IF YOU READ the comic strip "Johnny Wonder" in the Brand Sunday, you may have noticed that Clinton Barker Jr. of Hereford was listed as the winner of the week's "prize question." Clinton asked: "Why do tigers have stripes?" The answer was given in the panel.

Our reporter tried to contact Clinton, but was unable to secure an address or phone number. We wanted a picture and comment from the young reader, who won a radio for having his question selected for print.

IN A RECENT column, we reported that the Federal Highway Administration was mapping out plans to convert all highway speed signs to the metric system. However, under a barrage of public protest, the highway agency changed its mind and scrapped the plans for the proposed September 1978 conversion. Nevertheless, it is still the avowed policy of the government to convert to the metric system.

IT APPEARS the 50-cent piece and perhaps even the penny are doomed to extinction under other government plans. The Treasury Department, in a letter to Congress, stated the position of the Administration as favoring the minting of conveniently sized dollar coins and eliminating the half dollar.

As for the penny, the treasury explains it costs about two-thirds of a cent to mint the coin today, and it is estimated that by 1982 the cost to mint a penny will be more than its face value. However, a consumer-impact study remains to be made. Some economists say elimination of the penny would be inflationary because retailers would round off their prices to the next highest five cents.

THE PROPOSAL to deregulate natural gas prices failed because of "party politics", claims U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels. Krueger, who is seeking election to the U.S. Senate in 1978, appeared at a meeting of the West Texas Press Association in Midland Saturday.

Queen Stages Risky Irish Visit

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II arrived in war-torn Northern Ireland aboard the royal yacht Britannia today for a Jubilee visit and what may be the two most dangerous days of her life.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army's radical Provisional wing has promised to unleash "a blitz to remember," and 32,000 police and troops were on full alert to guard the monarch and her family against any violence.

Police reported sporadic violence across Northern Ireland in the early hours before the queen's visit but no major incidents. "The tension is so thick here you can almost cut it with a knife," said an army officer in one West Belfast district that is an IRA stronghold.

Queen Elizabeth was flown by helicopter to Hillsborough Castle, 12 miles from Belfast, and there set foot on Northern Irish soil for the first time in 11 years. Hundreds of flag-waving youngsters welcomed her at the castle, former residence of British governors.

A 21-gun salute greeted the royal yacht.

Queen Elizabeth was accompanied by her husband, Prince Philip, and two youngest children, Prince Albert, 17, and Prince Edward, 13.

It was the first time the 51-year-old queen has been in an area where troops are engaged in active combat.

School Board Closer To Depository Decision

By KEITH RIBNICK
Brand Staff Writer

Where the Hereford Independent School District is going to put its money in the upcoming fiscal year came closer to being decided Tuesday evening when the school board of trustees examined the only bank depository contract bid it has received to date.

First National Bank of Hereford has submitted the bid thus far and it is likely the trustees will accept it. Jim Sears, FNB president, was interviewed by the board in the latter part of Tuesday's regular session in the high school library.

Consideration of the final one-third of the school policy manual and several progress reports consumed most of the meeting Tuesday.

Fred Fox, tax assessor-collector for the Hereford Independent School District, told the board delinquent taxes collected for July totalled $20,011 ($18,079 in taxes and $1,931 in penalties). The yearly tax total has reached $2,971,437, with more than 93 per cent collected.

Fox also reported that since September, $71,913 has been collected in delinquent school taxes.

Larry Wartes, assistant superintendent, reported on the cafeteria financial situation for the district. Though the HISD cafeteria inventories are higher than ever, the total cash figure is down but Wartes told the board he doesn't think that cafeterias would need to hike lunch prices.

Wartes added that cafeteria personnel Tuesday completed a sanitation workshop sponsored by the state regional health center in Canyon.

City school bus drivers now must have state certificate before they are allowed to drive. Wartes said while presenting the transportation report. He added that most of the district's bus drivers already are certified.

Wartes, who also gave the building report, said that the new school administration building should be completed by Thursday, Aug. 25, the first day of school.

The school board approved the following transfers: Louis Montano from Bluebonnet Elementary assistant principal to the central school office as a bilingual co-ordinator. Robert Stewart from music instructor at Bluebonnet to assistant principal and Robert Ray from West Central Elementary assistant principal to principal.

Bill McCarty was promoted from principal at West Central Elementary to Stanton Junior High principal, replacing Eugene Barkowsky who resigned to accept the principalship at Lamesa High School.

Five of the nine Hereford schools now have a new set of administrative personnel even though only two administrators have left the Hereford school system.

The board approved the hirings of Kim

Jones at Bluebonnet, Theresa Vines at La Plata Junior High, Royce Martinez at Stanton, Jay K. Thompson at Stanton, Barbara Dickerson at the high school and Vicki O'Hair at the high school.

Superintendent Dr. Harrell Holder gave the board some suggestions for selecting an insurance program for HISD employees. The board decided last week in a special meeting to purchase group health insurance for all school personnel.

An insurance Committee comprised of three school board members, Holder, an administrative representative, representatives from the Texas State Teachers Association and Classroom Teachers Association and an auxiliary employe (an aide) will be named this week.

Bill Phillips, assistant superintendent and business manager for the schools, will select the auxiliary employe.

Rain Dampers Heat

By JIM STEIERT

A thunderstorm which moved in from the west Tuesday evening brought relief from the oppressive heat of recent days and welcome moisture for local crops.

The cloudburst was the traditional late summer rainstorm, complete with a brilliant display of lightning and loud claps of thunder. A striking double rainbow arched across the eastern sky following the downpour.

The storm deposited moisture over a wide area of Deaf Smith County, with the largest moisture accumulations in the immediate Hereford area.

Rain also fell in areas of the county which have missed out on the majority of this summer's precipitation, but for the most part, the county's dryland areas to the west of Hereford failed to receive sorely needed rainfall.

Rainfall reports varied widely within the Hereford community, with KPAN radio logging only .30 inches of moisture at its studios on East Fifth.

At the other extreme, the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant recorded 1.10 inches of moisture, and another report of 1.10 inches was received in the northwest portion of the city.

A rainfall total of .70 inches was measured on property farmed by Griffin

Zinser Making College Look Easy... Already

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Phillip Zinser, the last Hereford High School senior to receive his diploma in May, may be the first in his class to graduate from college.

Zinser already has accumulated 21 college hours, putting himself only nine hours away from becoming a sophomore, by taking examinations at West Texas last month.

Actually, he has 15 hours. But the 18-year-old agriculture economics major, who has yet to sit through a collegiate class period, knows the other six hours are as good as his.

"They haven't graded those tests but I'll probably get those six hours. They were pretty easy. And I did well enough on the other tests."

"I exceeded my own expectations. I figured they'd be hard tests. They haven't been easy, though. They've been interesting and challenging. My grades have turned out real well."

The tests were sponsored by the College Entrance Examination Bureau and allowed students to be at WTSU to get a few courses out of the way.

Zinser, valedictorian last year at Hereford High School, breezed through American History, American Government, English Composition, Trigonometry and Algebra. He received six hours for English and history, three hours for the rest.

"They really weren't the kind of tests you can study for. You pass them through the knowledge you have to have gained through the years," said Zinser.

who plans to be a farmer after graduation from West Texas State.

Betty Mercer, Zinser's senior counselor in high school, said she is not surprised about his college accomplishment.

"Knowing Phillip, it's not amazing. Six hours is average for these tests but he's done this through application and superior ability," said Mrs. Mercer.

"You can see what he's done—he's saved a semester on campus."

Zinser probably won't try to finish college sooner than he would had he not taken the examinations.

"I took the tests so that when I get up there, I can spend a little more time taking the classes I want to take—so I won't have to take all the required courses while I take my electives," Zinser said.

Mrs. Mercer called him "very unpretentious, one of the most unassuming young men I've ever worked at."

Studying, she said, hasn't been the key, although, "I think Phillip works at it. The grade isn't the end-all and be-all for him. It just comes natural. He's a very teachable youngster."

Zinser said he prayed for guidance before taking each test.

"I'm not that smart. The Lord just helps me a lot."

Ironically, Zinser, who as valedictorian was first in his class, was the last senior to get his diploma because of the alphabetical issuing system.

It was an emotional sight as the senior class stood in an unrehearsed tribute to Zinser.

Life-Saving Course

Employees of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative Tuesday completed a course in cardio pulmonary resuscitation. The course was instructed by John Gilliland, Ronnie Wood, Mike Simpson, Carolyn Hayes and Rosie Griffin. Boyd Collins is safety co-ordinator for Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative. "We have had as many as 250,000 man hours worked without time lost for accidents in the past," said James Hull, Cooperative manager. Hull added that the local business would have more accidents if time were not spent discussing safety. Each employe spends at least five hours per month in safety meetings. Hereford Gives Students Different View of US

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Hereford—its good points probably taken for granted by lot of its residents—provided fascination and some welcome relief last week for 43 Polish students touring the United States as part of the Friendship Ambassadors program.

The students, for most of their three days spent in Hereford, rested. They took a couple of hours out of their much-needed rest time one evening to swim in the Elk's Club pool and afterwards enjoyed a West Texas weeny roast.

Another day was consumed resting (of course) then examining points of interest in and around Hereford—both on the ground and in the air, with members of the Hereford Chamber Singers as the students' guides.

Hereford was described as "an agricultural village" by the group's leader, Mirostaw Nalaek, deputy director of the Travel and Tourism Office (Almatu) in Warsaw.

Hereford was quite a different view of American life for the Polish group which visited Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Phoenix and Albuquerque prior to the short stint in the Texas Panhandle.

Hereford was included in the tour by the Friendship Ambassadors because the Hereford Chamber Singers last month visited Romania on a similar goodwill jaunt.

The students also visited Kernay, Neb., and Provo, Utah, en route to Hereford. From Hereford they went to Fort Worth and Memphis, Tenn., before returning to the homeland.

Nalaek, saying he was speaking for the entire group, was impressed with Hereford, particularly the agricultural aspect of the village.

"The farms, the fields, they have here are very well equipped. This is what we are trying to do in Poland—invest much more money in agriculture because the young people are going away from the villages. They are leaving the farms and going to the big cities," Nalaek said with a heavy accent.

"We have very small and different farms than you have here," he said, adding the main crops in Poland are wheat, sugar beets and potatoes.

Nalaek was graduated from the University of Warsaw with a master's degree in geography.

"Many things have impressed me about the country here. I like to see the changing landscape and the deserts and the salt flats near Salt Lake City (Utah)."

"I didn't like Los Angeles. I didn't like the smog and the size of the city and the condition of living there."

"After these large cities, we love a place like this (Hereford). It's kind of a rest for us. I'd like to underline that the people we met here in Hereford and in San Francisco were very, very friendly people. They liked to see us."

"I like this place."

Nalaek said he would rather live in a large American city than one the size of Hereford.

"I like the big city life, where there is theatrical events to go to, art galleries, plays and things like that. I used to live in a small city in Poland."

Nalaek compared American people to the Polish.

"It's hard to compare because I've only been here two weeks. But I can say that families all over this country were very, very friendly to our students. This is one thing about the people in America."

"Another thing about the people in America is they know very little about Poland. Our students know much more about Americans and other countries."

Why is that? The question was put to Nalaek, who answered, "This should be my question to you. I guess it's a matter of education."

"We are more open than you about what's going on in the world. We can read much more in our newspapers about America and other countries than what you read in the newspapers about Poland."

"In our newspapers we have each day at least one or two news articles about different countries on the front page."

Nalaek considers the United States a nice place to visit but he wouldn't want to

Mystery 'Creature' Claws 15-Year-Old

STILLWELL, Okla. (AP) — "We don't know what to call it. We don't know how to do with it when we find it," Adair County Undersheriff Gary Fain said, referring to a reported mystery creature.

Authorities are investigating a report that a creature described as nine-foot tall, hairy, and having glowing red eyes clawed a 15-year-old boy here.

Several reports of killed and partially slaughtered goats and of missing calves in this area of eastern Oklahoma, near the Arkansas line, are being linked to the investigation, authorities said.

"We don't believe anyone is lying about this," Fain said. Adair County civil defense officials notified the Sasquatch investigation of Mid American Tuesday, hoping to learn if the reported creature could be the legendary Bigfoot.

NY Police Release

Another Composite

NEW YORK (AP) — Police have begun distributing a new composite sketch of the so-called 44-caliber killer and they say there is a 25 per cent chance that the drawing will help catch the woman-hating psychopath who calls himself "Son of Sam."

Chief of Detectives John Keenan said the new sketch is based on descriptions obtained from witnesses to the murderer's latest attack, on July 31. The drawing shows the fiend as a slightly dark, almond-eyed, hollow-cheeked man with an angular face and grim mien.

At first glance, the drawing appears to bear little resemblance to three earlier sketches, "but when you place them side by side you can detect similarities," Keenan said. He said these include the high cheek bones, the tapered and thin face and the set of the eyes.

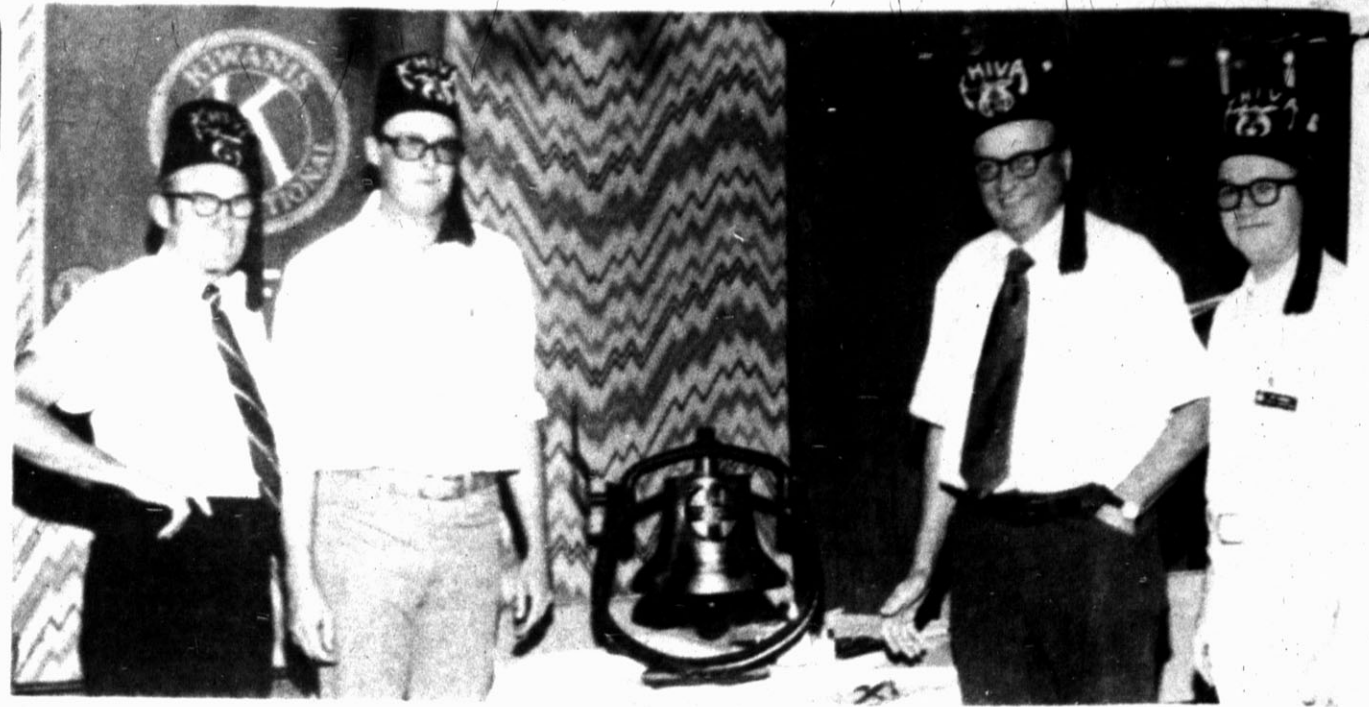

Mailman Selected As

11th Davis Juror

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Only one jury box seat remained vacant today as defense and prosecution lawyers continued the lengthy quest for jurors to hear the capital murder trial of Fort Worth millionaire T. Cullen Davis.

An Amarillo mailman became the 11th juror selected Tuesday. Gilbert Kennedy, 49, was the 109th prospective juror questioned in more than seven weeks of jury selection.

Davis is being tried on a charge accusing him of shooting to death his 12-year-old step-daughter, Andrea Wilborn. The Wilborn girl and former Texas Christian University basketball player Stan Farr were shot to death in the Davis mansion at Fort Worth last August.

Shrine Club Gets Bell

Hereford's Oasis Shrine Club will have a bell for their fire truck, thanks to a recent presentation by Santa Fe Railway. The bell, from an early-model diesel locomotive, was presented to the club at a recent meeting. The Oasis fire truck is used in parades and other activities. Taking part in the

Dayton Firemen Watch Buildings Burn

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Angry residents grabbed garden hoses early today to stop a house fire and two garage fires from spreading through the rest of their neighborhood on the third day of a firemen's strike.

"I wish the mayor was here to see this," said one of the hundreds of residents who congregated at the three blazes. Firemen stood on picket lines Tuesday and watched fire buildings burn. At least eight buildings have burned, leaving as many as 15 families homeless since the 175 firemen walked off their jobs early Monday.

Firemen, who have pledged to fight life-threatening fires, have a "phantom squad" responding to fire calls to ensure that lives are not in danger. But they aren't fighting fires.

Adding to troubles in this city of 241,000 persons was a threat late Tuesday of a strike by the city's 400 union policemen.

Fraternal Order of Police president Ronald Brandenburg said he expected "no reasonable response" to wage demands and on the table for the first time Tuesday.

"We're going to vote on some kind of job action late tonight," Brandenburg said today.

Many residents complained about the strike, despite petitions circulated by firemen asking homeowners to support their position.

"What's the use?" asked a young woman. "Here my husband and I pay up taxes each year. Now, if the house catches fire, it'll just burn."

Montgomery County Common Pleas Court Judge William Wolf Jr. ordered the firemen back to work but then held off until Friday a hearing on the city's request that the strikers be held in contempt of court.

Fire Chief William Hockaday said he and 15 other supervisory personnel were too busy to respond to fire alarms and were "busy just coordinating getting other departments in here."

Hockaday has had limited success trying to get assistance from the 16 neighboring fire departments when an alarm is sounded.

Two departments, police said, refused to respond to his fires early today, and the civilian force at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base said it would take 15 minutes before giving an answer. The air base squad finally arrived to help neighbors fight the fires. At one point Tuesday, youngsters hosed down a two-story apartment building and adjacent shop until the Wright-Patterson crew arrived. The children were credited with preventing the spread of the fire.

The firemen are demanding a cut in their work week from 52 to 50 hours, as well as an increase in the top pay scale from $14,123 to $14,560 a year, and an increase in base pay from $12,043 to $12,480.

The firefighters say their latest demands are half of their original request for a 6 per cent raise and a four-hour cut in their work week. The city has refused to comment on negotiations except to say that firemen were asking for more Tuesday when negotiations broke off than they had asked for on Monday.

"The city of Dayton is forcing a continuation of this strike over seven cents an hour and two hours a week," said Timothy Harker, president of Local 136 of the International Firefighters Association.

Harker said his men will stay off their jobs until good-faith negotiations or binding arbitration are agreed to.

& Brand at the city's northern edge. Rain fell at a steep angle from the west in that area and the gauge may possibly have failed to measure total precipitation, according to a spokesman from that location.

An area to the immediate north of Hereford has failed to receive appreciable moisture most of the summer, but 70 inches fell in last night's storm at the Raymond Schlags farm, five miles north of Hereford.

Some 15 miles north of Hereford, 60 inches of rainfall was reported in the Farmer's Corner vicinity.

The H.L. Hershey farm 13 miles northeast of the city recorded 70 inches of moisture.

To the east of Hereford, the Dawn community received only 40 inches of moisture, but a spokesman for Dawn Co-Op reported that light rain was falling in that community this morning.

The Easter community south of Hereford received its first rainfall since early June last night, according to a spokesman for Easter Grain, who reported a 50-inch accumulation from the Tuesday shower.

"It makes us feel at least it can rain out here again," said the spokesman.

Closer to Hereford, 50 inches of rain was also reported one mile south of the city near the Charles Schlags farm.

In the sprawling dryland country to the west and northwest of Hereford, showers were widely scattered and only fell on isolated areas.

Mrs. Clint Homfeld reported that 50 inches of rain fell at her husband's farm, 47 miles northwest of the city, but added that the moisture-stressed dryland grain sorghum crop is already "pretty well burned up."

The Bill Page farm at Bootleg Corner recorded 10 inches of rainfall, while Bruce Coleman reported that only "a very brief shower" fell at his farm at the Walcott community.

The dryland sorghum is really hurting in fact it is at the critical stage," said Coleman. "With rainfall, some might still recover, but if rain doesn't come soon, the dryland sorghum will be lost," he added.

Dryland farmers can pin some hopes on the weather forecast, which calls for scattered thundershowers and thunderstorms tonight and tomorrow, with cooler conditions.

The West Texas forecast calls for today's high in the mid 80s and the low tonight is expected to be 62.

wanted deregulation offered by a Republican so that party lines would be more clearly drawn, he said.

"The Republicans were either going to win it on their own terms or they were going to force the President to defend his policy in 1978," Krueger said. He added that President Carter "pulled out all stops" in his efforts to block deregulation. In one case, Krueger said, Carter arranged to have the daughter of a committee member invited to the White House to play in Amy Carter's treblehouse.

"This is not my, it's fact, but it probably cost the taxpayers less than some other things," added Krueger.

A slightly better bill may be possible out of the Senate, he said, but any case, Krueger expects the issue to come up again in another year or two. "Congress setting a price for a product" is not going to work, he concluded.

Researchers Check Water-Borne Disease

CANYON, Fall semester registration at West Texas State University will be Aug. 26 and 27 in the WTSU Activities Center.

More than 6,000 students are expected to register for WTSU's 2,000 courses in most facets of agriculture, arts and sciences, business, education, fine arts, nursing and graduate studies.

Included in the fall listing are classes held in Amarillo, Pampa, Borger and Dumas. A special registration for students taking on a WTSU Amarillo campus is Aug. 24 from 7:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. in the American College Vocational Arts campus near the Range Riders Ride.

Those who are taking only the classes offered in the area may register the first class day. Classes begin Aug. 26 and will end with final examinations from Dec. 12 through 15. The last day to register and pay fees is noon Sept. 2. Holidays are Labor Day, Sept. 5, and Thanksgiving, Nov. 23 through Nov. 27.

Fall Registration Scheduled at WTSU

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Researchers at the national Center for Disease Control are investigating a rare disease caused by minute one-celled organisms found in fresh or brackish water which usually cause death.

The disease, called primary amebic meningoencephalitis, is so rare that there are fewer than 100 cases of it on record in the world, and only two reported this year in the United States.

Unless treatment begins almost immediately after diagnosis, death is almost certain, researchers say.

The two cases reported in the United States this year occurred in teen-age girls, one in North Carolina which proved fatal, and the other in Texas where the victim remains in a respirator.

Dr. Michael Schultz, director of the parasitic diseases division at the CDC, said, "It is too early in our understanding of the disease to give advice. It's so rare that we don't want to give general advice."

If an ailment appears to a physician to be the disease, then it should be diagnosed completely before treatment is started."

He said the most successful agent for treating the disease is a drug called amphotericin B.

The disease is diagnosed through laboratory examination of spinal fluids.

Symptoms include malaise, headache, loss of appetite, vomiting, with the headache becoming progressively worse. Then follows coma, respiratory failure and death.

Houston Supe Lauds Salaries

HOUSTON (AP) — A proposed record budget for Houston public schools includes a pay scale the superintendent says is the finest "in this part of the country or anywhere."

Supt. Billy Reagan has recommended a $298 million operating budget that calls for the district's 17,000 employees to receive pay increases averaging 15 per cent over the next two years.

The largest increases approximating 20 per cent would go to secretaries and clerks, with teachers following at 16 per cent and administrators at 13 per cent. Increases for maintenance workers would average 18.5 per cent.

But leaders of two teacher groups said the $14.8 million increase earmarked for teachers is not sufficient if the district is to stick with a 180-day schedule while other school districts are cutting back to 175 days.

"By retaining a calendar five days longer than the state requirement, you are, in effect, cutting teacher pay by $500 a year," said Richard Shaw, president of the Houston Federation of Teachers.

Linus Wright, superintendent for administration, said it would cost about $350 to pay the average teacher for an extra five days of work.

Reagan said he was disappointed the legislature voted last month to fund only 175 days of instruction. He said it is too late for Houston to reduce the instruction schedule this year.

Under the Reagan plan, increases for teachers would average 12 per cent this year and 4 per cent next year.

New teachers with bachelor degrees would be paid $996 a month this year, compared with $930. The maximum for experienced teachers with bachelor degrees would increase from $1,330 to $1,750.

Salaries for new teachers with master's degrees would move from $990 to $1,040. Experienced teachers would see their salaries increase from $1,550 to $1,770.

Depending on job assignments, the new scales for clerks, secretaries and teacher aids would range from minimums of $475 to $625 a month to maximums of from $715 to $1,120.

live here. It didn't take him long to find hamburgers and American-style television.

"We have more diversified foods in Poland. I wouldn't even buy a television set here. Watching television is American. It is my opinion that there is too much crime and ads. I haven't seen any movie that wasn't interrupted every 15 minutes.

Americans, Nalaek said, are too critical of Poland.

"In our newspapers, there is good news and bad news about America. But when you write something about Poland, it is bad news, something wrong about Poland. In our newspapers you can find very positive articles about America and some negative.

"I don't think we can accept America's way of life in terms of the social and political system. But people in Poland do try to see how the American lives and try to understand him. There is no use to be hostile to each other.

"The most important reason for doing something in America is just to have the money. This is not so important in our country. We have to have money to live but it's not a crucial point. The crucial point is to live better.

"It is important to me to live richer but not in the way of having a new car. I just want to feel more, think more and read more. Not crime books, but books worth reading."

Nalaek is reading "A Bridge Too Far" which he finds "interesting because Polish soldiers were involved in it."

The 43 students who visited Hereford are part of a group of approximately 160 who toured the U.S. through Friendship Ambassadors.

The students were selected by a student organization based on participation in various activities.

Approximately 700 students from Poland will visit the United States this year.

There were no casualties or damage.

Northern Ireland's million-strong Protestant majority, which wants to keep the province British, decorated their neighborhoods with festive bunting and Union Jacks welcome the monarch.

The royal party will bypass Belfast during the Jubilee visit because the city has been the center of violence since 1969 when Northern Ireland's current round of sectarian warfare broke out.

For this visit, the queen will be whisked by helicopter from the Britannia to events in other parts of the province. There will be no motorcades or "walkabouts" and all guests invited to garden parties or receptions she will attend have been carefully screened.

The queen's visit falls between two of the most inflammatory dates on the Northern Irish calendar.

School Board

The board members appointed to the committee by Clark Andrews, acting in place of school board president James Gentry who was out of town Tuesday, were Sally Strain, Mack Tubb and David Hutchins.

Preliminary budget discussion was short during the meeting, although Holder said the new tax rate, to be set Aug. 16 at the budget meeting, likely would both be reduced 12 per cent. The current tax rate is $1.46 and Holder recently said a 12 per cent reduction might be forthcoming because of the school finance bill adopted by the state Legislature in July.

Holder said Tuesday that the reduction probably will not be as great as 12 per cent.

The board considered, page by page, the final section of the school policy manual, which will be approved in the Aug. 16 meeting.

Community Acquires New Doctor

DR. AND MRS. DENNIS L. CANON
...with Christopher and Lane

Dr. Dennis L. Canon, M.D., will be practicing general medicine at Family Medical Clinic as an associate of Dr. Gerald Payne and Dr. D.E. McBrayer.

Dr. Canon and his wife, Carolyn, have two children, Christopher, who will be 5 tomorrow, and Lane, 18 months. The family has moved here from Phoenix.

Dr. Canon has worked as a general practitioner in Virginia, California, Vietnam, Thailand, Washington D.C. and Arizona. He is a member of the American Medical Association, the Society of Flight Surgeons, and the American Academy of Family Practice.

After graduation from high school at Deming, N.M. he received his bachelor of science degree in 1966 from the University of Arizona at Tucson. He was a member of Beta Beta Beta honorary biological society and Kappa Kappa Psi honorary musical society.

Canon earned his MD degree in 1970 from George Washington University at Washington, D.C. Following his internship and family practice residency, he was certified in family practice.

Dr. Canon is a graduate of the School of Aerospace and Medicine at San Antonio. He served in the US Air Force as a flight surgeon and family physician.

A native of Gonzales, Tx., Mrs. Canon is a graduate of the University of Texas at Austin, where she was a member of Delta Zeta and Pi Omega Pi. She holds a bachelor's degree in business education.

The newly-located doctor indulges in outdoor sports for recreation, including hunting, fishing and tennis.

Ann Landers Sensible Advice Given

Dear Ann: That letter from the young man with all the bisexual friends bothered me. I don't usually give advice, but I'd like to address the rest of this letter to him:

You sound like a decent guy--probably a few years younger than I am, so I think I know where you're coming from. These friends of yours are doing a lot of talking and from where you're at, it looks like everybody's into the bisexual bag. Don't buy it.

Did you ever wonder why they are so eager to recruit new players? I can tell you. It's because the thrill is in seeing how many straights they can sucker into their stupid orgies.

They've already rationalized their kinky behavior, but they need to justify it by telling you how great it is. They wouldn't want anyone to think they're ashamed.

Well, I've dabbled in pot, pills and experienced various culture trips. I've also seen a lot of fairly good people burned out by that stuff. You have to draw the line somewhere. If you really want to do something, go ahead and do it. But let it be YOUR idea. It's hard enough to live with our private mistakes, but to take a chance at something that involves a bunch of big-mouths is dumb.

Hang in there. We aren't all perverts, and I for one am fed up with those weirdos.--Thanks For Letting Me Rap

DEAR FRIEND: Thanks for rapping. Glad to provide space for a sensible letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a widow in my late 50s and would you believe I am hopelessly, totally in love with a man 20 years my junior?

During the six months our affair lasted I was the happiest woman alive. It was like being reborn. It's over now and I know it. Although he phones once in a while says he misses me and we'll get together "as soon as he finds the time" I know it's only lip service and I am completely devastated.

Don't tell me to "keep busy." I'm busier than any woman I know. My career is very demanding. I also go out with other men. I even spent the night with someone--and it was awful. What now, Coach?--MEZzerable

DEAR M. Time is your greatest ally. Meanwhile, keep dating others, avoid mooning around and reliving the past. For some crazy reason the one that got away always looks better. (P.S. Let me know when you find a replacement, dear.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: There's Alcoholics Anonymous for people who can't control their drinking and Gamblers Anonymous for people who can't control their gambling. What about an organization for men who are Workaholics?

My husband's compulsion to work 16 hours a day, seven days a week has ruined his health and mine. He has no relationship with his children. We have no social life. Money? Oh, yes--plenty of that. But no time to spend it. When we were young I was proud that he was a go-getter but now I see where it has led him. Could it be my fault because I didn't change him?--Beret

DEAR B: No one can change a driven, super-aggressive overachiever--except himself. You're not to blame.

Mrs. Robinson Feted In C.F. Newsom Home

Mrs. Jess Arthur Robinson, nee Stacy Jenise Daniel, was honored Monday afternoon at a post-nuptial shower in the home of Mrs. C.F. Newsom, 150 Liveoak.

The honoree was a bride on July 29 in Horseshoe Drive Baptist Church in Alexandria, La. The newlywed couple is at home in Lubbock, where both are students at Texas Tech University.

Shower guests were admitted to the Newsom home by the hostess and Mrs. Jess L. Robinson introduced her son's bride to visitors. Mrs. Otis Robinson invited guests to register at a table accented by a bud vase with white chrysanthemum buds and peach tufts.

Mrs. Lee Robinson of Lubbock served cake squares while Miss Nancy Newsom laded punch from a table with crystal appointments. Covered with peach linen, the tea table was centered with an arrangement of white and peach chrysanthemums in a footed crystal container. Highlighting the bouquet were white tapers.

Hostesses, in addition to Mrs. Newsom, were Mmes. L.W. Norvell, Joe Reinauer Sr., Sam Long, Edgar Lemons, Garth Thomas, Bill Gentry, Henry Solomon, LeRoy Williamson and John Seiver.

Merger Rejected

NEW YORK (AP) — On the morning of what would be a very important day, Howard Baldwin sat at the breakfast table and made a prediction. "Their vote will be based on the strength of our applications," he forecast. Hours later, the National Hockey League's Board of Governors cast a secret ballot against expansion for the 1977-78 season. Baldwin's New England Whalers, and the five other World Hockey Association teams to apply for NHL membership, would feel the sting of rejection.

Chicago Releases Shanklin

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — The Chicago Bears have released six more players, including former all-pro Ron Shanklin, to reduce their training roster to the National Football League limit of 60 players.

Shanklin, acquired from Pittsburgh in exchange for draft choices in 1975, and five rookies were cut by the team Tuesday.

A wide receiver, Shanklin spent part of the past two seasons on the injury list, but had been running well and had seemed to have overcome a knee injury in preseason drills. Others cut were defensive end Dennis Breckner of Miami, Fla.; guard Art Meadowcroft of Minnesota; punter Tom Madau of Nevada-Reno, defensive end Ed Smith of Wichita State and wide receiver Scott Yelvington of Northwestern.

The Bears signed Rod Wellington, formerly of Iowa, a free-agent rookie running back. Wellington was a seventh-round draft choice of the Kansas City Chiefs last year. He had a 1976 tryout with the Dallas Cowboys after being released by the Chiefs.

The vote cast, the conclave adjourned, NHL President-elect John Ziegler left the meeting room by a side door and sped to the suite where the WHA executives waited.

"He came up and said the decision had been made not to expand. They had turned it down," recalled Bill DeWitt of the Cincinnati Stingers. "No reason was given. The margin of the vote wasn't given. But expansion was turned down."

So, despite months of meetings and discussion in cities across North America, everything is almost exactly as it was. The NHL will operate next season with 18 teams; the WHA probably will go with eight.

Those include Cincinnati, New England, Quebec, Houston, Winnipeg and Edmonton — whose applications were nullified when the NHL voted not to expand — plus Birmingham and probably Indianapolis.

"After very careful and due consideration, the proposed plan of expansion was put to the governors and failed to obtain the requisite majority," Ziegler told a news conference after informing the WHA of the decision. "At this time, the matter of expansion is over for the 1977-78 season."

The secret vote was not revealed but at least five negative votes were needed to defeat the proposal.

"The fans won," said Harry Siden, general manager of the NHL Boston Bruins — one of the teams most staunchly opposed to accommodation of WHA teams.

"I knew it was in the bag," said Harold Ballard of the Toronto Maple Leafs, the most outspoken of expansions antagonists. "Am I happy!"

Baldwin clearly was not. "I'm in shock that a group of businessmen could make such an irresponsible decision," he said. "But I'll tell you one thing: this has united the WHA emotionally and financially. We will be as aggressive now as we were in our first year in competing for players, for television monies and for international competition."

Veteran star Gordie Howe of Baldwin's Whalers echoed his president's disappointment. "The pulse of the comments seemed to indicate the fans wanted it. It's unbelievable. So many people worked so hard..."

Despite the effort, the expense, and the long hours of waiting, Baldwin's ominous prophecy had come true. It's too early to tell whether they'll try again next year.

Bluebonnet Bowl Loses Astro Tag

HOUSTON (AP) — The post season Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl college football game will be played on New Year's Eve the next three years in the Astrodome and its name will be changed back to the Bluebonnet Bowl.

The annual bowl game was originally called the Bluebonnet Bowl until it moved from Rice University Stadium to the Astrodome in 1968. Since that time it was called the Astro Bluebonnet Bowl.

"The response to Astro-Bluebonnet was not good around the country so we're going back to Bluebonnet," C.J. "Tex" Thornton, president of the Greater Houston Bowl Association, said Tuesday in announcing the name change. "We wanted to get back to the state flower and

This year's game will be televised by Mizlou Television Network and Thornton said his group will soon initiate a drive to sell out the 50,000-seat Astrodome before the game and thereby attract the interest of major networks.

"We give 8,000 tickets to each team and we have about 16,000 option holders, so that leaves us with selling only about 18,000 to the people of Houston," he said. "We should be able to do that."

Texas Tech and the University of Nebraska each received $186,575 for playing in the last Bluebonnet Bowl and Thornton predicted the 1977 participants will receive about $220,000 each.

Confident Hunter Says Club Will Win Series

DALLAS (AP) — Billy Hunter walked through the swinging door that was the chaos in the Texas Ranger clubhouse 40 days ago and put himself squarely on the X that marks the spot for the troubled team.

"If I'm any good at all, I'll get the talent that's on this team out of them," said Hunter, who was an assistant coach for 13 years — most of them at Baltimore.

So far, Hunter, the fifth manager the team has hired in 1977, has been good, very good.

"I have no qualms about my own abilities," said the gray-haired calmly without any bragging tones. "I'm an optimistic person — let's put it that way."

What Hunter has done is bring fundamentals back to the Rangers. They bunt, they sacrifice, they squeeze, they steal, they hit the cutoff man and they hustle.

Hunter doesn't try to downplay a manager's role in the game.

"A manager probably wins or loses 15 games a year, and some of it is luck," he said. "But a lot of it is knowledge and instinct, too."

On Monday night's braid brawl with Oakland, Hunter was right in the thick of things — ending up on the seat of his pants.

He scratches and claws for his team and the Ranger players love him.

"He's a great fundamental baseball man and he's fair," said fist baseman Mike Hargrove.

Hunter put the Rangers through a "mini-spring training" which was 10 days of back to the basics of ball.

"We needed it," said Claudell Washington. The Rangers promptly went out and tied a major league record for sacrifices in one game — eight.

Monday night the Rangers turned their first triple play in the six-year history of the franchise. Why? Because third baseman Toby Harrah, who started the play, was playing even with the bag. Why? Because Hunter warned Harrah that Oakland's Manny Sanguillen was a notorious pull hitter and slow.

"Hunters Bunters," as they are called, are 25-22 under their new skipper. They have won 100 of 12, 25 of 31. They are now one-half game out of first place in the American League West.

Hunter said "the talent is on this team but they were confused. Now, there is no longer a state of confusion. This team is going to win the World Series."

Billy Hunter comes on strong.

Grid Season Here; Shoes Distributed

Football season officially gets underway for the 1977 edition of the Herd today when the Whiteface football assembly at the fieldhouse to receive shoes.

The gridlers will have five days to make sure their footwear fits before fall drills open Monday, August 15. Five days of practice in shoes and shoes will be followed by the beginning of contact work Friday, August 19.

The Herd will have one scrimmage before opening the regular campaign. The Texas Rebels will tangle with the Flacs on Friday, August 26, one week before the Herd travels to Pampa to open the season.

Eleven lettermen return to lead the team this season, including team captains Jim Esh and Greg Brockman. Hereford has been picked in preseason polls to finish last in District 4-4A, where Monterey Phainmen, 13-1 a year ago, are heavy favorites.

The first home encounter for the Whitefaces will come September 9 against Amarillo Palo Duro.

Herman Content Toting Lee's Bag

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Herman Mitchell, 39, of Los Angeles via Little Rock, Ark., has what he thinks is the best job in the world.

He works day hours. He always is in the fresh air. His labor isn't strenuous — more like a leisurely stroll in the country. And he only has to please one man, Lee Trevino, and that man probably is the easiest in the business to please.

Herman carries golf clubs for Trevino. This week, the 1976 Championship is being played at famed Pebble Beach. Win or lose, it always is a walk.

"When I first started caddying for Lee on the first year, I didn't think I was going to make it," Herman said. "He is such a funny character. I laughed so much I thought my sides would split."

Caddying for Trevino is like touring the nation's highways with a moving road show.

"He is always loose," Mitchell said. "He talks and jokes all the way around the course. He is a born comedian and such a quick thinker. He never seems to get upset. He never has chewed me out."

"But make no mistake about it, that man can play the game. I have never caddied for anyone, or seen anyone, who could do more with a golf club. He has worked himself into shape again."

after that operation.

"He could win this tournament."

"Mitch" is a pillowy black man who chews on smelly cigars and espouses a corn-pone philosophy about the only trade he ever has known. He caddied eight years for Miller Barber and had a string of other well-known clients before inheriting Trevino's bag from a Los Angeles friend, Neal Harvey, who quit the tour.

Although his biggest tip — $7,000 — came from Barber after the latter won the $100,000 first prize in the World Open in 1973, Mitchell didn't whistle much while he worked.

"Barber was hard to caddy for," he said. "He put the whole game in your hands. You had to read all the greens and nail all the clubs."

White Socks' Homers Crush Mariners, 13-3

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Call them the Chicago White Socks.

By any name, the baseball team representing Chicago's South Side is a far cry from the fleet-footed go-go White Sox who last won the American League pennant in 1959. This year's crew of mashers has forsaken the go-go-go for going-going-gone...as in home run.

"They attack the ball. It's a case of having six or eight men in a row who can hit the ball out so they can't walk anybody to get someone else," Manager Bob Lemon said Tuesday night after the White Socks socked six home runs in mauling the Seattle Mariners, 13-3.

The six homers gave the Socks a club record 144 for the season, erasing the 138 powered by the 1961 and 1971 teams. Eric Soderholm smashed two and Chat Lemon, Oscar Gamble, Jim Essian and Royce Stillman hit one apiece. Soderholm's pair of two-run shots marked the 10th time this season a White Socks player hit two homers in a game, another team mark.

Coupled with the Toronto Blue Jays' 6-2 triumph over Minnesota, Chicago opened a two-game lead over the Twins in the American League West. In the only other games, the Baltimore Orioles downed the Cleveland Indians 3-1 and the Milwaukee Brewers shaded Detroit 6-4 after the Tigers took the opener of the two-night doubleheader, 4-2.

Seattle's Dan Meyer homered to give the Mariners a 2-0 lead in the top half of the first inning. But the White Socks roared back with five runs in the bottom of the inning on a two-run single by Gamble and Lemon's three-run homer.

Gamble hit a solo shot in the third. Later in the inning, Soderholm and Essian socked consecutive homers. Stillman's homer, a two-run shot, came in the seventh off Diego Segui.

"The power display we put on will build confidence once again," said Essian. "We are the power hitters."

"We've been in a slump for about a week," added Soderholm. "We've been kind of flat. But every team goes through that. I think we're out of it."

Blue Jays 6, Twins 2

Jesse Jefferson tossed a four-hitter and Roy Howell and Doug Ault homered for Toronto. The Blue Jays scored three times in the second inning on a walk to Otto Velez, doubles by Sam Ewing and Al Woods and a single by Steve Staggs. Howell homered in the third and Ault slammed a pinch homer in the fourth.

The crowd of 23,450 gave the Blue Jays a season attendance of 1,219,551, breaking the previous first-year record for an expansion club of 1,212,608 by the Montreal Expos in 1969.

Orioles 3, Indians 1

Tony Muser's double triggered a tie-breaking two-run rally in the eighth inning. Billy Smith beat out a bunt and Elliott Maddox delivered an RBI single. Following a double play, Lee May singled to score Smith with an insurance run.

The victory extended Cleveland's losing streak to six games and moved the second-place Orioles 2½ games behind the idle Boston Red Sox in the AL East. Ross Grimsley won his first game since July 14, allowing four hits.

Despite his tie-breaking single, Maddox isn't pleased with his play since he was activated shortly before the All-Star Game after a second knee operation.

What phase is he disappointed with? "Just about everything," he said. "I don't feel good in the field, I'm definitely not pleased with my average (.231) and I've got to start running better, too."

Tigers 4-4, Brewers 2-6

Milwaukee's Bill Travers won his first game since April 29 while Steve Brye, Jim Wohlford and Lenn Sakata drove in two runs apiece to pace the Brewers in the nightcap. Rookie Dave Rozema spaced five hits to earn his 12th victory and the Tigers rallied for three runs in the seventh inning - the first on Jason Thompson's 20th homer - to take the opener.

Travers, pitching for the third time since coming off the disabled list July 15, got the win with a strong relief job by Bob McClure. Brye clubbed solo homers in the fifth and sixth innings, his second breaking a 3-3 tie.

Martinez Retains Crown

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - Mexican Rodolfo Martinez, who weighs 119, scored a unanimous decision over 120-pound Gilberto Illueca of Panama Tuesday night to retain his North American Boxing Federation super-bantamweight crown.

In the other main event 136-pound Mike Ayala of San Antonio took a unanimous decision from Panamanian Reynaldo Hidalgo, who weighed in at 125 pounds.

Both events were ten rounders.

Baltimore (AP) - The

Baltimore Orioles announced today they had purchased the contract of veteran outfielder-first baseman Terry Crowley from Rochester of the International League.

The 30-year-old Crowley, a left-handed batter, was leading the Class AAA league with 30 home runs and 81 runs batted in while hitting .302.

Cowboy Linemen Stricken

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Injuries have opened another hole in the sagging right side of the Dallas Cowboys offensive line.

Starting right guard Burton Lawless, who replaced retired veteran Blaine Nye, missed practice Tuesday with a sprained ankle.

Lawless' backup, rookie Van Belcher, also was on the sidelines, leaving only rookie free agent Wes Phillips at the right guard spot.

Already missing from the right side of the line is tackle Rayfield Wright, who recently underwent knee surgery and is out for an estimated two months.

The Cowboys placed two rookie free agents on waivers Tuesday to reach 60-man mandatory limit. They were safety Artie Belvin of Texas-El Paso and end Jeff Butts from Oregon.

A Carter embarrassment

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Carter's effort to reward a controversial political supporter with a $50,000-a-year job on a federal regulatory commission already has produced embarrassment in the White House and probably will lead to rejection of the nomination in the Senate.

There has been previous Senate resistance to a handful of Carter nominees, but each of those cases involved substantive differences over public policy. The new case, however, represents the first time the personal integrity of a Carter nominee has been called into question.

The focus of that little-publicized but fast-growing dispute is Donald L. Tucker, the autocratic Speaker of the House in the Florida legislature and the first Democratic officeholder in the state to endorse Carter prior to the crucial 1976 Florida presidential primary.

On June 16, Carter nominated Tucker to be one of five members of the Civil Aeronautics Board, which regulates the nation's aviation industry. But the Senate Commerce Committee, which must confirm the nomination, took no action on it for almost a month.

At the request of Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the committee's aviation subcommittee, the full committee met in an extraordinary secret session on July 14 for the sole purpose of examining the results of the Federal Bureau of Investigation probe of Tucker's background.

When grim-faced committee members emerged from the 70-minute meeting, they refused to discuss what transpired except to announce that they had scheduled a public hearing on the Tucker selection for Sept. 13.

The Democratic-dominated Senate has quickly and routinely approved almost all of Democrat Carter's previous nominations. The requisite committee hearings invariably are cut-and-dried affairs, seldom lasting more than a few hours.

But the committee's highly unusual postponement of hearings for almost two months was the tipoff to its reservations about Tucker's integrity, as was a Miami newspaper report several days earlier that Cannon "has told some of his colleagues privately that he saw enough in the FBI reports to make him wonder why the White House is going through with the nomination."

The content of the FBI reports remains secret, but numerous investigative stories in Florida's major newspapers in recent years raise serious questions about Tucker's ethics and conduct.

According to one account, a land development partnership in which Tucker was a member received preferential treatment in obtaining a $200,000 bank loan in May 1975 while Tucker was maneuvering the Florida House into approving a previously stalled bill to permit branch banking.

Leading the lobbying for the legislation was the Florida Bankers Association, whose president at the time also was president of the bank which granted the disputed loan to Tucker's group.

Another newspaper story disclosed last autumn that Tucker had purchased for his new office in the State Capitol a $4,429 desk and matching $4,002 credenza. After that revelation, Tucker almost was defeated in his bid for reelection by an unknown Republican.

Tucker's current financial statement indicates that he converted to his personal use more than $70,000 collected at a political "appreciation dinner" last year — a practice legal in Florida but hardly reflective of the high ethical standards Carter repeatedly has insisted upon for all federal officials.

Members of the White House staff who normally are highly loyal to the President already are privately expressing chagrin about the Tucker selection and are pointedly referring to it as "the President's nomination" to personally repay a political debt.

The St. Petersburg Times, one of Florida's most respected newspapers, summed up the case against Tucker in an editorial opposing his confirmation: "Tucker has made himself a reputation in Tallahassee (the state capital) as a wheeler-dealer politician."

Park eases up

The impending withdrawal of America's armed forces from South Korea over the next five years — the Carter administration's championing of human rights around the world — bribery scandals involving South Korean agents and U.S. congressmen.

Any one of these developments could be enough to give South Korean President Park Chung Hee a severe case of paranoia and persuade him to turn his already dictatorial regime a notch more repressive.

Yet, happily, just the opposite seems to be happening. South Korea's National Assembly — which doesn't do anything Park doesn't want it to do — has unanimously recommended repealing a 1975 emergency decree under which Park has jailed some 200 political dissenters, including one Kim Dae Jung, who had the temerity to nearly beat him in the 1971 presidential election.

It may be that President Carter's preaching about individual freedom has converted Park. Or, more likely, that the former general simply wants to be on the best possible terms with the United States when the day arrives that there is no buffer of American troops between North and South Korea. Park's motive doesn't matter, if repeal of the emergency decree signifies a genuine relaxation of his iron grip over South Korea's political life.

But Park has eased the screws on his opponents before, then quickly tightened them when they began opposing him too much. It could happen again.

The really encouraging thing is that despite all Park has done and might yet do to stifle dissent, a democratic undercurrent still runs strong in South Korea, ready to burst forth, it may be hoped, when the time is right.

Did he take it with him?

Howard Hughes' body lies a-mouldering in his grave, but his mess goes stumbling on.

Legal forums in four states are still trying to piece together the tangled strands of the late industrialist's farflung financial empire.

Latest mystery is what happened to an estimated $250 million to $300 million out of $600 million in liquid assets Hughes disposed of in his last years, when he not only isolated himself from the world and reality but from most of his associates.

Only about half the $600 million can be accounted for by his investments in hotels, casinos, an airline and various loans.

Someday the legal profession ought to erect a monument to Howard Hughes in recognition of the steady employment he provided so many lawyers, even in death.

Fair weather felons

The FBI reports the crime rate in the United States dropped by nine per cent in the first three months of this year, compared with the same period in 1976.

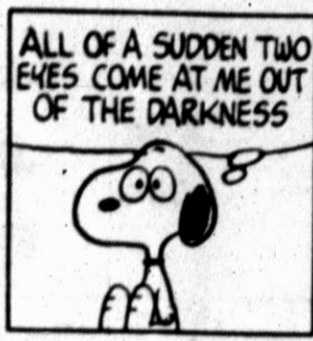

It was the biggest quarterly drop since the FBI began issuing reports 19 years ago.

Not coincidentally, it also was the coldest quarter in more than 19 years.

Noting that the sharpest drops in crimes occurred in January and in regions hardest hit by the winter, the bureau theorizes cold weather could have discouraged criminals from venturing out to burglarize, mug, steal, murder, etc. Are we becoming a nation of softies?

Bomb Investigations Spur Controversy

WASHINGTON (AP) - When a building is bombed, who investigates the crime? That question has started scores of arguments between the FBI and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The disputes arise from laws that don't spell out clearly which agency has jurisdiction over which bombings. Similar disputes affect dozens of other agencies with federal law enforcement responsibilities.

Racketeering investigations lead to drug rings, and narcotics probes end up as organized crime cases. But the FBI has no jurisdiction over drugs, and the Drug Enforcement Administration has no jurisdiction over syndicate crime.

The FBI and inspectors for the Department of Housing and Urban Development may duplicate each other's work in housing fraud investigations. Tax investigators may stumble upon bribery cases over which they have no authority.

The list of potential and actual conflicts among federal law enforcement agencies seems endless. It means much time and money that could be spent on solving crimes must be devoted to settling inter-agency arguments.

President Carter's reorganization specialists in the Office of Management and Budget are mulling over an idea that might solve some of the old problems, though it is certain to stir fears of too much White House control over federal law enforcement.

The idea, according to an

OMB reorganization man, is a National Law Enforcement Council. It would work out of the White House and would be patterned after the National Security Council, which coordinates and advises the President in foreign policy matters. The attorney general would be a key member, along with other executive branch officials who supervise law enforcement units.

The council, or a similar mechanism, would be designed to improve coordination among the agencies and to set clear priorities for law enforcement.

It could give the President stronger and more direct control over what kind of crime is investigated and prosecuted most vigorously.

But the proposal is nothing more than an idea at the present.

The general government reorganization team must find out how many government agencies have policing or investigative responsibilities. Under the direction of former Atlanta lawyer Tread Davis, the team last month began to compile the information and found that it's not as simple as it may sound.

A General Accounting Office report two years ago listed 75 agencies employing 169,000 persons in police or investigative work. "We now think it's closer to 90 agencies," said the OMB official.

There are 23 different guard forces in the metropolitan Washington area alone," he remarked. "Everything from the guards at the National Zoo to the Capitol police. They've grown up with different salary schedules, different requirements, different training. We've found that the training can range from less than a week for one agency to 15 or 16 weeks for another."

He said the OMB team is attempting, for the first time in 40 years, to "take a look at the whole question of the multiplicity of federal organizations performing police or investigative activities."

"The FBI, for example, enforces many laws which were passed in the 1930s, when state and local governments didn't have the law enforcement capabilities they have today," he noted.

Congress has formed some agencies and added new responsibilities to others in a rather haphazard way, he commented. The Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agency - ATF - grew out of prohibition, but Congress later gave it jurisdiction over bombings.

The FBI and ATF have agreed that the FBI investigates terrorist bombings and ATF handles the rest. But many bombings cannot be neatly categorized at once "unless the terrorist is kind enough to call in advance and take credit," the OMB official observed.

After developing information on the present system, the Davis team will consider what agencies could be merged or perhaps eliminated.

"We're not reaching any conclusions yet about consolidation," the OMB official said.

But he said it's highly unlikely the team would propose merging all federal law enforcement agencies into one, with a single person in charge. "There's really no way you could put all of these agencies under one person, except the President." And, of course, they're all under the President now.

Politically, any sort of merger could run into trouble from the agencies that would lose power and their supporters in Congress and private interest groups.

The OMB man said he expects the study to take two years. "We're trying to set out some way to look at the forest, but along the way, if we identify some dead trees that need pruning, we'll go ahead."

Brazil Hoping That Project Alleviates Energy Problems

IN THE JUNGLE, Brazil-Paraguay (AP) - Hundreds of lumbering vehicles and 15,000 laborers churn up thick clouds of red dust in this South American jungle to build a hydroelectric project which Brazil hopes will solve its energy problems and Paraguay sees as a money-maker and spur to development.

But nearby Argentina is concerned it will harm its own plans for hydroelectric projects and a three-sided diplomatic row may be shaping up.

Everything is big about the Itaipu Dam, from the $6.5-billion price tag and the 75-ton dump trucks to the hefty meals served as mess halls dotted around the sprawling worksite.

Itaipu - which means "rock that sings" - is the Guarani Indian language of the region - will have a generating capacity of 12.6 million kilowatts when the last of its 18 huge turbin is installed in 1990. The dam will begin partial operation by 1983.

By comparison, the Grand Coulee Dam in the United States has a generating capacity of 9.7 million kilowatts.

The dam site straddles the Paraguayan and Brazilian sides of the Parana river 12 miles upstream from the frontier communities of Presidente Stroessner, Paraguay, and Foz do Iguacu, Brazil.

The Parana, 2,500 miles long, is one of the 12 largest rivers in the world. Born in the Brazilian interior, it has long been considered a source of plentiful hydroelectric power by the countries it serves: Brazil, Paraguay and Argentina.

Brazil and Paraguay entered into a joint agreement to harness the river in 1966. After lengthy feasibility studies, construction of Itaipu began in 1974.

Brazil is financing virtually all costs.

Both countries will share the electricity on a 50-50 basis. Either country can sell to the other any excess energy it doesn't need.

Brazil, the giant of Latin America, desperately needs new energy sources for its industrial development. Its domestic oil production accounts for only about 17 per cent of its 100 million inhabitants.

Brazil also has one of the biggest foreign debts of any developing nation, $28 billion.

Paraguay, one of the hemisphere's most underdeveloped countries, can't possibly consume all the electricity it will receive from Itaipu. This land-locked country has just 3 million inhabitants.

Nevertheless, it expects to earn some $100 million annually selling what it doesn't use to Brazil.

Most of Brooklyn's Looters Simply Thieves Claims DA

NEW YORK (AP) - The Brooklyn district attorney says looters didn't ravage stores during last month's power blackout because they were hungry or poor. He says most of them simply were thieves.

Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold released figures this week which he said contradict assertions by some public figures that during the blackout looters were preoccupied with stealing food.

Gold's figures are based on 176 persons indicted of 1,004 arrested in the July 13-14 looting in Brooklyn, the hardest hit of the five boroughs.

Some 48 per cent had full-time jobs, Gold said. One indicted man was a $372-a-week meat-cutter. Other defendants included a sailor from the USS Kansas and eight city or federal employees.

Eleven per cent of the indicted persons were students. Of the remaining 41 per cent classified as unemployed, 30 per cent were enrolled in paid poverty or training programs, Gold said.

The average annual income of the working defendants was $7,050. Just 8.5 per cent of the indicted were on welfare.

After last month's blackout, President Carter said that although there was "no excuse" for the looting, it was an "additional indication" of the need to revitalize poor urban areas "neglected too long."

"It is also important that public officials like myself try to understand the reasons for it," Carter said then.

Gold said Monday that Carter and others need to "re-evaluate their statements" in light of the new figures.

"It seems to me these figures dispute a great deal of what has been said about the looters," Gold added. "They call into question the assertion that hunger was behind the looting."

Figures showed that of 145 Brooklyn stores looted, only 12 were supermarkets, groceries or butcher shops.

OCP Sets Anti-Crime Campaign

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - The Organized Crime Prevention Council is planning a statewide campaign this fall to make the public aware of organized crime in Texas.

The nine-member council will distribute pamphlets and make available slide show to criminal justice agencies throughout the state.

Administrative assistant Nadia Bice said the council anticipates the slide presentation will be shown to civic groups and service organizations.

The council's subcommittee on public education is in charge of the project. The pamphlets will be distributed in September, and the slide show will be ready some time later.

Atty. Gen. John Hill, council co-chairman, said he thinks the project "will be effective as an education piece."

problem and fiber problem," Andrus said.

He also said President Carter believes small ranchers and farmers should have the right to protect their land from disruption by strip miners.

The secretary made his comments Tuesday at a news conference.

Unlike the East, where water is generally plentiful, the arid West carefully allocates its water, which is the key to economic and agricultural development. The demand for water in the West often exceeds the supply.

Currently, a review of federal water policy is being conducted, but it is not the intent of the administration to "pre-empt state or private water rights," Andrus said.

The development of energy resources in the West is expected to create a huge demand for water from utilities. But Andrus said ranchers and farmers will be protected to avoid losing water essential for production of crops.

He also declared that new regulations governing disposal of excess federal lands, to be issued next week, will require the owners to reside on the property if they want to retain federal water rights. The purpose of this regulation is to eliminate absentee owners and investment control, he said.

As for strip mining, Andrus said that Carter agrees that a private farmer or rancher should have the legal right to continue farming or ranching without having his land uprooted.

The conflict stems from the fact that across much of the West, the underground mineral and mining rights are owned by the government. The government leases the underground rights to coal companies. The farmer or rancher generally owns surface rights. The strip mining bill signed last week requires mining companies to get the surface owner's consent before the land can be disturbed.

Andrus said Carter has expressed concern that this law, in effect, transfers control of mineral and mining rights to the surface owner, a situation that could enable some absentee owners to reap a windfall profit. Carter believes this consent power should benefit only farmers and ranchers who want to continue their operations, Andrus said.

Kissing Booth Gets Close Look

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) The self-proclaimed "world's First All Nude Kissing Booth" was open for 25 minutes before its first customer put down his dollar for a kiss.

"It's not worth a dollar," O.D. Jones said after his 20-second smooch while a naked dancer in the Tampa bar.

The kiss took place under hot lights as television cameras recorded the booth's opening Friday night.

Gil Rodriguez, the bar's owner, said potential kissers probably were scared by reporters and undercover policemen in the crowd.

Tampa ordinances don't allow nude entertainers to dance within three feet of their customers. But police say if the women are seated in a kissing booth they are not entertaining, thus making the booth legal.

The Florida Division of Beverages has suspended enforcement of its rule prohibiting contact between nude entertainers and patrons, pending a court challenge of the law.

But state officials say they are paying close attention to what goes on at the kissing booth.

Said Division of Beverages Director Charles Nuzum: "If it's just kissing, it's not bad. But if they start 'rassling, well..."

The English physician William Harvey (1578-1657) was the first to discover how blood circulated in the body.

Dalmatian is the only known Romance language that is now extinct.

The square dance evolved from a country dance that originated in England.

PUBLIC NOTICES "BECAUSE THE PEOPLE MUST KNOW" (Logo with scales of justice)

NOTICE TO PUBLIC The Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court advises that it is a violation of the Penal Code of Texas to obstruct or injure a county road, and the operation of any equipment which cuts into the road bed is prohibited; and that any structure of any kind placed in the barrow ditch of country roads which obstructs or tends to obstruct such road is prohibited; and further that the plowing of ditches constitutes an injury to the road; and also that the public be advised that the disposing of refuse, trash, junk, garbage, dead animals or unsightly matter is a violation of county and state law. Violators are guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $15 nor more than $200. Every law enforcement officer of this state and its subdivisions have authority to enforce the provisions of this Act. DSC Commissioners Court Sam Morgan, presiding S-W-12-tfc

The smallest amount of natural gas on reserve in a long time is what we have now. Domestic supplies are dwindling. Proved reserves are at their lowest levels since 1955 and some industries have been suffering shut-downs because of shortages.

A speed record for an Atlantic crossing was established by the liner United States in 1952 when it made the crossing in 3 days, 10 hours and 40 minutes!

Hereford Lodge 849 8 P.M. STATED MEETING SECOND MONDAY L.V. Watts WM W.A. (Bill) Phipps, Sec. 177-W-S-tfc

SMALL BUSINESSMAN in a Los Angeles suburb was once a big man in Saigon. Former South Vietnamese strongman Nguyen Cao Ky and his wife, Dang Guyet Mai, below, are the proprietors of a liquor-delicatessen-grocery in Norwalk, a largely blue collar community. They live in a large Spanish style home in nearby Huntington Beach where, according to one neighbor, Mr. Ky is "the best looking doll in the neighborhood."

Adult Immunization Stressed in August

COLLEGE STATION-Adults need immunization, too, says Carla Shearer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Adult Texans who will get special emphasis during August-Immunization Action Month-are:

1) Prospective mothers who need rubella "screening" to determine if they are susceptible to rubella. If they are susceptible, an immunization will safeguard their unborn children against possible birth defects.

2) Young adults who were vaccinated against measles on or before their first birthday.

3) Older persons who need protection against certain diseases, particularly tetanus.

These defenses against disease should be promoted year-round, says the specialist.

Check with your doctor or health department to see if you and your family are protected against diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough), tetanus (lockjaw), polio, measles, mumps and rubella (German measles).

"Make sure...today," urges the specialist.
