

Truckers' Strike Seriousness Grows

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
Associated Press Writer

Vegetables rotted in fields, meat remained in packing plants and motorists lined up for tightening gasoline supplies as businessmen and governors strove to overcome a shutdown by independent truckers with National Guardsmen, convoys and lawsuits.

Violence flared again, with police in Utah reporting two trucks hit by gunfire today after four such incidents Tuesday. No injuries were reported.

The leader of the Independent Truckers Unity Committee urged the nation's 100,000 owner-operators to stop driving at midnight to protest high diesel fuel prices and the 55 mph speed limit. Minnesota Gov. Al Quie declared a state of emergency Tuesday, saying he would call out the National Guard and law enforcement officers to shepherd truckers who wanted to keep driving.

Gov. Otis Brown ordered police to restore gas deliveries to fuel-starved northern Indiana. And National Guardsmen were to refill storage tanks to keep some Alabama service stations open.

Troopers along the East Coast today were to escort a convoy of trucks hauling produce from Florida to markets in the Northeast.

A spokesman for Florida Gov. Bob Graham said states along interstate highways 75 and 95 had agreed to protect an estimated 100 trucks hauling watermelons and other freight.

"We don't want to hurt the people," said Florida gasoline hauler Jim Dailey, "but somebody's going to suffer when the stations aren't getting any gasoline.

You can't get around if you don't have any gas. You can't get any produce if the produce haulers aren't delivering."

Some businesses went to court to make sure their products would be delivered. East Highland Co., an Alabama sawmill, filed suit against 10 men accused of shutting down the mill in connection with the protest. The company wants $75,000 for each day it's closed.

The Armour pork processing plant won a temporary restraining order to keep trucks from blocking its Worthington, Minn., plant. The firm closed Monday due to a lack of trucks, but the plant manager said he hoped to have 400 workers back on the job Thursday.

South Dakota's largest meatpacking plant, John Morrell & Co., was holding 2 million pounds of meat Monday because there were no trucks to take it to market. By Tuesday, "the list is so long it scares me," said President Donald Slotkin. Layoffs were threatened.

In Michigan, Gov. William Milliken ordered state officials to draw contingency plans for moving food and medicine to areas paralyzed by the strike.

Meanwhile, William J. Hill, chairman of the truckers' council, estimated 40 percent of the nation's drivers were idle as the two-week-old protest continued.

In other developments Tuesday:

The Interstate Commerce Commission said truckers will be able to collect a 6 percent surcharge on shipments this week because of the increased price of fuel. The initial surcharge last week was set at 5.6 percent, but ICC Chairman Daniel O'Neal Jr. said it will be increased as fuel prices rise. He said an eventual surcharge of as much as 9 percent was possible.

Washington cherry growers switched to rails for shipment of their crop. "We've had enough trucks up to now, but from now on it's going to be very tight," said Walt Shields, manager of the Yakima Valley Growers-Shippers Association.

Food distributors in Buffalo, N.Y., predicted shortages could begin by the end of the week.

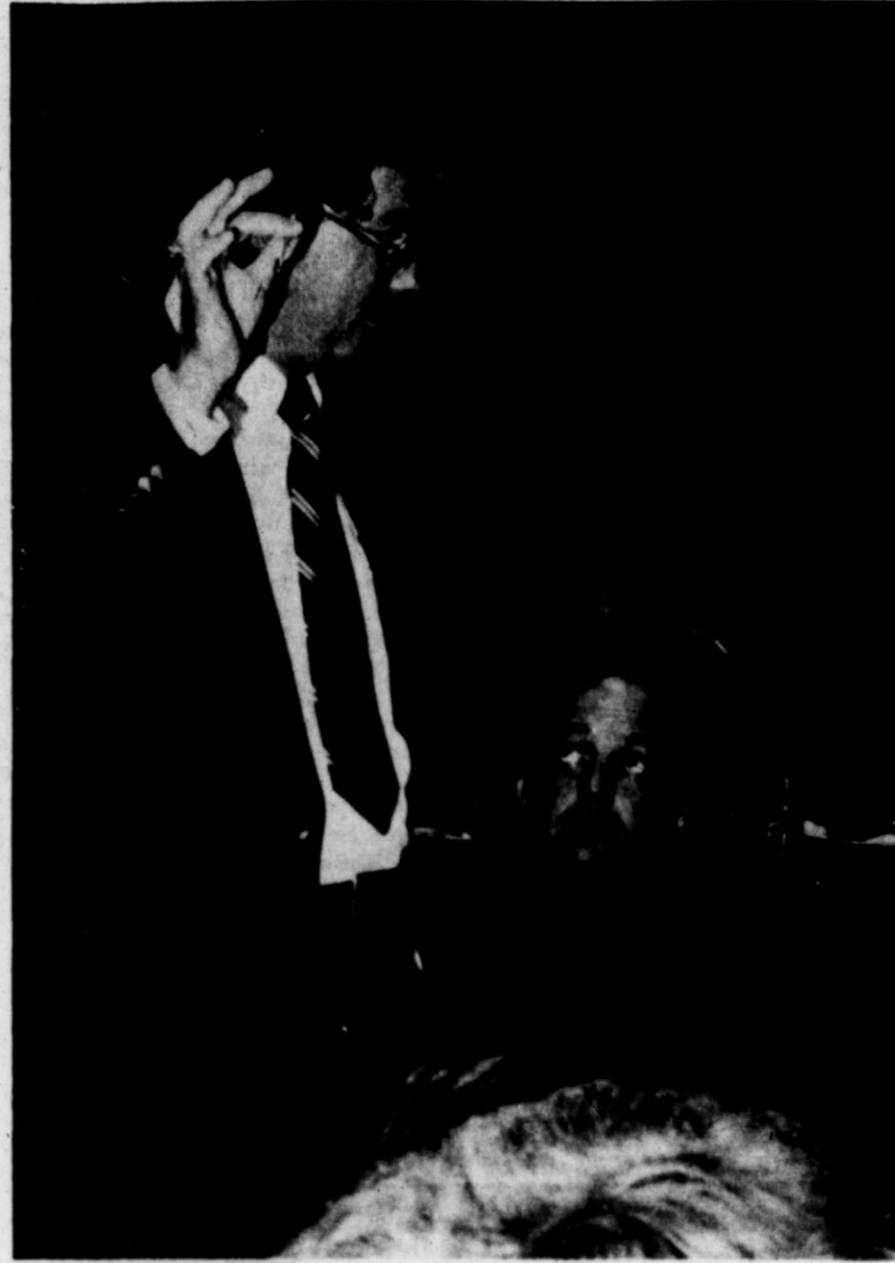

Most service stations were closed in the Alabama cities of Huntsville and Decatur, said state Service Station Association director Sam Spivey. Some corn harvesting was forced to a halt, and potatoes were rotting in the ground in Baldwin County.

Long lines developed at some Minnesota service stations. Gov. Quie urged state residents not to drive next weekend so supplies could catch up, but one striking driver warned, "By Friday, there's not going to be a drop of gasoline to be had anywhere in Minnesota."

North Carolina agriculture officials said the blockade has already cost state cucumber farmers $500,000 and could mean a loss of $4 million if it continues another week.

"Perishables can't wait," said Georgia Agriculture Commissioner Tommy Irvin. "Our peaches are coming off the trees. In this hot weather, they rot real fast." State officials said they may provide escorts for truckers hauling produce.

Sugar-Price Legislation Advances

WASHINGTON (AP) - A long-awaited package of sugar legislation has resumed trickling through Congress after months of strategy mapping among lawmakers and administration officials.

As action reopened Tuesday, the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee accused the national press of "hostility and ignorance" in reports on pending legislation to raise sugar prices.

An international agreement to set a range of prices and companion bills to hike domestic supports for farmers are aimed at price stability for both consumers and producers, said Democratic Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, a major sugarbeet state.

Church, the panel's chairman, had blocked any movement on Senate ratification of the pact until higher U.S. supports were enacted.

Despite his remarks, the hearing itself was taken by industry and administration officials as a sign the long-delayed International Sugar Agreement and legislation to boost domestic sugar price supports now will move through Congress this summer.

The legislation, supported by President Carter, would add an estimated 74 cents to each consumer's food budget this year and about $1 a year more through 1981. About 80 percent of the sugar consumed is in foods and beverages.

About $60 million in direct subsidies would be paid for by import fees without affecting consumer prices.

The House Agriculture Committee approved a boost in supports almost three months ago. But sharp divisions among sugar producers, processors and users have stalled it in the Ways and Means Committee, where its tariff provisions must be approved, too.

Stories and editorials calling the bill inflationary, but supporting the pact are illogical and "nothing but flagrant propaganda," Church said at the committee's first hearing this year on the agreement, negotiated two years ago.

The administration now uses import duties to keep the U.S. price of foreign sugar at 15 cents a pound. It has a (See SUGAR, Page 2)

Houston, Dallas-Fort Worth Affected

Clements Announces Gasoline Rationing

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Motorists in Houston and the Dallas-Fort Worth area will have to look at their license plates Monday to see if they can buy gasoline.

Gov. Bill Clements declared Tuesday the state would try odd-even gasoline purchase restrictions in Harris, Dallas and Tarrant counties in an effort to ease long lines at service stations.

He said the restriction might be applied to other cities later.

The Republican governor also called on Texans to raise their air conditioner thermostats to 76 degrees, instead of the 80 suggested by President Carter, and to abide by the 55 mile per hour speed law. He also asked for more car pooling.

"Let's make this a 'No-Tie-Summer,'" Clements said in an official proclamation, taking off his coat and tie while it was read at a news conference.

"None of these gas restriction actions will bring additional supplies," Clements said, "but the regulations are needed to preserve good order and make the limited supplies available in an optimum way."

Houston and the Dallas-Fort Worth area have 38 percent of the state's vehicles, Clements said.

"I have considered this fact carefully and am doing what I feel is the minimum required at this time," he said, adding that he expected the restrictions to last at least until September.

"It is my intention to remove these mandatory rules as soon as the situation eases. Conversely, should the situation worsen, I will not hesitate to develop further restrictions."

The odd-even plan would let cars with a license plate number ending in an even number, or a last letter from A to M, to purchase gasoline on even-number calendar days. Licenses ending in odd numbers, or letters from N to Z, could get gasoline on odd days of the month.

Other features of the plan for the three counties, effective June 25, would:

- Set the minimum purchase amount at $6, unless a vehicle's tank held less than 10 gallons.
- Set the maximum purchase at 20 gallons, including any boats pulled on trailers.

- Limit filling of any auxiliary containers to two gallons.
- Give emergency, out-of-state and "identifiable commercial vehicles" the right to purchase fuel on any day.
- Require stations to prominently display flags indicating the supply and type of gasoline available.

Clements said he was ready to assist local governments in expanding traffic signal timing programs, long-range mass transit programs and "to develop appropriate local plans to help deal with these spot shortages" in gasoline.

The governor said that strict enforcement of the 55 mph speed limit could realize a five percent fuel saving in addition to keeping down the traffic death toll. He admitted he had to rely on the "enthusiasm" of highway troopers to issue more speeding tickets, instead of hiring more troopers.

Clements and Ed Vetter, the governor's chief energy advisor, said they would rely mostly on public opinion in the enforcement of the gasoline restrictions. "I would not want to be a service station manager if a customer found him selling gas to an odd-number car on an even-number day," Vetter said. Vetter said Clements was giving general authority for energy conservation procedures recently by President Carter, "along with some severe penalties for violators." He said he expected local governments to enact local ordinances to which city police could enforce. "Or they could be turned over to federal authorities for enforcement," he said.

Storm Soaks Northern Plains, Spawns Numerous Tornadoes

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes, heavy rain and hail pounded the upper Midwest, uprooting trees and power lines, smashing buildings and light airlines and destroying crops.

The National Weather Service in Kansas City, Mo., called the storm "the most widespread outbreak of severe weather over the northern Plains for this time of year that can be recalled."

Two people were killed Tuesday and several others injured.

Nebraska took the brunt of the storm, which swept eastward Tuesday with winds gusting up to 90 mph. Its main force stretched 140 miles from the Kansas border to the South Dakota line. Damage or injuries were also reported in Iowa, Minnesota and Kansas, and the Dakotas.

Tornadoes caused an estimated $500,000 damage in Watertown, S.D., about 100 miles from the Minnesota border.

At least 23 Nebraska counties were hit and tornado warning sirens wailed in 10 of them at various times Tuesday afternoon.

Antelope County authorities said Randy Schwarting and Clarence Strahm were killed when 75-80 mph winds and three-quarter-inch hail struck a farm shed about a mile and a half from tiny Oakdale.

There were reports of downed power lines, property damage and uprooted trees throughout the eastern one-third of the state.

In Omaha, the state's largest city, 60 mph winds blew down a house under construction. In Tilden, Neb., a tornado ripped the roof from a fertilizer plant and to a catwalk off a grain elevator. In southwestern Nebraska, hail damaged corn, wheat, bean and sugarbeet crops in Perkins, Keith and Deuel counties. A dust storm briefly cut off visibility at Cairo.

In Iowa, several funnel clouds were reported Tuesday night, and at least four people were injured. Gusts up to 90 mph were reported in western Iowa and heavy rains sent one stream out of its banks.

Six light planes at the Spencer airport were destroyed by a tornado and two persons were injured when strong winds whipped through a campsite near Anita.

One of the hardest hit areas was Merville, Iowa, a community of 1,200 in north-central Woodbury County, where a tornado-like wind damaged several homes and businesses and caused at least

Corn Reserves May Be Released

Although official notification had not been received by the Deaf Smith County ASCS office at Brand presstime today, indications are that the USDA released government-held corn reserves in storage, effective Tuesday evening.

According to John Fuston, executive director of the local ASCS office, notification of the move was expected to be made to the ASCS office here by phone sometime today, on the move which will allow farmers to redeem corn held in government loans and sell it on the open market.

Release of the reserves has apparently been initiated by the market, which had a $2.50 per bushel trigger point for opening up the redemption of loans on corn in storage under the government program.

As of this morning, corn was selling locally for $5.35 per hundredweight, or $3 per bushel.

Joe Artho, spokesman for Hereford Grain Corporation here pointed out that the release of corn reserves will probably drive down the price of corn for a time as more of the yellow grain is turned into the marketplace.

The release of the corn reserve marks the second such move concerning commodities this year.

Earlier this spring, Ag Secretary Bob Bergland released wheat reserves, and the local market for wheat fell off almost immediately.

The wheat market has recovered substantially in the local area since the release, however, and prices have now surpassed the level at which the release occurred.

Local farmers, who have 459,949 bushels of corn in the reserve program in Deaf Smith County, will be hoping that marketing of the reserve corn is handled in an orderly manner similar to the wheat which was released earlier, in order to avoid disastrously low prices created by a flood of grain on the market.

Phone Company Plans Activities For Breakfast

Reservations for Thursday's Fun Breakfast at the Community Center must be made by 4 p.m. today by calling the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office.

"We need to know by today how many people we can expect tomorrow," Chamber Executive Vice President Michael Carr said. "Whatever happens in the way of reservations, though, we'll have plenty of food and two serving lines."

A large crowd at the last Fun Breakfast caused some people to stand in line for too long a time, Carr said.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. will sponsor the 6:30 a.m. breakfast, which will have Bell's "Be Choosy" theme, according to manager David Ortiz. Bell will award three Warren Hunter prints with handmade frames in special drawings at the breakfast.

Drawings also will be held for $25 and $75, with $150 to be awarded in a special drawing for chamber members. The winner of that prize must be in attendance Thursday.

Other highlights will be the presentation of the Bull Chip award, the naming of the "involvement award" recipient—the business with the most representatives present—and announcements of upcoming community events.

Cost of the breakfast will be $3 per plate, Carr said.

Rationing Spreads To Eastern States

By The Associated Press
Gasoline rationing came to New York and Connecticut today and was set for midnight in New Jersey as officials in other states dealt with the eastern swing of the Gas Crisis of 1979 with minimum gas purchases.

Rhode Island hoped minimum gasoline purchases - $5 for small cars, $7 for large models - would discourage "topping off." Massachusetts energy director Joseph Fitzpatrick said minimums were likely in that state as well.

But officials were to decide today whether to begin "odd-even" rationing in Maryland, Washington D.C., and northern Virginia, where minimum sales requirements have failed to shorten lines at pumps.

"I think people have finally adjusted to the facts that this is a gasoline crisis," said Kathy Godzik, spokeswoman for the Automobile Club of Maryland. "It used to be a crunch; now it's a crisis."

Other states like Pennsylvania and Georgia held off on any measures but kept an eye on gasoline supplies and the success of rationing elsewhere.

Henley Lawyer

Predicts 3rd Trial

CORPUS CHRISTIE, Tex. (AP) - While prosecutors tried to convince a judge that Elmer Wayne Henley voluntarily told police about his part in the Houston mass murders, a defense lawyer was boldly predicting that Henley will get a third trial.

"I would wager money on it if I had any," Will Gray of Houston told reporters Tuesday.

Henley, 23, is being re-tried here on six murder counts stemming from the homosexual torture and death spree that left 26 boys dead. He had been convicted of the killings at a 1974 trial. But Gray successfully argued on appeal that the defense had been improperly denied a charge of venue hearing. The conviction was thrown out.

"We've got all the record we need for a successful appeal," Gray said. "The rest is just window dressing."

Gray believes State District Judge Noah Kennedy has committed an error that could force a third trial if Henley is convicted. He claimed that several jurors were improperly seated. He forecasted that "we'll do it again in two or three years."

Grasshopper War

Begins in S. Dakota

BELVIDERE, S.D. (AP) - The battle begins today in the great grasshopper war with three crop-dusting airplanes dropping insecticides on what South Dakota farmers say is the worst grasshopper infestation in 45 years.

"I think they're as thick as they were in the '30s," F.H. Ireland, a Belvidere farmer, said Tuesday. "But I remember them moving around more then."

In the early 1930s, grasshoppers, which thrive in dusty, dry conditions, devastated a 200-mile area from Pierre to Rapid City, eating everything in sight.

Today as much as a million acres of South Dakota grassland may have to be treated with Sevin 4 Oil, a common home garden insecticide in the news recently because of objections to its use in Maine.

Spraying in South Dakota was to have begun Tuesday, but was delayed a day by the first rain here in five weeks. Agricultural specialists say crop losses so far have not been appreciable. But the grasshoppers must be sprayed within the next three weeks, the experts say, or the bugs will lay eggs and present an increased threat next year.

Preachers, Parents

Protest Home Closings

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Preachers and parents with children in Lester Roloff's youth homes held their Bibles aloft Tuesday in the Capitol rotunda and told the governor they do not want the facilities closed.

Gov. Bill Clements told the group his efforts to help Roloff resist state licensing laws failed in the 1979 Legislature.

Roloff was in Bryan Tuesday to meet with court officials concerning a 25-year-old man charged with killing his wife. Brazos County District Attorney Travis Bryan III said Roloff "expressed an interest in the man's future" but would not say if Roloff tried to have the man placed in one of his homes.

Meanwhile, Roloff's lawyers desperately tried to get the Texas Supreme Court and the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals in Austin to prevent the ordered closing of the homes.

The Supreme Court overruled Roloff's request for a writ of mandamus against State District Judge Charles Mathews.

Gasoline Theft Checked

Police are investigating the theft of $11.66 worth of gasoline from Handy Hut, W. Park Ave., and a report of a white male who stole merchandise from Seven-11, Park Ave. and U.S. Highway 385.

According to Tuesday's police reports, an individual paid for $7 worth of gas at Handy-Hut, but put $11.66 worth into his car. No arrest has been made in the incident.

A clerk at Seven-11, reported that a man walked into the store Tuesday, picked up two bottles of baby lotion and two cans of lighter fluid, then walked out the store with the items without paying for them.

Officers received two separate reports of harassing telephone calls Tuesday, recovered a stolen bicycle in the alley behind the 100 block of Ave. C, and arrested a 14-year-old female runaway from Hereford.

Six traffic citations were issued for speeding and one for running a stop sign Tuesday.

Gasohol Meeting Slated

MULESHOE - A meeting to sound out grower sentiment on the possible building of a farmer-owned ethanol plant is scheduled at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Muleshoe Civic Center. Tommy Wheatley, member of a temporary area board, announced.

Clayton Litchfield, president of Grains Products International Inc., will participate in the discussion. Wheatley said a Panhandle-Plains plant, if built, would produce alcohol from corn, milo or wheat for use in gasohol.

Wheatley said Grain Products international has obtained funds to build ten 50-million-gallon plants. He said $420 million, primarily from investment bankers, has been pledged to the program.

The temporary board looking into the situation includes Wheatley, Guy Austin of Oklahoma Lane, Morris Killough of Muleshoe, and Gary Don Glover of Lazbuddie.

Field Day Is Thursday

Kershner Trifoliate Co. of Canyon will conduct its annual trifoliate field day at the Bernard Hartman farm eight miles west of Canyon Thursday, with tours at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

The firm is headed up by Ron Kershner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kershner of Hereford.

Special emphasis will be placed in trifoliate blends as grazers, and area farmers will be able to observe various trifoliate varieties.

A wheat farmer's tour is scheduled for 10 a.m. with the 1 p.m. session a general tour.

Two tickets to a Dallas Cowboys football game will be awarded as door prizes.

Checks Not Hot But Wet, Dirty

HOUSTON (AP) - A special task force of bank employees was busy Tuesday sorting about 124,000 wet, dirty and crumpled checks totaling more than $56.8 million.

The cancelled checks were in a messenger service truck stolen Saturday while parked at a downtown bank. Most of the non-negotiable checks were found Monday scattered along a segment of railroad track and several near North Side streets.

"From the way it looks, the crook just tossed the checks," said Kevin O'Brien, a bank vice president, his shirt sleeves rolled as he joined in the sorting job.

"What a mess," O'Brien added. The messenger service picks up and delivers cancelled checks each day at eight downtown banks.

It had not been determined how many of the stolen checks still are missing but O'Brien said all will be accounted for because they were microfilmed before being delivered to the proper banks where the accounts are located.

Co-Operators Survive

I was invited to address a convention of the Home Insulators Assn. in St. Louis. My heart was bleeding. It was so easy to recognize the degree to which in-fighting menaces this industry that I knew something needed to be said on that subject.

But how could an outsider in such a forum presume to be an expert in an industry about which everybody in the audience knew more than he?

The insulation industry is as much needed by our nation as is new energy. Properly insulated, American homes old and new can conserve up to 30 percent of the energy they are now wasting.

But intramural squabbling -- in their advertising and in customer contacts--threatens this pregnant profession with miscarriage.

If you call "an insulation expert" to your home for his recommendation, if he is promoting cellulose he might tell you that fiberglass causes cancer. If he is selling fiberglass insulation he might tell you that cellulose shrinks and stinks. Both may tell you foam is a fire hazard.

By the time you hear all the negative mean-mouthing that goes on among the unprofessional professionals you won't know what to think. You may elect to install no insulation at all.

Even some of the associations which have sought to embrace this industry have instead tended to fragment it.

There was so much cheating on fire-treating that the government had to move in with Regulation 515-D.

There was no much improper insulation application that the Department of Energy had to move in with a training program for installers.

Presently there is sometimes too much air-per-product. There is punitive price-cutting and misrepresentation of R-factors.

Yet how could an outsider -- a broadcaster from Chicago -- presume to tell these professionals that the insulation business is its own worst enemy?

Then I remembered radio. In 1939 newspapers were terrified that they would not be able to compete with broadcast journalism--so they fought it.

They talked it down, refused to publish radio schedules, cut rates for advertising in a determined effort to starve the broadcasters. They failed, of course.

Not until they learned to co-exist, then to co-operate, did both industries flower.

Similarly, 20 years later radio was worried about television. But they have since learned to complement one another.

Where there were fewer than 2,000 newspapers in 1939, today there are more than 10,000.

Where there were only 4,000 radio stations in 1959, today there are 6,700.

Since 1959, the number of TV stations has increased from 768 to more than 1,000.

Today each of the three advertisers, complements and applauds the others -- and all of them, benefiting from fair competition, prosper.

During times of auto rivalry each of the three mediums did itself more harm than good.

Indeed, the feuders either fell by the wayside or reformed. And the co-operators survived and thrived.

So I ended up talking to an audience of home insulators about my own business. I hope they got the point.

Toughened Windfall Profits Tax On Way to Expected House Okay

WASHINGTON (AP) - A toughened "windfall profits" tax is on its way to the full House where anger over long gasoline lines and high fuel prices is expected to lead to prompt approval.

The beef-up tax, which would cost oil companies about $6 billion more over five years than President Carter's original plan, cleared the House Ways and Means Committee on a 20-16 vote Tuesday.

The bill is scheduled for House action next week.

After clearing whatever hurdles it encounters in the House, the tax proposal is expected to face a stiff challenge when it goes to the Senate Finance Committee, which is headed by oil-state Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.

In related developments:

Three congressional committees are considering legislation to promote development of synthetic fuels, such as oil extracted from coal, and other alternatives to foreign oil.

Rep. Roby Moffett, D-Conn., chairman of a House energy subcommittee, said Tuesday home heating oil may be in such short supply in the Northeast this winter that people may have to leave their homes and go to public shelters to keep warm.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal outlined to the Ways and Means Committee Tuesday the Carter administration's proposal to raise $500 million a year by limiting the oil companies' use of the foreign tax credit. Liberals on the committee are expected to press for their own proposal to eliminate the foreign tax credit for oil companies altogether and thus raise an estimated $2 billion a year.

The Ways and Means Committee's "windfall profits" tax bill would raise an estimated $27.8 billion between 1980 and 1984, compared with $21.8 billion under the president's bill.

The revised version would allow the oil companies to keep 17 cents to 23 cents of each dollar gained from oil price decontrol. These pennies would total about $13 billion in extra oil company profits through 1984.

The committee adopted the president's plan for a special energy trust fund, paid for by the "windfall" taxes, but put off until later a decision on what types of projects the fund will support.

Carter has recommended using the fund to help finance improved mass transit and development of alternative energy sources and to help pay for the fuel bills of low-income Americans.

The committee rejected most efforts Tuesday to tamper further with the proposed "windfall" tax. However, it voted to exempt from the tax revenues contributed by oil companies to state educational funds.

Committee members said that exemption would reduce the revenue raised by the tax by about $700 million over five years. However, some congressional tax experts indicated they believe the figure might be closer to $1 billion.

And by an 18-17 vote, the committee approved a so-called closed rule for floor action on the bill. A closed rule would bar floor amendments aimed at toughening or weakening the tax when it goes to the full House.

Milk Production Down Slightly Last Year

U.S. milk output in 1978 was 121.9 billion pounds, down about 1 percent from a year earlier. But except for 1977's total, the total production figure was the highest since 1965.

Total per capita consumption rose 8 pounds to 560 pounds, the third straight year showing an increase.

Fluid milk sales were up slightly. Cheese sales went up about 99 percent to more than 16 pounds per person.

Butter sales were up more than 5 percent. Commercial disappearance of milk and dairy products in 1978 rose 3 billion pounds to more than 119 billion pounds, milk equivalent, 2 1/2 percent larger than the 1976 record. Greater consumer purchasing power and higher retail prices for meat and other foods generated strong demand for dairy products.

Prices for dairy products went up about 6 percent in 1978, well below the inflation rate of 9 percent.

LEADING MILK PRODUCTION STATES
The five leading states from the standpoint of 1978's production:

- Wisconsin - 21.3 billion pounds (17 1/2 percent of the total)
- California - 11.9 billion pounds
- New York - 10.5 billion pounds
- Minnesota - 9.1 billion pounds
- Pennsylvania - 7.9 billion pounds

These five states accounted for nearly 50 percent of total production.

COWS AND PRODUCTION
Milk cow numbers declined slightly in 1978, from 10.9 million to 10.8 million, the lowest number since 1876. But milk production per cow averaged a record high of 11,240 pounds in 1978. And Washington cows averaged 14,149 pounds, to replace California, at 14,027 pounds as national leader.

Only 17 percent of the nation's dairy operations has 50 or more cows. But these larger operations had 60 percent of the dairy cows. Nearly 3/5 of the nation's dairy operations had less than 30 cows that accounted for 16 percent of the total cow inventory. The remaining 18 percent of the dairy operations had between 30 and 49 cows and accounted for 24 percent of the dairy cows.

WHAT'S AHEAD IN 1979?
Economic conditions will favor expanded milk output in 1979. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), quite favorable milk-feed price relationships, probably will lead to heavier concentrate feeding and more normal gains in output per cow.

Lifestyles have changed drastically from just a decade ago. Society today is fast-paced, priorities have changed, and people think and act differently. For the working person, convenience foods are almost a necessity.

Women, in particular, have contributed to this great change with more entering the work force, whether they are single or married. Instead of mom being home in the kitchen, she's likely to be working—on the tennis court, or at a committee meeting. Food planning and preparation now involves other members of the family, rather than just mom.

Convenience foods which require no preparation or little time, have grown in popularity with families on the go. Today, milk is truly one of the most convenient foods, if not the best. It is readily available in various package sizes, it complements virtually any snack or meal, and it provides tremendous amounts of essential nutrients.

Milk added to instant breakfast mixes, or instant hot oatmeal is a good early morning pick-up. Milk is nearly a "meal in a glass."

Many forms of cheese—Cheddar, Swiss, Cottage Cheese—are used in casseroles, in colorful, nutritious one-dish salads; and as main dishes like quiche or cheese soup. Cheese can be grated onto a frozen pizza, or

Ann Landers Takes Vigorous Exception

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I take vigorous exception to your advice to the woman whose lover was a married man with heart trouble. You should have advised her to end the affair immediately and send her lover to a psychiatrist.

One of the major undiscovered after-effects of heart attacks in middle-aged males is the inability to cope with the fact that they are not immortal. Also they are scared out of their wits. So what do they do? Slow up? Not on your life! They rush out and have an affair to prove they are still young and vigorous.

I used to think I was the only wife in the world who had the problem, but after talking with other wives of heart-attack victims I realize I have plenty of company.

Please don't advise the wife of a man who behaves this way to discuss the problem with her family physician. My husband is one. Sign me -- An Authority

DEAR AUTHORITY: I received a surprising number of responses to that letter but your comments are unique.

Many wives have written over the years to complain that their husbands stopped having sex when they were stricken with a coronary for fear exertion might bring on another attack. They asked me to check with authorities and print "the truth." I did. The experts said that after a reasonable period of recuperation there is no reason the patient should not resume sexual activity. In fact, on dismissal from most hospitals, coronary patients are given this advice in writing. (I humbly suggest, however, that hospital personnel be more circumspect when they hand out these forms. Northwestern Medical Center in Chicago recently cracked up the staff when they gave this routine memo to a Catholic Monsignor from Lima, Ohio.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After being gainfully employed for a year, I thought it would be nice to get a credit card. My only financial obligations were for rent and food.

When I applied for an all-purpose charge card, the bank said I was a good risk. I then decided to get a few more cards and build a good credit rating.

I now have eleven charge cards and am in debt $4,500. I lost my job and my unemployment compensation isn't enough to make the minimum payments, let alone pay rent and buy food. I have resorted to selling blood plasma and doing odd jobs. Ducking creditors is driving me crazy. I'm a nervous wreck. Any advice? - Overcharged

DEAR O.C.: Go to each and every creditor at once. Tell them about the mess you are in. Make it clear you intend to pay them as soon as possible. Take a scissors and cut all your credit cards into small bits. Then take an oath never to buy another thing on credit until you are completely debt free.

DEAR ANN: I am a secretary in an orthopedist's office. A woman I work with lights one cigarette after the other. She leaves them burning in an ashtray on my desk in the reception area. Then she goes into another room to assist the doctor. If anyone mentions anything about her smoking she becomes defensive and hostile.

What am I to do? -- Black Lung

DEAR LUNG: Most reception area in doctors' offices have signs that read, "No Smoking Please." If yours doesn't, it should have.

Tell the doctor exactly what you have told me. If he doesn't inform The Chimney that she can no longer pollute the office, he is a gutless wonder and you ought to look for another job.

Yogurt's Taste, Versatility Popular

Yogurt is the fastest growing dairy product on the market. The tangy dairy food has become popular for its convenience, versatility and taste.

The numerous varieties, sweetened, fruit-flavored, sundae-style, and frozen yogurts, have all contributed to the popularity of this age-old product. More than 20 flavors are available. The newest item on the market is a yogurt drink, now available from several large dairy companies in the country.

The yogurt meal, particularly the yogurt lunch, has gained many fans among dieters. At approximately 225 calories when sweetened fruit is added, the yogurt meal contains fewer calories than a 370 calorie meal of tuna salad sandwich and potato chips. Yogurt is only slightly higher calorie-wise, than milk. An eight-ounce cup of plain yogurt has 180 calories compared to the same amount of whole milk with 160 calories. A tablespoon of yogurt, used in recipes instead of sour cream (25-30 calories) or mayonnaise (107 calories), contains only seven to nine calories.

Yogurt is made from a mixture of fresh, partially skimmed milk and nonfat dry milk, although fresh whole milk and skim milk may be used, too. The final product may also contain sugar, flavorings, colorings, and fruit in the form of pieces, purees, concentrates, or preserves.

Yogurt additives help produce a firmer texture or prevent water separation. If some liquid separate, it is perfectly safe. Just stir it back into the yogurt, or pour it off.

Although there have been many changes in yogurt making, the basic principle of fermentation still guides production. First, the milk mixture is pasteurized and homogenized. Then pure bacteria cultures are added. These friendly bacteria convert lactose (milk sugar) to lactic acid. The acid causes the milk to curdle or thicken, creating the tangy flavor. Heating the bacteria and milk mixture causes the fermentation to occur. Fermentation is also the process by which home yogurt-makers work.

If you don't have one of these specialized appliances, it's easy to make your own yogurt in the oven. Preheat the oven to 100 degrees. Have several clean glass jars or custard cups ready to hold the amount of milk you are preparing. They may be prewarmed in the oven. The yogurt recipe calls for a pint of milk. You may add 1/2 cup of dry milk to the whole or skim milk for creamier yogurt.

Heat milk to 180 degrees, or almost boiling. Cool it to lukewarm (115 degrees). Then add two to three tablespoons of plain yogurt at room temperature, and stir well. Pour the milk into the prepared containers, cover with plastic wrap, and place in the warmed oven.

The milk with the added yogurt should reach a custardy consistency in three to four hours. If you use a yogurt culture from a specialty food store, it may take seven to eight hours to reach the right consistency. Check every half hour. Refrigerate when ready. Your yogurt should keep six to seven days.

Reserve a small amount from this first batch to use for another batch. Preferably, yogurt should be not older than five days when used as a starter.

If you wish to make fruit yogurt, have the warm, sweetened, crushed fruit in the bottom of the jars before adding the milk and yogurt. Yogurt should be gently folded into other ingredients if you use it in cooking, since beating breaks down its texture.

Yogurt is the gourmet secret in this recipe for Shrimp Stroganoff. Besides adding a delicious rich flavor, the yogurt is an excellent source of protein and calcium in this perfect-for-company entrée.

SHRIMP STROGANOFF

- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 small clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dill weed
- 1 can (10 1/2 oz.) beef broth
- 1 can (2 oz.) sliced mushrooms
- 2 cups cooked shrimp
- 1 cup plain yogurt at room temperature
- Hot buttered noodles or rice
- In large skillet, melt butter; saute onion and garlic until onion is tender. Stir in flour, salt and dill weed. Remove from heat; gradually stir in beef broth and mushrooms with liquid. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Add shrimp; heat over low heat 5-10 minutes. Stir in yogurt, heat to serving temperature (do not boil). Serve over noodles or rice. 4-6 servings.

YOGURT HINTS

- Ways with Flavored or Plain Yogurt
- *Blend with mayonnaise for fruit salad dressing.
- *Use as topping for soups, pancakes, waffles and pies.
- *Substitute one cup yogurt for one cup cold water in making gelatin salads.
- *Make a parfait by alternating layers of smooth yogurt and fruit.
- *Mixed in the blender with cut up fruit and a little ice, yogurt makes a refreshing summer drink.
- Ways with Plain Yogurt
- *Flavor with sugar and dash of vanilla; top with cinnamon or grated orange rind; serve over fruit.
- *Stir in jam, preserves, honey, maple syrup, brown sugar, nuts, or spices for a nutritious and tasty snack.
- *Use as a dressing for potato salad or coleslaw.
- *Serve plain or with chives as a topping for baked potato, or as a party dip.
- *Use as the liquid ingredient for a quiche, the sauce in a chicken casserole or chicken ala king, or as a pie ingredient.
- *Yogurt contributes a tender crumb to pound cake, crepes, or pancakes.
- Cooking with Yogurt
- *Spare the heat. Low temperatures and short heating times prevent the yogurt from separating (the flavor is not affected—only the appearance).
- *Add a small amount of cornstarch or flour to yogurt to help prevent separation when baking with yogurt.
- *Use yogurt to thin condensed cream soups for sauces; you'll like the new flavor.
- *Yogurt fills in for buttermilk in biscuits and pancakes when thinned with about half again as much water.
- *To add yogurt to a hot mixture, stir a small amount of the hot mixture into the yogurt first, and then combine that mixture with the remaining hot mixture.

Trials, Tribulations In Neutering a Naderite

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Publisher James Roberts of Andrews eloquently describes his attempt to switch to a compact car).

They hated one another at the outset. He was accustomed to wider, deeper seats, armrests, cruise control, lots of legroom, and gears that took care of themselves.

She was used to young, supple hands that handled her four-in-the-floor with dexterity and caressed the steering apparatus with relaxed firmness.

The marriage was only four days old when he, unused to the short wheel base on the small red and white compact, backed away from the curb at too short an angle and caught a bumper into her right rear fender.

She didn't like her marred appearance and sulked and sputtered for days. She didn't like the way he shifted gears, accelerated, or turned.

And he responded by by-passing the clutch on some shifts, late shifting on third gear, and twisting overly hard on the steering wheel.

The hate between them grew like an inspired cancerous cell. She sprung a tiny leak in her differential and he ignored it way too long.

An inserted key turned forward started the little motor. The key turned counterclockwise shut off the motor. Simple enough! Except when you wanted to extract the key--then Naderism set in.

The key can only be extracted by depressing a hidden button on the steering column--but all the time fingers hunt for the stupid button a loud, discordant, insulting buzzer blasts away.

Make a short pit stop at the house and if the key is left in the ignition, the bellicose buzzer bellers full time until the driver returns, starts the motor, and closes the door.

He hated the buzzer--it typified everything wrong with the modern-day Naderite car. And it was the buzzer that brought about the confrontation.

Several times, he had taken flashlight and screwdriver in hand to try and track down beneath the dash the insulting buzzer but to no avail.

Yesterday, after a day that went wrong from the start, he declared all-out war on the buzzer.

Parking the little compact in the driveway, he took flashlight, screwdriver, and hammer with him as he peered and poked beneath the dash.

With the door open, the key in the ignition, and the motor running, he twisted, turned, poked, and prodded, until one leg was on the driveway, another stuck over the top of the seat, his head beneath the dash, and one arm pinned beneath...and she didn't like it.

The buzzer got louder and louder. His blood pressure got higher and higher--then it happened. A white blur streaked into the car. A brown fuzzy blob barked from somewhere beneath the car--the old white Persian cat and the eight-weeks old puppy were at it again.

He barked, she hissed, the buzzer bellered, and he pulled his head from beneath the dash, bumping his noggin along the way.

A missed swipe with the hammer and the cat landed atop his head with all-four feet with claws extended dug into his scalp.

At the same time, the needle-sharp teeth of the puppy dug into the exposed ankle on the driveway. He came up from under the steering wheel and she counter-attacked, the seat belt rigging trapped one arm and the shoulder harness got him around the neck.

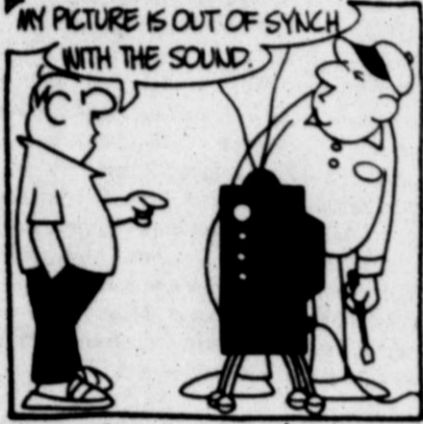

The buzzer boomed away as the puppy bit, the cat clawed, the seat belt twisted, the shoulder harness choked, the motor raced, and she was winning.

But the jolt saved him. Exploring fingers beneath the dash accidentally found hot wires--and the resulting jolt raised the hair on him and the cat and shocked the wet mouthed puppy...and the hammer stopped the buzzer and the motor.

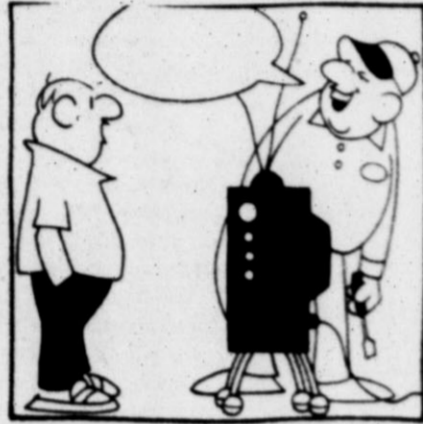

If you see a small red and white compact parked downtown with no seatbelts, no shoulder harness, no buzzer, an odd assortment of glass, nuts and bolts on the floorboard, and a hammer occupying a place of honor on the dash, give her a quick pat. She's a conquered, tamed, neutered Naderite!

'Too Tall' Jones Tosses In Towel For Boxing Ring

NEW YORK (AP) - With heavyweight champion Larry Holmes by his side lending moral support, Dallas Cowboys defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones quit pro football Tuesday to pursue his first love, boxing. Jones, a 6-foot-9, 270-pounder, said he would probably box about 35 pounds below the weight he toted for five years in the National Football League. "It's where my heart lies," Jones said of boxing. "At 28, I don't feel I'm too old." And he said he figured he would be ready to fight a contender within two years and that he expected his boxing career to last "four to six years at the most." Holmes publicizing his Friday night World Boxing Council title fight against Mike Weaver at Madison Square Garden, studied the towering Jones for a moment and observed: "You'll be ready sooner than two years.

If you can be ready by November, I'm willing to take you on." Jones read a prepared statement at the news conference in which he insisted his decision to retire at this time had been made four years ago, when he signed a three-year contract with the Cowboys, and was not a ploy to get a sweeter contract offer from them or from any other NFL team.

"My decision is not based on any negative reasons of feelings I have toward the Cowboys, financial or otherwise," he said, reading from his prepared text. "I am not - repeat, not - using my retirement as some sort of contract-negotiating strategy ... This is absolutely not a money decision. I will not consider any contract offers from the Cowboys or any other football team or from any other field other than boxing ... If I am contacted I will not negotiate. If a contract is offered I will not accept.

"My reasons for this decision are positive. To become a professional heavyweight boxer is something I have wanted to do for a long time and I am going to do it given the help and support of my family and friends."

David Wolf, current manager for former Olympic heavyweight champion Duan Bobick, will manage Jones, whose boxing experience is limited to a Golden Gloves stint in high school.

In his statement, Jones also thanked his Tennessee State coaches, John Merritt and Joe Gilliam, and the Cowboys, including Tom Landry, whom he called "a truly brilliant football coach, the best in the business. More than that, however, I have the greatest respect and admiration for him as a person ... To me he is all the man there is."

Walks, Big Innings Secure Wins For Teams

Base on balls proved the undoing of St. Anthony's softball team last night as First Presbyterian used a big first inning to trounce them 28-7 in the first game of church league action.

In the second game, San Jose took an early lead and continued to score throughout the game to overwhelm Community Church, 21-7.

The initial contest had the Presbyterians send 15 batters to the plate in the first frame, scoring 10 runs. In the second inning 11 batters went to the plate as they added nine more runs to put the game out of reach.

St. Anthony's issued four walks the first inning as the Presbyterian scored all 10 of their runs before suffering an out. The win brings Presbyterians record to 3-1, good enough to put them one game behind league leader First Baptist Church. St. Anthony's drops to 1-4.

San Jose used a seven run second inning to subdue Community Church in the nightcap of league action. The Catholics had 13 batters go to the plate in the inning, picking up eight hits and two walks.

Community Church could not score the first inning, and managed only two tallies in the second frame as they fell behind and could not get their offense untracked.

Community scored two runs in the second, one in the fourth and fifth and three in the final frame while San Jose tallied one run in the first and seven in the second to give them all the runs they needed to win the game.

San Jose is now at 2-3 while Community drops to 1-3, a half game back.

Next action for the league will be Thursday with the First Christian teams face each other in the initial contest and FBC plays First Methodist in the finale.

Johnson Starts Right For Texas In 2-1 Win Over Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) Texas Manager Pat Corrales was pleased with what he saw of newly acquired pitcher John Henry Johnson in Tuesday night's 2-1 victory over the California Angels.

But Corrales, whose team moved into second place in the American League West 4 1/2 games behind California, wasn't happy with what he thinks he saw of Angel starter Jim Barr.

Johnson, obtained on Friday from the Oakland A's, went five innings before developing a tightness in his left leg, giving up four hits and striking out 10 Angels. The victory in his Texas debut gives him a 3-8 season mark.

Jim Kern blanked the Angels over the last four innings for his 10th save of the season.

Barr, 32, went 8 1/3 innings and gave up both Texas runs. He also had Corrales fuming that the Angel right-hander was doctoring the baseball. His most forceful complaint, with two outs in the top of the sixth, earned Corrales his second ejection of the season.

"I don't know what he was using," Corrales said of Barr, who joined the Angels during the winter after playing out his option at San Francisco. "I don't think it was moisture, maybe a little grease."

Corrales began yelling at home plate umpire Darrell Cousins in the second inning, after Pat Putnam and Oscar Gamble of the Rangers opened with singles. Barr got out of the inning when Joffe Ellis flied out and Rickie Zisk and Jim Sundberg struck out.

Barr has become used to the complaint from opposing American Leaguers. He said he merely holds his fastball three different ways, causing different action on his pitchers.

"You can go to hell for lying," said Corrales, a catcher for 15 years. He indicated in wet language that he knows a wet one when he sees one.

Whatever Barr was doing to the ball, it wasn't enough to beat Texas. The Rangers got one score in the fourth inning when Buddy Bell and Putnam opened with singles and Gamble had a sacrifice fly.

Texas scored the game winning run in the fifth.

Sundberg singled and stole second and scored on Larvell Blanks' double, and that was all the runs Johnson and Kern needed.

"I was loose and having a good time tonight," said Johnson, impressed with the ability of his new teammates. "A trade helps your spirits. You can let guys hit the ball and there is a good chance it will be caught. Leaving a club like (last place) Oakland you can't regret a trade like this."

Martin Debut Spoiled

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Billy Martin picked a bad night to come back home to Yankee Stadium. Only two American League home teams were winners Tuesday and Martin's Yankees weren't one of them.

The fiery Martin took over the defending World Champions from Bob Lemon, the man who replaced Martin when he resigned last July, and also coached third base as Toronto edged New York 2-4. The Blue Jays were one of five victorious visiting teams in the AL Tuesday.

Elsewhere, Detroit won in Boston for the first time after 12 successive losses at Fenway Park, 10-4 in 14 innings. Baltimore won its fifth straight game, a 6-4 verdict at Cleveland; Texas edged California 2-1 at Anaheim, and Seattle won in Chicago, 7-2. The only home teams to win were Oakland, a 6-5 winner over Kansas City, and Milwaukee, which outslugged Minnesota 10-9.

"Just being back in uniform is great," Martin said. "You don't realize how much you miss the game until you're gone for as long as I was."

Martin also had kind words for the Yankee fans. "They're great fans," he said. "I wish we could have given them a victory. I've been a Yankee fan all my life; maybe that's what we have in common."

The Yankees weren't much more effective under Martin than they'd been recently under Lemon. Light-hitting Luis Gomez broke a 3-3 tie when he drove in his first two runs of the season with a bases-loaded single in the sixth inning.

New York almost won it in the bottom of the ninth. Thurman Munson led off with a bloop single to center and Graig Nettles, who had a two-run homer earlier, drove a fly ball to deep right field.

"It was hanging up in the air," said Toronto right fielder Joe Cannon, who was inserted as a defensive replacement the inning before. "I got back as far as I could and got lucky and brought it down. I was really trying to keep it from going out; I think it would have hit the top of the fence."

"It was a good shot but I'm proud of the way I timed my jump."

Martin was proud of the effort his Yankees gave. "I'm never happy after I lose a ball game," he said, "but we hit the ball hard and executed well."

Toronto's victory deprived

Tommy John, 10-3, of becoming the first 11-game winner in the majors. It was the third straight time he had failed to win his 11th game.

"Two checked swings, one anteaater to the infield and five bloop," was how Martin described the Blue Jays' key hits off John, neglecting to mention the ace left-hander walked six and uncorked two wild pitches.

Home Landscaping Can Benefit From Attractive Native Plants

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

Homeowners in Texas, and others interested in landscaping, may be missing a good bet if they fail to include use of plants that are "native Texans."

The merit of this idea will be readily understood by anyone who has nursed a prize rose or a choice camellia through a searing summer or a bone-freezing winter.

Hardy native plants that have been selected by thousands of generations to withstand our extremes of climate can thrive in conditions that cause many newcomers to wilt and die.

Major obstacles to the use of these plants have been their unavailability in the nursery trade and public unawareness of their value.

Use of native Texas plants in landscaping has vast potential. Very little breeding work has been done on even the most promising native plants, and there is little information on adaptability and cultural requirements.

Scientists with Texas A&M University and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) are advocating expanded use of plants they call "native Texans."

Texas has over 5,300 species of plants which include about 300 trees and an equal number of woody shrubs.

It's estimated that somewhere between 300 and 450 of these could be used as ornamental plants.

To widen the base of native plants that might be of value to Texas nurseries and homeowners, preliminary screening was started in 1973 at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Dallas.

"We first selected plants for their ornamental desirability," according to Station Research Scientist, Benny J. Simpson.

"If needed, reproduction methods were explored and then the plant was field tested for adaptability and resistance to insects and diseases."

Simpson says that examples of native plants already widely offered in the nursery trade are live oak, red oak, southern magnolia, flowering dogwood, bald cypress, cedar elm, American elm, pecan, sweet gum, red maple, Arizona cypress, yucca holly, and cenizo.

Less often found are willow oak, white oak, laurel oak, mesquite, Texas mountain laurel, desert willow, American holly, black gum, anqua, wild olive, Texas ebony, and sweet bay magnolia.

Hundreds of native plants are being tested at the Experiment Station in Dallas. Some of them are:

Oaks: Of Texas 43 species and 2 varieties of oaks, the following seem to have the best potential for the western two-thirds of Texas: the Lacey, Mexican blue, Hinckley, Gray, Emory, Coahuila scrub, Tomney, shrub live, netleaf, sandpaper, Vasey, silverleaf, graceful, and Chisos red oak.

Maples: Bigtooth, southwestern bigtooth, Uvalde bigtooth, eastern sugar, southern sugar, and chalk maple can be widely grown in Texas. Except for red maples, the Texas maples seem to do well on varied soils.

Needle evergreens: Ponderosa, Mexican pinyon, remote Mexican pinyon, Colorado pinyon, and southwestern white pine along with the blue Douglas-fir have merit for the High Plains and the high country of the Trans-Pecos.

Texas Madrone and Chisos Rosewood are premier evergreens for Dallas-Austin-San Antonio and further west.

Cenizo: Texas has three species of this evergreen shrub, the Texas silverleaf, Big Bend silverleaf, and violet silverleaf.

Saltia: At least four of the shrubby, woody saltias have desirability as landscape plants.

Because of Dallas' soil and climate the plants on test are mostly of western origin and best suited to use west of Interstate Highway 35.

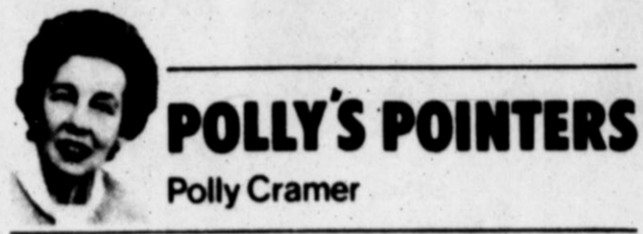

Native plants suited to East Texas also deserve the same care and concern presently being expended on western plants but at present have no comparable facility.

A start has been made on the horticulture farm at Texas A&M. Dr. Ed McWilliams, horticulturist with A&M and the Agricultural Experiment Station, says he has red maple, farkleberry, Texas pistache, blackberries, plum, Carolina buckthorn, Mexican buckeye, and several oak species growing there.

In addition, McWilliams has worked closely with the Brazos County Arboretum, founded in 1976, which contains many native plants. More will be added in the future and their growth observed by McWilliams and other Station scientists.

Readers who are interested in the use of native ornamental plants in their landscapes or who have ideas and suggestions concerning the potential of natives versus exotics are encouraged to correspond with Dr. Ed McWilliams, Department of Horticultural Sciences, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX 77843.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer

Shoes won't stay white

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — What is the most effective way to remove scuff marks from children's white shoes? Even two coats of white shoe polish do not do it.

I keep a damp sponge handy on wash day and at the end of each drying cycle use it to remove the lint from the catcher screen in the dryer. It does a thorough job and prevents screeching one's hands or nails on the screen. — MAUREEN

DEAR MAUREEN — Have you tried using white ink such as one may use to address colored envelopes? If shoes are patent or have a shiny finish a bit of clear nail polish applied just on the dried ink may keep it on longer as well make the shoes look better. Also note the letter from June that follows this. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Please tell Mrs. P.U. who has dark spots on her white knit pants not to weaken the material by trying to remove the spots but to dab them with the white liquid correction fluid used for correcting typing. This will have to be repeated after each washing. I have used colored felt pens on white spots on colored items. — JUNE

DEAR POLLY — After remodeling a couple of houses we had a lot of scrap pieces of laminated plastic left from installing kitchen counters and bathroom basins. I saved those that were the sizes I wanted for small patio tables. I painted the cut sides and bottom and then attached wrought iron legs on some and wooden ones on others. They are very practical and are easy to keep since I have waxed them. — VIRGINIA

DEAR POLLY — I would like to share the way I found to remove that sticky feeling from plastic ware that is not used regularly. I use a dry paper towel to rub them thoroughly with shortening and then wash in hot water and detergent and every trace of stickiness is gone. This also removes pencil markings from freezer cartons. — MABEL

DEAR POLLY — I did not have a darn egg or an old light bulb when I needed to mend the sleeve on my son's knit shirt so I used the top off of a spray can. It fit right into the sleeve so the job was a breeze. — ALICE

DEAR POLLY — I had a rubber dish drainer set and the drain board became very badly stained from water sediment. I could not scrape it off. I put it outside to be hauled away and kept looking for a new one but was appalled at the prices. So I brought the old one back inside, cleaned it the best I could and decided to generously sprinkle baking soda on it. I left the soda on for three or four days. When I washed the soda all off it looked great and only had some water sediment left, so I repeated the treatment and now it is good as new. — MRS. G.L.

DEAR POLLY — When my friend's mascara started to dry up I suggested that she put a small amount of baby oil in the bottle and mix it around with the brush. She did not have to throw it away so saved some money. — DENI

DEAR POLLY — If your Lallopoint pen has stopped writing put it in about two inches of boiling water and leave for a few seconds — another pen saved. — MRS. W.F.H.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Why did he shake?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a college student and stay with a very nice family who are actually "in loco parentis." They are very interested in me and I'm interested in them. Every day after dinner we have some good discussions. One evening the landlady asked me, "Do you smoke pot or take any drugs?"

For a few seconds I had mixed feelings. Why would she ask me such a thing? I don't have long hair because I'm black with curly hair. I'm not rough looking and I always look my best. I finally was able to overcome my nervousness and tell her no, but I wanted to know why she asked such a question. She said she was curious because I looked nervous and when I held the newspaper, it shook. She associated that with drug addicts.

Early that morning she had seen one of my records which has a picture of a half-nude girl and guy smoking pot on it. I wondered if this had aroused her suspicions.

Dr. Lamb, I'd like for you to help me and other young people who are nervous and have a strong liking for records regardless of what pictures are on the outside of them. I'm 20 years old and I've never used any drugs and don't intend to.

However, I've often told my landlady and landlady that their cigarette smoking is addictive but they don't believe me. I believe that an excess of anything is harmful. Can you explain why people shake even when they are young? I'm sure this will clear a lot of misconceived ideas about nervous people like me.

DEAR READER — Most people who have the kind of nervousness you describe are lacking in self-confidence. There are many other causes as well. As you get older, particularly if you force yourself into public situations which require you to speak and respond to a variety of problems, you will gain self-confidence and your problem will decrease.

There is no one answer as to why people are anxious. The things that make one person anxious don't even bother another one. It's certainly true that simply being nervous is not an indication that a person is using drugs in any form.

An exception is using large amounts of coffee, tea, and stimulating drinks. A person who uses a lot of coffee heightens his nervousness and it can lead to shaking of the hands or tremors. In these individuals, elimination of coffee, tea and caffeine-containing drinks may relieve their sense of anxiety and their tendency toward shaking. It's worth a trial.

Considering all the people who smoke cigarettes and would like to quit because they know it's harmful to their health and how unsuccessful many of them are, it's difficult to think of cigarette smoking as anything except at least habit-forming. Long-time smokers do claim to have symptoms when they stop cigarette smoking suddenly. Cigarette smoking certainly does introduce a drug into the body, specifically nicotine.

Your "in loco parentis" may be interested in The Health Letter number 2-6, Tobacco, Cigarettes, Cigars, and Pipes and so I am sending you a copy of it. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. DALLAS (AP) - Ted McLaughlin, assistant coach at the University of Texas-El Paso, will be named the new head track at Southern Methodist University this week, inheriting a rich freshman crop that has some of the best talent in the nation, McLaughlin, 40, will replace Jim Parr, who resigned to work for the Mustang Club. UTEP won NCAA titles in both outdoor track and cross country. The Miners came within one point of a rare triple crown in collegiate track this season, finishing second by a single point in the indoor championships.

NEW YORK (AP) - Buddy Bell of the Texas Rangers was named American League player of the week after batting .480 last week.

Bell had a double and three homers among his 12 hits, drove in six runs and scored seven. He had 22 total bases, a slugging percentage of .920 and an on-base percentage of .480. He became the first Ranger to win player of the week honors this season.

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) - East German junior lifter Joachim Kunz, 20, set a new world mark in the 149-pound weight class when he jerked a weight of 402 pounds, improving the earlier record held by Bulgaria's Yanko Rusev with 400 pounds.

The successful lift, though set outside the world junior weight lifting championship being held in Budapest, counts as a new world senior and junior mark. Kunz also won the championship's 149-pound jerk event with a lift of 386 pounds.

'Crazy' Andjudar Wins For Houston

HOUSTON (AP) - Teammates of Houston Astros pitcher Joaquin Andjudar will tell you the guy is emotional and occasionally does crazy things.

"I've seen him take a shower with his uniform still on," Astros third baseman Enos Cabell laughed. "He just kind of goes crazy sometimes. We just laugh and say, 'well, there goes Joaquin acting crazy again.'"

Andjudar went crazy again in the Astrodom Tuesday night but the New York Mets were not laughing. Andjudar pitched a two-hitter en route to a 3-1 victory that promoted the Astros to a 2 1/2 game lead over second place Cincinnati in the National League Western Division.

"I like to be different," Andjudar said recently after plunging into the shower in full uniform.

Andjudar proved himself a little different on the mound Tuesday night, handcuffing the Mets with a single by John Stearns in the second inning and a run scoring single by Willie Montanez in the eighth.

The single by Stearns resulted in a brief exchange between the two players with several players from both dugouts charging onto the field.

"He said something to me after he got the hit and I said, okay if you want to fight let's go," Andjudar said. "But he's really a smart player. He didn't want to fight. He just wanted to break my concentration."

"But it didn't work. I kept my concentration, but he didn't get another hit."

Stearns had little to say about the incident. "He just threw a knockdown pitch and I don't know why," Stearns said and walked away from an interview. Andjudar had thrown a pitch over Stearns' head prior to his hit.

Andjudar faltered in the eighth inning when he walked three batters and yielded the Mets' lone run on Montanez' single.

Steve Henderson led off the inning with his third walk of the game and scored the run.

The Astros supported Andjudar, 7-4, with single runs in the first, third and fourth innings.

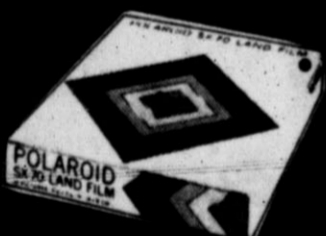

Andy Hassler, a recent trade acquisition, got the loss in his first National League start.

Houston leadoff batter Terry Puhl scored the Astros' first two runs. He walked to open the first inning, was sacrificed to second, stole third and scored on Cesar Cedeño's double.

In the third inning, Puhl singled to rightfield. Julio Gonzalez then singled, sending Puhl to third base and when Mets rightfielder Joel Youngblood tried to throw Puhl out at third base, Puhl scored on third baseman Richie Hebner's fielding error.

Jose Cruz singled to open Houston's fourth and scored on Andjudar's grounder.

During his long career with the Baltimore Orioles, Brooks Robinson hit into four triple plays.
