Trustee escapes from jail

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

A prisoner was discovered missing from the Deaf Smith County Jail early this morning.

Jesse Saldana was being held while awaiting trial on charges of aggravated robbery. Jailers last saw the missing prisoner a little before 5 a.m. He was discovered to be missing about a half hour later.

Officials began looking for Saldana, a kitchen trustee at the jail, when he was not present to assist with serving breakfast to his fellow prisoners.

During a subsequent search, it was discovered that a hole had been cut in a chain-link cover over the exercise court inside the jail. It is believed that the escapee pulled himself up using a basketball goal and made his escape through that hole.

The damaged chain-link had been carefully replaced so that it was not readily visible.

Saldana was still at large as of press time today.

Abortion foes fight AG Mattox

AUSTIN (AP) - Anti-abortionists blasted Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox for joining a legal brief in support of the landmark U.S. Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion, but pro-choice groups immediately rose to Mattox's defense.

"It seems to us this is just another example of Attorney General Mattox using his office, in the most blatant way, to feather his own political nest," Bill Price, president of Texans United for Life, said Tuesday.

But the Texas Abortion Rights Action League issued a news release signed by more than 60 political and religious groups in support of Mattox for joining a legal brief by Massachusetts and six other states supporting the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision. The court is considering a Missouri case that could reverse, or alter a woman's right to an abortion.

"Most Texans feel that abortion is a private matter for women and their families and should be free from government interference.

"There's simply nothing controversial about the state attorney general concurring in support of the law of the land," the news release said.

Price said Mattox, who is considering running for governor in 1990, agreed to the legal brief "to curry favor with the radical special-interest groups that dictate the outcome of Democratic primary elections."

He said "Massachusetts Mattox" should consider running for governor there and later hand-delivered to Mattox's office a candidate application form for governor of Massachusetts.

"Since Michael Dukakis is not seeking re-election, the field is wide open," Price said.

Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Mattox, said the attorney general joined in support of Roe vs. Wade because "this has to do with the people's right to privacy."

Dusek tagged the "radical" label to Price. "These people are more radical than anyone, running around burning clinics and protesting in front of clinics," he said.

"Mattox takes a stand on issues. He has never been accused of sitting on the fence," Dusek said.

But Price said Mattox has no business speaking for Texas on such a controversial matter. Producing a letter by Gov. Bill Clements, Price said the majority of Texans oppose abortions.

In that March 31 letter, Clements said he supported "the right to life position as do a vast majority of Texans."

"Quite clearly, the people of our great state want the abortion issue decided by the Texas Legislature," Clements said.

Four fires reported

Hereford volunteer firemen were called for four different fires Tuesday afternoon. The first call came at 12:50 p.m. when a small blaze had restarted at 3K Cattle Feeders.

Firemen had already brought a major blaze under control Tuesday morning when the feed mill was heavily damaged. The fire apparently re-started in the top of the mill.

Two grass fires were reported with the first call coming at 12:50 p.m. That fire occurred a mile and a half south of Hereford on U.S. Highway 385 on land belonging to Sharron Kovacs. Wind blowing burning trash out of a barrel caused the fire.

Children playing with fire apparently caused a second grass fire a mile and a half west of town on U.S. Highway 60 on land owned by Gonzales Brothers Plumbing.

Minor damage to a trailer house resulted from an electrical short in that structure. Firemen were called to 202 Union at 5:58 p.m. in order to deal with the fire caused by that electrical malfunction.

New phone directories coming

A native Texan's friendly face smiles from the cover of the 1989 Southwestern Bell Telephone directory which will be delivered in Hereford starting Thursday, according to area manager Gary Stevens.

About 7,415 directories will be delivered to area residents and businesses. Stevens said delivery should be completed by April 20.

There's a reason why Joe Dobkins of Red Oak is featured on the cover. He's also featured in the Texas Department of Commerce's tourism advertising campaign bearing the theme "Texas, It's Like a Whole Other Country." The campaign is aimed at tourists all over the U.S.

"Research from the campaign shows that tourists mention friendliness as the biggest drawing card to Texas, more than the Alamo or any other attraction," said Stevens. "All Texans can have a major impact on tourism by being 'Texas friendly'."

The photo of Dobkins will appear on more than 175 different Bell directories distributed across the state in 1989.

"Travel and tourism directly benefits the Texas economy. It's a $17 billion industry which helps support more than 300,000 jobs in Texas," said Stevens. "Obviously, tourism plays a major role in Texas' economic development effort. Using our directory cover to promote tourism and our Texas hospitality is one more way we can help boost the state's economy."

The Hereford directory will also feature a slightly larger typeface for the residential and business listings. "We made this change after asking customers how we could improve our directory," Stevens said.

Each residential customer will receive one directory. For additional copies, customers should call their Southwestern Bell Telephone business office.

"If your friend across town gets his directory before you receive yours, don't call because you'll probably get one within a few days," added Stevens.

This year, 54 white pages and 94 yellow pages make up the Hereford directory. There are 7,229 white page listings. Local emergency numbers are listed on the inside front cover of the new book.

Hearing or speech impaired customers using a TTD/TTY may contact the Customer Assistance Bureau to communicate their telephone needs. They may call toll-free 1-951-7088 during business hours for an immediate response.

In the Customer Guide at the front of the directory, customers will find tips on how to save money on their phone service. Also included is a toll-free number Texas customers may call if they have a complaint about their telephone service.

Tapes reveal Pentagon joking

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) - Unaware that the FBI was eavesdropping, a defense consultant in the government's "Ill Wind" investigation of Pentagon procurement fraud joked with a business associate about what would happen if ordinary Americans discovered their bribery scheme.

"If the farmers in Indiana knew what you (deleted) were doing with their money, they would come up there and kill you with their pitchforks," Fred Lackner told defense consultant William L. Parkin on a tape of their telephone conversation. The tape was played Tuesday by prosecutors at the first trial resulting from the two-year investigation.

Lackner's comment, recorded by one of four FBI bugs placed on Parkin's home and office telephones in 1987 and 1988, was on two hours of tapes played for jurors at the trial of three Teledyne Electronics Inc. executives accused of participating in a bribery scheme to get a $24 million Navy contract.

Lackner's remark drew hearty laughter from Parkin.

Both men pleaded guilty last month to participating in the scheme to bribe Navy procurement official Stuart E. Berlin to obtain inside information for the California-based company.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Joseph Aronica said he expected the prosecution would rest its case by Thursday. Parkin was expected to testify today, and prosecutors planned to play another two hours of tape recordings.

The tapes included numerous conversations between Lackner and Parkin, detailing their efforts to obtain confidential bid information that would help Teledyne in its negotiations with the Pentagon.

They also provided evidence of repeated requests for such information by Eugene R. Sullivan, one of the three Teledyne executives on trial in U.S. District Court in this suburb of Washington.

During a conversation June 19, 1987, Lackner furnished Parkin with details sought by Sullivan about how much the Army, Navy and Air Force were prepared to spend to procure hand-held radar testing devices.

"The deal is just a tad over $4.2 million," Lackner reported. "Always helpful to know when you're negotiating," he said with a laugh.

After Teledyne negotiated the contract, Parkin pressured company executive George H. Kaub, another defendant, to make good on Teledyne's promise to pay Parkin a $150,000 consulting fee.

During a conversation July 8, 1987, Parkin told Kaub that he had helped eliminate Teledyne's competition so that the company would qualify as a "sole-source provider" of the military equipment.

"Since it's sole source, you should have much more than enough to take care of our little pets," Parkin told Kaub, referring to his contacts in Washington who helped get information.

Kaub said he wasn't sure the contract was that lucrative but concluded by saying: "I understand."

Complaining also to Sullivan that the money had not been paid, Parkin threatened to use his influence to get the Defense Department to cancel its options to buy additional equipment.

"The only thing we can do is cancel next year by making sure it's not exercised," he told Sullivan.

Parkin remarked that his friends, whom he never identified, were "getting goosey" about not getting paid.

"They have finessed this thing an awfully long way," he told Sullivan.

The defense contends that Sullivan, Kaub and Dale Schnittjer, the third Teledyne executive on trial, did not know that Parkin was engaged in illegal activity after he was retained by Teledyne to help it get the contract.

Gorbachev: no nukes in west

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) - Mikhail S. Gorbachev, responding to long-standing U.S. concerns about Moscow's intentions in Latin America, says the Kremlin will refrain from putting military bases or nuclear weapons in the region.

With President Fidel Castro sitting nearby, the Soviet leader said in a speech to the National Assembly Tuesday that Moscow supports the creation of a "zone of peace" in Latin America and an end to all outside military aid to the region.

Gorbachev's comments were made during his first diplomatic trip to Latin America and seemed directed largely at Washington, whose hemispheric policy for years has been based on concerns about Soviet influence in the region.

The Soviet president was to end his 63-hour trip and leave for London this morning following a hectic day of activities Tuesday highlighted by his late afternoon speech.

It was a day for sightseeing by Gorbachev at local points of interest and also a day in which dissident sources reported the arrest of seven people who had planned to lead a pro-Gorbachev demonstration at the Soviet Embassy.

The planned demonstration, canceled after the arrests, intended to seek Gorbachev's support for liberalizing moves in Cuba.

Castro introduced Gorbachev to the National Assembly, delivering a fiery 50-minute address in which he blasted U.S. policies across the board, particularly Washington's support for anti-communist insurgencies.

He criticized Western reporters for saying Gorbachev's reforms have produced a rift between the two.

Castro pointed out that the two countries have immense cultural, economic and historical differences, and it is only natural that they would follow different ideological paths.

Still, Castro has indicated in the past that he was troubled that Gorbachev would embrace some aspects of capitalism as part of his sweeping policy shifts.

At a news conference after his speech, Gorbachev also dismissed as "inventions" Western media portrayals of him and Castro "almost as enemies."

As proof of the durability of the Soviet-Cuban alliance, Gorbachev and Castro signed a 25-year Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation on Tuesday.

Gorbachev did lend credence in his speech to widely reported Soviet unhappiness with Cuban use of Soviet economic aid, estimated at $5 billion annually. Economic ties between the countries, he said, "should be made more dynamic, more efficient and mutually productive."

He called for "stricter accountability and more discipline to ensure timely and proper compliance with obligations mutually assumed."

Plaintiff in abortion case target of violence

Shotgun blasts damage home, car of 'Jane Roe'

DALLAS (AP) - The woman known as "Jane Roe" in the landmark Supreme Court ruling legalizing abortion is going into hiding indefinitely after three shotgun blasts were fired at her home and car, her roommate said.

"She's real emotional right now," Connie Gonzales, Norma McCorvey's roommate, said Tuesday afternoon. "She's cries and cries. We just want to stop her crying."

FBI agents and the Dallas Police Department were conducting separate investigations into the 4:45 a.m. incident at Ms. McCorvey's home in Dallas on Tuesday.

Someone in a car fired a 410-gauge shotgun, shattering the rear window of Ms. McCorvey's 1981 Oldsmobile, her living room window and the front door of her home. The Dallas Morning News reported.

Ms. McCorvey, the plaintiff in Roe vs. Wade, which resulted in the 1973 Supreme Court decision, told police she believes the shots were intended for her because she plans to speak Sunday in Washington, D.C., at a rally supporting legalized abortion.

But police told The Dallas Morning News that they have no witnesses, confirmed motive or workable leads in the case.

"There's not much we can do with this unless someone comes forward with information," said Detective Paul Lachnutt, who is investigating the shooting.

Ms. Gonzales said Ms. McCorvey was not available for comment Tuesday and that the two were going into hiding indefinitely while their house remained under surveillance.

"This is reality now," Ms. Gonzales said. "This is what it is all about. There are some sick people out there."

The violence Tuesday was the latest of several vandalism incidents aimed at the woman whose court case remains at the center of emotional abortion debates.

Ms. McCorvey's home and car have been egged, she has found baby clothes scattered in her yard and she has received hate mail.

Through the years, Ms. McCorvey has rarely been frightened by the acts, her roommate said. But she was nervous for several days after receiving a picture in the mail of herself with devilish horns drawn on her head and the word "cancer" written across her face.

"She thought things like that didn't hurt her physically and that people were just making a statement," Ms. Gonzales said.

However, when Ms. McCorvey awoke early Tuesday to the sound of shotgun blasts, she was terrified, Ms. Gonzales said.

The two women were asleep in the front of the house when the shots were fired, but they were not injured, officials said.

Following the shooting, Ms. McCorvey remained secluded and a hired security guard at her house turned away visitors and watched all traffic, The Morning News reported. By mid-afternoon, workers had replaced several shattered windows, but Ms. McCorvey's car still sat in the driveway with a large hole in its rear window.

Pasted on the car's rear bumper was a pro-choice bumper sticker that said: "One justice away from injustice." Beside the phrase was a circle and red line through a picture of former Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork, who opposes abortion.

Police beefed up patrols around the northeast Dallas neighborhood and said they would maintain the increased patrols for several days until it is clear there is no additional threat, said Lt. Kenneth Eley of the department's Northeast Division.

Pro-choice activists were quick to offer opinions about the latest vandalism against Ms. McCorvey.

"It's frightening for Norma that after all these years she is now willing to come out and be public about her role in the pro-choice movement and she has to now deal with this," said Janie Bush, president of the Texas Abortion Rights Action League and a counselor at Routh Street Women's Clinic in Dallas.

Ms. Bush, who also is president of NOW's Dallas County chapter, called the attack on Ms. McCorvey's home a "scary" example of how the abortion debate has grown from heated to violent.

"We're not talking about just damaged property any more," Ms. Bush said. "We're talking about physical safety."

Bill Price, president of the Greater Dallas Right to Life Commission, said he will be "totally surprised" if investigators find a link between the shooting incident and Ms. McCorvey's stance on abortion.

"Certainly I hope it didn't have anything to do with that," said Price. "I don't know what else she may be involved in. But this would be the worst possible way in which to try and protest and stop abortion."

For several months, Ms. McCorvey has been organizing the "Jane Roe Foundation," a group that will seek to further the pro-choice movement.

Pickens looks to Japan

AMARILLO (AP) - Officials of an investment company controlled by corporate raider T. Boone Pickens say it acquired a stake in a Japanese corporation to further cooperation between this country and Japan, but the Japanese are suspicious.

The new largest shareholder of Koito Manufacturing Co., a Japanese automotive parts maker with strong ties to Toyota Motor Co., is Pickens' Boone Co., a privately held merchant bank company.

Boone Co. officials aren't saying anything about what the company's plans are for their investment, but vice president of finance Sidney Tassin said he doesn't regard the 20.2 percent stake, worth an estimated $1.19 billion, as hostile in intent.

"We believe that the Japanese-American involvement and relationship is of increasing importance and opportunity," said Tassin, also a top official with Pickens' Mesa Limited Partners.

But the Japanese have some doubts.

"This isn't a normal investment," Keiji Yasuda, an analyst for New Japan Securities Co., told The Wall Street Journal. "Many people believe Mr. Pickens is a greenmailer, a pure greenmailer."

Greenmail is the term used for profits reaped by a hostile corporate suitor when his stock is purchased at a premium by another shareholder friendly to the company.

Koito officials say they also don't know what Boone Co.'s intentions are.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - College-bound students preparing for Scholastic Aptitude Tests can now improve their chances by watching television.

A new, two-hour instructional videotape, "SAT-TV Review," lets young scholars study math, English and test-taking techniques at home through a fast-paced, professional TV presentation.

The tape, with a 100-page workbook, enables viewers to work at their own pace, stopping their VCRs to practice written examples or to fast-forward to review other sections.

"Texas: Broad is the Range of Her Music." The event was hosted by Faye Gillespie of Gruver, president of first district, TFMC, who also gave one of the reports.

Those attending the convention honored Mrs. D. Clifford Allison of Wichita, Kan. who is currently serving as vice president of the National Federation of Music Clubs. She has served as NEMC in many capacities including recording secretary, vice president in charge of central region, chairman of the National Council of District Coordinators and State Presidents and national chairman of the 1985 Biennial Convention. Her musical education includes the study of piano, voice and string bass and she is currently studying organ.

Also, given special recognition were Amarillo Mayor Glen Parkey and Margaret Pease Harper, founder of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, Inc. which produces the historical drama "TEXAS" each summer in the Pioneer Amphitheatre in Palo Duro Canyon, Park.

Herd rallies for 13-8 win Tuesday

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

As Yogi Berra once said, it was deja vu all over again.

This time it was the Hereford Whiteface baseball team, rolling along with an undefeated District 1-4A record and facing Frenship.

Last season, Frenship ended that unbeaten string with a four-hitter.

This season, on Tuesday, Hereford was trailing 5-2 going into the bottom of the fourth before rallying for 11 runs in the last three innings for a 13-8 win over the Tigers.

Frenship gained its lead by scoring two runs in the first and third off Herd starter Fidel Ceballos. In the fourth, Frenship had scored once and had a man on with one out when Scott, who started at shortstop, replaced Ceballos.

With only eight warmup pitches, Scott struck out the first batter he faced but gave up a triple as the Tigers boosted their lead to 6-2.

In the top of the fifth, the Herd erupted for five runs, chasing a pair of pitchers, to take a 7-6 lead. Frenship scored once in the bottom of the fifth to tie the score, but Hereford scored twice in the sixth and pushed four runs across in the sixth.

Hereford's bats were lively against Frenship's five pitchers, especially in the late innings. Clint Cotten recorded his first home run of the year; Kyle Andrews had a pair of doubles; Roger McCracken had a double and triple while going 4-for-5; and Keith Brown hit all four times up, including a double.

Scott improved his record to 7-0 and had eight strikeouts in 2 2-3 innings, giving him 68 strikeouts in 44 2-3 innings this season.

The win by Hereford set up a meeting on Saturday with Estacado at Whiteface Field for the league lead through the first half of the district schedule. Estacado is 7-0 after downing Borger, 14-2, on Tuesday.

Hereford is 6-0-1 in district and owns a victory over the Matadors earlier this season in the Abilene Tournament.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP)

Former Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry and George W. Bush, son of President Bush, were just a couple of the 40,375 baseball fans who saw the 1989 "new look" debut of the Texas Rangers.

"I always followed them, and I've been out to some of their games before. ... I'm really anxious to see the game. I've been hearing a lot of good things," Landry said before Tuesday night's game, won by the Rangers, 4-0 over Detroit.

A paid crowd of 40,375, the 13th-largest crowd in Arlington Stadium history and the third-largest on opening night, gave Landry a standing ovation when he took the mound to throw out the ceremonial first pitch.

In chit-chat with sports writers before the game, Landry worried that he would embarrass himself with his throw. "I won't be able to reach the plate," he joked.

Sure enough, with the sellout crowd looking on, Landry - who was in coat and tie but without his familiar hat - one-hopped his delivery to Rangers catcher Jim Sundberg.

As the crowd laughed, Landry put his hands over his face. Landry said he had no managerial strategy for Rangers manager Bobby Valentine, with whom he visited in the Texas dugout minutes before game time.

"No, no advice," Landry said, shaking his head. "Mine might not be worth much anyway since I'm on the outside looking in now."

Landry watched the game in the luxury box of Rangers owner Eddie Giles, who has agreed to sell the team to Bush and others.

Two hours before gametime, Bush went onto the infield to watch his new club take batting practice.

"I'm a baseball nut," Bush said, although he admitted this is his first year as a Rangers fan.

"I was always an Astros fan because I grew up in Houston, and once you get hooked on a particular team, you stay hooked. But I'm a Rangers fan now. I told my Houston Astros friends, 'I'll see you in the World Series!'"

But there's no comparison between the excitement he feels this year to that he felt on past openers, he said.

"Not at all," Bush said. "This is the big leagues. This is a big thrill, being a part of what, if not this year, will eventually be a World Series team. We're committed to whatever it takes. It's clear we've got a bright mind for a general manager, a great manager and a solid front office."

Landry, the only head football coach the Cowboys ever had until he was replaced on Feb. 25 by new owner Jerry Jones, will be paid further tribute in a "Tom Landry Day" celebration in Dallas later this month.

Rangers fans also gave warm ovations to pitcher Nolan Ryan, first baseman Ralph Palmeiro and second baseman Julio Franco - off-season acquisitions who fueled hopes of vast improvement over last year's cellar finish.

Palmeiro had an RBI double and Rangers shortstop Scott Fletcher drove in three runs with a double and single to give the Rangers their first Opening Day shutout since 1980.

Ryan, baseball's all-time strikeout leader, left the Astros to sign a free-agent contract with the Rangers. He makes his debut for the Rangers in a 5 p.m. game Thursday, with two busloads of hometown fans from Alvin, Texas, driving up to watch.

Sundberg and third baseman-designated hitter Buddy Bell, two popular players traded away in the mid-1980s but back with the club this season, also drew ovations.

Bell singled in the seventh for his 2,500th career hit and later came around to score on Fletcher's single.

Pre-game music was provided by the Plano High School marching band. Boy Scouts gave a tribute to the six flags that Texas served under.

An award-winning 100-member Barbershop group from Dallas sang the National Anthem.

LEG PROBLEM

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - Tony Dawson, one of the stars of the Florida State basketball team in the 1988-89 season, achieved that status despite the fact that his left leg is an inch and a half shorter than his right.

It's due to the fact that as a youngster growing up in Kinston, N.C., Dawson was hit by a car. After surgery, Tony spent his young life in casts and braces while having additional surgery.

Specialized leg exercises and an upper body-weight program helped prepare him for sports.

Joe Jackson, banned for life after the 1919 Black Sox scandal, still made 12 hits in the World Series against Cincinnati, batting .375.

Walsh may be top pick

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The announcement that Miami Hurricanes quarterback Steve Walsh will enter the National Football League draft gives the Dallas Cowboys another option as they decide how to use their No. 1 pick in the upcoming draft.

Walsh, who played quarterback for new Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson at Miami, announced Tuesday he will forego his final season of college eligibility and enter the NFL draft later this month.

And the announcement that Heisman Trophy winner Barry Sanders of Oklahoma State will also be available in the draft opens up even more possibilities for the Cowboys, who qualified for the No. 1 draft choice with a 3-13 finish, worst in the NFL, last season.

Johnson said Tuesday night that Walsh will become a productive player in the NFL, but stopped short of saying he would consider using the team's No. 1 choice to draft Walsh.

The Cowboys earlier appeared to be leaning toward signing UCLA quarterback Troy Aikman, but Tuesday they had the additional options of Walsh or Sanders.

Walsh, who led Miami to the 1987 national championship, made his decision nearly five weeks after Johnson left the Hurricanes to become the second head coach of the Cowboys.

Johnson, who has been evasive when answering questions about the Cowboys' No. 1 pick, continued to sidestep the issue when informed of Walsh's decision.

"Steve Walsh was an outstanding player for us at the University of Miami," said Johnson, who was out of town scouting prospective draft picks. "There is no question he is a winner. I feel he will be a productive player in the NFL."

"As far as our draft, we have not announced what we will do and will not do so until April 23. We are still evaluating."

New Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said not long after he bought the team that they might draft Walsh if Aikman wants too much money to sign, but later said he merely used Walsh's name as an example.

"Jimmy Johnson is now the coach of the Cowboys and he will do what he thinks is best for the team," Cowboys president Tex Schramm said.

Scott leads Astros to 10-3 win Tuesday

By JIM DONAGHY
AP Sports Writer

Mike Scott didn't have his best stuff, but the Houston Astros still got their money's worth.

On Monday, Scott signed a contract extension worth $3.925 million, and on Tuesday night the right-hander opened the season for Houston and beat the Atlanta Braves 10-3 at the Astrodome. He will be paid $1.3 million for this season.

In seven innings, he fanned seven but walked four and allowed solo homers to Tommy Gregg and Ron Gant.

"I've thrown worse and I've thrown better, but the runs early helped," Scott said. "Having the luxury of a good lead was nice."

Glenn Davis was 2-for-4 with two RBIs and three runs scored for the Astros. Billy Hatcher had three hits.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Montreal 6, Pittsburgh 5; Chicago 5, Philadelphia 4; and San Francisco 8, San Diego 3.

Scott helped his own cause with a two-run single in the third inning to give the Astros a 3-0 lead.

"It's nice to know he can win without his best stuff," said Art Howe, who made his managerial debut for Houston. "After all we heard about spring training, it's nice to come out on top."

In the seventh, Gregg homered over the right field fence as Scott appeared to tire.

"His control was not good, but it was smart," Gregg said. "He got the fastball up and came back with the split finger."

"He's Mike Scott. What else can you say? When his split finger is on, he's tough to hit."

Expos 6, Pirates 5

Tim Raines drew a bases-loaded walk in the ninth inning from reliever Jeff Robinson as Montreal opened the season with a victory over visiting Pittsburgh.

"I think if this had been last year, I would have tried to win the ball game myself," Raines said. "I think I learned from last year that what's important to me is to get my walks, too, and lay off bad pitches."

The Expos trailed 5-4 entering the bottom of the ninth. But they tied the game on Damaso Garcia's bases-loaded single with two outs in the ninth. Robinson then walked Raines on a 3-2 pitch to force in the winning run.

Barry Bonds had four hits for Pittsburgh, including a solo homer off Joe Hesketh in the eighth that gave the Pirates a 5-4 lead.

Cubs 5, Phillies 4

Mitch Williams struck out the side in the ninth after loading the bases with none out as Chicago held at Wrigley Field to beat Philadelphia, spoiling Nick Leyva's managerial debut.

Williams, who came on in the eighth after Mike Schmidt's 543rd homer cut it to 5-4, went 1 2-3 innings. He gave up three straight hits to load the bases in the ninth, but struck out Schmidt, Chris James and Mark Ryal for his first NL save.

Andre Dawson hit his 299th homer for the Cubs. The homer came in the fourth inning off loser Floyd Youmans after Rync Sandberg had opened the inning with a double.

Rick Sutcliffe won his second straight Wrigley Field opener.

Giants 8, Padres 3

In his San Diego debut, Bruce Hurst allowed eight runs and 10 hits, including consecutive home runs by Will Clark and Kevin Mitchell in a six-run, San Francisco third inning. The Padres signed Hurst to a three-year contract last December worth $5.25 million.

Kelly Downs held the Padres to six hits and three walks with six strikeouts in making his first start since missing the final six weeks last season with a shoulder injury.

NEAR NO-HITTERS

NEW YORK (AP) - It was a close but no cigar year in baseball for pitchers trying for a no-hitter.

The 1988 season saw eight near no-hitters as seven pitchers reached the ninth inning before being touched for a hit. Dave Stieb of Toronto did it twice. The others were Ron Robinson of Cincinnati, Doug Drabek of Pittsburgh, Odell Jones of Milwaukee, Tom Browning of Cincinnati and Mike Scott of Houston.

Nolan Ryan of Houston, the all-time leader in no-hitters with five, also went into the ninth on April 27 against the Phillies before Mike Schmidt singled with one out.

Five NFL quarterbacks have thrown seven touchdown passes in one game. They were Sid Luckman, Adrian Burk, George Blanda, Joe Kapp and Y.A. Tittle.

Hough teases Tigers in Texas win

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Everything's new about the Texas Rangers except Charlie Hough's old knuckleball.

Tom Landry's first pitch had to bounce to home plate but the 41-year-old Hough's knuckleball bedazzled the Detroit Tigers in a 4-0 opening-night victory before 40,375 fans.

New owners George Bush III and Rusty Rose sat in a box with former owner Eddie Chiles after Landry, the fired Dallas Cowboys' coach, threw out the first ball.

Hough scattered five hits for his 11th career shutout and first since 1986. Texas hadn't had a shutout in an opener since Doyle Alexander and Jim Kern combined for one in 1979, beating Cleveland 5-0.

Detroit hadn't been blanked in an opener since 1975.

Detroit's Freddie Lynn said he had never seen Hough any better.

"He was as good as I've seen him," Lynn said. "The knuckleball was breaking all over."

Hough, throwing into a strong north wind, said at times the knuckleball wouldn't behave.

"I had a rough time out there feel-wise; I didn't feel comfortable," Hough said. "I threw the good pitches when I had to. That old knuckleball can come and go."

Hough even called on a seldom-used pitch, a fastball.

"When we got a four run lead, I threw the fastball to make them hit it," Hough said. "I stayed with the fastball because I was having a tough time with the knuckleball. I caught Detroit looking a lot."

Scott Fletcher knocked in three runs for the Rangers and Rafael Palmeiro, obtained in an off-season trade with the Chicago Cubs, delivered a run-scoring double.

Jack Morris, who yielded only six hits, took the loss.

Buddy Bell got his 2,500th major league hit on a seventh-inning single.

"I'll look at it 20 years from now and I'll remember I got it off a tremendous pitcher," Bell said.

Detroit manager Sparky Anderson said when Hough is in a groove he's hard to stop.

"Charlie was the whole story," Anderson said. "I thought he pitched awful good. I thought Jack was good but Charlie was outstanding."

Torey Lovullo, who broke his bat on one of Hough's pitches, said "that's never happened to me before. I swung as hard as I could. Everything he threw looked really good to hit but they never ended up where you thought they would. They looked so good to hit."

Morris, making his 10th opening-day start for the Tigers, dropped to 7-3 in that category.

Fletcher's two-run double scored two runs in the third, Rafael Palmeiro doubled across a run in the fifth, and Fletcher produced a run-scoring single in the seventh.

"I can't pitch a whole lot better than that," Morris said. "The big things were they got the hits when they needed 'em down the lines."

"Hough had his best command tonight. He stayed ahead of every hitter. Charlie was on and when he gets that thing dancing it's awfully hard to hit. Charlie pitched better. It's the best I've seen him."

Rangers' manager Bobby Valentine said, "We got four runs against a pretty good pitcher."

Valentine said Hough "was spectacular."

"Charlie had a good knuckleball and his bad pitches were just off the plate so they couldn't hit him," Valentine said. "It was a great way to start a new era."

Both Texas and Detroit will be idle Wednesday with Nolan Ryan making his debut for the Rangers on Thursday night against Jeff Robinson.

Lyle ready to defend Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) - Sandy Lyle of Scotland is rested and loose as he prepares to defend his Masters golf championship. But he does have one concern.

"I just don't want to make a fool of myself shooting 84 the first day," Lyle said Tuesday.

"I'm not nervous. I don't think I'm quite as sharp with the game as I was last year, but I'm not far off it. I've had two weeks rest and a chance to work on my game."

Lyle will try to become only the second player to repeat as champion when the 53rd Masters gets underway Thursday with an international field of 86 players, including five amateurs.

Jack Nicklaus included successive titles in 1965 and 1966 among his record six Masters championships.

"It just means you've got everything to do again," Lyle said of his role as the defending champion.

Tarpley receives clearance

DALLAS (AP) - Mavericks forward Roy Tarpley can return to playing basketball, but only in practice sessions for now, team officials said.

Tarpley, suspended by the NBA for a drug-related violation, was informed Tuesday that he will be allowed to work out with teammates.

But Tarpley, who has missed 46 games since being suspended Jan. 5 for failure to comply with a league-mandated after-care program, still will not be allowed to even watch the Mavericks play in real games.

Tarpley will be on hand when the Mavericks work out Thursday morning, said Kevin Sullivan, director of media services for the team.

Dr. Dave Lewis of the ASAP Family Treatment Program in Van Nuys, Calif., told the team on Tuesday that Tarpley could start attending workouts.

"Roy to date has been in complete compliance with his after-care plan and we want him to continue that recovery plan," Lewis said.

"We want him to begin to practice with the team and see how he handles that situation. We will continue to assess his progress. If he continues to be in compliance, we'll go to the next step."

The suspension has been a costly one for the Mavs and Tarpley. The Dallas team has been without a key rebounder and clutch shooter, who won last year's league sixth man award. And Tarpley has lost $6,300 for each missed game.

as a clear-cut favorite to claim the green coat that goes to the player who carves out the best score for 72 holes on the storied Augusta National Golf Club course, a 6,905-yard, par-72 layout.

British oddsmakers have made Seve Ballesteros of Spain, a two-time champion, and Greg Norman of Australia, one of the top players in the world who hasn't won at Augusta, 8-1 favorites.

U.S. Open champion Curtis Strange, the first player to win $1 million in a season on the PGA Tour, doing it last year, was 12-1, and Lyle and Mark Calcavecchia, last year's runner-up, were 14-1.

Strange, the tour's leading money winner in three of the last four years, is winless this season. He did put together three consecutive third-place finishes in Florida this winter.

Ballesteros finished third at Houston last week, only his fourth event in the United States this season.

Norman, apparently recovered from the wrist injury that sidelined him for two months last year, tied for second two weeks ago at New Orleans and tied for fourth in the Players Championship, an event won by Kite.

Kite, who also won at Bay Hill the week before the Players, has a history of playing well at the Masters. He has finished second twice and has been fifth or better nine times in his previous 16 Masters.

"I have no idea what it takes to win," Kite said. "I know you have to play well and get some breaks. I feel like I'm playing well. I'm on a golf course I like. Whether that translates into a win or not, I have no idea."

Calcavecchia won tour events at Phoenix and Los Angeles earlier in the season and had an opportunity to win two other events. But he has missed the cut in three of his last five outings. He took off the last two weeks to prepare for Augusta.

Others to watch in the season's first major championship are former champions Ben Crenshaw and Craig Stadler, Hal Sutton, Paul Azinger, Fred Couples and Bruce Lietzke.

Arnold Palmer, who won his fourth Masters 25 years ago, will be making his 35th Masters start. Nicklaus is appearing for the 31st time.

Styles long, loose, romantic

By DANIELA PETROFF
AP Fashion Writer
ROME (AP)--While the mini-skirt is still a hot item on the streets of Italy, despite the temperatures, the shop windows are showing a spring and summer of 1989 that will be long, loose and romantic.

The new look for the warmer days ahead, proposed by the top Italian designers at their ready-to-wear presentations in Milan and already appearing in Rome's more exclusive shops, is soft and serene.

Gone is the aggressiveness of a bold hemline, a hugged hip or a padded shoulder. Instead, the accent is on a rounded silhouette, with small shoulders, gently tapered waistline and long hemline. Super-soft fabrics underline the ethereal quality of the new look, as does the predominance of rose and cream-colored shades.

Pants, which competed with the mini craze this winter, continue their popularity for spring and summer. For the most part they are ample, and often cropped at the calf. After a long absence from the fashion scene, hip pants are back again.

Another look from the past is the nautical theme, with high-waisted sailor pants and sailor-suit collars on crisp white blouses and jackets. The color here is rigorously navy blue, or navy and white stripes. Nautical symbols appear in prints and on jewelry.

After the freedom of the mini-skirt, Italian designers are calling on women to hark back to the discipline of their school days in prim, perfectly pleated linen suits and dresses with demure white collars.

Topped by a broad-brimmed straw hat, white gloves and flat shoes, the look oozes innocence.

Naturally, at night these school girls blossom into blushing debutantes in diaphanous strapless ballgowns right out of the 1950s.

There also is the ethnic lure, a purely South Seas summer look that will appear in the shops later this year, here sarong skirts, bandeau bras, and hip pants abound. Gay jungle prints are de rigueur, as are bold citrus shades. Jewelry is laden with riches from the sea.

To go with the general toned-down spring-summer 1989 Italian look, heels are predominantly flat, hair styles neat and makeup natural. The simplicity of the clothes is dressed up by heavy gold and silver jewelry as well as the ethnic beads.

Spring price tags haven't gone down, but efforts by the designers to contain the hike and a stronger dollar keep figures only slightly above last year's price list. By day, an Italian designer ready-to-wear outfit, made up of skirt blouse and jacket will cost an average of $2,000, while by night prices range from $3,000 for the simpler gowns to above $10,000 for the more elaborate embroidered versions.

Some tips of where to look for what in your local shops:

Armani, the softest daytime suits on the market in breezy silk tweeds, beautiful beaded jackets, and dreamy debutante gowns in wispy chiffon.

Byblos, the place to go for ethnic lore with tropical wraparound skirts, bandeau bras and calypso pants.

Fendi, perfection of the school-girl look with meticulously pleated linen suits by day embellished by linen with lace collars and floral embroidery.

Ferre, the nautical expert of the season with his almost exclusive preference for navy blue, his new high-waisted sailor suit trousers, and the profuse use of nautical symbols on prints and jewelry.

Krizia, a young sporty look in daytime jackets and jumpers. Milan's prettiest evening gown in tea rose silk organza.

Versace, The best selection of high waisted pants and skirts. Nighttime's most seductive spring look in transparent chiffon blouses.

Safety belt use prudent

Driver safety belt use in the United States has increased to a record 43 percent, according to the Department of Transportation (DOT). According to DOT, safety belts saved the lives of about 4,000 front seat passenger car occupants in 1987, and about 11,000 from 1983 through 1987.

Meanwhile, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) is considering whether or not to propose requirements for added protection for cars and light truck passengers in side collisions. NHTSA is looking at strengthening requirements for door latches, window frames and glass, among other items.

Collage-"glueing"-was introduced to easel painting by Picasso in 1912 as a way of incorporating the emblems of ordinary modern life into the abstract world of Cubism.

The planners have set "The Times of Your Life" as the theme of the upcoming pageant, which will begin at 7 p.m. in the Hereford High School auditorium. Men's fashions influenced by Bush presidency

The Bush presidency will influence men's fashions this spring and summer, says Richard Lehrer, president of Custom Design Service Ltd. of New York, manufacturer and retailer of custom shirts for men.
 Look for a return to French cuffs on men's shirts, he says, with the cuff link adding a bit of light and a "richness" to a man's suit.
 White shirts will continue to be popular, says Lehrer, with "white on white" for evening wear.
 He predicts that a majority of men will wear monograms for a "touch of individuality."
 J.C. Penney promotes a shorts story for men's sportswear this spring and summer.

 "Shorts will be an extremely strong influence for men and will represent about 40 percent of the 'bottoms business' for young men," says Randy Ronning, men's fashion director of J.C. Penney, from biking shorts to the traditional look.
 As for colors, "neons, bolds and brights have emerged and taken over," Ronning says.
 Black and white is still dominant, says Dolores Ware, managing director of the Color Association, but even in menswear, "there's a shift from the primary colors to the secondary ones, such as greens, oranges and purples. Those colors could make up the big combinations of the new decade."

SKYLINES ARE CHANGING
 COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The skylines of six Ohio cities are being altered by a downtown construction boom.
 Akron, Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Dayton and Toledo all have large-scale commercial development projects either underway or planned.
 Cleveland's nine construction jobs include 60-story and 54-story towers, together million.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE
 NEW YORK (AP) - European Plan (EP), American Plan (AP) and Modified American Plan (MAP) are the standard names for meal plans offered by hotels and resorts.
 They also are among the most misunderstood terms in travel, says the Travel & Leisure Information Center.
 Simply put, EP means no meals are included in the room rate.

ROBOTS WITH VISION
 ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) - Scientists have been trying for years without much success to create "seeing" robots.
 Recently, however, researchers at the University of Rochester achieved two advances. The "Rochester Robot" now can judge depth and can maintain a steady image of a moving object.
 While robots are commonly used to perform routine tests again and again, the Rochester team wants to create a robot that can interact with its environment, as people and animals do. Vision is a basic, necessary tool.
 Eventually, the team hopes the robot will be able to respond to and manipulate objects in its environment, such as balloons and toy trains.

Awareness key to consumer sense

Some lucky people pride themselves on their "consumer sense." They have "a nose for bargains" and they enjoy bragging about the great deals they find and the money they save on purchases.

Others aren't so fortunate. They wonder why their money doesn't last, why their dollars don't stretch as far as they should. Their "bargain" purchases turn out to be junk, and they don't know how to find a real bargain that will give them value for their dollars.

How is the smart consumer different from the one who is not so smart? Consumer sense has very little to do with intelligence or education, and a lot to do with awareness.

The smart consumer is always aware of his or her power as a consumer. Some people believe that companies are more powerful than consumers, that shoppers adapt to the marketplace, rather than the marketplace adapting to shoppers' needs. This is not true.

Companies could not survive without consumers, and they make every effort to meet the needs of the people who keep them in business. The smart consumer speaks up when he or she is not satisfied with products or services.

Smart companies and businesses want to know when their customers aren't happy, because they know that unhappy customers will go elsewhere eventually. The smart consumer who complains without getting satisfactory results doesn't hesitate to switch brands or stop patronizing a business.

Smart consumers are aware of their rights as consumers. Government agencies, local consumer groups and organizations and the Better Business Bureau can provide information about consumers' rights.

Smart consumers are aware of their choices. They know what products and services are available, and they "do their homework." Before the smart consumer makes a purchase, he or she researches the options, acquires in-depth product knowledge and does some comparison shopping to find the best product or service at the best price.

Smart consumers are aware that some "bargains" turn out to be very costly. A bargain purchase isn't a bargain at all if the product doesn't last as long as it should, or doesn't work the way it's supposed to. The cheapest product on the market may need to be replaced or repaired much more often than a more expensive, better-quality product does.

Similarly, the smart consumer may take advantage of coupons and rebates, but he or she won't make a purchase solely because of them. Even with a coupon or rebate, a product may not be the best value, or it may not be the product that best meets the needs of an individual consumer.

Smart consumers are aware that brand names usually offer the best value. Companies spend a great deal of money and effort building their reputations, and they want their customers to be happy and to pass the word along to friends and relatives. A reputable company makes every effort to resolve consumer complaints and to respond to consumer demand.

Smart consumers are aware of their own spending patterns. People are more likely to buy on impulse or to make unwise purchases when they are tired, rushed, depressed or feeling pressured, or when suddenly confronting with the word "sale."

A person with consumer sense stays out of the stores when he or she is feeling vulnerable. And, while it is often possible to get great bargains when there are sales, the smart consumer does not buy something just because it's offered at a fantastically low price, but because it is something which he or she already was planning to buy.

The smart consumer uses salespeople as resources for information and advice. A knowledgeable salesperson may have valuable "inside information" about products, which can help the consumer to make the best decision.

Most salespeople are reputable professionals who want their customers to keep coming back. The smart consumer develops good relationships with a few trusted salespeople and listens to their advice, but usually relies on his or her own judgment.

The smart consumer is aware that he or she has responsibilities as a consumer. The consumer has a responsibility to let companies and businesses know when he or she is unhappy with their products and services. Making one's voice heard is the best way to ensure one's future satisfaction.

And, of course, the consumer has a responsibility to himself or herself, to make every dollar count and to spend sensibly.

Barbara Bush brings classic tradition to White House

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Barbara Bush's fashion style is the perfect match for a no-nonsense Yankee patrician who favors the quiet elegance of a strand of pearls over eye-popping rhinestones and sequins.

"I'm not going to turn into a glamorous princess," Mrs. Bush remarked last summer. And after eight years of Nancy Reagan's high-gloss look, conservative New York fashion designers are breathing a sigh of relief.

"She brings a New England classic tradition to the White House instead of Hollywood glitz," said Gerald Brenner, a vice president of Adele Simpson's salon on Seventh Avenue, where Mrs. Bush has shopped for years.

"She likes simple, uncluttered clothes," Brenner said in a telephone interview. "I think she's sensational. There's nothing phony about her. She's a very nice, down-to-earth lady who happens to be very bright. She always looks good."

Canadian-born couturier Arnold Scaasi, who designed most of Mrs. Bush's wardrobe for inauguration week, says the new first lady dresses to please herself.

"I don't think she's ever going to follow the fad," Scaasi said in a telephone interview from New York. "She's going to wear what looks well on her, what suits her."

The designers say Mrs. Bush prefers classical, traditional clothing, shirtwaist dresses, three-piece suits and the like, and likes all bright colors, especially blue. Her dresses cover the knee, no matter whether hemlines are rising or falling.

Her trademark is a triple strand of pearls. "They're fake, and she'll be the first to tell you that," said Brenner.

"I think she has a very good taste," said Scaasi. "She knows very much what she likes and what she doesn't like. She feels good about herself. She's a very warm, very open and very intelligent woman with a great sense of humor. She approaches dressing that way, too."

The first lady's press secretary, Anna Perez, said Mrs. Bush declined to discuss her fashion preferences with a reporter.

"She likes to look attractive, like most other women, but it's not a consuming passion in her life," Ms. Perez said. "She'd rather talk about other things."

Bill Blass, another of the first lady's favorite designers, agrees.

"I don't think clothes will be her preoccupation," he said recently. Blass designed the simple, teal-blue wool coat and collarless, cream-colored wool dress that Mrs. Bush wore to her husband's swearing-in as president.

Mrs. Bush, 63, wears a size 12 and laughingly calls herself "a full-figured woman." She wears the lightest of makeup, eats heartily, laughs boisterously and enjoys a good joke, often at her own expense.

"What you see with me is what you get," she says.

She recently told reporters that her style is getting some public applause.

"My mail tells me a lot of fat, white-haired, wrinkled ladies are tickled pink," she said. "They're very sweet. I think it makes them feel better about themselves. I mean, look at me, if I can be a success, so can they."

She poked fun at her appearance again during a pre-inaugural "Salute to the First Lady" at the Kennedy Center.

"Speaking of glamor, I want you to look at me very carefully," she told her audience as she opened the jacket of her Scaasi-designed blue suit.

"Please notice the hair, the makeup, designer clothes," she said.

"I want you to watch me all week and remember, you may never see it again."

Names in the News

DETROIT (AP) - Mayor Coleman A. Young says he doesn't believe he fathered a child born six years ago to a former city employee, according to court papers.

In a brief filed Monday in Wayne County Circuit Court, Young also asked for a jury trial of the lawsuit filed Jan. 27 by Annivory Calvert and that Calvert pay his legal expenses stemming from the paternity suit.

Calvert, 34, filed the suit shortly before leaving Detroit to become director of public works in Fontana, Calif. She seeks to establish Young, 70, as father of the child identified as Joel Loving and obtain support for the boy.

In the brief, attorneys for Young said the mayor "neither admits nor denies the allegation" because he is "without sufficient knowledge or information." Young, who has said he dated Calvert, "does not believe that he is the father," the brief said.

Calvert's child is 6 years old. She said she withheld legal action until moving to California to protect her child's interests.

Young had no children from either of his two marriages, which ended in divorce before he was elected mayor in 1973.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) - Clara Hale, who has provided a home for hundreds of drug-addicted babies, is being hailed as the winner of this year's Truman Award for Public Service.

Her choice was announced Monday in Independence, the Kansas City suburb that was the home to the late President Truman.

Mrs. Hale, 83, is founder of Hale House, a refuge in New York City for infants and toddlers born addicted. She and her daughter, Lorraine Hale, will receive the award May 6 at the Truman Library and Museum.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Oscar-winning actor Timothy Hutton, who sued MGM for allegedly deceiving him in 1983 about the demise of the motion picture "Roadshow," has been awarded $9.75 million in damages from the studio.

A jury found Friday that the studio committed fraud and breach of contract.

Hutton, who won an Academy Award for his role in the film "Ordinary People," said studio executives told him the picture, about a modern-day cattle drive, was being called off because director Richard Brooks had suffered a heart attack. Actually, MGM lost interest in the movie after a change of management, the actor said.

The monthlong trial included testimony from other "Roadshow" actors, including Jack Nicholson. Nicholson resolved matters with MGM several years ago, the Los Angeles Times reported Sunday.

MGM is now owned by Turner Broadcasting.

NEW YORK (AP) - Liz Claiborne Inc. soon won't have Liz Claiborne as boss.

Ms. Claiborne, 59, said Sunday she will retire in June as chairwoman and president of the major clothing design house she founded. She is one of the few female chief executives of a major U.S. company.

The company also announced that Ms. Claiborne's husband, Arthur Ortenberg, who co-founded the company, will retire from his position as vice chairman of the board of directors. Both will remain as board members, the company said.

"We are looking forward to making time to devote to personal interests and to enjoying the fruits of our labors," the couple said in a statement.

Vice Chairman Jerome A. Chazen will become chairman upon Ms. Claiborne's retirement, the company said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Nancy Dickerson, the first woman TV news correspondent and now a commentator for Fox Television, has married former Deputy Secretary of State John C. Whitehead.

The couple was married Saturday at Dickerson's home in Washington.

In 1960, she became the first woman TV correspondent, covering Washington, political conventions and civil rights for CBS and then for NBC. Whitehead, who until last month was the deputy secretary of state, is the chairman of AEA Investors Inc., a New York investment company.

Designer eyewear the rage

By The Associated Press
Times, and designs, have changed since Dorothy Parker warned that men seldom make passes at girls who wear glasses.

The Optical Manufacturers Association says there were 63 million pair of eyeglasses sold in the United States in 1987.

Nowadays, the hotter the sunglasses, the cooler the look.

Clothes designer Giorgio Armani, for example, now markets some 40 models of men's and women's prescription eyewear and sunglasses, under the Giorgio Armani Occhiali label.

His glasses compete with those carrying the names of other clothes designers, Haiston, Givenchy, Ralph Lauren, Anne Klein and Perry Ellis, as well as celebrities from actress Sophia Loren to model Cheryl Tiegs.

Though fashion and design are important, eye protection should also be considered when shopping for sunglasses, says the American Optometric Association.

When buying sunglasses, the association says, make sure they're impact-resistant, even "industrial strength" for the active wearer.

Dark lenses are recommended by the group, which says sunglasses should screen out 75 to 90 percent of the sunlight. If the eyes can be seen clearly through the lenses, they're probably not dark enough.

The eyeglass frames should be large enough to keep sunlight from reaching the eyes, but the temple pieces should not block side vision, the association advises.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: As usual, your sanctimonious, holier-than-thou attitude got in the way of your good sense. I refer to your response to the reader who was upset when she saw, seated at the next table in a restaurant, a man without arms who was eating with his feet.

When people go to a nice place for dinner, the last thing they want to see is some freak who belongs in a sideshow. If that man without arms had any consideration for others, he would not subject them to such an unappetizing sight. Unfortunately, handicapped people around the nation have been brainwashed by bleeding hearts like you who have made them believe they are "just like everybody else" and welcome everywhere.

If I ever saw a sight like that I would leave the restaurant. — A.H. IN O. CITY

DEAR A.H.: You are entitled to your opinion, but it might interest you to know that I received more than 6,000 responses to that column, and you and a woman in Brookfield, Wis., were the only two who felt that the man did not belong in the restaurant.

I hope you never become handicapped. But come to think of it, you already have a more serious handicap than the man in the restaurant who had no arms. You have no heart.

Dear Ann Landers: You've had several letters in your column these last few months from women who get beat up by their husbands.

I'll tell you how I solved the problem. Nine out of 10 men who beat their wives would think twice before doing it again if the wives would do what I did.

My husband socked me in the jaw when I was six months pregnant. I picked up a table lamp and cracked it over his head. He was shocked that I would do such a thing and stood there speechless. I looked him in the eye and said, "You will never hit me again." And he didn't.

We will celebrate our 57th wedding anniversary next month. — MRS. C. IN NEWARK

DEAR MRS. C.: Apparently braining your husband with a lamp worked for you. Fifty-seven years is a long time and I can't argue with success. But I don't recommend your approach to others.

Violence begets violence. Many women would end up getting beaten to a pulp if they attempted to do what you did. The safest way to escape the wrath of a wife-beater is to get out.

Are you having a problem finding a gift for the person who has everything? Ann Landers' new booklet, "Gems," is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. "Gems" is a collection of Ann Landers' most requested poems and essays. Send $4 plus a self-addressed stamped business-size envelope (65 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.
