Africans Criticize High Arab Oil Prices

HAVANA (AP) - A summit conference of non-aligned nations moved into an unscheduled sixth day today as African nations apparently blocked an Arab attempt to suspend Egypt for signing a peace accord with Israel.

The Africans, who represent more than half the members at the 95-nation summit, are upset with the Arabs because of skyrocketing oil prices imposed by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. Seven of the 13 OPEC members nations are Arab.

Conference delegates, meeting around the clock in closed sessions, also appeared divided on Cuban President Fidel Castro's proposal that the movement declare itself the natural ally of the Soviet Union:

Castro, chairman of the movement for the next three years despite his alliance with the Soviet Union, harshly attacked the United States, China and Egypt in opening remarks Monday.

On Friday, Nigerian delegate Henry

E.O. Adefope appeared to oppose Castro's efforts when he called upon conference members to resist unnamed "powerful external forces" he said had 'sought to sow discord and division in the movement."

"They have so far failed to achieve their pernicious objectives because the appeal of the non-aligned movement lies as much in its anti-bloc character as it is a visible affirmation of the freedom and independence of the Third World countries which belong to it," the Nigerian Commissioner for External Affairs told a plenary meeting.

About 15 nations, led by Liberia, Ivory Coast. Gabon. Senegal and Cameroon. are blocking the necessary concensus to suspend the government of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

In addition to their concern over oil prices, many African moderates contend the suspension of a member for pursuing peaceful policies violates the non-aligned movement's bylaws.

Arab delegates came to the non-Butros Ghali, the Egyptian minister of state for foreign affairs, said Friday morning an all-night meeting of the movement's political committee had produced neither a consensus to suspend the Sadat government nor to condemn the Camp David accord. Thirteen Arab and African leaders, meeting later Friday with Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda, apparently failed to reach a compromise despite urging by Castro.

Regulator: Private Lines Should Pay

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Southwestern Bell's private line customers should pay another $150 million a year to the phone company to cover Bell's revenue needs, a West Virginia utility regulator says.

Joel Shifman, a lawyer for the West Virginia Public Service Commission, testified Friday before the Texas Public Utility Commission on Bell's $145.2 million rate increase request.

He said he was hired by the Consumers Union and Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now (ACORN) testify.

Bell wants $105 million in new revenue to come from increases of $1.55 per month in household telephone bills and $4.65 monthly for single line business service.

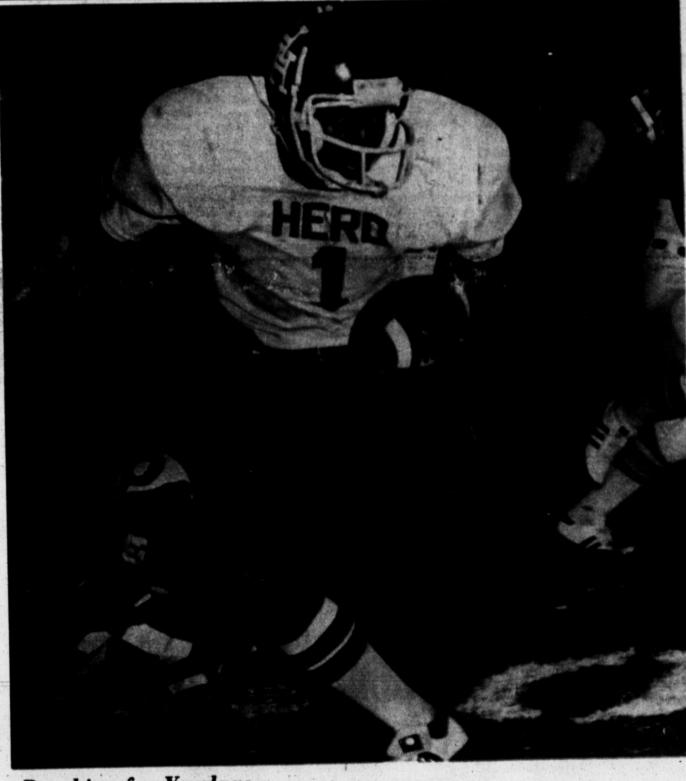

Shifman singled out private lines to meet the entire Bell revenue demand. Private lines are purchased by large businesses to maintain constant communication among various offices, stores and branches on telephone circuits dedicated exclusively to them.

"Sears. Roebuck in Dallas might have Bell set up a specific line to their Houston office." said Dale Johnson, Bell public relations man.

Private lines also are used for local fire alarm and security guard systems. Shifman said in pre-filed written

Senate Leaders Want Carter To Find Solution to Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate leaders are trying to give President Carter a free hand to negotiate a solution to the presence of Soviet combat troops in Cuba, but may be challenged by conservatives pressing for a tougher stand.

The issue could reach a head in the Senate as early as next week with a vote to delay debate on the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union as long as Russian troops are stationed 90 miles off the coast of Florida.

Retail Food Prices To See Slower Gain

WASHINGTON (AP) - Although an increase of 1.2 percent in the wholesale price of food last month is expected to push retail groceries higher in the near future, the rise will be less than the big hikes earlier this year, says the Agriculture Department.

One official who asked not to be named said Friday, after the wholesale price report by the Labor Department, that retail food prices still are expected to register "a small upward swing" in the fourth quarter of this year.

"It's something to be concerned about," the official said, "but it doesn't seem to point to a very large increase."

The Labor Department's index of socalled producer prices - formerly called wholesale prices - had either declined or had not changed in the four months before the 1.2 percent increase in

Officials said the gain was led by higher prices for fruits and vegetables, rice, bakery products, dairy products, coffee, sugar, pork and poultry. However, the wholesale price of beef and veal declined for the fourth consecutive month, and egg prices also dropped significantly. The National Cattlemen's Association, noting the decline in the government's index for wholesale beef prices last month, said that since mid-August. however, prices on the wholesale beef market "have shown an increase again."

Even so, it said, "prices remain less than the highs reached last spring, and retail prices also are down from previous peaks" earlier this year.

Preliminary figures by the Agriculture Department have been indicating for two weeks that the retail price of beef declined again in August for the third straight month.

Retail pork prices have been skidding since last February and dropped again in August, according to the latest USDA figures.

Meat and poultry price changes can have a substantial impact on overall retail food costs since those account for around 30 percent of family grocery spending, on the average, say department economists. Retail food prices still are expected to average about 11 percent higher over the entire 12 months of this year than they did in 1978, they say. An analysis issued by the Council on Wage and Price Stability and USDA earlier this week said retail food prices "increased in the first four months (of (See PRICES, Page 2)

Experts Say Spill May Be Dissipating

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - A multi-agency federal response team watching the world's biggest oil spill now thinks the assault on Texas by Mexican crude is on the wane.

"In the last week or so there's really been nothing significant happen," said Ben Moffett with the Interior Department. "They (the response team) feel the worst is over.

"They're fairly confident that there's not going to be any major impact now, or at least the major impact has already passed." Moffett said. "They're planning after Monday to quit the daily news briefing."

Meanwhile, two congressional committees began hearings today to try to determine why a Mexican oil well went out of control June 3, causing the spill.

The committees also want to know who is responsible for the spill. Pemex, the Mexican national oil company, operated the well with a rig leased from SEDCO, a Dallas-based drilling company founded by Texas Gov. Bill Clements.

The well has dumped close to 3 million barrels of oil into the Gulf of Mexico. Its flow has been reduced from 30,000 to 10,000 barrels a day.

Tourism along the coast has suffered an average 50 percent loss because of soiled beaches.

American and Mexican engineers have designed a special steel cap and rig to place over the wellhead later this month. The equipment should divert up to 80 percent of the flow into recovery tanks. The rest will be dispersed with chemicals or skimmed off the surface.

Work crews have removed most traces of oil from popular tourist beaches. Coast Guard reports show offshore waters are clear of large oil patches.

Moffett said a Navy surveillance flight over the Gulf Friday found a large dark splotch in the water that originally appeared to be thick, gummy oil actually was a large patch of seaweed.

Farmers Redeem Corn From Reserve Program

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farmers have redeemed 180.2 million bushels of corn from their government-sponsored grain reserve program, about 25 percent of the 732 m million bushels initially signed up for storage, says the Agriculture Department.

About 10 million bushels were redeemed during the past week, officials said Friday.

In all, nearly 1.3 million bushels of grain, mostly corn and wheat, were signed up in the program. Farmers had agreed to keep the grain in storage and thus off the market - for up to three years or until market prices rose enough to trigger its release.

Corn prices have been at or above the trigger or "release" level of $2.50 a bushel since June 19.

Former Lawyer Wants Practice

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) -'My dream is I will become a lawyer in America," said Hiep Do. "But in the shorter run, I need a job."

Do. 38; was an attorney in Saigon before the capital city fell to the Communists in 1975. Now he's an electronic technician in Sunnyvale. When his shift ends at one assembly plant, he wels to another to put in eight more hours.

Like Do. hundreds of Indochinese refugees have found work in the Santa Clara Valley's electronics industry - known here as "Silicon Valley," where a reported 35,000 jobs are waiting to be filled.

Lured by the valley's climate and jobs that demand little knowledge of English, the refugees eagerly take the chance to work overtime at tedious tasks to provide for relatives still in camps overseas.

There are increasing signs of resistance to the Vietnamese by longtime residents, but employers seem pleased with their efforts on the job. "They're conscientious at doing their work," said Dan Eesley, a spokesman for Amdahl Corp., one of the firms that employ Hiep Do. "They're better, it seems, than American workers" at precision assembly operations often done with the aid of a microscope.

Some firms give bonuses to employees who recommend a worker who is later hired. Memorex pays workers $75 for recommending an assembler who is hired and $150 for a technician. The assemblers start at $3.80 an hour and skilled technicians get $5.50 an hour to start.

"There has just been a shortage of skilled electronics people," said Eesley, adding that the bonus is "well worth it, considering the price you have to pay to recruit in a tough market."

Vu Khiem helps arrange jobs for about 40 of the nearly 300 refugees who arrive monthly and turn to the Indochinese Resettlement and Cultural Center in San Jose. Last year, 531 Indochinese found electronics jobs through the Center, Khiem

Many moved here from San Francisco or Oakland after they failed to find decent jobs because of a tight market and a language barrier. At best, most work as janitors or hotel help in San Francisco.

Besides the money, refugees find a psychological boost from working in the electronics industry. Do said. "They don't like being a janitor, they feel depressed. They try to find a profession, but they can't, even

For a year, he worked as a counselor to Vietnamese immigrants. But after two severe winters, Do left for San Jose when a friend wrote him of opportunities in the electronics in-

According to Khiem, refugees can apply for state and federal aid to study electronics.

To help fellow refugees, eight Vietnamese engineers living in the valley teach a three-month electronics course five nights a week. Khiem said. The teachers were forced to "select 50 - the cream of 200" who signed up. Khiem said.

But all is not well. In July, the Indochinese Training Project, the largest job skill program in the Bay area, closed before 43 classes could be completed because of a 50 percent cutback in federal funds.

And some local government officials are questioning how the influx of refugees will affect the job market for Americans.

One supervisor from San Mateo County, an area of comfortable suburbs sandwiched between San Francisco to the north and Santa Clara to the south, has requested a study to see how an influx of Indochinese might affect the county's job and housing market.

Another supervisor, Edward Bacciocco, said he'd ask the U.S. Congress to set a quota for refugees.

The resettlement agency, however, has had "surprisingly few letters and calls" objecting to the refugees' settling in the San Jose area, according to agency director Robert Fenley. As for Do, he says he tries not to think too much about the complaints or about how he lost his professional status and, instead, is pleased with his progress in this country.

Government Faced With Recession And Inflation

NEW YORK (AP) - Economic reports this past week underscore the dilemma faced by government policymakers in dealing with the twin problems of inflation and recession. Until this decade, the textbook cure for recession was more liberal government spending, tax cuts and efforts to provide funding to fuel an economic

But the phenomenon of rising prices at the same time the economy is slowing has created a problem with no proven or painless solution.

The Labor Department reported this past week that unemployment rose to 6 percent last month - its highest level in more than a year - providing further evidence of a broad economic slowdown and probably a recession. But at the same time, the Federal Reserve which is the chief government monetary authority, moved in the opposite direction of a traditional cure for recession. It put additional pressure on money markets, forcing up interest rates to new highs. Banks across the nation increased their prime lending rates to 121/2 or 123/4 percent as the government agency increased their costs of funds.

Four Boys Die In One Car Crash

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) -Four teen-age boys, all from Commerce, died in a one-car auto crash near this North Central Texas town early today, the Department of Public Safety reported.

The car they were riding in ran off Farm to Market Road 2068 six miles north of town, struck a culvert, overturned and burned, said DPS spokesman Richard Grimmett.

The accident occurred at about 4 a.m. Three youths were dead at the scene and one died in Greenville while being rushed to a Dallas hospital, Grimmett said

The dead were Eric Anthony Kennedy, 15, Jeff Shannon, 16, Greg Carter, 16, and Ajay Chopra, 17.

The risk is that, in fighting inflation, the government would worsen the economic slowdown. Tight credit may slow business operations, reduce consumer measures to combat inflation buying and ultimately result in fewer jobs.

The increase in unemployment to 6 percent in August from 5.7 percent the previous month didn't come as much of a surprise because of signs that an economic slowdown has been under way since last spring.

The administration predicts the jobless rate will rise to 6.9 percent next year - an increase of about 1.2 million unemployed Americans from current levels. However, a less optimistic even if the medicine is internal government report distasteful.

predicts the jobless rate may hit 8.2 percent in the fall of 1980 -2.5 million more unemployed people than now.

The balancing act between and efforts to avoid a severe recession is to a large extent a matter of guesswork. And arguments over relief measures for a recession - like a tax cut - are already bumping up against the high interest rate moves which may aggravate a downturn. Paul Volcker, who was recently appointed chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, is a chief proponent of the argument that inflation fighting should be the government's chief priority.

Towers Protected Despite Possible Dangers

AUSTIN. Texas (AP) - Since May 6, 1895, the lights perched high atop a series of towers here have provided a warm moonlight-like glow on the city. The romantics hereabouts say the surviving towers are 165-foot tall chunks of history. But the man who has to keep the lights working is not quite as sentimental about the artifical moonlight towers.

"If I had my way, we'd be taking them all down," Marshall Reed said.

Even tower supporter Betty

Baker says "economics do not support" the towers. But the 21 surviving towers have a dedicated following here, Mrs. Bak-the towers. The number has dwindled - victimized by weather, bus drivers who miscalculated turns and other natural phenomena.

They are the only such towers

Mrs. Baker said.

"Just like the word says." said C.E. Moore of the city electric department, "they provide moonlight."

But Reed, a maintenance supervisor for the city, says the artificial moonlight is too hard to maintain.

"From that standpoint the things are outdated. They're are two of them we won't even go up. They've been condemned." he said.

Reed has experienced the unequalled thrill of having the decaying steps on a tower give way beneath his feet.

"I was about halfway up but I've been trained not to try to grab hold of the steps if they give out," he said.

The wrought and cast iron towers were obtained in the 1890s from the city of Fort Wayne, Ind. Austin swapped an old railroad for the lights.

The towers originally supported carbon are lights that had to be hand-lit each night. City workers would crank their elevators. Mercury vapor lights were put up in 1936. The massive towers are steadied by steel

We have just celebrated Labor Day, honoring all those who make America the greatest country in the world. For 24 hours, the nation actually paused to recognize the contributions our farmers. laborers, business people. clerks, scientists and so many others are making. But then it was quickly back to reality, and to a world that, ironically. resembles more and more the one Jefferson and his compatriots rebelled against--one where unchecked power and privilege in the hands of a new elite are gradually smothering the American dream for all who revere it. Consider these facts.

Almost everyone in America agrees that inflation is our single greatest domestic problem; too few understand the federal government promotes inflation because it profits from it. As government's printing WASHINGTON - Thomas and spending of moeny sends prices up, individuals and businesses seek wage and price increases to offset their new words to his friend John Adams: costs. But even though their "lagree with you that there is a resulting higher levels of natural aristocracy among men.' income and profits do not The grounds of these are virtue represent a real gain, since they only compensate for inflation. Jefferson was speaking as a the government automatically true revolutionary, rejecting taxes them at a higher rate. So bureaucrats have more money

What would Jefferson have said about a government The small merchant, farmer, grabbing tens of billions of printer, blacksmith and carpen- dollars in windfall taxes each ter-these were the people year without even asking the he hopes could better their lives public's permission? But of course we're not asked because What has become of that we're not supposed to know. If noble idea? Are we still too many people catch on- and inflation.

But if that were true, how has the federal bureaucracy become our single biggest spender. borrower and employer, growing nearly 50 percent fster than the underlying economy, while paying salaries averaging 40 percent higher than those in the private sector? And if the cost of government is truly inconsequential, why have taxes shot up so much faster than wages and profits, and why do they now consume the largest share of the family budget? Who's kidding whom? The federal government understands perfectly well the impact of its policies. That is why Congress and the White House granted themselves generous pay increases while lecturing us on the virtue of sacrifice. That is why Congress. so neatly exempted itself from regulations it insists everyone else obey. And that is why you must pay the huge Social Security tax increases but federal employees do not, even though a majority of them qualify (through spouse benefits. moonlighting or second careers) for Social Security benefits. What a beautiful game. They never lose!

And here's the knockout punch: Even as government's deficit spending fuels the inflation that destroys the fixed values of private pensions. government officials are protecting themselves at your expense. They are committing your tax dollars to index their own pensions to the rate of inflation. And since federal workers can retire earlier. inflation and time could compound these benefits bevond belief. Twenty years from now, retired federal clerks could be receiving annual incomes of $100.000. Potential commitments like these represent an economic time bomb just waiting to explode.

We can still salvage Jefferson's dream of a better life, but only by addressing these very serious problems and by protecting the common interests of all working Americans. Otherwise the new aristocracy, the federal bureaucrats, will have already answered the question, "Why not the best?". by providing the best of all worlds-- for themselves.

American Family

Of all the American institutions that are under attack, the home seems to be crumbling the most. Certainly, most Americans live in homes that are happy, where families live together in harmony and love. But there is also a great increase in the homes which merely serve as a place to change clothes, sleep, snack, and watch television. The traditional American home has included a working father, a homemaking mother, and dependent children. It may surprise some folks to learn that only 15.9 per cent of American homes fall into this category today.

Last year there were 22 divorces for every 100 marriages, and the divorce rate is much higher than that in some parts of the country.

It is an accepted thing these days, and divorce does not carry the social stigma that it once did. People can get a divorce without a great deal of trouble, and it happens every day. Still, even in the so-called friendly divorce, the participants undergo severe trauma which affects them for life.

Some professors and marriage counselors maintain that romantic love is passing from the scene, due to free sex lives and easy birth control. They say this leads to disappearance of marriages founded on mutual illusions and cosmetic images. Unmarried couples who live together have become so common that law firms advertise their services to draw up "non-marriage contracts" covering financial arrangements of the parties

Our government is doing its part toward erosion of home life by tax rates. In most instances working couples must pay more taxes than two single persons with the same incomes. A recent article in Dun's Review summarized predictions indicating further decline of the home. It said that by 1985 there will be more divorces annually than first marriages and that one of every three households will be headed by a single person. Oklahoma State University researchers have found that "strong families" expressed genuine appreciation of each other, spent "quality time" together, were good communicators, exhibited a high degree of religious commitment, trusted each other and complemented one another's contributions to the home life. In the smaller communities there is a greater sense of family than in the larger metropolitan areas where the population is more mobile. The American family is still strong but its days may be numbered. Somehow, we can't believe this can be called progress.

Basically, productivity is a way of measuring the effectiveness of an economy according to output per individual worker. Rising productivity, increasing output of goods and services per individual, is the sign and the impetus of a healthily expanding economy.

In the United States. productivity is still rising, but at a progressively slower rate. A considerable body of expert opinion believes this is the essential problem with the American economy, underlying and contributing to mounting trade deficits, the declining dollar and inflation.

That includes Jimmy Carter. who has fingered unsatisfactory productivity as a symptom of the malaise he sees afflicting the American spirit.

> That is not sufficient to keep pace with the rest of the industrialized world. As the congressional joint economic committee observes in a current somber report: "If present trends continue. German and French workers will be outproducing us within six years: Japanese and Canadian workers will follow soon thereafter.

It might be asked why it should matter whether U.S. workers fall behind their foreign counterparts in the productivity race. The answer is that in the short term it would make more difficult if not impossible the effort to balance U.S. trade bills and halt the decline of the dollar's value on

Although Southern Cal has been touted in many quarters as a super team, Coach John Robinson is trying hard to downplay that kind of talk.

"We try to talk realistically to the players and tell them the differences between talent and success," he says. "We're not a powerhouse."

For some reason, Tech's Rex Dockery doesn't buy that. "It is unbelievable the num-

"Texas Tech will be one of the surprise teams in college football this season," he says. "At the end of the year I wouldn't be surprised if they're ranked in the top 15. The philosphy of the local YMCA that every one that is involved in the programs can feel like a winner is not a new way to approach sports but regardless of its innovativeness it is revolutionary in these times when the creed of most individuals is "winning in the only way, regardless of the cost."

While this motto may be applicable in the professional leagues, in after school sports for kids when that is the creed. then there is going to be youngsters hurt in the drive to make the team victorious in every endeavor.

The YMCA programs for kids offer the chance for competition, which every individual needs, but it also offers the chance for everyone to play, with the emphasis on winning not as important as the chance for each individual involved to have fun and learn some of the basics of the sport.

Local athletes that are playing in colleges across the nation have been reported on by the various university's to the Brand and the information is worth passing on.

Dave Charest at West Point is tabbed as one of the top returners for the Cadets in the defensive secondary. Charest, a 1976 Hereford graduate is in his senior year at the academy and is touted as being one of the hardest hitters on the squad. Coach Lou Saben notes that Chrest is an aggressive player and will help anchor the Cadet's veteran defensive backfield.

Paul Bell over at West Texas is playing on the specialty teams and seeing some action at the tailback spot in his first year of college ball. In the Buffs first game of the season last weekend, Bell made a key tackle on the specialty teams and got the chance to carry the ball four times in the contest.

Another Hereford athlete that has been given some attention that we received is Karen Grimsley, a 1977 graduate of Hereford and for the last two years a letter winner at Frank Phillips in Borger just signed a scholarship with Wayland to continue her collegiate tennis career. While here in Hereford Miss Grimsley lettered three years and was named the outstanding girls tennis player at the school her senior season.

If there are any other local athletes that are participating in college, let the Brand know of their progress.

The Hereford Twisters completed league play in the Northwest Soccer league earlier in the fall with a fourth place finish in the 10 team league. The twisters ended the season with a 10-5-3 record with a total of 23 points. Chile-Dumas won the conference with a 17-1 record and 34 points.

Harvesters Blitz Whitefaces In Opener

Deflected Pass

PAMPA - Pampa parlayed a balanced offense and six Hereford turnovers into a 22-0 season-opening football victory before 4,000 fans Friday night in Harvester Stadium.

The Harvesters, ranked low in District 3-AAAA used a tenacious defense, led by noseguard Clyde Coffee, tackle Danny Buzzard and linebacker Mark Jennings, to hold Hereford to 65 yards rushing in the game while recovering four second-half fumbles.

Hereford turned the ball over five times in its six second-half possessions, which included a drive to the Harvester 24-yard line--the visitors' deepest penetration of the contest. Linebacker Mone Covalt recovered Joe Mitchum's fumble after a 16-yard run to stop the Hereford threat with 9:26 left in the

"We were behind 15-0 at that point, and I thought we still had a chance to win," Hereford Coach Don Cumpton said afterwards. "That play really hurt us."

The Harvesters then drove 76 yards in 12 plays, capped by a 23-yard option pass from halfback Sam Edwards--a second-team quarterback--to Jeff McDougall. The touchdown came at 4:29 in the final period, and the extra-point boot by Billy Grimes made it 22-0.

Edwards recovered another Whiteface fumble on Hereford's next series, allowing the hosts to run out the clock. Pampa took a 3-0 lead early in the game on a 27-yard field goal by Grimes after the Harvesters drove from their own 22 to Hereford's nine. Big plays in the drive included a 14-yard romp by halfback Arthur Williams and 28-yard pass from Greg Quarles to Steve McDougal, 3-AAAA's leading receiver

Lyle, 5-8, gave up a leadoff ninth, and pinch-hitter Glenn Adams tagged Kern for a single to make the game close. But

Kern retired the last three batters to record his 24th save and keep the Rangers faint

Mitchum fumbled with 5:33 left in the half, and Coffee recovered on Hereford's 11. Five plays later, Williams dived over left guard for the touchdown. Grimes missed the extra point.

The Harvesters, led by a 15-yard Doug Kennedy ramble and 14-yard pass from Quarles to McDougal, marched from their own 37 to the Hereford 14 on their first possession of the second half. Halfback Bobby Dorsey took a pitch from Quarles, raced around right end and bounced off a Hereford tackler to give Pampa a 14-0 lead. Grimes again missed on the conversion.

Hereford entered Harvester territory only once in the first half--on its first series of the game when it drove from its own 20 to the Pampa 45. The Harvesters held on downs, forcing a Derek Dirks punt.

Pampa outrushed Hereford, 204 yards to 65, in the game and gained 294 total yards to the Whitefaces' 142.

Hereford quarterback Derek Dirks completed five of nine passes for 66 yards, while substitute Alan Wartes hit on two of three attempts for 18 vards and one interception. Norman Hill, the third Whiteface quarterback in the game, completed one of three tosses for five yards.

Quarles, who played bigger than his 5-6, 120-pound frame, completed three of nine passes for 67 yards and one interception. Safety Edward Dominguez intercepted Quarles with 10:32 left in the game, but Hereford gave the ball back three plays later on Mitchum's 16-yard gainer and fumble.

Pampa's balanced rushing attack was led by Kennedy, with 74 yards on 16 carries, and Williams with 47 yards on eight rushes. Kennedy rushed for 62 vards in the second half, while Williams gained 47.

Quarles, a cat-quick senior, ran eight times for 36 yards, 26 in the first half.

Hereford's leading ball carrier was Mitchum with nine tries for 29 yards.

Defensivelý, the Herd was led by defensive end Aubrey Richburg; who blocked a Brian WIlliams punt midway through the second period, and noseguard Cory Christie, whose tackle of Kennedy early in the game thwarted a fake-punt attempt by the Harvesters.

"We just made too many mistakes," Cumpton said. "We made a lot of mental and physical mistakes--every time we'd get any momentum going, we'd turn the ball over. Pampa did a good job and didn't make those kinds of mistakes.

"We had several opportunities after we'd made a couple of first downs in a row, then we'd get a penalty or fumble. It killed

Harvester Coach Danny Palmer said his running backs came alive in the second half.

"In the first half, our backs did not run hard and we weren't coming off the ball. What helped us the most was taking the ball in on our first series in the second half. That was the turning point," Palmer said.

"Fumbles hurt Hereford bad. Of course, our intensity had a lot to do with their fumbles. But Hereford battled us."

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) - Minnesota was given permission by the American League to start printing playoff tickets Friday, but the vote of confidence didn't do much for the Twins, who lost 5-4 to Texas and fell another game back of Western Division-leading Cali-

"The numbers say I'm not dead yet." said Texas skipper Pat Corrales. "We won't quit until the numbers tell us to."

The miracle Twins, young and sassy under the leadership of Gene Mauch, fell 41/4 games back of California and are chasing a team they cannot play again this year.

The Rangers, torn with internal strife and a revolving door personnel policy this season, at least have six games left to play with the Angels, so there is a glimmer of hope.

Sundberg snapped a 3-3 tie singling off loser Mike Marshall in the eighth inning to drive in Willie Montanez, who had doubled with two outs. Then in the ninth, Mickey Rivers tripled and scored on a single by Bump Wills. Al Oliver followed with a single and Marshall, who had replaced Twins' starter Geoff Zahn at the

Chargers Looking For Revenge Of 'Madden Play'

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

It has become known in Naional Football League circles as the "Madden Play," To keep other teams from pulling a sim-Har stunt the league has instituted what many fans refer to as the "Madden Rule."

'Ten years in the NFL, 103 wins, and the only thing some people remember me for is that one play." says John Madden, was coaching the Oakland Raiders a year ago when quarterback Ken Stabler. running back Pete Banaszak and tight end Dave Casper teamed for one of the wildest touchdowns ever.

It came against the Chargers in San Diego, on the last play of the game and, with Errol

> Dr. Milton Adams OPTOMETRIST

> > Phone 364-2255

OFFICE HOURS Mon.-Fri., 8:30 to 5 P.M. Mann's conversion, it gave the Raiders a 21-20 victory.

The Chargers have been waiting a year for Oakland to venture into San Diego so they can get even. On Sunday they get their chance.

Also on Sunday it's Houston at Pittsburgh, Cincinnati at Buffalo, Minnesota at Chicago, New Orleans vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, the New York Jets at New England, St. Louis at the New York Giants, Washington at Detroit, Tampa Bay at Baltimore, Cleveland at Kansas City, Dallas at San Francisco and Seattle at Miami. Monday night's game is Atlanta at Philadelphia.

What happened in San Diego a year ago was this:

With a fourth down, no time outs left and about 10 seconds to play, Stabler faded back to pass, then was chased out of the pocket. As he was being tackled he underhanded the ball forward. Banaszak appeared to try and pick the ball up, but all he did was push it closer to the goal line. Then came Casper, who kicked and dribbled the ball into the end zone, where he fell on it for the tying touchdown.

Despite the outcry from the Chargers, the officials ruled it a fumble by Stabler and a legal recovery. It wasn't until well after the game that Stabler admitted it wasn't a fumble at all but that he had deliberately tossed the ball ahead and that the officials had, in effect, blown the call.

Even a 27-23 victory by the Chargers in Oakland later in the 1978 season, which helped San Diego finish in a three-way tie with the Raiders and Seattle at 9-7, didn't fully wash away the sour taste of the notorious fumble.

The Raiders - and the rest of the league - won't be able to get away with that kind of horseplay any more. From now on, if a player fumbles on a fourth-down play - or on any down during the last two minutes of either half - only he can recover and advance the ball. If a teammate recovers it, the ball is brought back to the point of the fumble.

Both Stabler, rebounding from last year's 30-interception season, and San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts, began 1979 in fine fashion. Stabler tossed three touchdown passes, two to Raymond Chester, in a 24-17 victory over Los Angeles while Fouts completed 21 of 30 passes for 224 yards in a 33-16 triumph Banaszak, like Madden, retired after last season, and Stabler probably won't do much passing to Casper on Sunday. The All-Pro tight end missed most of training camp over a salary dispute and was activated earlier this week. "Right now he's our third-team tight end." said a spokesman for the Raiders.

The Oakland-San Diego game isn't the day's only "rematch" of consequence. In Pittsburgh, Houston will be out to avenge its 34-5 loss to the Steelers in last year's American conference title game - and tight end Mike Barber of the Oilers says he can't wait for his first face-toface meeting with defensive back Mike Wagner of Pittsburgh. Wagner, ducking to avoid a collision with Barber, hit him at the knee and knocked him out of the game. Barber vowed to get even with Wagner.

Cincinnati and Baltimore will be trying for the second weekend to score their first points of the season. Coaches Ray Perkins of the Giants. Bill Walsh of San Francisco and New England's Ron Erhardt are each still looking for NFL victory No. 1. Tom Flores got his as a rookie coach last week with the

Houston Astros Remain On Top Despite 9-2 Loss

HOUSTON (AP) - Joaquin Andujar, who is 12-11 on the year and 1-6 since the All Star game in which he pitched. doesn't like the decision by Houston Astros Manager Bill Virdon to put him in the bullpen

Virdon downplayed Andujar's remarks, however. "I don't put much in that," he said. "That's just Joaquin. There's no problem. He'll be okay tomorrow."

Unfortunately for the Astros. he wasn't okay Friday as the Giants jumped on him for six hits and four runs that marked dropped on six Astros pitchers by San Francisco.

Meanwhile, Vida Blue was going the distance, scattering seven hits as he ran his season record to 11-13.

The loss by Houston wasn't as traumatic as it could have been, however, since a 6-5 victory by Los Angeles over Cincinnati kept the Astros on top of the National League West by 1/4

Houston scored first with single runs in the first and second innings, but San Francisco came back with two of its own in the third to tie the score.

The fourth inning was the Astros' undoing, however. Andujar left the game after giving up a walk to John LeMaster, an infield single to Dennis Littlejohn and a sacrifice bunt to Randy Niemann came in long enough to watch LeMaster score on a close play at the plate when Max Venable grounded to second, then give up a walk to Rob Andrews, who finished the night with three hits, two stolen bases and three runs scored.

Ric Williams faced five batters and gave up three more hits, including a two-run single by Mike Ivie and RBI singles by Greg Johnston and Larry Herndon, who knocked in three runs with three hits on the PITTSBURGH (AP) - Joe Greene and the Pittsburgh Steelers take on Earl Campbell and the Houston Oilers here Sunday in a rematch of last January's American Football Conference championship.

"You talk about violence in football. Campbell running is violence," says Greene, expected to return to the Steeler defensive line after missing the Pittsburgh opener with a knee injury.

There's a school of thought that perhaps the 5-foot-11, 225pound Campbell is too physical - that he takes too much of a pounding and that it might shorten his career.

'The people who talk about him taking a pounding ain't hit him," said Greene. "He should

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) The Dallas Cowboys, whose soal is to reach the Super Bowl a third straight time, go up against the San Francisco 49ers, a team thinking more about first downs, on weekend No. 2 of the National Football League

It's probably the best time to run into a team like Dallas, noted as he prepared for Sunday's home opener.

"Later in the season is when the better teams generally are more highly regarded blockers at their strongest and win more than Simpson's. than their share," Walsh said. "Every year in the NFL, you see upsets that stun people. We're not going to take ourselves out of that category.'

Against Dallas, the 49ers will be using O.J. Simpson, second

> Coach Tom Landry's Cowboys have one victory behind them but barely avoided being upset last weekend. They beat the St. Louis Cardinals 22-21 when Rafael Septien's field goal attempt with 1:16 remaining glanced off an upright and through for three points. The 49ers, a 2-14 team last season under two since-departed head coaches, were within a few seconds of winning for Walsh last week. But a controversial late touchdown by Minnesota's Ahmad Rashad made the Vikings 28-22 win-

"I just don't involve myself in that." Walsh said of the followup controversy over whether Rashad fumbled before crossing the goal line. "As soon as I got a good night's sleep - and, believe it or not, it was that night - I put all my thoughts on Dallas."

Walsh's thoughts are on such problems as defending against quarterback Roger Staubach, who opened the season with a 269-yard passing day, and running backs Dorsett, Robert Newhouse and rookie Ron Springs. Dorsett has recovered from a broken toe. Newhouse is coming off a 108-yard rushing performance against St. Louis, but suffered a sprained ankle.

"There is a chance we'll move Springs to fullback," Landry said of the former Ohio State player who ran for 30 yards and threw a 30-yard touchdown pass in his first NFL

Staubach didn't throw for any touchdowns last week but two of his 20 completions were for more than 40 yards. San Francisco quarterback Steve DeBerg completed 29 passes, but 19 were to running backs.

"We'd like to throw long, but we'll probably continue to throw 15 to 20 passes a game to our running backs and we make no apologies," said Walsh.

Fourth-seeded Gerulaitis had to take on the fireball serve and white-hot eagerness of Tanner in today's other semi.

This was the first time since 1950 that the American championship semifinals have been populated by Americans only.

The second-seeded Connors has played well here, dropping just one set. With Borg out of the way now, one might think his way would be easier. But Connors has played just a little below the level of his previous triumphant campaigns here.

Expos Throw Game Away; Drop Game

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The Montreal Expos haven't been making too many mistakes lately, so it was about time for one. And what a beaut it was,

Playing peerless baseball in a 10-game winning streak that thrust them into the thick of the National League East race, the Expos literally threw a game away Friday night against the St. Louis Cardinals.

"It was a mental lapse for a second," said second baseman Dave Cash, whose blunder cost the Expos the game. Cash committed a cardinal baseball sin by failing to cover second base when Tony Scott broke from first for the bag. As a result, catcher Gary Garter's throw sailed into center field and Ted Simmons sailed home from third with the go-ahead run as the Cardinals won 5-4 Friday night.

"It was just one of those things." sighed Cash. "It was a mistake on my part and it cost

Dave Parker's single drove home the tie-breaking run as Pittsburgh scored twice in the 14th inning to beat New York.

Phil Garner was walked by Neil Allen, 4-9, to start the inning and stole second base. With two outs, third baseman Richie Hebner's throwing error on Tim Foli's grounder moved Garner to third and put Foli at first. Parker then singled home the winning run before Foli scored the second run of the inning on a passed ball by catcher Alex Trevino.

Grant Jackson, 7-4, the fifth Pittsburgh pitcher, allowed only one hit in 32-3 innings to gain the victory.

Dodgers 6, Reds 5

Gary Thomasson's ninth-inning s.sacrifice fly lifted Los Angeles over Cincinnati. Robert Castillo, 2-0, the fourth Dodger pitcher, was the winner with last-inning relief help in the ninth from Gerald Hannahs. who struck out the side to gain his first save for Los Angeles. Tom Hume, 9-8, took the loss for the Reds. The Reds had tied the game at 5-5 with a two-run eighth.

Cubs 4, Phillies 3 Barry Foote's tie-breaking double in the ninth inning scored pinch-runner Miguel Diione as Chicago defeated Philadelphia and snapped a sevengame losing streak.

With one out in the ninth. Jerry Martin singled and Dilone, running for Martin, scored from first on Foote's second double of the game. Dennis Lamp, 11-8, was the winner with the loss going to reliever Tug McGraw, 3-3.

Padres 8, Braves 0 San Diego breezed past Atlanta as Gene Tenace and Dave Winfield blasted home runs and Eric Rasmussen hurled a sixhitter. Rasmussen, 4-8, pitching only his third complete game in 16 starts, walked none and struck out three. Eddie Solomon, 6-11, was the loser.

for American men's basketball

AP Sports Writer MEXICO CITY (AP) - It was an unusual, awkward, difficult and highly unpleasant situation

After his team, the defending champions and favorites in the 10th World University Games, had won their first three games by an average margin of 130 points, he was explaining how they'd managed to lose to Yugoslavia 79-73.

"We made mistakes and they capitalized on them," Anderson said after watching his team fritter away a 19-point lead and commit numerous errors Friday night. "We lost our momentum."

It wasn't necessarily a fatal lapse in the second round of competition, but the Americans must regain that momentum immediately to avoid elimination. They must win their next two games, against Bulgaria and Canada, to reach the semifinals.

And that wasn't the only upset suffered by the United States in these biennial, multiple-sport games that have drawn college-age athletes from 95 countries.

The Americans, who had dominated the swimming events, could win only one of four finals Friday, getting a games-record performance from the men's 400 meter medley relay team and a winning effort by Kirk Peppas on the final, freestyle leg.

The only other bright spot came from the women's basketball team. They expected to be pushed to the limit by Cuba, the Pan American Games champion and fresh off an upset triumph over the mighty Russians. But the Americans responded with a convincing, 105-74 rout of the Cubans and remained unbeaten. They play the defending champion Russians tonight.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

The loudest snore, according to the Guinness Book of World Records, was measured at 69 decibels at St. Mary's Hospital in London. Until last night.

The record was broken in the bed next to mine by my husband, who sustained life at a rousing 72 decibels. (Seventy-two decibels is the equivalent of having a cannon go off in the seat next to you in the Astrodome).

You would expect the snorer to have some compassion for the snoree, but this is never the case. Angry retorts of, "How do YOU know I'm snoring?" have to be documented by lampshades blown off the base, pictures blasted off their hooks and restless farm animals as far as 50 miles away.

Frankly. I'm sick of all the therapist remedies that never seem to work, like self-hypnosis, earplugs and rolling the snorer off his back.

The following are the only methods of relief that have Change beds: Get the snorer out of his own bed and into a strange one...preferably in another state. The pillow technique: Get a large fluffy pillow. When the breathing becomes deafening, put it squarely over every opening in his face and hold there until some demands are Forestalling sleep: This one works as well as any I've tried. Just as you are both climbing into bed, get every nerve in his body on alert by offhandedly mentioning. "The IRS called you today, but will call you back tomorrow," or, "You seemed so tired today. I hope you don't have the same thing the late Fred Witherall had.

Humiliation route: Place a tape recorder by his bed and the next night when he is watching TV, play it and tell him someone is stealing his car.

Other experts believe you have to get to the root of a husband's reason for snoring. It has been suggested a person snores because he is troubled. his dentures don't fit properly. he indulges in excessive smoking or drinking, has swollen tonsils or suffers from old age.

My husband doesn't snore for any of those reasons. He snores for one thing alone...to annoy me. As I velled to him the other morning at 3 a.m.. "You'd do anything to keep from talking to me.

I thought I saw him smile.

Scribbles & Scratches

By Kerrie Steiert Women's Editor

You know that the day is headed downhill when the dog shreds the morning paper before you've had the opportunity to check your horoscope.

If the first week of this month is any indication, we'll be lucky to get out of September alive. Our bio-rhythms must be at a critical point.

It's interesting how people justify the hard knocks of life with fanciful theories, such as horoscopes, bio-rhythms, atmospheric pressure, etc. The current trend is to blame every mishap on bio-rhythms, based on the idea that a person's daily performance is steered by the three cycles: intellectual, emotional and physical, beginning at birth. When charted these three cycles cross each other, causing a "critical" period when that person will not be functioning at 100 percent of potential.

It is quite unsophisticated to be living in ignorance of your bio-rhythms.

They are serious business to some airlines and taxi services, who do not allow their pilots or drivers to carry passengers on critical days. Another indication of the rising import of bio-rhythms is the fact that Reader's Digest published a three-page article on the subject, ranking it right there next to "My Most Unforgettable Character."

Bio-rhythms could open up a whole new realm of excuses for a variety of sinners--tardy students income tax evaders, inefficient homemakers, even Richard Nixon. Jimmy Carter, whose bio-rhythms were obviously soaring in 1976, can blame his dip in the polls on hazardous dips in his bio-charts.

We suppose it all boils down to which theory you take comfort in when life is raining on your

For example, if the boss calls you in on the carpet, you find your first gray hair and the neighbor's kid runs his Green Machine through your garden, by all means, blame it on the equinox if that eases the pain.

On the other hand, dependable old Murphy's Law is usually a soothing linament for that new dent in the rear of your 1978 jalopy, which was hit by an anonymous driver on the parking lot of the hospital, where you took your son after he knocked out his front teeth.

And, should you get overdrawn at the bank, find

DEAR POLLY - I would like to know if anyone knows how to whiten dingy nylon slips that are supposed to be white but have a gray look. -

Polly Cramer

Slips have gone dingy

DEAR. MRS.L.L. - Have you ever tried using color remover that one buys at the dye section in a variety store? Follow the directions on the package carefully and do not put in the washer. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Recently 1 broke the wire on my cheese slicer. My husband had just replaced the strings on his guitar and I found the smallest steel wire was just right for my cheese cutter. Hope this will be a problem solver for other reeders. — MRS. L.R.W.

DEAR POLLY - When we moved into a new house the old framed lithographs that looked nice on painted walls looked very drab against paneling. But I successfully solved the problem. I bought some flat paint in a color that appears in my rug and sofa and painted the grooves around the frames on these pictures. This is often done with offwhite paint. The color brought out the pictures and the contrast against the paneling is striking.

For a more dressy look I applied velvet ribbon to other frames with craft glue. Be sure to angle the corners just like the frame so it has a professional look. — CATHY DEAR POLLY — Neither my wife nor I care for baked goods but we often have friends over for coffee and cake. Instead of having most of a coffee cake go to waste we buyseveral dozen sweet rolls at a time and wrap each one in foil and then freeze. A couple of hours before company comes we take out just the number needed and they are fresh as the day they were bought. - MR.R.W.G. Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper,

Take on hot Texas sun, mix with a full measure of blue sky and add a dash of sparkling lake water (almost any Texas recreation site or even your own backyard may be substituted). Blend in a generous amount of fun and laughter and garnish with thick, juicy slices of ice-cold Texas watermelon.

Texas watermelon producers harvested 4.4 million hundredweight of the melons last year and the 1979 harvest is currently in full swing across the state, according to the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Help cushion the impact of high prices by becoming an informed shopper. Consider the purchase of a new refrigerator or a microwave oven. This may seem simple until the search begins through the multicolored world of no-frost refrigerators and the variable power touchcontrol microwave appliances.

Most consumers know little about refrigerators, much less microwave ovens, since they are bought only two or three times in a lifetime.

Reliable information about these products is the key to being a smart shopper. Guatamala City Exchange Student Moves Into Couple's Home At Dawn

Brand Staff Writer

Greeting their first foreign exchange student at the air terminal in Amarillo recently was a moment of anxiety shared by Mr. and Mrs. Dale Wofford of Dawn.

The exchange student, coming from Guatamala City, Guatamala in Central America arrived in Amarillo Thursday, Aug. 29. He will return home in June of 1980.

Otto Salguero, 15, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Salguero of Esguipulas. Guatamala. His father owns and operates the Hotel Monte Cristo and a construction company. His mother teaches primary school at Pedro Nufid in Esguipuas. Otto has two older brothers and an older sister. The student coming from a country of vast trees and mountains, found the United States to be more advanced scientifically and a more experimental country. He, was quoted in saying. "People are much more friendly in the United States than over in Mexico. I have made alot of friends

Otto was born January 31, 1964 in Esguipulas, Guatamala. Before moving into the United States, he attended San Sebastian Catholic Boarding School in Mexico. Presently he is enrolled as a sophomore student at HerefordoHigh School.

The schools in Mexico as Otto explained them are much smaller and not as educational as the U.S. school systems.

"Schools here are so much bigger. They have better sport activities, and better classrooms. We study the same thing in Mexico but more is taught here," stated the young student. Classes in Guatamala are scheduled from 7 a.m. to 12 p.m., resuming from 2-5 p.m. Students in Guatamala attend a full 91/2 months before their summer vacation begins. The exchange student's hobbies include listening to music and watching TV, stating his favorite programs in te U.S. are "Charlie Angels." "Chips." "Little House on the Prairie." and "Starsky and Hutch." He also favors horseback riding and boating.

Before arriving in the U.S., Otto was a member of the basketball team in Guatamalo. At Hereford High, he is active in basketball, Spanish II, English, Mathematics, Ag I. and world history. His ambition is to become an architect or agricultural engineer.

The exchange student speaks little English and he does his studies through an interpretor. Many of his teachers at Hereford High are Spanish-speaking.

At home with his foster parents, Otto communicates with his limited English while Mrs. Wofford uses the small portion of Spanish she knows. If the two run into a speaking difficulty, they use a Spanish-English dictionary.

Otto also has an interest in the farming techniques used in America. He would like to study more about local agricultural in hopes of taking home with him a few helpful farm techniques.

After his return home in June of 1980, Otto plans to return to the U.S., finish his high school studies and continue into

The foreign exchange student is the first for the Wofford's to house. They applied through the Western International Fellowship program and immediately received the student. They learned of the exchange program through an article which appeared in The Brand.

The couple would like to house more exchange students and recommend the program to other families interested in bringing a foreign student into their home. They suggested that its best to do so while their children are still in school and

"Otto has such a good rapport with my sixteen-year-old son Bert. He really seems to be able to adjust better knowing that someone his age is around," stated Mrs. Wofford.

The Guatamalan guest has brought delight into the Wofford family

"He hasn't been any trouble. He's very neat, tidy and he even has his room clean before school every morning. He also attends church with us," she added smiling.

The young boy misses his family but is looking forward to seeing them in November when they plan to travel through America with a stop in Dawn to visit Otto and the Woffords.

saying the American Telephone is less attractive to investors than it once was because of lower earnings and higher risks. The risks include both competition and the actions of such regulatory bodies as the utility commission in setting limits on

He predicted competition will become "pervasive ... through-

"A large part of the problem

"WE CARE" 411 E. Sixth - Hereford - 364-2211

By F. MICHAEL CARR Executive Vice President

Emergency situations have various effects on all of us.

To some of us an emergency is not an emergency unless it has a direct effect on us. It is true that all of us may not be involved in an emergency situation that might occur, but it is important that all of us are aware of how we can be of assistance.

Whenever a fire or accident occurs it usually creates a sense of interest which is only natural. However, this interest can often slow down the response time of our fire department or police department. In a time of crisis just a few seconds are critical. These seconds are even more critical if it is an emergency that involves us or our loved ones. This is where we all need to pull Several areas of town are especially hectic in times of emergency. It is these places in particular that we must remember some basic laws. Emergency vehicles have the right of way while on the way to an emergency location. If the fire truck or ambulance must wait for traffic, it can lose valuable time. Highway 60 is one area that we need to be aware of because of the heavy traffic load. Because of this traffic, we must all cooperate. Whenever the occasion occurs, we all need to remember to pull over immediately. Since we don't normally know the nature of the emergency, we'll need to treat them all the same.

With the police, fire department, highway patrol, sheriff's department and each of us cooperating together, we can be assured that all emergency situations will be handled quickly and safely. If one emergency creates another we need to look for a solution. Fortunately, this hasn't happened yet in Hereford, so let's all remain alert and keep our streets safe for all of us. This article was written only to make us aware of a potential problem that we can avoid. I hope that it is taken as constructive criticism and we see to it that all of us do our part by not rushing to the scene and creating a traffic problem or by not making way for emergency vehicles.

The Deaf Smith County is most appreciative for your concern in this matter.

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - FBI informant David Mc-Crory testified Friday he didn't react strongly when Cullen Beverly Bass, a survivor of a Davis asked him to arrange a 1976 shooting spree at the Davis murder-for-hire because he didn't think Davis was serious.

McCrory's testimony came during the sixth week of Davis' murder-solicitation trial, under cross-examination by lead defense attorney Richard Haynes.

McCrory said Davis approached him in May 1978 about setting up the murder of

Water District Will Consider Contracts

The Board of Directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District will consider approving two contracts with the Texas Department of Water Resources during their regular monthly meeting at 10 a.m. Tuesday, September 11, at the Lubbock headquart-

The first is a $95,267 amendment for a one year extension of current mapping and neutron logging activities in performing groundwater studies of the Ogallala Aquifer.

The second contract is a $7,500 agreement by which the Water District will provide the Department with results of irrigation efficiency studies at 25 sites in the Texas High Plains. The information obtained in the studies will be used by the Department in upgrading their estimates of pumpage for irrigation in Texas.

The board will further consider the possibilities of the Water District providing support data to County Appraisal

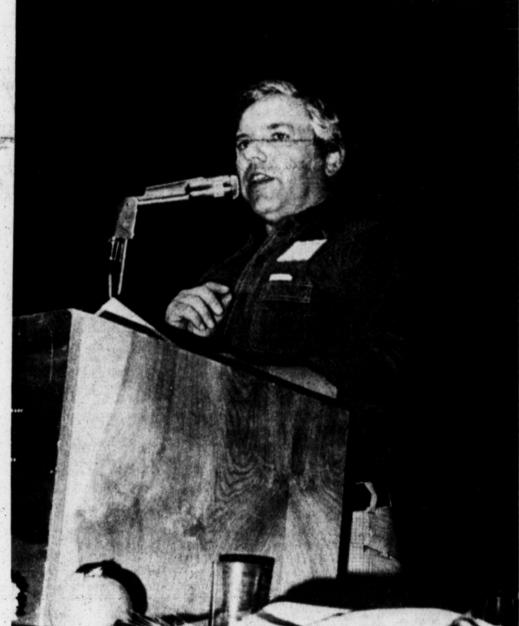

Districts for use in calculating water depletion allowances. The data would be used, in part, for appraising the value of agricultural land based on its productivity rather than its market value. Board members will hear a progress report on the formation of county appraisal districts.

If all business has been considered by noon the Board will adjourn to attend the 70th Annual Field Day at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock.

U.S. exports have been on the rise, more than triplingbetween 1968 and 1977. But overall world exports have gone up even faster, The-Conference Board notes. As a result, the U.S. share of global exports fell from 16 percent in 1968 to less than 12. percent in 1977.

Farm-Derived Energy Independence Opportunity Emphasized During Gasohol Know-How Conference

Brand Farm Editor

SALUBBOCK - A gathering of me 500 Panhandle, South Plains, southeastern and westorn farmers and agribusinessmen descended on the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Thurs-day for a gasohol know-how conference, sponsored by the Texas Farmers Union and Texas Tech University

Producers got a rundown on procedures to get into the production of alcohol. methods to finance such production, and outlets for the product.

Participants in the sessions. held throughout the day Thursday, continually voiced their agreement with a statement which came early-on in the session to the effect that corrent national energy policy is very similar to re-arranging the deck chairs on the Titanic."

The opportunity for energy independence through farmcreated fuel supplies was also heavily emphasized during the session.

Keynoting Thursday's session was a presentation by Texas 36th District Rep. Dan Kubick of Rockdale, known as 'Mr. Gasohol" in Texas.

Kubiak helped push gasohol bills through the state legisla-

"We can make alcohol from waste products or any vegetative products capable of fermentation. The waste products of our farms, our city garbage .- even weeds could make fuel. Gas and alcohol do mix in your gas tank, and it is a realistic viewpoint that farmers can produce fuel." Kubiak

Farmers are America's energy producers for the future. We have 16 million acres of cropland lying dormant that in the future could be producing our transportation fuel. We can't be pawns for the Arabs any more. OPEC can drink their oil, but Americans need to start producing their own fuel." the legisltor commented.

According to Kubiak, alcohol could prove the farmer's insurance for energy indepen-

"I believe very strongly at this time in the small, on-farm plants, that will allow individual farmers to produce what they need. You can help yourself. your fellow man and your country by producing your own energy. Don't go large until you are sure you are dealing with some thing that has a clean bill of health. I advise careful study before jumping into a large operation," stated Ku-

The legislator indicated that three major alcohol production plants could be on their way in Texas within the next year.

Don Graham of Sunray Co-Op spoke on marketing and storage of ethanol fuels at that cooperative, which is the only retail outlet marketing gasohol at this time.

We initiated the sale of this product to answer some questions and find out just what it's all about. From our elevator standpoint, we did this simply to show people what it's all about. and interest has been such that we will continue to market this

Graham commented on the handling of the product. pointing out that 200-proof ethanol alcohol is mixed with non-lead gasoline at a ratio of 90 percent gas and 10 percent

"We find that many people consider gasohol as something of an automatic tune-up, and this just isn't so." stated Graham. "If a car isn't running good, it won't do a good job of burning gasohol. Some vehicles will have condensation in the tank, and there is a problem with water in the carburetion system, sometimes. The product can improve the mileage efficiency of a vehicle up to two miles per gallon, however on no-lead fuel. A vehicle burning regular gas won't necessarily get any better mileage. The potential for gasohol will get much larger as the older-model cars disappear." he stated.

Dr. Steve Beck discussed use of ethanol in diesel engines.

"Mixing ethanol and diesel is considerably different than mixing ethanol and gas. Unless it's 200-proof, ethanol won't blend readily with diesel, stated Dr. Beck

According to Dr. Beck. the best method for utilizing ethanol with diesel thus far has been in a dual injection system, requiring separate fuel tanks for diesel and alcohol.

Diesel fuel is injected in the normal manner, while the ethanol must be vaporized before injection.

"Turbo-charged engines can use a jet to spray a mist of ethanol into the turbo-charger fan. This breaks it up into a very fine mist, which gives fairly good combustion. One experiment with a turbocharged tractor with 100-proof alcohol and No. 2 diesel showed a fuel consumption of eight gallons per hour of diesel fuel aione. With ethanol injection, diesel consumption was six gallons per hour, alcohol consumption was one gallon, and a gallon of water was also consumed. for 125 horsepower output. This dual injection system or use of injection into turbo-chargers looks like the best bet to me on dieselhol right now." comment-

In a discussion among several industry representatives comparing large and small alcoholproduction systems, workshop participants were informed that trucking cost could add up to 25 cents per gallon to the cost of alcohol, with transportation of the finished product adding another two cents per gallon per 100 miles the product is transported.

Participants were also informed that a large 20 million gallon per year capacity plant will provide enough 10 percent alcohol for 270,000 people. while a three million gallon plant would provide products for 40,000 people with considerably lower transportation costs.

The potential for using production on the farm. cellulose products such as crop fodder, brush species and other plants was also emphasized as a permits are possibly the best which could dwarf the 100 billion gallons per vear import figure listed as the current U.S. consumption of OPEC oil.

were informed that there is sufficient cellulose waste in the U.S. to replace all of the OPEC oil that is imported in this Special loans available for gasohol plant projects were covered by officials from the Community Services Administration. Economic Development Administration, and the Farmer's Home Administration. While CSA provisions dictate minimal investment in alcohol plant development. EDA will have some $10 million available for the development of 100 small plants over the next two years. An EDA representative in-RALEIGH - Supply and demand fundamentals, based on current conditions, suggest that lower cotton prices might occur in coming months, report Cotton Incporated economists.

However, they say, should price weakness develop, it probably would be short-lived.

The analysis is contained in the September issue of the Cotton Summary, monthly publication of Cotton Incorporated. Cotton Incorporated is the fiber company of American cotton producers.

Lawrence Shaw, associate director for supply economics. says world cotton production in 1979-80 appears likely, at this time, to reach 64.5 million bales, or 4.6 million bales more than last year. This total includes a predicted crop of 14 million bales in the United States, or 3.1 million bales more than last year's domestic Cotton consumption, on the other hand, is projected at 62.4 million bales worldwide, a slight increase over 62.2 million-bale consumption in 1978-79.

Cotton consumption continued to be strong in the U.S.. Western Europe and the Far East when the new cotton marketing year began August 1. However. Shaw says, the economic recession, "which appears to have begun in the United States this past spring. portends lower levels of textile activity and fiber use in the near

Shaw adds that with consumption increasing only moderately and production rising by nearly 5 million bales, world stocks of cotton on hand are likely to increase substantially this marketing year, or by some 2 million bales, all in the United

"Higher world stocks will put cotton prices under pressure." the Cotton Incorporated economist adds. "Over the past five years, prospective changes in stocks have been the key factor influencing cotton pri-

However, says Shaw, "a sharp decline in cotton prices. should it occur, would have a short life. Several factors suggest that the supply-demand balance for cotton would shift rapidly from oversupply to shortage.

Shaw cites these factors:

-1. The increase in world stocks under way is small relative to consumption -- an estimated 38 percent of consumption on August 1, 1980, as compared with 52 percent in the 1974 crop year. A limited buildup of cotton supplies can be worked off quickly.

-- 2. Both total fiber consumption and cotton's share of fiber consumption are expected to be. higher in the 1980-81 marketing year as the U.S. pulls out of the recession and as polyester producers face higher costs stemming from rising oil prices. -- 3. Lower cotton prices at the end of 1979 would tend to discourage 1980 plantings, thus reducing world stocks. Shaw points out that the harvest, many U.S. producers may be better off deferring the sale of their 1979 crop-relying on the government loan to cover immediate cash needs." says Shaw, "With U.S. cotton. supplies the key to both the availability of cotton in world markets and world prices in the coming months, U.S. producers will have more control over their destiny this season then they have had in INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Hydrocalisthenics is a complicated term for performing calisthenics in water. Exercise in the pool "develops long, tight mus-cles," says Frank Elm, who has coached top AAU and Olympic swimmers.

Feil indicated that prior to 1977, laws dictated that a wife must have her own estate, but a new law gives the wife 50 percent of the estate, and allows her to own insurance on her husband.

important tax key is ownership of the insurance policy.

"A good rule is never to own your own insurance policy. You can declare your beneficiary, but if you designate your wife as the policy owner instead of yourself, you can create a situation where she will receive insurance money tax free, instead of the money coming into the estate at a time when it will be tax burden." Feil

The insurance spokesman also offered comments concerning probate procedure, and advsied Young Farmers that property deeds should be in joint tenant to avoid probate court procedures, and to provide for ownership of property by the spouse in the event of the death of a marriage partner.

"Numerous appraisal costs and procedure are included in probate court, and it gets expensive. A will doesn't solve problems completey but it does help cut down to a large degree on probate court procedures." he related.

Feil rounded off his comments with a reminder to Young Farmers that "it's probably more important for you to create a tax-free situation while you don't have a large estate than it will be later on when you've accumulted more assets."

In the business portion of the meeting. Young Farmers began discussing plans for ad sales for their annual livestock show sale bill, which is distributed on sale day at the Junor livestock show.

Other discussion included arrangements for continuing a panel building project for the livestock show, making a donation to the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Reserve for security services at the livestock show, securing auctioneer and exchanging a malfunctioning livestock scale purchased last year for a new one for use in the 1980 livestock show.

Advisor Jess Robinson informed YF members that the only available dates for a public education welding shortcourse the local chapter had hoped to schedule are in May.

Members indicated that the late date precluded participation by many farmers, due to conflict with plowing and planting schedules, and the chapter abandoned plans for the welding shortcourse. Robinson did indicate, however, that several dates are still open in February for a shortcourse on tractor maintenance, and members requested Robinson to check into securing such a program to be sponsored by the local chapter.

A TOTAL OF NINE YF members in addition to Robinson were present for Thursday's meeting.

The next regular HYF meeting is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 4, at 8:30 p.m. in the community room of the Hereford State Bank.

Cast iron constitutions aside, there are those among us who are the hapless victims of the mayhem created by hay fever and this may well be our darkest hour.

How about trying to change water or plow on an open tractor when everything you touch gives off an instant cloud of sinister green pollen?

I always had a hard time trying to drive, manage my runaway nose and see straight all at once, and the mere sight, let alone a sniff of a weed in late summer is enough to send my respiratory system

I was driving down 385 the other day and met some of the highway boys mowing the barditches.

The sight of the dust cloud behind the shredder and the thought of all those nose-tickling weeds and grasses was enough to touch off a sneezing marathon that lasted all the way to Milo Center.

Folks can be downright colorful when they go to sneezing, provided they don't scare you off. "Ah-choo" seems pretty bland, compared to some of the exclamations I've heard pronounced upon an upheaval by the proboscis. In my tender youth, I used to wonder why sneezers had such things to say... Now I know that we snifflers must vent our frustrations somehow.

Everyone used to tell me, when I was a kid, that my nose would one day outgrow its aversion to all things growing and bearing pollen, but I guess it wasn't in the script.

Our fields were littered from one end to the other with the used tissues that were the evidence of a hayfever-ridden passing as I went about plowing and irrigating.

At least all that bio-degradable tissue helped hold the moisture on part of the fields.

There is something to be learned from our suffering however, and that is that we have a dandy weapon at our disposal.

We don't need THE bomb, guided missiles or anything so dangerous as all that.

If we have to mix it up with somebody, why not just package up a whole slew of kochia and carelessweed pollen? Fly over and dump a cloud of that on an adversary, and you could probably walk right in and take over without so much as a struggle.

Anybody busy with hayfever doesn't have time to put up much of a struggle, and they probably wouldn't even see you coming.

Nobody sneezes with their eyes open.

And, just for the sake of a little satisfaction, we might dust a sprinkle of that pollen over all the stacks of gold bricks and dollar bills we keepshipping out to those "good ole" boys" over at

Meat Preservation As Sausages Can Cut Energy Consumption

An age-old method of meat preservation, sausage making, looks increasingly attractive because of space-age technology and scarce, expensive energy.

Sausages are not just the pork patties or links that many Americans eat with their breakfast.

Actually, sausages include all meat products that are ground, chopped, mixed and/ or seasoned and then encased to retain shape. A wide wariety of ethnic foods are sausages, such as bratwurst, chologna, bockwurst, salami, weiners, luncheon meats, canned pasta, chili, spiced ham, etc.

Sausages are said to be the oldest preformulated convenfence food: no bone; easy to carry and keep; and easy to eat, hot or cold.

sausage in the U. S. now require refrigeration, they have gotten away from the original purpose of sausage, according to Dr. Robert Terrell, who is in charge of Experiment Station research to improve sausage technology at Texas A&M University.

Many nations of the world do not have our refrigerated distribution system (trucks and highways) or with home refrigeration.

These nations must convert animals, including fish and fowl, into-a form of sausage that will keep without refrigeration and that can be eaten either as is, or cooked.

Nearly every society of the world has a "unique" recipe for sausage, Terrell says. Examples include the fermented salami sausages made by Italians and Hungarians; being tested for possible use in sausage, Terrell says.

For example, flour made from glandless cottonseed produced in Texas can replace 5 to 10% of meat in frankfurters. Its taste is bland and acceptable, it's plentiful and it doesn't cost as much as beef.

Purified plasma protein, obtained by a process developed at Texas A&M, can be used at low levels of 1% in frankfurters to improve their firmness and texture.

"Since the ability of protein to bind is such an important quality in sausage production, we have evaluated many non-muscle proteins for their ability to bind meat pieces," Terrell says.

"Examples of such nonmuscle proteins include sources such as soybeans, cottonseed, caseinate, non-fat dry milk, egg whites, plasma protein, and gluten from wheat

"A simple, reliable, and accurate process was developed to assess the binding abilities of these alternatives to meat-protein foods."

"Our graduates in food technology and animal science are already helping industry, government, and consumers in developing uses of sausage. Age-old processes, combined with advancements of modern science, can contribute to improving this area of meat processing," Terrell concluded.

Silage Harvest Proceeds

Harvesting of ensilage corn in Deaf Smith County is currently underway as local feedyards begin filling their storage facilities with the ensilage they will require in their rations over the next several months. Here, a forage harvester operating about five miles north of Hereford blows a hefty stream of freshly-chopped corn into a truck traveling alongside. Scale operators at local feedyards are busy weighing in the constant stream of trucks delivering the forage. Some local farmers were forced to ensile their corn crop following hail damage in late August, while others have raised the crop specifically for chopping as cattle feed. Harvesting of the ensilage corn crop here is expected te continue making rapid progress during the coming week. [Brand photo by Jim Steiert]

All are resigned limited editions, and the Artist of the Fish Strike Year print from DU is also notarized.

The original paintings donated to the local DU cause by Poarch will also be offered at the auction, and depict colorful waterfowling scenarios.

Of particular interest to local waterfowlers will be a painting of Canada geese descending into a stubble field to feed just prior to sundown.

Heavy Debt Pressure Stern Test Of Farmer's Deep Love of Nature

The following article is by Terry Cacek of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Denver.

Jack Schmidt stepped on the clutch of his tractor and brought his mowing machine to a halt. A flick of his wrist silenced the engine so he could hear the squawking of a brood of wild geese. They ran across the surface of the pond, helplessly beating the air with their growing wing feathers. The awkward goslings plunked their heavy breasts back into the water near the center of the pond, well away from all danger.

Jack had watched the goslings grow for the past two months. They were about to gain their wings and in a few weeks they would fly south. Jack would miss them until they returned in the spring. But enough of wild geese. There was hay to mow.

Like most farmers, Jack Schmidt has a deep love for the land. He enjoys watching all things grow - from broods of wild geese to fields of corn. He enjoys the country night air when it is filled with the buzzing of locusts and the occasional howl of a coyote. Jack can usually tell friends where they can catch a glimpse of a deer or pick wild plums for homemade jam.

Unfortunately, these values are disappearing from rural America. When a fencerow stands in the way of an 8-row planter, the fencerow is bulldozed with little thought of the wild plums that are destroyed in the process. The dozer is again called upon to fit the woodlot to the path of a traveling irrigation system. Who needs squirrels anyway? Family farms are falling into the hands of corporations and other absentee landlords who are not there to watch the goslings

Many small farmers want to preserve natural areas on their farms, but they must balance their love for nature with their mortgage obligations. Farmers face a cost-price squeeze and one way out is to bring more acres under production. This often is accomplished by clearing natural areas. They rob from the pheasant to pay the banker.

In some regions, the Federal government has preserved immense tracts of natural lands as national parks and forests and lands in the public domain. National parks and forests are virtually nonexistent, however, in farm country. There are wildlife refuges and local parks but, in most areas, these represent an insignificant percentage of the total

The government has designed programs to help farmers maintain wildlife habitat. These usually have been associated with set-aside programs intended to reduce grain production. These have had short lives and the wildlife benefits rarely have outlived the pro-

The conclusion is clear. If farmers want to hear the cry of wild geese, they must accept the burden of maintaining goose habitat. Many farmers must decide whether to preserve or drain a marsh or whether to preserve or bulldoze a hedgerow. The immediate economic advantages of draining and clearing are obvious, but the advantages of preserving natural areas are more elu-

Everyone knows that farm boys need bass to outwit and muskrats to trap, but too often logic stops there. Too many folks forget that bass need ponds and muskrats need marshes.

A HUNDRED years ago, a homesteader stood on the porch of his cabin and watched a thunderstorm roll across the prairie. A thin smile expressed his hope that it would drop a few inches of rain on his farm. Luck favored the homesteader. Amidst great crashes of thunder and wind, the storm relinquished two inches of rain and the crop was assured.

The runoff was caught in a natural pond which swelled to accommodate the runoff. A tiny fraction that overflowed the pond escaped into a creek. The creek meandered three miles in one. Its winding channel had such a great volume that the creek became a flowing reservoir, its velocity checked at every meander. The waters never left the banks of the creek.

Now, five generations later, a farmer nervously turns the knobs on his radio, hoping to get a report on the thunderstorm which fills the western sky. He hopes the storm will miss his farm. He would rather pump water from the ground than risk the hail and wind which lurk in the dark clouds. But the storm does come and it drops two inches

The runoff enters a field of corn which once had been a natural pond. A government bureau had subsidized conversion of the pond to a corn field. Within minutes, the water passes through the drainage ditch and into the creek. The creek, which had flowed three miles in one, is now a straight ditch. The shorter ditch holds less water and the velocity is unimpeded by curves. Within hours the water slams into a city. Now the radio brings news of flooded homes, businesses and streets. There will be a new push for the multi-million dollar flood control dam.

The pond and the creek were sacrificed for a few more bushels of grain and the false hope of flood control. Taxpayers and the farmers paid for the bulldozers which drained the pond and the draglines which straightened the creek. Now they must pay for the flood control dam. What of the farmer's son who no longer has bass to outwit or muskrats to

Marshes and other wetlands have been a constant source of water for livestock, and their edges produce native hay. By draining the wetlands, farmers can produce immediate profits by growing cash crops. The harvest from wetlands is cycled through steers and is not immediately visible. Perhaps that explains why some farmers consider the price of corn when deciding the fate of marshes but overlook the value of stock water and hay. By draining potholes we can plant more acres, but we eliminate seepage from the pothole into groundwater. As the water table withdraws deeper and deeper into the earth, we respond by digging deeper wells. Would it have been more economical to preserve the

There was a time when the silt, nitrates and pesticides which washed from our fields were trapped in natural pools and marshes. The silt settled out and the chemicals were attacked by microbes and rendered harmless. Now the wetlands are gone and our cousins in the cities are building water treatment plants to replace their function. Those who are paying for the treatment plants, deeper irrigation wells and flood control projects would be distressed if they knew their tax dollars had subsidized drainage of the wetlands.

LAST YEAR, Jack Schmidt's neighbor plunged deeper into debt by purchasing a $50,000 center pivot irrigation system. The flavor of wild plums never entered his mind when he decided to clear a fencerow to make way for the traveling sprinkler. Jack also invested in an irrigation system, but his major costs were blistered hands and an aching back. Jack got some seedlings from the state forester and planted shelterbelts along the north borders of each field. In winter, the shelterbelts will drift snow onto the fields and in summer they will moderate the hot drying winds which rob moisture from the crops. Each fall, the shelterbelts will yield two or three cock pheasants and a dozen quail for Jack's

This year, Jack supplemented one of the shelterbelts with a dozen walnut saplings. They will reach maturity in two decades and will be ready for the saw 40 generations of squirrels later. Jack hopes his grandson will live to retire and fashion a grandfather clock from the rich dark walnut. Five generations hence, the Schmidts may not know their family heirloom can be traced to a walnut that Jack planted a century before, but he feels good about it just the same.

Monticello Remains Fertile Bass Lake

AUSTIN - The name of Lake Monticello now is a household word among Texas bass fishermen, and with good

The small (2,000 surface acre) powerplant reservoir near Mount Pleasant has produced some of the most impressive trophy largemouth bass caught in Texas during the past year.

This trophy production has caused a virtual gold rush for fishermen, with as many as 40 boats queued up at the available some of the cooler areas, as ramps on some days last spring.

Such intense fishing pressure caused concern among some sportsmen who felt it might be harmful to the fishery. To find the answer, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department fisheries crews recently conducted cove surveys to assess the standing crop of largemouths.

Their findings should allay anyone's fears, as a one-acre cove yielded 253 pounds of bass.

Biologist Joe Toole of Marshall largemouth. pointed out that the per-acre average for lakes in that area is only 30 to 35 pounds of bass.

"It was unreal to see that small area," Toole said. "We 10-pound-plus trophy bass found excellent representation in each size class, from young-of-the-year to more than 20 inches.' Toole added that apparently there is some concentration of the lake's fish population in another cove sampled near the powerplant discharge turned up very few fish. But he said at least half of the lake offers the same type habitat as the cove which held 253 pounds per acre.

There are several reasons for Monticello's ability to produce high pounds-per-acre statistics and trophy-sized individual bass. Toole noted, and not the least of these reasons is the presence of the Florida strain of

14. CARD OF THANKS

Thanks to the people of Hereford for the many cards, letters, prayers, and visits during Allan's recent Transplant in Dallas, and for all the food brought to our home.

A special thanks to the sponsors; those who donated and those who purchased food at the Bake Sale for our benefit. This will make it much easier to make the "check-up" trips back to Dallas.

What a pleasure it is, to live in a town with so many great people. Allan & Donna Brockman & FAMILY
