow play in last week's Los Angeles Open, played his back nine in 30, capped by a 175-yard five-iron second shot on the final hole that found the cup for an eagle 2. That finished off a 65 that left him in second, 1 stroke behind Bean.

Ed Sneed and Floyd matched 66s.

The group at 67 included Bill Rogers, Thompson, Bobby Nichols and Bob Byman.

Nicklaus, making only his second start of the season, didn't make a bogey and scored birdies on his first, 17th and 18th holes to lead the group at 68. Defending champion Mac McLendon had the same score. Hubert Green and Hale Irwin led a big bunch at 69.

Borg Death Threatened

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) - Bjorn Borg, angered over disclosure of a death threat in the Swedish news media, says he won't play tennis in his home country anymore this year.

Borg, scheduled to meet John McEnroe next Saturday in Goteborg, said he had decided to cancel the match or play it elsewhere in Europe. He also announced he would not represent Sweden in Davis Cup competition or play any other tournament in Sweden this year.

Borg, who has had numerous conflicts with the Swedish press, was upset after it was reported that several groups had received a letter, claiming to be sent by the Italian terrorist gang the Red Brigades, saying it had "sentenced him (Borg) to death."

Attached to the letter was a picture of Borg posing in an Israeli Army uniform, taken during his visit to Israel last fall and published in many newspapers here.

Among those receiving the letter were TT, the Swedish news agency; the Royal Tennis Club and Stockholm police.

Houston Nips Bears In Thriller

Raiders Edge A&M In Overtime, 63-62

HOUSTON (AP) - Texas Tech's Geoff Huston didn't get any respect and Houston's Kenny Williams got plenty of it Thursday night but neither treatment stopped the outside jump shots of the deadly two-some in the Southwest Conference basketball tournament.

Huston, left to roam freely while the Texas Aggies blanketed Tech sharpshooter Kent Williams, pumped in 24 points, including four in the final minute of an overtime, to lead the underdog Red Raiders to a 63-62 upset of the Aggies.

Williams, guarded like a blanket by the upset minded Baylor Bears, ignored the pressure and scored 24 points as the defending tournament champion Cougars nipped the Bears 83-82 in the second thriller of the night before a capacity Summit crowd of 15,449.

"In the second half I started looking more for the basket," said Huston, held to six first half points. "They were guarding me so much they seemed to disrespect me. I knew I had to score for us to win."

Houston's Williams, the SWC's No. 4 scorer with a 19.1 average, also had a poor first half with only six points but kept the Cougars in the game in the second half when he hit eight of 11 Houston baskets at one stretch.

"I didn't do anything in the first half so I knew I had to come through in the second half," said Williams. "Then I missed my first three shots in the second half and Abe Davis told me I had to make the next seven."

Huston's second half shooting wizardry propelled the Red Raiders into tonight's semi-final game against SWC co-champion Arkansas, which defeated Tech twice in regular season games.

The Cougars, defending champions in the tournament but heavy underdogs this year, advanced to the semi-finals against co-champ Texas, an upset victim of the Cougars in last year's tournament finals.

Tech, now 19-9 for the season and a fourth place finisher in the SWC, led only once in regulation play and tied the game for only the second time at 56-56 with 30 seconds to play on Huston's layup to force the overtime.

Huston hit a jumper with :35 to go in the overtime and pumped in two free throws with :12 to go to complete the Red Raider comeback. Ralph Brewster scored 11 points and Kent Williams added 10 for the Raiders.

Vernon Smith was the only Aggie in double figures with 16 points.

Baylor was threatening another upset in the second game until Williams started his phenomenal shooting display.

Williams came alive with 12:05 to play when he hit a side jumper with the Cougars trailing 60-56. He finished at 3:44 with a baseline jumper to put Houston ahead for good at 77-76.

Leonard Mitchell scored 13 points and was a big factor in the victory with 13 rebounds.

Freshman Terry Teagle led the Bears with 23 points while Vinnie Johnson, the league's leading scorer, hit 16 and Pat Nunley added 15.

While giving Huston his due credit, Kent Williams said Tech Coach Gerald Myers' quick thinking was responsible for the victory.

"When they went into that four corners with five or six minutes to go, Coach Myers put us in a half-court trap," Williams said. "That caused a few turnovers. Basketball is a game of momentum and that's when we got it."

A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf, looking back on a 52-47 lead with 5:49 to play, said he'd go to the four corners again if he had the chance.

"We had the ball game won," Metcalf said. "If the game had ended 16 seconds earlier we'd be in the dressing room laughing."

The Cougars, playing their best basketball of the season, apparently realized it was time for a command performance after losing to the Bears twice during the regular season.

"At Waco, Vinnie penetrated to the baseline and took his shots," said guard Ken Ciolli.

"Tonight as soon as they turned around they had a man in their face. So I think defense was the difference tonight."

Asked about Houston's inspired play in the past few games, Ciolli said "We hadn't played well all year but I guess some of the guys saw the light at the end of the tunnel—the end of the season and for some of us, there is no next year."

Myers says he expects another close game against the Razorbacks, 21-4 going into the tournament.

"Our problem will be to contain Sidney Moncrief and Steve Schall," Myers said. "But I feel we'll be able to compete with them."

Lewis said Houston's chances against Texas will depend on how the Cougars handle Longhorn guard John Moore.

"I know what will work on Texas," Lewis said. "Get Moore out of the game and on the bench listening to Abe's Lemons jokes."

Title IX Unfair To Athletics Says NCAA

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter Administration has singled out athletics in its proposed regulations to require equal opportunity for women in colleges and universities, the National Collegiate Athletic Association says.

The NCAA said Thursday it could cost its member schools more than $250 million a year to comply with the proposed federal regulations, expected to go into effect in the fall.

On the other hand, the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women, the NCAA's female counterpart, said clarifications should be made in the proposed regulations "to avoid destructive confusion, delay and conflicting interpretations."

For example, the AIAW said the draft policies provide "no timeframe for accommodating developing athletic interests and abilities."

"The most obvious danger of this omission is that institutions could, consistent with the policy, expand opportunities for women at a snail's pace."

The NCAA, with its 726 member schools, and the AIAW, which has a membership of 906, made their statements in response to proposed regulations by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for compliance with federal law banning sex discrimination in the nation's schools.

Although Title IX, a part of the Education Act of 1972, covers all aspects of education, intercollegiate sports has received the most publicity because the NCAA has unsuccessfully sought to have revenue-producing sports such as football and basketball exempted.

HEW's Office of Civil Rights published its proposed guidelines for compliance last Dec. 11 and has set a deadline of today for comments from interested parties.

In its 49-page document plus exhibits, the NCAA said, among other things, "For reasons that are not adequately explained, athletics - and particularly intercollegiate athletics - have been singled out for enforcement priority."

For example, the NCAA said, colleges and universities are not required to equalize participation in academic programs, such as engineering and nursing, and extracurricular activities other than sports, such as dance and marching bands,

"in which there have been substantial differences historically in male-female participation rates."

"It is no more reasonable or equitable to apply such requirements to athletics," said the NCAA.

Using what he said is detailed budgetary data from 12 schools, NCAA President William J. Flynn said that projections indicate the total cost of compliance with "an unqualified equal per capita expenditure standard for the 726 NCAA member institutions alone would approximate $60 million per year at current levels of participation, and more than a quarter billion dollars per year at equalized male-female participation levels."

The proposed regulations, said the NCAA, "are inequitable, unworkable, costly and, in important respects, unlawful."

Austin Gains Quarterfinals

DALLAS (AP) - Wispy 16-year-old Tracy Austin has her reasons for wanting to be the No. 1 woman tennis player around.

Miss Austin, who will be in the quarterfinals round of eight today in the $200,000 tennis tournament being played here this week, doesn't relish being in a "heavy" and target of the crowd's displeasure.

"Everyone used to be for me," said the pony-tailed blonde, "when I started out. Now that I've played awhile I'm not always the crowd favorite. It takes time to adjust to not being everyone's darling."

Miss Austin, who lost in the finals here in the Virginia Slims last year to Evonne Goolagong, is in the same bracket as top-seeded Martina Navratilova and they could meet Saturday with the winner getting a shot at the $35,000 first prize. "Guess you have to meet Martina somewhere down the line in any tournament we play," Miss Austin said.

Miss Austin gained her quarters berth by defeating stocky Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia 6-2, 6-1 Thursday night. "I played really well and we had some great battles before it was over."

Miss Austin is matched against Renata Tomanova of Prague Friday.

Both top seeds, No. 1 Navratilova and No. 2 Chris Evert, also posted expected third round victories Thursday. The tour top money winner who now resides in Dallas, shelled 18-year-old Caroline Stoll 6-0, 6-0, to gain the quarters.

Miss Evert was similarly near flawless in taking the measure of South African Liana Kloss, 6-1, 6-1.

Also in the round of eight are Sue Barker of England, who ousted eighth seeded Kathy May Teacher 6-1, 6-2; Stacy Margolin, a 6-1, 6-2 winner over seventh seed South African Marice Kruger.

Miss Barker, in the lower bracket, meets Miss Evert, with Miss Margolin the top bracket opponent Friday of Miss Navratilova.

In another lower bracket match veteran Virginia Wade, a winner here in 1973 and 1975, plays Dianne Fromholtz, who sidelined Rosie Casals, 6-3, 6-1, with a precision-type performance.

The tournament is sponsored by Avon.

White Putts To Lead

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) - Taking just 25 putts over the Bent Tree Golf and Racquet Club Course, Donna Horten White set a personal record to take the first-round lead in the $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament here.

White finished with a 6-under-par 66, one stroke ahead of defending U.S. Women's Open champion Hollis Stacy in Thursday's action.

Judy Rankin, the 1976 Bent Tree winner, came in third with a 68.

Defending champion Nancy Lopez shot a 71, tying three of the 100 other competitors for ninth place.

Lopez won her first LPGA title on the 6,106-yard course here last year, taking the lead away from White in the last round.

White said that she did nothing but rest and practice her putting for the last three months of 1978 while her right hand was in a cast because of tendinitis.

"I'm much more confident this year. Putting is probably my weakest point. Even when I missed the green I felt like I was going to get up and down," she said.

The former University of Florida left-hander made six of her seven birdies from nine feet. A $15,000 purse goes to the winner of Sunday's final round.

It's just not a real pleasant experience," Gene Mayer said Thursday after beating Yannick Noah 6-2, 6-2 in the third round.

"To play against your close friends is very difficult, and it's five times harder against your brother."

Mayer's older brother, Sandy also gained today's quarterfinals with a 7-6, 4-6, 6-3 victory over fifth-seeded Brian Gottfried.

Although four years separate them in age - Gene is 22, Sandy 26 - just two rounds stand in the way of a brother-brother confrontation.

Sandy was scheduled to play defending champion Jimmy Connors today. Mayer and Connors are members of a group of players who came up through American junior tennis together. In about 20 matches, Mayer recalls, he has beaten Connors only once - when they were about 13.

Tennis Has Brother Duel

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - There were three pairs of brothers competing in the $250,000 U.S. National Indoor Tennis Championships this week, but only two brothers are still in the running and they'd prefer that things weren't so close.

Gene and Sandy have played each other once in a professional match, and the lower-ranked Gene beat big brother Sandy 6-4, 6-4 at Guadalajara last year.

In the other brother act here, twins Tom and Tim Gullikson and Vijay and Anand Amitraj have been eliminated from the doubles competition. Tim Gullikson and Vijay Amitraj each lost in the third round of the singles, Tom Gullikson lost in the first round and Anand Armitraj did not play singles.

In today's other quarterfinals, No. 3 Vitas Gerulaitis was to play unseeded Victor Amaya. Gerulaitis downed iltempered Peter Fleming, his doubles partner here, 7-5, 6-4. Amaya, the 6-foot-7 giant who has developed a reputation as a giant killer, came from 3-5 down in the second set to beat England's Buster Mottram, the 15th seed, 7-6, 7-6. Amaya was a finalist at Denver last week.

No. 7 Roscoe Tanner was to play No. 16 John Alexander of Australia in today's other quarter-final match. Tanner beat Poland's Wojtek Fibak and Alexander beat Vijay Armitraj on Wednesday. Tanner and Alexander did not play singles Thursday.

Gene was to face veteran Arthur Ashe today. In their only previous meeting, at San Jose, Calif., last year, Ashe won in three sets.

COMMENTARY
Donald F. Graff
I-told-you-so time

China's invasion of Vietnam comes as no surprise to Graham A. Martin. Martin, in case you can't quite place the name at this later date, is a former U.S. ambassador to the Republic of South Vietnam. He doesn't think anyone who understands the Asian psychology (and where were these knowing individuals when we were in Vietnam and needed them) should be surprised. That takes in a number of prominent personalities who recently shared their views on the latest Southeast Asian crisis with The New York Times. Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., present historian and former special assistant to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, finds it not merely unsurprising but predictable by "anyone" (there they are again) at all familiar with the historic antagonism between China and Vietnam. Eugene McCarthy, former Democratic senator from Minnesota and anti-war presidential hopeful, agrees with the Schlesinger reading of history, as does William E. Colby, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency. Sen. John Tower, Republican of Texas, on the other hand, sees the predictability not in Sino-Vietnam history but in Sino-Russian history. The invasion is thoroughly consistent with China's determination not to let the Soviets get away with anything in a Chinese area of interest. For Walt W. Rostow, former special assistant to President Johnson, the predictability originates much closer to home — with the U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam. He has been extremely anxious since the American presence ceased to be a "stabilizing factor" (that's what he said) in the area. By not seeing the Indochinese war through to a conclusion (there wasn't one?), the nation invited dire consequences. Nguyen Cao Ky — now, that name surely rings a bell — accepts the Tower scenario, but with a twist. The Soviets are actually behind it all, maneuvering the invasion so as to have an excuse to enter Vietnam themselves and take over airfields and other facilities abandoned by U.S. forces. So it goes. What it shows is that there is nothing like a full-blown crisis to bring the hindsight prophets out of the woodwork. Everyone KNEW the Chinese move was inevitable, but no one quite got around to calling it before it occurred.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Trouble digesting milk

DEAR DR. LAMB — I don't believe there is such a thing as milk allergy. It's all caused by the plastic it's in. You know that milk is a universal antidote, so it keeps busy absorbing the poisons out of the containers until it's used and you have a bad reaction. DEAR READER — I'm not going to defend all the types of packaging present in commercial food marketing, but I can assure you people have trouble with milk because of the milk itself, not because of its container. There are basically two problems that can occur. The first is a true milk allergy which is noted primarily in infants, because their digestive system hasn't matured properly and some of the milk protein is absorbed directly into the bloodstream. The allergy, in this case, is to milk protein. The other, and larger, problem is lactose intolerance which is not an allergy. It is the problem one sees in adults. It's very well defined. Lactose is a sugar and you can dissolve pure lactose sugar in water, and people who drink this have difficulties. So, the problem can be created irrespective of the container, just with milk sugar. About 10 percent of the adult Anglo-Saxons have this problem and as high as 80 percent of most other ethnic groups in the world may have some degree of it. I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad, which will give you more information about this disorder. Primarily, it causes digestive complaints — gas, bloating, abdominal cramping and, in some people, severe diarrhea. DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like for you to settle an argument we are having. I said medication in capsule and pill form should be given after breakfast. Which is right, before or after breakfast, and what about other meals? DEAR READER — You may be right and you may be wrong. The correct answer is to take the pills for the doctor told you to. I'm not being facetious. The doctor prescribes some medicines long enough before the meal to be rapidly absorbed. Still other medicines are better taken with the meal or after the meal so their absorption will be slower. It depends entirely upon the medicine prescribed and why the doctor is giving it. If you try to second guess him, you may not be getting the concentrations of medicine in your bloodstream when he wants you to. To this generalization, I would like to add some comments about aspirin because so many people take them without a prescription. This also applies to many medicines that contain aspirin. If you want to avoid irritating your stomach, it's a good idea to break up the aspirin into small pieces and dissolve it in half a cup of milk, or at the very least, take the aspirin with a meal or immediately after a meal. If you break the aspirin up into a powder, it's less likely to have any particles that will lodge against the stomach and burn the lining. You may not get as fast or immediate relief from pain, if you are taking aspirin for that reason, but the effect will be longer and more sustained.

FAITH COMPARES LIFE TO THE CHANGING MARCH WEATHER

The month of March has always been known for unpredictable moods, resulting in a wide variety of weather patterns that vacillate between the two seasons it is supposed to divide. Gentle, balmy breezes offer a preview of spring, then suddenly give way to violent winds and stormy skies, determined to cling to the last vestiges of winter. Most of us who have lived any length of time can liken this to the pattern of our lives and can learn to prepare ourselves for these events, even as we are prepared for anything the weather man has to offer. At the Church of your choice you will learn how to weather the storms of your life, and how to make it brighter by spreading a little sunshine into the lives of others.

The stormy March has come at last. With wind and cloud, and changing skies
— William Cullen Bryant

"The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth."
— John 3:8
