Directors Announce Thompson As Head Of Credit Union

Robert L. Thompson was re-elected president of Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union when directors met Tuesday for election of officers.

Thompson has served as president of the credit union since the late 1940's. Directors elected Joe Kerr as vice president, and re-elected Charles Hoover as secretary-treasurer. Kerr succeeds Major Schroeter, longtime officer who resigned at the recent annual meeting.

During the meeting, Thompson said directors expressed appreciation for the many years of service by Schroeter. "We will miss Major," stated Thompson. "He was a wheelhorse on this board...a man of good judgment, and a man who has many friends."

Bud Snyder was installed as a new director on the board and Ed Coplen begins his first elective term. Coplen had been appointed to fill the unexpired term of the late O.L. Bybee.

DSC Stays No. 1 in Fed Cattle

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Deaf Smith County continues to lead the state in cattle feeding and feedyard capacity, according to the 1979 Fed Cattle Survey released today by the Agriculture Development Department of Southwestern Public Service Company.

Deaf Smith County remained the No. 1 cattle feeding region in Texas in a banner year by a margin of over 96,000 head over its closest competitor.

"Overall, 4,974,530 fat cattle were produced in 1978 in the area served by SPS. This is an increase of 600,680 head, or 13.7 percent over the previous year, and is the largest number ever produced in a 12 month period," stated Sam Thomas, manager of agriculture development for SPS in Amarillo.

As has become a tradition in recent years, the "Magic Triangle" counties of Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro retained their positions at the pinnacle of the state's cattle feeding industry, with Parmer County ranking second in the state and Castro County ranking third.

The high ranking of the local cattle feeding industry came despite an overall reduction in the 1978 feedlot capacity, representing the consolidation of feedlots and conversion to growing operations, Thomas pointed out.

According to the SPS survey, a total of 665,300 head of cattle were fed in Deaf Smith County yards during 1978, an increase of only about 500 head over the 1977 feeding figure.

Feeding for 1977 had increased by 151,989 head, in keeping with the third

Leaders Seek Help From U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) - With the ink barely dry on a new Middle East peace treaty, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin are appealing to Congress for loans and grants to bolster the fragile peace.

In separate meetings with senators and congressmen, the two leaders warned Tuesday of outside threats to their region in a pitch for military aid.

They also discussed the difficult issue of what to do with the Palestinians.

After their talks, House Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas predicted Congress would approve the administration's proposed $4.5 billion package of loans and grants to the two countries.

But Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee said he had made no decision on whether to support the program.

Begin was scheduled today to join Vice President Walter F. Mondale at a luncheon of the Israel U.S. Business Council in New York.

Meanwhile, Defense Secretary Harold Brown released the texts of letters of agreement with the two countries concerning aid over the next three years.

The letters confirmed reports that Israel is to receive $3 billion and Egypt half that sum.

Brown said Americans will actually be providing only $800 million. The WASHINGTON (AP) - The 9 percent oil price increase voted by oil exporting countries is placing an added burden on President Carter and the energy advisers he has told to rework oil pricing and conservation proposals.

Deputy White House press secretary Rex Granum said the increase approved Tuesday by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries "adds to the compelling reasons for making" decisions about the nation's efforts to stem its energy appetite.

The increase, which takes effect Sunday, is expected to drive up gasoline prices in the United States by two cents a gallon - perhaps three cents if enough countries tack on a surcharge to the base price set by OPEC.

The average retail price of a gallon of regular leaded gasoline at a full-service filling station jumped 3.68 cents this month to 73.25 cents.

The oil cartel's decision in Geneva raises the base price of Arabian light crude oil, the industry benchmark, from $13.34 to $14.54 per barrel.

Carter must decide by May 31 whether to continue controlling the price of domestically-produced crude oil, impose partial controls or allow all controls to expire.

The average price of domestic crude is now about $9 a barrel.

According to Energy Department figures, decontrol could result in gasoline price increases of about 5 cents a gallon.

However, that would be only one-half cent above a revised projection estimating that gasoline will go up an average of 4.5 cents a gallon as a result of new pricing regulations already approved.

The new regulation - the so-called "tilt" rule - was upheld Monday by a federal district judge in Washington. The rule allows refiners to get gasoline prices more in line with actual production costs rather than forcing the refiners to spread gasoline production costs among less costly products, such as heating oil.

Both White House press secretary Jody Powell and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, a key member of the Senate leadership on energy issues, are predicting the president's proposals, to be revealed in a "week or so," may face a warmer reception than that given his first energy program 23 months ago.

In other energy developments Tuesday in Washington:

Prosecution To Retire In Retrial of Williams

CANYON-The state planned to call an Amarillo pathologist as its only witness today after bombarding a 251st District Court jury with a host of witnesses Tuesday in the murder trial of Richard Williams of Hereford.

Williams is on trial for the murder of Larry Glover of Milo Center, who died Oct. 12, 1977 in Amarillo after he was beaten in his front yard the night before his death. A mistrial was declared last November, and the retrial was moved here on a change of venue.

Dr. Jose Diaz-Esquivel, an Amarillo pathologist who performed an autopsy on Glover's body, was scheduled to testify this morning.

Deaf Smith County Criminal District Atty. Roland Saul called nine witnesses, including the deceased man's wife, Corda

Woman Joins Trustee Race

Elida B. Alonzo, 34, of 210 Ave. I, filed Tuesday for the April 28 Hereford Independent School District trustee election.

The election will be the second of two for the school district. A federal three-judge panel on March 14 in Dallas ordered the district to schedule the second election since the four board members whose terms do not expire this year were elected under an illegal voting procedure, the place system.

The first election, which the judges did not change or invalidate, is scheduled for April 7. Americo Gamez and incumbents David Hutchins and Sallie Strain are running for two three-year positions to be open on the school board.

Paul Ramirez is running unopposed in that election for an unexpired one-year term.

James Gentry, Clark Andrews, Mack Tubb and Jim Arney will have to seek re-election to remain on the board, according to the judges' panel. All four have filed for the April 28 election.

Mrs. Alonzo, who could not be reached for comment, is the only other candidate to announce for the election. Today is the filing deadline for the April 28 election.

Beef To Remain America's Favorite Meat

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite record prices at supermarkets and prospects that cattle herds will not be fully rebuilt for some years, beef will continue to be the favorite meat of Americans at least for the next half century, say new government projections.

If the country's population grows as indicated and family incomes continue to rise, Americans by the year 2030 will be eating more beef than ever, says the Agriculture Department.

By then, average per capita beef consumption - allowing for a "medium" gain in the population - will increase about one-third from what it is now.

The projection was included Tuesday in a preliminary report by the department's Forest Service on the future management of timber and grazing land.

It said per capita beef consumption may average 159 pounds by the year 2030. Last year, beef consumption averaged about 120 pounds per person.

largest production in the history of the area's cattle feeding industry, and a sign of the beginning of a recovery by the local feedyards.

The SPS survey conducted since 1963 and quoted throughout the U.S. as the most authoritative source as to the production of fat cattle in the Southern Great Plains area, also noted increases in the fed cattle output of No. 2 Parmer County and No. 3 Castro County.

Parmer County fed cattle production for 1978 was up 142,155 head over the 1977 figure, while Castro County fed cattle numbers climbed 66,431 head over the 1977 figure.

Parmer County's 1978 output was set at 478,700 head, while Castro County produced 394,651 head of fat cattle.

The SPS survey on cattle feeding covers some 45,000 square miles served by the electric company, including 30 counties on the north and south plains of Texas, four in eastern New Mexico, three in the Oklahoma Panhandle and one in southwestern Kansas.

"During the 1978 period, the feedlot capacity came to 2,728,400 head, reflecting a reduction of about 6,000 head over 1977," stated Thomas.

"The total impact of the feedyard industry on the business community exceeded $8 billion for the second year, and farm sale value exceeded $2 billion. Profits on feedlots and fed cattle have ranged from a low of $3.33 per head to as high as $137 during the last 120 days," Thomas continued, citing the improvement in the fed cattle market in recent more, about 165 pounds.

But if the population grows rapidly, to about 392.8 million by the year 2030, per capita consumption might be only 142 pounds, about what it would be at the turn of the next century, the report said.

Beef production by meat packing companies declined last year and is expected to drop further in 1979. It will take several years of herd-rebuilding by cattle producers before total output regains its earlier volume.

Inventions, Some Fuelish, Invade Companies

By JOHN M. DOYLE
Associated Press Writer

While U.S. leaders worry about the rise of Mideast oil prices - and drivers worry about the subsequent jump in gasoline prices - backyard inventors by the thousands are tinkering with ideas to give America's roaming masses more miles for their money.

The work is being done in basements, garages and sheds by such everyday Americans as a pizza parlor worker in Kokomo, Ind., a farmer in Minnesota and an auto mechanic in Indianapolis.

The hope of anyone able to sell his invention to a skeptical auto industry is sudden riches and fame.

Some of the nascent Edisons' claims of fuel savings have been disputed and their work is hard to verify because they are secretive about their inventions, fearing their ideas will be stolen.

But each year the nation's automakers get thousands of unsolicited inventions. Ford Motor Co., the country's second-largest automaker, gets 3,000 to 4,000 inventions or ideas a year, and Ford spokesman Robert Harnar said the number has roughly doubled in recent years.

So far, Harnar said, Ford hasn't bought any substantial idea from a layman, but that hasn't stopped R.N. Linger of Indianapolis.

Linger is manufacturing and selling his patented "Pelco Fuel Saver" himself. Linger says the device heats gasoline vapors inside a car's engine for more even distribution and fuel economy.

After three years of testing, he claims the device gives up to 35 percent better mileage and up to 65 percent less pollutant emission. Sales of the device have been primarily to companies with fleets of cars, but it is available to individuals for about $75, not including installation. Linger says test results from the companies using his fuel saver are not yet available.

Other inventors have met with less success.

Federal agents seized the still that Lance Crombie used on his Webster, Minn., farm for fermenting corn to make alcohol for fuel.

Crombie then obtained an experimental permit to operate the still legally. But the publicity from his run-in with the law stirred the public's interest, and Crombie said he now gets hundreds of telephone calls asking how to make the alcohol fuel.

Ford Motor Co. said the trouble with most inventions is they already have been tried.

In fact, Danny Jewell of Kokomo, Ind., a 25-year-old pizza parlor worker and part-time mechanic, said all his ideas came from the public library. The result: a thermal-powered engine attachment that runs all automobile accessories, freeing the crank shaft of those gasoline-guzzling chores and, says Jewell, increasing mileage 15-30 miles per gallon.

When both auto engineers and government officials - including the White House - ignored his telephone calls and letters, Jewell picketed the county courthouse for a week to attract investors.

Part of the reason for his recognition problems, Jewell admitted, is because he refused to give a detailed description of the 10-inch-long cylindrical device for fear someone will steal the idea. He has applied for a patent, he said.

"I tried to approach the auto companies, but unless you tell them everything and let them make decisions on it, they won't talk to you," he said.

Robert LaForce of Providence, R.I., took his invention to the public, too, demonstrating a new engine type in front of the Rhode Island statehouse - which did him little good.

LaForce said his engine provides a 15 percent boost in power and is far more energy efficient than the conventional engine.

He said he's waiting to patent the engine before releasing details, but noted that it idles around 200 revolutions per minute - compared with the 1,000 rpm normal for most car engines.

Delbert Overton's invention is a two-carburetor system designed to run the common automobile engine on gasoline and an alternative fuel. Splitting the gasoline's chores with another fuel uses less gas, he says.

Rather than a mixture of gasoline and methanol known as "gasohol," Overton's dual system uses both substances separately, keeping them apart in two carburetors. When the car's engine is running idle or at a steady speed the amount of methanol intake into the engine is increased.

Overton, who works in an Indianapolis auto plant, said his system also would create a large industry for production and distribution of methanol and would clean the environment because methanol burns with fewer emissions than gasoline.

He says an independent laboratory in Detroit tested his invention and concluded the system was feasible with lower exhaust emissions and even lower fuel consumption than claimed by the inventor at speeds below 55 mph.

Nevertheless, Overton said he got a Catch-22 reaction: The automakers said "no" because no effort was being made for large-scale production of methanol; oil companies said they wouldn't produce the fuel because Detroit wasn't planning to build cars that use it.

Ex-Cons Can Vote If Bill Approved

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Ex-convicts who have served their full sentences, including parole, could automatically regain the right to vote under a bill tentatively approved by the House.

The bill, by Rep. Clay Smothers, D-Dallas, advanced 83-50 on Tuesday. A final vote, which would send the measure to the Senate, was expected today.

Under existing law, an ex-convict can regain the right to vote only by obtaining either a pardon or a district court order restoring his or her citizenship.

"It is what I refer to as taxation without representation," Smothers said in Tuesday's debate. "Huntsville is turning out a new kind of prisoner, a prisoner who wants to take part when he gets out."

Smothers said ex-convicts state and local taxes. "But they can't vote after we've told them, 'Hey, you've paid your debt to society,'" he said.

Smothers urged the House to "do our part for those guys who are rehabilitated, those guys who have paid their debt to society."

He said a week he spent at Huntsville state prison "voluntarily" had "quite a bit to do with the introduction of this bill."

Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Huntsville, reminded Smothers he had opposed another "humane" proposal that would have allowed prisoners to have conjugal visits from their wives or husbands.

Bill Keeps Marriage As Defense of Rape

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Marriage would remain a defense to sexual assault under legislation approved by the Senate

Jurisprudence Committee that would rewrite the state's rape laws.

Sen. Gene Jones, D-Houston, introduced the bill to allow prosecution of rape within marriage. However, the proposal was changed in subcommittee to prevent charges being filed against someone who was "legally married to and cohabitating with the other person" at the time.

Gommittee members sent the bill to the full Senate Tuesday with little debate.

"This takes rape out of the law and substitutes 'assault,'" explained Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, chairman of the criminal matters subcommittee. "It does away with the provision that you can rape your wife or your wife can rape you."

Women or men could be convicted of assault on someone of either sex under the bill.

A person convicted of sexual assault could be sentenced to two to 20 years in prison and fined $10,000. However, aggravated sexual assault would be a first degree felony, punishable by prison sentence of five years to life.

Family Celebrates Quinlan Birthday

MORRIS PLAINS, N.J. (AP) - Karen Ann Quinlan will be 25 years old on Tuesday. To mark the occasion, a Mass will be celebrated at her bedside, where she lies in a coma.

"We have so much to be thankful for," says her mother, Julia Quinlan. "We never thought Karen would celebrate her 25th birthday. We didn't expect Karen to survive this long."

Devout Roman Catholics, the Quinlans have leaned heavily on their faith since the April day four years ago when their daughter slipped into a coma - the result of an overdose of alcohol and drugs at a friend's birthday party.

They believe that God is using her "for some purpose known only to him."

"She's really in God's hands now in every respect since there's nothing anybody can do," Miss Quinlan's father, Joseph, said in a recent interview at the family's home in Landing, N.J.

Karen Ann Quinlan will be remembered by her parents' fight to let her die by stopping use of extraordinary means to keep her alive.

On March 31, 1976, the New Jersey Supreme Court issued a landmark decision that gave Quinlan permission to order removal of his daughter's life-supporting respirator.

Arafat Proposal

Ignored by Leaders

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) - Arab leaders showed little enthusiasm for Yasser Arafat's call for an economic war against the United States because it sponsored the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Foreign ministers of 16 Arab countries, meeting to plan retaliatory action against Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israel, listened impassively Tuesday as the Palestine Liberation Organization's chief told them they should not sell oil to the United States or buy from it because President Carter "plotted this conspiracy."

"It is taken for granted that Sadat's regime will be punished, but don't just hit the tail of the snake, hit the head of the snake, the United States," said Arafat.

"I urge you to make an oil boycott against the United States. I urge you to make a trade boycott of the United States. I urge you to make a petrodollar boycott of the United States."

"We should stop buying big American cars and other products. If you move your petrodollars around, several huge American companies would collapse."

Correction

A spokesman for First National Fuel and Fertilizer expressed concern this week that statements made to The Brand Friday for an article on a diesel fuel shortage in the area were not used.

The article appeared on Sunday's front page of The Brand.

"We presently are experiencing no problems with diesel fuel," the spokesman said. "We have not been hurt by a diesel fuel shortage."

LEO D. MYERS

Services for Leo D. Myers, 40, of Englewood, Colo. will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow in St. Mary's Catholic Church in Amarillo. Monsignor Francis Smyer, pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in Memorial Garden Cemetery.

Mr. Myers, who died Sunday, was the son-in-law of a local resident, Mrs. Mabel Wagner, and the brother-in-law of Lester Wagner, also of Hereford. His widow is the former Doris Wagner, who was a longtime Hereford resident before her marriage.

Born in Osmond, Neb., Mr. Myers was an Amarillo police officer from 1959-1963. He owned a bakery from 1963-1972. He was a veteran of the US Navy and a Catholic.

He moved from Amarillo in 1972 to Englewood, Colo.

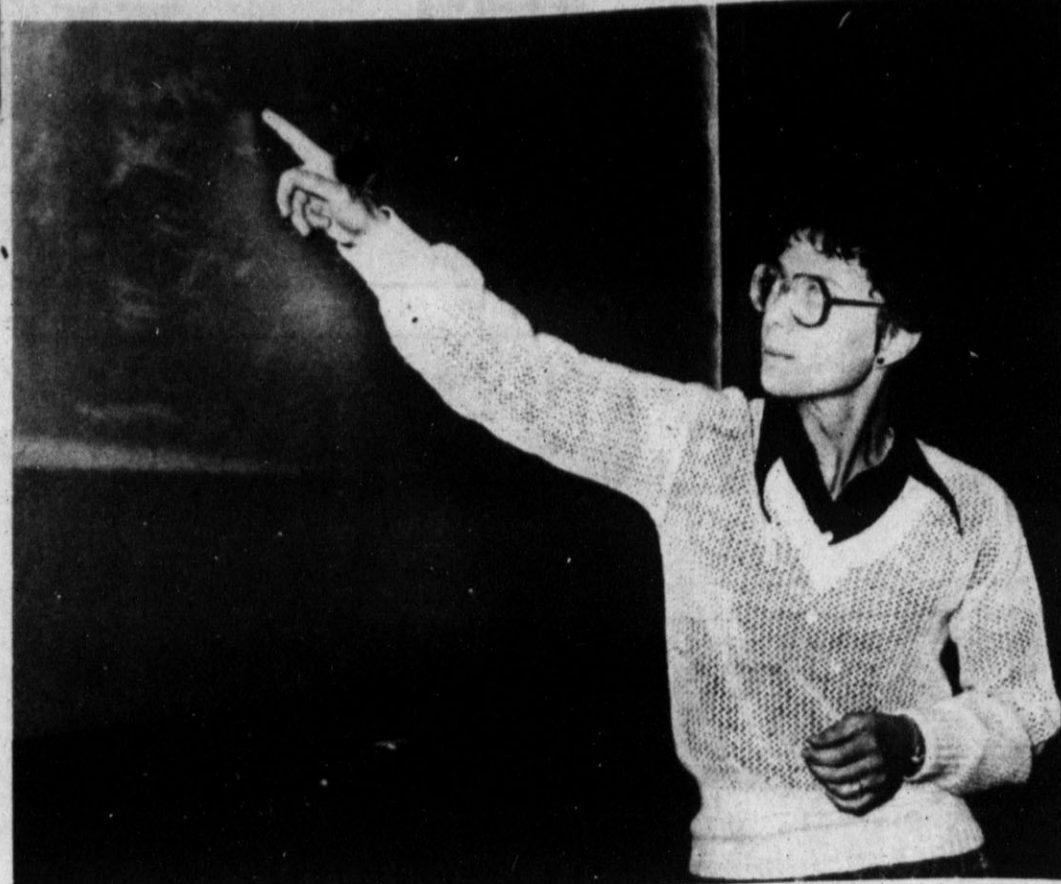

He is survived by the widow, two sons, a daughter, three brothers, his mother, a sister, three stepbrothers and two stepsisters.

IDA DAVIS

Ida Davis, 86, a longtime resident of Hereford, died last night in West Texas Care Center in Amarillo.

Services are pending with Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

Further details were not available at presstime.

Ultrasound Talk

Dr. Evangeline Archer, Amarillo radiologist, spoke to Hereford Rotarians Tuesday about the new ultrasound equipment purchased by the Deaf Smith County Hospital District for the local hospital. Dr. Archer said the equipment, which will arrive in Hereford in the next few months, will put Deaf Smith County ahead of Amarillo in the ultrasound department. Ultrasound utilizes sound waves to diagnose pregnancies and certain ailments. Pictures of structures, including fetuses, inside the body are taken by the equipment. Dr. Archer will perform readings for Deaf Smith General when the equipment arrives. (Brand photo by Paul Sims)

Random Stops Halted

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that police officers may not stop motorists' automobiles at random to check drivers' licenses and car registration.

The justices said random stops of motorists who are not suspected of breaking any law violate the Constitution's protection from unreasonable search and seizure.

The 8-1 decision struck down a Delaware law that had given individual police officers broad discretion in choosing cars for the routine checks. Many states allow similar police practices, which will now have to be changed.

"An individual operating or traveling in an automobile does not lose all expectation of privacy simply because the automobile and its use are subject to government regulation," Justice Byron R. White wrote for the majority.

White stressed, however, that the ruling does not bar Delaware and other states from "developing methods for spot checks that involve less intrusion or that do not involve unconstrained exercise of discretion."

White suggested that questioning all oncoming traffic at roadblock-type stops could be an alternative. Two other justices, in a concurring opinion, suggested that police could make "not purely random stops such as every 10th car to pass a given point."

The solo dissenter was the court's other leading conservative, Justice William H. Rehnquist.

Noting that the court is willing to allow police to stop groups of motorists but not a single car at random, Rehnquist said, "The court thus elevates the adage 'misery loves company' to a novel role in Fourth Amendment jurisprudence."

The Delaware police case stemmed from a 1976 stop which led to an arrest for marijuana possession.

The criminal defendant successfully barred police from introducing the seized marijuana as evidence at his trial when state courts ruled that the drug was seized during an unconstitutional detention.

In separate decisions Tuesday, the court also:

- Declined to decide, in what could have been a critically important race-relations case from Los Angeles, whether persons who sue under an 1866 civil rights law have to prove "discriminatory intent." That proof is necessary for bias suits based on the Constitution. By a 5-4 vote, the justices ruled that the case involving hiring practices by the Los Angeles County Fire Department is no longer a live controversy.

The court's action leaves intact a court-ordered racial quota system requiring the recruiting of one black and one Hispanic for every three whites recruited.

- Ruled unanimously that the government has no implied right of way on privately owned lands granted in the past to the nation's railroads. The test case from Wyoming affects property rights in 150 million acres of land in Western states.

Consumer Movement Fails To Control High Prices

NEW YORK (AP) - It has had some success, as in educating the amateur shopper to the clever techniques of the professional marketer, but the consumer movement has had its subject failures too. It has been unable to do much about prices, for example, although that prospect was a powerful thrust when the movement built steam a dozen or more years ago.

There were attempts to exert pressure. Homemakers boycotted grocery stores. They swore off red meat. They bought Brand X rather than name brands. They searched their neighborhoods for weekly specials.

None of these techniques persisted long, even though newly emerged experts, self-styled, belabored the obvious in books, programs and seminars, often at great profit to themselves but little to society.

Prices rose, and are rising. Educated to the ways of the marketplace, the consumer began to realize it was difficult to beat it, no matter what technique was used.

Boycott the grocer? Not when the consumer's new consciousness told him and her that the grocer was probably making less than one cent on a dollar of sales. Less than the delivery boy made.

Avoid red meat for oneself the discipline could be imposed, but not for the children. But the discipline usually broke down.

Brand X? Mothers found they could upgrade such brands through skillful kitchen work. But not those women out working to ease the financial burden; they couldn't spend the time.

Shopping the neighborhood specials? Sure, you still can save food money but it usually comes out of another budget category. Working women don't have the time. And gasoline is too expensive these days.

One positive thing can be said of the consumer movement: It has produced wiser shoppers. But there is a dispiriting consequence too: It is the knowledge of how difficult it is to cut costs.

Could it be this realization that has caused so many former budget cutters to become big spenders instead, adding pressure to prices instead of removing it as they once so idealistically sought to do?

Today's consumer is well named, being the devourer of mammoth amounts of goods and services. Price seems to be no obstacle, and neither does wallet. If the paycheck doesn't cover it, the credit card will.

So aggressive, so acquisitive have consumers become that they have made fools of economists. The economists said the buying couldn't continue; they said it a year ago. They're saying it again.

But the economists also are re-evaluating the American consumer.

Few have answers but many have notions. They speculate: Has the consumer become so despairing as to feel that it doesn't matter anymore because tomorrow might be worse?

Might it be that the consumer has been outmarketed again by, for example, the promoters of credit cards?

Or could the answer be that the consumer is really on top of it all, doing what he and she feels is the only way to preserve what they earn, by converting the paycheck into goods as fast as they can?

Trial

Glover, Tuesday. Others to testify included Cathy Close and Robert Baum, passengers in a car with Williams on the night of Oct. 11, 1977; sheriff's deputies Art Burton and Don Doherty who arrived at Glover's house shortly after the beating; and Rosemary Morgan, who was working at the Elk's Lodge in Hereford and saw Glover before he was supposed to have headed back home to Milo Center.

Ambulance driver Gary Phipps and Deaf Smith General Hospital nurse Gerry Hollinger also testified Tuesday, along with Chuck Stokesberry of Milo Center, a friend of the Glover family.

On Monday, Irajain Brinkman, driver of the car which followed Glover to his residence, and Ricky Barrick, another passenger, testified.

Ms. Brinkman and the car's passengers testified that Glover tried to run their car off the road on N. Highway 385 in Hereford before they followed him to his residence, east of Milo Center. Williams, who testified in his first trial last November, claimed that he and Glover fought over the incident.

Williams' attorney, Travis Shelton of Lubbock, has been ill and unable to attend the trial. Dennis McGill, a partner of Shelton, has cross-examined Saul's witnesses in the trial.

months. According to the SPS survey, the packing plant annual slaughter capacity in its service region also continues to exceed 5 million head.

"The only foreseeable limitation on the future of the region's fed cattle industry is the possibility and the probability that the customer's ability to buy may be exceeded, however, this is not in sight," Thomas commented.

Also included in the top five in the SPS feeding report for 1978 are Hansford County, fourth with 330,000 head and Moore County fifth, with 245,000 head.

Both counties retained the rankings in overall feeding they held for 1977.

Rounding out the top ten cattle feeding counties are Swisher County, sixth, 212,000 head; Hartley County, seventh, 191,500 head; Randall County, eighth, 189,000 head; Lamb County, ninth, 186,053 head; and Sherman County, tenth, 171,450 head.

Dallam, Gray, Hale and Lubbock counties all had fed cattle production in excess of 100,00 head, but failed to make the top ten.

In neighboring New Mexico, Curry County was the going-away leader in cattle feeding with a production of 122,500 head.

Texas County led Oklahoma production with 484,050 head.

According to Thomas, the SPS fed cattle survey "has made a major contribution to the development and growth of the industry and has been especially valuable in the vertical integration that has occurred in the SPS service area."

Copies of the fed cattle survey will be available at SPS offices in about 60 days, according to Thomas.

increase will "hurt every American" and "can only complicate our prospects of trying to bring inflation in our economy under control."

Jackson, a Washington Democrat, said the OPEC decision reflected "greed and a punitive doctrine." "Obviously it's going to be bad news for Western institutions," he said.

The Gallup Organization said 71 percent of the owners of family autos polled said they would reduce their driving if gasoline prices go to $1 a gallon and can be bought only on certain days.

In other developments: CBS News said Israel plans to take a series of quick actions aimed at building momentum and enticing moderate Palestinians to join the peace talks.

The report, quoting unidentified Egyptian sources, said the actions will include lifting a ban on political activity on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, releasing 23 so-called political prisoners and allowing a limited number of Palestinians to return to the West Bank and Gaza Strip in an effort to reunite tamies. The Washington Post said today that the United States and Israel have signed a "memorandum of understanding" that pledges the United States to formally consider an increased presence in the Middle East if Egypt violates the peace pact.

Hereford Orators Compete Saturday

Six representatives of the Hereford UIL (Orators) speech class traveled to competition at Canadian Saturday, where they earned several individual honors and a third place sweepstakes for their school. The six local competitors were Richard Spears, Kelly Scoggins, Sherry Strain, Willa Bess Lawson, Douglas Strange and Mahota Manning. Miss Lawson, Miss Scoggins and Miss Strain competed in prose division with Miss Scoggins receiving straight 1's; ranking as the best speaker of the first three rounds in prose.

Entered in the poetry division were Spears, Strange and Miss Manning. Earning berths in semi-finals were Misses Scoggins, Strain, Lawson, Manning and Doug Strange. Advancing to finals were Strange, Miss Scoggins and Miss Strain. Miss Strain earned third place honors in prose finals. Strange captured first place in poetry finals, earning three 1's in the final rounds. Three judges determined the finals winners. The HHS Orators are under the direction of Bonnie Wuerflein.

To Present Workshop

Elizabeth Warren, owner of The Yellow Daisy, will be giving a flower workshop tomorrow evening at 7 p.m. in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library. The public is invited to attend free of charge. Mrs. Warren is a 1971 graduate of Hereford High School. She began her career as a florist during high school while she was employed by Park Avenue Florist. She opened The Yellow Daisy in October of 1976 and moved the shop to its present location in November of 1977. She has attended many design schools in Amarillo and Dallas. She not only enjoys working with flowers and plants, but also meeting the public. Her hobbies include snow skiing, water skiing and bowling. [Brand photo]

Ms. Wiley Elected To WTSU Senate

CANYON - West Texas State University student Paula Wiley from Hereford has been elected to the 1979-80 Student Senate. Ms. Wiley, a secretarial studies major, is the daughter of Mrs. Bonnie Moyes of 224 First Street. She will serve as a senator for the WTSU Student Association representing the School of Business. As a senator she will be appointed by the president of the organization to one of the five standing committees. The committees act as a liaison between students, faculty and administration. They are the academic affairs, campus affairs, external affairs, governmental operations and internal affairs committees. As a senator, Ms. Wiley will share the responsibility for enacting all laws concerning appointive offices, approving presidential appointments, initiating articles of impeachment against the president, vice-president and all the members of the Student Supreme Court and inferior courts, and appropriating the Student Senate monies. To be eligible for the senate a student must carry at least 12 academic hours and maintain a 2.0 grade point average (4.0 is an A).

District Delegates Report to Council

Jewell Hargrave and Terri Johnson gave reports to Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council Monday afternoon during a business meeting in the library Heritage Room. Mrs. Hargrave and Mrs. Johnson were delegates to the District TEHA meeting March 22 at Wellington. They announced that the local Council received an award during the area meeting for 100 percent contributions to TEHA. Mrs. Hargrave, Council chairman, presided during the meeting, which was called to order following a covered dish luncheon. Members of Progressive EH Club acted as hostesses and provided the opening exercise. Vice presidents from each of the County's EH clubs were recognized. Twenty-five clubwomen were in attendance. The Council's next meeting is slated for April 23 at 1:30 p.m. in the Heritage Room.

Child's Money Concepts Formed at Early Ages

COLLEGE STATION - Helping children develop positive attitudes towards money is an important part of teaching them how to manage it. An allowance will permit the child to gain experience with money, suggest two home economics specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System. Children need to develop an understanding of how money works and what can and can't be done with money. Nanoy Granovsky, a family resource management specialist, says. Parents can help teach this by treating money as a fact of life rather than a reward for good behavior, payment for home chores or as a means of exerting pressure or obedience. Diane Welch, a family life education specialist, explains. A child's experience with money should begin when he indicates an interest in having his own money and can understand the spending power of a nickel or dime. A simple allowance may start as early as 3 or 4 years of age.

By the time children are 6 and 7, they need an allowance that covers their needs and allows for a small amount that can be used freely. Determine what the allowance is to cover, with only one or two items on the list of the younger child. Mrs. Welch recommends. Children should know how much they will receive and how often they will receive their allowance. The amount given depends on the child's age, needs and family financial situation. Allowances should be given at regular intervals. Having a regular allowance helps children develop planning skills that will last a lifetime. Mrs. Granovsky continues. Examples set by parents are also crucial in attitude development. Stress that the money is distinctly the child's to spend as he wishes and remember that over-supervision can weaken the learning experience. Although parents may offer advice, children should decide how to spend the money. Children need to learn how to make choices and accept responsibility for their decisions. Parents should praise successful efforts. Let the child know when he is doing a good job in managing his allowance, the specialists add.

Youth Group Conducting Fund Drive

The youth group at Wesley United Methodist Church has begun their door-to-door drive selling ball point pens in packs of 5 for $1. The students will be selling the pens until the end of this month. They can be recognized by buttons being worn on their shirts or jackets identifying them. Proceeds earned from the drive will go into a gift being bought for the church and to help pay the students way to a spiritual retreat planned for this summer.

Ann Landers

Public Gives Pain

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a Directory Assistance operator with the telephone company. May I say something to the public through your column? First, why do you folks dial information when you have a phone book right in front of you? Second, why is it that nobody ever has a pencil on hand when they need it? We are timed with stopwatches and no conversation is supposed to take more than 34 seconds. Most of the women I work with are on the job because their families can't make it any more on one paycheck. It is no fun to go to work Saturdays, Sundays and some holidays just because people refuse to use their directories. For example, on Christmas Day last year, we handled thousands of calls from people requesting the phone numbers of the Welfare Department, loan companies, department stores, jewelry stores, toy shops and fast food joints. Those places are all closed on Christmas. What's the matter with people anyway? -- Mr. and Mrs. Public, You Give Me A Pain

Ma Bell's bet is to urge parents and teachers to impress on children that self-esteem comes from self-reliance. And, although I may get clobbered for suggesting this, it would not be unreasonable to charge extra for directory service -- with rebate allowance for the legally blind. DEAR ANN: I need help and I don't know who to ask. I am a teenager who is ashamed of my problem and am afraid that if I speak to someone about it they will think I am crazy. So what's wrong? I am a teenager who cannot eat in a restaurant or anyone's home without vomiting. There is nothing wrong with the food. It's me. I've tried eating lightly -- little dabs of cottage cheese, small bowls of soup, even light salads, but it is the same old story. I get the dry heaves and then I must excuse myself. It is so humiliating I want to die. I love my mother's cooking and would rather eat at home, but I used to be able to eat any place until about a year ago. I went to the family doctor with this problem because I thought something was wrong with my stomach, but she said my stomach is perfectly okay and that I will outgrow this terrible thing. I'll be going away to college in two years and I need to get over this problem now. Please tell me what to do. -- Sick Of Myself in Michigan doctor. Get a complete physical checkup. If this doctor tells you there is nothing wrong with you, tell him people do not vomit for no reason. If there is no organic problem it must be emotional, and if that is the diagnosis, I urge to get some counseling and learn why you cannot tolerate food other places than at home.

Jesuita Griego, Belle Grimes, Etta Jones, Gladys Lair, Carl McCaslin, Inf. girl Osborn. Edwin Watson, Florence Wilkins, Margaret Wood, Harry Stevens, Rocky Garcia, Linda Pagett, Nelda McCullian. Pauline Adams, Annie O'Conner, Ruth Womble, Cheryl Williams, Inf. boy Williams, B.M. Wiltshire, Wanda Thomas, Hector Solano.

DEAR PAINED: Why do people call information for a number when they have a telephone directory right in front of them? Because they are lazy -- or they can't find their glasses or they are in a hurry and "Directory Assistance is faster. All of these are possibilities but the main reason is -- they've fallen into the habit.

D.C. Martins Honored By Former Teachers

Former employees at Aikman Elementary School honored Mr. and Mrs. D.C. Martin Saturday with a belated wedding anniversary dinner at Dickies Restaurant. Twenty-seven educators were in attendance for the reunion-type party. In an impromptu program, the guests paid tribute to the Martins by recounting memories of the former principal and Aikman. Audrey Powell and Leta Kaul were hostesses at the luncheon. In attendance were Sidney Kerr, Ann Combs, Marie Stringer, Jo Solomon, Marlene Streun, Carolyn Waters, Martha DeBord, June Owens, Kathleen Caylor, Karen White, Doris Rojek, Dottie Darden, Madeline Bell, Della Stagner, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Dodson, Mr. and Mrs. Bryon Terrell, Mr. and Mrs. Cawthon Bryant, Lupe Villarreal, Nina Vera and Vida Hicks.

Lapidary Club Plans Three Spring Outings

Trips to the Oklahoma Panhandle, Wayside and Lake Meredith were discussed Monday night by members of Deaf Smith Lapidary Club during a business meeting in the library. President Jack Nunley called the meeting to order and introduced reports from several standing committees. Sam Morgan announced that he will make arrangements for the club's excursion to the Oklahoma Panhandle during the month of May. Also, Leon Bell reported that he has completed arrangements for the club's trip to Wayside April 7. Members planning to attend will converge at the library parking lot at 7 o'clock that morning. Nunley and his wife extended an invitation for the club to join them in a trip to Lake Meredith May 5 after attending the rock show in Amarillo. The local Lapidary Club will have a display at the Amarillo show and will complete plans for this exhibit at their next meeting. The club members also discussed their display at the library for the month of April. This same display will be taken to the Lubbock rock show April 21-22. Cecil Lady and Jake King are responsible for this display. Jake King announced that he had contacted a firm capable of making badges for the club and members voted to order their badges from the proposed company. Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Meyers won the door prize, provided by Lester Rape. Host couples for the evening were Messrs. and Mmes. Julian Perrin, Sam Morgan and Ralph Packard. Wyatt Watkins was introduced as a guest. A travelogue film of Canada was shown following the business session. Members in attendance included Messrs. and Mmes.

Clarence Botts, Wayne Elmquest, Bell, Preston Gee, Tim Dawson, Henson King, Baxter London, Lady, Meyers, Morgan, Roy Martin, Bub Newell, Bud Cawthon, Nunley, Packard, Perrin, Rape, Weldon Robertson and Delbert Ruland. Other members present were Carrie Mae Doak, Henry Wegel, Betty Rice and Ruby Hickman. The club's next meeting, is slated April 23 in Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room at 7:30 p.m.

Hobbs Youth Recognized As Finalist

James A. Shoemaker, a 17-year-old youth from Hobbs, N.M., was recently named a finalist in the National Merit Scholarship Competition. He is the grandson of a local couple, Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Jamerson, 419 Long St. Shoemaker will receive a certificate of merit and a chance at a four-year Merit Scholarship or a $1,000 National Merit Scholarship. A senior student at Hobbs High School, Shoemaker was one of 14,000 finalists in the country being considered for a corporate or college-sponsored scholarship. He hopes to study mathematics and statistics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge, Mass. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Shoemaker of Hobbs.

WTSU Alumni Slate Phoenix Banquet

CANYON - West Texas State University alumni, students and friends will meet together May 4 for the annual Phoenix Club Banquet to be held this year at the Amarillo Country Club beginning at 7 p.m. Featured speaker will be J. Roy Henry, Burroughs Corp. executive vice president of marketing and 1952 WTSU graduate. Tickets are $7.50 per person, and can be obtained through the Alumni Association Office. Tickets can be obtained on campus from Mary Hill, Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department; Margaret Campbell, Art Department; Bill Semmelbeck, Business Administration Department; and Gene Parker, Placement Office. Recipients of the WTSU Distinguished Alumnus Award, the WTSU Faculty Excellence Award and the student Man of the Year Award will also be announced at the banquet. Henry was born in Shamrock in 1929, and received his bachelor of business administration degree from West Texas State in 1952. After graduation Henry joined Burroughs as a sales representative in Amarillo, and later held field marketing positions in Dallas and Memphis before being named branch manager in Evansville, Ind. in 1963. Later that year he was appointed branch manager in Cincinnati. In 1967 Henry was transferred to Detroit as general manager in marketing for the Far East area of the international group. He subsequently was appointed general manager of the Pacific area in 1968, general manager of the Pacific/Canada area in 1970 and general manager of the Americas/Pacific division in 1973. Henry was elected vice president and group executive of the Office Products Group in 1976 and was named vice president of marketing for the corporation in 1977.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer

Clean cabinets wanted

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - I do hope you can tell me how to clean my light green steel kitchen cupboards as they always look so messy after I clean them no matter what I use. - S.L.

DEAR S.L. - I am presuming your cabinets have a baked-on-at-the-factory enamel finish. I suggest that you try an automobile cleaner and then wax with auto wax. Test in an inconspicuous spot first. I have always had good luck with a commercial household cleaner that is sprayed on and wiped off and does a fantastic job. - POLLY.

DEAR POLLY - If your laundry is coming out a bit gray looking try adding one-fourth cup white vinegar to the rinse cycle. The vinegar breaks up any soap buildup and the laundry comes out soft and clean, much brighter and with no afterstain. - CHERYL.

DEAR POLLY - I keep my silver service on the buffet all year round and only clean it with a tarnish preventative polish about twice a year but each week I wipe each piece with a soft lint-free cloth to renew the shine and prevent tarnish from building up. - MRS. J.A.M.

DEAR MRS. J.A.M. - If you are away from home or forget this weekly wiping of silver on display often a washing in detergent and then drying carefully will bring back the look of just having been cleaned. - POLLY.

DEAR POLLY - When drying clothes indoors on a drying rack remember to put a plastic dry cleaner's bag on the floor under the rack and be saved any water spots on carpet or floor. - EFFIE.

DEAR POLLY - After cleaning my artificial house plants I treat them to a coat of hair spray and they stay glossy and beautiful and do not collect as much dust as they used to. - ANNA.

DEAR POLLY - To remove any residue left from gummed tape rub with cotton that has been moistened with lighter fluid. - EDITH

DEAR POLLY - Verda asked how she could remove cement from glass. Last year while our new house was being built, the brick layer told us to rub mineral oil on such spots and we found it worked very well. I put the oil on a paper towel and rubbed. When a spot remained, I used a razor blade to help it along. After this wash windows as usual. - MILLIE.

DEAR POLLY - While the light-colored carpet in my bathroom is still damp from a scrubbing it usually has to be walked on and gets dirty again. To improve this situation I now lay old heavy bath towels on the damp carpet and they soak up moisture as well as keep the carpet clean until it dries. - JINI.

DEAR POLLY - A simple method for telling a raw egg from a hard-cooked one is to spin it. A hard-cooked one will spin like a top but a raw egg will not spin.

Put a slice of bread on a meat platter to absorb excess fat and then the bread can be saved and used in your next batch of dressing for added flavor and richness. - VIOLA.

VIEWPOINT

'Dear Consumer...'

(The following letter, reprinted in part, has been widely circulated since it was first published in Shenandoah, Iowa.) Anything to do, even dying, costs more these days. It would appear, however, that many people think all you have to do is keep the price of meat down and everything will be okay.

A recent story in one of our regional newspapers is typical. The headline read: "Record cattle prices won't help housewife." The story highlighted the fact that cattle prices had hit record levels.

Wait a minute. Isn't everything at record-level prices? How much have your taxes increased? What about the fuel for your car or pickup? Bought a home lately? How about interest on your loans? And, everyone says utility rates are going out of sight.

If you analyze the entire situation, I think you'd see that meat is getting an unfair slap from consumers, government and anyone else who wants to hang the high cost of living on another segment of society.

Checking the sale items in that newspaper mentioned above, we find tires are on sale for $71, plus tax and your old tire. Mens shoes are on sale for just $22.80 per pair. Tell me these are not record-high prices. Check these sale items at the supermarket: Toothpaste and shampoo are just 20 cents an ounce; razor blades are 30 cents each, and deodorant is 36 cents an ounce.

But what about the actual cost of food? USDA choice sirloin steak this weekend will cost you 12 cents an ounce; pork steak just 9 cents an ounce, or milk at less than 3 cents an ounce.

I just ask you to sit in front of your $600 color tv set in your $17.95 slacks, $14.95 shirt, $19.95 slippers and sip your nickel-and-ounce beer, while the other half of your household goes to the store in your $5,000 plus auto burning 70-cent a gallon gasoline to purchase some tv dippers, a carton of cigarettes, a six-pack of beer, and toilet paper on sale at 20 cents a roll.

Please don't complain about the high cost of food when she presents you with the bill.

Happy Ending

Remember the killer bees?

These were the ferocious hybrids, an accidental cross between bad-tempered African and domestic Brazilian bees, that were buzzing their way north, attacking everything in their path from people and livestock to motor vehicles. They were supposed to reach Texas by 1985.

They still are. But according to a late report from Brazil, they are no longer a threat. Dr. Helmut Wiese of the Brazilian Confederation of Apiculturists informs that the killer has succumbed to romance. Enthusiastic mating with Brazilian bees has blunted its sting and transformed it into an industrious honey producer.

Love, how sweet it is.

Army Explodes Landmines

GROUND, Utah (AP) - The Army blew up 26 landmines believed to contain a liquid nerve agent on an isolated part of this desert testing post Tuesday, and the base commander declared: "There was no widespread contamination."

Gov. Scott Matheson, who expressed anger on learning of the plans last week, said through a spokesman that he was glad the destruction of the canisters went without incident and he was glad it was over.

The operation involved destroying mines found in January by an Army patrol. The mines, which had evidently been discarded and forgotten during a period of oven-air testing in 1913, were now deteriorating.

Their destruction was twice delayed by tricky winds before it finally was accomplished on Tuesday.

The mines were covered with several thousand pounds of plastic C4 explosives and blown up under what the Army described as ideal winds at 8:46 a.m.

Only military personnel and state and federal health officials were allowed to watch. Reporters were kept in the office of Col. James R. Klugh, post commander, at the main administration building 30 miles from where the mines were blown up.

He had set up communications with the blast site, and after the blast was set off, he announced with a smile:

"It has gone. The detonation is complete."

Thirty minutes later, base personnel flew over the site in a helicopter and reported that all 26 mines, each containing up to two gallons of the agent VX, had been destroyed. Klugh said it was not known for certain that each mine contained the agent, but he was fairly sure they did.

"We feel we've had a very successful operation and all the mines have been disposed of and we will encounter no problems," said Klugh. "There was no widespread contamination," Klugh said.

Although the Army felt the operation was successful, Klugh said, extensive decontamination procedures will be followed "to assure ourselves that what we predicted would be the outcome."

Soldiers and scientists in rubber suits and masks took soil samples to determine how far any nerve agents might have traveled.

The site was 30 miles from the nearest populated area in a remote sagebrush-filled area of the 850,000-acre testing center. It was the first time in 10 years that the Army had released a chemical weapon into the atmosphere. Before 1969, though, Dugway was a center of open-air chemical and biological testing, and it was near the base in 1968 that 6,400 sheep died from nerve gas.

Matheson, who had opposed the Army's efforts to move more nerve agents into Utah from Colorado, said he went along with the demolition plans only because it was an emergency.

The Army said it was necessary to destroy the mines where they were found because they were already decaying.

Movie Blamed In Street Violence

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "Boulevard Nights," another movie about brutal street gangs, has been blamed for violence that has left 10 persons injured in shootings and stabbings and forced theaters to hire armed guards to protect their patrons.

Though a box office hit, it also has sent some theater managers scurrying to lawyers to cancel contracts for the film.

It all sounds like a rerun of the events surrounding the showing of another film of the same genre, "The Warriors," which allegedly incited two gang-related shootings that resulted in at least two deaths a few weeks back.

A third street gang film, "Walk Proud," will be released in May.

The mayor of San Francisco, Dianne Feinstein, has personally asked that a theater in that city stop showing "Boulevard Nights." She also is seeking legal means to halt screenings of all films that could incite gang violence.

Warner Bros. Studios, "extraordinarily happy" at the box office success of Boulevard Nights, disclaims any blame for the violence.

The movie, about Mexican-American gangs in East Los Angeles, opened Friday at 103 theaters in California, the Southwest and New York City. In its first three days, it earned $832,384, said Warner Bros. spokesman Bill Stern.

"The film earned approximately $6,500 per day at each theater, which in the industry is considered extremely strong," Stern said.

Although disclaiming responsibility for violence, Warner Bros. has agreed to pick up the tab to hire armed guards to protect moviegoers.

In addition, the studio did not resist when theater managers in San Francisco and Montclair, a Los Angeles suburb, canceled their contracts for the film.

The most serious violence occurred in San Francisco, where a clash between Mexican-American and Chinese gangs left four persons shot and one stabbed on Saturday.

In Southern California, one youth was shot and two were stabbed at a Montclair drive-in on the film's opening night, and two youths were stabbed at a San Juan Capistrano drive-in in what police said was a clash between two rival gangs.

The violence surrounding "Boulevard Nights" comes only a month after Paramount's film about New York street gangs, "The Warriors," was blamed for touching off a rash of incidents in which two Southern California youths were killed and New York City subway riders were assaulted by a gang of youths who had just seen the film.

Paramount said "The Warriors" - which some film critics praised as a work of art - earned $4.7 million in its first six weeks.

A third gang movie, "Walk Proud," is due to be released in May by Universal Studios and a spokesman said the producer is planning no special precautions because of the violence.

Universal spokesman Frank Wright said the studio considers its PG-rated film a love story with gang activity submerged in the background, not in the same category as "The Warriors" or "Boulevard Nights."

Bankers Want Machine Tellers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Bankers want machines - not people - to conduct routine bank business in the future, a Senate committee was told Monday.

Charles Cheever Jr. of the Texas Bankers Association even suggested "unmanned tellers" could be one answer to a possible gasoline shortage in the 1980s.

The Economic Development Committee approved three proposals, including a constitutional amendment, to set up such tellers at locations within the city or county separate from the bank.

The amendment would go on the November 1980 general election ballot.

Two years ago, Texas overwhelmingly rejected a proposal to institute "electronic fund transfers," where customers' accounts could be debited immediately following a purchase.

Cheever attributed the defeat to Texans' fear of reaching the end of a grocery line and finding that a machine would instantly take the price of their purchases from their checking accounts.

This could take away the "float time" between the writing of a check and when it would be cashed, opponents of the measure argued with apparent success.

The new proposals do not permit customers to pay bills through a machine.

The unmanned tellers could be used only for withdrawals; deposits; transfer of funds between different accounts of one customer; loan payments to the bank; and account balance information.

To stop payment on a check would still require authorization in writing.

The Legislature could authorize credit unions and savings and loan associations to share some machines with banks.

Cheever, of San Antonio, said what went wrong in the 1977 election was "we were asking the people to buy a concept" without specifying how it would work.

The Independent Bankers Association of Texas and the Texas Association of Bank Holding Companies also supported the measures.

Cheever mentioned possible gas rationing and said walking to the tellers in neighborhood locations could save gas.

"This is entirely voluntary," said Cheever. "Some people will never use them (unmanned tellers). They will still want face-to-face banking."

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:
We have received a copy of the Basketball article about my sister, Eddie (Mrs. Joe Trussell). You did such an excellent job arranging the pictures and reading matter. We are very thankful to you for this courtesy.

We are hopeful our old friends in Hereford will get as much enjoyment in recalling these old basketball games and eams, as Eddie and I did in compiling this little event.

Our thanks and best wishes for the staff that handled this assignment.

Sincerely,

Baseball Team Falters In Loss to Pampa

By MARC HERRING
Brand Sports Editor

PAMPA - The Pampa Harvesters continued its dominance of the Hereford Whitefaces as they came back from a 3-2 deficit to win 8-3, scoring three runs each in the fifth and sixth innings.

The Whitefaces, now 6-4, took an early 2-0 lead in the first frame, scoring John Wagner and Kevin Bunch. Wagner got on base via a walk and Bunch moved him to second and reached first on a Harvester error.

With two outs, the two orchestrated a perfect double steal to reach second and third base, and third baseman Henry Torres laced a single to the outfield to score both baserunners.

The only other Whiteface score came in the fourth inning when on another walk, Don Weemes reached first, with Torres again providing the hit to move Weemes to third. Edward Dominguez, the Herd right-fielder, then got credit for the RBI with a sacrifice fly to rightfield.

With a 3-2 lead at this point, the Harvesters scored their runs in their last times at bat to take the win, the second against the Whitefaces.

Coach David Ashby, said the 'Faces hit the ball well but right to the Harvesters defenders. A bright spot for the Whitefaces was the elimination of all but one error during the game. Ernie Suarez took the loss to bring his overall record to 1-2 for the year.

Next action for the baseballers will be Friday as they go on the road again to face the Dumas Demons. Saturday the Herd will be at home to face the Canyon Eagles in a 1 p.m. contest.

Wadkins Playing At Best

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - Lanny Wadkins, bubbling with confidence and his game at a peak, had one thought coming into the $300,000 Sea Pines Heritage Classic:

"I just want to keep on truckin'," said Wadkins, who scored such a convincing triumph last week in the winds of Sawgrass when he beat the best field of the year under incredibly tough conditions with a record 5-under-par total in the Tournament Players Championship.

"I've got my game where I want it," said Wadkins. "I just want to keep on winning."

The 29-year-old Wadkins, who went into a mild slump last year after winning the PGA national title and the World Series of Golf, comes into the Thursday start of the Heritage Classic with momentum and the best current credentials in the game. He leads the year's money-winners with $134,000 and, with the titles in the TPC event and the Los Angeles Open, is the only two-time winner this season.

There are two other factors working in his favor:

He has a tendency to be a streak player; once he gets it going he keeps it going.

And he has had some success on the 6,801-yard, par-72

Harbour Town Golf Links, a picturesque layout with narrow fairways and small greens, lined by forests of pine and palm, oak and cypress dripping Spanish moss. As an amateur, he was runnerup to Arnold Palmer in the first Heritage Classic, an event that has grown in stature each season.

Also to be considered is the history of the tournament. It has been won only by experienced players: Palmer, Bob Goalby, Australian Graham Marsh, Jack Nicklaus and three men who have won it twice: Hale Irwin, Hubert Green and Johnny Miller.

Other standouts include Tom

Watson, Lee Trevino, Jerry Pate, U.S. Open champ Andy North, Ben Crenshaw, Bill Kratzert, Ray Floyd, Mark Hayes, Bruce Lietzke, Tom Weiskopf, Lon Hinkle and Masters champion Gary Player of South Africa.

CBS will televise portions of the final two rounds.

Chicago Teams Fall To Brewers, Jays

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Milwaukee Brewers and Toronto Blue Jays set club records Tuesday... both against Chicago teams. Unfortunately, like all exhibition games, they didn't count.

The Brewers scored 10 runs with two out in the first inning that never happened before in any game, regular season or exhibition - and trounced the Chicago Cubs 14-7.

Meanwhile, the Blue Jays got a three-run homer from Rick Bosetti and a two-run shot from Dave McKay in the first inning and whipped the Chicago White Sox 'B' squad 9-3. It was their ninth exhibition triumph, most in the club's three-year existence.

Dennis Lamp of the Cubs retired the first two Brewers but the next 10 reached base, eight on hits and two on walks.

Cecil Cooper started the outburst with a 450-foot home run, Gorman Thomas slammed a three-run homer and Larry Hise, who doubled earlier in the inning, greeted reliever Willie Hernandez with a two-run triple. Robin Yount added a solo homer in the second inning and Dick Davis hit a two-run shot in the third. Dick Ruthven and Tug McGraw scattered seven hits as the pitching-poor Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Detroit Tigers 12-2. Greg Luzinski hit two home runs, including a three-run blast.

The New York Mets rapped out 10 hits and scored eight runs but the Atlanta Braves pounded out 18 hits, including Barry Bonnell's bases-loaded double in the first inning and a two-run homer by Jeff Burroughs, and posted an 11-8 victory.

Rockets Edge Bulls

By The Associated Press

Calvin Murphy played David to Artis Gilmore's Goliath - with about the same success as the original little guy had.

Gilmore, Chicago's towering 7-foot-2 center, had the ball under the basket, with less than a minute to play Tuesday night.

The stuff shot he had in mind would draw the Bulls within one point of Houston.

But Murphy, 17 inches shorter than Gilmore, had other ideas. When Artis started his move, Murphy made his, swiping the ball and drawing a backcourt foul. The 5-9 guard then sank the pair of foul shots that gave Houston a slightly more comfortable three-point edge and the Rockets pulled out to a 122-116 victory.

In the rest of the National Basketball Association it was Indiana 104, New Orleans 101; Cleveland 111, Boston 109; Seattle 115, San Diego 109; Philadelphia 100, Washington 109, and Portland 123, New York 112.

Pacers 104, Jazz 101

New Orleans held a 13-point lead early in the third quarter before Johnny Davis and Ricky Sobers led an Indiana charge that put the Pacers in front by three heading into the final period.

The margin widened to seven before the Jazz started a comeback, tying it 101-101 with 48 seconds left. But Mike Bantom hit a free throw and Sobers hit two more for the deciding spread.

Sonics 115, Clippers 109

Gus Williams, who scored a game-high 30 points, teamed with Lonnie Shelton to put in 16 of Seattle's final 18 points and carry the Sonics to their sixth straight victory.

Shelton's two baskets put Seattle on top 101-99, then Williams scored 10 points as the Sonics widened their margin. Lloyd Free topped San Diego with 28 points.

Cavaliers 111, Celtics 109

Austin Carr led Cleveland with 22 points, three of them on a basket and free throw with 1:48 to play, that gave the Cavaliers their winning margin over Boston and snapped their eight-game nosedive.

The three-point play made it 111-107, then Curtis Rowe connected from Boston. But Bob McAdoo missed a jump shot with 36 seconds to play and Chris Ford's attempt at the buzzer bounced off the rim.

76ers 100, Bullets 97

Eric Money swiped the ball two times and Julius Erving turned them into a pair of layups to keep Washington at bay. Erving and Money each scored 20 points for Philadelphia, which won for its fifth time in six games. Elvin Hayes had 23 points and Wes Unseld 20 points and 16 rebounds for the Bullets.

Blazers 123, Knicks 112

Rookie Mychal Thompson scored 29 points and teammate Maurice Lucas added 27 - and the two forwards teamed for 24 rebounds - in the Trail Blazers' triumph that saddled the Knicks with their 10th straight loss on the road.

Portland went ahead to stay built a margin of up to 11 points. The Knicks, led by Earl Monroe's 25 points, never got closer than two.

Bosox Fisk Doubtful For Starting Role

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP)

Veteran slugger Carlton Fisk of the American League's 1972 Rookie of the Year and a six-time choice for the All-Star team, is hurting badly and very open against Cleveland next week in Boston.

The 31-year-old catcher suffered a serious setback

Monday in the first game condition test of his ailing throwing arm as the Red Sox dropped a 3-0 exhibition loss to the Houston Astros at Cocoa.

Fisk, plagued by a sore right elbow since playing in 157 games last season, made the decision himself to make his preseason debut against Houston. He learned quickly it was a mistake.

Leadoff batter Jeff Leonard of the Astros walked in the first inning and stole second despite a good throw by Fisk. Pitcher Dennis Eckersley had let the runner get a good jump.

"I turned to Jimmy (Boston Manager Don Zimmer) and said, 'Jimmy, I think I left my elbow out on the mound,'" said Fisk, who remained in the game for four innings and belted a double.

Fisk, who did not have another throwing chance, has bounced back from various injuries in seven years with the Red Sox, including a torn up knee and a broken right arm.

However, the elbow ailment could be the worst of his career. Many observers are wondering if his career, at least as a catcher, may be in jeopardy.

Boston trainer Charlie Moss said doctors have not been able to diagnose Fisk's problem, but he ruled out calcium deposits in the elbow. He planned to phone team physician Dr. Arthur Pappas in Boston.

"It might be something he's going to have to live with. We just don't know," Moss said. "I don't know what the problem is. I personally think it has something to do with the muscles around the elbow."

"If somebody goes, I can't throw," Fisk said. "I'll have to stick it (the ball) in my pocket. After the first throw, I didn't think I could throw the ball back to Eckersley."

"The pain is the same as it was 2 1/2 weeks ago, but I'll have to see how it feels tomorrow. I know it isn't going to feel any better, though."

Lopez Reason For LPGA Success

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The slender, bespectacled gentleman in the leather jacket, sitting in 6-B, was anxious to talk golf with his neighbor in 6-A, window seat, non-smoking on the transcontinental jet.

"Ben Hogan and Sam Snead have been my heroes for years," he said, first identifying himself as a hotel project manager from Anaheim, Calif.

"No more. You know who my favorite player is now? It's Nancy Lopez. I plan to go up and watch her this weekend in Costa Mesa. What a terrific gal."

The middle-aged executive, a 12-handicapper, acknowledged that his golf viewing tastes - live and on screen - had undergone a radical change.

"I don't understand why more men weekend golfers prefer watching the men over the women," he said. "Take me. Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson hit drives that are beyond my comprehension."

"To really learn this game, I find it better to watch the women. They drive about like me - 230 to 250 yards. They have the same approach shots to the green. They have a marvelous touch."

Our hotel executive is just one of the thousands who suddenly have become connoisseurs of women's golf, one of the fastest growing enterprises in professional sports.

However, this traveling man's logic constitutes only a fraction of the reason that the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour has almost overnight emerged from near-obscure to one of the delightful experiences in the entertainment world.

The real reason is a dark-haired Latin stunner out of New Mexico named Nancy Lopez. Last season she hit the sports world like an exploding meteor, and she hasn't stopped sizzling.

While the men's tour has lost some of its super star glamour with Nicklaus and Watson in a winter slump and newcomers winning the $50,000 first prizes almost every week, the ladies have picked up a burgeoning new audience.

Women's golf is at the highest peak of popularity of its existence. The LPGA reports attendance up 300 percent over a year ago, averaging 35,000 a tournament.

What is this magic wand Nancy weilds?

It isn't necessarily beauty or sex appeal, although she has both. Laura Baugh is regarded as prettier, Australia's Jan Stephenson sexier. There are golfers - JoAnne Carner, Sandra Palmer and Jane Blalock, to name three - with equivalent skills.

Nancy has something different. The late Babe Didrikson Zaharias had it. Arnold Palmer has it. Lee Trevino has it.

It's an intangible quality that cliche specialists call charisma. She is nice as the girl next door. She radiates natural warmth and a bubbling personality. She can play the game.

The LPGA should build a shrine to her - now.

Peach Bowl Says No To Christmas Date

ATLANTA (AP) - Peach Bowl officials have told CBS-TV they won't play their game on Christmas Day again, even if it means losing a national television contract.

Officials said the Christmas date was responsible for low ticket sales in 1978 and almost cost the bowl its NCAA certification.

"We are saying no to Christmas Day, not CBS," Peach Bowl Executive Director George Crumley said Tuesday. "We are very happy with our relationship with CBS, except for the playing date. We feel it's extremely important that the game be played on another day, preferably Dec. 24 or 31. We especially like Dec. 31 at 3 p.m."

But CBS appears firm in maintaining the Christmas date. "The likelihood of our scheduling a game on Dec. 24 or 31 is practically nil," said Carl Lindemann, senior vice president of CBS-TV Sports. The Peach Bowl was put on national television for the first time last year after CBS convinced officials to schedule the Purdue-Georgia Tech contest on Christmas Day.

The game drew a large

Helmet Safety Law Proposed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A 115-pound seventh grade guard would wear as safe a football helmet as a bluechip college prospect if the Legislature enacts a bill by Rep. Billy Hall.

Hall, D-Laredo, told a House committee Tuesday that helmets need to be certified for safety and checked every other year because faulty ones can hurt and kill.

His bill would require the Texas Education Agency to establish and enforce safety standards for helmets worn on all teams in public junior and senior high schools.

Sturdy helmets are especially important in high school, said

Cecil Jones of Alamo Athletics in San Antonio, because the players are "mobile and hostile and are going to hit somebody."

In junior high, he said, "players lie on the ground and once in awhile hit somebody."

Superintendent Clyde Rayburn of Hamilton High School, near Waco, said helmets cannot be guaranteed as safe unless they are checked every day.

He said he had heard the price of helmets might rise as high as $300 within a few years, and if something is not done to hold down "sky high" equipment expenses, "little school districts like Hamilton can just forget football."

More youths play football in Texas than any other state, the committee on public education was told.

"There could be thousands of kids wearing helmets ... dangerous in nature," said Hall.

Jones, national sales manager for Alamo Athletics, which repairs and manufactures football equipment, displayed several helmets which he said his company had to return to schools because they could not be repaired.

One, he noted, had two bolts sticking into the interior of the helmet that "would be laying against the kid's head."

Jones said the University Interscholastic League had pushed back the date for requiring school districts to buy helmets certified by a national committee because large districts in places such as Houston and Port Arthur had objected to the cost. The UIL rule also would apply only to varsity helmets, he said.

The UIL would not require helmets to be examined, he said.

"The parents are going to be the next ones to get on this," said Jones. "They're going to say, 'Why doesn't my kid have one (a certified helmet)?"

"Why not inspect them every year?" asked Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso.

"Wonderful idea," replied Jones. "In the long run, it would save the schools untold money" by detecting faulty helmets while they are still under warranty.

"I don't want to pass something just to help a repair company make money," said Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange.

Rayburn suggested, "If the coach doesn't have better sense than to send a kid out with some of the helmets you've shown, he has no business coaching."

"Some coaches really care, and some don't give a damn," said Jerry Woodrum, plant manager for Alamo Athletics.

The bill was sent to a subcommittee, headed by Peveto.

Judge Rules Umps Don't Have To Work

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The baseball season opens a week from today, but the major league umpires may not be around to holler. "Playa bawl!"

A federal judge Tuesday ruled that he had no authority to order them to go to work, adding, "There is no question in my mind they are entitled to bargain as individuals."

The 51 umpires who work for both the National and American leagues have yet to sign their 1979 contracts and report to spring training.

They want more money and have hired an attorney to get it. Many have threatened to retire from baseball if the pot isn't sweetened considerably.

"We will have to make plans," AL President Lee MacPhail said after the decision.

"If these umpires don't want to work for us, we'll have to find umpires who do. We have no present plans to change our offers. The season will open on time."

The umpires' lawyer, Richie Phillips, replied that, if the major leagues do replace the umpires, "they will try to foist an inferior product on the baseball world."

NL President Chub Feeney declined comment.

The rhubarb between baseball and the men who rule the diamonds goes back to the spring of 1978 when the umpires began grumbling that what was in their written, basic agreement wasn't what they agreed to verbally.

They demanded 21 improvements in the collective bargaining pact to compensate, then on Aug. 25 called a one-day strike. The dispute went to court and last Sept. 25 U.S. District Court Judge Joseph McGlynn issued a preliminary injunction prohibiting any further work stoppage until the matter was resolved.

There were no further walkouts during the 1978 season, but it didn't mollify the steamed-up umpires. To a man, they hired their union's counsel - Phillips - to represent them on an individual basis.

And, to a man, Phillips told them not to sign their 1979 individual contracts until they got what they wanted.

Back to court they went, this time to debate a motion filed by major league baseball to find this year's non-working umpires in violation of the judge's September injunction involving the collective bargaining agreement.

"Your motion is denied," Judge McGlynn told baseball's bevy of lawyers Tuesday. "I have no authority to order them (the umpires) back to work. I have no authority to find them in violation of my injunction because the circumstances are not the same."

Manager Earl Weaver, who has had more than a few confrontations with Palmer over past 11 seasons, thinks he understands a segment of the pitcher's psyche.

"Jimmy has kept himself in such perfect physical condition, that he's scared to death of every little ache and pain," said the manager turned psychiatrist.

"Everybody else walks around every day with a sore toe, a stiff neck, or something, and learns to live with it. Palmer thinks he's not supposed to have pain."

Shaw University Drops Football

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Shaw University has decided to drop its varsity football program and place greater emphasis on basketball and other intercollegiate sports, Athletic Director William Spann said Monday.

Shaw, a small, mostly black school, had fielded a football team since 1912, but in 1977 won only one of 11 games and had an 0-11 record last fall.

Coach Horace Small was fired before the end of the 1978 season and Lee Royster had been serving as interim coach.

Spann said the decision to drop football was made by Dr. Stanley Smith, president of the school.

Spann said Shaw must adopt three new varsity sports to remain in the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association. He said it will probably begin fielding wrestling, swimming and men's volleyball teams to go along with the current basketball, baseball, track, tennis and golf programs.

television audience, but a small crowd at the stadium. Only 33,947 tickets were sold, and there were more than 13,000 no-shows.

The Peach Bowl had to sell 24,149 tickets locally - 40 percent of Atlanta Stadium

PHILADELPHIA - A Philadelphia man was held on $125,000 bail on charges stemming from the shooting death of Joseph Nedley, a Temple University football player, police said.

Nedley, 21, was shot five times at close range Monday outside the Princeton Lounge in the city's Mayfair section, detectives said. He died about an hour later at Frankford Hospital.

Charles Klumpp, 32, was taken into custody shortly after the incident and charged with homicide, aggravated and simple assault, endangering another person and a weapon offense.

MILAN, Italy - Top-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden, who had to be escorted into the arena by seven plainclothes policemen for security reasons, crushed Geoff Masters of Australia 6-1, 6-2 in a first-round match of the $200,000 Milan World Championship Tennis tournament.

Borg has received death threats from self-styled terrorist groups in recent weeks.

In other first-round matches, sixth-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania defeated Johan Kriek of South Africa 7-5, 6-4; Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina beat Hans Karx of Austria 7-5, 7-6; eighth-seeded Balasz Taroczy of Hungary whipped Pat DuPre 6-3, 6-1 and Gene Meyer upset fourth-seeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico 7-5, 6-3.

STUTTGART, West Germany - Brian Teacher crushed Australian Bob Carmichael 6-4, 6-0 and South African veteran Frew McMillan beat Aussie Rod Forley 7-6, 6-3 in the second round of the $75,000 Stuttgart Grand Prix Tennis Tournament.

In other matches, Bernie Mitton of South Africa defeated Jan Norbak of Sweden 7-6, 6-3; Klaus Eberhard of West Germany downed Colin Dowdeswell of Switzerland 7-6, 6-2 and Karl Meiler of West Germany turned back Carlos Kirmayr of Brazil 6-3, 6-2.

DAYTON, Ohio - Second-seeded Tim Gullikson outlasted Australia's Ross Case 6-2, 4-6, 6-4 in an opening round match in the Dayton Pro Tennis Classic.

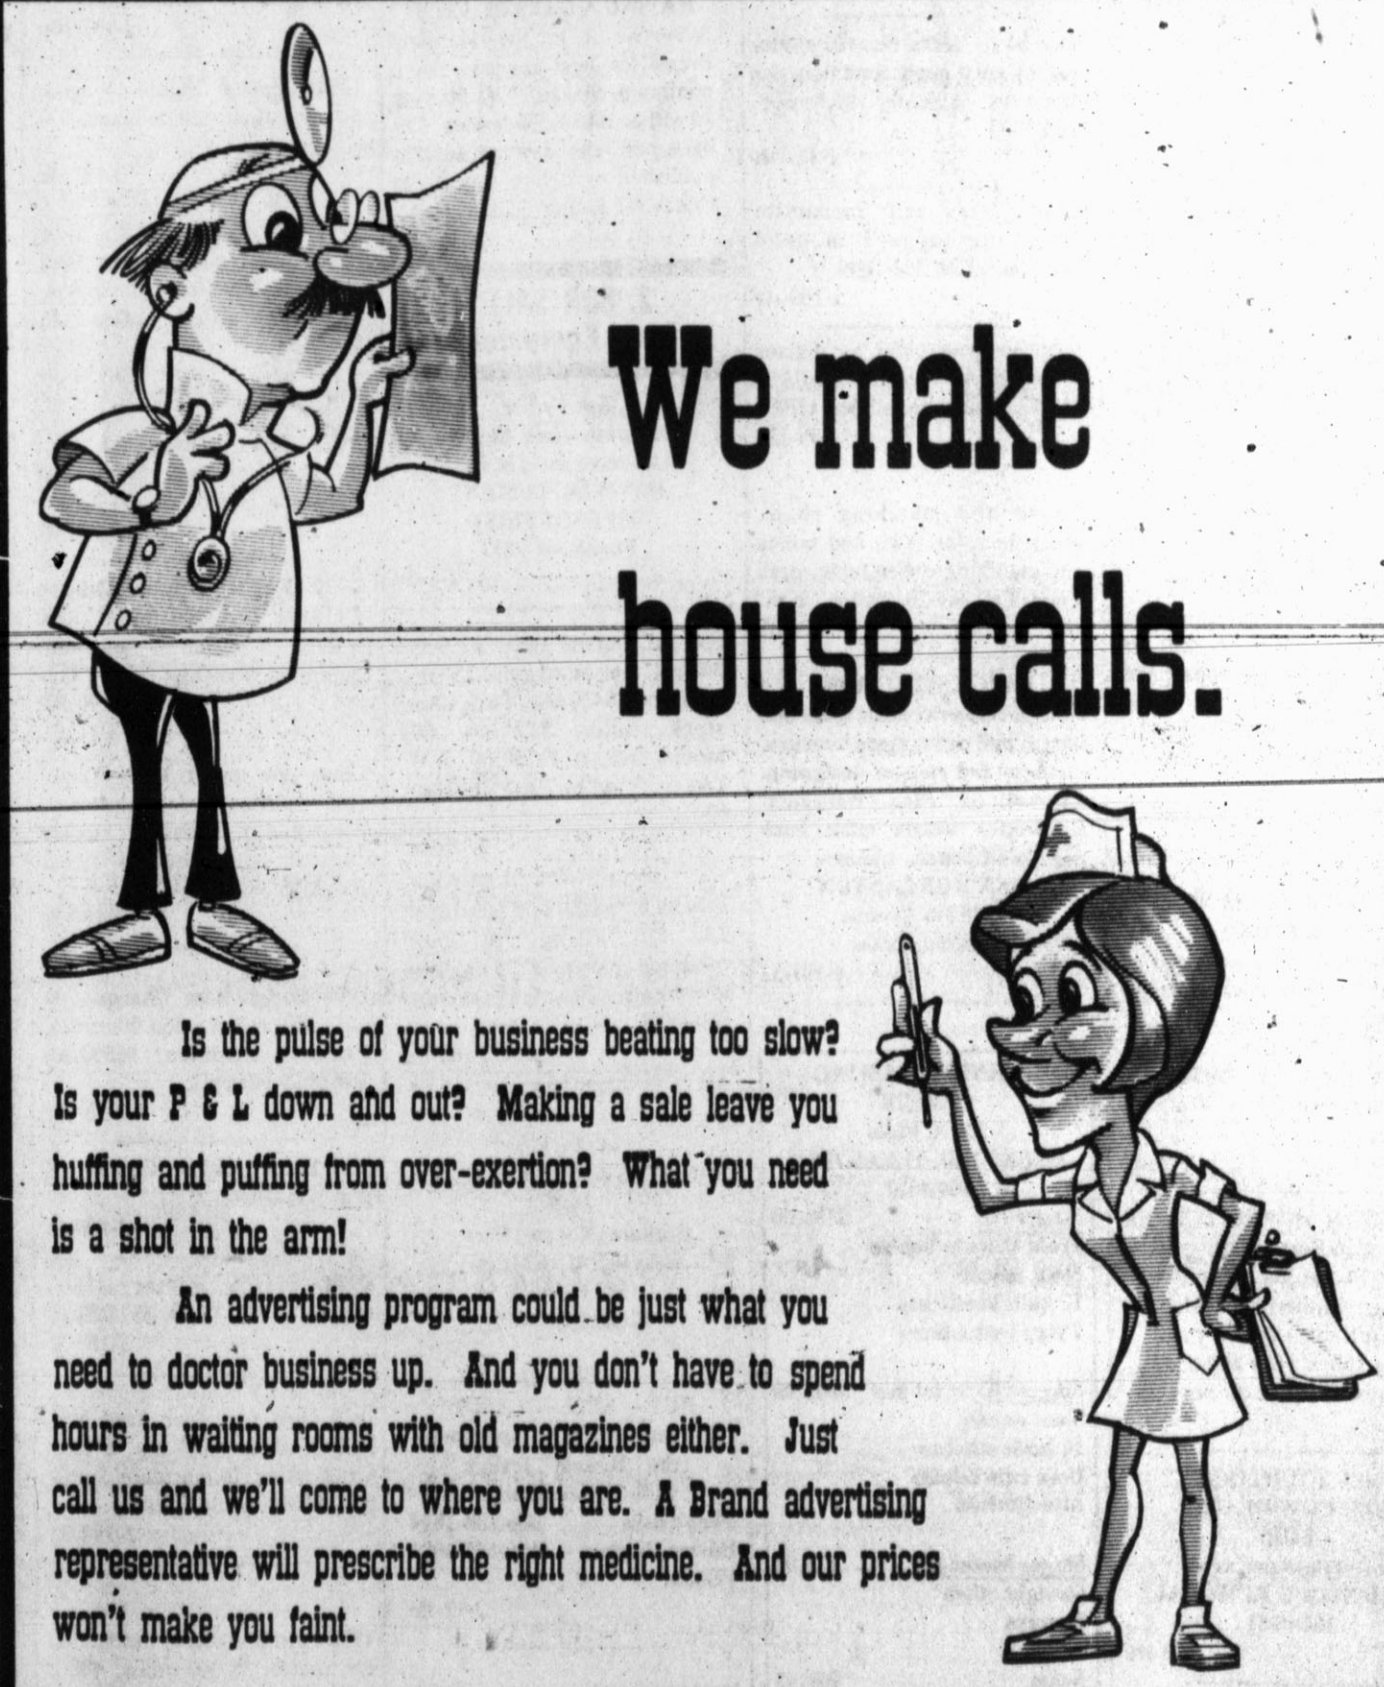

In other matches, fifth-seeded Hank Pfister beat John Sadri 6-3, 6-4; eighth-seeded Kim Warwick of Australia downed Francisco Gonzalez of Puerto Rico 6-4, 7-6; Marty Reissen outlasted Sweden's Ove Bengtson 7-6, 4-6, 6-2 and Sherwood Stewart bested Phil Dent of Australia 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) - Junior center Joe Barry Carroll has been named as Purdue's most valuable player at the school's 57th annual basketball awards banquet.

Carroll, who led the Big Ten Conference in scoring this season with an average of 23.8 points per game, scored a career-high 42 points in the Boilermakers' National Invitation Tournament semifinal against Alabama.

Junior forward Arnette Hallman was selected the school's defensive player of the year and Neil Bemenderfer, a senior center, received the Ward E. Lambert award for proficiency in academics and basketball.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) - Navy has added three new opponents to its football schedule this year and will play

Nature didn't plan on shoes

DEAR DR. LAMB — I don't know what to do about a problem my 14-year-old son has. His feet smell so bad, no matter what we do, showers, foot powders or clean socks. By the time he gets to gym, he's ashamed to take off his shoes to put his sneakers on. By the time he takes off his socks to get ready for bed, we don't know what to do with his smelly socks. They smell up the whole upstairs. This only started a couple of months ago and I assume it has something to do with his age, but what do we do?

shoes, meaning those that can breathe, made from leather and cloth material. Plastic shoes do not have any pores and are worse about trapping odors and sweat. Of course, the feet should be bathed at least twice a day thoroughly and dried thoroughly. After drying, they may be sponged off with alcohol to help eliminate any excess oils, particularly between the toes.

vitamins, particularly the fat-soluble vitamins, as well as some minerals. The poor digestion can result in weight loss.

acne. My face is now clear but I have the deep scars left by it. I have heard about dermabrasion treatments which plane the top layer of skin and improve the appearance. I would like to know how effective and safe these treatments are or if you could suggest something else.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about pancreatitis and what causes it, other than alcohol. I am a person who hasn't had a drink in a couple of years and I still have had attacks of it. I'd only been an occasional drinker in the past. Is it possible that worry and a nervous condition could bring on pancreatitis? What type of diet do you recommend and how long should I be on that diet until I can eat all types of food?

To help prevent future attacks and other problems, you'd be wise to avoid fats. If you're overweight, you need to eliminate your obesity. Overeating can precipitate attacks. That also means you want to eat small meals or meals of moderate size and avoid eating huge meals as some people do on holidays or special occasions.

DEAR READER — Yes, such procedures are done and, in some instances, they are indicated. You need to have a consultation with a plastic surgeon who does cosmetic surgery. He can give you a realistic appraisal of what you could expect in your own individual case. Such procedures are not for everyone. If you tend to be dark complexioned, this may affect the pigment in the skin. So, find out what's best for you.

Orphan Learned To Cope

By Ellie Grossman

A lifetime ago in a London orphanage, Sheila Graham would wake herself up at night so she wouldn't wet her bed and get beaten with a hairbrush.

She was 6-year-old Lily Shiel then whose head was shaved, like her sister unmates. But she also had migraine headaches, eczema, chilblains and constant hunger.

Plus the particular pain of night. Even now, she says, "I can't bear darkness. I try never to arrive anywhere late at night because there's a loneliness and terror connected with it."

Still, she did have a spoon to herself. At home, she and her mother—an East End public bath attendant who had cancer—shared one. And she could steal food from the kitchen and occasionally buy tinned salmon and currant buns with the sixpence she'd win being smart in class.

Then again, she wouldn't have had to if her father had lived, she says. He was a very educated, aristocratic European who died when I was an infant. That's all I want to say about him. After he died, my mother couldn't care for me and that's why she put me in the orphanage.

That's where she learned to take the present for what it's worth. And if it wasn't worth a damn, to get on into a future that was... any way possible.

With a warm smile and blonde good looks, bright Lily Shiel became Sheila Graham, for 33 years the self-styled "last of the unholy trio" in Hollywood.

Alongside Louella Parsons and Hedda Hopper, she wrote syndicated, Debbie and Eddie are happier than ever... columns. Eight a week at her peak, plus hosting television and radio shows.

What got her up there was persistent nagging. Her childhood appetites for food, love and money wouldn't let go.

By the time she was 15, selling toothbrushes (for back teeth only) in a swank London department store, she'd learned that men could satisfy those appetites.

At night, after work she'd roam Piccadilly, counting the men who smiled and accosted her. "I flirted automatically because I wanted to be admired," she says. "I was very innocent in those days, a pretty, defenseless, funny little thing."

So when a man like The Well-Dressed Codger stopped and invited her to dinner, she didn't hesitate. He took her to a private dining room in a fine restaurant where "dessert" involved more than eclairs.

"I ate with gusto, but my antennae were out," she says. "I did almost anything for food, but never the ultimate because my mother taught me you must be a virgin when you marry."

Therefore, when the Codger began advancing towards dessert, she was so horrified, she scared him to death. Laughing, marveling at the risks she took, she says, "I was lucky they weren't murderers."

At 18, it was farewell Piccadilly when she married dashing aristocrat Maj. John Graham, 43. He cured her of saying "cool lunny" and aggravated her taste for the sumptuous, but he also succeeded at failing at business.

With loansharks snapping at his fine leather boots, he put her on the stage. "I had to be the wage earner," she says. "I divorced him in '37 to marry the Marquess of Donegall, but I supported him to the day he died in 1965." Why not? He couldn't help what he was, and mostly he was a dear, charming man.

Even Scott loved him and would read his letters," she says.

F. Scott Fitzgerald, she means, whom she met in Hollywood in '37 at her own engagement party to the Marquess. By then she was earning better money writing here than singing in London.

By the time the party was over, so was her engagement and she began a three-year love affair with Fitzgerald described in her first book, Beloved Infidel.

He educated her, she encouraged him to write. The Last Tycoon, and then, one day in 1940, he literally dropped dead in front of her.

She fled to England, married an aviation expert, had two children, divorced him, returned to Hollywood, kept writing and married. Bow Wow Wojcikewicz when she was 31 and he was 39. That lasted two years.

Now still blonde and dazzling, she accounts for the beginning... and the appetites... in The Late Lily Shiel, published by Grosset and Dunlap.

The cravings are still there some. "I absolutely remember every meal I've had," she laughs. And the height of bliss would be to have a marvelous live-in chef.

He'd prepare her perfect meal: Scotch smoked salmon, Vichyssoise, filet mignon, sliced fried potatoes, asparagus. But only stewed fruit for dessert. AF ter all these years of hanging onto the precipice of what I wrote about people. I get indigestion rather easily."

The love of her grandchildren counts more now than any other, she says, but she still loves money and makes it buying and selling homes, now and again. But she probably wouldn't sell her "little doll's house" in London, though it's worth four times what she paid for it. It's too much a home, bought, though, on impulse, the way she's lived.

"I was passing by and stopped and said how pretty. The owner was standing in the doorway and the sun was coming through. She said, 'would you like to see it?' And by the time I left, I'd bought it."

She's done it all in soft autumn colors, greens, russet, gold. "It's an 18th century gem," she says. And when I open that door, I breathe a great sigh of pleasure.

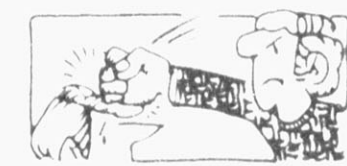

Especially, one would think at night.

Parental Concern Can Slow Runaway Problem

NEW YORK (NEA) - She runs away from home because of incest or an F in geometry.

Or because it's exciting just to pack up and get on a bus for New York. After all, in no time at all you can set yourself up here with an apartment and a job. In no time and no trouble.

Except once she—or he gets here, all there is is trouble. More so for her because he can often find a menial job; she usually ends up selling her body on the street to get by.

Of course, the parents left behind can try to find them. But, if they can read some warning signs ahead of time, authorities say, they may not have to.

"For one thing, watch for a constant withdrawn attitude on the part of the child," says Police Officer John Faugno of New York Port Authority Bus Terminal's Youth Services Unit, which picks up between eight and 10 runaways a day.

"That kid is harboring some kind of problem—drugs, pregnancy, feeling rejected or mocked in school."

"Then, too, if that child works and isn't spending that money or saving it under parental supervision, you should be worried. A lot of kids stash money to run away with."

Often, they'll take loose cash lying around the house, adds Police Officer Tom Dawiczowski of the Runaway Unit of New York's Police Department.

"And you can also look for a sudden change of friends," Dawiczowski continues. "The juvenile will start running with a different crowd and stop confiding in the parents. Also, there may be a sudden drop in marks at report card time or feelings of disappointment or depression during holidays."

Make special efforts then to talk with that youngster; seek some sort of family counseling, if necessary.

Still, suppose he or she does run away. First of all, notify your local police. They'll notify authorities here.

Or you can do so yourself. The New York Police Department's Runaway Unit can be reached at (212) 982-1011 or (212) 982-1012.

Of course, the parents left behind can try to find them. But, if they can read some warning signs ahead of time, authorities say, they may not have to.

from 7:30 a.m. to midnight, Monday through Friday; and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday. The office is closed on Sunday.

But, Dawiczowski urges, "We want the parents to have solid facts the child is here or headed this way. We can make out a million reports and the kid never comes here."

Since most runaways arrive by bus, you can also call New York Port Authority Bus Terminal's Youth Services Unit at (212) 563-4026 from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m., Monday through Friday, Saturday and Sunday the number — from noon to 8 p.m. — is (212) 564-3042. In addition, the Terminal's police desk can be reached 24 hours a day, all week, at (212) 563-6619.

If you know which bus the child is on, one of the Unit's plainclothes officers will meet it.

What you provide both offices over the phone is a detailed profile of the runway physical and emotional characteristics; what he or she was last seen wearing; names and numbers of friends or contacts here — whenever you have them.

"It's important to keep us informed," says Dawiczowski. "A lot of times parents call again a couple of days later with a phone number, say, in Queens. We'll ride over and apprehend the juvenile."

What you mail is the most recent, candid photo of the child, to the Runaway Unit, New York City Police Department, 341 1/2 East 12th Street, New York, N.Y. "Make sure it's something the child will look like," Dawiczowski says. "We'll make up flyers with the photo and distribute them to precincts throughout the city. We have a good relationship with the officers on the street and they'll call us if they run across the child."

And you mail the photo to the Youth Services Unit, Port Authority Bus Terminal, 41st Street and 8th Avenue, New York, N.Y.

Finally, for the runaway who's had enough and wants to go home, authorities urge one "don't" and one "do's": Don't go to strangers or even a runaway volunteer shelter. Go to the nearest police station or uniformed police officer and say, "I want to go home." They'll see that you do.
