Cloud-Seeding Firms Gunned Down

Henson, Others Relieved

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Solon Henson can relax for two years now that voters in three more South Plains counties have outlawed weather modification.

Floyd, Castro and Bailey counties rejected hail suppression flights in elections Tuesday, prompting Henson, the president of Citizens for Natural Weather, to say, "I'm glad they lost. It looks good."

Tuesday's balloting ended a series of eight South Plains elections. Voters in seven of the counties included in either the target operational areas of cloud seeding planes cast ballots against weather modification.

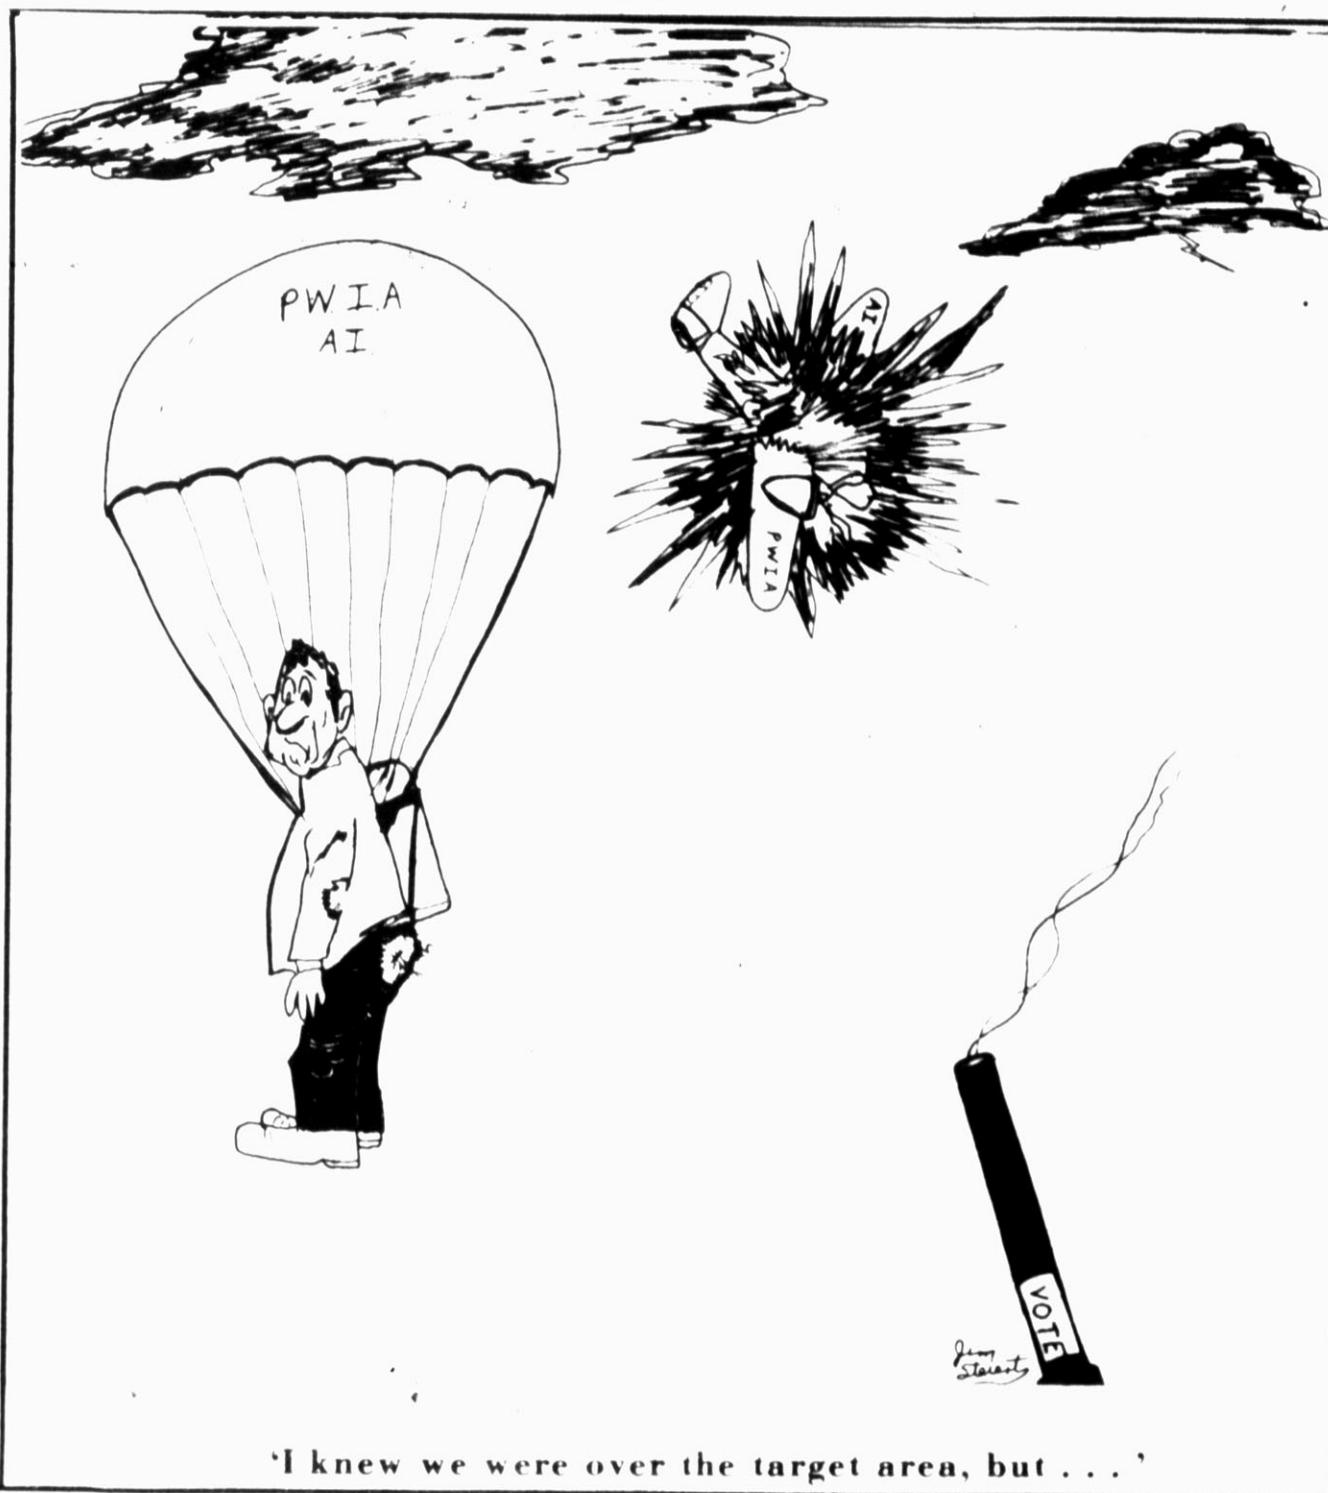

Results of the elections, if certified by the Texas Water Development Board during the fall in Austin, are binding for two years.

"In two years, there will be another fight," said Henson, the leader of the anti-hail suppressionists. "But as far as these counties are concerned, they (the cloud seeders) are through for two years."

Citizens for Natural Weather claim that cloud seeding to suppress hail also cuts rainfall.

"We were supposed to have a wet summer in Texas but we didn't have one in this area. The rains stopped on June 2 when they issued the permits. Look how much rain we've had in the last week," Henson said.

Hail suppression flights were shot down over three more Panhandle and South Plains counties following the latest dogfight at the polls between proponents and opponents of cloud seeding Tuesday.

Castro, Bailey and Floyd County voters turned down propositions covering hail suppression flights over their areas by healthy margins Tuesday in the final round of voting in a flurry of elections which have been held recently on the cloud seeding issue.

Only nine of the 52 voting boxes eligible for yesterday's election favored continued hail suppression flights by Atmospherics Inc. of Littlefield and Plains Weather Improvement Association of Plainview.

A total of only eight target area voting boxes had approved of hail suppression activities following Tuesday's elections.

Only when the Texas Water Development Board convenes in Austin in September or October will final results of the elections be known.

The board will certify election results and amend permits to the two weather modification firms.

Board General Counsel Bruce Bigelow must receive a certified copy of election results from commissioners in the counties involved before results in operational areas are valid and final.

After Bigelow receives results, companies will be notified to halt their weather modification flights over operational areas which opposed the flights at the polls.

Results of the elections will be binding on any weather modification firm for a period of two years.

Where negative votes have resulted, no weather modification firm may be issued permits to conduct programs for a period of two years following the election in target areas and not until a future election changes results in operational areas.

Tuesday's defeat of the weather modification issue in neighboring Castro County came as somewhat of a surprise, as farmers in the Dimmitt and Sunnyside areas were among the first to implement cloud seeding programs in the Panhandle.

Operations of both Atmospherics Inc. and Plains Weather Improvement Association were defeated by healthy margins.

The vote on Atmospherics in Castro County was 899 against to 336 for.

Plains Weather Improvement Association flights were defeated by a margin of 812-306.

In Floyd County, totals were 727 against to 124 in favor, while in Bailey County the vote was 763 against to 51 in favor.

Tuesday's elections brought the total number of counties opposing weather modification activities to seven, following the defeat of the weather issue in elections in Swisher, Randall and Hockley counties Saturday.

Cloud seeding was also overwhelmingly defeated in an earlier election in Briscoe County. Only Lamb County has supported cloud seeding.

The election results have defeated the cloud seeding proposal in approximately half of the counties over which cloud seeding flights are conducted.

Among the counties included in the overflight area of the weather modification firms are all or portions of Castro, Swisher, Hockley, Lamb, Bailey, Parmer, Deaf Smith, Randall, Lubbock, Hale, Floyd and Briscoe counties.

Carter Says Opposition To Agreement Unfounded

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, declaring that public opposition to the proposed Panama Canal treaties is based in part on misconceptions, is launching a series of meetings with officials from around the country to win support for the agreement.

As he called in the governors of Mississippi and Kentucky for a briefing on the agreement, Carter told a news conference Tuesday that the United States would have first rights to involvement in the new canal, if one is built.

And the President, while telling reporters he "wouldn't want to say anyone who disagrees with me is ignorant," added he believes, "The way to arouse public support for the treaty is to let the American people know the advantages to our country of its terms."

Carter acknowledged that "there is not popular support for the Panama Canal

Mrs. Davis Accuses Husband

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) - Priscilla Davis told the jury Tuesday how she lay helplessly wounded and watched her estranged, black-clad husband, Cullen fire two fatal shots into her dying lover, Stan Farr.

"Stan just looked at me, closed his eyes, laid down his head and he died," the striking blonde socialite testified through tears, sobs and defense objections.

"You saw Cullen Davis fire two shots into Stan Farr, is that right?" Dist. Atty. Tim Curry asked.

"Yes, sir," she replied. Moments later, as she struggled to regain her composure, State District Court Judge George Dowlen ordered a recess and prosecutors rushed to her side.

"I'm sorry," she whispered. "I'll be okay."

The courtroom drama unfolded during the second day of testimony in the capital murder trial of Cullen Davis, millionaire Fort Worth industrialist.

The 43-year-old defendant is on trial for the slaying of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea, the first to die in a brutal midnight assault last summer at the $6 million Davis mansion.

The shootings the night of Aug. 2 left Andrea and Farr, 30, dead and Priscilla and a young mansion visitor, Gus Gavrell, 22, critically wounded.

Mrs. Davis said the gunman's first comment was, "Hi, then he shot me."

Since there were no eyewitnesses to the slaying of the child, prosecutors intend to prove that the bullets that killed Farr were fired from the same gun that killed Andrea.

The courtroom was jammed but hushed as Mrs. Davis, quivering and near tears, began recounting out the story which she told earlier from a wheelchair at a Fort Worth bond hearing.

She said she and Farr returned from dinner and drinks with friends about midnight Aug. 2 and discovered the mansion's security system deactivated.

Nervously fingering the white lace blouse of her pink dress, Mrs. Davis said she first spotted what appeared to be bloody handprints on a wall and door leading to the basement.

"I hollered for Stan," she said recalling that Farr with whom she shared the mansion, had ascended the stairs to the bedroom.

"I kept hollering, 'Stan come here, Stan come here,'" she testified.

As she crossed to the kitchen, she said, all of a sudden, Cullen stepped out.

"When you saw Cullen?" Curry interrupted.

"Cullen Davis," she replied.

"He had all black on and a woman's wig, a shiny wig, straight, but with curls at the bottom. It had a part in it," she continued.

"Did he say anything?"

"He said, 'hi'."

"Then what did he do?"

"Then he shot me."

Over strenuous defense objections, she pointed out Davis as he sat impassive and silent at the defense table.

She also pointed to the spot where the bullet entered her chest and exited through her back, and injury for which she said she is still receiving treatment.

Mrs. Davis said the man in black "had his hands together and they were covered with a black or dark garbage sack."

After the first shot, she said, she screamed, "Cullen shot me! Go back, Stan, go back! He's got a gun!"

With tears turning to sobs, she told how the gunman attempted to push through a door separating him from Farr.

'Mini Page' Joins Brand

"The Mini Page", which appears weekly in more than 200 newspapers, will be added as a Friday feature of The Hereford Brand. It was announced this week by publisher O.G. Nieman.

An educational feature for young readers, "The Mini Page" is created by Betty Debnam of Raleigh, N.M. The brand will begin the 4 page "newspaper for kids" on Friday, Aug. 26.

"The Mini Page" combines news, features, jokes, puzzles and art in a clean and simple format. It began in the Raleigh newspaper in 1969 and now appears in more than 200 papers--attracting over 20 million readers.

As popularity has grown, editors have found that children, too, can be avid readers of newspapers. "The Mini Page" is a natural and proven tie-in with the Newspaper in Education program.

While "The Mini Page" is primarily written for children five to ten years old, it has proven to be both an ideal family feature and an educational tool. In fact, a survey revealed that 38 per cent of the adults who read it have no children.

Mrs. Debnam, creator, author and artist of the page, was an elementary teacher for 10 years with a masters in education from Duke University. Her father was a newspaperman in North Carolina, and her grandfather was a school superintendent and editor and publisher of a North Carolina weekly paper.

Joining with The Brand to make the feature possible will be Helen's Youth Shop, Western Auto Store, and the local Mr. Burger firms.

Feds to Seek Clues About Nixon Gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Over the strenuous objections of Richard Nixon, the federal government is seeking to rummage through boxes he left behind to see if they contain clues to the whereabouts of valuable gifts from foreign dignitaries.

At stake in the federal court hearing is more than just a listing of the gifts, some of which may be "missing" through poor record-keeping.

The hearing, scheduled for today, is the government's first attempt to search the materials in its possession since the Supreme Court awarded custody to Uncle Sam specifying that strict regulations must govern access. It also is Nixon's first chance to challenge those rules.

Imprisoned Americans To Be Transferred

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Preparations are under way to begin transferring imprisoned Americans to U.S. authorities as soon as the U.S. Congress passes the legislation necessary to put a prisoner exchange treaty into effect.

Authorities said 16 Americans have been brought to Mexico City from prisons in southwest Mexico during the past week. Other American prisoners will be concentrated in detention centers along the U.S. Mexican border and in Guadalupe.

Dr. Cesar Luchaga Rojas, director of the agency carrying out the prisoner transfers, said he had learned Congress might pass the needed legislation in September.

The prisoners will not be delivered all at once, he said in an interview. "But we want to be ready."

GM Automobile Prices Getting Big Hike

DETROIT (AP) — Prices on General Motors cars are going up an average 14.7% without this fall, according to the nation's largest automaker.

The increase, based on a per cent from a completely equipped 1977 car, means the suggested manufacturers price of a 1978 GM car, including options, will climb to an estimated $7,200.

That price does not include taxes or discounts that dealers usually offer buyers.

GM, which builds more than half the cars produced in the country, announced Tuesday that base prices on its new cars are going up an $242, or 4.5 per cent, on the average, from 1977.

Including added-cost options, GM estimates its average 1978 car will carry a price that's up 10.7 per cent over a comparable 1977 car.

Jaworski Meeting With Ethics Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leon Jaworski is giving the House ethics committee a progress report on his first few days in charge of the investigation of alleged South Korean influence-buying attempts in Congress.

The former Watergate special prosecutor is meeting with committee members today in the first session since he took over the investigation on Aug. 15. Aides declined to say in advance what Jaworski would tell the committee.

They also would not say whether the panel will consider a contempt of Congress action against Suzi Park Thomson, a former secretary to retired House Speaker Carl Albert. Ms. Thomson, who prefers that designation, was threatened with the contempt citation last week by investigators after she refused to answer three questions.

Hubenak To Hold News Conference

State Representative Joe A. Hubenak, chairman of the powerful House Committee on Agriculture and Livestock, will hold a news conference tomorrow at 10 a.m. at the Hilton Inn in Lubbock. Representative Hubenak will announce his decision on whether he will run for Commissioner of Agriculture in Texas.

Rep. Hubenak is considered by many to be a champion of the agriculture and livestock industries and during his ten years in the Texas House of Representatives, has helped push through legislation to aid agribusiness and the consumers.

Paul Harvey News The ERA and Alimony

There are men who to women will say, "You deserve the equal rights which can be guaranteed only by an amendment to the Constitution."

Yet those same men—to other men—may say, "Why should we be the only ones to pay alimony?"

And there are women urging ratification of the Equal Rights

Amendment who consider alimony laws unfair—not because men usually pay—but, these feminists say, "Alimony is an anachronistic manifestation of the wife's dependency on her husband."

They are willing to sacrifice that benefit to escape that "manifestation of dependency."

In some significant ways the right, proper and timely crusade for equal rights has been distorted to imply "equality."

No two of us are equal—whatever our sex. And any crusade predicated on a false presumption is pre-doomed.

If we can instead narrow our objective to "equal legal rights" the proposition is more defensible.

And that brings us to the question of alimony.

In January of next year The Journal of Legal Studies will publish a study by University of Chicago economist Elizabeth Landes.

A hindsight study of 200 divorce cases leads this researcher to conclude that a marriage partnership should be formed—and dissolved—as business partnerships are.

Business partners make a mutual investment on the assumption that it will work. If it does not work, both parties are compensated commensurate with the investment each has made.

In the marriage partnership—if a woman sacrifices her own career to manage a household and to further the career of her husband—this is no small investment.

Should that marriage dissolve, she deserves the same compensation she would expect from the dissolution of a business partnership.

She is entitled either to a substantial cash settlement or to a continuing income.

There are cases where the man, entering into a marriage partnership, makes the greater sacrifice.

And so it is presently the law in most states that alimony can go to either spouse.

There would be very few business partnerships formed if the law were so unfair as to shortchange either investor.

And—in fact—in states where alimony is altogether prohibited fewer women marry or have children.

"Alimony" says Miss Landes, "serves as a kind of insurance policy to protect the investments made by each marriage partner—and those investments frequently require more of the woman. And, almost always, the divorced woman—if only because of her advanced age—has a lesser value in the labor market—and should be compensated for that "depreciation."

For us romantics it is hurtful to the point of pain to reduce the marriage relationship to a business formula.

But while the several states are considering an Equal Rights Amendment which is necessarily, unemotionally legalistic, we need to be reminded that "equal rights"—if applied alike to men and women—can be unequal.

modification firms has already indicated that weather modification flights will probably have to be abandoned unless a large area supports the practice of cloud seeding. He pointed out that activities over small, isolated areas would be economically unfeasible.

Efforts to do the suppression were being hampered by the operation of patterns of winds for Natural Weather, an organization of some 4,000 farmers and ranchers who oppose cloud seeding.

The opponents argued that the claims of the hail suppression firms that cloud seeding reduced hailfall and increased rainfall were untrue, and that cloud seeding deprived their own farms of needed moisture in addition to causing drastic "downwind effects" in regions outside of the cloud seeding areas.

Federal Deadbeats Pressured

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time may be running out for the deadbeats among federal agencies—the ones that have a habit of paying their bills weeks or even months late.

The administration has told agencies that contract with private businesses to turn in reports by Sept. 1 on how many are paid when due, and how many are tardy.

If past performance is any guide, a good many of them will have to confess to paying bills belatedly.

Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., who raised the issue in the first place, said he may propose legislation to require that government agencies pay interest on any bills that are not paid within 30 days.

That's the way it is for the consumer who doesn't come up with the cash to pay his bills on time. But some of the government's 29 contracting agencies apparently have been making their own rules, and there hasn't been much that a businessman could do about it.

Packwood raised the possibility of a bill collecting bill after the General Accounting Office reported that late payments are a serious problem for businesses that take government contracts.

According to the GAO survey, the General Services Administration was late in paying 73 per cent of its bills, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare was tardy with 68 per cent of its payments and the Department of Transportation with 64 per cent.

The National Education Association is launching a letter-writing and lobbying campaign for fulfillment of what apparently was one of President Carter's low priority campaign commitments: the creation of a new Department of Education.

Carter has had the Department of Energy added to the Cabinet roster, but there is no indication that the administration is considering another for education.

The education association is distributing a series of statements in which candidate Carter said that he favored a separate, Cabinet-level Department of Education.

There is a bill, cosponsored by half the members of the Senate, to set up such a department, but it is not likely to get anywhere unless the administration advocates the move.

treaty" but blamed this on "a great deal of misconception."

The President's actions are part of an administration attempt to counter attacks by foreign-policy conservatives who say the treaties give away too much for what the United States gets in return.

A White House official said that the meeting with the governors, Cliff Finch of Mississippi and Julian Carroll of Kentucky, was the first of several on the agreement.

The governors said after the meeting that Carter sought their help in convincing their states' citizens of the need for the treaties, but that he specifically asked them not to put pressure on their states' senators.

During Tuesday's news conference Carter also mentioned that he had suppression issue were being hampered by the operation of patterns of winds for Natural Weather, an organization of some 4,000 farmers and ranchers who oppose cloud seeding.

The opponents argued that the claims of the hail suppression firms that cloud seeding reduced hailfall and increased rainfall were untrue, and that cloud seeding deprived their own farms of needed moisture in addition to causing drastic "downwind effects" in regions outside of the cloud seeding areas.

are coming in from the north. And they (the cloud seeding planes) haven't been able to go out to meet them."

Henson, who farms south of Canyon, isn't the only relieved anti-hail suppressionist around Jim Conkright of Hereford, after hearing the results of Tuesday's voting said, "I'm glad that it's finally worked down."

I have a lot of good friends, particularly Nolan Henson, that's worked hard on this thing. They've convinced that this hail suppression also suppressed the rain.

We as ranchers in this country need every drop of rain we can get from an economic standpoint. And if hail suppression stops rain, I'm opposed to it.

Conkright said he's not just taking Henson's word about the alleged effects of weather modification.

"I may be coincident but this hail suppression has ceased in recent years and the decline in rainfall has peaked also."

Re. Whether another Hereford farmer said, "It ceased because I'm against it. I saw the sky up a good shower several years ago, but here. They would continue to monitor the situation.

Said that the United States would go no further than cautioning Israel that its settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River in occupied territory created "an unnecessary obstacle to peace."

The talk with the governors on the canal treaties produced some success. Finch, who had opposed the agreement before talking with Carter, said later he was not fully convinced he should support it, but he was more inclined to back the President.

The agreement reached two weeks ago in Panama between U.S. and Panamanian negotiators turns control of the canal over to Panama by the year 2000, although the United States would retain the right to defend its neutrality at any time.

sure did. It would have been a real good shower."

Conkright had a word of advice for the cloud seeding operations, Plains Weather Improvement Association of Plainview and Atmospherics, Inc., of Littlefield.

Nutrition Specialist Busy with Questions

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Whether it is safe to eat a recently deceased lobster or lasagna that has matured five hours in the trunk of a car falls within the expertise of Charlotte Dunn.

Miss Dunn, who announces cheerfully she is 55 and over the hill, is a food nutrition specialist with the University of Wisconsin Extension.

She works from an office crammed with canning lids, notebooks and piles of the 43 food information pamphlets she has written for the Extension. She says she gets about 30 calls a day from people who have questions on nutrition and food.

Miss Dunn, settling back casually with her right foot propped on the chair seat, recalls some of the questions.

There's this one: "A friend of mine died and we're cleaning out her basement. We found food from almost 20 years back and we don't know if we can eat it."

She grimaces and says they're up there and she's lived without it and she's still you to go on living.

She admits her response manner is occasionally abrasive.

"I get a little impatient," she says. "I always say if anyone talked to me like that, I'd hang up on me. But you're asking such a question that you mean death and you're being sloppy with it."

Miss Dunn says she thinks many callers problems arise from carelessness or impatience, and they want you to tell them it's all right."

Often it isn't all right, as in the case of a woman who wanted to be reassured that a lasagna lasagna left in her car trunk hours was still edible it wasn't.

Miss Dunn, who has held her position since 1956, fires off answers like a drill sergeant surveying the troops. She seldom has to consult books for answers.

Many callers want to know if they can freeze a certain food. In most cases they can, although Miss Dunn advises them to freeze a small amount first to see if they like the quality of the thawed food.

I tell them you can always freeze your husband, too, but the quality may not be there when you thaw him out," she says in her Oklahoma twang.

With the pickle season waning soon, she and co-worker Mary Mennes get 7,000 questions a year on canning, pickling and freezing—come ham and turkey questions. Then the January lull, followed by gardening questions.

Occasionally she gets calls at home. She answers all questions, including one about a deceased lobster.

"We have to live lobsters in an ice chest. One passed away during the night. Is it okay to eat it?" she reads.

"Oh no," she says with a shake of her head. "We don't know what time he died."

The Stars and Bars, the flag of the Confederacy, was first flown at Montgomery, Ala. on March 4, 1861.

TV Violence—Topic Of Television Movie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A TV movie shows a mentally ill man setting fire to a building he designed. A disturbed kid sees the film, sets a fire in which he dies. Some blame the TV movie for his death.

The film's conscience-stricken writer in time decides he'll never again do a show with violence in it. Too pat an ending? Maybe.

But you'll see it in "The Storyteller," a made-for-TV movie about the controversial issue of violence in TV and its possible effect on viewers. The show will air in late November or early December.

And the writer's decision to avoid violent depictions of violence "is an exact duplication of what we did some years ago," says the movie's coauthor, veteran TV scribe Richard Levinson.

Levinson, who wrote "The Storyteller" with his long-time partner, William Link, said their decision came shortly after Robert F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1968.

"Before there was a hue and cry about violence on television, we made a unilateral choice," he said. "We had a gut feeling that a constant diet of violence on TV was in some unspecified way detrimental to children."

True, they created the violence-prone "Mannix" in 1967; but say they left the show just after it began. Yes, they created "Columbo" but say they deliberately took violence out of it from the start.

They were interviewed at the Century City offices of ABC, which "turned down" "The Storytellers" but where, ironically, the filming of the NBC show was under way this week.

They were debating this (the TV violence issue) within ourselves a long time," Levinson said. "We decided to write this piece about six months ago, and with a somewhat antipolice bias."

Midway through, the whole thing broke loose."

He meant the strong, recent criticism of TV violence by the PTA, the American Medical Association and Dr. George Gerbner, communications dean of the University of Pennsylvania, among others.

He said he and Link studied that side and its demands for less violence, then that of showmakers worried that such demands, however well-intended, could lead to widespread censorship in television.

What the program tries to do, he added, is show the complexity of the entire issue of TV violence, to show there's no easy answer.

In 1974, the mother of a young girl sued NBC for $11 million. She alleged that a rape scene in "Born Innocent," a TV movie, led to a similar attack on her 11-year-old daughter.

Levinson was asked if NBC had suggested he and Link write Executive Committee and how to restore control of the party to persons representing the moderate and conservative majority. Brunson said in a statement distributed in Austin.

Others attending, according to Brunson, included:

Claudia Brummett, former Democratic national committee woman of Alvarado; Robert W. Smith, conservative leader from Dallas; Glyn Dav, Ector County Democratic chairman of Odessa; Dick Arlington, former state committee member from Houston; Lola Bonner, Arkansas County chairman; Julianian Cowden, secretary of the Texas Democratic Party; Wanda Britton, state executive member and Susan Allen, executive committee member.

Moderate Democrats Concerned about SDEC

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Some leaders of moderate and conservative Democratic forces are concerned over what they consider the extreme liberal direction of the State Democratic Executive Committee.

John S. Brunson said Tuesday. Brunson, former SDEC member from Houston, said he was a member of a group that met Monday at the farm of Lem Allen, chairman of Democratic County Chairman, near Kingsbury Guadalupe County.

Well known leaders of moderate and conservative forces within the Texas Democratic Party expressed concern about the extreme liberal direction and membership of the current State Democratic

"The Storyteller" to illustrate the problems the industry faces in the issue of violence in dramatic television programs.

"NBC had absolutely nothing to do with this," he said. "We wrote it because we're at Universal Studios and get paid, anyway."

"We submitted it. Their (NBC's) concern was not so much what it was about as whether it would attract an audience."

Close Finish Seen For SWC Campaign

DALLAS (AP) - The 63rd year of Southwest Conference football this autumn should be a photo finish similar to the 1976 campaign when Texas Tech and Houston crossed the finish wire face mask to face mask.

Tech and Houston are loaded again with quality quarterbacks to run the helm of explosive offenses.

But perhaps the most awesome shadow is cast by the Texas Aggies who finished seventh in the nation last year and return their entire first team offense.

"It could be the best offensive team I've had in five years--and we weren't exactly slackers last year, scoring over 30 points a game," says Texas A&M Coach Emory Bellard.

Defensively, Texas Tech returns the most veterans although Houston and A&M will field talent galore.

However, none of the above may win.

There's a darkhouse from Waco called Baylor which could lap the field.

"This is going to be an unpredictable team," says Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "When you take the talent and inexperience and throw it up against talented teams you don't know what to expect."

"They are not void of talent, they just need experience."

Baylor and Texas Tech tangle in the first crack out of the box Sept. 10 in what should be a wild SWC opener. And Baylor catches the Red Raiders at home.

Baylor just doesn't have an experienced quarterback.

"That will be a key game for us," says Tech Coach Steve Sloan. "We beat Colorado in our opener last year and we were hard to catch after that."

Texas Tech returns 16 starters and 16 lettermen while Cotton Bowl winner Houston lost only four starters on both offense and defense.

Houston gets a quick test on Sept. 12, playing UCLA in a nationally televised game in the Astrodome.

Arkansas, under new coach Lou Holtz, brings back a league high of 43 lettermen.

There are two other head coaches in their first year of SWC play - Texas' Fred Akers and Texas Christian's F.A. Dry.

Akers will have a hale and hearty Earl Campbell to help usher in the I-Formation attack as Athletic Director Darrell Royal watched from the stands with his Wishbone-T offense in dry dock.

Dry will inherit a thin squad at TCU with a killer schedule, including Rose Bowl champion Southern California.

At Southern Methodist, Ron Meyer must find a quarterback to replace Ricky Wesson as TCU looms on the schedule Sept. 10. The Mustangs need to hurry on their rebuilding program with Ohio State paying a call Oct. 1.

Coach Homer Rice of the Rice Owls is saddled with finding a replacement for All-American quarterback Tommy Kramer.

"One of five or six teams could win it," says Bellard. "TCU, SMU and Rice are a year or so away but realistically any of the other teams have a chance."

"The Aggies and Houston look mighty strong to me," says Sloan. "I think this year's race is going to be even closer than last year's. That makes for great fun for the spectators but not for the coaches."

North Texas State will field the best independent team in the Southwest. "We've got a good chance for a bowl," says Coach Hayden Fry. "We have an experienced team coming back."

NTSU plays Mississippi State, SMU, Florida State and Memphis State in an effort to catch the eye of bowl committees.

Phils Not Even Thinking Slump

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

If the Philadelphia Phillies haven't lost their flair for the dramatic, they should go into a slump right about now.

It is one year to the day since the Phillies saw a whopping 15 1/2-game lead begin to fritter away. It dwindled down to three games before they recovered and won the National League East by nine games over the Pittsburgh Pirates. And, of course, there is the team's monumental collapse down the stretch in 1964.

"That doesn't even come to mind. This is the first time anyone's ever asked me that question," Manager Danny Ozard said following the red-hot Phillies' 3-2 triumph over the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night. It was their sixth consecutive victory and 19th in 20 games and kept them 7 1/2 games ahead of Pittsburgh...their largest lead of the season.

Elsewhere, the Pirates edged the San Diego Padres 7-6, the San Francisco Giants nipped the Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 13 innings, the St. Louis Cardinals shaded the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1, the Montreal Expos downed the Cincinnati Reds 4-2 and the New York Mets beat the Houston Astros 2-1.

Greg Luzinski's two-run single in the first inning and Mike Schmidt's 31st home run in the fifth paced the Phillies' triumph. Overshadowed were 13 strikeouts in eight innings by Atlanta's Phil Niekro which gave him a league-leading 204 for the season and broke his record of 195 for a Braves pitcher the team's 12-year Atlanta history.

Padres 7, Astros 6
Al Oliver broke a tie in the bottom of the ninth with a first-pitch home run off San Diego relief ace Rollie Fingers. The Pirates, who had lost three games in a row, scored a pair of unearned runs in the eighth inning to take a 6-5 lead but San Diego's Gene Tenace tied it in the ninth with a homer.

Giants 4, Cubs 3
Tim Lincecum's run-scoring single in the 13th inning gave the Giants their first victory of the year over the Cubs after eight defeats. With one out in the 13th, Jack Clark walked and stole second and Darrell Evans also walked before Foli's soft single.

Cardinals 2, Dodgers 1
Bob Forsch pitched a three-hitter outdueling Don Sutton, and Lou Brock drove in the winning run with a second-inning single for his 2,800th career hit. The 38-year-old Brock, who singled and scored in the first inning, also stole the 889th base of his career, leaving him three shy of the all-time major league record set by Ty Cobb.

Expos 4, Reds 2
Dave Cash continued his season-long assault on Cincinnati with two hits, an RBI, and two runs scored. Cash doubled and scored in the first inning, reached on a fielder's choice and scored in the fourth, and drove in an insurance run with an infield hit in the ninth. Gary Carter homered for Montreal's other run.

Cash has 18 hits in 37 at-bats against the Reds this season for an average of .486.

Mets 2, Astros 1
Lenny Randle singled home Leo Foster with the winning run in the ninth inning after the Mets tied the score in the eighth on Ed Kranepool's pinch double. Houston scores in the top of the eighth on Terry Puhl's double and a single by Jose Cruz.

Stram Says Gilliam Not Showing Much

New Orleans Coach Hank Stram says that quarterback Joe Gilliam won't make it back with the Saints.

Gilliam was passing during a practice session Tuesday, but Stram said he ranks Gilliam dead last in the four-man race for the quarterback job.

That means the former Pittsburgh Steelers star is apt to be cut or traded by the National Football League team.

Stram says he still has faith in the quarterback, but that there isn't much time left for him to make it into form. The player hasn't made more than three practices in a row since the preseason started due to headaches and nausea resulting from his withdrawal from heroin.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - For only the third time in the 11-year history of their franchise, the Los Angeles Kings will open a National Hockey League season at home.

LONDON, Ont. (AP) - Darwin Semotiuk, head football coach at the University of Western Ontario, has been named head coach of the Canadian college all-star squad for the Jan. 8 Can-Am bowl at Tampa, Fla. The bowl game, the first such all-star match, will be played according to Canadian rules with American field dimensions.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Jacques Plante, the first goalie in modern hockey history to wear a facemask regularly in league play, has been hired by the Philadelphia Flyers to work with their netminders at the National Hockey League team's training camp next month.

Plante, who won five consecutive Vezina Trophies as the NHL's top goaltender from 1955-60, will work at the camp from Sept. 12-Oct. 7.

When he was with the Toronto Maple Leafs, Plante tutored Bernie Parent, who subsequently was traded to the Flyers and helped them to consecutive Stanley cup championships in 1973-74 and 1974-75.

Bufs Valley Favorite

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - West Texas State, where football was a question mark only a year ago, is riding the favorite's seat to win the Missouri Valley Conference title this year.

With a new coach and a switch from the Wishbone to a balanced offense, the Buffaloes are rated a good chance to spill Tulsa out of the throne room for the first time since 1973.

Tulsa, in a rebuilding year and also with a new coach, is rated by coaches and the media a strong second. New Mexico State was given a third place nod by pre-season forecasters.

The showdown game for the conference may come on Nov. 19 when Tulsa plays at Canyon, Tex.

There are two new teams competing for the championship this season: Southern Illinois and Indiana State.

New coaches have taken over at Tulsa with John Cooper, West Texas with Bill Yung and Drake with Chuck Shelton.

Tulsa is apparently changing its offensive stress from passing to running, and is putting more emphasis on defense. New Mexico State is junking the Wishbone for a passing attack.

Yung, in his takeover at West Texas, has impressed observers. The team began to jell in the last half of 1976, not losing in the last five games.

Seventeen starters from that squad are back, including the Valley's best runners.

Back for this season are the first, third and fourth leading runners in the 1976 season and the entire offensive line. The lack of an established quarterback is the biggest problem for the Buffs.

Tulsa, which finished 7-4-1 last year and had a trip to the Independence Bowl, is rebuilding under Cooper, who came to the Hurricane from Kentucky. Defensive inexperience is a major problem.

Here is a brief outlook for each team:

West Texas: The Buffs will use a Slot-I formation and be able to use the three top runners from last season. Robert Mayberry, conference leading rusher last year, is the tailback. Bob Robinson is the fullback and Anthony Dogan moves to wingback. Yung says Robinson is the best all-around back of the three but Mayberry is the fastest. Redshirt Tracy Qualls is the probable choice for starting quarterback but Bill Delaney is the best passer.

The offensive line should be the best in the conference with every starter returning. The defense is not as settled but seven starters are back from 1976. Linebacker Larry Sears is a possible all-conference possibility.

New Mexico State: Three junior college quarterbacks have been recruited in the move to a passing offense. Top receivers are Stanley Sam and Tony Lambert. The aggies have several experienced running backs, but have distinguished themselves yet. Only center Charlie Wenza and tackle Gary Hull are back from the offensive line.

The defensive line may have the Valley's best in Tack Anderson and experience is everywhere except in the linebacker position. The Aggies particular strength is in end Jay Fairbanks, a 1975 starter who was out with an injury last year and safety Ray Milo, an all-conference choice last year. Skepper Vernon is one of the loop's best place-kickers.

Wichita: The Shockers return the conference No. 2 rusher in fullback Jeff Haney. Tailback Jeff Shepler and flanker Bryan Hanning are returning starters and a seasoned offensive line will be led by all-conference tackle Barry Bales.

Southern Illinois: This is the Salukis first year competing for the MVC title and the team was hit heavily by graduation. Andre Herrera, third nationally in rushing, the defensive line, most of the offensive line and half the secondary were lost.

Gary Linton, who is both big and fast, is expected to be among the Valley's best running backs. The alternating quarterbacks from 1976, Bob Collins and Reginald Evans, are back along with an experienced receiving corps, led by tight end Greg Warren.

Drake: The Bulldogs have big linemen to replace graduation losses. Nose guard David Glover (241) and tackles Coley Calhoun (278) and Dana Nelson (270) are expected to join end Matt Henry, a good defender in the starting lineup.

Quarterback Dan Dodd and tailback Wayne Williams came out of spring practice as key operators in an attack that stresses balance. Center Al Byers who was all-conference last year is among the best prospects.

Indiana State: Ten starters are back for the Sycamores, also making their first run for the title. Linebacker Marty Murry, end Mark Kupets and safety Bruce Montagner are keys.

The offense which managed only two touchdowns per game last year, has an all-new line with backfield starters that are questionable. Quarterback Pete McCoy, halfback D.A. Daniels and tight end Mike Brantley will start and coaches predict halfback Vincent Allen has recovered sufficiently and is in pre-injury form.

Tulsa: The offense will operate mostly from a split-veer back with some I-formations and other plays. Quarterback David Rader will carry much of the offensive load after a year of alternating with Ron Hickerson. Cornell Webster, the brightest prospect for this season was lost academically and has turned pro.

Two running backs, Greg Zoschak and Paul Roberson, were injured in spring practice and may be slow starting. But Rickey Watts and James Favors are healthy and ready to start.

Marcus Hatley is a bright prospect for receiving and Steve Cox is an excellent kicker. There are big holes to fill in the offensive line.

DETROIT (AP) - Bob Reynolds, nationally-known sports director of radio station WJR, announced Tuesday he is resigning, effective Sept. 15.

Reynolds said he would carry on his contract to work on Detroit Lions games this season and next year and will do Michigan State football broadcasts as well.

A native of Greenfield, Mass., Reynolds attended the University of Massachusetts and worked on radio jobs at radio stations WEIM in Fitchburg, Mass., and WDFD in Flint, Mich., and WJBK radio and television stations in Detroit.

Bringing health closer

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the fairy tale world of the federal government, a benevolent nod from the White House can transform a tattered stepchild of public policy into a budding Cinderella virtually overnight.

now assigned specialists in the field to his own staff. The National Institute of Medicine, an arm of the prestigious National Academy of Sciences, is conducting a study of U.S. health initiative abroad at the request of congressional committees.

And earlier this year, the American delegation to a world water conference in Argentina was headed not by the usual engineering experts but by top-level environmentalists and disease control specialists.

"That may not sound very significant, but it was noticed and appreciated by other countries," said Bourne, in a recent interview. "If we did nothing but clean up the world's water supply, 50 million lives per year could be saved."

Bourne, who has traveled extensively throughout much of the so-called Third World to discuss health problems in developing nations, believes there is a real opportunity for the U.S. to extend a helping hand in eradicating disease and elevating health standards of the poorer countries.

Unlike most foreign aid programs, he noted, health assistance is generally regarded as non-political. Many developing nations which might shun other types of American help would be grateful for our medical expertise and environmental health advice.

Bourne is already serving as an unofficial U.S. emissary to more than a dozen nations that currently have no diplomatic relations with this country and has been encouraged by President Carter to explore ways of "using health to bring us closer to these nations."

There are certainly wiser ways to spend our money abroad. Building palaces for dictators and selling sophisticated arms all over the world has done little to promote the well-being of ordinary citizens elsewhere and a great deal to undermine domestic support for any kind of foreign aid program.

The international health campaign which Bourne is now attempting to develop is a logical and welcome aspect of President Carter's foreign policy emphasis on human rights and human needs.

Rebekahs Schedule Box Supper Friday

A box supper, fashioned after those of yesteryear, will be held by Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Odd Fellow Temple, 205 E. 6th St. All interested persons are invited to participate.

Local women planning to attend are asked to bring decorated boxes, filled with ample food for two, which will be auctioned individually. The winning bidder will be entitled to share the box's contents with the one who prepared it.

Individuals are urged to "let their imaginations go" when decorating the boxes.

Other entertainment is being planned by the local Rebekah Lodge, which will be observing its 75th anniversary on Oct. 9.

Honored Guest

Walcott School Opens Year Thursday Morning

Walcott School will begin its educational year at 8 a.m. Thursday and all students, parents and teachers are to report to the school gymnasium at that time for orientation.

Rural buses will run according to the same schedule as followed last year.

Enrollment will be conducted during tomorrow morning's orientation session and all new students, who have never attended Walcott School are required to bring birth certificates, pertinent health records and report cards.

Odd Fellows, Rebekahs Gather In Joint Meet

E.E. Bishop Vice-Grand of Hereford Odd Fellows Lodge #476 presided at a joint meeting of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Monday evening in the I.O.O.F.

Temple. Special guests, Charlie and Wilma Wise of Friona were welcomed. Mr. and Mrs. Wise are Odd Fellow and Rebekah Presidents of Panhandle Association which has 31 member lodges.

Included in their program for the 1977-78 term was a plea to all Odd Fellows and Rebekahs to promote the importance of the fraternity through publicity.

Family association in special gatherings was also stressed. Following the outlining of their program a round table discussion was held.

Supper of sandwiches, cakes and drinks was served after the meeting to members and guests.

Ann Landers Ann Gets It

DEAR FRIENDS: Recently I let a telephone solicitor tell her side of the story. It was blitized by angry readers who demanded a rebuttal. Here's what I've been getting all week long in spades--or should I say clubs?

DEAR ANN: The letter from the telephone solicitor describing how she is sworn at, slammed on, etc. burned me to a crisp. Obviously, Ann, you don't have to answer your own phone. You wouldn't know what it's like to run upstairs from the basement and then have someone try to sell you a cemetery lot. They should drop dead--Helen In Lorraine, Ohio

DEAR ANN: Please tell me why a person has the right to intrude on the privacy of anyone who owns a phone? If a salesman is at your door and you'd rather not be bothered you don't have to answer. But if the salesman is on the other end of your phone you are just plain trapped. I resent it.--Peeved In Bay City

DEAR ANN: Today I was home from work with a sick headache. I received three phone calls from (a) woman who wanted to sell me awnings (I HAVE awnings), (b) a man who wanted to sell me roofing, (c) a lady who was sure I needed to use some words I didn't know I knew. Phone solicitors have no right to ruin a person's day--and these people ruined mine.--Ticked Off in Tucson

DEAR ANN: It's bad enough to have to put up with junk mail but at least I can toss that out. Phone calls are something else. I value my privacy and these gummy phone solicitors have no right to enter my home.--Furious in N.J.

DEAR ANN: So they don't like to be hung up one? Well, I don't like to be taken off the top rung of a ladder when I'm painting the kitchen ceiling, nor do I enjoy getting out of the shower to tell a stranger my furniture doesn't need upholstering. What's more, I get annoyed when someone tries to sell me siding for my house--which is brick. Mad In Manitowoc, Wis.

DEAR ANN: So we are rude when we hang up on telephone solicitors, are we? I wouldn't call a person exactly polite who enters a home uninvited, interrupts conversations with guests and breaks into family discussions. I'm so fed up I'm seriously considering having my phone taken out.--Pestered in NYC

DEAR ANN: Miss Solicitor doesn't like to have a telephone receiver slammed in her ear? Well, I've tried to be polite and all I get is more non-stop talk. When I say, "Thank you, I'm not interested," they go right on--and on--and on. I've never seen such guts in my life. The

Kindergarten Plans Party

Get Acquainted Day will be held from 10-11 a.m. Friday at First Baptist Church Kindergarten for enrolled children, their parents and teachers.

The kindergarten classes will commence Monday under the direction of Mrs. Floyd Coker.

Don't waste leftover brewed coffee! Chill it and mix it with milk and chocolate syrup for a delicious drink.

A kitchen scissors is a worthwhile investment. It's great for cutting up poultry, snipping raisins, minced scallions and parsley.

Whenever you grate extra orange or lemon rind, wrap it in a little plastic film and refrigerate it. Use soon after grating and storing.

only way to get rid of the slob is to hang up on 'em.--No Apologies From Abilene.

DEAR ANN: You're to get clobbered plenty for giving that phone solicitor a clip in the chops (to use your phrase). I'll bet my eyeteeth you have an unlisted number and don't know what it's like to be pestered by these unbelievably persistent people. As one who has been driven up the wall, I can tell you they should be outlawed--Peeved Apley In Garden City

DEAR HELEN, PEEVED, TICKED OFF, MOWED DOWN, PLAIN MAD, PESTERED, NO APOLOGIES--and hundreds of others who wrote. Apparently everybody knows better than anybody. Glad, I'm unlisted. Good night all.

Carter Puts Faith in ERA, Grants Women's Equality Day

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter will reaffirm his personal support of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment by meeting with the leaders of more than 70 groups planning to march Friday in support of the ERA, the White House says.

The President also will proclaim Friday as Women's Equality Day.

"The President is not only sensitive to Women's Equality Day, but is taking the opportunity to reaffirm his absolute belief in the ERA," presidential assistant Margaret Costanza said.

The White House at first indicated that Carter had rebuffed appeals from two congresswomen to issue a Women's Equality Day proclamation. The day commemorates the 19th Amendment to the Constitution, which gave women the right to vote.

Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., who heads the Congresswomen's Caucus with Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., received a letter Monday from presidential counsel William Nichols saying that Carter had decided not to issue the proclamation.

Nichols said the President gets thousands of requests for proclamations and "there simply are not enough days, weeks and months in the years" to accommodate them. He said they usually are issued only on the request of Congress or for such issues of national importance as the Bicentennial.

Mrs. Heckler called Carter's rejection "a most insensitive and unnecessary slight." She noted that Carter already had proclaimed World Trade Week, Armed Services Day, Pan American Day and Pan American Week without a congressional request.

But Ms. Costanza and presidential press secretary Jody Powell said Nichols was in error.

LEGAL NOTICE
The Commissioners Court of Deaf Smith County will open bids on September 6, 1977 in the Courthouse at 10 a.m. for two pickups for Precinct 4. Specifications may be picked up at the County Auditors office at 242 E 3rd, Hereford, Texas. The commissioners reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

BID NOTICE
The Commissioners Court of Deaf Smith County will open bids on September 6, 1977 in the Courthouse at 10 a.m. for two pickups for Precinct 4. Specifications may be picked up at the County Auditors office at 242 E 3rd, Hereford, Texas. The commissioners reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC
The Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court advises that it is a violation of the Penal Code of Texas to obstruct or injure a county road, and the operation of any equipment which cuts into the road bed is prohibited; and that any structure of any kind placed in the barrow ditch of country roads which obstructs or tends to obstruct such road is prohibited; and further that the plowing of ditches constitutes an injury to the road; and also that the public be advised that the disposing of refuse, trash, junk, garbage, dead animals or unsightly matter is a violation of county and state law. Violators are guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $15 nor more than $200. Every law enforcement officer of this state and its subdivisions have authority to enforce the provisions of this Act.

Roanoke
Roanoke, Va., with a current metropolitan population of more than 200,000, originated as a settlement called Big Lick. The later name "Roanoke" was taken from an Indian word meaning shell money. The community became a city in 1884 with the linking of the Shenandoah Valley Railroad and the Norfolk and Western Railroad.

Strippers, Dog Musers, Pickle Packers Honored

U.S. Boasts at Least 750 Halls of Fame

By Tom Tiede
LOS ANGELES — (NEA) — In 28 years as a strip tease dancer, Jennie Lee says she saw more of her audience than they did of her. She saw their grabbing hands, their sweating skin, their foul mouths; on occasion she even saw the knives and guns of the customers. Strippers, she learned ruefully, get no respect.
So it is that the now retired "Bazoom Girl" is working to upgrade the image of the industry. She has created The Exotic Dancers Hall of Fame, a mostly paper institution featuring such notables as Tempest Storm, Candy Barr and the redoubtable Chesty Morgan (size 60). "The girls," says Jennie Lee, "deserve recognition."
It is not by chance that the Bazoom Girl chose a hall of fame as the way to honor the ladies. North Americans of many persuasions are taking this route to instant immortality. There are at least 750 halls of fame in the United States and Canada — from strippers to post card collectors — and a new one is being organized every month. Some of the halls are large and celebrated: the baseball museum at Cooperstown, N.Y. is one. Most others are known only to those enshrined: The Count Dracula Society Hall of Fame, also here in Los Angeles, has but four members; the Pickle Packers, Piano Technicians and Warrant Officers halls are also of the mini genre.

Whatever their scope, the halls are All-American. Every nation honors its accomplished citizens, but only North Americans do it so democratically. The bust of Caesar does not appear in the Dog Musher's Hall of Fame, as example, but an image of the never to be forgotten Clyde (Slim) Williams does, in fact, so do records of Slim's dogs.
The democracy of the matter is not accidental. At least not in the United States. When the original colonies broke away from Great Britain, they also broke away from the traditional way of honoring subjects. Thus the U.S. Constitution forbids royal titles or appointments in America; enshrinement is the more preferable process.
Not that enshrinement is always the easy way. Some small halls of fame report periodic problems in getting prospective immortals to agree to institutionalization. Also, enshrinement is not necessarily permanent; some years ago the Hall of Fame for Great Billiard Players was disbanded when police raided the institute's pool room.
Besides this, there is petty emotionalism at work in some halls of fame. Jennie Lee, who was a natural 44 inches during her stage career, now looks with disdain on at least one enshrined stripper who has built her reputation on silicone injections. "That," sniffs the Bazoom Girl, "is the kind of thing that killed burlesque."

for softball players and for black athletes. Industrious wrestlers have created at least 10 halls of fame for themselves.
Now it seems the "ordinary people" are increasingly getting into the act. Soderberg reports the formation of a hall of fame for mothers, another for left-handers, another for mechanics. Truck drivers have their own shrine, so do inventors and bus drivers and Cherokee Indians. And lest we forget: the American Polled Hereford Hall of Fame.
The unkind might say that with the advent of the latter group, there would be no need for Jennie Lee's association. And that, by gum, is precisely the reason she organized the stripper's hall. "We've always been the ab butt of jokes," says the Bazoom Girl, now in her 50s and still amply endowed; "It's time people thought better of us."
After all, says Lee, strippers are people too, and sometimes important people. Septuagenarian Sally Rand is world famous, Fanny Foxe was once a valuable associate on the House Ways and Means Committee. And Jennie Lee, by the way, now comfortably settled in the L.A. suburbs, is a member of the Rockingham Road Community Assn.
Where is the Exotic Dancers Hall of Fame? As is the case with many of the new institutions, it is homeless, unfunded, and exists largely in the minds of the honored. The Bazoom Girl hopes there will be a museum one day, but there are problems with such dreams; what with Chesty Morgan, there may not be room at the shrine for anyone else.

JENNIE LEE, the retired "Bazoom Girl" and founder of the Exotic Dancers Hall of Fame, displays the "Fanny Award" which is presented to new inductees into the hall. The former strip tease dancer founded the hall of fame because she feels "It's time people thought better of us!"

Today In History

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 24, the 236th day of 1977. There are 129 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1814, British troops invaded Washington, D.C., and burned the Capitol and the White House.
On this date: In 79 A.D., an eruption of Mount Vesuvius in Italy buried the ancient cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum.
In 1777, Gen. George Washington led his Revolutionary War army into Philadelphia.
In 1891, Thomas Edison applied for a patent for a motion picture camera.
In 1932, Amelia Earhart became the first woman to make a non-stop flight across the United States, flying from Los Angeles to Newark, N.J., in 19 hours and five minutes.
In 1939, Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union signed a 10-year non-aggression pact.
In 1970, the first helicopters to fly across the Pacific reached South Vietnam from the U.S.
Ten years ago: Mobs from Communist China repeatedly attacked British positions along the 17-mile Hong Kong border and were driven off with tear gas.
Five years ago: Argentine security forces arrested hundreds of leaders of left-wing labor, student and political groups after a night of student rioting in major provincial cities.

Oilman Predicts US To Escape Crisis

HOUSTON (AP) - A fast-talking Texas multimillionaire believes the United States "will muddle through this energy problem and have it all solved within 20 years."

But, George P. Mitchell, one of the nation's biggest independent oilmen, has an even greater concern for the urban crisis and predicts, "It will take at least three generations to handle this one."

"If we don't act now down here in Houston, we'll see the inner city destroyed as in many other major metropolitan areas."

Mitchell, a balding bundle of energy and ideas, knows something about both subjects.

He says he has drilled more than 3,000 wells, discovered 100 oil fields and 125 gas fields.

Along with a $50 million grant from the federal government, he built a new city called The Woodlands, located on 20,000 acres, about the size of Manhattan, some 25 miles north of downtown Houston. With some 300 homes now sold, Mitchell envisions a community of 150,000 within the wooded, lake-dotted area, where black and white and brown will play together on the numerous tennis courts and on the lush 18-hole golf course, and meet to discuss community development projects.

"I want to transplant the disadvantaged and the upper and middle class into a new town where they can enjoy a better quality of life," he said in a recent interview.

"I want to provide jobs in this new town and I still want us to be a part of Houston."

"Hell, there is a flight of the whites to the suburbs and this is destroying our cities. People work in the cities, live outside the cities, and contribute nothing. They are parasites on the big cities. We want The Woodlands to be incorporated into Houston. We want to pay our taxes to the city. How can a city survive if you have 100 political subdivisions surrounding it and doing nothing?"

On energy, Mitchell is just as firmly committed to the future.

"Give us 20 years and we won't have an energy problem in the United States. There is going to be a worldwide crisis, a lot more serious problem than has or ever will face this nation."

The son of immigrant Greek parents who made it on his own and a Texan without the cowboy hat or the fancy-stitched boots, Mitchell predicted that within the next two decades, "this nation will be almost self-sufficient in energy. That means we won't need much imported oil. We have the resources and the industry to solve the problem."

"Sure, the federal government is throwing up some roadblocks in our energy development program. But, hopefully, Congress will come up with a compromise that will permit us to expand our role in the drilling of more wells."

Mitchell, 57, said another big problem facing the oil industry today is "that the American consumer has never really believed the industry. The reason is simple. The big oil firms, the so-called big seven, have been secretive, kept the information close to the chest."

"If the industry did it right, the companies would take the top men in their companies and make them the heads of the public relations departments. They don't have the real talent in public relations now. We are criticized by foreign countries and by our own Congress."

Mitchell, turning left, right and all-around in his big swivel chair, said American know-how had "saved Great Britain with the North Sea oil fields. If given the opportunity, Americans could have discovered their oil reserves years ago and relieved that nation of its terrible economic pressures. We have conquered the seas and the oceans and the mountains."

"But just try to convince the consumer of that. The press of the Eastern United States has been totally anti-oil until the past year or two. Consumers and the press believed the oil industry was nothing but a big rip-off. You know our rate of return is about 14 per cent, right in the middle of the average of all the industries of this nation."

In addition to oil and development of a new city, Mitchell is a major sponsor of an annual seminar called, "Alternatives to

The conference, scheduled in Houston Oct. 2-4, deals with energy shortages, population, ecology, and a better society.

Mitchell this year is donating $100,000 to those researchers who present projects that will make life more equitable and more pleasant for the people of the world.

The oldest son of those Greek immigrants admitted there "are a lot of federal controls today. They are everywhere. Society is more complex."

"But I still tell every young man this—you can go out today on your own and you can make it big. There may be more controls, but there are no fewer opportunities. And why do I do all this?"

"I do it mister, because I care."

National 'Traumas' Blamed In Decline of Testing Scores

NEW YORK (AP) - A steady 14-year decline in College Board scores was blamed today on national "traumas" such as the Vietnam war and Watergate, lower educational standards and the increasing number of minority, poor and inferior students taking the tests.

A special 21-member panel, headed by former Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, also blamed television and the nation's divorce rate in its 75-page report on the results of a two-year study.

The decline in Scholastic Aptitude Test scores constitutes "serious business warranting careful attention by everybody interested in education," the group said.

Since 1963, the average score in the Scholastic Aptitude Test verbal section has dropped 49 points, from 478 to 429. Mathematics scores declined 32 points, from 502 to 470.

Scores range from 200 to 800. The 2½-hour test is given by the College Entrance Examination Board to about one million high school students a year as a tool for colleges trying to gauge future academic success.

The report noted that the 14-year period was divided into two seven-year time brackets by societal events. The report said the decline before 1970 was due largely to a change in the kinds of students taking the test. In the seven years since, with the test-taking group stabilized, other developments in the schools and society were held responsible.

Between two-thirds and three-fourths of the decline until 1970 was related to the "notable extension and expansion of educational opportunity in the United States," the panel said.

With many more young persons staying in high school and going on to college, the panel said, there has been a greater proportion of test takers who have lower high school grades and who come from the low-income and minority groups which traditionally score low.

The growing number of women taking the SATs contributed to a decline in the mathematics scores, the study also noted. Women have traditionally scored higher than men in the verbal section.

However, the study rejected the interpretation that student makeup was the basic cause, using instead the explanation that lower scores resulted from "the incompleteness so far of the national undertaking to afford meaningful equality of educational opportunity."

The panelists - who were drawn from such institutions as the Ford Foundation, universities and high schools - said their analysis of causes since 1970 was based on "circumstantial evidence" because no clear causal relationships could be proved.

Engineer Favors Energy Recycling

DALLAS (AP) - Jack Brady, who told the government to "bug off" when it requested information about his solar-powered home, is giving the same government another chance.

Brady is a consulting energy engineer with a mission. He wants the Carter administration to offer incentives to those who find ways to recycle energy.

"Let's give the Carter administration credit for something bad," Brady said. "The Carter energy policy is not really appropriate without a credit of some kind for energy recycling."

Brady said he stumbled onto the "maddeningly simple" idea of using energy more than once when he was commissioned to do a study for a Dallas cafeteria.

He found that waste heat from air conditioners and refrigeration units could be used again to provide hot water for other needs.

Brady also found that no government help was available for such a project.

"Energy recycling should be subsidized like solar, geothermal, nuclear and wind energy projects are," Brady said.

He estimates that the cafeteria could cut its utility bills by 30 per cent, with two or three years necessary for the necessary equipment to pay for itself.

"I'm having a hard time getting the country changed while I'm trying to keep my own profits and losses straight," said the university lecturer and City of Dallas solar consultant with tongue firmly in cheek.

Brady had problems with the government when he tried to get some help for his solar-powered home in Plano, a Dallas suburb. The government backed off and it cost Brady $30,000 to finish the project, which includes solar air conditioning as well as the simpler process of solar heating.

"Then they (the government) started calling regularly to get data from my home's operation," Brady said. "I told them to bug off."

Brady said he knows of no other home which is totally solar powered. The house does have backup electric and gas systems, which are used instead of drawing on solar reserve power. Brady said the day is not far off when it will become cheaper to use the solar power exclusively.

Brady's ideas on energy recycling are not solar-related. He said using waste heat from current cooling or refrigeration systems would in effect provide free hot water and lower electric bills to consumers.

He admits that incentive plans for recycling projects have passed the House, "But the Senate seems to kill them all."

The business of energy recycling is a new one, but one that is booming, Brady said.

"There are many products available for recycling energy now, but homeowners don't know about them," he said. "Some of them are only 90 days old and I don't know of any of them more than 120 days old."

"What I'm trying for is what everyone is trying for," Brady said. "We all want lower energy bills. We've got to get the government to subsidize private enterprise in its quest for new products that work. Gosh, that sounds funny," he said.

Brady said he has no connection with any firms that make such products.

His next step is to try to attract attention for his cause.

"I want to talk with a guy from the Building Future Forum they had in Washington," Brady said. "I heard he said that it's easy to get your thinking into proposed energy bills. I'm gonna call that guy who said it was easy."

Brady would also like to hear from senators and representatives or from administration spokesmen concerning his views.

Michigan
What is now the state of Michigan was first visited by French fur traders and missionaries in 1616. A mission was established at Sault Ste. Marie in 1641 and a permanent settlement in 1668. The entire region was transferred to Britain in 1763, following the French and Indian War, and provided a base for attacks on American settlements during the Revolution. The United States acquired the territory in the peace settlement, although the British returned briefly during the War of 1812.

Wheat Resists Virus

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) - The Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station has joined its counterparts in Oklahoma and Texas in finding much merit and no overriding faults in a new variety of wheat which resists soil-borne mosaic virus, a major scourge of the crops.

The semidwarf strain is named Newton, after the city in Kansas which was the principal center of its testing.

The action of the experiment stations means Newton will be available to wheat farmers for planting in the fall of 1978.

A commercial seed company developed the strain. It is described as a high-yielding cross between Scout, one of the most popular varieties in Kansas, and Mexican spring wheat.

Second and third generation plants were grown on Kansas State University experimental plots at Manhattan, Hays and Hutchinson. Performance trials began in 1974.

A report prepared by Dr. Floyd W. Smith, director of the experiment station, and Dr. Elmer Heyne, wheat research geneticist, made these points:

-Soil-borne mosaic, on the average, infests two million acres of Kansas wheat each year. Kansas farmers recently have harvested 11 million to 12 million acres of wheat each season.

-Newton will be particularly useful in that part of the state south of Interstate 70 between Kansas City and Salina and a diagonal line from Salina southwest.

-In infested soils, it yielded 25 per cent more than Centurk, heretofore the most resistant variety, and two to four times more than varieties susceptible to soil-borne mosaic.

-In non-infested soils it yielded 5 to 10 per cent more wheat than Eagle, Larned and Sage, which all are high yielders.

-Its test weight is average, equal to that of Eagle; and, like Scout, it resists leaf rust and stem rust. It is taller than most semidwarfs, has good straw strength, and equals Triumph in winter hardiness.

-Its protein content is excellent.
