Davis Trial To Begin Saturday

AMARILLO (AP) - With a jury at long last secured, attorneys waded today into a paperwork prelude to testimony in the capital murder trial of millionaire Cullen Davis.

State District Court Judge George Dowlen said he must dispose of perhaps thirty motions before the first witness will be summoned to testify.

The defense is expected to renew its efforts to temporarily free Davis on bond. The jury of nine men and three women was completed Wednesday in the eighth week of selection and Dowlen indicated it probably would be Saturday before testimony could begin.

Davis, 43, is on trial for his life in the slaying of Andrea Wilborn, 12, his stepdaughter and one of two killed in a shooting spree last summer at the $6-million dollar Davis mansion on Fort Worth's southwest side.

Two others were wounded in the attack, including Davis' estranged wife Priscilla, 36, who looms as the star witness for the state.

Her boy friend, Stan Farr, 30, died in the shooting, which stunned the city's party set and sent shock waves through Davis' vast business operations.

"We're satisfied with the jury and pleased to be finished with selection," Dist. Atty. Tim Curry of Fort Worth said after the final juror, an electrician, was chosen.

"We're ready for trial, as we have been since last October."

A previous attempt to try Davis in Fort Worth ended in a mistrial last spring and the case was moved to this Panhandle city on a change of venue.

Jury selection began here June 27 in Dowlen's tiny courtroom on the fifth floor of the Potter County Courthouse.

"I'm just tickled to death to get this thing rolling," said Dowlen. "Obviously jury selection took a lot longer than I expected."

Former National Champion Anxious for Football Season

By KEITH RIBNICK

The start of school means the start of football season. Both are just around the corner and fans of Hereford High's football team can't wait.

Neither can Mrs. Naomi Zarboch Schroeter. She will be watching the twirlers.

"To me, the twirling is more interesting than football," she says.

Her reason Mrs. Schroeter 26 years ago was the national baton twirling champion as a senior at Wheaton, Ill., High School.

Mrs. Schroeter grew up in the Chicago suburb of Wheaton and began her baton career as an 8 year old. Her two brothers two sisters also twirled in Wheaton, so the competition was stiff in Mrs. Schroeter's own family.

She started school twirling in junior high and modified her skills through high school. While in high school, Mrs. Schroeter became so adept she entered the state twirling championship of Illinois and placed.

She then competed in the national twirling competition in St. Paul, Minn. She won.

During her championship reign, the publicity concerning Naomi Zarboch was widespread. She was named outstanding teenager of the week in the Chicago area by WBBM radio, was interviewed on the air, and was given an inscribed watch on the occasion. The Chicago Tribune did a full page spread in a daily edition about Mrs. Schroeter and her twirler brother.

Her picture appeared in Life magazine.

By the time she had become national champion, Mrs. Schroeter had heard of a small Texas university in Abilene which was losing a feature twirler. She checked into the possibility of attending Hardin Simmons University on a twirling scholarship. The university wouldn't refuse a national champion and Mrs. Schroeter was awarded a four year scholarship.

Thunderstorm Drenches City

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

After breaking with a summer-long pattern for a few days last week, Old Man Weather returned to his former ways Wednesday night, dumping a huge rainshower on the city of Hereford but unleashing only trickles on the farmland surrounding the city.

Farmland that had missed out on rainfall for the better part of the summer received up to three inches of moisture in last week's storms, but reports from virtually all farming areas were shy of an inch following last night's cloudburst.

One of the largest rainfall accumulations was reported from property farmed by Griffin & Brand on the city's northern edge, where 1.10 inches was recorded.

KPAN radio logged 90 inches of precipitation at its downtown studios, while the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant came up the night's largest total—1.31 inches.

The storm over the city was accompanied by brilliant electrical displays at its peak, and a bolt of lightning knocked out electrical service to a few customers of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative.

According to James Hull of Deaf Smith REC, lightning struck a crossarm and knocked out one circuit.

The offices of the co-op were among those victimized by the blackout that followed, but crews from the firm had the damage repaired in a little over two hours.

To the west of the city, the county's dryland farms received only scattered showers.

Sprinkles were reported at the Clint

Homfeld farm 47 miles northwest of the city while 50 inches was recorded in the Walcott vicinity.

At Bootleg Corner, Mrs. Bill Page reported that approximately .80 fell at her husband's farm.

Residents of the Easter community have about given up on receiving rainfall this summer, after only .60 inches fell there last week while huge accumulations were reported at sites all around that area.

A spokesman for Easter Grain commented on the situation, stating, "We didn't get a bit of rain last night, not even enough to settle the dust. I don't know what's the matter out here, but we're about to forget what rain is like."

Showers were also skimpy to the north, with only a sprinkle falling at the Raymond Schlabs farm five miles north of the city.

Farms in that vicinity have come up on the short end of this summer's moisture total as well, although rains of up to three inches helped some farms do a little catching up last week.

A spokesman for the Schlabs farm said that irrigation of sugar beets is continuing at this time, although some farmers are beginning to shut down the WASHINGTON (AP) - The chance there will be a third season of bumper grain crops around the world apparently is the deciding factor in whether the government will try to cut wheat and feedgrain production next year and, if so, how much.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, said he thought farmers would be asked to set aside from production "a modest set aside from production" a modest amount for wheat, feedgrain and perhaps cotton and rice next year.

That's a far cry from his statements through July that, "I see no way we can avoid a wheat set-aside next year."

The dangers of trying to predict the weather and harvests next summer in major grain-producing nations - especially the United States and the Soviet Union - is the reason for the new caution, he said.

"We've had three bumper grain crops in a row, the Russians have had two, and the world as a whole has had two. A lot of people are saying it's impossible for that to happen again," Bergland said.

If there were a major wheat-crop failure, driving up all grain prices and eventually food prices and then turning upside-down a grain-fed livestock industry just emerging from four bad years, Bergland said, "I'm just going to be accused of bad judgment."

He met late Wednesday with officials of farm organizations, including those he said are normally shunted aside by Democratic administrations, seeking their views on set-asides.

Today he had sessions scheduled with Chairman Charles Schultz of the Council of Economic Advisers and top officials of the White House Office of Management and Budget.

His own economic advisers were to have completed by then an analysis of the impact on farm income and the federal budget of several different set-aside plans.

A meeting with President Carter set for Wednesday was rescheduled for Monday. They are to review the 300-page bill setting new farm and food-aid policies through 1981 that House and Senate conferees finished Aug. 5 with compliments from Carter "on a job well done."

If Carter then says he will sign the bill after Congress takes final votes next month, Bergland said, "I'll make the set-aside proposal to him that we have come up with."

"If we have one, it will be modest. We're not going to have any 40 per cent reduction in wheat acreage next year, that's out," he added.

The country went into the current wheat year in June with almost 1.2 billion bushels of wheat left unsold from last year's harvest of about 2.15 billion bushels.

Another 2.04 billion have been or will be harvested this year, USDA estimates, with no increase in the demand for the crop from foreign customers and consequently another year in sight of grain prices at 1971 or 1972 levels.

Chamber Studies Christmas Lighting

Committee progress reports, discussion of Christmas lighting and decorations, and appointment of several new committee members highlighted a regular monthly meeting of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce directors Thursday morning.

With president Joe Shollenbarger presiding at the 6:30 a.m. session today, the board discussed 10 items of business on the agenda and heard committee reports from DeWitt Seago and Betty Koelzer.

Seago, chairman of the New Teacher Appreciation Banquet, announced the annual dinner would be held in the Lamar Garden Room at King's Manor on Sept. 8. Merchants and firms sponsor the new teachers and serve as hosts at the event, and Seago reported many businesses had already signed up as sponsors.

A group from the Chamber Singers will provide special entertainment at the teacher banquet, and Cindy Duckworth will present dinner music for the occasion.

Mrs. Koelzer presented a report from the advertising committee which dealt with the cost of special highway signs. The C of C has been providing signs to promote the community and some are in need of repairs. The group also wanted the board's feeling on whether or not to renew contracts for two large billboard signs—one near Wildorado on I-40 and the other between Amarillo and Canyon.

Directors apparently felt the expense of these two signs was not feasible, and asked the committee to make recommendations on the use of chamber-owned signs.

Donna VanderZee, president of the Women's Division, reported her group was scheduled to confer with Miss Hereford, Dee Anne Cason, about her recent participation in the Miss Texas Universe Pageant. She announced the division would soon present recommendation for officers for next year.

During a discussion on the chamber's reaccreditation committee, Shollenbarger appointed past presidents Donald Hicks, Bud Eades and Roy Faubion to serve with that group. He also appointed Speedy Nieman, Mike Patrick and Mrs. VanderZee to an editorial committee on special publications.

The board discussed the activities of

Registration Begins Countdown

Student registration and teacher orientation next week signal the end of the summer layoff as the first school bells are about to ring.

Thursday is the first day of the school year.

Student registration will be on Tuesday. The only students who will not register on that day are junior and senior high schoolers not enrolled in the Hereford Independent School District last year. Those students have already enrolled.

Senior high school students who pre-registered during the last school year, those previously enrolled in the system, will register as follows:

Seniors between 8:30 and 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Juniors between 10 a.m. and noon.

Sophomores at 1:30 p.m.

Sophomores will register in the high school auditorium where they will undergo orientation. Juniors and seniors will register in the high school halls.

Sophomores and juniors have been asked to wear a coat and tie in order to have pictures made for the school annual. Seventh, eighth and ninth grade students who were in the Hereford school system last year should go by the office of their particular junior high schools between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Tuesday to receive schedules.

Questions on which district a student in either Stanton or La Plata should be directed to the school business office, according to an HISD spokesman.

Elementary school students not enrolled in the HISD last year should bring health records and report cards to their respective school offices between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

All first graders and students entering kindergarten are asked to bring health records and either a birth certificate or other proof of date of birth.

Elementary students enrolled in Hereford last year also will register between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. in their respective school offices.

Students to be enrolled in the 4-year old migrant student program will register in the school of their particular district. Headstart students must register at either Aikman or West Central.

New teachers and aides must attend orientation at 7:30 a.m. Monday in the high school library. There are 62 new teachers, along with several who are returning to the Hereford school system after leaving.

The new teachers and aides will be treated to coffee and other refreshments from 9 a.m. to 9:45 a.m. in the high school cafeteria. The breakfast is sponsored by the Deaf Smith County chapter of the Texas State Teachers Association and the Hereford Classroom Teachers Association.

All teachers will attend a faculty meeting from 9:45 to 11 a.m. in the high school auditorium. HISD Superintendent Dr. Harrell Holder will speak at the affair.

Grade level and department level meetings will be conducted from 11 a.m. to 12 noon in the high school. Curriculum guides will be distributed to all grade levels in the elementary schools and all departments in the secondary schools.

Teacher in-service will be from 1:30 p.m. Monday. Teachers and aides will report to their respective school buildings.

Wednesday is a work day for teachers, who will prepare their classrooms for Thursday's first day of school.

Signing Annuals

The 1976-77 Student body of Hereford High School was partially reunited this week in order to receive and sign yearbooks which arrived over the weekend. An Annual signing party was held Tuesday night at the community center by

Busjacker Arrested After Holding 63

SANTA CRUZ Calif. (AP) — A lone gunman held 63 people hostage at a remote religious retreat then calmly surrendered to police after his captives helped persuade him to give up.

Thomas Wilson, 6, of Bakersfield, Calif. was being held today in the psychiatric ward of the Santa Cruz County Hospital where he will undergo testing, said Sheriff Deputy Mark Ganghoff of the Santa Cruz Sheriff's Department.

Wilson was booked for investigation of kidnap and auto theft in the hijacking of a public bus and abductions of its four passengers and driver Ganghoff said.

Execution Delayed For Murderer Moore

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge has delayed a 24-year-old man's date with the electric chair less than 48 hours before the convicted murderer was scheduled to die.

The stay of execution granted Wednesday by U.S. District Court Judge Robert M. Hill postponed indefinitely the execution of Mark Milton Moore, 24.

Earlier Wednesday Moore's attorney Jim Finstrom, had asked the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals for a stay. The appeals court turned down the request.

Moore had been slated to be executed before sunrise Friday for the murder of a Dallas secretary.

Pacts Opponents Asking for Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of a new Panama Canal treaty moving to counter White House efforts to rally support for the agreement are hopeful they can deny it the two-thirds vote needed to pass the Senate.

A leading foe of the treaty Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., predicted Wednesday the pact will fail unless tremendous pressure is brought by the administration.

Thurmond and two other Senate opponents of the agreement Sens. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, planned to leave today for Panama.

Mrs. Schroeter performed with the nationally-known Hardin Simmons Cowboy band during her four-year stay in Abilene. With the band, she attended a campaign rally for President Dwight D. Eisenhower at Madison Square Garden in 1952 and she went to Europe for a USO tour with the band in 1953.

Besides extensive travels, the Cowbos band years led to her later marriage to Alex Schroeter a band member.

After Mrs. Schroeter's graduation and marriage in 1955, her husband joined the service and they moved to Colorado Springs. Studying active Mrs. Schroeter taught twirling to deaf and blind children for two years.

The Schroeters moved to Hereford in 1957. Mrs. Schroeter taught at Stanton Junior High School and continued to privately teach twirling. She quit her teaching job at Stanton in 1960 and continued to teach twirling until last year.

Mrs. Schroeter is a member of the local chapter of the American Cancer Society, a Sunday School teacher at the First Presbyterian Church, and attends meetings of the I. Alpha Study Club.

Her husband, Dean Smith, County auditor, is a die-hard football fan.

With 'Son of Sam's' Arrest

New York Terror Reign Ends

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Hand in hand, they strolled by the quiet waters of Gravesend Bay. The moon shone splendidly on this lover's lane in Brooklyn, an unlikely romantic patch in a city of tense towers.

They were an uncomplicated couple, stalked by the incomprehensibly complicated man who had died of a child's swing, alone, watching the nearness of a lover's embrace with his mind racing fantasies.

It was July 31, their first date, and their last.
It was also the last attack by the man they call "Son of Sam" who ended the life of Stars Moskowitz with a 44-caliber slug that smashed through her brain. He fired again and again, finally claiming the eyes of Robert Violante, hospitalized now and wondering where his promise has gone.

Camille Davis took a cuddly white dog named Snowball for a walk that night. The night was heavy with humidity and silent as a cemetery as she walked with him all the way to the fire hydrant.

Except for the police officers ticketing illegally parked cars, there was little to heed until a man approached her from behind a tree and gave her a long, sharp look.

He was so obvious, she would recount a week and a half later in a story copyrighted by the New York News.

It was hot, and he had a shirt and a jacket on, and he walked with his right arm straight down. I could see he was holding something, but from the front I couldn't tell what it was. As he walked away, I could see it was something he had partly up his sleeve.

He walked strange, like a cat, I thought.

The fatigue ground dark circles beneath his eyes and pulled the folds of his face downward. Here in the constant fluorescent light, were days and nights blend imperceptibly here, where police Inspector Timothy J. Dowd had passed too much time, the sting of too much coffee burned his gut and the stench of too many cigarettes filled his nose.

He had kept a vigil here for a week and another week and a month and another month and a year and for the last three days, sleepless and angry and frustrated and wondering where the elusive, taunting killer would strike once again.

So many false leads, so many leads the director of the 300-man task force dared not ignore. In the last two days, 30 calls came in every minute, 1,800 every hour. Three thousand people, three thousand, had been investigated.

And Dowd had yet to finger the killer they called "Son of Sam."

A young couple bent on romance. A woman walking her dog. A detective thinking of nothing so hard and so long. "Son of Sam," a canny, vicious, mad and mocking murderer of young women.

He must have been rejected by a woman, they theorized. He must have been impotent, fearing of them, lonely, living out of the cliché of a quiet man concealing the fantasies of demon.

This was the last night that "Son of Sam" would stalk the city, restless, ruthless and filled with hate.

The 44-caliber killer had struck eight times, the first seven in the Bronx and the Queens, in residential neighborhoods where the sounds of gunfire and sudden death are alien. Five young women with long, dark hair were dead. A man, considered an accidental target was dead as well.

Always, the 44-caliber killer attacked in the night. Always, he seemed to come from nowhere. Always, he fired from a crouch, wordlessly, his eyes burning hatred.

Sober with the fear of the man woman-hater, the throngs at the pulsating discotheques of Queens thinned out. Lover's lanes were virtually deserted. Young women shunned the streets at night, pulled their hair into buns, wore hoods to disguise their sex, turned down dates on the weekend.

When police proclaimed that their arrest of a pudgy, 24-year-old named David had ended the terror of the man they had called "Son of Sam," the shroud of fear lifted.

I'm free to be myself, a young woman bubbled afterward in the chaotic, churning of a single's bar full once again.

Camille Davis was the key to the case, police said. For four days she fought the fear of reprisal, finally overcoming it to tell her weird encounter that fatal night of July 31.

Perhaps, his was a ticketed car, they reasoned. Plainstickings, they went through the tickets, 20,000 of them issued every day here. And there emerged at long last the name of David Berkowitz, 24 years old, 35 Pine St., Yonkers.

The name had come up before, in Yonkers a city of 150,000 on the northern border of New York. It was a mere matter of days since a Westchester County sheriff's deputy had begun to wonder about his neighbor in the apartment building there. There had been a strange fire, and raving, rambling notes.

Down the block, the 64-year-old owner of a telephone answering service, Sam Carr, had complained about the man who shot at his black Labrador retriever. Carr had gotten strange notes, too. And a New Rochelle landlady had a keen memory for an unforgettable former tenant who had traced a grotesque postcard signed by "Sam and Friend" to the same man, David Berkowitz.

David Berkowitz, Sam Carr told the police, was "Son of Sam." Little did he realize, police said later, that he was apparently the "Sam" of the 44-caliber killer's demonic dreams.

Detectives said Berkowitz had confided to them that Sam is a man who lived 6,000 years ago. "He continued to get the messages through his dog. He told me to kill Sam is the devil."

In his apartment, where his unmade bed was littered with pornographic books and his walls contained wild scrawlings, someone had scribbled around a hole in the plaster.

"Hi, My name is Mr. Williams and I live in this hole. I have several children who I'm turning into killers. WAIT til they grow up."

Growing up was torture for David Berkowitz. Born to Tony and Betty Faico on June 1, 1953, he was taken from the irrigation of their corn crop.

A spokesman for Pioneer Fertilizer at Mico Center reported that "not a bit of rain" fell there last night and added, "You folks in Hereford quit hogging all of the rain."

At the Farmer's Corner community 15 miles north of Hereford, a spokesman for Hereford Grain Corp. reported that only light sprinkles fell last night, in the wake of a 2.40 inch rain last week.

H.I. Hershey reported "only a couple of drops" in the rain gauge at his farm 13 miles northeast of Hereford, but added, "We've had some awfully nice rain this summer. Maybe it was somebody else's turn."

To the east of Hereford, the Dawn community also received only sprinkles.

The forecast for West Texas calls for continued cloudy conditions and scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms through Friday.

The chamber president reported on the recent public meeting to discuss ideas for a multi-purpose building for community events. Shollenbarger said he thought the board should get as much input as possible and come up with a recommendation in the near future.

Bob Duckworth, executive vice president, briefly discussed work that needed to be accomplished on the Christmas lighting and decorations sponsored each year by the chamber. He also reported the progress of the safety committee's project to get a drive-up mail drop installed near the post office.

Directors attending the session were Shollenbarger, Hicks, Patrick, Nieman, Mrs. Vander Zee, Jonny Cloud, Bob Ginn, Raymond Schlabs, and Bud Snyder.

DAR Speaker Attacks Book

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A speaker for the Daughters of the American Revolution attacked a proposed biology textbook Wednesday because she said, it was biased in favor of evolution and birth control.

Mrs. R.C. Bearden of San Angelo told a panel of the State Textbook Committee that "introductory Biology," published by John Wiley and Sons, should not be permitted in high school classrooms.

She said the book treated evolution as a fact and not a theory in violation of the State Board of Education's proclamation for textbook submissions.

"Genesis cannot be reconciled with any evolutionary theory of the origin of man," said Mrs. Bearden.

The publisher said he was willing to put a label inside the front cover saying that it was the intent of the authors to portray evolution as theory and not proven fact, but Mrs. Bearden said that was like "putting a bandaid on a cancer."

She also objected to a somewhat detailed chapter on birth control which discussed various devices and made the statement that there would never be any totally satisfactory method of birth control.

"What about abstinence? This is not biology. This is a lesson on birth control."

John Cilli, marketing manager of Wiley, said there was "nothing inherently inconsistent between Genesis and current scientific thought...this is not being a religious textbook, we restrict our sales to alternate explanations that can be tested scientifically."

In another hearing room, representatives of the National Organization of Women NOW began a day and a half of testimony against a long list of books they maintain present stereotyped images of women in traditional roles or fail to recognize the contributions made by women.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I want to express all my appreciation to all the people in Hereford who made my return over here so enjoyable because of their warmest hospitality. I really do feel at home over here.

I would like to be able to reciprocate all the kindness I have received should anyone from Hereford come to Torino, Italy, although I know I could never offer as wonderful a hospitality as I have received here.

Thank you to all who made it possible. Friendship is the most beautiful thing in the world.

Newcomers.....

Newcomer in Hereford 'Getting Along Great'

By DIANNE BANNER
Brand Staff Writer

A newcomer to Hereford, Mrs. Mel Holubek, is a homemaker and likes what she does—making a house at 107 N. Douglas a home for her family.

The Holubeks came from College Station where her husband, Mel, who retired from the Air Force, was the director of the faculty mail department there. He is now employed by Marcus Hoelscher, animal nutritionist.

The homemaker is in the process of turning the house which they live into the home that they "want and can enjoy". As of now, Mrs. Holubek has wallpapered a big part of the house, made drapes, and worked outdoors with her newly planted yard trying to "keep the weeds from taking over."

A mother of five, she has had her share of cooking and keeping house. After being married for five years, she and her husband adopted a family of four from an orphanage. She later became pregnant and since the birth of her youngest daughter, the others as well as the parents have shown no partiality.

"I don't like it when people introduce me to someone and say... 'and she has four adopted children,' because I don't consider them adopted, they are just as much mine as my own children as my daughter is. They are mine, I raised them and they belong to me."

Her oldest daughter, Mrs. Noogie (Michelle) Stewart, lives in Dallas. Next to the oldest is Mike, who is stationed with the Army at Ft. Louis, Wash. Another daughter, Melody, Mrs. Fred Abbeleg is the secretary to the County Agent at A&M and her husband is a cyclotron technician specializing in atomic research.

Robert, another member of the family is married to Greta, and he intends to be a junior this coming fall at A&M.

Melinda, the youngest daughter will be a sophomore at Hereford High School this fall and will take part as a member of the 'Big Red Band'. She is 15 years old.

Asked if she had any hobbies or interests, Mrs. Holubek said "I don't have time for any 'extras' right now. I like to play bridge and dominoes and spend alot of time sewing. The house takes up most of my time."

She commented that she liked Hereford and her neighbors were the "nicest people" and that the climate here was "just great" especially compared to College Station.

"I can open my windows and let the fresh air blow through where at my other home I turned the air conditioning on in early April and kept it on until the late part of November. It's marvelous."

IT ALWAYS IRKS me when someone compliments a garment of mine and asks if I made it myself.

"ME," I bluster. "Are you kidding? I flunked paper dolls."

It's not a matter of being lazy or cowardly, it's just that I recognize my potential for keeping the ready-made clothing industry from ever tottering on the brink of bankruptcy. I figure that the money I've spent on "store bought" clothes easily covers the Christmas bonus for every employe of J.C. Penney, nation-wide.

It isn't that I didn't try my stint at the sewing machine, which produced what is laughingly called "a dress." Ask my friend Eleanor, who was the first to preview my first unique homespun creation.

"WHAT ON EARTH are you wearing," she gasped. "You look like you've been eaten by a silk worm."

"Don't be snide, after all, I deserve an 'A' for effort." "Come on now," she said. "The best you deserve is to be rescued. Where on earth did you find a pattern for a strait jacket?"

"Very funny. For your information, strait jackets don't have a fitted bodice," I indignantly replied.

"Neither do you, honey." Feeling a condescending sort of sympathy for me, Eleanor proceeded to give me advice for rendering my dress "from its resemblance to an umbrella," to quote my motor-mouthed friend.

"I think the problem lies in the fact that the darts are too low," she opined.

"I lowered them on purpose," I declared. "At the rate that my figure is setting, I expect this to fit like a glove next month."

"Well, in that case, perhaps we should alter the waistline," she proposed.

"Surgery would be easier." "Calm down," she said, trying to soothe my ruffled nerves and rumped gown.

"You're making a mountain out of a molehill."

"Believe me, I'd rather make the mountain," I proclaimed. Ignoring my growing frustration, Eleanor dropped to her dimpled knees and puzzled over the texture of the drooping hemline. "I can't figure out why this hem is so stiff," she muttered. "Did you do like I advised and baste it before you finished it?"

"BASTE IT?!" I gasped, with panic rising in my throat. "I thought you said 'paste'!"

Shaking her head in disbelief, Eleanor advised that I abandon my attempts at sewing for safer pursuits, such as defusing bombs or doing mission work for Idi Amin. (Eleanor has such a wry sense of humor.)

But, she's bound to be right about my sewing ability because she still hasn't escaped from that blouse that I made for her last Christmas.

Judges Impress Miss Hereford

Meeting five celebrity judges was the most exciting aspect of the Miss Texas Universe Pageant, held last week at El Paso, according to Miss Hereford Dee Anne Caison, who was the pageant's youngest competitor.

In a Brand interview, Miss Caison revealed that she was interviewed individually by actress Beverly Garland, actor Jim Hampton, actor Michael Gregory, cosmetician June Posen and fashion designer Tony Cilento. Each of the five interviews lasted approximately five minutes.

The local title-bearer described the El Paso pageant as "much more relaxed" than the Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant "due to the fact that talent competition was not involved" at the recent contest. Judging was based on three criteria—personality and poise, swimsuit and evening gown.

Although unable to pinpoint a specific reason, Miss Caison felt that her fellow competitors at El Paso were "more friendly" than at the previous pageant in July.

The Hereford coed was sufficiently impressed with the Miss Texas Universe contest and plans to enter again in approximately two years "when I'm older." Dee Anne stated that she felt her age was a hindrance at the Guy-Rex production.

Miss Caison had brief contact with Miss Universe, who seemed to have "lost her bubble" and Miss USA, a native of Houston. Winner of the pageant was Barbara Horan, Miss Dallas.

The slender blonde was accompanied to the Miss Texas Universe Pageant by her mother, Mrs. G.D. Caison Jr. Bob Duckworth, executive president of the local Chamber of Commerce, was in attendance for one night of competition at El Paso.

Dee Anne is sponsored by the Chamber Women's Division.

PRICE—Watch for specials on canned and frozen products the family likes. Stock up on good buys if proper home storage space is available.

Story Hour Program Changes Schedule

A wide assortment of learning ideas are planned by Roberta Seago and Suzy Curtinger for preschoolers and 1-4 graders who register now for the story hour program offered at Deaf Smith County Library.

There is no fee for a child to attend a weekly story hour and the program includes puppet plays, songs, finger plays, film strips and movies. There will be treats on special occasions and birthdays recognized.

It is required that a child's address, birthday and parents' names be provided during registration. A child can register at the library from 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday and Thursday, from 9 a.m.-6 p.m. other weekdays and until 12 noon Saturday.

Eligible children must be between the ages of 3-6 for the preschooler story hours, to be held at 9:30 a.m. each Tuesday and 9:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. each Wednesday, beginning Sept. 6. On Sept. 7, the story hour for 1-4 graders will move from Friday afternoons to 4 p.m. Wednesday.

A special puppet show is planned Sept. 6-7 in conjunction with the new story hour schedule.

Further information may be obtained at the library.

Ann Landers Murder Hints

DEAR ANN LANDERS: On behalf of motorists, I'm distressed across the nation. They come up with a list of things drivers of cars can do to kill more motorists this year:

(1) Throw things out the window when there is a take behind. At 55 mph, eggs, water can permanently blind a person. A hamburger wrapper thrown out at that speed could start a fire and cause time to reach.

(2) Pull over to break a wheel. We are second-class motorists. (Actually, bliners have the same rights as the driver of an 18-wheel semi.) Pulling out in front of a motorcycle gives the rider four choices: (a) sit still, laying the bike down and possibly dying to remain in the car ahead; (b) crash; (c) get clubbed by an oncoming car (also instant death); (d) hit the ditch (25 percent chance of survival).

(3) When passing a bliner, do it close, for bliners. They're skinnier than cars, so they don't need a whole lane.

A motorcycle is a lot more fragile than most people think. We CAN'T say on a dime, dodge flying objects, drive on a two-foot-wide pavement, and hope to survive long enough to see our children grow up.

Please, people, obey the laws and respect the law. Try to be considerate on the road. If you treat me badly on the road, I will DIE. It's as simple as that. Thank you for letting me have my say.—J.T.T.

DEAR J.T.T.: Now that you've had your say, I ask a question: Why don't you people who want to live support legislation to make helmets mandatory instead of screaming about your constitutional rights?

DEAR ANN: This is for "Agony in Connecticut," who wondered if she should stick with her married man.

I spent 13 years of my life (from age 20 to 33) waiting for a man to leave his wife for me and the child we had together. Thirteen years of hearing the standard excuses, "I can't risk the trouble it might cause in the business," "My wife's health isn't good. Let's wait till she's stronger." (Incidentally, they had no children.)

Finally I made the break and I have never been happier. I am seeing a fascinating and intelligent man who knows about my past and accepts me on the basis of what I am today. I deserve a kick in the tail for wasting all those good years.

Tell "Agony" to wake up. Six months from now she'll wonder what she ever saw in him.—I Like My New Moccasins

DEAR MOC: Did you say 13 years—and a child out of wedlock??? You're lucky, Lady.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I nearly cried when I read the letter from the woman who was upset because her son-in-law called her "Hey You." She's got it pretty good. You ought to hear what my son-in-law calls me.

I've done everything but stand on my head for that big ape and he is completely unresponsive. Any suggestions on how I can get him to be at least civil?—Bella Donna

DEAR DONNA: The big ape knows he is getting to you and he's enjoying it. Give him the deep six for a few weeks and see what happens.

Local Church Schedules Two Meals

San Pablo United Methodist Church will sponsor a noon luncheon and evening meal Saturday at the Community Center. The luncheon will be from 12-3:00 p.m. and the evening meal will be from 6-8:00 p.m.

At both meals the cost per plate will be $2 for adults and $1.25 for children. There will be a choice of Barbeque Chicken, Mole, and Carne Guisada which is sirloin prepared Mexican style. All dishes will be served with rice, beans, salad, coffee or tea.

Proceeds will go to benefit the church.

Kindegarten Plans Party

First Baptist Church will sponsor a Get Acquainted Day Friday Aug. 26 from 10-11:00 a.m. for children who will be attending the kindegarten this fall, parents and teachers.

Classes will begin Monday, Aug. 29. Mrs. Floyd Coker is the director.

Judge Honors Uvalde Parents

Judge and Mrs. Wesley Gulley returned recently from Uvalde, where they attended a reception honoring his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Gulley, longtime residents of that city. Judge Gulley's parents were celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

Jane Gulley (wife of Judge Gulley) entertained the reception guests by singing "My Hero" from The Chocolate Soldier by Strauss, "I Love You" by Beethoven and "I Love You Truly" by Carrie Jacobs Bond.

The local couple's son Cameron distributed scrolls to commemorate the event.

COLLEGE GIFTS
NEW YORK (AP) — Voluntary donations to American colleges and universities reached an all-time high of about $2.4 billion in the 1975-76 academic year, according to a survey conducted annually by the Council for Financial Aid to Education (CFAE).

The figure represents an increase of $250 million, or 11.6 per cent, according to CFAE officials who said last year was the first time that the increase in gifts kept pace with the increase in educational expenses. The officials expressed hope that voluntary donations will once again be a major factor in supporting higher education.

Individual supporters accounted for the biggest portion of the increase in donations, giving learning institutions an estimated $1.2 billion, CFAE officials said.

The Arawak Indians were the original inhabitants of the island of Aruba.

Storm Windows Cut Energy Cost

COLLEGE STATION—Storm windows insulate year-round, says Pat Seaman, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Homeowners concerned with energy costs may want to install storm windows at any season, the specialist says.

Summer or winter, storm windows work, because they create a "dead air" area—at least a half inch of space—that serves to insulate.

Glass conducts heat, so a single pane window lets the summer heat in. Glass also allows for heat gain from sunlight. Naturally, air conditioning must work harder to counter this invading heat.

But with storm windows, the sun's rays meet with the trapped air and turn back. In the same way, storm windows insulate against loss of "conditioned air" in summer. Cold can't move beyond the air space that confines it.

In winter weather, the principle is the same—storm windows, via the same "trapped air," keep cold out and comfort in by preventing heat loss.

The basic types of storm windows are 1) the aluminum frame and 2) the wood frame, covered with vinyl. Wood is a better insulator than metal. It reduces thermal loss but is more expensive than metal. (Metal windows with thermal barriers are available.)

Designs of Storm Windows

1) One-piece unit—may be practical where there is no open ventilation.

2) Double track windows with panels that open from top and bottom and

3) Triple back, with attached screens.

These are available at department stores, lumber yards and window supply stores.

All storm windows require caulking to reduce air leakage. Some may require weatherstripping, also.

Fiji
The Fiji Islands in the South Pacific number about 840, of which 106 are inhabited, with a total of 7,055 square miles and a population of 580,000. A British colony since 1874, the islands achieved full independence as a parliamentary democracy in 1970. A governor-general represents the British Queen. Native Fijians form about 43 per cent of the population, the remainder being largely descendants of Indian contract laborers brought to the islands in the 19th century.

Read All Instructions Before Altering Darts

[NOTE TO READER: In altering patterns, read all instructions first—then follow them one at a time, instead of trying to understand the entire process just by reading it.]

COLLEGE STATION--Bust darts often present fitting problems, but there is an easy way to alter a pattern for proper fit, says Margret Ann Vanderpoorten, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

In many cases, placement of darts in a bodice needs altering, even when the bodice length is correct. Darts should point toward the fullest part of the bust, not above it—that is a frequent problem for mature women, she adds.

To determine where darts point on a basic pattern, extend center lines of dart until they intersect (see figure 1). This is the bust point on the pattern.

To find the measurement to your body's bust point, measure from the top of the shoulder at the base of the neck to the tip of the bust. Next, measure the pattern from the shoulder seam line at the neck to the bust point.

Note the difference between your measurement and pattern measurement. The darts need to be lowered this distance.

To lower darts without changing bodice length, follow these steps:

Draw a line (Line B) across pattern below tips of the darts but above waistline, perpendicular to the lengthwise grainline or center front. Beneath Line B, measure down the amount needed for the alteration and draw a second line (Line C). Line C will be below Line B and parallel to it.

Cut pattern apart on Line A. Place tissue paper under pattern and spread pattern amount needed for alteration, keeping center front straight. Tape pattern to tissue paper and make alteration a permanent one for future use.

To maintain original length of bodice, lap pattern below dart tips by bringing Lines B and C together.

Altering a pattern in this way will cause small irregularities in the side seam stitching line and in the waistline dart stitching line.

To correct them, follow these steps (see figure 3): To straighten the side seam stitching line, fold in underarm dart as if it were sewn and draw a straight line (Line D) from underarm to waistline—start it at intersection of the two seam lines under the arm (point E) and end it at the intersection of the two seam lines at the waist (point F). Then unfold the dart.

To correct waistline dart stitching lines, draw straight lines (Lines G) from dart tip to base of dart at waistline.

On the other hand, for other figure types, to raise darts, reverse process by lapping parallel lines drawn above darts—cutting and spreading the pattern apart at a line drawn below the dart tips. Continue all other steps as described above.

At Wits End
BY ERMA BOMBECK

One of the less discussed social problems confronting our country today is that of drunken birds.

I'm talking about your average bird who drinks a little at the office Christmas party or who has a nip to get him through the day. I'm talking about chronic alcoholism among our feathered friends.

My first encounter with a feathered lush was a duck back in Ohio who caught cold one day. I brought him into the house and gave him a drink from a bottle I kept around only in the event that a duck caught cold.

From that day on, he drove me crazy with his coughing and hacking and blowing his nose. I figured he was weak and insecure and let it go at that.

When we moved west, I was relieved to find wonderfully, well-adjusted stable birds with obviously few pulmonary disorders.

Then, last week I noticed a few birds laughing it up while balancing rather unsteadily on a pyracantha bush. They would peck away on a few berries, became hysterical, and then have another go at the berries.

I called up a friend who just happens to be one of the leading ornithologists in the country, who confirmed my suspicions. The birds were bombed.

She reported that word of her great supply of fermented fruit had spread so extensively throughout the country that migratory robins went several hundred miles out of their way to "Stop off at Betty's place for a little sauce."

Mockingbirds had been hanging around her house for weeks waiting for the berries to age. And stories had drifted back to her of birds so "relaxed" they passed berries from one to another beak to beak.

As my best girl friend and I stood at the window watching this ornithologist's orgy, I said absently, "I wonder why birds drink?"

"I don't know," she said. "Do you suppose they have days when the kids won't pick up the nest and they find worms between the pages of library books and the male is fooling around with his secretary while she sits at home on another batch of eggs and a plat developer is rezoning their bush and it all stacks up on her?"

"I think I'm going to cry," I said, slouching in a chair.

"I know," she said. "Have another pyracantha berry before we start lunch."

Edible Flower

The artichoke is really a large flower bud, covered with thick leaflike green petals. If unpicked, the artichoke will bloom into a big blue flower. A ripe specimen can be the size of a football. Artichokes are customarily eaten after being boiled. After the 50 or so petals are dispatched, the diner encounters the bud's large meaty base — the heart or choke.

Yanks Bop Tigers; Rangers Now First Herd Dons Pads Friday; Boosters Meet Tuesday

The Hereford Whitefaces, hoping to rebound from a disappointing 3-7 won-lost record last season, have been going through tough conditioning drills this week and will don the hitting pads Friday.

Only 60 grid hopefuls answered the starting whistle Monday, but Coach Fred Upshaw is hoping the numbers increase by Friday. The Herd mentor had expected about 80 candidates, and he needs that many to fill varsity, junior varsity and sophomore rosters.

With just 11 lettermen returning, the Whitefaces have been ranked at the bottom of the District 4-4A race--or, in some circles the Herd is picked to battle Lubbock High to see who winds up last.

The Whitefaces were ranked as contenders last season, but Hereford wound up 0-4 in league play after defeating Pampa, Dumas and Canyon in non-district games.

Among the 11 lettermen, 9 are seniors and the other two will be juniors. These lettermen include backs Paul Bell, Kelly Kitchens, Greg Hennington, Dan Olson, and linemen Greg Brockman, Jim Fish, Doug Josseland, Charles Reyna, Mike Kerr, Mitchell George and Mike Moton.

Fish, an outstanding offensive tackle last season, and Brockman, tabbed to lead the defense from a linebacker post, are the team captains. Bell, who could be a dangerous break-away threat, and Kerr, being counted as a top tackle, are the two junior letter winners.

After a full week's workouts in pads next week, the Herd will take on Amarillo Tascosa in a controlled scrimmage on the Vega football field at 7:30 that night.

Local football fans will have an opportunity to meet at the players and coaches Tuesday night when the Whiteface Booster club sponsors and ice cream supper at the high school cafeteria.

The supper begins at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and all interested fans are invited to attend, according to Jerry Payne, booster president. All high school graders will be introduced, and a number of new coaches are on the staff this season. Admission will be only 25 cents for a bowl of ice cream, but booster club memberships will be on sale at $5 each.

Lubbock Monterey has again been tabbed by district coaches to be the favorite for the league title. The Plainsmen advanced to the semifinals of the playoffs last season and return seven defensive and four offensive starters. The offense revolves around quarterback Ron Reeves (6-1, 200) who set a school scoring record last season with 96 points.

Lubbock Coronado looks to be improved this season with 17 returning lettermen, including six offensive and five defensive starters. Coronado lost a 6-0 game to champion Monterey last year and hopes to upset the Plainsmen this time around.

Plainview, Lubbock High and Hereford were all hard hit by graduation, and the coaches see a rebuilding year for these teams.

Time will tell.

MONTREAL (AP) - The city of Montreal has sued the Montreal Expos of baseball's National League for $716,373 in Quebec Superior Court.

The suit, filed Wednesday, alleges the Expos still have a valid lease on Jarry Park where the team played seven seasons, which does not expire until March, 1978. The city claims it didn't get notice that the team planned to move from the 28,500-seat Stadium until March, 1977.

The Expos began playing at Jarry Park in 1969 and moved to the Olympic Stadium this spring.

Most of the money claimed by the city is the team's share of renovating Jarry. The city wants $538,318 plus about $167,000 in interest. Another $12,000 is from a clause in the lease which promised Montreal five per cent of gate receipts.

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys registered their earliest sellout in history Wednesday when fans bought up the last tickets to the Oct. 16 game against the Washington Redskins.

The National Football League team also said there was a heavy demand for their Nov. 14 game against St. Louis.

Milt May said Fernando Arroyo "was throwing real good," which is a normal thing for a catcher to say about his pitcher except that not too many of Arroyo's pitches got as far as May.

New York's Mickey Rivers hit Arroyo's first pitch for a home run. Roy White tripled on the next delivery and Thurman Munson picked on pitch No. 3 for a double.

At that point, May had no idea what kind of stuff Arroyo had. He hadn't caught one yet. And nine pitches later - a Reggie Jackson strike out and a Chris Chambliss triple - Arroyo was gone, the losing pitcher as the Yankees downed the Detroit Tigers 7-5.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Milwaukee Brewers cooled off the Boston Red Sox 5-3, the Texas Rangers inched into first place in the AL West by nipping the Toronto Blue Jays 6-5 in 10 innings, the Seattle Mariners edged the Minnesota Twins 3-2 and the Kansas City Royals defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-3.

score Toby Harrah from second base in the bottom of the 10th inning and propel the Rangers into first place in the West, one-half game ahead of the Chicago White Sox, who were idle, and Minnesota.

Mariners 3, Twins 2
Dan Meyer's two-run single through a drawn-in infield in the seventh inning snapped a 1-1 tie and gave Paul Mitchell his first victory of the season. The Twins made it 3-2 in the eighth on singles by Dan Ford and Mike Cabbage and Roy Smalley's run-scoring grounder.

Royals 5, Indians 3
John Mayberry slugged a three-run homer in the first inning but Kansas City needed RBI singles by Hal McRae and Pete LaCock in the eighth to break a 3-3 tie. The fourth-place Royals are only 1 1/2 games off the pace in the torrid West Division race.

Confused Phils Can't Figure Loss

By TOM CANAVAN
AP Sports Writer

It may have been the law of averages or it may have been a touch of fate. Whatever it was, it certainly confused Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark.

"How can you account for us losing tonight with our best pitcher," Ozark wondered following Philadelphia's 13-0 drubbing at the hands of the Montreal Expos.

Ozark may have been baffled by the loss that snapped the Phillies 13-game winning streak, the longest in the majors this season, but Expos Manager Dick Williams, and his Expos seemed to have all the answers - especially when it concerned Steve Carlton's pitching.

"They're an excellent club, but if you're going to get beat, that's the best way," Williams smiled after the game.

"However, you'll see a different game tomorrow, and it sure won't be lopsided."

A run-scoring single by Sam Mejias, Stan Bahnsen's perfect squeeze bunt, Dave Cash's single and Warren Cromartie's 35th double produced four Montreal runs in the second.

Gary Carter continued the Montreal onslaught in the third with the first of this two home runs on the night, a two-run shot, to give the Expos a 6-0 lead in the game off Carlton, 17-7.

In other National League action, St. Louis blanked New York 2-0, Atlanta whipped Houston 9-6, Chicago edged Pittsburgh 4-2, San Diego defeated Cincinnati 7-4 and the game between the San Francisco and Los Angeles was rained out.

Cardinals 2, Mets 0
Bob Forsch fired a two-hitter and Hector Cruz and Mike Tyson drove in sixth inning runs as St. Louis broke a three-game losing streak.

Forsch, 15-5, gave up a first-inning single to Bruce Boiesclair and a sixth-inning single to Lenny Randle in recording his sixth complete game of the season.

Cubs 4, Pirates 2
Bobby Murcer drilled two home runs and Rick Reuschel struck out 11 batters to give Chicago their second consecutive win over Pittsburgh.

Reuschel, 16-5, won his first game since a relief victory on July 28. He scattered eight hits and walked three.

Padres 7, Reds 4
Rookie Bill Almon drove in five runs, including three on his second major league home run, and San Diego took advantage of five Cincinnati errors in snapping a three-game losing streak.

Almon drilled a three-run homer in the fourth and added a two-run single in the fifth in supporting Bob Shirley's seventh win in 22 decisions. Rolie Fingers picked up his 27th save of the season.

Braves 9, Astros 6
Jeff Burroughs broke a tie game with a two-run homer in an eight-run sixth inning and Willie Montanez followed with a solo smash as Atlanta ended a four-game losing streak.

Gold Sox Down San Antonio

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Righthander Danny Darwin hurled his fourth shutout as the Tulsa Drillers swept both ends of a twin bill from the Shreveport Captains, 1-0 and 5-4, to slide into first place in the Texas League East.

El Paso had nine doubles during the game and Midland had four. The 13-double total tied a record dating back to July 30, 1897, set by Fort Worth and Dallas.

Ivan Murrell slammed his 21st homer for two Amarillo runs against San Antonio.

Juan Eichelberger, 10-7, picked up the victory after leaving the mound in the sixth with a sprained ankle. Doug Slocum, 7-6, picked up the loss.

Rangers Enter Fan's Contract

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) - The Texas Rangers of the American Baseball League have entered what lawyers call "a fan's contract" with the City of Arlington.

The nine-point agreement was reached earlier this week after months of negotiations. It calls for the construction of 5,420 seats and new ticket and restroom facilities.

The expansion plan, estimated to cost $3.5 million, is scheduled to begin at the end of the current season and be completed by April of next year.

In exchange for the stadium improvements, the Rangers agreed to release the city from any further obligation to make improvements or expansions at the stadium. The city also agreed not to levy any admission tax or surcharge on tickets and not to raise parking charges before the 1980 season.

The agreement obligates the team to pay the city $1 million annually through 1998 if the team is moved to another city.

Dee Kelly, attorney for Rangers majority owner Brad Corbett, and City Atty. Ray Hutchison said the contract is one that will "primarily benefit Ranger fans and provide them with the facilities they need."

Fans have begun to crowd the gates of the 35,000 stadium following the Rangers' late summer surge that has placed them in the thick of the battle for the top spot in the West Division.

The earth's polar diameter is 7,900 miles.

Ex-Congressman Got Park Money

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two former Republican congressmen say they got $500 campaign contributions from Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park, bringing to 10 the number of present or former congressmen who have acknowledged getting Park payments. Former Reps. Lawrence J. Hogan, R-Md., and William H. Ayres, R-Ohio, said the contributions in 1970 were legal, even routine. They said Park asked no favors for the money. The House and the Justice Department are investigating whether Park made the contributions as a businessman, which would have been legal then, or as an agent attempting to buy influence in Congress for the South Korean government. Ayres said FBI agents interviewed him about the contribution and apparently are interviewing all congressmen listed in Park's bank records. A former business associate of Park's reportedly has detailed payments to about 20 congressmen plus other officials. Legislators' accounts have given no clear picture so far of why Park was handing out the money. Hogan and Ayres said they did not know, either. Hogan said he did not learn about the 1970 contribution until last year. He said he assumed Park had given it because of Hogan's general support of U.S. aid to South Korea. "I saw him occasionally and he never mentioned it," Hogan said. He said he ran into Park from time to time on Capitol Hill.

Although Park called several times to make appointments with him, Hogan added, the two never got together in that manner. He said the only time he remembers Park mentioning Korea was once when "I asked him how things were going and he said, 'Oh, not so good; they're talking about cutting troops in Korea.' Or something like that." "You don't even know about anyone who gives you $500," Hogan said. "If they give you $5,000 you sure know about it, but most people give you $20 or a few hundred and they go on a list to get thank-you notes." In 1970, Hogan was on the relatively minor post office and District of Columbia committees. He later became a member of the Judiciary Committee. Ayres became a ranking member of the House Veterans Affairs Committee during his 20 years in Congress. After he was defeated for re-election in 1970, he directed the "Jobs for Veterans" program. Ayres said he never knew Park, that a secretary who had been to some of Park's parties arranged the contribution.

"She said Tongsun Park was making political contributions and she knew we were having trouble raising money," Ayres said. "I said sure. At that time I just thought Park was a nice guy." Park never made any attempt to contact the office after that, Ayres said.

FTC Alleges Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Trade Commission alleged Wednesday that the Los Angeles Times systematically discriminates in price between competing purchasers of advertising lineage.

The agency issued a complaint alleging that the cumulative volume discount advertising rate structure used by the newspaper results in larger volume advertisers systematically paying substantially lower rates than their competitors whose advertising volume is smaller.

In Los Angeles, Gordon Phillips, publicity director for the newspaper, said the complaint had been served, "but until there's time for study of the complete complaint it would be inappropriate to comment."

The complaint said the advertising rate structure and "the resulting discriminatory prices" violate the FTC law because they adversely affect competition between advertisers paying higher and those paying lower rates and "constitute unreasonable restraints of trade and unfair methods of competition."

The complaint also said the alleged price discrimination may substantially injure competion between the favored and unfavored purchasers of advertising lineage, in violation of the Clayton Act.

The FTC said a hearing will be held on the charges here Sept. 19. It issues a complaint when it has "reason to believe" that the law has been violated. Such action simply marks the beginning of a formal proceeding in which the allegations will be ruled upon, the FTC said.

The complaint asks for an order to halt the rate practice.

The complaint cites the owner of the newspaper, Times-Mirror Co., Inc., Los Angeles, Calif. The FTC said the firm is the largest publicly held publishing company in this country, and that its newspaper publishing revenues were approximately 44 per cent of its total revenue in 1976, or about $426 million. The firm's largest operation is publishing the Los Angeles Times. For many years, the FTC said, the newspaper has led all newspapers in the nation in advertising volume, with total advertising revenue for 1976 at approximately $276 million.

U.S. Park Service Has Nutty Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Park Service has begun a squirrel relocation program in the nation's capital.

The problem, according to spokesman George Berkley, is that between 100 and 200 of the critters are congregating in an area across the street from the White House.

He said Monday that even 500 pounds of peanuts bought by

White House staffers who like to lunch in the park didn't deter the squirrels from attacking the flowers and plants.

So the Park Service decided to trap the squirrels and release them in other parks around Washington and its suburbs. Eventually, said Berkley, the Park Service hopes to get Lafayette Square's squirrel population down to 25 or so.

Record Corn Crop Bodes Ill For Hard-Pressed Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department, predicting a near-record corn crop this summer, says the harvest will help keep food price increases at about six per cent in 1978, the same as this year's prediction.

The department attributed the "relatively low food-price inflation" partially on its estimate of a corn crop of 6.09 billion bushels, its chief economist, Howard Hjort, said.

He and private forecasters say this year's corn crop, aided by rains during August, may eventually surpass last year's record 6.22 billion bushels.

Even if the harvest doesn't set a record, it will probably still be large enough to mean a supply of cheap and ample feed through the winter and spring, Hjort said.

Cheap feed in turn means the flocks and herds destined for America's dinner table won't decline, keeping inflation in the food dollar to around 6 per cent, officials say.

But the huge crops also mean that net farm income is headed toward its lowest level in five years, Hjort added, although farm support payments will take up some of the slack.

The department also predicted a record 1.6 billion-bushel soybean crop and 13.5 million bales of new cotton, all based on Aug. 1 field conditions.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said damage from the continued severe drought forced it to cut the corn estimate 4 per cent from the 6.33 billion bushels it forecast after July 1 field surveys.

But grain crops in many states improved during the month.

The wheat crop was pegged at 2.04 billion bushels. With a 1.2

billion bushel surplus from last year, that's still far greater than demand.

All major crops are maturing ahead of normal, a reflection of the hot weather, the report said.

The board put its indicator of "all-crops production" at a record 24 per cent above the 1967 base year, compared with 22 per cent last season.

The board also estimated:

- Oats at 758 million bushels, up 35 per cent from last year.
- Sorghum at 725 million bushels, up slightly from last year.
- Tobacco at less than 1.8 billion pounds, with flue-cured types down 23 per cent and burley off 7 per cent.
- Sugarbeets at 24.3 million tons, down 17 per cent, and sugarcane at 27.4 million tons, down 5 per cent.
- Rice at 100.6 million hundredweight, a decline of 14 per cent.
- The oilseed crops of soybeans, cottonseed, peanuts and flaxseed at 50 million metric tons, a 25 per cent increase.
- The combined feedgrains at 193 million metric tons, two-tenths of one per cent above the 1976 record.

Soil, Water District Meeting Scheduled

WELLINGTON. Odell Pugh, president of the Panhandle Association, said that registration will begin at 10 a.m. in the Bura Handley Community Building meeting room.

Dr. Keisling, who is in charge of Solar Energy Research Projects being developed by Texas Tech at Crosbyton, Texas, will speak on "Practical Applications of Solar Energy."

Currently, Dr. Keisling's most active research interest is in improving housing for energy conservation and for occupant protection from natural hazards. He has developed structural designs for improved wind resistance and has managed research projects on the economical application of solar energy to heating and cooling of buildings.

During the afternoon business session Frank Gray, member of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board and Charles Wood, vice president of the Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts will brief soil and water conservation district directors and guests on the activities of each organization.

Twenty-five soil and water conservation districts are members of the Panhandle Association. They include: Hall-Childress, Tule Creek, Gray County, Cap Rock, Donley County, Dallam, Salt Fork, Lipscomb County, Running Water, Moore County, Hemphill County, Parmer County, Wheeler County, Ochiltree, Teira Blanca, Roberts, Hutchinson, Palo Duro, Hansford, Hartley, Oldham County, Staked Plains, McClellan Creek, Sherman County, and Canadian River Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

Current officers of the organization are Odell Pugh, president, Texhoma, and William E. Miller, vice president, Perryton.

Drought May Spur Minimum Tillage

WASHINGTON (AP) - Surveys this spring of about 3,000 Midwestern corn and soybean farmers suggest that the prolonged drought may stimulate more conservation-minded tilling practices.

The survey was conducted in a random, telephone sample by Monsanto, a major chemical company with an interest in promoting more minimum or "conservation" tillage.

A Monsanto division and other firms manufacture the weed-killers and pesticides that are essential to the practice of shooting the seeds, fertilizers and chemicals into the field with out first turning over the soil three or four times before planting.

The results from the survey were presented in Richmond, Va., to a Soil Conservation Society of America meeting by the company's O.N. Andrews Jr. and L.L. Evetts.

Only about one-third of the 3,221 farmers surveyed had altered their tilling practices during the last three seasons, 3 per cent tilling more often. Moreover, of those who decreased tillage before planting, 60 per cent did so to cut down their costs for fuel, labor, chemicals and machinery repairs.

But, Andrews and Evetts said, concern for soil erosion or the declining capacity of their fields to retain moisture did motivate 30 per cent. Half of those who have reduced tillage and 21 per cent of those who haven't plan further cutbacks, they found.

All those surveyed were then asked if they would consider changing their tilling practices if they could cut costs by $10 an acre. Seventy per cent said they would.

Forty-nine per cent said they did have soil erosion problems on their farms. About 37 per cent had inadequate soil moisture, which has been a significant threat in the Corn Belt this season.

Reduced or minimum tillage was given as the solution by 52 per cent of those with moisture problems, by 11 per cent of those with erosion problems and by 54 per cent of those with soils so free of roots and crop residues that they compact after rains.

University studies found savings in 1973 of between $10 and $26 an acre a year by shifting to "no till," depending on the crop, individual farm, weather and other factors, a Monsanto spokesman said.

The droughts have brought the soil-moisture problem clearly to many farmers' attention. The Agriculture Department, the General Accounting Office and congressional agriculture committees this year have tried to bring at least equal attention to the erosion problems, which are linked to the drought, but persist even in years with normal rainfall.

USDA said in one report that annual soil losses must be limited to a maximum of five tons an acre in deep soils and one ton from shallow soils to maintain productivity. Last year, about 9.1 tons per acre were lost, polluting the air and waterways as their absence cut into crop yields.

The Soil Conservation Service says that minimum tillage on 80 per cent of U.S. farmland alone would reduce erosion by at least 50 per cent. In combination with terracing and contour farming, 97.5 per cent of it could be contained, it says.

Conolly Calls For Energy Efficiency

CORPUS CHRISTI - R.N. "Dick" Conolly of the internationally known Stewart and Stevenson engineering company recently told a statewide gathering of county Extension agents that they must help farmers use energy more efficiently.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Texas County Agricultural Agents Association, Conolly said, "We have observed not only a disregard for proper application of turbine pumps and engines that should be operating at peak efficiency levels, but have witnessed thousands of acre feet of pumped water running down bar ditches."

He cited numerous university studies that have shown that pump plants are operating at about 42 per cent efficiency in Texas while it's practical to achieve 75 per cent efficiency. This would reduce fuel or energy costs about 50 per cent.

Conolly also cited a study by his firm in the Dalhart area involving 20 wells for sprinkler systems. It was determined that enough energy could be saved each four-month growing season to completely fulfill the gas requirements of 619 homes in the Texas High Plains for a full year. The overall savings was estimated at about $125,000 a year.

To test a pump's efficiency, an engineer utilizes a flowmeter, a draw down gauge and monitoring equipment. Although the cost is a few hundred dollars per well, a farmer can usually get a quick return on his investment through improved efficiency, explained Conolly.

"Our farmers need our help to show them ways to affect savings and eliminate the wasting of our precious energy," he emphasized.

"With the high cost of farming today, farmers cannot afford to be inefficient. Every effort must be made to assist and counsel farmers in ways and means to reduce waste and increase profits. You as county agents are in a unique position of being able to influence the farmer for these great energy and water savings."

Government Ponders Move On Nitrites

WASHINGTON (AP) - With three agencies now involved, the government is about six weeks away from its first steps against the amount of nitrites and nitrosamines to which humans are exposed.

An advisory Agriculture Department panel of scientists, consumer affairs specialists and nutritionists, is working against a Sept. 30 deadline.

USDA has authority over the use of sodium nitrite in red meats, but the Food and Drug Administration has more clear-cut jurisdiction for regulating their use in poultry, the two agencies have agreed.

The chemicals have been used for generations to give meat an appealing color, to cure meat products designed to have a long shelf life and to help prevent growth of bacteria that can cause food poisoning and deadly botulism.

Nitrites now are generally added directly to products in the early processing, but can be formed chemically from nitrates.

Under certain conditions, such as quick frying, and in combination with certain amino acids of proteins, nitrites form nitrosamines, some of which have been found to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

The Environmental Protection Agency has jurisdiction over the nitrosamines in pesticides, including one used widely for weed control in fields of soybeans, beans, peas, peppers, sugar beets and tomatoes. That increases the amount of the chemicals in the environment that can enter human digestive tracts, where the damage would be done.

Those nitrosamines form during manufacturing of the pesticides or from chemical reactions in the packages.

The EPA, in announcing earlier this month a major review of the pesticides involved, noted that nitrites and nitrosamines occur naturally in soil, air and water, as well as because of pollution of those resources.

But it added that the major sources of human exposure are cigarette smoke and cured meats.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman, who chairs the USDA advisory group, and FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy last month committed them-ives "to eliminate all non-preservative uses of nitrates and nitrites except where the safety of other uses can be documented."

She is liable to act first. FDA is writing a first draft of regulations on nitrites in poultry.

All of the hog industry source of the bacon plus many of the hot dogs and sausage, the products that are most under discussion - and major inflationary impacts on consumer food prices are at stake in what they decide.

Both say they are opposed to "precipitous action that would ignore the important health benefits provided by additives that may prevent botulism."

The EPA presently maintains that the benefits of the pesticides far exceed the limited risks and manufacturers have sharply cut the potential nitrosamines in their products. It said a ban on the major one, marketed under the brand name Treflan, would mean a loss of $521 million in farm income and could boost the retail food bill by $3.8 billion in three to five years.

CCC Purchases Dairy Products

WASHINGTON (AP) - To maintain dairy-product prices, the Commodity Credit Corporation last month bought up more than 15.9 million pounds of butter, 65.5 million pounds of nonfat dry milk and 13.7 million pounds of cheese, a spokesman said.

A year before, no butter or cheese was purchased under contract and about 42 per cent less dry milk was taken in. Support levels were increased midway between the two months.

Since donations to schools and the military were far less during the month, the Agriculture Department buyer had uncommitted inventories by the end of the month of 166.3 million pounds of butter, 63.3 million pounds of cheese, and 574.9 million pounds of nonfat dry milk.

The Midway Islands, consisting of Sanda and Eastern located 1,150 miles northwest of Hawaii, were acquired by the United States in 1867.

Before making any repairs or adjustments, shut off all equipment.

Final Tally Released On Referendum

WASHINGTON (AP) - The final vote by which cattle producers last month defeated a proposed nationwide plan to pay for a $40-million beef research and promotion program was 130,386 to 100,641, according to tabulations by the Agriculture Department.

The preliminary tally announced July 22 was 130,464 to 100,582. USDA said the discrepancy resulted from one county's error in its initial report.

Some 72 per cent of the producers registered to vote cast ballots. Approval by two-thirds would have been required to begin the program.

The Lighter Side

LONDON (AP) - What does a Scotsman wear under his kilt? Magistrates at London's Bow Street court heard on Tuesday how an Irishman with a need to know tried to find out.

Police witnesses said James O'Connor rushed up to Peter Keaney as the kilted Scotsman took a Sunday stroll beside the river Thames in London and yelled: "I'm going to find what you've got under there."

But Keaney, 26, was not abiding.

Police said a fight started and O'Connor received a cut arm from Keaney's skean dhu, the traditional dagger worn with Scottish dress in the top of the sock.

Keaney, who pleaded guilty to unlawfully wounding, was given a suspended six-weeks jail sentence.

ALMOND, Wis. (AP) - Lester Lant has built a 30-room mansion that is strictly for the birds - literally.

Lant built the giant birdhouse this year to replace one his father had constructed atop an old tower in 1931.

When the 150-pound birdhouse is in place, Lant says onlookers will see colored glass panes, lights and a fountain.

"They love it," Lant said of his neighbors. "People all over are talking about the tower and the new birdhouse."

Bear Hair May Provide Clue In Attack

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - A hair sample found on a Stilwell youth who said he was attacked by a nine-foot ape-like creature closely resembles the hair of a black bear, Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation chemists determined Wednesday.

"We can't conclusively state this is bear hair," said Don Flynt, chief chemist for the OSBI. But he said microscopic examination of the one strand of hair the OSBI was given showed the hair had "the appearance of bear hair."

Brian Jones, 17, said a strange creature clawed his back and threw him through the air near Stilwell the night of Aug. 5.

The report prompted a search of the area for the legendary creature Bigfoot, and other reports of possible appearances by a strange creature in northeastern Oklahoma and in nearby Dutch Mills, Ark.

Men Work Less Study Shows

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - The average employed man spends a lot more time each day at non-work activities, such as coffee breaks and relaxing, than does the typical working woman, an ongoing study at the University of Michigan shows.

Analysis of the data, which began in 1974 and which will be continued to encompass other ways in which men and women use their time, is adding powerful documentation to the assertion that despite equal rights legislation, it's still a man's world.

A separate study, based on some of the data uncovered by Michigan's Survey Research Center, shows also that work inequality extends into the home where, said a researcher, "The men really don't help much."

To date, the study has found that the typical employed man spends 52 minutes or 11 per cent of each paid working day at nonwork activities, while the average woman spends just 35 minutes, or 8 per cent, away from assigned tasks.

The minutes and percentages exclude the lunch hour, but to include extensions of it beyond the allotted time, as well as coffee breaks and other forms of relaxation, including conversation.

The same researchers have less solid evidence indicating that the energy and effort expended during the work day is greater for women than for men.

The glaring differences, said Greg Duncan, study director, appear to be rooted in the kinds of jobs commonly assigned to men and women. "Women are more closely supervised and unable to take the breaks men do," he said.

Despite the more relaxed working day for men, the study found they make about $7 an hour, in contrast to the working woman's $4.34. And when rates are adjusted for break time, Duncan said, the figures become $8.58 and $4.86, respectively.

Adding to the disparity in the work day, the researchers found through a more subjective and less validated portion of the study that women expend 112 per cent more effort than men during the time each is working.

The studies have great potential for explaining what has often been referred to as the lagging rate of productivity increase in the United States. As Duncan said, the 40-hour week does not mean people are working 40 hours.

Perhaps of even greater importance is the use made by women of the unfolding story of inequality. While it is not a subject on which the professors express learned opinions, it is bound to find its way into labor negotiations - and even into the marriage contract.

John P. Robinson, one of the researchers and author of the recently published book, "How America Uses Time," has found that women continue to perform most household chores, even when they become fulltime "market" workers.

"The man does very little even when the woman goes to work," said Robinson, who is also director of communications research at Cleveland State University. "Women do 80 per cent of housework and childcare," he said.

Women whose main occupation is within the home usually are occupied by household chores about 50 hours a week, and even when they take on a full-time commercial job they put in another 25 hours at home.

"Under those conditions the wife's time is greatly constrained," he said. "She really gets squeezed," and he added, "The men really don't help much." The man does nine hours of housework if his wife is not employed outside, but adds only one hour a week to that schedule when she leaves the house to work.

"No other activity has the sex differential there is in housework and childcare," Robinson asserted. Men seldom do the laundry, clean up after meals or make the bed, he said. And they assume only 20 per cent of childcare.

A further breakdown of childcare chores continues to reveal the same distinctions, or injustices if it is chosen to view them as such. That 20 per cent is made up of play-education, whereas woman do the feeding and dressing.

The intent of the studies is not specifically to show distinctions between the sexes but to gain a view of how America as a whole spends its time. The male-female findings are just one of the results.

Adding to the disparity in the work day, the researchers found through a more subjective and less validated portion of the study that women expend 112 per cent more effort than men during the time each is working.

The studies have great potential for explaining what has often been referred to as the lagging rate of productivity increase in the United States. As Duncan said, the 40-hour week does not mean people are working 40 hours.

Perhaps of even greater importance is the use made by women of the unfolding story of inequality. While it is not a subject on which the professors express learned opinions, it is bound to find its way into labor negotiations - and even into the marriage contract.

John P. Robinson, one of the researchers and author of the recently published book, "How America Uses Time," has found that women continue to perform most household chores, even when they become fulltime "market" workers.

"The man does very little even when the woman goes to work," said Robinson, who is also director of communications research at Cleveland State University. "Women do 80 per cent of housework and childcare," he said.

Cycling for Badges

After a 60-mile bicycle ride for their Boy Scout cycling badges, it's a wonder these Troop 151 boys can even stand up. The boys rode to Canyon and back on Tuesday, with the only casualties being a broken chain and a tire blowout. Making the long

Disease Hard To Track

DALLAS (AP) - The mystery malady that surfaced recently in an affluent section of nearby Fort Worth may have reached Dallas and elsewhere but state and local health officials admit the varied symptoms make it difficult to track with much accuracy. Investigators said this week they have asked local health officials in the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolplex to assist in a telephone survey of persons who may have been hit by the nonfatal illness.

Dr. Joseph Williams, manager of Dallas' communicable disease control and prevention section, said his office has received up to 12 calls daily since Friday from people claiming to have the same symptoms of the supposed "Ridgmar Syndrome."

The sickness is characterized by low-grade fever, joint pains and malaise. It appeared initially in Fort Worth's Ridgmar area where 550,000 homes are the norm.

"The symptoms are so general. We don't know what the Ridgmar disease is, and we don't know what we're looking for," said Williams. He added that the only common denominator so far is that the victims all appear to be over the age of 21.

So far, investigators say their studies support findings of local physicians who noted similarities between the syndrome and Lyme arthritis and epidemic neuromyasthenia.

How Many Elmer Toads Are Voting

President Carter wants to allow anybody to vote without registering in advance. Just by walking up to the polling place on Election Day and identifying himself.

The President has expressed concern over the manner in which phony credentials are available—even to illegal aliens—in our country.

Yet he proposes allowing anybody to walk into the polling place on Election Day, present some document of identification and vote.

The opportunity for subverting the election process should be too obvious to require elaboration, yet Congress is giving serious consideration to this "Election Day registration."

Congressmen Bob Dornan and Steve Symms have been trying to alert their colleagues to the menace of phony credentials.

They were alerted by an ad in the Los Angeles Free Press reading, quote: "Need new ID? change your name, your age, with official ID. Birth certificates. Driver's licenses. Passports. Also get full-color ID cards for any state!"

These two congressmen placed seven orders and, sure enough for $35 they received credentials identifying them as seven other people.

And the seven other names they "adopted" are names of seven members of the House Administration Committee. When the chairman of that committee, Rep. Frank Thompson Jr. of New Jersey, heard what they had done, he used some very unbecoming language in describing the two congressmen.

Instead of thanking them he cursed them out something awful.

State College, Pa., is where Elmer Toad registered by mail to vote. When Elmer received his voter registration card he used that as identification to get an absentee ballot.

There is no Elmer Toad. Never was. That is a fictitious name plucked from the air by two men in the office of the Centre County, Pa., controller-Don Asendorf and Ed Todd. They wanted to demonstrate—and did—how easily the voting process can be subverted by registering by mail—anybody or nobody.

But did the bureaucrats appreciate this reminder that registration by mail is corruptible? On the contrary—they stomped and stormed and threatened to arrest the two for mail fraud - and have them thrown into prison.

Instead of commending the two for pointing out a defect in voter registration they were to be punished for embarrassing the bureaucrats. They were laughed out of it. But...WGMR-FM, of Tyrone, Pa., is editorially wondering how many Elmer Toads ARE registering, are voting conceivably are deciding elections.

Claim Denied In Drowning

HOUSTON (AP) - A $5 million claim involving the death of Joe Campos Torres, who drowned while in police custody, has been denied by the Houston City Council.

The body of Torres, 23, was found floating in Buffalo Bayou May 6, three days after he had been arrested at a Houston bar.

Two former officers, Terry W. Denson, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21, are accused of murder in the death of the young laborer. A third former officer, J.J. Panisch, 22, is charged with misdemeanor assault. Two other former policemen were granted immunity from prosecution in return for their testimony.

The Torres claim was filed by famed attorney Percy Foreman, who said the city and the police department failed to provide proper standards, safeguards and supervisors necessary.

Foreman said earlier if the city denied the claims he would sue damages in court.

The council acted on the advice of the city's legal department.

City Atty. Otis King said the recommendation was "in no way a comment on the actions of the officers involved in the case, but was based on prevailing law. The city generally denies all claims against it."

The trial of Denson and Orlando has been moved to Huntsville, some 80 miles north of Houston, and is scheduled to begin Sept. 7.

State Dist. Court Judge James Warren of Huntsville denied a request from defense attorneys Tuesday for permission to question Policeman Carlisle E. Elliott, 20. It was Elliott who reported the Torres incident to his superiors. He was returned to duty after a brief suspension with pay.

The death of Torres prompted several demonstrations in downtown Houston and claims by several minority group leaders of police brutality. The Justice Department also ordered an investigation for the possible violation of human rights.

Big Is Beautiful Says 200-Pounder

There's a fat chance the skinny woman's reign is nearing an end, if you'd listen to Stella Stella Jules Reichman, 5 feet 8 and 200 pounds. A 1966 graduate of Vanuor, 20-year Stella believes there are more big women in the United States - she measures 45-35-48 - than thin ones, and she's determined to get them out of hiding. They'll form a formidable front in the glamor stakes, she swears.

What's more, there already is a trend to bigger, she thinks. Just in the neck of time, she says, how much bigger could big women take for avante-garde propaganda that skinny is beautiful, adds Stella, author of a new book devoted to larger women, "Great Big Beautiful Doll."

"I've got a barrage of letters to prove it. When I visit various cities, big women of all sizes and all ages often burst into tears when they see me. There is a lot of encouragement for them now. More designers, even fashion, are designing for large women," said Stella before taking off on another lecture tour.

To her large following Stella points out that big women have always had it. It's just that somewhere along the line they stopped flaunting it. Helen of Troy was "well rounded," the Venus de Milo had a 32-inch bust, Catherine the Great was "a huge woman with a double chin," Madame Recamier was stoutie enough to fill out her specially designed sofa, and Isadora Lillian Russell was the toast of the Gay Nineties and Diamond Jim Brady. The Gibson girl "had plenty here and all," Stella says.

In every age big women have charmed men, says Vivacious, size 22's Stella, who has her own devoted male, Steve. "As a general rule men really prefer big women," she declares. "I've been told they don't ever like to take skinny women to restaurants where they must watch their intake at good food."

Stella takes the other tack. She suggests calorie-bites, mouth-watering food when you eat five times a dinner, her rich "temptation" recipe fit for a queen-size romance. Include thick-to-the-ribs godfish and a cream soup soup from her family's Vermont kitchen.

She has tried diets "for the sake of research." Three crash diets included unlimited high protein (she gained 11 pounds), grapefruit diet (she "got terrible heartburn"), a fast which lasted two days, kept her awake at night, and gave her palpitations and dizzy spells. But she wouldn't want to lose weight, anyway. "I'd lose my husband," she says.

Large women often become discouraged with their appearance and do not do anything for themselves, says Stella, who aims to correct that. She tells them to start the day by pampering their bodies and paying attention to face, teeth, nails.

Cosmetics expert Evelyn Marshall put her on the right track, she said. When she took her makeup course Evelyn told her that she had observed that "large faces are more beautiful, have fewer wrinkles, stay younger-looking longer and need plastic surgery far less."

Stella attractively for breakfast "even if you are alone" is her advice to the overwhelmed, after all. "If you feel good

STELLA REICHMAN

Some other tips for large women include these: -Don't over-perfume or makeup. No need for false eyelashes if you have good lashes. And do not become stressed from over-exposure to sun. Large women often have short necks, so keep your hair about the neck uncluttered. -Don't buy anything too tight - belt or pantyhose - or too long or too short. Don't wear too many layers of clothes. Slip-hiding, your shape under a belt. Wear vertical stripes whenever possible. Wear pants if they look better on you than a dress. Look at your back view and profile. -Large women need more time to shop, so don't rush it, says Stella, who is a consultant in a New York store that specializes in large-size clothes. And "see in a white turtleneck yourself in a sexy negligee or business gown."
