New Hereford city manager on job

Chester Nolen, 42, to succeed Darwin McGill

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Since his selection in May for the position of city manager of the City of Hereford, Chester Nolen has looked forward to getting back to the career choice he made early on.

Thursday, he realized that goal, arriving here to take the job being vacated by Darwin McGill who will retire at the end of August. Nolen was a deputy city manager in Odessa for about 15 years, then took a city manager's job in Bloomfield, N.M., where he stayed until 1987.

He was appointed general manager of Harlingen Waterworks in March 1987, overseeing a staff of 130 employees and responsible for water and sewer services in an area with approximately 70,000 population.

The new Hereford city manager believes that his job here is to help the city commission develop goals and objectives that will improve the community.

"All cities have problems and some have the same ones," Nolen says.

"I don't know the situation in Hereford, yet," he continues, "but cities today are faced with a diminishing tax base and an increase of demand for services, such as health, recreation, water, sewer, streets and garbage."

He calls attention to "infrastructures wearing out," noting, for instance, that parts of water and sewer systems were installed many years ago and need replacing or bringing up-to-date.

Prior to arriving on the scene Thursday, Nolen looked through Hereford's city charter, examined city ordinances and studied the city budget.

"I'm going to take a wait and see attitude, learn the desires of the public, before making any changes," Nolen declares. He emphasizes that getting back into city government fulfills a goal he's had.

He intends to have an "open door" policy at his office.

"I want citizens to know they can come to see me, without an appointment, if they want to. They may have to wait a few minutes, but I'll see them," Nolen says.

He began his first day on the job with a staff meeting of city employees and during the day, welcomed some visitors, including some of the city commissioners to his office.

The 42-year-old native of Kermit earned his bachelor's degree from Sul Ross State University and accumulated graduate hours at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin in Odessa.

His wife, Sally, will come to Hereford about the middle of the month when they can move into a home here.

Mrs. Nolen was employed in the business office of a school district in the Harlingen area but intends to return to college after settling in Hereford.

"She lacks only about a year having her degree so she plans to commute to West Texas State University to finish her degree," says Nolen.

One of the first items on his schedule will be a city commission meeting, just days after his arrival.

The commission meets Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Lawmakers close to win on lottery

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards says she thinks lawmakers are nearing a winning combination on lottery legislation.

"I think the opposition - either out of selfishness or out of sincerity - are going to use whatever means they can. But I think in the long haul we'll probably win it this time," the governor said.

As lawmakers seek to balance the state budget, it boils down to approving a lottery or raising taxes, Richards said in an interview Thursday.

Richards has pushed the lottery since taking office as a way to raise needed funds.

"I mean, the choice is they're either going to vote for a lottery or they're going to vote for a tax bill," she said. "And I think their inclination is to vote for the lottery."

Lottery legislation has died in 1983, 1985, 1986, 1987, 1988, 1989, 1990 and earlier this year. Opponents say they again will find the votes to defeat it.

But in the Legislature's current special session, lawmakers are struggling to bridge a projected $4.8 billion spending deficit.

The comptroller's office projects that a state-run lottery would raise $450 million for the 1992-93 budget cycle and more than $1 billion annually when in full operation.

While starting a Texas lottery would require voter approval of a constitutional amendment, the governor noted there is widespread public support for the games. One recent poll showing a pro-lottery sentiment at more than 80 percent.

"The money has got to come from somewhere, and the public enthusiastically endorses a lottery," Richards said. "We ought to give them that right, to determine whether they'd rather have that than taxes."

When the House considered a lottery bill during the regular session last winter, supporters failed to find the 100 votes needed to approve the proposed constitutional amendment.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said Thursday he's not certain how much support there is for a lottery. He said a poll late Wednesday showed 84-43 in favor, but that leaves many in the 150-member chamber still noncommittal.

Asked when the House might debate the lottery bill, Lewis replied, "When we get the votes."

Anti-gambling forces said they still have enough supporters to block passage.

"As far as we know, there's not a single person who's told us they are changing their vote," said Sue Cox of the group Texans Who Care.

Hereford onions being shipped

The onion and potato harvests are underway in Deaf Smith County and the area. Workers at Griffin & Brand, west of the city, are shown bagging the famed 1015 onions here Thursday. The onion harvest is projected to last another week, while the potato harvest is in full swing.

Bill on unemployment

Bush threatens veto on benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress is nearing a possible veto showdown with President Bush over extending jobless benefits as lawmakers wade through a pile of bills and prepare to begin their summer recess.

The House planned to give final congressional approval today to a $5.2 billion bill giving people who have depleted the basic 26 weeks of unemployment compensation up to 20 extra weeks of government checks. The Senate approved the measure on a voice vote late Thursday.

White House aides have threatened a veto of the bill, asserting that the recession is over and that the measure will drive up the deficit.

With lawmakers hoping to race home for the August recess at the close of business today, Congress tackled - or sidestepped - lingering issues:

-The Senate approved $3.2 billion for the B-2 stealth bomber as it worked on the fiscal 1992 defense authorization bill.

-House Democratic leaders, facing a hostile rank-and-file reception to a plan to add 5 cents per gallon to the gasoline tax, put off debate of a $153.5 billion highway bill until September.

The June unemployment rate was 7.8 percent, a figure that translated into 8.8 million jobless Americans. After long promising action against the 13-month-old recession, Democrats argued that their measure to help the long-term unemployed was still needed.

"The message we're sending tonight is help, at last, is on its way," Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said of the measure.

Republicans offered their own scaled-down bill, a $3.4 billion measure offering up to 10 weeks of extra payment. It was defeated on a voice vote, but not before GOP leaders argued that they could guarantee Bush would sign it.

"For the unemployed worker who's looking for help, the choice ought to be pretty clear," said Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

The GOP alternative paid for itself by enhancing federal efforts to collect loans from students and other borrowers, and by auctioning off commercial radio frequencies.

But the Democratic version, sponsored by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, would borrow the money, thus driving up the federal deficit and prompting Bush's veto threat.

The amount of the extra unemployment benefits would depend on how many people are jobless within a state. At the very least, each qualified unemployed person who has used up benefits would be entitled to four extra weeks of payments.

If enacted, the extra payments would be made between Sept. 1 and next June 30. It would cover people who lost their jobs on or after last April 1.

Currently, the law allows an extra 13 weeks of payments for certain people who have used up their 26 weeks of basic payments. But critics argue that its requirements are overly strict, with the result that the extra weeks apply only in Rhode Island, Maine, Alaska and Puerto Rico.

The measure would also permanently treat newly discharged military veterans the same as unemployed civilians.

Until now, out-of-work veterans have had to wait four weeks to receive 13 weeks of benefits. Under the bill, veterans would face the same timetable as civilians: a one-week wait for 26 weeks of benefits.

Atlantis thunders into orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - The shuttle Atlantis thundered into orbit today with five astronauts and a communications satellite that will expand NASA's switchboard system in space.

The 100-ton shuttle roared from its seaside launch pad at 11:02 a.m. EDT, blasting flame from twin booster rockets. It tore through a hazy sky and headed out over the Atlantic Ocean.

Two minutes into the flight, the solid rocket boosters dropped empty into the ocean as planned. The shuttle reached its 184-mile-high destination 6 1/2 minutes later on the thrust of three main liquid fuel engines.

The flight had been delayed three times in the past two weeks, twice by bad parts and once by bad weather.

The flight, delayed three times including Thursday morning, almost was delayed again when an electronics unit in the crew cabin malfunctioned Thursday night. The component translates commands between shuttle computers and systems in the cargo bay, including door latches and the satellite stored there.

Atlantis' nine-day journey 184 miles above Earth marks the 42nd shuttle mission for NASA. Commander John Blaha and the four other astronauts trained for the trip for more than a year.

Their main task is sending out a $120 million Tracking and Data Relay Satellite similar to three already in orbit. An attached rocket is to boost it 22,300 miles above the equator.

After seeing the satellite off, the Atlantis astronauts are to perform medical tests to study effects of weightlessness, and other experiments.

Blaha's crew consists of pilot Michael Baker, a space rookie, and veterans Shannon Lucid, G. David Low and James Adamson.

Baker tries peace plan idea with Palestinians

JERUSALEM (AP) - After inching Israel toward a Middle East peace conference, U.S. Secretary of State James A. Baker III today undertook the task of trying to squeeze concessions from reluctant Palestinians.

Baker met with three leading Palestinians after getting Israel's agreement on Thursday to attend talks on condition the Jewish state gets its way on who represents the Palestinians.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's conditions are: no negotiators tied to the Palestine Liberation Organization and none from east Jerusalem or outside the occupied territories.

But the Palestinians Baker met with - Faisal Hussein, Zakariya al-Agha and Hanan Ashrawi - have rejected Israel's demands. Moreover, all three are identified with the PLO, and they presented Baker with a letter from the organization calling for a role in the negotiations for Palestinians from East Jerusalem.

Hussein, himself an east Jerusalemite, said on Thursday he was ready to hear Baker's proposals but suggested that little room was left for compromise in the dispute over negotiators.

"Conditions concerning the Palestinian representation are a matter concerning the Palestinians, and not anyone else," Hussein told a news conference on Thursday night. Shamir met with Baker for 90 minutes earlier in the day and later claimed the Americans had accepted the Israeli conditions. He also hinted that any attempt at compromise could scuttle the peace talks.

He said, "We have agreements with the representatives of the United States about the Palestinian component in this delegation, that there won't be PLO people, that there won't be people from east Jerusalem, that there won't be people from the Diaspora" - Palestinians scattered in various countries.

The issue of Palestinian representation "is so important that if they propose to us some solution that we are not ready to accept, this is likely to change the whole situation," Shamir said on Israel TV.

Foreign Minister David Levy, in an interview published in today's editions of the Haaretz newspaper, said the responsibility for starting talks now lay with Palestinians. "It is possible to say that the ball is in the Palestinian court."

It has taken Baker six trips to the region to win Israel's agreement to a U.S.- and Soviet-sponsored conference that would lead to what the Jewish state has always demanded - direct negotiations with each Arab state.

Syria, Jordan and Lebanon now have agreed to the formula, which is expected to include a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation to discuss autonomy for the 1.7 million residents of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. Both sides say the composition of the Palestinian delegation is a matter of content that will shape the course of talks, including whether the future of Jerusalem is negotiable.

Israel annexed east Jerusalem after capturing it in the 1967 Middle East war and says it is not up for bargaining. The Palestinians want the eastern sector to be their capital.

Israel also seized the West Bank from Jordan and the Gaza Strip from Egypt in the 1967 conflict.

Shamir said after meeting with Baker that he would recommend to his government that Israel attend a superpower-sponsored peace conference, on condition the dispute over Palestinian negotiators is resolved.

He will probably win the backing of the 21-member coalition Cabinet at its Sunday session.

Two ministers from ultra-rightist parties and Housing Minister Ariel Sharon said they would vote against Shamir. But other hard-liners said Shamir persuaded them Israel would not make any territorial concessions to the Arabs even if it attended peace talks.

Staff 'perks' draw criticism

AUSTIN (AP) - Despite a state budget crisis, higher education officials say it is necessary to spend thousands of dollars on car and home allowances and private country club memberships in order to attract top-quality employees.

Published reports Thursday showed that about 1,400 University of Texas System employees earn more than $100,000 per year, and some UT officials received thousands of dollars in perquisites.

The reports come at a time when higher education officials are fighting proposals ranging from cuts to small increases in funding to public colleges and universities.

Lawmakers are trying to write a budget for 1992-93 facing a projected $4.8 billion shortfall to continue current services.

"It's a question of being competitive in some areas," said R.D. Burck, UT system vice chancellor for business affairs. "If we are going to be competitive, we have to have a package to recruit these top quality people."

House Speaker Gib Lewis said the expenses may seem high, but agreed that in some cases they are needed to lure quality officials.

"To get the quality of people that we need in the university systems, to get the prestige that we need, you have to do that from time to time," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

But Gov. Ann Richards said the expenditures raise "questions that are legitimate in the public's minds, in everyone's mind - whether the money is being directed appropriately."

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram and Houston Chronicle filed requests for the information on higher education expenses under the Texas Open Records Act with both the UT and Texas A&M University systems. A&M officials said they were still gathering information.

The spending allowances at the UT system come from so-called local funds, which include money universities get from student charges, private donations, endowments and proceeds from the Permanent University Fund. The PUF is a state trust fund shared by the UT and A&M systems.

State Comptroller John Sharp has said some local funds are being used to pay for non-essential services. He said state taxpayers could save $140 million over the next two years if universities use the interest earnings from their local funds on programs now paid by the state.

The Chronicle reported that the UT system has used local funds to buy more than $240,000 in furniture since 1988.

The UT-M.D. Anderson Cancer Center spends $1.3 million per year in local funds to give car allowances to 226 employees, the Chronicle reported.

The UT-Health Science Center at Houston spends $700,000 per year on car allowances for employees earning more than $100,000 per year. At the UT-Medical Branch at Galveston, car allowances run $152,000 annually from local funds for employees making more than $100,000 a year.

At UT-Austin, $33,196 per year in local funds are used to buy country club memberships for about 40 members of the athletic department, the Chronicle stated.

Hans Mark, the UT system chancellor, receives $190,865 from local funds. Mark's perquisites include an $8,400 annual car allowance and $1,560 in private club memberships.

Three vice chancellors receive salaries ranging from $178,500 to $180,000 from local funds, in addition to allowances for private clubs. Charles Mullins, executive vice chancellor for health services, receives a $66,000 annual housing allowance.

Of the 1,400 employees of the UT system earning more than $100,000, dozens more exceed $250,000, according to the Star-Telegram.

TV personality Dr. James "Red" Duke of the UT-Health Science Center at Houston draws $320,000 per year. That sum includes $121,000 in state money and $199,000 from other sources, the newspaper said.

Topping the salary list was Dr. William Ring, professor of surgery at UT's Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas, who receives $340,900. That includes $117,000 in state money and $223,900 from other sources, the newspaper said.

County agent attends conference

Dennis Newton, left, Deaf Smith County Agricultural Extension Agent, visits with a plant breeder from Pioneer Hi-Bred International at a seminar held recently in Johnstown, Iowa. Newton was one of 38 instructors and Extension leaders from across the country invited to attend the conference, which included programs in biotechnology and other research areas.

Bush, Gorbachev agree on most global problems

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush appears to have lost any doubts about Mikhail Gorbachev's commitment to difficult reforms and he's proclaiming that the two superpowers now see eye-to-eye on most global problems.

Bush returned home from the Soviet Union late Thursday with a new optimism about U.S.-Soviet relations. He also was buoyed by Israel's acceptance of terms for a Middle East peace conference sponsored by Washington and Moscow.

"This indeed is good news," Bush said after reading a wire service report that Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir had informed Secretary of State James A. Baker III that Israel would sit down with Arab neighbors in an effort to end hostilities.

"There is still a lot of hard work ahead but this is bound to be good news for peace in the Middle East. ... So let's mark this one up as good tidings and I hope that things go forward right now in a good way," the president said.

Similarly, he was upbeat about his meetings with Gorbachev, where he signed a landmark nuclear arms reduction treaty and discussed a number of thorny issues.

"A lot has been accomplished ... the establishment of a good mood, a good view as far as future relations go," Bush said.

Bush, who was meeting with his Cabinet this morning before heading to his Camp David, Md., retreat for the weekend, must submit the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty to the Senate for ratification.

Bush refused to make major concessions with the Soviets in order to make the treaty strong enough to win Senate approval.

The summit was seen as a political plus for both Bush and Gorbachev. In Moscow, Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Vitaly Churkin said it enhanced both leaders, pointedly adding, "Maybe both of them are going to have elections next year."

Administration officials who helped Bush prepare for talks with Gorbachev had expressed skepticism in recent weeks about the Soviet leader's intentions.

Indiana family experiences kindness of town in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) - An Indiana couple's "dream vacation" was sharply interrupted when an automobile collision left them temporarily stranded in a small Texas town with two sons, including one with muscular dystrophy.

But Jewel Boyer said she learned about the kindness of strangers after an automobile totaled the family's van.

"It makes me cry to know that people are so good," said Ms. Boyer, who is from Hammond, Ind. She spoke in a Thursday telephone interview from Junction, Texas.

They're still worried about how to replace their van. But they have transportation to San Antonio - so they can make a planned trip to the Alamo - and a free airplane trip back home.

Ms. Boyer said that she and her husband, Victor, have 14 children between them, from previous marriages.

Seventeen-year-old Kenneth Smith, nicknamed Tony, has muscular dystrophy and is in a wheelchair. In addition, Ms. Boyer said she suffers from back problems, and her husband has a heart problem.

Tony Smith wanted to see the Alamo because he's interested in history, and he hopes to one day attend college, possibly in Texas, Ms. Boyer said.

With another son, Dan Boyer, and their dog, the couple decided to camp out and see part of the country on their way to Texas. Their carefully budgeted "dream vacation" began July 9.

Everything went well until they got to Junction, about 120 miles northwest of San Antonio, where they were involved in a collision Monday with another vehicle.

"To me, it's an amazing story of folks coming together, not just in Texas but across the United States ... to help out some people in need," she said.

Feed firm involved in sale

An agreement in principle has been reached that would affect ownership of Farr Better Feeds which operates a facility in Hereford.

The sale of Farr Better Feeds and Walnut Grove Products, both owned by W.R. Grace and Company, to Nutrena Feed Division of Cargill was announced Thursday.

The transaction is subject to various conditions, including government review and approval.

Farr Better Feeds, based in Colorado, was founded in 1948 and acquired by Grace in 1966. Mills are located in Oklahoma, Kansas, Montana, Colorado and Nebraska, as well as Hereford.

Walnut Grove Products is based in Iowa and supplies swine, beef and dairy feeds throughout the Midwest.

The two Grace subsidiaries employ a total of 650 persons. In Hereford, Farr Better Feeds employs some 25 persons.

The Cargill subsidiary, Nutrena, markets a complete line of livestock, poultry and specialty feeds, operating 56 feed mills in the United States and Canada and employing some 1,900 persons.

Nutrena's president, Dave Larson, said the acquisition will allow his company to strengthen its feed operations and expand the business.

"The Walnut Grove and Farr Better Feeds brands are well respected in the marketplace, so we plan to continue marketing under those brands," he said.

Farr Better Feeds markets cattle feed to feedlots, range operators and dairies.

Life!

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Imagine this: You're on an unlit street or in a subway. There are all the smells, sounds, pushing and shoving one is accustomed to in New York. You are just walking along, minding your own business, and suddenly, out of nowhere, a hand reaches out and grabs you.

Does this sound like a scene from a scary movie or a description of a crime about to happen? Well, it's not. It's something that blind people in the city experience at least 10 times every day. The people grabbing you don't mean to frighten you. They really do want to help, but the effect, unfortunately, is a feeling of fear and violation.

I'm a blind woman who has lived and worked in New York for 14 years. Generally speaking, I am treated with respect, but there are a great many well-intentioned but misguided people who grab, shout and indulge in thoughtless, panicky behavior. This makes the difficult task of getting around much more stressful.

Please, Ann, tell your readers the following: Don't grab a blind person, even if there appears to be a problem. Use your voice and ask if any assistance is required. This gives the blind person a choice of accepting help or managing alone. If help is needed, offer YOUR arm. Do NOT take the blind person's arm. Allowing the blind person to take your arm puts you slightly ahead which is much safer and easier for you both.

If you don't know your left from your right, please don't give directions to a blind person. It can be confusing and extremely dangerous. Also, pointing and saying, "It's over there" doesn't help much.

Finally, please don't worry about us. When you see a blind person with a dog or a cane, you can be sure that this person has had a great deal of professional training in getting about. Even if it appears that he or she is having a problem, chances are good that we are simply trying to figure out the best way to get from Point A to Point B. The purpose of a cane is to feel what's ahead and avoid obstacles, and it lets people know we are blind.

A final word: Don't ever grab a blind person's cane or try to pet a seeing-eye dog. These marvelous animals will interpret any move toward them as a threat to their master and they might go on the attack. Sign me -- An Average Woman

DEAR WOMAN: You don't sound "average" to me. You seem to be wonderfully self-sufficient and perhaps better able to fend for yourself than many of your sighted sisters. Thank you for an excellent, informative letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please settle a five-way argument. We would like to know the proper thing to do if you are sitting in an aisle seat at church attending a wedding or funeral, and someone wants to sit in your row.

Are you supposed to slide down and make room for that person to sit in the aisle seat? Or should you stand where you are and let the newcomer pass in front of you and be seated in the middle of the row?

Three of us say "slide down." Two say "stay put and let the person find a seat in the middle of the row." What do you say? -- To Slide or Not in Raleigh

DEAR RALEIGH: The aisle seats are definitely the most desirable, especially for weddings. Those who arrive early often do so in order to sit on the aisle. I see no reason for them to surrender a choice seat to a latecomer.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The premiere of Gene Wilder's new film, "Another You," raised $100,000 for a cancer detection center named for his wife, Gilda Radner, who died of ovarian cancer two years ago.

The money will go to the Gilda Radner Ovarian Cancer Detection Center at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

"Helping to save other Gildas sort of became my motivating force over the past two years," Wilder said Tuesday. "This has helped me. When she died, I was filled with frustration."

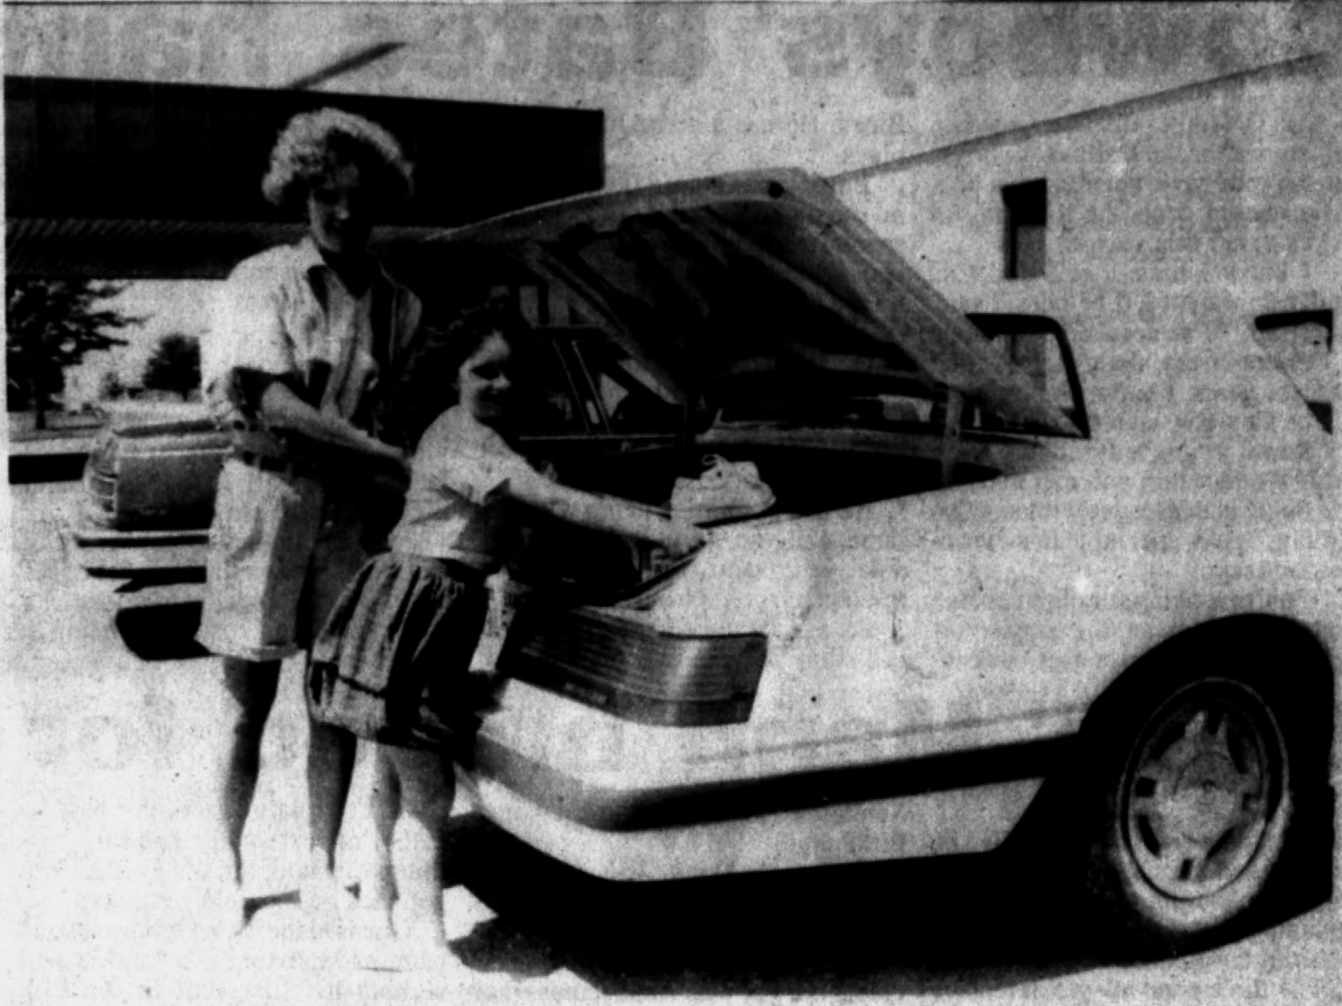

A blood test 10 months earlier might have detected Radner's cancer and saved her, Wilder said.

Cowboys' Bates hanging on

AUSTIN (AP) - Bill Bates may not be a starter for the Dallas Cowboys, but the nine-year veteran says he's "totally confident" he'll be on the team's roster this season.

"I know I have a role and I'm totally confident I'll be here," said Bates, 30. "I'm not arrogant about it. I'm not cocky about it. But after all these years, I know I belong."

The Cowboys agree. "Some young guys don't ever grasp the fact that you can make a nice living in this league without ever starting," says special teams coach Joe Avezzano.

"You're looking for playmakers. That doesn't mean the fastest or biggest. And it always gets back to Bates. He has a mentality to make plays."

Bates starts at middle linebacker on the nickel defense. He's on four special teams units, serves as special teams captain and also is the third-string strong safety.

He needs the work. He and his wife, Denise, have four children: 3-year-old triplets and another son born in February. He is prepared for life after football and already has set up several businesses.

He began training camp with the same gung-ho attitude he brought nine years ago when he was a free-agent rookie from Tennessee.

Bates beat the odds that summer and soon became one of the most popular Cowboy players for his reckless style of special teams play. He was named the NFL's special teams player of the year in 1983 and 1984, and in 1984 became the first NFC player named to the Pro Bowl for special teams.

But when coach Jimmy Johnson took over for Tom Landry in 1989, Bates seemed on his way out. Johnson views speed as the most important factor in football. In the NFL, Bates is considered a slowpoke.

Johnson, however, soon realized that Bates was a vital member of the team. This summer, there's not much talk about Bates' roster spot being in jeopardy.

"I knew what they wanted from me," Bates said. "It was a matter of whether they could live with (his lack of speed). But the coaches found out that special teams is a very big part of the NFL and it's not only about speed."

He remains among the most popular players on the team. Bates also is among the most active Cowboys in charity work.

"He's motivated every time he comes out here," said Avezzano, who was offensive coordinator at Tennessee while Bates was a star defensive back for the Vols.

"Of course I if was the father of triplets, I'd be a little extra motivated, too."

Skins' Mann braced for season

By The Associated Press

His tender right knee fortified by a steel and plastic brace, Charles Mann is chomping at the bit to start hounding enemy quarterbacks for the Washington Redskins.

The three-time all-pro defensive end underwent arthroscopic surgery in February and is yet to take part in contact drills. He's been anxiously awaiting the arrival of the knee brace so he can get clearance to begin banging heads.

"I really feel like I'm going to have a 100 percent recovery," Mann said Thursday. With the brace on, he says he feels no pain but that the knee is only at 75 to 80 percent strength.

Because he's had so little work in camp, Mann won't be playing in Sunday's exhibition game against Pittsburgh.

"For a lineman, you can't get ready without being hit," coach Joe Gibbs said.

The San Diego Chargers' Leo Goas is a guy who understands what Mann is going through. Goas fractured a bone in his left foot in his first hour of rookie camp last season.

"One minute before practice I'm talking to the media and the next hour I'm icing my leg down in an empty training room," he said. "The doctors were saying it was going to be a 10-to-12-week thing. I called my pastor back in Hawaii and had them all praying and believing for a miracle to take place. The doctors said I was lucky, that they really couldn't explain how I came back so fast. I'm just really thankful that things did work out and I was able to get back on the field and play."

Goas made it back by the second game and split time at left tackle until making his first start in the fifth game. He started 10 games, earned consensus all-rookie honors and was named the Chargers' most courageous player.

He's having an outstanding and healthy camp this summer, and he's entertaining the hope of returning to his home state for the Pro Bowl after the season.

Speed is a lot of the package that makes up Deion Sanders, but it certainly isn't the only thing.

WT centralizes fund-raising

The West Texas State University Intercollegiate Athletic Department has consolidated its decentralized fund-raising efforts of the past and will operate through one organization, the Foundation for Buffalo Athletics, effective immediately. According to WTSU athletic director Mike Chandler, the newly created organization has also implemented a fund-raising drive.

"The central organization will help streamline fund-raising and assist in our NCAA compliance efforts," Chandler said. "Basically, in the past, each coach was responsible for raising funds for his or her team. Although I won't go so far as to say that the practice was divisive, it certainly was not unifying. We—and I say that meaning our coaches, our players and our fans—need to pull together in support of the overall program, and I have full confidence that that is exactly what will happen and that our entire program will prosper because of that attitude."

The Foundation for Buffalo Athletics, directed by a 15-member board, is the central organization responsible for contributions made to WTSU athletics. Individual and family memberships are available from the $35 Varsity Club level through the $500 Maroon Circle level. Annual corporate sponsorships range from $750-3,000. Membership benefits are based on the level of giving, and all contributions, with the exception of the actual cost of season tickets, are tax deductible.

In addition to cash contributions, the Foundation will also accept gifts in kind, which may include equipment, food service, transportation, lodging, medical supplies and services, printing, accounting services, advertising/marketing services, corporate matching gifts, life insurance, trusts and endowments.

Contributors to the Foundation will have the opportunity to designate gifts to men's basketball, women's basketball, rifle, soccer, tennis, volleyball or any other if so desired. Contributed funds will be allocated by the board of directors of the Foundation and may be used for scholarships, improvement and enrichment of athletic programs, recruiting, promotions, capital improvements and the general operating budget of the athletic department.

To make a contribution or for more information, contact Chandler at (806) 656-2069.

Hoch hot at Buick Open

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) - The long dry spell may be just about over for Scott Hoch. Heaven knows he's been patient.

Hoch, who hasn't won since the 1989 Las Vegas Invitational, took a three-stroke lead into second-round play at the Buick Open today. That's the good news.

The bad news is that he thought he would end the drought a week ago. He was tied for the lead in the final round of the Greater Hartford Open.

But then something happened. He had three triple-bogeys on the final nine holes to finish with a 75. "After it was over, I felt like I should have won," Hoch said. "I felt I should have shot 66 or 67. But I ended up with 75. I can't remember making triple when I'm playing well. Then, to make three of them! Boy!"

Hoch rebounded from his disappointment at Hartford by winning $45,000 during a two-day pro-am event in Philadelphia on Monday and Tuesday. The money was nice, but what it did for his mental well-being was even more beneficial.

And it showed when he arrived at Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club.

Hoch was sensational Thursday, shooting a 9-under-par 63. With one hole to play, he was 10-under and would have broken the tournament record if he hadn't bogeyed the 18th.

Brad Faxon and rookie Marco Dawson were tied at 66. Nine others, including Australian Greg Norman and defending Buick Open champion Chip Beck, were at 67.

Daniel goes for $1 million

VIENNA, Ohio (AP) - Defending champion Beth Daniel, hoping for a $1 million bonus, heads the field for today's opening round of the Phar-Mor in Youngstown LPGA tournament at Squaw Creek Country Club.

Daniel won last year's event after rain pushed the final round back a day to Monday. She also won the Phar-Mor's sister tournament, the Phar-Mor in Inverrary, in February.

Phar-Mor will pay a $1 million annuity to anyone winning both of its tournaments in the same year.

Any open fishing tournament that does not use a polygraph test will sooner or later attract a scoundrel who will cheat the honest fishermen. Polygraphs may cost the promoter a little money, but they are one of the best ways to have an honest fishing tournament.

Both Redman and B.A.S.S. have partner-draw systems that help protect against cheating. Open tournaments for individuals are risky, but, handled properly and honestly, are great fun. Watch out for those tournaments that do not protect against the cheaters. As the director of Fun Tournaments, I insist on honest competition and wouldn't put my name on any open fishing tournament without a polygraph. Think about it.

The Dallas Cowboys are at camp, so can the dove season be far behind? Early reports indicate that the dove season should be excellent, but count on an early cold front pushing our birds to the south. It happens three out of four years.

One of the best gifts to give a young hunter is a hunter safety course. Effective Sept. 1, all hunters who were born Sept. 2, 1971-Aug. 31, 1975, must have completed a certified hunter education course to hunt legally in Texas. Call the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department at 1-800-792-1112 for the nearest safety class.

Don't just send the youngster to the course; take it with him. Make it a special event by adding a trip to the gun range to sight in the rifles. The hunter education course will take some 10 hours, but the memories of those first hunts will last a lifetime. Every hunter and fisherman fondly remembers the thrill and anticipation of their early trips. Why not make the end of the safety course even more special by having a victory dinner or presenting the new hunter with that first gun?

If you haven't been to the gun range, it is time to go. While there check out the newest concept in target shooting: sporting clays. Using a little imagination, the boys at the range can have the clay birds coming at you, going straight up or bouncing on the ground, or they can send a darting pair of mini-targets that would make even the elusive white-wing dove a little jealous. Sporting clays are fun and, by improving your shooting, will make this year's first trip even more productive.

Jack Nicklaus was the leading money-winner in golf eight times, a PGA record. Tom Watson won six PGA Player-of-the-Year Awards, the most for any golfer.

At the age of 67 in 1979, Sam Snead shot a 66 on one round of the Quad Cities Open. It was one stroke under a score equaling his age, in itself a fine performance.

Streaking White Sox spoil Witt's return

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

In the streaky American League West, now the Chicago White Sox are taking their turn.

The White Sox won their eighth straight game Thursday night, trouncing Texas 13-2 and closing to two games of the first-place Minnesota Twins.

Not since May 2 have the White Sox been so near the top. And it sure didn't look like they'd been anywhere close in mid-June, when they were in last place, 8 1/2 games back.

But, slowly it's all been coming together for Chicago. And in a division where Minnesota has won 15 in a row, Texas has won 14 straight, Seattle won eight in a row and Oakland took seven consecutive games, now the White Sox are on a roll.

Chicago has outscored its opponents 72-36 during the winning streak. Frank Thomas, batting .421 with four home runs and 14 RBIs in the run, drove in three more to beat Texas.

Thomas got three of Chicago's 11 hits. He had an RBI double during a three-run fourth inning and singled home a run in a five-run eighth.

Rookie Ramon Garcia (3-3) won his third game in his last four starts. He gave up seven hits in seven innings and stayed unbeaten since June 26.

Bobby Witt (3-4) made his first appearance since going on the disabled list on May 27 with a rotator cuff problem. He was tagged for eight runs on five hits in 3 1-3 innings.

Witt walked four batters, three of whom scored, and the Texas defense hurt him with three errors that led to three unearned runs.

Blue Jays 7, Indians 5

John Olerud drove in three runs with a homer, double and sacrifice fly.

Olerud broke a 5-all tie with a sacrifice fly in the seventh inning and Kelly Gruber followed with another sacrifice fly.

Duane Ward (4-3) pitched two innings of one-hit relief. Tom Henke worked the ninth for his 22nd save.

Yankees 8, Twins 3

Matt Nokes hit two home runs, giving him 20 this season.

Nokes hit a two-run homer in the first inning off Paul Abbott (3-1) and connected for a solo shot in the fifth off Mark Guthrie for an 8-1 lead. Nokes also twice threw out Dan Gladden trying to steal.

Spot starter Greg Cadaret (4-4) gave up two runs on six hits in seven innings. Chili Davis hit his 24th home run for Minnesota.

Royals 6, Brewers 5

George Brett homered to start the top of the 11th inning.

Brett's seventh home run of the season also was his fourth hit of the game. He homered off Darren Holmes (1-3) and the Royals scored another run in the inning on Brent Mayne's RBI grounder. Earlier, Mayne hit his first major league home run.

Tom Gordon (7-9) was the winner and Jeff Montgomery got his 21st save despite giving up B.J. Surhoff's RBI grounder.

Tigers 5, Angels 3

Cecil Fielder hit his 30th home run and added an RBI single.

Mark Leiter (3-2) won as a starter for the first time since July 31, 1990, allowing three runs on nine hits in 7 2-3 innings. Mike Henneman closed for his 16th save.

Mike Fetters (0-2) allowed three runs and six hits in 1 2-3 innings.

Athletics 4, Red Sox 2

Dave Henderson blooped a two-run single in the ninth inning.

Mike Gallego's leadoff single and a double by Rickey Henderson set up Dave Henderson's winning hit off Dennis Lamp (3-2). Joe Klink (8-2) was the winner and Dennis Eckersley pitched a perfect ninth for his 28th save in 33 chances.

Giants smack Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) - Psst. Don't tell the San Francisco Giants what kind of a tear they're on.

They don't want to hear anything about their 11 straight wins, their longest streak since 1966. They don't want to think about the fearsome numbers their offense is putting on the board.

They didn't even want to give much reflection to an 8-1 victory Thursday night over the struggling Cincinnati Reds that left the defending World Series champions dazed.

"We've just been going with the flow," said Will Clark, who homered and had three hits as part of a 17-hit attack. "You don't think too much. You just see it and whack it. You don't want to out-think yourself."

Rookie Paul McClellan (2-0) pitched a seven-hitter for his first major league complete game. Clark and Willie McGee each had three hits. Kevin Mitchell outdid them with four, including a three-run homer.

And the Giants, a team mired at the bottom of the National League West earlier this season, suddenly are just a half-game behind the third-place Reds. Cincinnati trails first-place Los Angeles by 8 1/2 games.

The Reds keep going badly. The loss was their 16th in 21 games, ending a two-game winning "streak" that was their longest since July 5. Kip Gross (4-2), one of the young pitchers counted on to carry them through a month of pitching injuries, got rocked for five runs and 12 hits in just 4 1-3 innings.

Clark started it in the first inning Thursday with a solo homer, his 20th. He and McGee had RBI singles in the second, Kirt Manwaring doubled home a run in the third, and Jose Uribe doubled in another in the fourth.

Mitchell capped it with a three-run homer in the eighth off Tim Layana, his 20th.

Cardinals 6, Pirates 3

Jose Oquendo went 3-for-3 and drove in three runs.

Oquendo is 15-for-27 during an eight-game hitting game. He drove in three runs for the first time since June 23, 1990, and has 14 RBIs this season.

Oquendo's two-run single capped a four-run fifth inning against Randy Tomlin (6-4). Omar Olivares (4-3) pitched 5 1-3 innings for the win and Lee Smith got his league-leading 28th save.

Phillies 4, Expos 1

Wes Chamberlain hit his third three-run homer in two days and Terry Mulholland pitched a three-hitter.

Mulholland (10-10) struck out seven and walked one. He did not give up a hit after the second inning.

Mark Gardner (5-8) gave up a single to Lenny Dykstra on his second pitch. He allowed four runs on seven hits in six innings.

Chamberlain hit his fifth home run of the season, keying a four-run fourth inning.

Walton bids for Astros

HOUSTON (AP) - Wal-Mart founder Sam Walton, his top assistant and former baseball executive Bing Devine are included in a group that is poised to make an offer to buy the Houston Astros and the Houston Sports Association, a newspaper reported today.

In a copyright story, the Houston Post reported that sources told them that the leader of the group is David Glass, president and chief executive officer of Wal-Mart Stores Inc.

Astros owner John McMullen has been negotiating for several months with a Houston group led by former Texas Commerce Bank chairman Ben Love and his son Jeff, but there have been no indications of progress despite a face-to-face meeting on July 2.

The newspaper reported that the Love group's best offer falls well short of the more than $100 million McMullen is seeking. Sources told the newspaper that the Love group offered $50 million for the Astros two weeks ago, but did not want to purchase the other HSA properties, which include three hotels and the lease to Astrodome facilities through the year 2024.

Although Glass lives in Bentonville, Ark., he is not interested in moving the team from Houston but is excited about the growth potential of this market, sources told the newspaper.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

PROMISES!

HOW MANY PROMISES CAN BE FOUND IN THE BIBLE? EIGHT THOUSAND, NINE HUNDRED AND TEN! 7,706 PROMISES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT, 1,104 IN THE NEW! 7,485 (85%) ARE MADE BY GOD TO MAN—ONLY 290 PROMISES MADE BY MAN TO GOD! 991 ARE BY ONE MAN TO ANOTHER. ANGELS HAVE MADE 28 PROMISES. 9 PROMISES WERE MADE BY THE DEVIL! 2 BY EVIL SPIRITS. 1 PROMISE FROM A MAN TO AN ANGEL! 2 BY GOD THE FATHER TO THE SON. ISAIAH, JEREMIAH, EZEKIEL—EACH OVER 1,000 PROMISES (MOSTLY PROPHETIC, NATURALLY). ONLY ONE BOOK IN THE ENTIRE BIBLE HAS NO PROMISE IN IT—TITUS! BUT THE RICHEST CHAPTER FOR PROMISES IS THE 37TH PSALM, WITH A GRAND TOTAL OF 43!

ONE OF THE MOST BEAUTIFUL SIGNS OF A PROMISE MADE IS THE RAINBOW, SEEN AFTER EACH SHOWER. THIS IS THE TOKEN WHICH COMMEMORATES GOD'S PROMISE TO MAN THAT HE WOULD NEVER AGAIN DESTROY MANKIND BY A FLOOD. (GENESIS 9:11-17)

Six months after my hysterectomy I noticed it took a little longer and more work to reach a climax. Prior to that time I had a voracious sexual appetite as did my husband, three times a day every day. From that time on my sexual appetite and response gradually decreased. My body ceased to respond until at age 32 I no longer cared if I ever had sex again. My husband thought it was his fault and that I no longer found him attractive. Our marriage deteriorated from there. I was crying all the time. I tried to find acceptance and release in other men and became so distraught with myself that I became suicidal. I finally went to see a counselor, and she did help me with my emotional and mental image. But she also told my husband what I had said and he found he could no longer trust me or love me. It wound up in divorce. I now have a wonderful boyfriend who accepts me the way I am, but I crave that sexual feeling. I don't know what to do or who to turn to.

Get a better look at what's happening in your world and in your community.

Accent on Health

This month, the Texas Department of Health began distribution of an important blueprint for future health called Healthy Texans 2000 Partnership. This document offers a vision of a new century of better health for all Texans. The 74-page document is the product of a statewide effort involving more than 1,000 Texans from the public, private and voluntary sectors and is modeled after Healthy People 2000, a national strategy for improving the health of the nation during this decade. It addresses the prevention of major chronic illnesses, injuries and infectious diseases, including violent and abusive behavior, environmental health and HIV infection. "The purpose of Healthy Texans 2000 Partnership is to make a commitment to three broad goals," said Dr. Robert A. MacLean, acting commissioner of health. "Those goals are to increase the span of healthy life for Texans, to reduce health disparities among Texans, and to achieve access to preventive health services for all Texans." "This set of objectives for the year 2000 makes an important, compelling point to us and to all health policymakers: we can no longer afford not to invest in prevention," said Dr. Ron J. Anderson, chairman of the Texas Board of Health. "Medical care alone will not eliminate the devastating impact of chronic disease on the disadvantaged, nor will it reduce the rate of infant mortality or the burden of homicide and violence or any of the other health problems borne by our society. From the perspective of avoiding human suffering as well as saving wasteful costs in treating diseases and injuries that could have been prevented, the 1990s should be the decade of prevention in Texas." The cooperative process, known as the Texas Health Objectives for 1990 and begun in the early 1980s to prevent and control the many serious health threats Texans face, continues with Healthy Texans 2000 Partnership. Strategies are recommended which will result in achieving the health objectives for each health problem. Some recommendations list the names of organizations which may play a key role. Although a group may play a lead role, other community resources may be essential for success. "We predict that with all of us — health professionals, local and state officials, the general public and others — working together to fulfill Texas' year 2000 health objectives, will make a difference in the lives of millions of Texans — may yet to be born," Dr. Anderson said.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: After reading your column about hysterectomies, I could scream. I had a vaginal hysterectomy when I was 27 and still have my ovaries intact and they are in fine condition. I have had a physical regularly and gone to six different gynecologists for my problems. Six months after my hysterectomy I noticed it took a little longer and more work to reach a climax. Prior to that time I had a voracious sexual appetite as did my husband, three times a day every day. From that time on my sexual appetite and response gradually decreased. My body ceased to respond until at age 32 I no longer cared if I ever had sex again. My husband thought it was his fault and that I no longer found him attractive. Our marriage deteriorated from there. I was crying all the time. I tried to find acceptance and release in other men and became so distraught with myself that I became suicidal. I finally went to see a counselor, and she did help me with my emotional and mental image. But she also told my husband what I had said and he found he could no longer trust me or love me. It wound up in divorce. I now have a wonderful boyfriend who accepts me the way I am, but I crave that sexual feeling. I don't know what to do or who to turn to.

DEAR READER: I wish there were an easy answer to your situation. Your story does point up some of the problems related to hysterectomies. It is sometimes difficult to tell where physiology leaves off and psychology begins. You have a pretty good story for a significant depression, and in that case you could well benefit from seeing a psychiatrist who deals with depression. The truth is, as I'm sure you have been told, that if your ovaries are intact and functioning normally, you should not have such symptoms because of having had a hysterectomy. The uterus does not provide ANY female hormones. Its function is limited to responding to female hormones and its role in pregnancy. There is always the possibility that the ovarian function may have been damaged during surgery. That could happen if the blood supply to the ovaries was damaged during the hysterectomy. But tests of your hormone levels, your cyclical changes in temperature and physical findings all can determine if you really do have a hormone deficiency. At age 46, you are at the average menopause age, and if your ovaries are still functioning, they may not be for long. If you are deficient in hormones, then hormone replacement could be of considerable benefit to you.

A photographic exhibition from Texas Folklife Resources sponsored by the Hereford Fiestas Patrias Committee is on display at the Deaf Smith County Library through August.

The exhibition documents the traditional home and community devotional arts practiced by Catholic Texas Mexicans. The exhibit highlights those domains of devotion, the home altar and the capella or yard shrine, that are associated with personal prayer.

Composed variously of saints' images, family photographs, flowers, amulets, and decorative materials, altars and shrines are each individually distinct, yet they mark a tradition which is wide spread and generations old within the Mexican American community in Texas.
