Retail Prices Due Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) - Food prices jumped sharply in February for the second straight month to pace a 1 percent increase in wholesale prices, the Labor Department reported today.

The wholesale price rises were not quite as steep as those recorded in January, but they were high enough to guarantee consumers a further boost in retail prices in coming months.

Wholesale price increases for beef and veal slowed from January, from 13.3 percent to 4.7 percent in February. But vegetables, pork, sugar, fruit and fish showed sharper boosts last month.

Hefty price rises also were recorded for shoes, tires, gasoline and alcoholic beverages.

The latest rise in wholesale prices, involving goods at the stage just before they reach store shelves, compared with a 1.3 percent jump in January, the sharpest one-month increase in four years.

The latest report gave the Carter administration another setback in its efforts to control inflation, which is running above 9 percent a year.

Last year, there was only one month -April - in which wholesale prices rose as much as 1 percent or more. The latest rise in wholesale prices translates into a 12.7 percent annual increase.

Food prices in February jumped 1.6 percent, equal to an annual rate of more than 21 percent. In January, food prices at wholesale rose 1.8 percent.

The report confirmed findings released by the administration Wednesday that farm prices have been rising at an annual clip of 40 percent since November In response to the sharp rise in farm prices, which the government concedes will, continue for a while, President Carter's chief inflation fighter, Alfred E. Kahn, said Wednesday that officials are considering ways of slowing price hikes at the farm level. Last month, the Labor Department reported that large price jumps for beef and yeal boosted wholesale prices by 1.3 percent in January, the biggest monthly increase in four years. The one-month rise translated into an annual rate of more than 16 percent.

That was followed by a report that retail prices in January jumped 0.9 percent, which would mean an 11.4 percent inflation rate if that trend held all

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - New Braunfels teacher Kent Scheiffler says his eagerly awaited but unplanned new son or daughter might be the final straw that sends him to a better paying district or out of the teaching profession.

"When you're making $8,540 a year, $2,000 is a lot of money," he said of better salary prospects elsewhere.

Scheiffler was one of several teachers who appeared Wednesday before the Senate Education Committee as it plunged deeper into its biannual task of developing a school finance plan.

More than 500 teachers from as far away as Amarillo and El Paso packed the galleries, offering their loudest applause when they heard peers testify about the difficities of paying bills on a Texas teacher's salary.

Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, said a recruiter for California school districts was recently inundated with San Antonio prospects when word spread about that state's minimum starting salary of $16,000 a year.

"Education needs to draw from the best college graduates each year. This is becoming harder to do as the beginning salaries in other fields far outstrip beginning teacher salaries," said Virginia Stacey, president of the Texas State Teachers Association.

Mrs. Stacey said the visiting teachers had paid substitutes themselves so they could attend the hearing.

The TSTA has given its support to a bill sponsored by Sen. Pete Snelson, D-Midland. The proposal would increase the present state expenditure by about $1.5 billion in the next two years.

A proposal supported by the Texas School Administrators Council, a coalition of administrative groups, carries an estimated price tag of $1.2 billion. Sen. Grant Jones. D-Abilene, is sponsoring the bill.

The education committee heard testimony about both bills as well as a proposal from the Gulf Coast Association of School Boards. Sen. Gene Jones, D-Houston, is sponsoring the third bill.

and spiraling inflationary costs."

The administrators proposed a 7 percent salary increase in each of the next two years. Watson said the cost would be an additional $458 million.

The TSTA proposal calls for a 9.8 percent salary increase in the first year and 5.2 in the second. All teachers would also move up an extra step on the pay scale and a new step for teachers with doctoral degrees would be added.

Spokesman L.P. Sturgeon of New Boston said the total salary increase, including teacher retirement, would cost $852 million.

The minimum salary for a beginning teacher with a bachelor's degree would jump from $8,450 to $10,000 in 1979-80 under the TSTA bill. It would rise to $9,141 under the administrators' bill.

Inflation and the growing public call for tax relief drew attention from almost all speakers.

Tony Gonzales, a school trustee from the Pharr-San Juan-Alamo district in South Texas, said many maintain that the school finance system needs to be overhauled to help equalize educational opportunities between richer and poorer

"It is not a realistic goal for this session," he said, speaking for the administrators' bill. "Our objective for this session is simply to keep our schools operating."

Both groups say their bills would increase equalization aid - designed to upgrade the poorer districts - by about $60 million a year.

Both the TSTA and the administrators' bills keep the share of spending by local districts about the same as it is now. The increased spending would be taken care of by increasing the state's share of educational costs.

Both bills would also require a reduction in the teacher-pupil ratio.

Nila Solomon, a teacher in the Dallas suburb of Richardson who said her salary was $11,040 a year, told the committee most teachers are happy in their profession. Shasaid many were leaving se business and industry of better pay.

"Teachers must feel that the people of this state think they're doing an important job," Miss Solomon said.

"Based on the financial situation, I feel it is necessary to look for employment

Bergland, a former three-term congressman from Minnesota, said the state's Democrats "engaged in some wild internal disputes" that caused many voters to stay home on election day.

"It was not an anti-Carter vote, it was not an anti-Democratic vote," Bergland said. "It was what happens when a party gets itself all gummed-up in a family fight that it can't settle."

Regulations Hearing To Cover Expanded Area Pheasant Season

By JIM STEIERT - Outdoors Editor

Deaf Smith County farmers, landowners and sportsmen will have the opportunity to comment concerning a proposal to double the length of the-Panhandle pheasant season during fish and game regulations hearings to be conducted by the Texas Parks & Wildlife Dept. Monday at 10 a.m. at the courthouse.

Pheasant hunting proposals are prominent among planned regulations changes for the 1979-80 seasons, and the length of the local season could have an important bearing on the welfare of the area's pheasant population. Local residents will have an opportunity to comment on game proposals, and if they meet with public and P&W Commission approval, they will

The season extension should prove an issue for discussion, as some area landowners and sportsmen feel a

The use of dragging devices was attacked in regulations hearings here last year as unsportsmanlike, and the proposal comes only one season after public opinion was first voiced on the Three candidates joined the city and school district election races as filing drew to a close at midnight Wednesday.

Trini Gamez and John Arsola filed for the city election April 7, announcing for commissioner places 1 and 2 respectively. Mrs. Gamez' son, Americo Gamez, announced for the school board, bringing the number of candidates seeking two three-year positions to three.

Mrs. Gamez is seeking the Place 1 position on the commission currently held by John Matthews, who has announced for re-election. Wes Fisher also has filed for the place.

Mrs. Gamez, a paralegal with Texas Rural Legal Aid, has lived in Hereford for 32 years, having worked previously in the Hereford Independent School District's Parental-Involvement Office and in the Section VIII Housing Department of Community Action. She investigates cases and makes home visits to clients for the legal aid office.

"I hope to make a good commissioner," Mrs. Gamez said. "I've always been politically minded. I'm doing this on my own--nobody asked me to run.

I'm always looking to the future, and to me every experience is a learning experience. I know I'm going into this without any knowledge of how the city runs, but I think I'm going to learn."

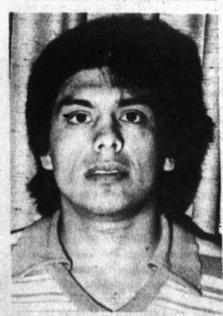

Mrs. Gamez, married to Refugio Gamez of 310 Ave. J, has nine children. Arsola, who ran unsuccessfully against

Emory Brownlow in last year's city commission race, is employed by Armour Foods. Arsola, who was unavailable for comment today, is involved in both the American G.I. Forum and San Jose (See ELECTIONS, Page 2)

Disclosure Bill Rejected by House

AUSTIN. Tex. (AP) Rep. Frank Tejeda blames heavy lobbying by school board members for House rejection of his bill requiring elected local officials to disclose their finances.

Tejeda. D-San Antonio, said he might seek reconsideration of the 77-63 vote that tabled his bill Wednesday and might even exempt school board members if that would help the bill.

He said the bill went down because of "a major lobbying effort by school boards.

'With one amendment, we could bring over a whole bunch of people," Tejeda said. The amendment would exempt school boards from the bill.

Tejeda's bill would require city, county and district elected officials to submit the same financial form as state officials and legislators. Assets, debts and sources of income must be listed but not dollar amounts.

He said his sole interest was to heighten public confidence in local government and to smoke out potential conflicts of interests.

Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, recalled that legislators passed the state disclosure law in 1973 after the Sharpstown scandals left lawmakers and other officials in low public esteem.

"To my knowledge, we are lower today than we were then." Kubiak said. "We passed it six years ago, and what have we changed? How has that bettered government or bettered public opinion?"

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, risking American prestige and his political fortunes, is taking the first step today on his pilgrimage for peace in the Middle East. He said peace, elusive for a generation, is "within reach."

Carter departed Washington late Wednesday for Cairo, where officials were optimistic, the people hopeful and the crowds big and eager. A cartoon in the leading newspaper showed Air Force One with an angel of peace clinging to its Tens of thousands of spectators began gathering early along the route of Carter's eight-mile motorcade from the airport to Kubbeh palace. Students rushed to finish a 40-foot high white dove of peace for the procession.

The dove, mounted on a bus chassis, had flapping wings, an olive branch in its beak and 300 live doves inside for release as Egyptian entertainers sang to the roadside crowds about peace.

After trying to convince President Anwar Sadat to settle remaining differences with Israel, Carter will shuttle to Jerusalem on Saturday. There, he will try to convince Prime Minister Menachem Begin to sit down with Sadat and sign a treaty between the two nations

The pact would end three decades of hostility.

Budget Cuts Would Hurt, Labor Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) - Organized labor charged today that President Carter's proposed budget cuts for 1980 would be "devastating" to most Americans and would not make a significant dent in the inflation rate.

The AFL-ClO told Congress that Carter, in response to public concerns about accelerating prices and taxes, seems "willing to risk recession, rising unemployment and cutbacks in vital social programs for the appearance of 'fiscal responsibility."

· If Congress were to accept Carter's cuts in social programs, "a recession would be even more likely and millions of Americans would suffer needlessly," chief AFL-CIO lobbyist Kenneth Young said in testimony prepared for the House Budget Committee.

"Despite this risk, the impact of this budget on inflation would be negligible." said Young.

"In people terms, the consequences would be direct, immediate and devastating," he added. "The cuts are concentrated in programs that are helping the unemployed, retirees, workers, the poor, children, students, women and minorities."

Carter has proposed a "very austere" budget of $532 billion, which he contends would combat inflation by reducing the budget deficit from a projected $37 billion this year to $29 billion in 1980.

Gas Plans Announced

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Two legislators announced plans Wednesday to try to persuade their colleagues to enact several proposals to make Texas less dependent on crude oil and natural gas. Their efforts, said Rep. Bill Keese, D-Somerville, might lead one day to a solar-heated Capitol.

"I would like very much myself to see the Capitol converted" to solar energy, Reese told a news conference.

Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, said he was introduced seven proposals that "represent the first comprehensive attempt to legislatively enact a wide ranging alternate energy program for this state."

"We need to start now rapidly developing sources of energy that will not be subject to cartels, price gouging or exhorbitant prices," he said.

He said he would do all he could through tax breaks and other incentives to develop what some 'might term "exotic"

At one time, he noted, crude oil was considered "exotic." Keese and Vale are both sponsoring a so-called omnibus solar and wind energy bill and a measure providing a tax exemption for gasahol fuels. Vale also has introduced a bill to raise up to $30 million a year for an alternate energy fund by levying a 5 percent tax on coal. uranium, iron ore, salt, gypsum, lime, gemstones, clay, stone, sand, gravel, talc soapstone and Keese confined his remarks to solar energy, stating, "Sunlight is not subject to embargo." He said an industry based on solar technology would generate more than twice the number of jobs as the same investment in conventional electric utility

"It is mind boggling why the state doesn't invest in alternate forms of energy that in essence provide free fuel instead of year after year just throwing money away on heating, air conditioning lighting," said Vale.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

The whole philosophy of Motherhood has been built around the theory that children may not act like they appreciate your sacrifices, but secretly, they think you're really swell.

You see it on commercials. The one where the frazzled mother is hustling the laundry from one room to another lamenting, "He won't even notice how fresh his underwear smells" only to see the kid bury his face in it and look like he has just seen God.

I personally see children as a Christmas club where you make deposits all year long and get a pleasant surprise at the end of the year. There's no interest, but at least you get back what you put in.

One of those "cashing in" moments occurred this week when we were putting together our income tax. We said to our son, "Do you have your W-2 form from when you worked this summer? We are going to declare you as an exemption." He looked puzzled. "Why would you do that?" "Because for the last year we have fed, clothed boarded, transported, indulged, and kept you in good health.' "I'm filing separately," he said, "so I can get a refund." "But if we claim you, the government allows us $750 right off the top. If we don't get that exemption, we're in a higher bracket."

go to work this summer. I wanted to stay here at home and visit with you and Dad and discuss my philosophy of life, but no, you weren't happy until I was out taking a job away from some poor unfortunate who needed his character built." I looked at this child and suddenly saw him for what he was--a person who would tell the Gestapo his parents listened

"You should have thought of that before you bugged me to to Radio Free Europe from a radio hidden under the floor. A child who would see us attend open house at camp and pretend he was an orphan. A child who would keep me in my old age and put a pay TV in my room. As we pored over the return, I thought of the 16 hours of labor that went into his birth...the demanding infant years...the dedication to his bad skin...the years of caring, running, and fetching.

Somehow, it's hard to accept the fact that your kids will sell you down the river for a lousy $15.95 refund.

Iran Turmoil Viewed Through Young Eyes

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, featuring 13-year-old Allyson Jones, appeared in the Feb. 27th issue of The Vernon Daily Record at Vernon. Allyson is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.H. Woodford of Hereford.) She could well be the nation's foremost 13-year-old authority on Iran-and she sees nothing but regression and mounting problems for the Iranians under a new revolutionary regime there.

Pretty blonde and blue-eved Allyson Jones, granddaughter Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jones of Vernon has a sparkling intelligence and maturity well beyond her years-and definite political opinions to match them. Allyson returned to this country in January to live with her maternal grandparents in Hereford, Mr. and Mrs. L.H. Woodford.

Her father, the late Jimmy Jones of Vernon, was killed in an automobile accident while he was a senior student at Texas Tech in 1967.

It was a crash that Allyson, then two, and her mother both survived.

Because her mother later married a native Iranian, Riaz Mustour, the family returned to Iran where he has worked as a petroleum engineer and Allyson has spent the past six

Her family sent her home to the United States as violence mounted before the Iranian government was toppled.

Because she was kept inside-unable to attend school during much of the rioting which took place before her departure for this country-Allyson did not personally see much of the disorder or the killings which took place.

But she was able to emerge and see the devastation which resulted in burned banks, theaters and other establishments. She saw a 10-story building completely in rubble.

She adds that because of their presence in an Iranian community and links with the country, "We never got threats or notes under the door, as some did, saying, 'Americans go home."

She says that the Iranian people generally have benefitted from westernization, and the women, particularly, have enjoyed the new freedoms they have gained in recent years.

"They want freedom," she says of the revolutionaries, but she predicts that they will not have it under the new revolutionary regime.

"Khomeini will just be a dictator...He'll take them back 2,000 years."

She also is convinced that the new religious government, in its efforts to remove what it considers the "decadance" of westernization from the country will also seal its doom.

She says that Iran, with its modernized economy, depends almost entirely on foreign technicians-Americans, British, Korean. Japanese and Indonesian.

Native Iranians have not been able to take over the petroleum industry and provide the technical knowhow because so many of them, once they are educated overseas, do not choose to return to their rative land. She says the new regime siriply cannot depend upon the Iranians to get the technology done, and predicts a very bad situation, if not a virtual collapse, if the foreign technicians are forced to leave the country. Allyson insists she has found the Iranians "very undisciplined people."

She says that because their parents exercise absolutely no restraint over them the children grow up to be generally "rude, undisciplined, uncontrollable people."

"It's the truth," she vows. "I am very much Iranian... I was not ever in an American community. I was with them...I know how they think."

Because her stepfather returned initially to live with his parents and her family eventually bought a home in an Iranian Community, Allyson learned the language and associated with Iranian people.

She says her experience in leaving the country was typical of the irresponsibility she found on every hand among the

Her father took her to Mehrehbad Airport, the civilian airport outside the city of Tehran, where they made their home, and left her in the care of a fellow Iranian who was to see that she was taken some distance from the airport terminal to the waiting 747 Pan American Airways plane she was to board.

But the man kept delaying, allowed her to miss her bus to the plane. He finally allowed her to ride a bus of a British airlines plane, which arrived as they were taking the loading steps away from her plane as it prepared to depart.

She wasn't frightened, she says.

"I was furious that he would do such a thing."

The youngster says she personally ordered the attendants to put the steps back up to the plane so that she could board, and confronted with her youthful fury, they did just that."

"I wasn't about to miss that plane," she says.

Allyson says she has no regrets about leaving Iran. The only thing she would bring with her, other than her parents, is her school, a multi-national institution which required $3,000 in annual tuition.

The school study body was a metropolitan one, made up of Americans, the wealthier Iranians, and children of Korean, Japanese and Indonesian technical experts.

Many of her friends, on the advice of the U.S. Ambassador, left the country before she did.

She expects her father and mother to follow her to this · country as soon as they can sell their home in Tehran.

Denture Worries

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I will be entering the hospital soon for an operation. I dread it. It's not the operation I fear, it's much worse than that. You see, I have an upper plate. The thought of taking my teeth out in front of all those people in the operating room is humiliating to me. I don't think I can do it.

Can a person conceal the fact that he has dentures or would it be unsafe? A quick look at the postmark will tell you this is no phony letter from Yale. Please take me seriously. I need an answer right away. - Upset in Long Island.

DEAR UPSET: It would be dangerous to try to keep your dentures in your mouth during surgery. While under the anesthetic, you could swallow them and choke.

You let them off the hook by saying, "Often, people are self-conscious about their grammar and spelling and put off writing for thir reason.'

Well, maybe you're right, but the message they convey through silence is "Even though we were once close friends. I no longer care enough about you to take the time to reply." Former Resident's Quick Wits Save Life

By KERRIE STEIERT Women's Editor

[EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article features Glenna Carison, a former Hereford resident and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gault, 208 N. Texas. Mrs. Carlson, who was raised here, began her Red Cross training in Hereford and unknowingly prepared herself for an accient that would occur twenty years later, nearly claiming the life of her

It was January, a time of year when the Wisconsin North Woods are blanketed with snow and dotted with ice-encased ponds and lakes. Against this wintery backdrop, Edward and Glenna Carlson's rural home is picturesquely set near a steep slope leading to a trout pond, a favorite fishing spot for Lillian Carlson, 73, who lives with her son and daughter-in-law.

On that particular January day, with the temperature having slipped below zero, "Lil" had bundled up in her winter coat for an outing to the 10-acre private fish pond, which was entirely frozen on the surface except for an area 10 feet by 25 feet, kept open by an aerating pump. She returned to the house once with a 21/2 pound rainbow trout but went back down the steep incline in hopes of catching another. She was accompanied by her miniature poodle and Glenna's two

It was only a brief time later that the two big dogs bounded up the snowy slope, barking and running in circles at the front of the Carlson house. They scratched and pawed at the front windows overlooking the lake until Glenna Carlson opened the door to investigate the commotion.

Mrs. Carlson's eyes went directly toward the pond, but she could see no sign of her mother-in-law. "Oh my God, is she in the water?" she asked herself, grabbing a coat and running saw Lil floating face-down in the cold, black waters. "By some miracle of God-given strength, I lifted her from the water and started mouth-to-mouth resuscitation after getting the water out (of her lungs)."

The elder Mrs. Carlson had no pulse or heart beat. As she labored desparately over the older woman, Glenna heard the sputter of an engine. "I screamed with all my might," she said.

Martin Moser, a woodcutter from nearby Webster, had been in the Carlson yard repairing his chain saw and had gotten back in his truck when he heard Glenna's cries for help. He heard her despite the fact that his engine was running and his truck windows closed.

After looking through an opening in the woods and realizing the situation, he vaulted down the incline to the site where Glenna was admistering first aid.

"With all those heavy water-soaked clothes, somehow Moser and I carried Lil up to the house," Glenna recalled. "We took off the wet clothes and wrapped Lil in a big Hudson's Bay wool blanket."

An ambulance was contacted and made the 11-mile drive quickly. The accident victim was transported to a hospital at Grantsburg, where her temperature was so low that it could not be registered until 10 o'clock that night. After a few days hospital recovery, Mrs. Carlson was able to return home.

Glenna Carlson cited several factors that attributed to Lil's

"I just happened to be in the room facing the lake, the dogs got my attention, Martin Moser just happened to be in the yard at the exact moment and the winter jacket Lil was wearing must have collected some air so she was floating on top of the water. God wanted her to live," she surmised.

IN WASHINGTON

Martha Angle and Robert Walters A question of expense

WASHINGTON (NEA) - One major defense contractor sought to charge the taxpayers $12,500 for a film promoting its wares. Another company wanted to use public funds to pay for more than $100,000 worth of entertainment

A third aerospace firm requested government reimbursement for more than $200,000 worth of employee time devoted to lobbying and entertainment.

Those disclosures come from previously secret documents, reluctantly released by the Defense Department almost 18 months after a request for the materials was submitted under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act.

The Pentagon's foot-dragging is understandable, because the documents offer evidence that the Washington offices of some of the nation's biggest and best-known military contractors sought federal payments for unauthorized expenses.

When officials of the Defense Contract Audit Agency (DCAA) examined the financial records of the Rockwell International Corp., a Pittsburgh-based firm, they challed the contract of the Rockwell International Corp., a Pittsburgh-based firm, they challed the contract of the Rockwell International Corp., a Pittsburgh-based firm, they challed the contract of the Rockwell International Corp., a Pittsburgh-based firm, they challed the contract of the Rockwell International Corp., a Pittsburgh-based firm, they challed the contract of the Rockwell International Corp., a Pittsburgh-based firm, they challed the contract Audit Agency (DCAA) examined the financial records of the Rockwell International Corp., a Pittsburgh-based firm, they challed the contract Audit Agency (DCAA) examined the financial records of the Rockwell International Corp., a Pittsburgh-based firm, they challed the corp. lenged more than $350,000 worth of Washington office expense claims submitted during a recent two-year period. Included in that total was $12,500 for production of a film touting the virtues of Rockwell's controversial and ill-fated

B-1 bomber project. In another case, DCAA auditors disallowed more than $340,000 worth of expenses claimed during the same two-year period by the Washington office of the Lockheed Aircraft Corp., of Burbank, Calif.

That included more than $112,800 worth of entertainment costs, as well as more than $38,400 for travel to international air shows in France and Great Britain, firstclass air fares for company executives and travel expenses

When DCAA auditors checked into the finances of the Washington office of the Boeing Corp., of Seattle, Wash., they questioned almost $274,000 worth of expenses charged to government accounts during a two-year period.

That included almost $202,500 worth of salaries and fringe benefits paid to Boeing's Washington representatives while they were engaged in entertainment and lobbying activities. lobbying activities. Almost $32,400 was spent on fishing trips, hunting expeditions and other unallowable entertainment activities. Another $22,400 went for dues to the Washington

Athletic Club and other social organizations, as well as various "social" or "goodwill" activities. The DCAA audits were designed specifically to reveal not only unallowable contractor entertainment claims but also to discover whether any civilian or military employees of the Defense department were recipients of that

Department regulations specifically prohibit that practice, to prevent Pentagon officials from being improperly tice, to prevent Pentagon officials from being improperly tempted to return the favor by giving special consideration to their hosts when negotiating and awarding contracts.

But the DCAA auditors invariably were foiled in their efforts to identify the individuals entertained at restaurants, country clubs, hunting lodges and sports stadiums. In Lockheed's case, for example, the auditors found that company expense vouchers "did not disclose the nature, objective and purpose of the meal and the names and objective and purpose of the meal, and the names and affiliation of the attendees." Boeing's instructions for employee expense acounts "require specific identification of the business relationship of individuals or groups" being entertained, according to the DCAA report. The auditors found, however, that "these instructions are generally not being followed by any of the Boeing organizations" because expense accounts included only vague references to "business associates" or "business

Boeing officials claim that company employees are allowed to ignore the expense account instructions. As a result, nobody knows whether the company engaged in prohibited wining and dining of Pentagon officials.

THOUGHTS

Thursday

Among his many pests and problems, Job had moths (Job 4:19 and 27:18). Early literature used "moths" as a figure of speech describing anything that gradually and silently eats, consumes or wastes any other thing.

"... lo, they all shall wax old as a garment; the moth shall eat them up." — Isa.

Friday

Teddy Roosevelt popularized "Ananias" as a word for liar.

"But Peter said, Ananias, why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghost " - Acts 5:3 Saturday

The simile "like a wild bull in a net" dates back to the prophet Isaiah.

"... they shall lie at the head of the street, as a wild bull in a net: they are full of the fury of the Lord ..." — Isa. 51:20

Sunday

Gad — "to run wild" or "to be uncontrolled" — is an Old Testament word used by the prophets.

"Why gaddest thou about so much to change thy way?..." — Jer. 2:36

Nehemiah After NCAA Indoor Hurdles Title

holder Renaldo Nehemiah will be trying to make up for a "Lost Weekend" in the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships Friday and Saturday at Cobo Arena

Nehemiah, the resilient University of Maryland sophomore who has set indoor beststhis year in the 50-and 60-yard hurdles, and the 50-and 55-meter hurdles, will be trying to overcome the embarrassment of a rare disqualification during a heat of the 60-yard hurdles at the IC4A Championships last Saturday at Princeton, N.J.

"I have to wipe it out." said Nehemiah, who had been unbeaten in 16 indoor meets since last year before beating himself in the IC4A. "I have to say it happened, it's part of the breaks.

The 19-year-old Nehemiah is the defending champion in the NCAA 60-yard hurdles, a race controversy. After Nehemiah, teammate Greg Robertson and James Walker of Auburn crossed the line in a blanket finish, the judges were unable to decide on their placing order for 20 minutes. Finally Robertson was announced as the winner, with Nehemiah second and Walker third.

Thirty minutes later, the result was changed, the Nehemiah was placed first, with Walker second and Robertson "I want to regain my championship, but I want to win it easier than I did last year." said the world's top-ranked hurdler. "I don't want a photo finish again."

Franklin Jacobs also wanted to erase the memory of a lost weekend, but will have to wait. Jacobs, the American indoor record holder in the high jump

Jacobs suffered the injury Monday night while playing intramural basketball. On Wednesday, the ankle was placed in a soft cast for two weeks by Dr. Chris Matteou.

Jacobs did not compete in the IC4A meet because of tendinitis in his left heel and suffered his only loss of the season in 10 meets the previous week in the National AAU Championships. finishing second to Benn Fields. While Nehemiah will be

Kiddie Korps Baseball Stars Of The Future

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) -Petey Rose, age 9, strode into Danny Ozark's spring training office the other day and confronted the manager of the Philadelphia Phillies.

"Danny." the boy asked in dead earnestness, "does my pop have a chance of making this baseball team?"

Ozark, who said Petey never calls him "Mister." was stumped momentarily. Then he managed to suppress a smile and allay the youngster's

They're the Phillies' notorious "Kiddie Korps" - heirs and half-pint duplicates of some of the men who hope to carry the talent-pocked Phils into a World Series.

They are a precocious lot, those tykes, outfitted from cap to cleated leather shoes in custom-made official Philly uniforms, forever underfoot, disdainful of all the grownup ial bonus babies of the 1990s. "Look," proudly says Pete Rose, the Phillies' celebrated $3.2 million transplant, pointing inside his screened locker. "Four different uniforms just like mine. They're Petey's."

All have Pete's number - 14. Matching numbers are their case also for Bret, 9, and Aaron, 5, sons of catcher Bob Boone: Mark McGraw, 6, son of pitcher Tug McGraw, and 5-year-old Ryan Michael Luzinski, son of slugging outfielder Greg Luzinski, known as the "Bull."

"The kid is five going on 15." says the moon-faced Luzinski, "very mature for his age."

The corps of watch-fob Phils dress with their papas, join them in calisthenics, catch and bat with them during breaks in the training routine. They never leave the field. Ozark watches benignly.

The Phillies are a familyoriented team.

They say one of the reasons that Rose departed his beloved Cincinnati was imposition of the "No Kids Allowed" rule by the stern new Reds boss, Dick years.

Maryland was the ACC's "big" winner, defeating Rhode Island 67-65 at College Park. Md. ... but it took the Terrapins three overtimes to do it. Meanwhile, at Lexington, Ky., Clemson nipped Kentucky. the 1978 national champion, 68-67 in just one overtime while Virginia needed only the regulation 40 minutes to dispose of Northeast Louisiana 79-78 at Charlottesville, Va.

Elsewhere, Ohio State trounced St. Joseph's, Pa., 80-66 at Columbus, Ohio, Nevada-Reno outlasted Oregon State 62-61 at Corvallis, Ore., and Old Dominion shaded Wagner 83-81 at Norfolk, Va.

Tonight's remaining six opening-round contest find Central Michigan 19-8 at 16th-ranked Purdue 23-7, Holy Cross 17-10 at Dayton 18-9, Indiana T8-12 at Texas Tech 19-10. St. Bonaventure 19-8 at Alabama 19-10. Alcorn State 27-0 at Mississippi State 19-8 and Texas A&M 22-8 at New Mexico 19-9.

The 40-team NCAA Tournament begins Friday night.

Wednesday's NIT results also set up two second-round games - Ohio State 18-10 vs. Maryland 19-10 and Old Dominion 22-6 vs. Clemson 19-9. Virginia 19-9 will meet tonight's St. Bonaventure-Alabama winner while Nevada-Reno goes against the Texas A&M-New Mexico survivor.

Kentucky's Wildcats, who missed a chance to defend their NCAA laurels when they were beaten in the finals of the Southeastern Conference tourney by Tennessee, dropped out of the NIT when Clemson's Billy Williams sank two free throws with 12 seconds to go.

Clemson used a delay game to kill the last 10 minutes of the first half.

Maryland's Albert King, who sat out the first 27 minutes with a foot injury, scored all four points in the third overtime to give the Terrapins their marathon triumph over Rhode Island, Larry Gibson led the winners with 17 points and King added 15. Jimmy Wright had 20 for Rhode Island, whose ace. Sly Williams, sat out almost 10 minutes and scored only 12 points before fouling out with 13 seconds left in regulation time.

Virginia turned back Northeast Louisiana on Jeff Lamp's baseline jumper with seven with 16 points while Kentucky's seconds left. It came just 10 seconds after Calvin Natt, who finished with 38 points, had given the losers their only lead of the second half. Natt hit all 10 second-half shots - he was 15-of-18 overall - and scored 28 points after the intermission. Lamp scored 10 of his 20 points in the last six minutes.

Kelvin Ransey scored 18 points, Merb Williams added 16 and Mike Cline had 14 on 6-of-7. shooting as Ohio State overwhelmed St. Joe's. Norman Black's 21 points topped the losers. St. Joseph's remained within range until Ohio State uncorked a 15-5 burst and opened a 54-36 lead with 8:25 remaining.

Mike Gray made a jump shot with seven seconds left and then added a free throw to give the 111/2-point underdog Wolf Pack its victory over Oregon State. Gray led all scorers with 27 points while Steve Johnson paced Oregon State with 22. Nevada-Reno converted 20 of 28 free throws to 7 of 15 for the TULSA, Okla. (AP) - Indiana State basketball coach Bill Hodges got his birthday present a day early today.

Hodges, who will be 36 Friday, was named Missouri Valley Conference coach of the year after leading the Sycamores to a perfect 29-0 season record, top-ranked team in the nation and a berth in the NCAA playoffs beginning this week.

Hodges took over the Indiana State team last Oct. 15 after his predecessor, Bob King, became ill. Hodges had been an assistant to King for four years and before that was an assistant coach at Tennessee Tech and Armstrong State.

Thanks to Larry Bird, one of the nation's top players, Indiana State wasn't beaten all season.

Along with the perfect year, Indiana State won the Missouri Valley title as the first team since 1947-48 to go undefeated in Valley games. Oklahoma A and M College, now Oklahoma State University, did it that time with a 10-0 record. Indiana State had 16 conference wins this year in an enlarged league.

In the selection by media and coaches, Hodges received 45 votes for coach of the year. New Mexico State's Ken Hayes and Drake's Bob Ortegel each received four votes.

His selection came just a day after Bird was named the conference player-of-the-year for the second consecutive year. Bird led the conference in school league. In the previous meeting of the two teams, Bad

Company had won the matchup.

Tarkanian Rated One Of The Best By Peers

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) -'Pay attention," demanded Prof. Jerry Tarkanian between halves of Nevada-Las Vegas' game with San Diego State. "Maybe if we get our heads inthe game we can go out and do

"I would love to see us play 20 full minutes of basketball. Dammit, you've got to get yourself ready to play."

This is Tarkanian's classroom. Nowhere else are his eyes so alive, his spirit so high and his personality so dominating.

The lecture wasn't inspirational Knute Rockne, and it wasn't very successful as UNLV lost to San Diego 94-91 last month for the third home loss of the season, the most games any Tarkanian-coached team had ever lost at home.

"This is an all-time low," moaned Tarkanian after the Rebels' record dropped to 17-7. Tarkanian, who has the highest winning percentage of any active coach, brought a major college career mark of 244-44 into the 1978-79 season. That's in five years at Long Beach State where he never lost a home game - and five years at UNLV. After the loss, Tarkanian was near tears. Constantly haunted by his troubles with the NCAA, Tarkanian used to be able to take solace in the fact his team was winning consistently.

"We've been through so much; I'just don't know how much we have left to draw on." said Tarkanian's wife. Lois, who has been the coache's most vocal defender throughout his troubles with the NCAA because of alleged rules violations at Long Beach State and UNLV.

"I never was paranoid, but because of this NCAA thing. I think everyone's out to get me now," Tarkanian said.

Since Tarkanian became a major college coach, 12 of his players have played in either the National or American Basketball Associations. although only Ricky Sobers and Reggie Theus have really starred in the pros at UNLY, 14 of his players have been drafted. NBA scouts like his teams because they play a fast-paced game.

His Runnin' Rebels have been near the top of the team scoring charts all season, even though he says he doesn't have a good shooting club. In the 1975-76 season, UNLV set an NCAA record, averaging 110.5 points a game. The next season, the Rebels had at least 100 points in a record 12 straight games. reached the Final Four of the NCAA Tournament and had a record six players drafted by the

At Long Beach, Tarkanian used a 1-2-2 zone and a power forward offense. He adapted his style to the personnel he inherited at Vegas in 1973, the Rebels became the Runnia Rebels and Tarkanian became a believer. This fast town fell in love with the fast game and would scream if the Rebels tried a slow down. So Tark recruits greyhounds, most of whom happen to be black players who love to run and gun.

Another Tarkanian selling point is his rapport with blacks. Many of his ex-players have become unofficial recruiters in black areas, spreading the word that Tark can be trusted.

One coach likens Tarkanian to "a hoodlum priest. He knows some os his kids are bad, but he tries to build them into better people. Some of his kids are out-and-out punks but he'll protect them.

The two-year NCAA probation at UNLV - mostly for violations committed before Tarkanian came to Las Vegas is supposed to end after this season. The probation prohibits the Rebels from playing in the NCAA Tournament that begins Friday and reduces their basketball scholarships to three

The NCAA says one reason it has such a hard time getting the goods on Tarkanian is that his players are too loyal. Cash transactions aren't done in front of cheering crowds, either, the NCAA says.

"The boosters here will slip you something, just like everywhere else," said senior Eddie McLeod. "And when you go to the coach with a problem. he'll steer you to someone. Boosters know how to handle this type of thing. It's done privately."

Tarkanian says he's clean now. If a player asks for help. "I'll say 'you know people in this town as well as I do, keep me out of it."

Either way. Tarkanian's attitude is that he either cannot or does not want to turn off the flow of illegal booster activities. "It's really uncontrollable. there are rapid people in any town," he said. Tarkanian says he was aware of his players being helped at Long Beach, things like plane rides which were arranged by an assistant coach. Irvan Duncan. "I knew the players didn't walk." he said. But his philosophy is that these are actions taken for humanitarian reasons. "If I were a mathematics professor and tried to help one of my students with a problem, then I would be considered a caring educator," he said. "But I am a basketball coach, and if I care about my players, the NCAA players. They don't have respect for you or themselves." he said. "We've been in the running with kids being offered $50,000 by another school by selling them on having pride and dignity. But we don't usually get those kids. We have never gotten any of the superstar players to come here.

Not one." The AP interviewed a number of coaches who know Tarkanian and his methods well. All of them refused to be identified because they said they liked Tarkanian and were concerned about speaking out against the NCAA. They concluded that:

-Tarkanian, the man, is a real charmer, the kind of guy you'd love to meet at your local watering hole.

-He is one of the best technical coaches in America.

-He does allow illegal things to go on with his players, but it's small scale compared to many other schools. Several of the coaches listed Kentucky, UCLA and USC as the biggest

-The NCAA's punishment does not fit Tarkanian's crimes. He has been unfairly singled out by the NCAA.

-He genuinely cares about the welfare and pro aspirations of his players but is less concerned about their education. Tomor-

Veeck Still In Love With Baseball

a stormy, on-again, off-again love affair with baseball, Bill Veeck still sees some good and bad in the irascible, stubborn old dame who has dominated his life and livelihood.

"She hasn't changed that much - still the cheapest. most-gratifying and fun-filled of all bigtime sports entertainment;" the president of the Chicago White Sox said. "I am encouraged over the esurgence of baseball's popu-farity - the growing crowds and the spread to places such as Japan, Puerto Rico, Cuba and even Holland, West Germany and Italy "I am discouraged that some of my peers, for whatever reason, have embarked on an ego trip and are dragging the rest of us along as unwilling satellites.' He calls the game's economic spiral - the mad scramble for free agent superstars and the escalating salaries - "ridiculous and self-destructive." "I don't limit it to the stars." he added. "I refer to the way these salaries have lapped over to the other players. I call it the high cost of mediocrity. It reminds me of the time I SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) - After lived in the, East, I was an auction devotee. I bought old furniture - junk - and refinished it. I wound up buying exorbitant pieces I really didn't want.

"That's what's happening in baseball."

Veeck, 65, son of a Chicago Cubs' executive, grew up in the tradition of the sport. He is conceded to have one of the keenest minds in the business. He is a mover, an innovator, sometimes a maverick, always a barnum with the common touch.

At 27, he bought the Milwaukee Brewers franchise in the American Association. He went to war, lost a leg and came home to head a series of major league franchises - first Cleveland, where he won the World Series and set attendance records that still stand; then the St. Louis Brown, the White Sox and - after a 14-year break for health reasons - back to the Everywhere he went, he turned sow's ears into silk purses. He introduced exploding scoreboards, midget batters, horse giveaways and fan lotteries. Crowds swelled. Success followed.

Of his newest venture, he said:

"I invested all my money and my wife's money in the worst club and oldest park in baseball. My approach is different than some people's. It is not a toy. It s not a tool to be used to other ends. It is an avocation.

In 1977, the White Sox made a run at the pennant, leading their division from July 1 until mid-August, and set a home attendance record of 1,657,135.

Veeck did it by not only improving the caliber of the team's play but also making it a fun attraction for the fans, meting water supplies during the annual High Plains Irrigation Conference here · Tuesday, March 13.

Ways to improve irrigation efficiency, reduce water costs and make better use of available water and at the same time improve the profit margin will be discussed.

The conference begins at 9:30 a.m. in the Community Center, 100 Avenue C at Park Avenue. It is sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Water Association, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Deaf Smith County

Chamber of Commerce and the Panhandle Economic Program.

Current water policies and prospects for importing water will be discussed by Duncan Ellison, executive director of Water, Inc., Lubbock. Dr. Ray Sammons, Extension area economistmanagement, will help the producers examine whether or not they can afford to irrigate.

Irrigating wide beds and alternate furrows will be explained by Dr. John Stone, professor of agronomy at Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, Oklahoma.

A luncheon will be provided by the Deaf Smith County Water Association. Dr. Ron Thomason, acting dean of the School of Agriculture at West Texas State University, Canyon, will be luncheon speaker. Research being conducted in irrigation management will be outlined by Dr. Bill Lyle, research agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Halfway. Effective use of center pivot sprinklers will be discussed by Leon New, Extension area agricultural engineer-irrigation, Lubbock. Ray Roberts, technical represenative for Johnson Screens, Round Rock, will discuss procedures that permit wells to provide water on demand. Moderators for the conference will be Charles Schlabs, Hereford grower and chairman of the Deaf Smith County Water Association, and Juston McBride, county Extension agent.

PIGUA Still Compiling Testimonyfor Gas Hearing; High Agriculture Priority is Foremost Concern

By JIM STEIERT Brand Farm Editor

Preparation of testimony by members of the Plains Irrigation Gas Users Association continues today as area farmers gear up to go to bat once more for a priority rating for the natural gas they use to power their irrigation

Agriculturalists from the local area, as well as various portions of the Ogallala Basin will be presenting testimony tomorrow before a special Federal Energy Regulatory Commission hearing on gas curtailment in Amarillo at the Holiday Inn.

The hearing is scheduled to get underway at 9 a.m. and will continue through most of the Covered during tomorrow's hearing in Amarillo will be the volume of gas agricultural users may have, and how the volumes will be set.

Agricultural representatives will be attempting to establish a government can curtail the use high priority treatment for on-farm agricultural uses of natural gas for irrigation Department of Energy hear- pumping, grain drying and other agriculture-related uses.

Members of the PIGUA met in Dimmitt yesterday to begin compiling testimony for Friday's hearing, and according to Charles Schlabs of Hereford, secretary-treasurer of the organization, another session today will help to make testimony more concise.

The local gas users group has been allowed a 30-minute period for testimony in the hearings, and area representatives are looking to present the most tural gas during that time effective facts in the brief time

"We'll be testifying for a priority for agricultural gas, and on the lack of availability of alternate fuels for our irrigation program here. It's the same basic testimony we were presenting in a special Federal Power Commission hearing in Lubbock during 1975," Schlabs commented.

Area farmers and the PIGUA took a major role in the battle over top priorities for agriculperiod, when discussion and testimony over availability of alternate fuels for irrigation took on the airs of a bitter battle by the latter stages of the struggle.

Testimony of area residents was prominent in a favorable FPC decision on behalf of agriculture at that time, and the same basic issue has resurfaced for Friday's Amarillo hearings.

During hearings on the matter which have proceeded in Washington, the High Plains Gas Consumer Group, which represents irrigation agriculture, cattle feeding and related agriculture industry interests, has been establishing a careful

According to Allen Harris, legal counsel for that group, 'we've been making legal record against any rulemaking that would force curtailment of irrigation, grain drying or feedlot operations, or any measures that would force incremental pricing." Harris charged that incremental pricing could mean a tripling of natural gas utility bills that are already virtually prohibitive to irrigation, particularly if the price of No. 2 fuel oil is set as the gas price.

Rules on natural gas are to be finalized after hearings have been concluded, and will become effective Nov. 1 of this

That deadline lends urgency to the cause of area farmers hoping to establish a continued favorable priority for the gas they use in the production of their crops.

Among local agriculturalists compiling testimony here today were Schlabs, Carl King of Dimmitt, Ray Joe Riley of Sunnyside, Jay Boston of Hereford and Wade Mills of Hart, president of the PIGHA

"The level of support is, of course, vital," Jones said, "but it's meaningless unless it is achieved. Currently, we are operating under a program calling for a 15 cent price support level, but it is not returning anything like that price in the market."

According to Jones, "If the current loan and purchase program mandated by the Congress two years ago was being operated responsively, there wouldn't be 2.5 million tons of sugar under government loan today."

The committee will begin to draft a report to the House of Representatives on sugar legislation March 13 and the Senate Finance Committee has scheduled hearings March 21 and 26.

The House Ways and Means Committee also has legislative jurisdiction over the bills being considered, but action by that panel has yet to be scheduled.

to depend upon your description of the hand movement You seem to be describing the typical "pill rolling" movement that is an early sign of Parkinson's disease also known as paralysis agi tans, or shaking palsy. If this person has this type of tremor, a doctor will be able to recognize it when he sees it and should be able to make a diagnosis without too Parksinson's disease involves the brain. It can progcatching them ress. There is more than one cause for Parkinson's disease, including the use of certain drugs. It is not caused by alcohol. Shakes from alcohol are something different and would not produce the typical pill rolling movement that you seem to be describing. I would urge this individual to seek medical attention: There are useful medicines that can help in such conditions

I'm not certain what you mean by saying that this person no longer drinks hard liquor, since you asked about beer. The alcohol in beer has the same effect upon the body as the alcohol in cocktails. There is more alcohol in a 12-ounce can of beer than a one-ounce jigger of whiskey

To give you more information about alcohol and its effects on the body, I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-4 on alcoholic beverages. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self addressed envelope for it one sex partner to another What is the best way to get rid of them' DEAR READER Warts are warts, and all are caused by a virus. The warts that occur on the genitals and rectal area may be slightly different in appear ance and are sometimes called venereal warts. The virus that causes them may be a little different than the type of virus that causes warts in other locations, but this difference has not been definitely confirmed

You can develop a warf anywhere on your body with out getting them from somebody else. That includes warts in the genital area without sexual contact. If a person has sexual relationships with someone who has such warts, there is a significantly increased chance of

So, yes, they do have a contagious characteristic Incidentally, so do warts elsewhere on the body, and that's thought to be one of the reasons why there was a marked increase in the incidence of warts on the feet in England a number of years ago with the increase in public swimming pools.

So, you may have gotten cour warts if you had sex with someone who also had them but I would like to add that that's not the only way a person can get them.

Like all other warts, they are difficult to treat. There may be some burning and irritation if a chemical is applied so you want to be sure and follow your doctor's directions exactly They can be frozen off but this can be painful not surprisingly. considering their location
