

Texas Truckers Talk Strike Producers Worried about Vegetables

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
Associated Press Writer

Texas and Connecticut drivers vowed to halt trucking in their states and North Carolina operators voted to park their rigs today as dairy farmers dumped milk and produce growers worried about getting their products to market.

President Carter was considering whether to lift an order assuring farmers all the diesel fuel they need to free additional supplies for protesting truck operators.

National Guard troops escorted gasoline tank trucks in Minnesota to replenish supplies at fuel-hungry service stations. One shooting incident was reported there, and others were reported in Utah, Pennsylvania and South Carolina.

A driver was shot and killed in Alabama on Wednesday - the first fatality linked to the violence-riddled shutdown. The FBI joined the investigation, and Gov. Fob James denounced the assailants as "outlaws and cold-blooded murderers."

Some 100 Alabama truckers, dismayed at the death of 31-year-old Robert C. Tate of Birmingham, voted to remove blockades and let gasoline flow to drivers who have lined up at service stations.

Strike leaders estimate 40 percent to 75 percent of the nation's 100,000 owner-operators have joined the shutdown. William J. Hill of the Independent Truckers Unity Committee, a coalition of trucker and steelhaulers groups, urged more to join the protest today.

Independents based in Dallas vowed an "out-and-out shutdown" of the region's highways, and North Carolina's Independent Double-0 Truckers Association agreed to stop work.

In Connecticut, angry haulers vowed to "close the whole state of Connecticut down," said spokesman Herb Johnson.

Elsewhere, it appeared the latest call to shut down had little impact. Truck stops on the Ohio Turnpike generally reported business as usual.

The truckers are protesting high fuel prices and other state and federal regulations. Many would receive greater operating flexibility under a Carter administration proposal to deregulate the trucking industry being unveiled today.

In other developments Wednesday:

-Service stations in Omaha, Neb., were virtually out of fuel or closed to conserve their remaining supplies. Lines three to six blocks long were reported at the open stations before truckers and state senators agreed on a plan for shipments of gasoline.

-Angry Michigan truckers vowed to hold picket lines indefinitely at fuel depots around Michigan as officials sent state troopers to ride shotgun with drivers fearful of crossing picket lines.

-Interstate Commerce Commission Chairman A. Daniel O'Neal urged people to put off summer moving plans, saying the moving industry is "severely strained at the moment."

-The American Trucking Association said some of its 16,874 member firms were operating at 50 percent to 75 percent of capacity out of fear of violence on the highways.

Correspondent Killed By Managua Soldier

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) - Nicaragua's national guard says it arrested the corporal who shot and killed ABC correspondent Bill Stewart as he lay face down at a guard roadblock in Managua, a presidential press card in his hand.

President Anastasio Somoza's offensive to drive the Sandinista guerrillas from the slum barrios on the eastern side of the capital appeared to have bogged down as the drive went into its fourth day. Residents said guard patrols were taking heavy casualties, and reporters who visited the area saw several bullet-riddled military vehicles.

Stewart was trying to get through a government roadblock to the fighting Wednesday when a soldier ordered him to lie on the ground, kicked him once in the ribs and then killed him with a rifle shot to the head. Stewart's Nicaraguan interpreter, Juan Francisco Espinoza, also was killed, apparently by another soldier.

Stewart's camera crew, watching from a van parked near the roadblock, filmed the slaying, and the film was broadcast Wednesday night by all three U.S. networks. President Carter said the killing was "an act of barbarism that all civilized people condemn," and Somoza, expressing his "deep and sad condolences," said "the full weight of the law" would be brought to bear on those responsible.

The 37-year-old correspondent, who covered the revolution in Iran in February, had been in Nicaragua for 10 days, ABC said. He was the first foreign correspondent killed in the 24-day-old war between the Sandinista rebels fighting to overthrow the 42-year-old Somoza family dictatorship and Somoza's 13,000-man national guard.

Col. Aquiles Aranda Escobar, the guard's public information officer, said Stewart's killer would be brought before legal officers today. Officers and noncoms in the man's unit also would be questioned, he said. He took a copy of the camera crew's video tape for evidence.

At least a score of the more than 90 foreign reporters in Nicaragua said they would leave the embattled Central American nation today to protest the shooting. ABC and NBC said it was withdrawing its crews, and CBS said it was leaving only one correspondent.

The U.S. Embassy said a U.S. Air Force plane would take Stewart's body to Panama, and ABC was sending a plane there to return it to the United States.

Stewart is survived by his wife, Myrna, and his parents, who live in Huntington, W.Va.

The national guard announced Monday that it had launched a full-scale counter-attack to drive the Sandinistas from their strongholds in Managua and predicted that the operation would be completed by Wednesday. But journalists who entered the eastern barrios on Wednesday said the guerrillas were still

Violence Mars Rationing in East

By PETER MACKLER
Associated Press Writer

Defiance, fuel thefts and mixed success greeted the first full-scale "odd-even" gasoline rationing in the East, where fights erupted at pumps, a gun was pulled and a service station owner was run over.

New Jersey, Maryland, northern Virginia and the District of Columbia began selling fuel by the numbers today. Florida's Dade County - the Miami area - was starting voluntary rationing. Polk County, in the center of the state, was trying it at midnight.

The screams of angry motorists were heard, and federal officials refused to relax fuel economy standards for passenger cars of the 1980s and planned new efforts to develop synthetic fuel to replace imported oil.

President Carter was reviewing ways to help service station owners, who say they need to boost profits - and thus prices - by as much as 4 cents a gallon. The administration also agreed to review its planned cutbacks on the Amtrak passenger rail system.

Blocks-long lines were reported Wednesday at some gas stations in Connecticut and the New York City area - where gas was up to $1.39 a gallon - despite their first day of rationing.

"It's still a miserable situation," said Frank Hardy, manager of a Mobile station in mid-town Manhattan. "After a day or two, if everyone follows the rules, it'll be OK."

But some people reported their waiting time at pumps cut by as much as 75 percent and officials said it would be a week before the distribution plan fully

Clements, Others Discuss Problems

Border-State Governors Meet

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) - Farmworkers and the thorny problems of illegal aliens, drug smuggling and energy face at least three border state governors gathering today for a two-day conference.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements; Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt and New Mexico Gov. Bruce King will meet at the Rancho Viejo resort just north of this border city.

California Gov. Jerry Brown has said he probably will not attend and designated Tom Hayden, husband of actress Jane Fonda, as his representative.

The governors will attend a cocktail reception and dinner tonight before Friday's four-hour business meeting.

About 40 members of the Texas Farmworkers Union awaited the governors, apparently to rally for better working conditions and bargaining rights.

Babbitt arrived a day early to visit in-laws living here.

Clements, a first-term Republican, will offer position papers Friday on how to solve problems of aliens, drugs and energy. He hopes the group will agree on policies that can be presented to Mexican governors and the U.S. State

"We are keeping them (Mexican officials) informed now," Clements has said. "Neither is the State Department uniformed."

He admits the governors cannot formulate international policy.

"The four states can certainly make a recommendation to the State Department," Clements said this week.

Routine matters take up most of the agenda for the Friday session. The governors will meet as members of the Southwest Border Regional Commission, a group that normally meets only at the annual National Governors' Conference.

Others attending the meeting will be Patrick Lucey, U.S. Ambassador to Mexico, and Reuben Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Clements already has drawn criticism from Babbitt and Texas Mexican-American leaders on his proposal for some sort of registration of Mexicans seeking work in the United States.

The suggestion sounds too much like the bracero program that operated in the Jewel Smith, county welfare administrator for 26 years before she retired last month, received the Bull Chip award for community service during the highlight event of this morning's Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Fun Breakfast, sponsored by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Mrs. Smith, honored because "she ain't gonna be buying no more Cadillacs for those poor folks," according to co-master of ceremonies Doug Manning, was awarded the coveted green chip while receiving a long round of applause from the 200 persons who attended the breakfast at the Community Center.

Mrs. Smith plans to remain active in numerous community affairs, including Deaf Smith County Council on Alcoholism and Salvation Army. For her local contributions, she was once named Citizen of the Year in Hereford.

Among the special drawings this morning, Jim Mercer, Don Hensley and Charlie Bell won Warren Hunter prints with handmade frames, Roberta Last $75, Garth Thomas $25, Roy Parten a designer telephone and Jerry Shipman a dinner at Thompson House Restaurant, which will open Friday.

In a special drawing for chamber members only, Bobby Owen would have won $150, but was not in attendance this morning and therefore missed out.

Clark's Spring Crest Custom Draperies had 100 percent attendance, with eight representatives, at the breakfast and won the business involvement award sponsored by the chamber.

State's Fuel Supplies Dwindle as Prices Rise

HOUSTON (AP) - In this summer of discontent for motorists, Texans are finding gasoline supplies dwindling more and more with each passing week while the price for the precious liquid continues its inexorable climb.

In its weekly survey of 423 service stations across the state, the American Automobile Association found that, compared with last week, almost twice as many stations were out of at least one grade of gasoline or were limiting purchases this week, especially in the large cities.

The AAA also reported that price increases this week were the largest in the seven-week history of the survey. Prices were up an average of 1 1/2 cents per gallon for most grades, it said.

Of the stations surveyed, the AAA said, 11 percent were out of one or more grades of gasoline and 3 percent were limiting customers' purchases by dollar or gallon amount. Last week, just 6 percent were out of some grade of fuel and 2 percent were limiting purchases.

And more stations are closing weekday nights, and Sundays, the AAA said, with 73 percent shutting down by 8 p.m. weekdays, and 74 percent closing this Sunday, compared with 68 percent on weekdays and 73 percent on Sundays a week ago.

Nearly 100 percent of the 128 stations surveyed in the state's two major urban areas - Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth - are now closing nights and Sundays, and about 20 percent are out of at least one

Truck Hits Hereford Pedestrian

CLOVIS, N.M. - A 71-year-old Hereford man was critically injured Wednesday morning when he was crossing a street here and was struck by a semi tractor-trailer.

Antonio Encinas, of 226 N. 25 Mile Ave., had parked his pickup on Highway 607084 inside Clovis and was walking south across the road when he was hit by a truck driven by John Davis, 25, of Clovis.

Mrs. Encinas was still inside the pickup when the accident occurred according to a spokesman for the Clovis Police Department. The couple reportedly was in Clovis to sell aluminum cans they had collected.

Encinas suffered multiple arm and leg fractures along with facial lacerations. He was listed in critical, but stable, condition at Clovis High Plains Hospital Wednesday afternoon.

His Hands Full

Animal Control officer Butch Trevino, who "arrested" a snapping turtle earlier this week, had his hands full again today - this time with a small group of steers which tried to elude him in Veteran's Park after apparently escaping from the rodeo grounds. The steers' owner was confronted after Trevino had no luck in his one-man roundup. [Brand photo by Paul Sims]

Hijacker Takes

707 to Ireland

NEW YORK (AP) - A Serbian nationalist armed with dynamite headed for Ireland early today aboard an American Airlines Boeing 707 after switching from a smaller jetliner he hijacked 16 hours earlier during a flight from New York to Chicago, the FBI said.

The hijacker, identified by the FBI as convicted bomber Nikola Kavaja, 45, of Paterson, N.J., boarded the second plane at John F. Kennedy International Airport after a return flight to New York.

Kavaja was carrying 15 sticks of dynamite in a satchel, the FBI said. Agents could not explain how the explosives passed airport security in New York's LaGuardia Airport on Wednesday.

John Otto, the FBI agent in charge of negotiations in Chicago said bomb experts told him a device like the one Kavaja was believed to be carrying was sufficient to blow the plane to smithereens.

An FBI sharpshooter armed with a high-powered rifle was hidden in the darkness beside the runway when Kavaja changed planes, but the marksman was unable to get off a shot, said FBI spokesman Quentin Ertel.

Authorities said it was likely the plane would refuel in Ireland then head for Johannesburg, South Africa.

Million Dollar

Credit Ring Smashed

NEW YORK (AP) - Authorities say they have smashed a $1 million-a-year ring that resold airplane tickets purchased with airline credit cards lost or stolen from business executives by high-priced call girls.

Twenty-one men were indicted Wednesday in the scheme, which officials said involved some $3.5 million worth of plane tickets bought and resold since 1975.

Officials said the case was the largest ever involved airline credit cards. The indictments capped a two-year investigation by the New York City police, detectives of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, and the U.S. Postal Service.

Authorities said some of the cards used by the ring had been lost by owners. They said many were stolen by prostitutes instructed to take just the cards from out-of-town corporate executives staying at posh midtown hotels.

The cards were the Universal Air Travel Plan Q cards. Officials said the prostitutes who stole the cards generally sold them to the ring for $125 each.

Each card was used to purchase an average of $12,000 worth of tickets. Authorities said one was used for purchases totaling $74,000.

Henley Confessions

Ruled Admissible

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) - District Judge Noah Kennedy ruled Wednesday that confessions from mass murder defendant Elmer Wayne Henley are admissible as evidence in Henley's second trial.

Kennedy made his ruling after four policemen from the Houston suburb of Pasadena testified about the circumstances surrounding the oral and written confessions. The judge ruled they were made freely and voluntarily and that Henley, 23, had been given the necessary warnings.

Henley's trial was then recessed until Thursday. He is being retried on six murder counts stemming from a 1972-73 spree of homosexual torture-deaths that left 26 boys dead. He had been convicted of the six killings at a 1974 trial.

That conviction was overturned because the judge turned down a defense motion for a change of venue hearing. Now, defense attorney Will Gray said Kennedy has committed an error that could force a third trial if Henley is convicted.

"This trial was lost before it started - by the prosecution," Gray said. He claims several jurors were improperly seated.

Hopper Plague

Worst in Years

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department says parts of the West are undergoing the worst plague of grasshoppers in 21 years.

More than 4 million acres of livestock rangeland in 14 states west of the Missouri River are due for spraying under cooperative federal and state programs, officials said Wednesday.

Spraying is considered on rangeland when grasshopper numbers reach a density of eight per square yard. Last year, when the insects also were a problem, some 836,000 acres were sprayed under the cooperative program.

The states most severely hit, with hopper numbers ranging up to 100 in a square yard, include: Arizona, 124,000 acres scheduled for spraying; Nebraska, 390,000; New Mexico, 600,000; Oregon, 899,000; South Dakota, 721,000; Texas, 488,000; and Wyoming, 133,000.

Other states where grasshopper spraying is in the works include California, Idaho, Kansas, Nevada, Oklahoma and Utah.

Writer Accompanies Guerillas In Assault On Nicaraguan Guard

EDITOR'S NOTE - Freelance writer David S. Helvig of San Diego, Calif., was in Leon, Nicaragua's second largest city, when the Sandinista rebels captured the national guard garrison Monday. He accompanied a group of guerrillas on a combat mission and in this report tells of his experience.

By DAVID S. HELVIG
For The Associated Press

LEON, Nicaragua (AP) - Marcio, one of the two squad leaders at the rebel command post, was a large, friendly man with short, dark hair and a .38 special tucked in the waistband of his blue jeans.

At 41, he joked about being the "old man of the revolution" against President Anastasio Somoza.

Ariel, the other squad leader, was younger, shorter and quieter, with thoughtful hazel eyes. He wore combat boots and jeans and carried a Belgian FAL rifle across his back.

On his head was a black beret with a red tassel and a small Snoopy pin with the word "peace" across the bottom.

Like most of the rebels, both men used only one name, a pseudonym.

"I was a bank clerk before the uprising last September," said Ariel. "I love peace and just wanted to work. But sometimes you have to make war if you want to be free, if you want to live with any kind of dignity."

After we had talked for about 20 minutes, he looked at his watch and said: "We have to go on a mission. Want to come along?"

He explained that his group was to create a diversion to draw the attention of national guard snipers in the cathedral tower while other Sandinista units attacked the church.

The Sandinistas had controlled most of Leon for two weeks, but national guardsmen still held five buildings near the central plaza.

Ariel formed up his men, seven high-spirited teen-agers armed with FAL and Garand rifles.

Those who stayed behind at the post were left with a hodge-podge of weapons including .22 rifles, shotguns and pistols.

After passing through various houses, we came out in the cloakroom of a finely appointed building with a marble staircase and a large shattered glass mirror. Ariel said it had been a society club.

We crept up the stairs, sprinted past windows and reached the top floor.

The Sandinistas took position and on orders from Ariel opened fire through the windows, shooting across the roofline of an adjoining building.

The noise was deafening as the youths fired single shots and in full automatic.

During breaks in the firing, the youths would yell, "Patria libre o morir!" - A free country or death!

At the end of two hours, we pulling out of the building, retracing our steps to the command post.

The next day I learned that the rebels had taken the cathedral. I visited the bell tower where the national guard snipers had been.

Lighter Side

LONDON (AP) - Rock star Mick Jagger kissed a postcard and raised $1,600 for charity at a sale held by Sotheby's, the fine art auctioneer.

The sale on Monday of "lipographs" - lipstick imprints of kisses - raised a total of $10,800. Jagger's fetched the top price, paid by Paul Simmons, a private buyer.

A lipograph by screen siren Marlene Dietrich sold for $1,200 one by boxer Muhammad Ali for $1,160 and another by actress Bette Davis for $1,000. A lipograph by ballet dancer Rudolph Nureyev fetched $240 for the Save the Children Fund.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., has introduced a resolution to make sure former President Richard Nixon repays the U.S. Treasury for $667,000 in government-financed improvements to the California estate he is selling.

Hart's non-binding Senate resolution calls on the Secret Service and the General Services Administration to obtain reimbursement from Nixon for improvements that increased the value of his San Clemente, Calif., estate. A Hart aide said the government spent $600,000 while Nixon was president for security improvements there, while another $67,000 was spent to make the facility more useful for official functions.

The sale price of the 26-acre compound once known as the Western White House and the identity of the buyer have not been reported.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Wendy Yoshimura, Patricia Hearst's one-time fugitive companion, is preparing to go to prison.

The California Supreme Court refused Friday to overturn Ms. Yoshimura's 1977 conviction of unlawful possession of explosives, a machine gun and materials with intent to make destructive devices and explosives.

Ms. Yoshimura, who faces a 15-year sentence for the weapons charges, remained free on $50,000 bond. She now lives in Oakland, works part-time at the Juice Bar Collective in Berkeley and teaches art to Japanese-American senior citizens.

Ms. Yoshimura became a fugitive in 1972 after police found a cache of illegal weapons and explosives in a garage she rented. She and Miss Hearst, who had been kidnapped by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army, were captured by the FBI the same day fugitive SLA leaders William and Emily Harris were arrested.

Publishers Hurt By Shortage

continued shortage of newsprint is forcing American newspaper publishers to look to less traditional sources for supplies of paper, including purchases of newsprint at premium prices from paper mills abroad.

The newsprint shortage stems from various labor problems at paper mills in the United States and Canada, including strikes at mills in Eastern Canada and a recently ended strike at mills in the Western United States.

Shipments of newsprint from Canada, for example, dropped in April from levels of both March and the year before, according to the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

At the same time, demand for newsprint from American newspapers rose 3 percent in the first four months of 1979, according to a survey by the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

With North American sources drying up, publishers have begun buying newsprint from mills in Japan, Sweden and Finland for the first time in several years. Some are reportedly paying as much as $600 a ton for the paper compared to $345 a ton for newsprint from American mills.

More than 34,000 tons of newsprint were imported into North America in the first four months of 1979, compared to 5,900 tons in all of 1978. That paper, most of which came from Finland, cost an average of $458 a ton, according to government figures.

The newsprint supply situation could worsen this summer if millworker unions in British Columbia don't come to agreement on a new contract with mills there.

Contracts end June 30 between the companies and unions representing 12,800 British Columbia pulp and paper workers. The workers are represented by two unions, the Canadian Paperworkers' Union and the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada.

The CPU wants pay raises of 15 percent in each year of a two-year contract, while the PPWC wants a one-year contract with a $1.50-an-hour increase. The current base pay for paper workers is $8.16 an hour.

The companies have not yet made an offer.

Carter Names Roof Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter unveiled his solar energy proposals on the White House roof Wednesday, declaring that only solar and renewable energy sources can produce "true energy security."

In a message linked to a ceremony that marked the operation of a new sun-powered water heater for the executive mansion, the president said:

"Energy from the sun is clean and safe. It will not pollute the air we breathe or the water we drink. It does not run the risk of an accident which may threaten the health or life of our citizens."

The key elements of Carter's proposal are:

- Creation of a national solar goal of meeting 20 percent of the country's energy needs with solar and renewable sources by the end of the century.
- Establishment of a Solar Bank to provide interest subsidies for owners and builders of residences and commercial structures where solar equipment is installed.

A 20 percent tax credit, up to $2,000 per home, for new homes built using passive solar designs and applications.

In a message to Congress, Carter said: "No foreign cartel can set the price of sun power; no one can embargo it."

Richard Munson, coordinator of the Solar Lobby, a private group backing solar energy development, said Carter rejected a proposal to challenge the nation to aim for a 30 percent dependence on solar power by the end of the century.

Solar power now accounts for 6 percent of the nation's energy needs and would be expected to supply 13 percent by the end of the century without the president's program.

Munson also said Carter had chosen to increase fiscal 1981 spending for solar energy $100 million more than what the Budget Office recommended, but $350 million less than an Energy Department proposal.

Carter's solar energy budget for fiscal 1980, which begins Oct. 1, calls for spending $646 million.

dug in and heavily armed.

The rebels hold large parts of eastern Managua, plus extensive sectors in the southern city of Rivas, where they have said a column advancing from the Costa Rican border would establish a provisional government. They have also occupied all of Leon, the nation's second largest city, and control most of Matagalpa, Esteli and other cities in the north and northwest.

Reporters returning from Leon said the last national guard snipers had been killed or captured Wednesday, but the guard was still shelling the city from a fort on the outskirts.

Government officials said earlier this week that no attempt would be made to recover Leon and other northern cities until the rebels were cleared from Managua and the drive in the south had been crushed.

The guard on Wednesday flew reporters to La Virgen, a military training camp about six miles south of Rivas, and then took them in a truck convoy to a position about four miles north of the Costa Rican border.

Guardsmen there said Sandinista forces that crossed the border from bases in Costa Rica had been held within a few miles of the border in fierce fighting Tuesday.

The Organization of American States was holding a meeting of foreign ministers in Washington today to discuss the war, and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was expected to call for a cease-fire and an OAS mediation effort to create a broad-based representative government for Nicaragua.

The provisional junta announced last weekend by the Sandinistas rejected the inclusion of Somoza or any members of his Liberal Party in the future government, and one member of the junta said: "It's too late for any chance of conciliation."

The Sandinistas, who take their name from a rebel leader of the 1930s, when the U.S. Marines put Somoza's father in control of the country, led a two-week uprising last September in which an estimated 1,500 persons were killed. Another 1,500 are estimated to have been killed between then and the start of the current war, but there is no estimate of dead and wounded since then.

Stations

took hold.

Scuffles were reported to some pumps and one motorist in Port Washington, N.Y., was arrested for running over a station owner who had closed up for the day, breaking the man's arm.

In Norwich, Conn., a man pulled a gun when told he couldn't buy gas because his license plate ended in an odd number and it was an even-numbered day. The man left without firing any shots.

Some gas station operators, who face $1,000 fines in both states plus up to a year in jail in Connecticut for non-compliance, balked at going along with the rationing rules.

At Jim's Auto Center in Newington, Conn., owner James Canonic openly flouted the regulations and dared officials to come after him.

"If I have to go to court I will. It's against my constitutional rights," Canonic said. "I think it's ridiculous. If I have to sell the business to pay the fines and I have to go to jail, I'll do it."

Officials in both states said they were being flooded with requests for exemptions granted to emergency and other selected vehicles.

Many Connecticut drivers were seeking their gas in neighboring Rhode Island, which like Delaware has passed up rationing for now in favor of minimum purchase requirements to stop people from "topping off" nearly full tanks.

In Washington, Transportation Secretary cited the fuel crisis and long gas lines in denying requests by General Motors and Ford Motor Co. for relaxation of fuel economy standards on passenger cars for the model years 1981-1984.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill announced he has scheduled a vote for next Tuesday on a bill providing $2 billion in subsidies for synthetic fuels.

Breakfast

actually had more representatives -- 20 -- this morning. "But since you paid your employees' way, we're not going to give it to you," Manning jokingly said. Obviously, though he wasn't entirely kidding.

Upcoming events announced at the breakfast included:

- National Cowgirl Hall of Fame All-Girl Rodeo, rodeo dance, Old

Fiddlers' Contest and art show Aug. 16-18.

Kings Manor Methodist Home fund-raising barbecue July 7.

Joint civic club meeting sponsored by Rotary Club and featuring speaker of the house Bill Clayton July 3.

Fourth of July celebration, with Kent Hance to speak on the Courthouse lawn at 2:30 p.m.

YMCA "Anything Goes," involving competition between local organizations, July 14.

Miss Texas-USA Pageant, with Miss Hereford Lynn Mitts entered, Aug. 20 at El Paso.

Lyntol Allred served as the other grade of gasoline, the AAA said.

Gasoline

The association report said Beaumont also was harder hit with 80 percent of its stations closing weekday nights now compared with 44 percent last week.

Across the rest of the state, two-thirds of the stations surveyed said they were closed on Sundays and 72 percent were closing by 8 p.m. on weekdays. Last week, 60 percent were closing on Sunday and 67 percent were not open weekday nights.

The AAA said fuel availability was best in the state along interstate highways and in small cities and rural areas.

The current average full-service price across the state and last week's price were reported by the AAA as: Regular 87.7 cents a gallon this week, 80.3 last week; unleaded 85.5, 84.0; premium 87.2, 86.4. Self-service prices are: Regular 79.3, 78.7; unleaded 83.4, 81.9; and premium 85.7, 84.1.

Diesel fuel jumped from 83.1 cents a gallon last week to the current 85.6 cents a gallon. The AAA said the average price of diesel has risen almost 13 cents a gallon since May 11, while gas has gone up about 2 cents.

Governors

1950s and 1960s, Babbitt said.

"The bracero program itself is synonymous with all that has been wrong with our relationship with Mexico," Babbitt said in February when Clements first proposed it.

Since then, Clements has avoided the word "bracero" and calls his proposal "an attempt to document the undocumented worker on both sides of the border." Babbitt and Brown both say development of Mexico's economy will help solve the illegal immigration problem.

"I don't think there's any instant cure-all solution," the Democrat said. "We must find ways to assist Mexico in developing industry to generate employment and reduce pressures."

Chase Results In Arrest

Henry Castillo, 34, of Hereford was arrested on charges of felony driving while intoxicated and unauthorized use of a motorvehicle after officers stopped him at Grand St. and Ave. H following a brief chase Wednesday afternoon.

According to police reports, Jimmy McMillan, manager of TG&Y, W. Park Ave., parked his 1974 Chevrolet pickup in the back of the store around 3:45 p.m. Wednesday then reported it missing about 30 minutes later.

The pickup was spotted approximately one hour later by deputy sheriff Glen Rusk. Officer Terry Young began following the westbound vehicle on Union when it turned north onto Ave. H. The pickup speeded up when Young turned on his patrol car lights, then hit a stop sign at Grand and Ave. H, causing minor damage to the vehicle.

The change will become effective July 1. Fanfare subscribers automatically will receive HBO transmissions, with the only technical change-over occurring at the tower site. Rates will remain the same as those now in effect for Fanfare, a Cablevision spokesman said. On Friday, there will be a preview of HBO on Cable Channel 5, pre-empting WTCC in Atlanta. Roundup

Hereford, 1909
Just prior to the time the Hereford Independent School District was created, Deaf Smith County was divided into two school districts. One district covered approximately the south half of the county and the other, the north half. In August, 1909, the county was divided into seven districts outside the Hereford district.

School houses were dotted all over the county. As an indication of the number of school houses that had been built, an election order in 1911 lists the following voting places: Wyche, Coker, Askren, Burvey, Ward, Summerfield, Files, Kelso, Messenger, Coral Lake, Walcott, Union, Fairview, Day, Ford and Scherer -- all school houses.

Long before the age of specialization required the necessity for schooling beyond the high school level, Deaf Smith County pioneers invested their time and money in an institution of higher learning. The School Association was formed on July 26, 1901. Land was donated, contributions were made, and the contract for a building was let in April, 1902.

First students were enrolled in September, 1902, with Reverend Clark as the school's first president. The school was Hereford Christian College, later called Add-Ran College, named for Addison and Randolph Clark, its principal founders. Some thirty years earlier, in 1873, these same two brothers had founded the original Add-Ran College at Thorp Springs. This school later became Texas Christian University at Waco, and in 1910 was moved to Fort Worth.

In 1903, because of financial difficulties, the board voted to turn the college over to the Christian Church, which assumed the responsibility in 1904. The college was reopened in January, 1905, as Panhandle Christian College.

An outstanding feature of the college was its glee club. Classical music being popular in those days, visiting groups and the college glee club produced numerous operas and operettas. The college was small enough that there was a great deal of school spirit and everyone in the student body participated in the activities of the school.

The first football team in Hereford, organized in 1909, was credited to the college. In 1911, the high school team was organized. Records show that Hereford High School won both of two games from the West Texas Buffaloes that year.

The college team was financed by the students themselves, and sometimes teachers would coach for free. At that time one of the objects of the game of football was to grab the quarterback and throw him over the line. The quarterback had loops sewn on his pants which made it easier for him to be thrown. This was later outlawed as being too dangerous. The early college football teams played high school teams or whatever other team might be available.

The early colleges in the Panhandle were always in a financial bind. They would receive pledges for large sums of money, but in actuality received little or no money at all.

Enrollment was small, ranging from about fifty students to a high enrollment of perhaps 200. Salaries for teachers were meager, normally $50 a month, if the money was available.

The main building of the college in Hereford was sixty-eight feet wide and one hundred and twenty-seven feet long, and three stories high. It contained large, well-furnished recitation rooms, lab, library, auditorium, and music hall for up to 300 students. The girls' dorm was sixty-two feet wide, eighty-eight feet long, three stories high, and made of Texas pine. There were thirty rooms, a dining hall, and a double parlor.

The Hereford College closed its doors with the close of school in 1911. D.A. Shirley was its last president. Mr. Shirley came to Hereford High as principal in September of 1911 and from there went to West Texas State College in 1913.

The college building stood vacant for years and then in 1915 was purchased by the Hereford School Board and used as High School until the new school building, now Stanton Junior High, was completed in 1926.

The college was located on the grounds occupied by the present high school building. The front entrance was at about the location of the southeast corner of the Vocational Agriculture shop building. There is a marker erected on the high school grounds which reads:

Hereford College opened 1902 as an educational public school in newly-built three story main building. By 1903, College was transferred to Christian Church for needed financial support. Renamed Add-Ran College. The next year, name changed to Panhandle Christian College. Relying on tuition alone for support, College was forced to close in 1912. Housed Hereford High School, 1915-1926.

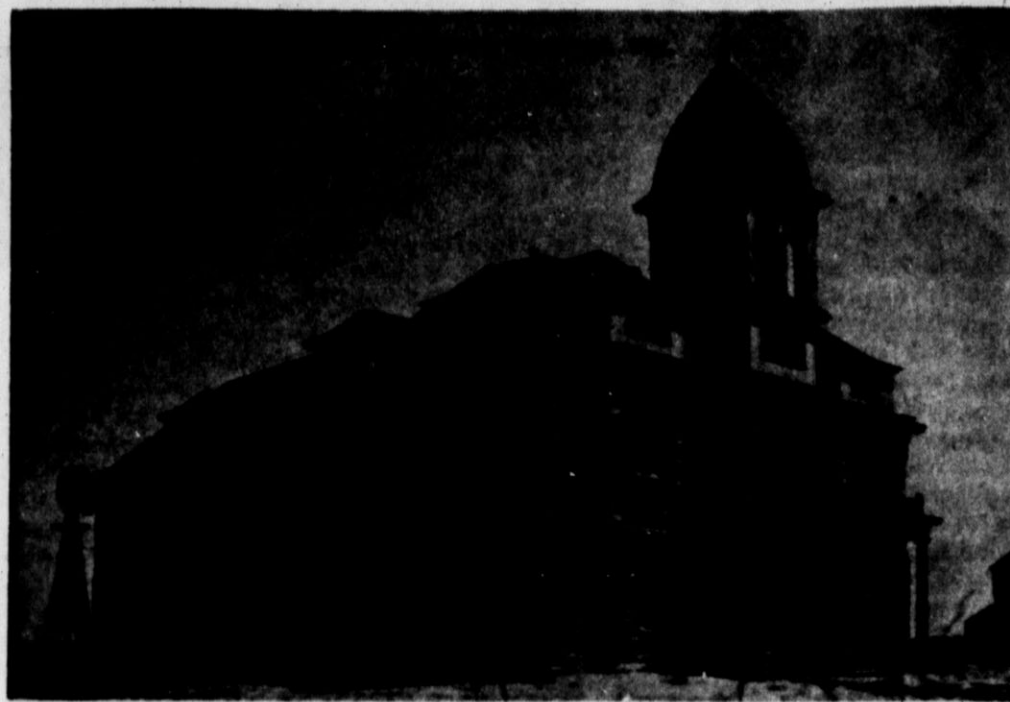

This marker is mounted on Roswell, New Mexico, Brownstone from the old main building.

Crime On Upswing In Italian Streets

ROME (AP) — Increasingly aggressive Roman thieves are working the airports, highways and narrow streets of the Italian capital, and U.S. consular officials report an upsurge of crime against American tourists.

An American couple who came here on their honeymoon were the latest victims, picked clean of passports, money and jewels before they even reached their hotel.

Starting with record crowds during the sun-splashed Easter period, Italy is experiencing a tourist boom with West Germans and Americans leading the pack. An estimated five million Americans are expected to visit Italy this year.

The boom has also brought out the thieves and American officials here say the robbers are becoming more violent in pursuit of loot.

Leslie and Robert Rottolani, married in New York last Saturday night, flew into Rome on Monday morning and rented a car at Leonardo Da Vinci airport, but when they reached the modernistic exposition center on the outskirts of the city, a tire blew.

Tired from their overnight flight and fried by the morning sun, the couple decided to leave the car and take a taxi to their hotel on the Via Veneto, seemingly the wise move.

Mrs. Tortolani carried her shoulder bag containing $800 in cash, both passports, travelers checks and jewelry and sat in the back of the cab while the driver and her husband, a Providence, R.I., costume jewelry manufacturer, got the luggage.

"Suddenly the door of the taxi opened and a man grabbed my bag. I was screaming at him but he kept pulling and he dragged me out of the car. When he got the bag he smiled at me," Mrs. Tortolani recounted.

The thief escaped in a waiting Fiat, the same light green car that Mrs. Tortolani noticed driving behind them from the airport.

The U.S. Consulate said it was the fourth such incident involving tourists who rented a car in two weeks. Last year, cooperation between airport police and the U.S. and several West European consulates helped crack a ring of thieves who followed rented cars into the city, and usually in the area of the exposition center, punctured a rear tire and then pounced on the vulnerable occupants when they had the trunk open and car up on the jack.

Only a tiny percentage of the thousands of tourists here are victimized, but an attack, of course, ruins a vacation often made at considerable financial sacrifice.

This year the U.S. consulate recorded 70 passports stolen in April and 111 stolen in May, compared with 64 in April 1978 and 82 in May 1978, by "scippatori" — thieves usually striking from motorcycles or cars.

Last year, the Embassy issued a travel advisory which said, "Like many other countries, Italy has witnessed a dramatic rise in the level of crime directed against both Italians and foreigners. Although crime involving Americans in Italy is almost invariably non-violent, a victim may at minimum suffer inconvenience and some financial loss."

But says an American consular officer, "This season the thieves are a lot more bloody minded. In the past, if there was violence it was incidental. Now they seem determined at whatever the cost."

In one unusually violent incident, a gang knocked down and robbed an American couple as they were standing on the ancient Appian, Way last Thanksgiving, then drove over the woman's legs as they made their getaway.

Italian police blame an increase in drug use for much of the street crime. A young man shot and killed by a policeman as he tried to snatch an elderly Englishwoman's purse from a motorcycle in the cobblestone streets of Trastevere earlier this year was a heroin addict.

The West German Consulate reported that tourist thefts are running about the same number as last year and credited German tourists with being better prepared and more vigilant than in previous years. A spokesman said there has been a campaign in the news media giving travel tips.

American consular officials give the following tips as the best way to ensure a happy vacation.

—Leave money, passports, rail passes, airline tickets and valuables in hotel safes.

—Women should avoid carrying handbags, which make easy targets; if they are carried, keep some distance from curbs.

—A list of the serial numbers of travelers' checks should never be kept in the same handbag, wallet or briefcase as the checks themselves.

Uganda

President

Resigns

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Uganda's President Yusufu Lule resigned Wednesday after a dispute with his political opponents and an exile who lived in New York was named to succeed him, political sources said.

Ugandan factions struggled to keep their provisional government together just two months after they united to replace ousted director Idi Amin.

The sources said Godfrey Binaisa, a politically conservative, pro-Western figure, would be sworn in as president later today. Binaisa, exiled during the Amin years had been practicing law in New York City. He is a former Ugandan attorney general.

Grain As A Weapon

"A bushel of wheat for a barrel of oil..."

"Cheaper crude or no more food..."

Some of us have been seeking to focus attention on a grotesque inequity by shouting about it, singing about it and needling anybody who won't pay attention.

Our nation, in concert with other food-producing nations, could indeed control the world price for food grains altogether as selfishly as the oil nations have controlled oil prices -- theoretically.

But when Congress does not jump to its feet applauding the suggestion what needs to be understood is that our government does not control the market even for our own grain. Seven families do.

Inmate Wins

Death Row

Reversal

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Death Row inmate Charles Rumbaugh won reversal Wednesday of his capital murder conviction because prosecutors played tapes made secretly of Rumbaugh's conversations.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals said the defendant did not know deputies were recording his statement that, "If I'd had a gun, I sure as hell would have shot you man."

The appeals court ordered a new trial for Rumbaugh who was tried in Amarillo before District Judge George Dowlen.

Rumbaugh was charged in the shooting death of Michael Fiorillo on April 4, 1975. The defendant escaped from the Potter County jail and was arrested on a traffic charge in Scurry County.

He and two other inmates assaulted a Scurry County jail guard but were immediately recaptured, the appeals court said. After being taken before a magistrate they were placed in the Scurry County sheriff's office.

The arrestees did not know that their conversations were being recorded on tape as they talked among themselves and with other persons in the office," the appeals court said.

Rumbaugh told officers, he would never sit in the electric chair and then described Fiorillo's slaying, the court added.

To the graduates of the University of Minnesota, Agriculture Secretary Robert Bergland said that the "bushel for a barrel formula" is not workable.

He said if we raised wheat prices to match oil prices that grain-consuming nations would shop elsewhere, eat rice instead.

So, he said, "Paul Harvey has a good idea which is not workable..."

If my recommendation is simplistic, so is the secretary's premise.

In a recent volume called "Merchants of Grain," author Dan Morgan relates in a fascinating manner the origin and machinations of five companies owned by seven families which control the $50 billion international grain trade: Cargill and Continental, Bunge and Dreyfus and Andre.

The "bushel for a barrel" premise is not beyond reach, but proponents need to know what they are up against and the objections are not so simple as the secretary suggests.

This is a nest of wasps we're kicking.

Henry Kissinger tried to use U.S. food as a weapon against the Russians in 1975. He got his nose bloodied and he may have cost Gerald Ford the 1976 election.

Some protest that we cannot in good conscience allow our nation to play politics with hunger. Horsefeathers! Repeatedly our nation has played politics with food. We made Iran an agricultural dependency.

The oligopolies of a dozen foreign nations have strengthened their political power and enriched their leaders with the help of American grain.

While the U.N. thought it was enforcing a trade embargo on previously white-ruled Rhodesia, that country continued to receive millions of dollars worth of American corn.

The grain sale to Russia in 1972 was initiated and finalized before American farmers or consumers knew anything about it.

Playing politics with grain is not new. The merchants of grain operated through the global food crisis of 1974 and 1975.

But what makes the subject so super-sensitive now is that the Koreagate scandals threw rice in a lot of red faces in high places.

Author Morgan concedes that the grain giants have been useful, probably necessary. He suspects they should be scrutinized and perhaps regulated.

But I want this to show that you and I do know that the bushel for a barrel formula is nothing our country can accomplish without socializing another industry.

And with that as the alternative, perhaps these giants would like to volunteer some co-operation.

Three Point Basket For Probable Use In NBA

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — Should an open jump shot from 22 feet out on a basketball court be worth more than a twisting scoop shot made after driving through the teeth of a collapsing defense?

Perhaps not, but it probably will be in the 1979-80 National Basketball Association season.

The NBA's Board of Governors, which began its annual summer meeting today, is expected to adopt the three-point goal into the league by-laws for next season. Under the proposed new rule, which is similar to that used by the old American Basketball Association, any shot made from beyond roughly 22 feet will be worth three points instead of two.

Not everybody likes the idea.

"We don't need it," said Red Auerbach, president of the Boston Celtics, who feels the league is making the move out of panic caused by poor network television ratings and declining attendance in certain major Eastern markets. "I say leave our game alone. Putting in the three-point goal reminds me of a team that trades four, five and six players every year out of panic."

"I'm personally against it," said Jack Ramsay, coach of the

Richard Sheppard, D.D.S.

General Dentistry

Portland Trail Blazers. "I don't think we need any gimmicks."

"I don't think it's a gimmick, but rather that it will be a legitimate part of the game," countered Bob Ferry, general manager of the Washington Bullets. "It adds another way to win or lose a game, and the more of those you have, the more excitement you have."

The league's coaches and general managers met last week and voted in favor of the three-point goal, the coaches by a 15-5 margin and the GMs by 15-7. Their recommendations were passed along to the league's Rules and Competitions Committee, which met Wednesday, and the Governors were expected to give their seal of approval.

Other items on the Board of Governors' agenda included a proposal for continuation of the three-referee system, which the NBA used on an experimental basis last year; consideration of a more compact playing schedule, under which the season would end roughly two weeks earlier than in the past, and formal confirmation of three new franchise owners — Jerry Buss of the Los Angeles Lakers, George Maloof of the Houston Rockets and Sam Nassi of the Indiana Pacers.

Expansion was another topic to be discussed. The league is committed to adding two new teams by the 1980-81 season, and while Dallas and Minneapolis-St. Paul appeared to be the front-runners, several other cities are under consideration including Cincinnati, Miami, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Toronto.

Hereford Loses 3 Coaches To Others

Hereford High School lost three coaches in one day as Kenny and Gail Barnes accepted positions at Stinnett and Micky Miller took an opening at Joshua, Texas.

Kenny Barnes, a Hereford defensive line coach for two years will assume Athletic Director and head football coaching duties at Stinnett and his wife, a coach at La Plata and the junior varsity coach in basketball will be assigned to an assistant's post.

Barnes, 27, is a 1973 graduate of West Texas State University, and a native of Sanford-Fritch. Miller, a coach here in Hereford for four years will take the head job at the class 2A school in East Texas. Miller was assistant basketball and baseball coach in the high school for the last two years and was at La Plata for two years previous.

Barnes will be replacing Don Sessions and will inherit a team that posted a 5-5 record last year. The Bobcats were third in the class A district last year, finishing behind Stratford and Sunray.

The team will be blessed with speed but not much size according to the coaching staff and most of the players will be sophomores and juniors.

Miller, a graduate of Mary Hardin-Baylor's in his first head job and will be going to a town that is accustomed to winning, especially in basketball. He will be replacing a coach that won district his first year at the helm and finished second last year.

The Owls will be sporting good size according to Miller and a young, but experienced team.

Miller is married and he and his wife, Moppy have a little boy, Mason.

Campy Paces California

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Bert Campaneris has a personal Alamo to remember statement by the Texas Rangers' executive vice president when the 37-year-old

Campaneris was traded to the California Angels May 4. "We were afraid they (the Angels) would get someone who could help them if we didn't give them Campaneris," Rangers' executive Eddie Robinson was quoted as saying.

For the second time this week, Campaneris made Robinson and the Rangers pay for it Wednesday night. The Cuban infielder singled twice, tied an Angel record with three stolen bases, drove in one run and scored another in California's 5-4 victory over Texas.

The victory expanded California's first place margin in the American League West to five games over Kansas City, and dropped Texas into third place 5½ games back.

"They traded me because they no want me. I want to play hard against them and I'm happy I did well," said shortstop Campaneris, a kingpin of three World Series champion teams at Oakland in the early 1970s.

Campaneris began the series by getting two hits and scoring twice in the Angels' 5-0 victory as the four game set opened Monday night. He was hitless when Texas won the second game Tuesday night 2-1.

"I think he is very excited and up for this series," said Angels Manager Jim Fregosi. "I see no reason to say negative things when a player is traded. All you are doing is trying to make yourself look good."

A blow single by Campaneris in the third inning Wednesday night scored Tom Donohue with the first Angel run. In the fifth, he led off with a single, stole second and third, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Dan Ford as the Angels built their lead to 5-2.

Campaneris said he was able to run because he was well acquainted with the pickoff moves of the Rangers' losing pitcher, Jon Matlack. 4-4 But Ranger catcher Jim Sundberg said the problem was bigger than that.

"We gave the game away," Sundberg said. "We had a pitchout on Campy in the fifth and nobody covered second. Then nobody holds him at second and he walks to third. There is no way they are better than we are, but right now they're outthinking and outbusting us."

Texas will have rookie Danny Darwin, 0-0, pitching against the Angels' Don Aase, 6-5, in tonight's final game of the series.

The Rangers were able to stop Angel second baseman Bobby Grich's 20-game hitting streak, one game short of the major league season high of Ranger Johnny Grubb.

"I was tired and my bat was a little slow," said Grich, who was 0 for 1 with a walk — his just time to start a new one.

Don Baylor, the major league RBI leader with 59 although he had just one RBI in 14 previous games, doubled to drive in two runs for the Angels in the third.

Brian Downing homered for the Angels in the fourth. Downing has six home runs and 37 RBI, but it was his first homer and only his fourth RBI at Anaheim Stadium.

Pat Putnam of Texas hit a two-run home run in the eighth to end the night for winning pitcher Dave Frost, 5-3. Rookie Mark Clear then earned his seventh save of the season for the Angels.

Sacrifice Fly Scores Runner From 2nd

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Great Scott! How do you go from second base all the way home on a sacrifice fly?

Even George Scott doesn't know.

"I never did that before," said Scott after scoring from second on a sacrifice fly in Wednesday night's 9-2 Kansas City romp over the Oakland A's.

The newest of the Royals is not only hitting the ball at a good clip, but showed his teammates some flashy running ability as well as in his latest outing.

"I just kept on running," Scott said of the rare play in the seventh inning on Darrell Porter's sacrifice fly. "The third base coach Chuck Hiller waved me on and I just never stopped."

Porter's fly ball was caught by Mike Heath in left, the outfielder making a nice running catch. Heath's momentum carried him nearly to the wall, as Scott took off from second.

"I didn't think he was going to run," said Heath, who appeared to relax a bit after the catch.

But when he finally fired the ball back into the infield, the burly Scott was chugging around third and heading safely home.

Scott also collected three singles, boosting his batting average as a Royal to .400, and scored three times.

In the other American League games, the Boston Red Sox whipped the Detroit Tigers 13-3, the Baltimore Orioles stopped the Cleveland Indians 5-3 in a rain-shortened 5½-inning game, the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the Minnesota Twins 8-3, the Seattle Mariners turned back the Chicago White Sox 5-3, the California Angels nipped the Texas Rangers 5-4 and the New York Yankees beat the Toronto Blue Jays 2-1 in the opener of a double-header before losing the nightcap 3-2.

Waldrep Opens Center

DALLAS (AP) — Kent Waldrep and Bob Hurt, two paralyzed former athletes, say a newly-formed research foundation will fight the attitude that "there's no cure" for crippling spinal cord injuries.

At the same time, Waldrep and Hurt, who have been as far as the Soviet Union trying to find a cure for their affliction, criticized an examination given them Tuesday by a team of physicians commissioned by the Veterans Administration.

"It was not the thorough examination we expected," said Waldrep, a former Texas Christian University football star.

"I was disappointed," said Hurt, who was paralyzed when his car crashed into a wall at 186 miles an hour during the Indy 500 Speedway trials in 1968.

Waldrep underwent controversial neurological treatments in Leningrad late last year. He is still confined to a wheelchair as is Hurt—but says he has improved 25 percent since the treatments.

Waldrep said the pair was invited to Southwest Medical Center for an examination by a team of neurological experts following a deluge of requests from paralyzed veterans desiring access to the treatment.

"I felt the examination was a disservice to the paralyzed vets who forced a committee to evaluate us," Waldrep said.

Waldrep and Hurt were joined by paralyzed jockey Ron Turcotte, injured almost a year ago in a spill, as they announced

U.S. Runners Honored

NAIKOBI, Kenya (AP) — American runners Steve Williams, Edwgn Moses and Don Coleman grabbed honors in the first Jomo Kenyatta Invitation Meeting, but a 12-year-old barefoot Kenyan stole the show.

Elizabeth Onyambu brought the crowd to its feet when she crossed the finish line in the 1,500 meters event with a time of 4 minutes, 23.18 seconds, within 27 seconds of the world record. She ran barefoot in the event and beat Kenya's Elizabeth Thomson, who clocked 4:23.23.

Williams won the 100 meters with a time of 10.30 seconds. American Jerome Deal was second in 10.32. In the 200 meters, Coleman's time of 20.75 enabled him to beat African Ernest Obeng 21.06. Moses was an easy winner in the 400-meter hurdles, finishing in 49.76 seconds. Henry Rono won the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:34.16.

Nicklaus' Skills Back

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) - There are some hopeful, positive signs for Jack Nicklaus. "I feel pretty good about the state of my game right now," Nicklaus said before teeing off today in the first round of the 70th Canadian Open Golf Championship. "I played the last 27 holes under par last week in the U.S. Open and that's not bad," he said.

Nicklaus, owning the greatest record in the history of this ancient game, took himself out of the American national championship when he three-putted five of the first seven holes in the second round. "That just put me too far back," he said. It was a continuation of the sort of thing that has plagued him throughout the year - the worst season he's ever had.

His performance over the last few holes, however, kindled some hopes. "I have to start playing good sooner or later," Nicklaus said, and smiled. "I'd rather it be sooner." There are a variety of reasons. Perhaps foremost is the fact, Nicklaus said, that "I'm getting awfully tired of explaining why I'm playing the way I am. Actually, I haven't played all that badly, I just haven't been able to put the scores on the board." And the answer to his problem is simple. "The only way I get people to stop asking me why I'm playing like this is to start playing better," he said. And this national championship would be a near-ideal spot for it. For one thing, he designed the 7,050-yard, par 71 Glen Abbey Golf Club course that will become a permanent site for the Canadian Open. For another, this is one of the few important titles in the world that has eluded him. "This would be a nice time to get back on the right track," he said. He'll be facing one of the strongest fields of the season in the 72-hole chase for a $63,000 first prize.

The major standouts are Hale Irwin, seeking to add a second consecutive national title to the U.S. Open championship he won last weekend, defending champion Bruce Lietzke and Tom Watson, the outstanding player in the game over the last 2 1/2 years and the only four-time winner this season. Also on hand are Gary Player and Jerry Pate, who tied for second behind Irwin last week, two-time Canadian Open champions Tom Weiskopf and Lee Trevino, Lanny Wadkins, Andy Bean, Ray Floyd, Ben Crenshaw, Ed Sneed and Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller.

CBS will provide national television coverage to the United States for portions of the final two rounds. CBS will televise nationally in Canada.

Party Brings Memories

NEW YORK (AP) - Our slick city cousin down the block, Sports Illustrated, is having a birthday party tonight outside our window on Rockefeller Plaza, and it looks as if it's going to be a dinger. The guest list is out of sight. Ingemar Johansson, the Thunder of Thor, is flying over from Sweden. Rafer Johnson, the former Olympic decathlon champion, will flex a few muscles. You'll bump into old basketball heroes such as Bill Russell and Jerry Lucas, plus innumerable headliners of another era - Bill Talbert, Bobby Morrow, Jim Ryun and Jackie Stewart. It's the Silver Anniversary of the publication - still just a tot in comparison with the ages of most of us - but the occasion opens up a store room of memories. What was life like back in 1954? The cover of the inaugural issue is a night scene in Milwaukee County Stadium showing Braves' slugger Eddie Mathews, in a baggy uniform sans batting helmet, following through on a vicious left-handed swing with packed stands in the background. Major league baseball was predicting a season's attendance of over two million. In 1978, crowds doubled that. A cup of coffee was a nickel and you get an eight-ounce draft of beer for 15 cents. Page 94 of the magazine featured President Dwight Eisenhower practicing chip shots on the White House lawn. Spalding had provided him with a special ball stamped only "Mr. President," a collector's item. A slender, youthful-looking Ben Hogan, winner of pro golf's Triple Slam Masters, U.S. and British opens the year before was plugging a fast relief ointment for muscular pains. Lane-armed Ed Furgol, who had won the 1954 Open, was pushing automobile tires. Babe Zaharias, just off a bout with cancer, shot a golf tournament in Chicago. Her prize: $1,000. The New York Yankees were scrambling to stay within striking distance of the front-running Cleveland Indians. Irv Noren .339, not Mickey Mantle, was the American League's leading hitter. Four pages of color were devoted to the Rocky Marciano-Ezzard Charles heavyweight title fight, won by Marciano. "I want him again," said Charles, agreeing to a Sept. 15 return in Yankee Stadium. Softball was listed as the leading spectator sport with 125 million. Baseball was third 85 million, football fifth 35 million. In participant sports, fishing led 25 million, with bowling, hunting and boating following in order. Golf 5 million. Tennis never showed. Sleek, gas-guzzling cars were the cat's meow. Ford was pushing its streamlined Thunderbird with the country club, horse and hounds set. A chart showed Bob Mathias a superior athlete to the great Jim Thorpe. And there was Bob Hope modeling Catalina sweaters. Times and mags may change, but Bob Hope? Never.

Weaver Called No Match For Holmes

By ED SCHUYLER JR. AP Sports Writer Mike Weaver doesn't like to be called "Hercules." He knows the wise guys smile and snicker when they say it - not to his face. One of the jokes is that after Friday night they can call him "Achilles." Larry Holmes will quickly find his weak point, which is considerably higher, than his heel. "Hercules is a myth. I'm not," said Weaver, who is blessed with a marvelous physique and mediocre record, the dream all fighters hold - and feelings. Even guys who fight with their fists can get their feelings hurt. "I don't feel good that I'm considered a tuneup," he said. "They'll be surprised." "Surprise" would not be adequate enough to describe a victory by Mike Weaver over Larry Holmes, the champion of the World Boxing Council's sphere of influence and the best heavyweight in all the world at this point in time. Holmes already is signed to defend against Earnie Shavers Sept. 14 in a fight that will be televised by ABC from Giants Stadium at East Rutherford, N.J. But network television would not buy Friday's fight at Madison Square Garden. Mike Weaver, the network bigwig says, is not a worthy challenger. "TV people, what do they know?" sniffed Weaver, sitting in the dining room at a Catskill Hotel, dressed in a sweat suit. He did not arouse curiosity among the other diners. "What does TV know about boxing?" he continued. "Most boxing experts... they're never had a glove on." "Mike Weaver rated No. 8 by the WBC is the No. 1 contender available," said promoter Don King, renting the Garden for $150,000 and also showing the fight on a closed-circuit hookup. But King, admitted he could take a financial bath, is not standing with Holmes-Weaver alone. He also is representing a really attractive fight - a 10-round welterweight bout between Roberto Duran and Carlos Palomino. Coetzee To Face Spinks SAN REMO, Italy (AP) South African heavyweight Gerrie Coetzee appeared in top form today for Sunday's fight against Leon Spinks. "He can step in the ring right now and go 12 hard rounds against anybody," said a member of Coetzee's camp. Coetzee was confident he would take Spinks and move on to fight John Tate for the World Boxing Association heavyweight title still held by Muhammad Ali but expected to be left vacant soon by Ali's retirement. Tate will be an attentive watcher of the Spinks-Coetzee bout, scheduled in nearby Monte Carlo. Coetzee, 24, said he expected Spinks to stage an attacking match. "Attacking is the tactic Spinks likes most. I will try to stop him," Coetzee said. "Spinks, 25, said his plans did not include only attacking. "I know how to fight in defense too, think I'll do the advancing Sunday." Spinks was also said to be in excellent condition. He has not fought since last September, when he lost the title on a unanimous decision to Ali. The bout will be telecast live by NBC.

Sandies Pound Redbirds

By MARC HERRING
Brand Sports Editor

A sterling performance from Ronald Plummer stopped the Amarillo Sandies for seven innings, but the first two frames were too much as the Hereford Redbirds fell to the Amarillo team, 15-10 in an American Legion contest here last night.

Plummer in his debut on the mound, came into the game in the third inning and held the Sandies to one run, but the 14 tallies in the first two frames proved to be enough of a buffer as the Redbirds dropped their fourth consecutive game.

Kevin Bunch started on the mound for Hereford, giving up six runs before being replaced by Norman Hill with one out. Hill finished the rest of the inning and the second giving up eight more runs before Plummer came in to stop the Sandies barrage of runs.

Hereford failed to score the first inning but came back in the second frame to push across five runs. Two more in the third inning brought the score to 14-7 with seven innings to play.

Amarillo added their final run in the fifth inning and the Redbirds chalked up three more tallies in the seventh and eighth frames to finish the scoring for the night.

Alan Daughtery and Anthony Poteet poked inside the park home runs for the Redbirds.

Daughtery's coming in the second frame with no one on base and Poteet knocking his in the eighth with one person aboard.

Chris Hill also had a good night at the plate for the Redbirds, going 3-5 with two triples.

The Redbirds are now 2-5 for the year, while Amarillo moved to 7-1 and into first place by a half a game.

Hereford will host Caprock tonight at Whiteface field in a rematch of a contest that the Longhorns won in the first outing. Game time will be 6:30.

Carlton Stops Braves

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Philadelphia's Tim McCarver may know Steve Carlton better than anyone else. McCarver catches Carlton when the 34-year-old left-hander pitches for the Phillies, and acts as his spokesman when the hurler shuns interviews — which is often.

Wednesday night, after Carlton's four-hitter had helped Philadelphia beat the Atlanta Braves 10-4, McCarver offered this statistic: "That's about the sixth time Steve has stopped a mini-losing streak for us."

Carlton's eighth victory in 15 decisions this season was, in fact, the sixth one following one or more Philadelphia losses. The Phillies, who begin a weekend series with the National League's West Division-leading Expos on Friday, at least can take with them the solid performance against the Braves.

In the other NL games Wednesday, the Expos beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-4 in 11 innings, the Houston Astros trimmed the New York Mets 5-4, the Pittsburgh Pirates bested the San Francisco Giants 8-5, and the San Diego Padres defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 9-1.

Pete Rose's two-run homer, Carlton's two-run single and a two-run double by Greg Luzinski were enough to beat Atlanta.

The Braves got an unearned run in the second when Barry Bonnell walked, took third on an errant pickoff throw by Carlton, and scored on a wild pitch. They added two in the sixth and another in the eighth on a home run by Bob Horner.

Houston Relief Get Win Against Mets

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston relief pitcher Joe Sambito says he has forgotten the grand slam home run he gave up early in May that cost the Astros a game, and prefers instead to remember his record since then.

The ace Astros reliever added to that record Wednesday night when he came on in place of starter J.R. Richard in the eighth inning with Houston and New York tied at 4-4 and held the Mets while his teammates gave him a 5-4 win.

The victory put the Astros 3 1/2 games up on second-place Cincinnati in the National League West as the Reds lost to Montreal Wednesday.

Sambito hasn't given up an earned run in his last 16 appearances, 27 innings worth, and has recorded a 2-1 record and two saves during the streak. His season record stands at 4-2.

Mets Manager Joe Torre said that when he sent in his nominations for pitchers to be chosen for the All-Star game, Sambito was in the top 10.

"Against us, I'd list him one, two, three," Torre said.

"Actually, the grand slam homer represents the last four earned runs Sambito allowed before his streak started."

It was on May 1, in the 11th inning of a game against the St. Louis Cardinals. The Astros had gone up 6-3, but St. Louis came back to load the bases and Roger Freed was at the plate. Sambito came on in relief, and Freed blasted the game-winning home run into the stands.

He had the Mets thinking about the streak Wednesday when he came on to face Frank Taveras after Richard had thrown three straight balls. Sambito struck him out, then got the next two batters to fly out.

An eighth-inning single by Terry Puhl and an RBI triple served up to Craig Reynolds by loser Craig Swan, 7-5, gave Sambito all the room he needed to win the game.

Houston jumped to an first-inning lead when Cesar Cedeno doubled home Terry Puhl and Craig Reynolds, both of whom had singled.

But the Mets used four hits in the third inning, including doubles by Doug Flynn and Frank Mazzilli, to score three runs and take the lead.

It was short-lived, however. Denny Walling, who has been hitting .500 in his usual role as a pinch-hitter for the Astros, got a chance to start and responded by hitting an inside-the-park homer in the fourth inning.

Houston scored again in the fifth when Rafael Landestoy tripled to rightfield and came home on a single by Puhl.

The Mets tied the game in the sixth when Mazzilli walked, went to second on an errant pick-off attempt by Richard, took third on a single by Richie Hebner and scored while the Astros were turning a double play at second and first.

But Reynolds, who won an 18-inning game with the Mets two nights before with a key single, slashed the game-winning triple to give Sambito all the help he needed.

Pitcher Dave McNally of Baltimore hit a grand slam in the 1970 World Series against Cincinnati, the only pitcher to do that in Series' action.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Texas Governor Bill Clements is building up steam in his efforts to get a handle on the state's energy problems — and he may have steam-burned some members of Texas congressional delegation with his direct manner.

In Washington D.C. last Monday, Clements told the 24-member Texas delegation that Texas state officials will take the initiative to launch a national energy campaign. Clements said he will bring a two-part plan to the nation which will deregulate oil and gas prices and will back proposals to rely more on coal as a fuel. He plans to meet with other governors and state officials across the nation "to take this message on the road."

He irked some members of the delegation by saying Texas congressmen have been "dragging their feet" on the energy issue. U.S. Rep. Ray Roberts, D-McKinney, responded later to reporters, "I guess we got our lecture today. I hear he (Clements) is running for vice president anyway." Roberts credited U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen with "taking the ball away from Clements before he even realized it" and smoothing over an otherwise chilled situation. Bentsen took the "floor, called Texas 'the Saudi Arabia of the world when it comes to coal resources,' and agreed Texas resources need to be developed. Both parties were reported to have engaged in some verbal sniping before Rep. Abraham Kazen, D-Laredo, took the floor once to tell Clements and his party, "Your so-called Texas position is not new to us in Washington. We've been pushing it for several years now."

That same afternoon, Clements announced that mandatory gasoline conservation orders will be issued if Texans don't reduce their consumption voluntarily. "We will start out on the basis of pretty please with sugar on it," and hope that everyone will help," Clements said of his plans to conserve gasoline. "If that doesn't work, we're going to go to some odd-even day rationing and other things that will be mandatory in nature."

Asked to elaborate, Clements said he might include a prohibition of gasoline for cars with tanks more than half full. He said he will release his reallocation plan in detail later this week.

Juneteenth Bill Signed
As members of the Black Caucus and some 250 spectators looked on Wednesday, the Governor signed into law a bill designating June 19 as the first legal state holiday — honoring black emancipation. Those in attendance later sat under shade trees on the Capitol grounds, ate watermelon and watched members of the Black Caucus take potshots at one another over the new holiday.

Objections to the bill came from Dallas Rep. Clay Smothers who earlier had called a press conference to label it "a fraudulent holiday."

"Most of us were taught by elderly blacks that we were freed Jan. 1, 1865, but that the information of freedom was deliberately withheld until June 19 so that the harvest of cotton crops was completed," Smothers told reporters.

The bill's sponsor, Houston Rep. Al Edwards, explained that June 19 was the day in 1865 when Union Maj. Gen. Gordon Granger landed in Galveston and issued Lincoln's general emancipation order.

Dallas Rep. Paul Ragsdale, a leader of the Black Caucus, told reporters that Smothers did not fit in the caucus and "like a cancer, he should be cut out of the Black Caucus and out of the Legislature."

The holiday is still not on the same level as other state holidays. Passage of the bill came too late in the session to be worked into the general appropriations bill, so Juneteenth is an optional holiday for state agencies and banks. Edwards said the holiday will be included in the appropriations bill in 1981.

Roloff Given Deadline
June 19 is also the date a state district judge has given Texas evangelist Lester Roloff as a deadline for obtaining a state license for his controversial children's homes. Judge Charles Mathews fined Roloff's Evangelistic Enterprises $22,850 for violation of the state's child-care licensing statutes and gave him six days to apply for licenses or shut down the homes.

A defiant Roloff, Bible in hand, appeared on a Corpus Christi television interview and responded: "It's a communistic sign on the wall, saying the Bible is not sufficient and Jesus is not the Lord, so we will not take a license."

Roloff now is on a confrontation course between the law and his oft-repeated vow never to submit to licensing of his homes by the state. In the past he has unsuccessfully relied on the doctrine of separation of church and state, contending that since his homes are part of his religious enterprise, they should not be licensed by the state. The courts have disagreed and Texas Attorney General Mark White filed suit May 16 charging Roloff has operated his child-care facilities at Corpus Christi and Zapata in violation of a 1976 court order.

Microsurgery Being Practiced

NEW YORK (AP) - From a surgeon's simple concept - "If you can see better, and manipulate finer, you can do better surgery" - grew a complicated technique, a science-fiction surgery become reality.

Today, surgeons are sewing together the ends of blood vessels thinner than paper clip wire. They are repairing the tiniest of nerves. They are reattaching severed hands, arms and legs.

ITT Lobbyist Wants No More

HARPERS FERRY, W. Va. (AP) - Dita Beard says she no longer years for the political excitement she knew so well as the chief Washington lobbyist for International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

"It took me a long time to break out of it. But once you do break away from it, you never want to go back," says Mrs. Beard, 62, who found a home here after retiring from the Washington political scene in 1974.

The daughter of a career Army officer, Mrs. Beard made her debut in 1939, modeled for a time, then went to work for the Red Cross during World War II, driving a mail truck on the island of Corsica.

After the war, she bore five children in two marriages, then went to work as a lobbyist. Her mother had been active politically, and her years growing up and living in the capital made an impression.

"I was always surrounded by politicians," she said. Today, she leads a quiet life, visited only by close friends and relatives and protected by neighbors who respect and guard her privacy.

"Last Stand," her ranch-style home overlooking the Potomac River, is well hidden from public view. The only reminders of her former life are the many autographed pictures of political leaders that cover her living room walls.

"If you live up here for a while you begin to feel... you will last a lot longer," she said. Mrs. Beard's troubles began in 1972 when columnist Jack Anderson published an ITT memorandum purportedly written by her that alleged the Nixon administration would settle a minor antitrust suit against ITT in return for $400,000 from ITT's subsidiary Sheraton Hotel chain for the 1972 Republican National Convention.

Mrs. Beard denied writing the memo. She still does. "No one in Washington who knew what was going on

These are the surgeons with microscoped - practitioners of futuristic medical technique called microsurgery that has revolutionized the approach to some old medical problems.

Within recent weeks, a team of plastic surgeons at New York University Medical Center reattached the leg of a policeman crushed between two cars, the hand of an aspiring young musician pushed in front of a subway, and the hand of a New Jersey man that was partially severed in an industrial accident.

But re-attaching limbs is not all these surgeons do. In one woman's case, 50 operations had failed to close a gaping hole left by removal of a tumor from her face. Ten hours of microsurgery by the New York University surgical team succeeded in doing so.

If scientists solve the problem of transplant rejection, these surgeons foresee a time when they can routinely "transplant anything anywhere."

Microsurgeons operate while looking through microscopes that magnify up to 25 times, holding jeweler's instruments to manipulate needles with thread more slender than hair.

The microscope was first used in surgery in 1920 but the procedures remained largely experimental until the 1960s when the Chinese successfully re-attached limbs.

Now there are large microsurgical teams practicing at about a dozen university and teaching hospitals in the United States and Canada, and individual microsurgons practice in about 150 major hospitals. Attention recently has focused on the surgical team at New York University Medical Center's Institute of Reconstructive Plastic Surgery and their three successes in re-attaching limbs.

These "replantations" involve re-attaching the limb by repairing damaged blood vessels, muscles, tendons and nerves. The bone is rejoined by a metal pin or shaft.

Drs. William W. Shaw and Daniel C. Baker who head the institute team specialize in two other areas of microsurgery - reconstructive work and repair of facial nerves.

Using a technique called a "free flap," they can take a piece of skin and fat or muscle from one part of the body and re-attach it to another in one step, to fill in defects left by a removed tumor or an accident.

Without microsurgery, this is a two-or three-step process that takes months because a new blood supply has to be grown by the body to support the flap.

With microsurgery, doctors can immediately attach vessels to furnish a blood supply - and life - for the transferred tissue.

"The free flap operation has revolutionized what can be done with reconstructive surgery," Shaw said.

In the case of the 30-year-old woman who had lost virtually one whole side of her face when a tumor was removed, Shaw and Baker took a piece of tissue from her abdomen and successfully attached it to her face and chin.

"Her face was completely in one step," Baker said. "She was discharged 10 days later with no complications."

A 51-year-old man with a chronic open sore on his leg from frostbite he got while in a concentration camp had undergone surgery 15 times to try to close the wound.

Using microsurgical techniques, the defect was covered with skin and fat taken from his thigh in one eight-hour operation.

"He is looking forward to going swimming this summer for the first time," Baker said.

Almost every case of facial palsy can now be improved by microsurgically re-routing and transferring nerves from one side of the face to the other.

Baker has started the first facial paralysis clinic at a New York hospital.

Shaw, 37, and Baker, 36, say their first microsurgery attempts were met with skepticism four years ago when they were in training.

However, with the encouragement and support of Dr. John M. Converse, Director of Institute of Reconstructive Plastic Surgery at NYU Medical Center and work-renowned plastic surgeon, they persisted.

Today they teach resident surgeons their techniques.

They are also trying to raise the money - an estimated annual $200,000 - for a microsurgery research and training center.

"Perhaps the main obstacle was that it wasn't in our minds that this could be done," Shaw said.

"It was a simple concept - like aviation - that needed to be proven and then accepted. And once it was, it had immediate application."

Water Board Acted Improperly

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - The old Texas Water Quality Board acted improperly in letting popular opinion influence its decision to deny a permit for an industrial waste disposal site in Starr County, the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals ruled Wednesday.

The court said the case must be decided anew by the board's successor agency, the Texas Water Commission.

Board members denied the permit on Jan. 7, 1977, after holding a hearing in Rio Grande City some four months earlier.

Starr Industrial Services, Inc., had proposed an 81-acre landfill to bury neutralized industrial wastes nine miles northwest of Rio Grande City.

The court said there were to be safeguards and monitoring over the three-to four-year life of the site and for a time after it was closed.

Opposition came from the county judge, the Rio Grande City Chamber of Commerce and from a state senator.

The court cited a letter from the board's executive director, Hugh Yantis Jr., that the dump would be suitable for solid waste disposal but could be denied "on the basis of the express views of the people within the county."

A board member also asserted he was reluctant, because of the local opposition, to approve the site. The board order also mentioned "adamant local opposition" as a reason for denial.

"Nowhere in the Solid Waste Disposal Act is local opposition mentioned for consideration as a standard to govern the board's decision and such opposition, standing alone, should have no part in the board's decision-making process. Yet obviously it did," the court said.

This made the decision "arbitrary and capricious" and required its reversal, the court concluded.

Disability Need Not Impede Happiness

On a recent visit to Cincinnati, former President Gerald R. Ford, Honorary Chairman of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America, exchanged warm greetings with First Big Brother, Irvin F. Westheimer, 99. Westheimer, who founded Big Brothers in 1903, will celebrate his 100th birthday on September 19th.

COLLEGE STATION — One physical disability plus six abilities can equal success—in learning to live with that disability.

People with physical handicaps are not "handicapped people," says Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist. "They are still people with the usual problems almost everyone has, plus one—a special limitation."

"Learning to live with a disability, then, will take the usual effort that same person ever needed to learn anything he knows," Mrs. McCormack says.

"He'll need that same effort to develop six special abilities," she says.

Mrs. McCormack is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Here are the six abilities:
*BE REALISTIC — Just as you accept the fact that you have brown eyes, or that you wear glasses, learn to accept your physical limitations.

Take stock of your assets, such as intelligence, judgment, enthusiasm or friendliness—and try to develop them even further.

These assets are very important to successful management positions in business, by the way.

*USE A POSITIVE APPROACH — Try to avoid feeling sorry for yourself.

It will be devastating for you, and it will tax the patience of your family and friends.

A positive approach increases satisfying feelings and thoughts—and it shows in the way you act, which, in turn, promotes fulfilling relationships with others.

*BE ADAPTABLE—Don't limit yourself unduly, but stay realistic, of course.

Remember that many people use only 10 percent of their potential abilities.

Try to do everything you possibly can within the limitations of your handicap, but don't waste your energy on something that really isn't important just to prove you can do it.

*SET GOALS — Start with goals that are not too high.

Again, stay realistic. Progress comes by inches.

Physical and psychological adjustment does not come in a week—or even in a year.

*KNOW YOUR COMMUNITY RESOURCES — Never before have there been so many agencies concerned with rehabilitation of the handicapped—tax supported and private ones.

Get acquainted with them. They might give you just the extra help or advice you need.

*SHARE — Think of something you can do for someone else.

No one can be happy unless he is giving as well as receiving. Start in simple ways with your own family.

Branch out—even if you must stay home.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

The gas shortage is affecting a lot of vacations this year, and it's not unlikely that many families will forsake the open road for a week or two of leisure in their own back yard.

Well, don't kid yourself, it won't be the same. Convenience and comfort are not what vacations are all about. How are you going to feel going back to work rested, relaxed, and ready to face another year? No one will believe you had a good time if you return looking wonderful.

Since it is a nationwide problem, I think we have to address ourselves to ways in which a vacation at home can be simulated to the fun-filled time you might have had if you went on the road.

Pack the car. This is a ritual no vacation should be without. Remember, water, snacks and car sick pills in the trunk locked in behind the spare wheel, picnic basket and any other breakables under the dirt bike and sports equipment. On the roof, the cardboard suitcases, clothes, linens and other items that can be destroyed if it rains, and, of course, an inflated air mattress that hangs out far enough to cut off the vision in Dad's rear-view mirror.

Buy postcards. Spend the first day writing all your friends telling them what a wonderful time you are having. Do this before you get sick from too much charcoal lighter fluid on the grill, the baby is bitten by a ground squirrel but thinks she can make positive identification, there is a leach law on children and the 100-year flood arrives 56 years early.

Go primitive. No one respects you as a vacationer until you learn to live without life's basic necessities. The more hardship you endure, the better time you will have. Turn off the water, the electricity and limit your existence to two burners, a skillet, a double broiler, an axe, 50 yards of clothesline, three buckets, a spatula, a box of bandages, a tube of ointment and 38 boxes of aluminum foil.

I know what a lot of you are thinking. You're thinking I can sit in a mosquito-free back yard with clean air and clear skies and commune with birds and chipmunks. I can spread out a picnic of non-charred food straight from the microwave oven. I can sleep on sand-free beds and enjoy the benefits and privacy of indoor plumbing. I can have my own private laundromat and if it rains stay indoors and watch television. I can be perfectly comfortable and relaxed in my own home.

Yes, but is it a vacation?

Window Washing Tips Offered for Summer

COLLEGE STATION— Schedule window washing as a cleaning priority to rid windows of the last vestiges of winter, says Lillian Chrenoweth, a family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Begin by taking down curtains and draperies. Stand on a sturdy chair or ladder to do this, she advises.

Shake out dust from window coverings. Launder or have them dry cleaned if dirty.

Next, just shades or blinds.

Take them down and wash, if necessary. Set aside.

Pick up dirt around the window trim with the crevice tool attachment of the vacuum, the specialist recommends.

Wash frames and sills with a cloth or sponge and detergent or soap suds. Pipe cleaners, cotton swabs or an old toothbrush help coax dirt from corners.

To wash windows, make a mixture of one tablespoon of ammonia to a quart of water for greasy soil. Use one tablespoon vinegar to a quart of water for windows with hard spots, she continues.

BB Founder Nears 100

SAN FRANCISCO — As delegates from all parts of the country gather at the San Francisco Hilton Hotel to attend the National Convention of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America, June 19-23, Irvin F. Westheimer tends to business as usual at his Cincinnati home, his health a little too delicate to permit a plane trip. Otherwise, he would be there.

At 99 and three quarters—his 100th birthday is coming up on September 19th—Westheimer looks 30 years younger and is still actively involved with the unique youth service he founded 75 years ago when he became the first "Big Brother."

On the Fourth of July in 1903, he befriended a fatherless boy and soon had all his friends doing the same. The concept of one-to-one friendship between a man and a boy formed the seed of a movement that today spans the entire country and includes nearly 400 agencies within a national federation whose charter is granted by Congress.

It also includes women and girls. In 1977, in a historic move, two separate organizations, Big Brothers of America and Big Sisters International, merged to form the present Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America. This year's Convention is the third Annual Meeting of the combined BB/BSA.

Panhandle President Presents 1979 Theme

Susie Curtsinger, president of the Panhandle Association of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, presented her program of the year Tuesday night when Rebekah Lodge #228 met in regular session in IOOF Temple.

Mrs. Curtsinger's theme during her term as president is "Putting Rebekah and Odd Fellowship Back into the Lodge," stressing the duties and obligations "to live peaceably, do good to all as we have the opportunity and especially to obey the golden rule." Mrs. Curtsinger stated that the lodge symbols are linked as friendship, love and truth.

Helen Sowell, vice grand, presided during the weekly business session. Anna Conklin, chairman of the bylaws revision committee, presented the altered bylaws.

An invitation to the 20th anniversary of IOOF Lodge #203 and Rebekah Lodge #308, both in Friona, was read. All Hereford Rebekahs and Odd Fellows are invited to the celebration, scheduled from 2-5 p.m. Sunday, June 24.

Eighteen lodge members were present, including three who had been on the sick list recently.

Mrs. Conklin was hostess to Merle Bridges, Gladys Everts, Peggy Lemons, Martha Bridges, Guy Lawrence, Bessie Lawrence, Mary Flowers, Nellie Beauford, Ada Hollabaugh, Verna Sowell, Sadie Shaw, Edna Mathes, Blanche Williamson, Frances Parker, Glessie Shelton, Mrs. Curtsinger and Mrs. Sowell.

Nutrition labeling is mandatory for: 1) all foods to which protein, vitamins, or minerals have been added and 2) foods for which a nutrient claim is made on the label or in advertising. For example, vitamin D lowfat milk would require a nutrition information panel because vitamin D has been added and its carton says it is lowfat.

Resident Camp Slated in July

Hereford's Camp Fire Council has announced that Friday, June 22, is the deadline for registration to attend Camp MaKuiWa at Vadito, N.M. The camp, slated from Sunday, July 22 - Saturday, July 28, is open to all Camp Fire members, as well as non-members. Camp fees are $65 for Camp Fire members who are currently registered and $70 for non-members, including Council membership for one year.

In order to attend a camp, a completed registration form and a $10 non-refundable deposit should be mailed to Hereford Camp Fire Council, P.O. Box 1621, 903 14th St., Hereford, Tx. 79045. Balance of the fee should be paid one week prior to the camp session unless other arrangements are made with the office and camping committee. Checks should be made payable to Hereford Camp Fire Council. No cash will be accepted.

Camp MaKuiWa, meaning "Camp in the Enchanted Mountains," is located in the San de Cristo Mountain range of northeastern New Mexico. The camp is 18 miles southeast of Taos on New Mexico Highway No. 3 in the Rio Pueblo Valley.

Camp activities include horseback riding, camp skills, cookouts, nature study, Indian lore, swimming, canoeing, hand arts, sports, games, riflery, archery and folk games.

Health and safety precautions include a doctor on-call, a registered nurse on duty and health and accident insurance. At Camp MaKuiWa, counselors live with their assigned campers day and night. The nurse makes a daily check of incoming campers and administers all medicine brought to camp. Swimming and canoeing programs are under constant supervision of a Red Cross Water Safety Instructor.

Details concerning luggage and camping equipment are available from the Camp Fire Council upon registration.

Summer Rose Care Insures Beauty

COLLEGE STATION -- A little work this spring and summer will insure attractive and abundant roses this fall.

That suggestion comes from Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Remove spent flowers so that the plant's food and energy will go into flower production instead of seed production, advises Janne. Cut old flowers just above the second five-leaflet leaf above the main branch--the same as cutting flowers for arrangements. Higher cuts result in blind shoots or deformed flowers.

In alkaline soils, iron deficiency can be a problem. If this condition develops, obtain a copy of the leaflet, "Iron Chlorosis," from your county Extension office for information on correcting the problem. You may also want a copy of the publication, "Roses: Summer Care."

During hot, dry weather, the horticulturist suggests thoroughly watering rose beds to a depth of 8 to 10 inches each week.

Janne stresses the importance of blackspot and mildew control through a preventive spray program. Any reputable rose fungicide produces excellent results if properly applied. Spraying is more effective than dusting.

Most roses require spraying every 7 to 10 days from spring until killing frost, says the specialist.

Mormons Defend Religious Heritage

The First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints recently issued a statement addressing the separation of Church and State. Part of that statement appears below:

"During the course of our history, members of our church have been the victims of official persecution motivated by religious ignorance. We are, therefore, committed by experience as well as by precept to the wisdom of a constitutional principle that government and public officials should maintain a position of respectful neutrality in the matter of religion. If any of our members holding public office have failed to observe that position in any of their official responsibilities we counsel them to remember the church's principles.

"But the constitutional principle of neutrality toward religion does not call for our nation to ignore its religious heritage, including the religious motivations of its founders and the powerful religious beliefs of generations of its people and its leaders. The basic documents of our land, from the Mayflower Compact through the Declaration of Independence and the writings of the Founding Fathers to the inaugural addresses of presidents early and modern, are replete with reverent expressions of reliance on Almighty God and gratitude for his blessings. The reference to God and Divine Providence in our historic state documents and other religious symbols are time-honored and appropriate expressions of the religious heritage of this nation. As the Supreme Court noted in a leading case, 'There are many manifestations in our public life of belief in God,' and these 'ceremonial occasions bear no true resemblance to the kind of unquestioned religious exercise that the government is forbidden from sponsoring' (Engle vs. Vitale, 370 U.S. 421, 435 n. 21, 1962).

references to God in our public life have set themselves the task of rooting out historical facts and ceremonial tributes and symbols so ingrained in our national consciousness that their elimination could only be interpreted as an official act of hostility toward religion. Our constitutional law forbids that. As the Supreme Court said in another leading case, 'The place of religion in our society is an exalted one, achieved through a long tradition of reliance on the home, the church and the inviolable citadel of the individual heart and mind. We have come to recognize through bitter experience that it is not within the power of the government to invade that citadel, whether its purpose or effect be to aid or oppose, to advance or retard. In the relationship between man and religion, State is firmly committed to a position of neutrality.' (School District of Abington vs. Schempp, 374 U.S. 203, 226, 1963).

"As the ruling principle of conduct in the lives of many millions of our citizens, religion should have an honorable place in the public life of our nation, and the name of Almighty God should have a sacred use in its public expressions. We urge our members and people of good will everywhere to unite to protect and honor the spiritual and religious heritage of our nation and to resist the forces that would transform the public position of the United States from the constitutional position of neutrality to a position of hostility toward religion."

Car Wash Scheduled Saturday

The youth of First Presbyterian Church will be holding a car wash from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. Saturday on the church's northeast parking lot, 610 Lee St.

The youth will use proceeds of the car wash for a trip to Six Flags. Youth sponsor is Bob Ward.

Cost will be $3 per car. The car's interior will not be cleaned.

Casein comprises 82 percent of the protein in milk. Its use as a standard for evaluating protein of other food attests to the high quality of this nutrient in milk.

Ann Landers Husband Modest

DEAR ANN: Recently you printed a letter from a husband who said his wife has undressed in the closet for 15 years, and he is sick of it. What would you say when the problem is in reverse? I have been married 10 years and I have never seen my husband nude. When we make love it's always in the dark. As soon as we finish he hops out of bed, jumps into the shower and gets into his pajamas.

When I showed him your article about the wife who undressed in the closet for 15 years he said, "It doesn't fit me because I'm a man."

Please print this letter in your column and tell me what you think. -- Living in Darkness

DEAR LIVING: This has been going on for ten years???? Obviously the poor fellow has a hang-up rooted in childhood. Try a very dim light at first or turn on the light in the closet and leave the door open a crack. Then suggest co-educational showering or bathing. The shy guy needs to be led along gently. Don't make an issue of it. Be subtle and his self-consciousness will gradually diminish.

DEAR ANN: Our 21-year-old daughter married a man who caused dozens of arguments in our home. Her husband has served time in jail. He never was able to hold a job more than a few months because he became bored. When she married him she knew he had a serious drinking problem. Our daughter is back home with us -- pregnant. God knows where her husband is.

Where do our obligations end? We raised a large family with no help from parents or anyone else. We love our daughter and we will love her baby, too. But what do we owe her? Do I quit my job and raise her child while she goes back to school or work? Will I feel guilty if I say, "You stay home and raise your own." What is the right way to handle this? -- Torn In Two Directions

DEAR TORN: Keep your daughter in your home until the baby is born. But make it plain that she must go to work and make arrangements for the care of the child as soon as she is physically able.

Parents don't owe their children life-long leaning privileges. If you allow this girl to dump her child on you, you'll find yourself raising another generation. It's grossly unfair of your daughter to expect you to free her up so she can live the life of a single woman. She's in this spot because of her poor judgment and you should insist that she accept responsibility for herself.

DEAR READERS: The poem "My Body" attributed to Dr. Alton Ochsner of New Orleans was actually written by Marjorie Holmes. It appeared in her book, "I've Got To Talk To Somebody, God" published by Doubleday.

The misunderstanding occurred when Dr. Ochsner received the poem (no attribution -- simply anonymous). He thought so highly of it he used it as a Christmas greeting.

A recipient of the greeting sent it to Ann Landers and attributed it to Dr. Alton Ochsner. Marjorie Holmes has written many heartwarming poems and I have printed a few in this space. So it is with pleasure that I credit this talented woman with the verse entitled "My Body" from her book, "I've Got To Talk To Somebody, God."

June A Time to Cite Nutrition Education

June Dairy Month is a time to salute the dairy industry and local dairy farmers for supporting an unbiased nutrition education program in local schools.

The program, "Big Ideas in Nutrition Education," promotes good health by helping school students select a balanced diet using the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Four Food Group system.

FOUR FOOD GROUPS
The Four Food Groups - milk, meat, vegetable-fruit and bread-cereal - were first developed by USDA scientists in 1958 for use by consumers. Using the Recommended Dietary Allowances (RDA) conceived by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences, a scientifically sound system was instituted.

Using the Four Food Groups, "Big Ideas" gives equal coverage to all foods. Students learn the importance of selecting a good diet which meets their RDA. Even "junk foods" or extra foods are positively presented. Children learn there is nothing wrong with eating high calorie foods, as long as they consume a balanced diet and can "burn" the extra calories.

NUTRITION SKILLS IMPORTANT FOR EVERYONE
"Big Ideas" helps students master skills that they should know to nutritionally survive. The dairy industry knows that these basic skills are not only for elementary school students, but for people of all ages.

The skills are:
Classification - Identifying the food group(s) in which a given food should be placed.

Balanced Meals - Selecting a meal composed of at least one food from each of the USDA

Four Food Groups.
Serving number - Stating the minimum number of servings needed from each of the groups daily.

Serving size - Recognizing the amounts of food that approximate a serving within each group.

Nutrition analysis - Stating how many additional servings, if any, are needed during the day to meet the amounts recommended from the Four Food Groups.

NUTRITION EDUCATORS
Few teachers are trained nutritionists. Home economists and dietitians from a non-profit organization, Dairy Council, Inc., hold workshops to show teachers how to effectively use the "Big Ideas" materials, and answer the nutrition questions asked by parents and students.

Dairy Council, Inc. staff would like to help all 21 million consumers, make wise food choices. However, resources limit the number of consumers the staff is able to reach within their seven-state region. Dairy Council, Inc. identified specific audiences who could greatly profit from the nutrition education programs. Elementary gradestudents, high school health students, their teachers and parents all benefit from the materials provided by dairy farmers.

Teachers receive specific training and materials which make it easier for them to teach nutrition. Students receive individual workbooks in which they practice their nutrition skills. Parents become involved in the learning process after they receive a letter explaining how they can reinforce the student's knowledge of the Four Food Groups outside the classroom.

COMMENTARY

Martha Angle and Robert Walters

What Senate ethics?

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Regardless of the outcome, there will be no "winners" in the Senate Ethics Committee probe of financial misconduct charges against Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga.

This is no Watergate drama of high crimes and great constitutional issues, no edge-of-the-chair contest between heroes and villains.

Rather, what has been unfolding for the past month in the committee hearing room is a mundane tale of petty chiseling, arrogance and deceit of the kind that has given politicians in general — and members of Congress in particular — such an unsavory reputation.

It doesn't matter, at bottom, whether you believe Talmadge, a 23-year veteran of the Senate "club," or his chief accuser, a former top aide named Daniel Minchew who has now turned on his old boss.

Somebody in a position of public trust — senator or staff aides — indisputably played fast and loose for years on end with taxpayers' money and with campaign funds and did so with a cavalier disregard of the laws against such finagling. And it took a press investigation, rather than internal checks, to bring the whole scheme to light.

Minchew says Talmadge was responsible for submitting false expense vouchers to the Senate and for converting campaign funds to personal use by means of a secret Washington bank account. The senator says Minchew is a "proven liar, cheat and embezzler" who used his name but acted without his knowledge or consent.

The Ethics Committee has also accused Talmadge of filing false campaign finance disclosure reports, failing to report gifts and property on those documents, and failing to report correctly on his federal income tax returns gift made to his ex-wife, Betty.

The senator, with an imperious wave of the hand, has dismissed those charges as "trivial" and "petty," scarcely worth comment let alone rebuttal. He has suggested that any "errors" that occurred were the result of sloppiness and confusion on the part of his staff.

A United States senator, Talmadge has implied, is too important and busy to concern himself with such matters. If his staff screws up, why that is unfortunate but hardly a federal case.

Blaming the staff is a hoary tradition on Capitol Hill, the last bastion of feudalism in modern America. From the lowest file clerk to the loftiest administrative assistant, every aide serves at the whim of the senator who has hired him or her. Labor laws, civil rights laws and the like which protect other employees — public and private — do not apply to congressional workers.

The result is that pleasing and protecting the boss become an imperative of survival, even if it means cutting a few corners now and then — or accepting blame where none is really due. For a Senate staffer, the only punishable "crime" is disloyalty.

It is, consequently, not exactly surprising that current Talmadge aides have stoutly upheld the senator's claim that he never sullied his own hands with pedestrian problems like expense vouchers and campaign accounts, but left all that to the staff. Anyone who testified to the contrary, one can't help suspecting, might soon be looking for a new job.

Even Minchew, the ex-staffer who broke the code, still pays lip service to it. Although he insists he was acting on Talmadge's behalf and at his behest, it was Minchew who handled all the dirty work with the secret bank account.

He did so, he testified last week, in order to "insulate" the senator and give Talmadge "deniability" in case the whole business ever came to light. "If it were ever traceable or discovered, I would have taken the fall," Minchew said.

Indeed, the former aide claimed, "I probably would have done so" if Talmadge had asked him nicely once the press began snooping into the senator's financial affairs instead of turning on Minchew and calling in the Justice Department.

That's ethics — Senate style.

Texas Crops Report

Cotton, Sorghum Planting Active in Panhandle

Beauty Amidst The Barbs

The blooms of a flowering yucca offer a surprisingly soft contrast to the spiny plant, often referred to as Spanish bayonet, and lend a colorful air to a tract of area rangeland. Heavy rainfall this spring produced a profusion of blooming yucca on the rangeland shown here, and prairie flowers, encouraged by generous moisture, joined the yucca in a riot of color across vast acreages of local rangeland. (Brand photo by Jim Steiert)

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - After a week of open weather over most of the state, Texas farmers are trying to complete spring planting and to cultivate weedy fields that have resulted from prolonged wet conditions.

Crops are beginning to make good progress over all the state although many of them are late, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. With good soil moisture conditions in most sections, open weather will allow crops to make good growth. However, farmers should give attention to moisture conservation since hot, dry summer weather is approaching.

Insect problems are increasing in some sections of the state and will continue to be a factor throughout the season due to many late crops, noted Pfannstiel. Thrips and fleahoppers are building up in cotton, and midge poses a serious threat to sorghum. Grasshoppers are beginning to increase in some pastures and ranges.

The wheat harvest is getting under way in western, central and northern areas of Texas, including the Rolling Plains, as fields dry from recent rains. Wheat fields are turning color in the High Plains. A good harvest is in prospect.

Livestock and range conditions continue to look good over the state due to widespread spring rains, said Pfannstiel. And hay making is active in many counties due to good growth of spring forages.

Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions.

PANHANDLE: Cotton and sorghum planting is active as field conditions permit. Planting is late due to recent wet conditions. Hay bailing is widespread. Wheat is making good progress and is beginning to turn color. A good harvest is in prospect. Cattle and forage conditions look good due to recent rains.

SOUTH PLAINS: Cotton planting is in the final stages in the southern part of the region. Early stands are fair, some crop damage due to the seedling disease complex caused by cold wet soils. Some soybeans and sunflowers are still being planted. Corn is making excellent progress. Wheat continues to move toward maturity; a good harvest is expected.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cotton planting and replanting is active over the area, and the wheat harvest is about to get untracked. Large acreages of cotton are being replanted due to recent heavy rains. Fuel supplies are generally adequate as the wheat harvest gets under way. Forage conditions are good.

NORTH CENTRAL: Sorghum is beginning to make good growth, but cotton is struggling due to the prolonged wet weather. Some cotton is still being replanted. Wheat harvesting is about to get under way, with good yields expected. Peanuts will be planted as soon as fields are dry enough. Hay making is active. Some early peaches and plums are being harvested.

NORTHEAST: Wet fields are still delaying planting of sorghum, peanuts and soybeans. Some wheat and oats have been damaged by recent rains. The second cutting of hay is ready to harvest in some counties; some first cuttings were lost to the prolonged wet weather. Peach harvesting is in progress. Livestock and forage conditions are good.

FAR WEST: Rains the past week gave a big boost to ranges and dryland crops. Alfalfa and vegetables are making good growth, but cotton is making limited progress due to cool weather. Small grains are being harvested, with good yields. Peaches and apricots are ripening. Lambs and calves of good weights are moving to market.

WEST CENTRAL: Cotton planting is about 80 percent complete while sorghum planting ranges from 50 to 100 percent complete. Wheat harvesting is active, with fair to good yields. Peaches are beginning to ripen in Gillespie County and have excellent flavor. Forages are average to above average.

CENTRAL: Wheat harvesting is getting under way where field conditions permit; good yields are expected. Wet, cool weather continues to hamper cotton growth. Thrips and fleahoppers are heavy in some cotton fields. Hay making is increasing as weather conditions improve. Peanut planting is about 25 percent.

EAST: Spring planting remains active, with some sorghum, cotton, peanuts and soybeans still going in. A lot of cotton is being replanted due to recent heavy rains. Early peaches are being harvested. Hay making is active as weather conditions permit; some hay has been lost due to continued rains.

SOUTHEAST AND UPPER COAST: Most crops need open weather due to prolonged wet conditions. Some rice and sorghum are still being planted. Most cotton is squaring. Hay making is active as field conditions permit, and forages are abundant due to good soil moisture conditions.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Cotton is squaring and sorghum is heading. Fleahoppers are heavy in some cotton. Peanut planting will increase as fields dry. Harvesting of wheat and oats is active where field conditions permit.

Changing World Tastes Help Boost Farm Trade

Somewhere in Saudi Arabia, an oil-rich sheik competes with a broiling sun on a soft ice cream cone.

In the shadow of the pyramids, an Egyptian munches on a corned beef sandwich.

A native merchant in far-off Trinidad pedals slices of salami. And West Germans say "nix" to their Wiener schnitzel in favor of corn on the cob.

The culinary tastes of the world are changing and the increasing diversity of overseas appetites is having a profound effect on the American farmer.

The role of the U.S. farmer as a world marketer is not only continuing to grow in dollar volume, but also in the variety of agricultural products being exported to foreign lands.

This twin trade growth, in turn, holds significant positive results, not only for the agricultural community, but for the nation as a whole, too.

Agricultural exports during the coming year are expected to top $30 billion -- up about $3 billion from the past year.

Energy Efficiency a Must In Feeding

COLLEGE STATION - The cattle industry's future must be planned within a "framework of energy," assured Texas A&M University's veteran animal scientist John K. Riggs.

"We hadn't been forced to do it. Now we must," Riggs said. "Although there's a whole host of ways it can already be done, we've only begun to explore ways to reduce energy use."

Riggs, a veteran of 40 years in teaching and research, said that the first "shock" of an energy shortage in 1973 triggered some reality that the days of cheap energy were over, and that costs of operating pickups, feed mills and slaughter houses would cost more.

"The second (and current) jolt is worse, and maybe more thought-provoking about conservation of energy," Riggs added, "but the outlook is that the energy squeeze will gain strength, before it weakens." Riggs credited the livestock industry for modifications toward use of less energy and labor, such as triple-decker trucks replacing double-deckers for hauling more cattle, merchandising cattle directly to buyers in feedlots, and streamlining packing houses to handle more cattle in less time.

He also cited many time and energy-saving innovations, proven but not widely accepted by the industry. Some of these included reducing pickup mileage up to 60 percent by feeding supplements to cattle two to three times a week instead of daily and feeding of grain with high (25 to 30 percent) moisture content, rather than purchase of grain with 12 percent moisture, only to apply steam to soften and flake it for higher efficiency in producing beef.

on the farm. As such food and feed grains command higher prices overseas, foreign buyers are placing increasing emphasis on the quality of these products.

Although not as large in volume or dollar value as grains, exports of fruits, vegetables, nuts, animal products and other specialty agricultural items will be a multi-billion-dollar business during the coming year.

In fact, sales of such items will reach nearly $7 billion. That alone is more than all U.S. farm exports were worth at the beginning of just this decade.

Reports of inquiries from overseas buyers during a single week illustrate the increasing scope and diversity of world trade in these specialty agricultural products.

At least part of the tremendous oil revenues making their way to the Middle East will be coming back in some unique agricultural ways. Amidst the heat, sunshine, sand and oil of Saudi Arabia, a taste is being developed in soft ice cream and frozen yogurt. With plans for a chain of such stores, it opens markets for not only the concentrate ingredients, but the equipment to make those delicacies.

Not only are the Saudis acquiring American food tastes, but they're interested in U.S. eating customs and programs. The Saudi Ministry of Education is seeking to establish a 40,000 meal-a-day school lunch program, including biscuits, peanuts, milk, cheese, orange juice and fruits.

Such specialty foods and programs thereby make a significant contribution to the U.S. balance of trade.

Amounts of similar purchases are substantial. For instance, there are the 18 metric tons each of turkey and beef livers sought in Egypt, along with a small mountain of canned corned beef.

Besides salami bound for Trinidad and canned corn on the cob to West Germany, there are black and sour cherries to South Africa and Bloody Mary mix to Abu Dhabi.

And what is a more symbolic American agricultural export than hamburger and milk shake ingredients headed for West Berlin.

Thus, whether it be a shipload of field corn for livestock feed or a few thousand cases of canned corn on the cob, the U.S. farmer is not only the keystone of U.S. world trade, but is the foundation of thousands of domestic jobs to process and move a vast variety of products from American farms throughout the world.

Witkowski Among TWPB Nominees

Four wheat producers will compete for three six-year terms on the Texas Wheat Producers Board in a mail election now in progress, according to C.L. Edwards, Panhandle, Chairman of the organization. The advertised deadline for receiving names from producers to be placed on the ballot ended mid-night June 12. Competing for a vacancy on the Board created by Delbert Timmons, Perryton, who had served two terms and declined to run again, are Robert Graves of Perryton and Eddie Wiley of Fallett to represent the North Plains.

Incumbents in the South Plains and Rolling Plains, respectively, whose names will appear for re-election are Leo Witkowski of Hereford and Winston Wilson of Quanah. Places are provided on the ballot for "write-in" nominations in all districts, Edwards said.

The Texas Wheat Producers Board was established in 1971 by a favorable vote of more than two-thirds majority of wheat producers voting in a referendum and election of a nine-man board serving six-year terms with three terms expiring each two years. The organization conducts programs of market development, research, disease and insect control and other services designed to strengthen wheat and make it a more profitable commodity. Producers support the Board and its activities with a one-half cent per bushel self-assessment on deliveries of grain at commercial elevators in a thirty-four county area of commercial wheat production in North Texas and the Panhandle.

Ballots will be mailed June 22 to all producers subject to paying the one-half cent assessment with a deadline of return for canvassing by July 12, with results being announced and the winners certified as Board members by the Texas Commissioner of Agriculture, July 16.

Other members of the Texas Wheat Producers Board, in addition to Edwards, and Timmons whose term is expiring, and those up for re-election, are Kenneth Kendrick, Stratford; Troy Sloan, Spearman; Otis Harman, Tulsa; Dwight Hamilton, Olney; and W.R. Moore, Jr., Munday.

Any wheat producer that may not receive a mail ballot may obtain one from the county extension office in his county between June 22 and July 12.

FB Urges Truckers To Move Produce

The president of Texas' largest general farm organization has urged striking independent truckers not to ignore the Texas fruit and vegetable harvest.

Texas Farm Bureau President Carol Chaloupka said, "We recognize that the trucking industry is suffering from the price of fuel and the shortage of fuel, just the same as agriculture, but this is the only income that many of these farmers will receive this year."

The harvest of fruits and vegetables in the Winter Garden area, near San Antonio, is reportedly suffering from a shortage of trucks, compounded by the Independent Truckers Association strike. Once the crops there are ready for harvest, farmers will have only a few days to market before the highly perishable commodities run in the fields.

"We need the full cooperation of the truckers to move these perishables immediately because very soon they will be in no condition to be moved at all," said Chaloupka.

Both the Winter Garden and the Rio Grande Valley are harvesting melons, vegetables, and other crops, and the demand for trucks is, as always, huge. Practically all of the crop is transported by truck.

Chaloupka was joined by other farm leaders, including Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, in urging the truckers to continue to move the fruit and vegetable crop.

FRIENDSHIP
FRESNO, Calif. (AP) - They're close friends, they do things together. So when Sam Edmondson's right thumb was cut off in a roping accident, it was only natural Al Gomes would go out and get his right thumb sliced off, also in a roping accident. They obtained the services of the same doctor to sew the severed thumbs back on. Roping accidents are not rare, but for two friends to lose their thumbs within days of each other, after years without injury, is more than a coincidence, said Edmondson. "It's just bad luck."

RIDING THE RAILS
PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) - Railroad tracks ride on trains here. Sections of rail 70 feet long are fed into a Burlington Northern plant here to be welded into quarter-mile-long rails which are loaded onto racks of a "rail train." The ribbons of rail are then sent to construction sites either to replace jointed rail or become part of a new line. The new facility here is one of two BN continuous-welded rail plants that are taking the clickety-clack out of railroad tracks. The other is at Laurel, Mont.

STAINED GLASS
NEW YORK (AP) - A stained-glass triptych, created from a design by Israeli artist Shalom of Safed, is on view at the Jewish Museum through Oct. 8. Illustrated in brilliant colors are Moses Receiving the Law on Sinai (center panel) and the Exodus (two side panels).

HEALTH
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Man's most common pain

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 74-year-old man. I am 5-foot-7 and weigh 170 pounds. For the last nine months I have been having severe head pain. I wouldn't call them headaches. I wear glasses so I thought I would have my eyes tested. I got new glasses but that didn't solve my problem so I saw an ophthalmologist. He went through all the tests and said my eyes were O.K. He sent me to an ear, nose and throat specialist. I had X-rays of the sinuses. He said that my sinuses were normal and not infected, but he didn't know what caused my head pain. I get the head pain when I wake up in the morning. I get up and move around and they leave me and I do not have any head pains the rest of the day or night. But when I wake up in the morning, I have them again. My blood pressure is normal. DEAR READER - I'm not at all sure why you think a pain in the head isn't a headache. There are many causes for head pain, if you wish to use that term, and it's true that they can be caused by sinus problems, which apparently you don't have. Your mistake is in not seeing your family doctor or a specialist in internal medicine. You need someone to look at your total medical status and see what might be your problem. In any case, you should have some medicine to help relieve the pain if it's that severe. You should know that headaches are one of the most common complaints that people have. Sometimes they're related to life situations, tension, sinus troubles, migraine headaches and many other factors. To give you a better appreciation of the problem, I am sending you The Health Letter, Number 2-8, Headache: Man's Most Common Pain. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Even the time of day for your head pain may be important. Although you've said your blood pressure is normal, it's interesting that headaches associated with high blood pressure and migraine headaches commonly occur in the early hours whereas headaches associated with eye problems are more apt to occur in the latter part of the day or even in the evening. DEAR DR. LAMB - I tried taking alfalfa tablets and they seem to help the arthritis in my wrist. A friend of mine said a doctor told her that alfalfa will make one's blood thicker. Is this true? Could you write about the benefits or lack of benefits from taking alfalfa? DEAR READER - It won't do you any good and it won't do you any harm. You might be surprised to know that about a third of people with real illnesses
