Absentee vote light in election

Absentee voting for the May 6 local elections ended Tuesday and, as expected, the hospital board race drew the most voters.

There are no contested races for the city commission or the school board, but four candidates are seeking the three terms open for the Deaf Smith County Hospital Board.

The three local elections will be conducted Saturday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in Hereford Community Center. Eligible voters should have a white registration card with correct name and address. The county has slightly more than 9,600 registered voters.

A check on the absentee vote total showed that 86 cast votes in the hospital board election, 65 in the city commission balloting, and 41 in the school board election.

The hospital board race has incumbents Ralph Detten and Raymond Schroeder on the ballot along with challengers Dr. Nadir Khuri and Dr. Steve Lewis. The top four in the vote count are elected to the board.

Detten is a farmer; Schroeder is a school administrator; Khuri is a medical doctor, and Lewis is a veterinarian. There are three places open on the board. Dr. Gerald Payne is not seeking reelection.

Only the incumbents are on the city and school ballots. Mayor Wes Fisher is seeking reelection along with Commissioners Tom LeGate and Sylvana Juarez. On the Hereford School Board, incumbents Kathy Moore and Shirley Wilson are seeking reelection to the two terms expiring.

Rogers' POW story featured

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

An article by Hereford historian Joe Rogers is featured in the 1989 edition of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Review.

Rogers' article is entitled "Camp Hereford: Italian Prisoners of War on the Texas Plains."

"I've always been a dirt kicker," said Rogers, a history teacher at Hereford High School.

Rogers was referring to his long standing habit of searching the ground for possible artifacts. One of the locations where Rogers has practiced his "dirt kicking" is the World War II prisoner of war camp located approximately five miles southwest of Hereford.

Even as a child Rogers would wander through the former POW camp and search for forgotten souvenirs of a past age. As an adult, his fascination did not disappear. The local POW camp was the subject of a master's thesis completed by Rogers in 1987. His recently published article was an outgrowth of that 159-page thesis.

"All this (the article) just fell together," Rogers said.

Personnel at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum became familiar with Rogers as he used their facilities to conduct part of his extensive research. When the museum selected war-time Panhandle as the theme for its recent issue of the Historical Review, it was assumed Rogers would write a piece about the POW camp.

"I was always amazed at how many people lived in Hereford and didn't even know it (the POW camp) was here," Rogers said.

Although the POW camp is gone, its influence on the community and the county remains. Prior to World War II, the agriculture of Deaf Smith County was primarily grain based. It wasn't until the Italian POWs became available as a cheap labor force that Hereford and the surrounding area began commercial vegetable production.

The large Hispanic population in Hereford can be traced, at least in part, to the close of World War II. When the war was nearing an end, local farmers faced the impending loss of the POW laborers. Itinerant laborers from Mexico filled much of this gap.

The POW camp is a subject that the local historian knows and knows well. Roger's thesis represents ten years of research and compilation.

"When I put it (the project) to bed, I put it to bed... for quite a while," Rogers said.

Although the demands of an extensive project cooled Rogers' interest for a short time, he still speaks with animation of the POW camp. It is apparent that the subject is very personal to him. As he studied back issues of the Hereford Brand and the Amarillo Daily News and News-Globe, the people and times came alive for the Rogers.

A column written by Mrs. John Olson, manager of the local U.S.O., was especially helpful in providing information about the activities of the 700 to 1,000 soldiers stationed as guards at the POW camp.

"Surprisingly enough, there was even a sergeant named Joe Rogers," Rogers said. "I always wondered where he went."

Looking back

Historian Joe Rogers studies a map of the POW camp which was located southwest of Hereford during World War II. Rogers recently had an article about that camp published in the 1989 Panhandle-Plains Historical Review.

White lightning

The storm which gave Hereford a fireworks show last night dropped light rain in the northeast eighth of the county.

Scattered reports of hail were included in this morning's evaluation of the storm.

House approves massive reform

AUSTIN (AP) - House members, who have tentatively approved a massive prison reform package, don't yet realize its possible effects, says House Speaker Gib Lewis, who applauded the legislation.

"This may be the most significant piece of criminal justice legislation that's been passed in Texas in the last 50 years," Lewis said. "I don't think it has really soaked in to people, the real impact of what could take place by this package."

After lengthy debate and 23 amendments, the House on Wednesday approved a bill that sponsor Allen Hightower called "the largest overhaul of the criminal justice system in the state's history."

The package, which would create 24,000 additional beds in state prisons and community facilities, will be reviewed in two years under an amendment that was debated at length.

Another vote is required for final passage of the bill, which the Senate is awaiting before considering its prison reform bill. Only two House members voted against the package in a non-record vote.

The bill sets out numerous alternative sentencing and incarceration programs and authorizes construction of 17,300 new prison beds.

Total cost, including $400 million in bonds to be approved by voters, would be $600 million, said Hightower, D-Huntsville.

"If we continue to fund the alternative programs, I think it will keep the state - six, eight or 10 years from now - from having to come back and build prisons," Hightower told reporters after the vote.

Hightower wanted a review of the plan in four years, but lawmakers representing counties' interests sought a shorter period.

Reps. Dalton Smith, R-Houston, and Glenn Repp, R-Duncanville, argued that counties feared the state would continue pushing its prisoners into county jails.

A portion of the bill sets into state law a federal court order requiring Texas prisons to stay under 95 percent capacity.

County judges have said the provision would permanently shift to local taxpayers the financial burden of housing excess state prisoners.

Hightower said the provision only complies with what is already mandated by the court, but said he understood the fear that "somewhere down the road the Legislature won't be responsible and come back and build any more prisons."

He said programs in the bill would ease the counties' problems, but "in all probability, it'll take longer than two years."

In the meantime, he said, "I feel an obligation to protect the state against lawsuits in two years."

When asked later if he thought the package would satisfy counties, Hightower said, "It better. That's the best that we can do."

Legislators and Gov. Bill Clements have agreed to the need for about 12,800 new prison beds. The House package authorizes 6,500 more than that.

Reps. Renato Cuellar, D-Weslaco, and Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, voted against the package, saying they objected to paying for it with bonds.

Cuellar also said he thought the plan shifted too much responsibility to the counties.

Valdez captain's trial ordered

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - The fired captain of the Exxon Valdez was ordered to stand trial next month on charges of being drunk while his vessel crashed into a reef and spilled more than 10 million gallons of oil.

Joseph Hazelwood, 42, pleaded innocent Wednesday before state District Court Judge David Stewart to three misdemeanor charges of operating a vessel while drunk, reckless endangerment and negligent discharge of oil. He faces two years, three months in prison and $11,000 in fines if convicted of all the counts.

Paulette Foster, a spokeswoman for the district attorney's office, also said a grand jury has begun an investigation to determine whether additional criminal charges should also be filed against Hazelwood, who was released on $50,000 bail. Hazelwood's attorneys said they will seek to have the trial, scheduled for June 20 in Valdez, moved because of extensive news coverage. He said an alternate location had not been selected.

Hazelwood is accused of turning over control of the 987-foot-long Exxon Valdez to an uncertified mate on March 24, when it rammed a charted reef outside shipping lanes and ripped its bottom, letting the Alaskan North Slope oil pour into Prince William Sound.

Authorities say Hazelwood, who has a history of alcohol-related driving arrests in New York, had a blood-alcohol level of 0.061 percent nine hours after the accident. The legal maritime limit for operating a vessel is 0.04 percent.

The state, responding to a request from Coast Guard Adm. Paul A. Yost to evaluate Exxon's revised clean-up plan, rejected the Exxon proposal, saying it was inadequate and didn't provide for enough personnel to do the job.

According to state environmental conservation commissioner Dennis Kelso, Exxon is overly optimistic in projecting clean-up progress and does not address several needs, including double cleaning of some heavily oiled areas and removal of oil from the water. Exxon also exaggerated the number of beaches it identified to be cleaned only by waves, wind and rain, said Tom Ferguson, a state spokesman.

Exxon has recommended cleaning 364 miles of Alaska coastline by mid-September. But the company wants to leave untouched nearly 200 of those miles and let them be cleaned by nature. Exxon also wants permission to bypass environmental laws to dispose of the oil wastes.

Both provisions have been criticized by environmentalists.

Chinese students revolt again

BEIJING (AP) - Their independent unions spurned by Communist leaders, tens of thousands of students pushed through police lines today into central Tiananmen Square on the 70th anniversary of China's first student movement.

Thousands also demonstrated in Shanghai and Nanjing for democracy and press freedom while several hundred took to the streets in Changsha. Three hundred journalists from the state-run press joined the march in Beijing.

Students plowed into Tiananmen - China's symbolic seat of power - throughout the day.

By mid-afternoon, more than 70,000 people, about half of them students, packed the 100-acre expanse in a collage of chanting, flag-waving and singing.

Red and white banners calling for freedoms unheard of in China since the Communists came to power 40 years ago flapped in the wind.

Bystanders, lining the streets by the thousands, had applauded and cheered the demonstrators as they marched along the 10-mile route to the square.

It was the sixth time in three weeks that students have made the pilgrimage to demand fundamental reforms of China's autocratic political system.

"If this continues, China has hope," said one onlooker.

Thousands of workers ignored government warnings that they would be fired if they attended the march, said one government employee.

"This is the first time in 40 years such a big movement for democracy has occurred. I'll just show up at work tomorrow and see what happens," he said.

About an hour before the protest ended and students left the square, their leaders announced that students' two-week old class boycott would end Friday.

At least 55 schools participated in today's march, including small delegations from more than 10 schools outside Beijing including Hong Kong's Chinese University.

In a statement read at the square, student leaders reiterated their demands for a dialogue with the government. They had called today's march after authorities on Wednesday refused to recognize their newly formed union and open up a dialogue.

Residents urged to check on solicitors

Hereford-area residents are being urged to take precautions because of salesmen in the area who may be offering less than customers bargain for.

The latest solicitation is for spraying roofs with linseed oil, and an investigation is underway to see if the practice is legitimate.

At least one person is going door-to-door, telling resident that their roof is very dry and needs a treatment with linseed oil. The treatment costs $500.

While linseed oil could help certain types of roofs, roofing contractors say that more damage may be caused to the roof from walking on it than the good created by the linseed oil treatment.

"We want to urge local residents to be very careful about hiring out-of-town people to spray their roofs," said F. Michael Carr, executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County chamber of Commerce. "Take time to check these people out. Know who you are dealing with. Be certain that you know what is being put on your roof and if it does what it is intended to do."

Pilot Club conventioners

Peggie Fox, Wanda Cobb, and Linda Minchew, from left, are looking over the agenda of this weekend's upcoming Texas District Convention of Pilot International set in Austin. They will be among the members of the local Pilot Club attending the convention.

Pilot Club members to attend convention

The Pilot Club of Hereford, under the direction of club President Wanda Cobb, will be among 72 clubs represented at the Texas District Convention of Pilot International scheduled for May 5-7 at the Marriott Hotel in Austin.

Cobb has been appointed Membership Area Leader of the Outreach Division for the Texas District of Pilot Club International to serve during 1989-90 by Nelda Bracksieck of Edna, govern-elect of the Texas District. Cobb, who will assume her duties at the convention, is a charter member of the local club since 1984. She was recording secretary for two years, president-elect one year prior to her presidency.

"Service—Heartbeat of Pilot" is the convention theme and the event normally attracts large numbers of people from Texas and other states, according to District Governor Joyce Beene of Longview.

One highlight of the convention will be the naming of the Texas District Disabled Professional Woman of the Year who will go on to compete for the international title at the 68th Annual Pilot International Convention in Anaheim, Calif. in July.

The DPWY program is co-sponsored by Pilot International, the President's Committee on Employment of People with Disabilities and Sears, Roebuck, and Co. The purpose of Pilot is to help disabled people to become full citizens.

Also attending the convention will be one of the organization's international officers, Dorothy Franklin of Norfolk, Va., international president.

Members of the local club attending the convention will include Cobb, who will present a skit on membership recruiting, and Linda Minchew and Peggie Fox.

Pilot International is a classified, civic/service organization of executive and professional women with 20,000 members in more than 600 clubs in nine countries. It was founded in 1921 in Macon, Ga., home of the world headquarters.

The Texas District is composed of 2,450 members and is one of the 19 geographic districts.

American Heart Association honors memorial chairmen

With Memorial Day approaching, minds and hearts often turn to those we remember who have touched our lives.

This time is also an opportunity for the American Heart Association to recognize and thank the dedicated volunteers who often work "behind the scenes" to carry out the memorial program in their respective Panhandle counties. The efforts of these individuals ensure that memorial donations are handled appropriately and contribute to the long-term success of the Heart memorial program.

The responsibilities of the memorial chairman in a town or county include accepting and depositing donations, sending acknowledgement cards to families, and returning receipts to donors. In many cases, the memorial chairman is the most active representative of the American Heart Association in the area.

AHA memorial chairmen for Deaf Smith County are Thelma Lamm and Gladys Caviness.

For information about the AHA's memorial program, call the Heart office in Amarillo at 806/374/8291.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS I didn't care for the comments of the police officer who wrote, "Your garbage collector probably makes more money than I do, and he doesn't have to work nights, weekends and holidays. Try calling your garbage collector when you need more service and ask him to come over. See what he says."

I'm fed up with people using the garbage collector as an example of an easy job for morons. I'm married to a garbage man and this is what his life is like:

He leaves for work at 4:30 a.m., six days a week. His route consists of 2,500 homes. The only 40-hour week he ever put in was during his paid vacation. If he spent just a few extra minutes at each stop, he would be out there an addition two or three hours a day.

He works rain or shine. We recently had a cold spell. One day it was 50 below zero. My husband was out in that miserable weather for 10 hours.

The pay is not all that great. He works on commission, 17.5 cents per house. The risk of getting hurt is high. The company has had as many as 10 men out with injuries at a time.

Tell your readers that the next time they have extra garbage to let the garbage man know they appreciate the extra service. Whether it's a few extra homemade cookies, a can of pop or just a thank-you note, he would sure like it. Sign me—The Wife of a Hard-Working Man in Minnesota

DEAR MINNESOTA: Every garbage collector and his wife will bless you. I'll admit that I had very little understanding of what their lives were like. You educated a lot of people today—including me.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please alert your readers to a new form of child abuse. I was shocked to learn of it.

The pediatric dentist told my 4-year-old grandchild that if he didn't stop crying, he would tell his mother to bring his pajamas down because he would have to spend the night in the office. When my daughter told him that she didn't approve of scaring children that way, he said, "It sure makes them behave, and that's what I'm interested in."

This same dentist told a thumb-sucker that he would install an electric shock box in his mouth if he didn't keep his thumb down. He put his hand over another child's nose and mouth and said he wouldn't let him breathe if he cried.

This dentist is still practicing. His office is full of preschoolers and their unsuspecting parents. They have no idea of what goes on because they are not allowed in the treatment room.

Please warn parents to be suspicious if they are not allowed to watch a simple dental procedure.—Angry Grandma in Kentucky

DEAR GRANDMA: I can't imagine why the children who are treated so badly do not tell their parents. It seems they would refuse to go back to this awful man.

Any dentist who uses this approach to keep children in line should be reported to the state dental society.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Some hip friends told us that they have moved into a great new building with many yuppies and dinks. We know what yuppies are, but what are dinks? We'd ask but we don't want to appear square.—Palo Alto

DEAR PAL: Dinks are couples with double income, no kids.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Sowell honored at party

Leona Sowell was honored with a "welcome back" party following the regular meeting of the Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 Tuesday evening.

The 21 members in attendance were served refreshments of finger foods and card games were played.

During the business session with Noble Grand Marie Harris presiding, 25 visits to the sick, 55 cheer cards and 10 flowers were reported.

Others present at the meeting were Stella Hershey, Ada Hollabaugh, Merle Boozer, Susie Curtisinger, Erma Loving, Jo Irlbeck, Shirley Brown, Anna Conklin, Peggy Lemons, Irene Merritt, Sadie Shaw, Verna Sowell, Lydia Hopson, Ursalee Jacobsen, Faye Brownlow, Tony Irlbeck, Jim Loving, Ben Conklin and Gene Bishop.

Trend toward 'lumpy, homey food' predicted in 1990s

NEW YORK (AP) - Foods served family style, "lumpy, homey food," and more desserts are among Clark Wolf's predictions for food and entertaining trends in the 1990s.

Wolf, a New York City-based restaurant consultant, says home entertaining is becoming more popular, where guests are seated at tables and served home-style foods from platters.

"The old American custom of setting food out in the center of the table, with each person serving himself, is making a strong comeback. It's the one time we actually cook," Wolf says with a laugh, "and the only occasion not to use the microwave."

Desserts are also popular, Wolf says. It's a trend toward increased health awareness on the one hand, and calorie-laden desserts on the other. "First you eat the grilled fish, then you eat chocolate cake," Wolf says.

Why the move toward more desserts?

"People need some sort of a treat after a bout with the Lifecycle," he explains. "I think we'll see much more of this 'physio-schizo' behavior, as premium adult desserts, incorporating everything from creme fraiche to imported bittersweet chocolate, continue to flood the market."

Wolf is the newest member of Champagne Perrier-Jouet's Great Entertainers Council, a group of designers and authors skilled in design and entertaining.

The second annual Great Entertainers Council luncheon was held here recently. The luncheon featured table settings by council members Mary McFadden and Martha Stewart. Renny Reynolds and Lee Bailey are also members of the group.

Wolf also sees a move back to more "old-fashioned rites of passage." He says the debutante balls, country club dances and traditional weddings that have become increasingly commonplace in the last decade will become even more of a fixture of entertaining in the next 10 years.

"The dinner at the club, summers in Maine, cardigan-and-corduroy lifestyle personified by President Bush has increased the appeal of these old-fashioned celebrations," he says.

And, Wolf says, no matter how strong the return to "warm and friendly" cooking, there will also be a place for food that promises excitement and exotica, a trend toward what he calls "backyard Caribbean."

"Americans enjoy taming exotic cuisines by serving them in familiar environments," notes Wolf. "Caribbean cuisine, with its emphasis on beans, rice, fish, chilies and cumin, may become one of the summer entertaining ideas just as Mexican was several years ago."

NEW SNACKS

WOODBRIDGE, N.J. (AP) - Sunshine Biscuits has introduced a new line of snack foods for nutrition-minded consumers. All of the new products are free of tropical oils and do not contain any dietary cholesterol.

The new products are: Wheats, a heart-shaped snack cracker made with whole-wheat flour; Krispy Whole Wheat crackers, a new taste in saltines; Shuffles, a bite-sized cracker made with 100 percent skim milk cheese; Sport Snacks, a bite-sized cracker in the shape of a football, baseball and basketball; O.T. Bears, oatmeal cookies in fun bear shapes; and Chip-O-Lotomus, a new chocolate chip cookie.

Sunshine products do not contain any coconut oil and more than 98 percent of the line is free of palm oil. The company recently announced that it had removed all highly saturated tropical oils from its Hydrox Creme Filled Chocolate Sandwich cookies. The palm oil has been replaced with cottonseed oil, which is a low saturated fat. More than a year ago, the company removed coconut oil from the Hydrox recipe.

Ranger rookie stops Yanks, 4-1

ARLINGTON (AP) - Bobby Valentine had enough faith in Kevin Brown to make him the Texas Rangers' fifth starter despite a mere 28 innings of major league experience.

The Rangers' manager said he hoped the 24-year-old right-hander would use the opportunity to build confidence in himself. Wednesday's two-hit 4-1 win over New York certainly made believers of the Yankees.

"You've got to tip your hat to him," said losing pitcher Andy Hawkins, 3-3. "He did a great job."

Brown, 2-1, who was chased early in his last two starts, kept the Yankees off balance with a sharp breaking ball and a hard slider that provided 17 outs on groundballs. He walked three and struck out two.

Mike Pagliarulo's second-inning single was New York's only hit until Rickey Henderson doubled in the sixth.

Valentine said he was impressed by Brown's recovery from back-to-back early exits, but not the least bit surprised.

He said Brown, who had gone 1-0 and 1-1 in two brief stints with the Rangers, is no fluke.

"This outing shows exactly what he's capable of doing, over and over. Kevin's going to win a lot of ball games for us," Valentine said, narrowing his eyes into a you'd-better-believe-it stare.

The Rangers scored all their runs during two-out rallies.

They got three straight hits off Hawkins in the third to take a 2-0 lead.

Rafael Palmeiro's two-out double scored Scott Fletcher from first base, and Ruben Sierra followed with an RBI single.

Cecil Espy made it 3-0 with a single to score Rick Leach, who tripled off the right-field wall in the fourth.

Henderson scored the Yankees' only run in the sixth. He hit a one-out double and went to third when Brown's pick-off attempt sailed into center field. He scored when Steve Sax grounded out to short.

Julio Franco's RBI single in the eighth made it 4-1.

The win kept Texas in first place, one-half game ahead of Oakland. The Rangers have been in first place for 25 consecutive days, starting April 9, seven short of a club record.

Elsewhere in the American League it was Seattle 3, Detroit 2; California 2, Baltimore 0; Cleveland 6, Kansas City 2; Toronto 2, Oakland 0; Boston 8, Chicago 4, and Milwaukee 7, Minnesota 2.

Mariners 3, Tigers 2

Jim Presley hit his first home run in 207 at-bats as Seattle edged Detroit at the Kingdome to complete a three-game sweep.

Eric Hanson, 3-2, allowed two runs before Dennis Powell relieved with the bases loaded in the seventh. Powell struck out pinch-hitter Gary Ward to end the inning and Mike Schooler pitched the final 1-3 innings for his fourth save.

Angels 2, Orioles 0

Jack Howell homered on Bob Milacki's first pitch of the ninth inning to snap a scoreless tie and lift visiting California over Baltimore.

After Howell's homer, Kent Anderson walked, went to second on Wally Joyner's grounder and scored on Johnny Ray's single off reliever Mark Williamson.

Rich Monteleone pitched two innings of one-hit relief for his first major-league victory.

Indians 6, Royals 2

Shortstop Kurt Stillwell dropped Joe Carter's two-out pop fly, allowing two runs score during a three-run fourth inning, as Cleveland beat Kansas City.

Tom Candiotti, 3-1, pitched a seven-hitter for his second complete game, striking out six and walking one.

Blue Jays 2, Athletics 0

Mike Flanagan pitched a four-hitter for his 19th career shutout as Toronto beat Oakland 2-0 at Exhibition Stadium.

The Blue Jays scored twice in the fifth inning on run-scoring singles by Tony Fernandez and George Bell.

Red Sox 8, White Sox 4

Rick Cerone drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a squeeze bunt to lead Boston past Chicago at Comiskey Park.

Mike Boddicker, 2-2, pitched 6 2-3 innings, allowing seven hits in going past the sixth inning for the first time in six starts this season. Bob Stanley pitched 2 1-3 innings for his third save.

Cerone, inserted into the lineup for slumping catcher Rich Gedman, broke a 3-3 tie in the sixth inning with a two-run homer off Shawn Hillegas, 0-4.

Dwight Evans drove in two runs and scored two for Boston.

Brewers 7, Twins 2

Gary Sheffield and Rob Deer hit two-run homers during a five-run third inning as Milwaukee beat Minnesota.

The Brewers sent the tumbling Twins to their 10th loss in their last 11 games. Prior to their losing streak, the Brewers had swept a three-game series against the Twins in Milwaukee outscoring Minnesota 27-8.

Expos nip Astros in 11-inning tilt

MONTREAL (AP) - His first name really is Spike, although he doesn't have the rough-hewn look or the rippling muscles one might associate with someone who answers to that title.

But Wednesday night, Spike Owen carried plenty of clout, in the form of a one-out, two-run home run in the 11th inning that enabled the Montreal Expos to edge the Houston Astros 6-5 and provide 7,462 onlookers with a reward for passing up the Canadiens' Stanley Cup playoff game.

"It's nice to pick up the team this way. We battled hard all night, coming back from a two-run deficit earlier."

Until Owen's heroics, the Expos faced another deficit, the result of Ken Caminiti's two-out single in the top of the 11th off reliever Tim Burke, 3-1. The hit brought in Eric Yelding from second, which he had reached following a sacrifice bunt by Terry Puhl. Yelding had entered the game as a pinch runner for Glenn Davis, who led off with a single.

Owen connected on a 2-0 pitch by reliever Juan Agosto, 0-1, lining his second homer of the season over the left-field fence. Nelson Santovenia, on base following a one-out single, scored ahead of Owen, who has driven in 12 runs.

The Expos used back-to-back solo homers by Andres Galarraga, his fifth, and Hubie Brooks, his fourth, to pull into a 4-4 tie against reliever Danny Darwin in the eighth.

Darwin had replaced starter Rick Rhoden, who left after five innings with a strained back muscle.

"It's been bothering him most of the year, but tonight it really seemed to tighten up on him," Howe said.

Rhoden returns to Houston today to determine whether he should be placed on the disabled list.

The Astros staked Rhoden to a 3-0 lead in the first, highlighted by Davis's RBI double and a run-scoring single by Puhl off starter Kevin Gross. The right-hander settled down and went through the next six innings comfortably, allowing a run and four hits.

Rookie John Smoltz single-handedly stopped the Braves' eight-game losing streak Wednesday night, pitching a six-hitter and hitting his first career home run in a 6-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

In other games, Los Angeles got past St. Louis 4-3, Pittsburgh beat San Francisco 5-3, Chicago downed San Diego 5-4 and Cincinnati stopped New York 6-4.

Reds 6, Mets 4

Chris Sabo and Barry Larkin hit consecutive sacrifice flies, breaking a seventh-inning tie and leading Cincinnati over New York.

The visiting Reds played their third straight game without Manager Pete Rose, who has bronchitis and is not expected back until Friday. Coach Tommy Helms has won twice in Rose's absence.

Dodgers 4, Cardinals 3

Pinch hitter Rick Dempsey singled home the winning run with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning and Los Angeles beat St. Louis for its third straight victory.

Cubs 5, Padres 4

Andre Dawson hit a go-ahead triple in the sixth inning and a two-run homer as Chicago won at San Diego.

Legends of Golf will stay in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) - The founder of the Legends of Golf founder is reiterating that he has no plans to move the tournament from its 12-year home, Austin's Onion Creek Club.

"I don't know where that is coming from," Raphael said after the Palm Beach Post reported this week that a move to Florida might be in the works. The newspaper quoted sources as saying PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman and Senior Tour Tournament Director Brian Henning had visited Bear Lakes Country Club in West Palm Beach 11 days ago and met with club officials about holding the Legends there in February. Raphael and the late Jimmy Demaret started the Legends in 1978 as a reunion of former PGA Tour players.

ment meeting within the next few weeks. Lerner expressed concern that the Legends lost money the past two years, $180,000 in 1988.

"Ask me if we'll be here in five years and I don't know. Ask me if we'll be here next year, I'd say 'probably,'" Lerner told the Austin American-Statesman.

Rockets avoid sweep; Lakers erase Portland

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Rockets went for the early knockout punch against Seattle and it was delivered by guard Sleepy Floyd.

Floyd had another outstanding playoff performance Wednesday night, scoring 22 of his 28 points in the first half as the Rockets beat the Sonics 126-107 to keep the NBA playoff series alive.

"It was a real boxing match and they knocked us out cold," Seattle forward Xavier McDaniel said.

The Rockets, facing elimination from the best-of-five first round series if they lost, broke a 2-2 deadlock with and 11-0 charge to start the game.

Seattle never recovered from the blow, meaning the series will resume in The Summit Friday night. A fifth game, if necessary, would return to Seattle on Sunday.

There were five technical fouls called in the game and four were against the agitated Sonics.

Seattle coach Bernie Bickerstaff said it was not a good strategy. "You don't win by talking and we were doing most of the talking," Bickerstaff said.

Houston's Akeem Olajuwon and Seattle's Michael Cage, who were fined for fighting during a regular season game, were almost combatants again Wednesday.

Olajuwon received a technical foul when he threw the ball at Cage after a play under the Rockets' basket.

But the Sonics then received technicals against Cage, Dale Ellis, McDaniel and Alton Lister.

"We answered the bell and then took some shots," Bickerstaff said.

Floyd hit eight of 11 from the field in another outstanding playoff performance.

"I just decided to go for it tonight and do something playoff style," Floyd said. "I was definitely in the flow of the game."

Houston led 31-20 by the end of the first quarter and Floyd added 12 more second quarter points, contributing to a 63-47 halftime lead.

Ellis, playing with a brace to protect his broken nose, led the Sonics with 26 points. Reserve Sedale Threatt hit five of his first six shots and finished with 17 points.

"The refs did a good job of keeping it under control," Cage said. "I got a technical as quick as you could blink."

"I thought there was a lot of competitiveness but I didn't see any cheap shots."

Floyd has a history of explosive playoff performances. Last season with the Rockets, he hit 42 points in a first round playoff game against Dallas.

Two years ago with Golden State, he scored 51 points against the Los Angeles Lakers.

"Sleepy got them off to a great start," Bickerstaff said. "We finally introduced Nate (McMillian) to him. (in second half)."

But Floyd already had the Sonics on the ropes.

For someone who has announced his impending retirement, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar seems determined to hang around as long as possible.

The 42-year-old center, in his 20th and final NBA season, scored 22 points and ignited a third-quarter Los Angeles rally as the Lakers beat the Portland Trail Blazers 116-108 to sweep their best-of-5 first-round playoff series. Los Angeles is 18-0 in the first round since the 16-team playoff format started in 1984.

"Our starting lineup was superb," Lakers coach Pat Riley said. "Kareem had one of the best games he's had in a long time."

In other Wednesday night playoff action, Chicago beat Cleveland 101-94 and Houston downed Seattle 126-107. After a day off today, the playoffs resume Friday night with Cleveland at Chicago, Seattle at Houston and Atlanta at Milwaukee. The Bucks lead that series 2-1.

Byron Scott scored 25 points and James Worthy added 24 for the Lakers, who have won the last two NBA championships.

Abdul-Jabbar scored nine points in the third period after Portland took a 54-49 halftime lead. Magic Johnson added 17 points and seven assists for the Lakers. Terry Porter scored 24 of his 29 points in the first half for the Blazers, who were swept for the first time in the franchise's history. Clyde Drexler added 25 points.

"Kareem has been working on his shot during practice and it's paying off," Johnson said. "He really looked good. It helps the whole team to see, 'OK, he's here; he can give us this kind of game, especially on the road.'"

"That's the shot I've tried to take all my career," Abdul-Jabbar said. "I'm going to try to get back to that. Every time that they guarded me one-on-one, I tried to take the best shot I could."

Portland coach Rick Adelman praised the Lakers.

"The way they got ready for this series and the way they approached it, it just shows the kind of coach he (Riley) is and the kind of people they are," Adelman said.

Bulls 101, Cavaliers 94

Michael Jordan led Chicago with 44 points, including four clutch free throws in the final seconds, as the Bulls took a 2-1 lead over Cleveland. Jordan scored 15 points in the first seven minutes of the third quarter and the Bulls held leads of 22 points in the first half and 16 in the second half, then had to fight off a late surge by the Cavaliers.

John Williams kept Cleveland in the running by scoring 16 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter. The Cavaliers closed within 91-88 with 2:43 to play, but Jordan converted a three-point play, stole the ball and went in for a slam dunk that made it 96-88. Cleveland got within 97-94, but Jordan's four free throws in the last 21 seconds proved insurmountable.

Jordan opened the Bulls' second-half scoring with a three-point play and then connected on another with 1:53 remaining and Cleveland within three points of the lead.

Trevino prepares for Senior circuit

DALLAS (AP) - Lee Trevino is in an in-between stage right now. One career has ended. Another is about to begin.

Trevino closed the book on his five-year stint as a television golf commentator last week in the Legends of Golf.

Now, with his 50th birthday approaching, he's gearing up for the Seniors tour.

But there's more than just practice and preparation on his mind this week in the $1 million Byron Nelson Classic that got under way today at the TPC at Las Colinas.

"This is what I want to do. This is what I love. I'd rather do this than eat," Trevino said while pounding balls on the practice range.

And Trevino, a part-time performer during his stint with a television network, is now back at his first love on a full-time basis.

"There's a lot of things I want to do," said the man who has collected two British Open titles, two U.S.

Open crowns and was 44 years old when he won his second PGA title, the last of his 27 American tour triumphs.

"The main thing is to get ready for the Seniors. I want to hit that tour in a flat-out run.

"So I'm working at it. I've lost 20 pounds. I'm in the best shape

I've been in for years. I'm going to be playing pretty steady now, trying to get the game ready.

"I really want to win Kaanapali (the last Seniors tournament of the year and the first for which Trevino will be eligible).

"I want to win that so I can get in the (seniors) Tournament of Champions," he said.

"And once I get started on the Seniors, I'm going to play 'em all. Play every week. That's what I want to do. That's what I love to do," he said.

But that's not the extent of his immediate ambitions.

"My first goal is to finish in the top 20 in the (U.S.) Open," he said. And I want to be playing well when I get to the Seniors.

"But," he said, and flashed that infectious grin, "I wouldn't mind picking up another win before I get to the Seniors.

"It could happen," said Trevino who, as always, ranks as one of the gallery favorites.

He faces a 156-man field that includes Mark Calcavecchia and Tom Kite, each a two-time winner this year, and Masters champion Nick Faldo, returning to American competition after a two-week break in England.

Other major figures in the chase for a $180,000 first prize include defending title-holder Bruce Lietzke, Payne Stewart, Ken Green, Ben Crenshaw, Lanny Wadkins, Craig Stadler and Tom Watson, a four-time winner of this event.

Easy Goer is Derby favorite

LOUISVILLE (AP) - The number on Easy Goer's stall is unlucky "13." But that's OK, says Shug McGaughey, who trains the Kentucky Derby favorite. He's only a little superstitious.

"Everything has gone perfect so far," he said. "Knock on wood." Anyway, Shug's wife Mary Jane, who is pregnant with their second child, found a lucky four-leaf clover the other day before Easy Goer could eat it. It didn't go in the baby book. She pressed it in her Kentucky Derby book, on the page with Secretariat's 1973 victory.

With a big field of 16 expected to enter the Derby today, racing luck will play its part when the 115th Run for the Roses goes off Saturday afternoon. It's not that Easy Goer needs to be lucky; he just can't be too unlucky.

"If Easy Goer is lucky enough to run his race Saturday, they will have a hard time beating him," McGaughey said. "I'm not saying they can't beat him, but they'll have a hard time."

Only a month ago, experts predicted as few as 10 in the Derby because of Easy Goer's big victories in the Swale, Gotham and Wood this year following his 2-year-old championship campaign. But, before the withdrawal of Majesty's Imp, the probable field actually grew to 17, three short of the maximum.

"There's somebody out there drinking coffee and reading the Racing Form and saying, 'There's three spots still open. Let's go,'" McGaughey said. "It could be somebody who just won their maiden race.

"I don't think I've ever seen more horses at 100-1 ... If I had a horse that was 150-1, I don't think I'd want anybody to know about it."

The main starting gate at Churchill Downs will accommodate 14. Any horse with a post position beyond 14 will start in an auxiliary gate, and McGaughey did not like the prospect of being one of them.

"I really don't care how many are in there as long as we run out of one gate," McGaughey said. "I don't want to have to worry about getting stuck in the auxiliary gate."

Easy Goer, running as an entry with stablemate Awe Inspiring, is bound to go off as the odds-on favorite, with the Charlie Whittingham-trained Sunday Silence and D. Wayne Lukas' entry of Houston and Shy Tom next. The last time there was an odds-on favorite, it was Spectacular Bid in 1979, and the field was 10.

While many have compared Easy Goer with Secretariat, McGaughey still believes the 1973 Triple Crown winner was the best colt he has ever seen.

"He was a 2-year-old champion. He was fast. He was a good 3-year-old. He won the Triple Crown. He could race the classic distances, and later on, he was able to carry weight and win," McGaughey said. "He was very versatile."

Pat Day will ride Easy Goer, and he too stops just short of declaring Easy Goer the next Secretariat.

"He's a class act, and he's got a tremendous amount of talent," Day said. "I think he could have a couple of breaks not go his way and still get the job done.

"I'm not one for handing out praise easily, but he's deserving of everything I said about him. He's the best horse I've ever had a chance to ride, and possibly the best I've ever seen," said Day, who rode Forty Niner to a second-place finish in last year's Derby.

"I'm not saying this horse is the next Secretariat, but he's the best I've ever seen."

RON'S DEJA VU

MIAMI (AP) - It was a case of video deja vu for Rony Seikaly, rookie center of the new Miami franchise in the NBA.

Seikaly, a star at Syracuse one year ago, watches his alma mater on the tube every chance he gets. He recalled the first time it happened late in 1988.

"The first game I saw I felt weird," he said. "I was sitting in my Miami apartment watching Syracuse play a game at home in the Carrier Dome. I couldn't see myself not being there. When they introduced the starting lineup, I wondered why I wasn't there. When the Syracuse center was announced, I got out of my chair."

Salesman Confesses

Claims newspaper is best salesman

On Monday, Jules Wintner, owner of a local retail establishment, confessed his job as a salesman was obsolete due to the impact of newspaper advertising. Wintner, in an exclusive interview, said sales were made in the local paper instead of in the store.

"Sure, we get a chance for additional sales," Wintner commented, "but the newspaper has become our best salesman." Wintner reported that consumers name the local newspaper as their usual source of "Best Buy" information, 10 times more than radio or television. This conforms with a recent Consumer Data Service report that indicated 60% of the consumers seek "Best Buy" information from the newspaper versus only 6% for radio and 7% for television.

Wintner later remarked that because the newspaper is read by all Texans, regardless of income, his business was able to sell both upper end products as well as value priced items. "No matter what we're selling, we get good response in the newspaper," he said. "In fact, the more expensive the product, the better our response seems to be." This fact is substantiated in a survey by the Texas Newspaper Advertising Bureau that documented readership of the newspaper increases as income increases. In the survey, almost 75% of Texans with incomes exceeding $50,000 a year read

Salesman admits he "never had to sell anything" because of newspaper ads

"Our customers shop the newspaper. When they walk in the door, they already know what they want, they know the price and often have the ad with them."

the newspaper. "My job has become redundant," Wintner admitted. "Used to be I had to really sell each customer, but now I'm just an order taker." Asked what he intended to do now that the newspaper was doing most of the selling, he replied, "Spend more in newspaper advertising than last year."

HAVE FUN at the Movies

Gail Reagan

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

Prepare to be swept away by the grace, wit and charm of ... 'FIELD OF DREAMS': Starring Kevin Costner. Based on the book, Shoeless Joe by W.P. Kinsella, Field of Dreams is wonderfully whimsical fantasy full of joy and hope. The movie is fast-paced, suspenseful, funny and calls up every emotion. Simply told, Field of Dreams is about the possibilities of dreams coming true - or, perhaps the hope that heaven is a place where dreams are realized. It really doesn't matter. What matters in Field of Dreams is that men still dream dreams, and that sometimes for those who are not faint of heart, for those who sometimes listen to a more distant drummer, dreams can come true. It will be impossible for anyone seeing this beautifully-told, exquisitely-made film not to come away with a feeling of at least the anticipation of a sweeter, more wonderful life. Sappy sounding? Maybe, but there is no real sappiness in Field of Dreams. Director/screenwriter Phil Alden Robinson keeps his actors and his movie rooted in reality with an obviously clear understanding of what the film has to say. Kevin Costner is superb as Ray Kinsella, a 60's Berkeley flower-child who grew up on an Iowa farm and has now returned to his home state. He is living a contented life as an Iowa farmer with his loving, supportive (also former Berkeley ex flower-child) wife and adorable, young daughter. Ray is a down-to-earth, likable guy who hears a voice telling him to build a baseball diamond in his cornfield. When Ray follows the voice and does build the field, Shoeless Joe Jackson, the legendary White Sox's left fielder who was suspended in the notorious 1919 World Series scandal, appears at Ray's field to play baseball to his heart's content. Soon Shoeless Joe brings back the other seven suspended and infamous 1919's White Sox players to play ball with him.

The magic that happens on Ray's farm and what happens to Ray, his family, his friends and his neighbors; to their faith and to their dreams - even to the players who return, is the essence of the story. Burt Lancaster, in a smaller than usual supporting role, is magnificent as a small town doctor who once hoped for a future in baseball.

The grace and believability that imbue this film make it an instant American masterpiece. Field of Dreams is being called "a completely original and visionary movie." I can't say it any better. See it - make every effort to see it. Take your family, your neighbors and all of your friends because it is truly a movie with magical powers. Rated PG. Four Boxes.

RENTAL MOVIES
After seeing Field of Dreams you might want to take a look at Phil Alden Robinson's

'IN THE MOOD': (1987) Starring Patrick Dempsey and Talia Balsam. In The Mood is an engaging and very low-key comedy based on a true story. In 1944, Sonny Wisecarver, a 15 year-old California boy, the "woo woo kid", made headlines because of his affairs with two "older" women (21 and 25).

Patrick Dempsey plays the real-life Sonny Wisecarver as a conniving teenager who becomes a media star because of his marriages to both of the older women. He is ideal in the lead, turning in a very good performance. Phil Alden Robinson's script is delightfully wry with some very funny bits and lines; but the story is essentially slapdash.

The movie is narrated by an uncredited Carl Reiner and has a wonderful musical score by Ralph Burns which incorporates many vintage songs. Rated PG-13. Two Boxes.

A movie of which film buffs will be reminded when seeing Field of Dreams, and one that every movie and every baseball fan should see... 'PRIDE OF THE YANKEES': (1942) A black and white American masterpiece directed by Sam Wood starring Gary Cooper - with a cameo appearance by Babe Ruth. Gary Cooper gives one of his finest performances as he captures the courageous spirit of New York Yankee immortal, Lou Gehrig. The role of the courtly baseball hero fits Gary Cooper just like a baseball glove.

This movie drama is a perfect blend of an exciting sports biography and a touching melodrama as it follows Lou Gehrig's career from its earliest playground beginnings to when illness strikes him down in his prime. Teresa Wright is just right in the difficult role of his loving wife. Gary Cooper's rendition of Lou Gehrig's farewell speech at Yankee Stadium is the quintessence of a classical movie scene. Baseball fans are treated to some excellent 1930s and early 1940s newsreel sports film footage. Daniel Mandell won an Oscar for his film editing. Not rated but a G. Four Boxes.

Bosley enjoying 'Dowling' series

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Tom Bosley, who stars in NBC's "Father Dowling Mysteries," probably looks more comfortable in a clerical collar than any actor since Pat O'Brien, even if his St. Christopher's medal does have a Star of David on one side.

The suggestion prompts a slight smile and an arching of his thick eyebrows. "Pat O'Brien played my uncle on 'Happy Days,'" he says.

The smile becomes a laugh as Bosley expands on his own ethnic background.

"My great-grandfather was chief Orthodox rabbi of Chicago," he says. "But I lived near a Catholic church and had a friend who sang in the choir. I was a boy soprano, and even though I was Jewish I'd go over and rehearse and sometimes sing with the choir."

"My wife is Catholic. She corrects me if I do something wrong as Father Dowling. When we did the pilot she gave me a medal with St. Christopher on one side and the Star of David on the other."

Bosley stars as a crime-solving Chicago priest in the NBC series, adapted from the novels by Ralph McInerney. The one-hour series has just completed its spring tryout. It gave NBC its best ratings in three years during its Friday night time period.

"Father Dowling Mysteries" is expected to return in the fall, although the final decision depends on how well other tryout series do.

The show also stars Tracy Nelson as Sister Steve, a former street kid who is his savvy contact with more worldly sources, and Mary Wickes as Marie, the rectory housekeeper.

Bosley was contacted about the role while he was still playing Sheriff Amos Tupper on CBS' "Murder, She Wrote."

Producers Fred Silverman and Dean Hargrove originally considered the older "Father Brown" book series, but those stories turned out to be too sophisticated to adapt for television.

"They contacted me five years ago, during the first year of 'Murder, She Wrote,'" Bosley says. "Fred had this idea for me and gave me a volume of 'Father Brown' to read on location in Mendocino and during a later vacation in Europe. I must say the idea for Tracy Nelson was my idea. I felt we needed someone to give the show a youthful balance."

"At the same time, she's his guide to the street world just as he's hers for the world inside the church. Someday we hope to do a back story of how she came into the sisterhood."

Bosley got his first chance to test the waters as a priest in a "Perry Mason" movie in May 1986. Michele Greene starred as a nun who was accused of murdering a young priest she reputedly was romantically involved with. Bosley played Father DeLeon.

"They wrote the part for me after the original script was finished," he says. "I was the priest who was always reading Sherlock Holmes. Michele Greene was considered for the part of Sister Steve, but she'd already done a pilot called 'L.A. Law.'"

Bosley says he adapted a few things about Father Dowling to suit himself.

"He was probably a man who wanted to be a policeman and flunked the physical," he says. "He always had a penchant for solving crimes. He incurs the wrath of the bishop quite often. He's naive to the ways of the world. He doesn't drive. He never has any money in his pocket. Someone else always has to pay for the cab."

"Father Dowling" is the ninth series for Bosley, who also won a Tony for his title role in "Fiorello!" in 1959. He remained active on the New York stage until the mid-1960s, when he became a part of the repertory company for NBC's "That Was the Week That Was."

Next came "The Debbie Reynolds Show," followed by "The Dean Martin Show," "The Sandy Duncan Show," "Wait Till Your Father Comes Home" (he was the voice of the father on this cartoon show), "Happy Days," "That's Holly-wood" (as narrator) and "Murder, She Wrote."

Babe Ruth's last manager was Bill McKechnie of the Boston Braves in 1935. The Babe retired in mid-season that year.

THE MESSAGE IS THE MILK CARTON MAMARONECK, N. Y. (AP) - More than 1.4 billion milk cartons have carried a "Say No To Drugs" message to Americans in the past year.

The 10 different anti-drug comic strips, developed by Archie Comic Publications, are offered to local dairies through the nation's milk carton makers. The messages fit carton sizes ranging from the half pints sold in school lunchrooms and airplanes to commercial half gallon packages.

Invitation extended

All local physicians and other medical professionals will be honored at a reception from 2-4 p.m. Sunday at the E.B. Black House. The reception, hosted by members of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce health and safety committee, is being held so that Hereford residents may acquaint themselves with the community doctors. Extending an invitation to Dr. Dennis Finley, new orthopedic surgeon, is Sharon Pennington (at left), chairman of the health and safety committee, and Monta Cochran, R.N., reception planning committee chairman.

Abundant Life

IT'S UP TO ME
By BOB WEAR

We cannot control everything involved in our associations with others, but we can control ourselves, the way we think, the way we talk, the way we respond, and our general manner of behavior. We must keep remembering that "it is up to me."

We have great capacity for learning to manage ourselves, and this means that we have the possibility of making the most of our associations with others very satisfactory.

When we assume the maximum obligation for maintaining pleasant interactions, the human scene will be better, not perfect, but better. We must not depend upon others to make all of the right moves, to say all of the right words, to take all of the compromising, and everything else essential to desirable relationships. In most situations, we can make a difference by remembering, "It's Up To Me."

Too many of us hold back and wait for others to make the first move. This may be appropriate, in some instances, but, generally, there is no reason to do so. On the other hand, there are many reasons for taking the initiative; for making the first move in the right direction. A friendly smile, a well-chosen word, a wise action will usually open the way for a satisfactory relationship.

"Small kindnesses, small courtesies, small considerations, habitually practiced in our social contacts, give a greater charm to the character than the display of great talents and accomplishments."--M.A. Kelly.

In general, people respond to us according to our manner, our words and our actions. This is true to the extent that our most prudent behavior is justified. Even when a situation is not going well, we must remember that "It's Up To Me" to try to make it better.

We can do much to establish and maintain pleasant relationships with others, when we fully realize that "It's Up To Me."
