That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says most of us might be more eager to accept good advice if it did not continually interfere with our plans.

THE ANNUAL DINNER honoring past Mereford school board members was held at the high school cafeteria last night with trustee James Gentry as keynote speaker. Gentry, immediate past president. presented some interesting information on trustees and school elections through

His research showed that HISD has had just 119 trustees since the first board was formed in 1908. Gentry also made parisons on vote totals and the number of candidates in some of the elections in the past. He mentioned that the board has had four father-son combinations over the years. WE HAD OCCASION the other day to visit with a man who survived the depression days in this community. He has carved out a successful career despite the handicap of being short of money. We are convinced that there are many more opportunities today for poor folks than; there were in those days:

We believe much of the difference is a matter of attitude. During the depression it was hard, sometimes almost impossible, to get a job. Today there are page after page of help wanted ads ir the newspapers.

Back in the old days, there was a certain pride that prevented families from taking charity except as a last resort. Our society has changed over the past several decades. Today it appears that many families in strained financial circumstances feel that it is the duty of the government at some level to take care of Energy problems are "sapping away the strength of our nation." and Americans have been unwilling or too timid to deal with the problem, says President Jimmy Carter.

Carter's remarks came as some California drivers lined up for 12 blocks to buy gasoline at 99.9 cents a gallon, and New York Gov. Hugh Carey asked motorists to reduce their driving this month by 100 miles and ordered state agencies to cut their mileage by 5 percent.

Meanwhile, there are indications the government is partially to blame for the gasoline crunch in California, a federal official says. And there were signs of new pressure for a world oil price increase.

These and other energy worries add up to what Carter on Tuesday termed "one of the most serious threats to our nation in peacetime that I have seen.'

Carter was to meet today with California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. who Tuesday signed a law to keep gas stations open on weekends in an effort to make an most populous state workable.

Brown said state police would enforce his order, but added it would be hard to tell if a station was closed or simply out of gas. And he said it would be "totally inappropriate" for dealers to close their stations in a four-day protest against federal price controls. "They misread the temper of the people if they think they can close down with impunity." Brown said.

Six outraged drivers in Los Angeles pummeled two station attendants when the station ran out of fuel. And four persons were injured when an 80-year-old man waiting in a gas line in North Hollywood suffered a seizure and lost control of his car.

Jim Campbell, the California Service · Station Association official who spearheaded the protest movement, asked his members Tuesday to postpone the shutdown for 30 days "and listen to what the Energy Department has to say."

Department officials are considering whether to relax controls on gas dealers markups. Currently, dealers are allowed an average markup of 7.3 cents per gallon

House Overrides Clements Veto

- the 1973 rate - plus a three-cent allowance for costs.

Meanwhile, other dealer associations worried that a shutdown would spark customer reprisals or prompt the Justice Department to seek antitrust action.

'This would not hurt the Department of Energy or the oil companies and it would hurt the consumer and in turn would hurt the service stations," said Maurice Langelier, executive director of Massachusetts' Bay State Gasoline Retailers Association.

"If stations are closed down it will be because they're out of gas," said James Cresente, executive director of the Northern Omio Petroleum Retailers Association.

Carter praised efforts of business to reduce energy consumption but said "among the average American consumer that has not been the case." he said Congress showed "a remarkable demonstration of political timidity" in rejecting his plan for standby gas rationing authority. The president challenged Congress last week to come up with a plan of its own, but House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said he saw no way to meet the president's 90-day deadline.

"Right now, the votes aren't there for any type of plan," said O'Neill, who turned down an invitaton to join Senate leaders in working on a new proposal.

Meanwhile, it was reported that Kuwait and Algeria are pressing for an increase in crude oil prices, but a Caracas newspaper said Venezuela does not now plan to impose a planned price

A Federal Trade Commission official said that agency is beginning an investigaton into whether the threemonth loss of Iranian oil caused current gas shortages or whether oil companies are "using it as an excuse" to cut supplies.

Alred Dougherty, director of the FTC bureau of competition, said the agency was also concerned Energy Department price regulations "may have contributed to the failure of West Coast refiners to undertake investments that would allow them to process more Alaskan crude oil into gasoline."

Abalos Resigns Position With Hereford District

Paul Abalos, director of Parental Involvement for the Hereford Independent School District since 1971, resigned that position Tuesday to devote full time to his restaurant business.

Abalos submitted his resignation to Superintendent Harrell Holder, who said that applications are being accepted for the position.

"I've enjoyed it but I feel like I've gone as far as I can in the school district and I don't see another advancement for myself. So I'll try something else," Abalos said.

Abalos owns three restaurants--two in Hereford and one in Umbarger.

He was elected to the Hereford City Commission in 1974 and was re-elected two years later. He lost in a runoff for the justice of the peace office in Deaf Smith County last year.

Tower Says SALT

Opponents To Win

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, says opponents of the new strategic arms fimitation treaty should be able to muster more thanenough votes.

A total of 34 senators against the treaty with the Soviet Union would be enough to . keep it from going into effect.

"I would say that the absolute optimum vote against would be 51." Tower, an opponent, said Tuesday. A more realistic estimate would be 41 or 42 against, he added.

He counted 26 Republicans solidly against ratification or leaning that way. The senator joked, however, that "all such estimates are subject to change without notice."

Tower, chairman of the Republican. Policy Committee. held a news conference after the panel's weekly meeting.

Five Republicans are undecided, five are leaning toward ratification and five are outright supporters, he said.

Tower estimated the highest number of Democrats opposed to the trety to be 20. Among his reasons for opposing the treaty were its provision allowing the Russians to maintain defense systems the United States could not develop, the "break-out" capability it would give the Soviets at the treaty's expiration and the question of verification.

House Falls Short Of Approving I-R

Abalos-

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - With over two dozen members absent, the House has fallen short of approving a proposal to give voters the right to propose, pass and repeal laws by plebiscite.

An 89-33 vote Tuesday night kept the initiative and referendum proposal alive. but was shy of the 100 votes required for constitutional amendments.

The roll call indicated 27 House members were not present for the vote on one of the top issues of the legislative session that ends at midnight May 28.

Even if the House eventually approves the measure, its chances in the Senate at least in its present form - are seen as Rep.Carlisle Smith. D-Grand Prairie. the sponsor, said the measure probably goes too far for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who opposes initiative and referendum and holds the key to its approval or disapproval by the Senate.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice William H. Rehnquist are. in effect, ignoring a new federal financial disclosure law thanks to a ruling by a lower federal judge in New Orleans.

Before U.S. District Judge Robert Collins could issue his order Tuesday afternoon, however, six Supreme Court justices complied with the Ethics in Government Act by making public detailed financial statements for the first time in the court's history.

The court's ninth member. Lewis F. Powell Jr., has received permission to file his statement one month late.

Burger and Rehnquist reportedly had planned to release their financial statements about 5 p.m. EDT. But Collins' order clouded the situation.

Collins made his ruling after six federal judges from southern states charged the ethics law breached constitutional provisions for separation of powers in the federal government when applied to

In its first look at global grain production and demand prospects for 1979-80, the department said Tuesday the record-large harvests of the past year are not likely to be repeated.

"Even with generally favorable worldwide weather conditions, stocks are unlikely to show any further increase by the end of 1979-80," the department's outlook board said.

But officials cautioned that "uncertainty sarrounds" the grain situaton in the coming year because "most of the spring crops are yet to be planted" and that those will be affected by conditions throughout their growing season.

Total grain production · including wheat and coarse grains such as corn. oats and barley - was estimated at a record of 1.178 billion metric tons for the current year.

Counting global use, estimated at about 1.112 billion metric tons, and allowing for grain left over from previous crops, the world reserve this July 1 was estimated at 207 million metric tons, the most on record.

White Death

Avalanches of dry snow usually strike so swiftly that even when someone sees the slide coming, there is no chance to get out of its way. But some victims buried alive have been able to breathe in air pockets - like trapped miners - until rescue workers dug them out. "white death" avalanche, however, makes escape impossible. It consists of masses of very light, powdery snow.

Sen. W.E. Snelson, the Senate sponsor of the vetoed measure, said he was still checking votes late Tuesday for a possible Senate override. He added that a vote probably would be requested Wednesday.

Snelson, D-Midland, said he thought Clements incorrectly assessed the bill. because several counties already are exempt under state law from general game regulations.

"It's no crusade with me, but I think after the House action the Senate should be able to consider it and decide accordingly." Snelson said. He added that override attempts on other vetoed bills might be initiated if the present attempt is successful.

AUSTIN .. A veteran Panhandle area farmer from Bovina has been employed to assist the Agriculture and Livestock Committee of the Texas House of Representatives. House Speaker Bill Clayton, state representative of District 74, said that Ralph Roming asssumed permanent duties with the committee Tuesday.

'Ralph will serve as a resource person for the committee and his duties will include coordination of information gathering and dissemination of facts pertinent to agriculture," Clayton said.

In the position, Roming will work directly with chairman Forrest Green of Corsicana and the committee staff.

"I am particularly encouraged that Ralph has agreed to accept the position because being from our area and having

In the nostalgic setting of the E.B. Black house, members of Hereford Music Study Club reviewed the 62-year history of the club Monday afternoon during the annual closing luncheon

Mrs. W.T. Carmichael led the program, devoted to founders of the music club. Tribute was paid to the club's three surviving charter members, Mrs. S.O. -Wilson, Mrs. Glenn Snyder and Mrs. W.E. Dameron, all of whom were members of the club when it was formed in 1917.

Also, a gold pin from the National Federation of Music Clubs was awarded to Mrs. R.P. Coneway, an honorary member of the club. In making the presentation, Mrs. Carmichael explained each of the ornamental symbols engraved on the pin. Mrs. Coneway was present to accept the honor.

Mrs. C.J. Mountz, who joined the club one year after its formation, enhanced the history-rich program by describing the early club years. Another longtime member, Mrs. J.C. McCracken recounted how she had to audition for the club membership in 1923.

Mrs. Carmichael led the club in singing three American folk songs, "Jacob's Ladder," "Poor Wayfaring Stranger" and "Lonesome Valley." Mrs. A.J. Schroeter accompanied on the antique grand piano. Bringing the program to an emotional climax was Mrs. Mountz singing "When I Grow to Old to Dream." Mrs. McCracken was accompanist.

COMMENTARY

Donald F. Graff The Burger decade

"He looks like a chief justice," observed the president in announcing the appointment.

That was May 21, 1969, and Warren Earl Burger certainly did. White-haired, handsome, dignified, he could have been Central Casting's choice for the job.

He was, however, Richard Nixon's, whose hope it was that the new chief justice would preside over a new era on the United States Supreme Court, one of "strict constructionism" that through narrow interpretations of the Constitution would modify if not reverse the liberal impact of the court's previous and historic 16 years under Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Warren Burger during the decade past has certainly presided over a different court. It has dealt with questions obscenity, capital punishment, abortion, press liberties no less difficult and fundamental to American society than the civil liberties-oriented decisions for which the Warren court was most noted. But there the resemblance

Where the Warren decisions, if often controversial, clearly stated broadly applicable principles, the current court has as often shown itself divided in opinion, limited in vision and ambiguous in reasoning. Rather than clarifying issues, it has confused them, leading to further inconclusive litigation.

The court has indeed taken a conservative course, as desired by the president who largely shaped it. But it has not done so cohesively. It has not developed and expressed a coherent philosophy and a consistent approach to basic constitutional questions.

That may or may not be desirable. A criticism of the largely cohesive, consistent Warren court was that it usurped powers, that it often was in fact not adjudicating but legislating.

There would appear to be less debate, however, about another characteristic of the present court — the dissension that increasingly marks even its conservative majority. This is evidenced in the notable increase in the number of dissents and separate opinions on a single issue, where failure to reach a clear consensus raises problems for lower courts in applying the rulings. And in the non-consensus, the chief justice, to whom compromise does not come easily, is not infrequently at outspoken odds with his

This is, in fact, not a "Burger court" in the sense that its predecessor was the "Warren court." The present chief justice has not asserted leadership through either personality or intellect. Nor, at least on the evidence of his first 10 years, has he written a place for himself in history with his

These have the appearance of having been shaped less by the validity or otherwise of points at issue than according to preconceived principle. His "community standards" answer to the definition of obscenity, for example, has been read in some communities as writ to apply the standards of Cedar Rapids to Las Vegas, prompting a snarl of litigation on the question of how far local authority extends over material disseminated nationversial series of press rights decisions of the last several years might well be called the work of the "White court' since the most crucial have been written by Associate Justice Byron White.

If the chief justice has made any historic mark to date, it is as an administrator and reformer. He has taken his role as overseer of the federal judiciary seriously. The current expansion of federal judgeships by more than a third owes a great deal to Burger's personal lobbying efforts in

Burger has also assumed the role of conscience of the legal brotherhood, pressing a somewhat reluctant profession to put its house in order and shape up its standards.

The Burger tenure may be far from over with much history still to be written. But at this point, while Warren Burger looks every bit as much the chief justice as he did 10 years ago, the jury is still out on his performance as

Ump Strike To End

NEW YORK (AP) - Major reached but confirmed that talks league baseball umpires are expected to return to work this weekend under terms of an agreement that The Associated Press learned was reached between their union and the two leagues Tuesday.

Details of the agreement ending the dispute that has kept the regular umpires on the sidelines since spring training were presented to a joint meeting of the major leagues in Chicago today. The settlement was expected to be announced officially Thursday.

Both sides have been pressing for an end to the work stoppage and meeting almost daily for the last week. It was a marathon bargaining session that started Monday afternoon and lasted into the early morning hours of Tuesday that apparently signaled the breakthrough of the final issues.

Both the National and American Leagues denied that any final settlement had been were making progress.

"We still have a way to go," said American League President Lee MacPhail. I would prefer not to discuss the issues.'

But MacPhail agreed that the atmosphere between the two sides have improved consider-

"We're a lot closer than when we started," he said. "We were eons apart then. Obviously, we've been trying to get it closed out and it's been a good faith effort on both sides. I'm hopeful, certainly more positive about this then I've been until

Richie Phillies, attorney for the umpires, said, "We are on the threshold of reaching a comprehensive agreement between the umpires and major league baseball which should satisfy all parties and insure labor peace for at least three years and beyond."

Terms of the settlement were unavailable although it was understood that as part of it, the leagues had agreed to employ an extra crew of umpires. allowing each of its officiating units to have some time off during the regular season. The umpires also had been seeking improvements in salaries that range from $17,000 to $40,000, and increases in their $53 per diem expense allowan-

Technically, the umpires were not involved in a strike. Such an action is barred under terms of their collective bargaining agreement that lasts until 1982. But the effect of their work stoppage was the same, forcing baseball to use minor league and sandlot umpires as replacements.

At the start of the season, players and managers were instructed to go easy in arguments with the replacement umpires, but tempers have grown shorter in the last two weeks with ejections and

Tri-Conference Meet Boasts Top Athletes

AUSTIN: Texas (AP) - Such fierce Southwest Conference rivals as Texas Longhorns and Texas Aggies will be cheering for each other at the historic Tri-Conference track and field meet Friday night, promises Texas Coach Cleburne Price.

The meet will match three conferences - Southwest, Southeastern and Western Athletic against each other.

Price even mentioned the possibility Tuesday of a 1,600-meter relay team of three Longhorns and an Aggie.

Texas' 1,600-meter relay team has the best time in the nation - 3:04:64 - but anchorman Michael Paul will miss the meet to compete in the Pan American trials in Trinidad.

Spurs At Home For Game Six

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) -The embattled Washington Bullets, trailing upstart San Antonio 3-2 in their best-of-seven NBA Eastern Conference championship series, say there's no way the Spurs could win a seventh game Friday night in Landover, Md.

That, counters Spurs Coach Doug Moe is "an idiot statement" because there's still the little matter of tonight's sixth game on the Spurs home

After the Bullets fought off the Spurs 107-103 Sunday in Eandover, Washington Coach Dick Motta said, "They came up here on Cloud Nine or 10 or whatever they fly on. But Wednesday, for the first time in the series, they'll have the pressure on them. They don't want to come back up here and play us in Game 7. No way they could beat us."

'That's an idiot statement.' Moe scoffed. "He may be 99.9 percent sure they'll win Game Seven. But I can give you a 100 percent gaurantee they won't win a seventh game up there if we win Game Six.

"I want to look at the sixth game as a do or die situation because that's the way we need to approach it." added Moe. We don't want to go back up there. We've got ourselves in an enviable position and we have to do everything we can possibly do to win this ballgame."

The Central Division champion Spurs won their only game ever in Landover to open the series and raced to a 3-1 lead after winning both of their games at home, 116-114 last Wednesday and 118-102 last Friday.

And as for pressure, Moe says the Spurs will never feel more than they did May 9 when they edged Philadelphia in the semifinal series to shake the disasterous 10-year playoff drought for the Dallas-San Antonio franchise.

The Spurs had taken a 3-1 lead in that series, only to see it evaporate to 3-3. They won 111-108 with a last-second rally.

There's been no more pressure in the history of the franchise than there was for the seventh Philly game," said more pressure than this. We've already won a series, so nobody can say we're chokers and never

By that reasoning, the defending champion Bullets-feeling the pressure of near elimination from the playoffs.

Tuesday.

"I think we came out of our playing this way, there's no reason we can't win the next two games," he added.

Grevey and Tom Henderson mired in a playoff-long slump, finally took advantage of San Antonio's double-teaming of explosive Washington forwards Bobby Dandridge and Elvin Hayes, to combine for 49 points in Sunday's victory.

Moe successfully used the

Basketball Wins Over Graduation

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) -It might come down to a question of basketball or diplomas, but local school officials have already yielded to basketball rather than chase San Antonio's first NBA championship playoff games 85 miles away to Austin.

Officials here have agreed to shift high school graduation ceremonies to accomodate the San Antonio Spurs if the Spurs can eliminate Washington in the Eastern Conference finals and move into the best-of-seven championship series against either Phoenix or Seattle.

The 16,000-seat HemisFair Arena, home of the Spurs, will be used the last two weeks of May and the first week in June for commencement exercises for local high schools. The historic downtown Municipal Auditorium, traditional site of the ceremonies, was destroyed by fire last January.

Meanwhile, the spurs can eliminate Washington tonight in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference finals and would need the Arena at least twice for the championship series. A third game in San Antonio would be required if the championship series went more than five games.

The Spurs, who made it past the first round of the playoffs this year for the first time in their six ABA and NBA seasons here, had opened negotiations with the University of Texas for the use of the 15,500-seat Superdrum in Austin, Spurs President Angelo Drossos said Tuesday.

'In the event the schools could not change their plans, we had to look for a place to play." said Drossos. "The University one we could have used."

But San Antonio Independent School District trustees voted Monday night to shift the May 29 Fox Tech High School but I like the pressure before a graduation from the Arena to

John Shines For Yankees

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Things have suddenly turned sour for Mike Marshall. But Tommy John's pitching is as sweet as ever Marshall, the Minnesota Twins' relief ace, has been beaten twice by his former Texas teammates in two games. On Tuesday night he took the mound in the eighth inning and threw gasoline on a Rangers rally, yielding a run-scoring double by Jim Sundberg and a two-run single by John Ellis as Texas beat the Twins 9-8.

John, meanwhile, continues to work his magic for the New York Yankees. He has won eight games and has yet to lose one. He twirled a seven-hitter against Detroit Tuesday night and rode Chris Chambliss' two home runs to an 11-3 romp over the Tigers.

In the rest of the American League, Boston edged Baltimore 3-2 in 10 innings. Cleveland beat Toronto 5-3, the Chicago White Sox shaded Oakland 2-1, California nosed out Milwaukee 2-1 and, in a twi-night double-header, Kan-sas City defeated Seattle 7-4 in the opener before Seattle won the second game 6-2.

Minnesota's Mike Bacsik went into the eighth inning leading 8-4 thanks to Ron Jack son's two-run double that broke a sixth-inning tie and solo home runs by John Castino and Roy

Smalley in the seventh. But Johnny Grubb, who had hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning, led off the eighth with a single and, two outs later. Richie Zisk doubled him home. Then Zisk scored on Pat Putnam's single. When Mike Jorgensen/walked, Marshall Angels 2, Brewers 1 Ben Oglivie homered for Milwaukee in the fifth inning. But Bobby Grich hit an RBI double for the Angels in the seventh, then Don Baylor beat the Brewers when he led off the bottom of the ninth with a homer off Mike Caldwell.

Royals 7-2, Mariners 4-6 Clint Hurdle broke a tie with a fifth-inning homer and Darrell Porter hit a three-run blast in the sixth to power Kansas City to its opening-game victory over Seattle. In the nightcap the Mariners came back with four Yankees 11, Tigers 3 runs in the eighth, the John, who finished with five tie-breaker on Ruppert Jones' Alamo Stadium.

The North East School District board has agreed, Drossos said, to reset the Churchill High School ceremonies May 27 should the Spurs need the Arena that day to play Phoenix.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Services are expensive

DEAR DR. LAMB - I read in your column about the new medicine Tagamet. I have had an ulcer for 30 years and have chewed lots of Gelusil and drunk lots of Maalox. I carried milk with me almost everywhere I went. I was willing to try anything one more time.

I went to a local clinic and tried desperately to get a prescription for Tagamet and was told I would have to have a check up first. I couldn't get the prescription without the examination so I submitted. I got the bill yesterday and waited a day to cool off before I wrote to you. You wouldn't believe it but the bill was $158 just for X rays. I could have told them they wouldn't find an ulcer in my chest. When everything was done I got the prescription for a total of $400 and three days time.

I would recommend Tagamet for ulcer sufferers but try to get your prescription without the examination. The pills really do work but at 29 cents each and four a day, they are expensive. DEAR READER - I can understand why you would be annoyed. People often feel that when they have had expensive examinations that don't reveal any significant disease that they have spent money unnecessarily. That really isn't true. I know it's expensive but perhaps you should be thankful that nothing more serious was found.

Doctors can'f just prescribe medicine on the basis what their patients tell them their problem is. In your case, for example, what if you had had an early cancer of the stomach which could have been cured and wasn't found because you didn't have any X rays done. In that case you could have lost your life because of the lack of concern by your physicians. The way this problem is usually solved is that you have a family doctor who manages your medical problems. In your case your family doctor should have known that you've had an ulcer because he would probably have treated you for years for it. It would have been unnecessary for him to have done a complete total reexamination to find out that you had a peptic ulcer and to give you a

DEAR DR. LAMB Please send me your information on spastic or irrit-able colon. I'm 52 years old and have had all kinds of X rays taken for the past 10 years. The results have always been the same. Can't find anything. I wish the doctor could examine me when the pain is there. I'm sure all people feel the same way. At the present time I'm taking Librax and find it most helpful. Also I had my 10th child at age 43 and would like to know if Mother Nature is still out to get me.

DEAR READER - I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable Or Spastic Colon And Constipation, that you requested. Spasms of the colon are muscle spasms, analagous in many respects to a cramp in the calf of your leg. The wall of your colon is a layer of muscle. The intermittent contraction and relaxation of this muscular tube moves the food residue along.

The spasms or contractions that many people experience, of course, are not constant. It just seems to be the nature of things that the spasms don't occur when the patient is in the doctor's office. In that respect the human body is much like our automobiles and electrical appliances that have intermittent disorders.

cine. It's a combination of Librium which is a tranquilizer and an antispasmodic. The latter blocks the nerves that stimulate the muscles in your colon to overcontraction or spasm.

Gradually increase the bulk in your diet, particularly bran. You can get that from whole wheat cereals or if that doesn't appeal to you, you can mix ordinary crude bran in some other food of your choice such as apple

Many people with colon problems do a lot better if they eliminate coffee and all decaffeinated coffee prod-ucts entirely. They should also eliminate tea and other drinks that contain caffeine. You might try it and see if that helps. Then there are people who are intolerant to milk but people who have this difficulty usually have constant problems as long as they're using milk or milk products.

Many people don't realize that when they switch their diet to include more bulk, the gas problem may be considerably worse for about three weeks. That's why I often recommend gradually easing into in-creasing the bulk in the diet. If you understand this in advance and can live through that three-week period, usually your colon functions better after that and the problem eases off.

Connally: Runaway Politics To Blame For Nation's Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Campaigning for president, John B. Connally is blaming runaway politics for the woes of inflation. He ought to know.

After all, Connally was the chief economic spokesman for a Republican administration that did as much as any to tune economic policy to the political Richard M. Nixon tried to step on the gas and the brakes at the same time in order to check both unemployment and inflation in advance of the 1972 presidential campaign. As secretary of the treasury, Connany, then a Democrat, was both a draftsman and a salesman for the Nixon economic program.

He doesn't say much about those days now. But the economic platform he offers as a candidate doesn't sound much like the one he helped Nixon shape.

The most dramatic of Nixon's economic moves was the wage and price freeze he imposed on Aug. 15, 1971. Connally was one of the economic advisers who urged him to do it; indeed, Nixon later called his treasury secretary "the architect of the new economic policy." After the 90-day freeze came mandatory wage and price controls, which remained in effect through the 1972 election and were lifted early in 1973.

When Connally left the Cabinet, seven years ago today, government spending and money supply policies were expansionary, and unemployment was in check. Wage and price controls were firmly in place, and inflation was in check.

Those are the kind of numbers any president welcomes in the springtime of his re-election campaign year. It didn't last - while controls held the inflation rate to 3.4 percent, they ended early in 1973 and prices spurted upward. A year after controls came off, the inflation rate was 8.8 percent, double what it had been in the 12 months before the freeze.

The evidence is circumstantial, but the economic policies of 1971 and 1972 did fit nicely with the needs of a campaigning

Connally now says there has been too much politics in U.S. economic decision making for the past 50 years. "All too often the formulation of economic policy has been guided less by the rules of economics than by the requirements of re-election," he said.

He told the Economic Club of Detroit one of the rules is that controls are bount to fail. Whether voluntary or mandatory, direct controls over wages and prices will not succeed because they only treat symptoms," Connally said.

'They do not go to the causes." "We must face the reality that the cause of runaway inflation is runaway politics." he said in Detroit, criticizing the deficit spending he had praised when Nixon proposed what was then a record peacetime deficit

STATE CAPITAL Highlights ~~Sidelights by Lyndell Williams

In The House

Almost three weeks ago, it appeared certain no legislation would be passed this session raising the state usury limit on home loans. Capitol observers had predicted before the session began that the usury law would be under attack but an announcement by Gov. Clements that he would veto any such bills stopped proposed legislation in its tracks.

Then along came Fannie Mae-the Federal National Mortgage Association—the prime buyer of VA and FHA home loans. Fannie Mae said it was backing off on accepting the low-interest VA and FHA loans in Texas because some lenders might be violating the usury law by charging "points." Just before Fannie Mae's announcement, the Department of Housing and Urban Development said it was hiking the interest rate on VA and FHA loans to 10 percent. That meant lenders in Texas that had been charging points on VA and FHA loans to get the interest rates up to present money market levels might be in violation of the usury law.

Clements had said he would re-evaluate his position on legislation raising the interest rate ceiling if developments warranted such a move on his part. Fannie Mae's announcement meaning a tight money market would probably be getting tighter - moved Clements to reverse himself, and when the governor did. he called in Sen. Bill Meier and Rep. Jerry Donaldson to discuss their bills raising the legal interest rate allowed by

The House this week passed Donaldson's bill with provisions that Clements said he could accept. Meanwhile, there was still some question whether or not VA and FHA loans are exempted from the state usury laws. "Vagueness" over the law had been one of Fannie Mae's prime reasons for backing away from taking VA and FHA loans in Texas. And an investigation into whether there had been "collusion" between Fannie Mae and lenders was also underway. Sen. Bill Patman and Texas AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard had leveled that charge after Fannie Mae's announcement heels of Gov. Clements' revelation that he would veto bills hiking the interest rate unless something changed ? his mind. It took the House six rollowed so closely on the hours to make up its mind about Donaldson's bill rais ing the interest rate ceiling to 12 percent. However, the legislation includes a "floating" ceiling, meaning that rates cannot exceed the interest rates paid on Treasury notes by more than 2 percent.

Another alteration to Donaldson's bill is a "selfdestruct" provision, meaning the law will expire in 1981 Lenders won't be able to charge points (one perrowed) to sellers but they will to buyers under the House bill. Also, home buyers would be able to refinance (should interest rates decline drastically) without paying penalties.

"It may be the best movie of its kind ever made."

service as warm blankets by removing all the electric wires. With small scissors I snipped a very small hole where the wires are located and pulled them out through the hole. Do this in several places - along the foot and on the underside. After wiring is removed, take a needle and thread and whip the holes together. They will not be very noticeable after blanket is washed and fluff dried. It can be

Mrs. Peyton is a disaster simulation consultant. She and her mostly plastic ar. I soot and the blood concoction. While my wound dried, a fireman burned a hole in my shirt. It would be up to paramedics and doctors at the "crash" scene to make the proper diagnosis. A woman wrote my supposed vital signs on my arm as another clue for the medics.

Buses rolled up to the Delta Airlines hangar used as a staging area, and the scenario was ready to begin. We were a jovial, if gruesome, group as our bus splashed through the remnants of a heavy rain that fell minutes before we

The feeling began to change as we approached a remote section of the airfield, where an orange Braniff jetliner was parked. Its insignia were blocked out by paper and tape, because the plane also was playing a role. It was Universal Airlines flight 717, which crashed during a sunset landing. Ours was the last bus to pull up at the scene. Baggage was strewn around the plane, and so were our "wounded" comrades. They were lying on the wet runway or in nearby fields. Some staggered around as if dazed and others lay in pools of realistic-looking "blood." With darkness falling, the whole thing was losing its picnic

It was getting uncomfortable. It looked real.

At 8:15 p.m., sirens sounded the beginning of the exercise. Within seconds, winking lights of a firetruck were seen in the distance, heading for the crash site. Within three minutes, the first fire truck arrived. It signaled a steady parade of emergency

Portable generators ignited floodlights, and pulsing red emergency lights flashed from scores of vehicles.

As instructed, I wandered around the area as if dazed. My wandering took me past the "bodies" of several colleagues. some of whom were beginning to warm up to the parts they

'Medic, for God's sake, help us," some screamed, "Over here, over here," velled others.

Iwo women began screaming. Others called out names 'Carol" and "Sheila" rang through the cold and eerie night

My stroll was finally intercepted at 8.55 p.m. by airport Public Safety Officer Alvy Dodson. He walked toward me and took me by the arm. "Are you okay?" he asked. "Fine." I said. "You're sure?" "Yes, fine.

Dodson walked past me, but looked back over his shoulder. Spotting the burned back of my shirt, he took me firmly by the arm and led me to the triage area.

Triage is common in wartime and in a disaster. It is the grisly practice of determining which victims can be saved and working on them first.

Those drill victims who were "dead" were loaded aboard refrigerated trucks that served as mobile morgues. Those who would die despite treatment or who would live despite treatment were passed over. Those who needed treatment were assigned a priority

I had been told before the exercise began that my burn, some 13 inches long, required treatment by burn experts, lest I slip-I sat on the cold runway. A nurse noted by vital signs and bandaged my back. A doctor who bore a slight resemblance to Robert Redford took a cursory look at my back and said. "abrasion."

I wanted to say, "Like hell it's an abrasion. That's one hell of a burn, buddy

But the rules were such that I couldn't help him make his diagnosis

A nursing supervisor saw the burn and asked that the doctor confirm his diagnosis. "Abrasion." he said. There would be no flight to Parkland Hospital for me. I was assigned the lowest priority of care - uninjured or minor injury The drill concluded, and we were all bused back to the hangar for sandwiches, fried chicken and hot coffee.

I railed against the doctor's competence, caught up in the Friday marning, the day after the drill. I called Parkland and talked with a doctor who is expert in burn cases.

I outlined what had happened to me. He told me that a third-degree burn patient, given my vital signs and the size of my "wound" could go into shock and die during the period I went without treatment.

Would that be a remote chance of death?" I asked.

"Better than remote." he said. Thanks, doc.
