

Hereford man shot to death

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

A Hereford man died from two gunshot wounds to the head early this morning and city police have issued a warrant for the arrest of a suspect.

Hereford police said Henry Garcia, 33, of 204 Blevins, was shot with a small-calibre weapon while driving his pickup truck. His wife and an unidentified person were sitting beside him.

Garcia was pronounced dead at 4:40 a.m. at Deaf Smith General Hospital by Tawanna Hollowell, acting justice of the peace for Deaf Smith County.

While details were sketchy this morning, police said Garcia's truck apparently struck a utility pole near Second and Gough Streets, crossed the road and then plowed into a front window of Owens Electric Company after the shots were fired.

Around 320 Southwestern Public Service Company customers were without electrical service from 3:25 until 7:03 this morning while SPS crews replaced the pole.

Police Corporal Sammy Sanchez said he had spoken with Garcia about an hour before the shooting after noticing Garcia repeatedly had been driving by a 307 Roosevelt residence.

Sanchez said he believed Garcia was looking for Domingo Garcia, who had been beaten up earlier this morning in the neighborhood of the shooting. Domingo had been taken to the hospital by ambulance, refused to stay, and was taken home by a friend.

Domingo did not stay at home, Sanchez reported, and police were looking for him when the shooting took place. The police department believes the murder suspect is one of the men who beat up Domingo. Henry Garcia's wife also told police that it was one of those men who had fired the shots.

The scene of the alleged murder was roped off this morning, with law enforcement officers continuing their investigation and pathologist

Dr. Ralph Erdmann of Amarillo expected to perform an autopsy and crime-scene investigation later today.

The body was taken to Rix Funeral Directors, where services are pending.

Garcia had been a Hereford resident for 17 years. He married Odelia Trevino on Sept. 17, 1968. He worked for Hereford Bi-Products and was a member of San Jose Catholic Church.

He is survived by his wife, two sons and four daughters, all of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Garcia of Brady; eight brothers, five of whom reside in Hereford; and six sisters, one of whom lives in Hereford.

Murder Scene

Yellow banners roped off the scene of a shooting early this morning near Owens Electric. The 33-year-old Hereford man driving the pickup was shot to death, and police believe the gunman was one of two men involved in a fist fight earlier this morning.

Triple tuition approved

AUSTIN (AP) — The House has approved a tripling of state college tuition in the fall, concurring with what one legislator criticized as "marching orders" from the Senate.

"We don't need to pass a tuition bill today. We need to get the two houses together in the true spirit of compromise," said Bay City Rep. Tom Uher.

But the House voted 85-60 Wednesday to scrap its plan to double tuition and go along with the Senate plan to raise the semester hour cost for resident students from the current $4 to $12 in the fall.

The measure now goes to Gov. Mark White, who has indicated that he approves of the tuition increase.

Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin and sponsor of the House tuition

First hike since 1977

plan, called on the House to agree with the Senate version. The colleges need the $275 million the hike would raise over the next two years, she said.

"Without a tax bill we cannot afford to continue to put as much money in colleges and universities as we have in the past," Mrs. Delco said.

The 1986-87 appropriations bill approved by the House cuts college spending by about 4 percent. The tuition hike would help fend off a 26 percent higher education spending cut recommended by legislative budget aides.

"This is reasonable, fair and affordable," Mrs. Delco said of the Senate version, which apparently will become the first tuition hike in Texas since 1957.

The hand of leadership was clear on the House floor. In a rare move, Speaker Gib Lewis voted to agree with the Senate version.

Even with the increase, Texas college tuition would be among the nation's cheapest.

The bill would raise tuition from the current $4 per semester hour to $12 in the fall. It would increase to $16 per hour for the next three years and then go up $2 a year every two years until it reached $24 in 1995.

The House tuition bill scrapped in favor of the Senate plan would have raised in-state tuition to $8 per hour this fall and in gradual increments to $20 by 1990.

Tuition for out-of-state students would rise from the current $40 to $120 per semester hour in the fall. Resident medical student tuition would go from $400 a year to $800 a year in the fall. It would increase to $1,219 the next year.

Law school tuition for Texas residents would rise from $4 per hour to $24 this fall and to $36 in 1986.

Mrs. Delco said the future increases mandated by the bill might become moot because of a special study of higher education set to begin this year.

"Since funding is one of the big pieces of looking at higher education, tuition now looms greatly in the funding questions. I assume we'll hear about it again," she said.

administration's policy to make government a part of the solution."

NRC Chairman Nunzio Palladino, when asked about Herrington's remarks, disagreed.

"I believe we are fulfilling our mission to protect public health and safety," Palladino said. "That is the most important thing we can do to enhance public confidence in nuclear power."

Herrington, formerly President Reagan's White House personnel director, refused to take questions following his address to the Nuclear Power Assembly, a trade group. But aides said the Cabinet-level examination stops short of requests by the industry and Wall Street investment bankers for a higher-status presidential commission to look at nuclear power's problems.

"He wants to brief the Cabinet on the state of the industry, that's about it," said Dan Butler, an Energy Department spokesman. "There's some talk about the possibility of the secretary-appointed council like the National Coal Council, but I don't know whether that's going to go anywhere."

Herrington said public skepticism regarding nuclear power also can be blamed on the 1979 accident at the Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania — which occurred just as Miss Fonda's movie was appearing in hundreds of theaters across the country — and the utility industry itself.

Reagan says West must remain strong

In final speech of tour

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — President Reagan declared today that Western nations, threatened by the Soviet Union since World War II, learned they must remain militarily strong "so that never again would we be forced...to resort to violence" to safeguard liberty.

In the final major speech of his 10-day European tour, delivered to the National Assembly after talks with Prime Minister Mario Soares, the president congratulated Portugal for turning away from 42 years of dictatorial rule to embrace democracy, and criticized communist societies.

He said it is in "the collectivist world that economies stagnate, that technology is lagging and that people are oppressed and unhappy with their lives."

Arriving at Sao Bento Palace for talks with Soares, the president had harsh words for Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev. At a Kremlin rally Wednesday marking the 40th anniversary of the defeat of Nazi Germany, the Soviet leader called the United States "the forward edge of the war menace to mankind."

Asked what he thought of Gorbachev's speech, Reagan replied, "What I usually think of him." When a reporter said Gorbachev had called him a menace to mankind, the president snapped: "Who is he to talk?"

In his speech to the National Assembly, Reagan cited Portugal's heritage of producing explorers. He said, "Once again, you are charting a new course, not just for Portugal, but for all others especially those people of the Third World with whom your long-established ties permit you to speak with a special trust, wisdom and candor."

In summing up his European trip, Reagan said, "I have seen in these past days reminders of the tragedy and the grandeur of our time: I have heard the voice of the 20th century. It is humanity's voice, heard in every century, every time. "And the words are unmistakable: they call out to us in anguish but also in hope: let the nations live in peace among themselves, let all peoples abide in the fellowship that God intends."

Even though his trip was dogged by controversy in West Germany, Spain and at Strasbourg, France, where he was heckled by leftist deputies Wednesday in a speech before the European Parliament, Reagan said today his European trip was "one fruitful in results and rich in memory."

Before he arrived in Lisbon on Wednesday, Reagan was accorded a noisy reception in Strasbourg, where he commemorated the 40th anniversary of the end of World War II in Europe with an address to the European Parliament.

His speech — interrupted repeatedly by hecklers as well as the applause of his supporters — warned that a former ally, the Soviet Union, is undermining the world's nuclear stability by developing a land-based missile "clearly designed to strike first."

But the president also repeated a variety of proposals he has made before through diplomatic channels in an attempt to decrease tensions between the United States and the Soviets.

And because Reagan made the proposals on European soil and in a highly publicized forum, White House officials have expressed the hope the Soviets might take a new interest in Reagan's suggestions.

Now, administration officials say, they are waiting to see the reaction.

The official said the new Soviet leader, Gorbachev, has offended the Soviet old guard by putting his own men into powerful positions rather quickly. And that, the official added, could lead to pressure on him to take a hard line with the United States in order to assure harmony within the Communist hierarchy.

White concerned about prison lawsuit settlement

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says he still has many concerns about an offer to settle the long-running prison reform lawsuit against the state.

"I'm very concerned. I think that we have shown good faith in the Legislature, at the (prison) board level, the governor's office. We're appropriating additional monies to deal with the problem," White said Wednesday.

"I think the court and the plaintiffs ought to recognize the good faith steps that have been taken and give this administration an opportunity to do what we're trying to do — that's make certain we have a prison that's constitutional," he said.

The settlement between the state and lawyers representing inmate plaintiffs must be approved by the federal court which has issued orders for sweeping reforms in the state prison system.

Robert Gunn of Wichita Falls, chairman of the Texas Board of Corrections, said he canceled an emergency board meeting this week because White said he wanted more time to study the settlement offer.

The Houston Post on Wednesday said the settlement offer — with a proposed 12 percent reduction in prison population — puts White in a difficult political spot.

The newspaper, quoting unnamed legislative sources, said White fears that accepting the settlement could result in the politically unpopular early release of some prisoners.

White frequently has voiced opposition to any early release. But the Post said the situation raises a tough choice for the governor: back a tax increase to build more prisons or risk having to approve the early release of prisoners before the 1986 election.

Asked if he opposes the inmate population limit or other specific aspects of the settlement, White said, "I'm not going to go into details on that. I'm concerned about the totality of the operations there. I'd like to see the plaintiffs make some concessions about how they go about providing security in the prisons."

White also took a jab at the lengthy court proceedings.

"I think many of the problems there can be solved if we get the lawyers out of the way and let the prison administrators do the job," he said.

Marshall found extra vote

Margaret Marshall gained only one vote, from a ballot which was re-validated, in today's recount of the District 1 school board runoff results. Marshall received 195 votes to Steve Coneway's 203 marks in the recount, called by Marshall after Saturday's polling gave her 194 votes.

The results were certified by the board on Monday night and Coneway was sworn into the office with the restriction that he not vote on the board until the recount was final.

The board will meet Saturday to certify the recount results.

They also investigated complaints of criminal trespass, criminal mischief and burglary of a habitation. The burglarized home in the 300 Block of Ave. I was heavily damaged, with paint sprayed and dumped throughout the house and furniture ripped and cut.

Group protests wild stock killing bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A self-styled "Wild Horse Express" says legislation soon to be introduced in Congress would mean the slaughter of thousands of free-roaming horses and burros in the West.

Rep. Jim Moody, D-Wis., on Wednesday told the small group with its dozen horses and burros that Western livestock interests want to change a 1971 law so that protected wild stock can be sold for slaughter.

About 30 people, including a few onlookers, attended the rally held on the grassy Mall not far from Capitol Hill. Three placards and a banner were unfurled for the cameras.

Moody, who climbed aboard a 12-year-old former wild horse named Shadow, said one provision of the bill — which he said is to be introduced soon — would allow the Bureau of Land Management to sell off the majority of horses and burros now protected by law.

The measure represents "a 180-degree turn from the current law and would be a 180-degree turn from the congressional intent as it now stands," Moody said.

According to the BLM plan, he said, the estimated 60,000 wild horses and burros now on the agency's public lands would be trimmed to about 25,000 in the interest of range management and economy.

Cabinet to examine nuclear industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Blaming everyone from actress Jane Fonda to government safety regulators for the slow growth of nuclear power, Energy Secretary John Herrington is promising a Cabinet-level examination of the industry's future.

"Many consumers perceive that nuclear power is unsafe, unworkable and too expensive... thanks to Hanoi Jane," Herrington said Wednesday, referring to Miss Fonda's visit to Hanoi during the Vietnam War and her role in "The China Syndrome," a movie about an atomic plant accident.

However, he said the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission is more to blame than anti-nuclear activists for eroding the public's accepance of atomic power.

"Unfortunately, federal regulation has probably been more responsible for undermining confidence in nuclear power than have avowed nuclear opponents," he said. "In decision after decision, the government has delayed plant construction and sent the price of nuclear power soaring."

Herrington said there have been 114 nuclear power plant cancellations and no orders for new reactors in the past seven years.

"To the best of my knowledge, no utility company, public or private, is even considering the nuclear option for future generation needs," he said. "If government is part of the problem, then it is the (Reagan) ad-

Oriental men sought in murder

AUSTIN (AP) — Police have launched a massive manhunt for three men who stormed into a north Austin apartment and began shooting and stabbing a group of Vietnamese immigrants, killing one and critically injuring two others.

The three attackers, who police described as Oriental males in their middle 20s, fled by automobile after the attack at about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday and were still at large early today, city police spokesman C.F. Adams said.

The men "came in with guns and knives and started tying them up with tape," police Sgt. Ned Anderson said. "They stuck socks in their mouths and then took them to back room and started shooting and stabbing them one by one."

One of the men managed to escape to a nearby apartment and call for help, Anderson said. But by the time police arrived, the assailants had fled in a black 1980 Datsun with California license plates, he said.

One of the four injured men, all of whom were Vietnamese, died just before 10 p.m. at Brackenridge Hospital, Adams said.

Honor teacher not on ladder

AUSTIN (AP) — Meliane Morgan, Texas Teacher of the Year, said Wednesday she has yet to be selected for the "career ladder" that was designed to reward teachers for training and experience.

Ms. Morgan was in Austin to be recognized by the Legislature. The Spring Branch teacher said there are approximately 600 teachers in her school district who are qualified for at least the second step on the career ladder but the state had provided funds for only 300.

Officials set limit after limo tab

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County officials approved a policy forbidding the rental of limousines at taxpayers' expense after members of a housing agency paid $4,560 for the service.

The written policy adopted Tuesday applies to all county employees and members of boards associated with the county.

Five members of the Harris County Housing Finance Corp., some with their wives, attended a three-day education conference in November in New Orleans. The total bill was $122,749, including air fare for wives.

The corporation is an agency of county government that authorizes tax-exempt bonds for multiple and single family housing.

Lester Simon, director of the county's housing authority, made the travel and conference arrangements. He said the authority advanced funds to the financing corporation to cover the conference. The corporation was then to reimburse the authority.

The corporation last week decided to reimburse the authority except the $4,560 limousine tab. Simon first paid for the bill with his own credit card, he said.

State Winner

Beth Clark, a client at Hereford Satellite Center, won second place in the dance and drama competition for mentally handicapped adults sponsored by the Texas Advocates and Association for Retarded Citizens in Austin last Saturday. Miss Clark was taught her routine by Dee Robinson of the Academy of Dance. Azeneth Duncan, another client, also competed in the musical division with her song, "There's a Church in the Valley by the Wildwood," taught by George Salas. It is the first time Hereford has been represented at state competition.

Less guns, more crime

With much fanfare in February 1982, the village fathers of Morton Grove, Ill., vote to ban handguns.

In Kennesaw, Ga., in 1982 the town fathers voted to require all homeowners to own a gun and ammunition.

Now it is 1985. Armed robberies in Morton Grove are up; armed robberies in Kennesaw are down.

So far, evidence indicates gun control is at least ineffective.

Morton Grove: Residential burglaries in 1983 - 77. Residential burglaries in 1984 - 108.

Burglaries of homes and businesses in Morton Grove increased from 144 to 179.

Total of all "serious crimes" in Morton Grove in 1983 was 579. In 1984 - 727.

And the Morton Grove crime rate is increasing at the same time the national crime rate is less. Also it is increasing despite hundreds of additional man-hours of police protection and in spite of expanded neighborhood watch programs.

So far in 1985 the citizens of Morton Grove appear even less safe. After 31 recent burglaries within a six-block area, angry citizens confronted the town's board of trustees.

The police chief tried to assure them he is doing everything he can.

President Reagan said last year that gun-control laws are not accomplishing their purpose. This year further confirms that.

POLITICS A 'PROFESSION'?

Politics in the United States was never intended to be a "career."

Purposely, our nation's founders provided that United States senators should be elected for six years, House members for two years.

In 1847 a freshman congressman from Illinois dared to announce he would run for a second term and his own party abandoned him. That ended the congressional service of Abraham Lincoln.

In our first 75 congresses, half or more of every new House was made up of freshmen.

But in the 99th Congress only 9.4 percent are freshmen.

Routinely our elected lawmakers now seek re-election, arguing that their experience and seniority renders them better able to serve their constituencies.

On the contrary, the more one is concerned with re-election the more vulnerable he becomes to the pressure groups he dares not offend.

Editor-emeritus J.Q. Mahaffey of the Texarkana Gazette believes that "anybody who stays too long in Washington, D.C., loses touch, forgets what it means to run a business, harvest a crop, earn a living."

Indications are that 408 of the present 435 House members will seek re-election. Mahaffey believes if you would recognize that "experience" in Washington is more a liability than an asset, you might want to un-elect some of the "professional politicians."

Used car rule takes effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 89,000 used car lots must clearly tell customers whether they offer warranties — and what is covered — on the vehicles being sold starting today.

The warranty information and other consumer warnings are to be included in window stickers, required under new Federal Trade Commission regulations for the estimated 10.5 million used cars sold annually by dealers.

The regulation forces dealers to disclose the most important information needed by a used-car buyer — who has to pay for any needed repairs — said Carol T. Crawford, director of the commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

And the warranties may well prove a good guide to the quality of cars being sold, since a dealer is likely to offer more protection on cars in which he has more confidence, added deputy director Amanda Petersen.

The FTC rule covers sales of used light trucks as well as used cars by dealers who sell at least six vehicles a year. The roughly 7 million people a year who sell their own used vehicles privately are not covered by the rule.

Detailed information on the new regulation was mailed to every used-car dealer in the nation two weeks ago.

Dealers who fail to comply could face fines of up to $10,000 per day per violation, although Ms. Petersen indicated the agency will be tolerant of some missing stickers in the early going.

Agent killed, detective wounded

WOODWARD, Okla. (AP) — A state narcotics agent is dead and a city policeman is recovering from gunshot wounds suffered in a shootout that began when the detectives made a drug buy and identified themselves, police said.

Two people involved in the drug transaction were arrested after the 10 p.m. shootings in the parking lot of a fast-food restaurant here Wednesday, Police Chief Bruce Storm said today.

The wounded officer was identified as Woodward Police Detective Mark Chumley, 29. He was listed in fair condition at Woodward Hospital.

Storm would not identify the slain officer but said he was from the state Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

The shooting began after the two men bought drugs from a couple, he said. The woman was wounded in the exchange and was in surgery this morning, Storm said. She was not immediately charged.

After the shooting police conducted an intense house-to-house search of the area of the restaurant and two hours later arrested a man identified as Marshall Ellis, 24. Storm said Ellis was booked in to jail on a complaint related to the shooting but he could not say what it was.

He said the drug buy was the culmination of a joint investigation between the city police and the state narcotics bureau.

"It appears that they were making the arrest when the shooting occurred," he said. Storm didn't know what kind of drugs were being bought.

Brazil reinstates elections

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Congress today voted unanimously to amend the constitution and reinstate direct presidential elections, meeting a popular demand frustrated by 21 years of military rule.

The Congress also passed bills allowing illiterate people to vote, legalizing clandestine parties such as the communists, and establishing direct elections November 15 for mayors of state capitals.

"It cleans the house from the military regime," said Rep. Arthur Virgilio Neto, of the government's Brazilian Democratic Party. Brazilians last voted for president in 1960. The military seized power in 1964, ceding only this year to civilian rule.

The measure was introduced by President Jose Sarney, the first civilian president in 21 years.

SPS issues safety tips

"With folks starting to work outside more in the warmer weather, it's especially important for them to remember to stay clear of power lines and electrical facilities," said Hermilo Martinez, Southwestern Public Service Company safety manager.

May is National Electrical Safety Awareness Month and SPS is reminding the public about the dangers of carelessness around electricity.

Nationwide, most electrical accidents involving the public occur because of carelessness, Martinez said.

"Because people are so used to overhead lines, sometimes they don't notice them or they forget how much power is in them," he said.

People working around the house—painting, trimming trees or doing other jobs—must remember to keep themselves and their tools and equipment away from power lines, Martinez said.

"The slightest touch could be enough to seriously injure or kill," he said.

Electricity always seeks the shortest path to the ground. It travels easily through "conductors." Metal, water, trees and the human body are excellent conductors of electricity, Martinez explained.

Handymen and professional painters should make sure ladders don't place them high enough that they could contact a power line. Aluminum ladders, which are good conductors, should themselves be kept away from power lines, Martinez said.

Outdoor TV, radio and CB antennas pose another hazard. They're often unwieldy and tall enough to touch overhead lines. Installation of outdoor antennas should be left to professionals, Martinez advised.

In rural areas, irrigation pipe should be handled with care, he said. "Lightweight irrigation pipe is an excellent conductor of electricity," Martinez said. "Many sections are tall enough when lifted to hit overhead lines. Farmers need to be extremely careful when moving pipe. Rabbit hunters who lift irrigation pipe to chase out rabbits need to be just as careful."

SPS linemen who work with power lines are well trained and have a variety of special clothing and equipment to protect themselves, Martinez said.

"And still they always respect the power in those lines," he said.

Children, especially, need to be taught to respect the power of electricity.

"They need to know the dangers of playing near a substation, climbing trees that have power lines through them, and flying kites near overhead lines," Martinez said.

Storms can cause potentially dangerous situations by knocking down power lines, he said.

ing this," Moody said. "No credible scientific report by those who have studied the issue lays any foundation for that kind of massive slaughter of wild horses and burros."

Moody said special interests are behind the plan, which "would help the fanciers who do not want to share" public land with wild horses. It should be noted, he said, that only about 2 percent of the nation's beef is grown on public lands.

WTSU professor studies House Education Bill

WTSU — There is a great deal of controversy in Texas concerning HB 72, the House bill which limits to ten days the number of days a student may miss class for extracurricular activities and controls the participation of those with failing grades. Dr. Jim Kidd, a professor in West Texas State University's School of Education, recently published an article in the Association of Texas Professional Educators News on that very subject. "Principals Find Scheduling Tougher" deals with the reactions of Texas principals to the new rules about extracurricular activities in high schools.

Dr. Kidd has been with WTSU for ten years. He received his Ph.D. in Education Administration from the University of Oklahoma and has written many articles concerning education.

This article reports the findings of a survey of 140 principals of accredited, four-year public schools. Over two-thirds of the respondents had coaching backgrounds. Dr. Kidd points out that, in general, those who were coaches hold a pessimistic outlook on the changes in the extracurricular activity program, whereas those who had not coached were more optimistic. However, opinions on some issues were the same for those with coaching backgrounds and those without.

Overall, a small majority of the principals did not favor UIL rules being approved through the State Board of Education. Sixty-five percent of the principals with coaching backgrounds felt this way, but only 27 percent of the principals with no coaching background were opposed to it. Concerning the changes of HB 72 and the 10-day rule, 60 percent of the principals with coaching backgrounds disagreed with the statement that the new rule was improving the schools, while 60 percent of those who had not been coaches agreed with the statement.

Dr. Kidd believes the changes are causing problems in administering the extracurricular programs of the schools. "More time, paperwork, and general discontent surfaces frequently when the data and comments of principals are examined," writes Dr. Kidd.

The effects of the new rules concerning extracurricular activities and the values of extracurricular activities are still being argued by Texas educators.

Alex Sanchez hits two homers

Parttime DH leads Tigers past Rangers, 4-1

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Despite his homerun-smacking performance, Detroit parttime designated hitter Alex Sanchez won't be an everyday major leaguer this year with the Tigers, manager Sparky Anderson says.

The Dominican Republic native went three-for-four with two home runs to lead the Tigers to a 4-1 win and a sweep of a two-game series with the Texas Rangers Wednesday night.

But "like I've said before, this is a better club (than last year's world championship team) personnel-wise," Anderson said. "I don't know if Sanchez can contribute on an everyday basis. I've got (Larry) Herndon, (Chet) Lemmon and (Kirk) Gibson in the outfield. Where am I going to put him?"

"I DH him against left-handed pitching and Nelson Simmons against righthanders. They're both playing well, so that's the way it will stay."

Dan Petry, 5-2, got the win with last-out relief help from Willie Hernandez.

Petry went 8 2-3 innings, walking one and striking out four. He ran into trouble in the ninth with two outs when Bobby Jones doubled off the wall in right-center and Don Slaught hit a run-scoring single.

Hernandez came on and got Wayne Tolleson to ground out, first to pitcher, to earn his sixth save of the year.

"You're a real good manager if you've got Hernandez," Anderson said. "It takes a lot of brains to walk out there and point to the left side."

Mike Mason, 2-4, gave up all four Detroit runs in six innings. He walked one and struck out four.

The Tigers broke the ice in the second inning. Sanchez led off with a single to center. He advanced to second on Barbaro Garbey's single to right and scored on Lou Whitaker's single to center.

Detroit added two runs in the third. Lance Parrish led off with his fourth home run of the year. After two were out, Sanchez hit his second round tripper of the season, a solo shot to center field.

On the next pitch Mason hit Garbey. Garbey dropped his bat and charged the mound, causing both benches to empty.

"I've been hit before, once in the face," Garbey said. "When he (Mason) threw it all I saw was a fastball headed for my face. I had no chance to get out of the way and suddenly I'm on the ground and I'm thinking 'Hey, he just threw at me.' Then I did what I did."

When order was restored Garbey was ejected from the game.

Sanchez hit his second homer of the game to lead off the sixth inning for the Tigers' final run.

Mariners 4, Brewers 2

Seattle right-hander Mike Moore, who has been having trouble at the start of games recently, had some problems at the end of one against the Milwaukee Brewers.

Three outs away from a no-hitter Wednesday night, Moore was unable to finish off the Brewers and was sent to the showers in a hail of singles in the ninth inning.

The only thing different this time was that he emerged a winner, as the Mariners hung on for a 4-2 decision.

"I haven't thrown anything close to this since Little League," said Moore, 3-3.

Red Sox 6, Angels 1

Tony Armas drove in two runs with a homer and a single and Jackie Gutierrez contributed a two-run single as Boston beat California behind the four-hit pitching of Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd.

Boyd, who had a 15-inning scoreless streak snapped by the Angels in the sixth, collected his fourth victory in five decisions. He struck out six, boosting his AL-leading total to 48, but walked seven.

Dwight Evans, breaking out of an 0-11 and 2-32 slump, had three hits, while Bill Buckner, Rich Gedman and Armas had two apiece as the Red Sox posted their fifth victory in the last six starts. California's Jim Slaton lost for the first time in four decisions.

A's 6, Blue Jays 4

Mike Davis and Donnie Hill hit consecutive home runs in the eighth inning and Steve McCatty gained his first win in his last 11 starts as Oakland defeated Toronto.

Oakland was protecting a 4-3 lead when Davis and Hill homered off Toronto starter Doyle Alexander, who dropped to 4-1 after losing for only the second time in 15 decisions. Davis' homer was his league-leading 10th, while Hill's was his second.

The victory, only the third for Oakland in 13 games, made McCatty, 2-1, a victorious starter for the first time since last July 19.

White Sox 4, Indians 0

Ron Kittle and Jerry Hairston slugged solo homers and Britt Burns combined with three relievers on a three-hitter, leading Chicago over Cleveland.

Burns, 4-2, blanked the Indians on three singles through five innings, striking out three and walking none before leaving the game because of slight stiffness in his lower back.

Gene Nelson pitched hitless relief through the eighth, Juan Agosto retired the first two batters in the ninth, and Bob James got Julio Franco on a grounder for the final out.

Twins 8, Yankees 6

Gary Gaetti drove in five runs with a grand-slam home run and a sacrifice fly and Kent Hrbek drove in three with a homer and two doubles as Minnesota defeated New York.

The Yankees announced before the game that they were playing it under protest because they claimed the Metrodome is unsuitable for major-league baseball. The Yankees misplayed several fly balls in their 8-6 loss Tuesday night, contending that the Metrodome's lighting was at fault.

Royals 9, Orioles 8

Lynn Jones drove in four runs and

Kansas City, despite issuing a near-record six straight walks, beat Baltimore to snap a five-game losing streak.

Jones, hitless in 21 at-bats, unloaded a three-run double off Scott McGregor, 1-3, in the second inning. Frank White's solo home run gave the Royals a run in the first.

Kansas City starter Danny Jackson began the fourth inning by striking out Eddie Murray, then walked Gary Roenicke, Fred Lynn, Mike Young, Fritz Connally, and Rick Dempsey. Twenty of Jackson's last 23 pitches were balls.

97 hours of TV broadcasts set for 1988 Winter Olympics

By TERRY TAYLOR AP Sports Writer

If winter sports fans didn't get enough when ABC telecast 63 hours of snow and ice from the 1984 Winter Olympics at Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, they should love what the network has up its sleeve for the 1988 Games at Calgary, Alberta.

ABC plans 97 hours of skiing and skating, most of it live and in prime time.

Jim Spence, senior vice president of ABC Sports, said the fact that the Games will be held on the North American continent "affords (the network) a unique opportunity to present live coverage to United States viewers throughout the Games."

Coverage of the 1988 Winter Olympics will begin on Saturday, Feb. 13, and conclude on Sunday, Feb. 28.

The telecast will include 53 prime-time hours, 34 hours in daytime and seven late-night, one-hour broadcasts. There also will be three one-hour specials leading up to the Games.

ABC paid $309 million for the rights to the Calgary Games, more than triple the $91.5 million paid for Sarajevo.

Ueberroth fears grand jury's findings will 'damage game'

By ALAN ROBINSON AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, fearing that the findings of a grand jury investigation into drugs will be "damaging to the game," continues to push a new prevention program he hopes will eradicate drugs from baseball.

"We've got to stop drugs in baseball. We flat out have to do it," Ueberroth told NBC News on Wednesday, a day after announcing mandatory testing of all baseball personnel except major-league players.

The grand jury investigating drug trafficking and use in western Pennsylvania is expected to indict Pittsburgh-area dealers who allegedly sold drugs while implicating the players who bought them. Some of the players may have acted as go-betweens for other players, said sources who requested anonymity.

"I think it's going to be bad," Ueberroth said when asked about the federal probe. "There will be things that will be damaging to the game," although he said he felt that fewer than 10 percent of major-league players had any involvement with drugs.

Major-leaguers are covered by a procedure in the Basic Agreement which permits testing only in certain circumstances, but Ueberroth wants mandatory testing included in a new contract.

Ueberroth's proposal has drawn backing from many team owners and some players, but players' union acting chief Donald Fehr was upset that the commissioner didn't consult the union.

Fehr said that while the existing testing program is "not perfect," it is working to control drug abuse.

The most recent use of that program involved San Diego second baseman Alan Wiggins, who voluntarily sought treatment after leaving the team last month.

The grand jury has taken testimony from about a dozen major-league players, all of whom were guaranteed immunity in exchange for their testimony.

"You know that players have been naming other players when they got behind those closed doors," said Bill Madlock, player representative of the Pittsburgh Pirates, the team suspected of being at the center of the investigation.

The grand jury, whose business is secret, is being directed by U.S. Attorney J. Alan Johnson.

"I can't even confirm there is an investigation," said Johnson, who in 3 1/2 years as chief federal prosecutor for western Pennsylvania has targeted numerous drug dealers.

Expos' Hesketh outduels Ryan of Astros, 1-0

By DICK BRINSTER

AP Sports Writer

Beating strikeout king Nolan Ryan at his own game is a new experience Montreal's Joe Hesketh won't soon forget. But it took an old bugaboo — one Ryan would just as soon forget — to make the 26-year-old Expos hurler a winner.

"I wasn't trying for strikeouts," Hesketh insisted Wednesday night after fanning an even dozen Houston hitters en route to a 1-0 victory built on a rare spell of wildness by Ryan. "That one bad inning cost me," said Ryan, who walked three Montreal hitters and hit a fourth in the decisive second. It was reminiscent of the earlier years of his career when he led the league in walks eight times.

"I've gotten myself into problems like that before, but I usually dig myself out."

And he did just that in predictable Ryan fashion, striking out the side with the bases loaded. But he had started by walking Dan Driessen, hitting Hubie Brooks with a pitch and walking Tim Wallach and Herm Winningham to force in the game's only run and ruin a two-hit, 10-strikeout performance.

The 38-year-old Ryan left after seven innings with his all-time major league strikeout total at 3,922 — 39 more than Philadelphia's Steve Carlton.

But the night belonged to Hesketh, 4-1, whose career high in strikeouts left him 3,854 behind Ryan.

He limited the Astros to four hits over 7 2-3 innings, giving way to Jeff Reardon, who finished up to gain his National League-leading eighth save.

Elsewhere in the NL, New York blanked Atlanta 4-0, Cincinnati bombed Philadelphia 8-2, San Diego crushed Pittsburgh 12-2, Chicago shut out San Francisco 1-0, and Los Angeles got past St. Louis 5-2.

Mets 4, Braves 0
Keith Hernandez hit a two-run, first-inning homer and Ed Lynch hurled his first major-league shutout, limiting Atlanta to five hits as New York kept pace with Chicago in the NL East.

The victory marked the second consecutive complete game for Lynch.

Reds 8, Phillies 2
Dave Van Gorder's three-run homer off John Denny in the sixth inning propelled Cincinnati. Jay Tibbs, 2-4, was the winner while Joe Price worked the final 2 2-3 innings and struck out the last six Philadelphia hitters.

Pete Rose, who had a two-out double in the pivotal sixth, scored three runs to give him a career total of 2,100, seven short of Hank Aaron's National League record. Rose now has 4,118 hits, 73 fewer than Ty

Some Gunslingers' paychecks bounce

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Some of the San Antonio Gunslingers' latest paychecks have bounced, local newspapers reported.

Both the San Antonio Light and The San Antonio Express-News quoted unnamed players who said their paychecks, which arrived three and four days late last week, bounced when they tried to cash them.

The Express-News reported South Texas Sports Inc., parent company of the United States Football League team, pledged to make the checks good by paying each player 50 percent cash and the other half with a personal check from club President Bud Haun.

ble in a five-run San Diego fourth inning as Andy Hawkins, 6-0, won his sixth consecutive start by scattering nine hits over eight innings.

The Padres erupted for five runs on five hits, three of them doubles, to saddle Larry McWilliams with his second defeat in five decisions.

Steve Garvey went 4-for-4, including a solo home run and an RBI single, to take over the National League lead in hits with 38.

Dodgers 5, Cardinals 2

Bill Russell singled home Mariano Duncan from second base to snap a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning as Los Angeles defeated St. Louis. Duncan reached on an error by second baseman Tommy Herr with one out, stole second and came home on Russell's hit to center field.

"I hit it in the rain," Russell said, alluding to a light drizzle that fell most of the game and forced a 50-minute delay after the seventh inning.

Russell, 36, the Dodgers' regular shortstop for more than a decade, is being used in a utility role this season. He started the game in left field.

Cubs 1, Giants 0

Rick Sutcliffe pitched a six-hitter and fanned 12 batters and Ryne Sandberg hit a home run, one of just two hits off San Francisco's Mike Krukow, as Chicago remained tied with New York in the NL East.

Sutcliffe, 4-3, fired his second shutout of the season and the fifth since he joined the Cubs less than a year ago.

Ann Landers

Children need good manners

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You asked the question, "Why don't public schools teach good manners?" and went on to say, "Children who come from homes where there are no manners are seriously disadvantaged."

First of all, we try. I have 25 second-grade pupils and make an effort to see that they treat one another courteously. We teach table manners and correct social conduct during playtime. However, when the don't see civilized conduct at home, it is virtually impossible for us to make an impression.

Last week, two parents from separate families walked into my classroom and screamed at their children about something they had done at home. We also must deal with a great deal of obscene language. (Remember, these are second-graders!) This language was learned from parents or siblings.

Second: If we were to teach a regular course in good manners, what would you suggest we eliminate? English? Reading? Writing? Math? Spelling? Art? Social Studies? Science? Music? Physical Education?

I live in Texas, which has just passed new laws that clearly define what we must teach and how much time must be spent teaching it. "Good manners" is not listed. So you see, Miss Landers, children must be taught manners at home or they grow up to be socially handicapped.—THOUGH SLEDGING IN LUBBOCK

DEAR LUB: How about teaching just ONE thing a day (five minutes) after recess or before lunch in addition to your "playtime" instruction? Examples: How to shake hands when being introduced. How to accept a compliment. How to sit properly. The importance of saying "thank you" and "please." A lot can be crammed into that very brief span of time. Please try.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is about "in" words and "out" words. For a long time I have been fascinated by the changes in descriptive terminology. Forty years ago people of African descent were referred to as "colored." That word fell into disrepute and was replaced with "negro." Today "negro" is out and "black" is in.

The same pattern can be seen when referring to another minority group. Many years ago the word "crippled" was accepted. "Crippled" was scrapped for "handicapped."

After a while, "handicapped" was replaced with "disabled." Recently "disabled" has been discarded in favor of "physically challenged."

How do these changes come about? Who decides to knock out the old words and bring on the new? Sign me—STUDENT IN POUGHKEEP-

SIE WHO WANTS TO KNOW MORE

DEAR STUDENT: I don't have the foggiest notion. Those changes are probably brought about by writers or TV commentators, people who have access to the media. You have posed an interesting question. If anyone out there has a better answer, I'd like to hear it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your response to the writer who asked about clove cigarettes was good but you didn't go far enough.

Time magazine recently described the death of one young user and the serious illness of another. We clearly do not know enough about clove cigarettes to say they are OK.—CONN. READER

DEAR READER: I thought I made it abundantly clear that clove cigarettes are definitely more hazardous to one's health than tobacco. But thanks for the additional information.

Search continues for extraterrestrial life

While there has never been material evidence of an Unidentified Flying Object (UFO), a radioastronomer at Cornell University says the probability of intelligent beings on other planets is likely.

"In this enormously vast universe there is life on some other planet, and our own civilization has only been capable of addressing this question in a scientific way during this century," said Dr. Yervant Terzian, who recently visited Texas Christian University as the Harlow Shapley Visiting Lecturer.

The distinguished lecturer said the United States and the Soviet Union are conducting searches for extraterrestrial intelligence by means of trying to listen to radio messages that other intelligent civilizations may be beaming within the Milky Way galaxy.

Even with modern technology, it would take four years for the closest star in the solar system to send a message to Earth.

In discussing UFOs, Terzian said the vast majority of all reports can be explained by natural phenomena such as meteorites falling in the Earth's atmosphere, peculiar airplanes flying with peculiar lighting fashions, high altitude meteorological balloons, reflections of search lights off clouds and secret military objects.

Aborigines make up 1.5 percent of the Australian population.

DEAR POLLY — To make a bath a real treat for kids, add a couple drops of food coloring to the bubble suds. The resulting gaily colored bubbles will delight your child.

How can you keep your toddler occupied when you are on the phone? You can (1) let the child play with a toy phone and imitate you; (2) keep a jar of soap bubbles handy and blow bubbles for him to watch and catch; (3) roll a ball back and forth to the child; (4) tear off some pieces of masking tape that the child can stick and unstick on the table or herself; (5) tear up newspaper, crumple into balls and toss to your child.

Church council acting to broaden Christian cooperation

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

The sometimes buffeted National Council of Churches is acting to steady and expand its efforts for uniting Christian work in America and to put it on more firmly spiritual grounds. Under the new leadership of an evangelical-minded Reformed Church in America clergyman, the Rev. Arie Brouwer, the council holds a major meeting next week on a revamped "ecumenical agenda."

It calls for greater emphasis on worship and evangelism as spiritual moorings of the movement and for fresh attempts to include the Roman Catholic Church and conservative, evangelical denominations.

Conversations with them have "picked up with new enthusiasm" says Brouwer, who this year became the council's general secretary, or chief administrator.

He says the changes would mean a "re-emphasis on the centrality of Christian unity" and put concern for it "squarely in the center of the program and vision" of the council.

The new directions were scheduled for action by the council's 260-member governing board May 15-17 in Chicago, with results to be sent both to member denominations and all others considered eligible, including Catholics.

Brouwer unveiled plans for refocusing the council's efforts on Christian unity and spiritual roots and broadening participation in it at a meeting in late April of United Methodist bishops in Seattle.

They applauded the new course and also called for a national gathering of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish representatives to consider pressing current issues such as nuclear disarmament, human rights and social justice.

This is a "larger agenda" than "the council can handle by itself," said Bishop Joseph H. Yeakel of Washington, D.C. The bishops asked Brouwer to put the proposal before next week's Chicago meeting.

Yeakel said interfaith cooperation on major issues facing society could parallel the broadly interreligious alliance that fueled the civil rights movement and opposed the Vietnam War.

There are about 139 million active church members in the country, of whom about 40 million belong to the 31 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations that now make up the council.

It carries on a wide variety of joint Christian activities, ranging from producing educational curricula, doctrinal studies and Bible publishing to worldwide operations by its relief arm, Church World Service.

However, it has come under sharp criticism by an independent organization, the Institute for Religion and Democracy, and also in the Reader's Digest and on a 1983 CBS-TV program, "60 Minutes."

A lawsuit now is being pressed in federal courts by several member denominations, disputing the charges.

Nevertheless, they caused several denominational conventions to order inquiries into the council's work. Resulting reports have found the charges unfounded but called for closer council oversight by member denominations.

Twin teenagers clown for charities

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Kay Edwards sits on the living room couch, one turquoise pants leg escaping the elastic of her polka-dotted jumpsuit. Her sister Kim enters wearing the same, plus leg warmers. The slight difference in apparel is the only distinguishing feature separating the otherwise identical twins.

Once they apply their garish makeup, Kim is the one wearing the exaggerated smile. The two 16-year-old West Brook High School sophomores are branching into the clown business, with all the energy and dedication of two sisters used to the limelight. Recently, they premiered their act at the Muscular Dystrophy Association's Baby Olympics, and since then the twins have performed at private children's parties and once at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

"They just... I don't know, get in touch with us," Kim says, in a frantic voice common to teen-agers. "Some of the children they are scared," she says, with Kay breaking in, "Yeah, one day at St. Elizabeth's, this little boy, he started crying."

But Kim and Kay want their stage makeup and eyeliner, which colors their face with spots and balloons, to appear comical. The twins say another set of twins working at St. Elizabeth and also appearing as jesters encouraged them to pool their talents and perform as a clowning duo. The older twins first taught Kim and Kay how to apply the thick coats of makeup that hides their true features and emotions.

Now Kim and Kay sit facing each other applying the colors, as one smears white paint over the other's cheeks and nose. Then an unsteady hand draws misshapen hearts and tears. But the desired effect is there. The one on the receiving end often lifts the mirror to eye level, chastising the other's expertise.

"We change, you know, we change," Kim says of their makeup. "But most of the time, I'll have a happy face and she'll have a sad one."

A single word will inspire the twin's rendition of a popular song, and music to the duo is an often used form of self-expression. Kim is an award-winning musician, studying to be a classical pianist or a nurse. Kay, with her soprano voice, strives to be an opera singer, or a karate instructor, or maybe a policewoman.

To begin their act, Kim and Kay jauntily step forward four paces, before playing an exaggerated game of patty cake. They'll juggle two rubber balls, then lock arms to flip each other on their backs.

Kay says, however, they won't dance because they lack the desired rhythm. So between music lessons and school, Kim and Kay hope to clown at a nursing home or at a local shopping mall. They're planning to buy new wigs, and if they receive enough offers, they'll expand on their present identical red and white polka-dotted jumpsuits.

"Yeah, making other people happy, that's the main thing," Kim says. While Kay adds, "As long as we make little children happy, that's all right with me."

Tight belt is no problem

DEAR DR. GOTT My 9-year-old son wears his belt so tight that it leaves marks on his belly. Is this dangerous?

DEAR READER Years ago women believed they were more attractive if they bound themselves in corsets. These Victorian appliances were supposed to give a coveted "hourglass" appearance to the female form. A thin waist, corrected with whalebone and heavy laces, was considered a sign of beauty. Of course, such women had difficulty breathing and their internal organs were pushed all over the place. Modern females must breathe a sigh of relief that they aren't imprisoned in this way by a ridiculous male-oriented custom.

Heaven knows why your son chooses to pinch himself in half. However, if his preference causes him no physical pain, he probably is in no danger. You'd better tighten your own belt when you reflect on the future tracks he will have in store for you when he reaches adolescence.

DEAR DR. GOTT My eyes often weep a white substance on the outside of each eye. I notice that others have this problem. What is happening? Should I see an eye doctor?

DEAR READER You may have abnormally thick mucus in your eye secretions, or you could have a low-grade infection. Check with an eye doctor.

Engler speaks to Business Issues Forum

WTSU - The sun seems late in rising on this third day after the change to daylight savings time. It's 7 a.m. On the campus of West Texas State University, a large percentage of the student body is still asleep. But a handpicked group of business students is assembled already for class. The early bird catches the worm? Perhaps.

Across the golden spread, a quarter of a million head of cattle in the yards of Cactus Feeders don't seem particularly bothered by the hour-or anything else, for that matter. The man who feeds them, Paul Engler, president of this largest feedlot system in the world, has come to Canyon to speak to the Business Issues Forum at WTSU. If he's bothered by the early hours, he doesn't show it. He appears, instead, energized by the apparent sharpness and enthusiasm of his audience.

Dr. Jerry Miller, dean of WTSU's school of business, introduces the cattleman. Engler smiles at the dressed-for-success students and explains that this is his first opportunity to address university students about his business. He tells an obligatory opening joke and then plunges into an explanation of Cactus Feeders' amazing growth in just ten years.

Engler explains his emphasis on people, not just facilities and products. His company will sometimes bring in new blood, fresh ideas, but they prefer promoting from within for the greater morale of all the employees. He speaks to the present tax advantages of agricultural concerns and explains their centralized marketing effort. He relates Cactus Feeders' decision to take a higher public relations profile, going public with their decision to remove antibiotics from the diets of their cattle during the recent controversy over food poisoning from grain-fed beef.

The students are conscientious note-takers. They mark those comments they want to question later in the session.

Engler goes on to mention competition with the poultry business and the difficulty of finding computer experts willing to work in small towns. He explains his company's risk management. Then he opens it up to questions.

The students pursue Cactus' use of the futures markets to hedge their resources. They ask about plans to reduce the fat content of their beef for health reasons and the ethics of certain sales to Japan. And what about diversifying in the growing poultry market?

And then the time is gone. Time for the next class for these students. Time for others to get out of bed.

The business students have had an opportunity to interact with a toy executive. This time it has been Paul Engler. On another week it might be Burt Ballagee of Southwestern Public Service or Don Powell of First National Bank of Amarillo or Guyon Saunders of Corporate Systems or T. Boone Pickens of Mesa Petroleum. After three semesters in this honors course, these students will have heard a wide range of opinions on finance and marketing and management. They may, through their interaction, have a greater confidence in meeting and working with senior partners and executives, a confidence that could pay off at job interviews or in their business careers.

But the session also build rapport between WTSU's school of business and the area business community, because most of the speakers leave the Forum with great enthusiasm for the program or for the students they've met. Really, for almost everyone involved, the Business Issues Forum is well worth the effort of getting out of bed in the early morning hours.

Worth their while

To improve attendance, officials at the Richmond (Ind.) High School offered $100 to any student who would attend school every day of the school term last year. It cost the officials $20,000 because 200 students had perfect records. Only 37 students had perfect grades the previous year.

The word "pencil" originally applied to a painters' brush.

West Park Drug, located at 213 W. Park Avenue, held a ribbon-cutting ceremony Tuesday morning with the C of C Hustlers welcoming the new business member. Owner David Burns, who formerly operated Winn's Pharmacy, is shown cutting the ribbon, assisted by Linda Castaneda, longtime employee. Hustlers presented Burns with a new chamber-member plaque, a framed "first dollar of profit," and a membership pamphlet.

Second hand smoke dangerous

AUSTIN (AP) — Second-hand cigarette smoke hurts healthy people as well as those with heart or lung diseases, according to Texas Medicine.

The journal of the Texas Medical Association says in its current issue that the spouse of a smoker and children whose parents smoke are among those with increased risk of developing various lung problems.

The article was written by three Houston researchers: Dr. Linda D. Taylor and Dr. S. Donald Greenberg of the Baylor College of Medicine and epidemiologist Patricia A. Buffler of the University of Texas School of Public Health.

The researchers noted that the burning end of a cigarette contains greater concentrations of harmful nicotine and carbon monoxide than does the smoke directly inhaled by the smoker. The report said recent studies linked lung cancer in non-smoking women to the smoking habits of their husbands.

The researchers said the studies also show that infants of smoking mothers have significantly more cases of bronchitis and pneumonia in both winter and summer than infants of non-smoking mothers. Infants inhale more airborne pollutants than adults because of a faster breathing rate, the report said.

Open house scheduled

An open house will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday, May 19, at Deaf Smith General Hospital. A tour of the facilities will be conducted.

The public is invited to see the remodeling at the hospital as well as meet with hospital staff.

Refreshments will be served on the east lawn of the building and balloons will be provided for children.

The Fiji Islands, Barbados and Iceland do not have armed forces.

There is no such thing as a "common" cold. Everyone's case of the sniffles is unique, to hear us tell it.

Our boss may be a hard case, but he still believes in fairy tales. He has faith that his work-achievement schedules will come true.

To solve the problem of baseball and football seasons overlapping, why don't they invent a new game called "basefoot"?

East Texan stuck on sticks

LIVINGSTON, Texas (AP) — L.C. "Sandy" Moore is a proponent of low technology — perhaps lowest technology. Moore has rediscovered the stick.

"Everybody ought to have a stick," Moore said. And one by one, the 80-year-old retired school superintendent is working toward that goal.

Around Livingston, in deep East Texas, Moore is known as "the stick man." Each October he sells sticks at the local folk festival, and he gives away plenty in the meantime.

"Why, they're handy every way in the world," he said.

Moore produces several kinds of sticks — including walking, jogging and jogging sticks. But he is best known for his "pokin' sticks."

"First, you've got to know what pokin' is," Moore said. "Pokin' is when you are going nowhere and have nothing to do when you get there," he said, as if reading from a dictionary. "A pokin' stick is what you carry when you're pokin' along."

A proper pokin' stick is straight, sturdy and stands about waist high, he said. A walking stick, on the other hand, is a bit fancier and has some sort of handle at the top. A jogging stick is long and slender at the top. A jogging stick is long and slender, meant to add a certain balance to runners, he said.

And a jogging stick? "Well," Moore said, hesitating, "woggin' is slower than pokin', but the sticks are about the same."

Moore can't pinpoint when his stick fancy began. He has been carrying the same hickory pokin' stick for 15 years, so it has been at least that long.

The hobby picked up momentum in 1979, when he retired as superintendent of the rural schools in Polk County. "I get four pleasures out of my sticks," he said. "First is going to the woods and finding them. Second is making them. Third is sitting back and admiring my work. And fourth, if I can't sell 'em for what I want, I can give 'em to who I want."

Moore heads out several mornings a week to walk — to poke — through his favorite stretch of woods along Kickapoo Creek, searching for new sticks. "I just go by the feel and the shape," he said.

Back in his workshop, Moore cuts the sticks to the proper length, varnishes them, puts a rubber cap on the bottom and a leather thong on the top.

He's got sticks of every imaginable wood, including a stick made from the national champion chinkapin tree and another made from an overgrown marijuana stalk that a law enforcement officer gave him. Some have fancy spirals left by vines. Others have detailed carvings courtesy of beavers. "I've got sticks I sold for $35 and never batted an eye," Moore said.

Frank Hyde of nearby Corrigan, a friend of Moore's and a folklorist, said poking sticks were once a standard part of every East Texas household. "It became an extended appendage," Hyde said, used for everything from poking a setting hen off the nest to stirring clothes boiling in the washpot.

Poking sticks are no less handy today, Moore said, even in the absence of sitting hens and boiling washpots. When he gives one of his sticks away, he does so with a warning. "It's habit-forming," he said. "You carry a stick four or five times on purpose, and the next time you do it unconsciously."

NEW YORK (AP) — The "dhimmi" — the Christians and Jews living under Islamic law — are regarded as having only "conditional rights" that can be revoked, says an Egyptian-born woman Jewish scholar.

In a book newly exploring that field, "The Dhimmi — Jews and Christians Under Islam," published by Farleigh Dickenson University Press, Bat Ye'or says they are classified in Islamic law as "protected people."

But that status often becomes "the formal expression of legalized persecution" since their rights are considered a conditional grant that can be abolished when regarded as "in the interest of Islam."

Consequently, the "dhimmi" have borne the role of "victim... despised and persecuted over the centuries," she told a consultation sponsored by the American Jewish Committee and the Associated University Presses.

French Protestant scholar Jacques Ellul says that because of the condition of non-Moslems under Islamic law, the Middle East conflict can't be solved by creating a federation of Israel with Moslem states. He writes in a foreword that such a state is a "fantasy and an illusion" since Islamic law demands putting non-Moslems in a subordinate status.

On Christopher Columbus' third trip to the new continent in 1498, he discovered Trinidad and saw the South American continent. He called it Isla Sancta, or "Holy Island."

Ways with Wine

by David Hutchins

POUR VOUS

The ritual of first pouring a little wine into one's own glass is done to assure that your guests do not get any bits of cork in their wine. It also allows you to be sure that the wine is sound before it is offered to friends. Never fill a wine-glass to the brim. For a still wine, pour it approximately half full. For champagne and sparkling wine, pour it slowly into the glass until the foam subsides, then continue pouring until the glass is two-thirds full. Unless using a small sherry glass, which generally is filled to the top, pour no more than two to three ounces of sherry or port into a glass.

A bottle of fine wine can add some excitement to every meal. AT THE STORE we stock the finest wines from all over the world, not only in name but in vintage. Depending on your personal taste and budget we can help make sure you choose just the right wine. We invite you to stop into 400 N. 25 Mile and to browse around through our shelves fully stocked with liquor, cordials, brandies, beer and wine. Call 364-7802.
