Tiny Building Houses Residents At Work

Up the hill and around the corner toward the San Jose area just outside Hereford rests a turquoise tin shed. It may not seem like much to the casual passerby, but to several Hereford citizens the miniscule building offers a respite from a life of tediousness and a feeling of uselessness.

The Hereford Satellite Work Shop Center is housed within the confines of the structure. Between its walls 14 local residents spend 61/2 hours Monday through Friday earning their living.

The center operates through the Amarillo State Center for Human Development, a branch of the Amarillo Mental Health, Mental Retardation (MHMR) Center. Directing the local satellite unit is Sandy Stockstill, assisted by Gloria Cortinez

"Our basic aim or purpose is to supply jobs and training to mentally retarded adults, plus prepare them for a job on the outside," Mrs. Stockstill said.

Right now we have one client who is ready to go on full time at his outside job. and we hope to have more ready in the near future." the director continued.

The clients to whom she referred are mentally retarded adults, who live with their families in the Hereford area and come to the center each day to do their part in becoming productive citizens in the community The jobs ther do are contract work usually secured by a representative of the Amarillo office. At the present the center has a standing contract with the Smith Potato Company of Hereford making produce hags. Other projects include inserting dead lock pins into meat tags for the Caviness Packing companies in Hereford and Dalhart and assembling a sales catalog for Amarillo Hardware Other continuing jobs include sorting IBM cards for recycling, stripping insulation from copper wire for resale.

and the manufacture of rosebud tufts for

The clients at the center are paid on a piece-work basis, or in the case of IBM card sorting and wire stripping, on a so-much-per-pound basis. A report on their production is submitted to the Amarillo office, which in turn sends each client a check for his work.

Still, while providing a pleasant, clean place to work, the Hereford center also attempts to enhance the daily life of the 'client', offering instruction in areas most

Carter Says Speed Crucial

WASHINGTON (AP)- Prime Minister Menahem Begin is proposing Israeli withdrawals on two fronts in his formula aimed at resuming Middle East peace talks, but he and President Carter appear to disagree on how fast to proceed.

Begin and Carter ended their first day of talks Tuesday with a dinner at which they toasted each with effusive praise. But they left the impression that Carter is determined to make progress toward a Middle East settlement this year, while Begin wants a slower approach.

Shortly after his arrival here, Begin gave Carter a written proposal calling for reconvening talks among Israel, Egypt. Syria and Jordan without preconditions, with the main work to be handled by binational subcommittees, sources said.

The sources said there is no place in Begin's plan for Palestinian Liberation Organization representation at the peace

Begin left the proposal for Carter to study after their first meeting. The Israeli leader called the proposal "a plan for the framework of the peace- making process" and White House spokesman Jody Powell called it "forward looking and worthy of consideration" by the Arabs.

The sources said Begin is willing to trade large parts of the Golan Heights and Sinai Desert for peace with Syria and Egypt, but opposes withdrawal from the occupied West Bank of the Jordan, offering instead to give the zone's 600,000 Arabs autonomy and tighter links with neighboring Jordan.

The pullbacks from the Golan Heights and the Siani would be made under conditions providing Israel security against Arab attack.

Israeli state television said Begin also was to tell Carter that Israel is ready for indirect peace talks with the Arabs as a second choice to direct Geneva- style negotiations.

Egypt quickly rejected that idea. The semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram quoted Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahey as calling that concept "an Israeli attempt to hinder peace.

At Tuesday's state dinner, Carter told guests "there is no way to postpone any longer' the issues requiring a settlement. He said "success this year is going to require a great deal of courage.

Legislators Schedule Votes On Nursing Home Measures

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) Legislators expected to vote today on bills tightening control of the multi-million dollar nursing home industry, whose reputation was tarred by the beating of an old woman in

Sen Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, planned to ask senators to take up his bill during their morning session.

Rep. Mike Ezzell, D Snyder, said he would make a similar move in the House this afternoon if printed copies of his version were distributed before lunch

Both measures, backed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, make the State Health Department totally responsible for nursing home regulation. They provide two to 10 years in prison for nursing home employes who deliberately injure

They also would enable the health department to shut down a nursing home for up to 10 days if conditions posed an immediate threat to the life or health of a

Rep Emmett Whitehead, D Rusk, failed 6.4 to give the Texas Department of Public Welfare the full responsibility for regulating nursing homes

Under present law, the health department licenses nursing homes while the welfare department inspects them for adequacy of services and living conditions

Whitehead said both the Hobby Commission on government economy and the Legislative Budget Board had recommended placing the homes under the welfare department.

Then we had one Yankee come into Texas and make a whirlwind investigation and misleading allegations...If we continue to stampede because one Yankee came down here a few days, I can't see it." Whitehead said.

Bread Price Is Higher, Why Not Value of Wheat? BY DON KENDALL the same wheat in that loaf, however, is

AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- From bare bones to fat surpluses in less time than it takes to graduate from high school, the nation's wheat inventory is so immense that the Carter administration soon will announce federal curbs on next year's harvest.

Only three years ago, when the world's crops hung in the balance and huge demands were draining reserves, the U.S. wheat stockpile was the smallest in more than 25 years

Some authorities at the time raised the specter of mass starvation in poor countries. As the farm price of wheat climbed, a few predicted that American consumers would pay a dollar a loaf for

But now, after three massive U.S. wheat crops- including the near-record harvest now taking place- it all seems like a bad dream

In several major producing countries, crops rebounded, precluding any famine around the world. In addition, both India and Bangladesh are now less dependent

In this country, bread prices did sprout anew, but not to the dollar a loaf foreseen

Yet, while wheat prices have dropped precipitously, consumers are still paying as much as ever for bread because of higher middleman charges.

Three years ago, for example, the farm wheat prices soared to record levels. At that time, a one-pound loaf of white bread that cost consumers nationally about 33 cents contained 6.4 cents worth of wheat.

This year, bread prices have averaged about 35 cents a loaf. The farm value of now about 2.8 cents.

In other words, if farmers gave away their wheat, consumers still would pay almost as much for bread as they did three years ago when farm wheat prices were at all-time highs.

The record wheat supply, however, is generally helping cool shelf prices by hanging over the market like a giant hammer ready to slam down on prices of other grains if those get too hgh. The relatively fast buildup in wheat supplies traditionally the biggest and most frustrating grain problem for the country has brought hardships to the farmers who produce it. Nationally, wheat in mid-June sold at the farm for $2 a bushel, compared with $3.42 a year earlier.

In February 1974, when there was talk of the world running out of bread grain, - loaves of bread. wheat at the farm averages a record $5.52 a bushel

To help understand what has happened since then, it is helpful to know a little about wheat, what it provides and how important it is to the farm economy

A bushel of wheat weighs 60 pounds. about as much as three cases of beer. -Each bushel provides enough flour to make about 70 loaves of bread. Wheat is a major cash crop for farmers, but only about two-fifths, of it is needed to meet domestic requirements.

The wheat inventory also called a reserve, carryover surplus- three years ago was 340 million bushels, less than a six months supply for domestic requirements.

Put another way, the reserve of June 1, 1974, was he equivalent of 23.8 billion billion loaves of bread.

As of this June 1, the wheat reserve was 1.1 billion bushels, enough to meet domestic requirements for almost two years. It also was the equivalent of 77

Add to that the estimated 1977 harvest of 2.04 billion bushels- only third behind those of 1975 and 1976- and the total U.S. supply available for the coming year is a record of almost 3.2 billion bushels.

But less than 1.9 billion bushels will be needed in the 1977-78 season to meet domestic and export demands. That means the wheat surplus next June 1 will be crowding 1.3 billion bushels, the largest surplus in 16 years.

How did it happen? The scarcity and then the surplus?

It began with poor world grain crops, mainly. The Soviet Union, for example, secretly bought more than 400 million bushels of wheat in 1972, about one-fourth of that year's U.S. harvest, and the rush was on.

More countries poured in orders for U.S. wheat and other grain. Exports soared, and what had appeared in mid-1972 to be another round of wheat surplus problems rivaling those of the early 1960s soon dissipated as the grain drain gushed.

Old controls on how many acres of wheat farmers could plant were suspended in favor of the market-oriented Republican policies of Earl Butz, Nixon's and Ford's agriculture secretary. The world wanted to buy U.S. grain, Butz said, and the country had it to sell. in 1972, the government paid wheat farmers $858.7 million to idle 20.1 million

Center

Help in nutrition comes in the form of trips to the grocery store and the preparation of the noon meal once a week at the center. "We plan meals with them, go shopping for food, and show them how to prepare different dishes as well as how to set the table." Mrs. Stockstill said .

Other areas of instruction include aid in how to tell time, how to make change with money, and how to recognize numbers and letters better A big help in this area. comes from Mrs. Bryon Terrell, a retired Hereford teacher, who comes to the center each Monday from 9 a.m. to noon to help teach the clients.

'Mrs. Terrell is a vital part of our program here." Mrs. Stockstill explained "And, we could still use some more help in that area.

The director went on to say that volunteers to help with instruction in meal planning and grooming and to help with driving the clients to Amarillo for medical appointments are badly needed

We could also use some help when we take field trips, and could drastically use a volunteer with some secretarial background to help in the office.

For support the center here depends mostly on local contributions. The Amarillo center provides salaries for the @ director and assistant director and can provide supplies and some materials for the clients to use in their work. But the bulk of the money necessary to operate the center must come from the community. Mrs. Stockstill said

The community must provide a building, pay the utilities, and so on. Wehave some regular contributors but are still is need of assistance." she,

Help has come from some local service clubs including the Elks Club, which donates the use of its pool for the clients each Saturday morning. Another big benefactor is the Frist Christian Church of Hereford, which contributes $35 per month for rent and has donated funds twice to go for sewing machines which are used in making the produce bags.

The church is really our staunchest supporter." Mrs. Stockstill said. "The pastor, Mack McCarter is on our Advisory board and Bruce Coleman. a member there, was on our board for nine years before joining the board of the Amarillo Center recently

Other help comes from the First Methodist Church, which is considering putting the center in its 1977 78 budget according to the director Taylor

Appliances also donated a second-hand refrigerator-freezer for use at the center.

To get still more help Mrs. Stockstill plans to begin speaking at local clubs to acquaint the populace with the center and its activities. "We are also putting together a slide show with the help of Robert Mercer to help illustrate to the people what we do," she said.

Mrs. Stockstill said that donations of refreshments for the two 15-minute breaks that workers take each day would be greatly appreciated. "But what we mainly need is for the community to recognize that we are here, and that we need their support.

'My ultimate goal is an alternate living setup like the one in Amarillo," she added, explaining that the setup provides apartment living for the clients under the supervision of 'house parents.

The clients live with two to four to an apartment under direct supervision, and we feel like all of our clients are ready for such a move," she added confidently.

And, to Mrs. Stockstill, Mrs Cortinez, the few contributors, volunteers, and 15-member advisory board, helping the $1,000. clients establish their own identity is what it's all about

The extent to which residents of a community are able to pursue their usual daily activities, without interruptions caused by illness, is taken as an indicator of their general health.

A measurement called a 'disability days index' is used for the survey. It takes into account the number of days of restricted activity-- when a person in unable to go to work or to school, must stay at home or in a hospital, or otherwise cutdown on his normal routine. Not included in the tabulation are those with long-term, chronic illnesses.

On the basis of data recently released, covering fiscal year 1976, the people in Deaf Smith County's regional area have been losing more time, for health reasons, than they did five years earlier.

The current figures show that the average number of disability days in the area in 1976 was 9.3 per person, of which 4.1 were bed days. In 1971 the average was 8.7 disability days, including 4.0 bed days.

In most other sections of the country, also, people took more time off than before because of illness or injury.

National, the average number of days on the disability list was 9.7. of which 4.2 were spent in bed. Age had a great deal to do with the amount of time lost. Among school children in the 6 to 16 bracket, it amounted to 8.7 days. For the over -65 segment of the population, the average was 12.1 days The overall loss of time in Deaf Smith County, based upon the disability rate reported for its sectional area, figures out to 182,000 days for the year. Despite the time lost because of the illness and injury, the general health of Americans is better than ever, according to the National Center for Health Statistics. It points to the lower death rate and the greater life expectancy now prevailing

The payments and idled acreages. called a "set aside" program by then Agriculture Department, were abolished entirely in the next four years, including the 1977 harvest.

By late August, according to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, new acreage curbs probably without the land-idling payments, however- will be announced

"I see no chance of avoiding a wheat set-aside." Bergland told reporters after last week's department's estimate of 1977 wheat production "I don't think there's any likelihood we can move that much wheat into the market."

Last year and again this season, drought appeared to be cutting deeply into wheat prospects. The worst wind erosion in 20 years swept vast areas of the Great Plains from Texas to the Dakotas. But wheat is incredibly tough. Wheat can sometimes survive when it appears that jackrabbits might starve looking for something to eat in the fields of Kansas during the cold weeks of January.

In the last two springs, wheat planted the fall before came to life with the return of adequate rains in most areas. Instead of a drought disaster, most farmers had good yields. Another point: Wheat is grown in practically every state. So huge in American farm geography that it can absorb pockets of severe loss and still produce bountiful harvests

On a global basis, good crops in some, of the major producing countries the last#~ two years have helped ease, the food crunch of the early 1970s

The Soviet Union, for example, is expected to produce a record grain harvest this year a 225 million metric tons, including the second bumper wheat crop in a row. So the Soviets are unlikely to need huge supplies of foreign grain as they did in 1972 and again after their short 1975 harvest. Moreover, some of the most chronically affected deficit countries such as India and Bangladesh have produced larger harvests and for the time being, are much less reliant on $\ By\ DPS\ During\ June$ American foreign aid.

Before Bergland is the decision on what to do about the domestic wheat situation. Congress is now in the midst of a policy debate on farm legislation that will affect government price support levels and controls for the next few years.

The price drop for wheat has helped depress farm income prospects this year. For example, the 1976 wheat crop was worth about $6.2 billion, down from $7.6 billion in 1975. Because the two harvests were almost the same size, the decline was due to lower market prices.

The 1977 crop, estimated now at 2.04 billion bushels, is expected to be worth an average over the season of around $2.25 or so a bushel- roughly the floor prices provided by federal price support loans to

Thus, using those figures, the entire Little Hope Offered In Heat Wave 1977 wheat crop might be valued at about $4.6 billion, a "loss" to farmers of around $1.6 billion when compared with last year's wheat harvest when prices

Sorry record on noise

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — One afternoon a week or so ago, a government secretary sat in her office typing letters, answering the phones and chatting with a visitor. In the space of an hour, three trains rolled past her window, drowning all conversation

Doesn't that racket drive you crazy?" her visitor asked. "Not really," the secretary replied. "I don't even hear it

Her response, while perfectly typical for someone regularly subjected to intense but intermittent noise, was slightly ironic. The secretary works for a House subcommittee which has just concluded that the government's program to combat noise pollution is essentially a flop.

It has been five years since Congress enacted the Noise Control Act of 1972, and the country is as noisy as ever. Trains, buses, trucks, airplanes, construction equipment, kitchen gadgets, electric tools, lawn mowers and other types of machinery assault our ears and fray our nerves.

An estimated 16 million Americans suffer from some degree of hearing loss directly attributable to noise. Another 13 million live in urban areas where the average noise level is intense enough to be rated as harmful to their health, according to government reports, and nearly half of our entire population — an estimated 100 million people — is subjected to average noise levels the government defines as annoying. Most of us, like the congressional secretary, tend to adopt a "grin and bear it" attitude to noise, accepting it as an irritating but necessary price of modern technology.

But Congress decided five years ago that the cacophony could and should be reduced, and it gave the Environmental Protection Agency primary responsibility for doing so.

The agency's response has been less than dazzling, according to both a recent report by the General Accounting Office, the watchdog arm of Congress, and testimony at a hearing by a House Commerce subcommittee chaired by Rep. Fred B.

In five years, EPA has identified only 11 products as major noise sources and has issued final regulations for just two: newly manufactured portable air compressors and medium-and heavy-duty trucks. The agency has also issued regulations for interstate motor carriers and for interstate railroads, but the latter will have little immediate impact since it applies only to new locomotives - not existing ones. Airplane noise, an intense irritant to millions of people who live near airports, continues virtually unabated while EPA and the Federal Aviation Administration battle over jurisdictional questions. And along with all this, the federal government's spending for noise research has actually decreased over the past five

Not surprisingly, the government's sorry track record on muffling the noise in our technological society has angered Rooney and members of his subcommittee, who are reviewing the program's funding authorization.

Ordinarily, a few stinging press releases would be the only result of such congressional ire. But Rooney has seized upon result of such congressional ire. But Rooney has seized upon a considerably more effective means of spurring EPA to greater efforts: He plans to withhold any additional funding for the noise control program until the agency shapes up. If he can persuade the rest of Congress to go along, he will in effect put EPA on "probation" for a year, at its existing funding level, while closely monitoring the agency's noise pollution control program.

If a few more congressional committees would be equally hard-nosed in reviewing the effectiveness of programs Congress has enacted over the years, who knows what might result? We might even get a government that works.

The case for tax incentives

Every time a major tax reform bill is before Congress, mail from the folks back home runs heavy. Last year, during the months preceding passage of the Tax Reform Act of 1976, correspondence was said to be two-to-one in favor of closing those notorious and much-misunderstood, "loopholes" known

Depending on how you look at them, tax shelters are either a method used by the wealthy to evade payment of taxes or they are a legitimate way to encourage private individuals to put their money into activities that would otherwise have to be financed by public funds.

Tax-free municipal bonds are a classic economic mechanism used to induce the private sector in invest in projects vital to the public's welfare. "Every time we vote for a water and sewer bond issue, we are voting for the use of a tax incentive to attract the funds needed to refurbish our water systems from private individuals," points out John J.

Loughlin, vice president of an investment firm. The broad issue, says the Merrill Lynch executive, is the question of private versus government funding of public projects. And it is one touching on any number of challenges facing the nation — improvement and construction of mass transit systems, housing for the elderly and people of low income, conservation and protection of the environment and, not least, the development of new energy sources.

Sinking an oil well, for example, is a very expensive and risky proposition. It is a good question where the venture capital would come from if the government did not provide generous tax incentives to investors. President Carter's energy program also lays heavy emphasis on switching to coal. But to gear up for a realistic effort aimed at greater reliance on coal will cost billions of dollars in up-front capital investments.

Here again, tax incentives can do the job, says Loughlin.
Of course, the government could also do it. Congress could create a Capital Investment Agency and direct the employment of all risk capital needed for such programs and pay for them through taxes - or worse, through inflation-fueling budget deficits.

Something like this has happened in Great Britain where, as a report published by the Joint Economic Committee of Congress notes, "the government has taken upon itself the role of entrepeneurship. The underlying failure of British policy . . . has been that the government has tried to supplement, rather than complement, the private market."

RPO cancelled

Railroad buffs can mark down the end of another era. The last remaining Railway Post Office (RPO) will make its final run between New York and Washington, D.C., on June 30. The New York-Washington RPO, involving two four-car trains on which mail is sorted, has been the Post Service's solitary Railway Post Office since 1972. It began operating on October 15, 1864, five months after the RPO system was inaugurated between Chicago and Clinton Jowe inaugurated between Chicago and Clinton, Iowa.

At one time, shortly after World War II, there were 1,500

RPOs crisscrossing the country, with 30,000 men working in more than 4,000 individual RPO cars.

The decline of the RPOs began in the late 1930s, but was delayed when railroad traffic increased during the war. The really sharp decline began in the 1950s, when the railroads began discontinuing passenger service.

Mail will continue to be transported between Washington and New York by rail, as well as by truck and plane, but all sorting and processing will take place in originating and destination post offices.

Early Surge Carries NL to All-Star Victory

BY BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)- "What took you so long?" Jim Palmer sighed... and Billy Martin could do nothing more than give Baltimore's ace pitcher a shrug and the hook.

Palmer wasn't out there all that long Tuesday night, but it must have seemed more like a sentence than an honor. It didn't take the National League more than a few flicks of the wrist to turn him and the rest of the American League into losers once again with a 7-5 All-Star game triumph.

According to the box score. Palmer lasted two full innings of the carnage at Yankee Stadium that gave the Nationals their sixth straight victory and 14th in the last 15 of these midseason classics. But officially he made it into the third inning before Martin, the manager of the New York Yankees and the American League stars, trudged to the mound and mercifully removed

That was only moments after Steve Garvey of Los Angeles unloaded a mammoth home run into the American League bullpen in left-center field to give the Nationals a 5-0 lead... which was two innings after Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski bashed a two-run homer to right field to make it 4-0 in the first frame.... which was a minute or two after Dave Parker of Pittsburgh and George Foster of Cincinnati doubled for the inning's second run... which was two batters after leadoff batter Joe Morgan of Cincinnati started it all with a towering homer into the right field seats.

Needless to say, the rest of the game was almost anticlimactic. Oh, the Americans did make some noises. Richie Zisk of the Chicago White Sox and a National Leaguer until this Year of the Free Agent doubled home two runs off Cincinnati's Tom Seaver in the sixth inning, Willie Randolph of the Yanks singled for another run off him in the seventh and George Scott hit a two-run homer in the ninth.

That first-inning outburst, Parker's homer in the third and what turned out to be a gamewinning two-run single by San Diego's Dave Winfield off Yankee reliever Sparky Lyle made Don Sutton of Los Angeles a winner of the game and of the game's Most Valuable Player Award. "Making the All-Star team is a thrill, to put it simply," the Dodgers' ace right-hander said after silencing the AL bats on just one hit and striking out four batters in his three- inning starting stint. "It's something you can't control, being named a member of the All-Star team. I was overjoyed when it happe-

"Then, when Sparky Anderson, the manager of the world champion Reds and the National League stars sent word along that I would be the starter- and in Yankee Stadium- I almost didn't believe it." For his part, Palmer was the master of the understatement. "I guess you can say I didn't pitch very well," he observed after the five-run raking, the first time he'd been scored upon following eight shutout innings of three-hit All-Star hurling. Morgan, who started it all with his homer about a halfdozen rows in the right-field seats, seemed to be saying it wouldn't have mattered if Cy Young himself had been out there pitching for the Americpunched his homer a little appearance, Seaver let loose deeper into those stands beyond Reggie Jackson's reach, said Palmer's inability to get the curve ball working was the deciding factor.

Seaver, making his first appearance in New York since being traded to Cincinnati by the New York Mets barely a month ago, received a tumultuous ovation when he was introduced, a thunderous greeting far exceeding even those for two of New York's other superheroes, Willie Mays and Joe DiMaggio.

When someone wondered if he was disappointed in the way second one darn near killed

Both he and Luzinski, who he pitched in his big comeback with one of his familiar cackles and said: "What was wrong with the way I pitched? Nobody got hurt, did they?"

> No...although Seaver himself nearly became a casualty during his two-inning, four-hit, threerun appearance.

After Minnesota's Rod Carew buzzed a pitcher's hip for a leadoff single in the sixth, Randolph sent another screamer back to the mound. Seaver managed to knock this down with his glove and wrist. "I couldn't get the first one and the

NL Mastery No Mystery To Joe

BY KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)- The National League's mastery of the American in All-Star competition is no mystery to Joe

"We've got the better players," said the second baseman of the Cincinnati Reds. "It's that simple."

Morgan made his point perfectly clear Tuesday night by starting out the 48th All-Star game with a home run off Jim Palmer. The bombarding continued and didn't let up until the Nationals had a 7-5 victory, their sixth straight and 14th in the last 15 games.

"The score wasn't that indicative of the closeness of the game," said Morgan. "I mean, one would think that a 7-5 game was close but, they never really were in the game. An error, a few hits here and there and they finally ended up 7-5. But they were playing catch-up and whole game and never really caught up." Reflecting a view held by many of the National Leaguers, Morgan underscored the older league's top-to-bottom superiority.

'Our lineup is just awesome," said Morgan. "After me, I look up and down the lineup and say, 'There's just no way the American League can beat us."

A quick start helped the National Leaguers Tuesday night. Traditionally, it has been that way as far back as Morgan can remember. Along with Morgan, Greg Luzinski and Steve Garvey were mostly responsible for a 5-0 National League lead after three innings. Luzinski, the Philadelphia Phillies, bull- shouldered outfielder, capped four-run first inning with a two-run homer and Garvey of Los Angeles hit a solo homer in the third. Both came off Palmer, considered by many to be the American League's best pitcher.

When the Baltimore ace dd did manage to locate his pitches where he wanted them, Luzinski and Garvey launched them over the fences.

Luzinski's homer was an electric shock to the American League- oriented crowd of 56,683, but an electric charge to the Philadelphia outfielder. It was his first at Yankee Stadium, a historic park he reveres.

"To be in Yankee Stadium, with all you hear about it, is like being in a World Series for me," said Luzinski. "It was a big thrill to be able to hit a home run in my first time at bat in this stadium."

Later, Garvey hit a ferocious shot that left the park in a hurry at the 430- foot mark. The Dodger first baseman had expressed an uncomfortable feeling about hitting against American League pitching because of unfamiliarity, but quickly got acquainted with a

"Thirty-eight is just a number," he shrugged after going nine innings and scattering eight hits for a 6-5 victory in his Tuesday night debut.

Bouton created and starred in a television series based on his controversial bestseller about baseball "Ball Four." After the series was canceled following a brief run on CBS last fall, Bouton rejected an offer to return to WCBS as a sportscater.

The dawn-to-dark schedule of the television show left him drained. "I didn't see the sun for abut a year," he said.

Readying New Patrol Cars

Hereford Police Chief Don Brush, right, and Jay Spain, fire marshall, place a decal on one of the five new solid white police patrol cars Tuesday afternoon. The new cars probably will be on Hereford streets within a week, replacing five of the colored vehicles now used by the Hereford Police Department. The new cars first must be equipped with the decals, radios, electric sirens and red lights. "It's quite a process to get everything changed over," Brush said. [Photo By Keith

KANSAS CITY (AP)-A spokesman for the American National Cattlemen's Association said Tuesday beef producers could compete better with foreign imports if laws already on the books were strengthened-and vigorously enforced.

Peter E. Marble, Deeth, Nev., testified at a hearing before the U.S. International Trade Commission in his capacity as chairman of the foreign trade committee of the cattlemen's association.

Marble advocated that all fresh, chilled and frozen meats as well as canned, cooked and cured meats should be regulatimport quotas. At present, only unprocessed, fresh, frozen and chilled meats are covered. Marble also advocated that the import quota formula should be revised so that in times of high domestic production of beef, imports would be reduced. Now, when domestic production goes up, so do import quotas.

Marble made the point that this further decreases domestic prices when U.S. cattlemen are trying to cut down on their herds to offset overproduction.

"There have been problems of circumvention which need legislative correction," Marble said. "Producers should be established to assure more orderly live cattle trade between the United States and Canada and the United States and Mexico. These problems are particularly great for cattlemen near the borders."

Such problems were alluded to by Nancy Espy, secretary of the Meat Promoters of Monta-

She said that tons of meat are being bought in stores in nearby Mexico and brought back across the border by Americans from Texas to California.

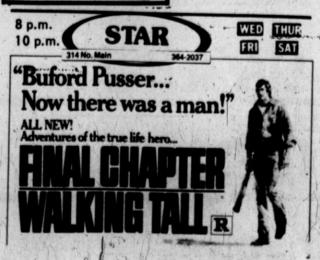

She cited an estimate that up to half-million pounds a day had moved across the border at El Paso. She expressed a suspicion that the four to five packing plants in Mexico which are licensed to import beef into the United States could not have produced that quantity of beef.

She also questioned the efficiency of the beef inspection in this system, both that country's own inspection system and the American inspection of imported meats.

Miss Billy Hart, Kingman, Ariz., who became interested in the problem through leadership in 4-H Club beef projects, concentrated on what she called the "fifth quarter" of a beef animal.

This quarter represents the by-products realized in beef slaughter and she contended that the quality of the byproducts from foreign cattle is much inferior and the import of slaughtered beef puts the U.S. manufacturer at a disadvantage in providing the byproducts.

She cited the fact that the insulin which is so vital to diabetics comes from the pancreas glands of cattle and hogs. She said laboratory

Tavern Turns Museum Leaving Town No Spot

SAINT JO, Tex. (AP)- The cowhands who pushed long-horns up the Chisholm Trail through this North Texas town would have a difficult time understanding all the fuss created by plans to open a

The old Stonewall Tavern. which became an oasis of sorts to the rough riding cowhands of a century ago, is now a museum. And the residents of Montague County voted the county dry in 1897. Fortunately for the cowhands, this vote came after they no longer stopped here to get some of the trail dust of their throat at the Stonewall.

James Parmer has asked the Texas Alcoholic Beverages Commission for a private club permit for the Country Kitchen and Club, located on the town square on U.S. 82, a stone's throw from the old Stonewall.

Parmer's application has split this Red River town into two camps- those who want the license granted and those who oppose it. A hearing officer for the TABC will be making a decision on the matter in a few

There are reports that some families are divided on the issue.

Among those who oppose the establishment of the private club is Mayor J.C. O'Donnell said he is "personally opposed to it."

"I signed an affidavit that the majority of the people that had called me about it was opposed to it," the mayor said. He said much of the opposition is coming from church groups. Things should be "left as they are," one resident said. "If a person wants a drink he can drive nine miles to Muenster in Cooke County."

But one area lawman pointed out that the county is "a long ways from dry." He noted there are private clubs at tiny Spanish Fort, at Nocona, Bowie and another will soon open at Montague.

It would have been hard to explain to a grizzled old cowhand with a throat full of trail dust that he would have to buy a private club card to get a drink in Saint Jo. No more can one just belly up to the bar, throw a coin on the bar and order a snort of "red eye." Time changes everything even in the old cattle trail towns.

Dry Conditions Plague Ranchers

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)-Dry weather has taken its toll of vegetables-especially in normally wet East Texas-and has forced ranchers to provide extra feed for livestock in drier areas. the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Tuesday.

Temperatures were 1 to 4 degrees above normal in northern areas, the upper Gulf Coast and southwest Texas for the week ending Monday, the service said, and "rainfall was light to none over the western two-thirds of the state."

"High temperatures and winds lowered topsoil moisture supplies over much of the state," the service said.

In East Texas, the service reported, vegetable, "production has stopped in some areas except where producers can supply supplemental moisture. Dryland sweet potatoes are burning badly.

"Harvest of melons, squash yields and quality have been hurt by the dry weather."

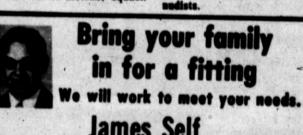

Dry weather is hurting vegetable production in North and Central Texas, with pecan trees also shedding in East and Central Texas.

"Pastures," the service said. "are furnishing generally adequate grazing; however, the recent hot and dry weather has caused grasses to dry and has created a fire hazard in many areas. Ranchers are feeding hay and protien supplements in the drier areas. "Livestock remain in fair to good condition although weight losses are reported in areas that are extremely dry."

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)-As usual, the American League had the wrong game plan.
"We though that if we held them close early we'd have a good chance to win." said Boston's Carlton Fisk, the AL's starting catcher in Tuesday night's All-Star Game.

Either Fisk was calling for the wrong pitches or starting itcher Jim Palmer of Baltimore was throwing the wrong ones. Cincinnati's Joe Morgan, the game's first hitter, lofted Palmer's sixth pitch into Yankee Stadium's right-field seats.

After Steve Garvey of Los Angeles struck out, Pittsburgh's Dave Parker singled, Cincinnati's George Foster doubled him home and Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski hit a two-run homer.

Before they ever came to bat, the American Leaguers were behind 4-0.

"It was a little depressing." said Boston outfielder Fred Lynn, "but we had a lot of good players. We knew we could come back and score some

Not enough, however.

Garvey made up for his first inning strikeout with a booming home run to lead off the third that keyoed Palmer. The AL didn't get started until a Richie Zisk in the sixth. Willie Randolph of New York singled a run across in the seventh but San Diego's Dave Winfield delivered a two-run single in the NL eighth that proved decisive when Boston's George Scott slammed a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth.

The 7-5 triumph was the National League's sixth in a row and 14th in the last 15 All-Star Games for a 29-18-1 lead in the series. And they never really gave the American League a chance to get started.

"It was quick, wasn't it?"
Boston outfielder Carl Yastrzemski said of the NL's fast getaway.

"You'd like to be able to manage, to do something," said AL pilot Billy Martin of the New York Yankees, "but after that two-run double by Chicago's first inning I didn't have the opportunity. When you're down 5-0 and their first baseman plays well off the bag with a fast runner on base, does that tell you something?

"Palmer was throwing well but Jeff (batting practice catcher Jeff Torborg) said he didn't have a good slider. We thought he was going to be all right, but he hung two sliders for home runs in the first

"Obviously you don't like to get your club off to a bad start," said Palmer, a three-time Cy Young Award winner who had not allowed a run in eight previous innings of All-Star competition. "I wish I would have kept it closer. I pitched badly. Give credit to them, because I didn't make very many good pitches.

"I can't blame the mound. The homers by Morgan and Luzinski were on high sliders. They were just bad pitches. It wasn't the normal Jim Palmer.

No, but it was the normal outcome for the frustrated American League.

Fem Pros Aim at Open Title

CHASKA, Minn. (AP)- Several of the Ladies Professional Golf Association top performers have been unable to win the U.S. Women's Open title and they'd collectively like to cut that number by one this year.

"It's the only major tournament I haven't won and maybe that's the problem." says dl-time LPGA money winner Kathy Whitworth. "I try to be philosphical about it, but let's be honest- I'd only be kidding myself if I said I didn't care."

Nye St Wants Trade

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) Remeber when Dallas Cowboys veteran All-Pro offensive guard Blaine Nye asked to be traded last January?

Nye, who is due to report to training camp here Friday. hopes the Cowboys haven't forgotten-exactly nothing in the situation has changed since

"I haven't heard from anyone so obviously I haven't been traded." Nye said Tuesday. The only thing about my situation is that instead of six months, it's now three days until I'm supposed to report." Head Coach Tom Landry, who does not exactly approach the The Dodgers will announce subject with unbridled enthusiasm, pointed out, "It's very some time prior to Thursday e's optimistic with rookies

"The coaches are thinking this guy is this-and-this but when it comes down to who's going to win for you this season, those players don't look the same. Then, it's easier to

Nye, a nine-year veteran from Standord, makes his home in California. He has told the Cowboys he wants a swap with a California club, preferably San Francisco.

Nye's selective thinking makes it more difficult to trade him, said Landry.

"If we went for a trade, we'd have to get a first line player," Landry said. "You can't give up an All-Pro guy for a second-stringer. If you can't do that, you have to go with draft choices.

"That's the last thing we what it takes to satisfy the situation, then I'm sure we'd do it. If it was attractive enough."

The Cowboys don't have to trade Nye. But the danger comes if he elects to retire. leaving the club with nothing. It's a gamble, but one the Cowboys, at least for the moment, appear willing to take.

'As for Blaine, I'd like to see him play," said Landry. "and I'd like to see him play for us."

LOS ANGELES (AP)- World Boxing Association welterweight champion Jose Pipino Cuevas will defend his title Aug. 6 against British Commonwealth champion Clyde Gray of Canada, the champion announced Tuesday.
