Property Association Gains Strength; Purposes Outlined

The newly formed Deaf Smith County Property Owners and Users Association has gained the support of about 175 members as of Friday afternoon according to Dorell Jones, the organization's temporary chairman.

The association was formed Wednesday afternoon in a meeting of the retail business committee of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce. The C of C board of directors voted Thursday morning to deny its official support to the group, but decided instead to form a three-member committee to investigate the local tax valuations in relation to other area communities.

Jones and other interested retailers decided to organize following a 23 per cent hike in school district taxes, which they feel might not be necessary. A 17-point list of purposes and proposed actions was presented to the C of C board at their meeting, when the list was considered and the support denied.

The organization took out ads in the last issue of The Brand to solicit members who may qualify simply as a land owner or renter. It is a nonprofit organization with no dues required from members.

Contributions are accepted for any expenses such as possible court litigation according to Jones. Presently, the organizers hope to register over 1,000 members "to show we have a large representation," he added.

A meeting of the signed members will be held once the membership grows to a "significant figure," Jones explained.

The purposes of the organization as stated in the 17-point listing are to represent all property owners and renters in the county on matters pertaining to taxes, to appoint representatives from the association to attend all governmental meetings (commissions and equalization boards) where taxes or property revaluations are considered, to elect a president, vice president and secretary, to seek legal aid if necessary for court proceedings, to request federal intervention if no local arbitration is possible "on a fair and equal basis," and to request the school board to present all expenses (salaries and travel expenses) of school administrators.

Also, the group seeks to have a report of how all school moneys are collected and spent in order to justify an increase (including what is collected for such things as athletics and what is spent for teacher salaries), to have the schools refrain from unnecessary expenses (such as tennis courts, new schools, free school lunches) without investigation of parents' financial position, to ask for a study to determine where the school board can cut costs, to investigate whether teachers are pressured into union or organization membership, and to hold tight to the position that the 23 per cent tax increase is unnecessary if proper management is provided.

Other states purposes are to help the school board provide expert advice on management of funds and use of tax dollar, to cooperate but not be railroaded

United Way Planning Gets Underway Here

Directors of the United Way of Deaf Smith County met Thursday morning to initiate plans for the 1975-76 campaign, it was reported by Raymond White, board president.

Directors reviewed the financial statement for the 1975-76 budget year and discussed policies on independent fund drives held by agencies participating in the United Way. By-laws of the United Way allow for one independent fund drive by a participating agency.

Due to conflicts with the UW drive in the latter part of the year, directors approved a motion to provide that no UW agency can hold a fund drive during the last six months of the calendar year. The motion to amend the by-laws will be acted on at the next meeting, which will be declared a general membership meeting.

Contributions and pledges for the current year amounted to about $2 per cent of the $59,600 goal, and the financial report showed that 69 per cent of the funds had been made available for disbursement. Funds are received during the fiscal year on pledges and payroll deduction plans. The current budget year ends Sept. 30, 1975.

Directors also heard a request from the Campfire Girls to conduct an additional fund drive this year, but it was denied by a unanimous vote. White said directors indicated that the organization should adhere to its policy and emphasize an all-out effort in reaching the budget goal for 1975-76.

Directors asked the executive committee to consider nominees to be appointed to the budget and admissions committee, as well as the position of drive chairman.

Officers of the United Way for the 1975-76 campaign include White, Bud Snyder, 1st vice president; Mal Manchee, 2nd VP; Gayle Cotten, treasurer; and Genevieve Miller, executive secretary.

Property Group Support Denied

C of C Committee To Make Tax, Valuation Comparison

A request to "sanction and support" a property owners association was denied by directors of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce during a regular monthly meeting Thursday morning, but the board decided to form a committee to investigate taxes and property valuations in comparison with other towns.

In other action, the board approved an audit report for fiscal year 1974, heard several committee reports, discussed the "Texas First" program, and set dates for several C of C events.

DORELL JONES, acting chairman of the newly-formed Deaf Smith County Property Owners & Users Association, had presented the request for support through the retail business committee. The retail group reported the request to the board without recommendation. Bud Eades, C of C president, said directors felt the chamber should not become involved in such a matter. Referring to a specific protest against an increase in school taxes, Eades said, "We've elected a school board to deal with these matters."

Director Bud Snyder said he felt the board should "not condemn without offering alternatives." Roy Faubion said he felt the blame lies with state legislators for the school finance bill they passed. Eades also pointed out that local taxing units have equalization boards where citizens can air their complaints.

Directors did express concern, however, about large tax increases. Mike Patrick, Bud Snyder and Donald Hicks were named to a committee to study the situation. Orpha Click, school tax assessor-collector, was present at the

1,418 Hogs Are Destroyed Here To Help Stop Spread Of Cholera

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Writer

Attempts on the part of a state-federal eradication task force to halt the spread of hog cholera following an outbreak of the disease here July 4 have led to the depopulation of 21 Texas Panhandle herds.

According to Dr. Lawrence Hill, director of the task force, more than 2270 hogs have been destroyed.

SWINE HERDS involved in the depopulation measures were located in Deaf Smith, Hartley, Potter and Randall counties.

A task force spokesman reported that a total of 1,418 hogs were destroyed in Deaf Smith County.

Appraised value of the Texas Panhandle swine is over $220,000, according to the spokesman, with the value of swine destroyed in Deaf Smith County appraised at $144,497.25.

The spokesman indicated that prior to the taking of each herd, federal and state appraisers and the owner reached an agreement on the indemnity which would be paid to the owner of the herd.

OWNERS OF swine destroyed to control the spread of the dreaded cholera may be paid an indemnity not to exceed 100 per cent of appraised value, up to $360 for purebred, inbred, breeding or hybrid swine, and $180 for grade hogs.

Dr. Hill explained that four herds in Oklahoma involving 1,065 hogs were also depopulated.

The Oklahoma herds were located in Kingfisher, Quachita and Oklahoma counties.

Appraised value of the four Oklahoma herds was set at $123,000.

"We have not found any additional cases of cholera, but these herds were taken as exposed," said Dr. Hill.

"The herds that were depopulated were involved with direct or secondary movements from the originally infected herd at Hereford Livestock Co.," he added.

THE OUTBREAK of the disease was confirmed July 4 in a herd at Hereford Livestock owned by Louis Woodford.

Task force members are still involved in efforts to pinpoint are working to track down the source of the virus.

An area within a 10 square mile radius of Hereford remains under quarantine, and the quarantine is expected to remain in effect for a minimum of another 30 days.

Quarantine guidelines stipulate that fat hogs in the affected areas may be moved only directly to slaughter. The task force must inspect the animals and issue a permit before any such movement may take place.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Hill, movement of feeder hogs and breeding stock is prohibited within the quarantine area.

Individuals desiring to move animals from outside the quarantine area to another state should contact task force headquarters in Amarillo at 376-2291.

The states of Oklahoma, Iowa, Missouri, Michigan and North Carolina still have various forms of embargoes in effect, governing the movement of Texas hogs.

Prior to the current outbreak of cholera, the last reported cases of the swine disease were in February and May of 1974.

Before an intense eradication campaign was introduced, the virus affected 5,000 to 6,000 swine herds yearly, with losses of approximately $50 million annually.

"Apathy", says the dictionary, "is a lack of interest in things; indifference."

The word applies to a lot of people when it comes to involvement in governmental affairs, on the local, state or national level. A case in point concerns the hike in school taxes here. Many people have become concerned, including this writer, about the big increase announced.

But, where were we a couple a months ago when local taxing officials were warning us (in The Brand) that legislative proposals on school financing could hurt this district? Or, when tax officials were going to Austin in an effort to keep local control of property valuations?

The Brand of June 26, in an article on the school board meeting, reported that trustees were considering the necessity of a 22 per cent increase in taxes because of the school financing bill and other factors. There was little, if any, response (See HEREFORD BULL, page 2A)

Opinions Run Against Government Control

West Texans Say No Energy Crisis Exists

By JOE LACKEY
Brand Staff Writer

A majority of the residents of the West Texas area do not believe that there is a shortage of natural gas or electricity in West Texas, and further are opposed to the state or federal government having control over who may buy the natural gas produced in West Texas, according to a survey of attitudes on the energy situation in West Texas conducted for Pioneer Natural Gas Co. by a research center at West Texas State University.

The study was commissioned by Pioneer Natural Gas, and was conducted by The Center for Business and Economic Research at WTSU, under the direction of Dr. Phillip Gensler, the head of the Computer Research Department at WTSU.

THE SURVEY consisted of mailing questionnaires to 4,400 residential and irrigation gas users in West Texas. Results were tabulated with the usage of computers.

A total of 1,513 replies were received in the survey with 97 responding from Hereford.

Besides opposing general governmental controls, the people of West Texas also oppose state or federal allocation of natural gas to areas which need it most. Approximately 72 per cent of those responding opposed such allocations, with 26 per cent favoring allocations.

Almost 78 per cent opposed state and federal controls, while 20 per cent favored these controls. And 83 per cent said they don't believe there is a shortage of natural gas in West Texas, with 89 per cent stating they don't believe there is a shortage of electricity here.

An overwhelming majority said there has been an increase in rates for both natural gas and electricity, 90 per cent stating that their gas rates have gone up, and the same percentage replying that the cost of electricity has increased.

OPINIONS were divided on a question asking who controls rates. Relating to natural gas, about 37 per cent said the local government controls rates, 10 per cent pointed to the state government, five per cent to the federal government, and about 33 per cent believe that the distributor controls rates.

About 45 per cent of the respondents believe that the local government controls electricity rates, with seven per cent arguing that the state government sets electrical rates, only three per cent pointing to the federal government, with the remainder, about 31 per cent, believing that the distributor controls electrical rates.

A question relating to the future supply of natural gas in West Texas also drew a divided response. 15 per cent said "we will continue to have plenty" of natural gas, 48 per cent said "we will have enough if we conserve," 19 per cent argued that the future supply situation will depend on how many new wells are drilled, and 11 per cent said "we may run out in the foreseeable future."

MORE THAN 20 PER CENT of the respondents did not answer a question relating to the chief factor which would be involved if the cost of natural gas increased. Over 17 per cent said increased competition might drive prices up and 31 per cent said increased production costs could cause higher prices. Another 26 per cent believe that increased profits for the distributor would result from higher prices, and 5 per cent argue that increased costs of distribution would be the chief reason if the cost of natural gas increased.

Those responding to the survey were asked "How well do you feel the utility people do their jobs?" Three per cent said that those who work with electricity do their jobs poorly, nine per cent, "so-so," 41 per cent, "okay," and a large number, about 45 per cent, said they believe that those who work to produce and distribute electricity do their jobs "very well."

A similar result developed from the part of the question relating to those who work with natural gas. Five per cent state that these people do their jobs poorly, 13 per cent, so-so, 40 per cent, okay, and 40 per cent, very well.

Respondents were more pessimistic about people who work with telephone services and water. About 15 per cent said that telephone workers do their jobs "poorly," 16 per cent said that the performance in these positions is "so-so," 35 per cent said that they do their jobs "okay," and 32 per cent believe that telephone people perform "very well."

About 28 per cent of the respondents indicated they would prefer rationing to increased prices, with 62 per cent stating they would prefer increased prices if necessary to assure a continued supply of natural gas.

OVERWHELMING MAJORITIES indicated they believe that natural gas is less expensive than electricity to do space heating, water heating, clothes drying, and cooking. About 57 per cent said they believe natural gas is cheaper than electricity for air conditioning, with 36 per cent stating they believe electricity is cheaper for this particular job.

A big majority of the respondents said they would look to the natural gas and electric companies to be assured that sufficient energy supplies for home use would be assured. This attitude was expressed by 77 per cent with five per cent preferring the city government, five per cent stressing the role of the federal government, and about nine per cent mentioning the oil production companies.

The majority of those surveyed indicated disapproval of price ceilings on natural gas at the wellhead, with 74 per cent believing there would be fewer wells drilled, resulting in a shortage, if a price ceiling was set up, and 10 per cent believing that the result would be beneficial with the consumer paying less for natural gas and electricity.

Almost 77 per cent of those participating in the survey expressed a belief that natural gas represents the most efficient use of natural resources, with only 19 per cent believing that electricity is the most efficient use.

A large number of residents of West Texas apparently believe that natural gas is the energy source most used to produce electricity in West Texas. Over 85 per cent had this opinion, with six per cent mentioning oil, less than one per cent mentioning coal, and four per cent stating they believe that water is used to produce electricity.

Other survey participants included 359 from the Amarillo area taking part, 64 from the Big Spring area, 80 from the Brownfield district, 111 from the Littlefield area, 402 from the Lubbock region, 149 from the Midland district, 136 from the Odessa area, 63 from the Pampa region, and 128 from the Plainview area.

In those responses where percentages do not total 100 per cent, the explanation involves a certain percentage not responding to the particular question.

The survey seems to generally indicate that most of those surveyed are opposed to government intervention in the energy situation, and most believe in the importance of the usage of natural gas.

Pruitt Chosen To Head Up 'Texas First' Program

David Pruitt has been chosen by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce to head local coordination efforts for TEXAS FIRST, a program designed to stimulate Texas economy. This announcement was made by Chamber President, Bud Eades, following the board meeting Thursday morning.

Original goals of this program included creating 4,000 new, permanent and unsubsidized jobs and expanding 160 businesses. This would result in an economic boost of $277 million annually in Texas. Some of these goals have already been reached and so new goals are being planned.

Pruitt will be working with local businesses and industries to enlist their participation in the program.

"We want every employer in Deaf Smith County to participate in TEXAS FIRST, whether they pledge to hire one or 100 new workers," he said. "We will work with them to learn their problems with expansion and request assistance from the appropriate agencies, as well as help out where we can on a local basis."

Pruitt said the expertise of four state agencies is being pooled to help in this effort. Training has already been provided around the state through the Texas Start-up Training program which has been so successful that it has shown a return of four dollars for every one invested.

For more information and pledge cards, contact Pruitt at 364-1166.

Retailers Did Well During Past Year of Business

(SPL)—Retail business in Deaf Smith County was at a higher level in the past year than was expected, final tabulations show.

The sales volume compiled by local stores indicates that local residents have been coping with the recession more successfully than have people in many parts of the country.

However, although a sizeable amount was spent locally for food, clothing, home furnishings and other goods and services, buying was at a more restrained pace than it would have been if economic conditions had been normal.

As in other communities, people cut back temporarily on some of their discretionary spending. Most severely hit, as a result, were the markets for automobiles and new homes.

The facts and figures on the local spending picture are brought out in the annual survey of markets, conducted by the Standard Rate and Data Service. It shows how consumers in each area of the nation spent their money, and for what.

In Deaf Smith County, a large portion of it went for food. Approximately 17 cents out of every dollar spent in retail stores was for such purchases.

What it produced, for supermarkets, grocery stores, meat markets, bakeries and other food outlets was a sales volume of $12,965,000. This compares with the previous year's $10,921,000.

Not included is the amount spent for food consumed in restaurants and in other eating and drinking places.

If the expenditure for take-home food were uniformly divided among the local population it would be equivalent to $2,058 per household.

Elsewhere in the United States, the average was $1,693 and, in the State of Texas, $1,741.

The volume of business done by other retail establishments shows that most of them stood up quite well, despite the recession.

Sales of cars and other automotive equipment and supplies amounted to $10,924,000, compared with the prior year's $11,603,000.

General merchandise stores recorded a total of $3,623,000 in the year. In 1973 it was $3,229,000.

Those selling shoes, hats, clothing and other wearing apparel grossed $2,343,000, as against the previous $2,066,000.

Furniture and home furnishings stores accounted for $2,430,000. Their former total was $2,051,000.

County Crops Continue Making Good Progress

By JIM STEERT
Brand Farm Writer

County crops show continued good progress and insect-associated problems are relatively minor at this time according to Justin McBride, county agent.

McBride reported that most areas of the county currently have adequate moisture, although some dryland range areas are suffering moisture stress.

THE SOUTHWESTERN Corn Borer, a dreaded enemy of the corn farmer, has not caused problems locally as of yet, according to McBride.

"Entomologists report that the borer is in the late larval stages of the first generation at this time, and there aren't any problems until the second generation," said McBride.

He pointed out that although there are numbers of greenbugs in the county, there have been no large population buildups yet.

"There have been some problems with greenbugs in corn and sorghum to the south of us in Hale County. Large populations of the pest appeared quite suddenly, and spider mites have also been causing some problems," McBride explained.

APPEARANCE OF spots on the leaves of many plants both within the city and on farms has prompted numerous questions within the past few days, according to McBride.

"We have not determined just what the cause is as yet," said McBride. "The cloudy cool weather we've been having lately is ideal for leaf spot disease, and if this is the case, there are several fungicide sprays available to control the problem. It's also possible that some of the affected plants may have suffered leaf burn, due to contact with defoliant residue," he added.

Harvesting of potato and onion crops within the county has made good progress within the past week, with the market remaining at a favorable level for both crops.

Bud Snyder of E.C. Reinauer & Sons reported that harvesting of potatoes should peak out within the next week as red and white spuds continue to move to the market.

"The potatoes are doing well now with the price around $10 per hundred," said Snyder.

SNYDER EXPLAINED that he expects onion harvesting to continue for another two to three weeks, depending on the weather.

"We don't actually know anything about how we've done until harvesting is concluded, but I believe the yields on onions will be down slightly," he commented.

Prices on the tear-bringing vegetables are currently in the $10-$12 range, a fact that prompts far more smiles than tears on the part of local growers.

Quarterly Sales Tax Reports Due By Local Retailers

AUSTIN—State Comptroller Bob Bullock said that Thursday, July 31 is the deadline for 225,000 retail businesses across the state to send in quarterly sales tax reports.

The state official recently raided several Northeast Texas businesses for failure to pay back sales taxes in an effort to clamp down delinquent accounts.

"Late reports are nothing but headaches for the taxpayer and for the Comptroller's Office," Bullock said. "I'd like to see every quarterly report filed on the deadline."

Reports due July 31 cover the April-May-June quarter. Forms for the reports were sent to all sales tax permit holders by Bullock's office in June.

On July 13, The Brand reported that trustees had approved a 23 per cent increase in taxes. One man appeared at the board meeting to protest the high increase. In the week following this action, a lot of folks have complained but I haven't heard many solutions.

I have to believe the men we elected to the school board are not too happy about paying higher taxes, either. There are some ways they could have trimmed the budget, but it's apparent there was no way they thought it could be done without harming the educational program.

If you have any good ideas on how to trim the budget, I'm sure the trustees would like to hear them. A public hearing on the school budget is scheduled Aug. 12.

Clete Corlis presented the retail business committee report and announced that merchants had joined together for a three-day "Old Fashioned Days" promotion July 17-19. He said purpose of the promotion was to help establish Hereford as more of a regional retail shopping center.

The chamber's next "Fun Breakfast" was scheduled for Aug. 5 in the high school cafeteria with Sugarland Mall merchants sponsoring the event. The board also set dates for the Teacher Appreciation Banquet, Aug. 28, and the All-Girl Rodeo for next year on May 14-16.

Miss Hereford, Monica Herring, took "good luck bags" to the state pageant and gave one to each of the Miss Texas contestants. Bill and Inez Albright, chaperones, reported the gifts, which had several samples of Hereford products were "a bit hit" with the girls.

The "good luck bags" also drew television notice when a Fort Worth station interviewed Miss Hereford and had her tell about the bags. "We have received glowing reports on Monica; she represented Hereford well at the pageant," Mrs. Nieman told directors.

All directors were present for the monthly meeting except Terry Caviness.

Newsman Explains TV Violence And News Ethics

"Violence and ethics in news media" was the topic for a talk by Phil Woodall, Amarillo tv newscaster, at the Hereford Lions Club meeting Wednesday at Civic Club Center.

Woodall, a newscaster for Channel 7, says the biggest gripe about television "seems to be the violence presented on news shows, and the violence, language and sex on some network shows." People, in general, want to see "blood and guts" on television, claims Woodall. "If people don't like what is shown, they can change the channel or turn off the set," pointed out the newscaster. "If a person is influenced to commit a crime from watching a tv show, then something is mentally wrong," asserted Woodall.

He said his station had received some complaints about showing injured or dead persons on newscasts. "Our policy is not to show film of a dead person unless the body is covered," he stated. He said the films of injured people are usually from a wide angle view, not close up. But, he contended, television ratings indicate that people want to see violence on film.

Woodall said the television station's goal in reporting news is "to be fair and report the facts." He added that newscasters like to report opposing views on controversial matters when possible. The speaker was introduced by Robert Mayfield, program chairman for the month.

A number of guests and prospective members were introduced at the club's regular luncheon meeting. President Weldon Dickson reminded members of the annual Lions Carnival, July 21-26. Lions were to start setting up booths this week.

Teacher To Attend Conference

Dorothy Prowell, homemaker teacher in the Hereford High School, will participate in the State In-service Conference for Homemaker Teachers to be held at the Statler Hilton Hotel, Dallas, July 28-August 1.

The conference will open with a Public Affairs Forum on current national and state policies affecting homemaker education in the local school district, said Mrs. Elizabeth F. Smith, State Director for Homemaker Education. Forum speakers will be Victor Van Hook, President of the American Vocational Association, Washington, D.C., and Representative Dan Kubiak, Rockdale, Texas House of Representatives.

The forum will continue with the exploration of "Economic Conditions-A Serious Concern for Homemaker Education" by Mrs. Mary A. Jolley, Director of Public Affairs, American Home Economics Association, Washington, D.C. Eleven concurrent sessions on Wednesday will provide an opportunity for in-depth study by homemaker teachers of relevant areas of instruction for today's lifestyles. The sessions will include Educating for Parenthood, Consumer Education, Nutrition, Humanizing Education, Coed Classes, Community Education, to name a few. According to Billie Chapman, Executive Director of the VHTAT, in these inservice training in these relevant today's-world topics keeps vocational homemaker teachers high on the list of the state's best informed educators. Special workshops will be held for teachers of Adults, Home Economics Cooperative Education, Pre-employment

Laboratory Programs, Coordinated Vocational-Academic Programs, and Home Economics for the Handicapped.

Exhibits of the latest equipment and teaching materials will be open to teachers Monday through Wednesday.

The Awards Banquet of the Vocational Homemaker Teachers Association Wednesday evening will honor Senator Bill Moore of Bryan and Senator Don Adams of Jasper; the Outstanding Administrator and the Outstanding Vocational Director in the State, both awardees to be announced. Also receiving awards for tenure will be 83 teachers of vocational homemaker education representing 1,745 years of service to Texas school children.

Representative Sarah Weddington, Texas House of Representatives, will address the Annual Meeting of the Association Thursday afternoon on laws affecting women and families.

More than 2000 teachers are expected to attend the week-long meetings, said Mrs. Billye D. Freeland, President of VHTAT.

Hereford Receives Sales Tax Rebate

Comptroller Bob Bullock sent checks totaling $11.4 million Tuesday to Texas towns and cities for their monthly July city sales tax payments.

The monthly payment for Hereford amounted to $10,980.67.

The total July payments were smaller than the June rebates, Bullock said, because the June payments included "clean-up" allocations of money carried over or coming in late from the last round of quarterly tax payments received from merchants.

"We have now refined our system such that not a penny of city sales tax money can stay in this office longer than 45 days before being sent back to the city," Bullock said. "This is a far cry and a grand improvement from the old quarterly system with its 60 and 90-day delays."

Bullock said when the monthly system was started that cities could expect two smaller payments followed by a third larger "clean-up" payment in each three month cycle.

During the first two months of the cycle—including this month—payments are not made to cities whose allocation is less than $500.

Never refuse to listen to advice, but only rarely follow it.

12 Rural Wrecks Reported In County

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 12 accidents on rural highways in Deaf Smith County during the month of June, 1975 according to Sergeant W.E. Wells, Highway Patrol supervisor of this area. These crashes resulted in no persons killed and 13 persons injured.

The rural traffic accident summary for this county during the first six months of 1975 shows a total of 48 accidents resulting in one person killed and 42 persons injured.

The rural traffic accident summary for the 60 counties of the Lubbock Department of Public Safety Region for June, 1975, shows a total of 572 accidents resulting in 25 persons killed and 355 persons injured as compared to June, 1974, with 466 accidents resulting in 19 persons killed and 261 persons injured. This was 106 more accidents, six more killed, and 94 more injured in 1975 at the same period of time.

The 25 traffic deaths for the month of June, 1975, occurred in the following counties: one each in Clay, Floyd, Garza, Wichita, Young; Armstrong, Childress, Collingsworth, Donley; Hardeman, Randall, and Roberts; two each in Carson, Cochran, and Lamb; and seven in Lubbock.

Director Explains Rules

Eligible persons should not let a lost birth certificate or marriage license discourage them from applying for veterans benefits, Jack Coker, Veterans Administration Regional Office Director, advised today.

Coker pointed out that for some time now, less formal proof of marriage or birth has been acceptable when this information is required to establish claims for higher benefits.

For example, a veteran's or widow's (or widower's) certified statement of marriage is sufficient for applications for compensation and education benefits for veterans, widows (widowers) and orphan children—provided neither veteran or spouse has been married before, and VA has no contradictory information on file.

Formerly, the agency required all statements of marriages and births to be supported by formalized documentary evidence.

A certified statement also is acceptable regarding the birth of a child of a veteran's marriage, and as proof of age and relationship, Coker said.

FFA Party Scheduled

An FFA swimming party will be held Tuesday, July 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the Country Club pool. All FFA members are invited. A $1 fee is required.

Members should notify an officer or advisor if they plan to attend.

Hereford, Texas is an Area Retail Trade Center!

For more than two years now, we've been campaigning to "Try Hereford First" in an effort to get us to patronize our own merchants and our own retail establishments. It appears that some progress is being achieved. More people are spending more money in Hereford. More folks are beginning to come to Hereford to shop instead of going greater distances to other trade centers.

This is a sign that we are realizing that we can obtain quality merchandise at home and that we benefit and support our community when we buy in Hereford.

But we have to advertise that we can get it in Hereford and that the price is competitive. And that's where Mr. Retailer needs to take the initiative. He has got to provide an atmosphere that strongly welcomes the hometown trade as well as those from out of town. His clerks must extend courtesy and helpfulness and his prices have got to be right.

We, consumers react in strange ways. If something is being sold ten cents cheaper, fifty miles away, we'll often drive those fifty miles and return, even though it cost sixteen cents a mile for the trip. It's also very necessary for Mr. Retailer to show a very positive attitude in an effort to satisfy the customer's desire. This requires some modest inventory of diversified stock and an almost magic ability and willingness to acquire the items requested.

It also requires a united effort among our local merchants—if you can't satisfy the customer at Park Plaza, send him to the Mall or Downtown; if he can't find what he wants Downtown, suggest he try Park Plaza or the Mall. This encourages him to spend his money in Hereford rather than inviting him to go out of town to shop.

Our larger firms and institutions are in a position to lead the way to increasing trade, by "Shopping Hereford First."

Remember, every dollar that is spent outside of our city, is a drain on our economy. Every dollar spent in Hereford boosts our economy. It's our community. Are you supporting local trade, Mr. and Mrs. Consumer? Working together it's amazing what we can accomplish; especially if we Huddle Huddle Huddle!

EXPLANATIONS ON INCREASE IN LOCAL TAXES FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Question: How much have local school taxes increased in recent years?

Answer: During the last eight years, since 1967, there has been only one tax increase which was 2.3 per cent. In spite of rising costs, the need for tax increases has been offset by growth and increased values—within the Hereford Independent School District.

Question: What is the reason for the tax increase for 1975?

Answer: The new state finance plan that discriminates against rural agricultural areas of Texas, combined with a decrease of almost $20 million in values from a loss of cattle in feedyards this year, has necessitated the tax increase.

Question: What effect will this have on the 1975-76 budget?

Answer: The total proposed budget for 1975-76, excluding salaries, is only 2.5 per cent above the 1974-75 expenditures. Utilities, along with transportation costs, are only two areas in which costs have at least doubled over the past two years.

Question: What changes have been made in state funding for public schools?

Answer: Legislation on school finance passed by the 64th session of the legislature has restructured funding from the state level, resulting in a larger contribution from local sources. Our local share of the state foundation program has increased from 20 per cent in 1974-75 to 30 per cent in 1975-76.

During the entire time the Texas Legislature was in session, your school officials attempted to inform the patrons of this school district of the disastrous effects of some legislative proposals on school finance, and informed our legislators that we preferred no new legislation at all rather than such proposals.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:
As the old school year 1974 has ended in the early months of 1975 and new schools and new school plans are being made I noticed things are being moved out of old Central and, it makes me wonder what is going to be done to protect and preserve and keep old Central as a monument to the efforts of the pioneer citizens of this part of the country in preparing a means to educate their children and prepare them for their turn to take over the management for the betterment of the future generations.

The old timers who can remember school days in 1/4 dugouts and ranch houses are getting less and days go by and pictures of those places are perhaps still more scarce and only lingers in the minds of those oldtimers but old Central if taken care of will stand as a tribute to the Pioneers of good old days, which were not always as good as that statement may sound.

I went to school in two ranch houses and two wooden structures that were built for the purpose. And as I have listened to the many poor excuses about the disadvantages in old Central during the last few years, these poor excuses are both amusing and disgusting to listen to.

It makes me think of the hard times these modern school moms are having driving air-conditioned cars and school buses, teaching in modern air-conditioned schools, and what an awful time they have had climbing those steps and those awful problems with dripping faucets. I am wondering how long they would have lasted if they would have had to ride horseback for six or eight miles in a cold winter day, or have had to build a fire with cow chips to warm a cold schoolhouse, or have had to carry water for drinking, or go out on the prairie with their schoolkids and some toe-sacks to pick up cowchips.

It makes me wonder how these modern generations can put up with the awful inconveniences they have to put up with, not only dripping faucets but the dangerous conditions of having to send children to Central in fair weather and still being so dangerous in fair weather old Central was used as a storm shelter during bad weather. Discontent can sure figure out many reasons for staying up with the Joneses. Can discontented people ever be satisfied?

I started this letter some weeks ago but decided not send it hoping people would figure out some way to preserve the old landmark. It makes me think of the old poem, "Woodmen spare that tree." But in last Sunday's Brand I see where it says the school board is still planning on destroying old Central.

Anything can be destroyed by neglect. A new building can be destroyed in short time. All the poor excuses for trying to get rid of Central are flimsy.

As for loose bricks that might fall on a child's head: there are no loose bricks. I walked all around the building this morning. Dripping faucets could be uncomfortable if they were dripping down our backs on a cold day, but that can be stopped.

Any fool can holler fire and cause trouble. No one wants to send their children where there is danger of fire but Central is no more a fire hazard than every home in town. The electric wiring may need changing and it may cost $20,000 to do it but what does it cost to wire new buildings?

What would a new building like Central cost to build today? A building that is good enough to be used as a storm shelter in a storm should be safe. In fair weather, there is no more substantial building in town than Central.

What if someone would start telling that the courthouse was a fire hazard? Would you suggest condemning it? Any fool can holler and destroy but it takes wisdom and knowhow to build and maintain. To destroy good property is not prosperity, it is sabotage.

Yours TRULY,
Oje. T. Larson

Dear Editor,

People seem to think you have to be crazy to come to the mental health center. I think a lot of people must be "crazy," in the sense of ignorance, not to come. There is a widespread myth about "mental illness"-it is not an illness in the sense that someone contracts polio, malaria, or the flu.

So called "mental illness" actually represents a lack of integration by the person-he is afraid and unwilling to be the part he disowns, due to social constraints that he was taught from birth by his family and society. So he assumes a role and plays games with himself and others to protect the real self that he harbors with disgust.

If one plays the game of trying to be something else than what one is long enough, it could result in a physical illness, such as an ulcer, migraine headache, hypertension, and numerous other physical ailments. It's funny how people will respond to physical ailments by rushing off to see a doctor, but when there is emotional pain that is causing discomfort without any relief, most people dismiss it as a part of life that includes periodic suffering.

Most emotional pain is considered as something needed to be treated by a doctor, who can provide pills to alleviate the pain, rather than the individual confronting it himself. Recent research shows that doctors find the majority of discomfort that they see, to be self-induced by the patients themselves, not by an actual physical cause.

So if things are not going right for you, and your problems no longer have answers, call 364-6111 for an appointment. Hereford Mental Health Center, 625 East 1st.

Al DesMariseau, M.S.
Director, Hereford Mb-Mr Center

Dear Editor,

To all the people of Hereford, I want to say thank-you for all that you have done. Also thanks to those who sent letters, gifts, and flowers while I was in Ft. Worth. It was a week of education, fun and excitement.

The pageant officials and people of Ft. Worth were most gracious and helpful to each girl. The girls and hostesses were impressed by the backing and support of the "Miss Hereford" as I was equally proud to be from the Hustlin' town of Hereford.

Please encourage your daughters and friends to enter the "Miss Hereford" pageant, for it will be the most rewarding experience of their lives.

A special thanks to the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce for sponsoring me and to Inez and Bill Albright for a superb job as my manager and official chaperone.

Being "Miss Hereford" is not only a title, but also the beginning of lasting friendships and memories.

Sincerely,
Monica Herring

Recession Strikes Young Texans

By Lloyd Bentsen

United States Senator

Young Americans among hardest hit by recession

School has been out for several weeks now. And for thousands of young people in Texas, millions across the country, the yearly ritual of finding a summer job is threatening to become an exercise in helpless frustration.

Even before school let out, teenagers were among the hardest hit by the widespread joblessness afflicting the nation. Some 25 per cent of the young people between the ages of sixteen and nineteen are unemployed.

Now that we're well into summer, these figures have undoubtedly soared.

How do you explain this to the youth of our country? Time after time, in recent years, young people have been urged to work within the system. But what happens when a young American turns to the system seeking a job and doesn't find it. What happens when a young American is told that he or she must go on welfare, that they cannot be productive members of the society.

We simply can't allow this sort of disenchantment.

Fortunately, relief for many of our young jobseekers is on the way. Despite basic differences in the economic policies of the President and Congress, differences between Republicans and Democrats, between conservatives and liberals, agreement does exist on the need for summer youth employment. This agreement recently achieved significant results.

Congress, President work together for summer jobs program

The situation was this. Congress has passed emergency employment legislation designed to provide relief for some of the eight and a half million Americans presently out of work. The President felt that this was not the answer to the nation's economic problems, and vetoed the bill.

A section providing summer jobs for 840,000 young Americans was among the programs that went down the drain.

This was not anybody's intent. Not of Congress—and not of the President.

Recognizing this, I introduced legislation separating the youth employment section from the broader employment bill rejected by the President. Congress swiftly approved it. And, I'm pleased to report, the President just as quickly signed it into law.

This is clearly an instance where larger policy differences between Congress and the Administration were shelved in order to cooperate on those matters where agreement can be found. Our younger citizens were in need of help, and everyone agreed on the need to provide it.

As a society we have always valued the summer work experience for young people. It has meant that city teenagers restlessly walking the streets of Houston and Dallas are offered an alternative to idleness, vandalism or violence. It has meant that the younger people of smaller towns like Mount Pleasant and Baytown have a chance to learn and master skills that will enhance their prospects for future employment.

Cooperation nets jobs for thousands of young Texans

It has, in short, represented a sound investment in one of this country's most precious resources—our sons and daughters.

My legislation will put over 42,000 young Texans to work this summer. For some, it means extra dollars for their families, who have trouble making ends meet even in the best of times. For others, it means a chance to continue their education when school picks up again in the fall.

It cannot be denied that grave differences still exist between the President's approach to economic difficulties, and the approach favored by others, including many members of Congress. Fortunately, these disagreements do not represent an insurmountable obstacle.

Fortunately, they do not prevent us from working together on an effort we can all agree on.

That effort is already putting hundreds of thousands of young Texans and other Americans to work this summer.

Amarillo Man Does Stunts

"I think Dallas will be a major film capital in a few years. Hollywood is too congested. Texas offers every kind of terrain necessary for an action-packed movie...mountain, desert, swamps. One can already see a trend: 'The Getaway,' 'The Great Waldo Pepper' and 'Bonnie and Clyde' were all filmed in Texas."

That's a prognosis of Mike Shaks, 24, a former Amarilloan who has been performing stunt work in his first movie, "Logan's Run," in Dallas.

Mike's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Shaks, live at 5000 S. Fannin in Amarillo. Mike's dad is the Amarillo District safety coordinator of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

The senior Shaks has always stressed safety to his only son, and safety is always on Mike's mind when he performs various daredevilish acts as a stuntman.

One stunt by Shaks that will probably be edited into "Logan's Run" is a fall from the third story of the Zale Building, one of the film locations.

Mike is looking forward to falling from a 44-foot cliff astride a horse for the film

"Tiburón Treasure" at the end of the summer.

He expects to be in the stuntman business for about five more years. "It is not easy work, and I wouldn't recommend the job to anyone unskilled in gymnastics," he recently told a Denton newspaper.

The 1974 graduate of North Texas State University became interested in gymnastics when he was 8 years old. He began his gymnastics career at the Maverick Boy's Club in Amarillo, concentrating on tumbling and trampolines. "At the time, our club was considered one of the best gymnastics teams in the nation."

The stuntman profession demands that Shaks be in top physical shape. He trains by running two miles every day and by working out on the trampoline two or three times a week.

His training program also includes agility drills, work on a mini-tramp and advanced horse falls. His only scar, so far, from stunt work is a cut lip he received after being thrown off a horse. By the way, he enjoys hang gliding.

The Abundant Life

Less Complaining

By BOB WEAR

Complaining is quite common, and most of us do some of it. Some of this may serve as a kind of safety valve, but it can easily become a hurtful habit. It will always be harmful to the people who hear it.

Some complaining may be justified, if it is done in the atmosphere of recognizable possibilities for correction and improvement. It must never be an end in itself, and must be used as the means toward a thoroughly justified end. It will need to be part of the constructive approach to problems and situations, and must be used sparingly.

If complaining cannot be made part of the constructive approach of living, there is no proper place for it. Complaining just to be "complaining" is a kind of short circuit of life, because it is a waste of the vital forces of life.

WE HEAR MUCH "COMPLAINING", and that is all it is. There are no suggestions for correction, for improvement, or for betterment. This "complaining" is not justified, and cannot be justified. It adds to the erosiveness of human thought and action. There is nothing desirable or helpful about it.

The complainer and all who may have listened are worse off afterward.

"We have no more right to put our discordant states of mind into the lives of those around us and rob them of their sunshine and brightness than we have to enter their houses and steal their silverware." - J. Seton.

Complaining often begets "complaining". If we are unfortunate enough to hear very much complaining, we must be extra careful; or we will be complaining, too. This means that we will have to exert special effort and wisdom to refrain from "complaining", and this is just exactly what we must do.

A CLIMATE OF COMPLAINING is not suitable for satisfactory living. The common sense way is in solving problems which are solvable, and overcoming difficulties we can overcome. Then, we must live with the problems and difficulties which remain; and do so with "less complaining".

Murmuring is one form of "complaining", and may be, in some ways, the worst one of all.

It is "a half-suppressed or muttered complaint", and is certainly no part of any effort to make improvement or to accomplish anything else constructive.

This kind of "complaining" is extremely detrimental to us, and, if it becomes habitual; happy associations with our fellowmen are almost impossible.

"Less complaining" is one of our greatest needs. Complaining has a strange way of enlarging real problems and difficulties, and this is one thing we must avoid. It also causes the deterioration of morale, and feeds discouragement.

"Complaining" is, in all ways, a hindrance to our living effectiveness. The solution is "less complaining".

Just the Place

"Found a new house yet?"

"We've stopped looking. After reading the appraiser's description of the one we have, it seemed to be just the place we were looking for."

Teachers Honor Local Instructor

Dorothy Prowell of Hereford High School will be honored by the Vocational Homemaking Teachers Association of Texas on July 30 for her service to the teaching profession. A long-time member of VHTAT, Mrs. Prowell is a teacher of Vocational Homemaking Education in the Hereford Senior High School. The award will be presented by George Guthrie, Chairman of the Vocational Committee, State Board of Education, at the Annual Banquet of the VHTAT to be held at the Statler Hilton Hotel, Dallas.

Mrs. Prowell will participate in a week-long inservice conference July 28-August 1 for professional development of Vocational Homemaking Teachers. The conference, conducted by the Homemaking Education Division, Texas Education Agency, will include special interest sessions on Consumer Education, Educating for Parenthood, Nutrition, Involvement Strategies, Communication Skills, FHA, Humanizing Education, Co-ed Classes, Homemaking Education in the Quarter System, and Community Education.

According to Mrs. Bilye Frelsland, of El Paso, President of the VHTAT, more than 2900 teachers are expected to attend the conference.

Seed Company Will Act As Treater

George Warner Seed Co., Inc., Hereford, Tex., has been re-appointed an Authorized VITAVAX 200 Seed Treater for wheat, barley and oats by Gustafson, Inc. of Hopkins, Minn., and Uniroyal Chemical of Naugatuck, Conn.

Last year George Warner Seed Co. treated over 11,000 bushels of wheat and barley seed with VITAVAX 200 for area growers.

VITAVAX 200 seed treatment contains Thiram, a well known seed protectant, and VITAVAX, a systemic fungicide developed by Uniroyal which has been widely used in Canada, the United Kingdom, France and Denmark.

The Thiram works to protect the seed coat from seedling rot and blights while the VITAVAX works systemically inside the seed, protecting the embryo against loose smut and seedling damp-off. Also, VITAVAX has consistently been proven to promote stronger, more vigorous root growth, greater nitrogen metabolism and quicker emergence in wheat.

Available only from commercial seed processors or as a custom applied treatment from selected seed treaters, VITAVAX 200 is labeled by the federal government for use on all wheat and barley seed and by the state of Texas for use on oats. Naturally, no treated seed should be used for food, feed or oil purposes.

Gustafson, Inc. of Hopkins, Minn., and Dallas, Texas, is the distributor of VITAVAX 200.

Automobile insurance premiums are plenty high now, but you can expect them to climb another 10 per cent to 12 per cent, all because of a change in the legal rules covering negligence claims in the nation's two largest states in population.

New York and California have redefined negligence in industrial accidents, product safety cases and those automobile cases that are too large and too serious to be covered by the new no-fault insurance. It used to be that under the old common-law rule of "contributory negligence," you won all or nothing. An injured plaintiff couldn't collect a dime if his own negligence contributed in any way to the accident. For instance, if an automobile accident victim was speeding at the time of a crash, he was considered to have contributed to the accident, and the speeding driver could not collect even if the other driver was plainly at fault.

New courts in various states are beginning to rewrite the rules by using a doctrine of "comparative negligence" which says that even if an injured plaintiff was partially at fault, he or she could recover something.

Because the new rule gives plaintiffs a better break, businesses and insurance companies are bracing for a flood of litigation and are preparing to settle a lot more cases out of court. They also anticipate having to pay out a lot more in settling cases out of court because of the improved chances of a plaintiff bringing a suit to court and getting a jury award in a personal injury case.

However, comparative negligence rules do not necessarily favor just the plaintiff because the rules do a lot more for protecting corporations and insurance companies by requiring jury consideration of the plaintiff's negligence in their verdicts.

Where are the trade winds found? Why are they called the trade winds?

The trade winds—long known by sailors who placed their trust in sails to circle the globe—are found above the Equator to about 30 degrees latitude.

The south trade winds are those below the Equator and the north trade winds above. They tend to blow out of the east toward the west, especially nearer the Equator. They become more southerly in origin nearer 30 degrees north and south.

Further north, above the north trades, and south, below the south trades, blow the westerlies. They come out of the west and blow to the east, and are found to about 60 degrees north and south. In the north they really come from the southwest and blow slightly north and east.

In the south, they really come from the northwest and blow slightly south and east.

Adrian Gets New Postal Building

The U.S. Postal Service recently advertised for suitable sites for new post office buildings in the Texas Panhandle towns of Adrian and LeFors, C.B. Boler, manager, Oklahoma Postal District, said here.

In both towns the sites needed should have dimensions of 100 feet by 125 feet, or a total of 12,500 sq. ft., and should be located in or adjacent to the business district.

Site offers should be made not later than Aug. 11 to the Oklahoma City Postal District office, 4545 Lincoln Blvd., OK.

Students May Get Big Federal Grants

Students looking for ways to finance their education after high school (and how many aren't these days?) may be able to receive up to $1,400 a year in Federal grants in time for the next school year.

Under the Basic Educational Opportunity Grants (Basic Grants) program sponsored by HEW's Office of Education, eligible students may be awarded anywhere from $300 to $1,400 a year to help meet their educational expenses. The U.S. Government does not require repayment of such awards.

Students who have begun their post high school education after April, 1973, and attend at least half-time can qualify. They may attend any one of the over 5,000 eligible schools.

These include not only traditional colleges and universities, but also vocational, technical or business schools, and hospital schools of nursing.

To apply for a Basic Grant a student must first complete and submit an "Application for Determination of Basic Grant Eligibility" for the 1975-76 academic year. These forms are available from high schools, colleges, libraries, or by writing Basic Grants, P.O. Box 94, Washington, D.C. 20044.

Within 4 to 6 weeks the applicant will receive a "Student Eligibility Report", which tells whether the student has qualified. When the report is received, it must be submitted to the financial aid officer at the school in which the student is interested in enrolling. The financial aid officer will then calculate the amount of the Basic Grant award.

A Basic Grant may not cover more than one-half of the total cost of education. This includes tuition, fees, room and board, books, supplies, and miscellaneous expenses.

In addition to qualifying for a Basic Grant, a student may also be eligible to receive any one of four other financial aid programs sponsored by the Office of Education. The financial aid officer is the best source in checking out these other forms of aid.

Info On Retirement Act

Do you have a question about the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974?

If you do, you might want a copy of the U.S. Labor Department's new publication entitled "Often-Asked Questions About the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974."

The 28-page pamphlet, geared to answer questions of workers, employers and pension plan administrators affected by the pension reform law enacted last fall, explains the act's provisions in simple non-technical language.

It includes the topics of plans covered, fiduciary standards, reporting and disclosure requirements, participation, vesting and funding rules, pension plan termination insurance, widow-widowers' benefit, enforcement and effective dates. There is also a section on what the act does not

What Do You Read?

The television age has added hours to the time most Americans watch films and reduced the time many read. Part of the result can be seen in the failure of certain once-popular magazines in recent years.

Newspapers and books have not been adversely affected; book publishing has enjoyed good health in recent years and new newspapers continue to spring up, though many are shopping guides or local papers. In metropolitan areas competition has become so keen landmarks have failed or been forced into mergers.

Yet reading remains, despite television, the greatest pleasure and source of information to many millions. It is a pastime one can enjoy when and where he or she wishes. The selection of reading material, also, is practically unlimited.

That being true, the reading public is to be encouraged to read worthwhile books. The recent trend toward permissiveness means almost anything can be printed today. As a result, many have turned to thrills, sex and formerly-banned fare as a steady reading diet.

That is their privilege but for all who wish to improve their minds and increase their knowledge, to become more interesting and informed citizens, reading should include some non-fiction every month, which can be equally exciting and entertaining reading, the best reading there is.

The Inflation Rate

The annual rate of inflation in the United States is now down to six per cent. Some government experts think it will decline to five per cent by the end of the year.

If that happens, and if the economy is clearly on the upturn by the end of the year, it will be good news for Americans—and no doubt the chance of this has been one of the forces fueling the stock market.

An inflation rate of five per cent is one the nation can easily live with, and is lower than that in many other western democracies.

The political implications of a five per cent inflation rate and an economic upturn are considerable. While it's not yet time to conclude President Ford will be reelected next year, as some in the White House reportedly believe, it's true that present economic indicators are encouraging to the President—and his political hopes.

The Work Ethic

One of the values making the United States the strongest country in the world both financially and militarily was the American work ethic.

Simply defined, that was, and is, the idea that hard work is necessary in life (and pleasing to God) and that a good day's work should be rendered for a day's pay.

Unfortunately, this conscientious, moral philosophy has in recent years been ridiculed. While there's justification for criticism of the fast, commercial pace of American life, the work ethic is not to be confused with today's rat-race pace of living.

If too many conclude the desirable way of life is to dodge work, get all they can for as little work as possible, the great age of this country will have passed.

The Brand Files

ONE YEAR AGO

Death cut a swath through Hereford when one Hereford man and three former Hereford residents died in two separate traffic accidents, one in town and one eight miles north of Dawn. Roger Boydston, Joel Downey, his wife, Ruth Downey, and their eight-month-old son, Paul, all perished in the accidents... A Hereford fireman, Onias Carroll, retired from the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department after 50 years of service. Carroll received a gold watch as a symbol of his service... Hereford realtors attended a seminar in Amarillo which considered the financing, purchasing and remodeling of homes for persons with low incomes... C.L. Cooke, West Texas Chamber of Commerce vice president, said here that Texas Tourism is a "sleeping giant whose potential has not been fully tapped"... Sheriff Travis McPherson said that the Deaf Smith County Jail, built in 1869, is a good jail, but could use some improvements, such as better toilet facilities and more space...

FIVE YEARS AGO

The local lettuce industry was in the middle of a general decline. At one time Hereford had dreamed of becoming the center of the largest lettuce-growing area in the United States, but that dream had not become a reality. Cattle feeding was overshadowing the lettuce industry. Las Cruces was bringing in much lettuce to their area, producing strong competition for local lettuce. Lettuce prices had dropped drastically because of market changes and bad weather... A big problem faced by Deaf Smith County Hospital was charity cases. The hospital had averaged having about $20,000 a month lost during the first five months of 1970 because of people unable to pay... Almost half of the $20,000 needed to establish a Day Care center here had been collected, and the drive was continuing... The annual Lions Club Carnival was in its 34th year... Members of the Beautification Committee of the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce dedicated an official Texas Historical Marker for "Windmill Park" here...

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

A gale opening was planned for Harrison Highway in Rosedale, N.M. Many residents of Hereford traveled to Rosedale for the grand opening... The Korean War was in the headlines, and Lt. Roger Hartman, who had been a prisoner of war during World War II, was reported missing in action in Korea... More than five inches of rain soaked Hereford, damaging homes, washing out pavement, and knocking out utilities, and considerable hail hurt row crops in the Hereford area... Deaf Smith County voters were discussing the upcoming Democratic Primary. The most interest in the primary was generated by the races for County Commissioner, County Judge, and Democratic nominee for Congress... Congressman Ben Gull was hoping that price controls could be avoided, but stated that the war might make them necessary...

FIFTY YEARS AGO

The late Mayor of Hereford, William M. Knight, had specified in his will that his large collection of classic books be left to the Hereford Library... A long drought was broken by what was described as a "splendid" rain, which practically insured fine crops of feed and cotton... The Progressive Caning Club opened up for business... A poultry calling demonstration drew a large crowd... A Court of Honor, consisting of A.M. Jones, J.E. Hill, C.C. Acker, C.W. Humble, and E.S. Ireland was established for the local Boy Scouts organization...

Talk of Texas

By Jack Maguire

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY—Old-timers in Hardin County still remember the day the earth fell in. And some will argue that it was the devil's way of getting even with people for stealing fuel from his fires.

Scientists agree, in part, with this version of why the earth around Sour Lake suddenly began to sink on October 27, 1929. But they blame man, not the devil. So much oil had been taken out of the earth, geologists said, that a huge cavity was created underground. The topsoil and upper crust suddenly had no place to go but down.

Within three days, 15 acres of valuable oil land had sunk into a depression that was 160 feet deep at its center. A total of 35 producing oil wells were knocked out. Tubing in every well within 1,500 feet of the sinkhole was either broken or bent. Today the area is covered by a body of water known, appropriately, as Cavity Lake.

The Sour Lake sinkhole attracted lots of publicity, but it wasn't the first such incident in Texas. Scientists at San Antonio's Southwest Research Institute say it won't be the last, either. In fact, they have discovered that 15 per cent of all U.S. land area is subject to such sinkings.

Sinkings occur in limestone regions where the rock has been leached out in honeycombs and filled with soil which floats on underground water or oil. When the subterranean water level is lowered, the pressure of the soil cracks the thin rock and the earth literally falls into the hole.

TEXAS GOES TO TOWN—Only three states—New York, California and Illinois—have more citizens living in urban areas than does Texas.

In 1975, 80 per cent of all Texans live in cities and towns. Only 20 years ago, two thirds of the citizens of Texas lived in rural areas.

Not everybody has left the farm or ranch, though. The rural population of Texas still is larger than the total number of residents in 23 other states.

YOU MAY WANT TO KNOW—That the Margarita, that popular drink made with tequila, triple sec and lime juice, was invented by an El Paso truck driver.

Pancho Morales says he invented the drink accidentally when he was tending bar in Juarez, Mexico, in 1942. A customer ordered a Magnolia, which Morales did not know how to mix, but which he thought contained lime, triple sec and whiskey. He put together four parts of tequila, one part triple sec (or cointreau) and the juice of a lime and served it as a "Magnolia."

The customer liked it even better than a Magnolia and ordered another. Others tried it, liked it and a new drink was born.

PAY AS YOU GO—Selma, Bexar County Village of 1,600, has no local taxes and doesn't plan to impose any. In fact, the municipal treasury is running over with money.

Selma collects nearly twice the revenue it needs from traffic tickets issued to speeders along Interstate 35.

Last year, Selma's four policemen wrote enough tickets to produce $104,000 in fines. The town's total annual operating budget is only $55,000.

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Bootleg Corner discusses economic theory this week, sort of.

Dear editor:

You take a man like Benjamin Franklin, how was he to know 200 years ago that his notions about thrift would eventually be bad for the economy? That "a penny saved is a penny earned" is a theory that produces a nose-dive in the Gross National Product?

You see, according to an article I read last night, economists have been cheered because consumers, after holding back for three months, have now gone forward to buying more on credit. The Federal

Shades Of Sharpstown

"Me and My Shadow," may be the tune sung for sometime to come for those who weathered the storms of the Sharpstown State Bank scandal in 1972, when a refacing of most of the state government commenced. Those still in office from the elections following the discovery of the corruption, may never be able to get rid of shadows of the scandal as long as they are politically active.

Just like the Watergate affair and the Chappadick incident that plagues Senator Ted Kennedy, the Sharpstown mess is closely trailing such elites as State Treasurer Jesse James with some help from his political foes. James nearly was busted in the 1974 elections when ex-gubernatorial candidate Donald Yarbrough of Houston gained almost 45 per cent of the state vote.

In a recent controversy, James has arisen again as the brunt for attacks by Yarbrough. It involves a bank application for the community of Manor, near Austin, for which Yarbrough was the attorney acting in behalf of the bank incorporators. The charter application was recently denied by the state banking board, of which James is an ex-officio member.

The people of Manor have no local bank and now must continue to travel 20 miles round trip in order to deposit and withdraw funds. Yarbrough claims that the town is in the hub of a rapidly developing area which needs a bank especially for a local school district with an approximate budget of $750,000.

He says in a lengthy news release sent out this week, that "this isn't a political announcement," even though he devotes a page's worth to berating James and bringing up all the election rhetoric used in the last election. Among the cuts at James are, "the worst state treasurer's office in the United States, a taxpayer's nightmare of waste and inefficiency, and...the archaic money-management system of the state government and Jesse James' 1941-style political operation of the Texas treasury."

James is most pointedly tied to the Sharpstown case, which Yarbrough claims provided his opponent $350,000 in profits through a real estate deal financed with the banks money. Also, volumes of state funds were being pumped into the bank by James, a member of the banking board when the Sharpstown charter was granted.

The attacks are voiced according to Yarbrough as a private citizen. But the recent trend is to campaign hard first and then make last minute announcements of candidacy intentions. Whether Yarbrough has foundation for his attacks or not (which I feel he does), the allegations he makes should be based more on gathered fact rather than on his quickly drawn conclusion that the bank charter denial was politically motivated.

The faults extend from both sides and even Yarbrough was skeptical that Texas editors might not open his letter since he didn't identify himself right off with a return address on the outside of the envelope. Once opened, however, the material proved interesting.

Shave Anyone?

A recent survey showed few American men now stop by the barbershop for a shave. The reason? Barber shops these days charge as much as $3.00 or more for a shave.

The electric shave costs only pennies, is fast, and is done conveniently at home. So the old, nostalgic tradition of a lather shave is going by the boards.

And men needn't worry so much these days about sneezing with a face full of suds—and a straight-edged razor among them.

Ashe At Wimbledon

Seldom has a championship tennis match produced more interest, and gratification, than the recent men's singles at Wimbledon—the most prestigious of the world's tennis tournaments.

The first black ever to win, and an American, Arthur Ashe, defeated Jimmy Connors with surprising ease, in four sets. And for America it was good news. Ashe is a good representative of the United States. He is a sportsman, with manners of a gentleman.

Too many Americans of late, including Bobby Fischer in chess, and Jimmy Connors and Billie King in tennis, have turned millions sour on America with their brah, pushy aggressiveness.

Sportsmanship, a proper degree of modesty, and good manners are all the proper credentials of champions. Sometimes those without those qualities become champions. Often they're the best. But it's more satisfying when the best is also a champion in court behavior and good manners.

all the time, is lighting the path toward economic recovery, and coming along with flashlights of their own are state and city and county governments. Take New York City for example. Clearly it has taken the load in pushing for a healthier economy.

I feel sorry for Benjamin Franklin, but you've got to remember he had no way, looking 200 years down the road through those primitive spectacles he wore, to see that a solvent man is a road-block to economic recovery, that refusing to spend actually is sabotaging the economic machinery.

But he was a smart man, he could adapt to change and new ideas, and if he were around today no doubt would be saying "a penny saved is a monkey wrench thrown."

By the way, do you sell subscriptions to the Hereford Brand on credit? Aren't you in favor of whipping the recession?

SPORTS

Baseball Is Spirited Here

The Hereford boys Pony League All-Stars were victorious by a 6-5 score on their playoff game in Lubbock Thursday night, and played again last night in Lubbock at 6 p.m., but the Bronco League all-star team tasted bitter defeat.

The boys Bronco League all-star team fell just short of winning, but lost 8-5 to Altus in their playoff game Thursday night, and then were blanked 12-0 Friday night.

Mickey Bishop, one of the all-star coaches, naturally seemed disappointed, but expressed pride in his team's spirited attempt to win, saying "Our kids played their hearts out, but Altus was just too tough."

Bishop said the right-handed

Altus ace who shut the Bronco team out Friday night was the same pitcher who beat the Hereford Broncos in 1974. "He's real good," Bishop said.

The Bronco coach went on to say he thinks Altus will do well in the next stage of playoff action, to be conducted in Oklahoma City.

John Bunch, one of the boys Pony League coaches, said that the Pony League team from Hereford "came from behind to win" in Lubbock Thursday night. "We rallied from a 4-1 deficit in the fifth inning," he said.

Skiing Has Simple Rules

At this time of the year, water skiers are making their impact on lakes all over Texas.

Joel Block of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Water Safety Section warns: "Too often water skiers ignore or do not know the correct and safe methods of water skiing and become accident statistics."

"As spectacular as skiing may appear," said Block, "it is one of the easiest sports to learn. Many neophyte water skiers, especially children, can easily master the fundamentals within an hour."

If you've never been up on a pair of skis before, it's a good idea to take lessons from an instructor or an experienced skier to learn the correct and safe methods. This can be very important, because bad habits once learned are difficult to correct.

Before you hit the water, you'll probably find yourself on the beach learning such things as required equipment, tightness of your ski binders, how to hold the tow line, how to get up and how to stay up.

It may take a number of attempts to get up and moving on skis, but once you have done it, it is relatively easy to remain standing while gliding over the water. Points to remember which will add to your ease and enjoyment are:

1. Try to relax. Holding the towline too tightly and becoming tense are bad habits. Handle-grip tension has a way of transmitting itself to your legs, back and thigh muscles. A relaxed skier learns faster and takes fewer spills.

2. Fight off that fall. At least half the falls a beginning skier takes needn't happen at all. Too often, a skier feels that a fall is inevitable and simply resigns himself to a dunking.

3. If you must fall, don't fall forward. Lean to the side or back before you release the towline. In this way, you fall in the direction of the lean. As you fall, cover your face with your forearms to cushion the impact and protect your face. Don't attempt to dive as you fall.

4. When you have recovered from a fall, give a signal by clapping your hands over your head to tell your boat operator or observer that you are all right. From that time until you are picked up in the boat or are skiing again, keep a ski lifted vertically out of the water to make it easy for you to be seen by your own boat and others.

Gotcha'

Hereford All-Star third baseman Robert Herrera gets the drop on an Altus base runner during the first game of the Bronco League playoffs Thursday night. Good baseball action marked Thursday night's game as Hereford mounted a rally in the late going but came up on the short end of the 8-5 score.

Joys Of Bullfrogging Depicted In Magazine

A gourmet dish that commands a fancy price in restaurants is available to Texans much of the year, with a certain amount of effort and a lot of fun.

"Bullfroggin'" by A.E. Walters III, an article in the June issue of TEXAS PARKS AND WILDLIFE Magazine, talks about the life history of a delectable amphibian and gives useful advice on how to go after them.

Attempts have been made to farm bullfrogs for the commercial market, the author says, but the most effective and popular way of collecting them is still the old-fashioned method of "gigging."

There is a continuous open season on bullfrogs in Texas, but most hunters begin the frog season on a warm summer night in June or July, when the water becomes suitable for wading.

The author describes the types of gigs used, and the other equipment required. Then "You need only find a likely body of water and await sundown."

Approaching the frogs by boat or wading gets better results, then in areas infrequently "frogged" it is a matter of steadily shining a light and easing slowly toward a frog before attacking. More heavily hunted waters require a bit more patience in the stalking.

In northern parts of their range bullfrogs hibernate, but in Texas they are only somewhat dormant in permanent deep pools they see, out in the winter. With spring they become very active around creeks, streams and other bodies of water. Hunting them can provide many an exciting night of sport as well as the bonus of delicious eating.

The majority of edible flesh is on the rear legs but many people utilize the entire body, except the head. The magazine also includes two typical bullfrog recipes.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Magazine regularly offers expert information of prime interest to hunters, fishermen, conservationists and all lovers of the outdoors. Subscriptions, including tax, are available at $3.15 for one year, $5.25 for two years. Send check or money order to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, John H. Reagan Bldg., Austin, Texas 78701.

Parker Presents Seminar

Ewell Parker, winner of virtually every bass fishing championship in the Texas Panhandle, conducted a seminar on topwater bass fishing Tuesday night at the Bull Barn.

Proceeds from the seminar went to the Deaf Smith County 4-H teen leaders.

Jerry Roberts was the winner of a fishing reel presented as a door prize by Gibsons of Hereford and R.V. Lunday was named as the winner of a guided fishing trip to Greenbelt Lake. Parker explained basic equipment of a bass boat, using his own boat as an illustration. He pointed out that most modern bass boats cost as much as a new car.

The Panhandle fisherman then explained lure casting tactics and told the audience of about 40 persons that they should work bass cover thoroughly with many types and colors of lures, and should vary their methods of presenting the lures.

Following question and answer sessions, Parker illustrated his talk with a film entitled "Topwater Bass Fishing."

TENNIS

By Pete Fritchie

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Tennis buffs are still analyzing the upset of Jimmy Connors by Arthur Ashe at Wimbledon. At one point in the match Connors seemed to have turned things around.

Ashe had won the first two sets but lost a spine tingling third set that went into extra games. Jimmy won the "must" set and then pulled ahead 3-0 in the fourth. That, to most tennis fans, evened the match, because with a 3-0 lead, the fourth set seemed sure to go to Connors.

Since Connors had escaped from the brink of disaster, the dramatic turnaround had given momentum to the young, defending Wimbledon champion. Ashe was not under pressure and could have been worried by having let the third set slip away.

But at 3-0 it was Connors who collapsed. And it was Connors's mistake, as much as Ashe's play, which lost him the fourth set, 6-4. He let his serve get away several times and his returns of Ashe's serves were gambles which went out surprisingly often.

What caused the usually-cocky Connors to blow the fourth set? Was it that he was suing Ashe in court and felt guilty or embarrassed? Or was it that this made Ashe much more determined to teach the young Connors a lesson?

TSTI Offers Programs

Veterans benefits and financial aid are available at Texas State Technical Institute, Amarillo, for qualifying students.

Applications for assistance through veterans funds should be made at least six weeks prior to enrollment, and for other funding, such as Basic Educational Opportunity Grant, at least four weeks in advance, according to Miss Carolyn Keigh, director of counseling and guidance at State Tech.

It is especially important, Miss Keigh points out, for veterans to make application early in order for funds to be available for tuition, fees and other initial expenses at the beginning of the Fall quarter, September 3.

Mid-Continent Campus of Texas State Technical Institute has housing accommodations for single students, married couples, and students with families. Meal services are offered in a variety of plans. Recreational facilities include a fully equipped gymnasium, tennis courts, softball and football fields, rodeo arena, and swimming pool.

Sixteen programs are offered this Fall, several of which have open entry, multiple exit and individualized, self-paced instruction. Registration fees are $5 per quarter, and classes are held year-round, Monday through Friday, from 7:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

It is possible for students to attend classes regularly and still hold fulltime and parttime jobs, Miss Keigh says. Programs vary in length from nine months (three quarters) to 18 months (six quarters). Associate degrees are earned upon completion of the six-quarter technology courses, and diplomas and certificates are presented upon completion of the skill courses.

Miss Keigh states that according to the Texas Advisory Council for Technical Vocational Education, 80 per cent of the jobs in industry that are not filled are in the vocational-technical area. Graduation from State Tech at Mid-Continent is accompanied by almost 100 per cent job placement.

Following are the programs to be offered this fall: Auto Body Repair, Aircraft Mechanics, Boot and Shoe Operations, Commercial Art in Advertising, Construction Technology, Cosmetology, Drafting and Design Technology, Electronics Systems Technology, Interior Design Technology.

Also, Livestock and Ranch Operations, Meat Processing and Marketing, Mechanics Technology, Printing Technology, Saddle and Tack Making, Technical Office Training, and Welding and Fabrication.

Nuptials Solemnized In Fort Worth Chapel

Miss Cindy K. Burton of Fort Worth and Paul E. Loerwald of 224 Star shared marriage vows Saturday evening before an altar draped with greenery and flowers in Saint Andrews Episcopal Church, Fort Worth.

Officiating at the candlelight ceremony was the Rev. John W. Hildebrand, pastor.

The bride, who will be employed this fall by Hereford Independent School District, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Mitchell of Fort Worth and Mr. and Mrs. O.A. Burton of Iran. Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Loerwald of 224 Star are parents of the bridegroom, who is currently employed by Poarch Brothers.

Flanking the sanctuary altar were twin candelabra braided with greenery. The center bouquet was formed of yellow and apricot colored carnations.

Mrs. Kathy Wesson served her sister as matron of honor. Other attendants in the processional included Mrs. Janna Hall of Dallas, Mrs. Kay Bourland of Fort Worth, Miss Sherri Soraby of Houston and Mrs. Lillie Dickerson of Nederland.

Santry Rush assisted the bridegroom as best man with additional groomsmen being Jim Loerwald of San Antonio.

Danny Loerwald of Hurst, David Loerwald and Steve Loerwald, both of Hereford.

Appearing as flower girl was Denise Brorman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brorman of Vega. Escorting her was the ring bearer, who was Michael Dolle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Dolle of Canyon.

"Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer" were principal wedding selections sung by Ken Wesson with accompaniment provided by Mrs. Andrea McCarty.

Given in marriage by Gus Mitchell, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight bridal satin heavily accented with Chantilly lace and seed pearls. Soft lace ruffles edged the lace bib yoke on her fitted bodice and formed a stand-up collar. Lace encrusted with seed pearls formed her long fitted sleeves. A sash encircled the A-line skirt which had lace motifs scattered across it. The chapel train, also traced in lace, attached at the back of her natural waistline.

A bride's bandeau of Chantilly lace and pearls clasped her tiered veil of candlelight tulle. She carried a cascading bridal bouquet of apricot and carnations, stephanotis and baby-breath.

Long gowns of apricot-colored polyester knit were worn by bridal attendants. Each dress was trimmed at the cuffs and collar by ecru lace.

The four-tiered wedding cake, which was iced with yellow and apricot hues, was served by Mrs. Paul Harris and Mrs. David Ball during a reception in the church reception hall. Fresh flowers encircling a candle formed the centerpiece. Miss Lori Acers ladled punch while Mrs. Kent Hartfield poured coffee.

Candlelight Service Unites Couple Friday

Arched candelabra blanketed by mixed greenery formed the setting in First Baptist Church Friday evening for the marriage of Miss Sherry White and Randy Talley. Performing the candle light service was the Rev. Doug Manning, pastor.

The bride, a May graduate of Texas Tech University, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. White of 214 N. Texas. Parents of the bridegroom are Rosalie Westfall Talley of 3025 N.E. 26th in Amarillo and Bill J. Talley of 3005 S. Washington, Amarillo.

In the processional, the bride walked between white pillars supporting arrangements of various ferns to the altar, where a three-tiered array of ferns rested. Flanking this were eight-foot candle trees clasping pillar candles and mixed greenery.

Serving her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Sid Shaw with Miss Nancy Allen of Perryton, Mrs. Tim King of Lubbock, Miss Monica Herring and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Ginger Talley, assisting as bridal attendants.

Billy Talley appeared as his brother's best man. Other groomsmen were the bride's brother, Chris White, the bridegroom's brother, Barry Talley, Sid Shaw and Fred Temme of Amarillo. Ushers included Mark Read of Amarillo and David Thomas.

Wedding tapers were lighted by Shyla and David Thomas.

Miss Holly Hughes of Lamesa provided organ accompaniment for Mrs. Tim King of Lubbock, who sang "A Wedding Prayer." Other vocal selections were "A Wedding Benediction" and "The Lord's Prayer" as rendered by Tim King. Processional and recessional choices were "Trumpet Voluntary" and "Trumpet Tune and Air" performed by Miss Cindy Mikel of Lubbock.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of crystal silk organza designed with high-rise bodice. Encircling the Camelot collar were pearls and crystals with queen's lace sheathing the shepherdess bodice. Lace medallions covered the long bishop sleeves which were gathered into fitted cuffs. Strands of seed pearls accented her wrists and upper bodice. Queen's lace with clusters of pearls adorned the hemline of the skirt, which swept to back fullness to form a circular chapel train.

Scallops of imported lace edged her chapel veil which fell in double tiers from a lace and pearl coil. She carried a cascading bouquet of white sweetheart roses, stephanotis and babybreath.

Her only jewelry was a solitary strand of pearls, a gift from her bridegroom, and the wedding ring of her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. O.H. Herring. For good luck, a sixpence from a trip to England, was placed in her bridal slipper.

Bridal attendants carried out her chosen colors by wearing gowns of red and white sheer voile flocked with frosty white flowers. Each dress was patterned with natural waistline of lace inserts. Complementing their ensembles were white picture hats and bouquets of agapantha and miniature red carnations.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. White was clad in a tip-toe length gown of turquoise chiffon trimmed with crystal beads and seed pearls. Mrs. Talley wore a powder blue formal-length gown of chiffon with a sheer capelet ruffled neckline in varying shades of blue.

During a reception after the ceremony, Miss Tonya Black provided background music while Miss Carol Scott and Miss Debbie Dickey of Richardson registered guests.

Mrs. Cliff Herring and Miss Renea Rollins of Amarillo served coffee and punch from two serpentine tables draped with floor-length red velvet cloths and white chiffon. Centering each table was a silver candelabrum containing a mass arrangement of mixed white blossoms.

A shroud of illusion with lace appliques covered a circular table which sported the wedding cake, embellished with fresh flowers. Mrs. Dana Rush presided.

Other members of the house party were Mrs. David Lee Carson of Friona, Mrs. Mack Cansler of Austin, Mrs. Lynton Allred, Mrs. Danny Martin and Mrs. James Gentry.

For a wedding trip to California, Mrs. Talley wore a three-piece knit suit in her chosen colors of red and white with white accessories. The newlywed couple will be at home in Phillips after August 1.

The recent bride received a bachelor's degree of music from Tech University, where she was involved in Sigma Kappa social sorority, Mu Phi Epsilon music sorority and Mortar Board. In 1972, she carried the Miss Hereford banner to the Miss Texas Pageant, where she was an entrant the following year as Miss Lubbock. Included on the list of Outstanding Young Women of America, the blond beauty plans to teach private voice lessons.

Talley attended Amarillo College and graduated from West Texas State University in May with a Bachelor's degree of music education. He is a member of Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity and is currently employed as minister of music and youth at First Baptist Church here. In the autumn, he will assume the position of choral director at Phillips High School.

He is a graduate of Palo Duro High School in Amarillo and his wife completed high school studies locally in 1971.

Among out-of-town guests at the recent ceremony were:

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Thomas hosted the engaged couple at a dinner party Tuesday evening in the Halbert Room of Hereford Country Club. Several members of the wedding party attended.

Miss White was feted at noon Wednesday during a "ladies luncheon" in the Country Club. Hostesses were Mrs. J.R. Allison and Mrs. Mack Cansler of Austin.

Parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Bill J. Talley of Amarillo, hosted the wedding party Thursday evening with a rehearsal dinner in the Country Club. Also, bridesmaids and matrons were guests of the bride's sister, Mrs. Sid Shaw, Friday for a luncheon in her home, 519 Westhaven.

Wartes-Johnson Troth Pledged In Sanctuary

Colors of sky blue and white were prevalent in sanctuary decorations Saturday evening for the marriage of Michael Larry Wartes and Miss Janna Gaye Johnson in Calvary Baptist Church, Canyon. Performing the double-ring ceremony was Dr. Strauss Atkinson, Caprock area missionary and former pastor of the Canyon congregation.

The bride, who taught Kindergarten classes this past semester at Alkman Elementary School, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Roland Johnson of Canyon. A May graduate of West Texas State University, the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Van Wartes of 236 Northwest Dr.

White satin ornamented with greenery draped the choir railing for the twilight service. Centered behind the Unity Candle was a 15-branch arched candelabrum garnished with foliage and flanked by matching urns of white summer flowers and babybreath plus spiral candelabra. Dotted the aisles were three-branch candelabra entwined with springer fern and white satin ribbons. Two palm plants were included in the array.

Attending the bride were her sisters, Mrs. Ronnie Wooten of Brownfield and Miss Roma Johnson of Canyon, the bridegroom's sister, Miss Susan Wartes, Miss Jan Westfall and Miss Gail Thompson, both of Canyon.

Scott Hindman of Borger assisted the bridegroom as best man with other groomsmen including his uncle, Robert Hale of Amarillo, David Herber of Amarillo, Roger Morris of Petersburg and Tibby Rogers of Pampa.

Escorting wedding guests to their seats were the bridegroom's cousin, Pete Hale, the bride's brother-in-law, Ronnie Wooten of Brownfield, Steve Nieman, Lee Gibson of Fritch, Bruce Barrett and Garvin McCarrell of Pampa.

Alan Wartes, brother of the bridegroom, and his cousin, Hooley Hale, lighted wedding tapers prior to the procession. Mrs. Ann Dawdy, organist, and Miss Teddi Crager, flutist, both of Canyon, provided musical accompaniment for principal wedding selections which were sung by Miss Debbie Norton of Pampa and Ben Gollehon, former local resident now of Amarillo.

Stokey's "Wedding Song" and "Colour My World" by Pankov were vocalized by Miss Norton. Gollehon rendered "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Frank Massandra gown of English net. Venise lace appliques in floral patterns overlaid the empire bodice which was designed with a low shadow neckline etched in matching lace trim. Her brief cap sleeves were fashioned of lace and net. Scalloped rows of miniature lace motifs were scattered upon the floor-length, A-line skirt which fell to a lace hemline and swept to back fullness, creating a chapel train.

Complementing her ensemble was a Camelot cap in a mantilla style created by Jean Pulver. It clasped a fingertip length veil of English net edged entirely in lace and adorned with appliques. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses and blue daisies accented with babybreath and white satin streamers tied with love knots.

Sky blue Qiana nylon was used for formal gowns worn by bridal attendants. Each dress was styled with gathered bodice and skirt attached to fitted midriff with white lace brocade tracing the square neckline and waist band. The sleeves were flared with gathered cap.

Distaff attendant carried airy bouquets formed of white daisies and blue carnations sprinkled with babybreath attached to white ribbons.

The bride's mother was clad in a slipper-length dress of peach-colored polyester knit of A-line fashion topped with a full-length matching lace embroidered coat. The bridegroom's mother wore a formal-length gown of mint green cut with a crepe knit bodice and accoridian pleated skirt. Matching material formed fitted cuffs on her long sheer sleeves of chiffon. Dotted the bodice were small buttons leading to the belted waistline.

Each of the couple's mothers wore a corsage of white sweetheart roses and babybreath.

The wedding party received guests at a reception in the church Fellowship Hall immediately after the ceremony. Centering the bride's table was the four-tiered wedding cake resting on pedestals, decorated with lattice work and fresh flowers and topped with traditional bride and groom figurines. Flanking the cake with a silver candelabrum, silver punch bowl and silver epergne containing white roses, blue carnations and white daisies. White grapejuice punch and blue and white mints were offered from the table, which was covered by a sheer white cloth trimmed in Alecon lace, capped by soft scallops. Presiding were Mrs. Ron Chandler of Lubbock, Mrs. John Duggan of Pampa and Mrs. Cliff Skiles of Willadoro.

Fresh flowers and a brass candelabrum accompanied gold appointments and a carrot cake with cream cheese icing at the bridegroom's table, which was draped with a brown Moire taffeta cloth. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Dan Blackwell of Brownfield, Mrs. Cole Fraley of Borger and Mrs. Dana Rush of Canyon.

For a wedding trip to Juarez, Mexico, Mrs. Wartes chose a shirtwaist dress of sky blue knit bodice with contrasting plaid skirt of blue, green and tan. Her accessories included a straw belt, tan wedge shoes and brown and white scarf. Her corsage of blue daisies and white roses was lifted from the bridal bouquet. She also wore a Marebeth yellow gold designed watch, a gift from the bridegroom.

The newlyweds will be at home after August 1 at Southland Village, 700 S. McGee, Apartment 204 in Borger, where they will both be employed by the local school system. Beginning this fall, Wartes will assume duties as assistant football coach at Borger High School.

Mrs. Wartes received a bachelor degree in elementary education from West Texas State University in May. She was listed in "Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities" and served as secretary for Chi Omega Social Sorority. She also was active in Alpha Chi National Honor Society and Kappa Delta Pi Honor Society in education.

A 1971 graduate of Canyon High School, the recent bride is a member of Texas State Teachers Association and taught at Alkman Elementary during the spring semester here.

The local man graduated in 1971 from Hereford High School, where he was active in numerous athletic and curricular activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Wartes are members of First Baptist Church of Hereford.

Pre-nuptial courtesies included the rehearsal dinner which was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at Chef Luis Restaurant, Amarillo.

Comings And Goings At King's Manor

By FAY GAUGGEL

Mrs. J. T. Boynton of Hereford was guest of Mrs. Ophelia Dotson last Sunday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Weiszbrod and Mrs. Kathryn Melvin from Amarillo visited Leota Moore and Ophelia Dotson last Sunday.

Our newest residents are the Vincent Carrs of Lubbock. Mrs. Carr is at Westgate, while he is at King's Manor. His room is situated on the northwest end so that he only has to walk a few steps to be with his wife Ruth Carr.

Mr. Carr's room is appointed elegantly and after a fashion of men. When we mentioned it he said his daughter-in-law is an interior decorator. It figures.

The Carrs are very pleasant and personable people and we feel they fit in as such. We welcome them and trust they'll like being here. Her room is number 506 Westgate and his is 115 King's Manor.

LAWN PICNIC SUPPER

Kings Manorites had a picnic supper on our lawn at 6 p.m., Friday 11th of July. Cottage residents brought sack lunches and Manor and Westgate folk formed lines and made up their own lunches at a long, long table.

We sat in comfortable chairs and ate from trays. Highlight of the supper was home-made ice cream - Uml Uml the weather cooperated beautifully and we had fun.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Jessie Davis Boardman was born in Morrisville, Mo. July 13, 1885 making her now 90 years old. Her father was a Methodist minister.

After graduation from college, she taught in colleges in Missouri and was married to Mr. Boardman. To this union were born two children, Mr. Boardman died young, leaving Jessie to rear her children.

Years later she cared for her aged mother during her mother's last days, proving Jessie was a faithful family person. Then she began teaching in Conway, Ark. at Central Union College, her fields being education and psychology. Years later, her children being married, she visited a brother, the late Joe Davis who was teaching in Amarillo College. From this experience she came also to teach there.

She did her last teaching at West Texas State University in Canyon. Knowing her as we do, we wish we could have sat at her feet during some of those years. She came to King's Manor in 1968 and was later transferred to Westgate.

During these years she was fortunate to have a sister, Martha Davis Shirkey, on the campus close enough that they could be together every day. We can't imagine King's Manor without our Jessie.

Sunday we celebrated her ninetieth birthday. Seldom do we observe a birthday here with the pomp and ceremony or the proportions of the one we observed in the Lamar Memorial Garden Room. Guests came from far and near.

Out-of-town guests were: Clara Mae Travland and daughter, Yolanda, both of Baltimore Maryland; a son, Dr. Tom Boardman and wife, Cynthia of Cleveland. Dr. Boardman is the editor of The Cleveland Press of that city; Dr. Tom Boardman Jr. of Ann Arbor, Michigan and daughter, Caroline, of Brunswick, Maine; Bob Davis and wife, Rose Ann, of Amarillo; Nieces, Evelyn Davis of Denton and Mrs. Carl Baxley of Amarillo.

On Sunday, Jessie, jovial, beaming and gracious, as usual, always met each guest as we took turns sitting near her wheelchair. We hovered near her to be the recipients for her smiles and lively conversation much as bees gather around a blossom to enjoy its sweetness. (That would sound syrupy and saccharine if it were not the rock ground truth). A favorite she is and a rare soul indeed.

The party was a gift from her family and lovely, devoted Martha Shirkey, her sister, made the arrangements (assisted by Mrs. Don Davidson). Martha supervised the serving, assisted by Jessie's granddaughters. Refreshments were cold punch, cake, nuts and fresh fruit bowl. Martha's adopted daughter, Shauna, now is married to David Rickles. These two registered guests.

Practically residents attended. First Methodist Church people, where Jessie is a member, came in large numbers. The Rev. and Mrs. Grooms, members of King's Manor executive committee and many others came. It was a very democratic sort of occasion. Just as we thought Jessie would approve and enjoy.

We chatted and hob-knobbed from 2:30 to 5 p.m. and the inimitable Jessie seemed as fresh as a daisy the entire afternoon.

Bless you, bless you Jessie. May your tribe increase and may your arthritis fold its tent like the Arabs and silently steal away.

Looking at Jessie we can understand Browning's lines:

"Grow old along with me
The best is yet to be, The last of life, for which
The first was made;
Our times are in his hand
Who saith, "A whole I planned,
Youth shows but half; trust God;
See all, nor be afraid!"

Marriage Planned

The engagement of Miss Karen Anstey and Eldon Ray Casey has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Anstey of 418 Ave. G. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mai Manchec of 125 Northwest Drive. The bride-elect is a May graduate of Hereford High School. A 1974 graduate of HHS, Casey attended Texas Tech University and is currently employed by E.C. Reinauer and Sons.

Designer Says Fashion Important To Handicapped

Fads in fashion and the look of being well-dressed are for everybody—especially the physically and mentally handicapped.

Kay Caddel is a clothing designer who took a good look at the makeshift garments usually allotted the physically and mentally handicapped and decided to do something about it.

The result of her attention is a score of patterns designed to make even the most helpless look attractive and feel comfortable.

Her designs include wheelchair vests and supports—tricky garments designed for their ease of dressing and touches of detail—a bright scarlet teddy-bear on a blue denim vest, a red apple or a shaggy lion's head for a touch of pizzazz.

Mrs. Caddel is a research associate of the Textile Research Center at Texas Tech University, and her clothing designs have been created from fabrics developed at the center.

A knit infant's suit is made of flame retardant knit. A fashionable jumper—which can be opened flat and then fitted around the body in stylish lines—is made of a mohair and cotton blend. Jeans and shirts to match are made of open-end spun denim durable cotton fabric.

She's even given thought to the blind. A lap robe, for instance, has decorative touches in fabrics of different texture—the letter "A" and a corded line from it to a fuzzy textured pocket with a zipper.

For the handicapped teenager, there's a peasant blouse with lastic at the openings for easy dressing. The skirt to match wraps around, ties smartly in front and has the flounce of a two-inch ruffle at the hem and up the side.

The end result of each of the designs is a smart looking outfit to add self assurance to the wearer. To be sure they appeal to the people who will wear them, Mrs. Caddel tests them, some at the Lubbock State School. Here she's discovered a fine taste the mentally handicapped have for good looking clothes.

A spastic child who cannot speak, for instance, was held in his wheelchair with a sheet tied around him for security. She replaced the sheet with the wheelchair vest, and the excitement was so great that the child became for a few minutes absolutely still.

"He couldn't tell us he liked it," Mrs. Caddel said, "but it wasn't difficult to see his reaction of pleasure."

After testing, the clothing goes back to the children who have played the role of manikin for the designer.

That is fortunate because Molly, a student at the school, tried on a red, white and blue peasant dress and "wanted to wear it indefinitely," Mrs. Caddel reported.

There is a formal testing of the value of the clothing, a standardized test on Behavioral Characteristic Progression dealing with sensory perception, dressing and undressing. Children were tested before the project started, and will be tested again when the research is completed to determine whether they have developed self-help skills using the designs.

In addition to clothing, Mrs. Caddel has developed "educational shapes" which are pillows in the form of blocks—rectangular, square, triangular and cylindrical. The shapes have zipper covers and various objects are sewn on them. These help the blind and those who lack motor skills.

They can learn to tie shoes, manipulate buttons, zippers and snaps as well as a tape which goes by the trade name, Velcro, and is used to fasten and unfasten some seams.

The tape is especially useful in the design of jeans which have open leg seams—an idea which could also help anyone with a broken leg or the individual who has difficulty controlling leg movements.

"An estimated 30 million people in the United States have mental or physical handicaps," Mrs. Caddel said. "That would account for about 14 per cent of the population."

"It is high time these people receive consideration in clothing design."

In Texas, Mrs. Caddel said, the Goree Garment Factory has decided to manufacture for state agencies the clothing she has designed. The garments will be manufactured on order by the women inmates of the Texas Department of Corrections at Huntsville.

Mrs. Caddel also has designed patterns on order for the various garments, each pattern designed individually for the particular problems of the person who will wear the clothes.

Mrs. Caddel holds the master's degree in clothing and textiles, earned at Texas Tech University, and she also has done graduate work at the University of Rhode Island and Oklahoma State University. She is the co-author of a book, "Basic Apparel Design," and has helped in making a series of instructional films.

Her current project is sponsored by the Natural Fibers and Food Protein Committee of Texas and the Textile Research Center at Texas Tech.

By The Garden Gate With Glad

By Gladys Manjeot

CONGRATULATIONS TO the winners of the beauty spots for June. It's fun to go looking around Hereford and see the many beauty spots created by gardeners. Garden Gates are really an invitation to me, to look over and see the pretties in the gardens, both the flower and the vegetable.

Many times while visiting friends and going on requests to advise, prescribe and diagnose ills, I always take time to find the beauty and the usefulness of the various gardens and produce from the soil.

To benefit the newcomers, and to renew the facts relative to the selections of the Beauty Spots, I will list some of the items considered by the committee, which is selected and appointed by the Women's Division of The Chamber of Commerce chairman of beautification, Mrs. Tom Carter.

Mrs. Carter has served in this capacity for many years and she really has been faithful and serious in the performance of her responsibilities. She has the pleasure of taking the markers and assisting the winners in placing them, for others to be informed as to the lucky gardeners for the month.

Usually the decision as to the winner is made on or near the 26th of the month and markers are placed following the committee's selections.

The Women's Division of The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is to be thanked for sponsoring this worthy project, for the beautification of Hereford. The results have been manifold and the interest has not seemed to lag since it was begun.

Approximately 50 years ago Mr. Dunkle, the Deaf Smith County Agent, started a similar project for the beautification, cleanliness and plantings of trees in Hereford. This was conducted throughout the year and homemakers entered the contest and monthly homes and grounds, also the buildings (which needed painting and repaired) were judged by a standing committee composed of both men and women. These were selected or appointed by the County Agent and presidents of civic clubs.

This lasted a year or two and many years elapsed before a like program was started by Hereford Garden Club. This was a seasonal project and residents of town blocks vied against each other. Each month the blocks were judged, and then a final summation was made at the end of the summer months. The residents of winning blocks were given a pyracantha, which was to be planted at each home of the winners.

It has been most interesting to watch the changes and the improvements made through beautification projects.

The scoring points used by the beautification committee judges, is as follows: 1. General appearance (50 points); A. neatness and cleanliness (20 points) (40 points for Business or non-residents) b. Relationship of plantings (20 points) c. Balance unity (10 points).

2. Harmony of the overall picture created (25 points). a. Color harmony. b. Relationship of plantings to architecture (10 points) 3. Beauty (25 points) a. Eye appeal (15 points) b. Effectiveness and unity (10 points).

The same Beauty Spot cannot be chosen more often than every third year for the residences; non-resident or business can be chosen every second year.

An urban home or business is to be selected at least once a year.

The rules are suggestions, but bear in mind that the contribution of each place to the attractiveness of the town and/or community as a whole is the prime object, and it need not be an elaborate setting or expensive landscaping as, very often, small well-kept grounds and settings in good keeping, well thought out attractiveness, plus cleanliness rates very high.

The committee is composed of five members, one of which is Mrs. Carter. They are known only to the chairman. Months in which selections are made, under the guidance of the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce, beautification committee, are March through November and for the Month of December, this for suitable winter plantings, (weather permitting.)

Winners are chosen within Deaf Smith County only. Scoring information—Courtesy of Mrs. Carter.

PLEASURE - ENTERTAINMENT—FUN: Drive about town, visit Beauty Spots and study them. Have a little contest all your own and see how your findings measure up. It is always thrilling to enjoy the creation of beauty of our friends and neighbors.

This year seems to be a red-letter year for beauty and different projects of many gardeners. For instance, at the First National Bank, the combination of tomatoes and peppers is very interesting. They have been planted among the beautiful red petunias, which is the chief accent this summer, in their landscape.

I have found it most interesting and challenging to note the various ways in which vegetables have been combined in the landscaping of various grounds. Really, vegetables are adaptable to garden plantings. Many of them are lovely when used for border plantings, (beets, carrots, radishes, and beans) and also some are used for background plantings (Jerusalem Artichokes). Many are very colorful. Remember that the George Washingtons used tomatoes as one of their attractions in their flower gardens (They were not then edible.)

Some of the colorful flowers in bloom now are Hemerocallis (Day Lilies). A colorful planting is at the Carrol home on Centre St. There is also a pretty planting of Gladiolus at 4th and McKinley. They are well grown and of good quality.

Petunias are making splashes of rich, gorgeous colors in many gardens. My neighbor, Mrs. Mitchell, has some of the most beautiful petunias I have seen this year. Found a very interesting and colorful new hedge plant in the Essie Cardwell garden. It is Gold Spot and has very attractive yellow buttercup flowers, good weight and well-textured foliage.

Roses are at their prime now. Many colorful and beautiful creations are throughout town. My Red Valentine roses are like huge bouquets on the carpet of pretty dainty white flowers (my favorite ground cover.)

The most attractive bicentennial planting that I have seen is at the Deward Roberson home (Mrs. Roberson is the president-elect of Garden Beautiful Club.) It is planted in a half circle formation, the colors making stripes. The base color is blue ageratums; center planting is made up of luxuriant white balcony petunias; and the third dimension stripe is of rich, red, velvety snap dragons. Very, very pretty. The Roberson home is on Union Street. While looking at this planting be sure and look at the gorgeous roses at the Owen and Stagner home.

ANSWER TO LAST week's question: "I" (center letter of "happiness") gardeners remember that just being a happy gardener is a fine thing to do, looking on the bright side rather than the blue and creating happiness by sharing with others.

THANKS, TO my friends who have so generously shared vegetables, flowers, plants and aid to me. Eats were delicious!

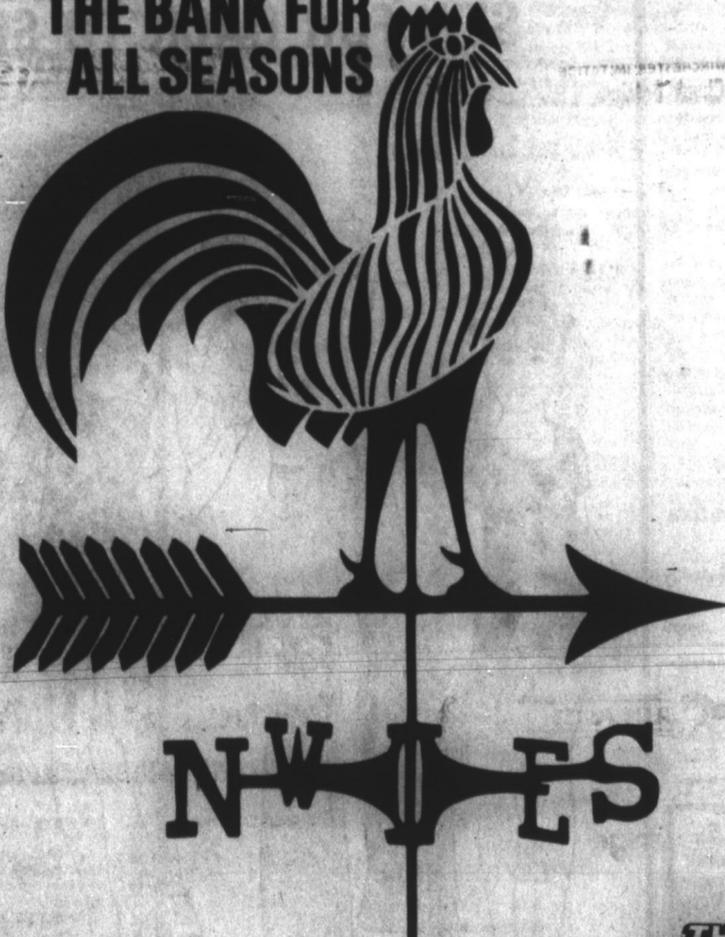

NOTE: Make some late plantings of radishes, lettuce, beans, onions and greens. Zinnias, all varieties, can be planted now for late fall blooms. Gladiolus, last planting date was 15th of July. But if you have corns, plant them in a protected area and give them tender loving care and the beautiful spikes of colorful florets will be good payment. Moon time (sign) us right!

BEAUTIFUL NEWS FROM FRANCISCAN.

Look at the four new Earthenware patterns Franciscan has created. Creole, inspired by the warm tradition of New Orleans; Jamaica, as rich as the flavor that named it; Amapola, with its light-hearted tracery; and Picnic, as happy as sun-dappled flowers on a summer day. Like all Franciscan Earthenware, they're hand-crafted. And hand-painted in colors that never fade, never crack. They resist chipping. And they're safe in the oven and the dishwasher. Come see them. And the crystal designed especially as their mate, Franciscan Madeira. In 6 glass shapes and 8 delightful colors.

On The Turnrow

By Jim Stolert

Last week's rumors of a large grain sale to the Russians proved accurate, and as is status quo these days, the government agency responsible was the last to admit that the event had even taken place.

THE USDA reported Wednesday that Cook Industries Inc. of Memphis had sold the Russians 2 million metric tons of wheat.

Cargill Inc. of Minneapolis has also negotiated to sell the Russians 1.2 million metric tons of American wheat.

The Canadians aren't sitting still and allowing us to corner the export market, they've made their own deal to sell 2 million long tons of their wheat to the Soviets.

With prospects bright for the country to sell more of its huge wheat crop on the export market, hopefully resulting in better prices to the farmer, there are already members of Congress ranting for all negotiations of grain sales to the Russians to be turned over to the government.

THERE ARE EVEN some in Washington who have been so naive as to raise their voices in opposition to any sale of grain.

Some factions are already complaining that any sale of wheat to Russians will result in a renewed onslaught on inflation here at home, but I wonder what they would call what the farmer has been through in raising this year's wheat crop. Certainly nothing less than an onslaught.

Farmers need better prices for their wheat, and sale of wheat to the Russians is one way to obtain it.

A record 2.2 billion bushel wheat crop is at hand, that should be sufficient to allay anyone's fears that we don't have enough wheat to get by on.

JERRY REES, executive vice president of the National Association of Wheat Growers says he would like to see exports in neighborhood of 14 to 18 million tons, and Glen D. Hofer, vice president of the national council of Farmer Cooperatives feels it's within the country's capability to sell the Russians 10-20 million tons without any problems.

It's normal policy for our country to export about two-thirds of its wheat crop anyway.

ONE OF OUR relatively new local crops is quite a popular one from a visual standpoint, I don't know how many people I've heard commenting on how great it is to see vast fields of bright yellow sunflowers.

If the price for sunflower seeds remains good, they should prove quite a valuable, "hide over" crop to a lot of farmers. Their short growing time makes them adaptable, they come up fast on just a small amount of moisture, and from what I've seen they can wait for water.

Some of the fields of sunflowers I've observed never received anything more than natural moisture until they were towering on up there, they were planted on available moisture and left to fend for themselves because the wheat and corn needed the water more.

The flowers seem eager to grow, they come up in a hurry and never slow down, much like me. In fact, it is still rather hard for me to get accustomed to seeing fields deliberately planted to sunflowers, when they've always been a weed to me. They just look weedy.

AT ANY RATE, with the massive acreage planted to the yellow flowers throughout the Panhandle and South Plains area, I sure hope the crop pans out and makes money for the farmers. If it does, it will probably become an important intermediate crop, simply because of low production costs.

In the meantime, the yellow flowers are providing a good attraction for what appears to be a great dove crop this year and come September some of those fields will probably attract some dove hunters.

The Crop, Livestock and Weather summary for the week ending July 18, produced by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, indicated that feedlots in District I are currently operating at around 75 per cent capacity.

District I includes Deaf Smith, Dallam, Sherman, Hansford, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hartley, Moore, Hutchinson, Roberts, Hemphill, Oldham, Potter, Carson, Gray, Wheeler, Randall, Armstrong, Donley, Collingsworth, Parmer and Castro Counties.

HAVE PUT-OUT POWER

A pressurized fire extinguisher loaded with 3 to 5 pounds of all-purpose (ABC) dry chemical has effective put-out power for home and farm. It's effective on fire involving wood, petroleum products, or electrical equipment. Before you buy, make sure extinguisher has "Underwriters Laboratories Inspection" printed on label to assure it has passed reliability and performance tests.

Pantex Emphasizes Cattle Efficiency

Sponsors and supporters of the Pantex Performance Proven Bull Test and Sale at the Texas Tech University Center at Amarillo, Pantex, are combining their planning efforts to make the 25th anniversary program this fall and spring the most beneficial to the beef cattle industry in its history.

"At this time when there is an economic squeeze on the beef production industry we must re-emphasize our total effort to obtain maximum efficiency on the part of cattle to convert feed to food," said Dr. Max Lennon, chairman of the Department of Animal Science at Texas Tech.

That same goal was endorsed by Doug Rittenberry of Canyon, chairman of the Pantex Performance Proven Bull Sale Association, who called on cooperators to consign their best livestock to the 140-day feed test and sale in order to attract more buyers and higher prices at the spring sale.

Rittenberry and Lennon also invited more beef cattle breeders and producers to join in the program at Pantex, particularly those in Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, Kansas and Oklahoma.

The annual sale is one of the oldest in the nation and is billed as "the original performance tested bull sale." It is sponsored by Texas Tech University and its College of Agricultural Sciences and Department of Animal Science, the TTU Center at Amarillo, Pantex, and the Pantex Performance Proven Bull Sale Association.

The firm of Bert and Ruben Reyes of San Antonio has been employed this year to have complete charge of managing, and promoting the sale.

Henry Elder of Fort Worth, associated with the Reyes firm, said, "We are going to do everything we can to have a good sale. The main thing is to have some top bulls from some top breeders. With ever increasing interest in gain tests, now is a good time to put some good bulls on test."

Purpose of the test is to determine the capacity of the bull consigned to the program to add weight from the rations. Purchasers use the bulls to pass along that gaining capacity to their herds.

The bulls should be taken to the center Sept. 24 or before, Lennon said. The test will begin Oct. 8 and the sale and field day program are scheduled for Nov. 14.

Nolan Poteet, representing the cooperators, in charge of the test and sale. Paul Dauer, Panhandle producer, is vice chairman and Henry Leven, also of Panhandle, is treasurer.

Dr. Lloyd Sherrod is interim director of the center.

Last year more than 100 bulls were tested and sold, representing breeders of Angus, Charolais, Herefords and Santa Gertrudis, and Simmental, Maine Anjou, Limousin and Chianina crosses.

"The Texas Tech animal science research facility at Pantex probably provides more technical and scientific information for the gigantic feed lot industry than any other in the nation," Lennon said.

Many feedlot operators and manufacturers of and suppliers for the industry make use of the research facilities and programs at the center to test their products, equipment and theories.

"We believe that the center is the industry's most valuable source of scientific and technological help, and the bull testing program is one of the center's outstanding contributions to that source of information," Lennon said.

Additional information about the test and sale may be obtained from Nolan Poteet, Route 3, Panhandle, Texas 79068; The Texas Tech University Center at Amarillo, Pantex, Texas 79069 or the Department of Animal Science, Texas Tech University, Texas Tech Station, Lubbock, Texas 79409.

Use of crush-resistant cabs or protective frames with safety belts can prevent injury if tractor overturns. Fall-off injuries could be almost eliminated. Operators under 16 or over 65 years of age have highest tractor accident rate, but it happens to anyone -- up to 500 deaths and several thousand injuries involving overturns each year. Protective cabs or frames should meet ASAE standards (S308 or S310) -- check your dealer before buying.

County In Top Ten In Vegetable Production

Deaf Smith County was among the top ten vegetable-producing counties in the state in 1974. Agriculture Commissioner John C. White has announced.

Deaf Smith County was sixth in total vegetable acreage with a total of 6,406. Deaf Smith ranked ninth in cabbage, fifth in carrots, and fourth in onions.

Statistics on 1974 production which have just been published by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, show that Texas is still a major source for vegetables for the nation.

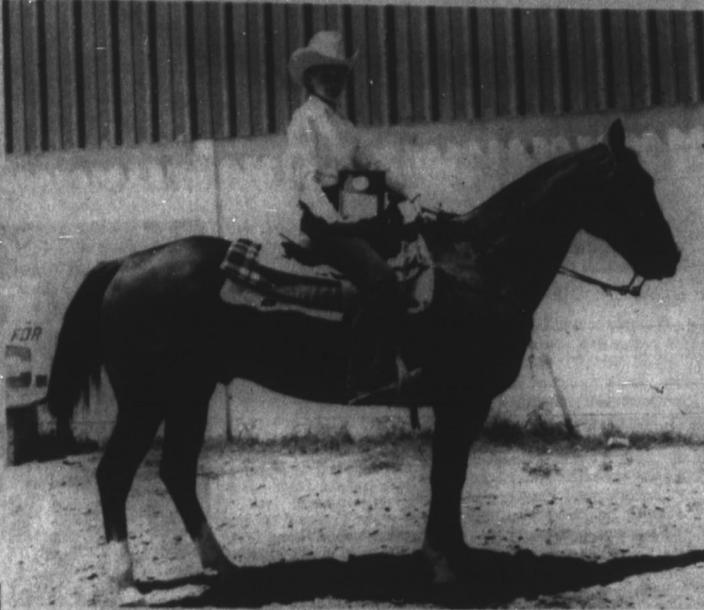

Texas is first in the U.S. in harvested acres of watermelons, cabbage, and fresh market spinach; second in cantaloupes, carrots, and onions; and fifth in green peppers. Hidalgo County was the top producer with 53,900 acres planted in vegetables.

Texas was third nationally in total fresh market vegetables and fifth in total vegetable acreage behind California, Wisconsin, Florida, and Minnesota.

For a free copy of the vegetable statistics book, write Commissioner John C. White, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12947, Austin, Texas 78711.

Boosting Milk Production
Milk production per cow has been increased 100 percent in the past 25 years largely through widespread use of artificial insemination.

To Represent County

Cheryl Roberts, a member of the Tierra Blanca 4-H Horse Club of Deaf Smith County, will represent the county and District 1 at the State 4-H Horse Show to be held July 23-26th in the Will Rogers Coliseum in Fort Worth. She will be participating in the pole bending and barrel racing contests. She is pictured here with the award that she won at the District Horse Show held the latter part of June at the Bill Cody Arena in Amarillo. She won first place in pole bending.

4-H Specialist Is Named

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service has named a 4-H and youth specialist for the Panhandle and South Plains areas. She is Martha E. Couch, who has served as Gaines County Extension Agent for the past three years.

The new specialist will be headquartered at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock. She assumes the position vacated by Edwin T. Garnett who was headquartered at Amarillo.

According to Dr. Donald Stormer, state 4-H and youth leader, Miss Couch will give leadership to the 4-H and youth phase of the Extension Service program in Districts 1 and 2, which encompasses 42 counties.

"Particular emphasis will be directed to expanding the 4-H program as well as to plan and implement programs in leadership and curriculum development," he noted.

"We are fortunate to have Miss Couch assume this position," added Stormer. "She has a wealth of 4-H experience, having been an active member for 10 years and having directed the 4-H program in Gaines County for two years."

Miss Couch was appointed as assistant county Extension agent for Gaines County in May, 1972, and was named county Extension agent in September, 1974.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Couch of Gail Rt., Box 232, Big Spring. During her 4-H career, she won many awards and honors, including the Howard County Gold Star Girl and state winner in the Home Management Program. She participated in the State 4-H Roundup four times and attended National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

At Borden High School, she was active in the Future Homemakers of America and was president of the local chapter.

Miss Couch attended Howard County Junior College and received a B.S. degree in home economics education from Texas Tech University in 1971. While attending Texas Tech, she served as a student assistant in the Food and Nutrition Department.

4-H Receives Grant

The G. Rollie White Trust of Fort Worth and Brady has made a $25,000 grant to the Texas 4-H Youth Development Foundation to assist with the construction cost of the Texas 4-H Center located near here.

The grant was announced by H.T. Davison, executive director of the 4-H Foundation and 4-H and youth specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Davison said the grant will be applied to the cost of the swimming pool, a part of the Center complex.

"The 4-H Center, which opened April 2, is the new 4-H leadership training facility. It is located 10 miles north of here on Lake Brownwood. The center has a capacity of 200 people and has excellent meeting accommodations for any type group," said Davison.

He noted that the summer schedule has been filled by 4-H groups from across the state who are taking advantage of the training programs and facilities. The fall schedule includes 20 project workshops for volunteer 4-H adult leaders which are designed to increase a leader's proficiency, knowledge and understanding of how to work effectively with youth.

"The G. Rollie White Trust has made many contributions to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Texas A&M University throughout the years," noted Davison, "and we are highly pleased to receive this grant for the Texas 4-H Center in behalf of the 4-H Foundation."

The Trust was formed by the late G. Rollie White and is now managed and operated by the Fort Worth National Bank.

Here's a metric measurement from the Texas Department of Agriculture. One inch equals 2.54 centimeters. Twelve inches equal 30.48 centimeters.

The one time you expect to see a Zimmatic broken down.

About the only time you expect to see a Zimmatic broken down is when it leaves one of Lindsay's plants. Once assembled in your field, it seldom causes a problem. Those big, sure-footed towers power their way around the field, carrying water to crops.

Hour after hour, day after day. Until you decide to shut down. That kind of performance doesn't just happen. It's the result of constant testing — both in the plant and in the field. Lindsay puts these rigs through the most punishing conditions — loads on more stress in a week, usually, than they're likely to see in a lifetime of normal use.

But we know that no system is 100% perfect all the time. That's why we're ready to help with an extensive parts inventory and factory trained servicemen if you ever have a problem. Before you buy any center pivot irrigation system, be sure to let us tell you about all the advantages of owning a Lindsay Zimmatic.

In addition to being a source high in protein, peanuts contain large amounts of Vitamin B and iron, according to Texas Department of Agriculture home economists.

Good workers are always in demand, somewhere.

Briscoe Designates Farm Safety Week

"Texas farms and ranches play a major role in the economy of Texas and help feed millions of Americans," said Gov. Dolph Briscoe in a proclamation designating July 25-31, as Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Week.

But in addition, Texas farms and ranchers has a most "unwelcome harvest" while producing their 1974 agricultural products, the deaths of 285 farm and ranch residents, according to Joe Smetana, Vice President for Farm and Ranch Safety, Texas Safety Association.

This figure represents a 33 per cent increase over 1973 fatalities, which was a 16.9 per cent increase from 1972.

Causes of fatalities last year according to data from the Texas Safety Association and The Farm Bureau were accidents involving traffic (97), tractors (38), drownings (34), firearms (34), and fires and burns (21).

Other causes recorded include falls (18), machinery (15), animals (13), electric current (10), and miscellaneous (19).

"Texans are proud of the farm and ranch families from whom come the abundance of food and fiber," says the Texas Safety Association, and strongly encourages safety practices to reduce the needless waste of human resources.

USDA Will Poll Dairy Farmers

A poll of dairy farmer cooperatives in 37 federal milk marketing order areas will be conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to find out if affected dairy farmers approve amending the classification of flavored milk and flavored milk drinks.

Dairy officials in U.S.-D-A's Agricultural Marketing Service said the amendments would assure dairy farmers that the historical Class "one" designation, and higher-valued price covering milk for fluid use, will continue on all flavored milk products.

U.S.-D-A officials said the changes are needed because some flavored milk products with 30 per cent or more total milk solids are now coming on the market. Present provisions in the 37 orders put these products in the lower-valued manufacturing-use category.

GSPB Plans Election

Four board members will be named when the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board holds its third biennial election Sept. 15.

The terms of Larry Witten of Olton, K.B. Parish of Springlake, Ralph Mabry of Petersburg and C.P. Smith of Hale Center expire. All four are eligible for re-election.

Eligible to vote in the election and to serve on the board are persons living in the 29-county TGSPP area who produce grain sorghum and pay the board assessment.

Any person wishing to be nominated for membership on the board should make application to the board at least 30 days before the election. The application must be signed by the nominee and 10 other eligible voters.

Ballots will be mailed to voters and must be returned to the TGSPP office by Sept. 15. Eligible voters who do not receive ballots by Sept. 1 may obtain one from county agents.

Counties in the TGSPP area are Armstrong, Bailey, Briscoe, Carson, Castro, Cochran, Crosby, Dallam, Dawson, Deaf Smith, Floyd, Gaines, Hale, Hansford, Hartley, Hockley, Hutchinson, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Moore, Oldham, Parmer, Potter, Randall, Sherman, Swisher, Terry and Yoakum.

THE SCIENTISTS TELL ME...

By Robert L. Haney, Science Writer The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station

Better New Cantaloupes

Give Zip to the Melon Industry

The Texas cantaloupe and honeydew melon industry is experiencing considerable economic growth as a direct result of new melon varieties recently developed by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, the state agricultural research agency.

The scientist behind the scenes who is responsible for new improved varieties of cantaloupe and honeydew melons is Professor R. T. Correa at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Weslaco, Texas. Correa has released two new cantaloupe varieties that place Texas cantaloupe producers in a strong position to compete with Western growers.

Correa's Perilita cantaloupe variety, released in 1964, has replaced four commercial varieties. Approximately 90 percent of the cantaloupe acreage planted in the South Texas area now consists of the Perilita cantaloupe variety. The Perilita cantaloupe is highly resistant to downy mildew and is immune to the two known races of powdery mildew. This resistance enables the Perilita cantaloupe to maintain green leaves with more chlorophyll, which results in greater sugar formation.

Professor Correa subsequently introduced another cantaloupe variety in 1968 with downy and powdery mildew resistance in South Texas; he named it "Dulce", the Spanish word for "sweet." The Dulce variety is a later cantaloupe than the Perilita and supplements the Perilita by extending the growing season. About 10 percent of the cantaloupe acreage in South Texas is planted to the Dulce variety.

The Perilita cantaloupe not only performs well in the United States but has a high degree of downy mildew and powdery mildew resistance in various areas of the world, in addition to good shipping quality. The Perilita is now a leading variety in the Caribbean area, Central America, Spain, Philippines, Mexico and Japan.

Value of the South Texas cantaloupe crop exceeded $12 million in 1974, according to Dr. Chan Connolly, Resident Director of Research and Professor of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Weslaco. Value of the TAM-Dew South Texas shipments exceeded $2 million in 1974.

With the new Perilita and Dulce cantaloupe varieties and the TAM-Dew variety of honeydew, Correa has given Texas cantaloupe producers an opportunity to develop a major melon industry in Texas. Though developing rapidly, the industry has not yet reached its full potential. Correa has some new advanced breeding lines under commercial tests this season which will place Texas cantaloupe growers in a much stronger competitive position.

All of these new melon varieties developed by the Experiment Station are helping Texas producers put a better quality product on your table at a more reasonable price.

Agricultural Experiment Station at Weslaco. Connolly says that though South Texas acreage devoted to cantaloupe production has stayed about the same, some growers are getting more yields nearly double those of twenty years ago.

In 1971 Correa introduced a new honeydew melon variety with downy and powdery mildew resistance. He named this new honeydew variety TAM-Dew. Value of the TAM-Dew South Texas shipments exceeded $2 million in 1974.

Texas Taxes By BOB BULLOCK State Comptroller

Austin-- Little leagues and other youth sports organizations across Texas will get a couple of tax breaks starting September 1.

This tax relief comes as the result of a small tax reduction bill passed by the Legislature. The sales tax division of my office will prepare rules and regulations for provisions in the new law which will exempt little league sporting groups from having to pay sales tax on the uniforms and equipment they use.

But let me point out that the legislation is very specific in stating that the new exemptions applies only to a league organization itself and does not apply to individuals who play in that league.

This means that league officers can go to the sporting goods store and buy uniforms and equipment for everyone playing in the league and that purchase won't be subject to the sales tax. But Johnny or Johnny's dad will still have to pay the sales tax when they make purchases individually.

Another very important part of the new law specifies that this exemption applies only to organizations in which all participants are less than 19 years old.

Between now and September 1 when the new law takes effect, any and all items purchased by these young sports groups will continue to be subject to the sales tax.

As the date of the new law's effectiveness nears my office will be contacting as many sporting stores as possible and explain the new law. We want to give them as much information as possible so they will know for certain when the exemption applies and when it doesn't.

OWER ALKS by U.S. Senator for Texas JOHN TOWER

Food Stamp Fraud WASHINGTON—Scandalously loose federal regulations are taking food from the mouths of the needy and giving it, at taxpayers' expense, to the undeserving.

The federal food stamp program has degenerated into a gigantic boondoggle. What began 10 years ago as a modest federal project funded at $40 million has mushroomed into a fiscal monster that will devour $5 billion of the taxpayers' money this year.

Use of food stamps has increased from one of every 439 Americans in 1965 to one of every 13 Americans today, and the growth of the program is likely to be even more astronomical in the future. Under present regulations, one of every four Americans is eligible for food stamps, and that could easily grow to one of every three Americans.

Under present regulations: —Some able-bodied persons who do not want to work can get food stamps; —Owners of jewelry, furs and luxury appliances can get food stamps; —Minor children can get food stamps without parental consent or control.

Enough is enough. It is time to put a halt to the flagrant abuses of the food stamp program.

I have joined with Sen. James Buckley (R-N.Y.) and nearly 70 other members of the Senate and House in sponsoring the National Food Stamp Reform Act. Our bill would save taxpayers at least $2 billion each year, while at the same time increasing benefits to genuinely needy food stamp recipients by as much as 29 percent.

The National Food Stamp Reform Act contains 41 separate provisions to reduce the overall cost of the program by eliminating fraud and abuse and by redefining eligibility requirements. Administration of the food stamp program would be transferred from the Department of Agriculture to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in order to eliminate costly administrative duplication in the welfare system.

PRPC Programs Stress Safety Ideas To Prevent Traumatic Injuries

The term "trauma" is becoming commonly used in the place of "accidental injury" when discussing causes of death in the United States. Trauma, which can be defined as any type of forceful injury to an individual, is the third leading cause of death in the United States and the number one cause of death in the one to thirty-seven-year old age bracket. Over 100,000 deaths a year occur due to this cause. Trauma may result from automobile accidents, shootings, stabbings, muggings, falls, bites, or fires. Trauma may result in injury to any area of the body to include the soft tissues as well as bones. Trauma cases account for approximately 80 per cent of all surgical cases seen in our emergency department. The type of cases range from a small cut on the finger to a gunshot wound of the heart. In a situation where minutes count, it is essential that a team of trauma surgeons be immediately available within the first few minutes if a patient, for example, with a stab or gunshot wound of the heart, is to be saved. It therefore becomes important that such cases are transported by our ambulance services to those hospitals who are able to provide this type of care. On the other hand, it is perfectly feasible to transport the less seriously injured to nearby hospitals that are not necessarily trauma centers, but can handle these minor cases. The recent establishment of many emergency medical technician courses has produced better trained ambulance personnel capable of maintaining life until the patient reaches the emergency department. This has already begun to lower the number of trauma deaths, and it is hoped these statistics will continue to fall as this training progresses. Because of the many recent advances in intensive surgical and medical care available to the seriously injured patient, many lives are now being saved that were previously lost.

However, in the overall look at the trauma picture, it is the education of the public in safety and prevention of trauma that is important. Such things as removing the drunken driver from the streets, prevention of crime in high crime areas, development of automotive safety and safety devices, and encouraging the public to use those devices that are available such as seatbelts, would greatly lower the tragic number of deaths among our young people due to trauma. Industry also has a role to play in this regard as many accidents occur in industrial settings. Since many injuries also occur within the home, safety in that area must also be taught. To bring such vital information to the public, the Panhandle Emergency Medical Services System (PEMSS) is coordinating public education programs. Included in the PEMSS goals is education of the public to existing hazards and the prevention of accidents and injuries as well as the care of the traumatized patient. Teaching in safety should begin with the parents in the home, and continue in our schools.
