Proclaim 'Vietnam Veterans Week'

Joint proclamations on Vietnam Veterans Week were signed here Thursday by County Judge Glen Nelson and Mayor Bartley Dowell. Observing the ceremony were Lawrence Carlson, American Legion commander here (left) and VFW Post Commander Dick Oakes. An appreciation dinner for Vietnam veterans is set Wednesday when Hereford Lions open their regular luncheon meeting to all civic clubs, as well as the Legion and VFW members and Auxiliaries. Five Presidential Certificates for "community service" will be presented to nominated veterans.

Special Luncheon Will Honor Vietnam Veterans

"Vietnam Veterans Week", May 28-June 3, has been proclaimed here by County Judge Glen Nelson and Mayor Bartley Dowell. The formal signing of the proclamations was made Thursday.

The special week has been proclaimed by President Carter and Gov. Bill Clements. Five Presidential Certificates for "outstanding community service" have been sent to Deaf Smith County for presentation.

A joint meeting of all men's civic clubs, as well as the American Legion and VFW posts and their Auxiliaries, has been scheduled Wednesday at the Community Center. Purpose of the meeting is to honor Vietnam veterans and present the special certificates.

Persons wishing to nominate local veterans for the special certificates should turn in the names to the county judge's office or the Chamber of Commerce office. A selection committee has been named to review nominations and select up to five men for the awards. Recipients will be judged on the basis of making significant contributions to their community, state or nation. Community and religious involvement, professional accomplishments and overcoming obstacles will be included in the criteria.

The special week was proclaimed by the President "to salute the veterans of the Vietnam war who served their country during a painful time in a bitter war, and never received the welcome showered upon veterans of past wars."

Inflation Still Rising, But Some Relief Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) - While no one expects prices to stop rising, anti-inflation official Barry Bosworth says relief may be in sight from the kind of sharp increases recorded in recent months for food and fuel.

The prediction came as the government prepared to release today its analysis of consumer prices in April.

Consumer prices rose 1 percent in March following increases of 1.2 percent in February and 0.9 percent in January.

Continuation at that rate would produce double-digit inflation for the year, considerably above the Carter administration's target of 7.4 percent.

While the government was releasing the latest consumer price figures, the AFL-CIO was releasing the first report of its nationwide "price watch" begun in April.

"Early returns from the monitors... reflect a continuing upsurge in the prices on all sorts of consumer goods," the labor organization said in a statement.

Meanwhile, Agriculture Department figures indicate higher middleman expenses may account for almost 68 percent of a $22.8 billion increase in consumer food bills expected this year.

Although official estimates are not to be released for two or three months, department analysts agreed that calculations worked out by a reporter using existing statistics and

USDA guidelines "are in the ballpark the way things look now."

Bosworth, an economist who heads the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability, told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee Thursday dramatic increases in the prices of some consumer necessities probably were over.

"In future months we can look forward to a substantial slowing of the food price inflation," he said. "And, hopefully, the worst of the fuel price increases are behind us."

"If we can prevent the spread of earlier increases in food and fuel prices into the structure of pay rates and prices of the industrial sector, the rate of inflation will moderate over the remainder of 1979," Bosworth said.

Bosworth's views paralleled those of Alfred Kahn, who chairs the wage-price council and serves as President Carter's anti-inflation adviser.

Kahn told the panel he would not try to predict the final inflation rate this year, but added: "We think we have a fair shot at getting the rate down below the double-digit level."

Earlier this month, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal told the committee the government had "screwed up" in its inflation prediction of 7.4 percent and said the rate likely would be "8.5 percent or higher."

Holiday Travelers Look To Rail, Bus, Air Lines

By The Associated Press

Memorial Day weekend travelers, many unwilling to put their trust in undependable gasoline supplies, have begun their holiday excursions on crowded rail, bus and air lines.

Amtrak spokesman Brian Duff said Thursday's business in Washington was equivalent to that of a normal Friday as the exodus from the nation's capital began, and predicted a "substantial increase" today as the weekend got underway in earnest.

"All our available equipment is in use and travel is very heavy," said Amtrak regional spokesman Jim Bryant. "Some of our lines are sold out through the holiday. Our advice would be, don't travel on those days."

Supplies of gasoline were expected to be adequate for most of the nation, according to the American Automobile Association. But many dealers said a run on gas as the weekend opened could make a big difference in the forecasts.

AAA said a survey of 5,937 stations showed 59 percent planned to be open Saturday, 46 percent Sunday and 61 percent Monday. However, an Associated Press check of conditions around the country showed many stations running low on gas as the end of the May allocation period nears. And some dealers said they wanted a holiday, too.

Tennessee drivers won't have to fret about closed gas stations, however. Safety Commissioner Gene Roberts said an extra 177 state troopers will be on duty and will know which gas stations are open. In addition, troopers will carry extra gas in patrol cars.

Drivers willing to gamble on open stations were likely to find prices up nearly 20 cents from the same time last year, an industry survey reported this week.

Resort and amusement parks have expressed optimism this week that business will be good, particularly for those close to major cities, where a rush to prepare for the holiday travel boom began Thursday.

Amtrak added 12 trains on its Washington to New York run and one on its New York to Albany line. Bryant said the line's heaviest flow has been in Los Angeles and San Diego, where the gas shortage has been more severe.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Rep. Wayne Peveto's crusade for greater uniformity in property taxation was at its final hurdle today, but it was a formidable one.

His third and latest effort, nicknamed "Grandson of Peveto," squeaked through the House Thursday, 65-63.

Its next stop is the Senate, which must decide whether to approve changes made by the House in the bill that senators approved earlier in the legislation session.

Last session, it was the Senate that stopped the bill's progress after Peveto, D-Orange, nursed it through the House.

Senate approval of the changes would send the bill to Gov. Bill Clements, who has endorsed its key provisions.

The principal House amendment on which senators must decide inserted in the bill several provisions - also contained in other legislation - implementing parts of the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

Peveto said they amount to nothing more than provisions already accepted by a House-Senate conference committee.

Major provisions of the book-length bill would:

-Establish one office per county to appraise taxable property for all cities and taxing districts, including school districts.

-Allow county governments either to keep their own appraisal offices or join the new appraisal districts created by the bill.

-Wipe out the 10 cents per $100 state property tax by setting its assessment ratio at .0001 percent of market value of real estate. This is so low, Peveto said, that the tax would produce only $25,000 in revenue per year, compared with about $50 million now.

-Toughen the "Truth in Taxation" law by requiring local governments to post notice and hold hearings on any action that would hike revenue by even $1, except for increases resulting from new construction.

-Set up a local appraisal review board in each county that would function as a board of equalization for any appraisals made by the single appraisal office.

-Authorize local voters to roll back tax increases to 5 percent. Tax increases would be rolled back only if 25 percent of the eligible voters took part in an election.

"People are tired of unequal taxation. This bill takes care of that," Peveto told the House.

Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, protested, "No one realizes the impact of this bill."

The House passed on voice vote and sent the Senate a bill authorizing automobile dealers to charge customers up to $25 for processing the documents involved in their purchase.

Senators must decide whether to accept changes made by the House.

House members tentatively approved, 106-27, a bill giving full legal rights to any fetus that survives an abortion. In addition, the Texas Department of Human Resources could take custody of the child and sue to terminate the parental rights of its parents.

By either accepting Senate amendments or adopting conference committee reports, the House approved and sent to the governor bills that would:

-Require cities to pay legal fees of policemen sued by citizens who claim they were injured by officers acting in line of duty.

-Give persons on Death Row the right to be visited by their personal ministers at any time and under the same conditions as their lawyers.

-Set up a state-administered system to guarantee education loans made to college students by private lending institutions.

-Allow travelers to bring a full carton of cigarettes from Mexico tax-free. They now are restricted to two packs. The Alcoholic Beverage Commission would collect the state tax on any additional cigarettes.

-Authorize manufacture of industrial alcohol, with state permits, for blending with gasoline into a fuel called gasohol.

House members passed, 127-13, and sent to the governor a bill giving short-haul airlines a right of access to city-owned airports in cities of 800,000 or more.

Dubbed the "Southwest Airline Bill," it would end years of disputes between Southwest and Dallas over whether the airline may use Love Field. Dallas had tried to force Southwest to use Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

Senators passed to the House, 22-7, a bill sought by Clements that would authorize wiretapping in certain drug cases but only with the approval of the presiding judge of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

But House sponsor Gene Green, D-Houston, said he had little hope of having the wiretap bill considered in that chamber.

Senate action sent to Clements bills that would:

-Prohibit the issuance or execution of warrants to search news media offices for evidence, other than "fruits of a crime" or implements used in committing a crime.

-Repeat a State Health Department rule requiring embalming of bodies within 24 hours of death.

Tax Relief Touchy

For Some Schools

AUSTIN (AP) - School districts that do a poor job of appraising property for taxation are nervously watching the House-Senate conference committee on tax relief.

The conferees receive today a staff proposal for giving a district less than full reimbursement for revenue losses resulting from tax relief if its appraisals aren't up to snuff.

Conferees on the bill implementing the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment are close to final agreement but remained stymied by the reimbursement question.

The negotiators told their staff to draft a proposal that would give only 90 cents on the dollar to the districts that do the worst job of appraisal.

But that does not necessarily mean they will approve such an approach.

Already before the conferees is a full reimbursement plan written by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobbs, Speaker Bill Clayton and chairman of legislative committee on education and appropriations.

Committee Reports Feature C of C Directors Meeting

Committee progress reports highlighted a regular monthly meeting of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce board of directors Thursday afternoon in the C of C conference room.

Ken Rogers, president, announced that members of the industrial development committee were working with a prospect in Dallas, and they would make a personal contact next week. He also announced that Tim Scott, business committee chairman, had resigned and a new chairman would be appointed soon.

Director Dave Hopper reported the Hereford Open Tennis Tournament is scheduled June 1-3. Hopper also recommended, and directors approved, that the C of C closed tourney held each year be turned over to the YMCA, but be open to all county residents.

unwillingly in the United States in more than 12 years.

Spenkelink, 30, lost his last hope of reprieve four minutes before the scheduled execution when the Supreme Court in Washington voted 6-2 to deny a stay. Lawyers for Spenkelink had presented a petition for a stay to the court clerk at 7 a.m.

Spenkelink was the first man executed in the United States since Gary Mark Gilmore willingly faced a firing squad in Utah on January 17, 1977. Before that, no executions had been carried out in this country since 1967.

In the hours before his death, Spenkelink received final visits by his family and his minister.

The 10 a.m. execution deadline was set early today after a panel of three judges from the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans removed a stay imposed by an Atlanta member of the appellate court, effective at 9:30 a.m. EDT.

The deadline was set early today after a panel of three judges from the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans removed a stay imposed by an Atlanta member of the appellate court, effective at 9:30 a.m. EDT.

"It looks like they're determined to kill him," said Spenkelink attorney Margie Pitts Hames.

"The overwhelming power of the state is coming down on everybody's head," she said.

The U.S. Supreme Court, which four times previously had rejected Spenkelink's appeals, on Thursday set aside a stay ordered earlier this week by Justice Thurgood Marshall.

Spenkelink was in a holding cell a few feet from the electric chair at the Florida State Prison. He was visited for two hours by his minister, the Rev. Tom Feamster - who said afterward that the condemned man exhibited no fear. "He's doing very, very well," Feamster said. "He's dealing with this very well."

According to the Rev. Joe Ingle, a supporter of clemency, from about 3 a.m. to 6:30 a.m., Spenkelink was visiting with family members and his fiancée, Carla Key of Jacksonville.

Spenkelink's 67-year-old mother, Lois, was to spend 30 minutes with her son in a final visit, and Feamster would be with Spenkelink the last 3 1/2 hours before electrocution, Ingle said.

As dawn approached, small fires could be seen flickering inside the prison and inmates could be heard banging on walls and cell doors. About two dozen protesters held signs aloft on a road a quarter-mile from the prison and shouted, "Death Row Must go."

Disruptive Students Could Be Ejected

AUSTIN (AP) - Teachers would have authority to eject disruptive students from their classrooms under a measure sent to the governor Thursday.

Senators passed the bill by Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, on a 31-0 vote.

The measure was a priority item of both the Texas State Teachers Association and the Texas Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO. It received support from both liberal and conservative legislators.

Teachers claimed in committee hearings that they needed independent authority to remove "incorrigible" pupils because some principals are weak-kneed about discipline.

A teacher could eject or recommend suspension of any pupil who assaults the instructor or has a record of disrupting the class.

The principal would have to hold a hearing within three school days and could suspend the student for the rest of the year.

United Airlines Strike

Finally Ends

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP) - The 55-day strike against United Airlines, which cost the carrier an estimated $8 million a day, has ended with union approval of a new contract in time for the airline to cash in on some of the Memorial Day rush.

The vote, announced Thursday, represented overwhelming approval by a large, unspecified turnout of its 18,600 members, union officials said, but they declined to give the exact tally.

United, confident of approval of the three-year pact agreed to last Saturday, had said it planned to resume partial service on Monday - including flights to Hawaii, where the strike caused a big drop in tourism.

Based on United's gross earnings of $3 billion in sales last year, the airline said, the longest strike in its history cost more than $8 million a day in sales.

'Blind Ambition' Said

True To Record

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) - Former special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski watched an eight-hour television version of the White House Watergate scandal and pronounced it "true to the record."

"Blind Ambition" aired on CBS over four nights, depicted former Presidential Counsel John Dean's version of events leading to the downfall of President Richard Nixon.

"Historically, it's accurate. The passages from tape recordings are reported very well, adapted to the presentation well," said Jaworski in a telephone interview with the Bradenton Herald. The show concluded Wednesday.

"I would say those who haven't followed Watergate very closely and didn't have the whole picture have a very good perception now," said the 72-year-old Texas lawyer.

$15 Million Marijuana

Haul Seized

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) - A ship carrying more than $15 million worth of marijuana has been captured 200 miles northwest of Puerto Rico, apparently headed from South America to an American East Coast port, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

The 125-foot Belmont, a former Coast Guard cutter, was carrying 420 bales of marijuana, authorities said. Eleven of the crew members were natives of Colombia, they said.

A Coast Guard cutter is towing the Belmont to San Juan, authorities said.

Wall Street Clash Hushed

NEW YORK (AP) - A hush has fallen on Wall Street, where earlier this decade the defenders of private securities markets clashed with government regulators over the modernization of trading.

Confrontations are rare now; the dialogue is calmer, the interferences less angry. Muscled flexing is hardly part of the scene. And so even is the level of discussion that many people assume the issues have died.

They haven't. What has happened is the presence of William "Mil" Batten, 69, who became chairman of the New York Stock Exchange in 1976, succeeding James Needham, a tough, sometimes combative chief executive.

Though assertive, as executives are, Batten's style is low key. "I don't think much is accomplished by confrontation," he said the other day. "We can get more done if we avoid it than if we seek it out."

It's Batten's management style. "I'm result-oriented," he said. The way to achieve goals is to have each group understand the other. If screaming would do it, if it would achieve goals, I'd be for it. He is a reasonable man.

The objectives of the SEC Securities and Exchange Commission and people in this business are the same," he said. "We want a market in the public interest. We want integrity."

Although you can find an argument on almost any subject in this notoriously opinionated community, many people feel the Batten style is right for the times.

Under Needham, himself a former SEC commissioner, the hard-fighting probably was required, since stock exchanges at the time assumed they were fighting for their lives. Few SEC opinions were left unchallenged.

But now the law is written. Under a 1975 act of Congress, the various exchanges are committed to linking their facilities into a central marketplace. Congress didn't specify the form, but it stated the goal.

As head of the biggest exchange of all, Batten's role is to maintain a constructive dialogue with other exchanges, with the SEC and with his own membership, and somehow to balance it all with the public good.

To date, as he sees it, the linkage is evolving smoothly and "in accordance with the act," although he concedes some disagreement with the SEC on the rate of progress - on the timing of advances.

Mystery Creature Haunts Washington's Farmer

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) - George Washington once slept here, but he might find it harder nowadays. A strange something is at large, wailing or screaming nightly a mile from the ancestral home of the Father of His Country.

For nine, noisy months, the mystery creature has haunted a patch of woods surrounded by $150,000 homes near Mount Vernon, wrecking the peace and defying spotting and identification.

Local teen-agers have caught its act on tape. It goes something like: "oohkra-ah," or "eeevagoo-ah," or even "aaaooohauoo-ah-oo."

The Mount Vernon Monster, some call it. Others, Bigfoot. More guesses: hootowls, loud frogs, a radio with a stuck button, wild boars, a prankster with a bullhorn, the ghost of George Washington, the ghost of George Washington's pigs.

peacock," said George Stickman Fairfax County game warden, who has ruled out bears, bobcats and other fauna found in the vicinity.

The peacock theory may not be too exotic. Experts at the nearby Mason Neck Wildlife Refuge said peafowl are often kept as yard pets in the South. One could have flown the coop and fluttered to Mount Vernon.

"They have a loud, penetrating cry, almost like a scream," said John Aldrich, a retired Fish and Wildlife researcher.

Mike Morgan of the National Zoo said the birds used to escape frequently when allowed to roam the grounds.

Whatever it may be, the creature is elusive as well as vocal. It has foiled police watches, flyers by a U.S. Park Police helicopter, volunteer youth patrols and the determined efforts of warden Stickman.

"The thing seems to know when you leave the woods. Then it starts to holler," said Stickman, who staged a fruitless overnight vigil to catch the interloper.

Meanwhile, residents continue to discuss the problem at get-togethers, playing tapes and advancing theories.

"Maybe it's a wounded animal or bird with damaged vocal cords," said Maggie Oyer, who thinks the sound it makes is a "low wailing."

One resident, Theima Crisp, says she spotted the Monster. She described it as a creature about six feet tall which lumbered into the woods after being sighted.

Could it be a Bigfoot, trying to reach headquarters of the Fish and Wildlife Service in Washington, 15 miles away? "If it's Bigfoot, and there's proof," said a spokesman, "we'd protect it."

Give teachers independent power to suspend disruptive students from their classrooms for up to a full semester.

Require lay midwives to register with their counties and spell out by law that they could assist only in normal births and must disclose limitations on what they are able to do.

Give tenants a statutory right to repairs related to the health, safety and comfort of their living quarters, coupled with a right to sue landlords to make needed repairs.

House members approved and placed on the Nov. 4, 1980, general election ballot a constitutional amendment giving a governor the right to remove his appointees from office. He would have to receive the consent of two-thirds of the Senate to remove someone, however.

Gulf Coast Refineries Likely Targets During Nuclear Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) - Dallas, Houston and New Orleans along with the Texas and Louisiana Gulf Coast refineries, are the most likely targets of a limited nuclear attack, a government study shows.

These would be the targets should an enemy want a limited attack to disrupt the U.S. economy, said a report from the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment.

In a hypothetical case, if the Soviet Union attacks the U.S. energy supply with 10 SS-18 missiles, each with eight 1-ton warheads, almost half of the coverage area would be in a series of nuclear "footprints" in Texas and Louisiana, including Dallas, Houston and New Orleans, the report said.

It predicted 472,000 "prompt fatalities" in Texas and 5 million nationwide.

A large attack on U.S. military and economic targets could kill from 20 million to 165 million Americans, it said. The wide range in estimates was attributed to variables including evacuation time and altitude of explosions.

The study was requested by the U.S. Senate and is expected to play a major role in the SALT II debates.

Dr. Peter Sharfman, the government official who released the study, said its major finding is that the effects of a nuclear war that cannot be calculated are at least as important as those for which calculations were attempted. He stressed that even the limited calculations are subject to large uncertainties.

"I don't believe a lot can be predicted," Sharfman said. "But nuclear weapons are real, and nuclear war would cause destruction on a scale we've not experienced. Most of us don't even dream of it."

In the oil refinery aspects of the study, based in part on the classified CIA and military intelligence information, the report said 64 percent of the U.S. petroleum refining capacity would be destroyed in the first attack. One Soviet missile carrying eight warheads could destroy 14.9 percent of the national storage capacity by striking Texas.

The report also pointed out that an attack against Soviet military and urban and industrial targets "would remove that nation from a position of power and influence for the remainder of the century."

It noted that "an imponderable is the psychological impact" of a nuclear attack on America.

"The United States has never suffered the loss of millions of people and is unlikely that the survivors would simply take it in stride. The suffering experienced by the South in the decade after 1860 provides the nearest analogy, and a case can be made that these effects took a century to wear off."

Carter Fails in Promise To Cut Federal Agencies

WASHINGTON (AP) - Jimmy Carter has all but given up on fulfilling his campaign promise to drastically reduce the number of federal agencies.

During the 1976 campaign he pledged a massive reorganization, saying he would trim 1,900 federal agencies to a more manageable 200 or fewer. No such thing is going to happen.

The government looks outwardly today about the same as it looked when Carter took office in January 1977.

There is a new Department of Energy, which holds the distinction of becoming in its brief life the most-criticized single cabinet department in government.

And the creaky old Civil Service Commission was split up, a move almost universally applauded.

But none of the 11 cabinet departments has even had its name changed, and other reorganizations have been minor.

The basic structure of government isn't likely to change very radically by the time Carter's term is up the year after next.

Carter is still pushing to carve a new Department of Education out of HEW Secretary Joseph Califano's realm, mainly because Carter thinks presidents should spend more of their time on education matters.

And it is possible, though far from certain, that Carter will endorse a congressional move to create a new cabinet-level

Department of Trade to push for expanded U.S. exports and to police the new international trade agreement.

But even these initiatives would leave the federal bureaucracy looking mighty familiar.

Actually, Carter's campaign promise was pretty naive to start.

His aides, in fact, could never locate anywhere near the 1,900 "agencies" Carter had spoken of.

They did count 469 departments, agencies and "sub-agencies."

And they found a grand total of 1,846 "organization units" in the government.

But this was done by counting 1,189 "advisory committees," which of course are not agencies because they don't administer anything, along with a smattering of "quasi-official organizations," government corporations and other outfits.

That total is now down - not to anywhere near 200 - but to 1,434 at last count.

Even that reduction is somewhat illusory. The number of advisory committees did fall by 32 percent, but this was accomplished largely through mergers rather than outright elimination. The number of people on the committees fell only 19 percent and their combined spending has actually increased 24 percent, to $74 million this year.

But however you cut it, Carter isn't delivering on that pledge to squeeze the federal government into 200 neat units.

Farmer Convict Appeals Denial of Law License

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) - A man who earned a law degree after serving seven years in prison for second-degree murder has appealed the state board of Law Examiners' refusal to issue him a license to practice law.

The board denied Moore's application for a law license on grounds that he failed to list an assault conviction on his examination application.

Moore served seven years of a 25-year term for second-degree murder after being convicted in 1966 in the shooting of his estranged wife's boyfriend, Barney O. Adler.

After being released on parole in 1975, Moore graduated from South Texas College of Law in Houston.

Moore, a resident of

Charlotte, took the bar examination in 1978, but the board sealed the results after deciding last December that Moore had not demonstrated he was "of such good moral character as to be entitled to the high regard and confidence of the public."

The board said that during a hearing before he took the exam Moore "made false statements under oath on matters material to his fitness of character." It did not elaborate.

Moore's application was accompanied by letters of recommendation from former employers and law professors at the school in Houston, but Ira Myer, a secretary at the University of North Carolina in Charlotte filed an affidavit opposing his licensing.

Mrs. Myers said she seen Moore "use and abuse other persons" and that he had a reputation "of being devious and threatening."

Moore appealed the board's decision to Wake County Superior Court, which has not issued a decision.

His attorney, Vaughn S. Winborne of Raleigh, said the board failed to prove that Moore intentionally left the assault conviction off his application.

Moore said on his application that he wanted to be a lawyer to "serve as one example, surely to prison inmates wherever located, that one tragedy or error in life does not destroy a person's meaning or purpose in life."

Police Report

Juvenile Disturbance Checked

Hereford police investigated another juvenile disturbance here last night, and also gave their attention to theft and traffic matters.

Raymond Ray Gonzales notified police concerning the activities of a 16 year old intoxicated juvenile at Veteran's Park.

Gonzales told investigating officers that the youth was annoying two girls at the park, and he asked the suspect to leave.

The youth responded by ripping the weather stripping from Gonzales' car, and then ran over three parked motorcycles while attempting to leave the scene.

According to a police department spokesman, the matter is still under investigation, and is expected to be turned over to local juvenile authorities.

David Parsons of 333 Ave. K., reported that a mini-bike was taken from his garage by a 13 year old juvenile, but no charges were filed in the incident when the mini-bike was returned.

Carleta Watts of 140 Ranger, informed officers that a purse was stolen from her car while parked in the 100 block of Ave. D. Personal items, credit cards and a small amount of cash was taken in the theft.

Police received a theft complaint from Gonzales Brothers Plumbing of Hereford yesterday. A spokesman for the business told officers that two joints of 1/2 inch pipe were taken from the Elm Courts here. No value was placed on the pipe.

Ira Scott of 102 Elm told police that a watch valued at $135 had either been lost or stolen at his residence.

Police were kept busy with traffic accidents yesterday, one of which involved a house.

A collision involving vehicles driven by Bruce Edward Russell and Janis Reinauer caused the Russell vehicle to strike a fence, and subsequently, a house at 610 West Second.

Russell was issued a traffic citation for failure to yield the right of way from a stop sign.

Police investigated two rear-end collisions yesterday.

One involved a vehicle driven by John Kerr of Rt. 3, which was waiting to make a left turn and was struck by a vehicle driven by George Branum of Rt. 5.

A traffic citation is pending in that accident.

In the other collision, Andrew Beatty of 243 Hickory was waiting to make a left turn onto Union from Highway 385, and was hit from behind by a vehicle driven by Marie Halford of 526 Ave. J. Both vehicles were southbound at the time of the accident, and Halford was issued a citation for failure to control speed.

A total of 15 traffic citations were issued by local police yesterday.

The Lighter Side

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Sandi Crandell says she doesn't know who sent her 248 dozen roses. The card said, "A rose for each day I have known you..." and asked, "Do you like peanut butter and jelly sandwiches?"

"I was floored," she said. It took florists 20 minutes to unload the nearly 3,000 roses from the truck they rented for the delivery.

Greg Parrish of The Flower Patch Shop won't say who the mysterious admirer is, only that he gave the buyer a break on his usual price of $10.48 a dozen.

Miss Crandell was busy giving most of them away Wednesday - to friends, neighbors, hospitals and nursing homes.

"Tell whoever sent them thanks," she said. "And if he cares to reveal himself, I don't bite."

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston's City Council has banned dripping wax from downtown streets.

N ordinance approved Wednesday sets a $10 fine for anyone allowing candles to drip during ceremonies or protest marches.

The ordinance prohibits a candle from being lighted in the area unless its base is surrounded by a container large enough to catch and hold wax drippings.

Some councilmen said slippery wax drippings could endanger pedestrians.

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (AP) - A new ensemble on Platteville high school's concert program has become a rage without tooting a note. Ensemble members just clap.

Jeff Schave, 25, the school's band director, said he organized the outfit to provide novelty relief during regular instrumental and choral performances of his dozens of ensembles and soloists.

But the student clappers, while whacking out noisy patterns under Schave's baton, won a No. 1 performance rating during recent regional competition and another in state competition.

Now the students "are being asked to perform for church groups and ladies' groups," Schave said. "I have to take along a woodwind ensemble or one of our other groups just to show we're not entirely wasting our time."

MANITOWOC, Wis. (AP) - Elvis Presley and Mrs. Herbert Baer have a new baby.

Dad is the former Herbert A. Baer, 41, of rural Valders, who had his name changed last December to Elvis Presley.

Baer said at the time he had been a fan of the singer for years and was known to friends for more than 20 years by that nickname.

Presley's wife and three other children retain the family name, and the hospital report listed the parents of the baby born Tuesday as "Elvis Presley and Mrs. Herbert Baer."

It was not known what name the couple chose for the baby boy.

Israel Turns Over El Arish to Egypt

EL ARISH, Occupied Sinai (AP) - Israel returns the dusty Sinai Desert town of El Arish to Egypt today in the first firm step toward peace after angry Jewish settlers gave up their right to retain a patch of nearby farmland.

The ceremony marks the first return of war-won land under the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty and coincides with the opening of talks between the two nations in Beersheba, the Israeli Negev Desert capital 60 miles to the northeast, on self-rule for Palestinians in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Egypt will regain sovereignty over El Arish and an adjoining 425-square-mile strip of Mediterranean coastal land west of the town, capital of the desert wilderness Egyptian President Anwar Sadat calls his "sacred Sinai."

About 200 Jewish settlers, angered by the prospect of giving Egypt their 10-acre vegetable patch on the western outskirts of El Arish, fought hundreds of unarmed Israeli troops Thursday, on the eve of the transfer. The farmers hurled flaming torches, stones, melons, vegetables and insults at the troops called in to remove them from the plot where they dug in last Sunday.

A handful of troops and civilians were injured in the scuffle that ended when Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Yadin brought the settlers a promise that Prime Minister Menachem Begin would discuss their plight with Sadat when the two leaders meet on Sunday in El Arish.

$20 Portrait

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wish you would find room for this poem. I'm sure it would help a lot of people with very young children and large families who are always saying:

Send a Picture of the Baby
Got your 20th letter today,
Ending line went this way:
"Whenever you get a chance one day,

Send a picture of the baby."
Today we got your 14th call
Everyone is fine and all.
"We know we'll see the kids

next fall,
But send a picture of the baby."

Friends and family, we love you a lot.
That picture is 20 bucks a shot.

It's money we just haven't got.

So send a quarter for the baby.

We think it's just a great idea,
So send a quarter here and there.

And maybe by this time next year,
You'll get a picture of the baby.

--From Mother Of The Baby --
In Green Bay

DEAR MOTHER: When people ask for a picture of the baby, they don't mean send a $20 portrait. A snapshot will do.

So -- loosen up, put one in the mail and forget the poetry. Mrs. Browning.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've just read your reprint of your message to "Meant Well" and I agree that guilt after children have been raised does no good.

Kindergarten and first grade teachers like me see many little people whose lives are made unnecessarily difficult by well-meaning parents. We are able to compare their children with others the same age in an objective manner. Some youngsters are not permitted to exercise their own judgment and are kept much too dependent. Others, given too much freedom, become tyrants. They run their parents' lives and try to run everyone else's.

Many children receive so little pre-school preparation, they need another year of kindergarten or first grade to enable them to cope successfully with their peers.

We don't claim to be 100 percent right all the time, but if parents would cooperate with us, their children would benefit handsomely. Please print this message -- especially for moms and dads who think we are mean because we ask that Mary or Johnny repeat a year. -- First Grade Teacher

DEAR TEACHER: I hear you loud and clear -- and what you say makes a lot of sense. Too bad so many parents resent any criticism about their youngsters. Please, Mom and Dad, listen to what this teacher is saying. She WANTS to help.

CONFIDENTIAL to Should We OK 72 and 75? They are old enough to make this decision without your OK. I think the idea is great. It could add years to your father's life. P.S. Don't throw rice -- throw vitamins.

Mushrooms Popular, Nutritious Vegetable

COLLEGE STATION -- Americans have doubled their consumption of a certain fungus--the mushroom--in the past 10 years. Mushrooms are nutritious, low in calorie, and can be used in a variety of ways, says a food technologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The mushroom is the fruiting portion of a fungus mold. It points out Al B. Wagner. "It is classified as a vegetable and is available fresh, canned, frozen and freeze-dried (limited).

Fresh mushrooms are sized by "cap" diameters. "Specials" are from one-and-one-fourth inches to one-and-one-half inches and are best for stuffing. "Mediums" or "Fancys" are one inch to one-and-one-fourth inches. "Buttons" are less than one inch in diameter and are best for slicing or chopping.

"Unlike other vegetables, size is not an indication of quality," notes Wagner. "Large mushrooms are just as tender as the small ones. They also look more appealing and generally cost more."

Mushrooms with closed "veils" are the freshest. However, they are still good after the veil has opened, revealing the gills. Avoid mushrooms with badly bruised or pitted caps, suggests the specialist. Mushrooms range in color from white to brown, with color having little effect on quality or flavor as long as they have not turned black.

"Mushrooms purchased in film-sealed containers should be refrigerated in the cartons until prepared," recommends Wagner. "Puncture one or two holes (pencil size) in the film to insure air movement in the container. Fresh mushrooms purchased in bulk can be refrigerated in plastic bags as long as there is proper air circulation. Wash mushrooms gently just prior to use and let drain or pat dry. All of the mushroom is usable; no peeling is necessary."

The specialist says canned mushrooms are practical for most mushroom dishes. Portion control is easy because there is a variety of can sizes to choose from.

The availability of frozen and freeze-dried mushrooms on a retail basis is limited, Wagner adds.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,
A special letter of recognition is due for our mothers who have helped so much throughout our senior year. These senior mothers have planned our prom and given us an all night party among other things.

About 200-225 seniors who failed to attend the all night party cannot realize how much work was put into preparing refreshments, ticket sales, and chaperones. A special thanks to Mrs. Paul Scott for her work on the outstanding refreshments. I hope the Seniors of '79 realize that this party was given in their honor, and not out of habit or custom.

It is sad to think that this celebration could be cancelled next year because many graduates failed to attend and to realize this party's unique meaning.

Again, thank you to all of our mothers and fathers who have helped us throughout the years.

NEW YORK (AP) — Fourteen artists, writers and composers have been elected to the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters.

Academy President Barbara Tuchman said the new members were: Roy Lichtenstein, Joan Mitchell and Larry Rivers, painters; John M. Johansen, architect; Tony Smith, sculptor; Joseph Brodsky, Robert Hayden and John Hollander, poets; Irving Howe, literary critic and historian; Susan Sontag, novelist and essayist; Rene Dubos, bacteriologist and writer, and Henry Brant, Ulysses Kay and Ned Rorem, composers.

The relative humidity is too low and stops when a certain level has been attained. Although such humidifiers come with detailed instructions on how to handle the controls, you can adjust them to your own needs simply by observation. If windows steam up, for example, in the area where the humidifier is located, you know that too much moisture is being emitted and that the control must be reset at a different level.

The variety of humidifiers is almost endless. Don't go out and buy one until you have shopped around and asked a lot of questions. Talk to people in your neighborhood who own them. Different types of humidifiers are better suited to areas which have different temperatures and average relative humidities.

Displaced Tenants Are Hot Issue

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Converting rental apartments to condominiums — one of real estate's hottest trends — is an even more heated issue in a number of cities where the rush to buy apartments has displaced tenants and depleted the rental market.

Brookline, an affluent Boston suburb of 58,000, is the latest community to put the brakes on conversions, placing a ban on evictions of renters living in apartment houses converted to condominiums.

The move, coming after 15 percent of the town's rental units were "condoed," has been challenged by a group of property owners and prospective buyers who say the law is unconstitutional.

Brookline joins a number of other municipalities that have tried in various ways to slow down condominium conversions. They include:

—New York, which requires approval of 35 percent of a building's tenants before apartments can be sold.

—Washington, where conversions are allowed only in buildings where rent exceeds a certain level.

—Palo Alto, Calif., which ties condominium conversion to the vacancy rate of rental units.

—Santa Monica, Calif., where conversions require official approval.

—In Chicago, where Mayor Jane Byrne listed a review of condominium laws as a top priority in her new administration, an attempt to place a temporary moratorium on conversions was thrown out in court.

"Dozens of local governments have placed restrictions on the conversion process in one form or the other," said James Dowden, head of the Community Associations Institute, a Washington clearinghouse for condominiums and homeowners associations.

"It's an emotional issue because you're faced with moving people — families have to buy or move," he said. "Intends to cause a quick response from political leaders."

"Every community with multi-family housing is going to face the same question, in the next decade."

Brookline, a tree-lined community of expensive homes, brownstones and scattered high rises, has debated the pros and cons of condominiums since 1970. The year rent control was instituted to stabilize high rents and a low vacancy rate.

Landlords responded by turning their properties into condominiums. By this January, 1,532 of the town's 14,000 rental units had been converted — more than 500 of them in the last half of 1978.

Nationally, some 100,000 apartment units were converted last year, according to a recent study by Citicorp Realty. The figure, nearly double that of 1977, is expected to jump to 130,000 this year.

Condominium owners own full title to their apartments, owning their unit in the same way homeowners hold title to their houses. Common facilities in a condominium building, such as hallways and adjacent grounds, are held jointly by all condominium owners.

Apartment-condominiums are popular among those seeking an investment and a bulwark against inflation. But the conversions also represent a threat to renters who face eviction if they are unable or unwilling to buy.

Rent control in Brookline was a result of a housing shortage," said Roger Lipson, director of the town's rent control board. "All condominium conversions do is exacerbate the problem. You can't simply sweep tenants under the carpet. The problem is if you kick people out where are they going to go?"

The Brookline law, passed last week at the annual town meeting, was introduced by state Rep. John Businger, a Democrat whose two earlier attempts to get an eviction ban were defeated by narrow margins.

Supporters had already won a temporary moratorium which would have expired June 15 if the vote had not supported the ban last week.

Businger, himself a tenant in a recently converted building, said he became concerned with the issue last year after receiving calls from older tenants threatened with eviction.

"It was obvious it was becoming an epidemic," he said. "Condominiums are fine as long as you are talking about new, buildings or vacant apartments. Otherwise to me it's just a subtle form of urban renewal that changes people instead of buildings."

Brookline's landlords, who say the law violates their property rights, complain reports of evictions are greatly exaggerated. They point to brisk sales and an improved tax base as proof that condominiums are popular in the town.

"Of all the conversions, only 35 certificates of eviction have been issued," said Gerald Fineberg, a real estate man who heads Citizens for a Better Brookline.

"We offer all tenants preferred prices and generally — when word gets around that we are converting, we have more tenants who want to buy than those who complain."

"Fineberg said landlords have also formed a committee to help relocate tenants, a service he said was not offered by the rent control board.

Others, like Roger Stern of the Brookline Landowners Association, say condominiums are the only way landlords can make a living under rent control, which he said has kept rents 15 to 20 percent under the going market rate.

"It's all a very emotional issue," he said. "But the rational part of it is that for people with a few dollars, condominiums are a good deal."

The Abundant Life

SELF-PROTECTION

BY BOB WEAR

THERE ARE MANY THREATS to our well-being. The daily newspaper, and the regular newscast remind us that there are numerous possibilities of suffering loss, being hurt, or being killed. Of course, if we spend our time worrying about these possibilities, we are being foolish. Worry is no help. We must, however, face the facts. When we know what the situation is, we can maintain a wise alertness; we can avoid danger.

WE MAY NOT BE ABLE to maintain defenses against every possibility of harm or loss, but we must do our best. This does not mean that we should live scared, because this would not be satisfactory living. It does mean that we are realistic, and sensible. There is no merit in being careless and foolhardy, or acting as we invite trouble and danger.

COWARDICE IS NOT A PROPER REASON for avoiding danger, but there is a wholesome fear which is not the fear of wisdom and good sense. It will be found in the courageous behavior of people. True courage is not found in the rashness and recklessness of the fool, but is expressed in wise caution and well-thought-out action.

WE SHOULD NEVER so entirely avoid danger as to appear irresolute and cowardly; but, at the same time, we should avoid unnecessary exposure of ourselves to danger, than which nothing can be more foolish." — Cicero.

WE CAN BE DISCERNING ENOUGH to recognize the real threats to our well-being. We know that some kinds of situations must be avoided. There are certain types of places to which the wise never go. There are people with whom the prudent will have no association. There are activities in which sensible people will not participate. All of this is part of the structure for the self-protection which is so essential in the worthwhile life.

WE ARE MOST VULNERABLE to the harm which we do to ourselves. We may protect ourselves, and our life situation against all potential loss which can be caused by others; but practically destroy ourselves and our good situation by unwise use of the tongue. We must be on guard constantly to make sure that we are under control. This means that we must guard all of the approaches to our mind. Wise self-rule is our best defense.

SOME PEOPLE SAY AND DO THINGS for the purpose of irritating us, things which are designed to throw us out of control. Some efforts will be made to deceive us, and some folks will try to discourage us; and there are other similar threats. Against all of these we must be on guard. We must never permit these attacks to serve their specific purposes, or the general purpose of making us say or do something foolish.

"SELF PROTECTION" IS an essential and active part of a wise and strong life structure.

Iranians Defend Bloody 'Holy' Revolt

EDITOR'S NOTE — Iran's revolutionaries see themselves as following in the footsteps of the Prophet Mohammed, the founder of Islam, who overthrew the corrupt city of Mecca in the 7th century and re-established justice, morality and equality. Here is how many Iranians themselves view their revolution.

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The Islamic revolutionaries who overthrew the shah of Iran are showing rising anger over the adverse image of their revolution abroad. They still consider it a boon to humanity despite violence in the provinces and 216 executions since February. Asserting that only the most sensational aspects of the ouster of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi have been emphasized overseas, they accuse foreigners of massive misconceptions about the revolution's real significance.

While some Iranians share foreign alarm over the number and speed of executions, many other citizens appear genuinely surprised that the killings have drawn such violent foreign criticism. They see the outcry as an indication either that killers of the shah's political opponents were never adequately publicized in the West, or that Westerners had no interest in them so long as the shah protected Western strategic and oil interests. Ayatollah Sadeq Khalkhali, chief of Tehran's revolutionary court, last week called the shah "our Hitler." Iranian militants believe Westerners never grasped the depth of opposition to the shah during the reign, so they fail to understand the reasons for retribution now. "You have to understand that above all this is a religious revolution," says a young activist who spent more than 10 years in exile in the United States before returning to Iran six weeks ago. "People overseas have underestimated the causes of this revolution — pornography, corruption, prostitution, inequality, gambling, alcohol, even junk music," he asserted. "People here are now concentrating on the true principles of Islam." Americans and other foreigners, he claimed, think of the revolution too much in terms of oil and big-power politics, rather than the egalitarian, "Islamic" lifestyle it is supposed to bring about in Iran. Islamic principles include the operation of revolutionary tribunals, which have drawn the strongest protest in the West, including a recent condemnation by the U.S. Senate which brought a sharp retort from the revolution's leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. There are no defense lawyers or appeals, two staples of Western justice. Defenders of the courts claim Iran's version of Islamic justice is not barbaric, only different. They say two witnesses are required for every assertion by the prosecution and justice is more effective than in the drawn-out Western court process. "You don't have to hold every trial here for six months," the young activist said. "Who killed John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King? Nobody is ever going to know that, in your Western system. We are running fair courts." Even some supporters of the revolution, however, say they are disturbed by the speed of trials — less than an hour for some death sentences — and an apparent fear by some defendants of angering the court by cross-examining witnesses too ruthlessly. Iran's revolutionaries could see themselves as following in the footsteps of the Prophet Mohammed, founder of Islam. In the first chapter of Islamic history, in the 7th century after Christ, Mohammed rose up against drinking, gambling, sexual promiscuity and a rigid power hierarchy in the Arabian desert city of Mecca, now part of Saudi Arabia and today the center of Islam. Oppressed by the city's powerful elders, Mohammed fled to nearby Medina, forged an empire there and returned to conquer Mecca against overwhelming military odds. Islamic lore holds that he dispensed stern justice against wrongdoers, although he showed mercy to those who directly attacked him. Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, persecuted by the shah's regime for his outspoken criticism, was expelled from Iran in 1964 but eventually returned to conquer his homeland. To an Iranian Moslem follower of Islam, viewing Iran through the prism of religious history, the shah's regime was a decadent Mecca of the 20th century. "We were Westernizing, but only taking the worst parts of the West," one Iranian claims. "We had the plastic, the frills, but we never developed the team spirit, the work ethic that Western countries have. All we had were the automobiles and the drip-dry shirts." The shah's regime also permitted wide social inequalities that revolutionaries believed led to selfishness, corruption and gross disregard for the welfare of the general public. Significantly, the first large-scale violence by Iranian revolutionaries included burning movie houses — considered purveyors of harmful Western culture — as well as breweries and the Tehran red-light district. Revolutionaries claim when they think of Iran's future, they concentrate far more on building a hard-working equal society than on executing past opponents.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, May 25, the 145th day of 1979. There are 220 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1961, President John Kennedy asked the nation to strive to send Americans to the moon within the next decade. The first moon landing was in 1969.
On this date:
In 1836, Rep. John Quincy Adams opposed the annexation of Texas in a speech in the House, saying the move could trigger a war with Mexico.
In 1844, a Washington correspondent for the Baltimore Patriot became the first newsman to send a dispatch by telegraph, reporting a vote in the House of Representatives.
In 1862, Confederate troops under General Stonewall Jackson defeated a Union force in the Civil War Battle of Winchester, Va.
In 1944, in World War II, the Anzio Beachhead in Italy was linked with the Allied front.
In 1955, Udall, Kan., was almost completely demolished as a series of tornadoes swept Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri and killed at least 121 people.

In 1967, the U.S. State Department ordered wives and children of American officials to leave Egypt and Israel because of the danger of war.
Ten years ago: A shaky coalition government in the Sudan was overthrown in a bloodless coup, and Mohammed Ahmed Mahgoub became premier.
Five years ago: President Richard Nixon held fast to his position that he must defend the Presidency by refusing to turn over evidence sought in a major Watergate criminal case.
One year ago: Paratroopers of the French Foreign Legion, who had landed during fighting in the African country of Zaïre, began to withdraw.
Today's birthdays: President Tito of Yugoslavia is 87. Writer Herman Wouk is 64. Former White House Press Secretary Ronald Nessen is 45. Pitcher Bob Knepper of the San Francisco Giants is 23.
Thought for today: Debt is a bottomless sea — Thomas Carlyle, Scottish essayist and historian, 1795-1881.

STATE CAPITAL
Highlights
AND Sidelights
By Lyndell Williams

AUSTIN — While one conference committee was in the process of working out a state budget, another was trying to decide who will get what as far as tax relief goes, and yet another conference committee was about to begin negotiations over school finance. Ironically, hardly anyone noticed.
Not even the first House override of a gubernatorial veto since 1951, or tentative approval of initiative and referendum legislation, or passage by House members of changes to the consumer protection act, could hold the spotlight for long after the first of what would be two filibusters began in the Senate.

While conference committee members were quietly drawing up a compromise to pay state employees (except teachers) 5 1/2 percent more in 1980-81 and poor children an extra $100 a year, one-third of the senate was at odds with the other two-thirds over consumer issues and one purely political matter — a presidential primary. Months ago, the whole question of a presidential primary appeared to be dead thanks to Sen. Ron Clower of Garland who rounded up the signatures of 13 of his colleagues who said they were against Sen. Jack Ogg's bill that would separate a presidential primary from state primaries. Thirteen senators is enough to block consideration of a bill in the senate.
But then Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby rolled out SB 1149, a bill Sen. Lloyd Doggett quickly tagged as a "Trojan Horse." Later though, Doggett, Sens. Babe Schwartz, Carl Parker Clower and others, who combined in the first filibuster of the week against SB 1149, came to think of the bill more as a smokescreen.

What looked like a shrewd parliamentary maneuver by Hobby turned out to be even more. Simply stated, SB 1149 would have put the secretary of state (at the moment, a Republican, George Strake) in charge of funds for running primaries instead of the county party chairmen. The Democrats were a little nervous about that happening. But even more irritating for some Senators was the fact there was no guarantee SB 1149 would come back from the House unamended.
If the House sent back a substitute, it would take only a majority vote for the Senate to concur and that meant Clower's 13 votes wouldn't be enough to stop passage of a bill with some provision tacked on setting up a separate presidential primary.
That was the "Trojan Horse" Doggett described. But Hobby had more on his mind. A usury bill already passed by the House pegging interest rates to treasury

Safety Council Predicts 500-600 Holiday Death

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council estimates between 500 and 600 persons may die on the nation's highways over the three-day Memorial Day weekend despite expectations that many motorists will have trouble buying gasoline.
Over the 1978 holiday period, The Associated Press counted 528 traffic-related deaths.
Jack Recht, statistics manager for the council, said Wednesday the number of deaths likely will be affected by the availability of gasoline. The estimate was made about four weeks ago, he said — before the shortage — when gasoline supplies were roughly the same as in 1978.
"We're committed to that estimate at this moment," Recht said. "My own feeling is that it might be somewhat lower than that estimate," depending on the number of miles Americans drive. "It's too late to revise it."

But he noted traffic deaths were up 13 percent in the first three months of 1979 compared to last year — "a pretty phenomenal increase" — and had influenced the 500 to 600 estimate. The council said 10,360 persons died through March, and a 1972 record of 56,278 deaths would be broken if the higher death rate continues.
In 1978, 51,901 persons were killed in traffic accidents, and a 13 percent increase this entire year would mean a record 58,641 deaths.
"On the one hand, you have a gasoline shortage; on the other hand, you have an indication of a relatively large increase in fatalities, the explanation for which we don't have details," said Recht.

However, council President Vincent L. Tofany said "an assumption seems proper that higher speeds are behind the disturbing increase in fatalities."
Tofany said observing the national speed limit of 55 mph will help conserve fuel. Its introduction five years ago has saved at least 35,000 lives, he said.
The Associated Press keeps a traffic death count for the holiday period that begins at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Monday local time.
In 1870, German archeologist Heinrich Schliemann began excavations in Turkey, where he found the ruins of Troy.

Here's the Answer

Q — We have been looking at window air conditioners lately and note the initials EER on most of them. What does this stand for?
A — Surprised you didn't ask the dealer, who would have told you the initials stand for Energy Efficiency Ratio. The higher the EER figure, the more efficient the air conditioner in relation to its size. So, if you are intent on cutting down your electricity bills, which you should be no matter what the size of your budget, then you should pay attention to the EER.
Q — The water pressure to our bathtub is much less than it is at other places in the house. When you turn on the water in the kitchen or bathroom sink, the water pours out at high speed. When you turn it on in the bathtub, it comes out fairly fast, but nowhere like it does in the sinks. This is a nuisance, because it takes so long to fill the tub even part way. Can you tell what is causing this?
A — Not definitely, but there are three possible reasons why the pressure to a single fixture is not as great as to other fixtures in the house. The valve to the bathtub (you'll have to check to find it) may be open only part of the way. The area around the faucet washer may be clogged because of hardened grease or the washer itself may be broken or twisted. Or the pipe leading to the bathtub may have narrowed more over the years than the pipes leading to the other fixtures.

Hughes Granted Execution Stay

DALLAS (AP) — Death Row inmate Anderson Hughes, who was scheduled to die today, has been granted an indefinite stay of execution by U.S. District Judge Robert M. Hill.
Hughes' request to delay his death by injection was rejected Wednesday morning by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.
His attorneys, Arch McColl and Tom McCorkle of Dallas, immediately filed a writ of habeas corpus in Hill's federal district court.
The defendant was convicted of capital murder in the Sept. 23, 1974, shooting death of Mesquite policeman Travis E. Williams.
If the death sentence had been carried out, Hughes would have been the first person to be executed by injection of a lethal chemical.
The last person executed in Texas was convicted murderer Joseph Johnson of Houston who died in the electric chair July 30, 1964.

Hughes' conviction was upheld May 8, 1978, by the state criminal appeals court and he was scheduled to die June 20, 1978.
U.S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell, however, held up the death sentence on June 9, 1978, until the entire high court could review the matter.
The U.S. Supreme Court refused to stay Hughes' execution on Oct. 10, 1978, and refused to reconsider the case on Nov. 27, 1978.
Although the full court denied Hughes' request, Justices William Brennan and Thurgood Marshall said the execution should be stopped because "the death penalty in all circumstances constitutes cruel and unusual punishment."

When Patman could go no longer, the Senate quickly passed HB 409 raising the maximum interest rates that can be charged on home mortgages and senators also approved legislation (SB 357) weakening the consumer protection act. The usury bill headed back to the House for concurrence in Senate amendments and SB 357 was sent to the governor.

Re-Qualifying Chance Eliminated, Ousted Drivers Consider Filing Suits At Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - An uncomfortable calm settled over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway today, with one court case set to begin and the threat of other lawsuits clouding Sunday's Indianapolis 500.

The surprising offer by the U.S. Auto Club to reopen qualifications for 11 cars bumped during time trials last weekend was canceled Thursday when two members refused to sign a waiver to increase the size of the 33-car starting field.

"It was the impossible dream," said Al Loquasto, one of the drivers cut from the race day lineup in a bumped car.

"We knew it wasn't going to happen. But I'm a race driver and I want to go racing, so I'll do whatever I can to try and get that accomplished."

"Now, my recourse is to talk to my attorney and see what we can do. I'm sure I won't be alone."

USAC heard protests or appeals of rejected protests from several of the barred racing teams Thursday night. The appeals committee listened for four hours, then deliberated nearly two hours before announcing it hadn't reached a decision. Members said they would resume later today but set no time.

No one appeared to believe the earlier rulings would be overturned, that was expected to be merely a formality to exhaust administrative remedies and clear the way for court action.

The one case already on the docket of the Marion County Superior Court was to go to hearing today before Judge Michael T. Dugan. Car owner Wayne Woodward was asking that his disqualified car be reinstated to the lineup by USAC or that the $1 million race be halted.

Woodward's car, driven by Dick Ferguson, was not among the 11 given brief hope of another chance. USAC President King said Woodward's car was found in flagrant violation of a technical rule limiting the amount of pressure boost in the engines of the turbocharged cars.

Woodward said, "I didn't cheat. I only did what other people out here at the Speedway had done. USAC made some excellent rules to help the little people like me be competitive, but they did not follow up."

"They (USAC) were aware before the first weekend of time trials that there was tampering with the exhaust pipes."

Woodward's car, along with two others found in violation of the boost rule, were given another chance to qualify. The other two made it into the field, but Woodward's machine experienced engine problems and failed to qualify.

The decision by USAC to allow the other 11 cars bumped from the field an opportunity for one more qualifying run - if those already on the starting grid agreed in writing - was announced Tuesday night.

Nearly two days of scrambling by a group of drivers to find and convince the owners of the qualified cars, produced 31 authorizing signatures. Owner-driver Jim McElreath and owner Don Biederstedt, whose car was driven by Eldon Rasmussen, were the unshakable holdouts.

McElreath, Biederstedt and Rasmussen all kept their reasons to themselves, but both turn-downs were generally attributed to bitter memories and old grudges.

Friends of McElreath said the veteran of 13 Indy 500s told them, "Nobody ever bent over to help me or my son when we needed help. We earned every dollar we made in this sport the hard way."

McElreath poured his life savings into a car three years ago to help his son, James, later killed in a sprint car race, get started in Indy type racing.

Rasmussen apparently had not forgotten 1974 when he and several other entrants claimed they did not get a chance to qualify before the rain-shortened time trials ended. An offer to reopen time trials that year was voided when Larry Cannon and John Martin, two of the drivers bumped last weekend, withheld their support.

The cars took to the track Thursday for their final pre-race shakedown session. Thirty-four cars, including alternates, made it onto the track, with three cars, driven by defending champion Al Unser, pole sitter Rick Mears and 1973 Indy champ Gordon Johncock each turning in a lap over 190 mph.

On the negative side of the ledger, rookie Howdy Holmes blew an engine. Salt Walther broke a turbocharger and the rear end on Mike Mosley's car broke.

Top-Ranked Longhorns Hosting Regional NCAA

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Top-ranked Texas, a three-time national champion, is the host team for the NCAA Central Regional Baseball Tournament, which includes Western Athletic and Southland Conference winners and at-large entry Pan American University.

The tournament opener between Brigham Young, 48-23-1 of the WAC and Lamar University, a Beaumont, Texas, team and the Southland winner, 43-14-1, was scheduled for 1:30 p.m., CDT.

No. 1 Texas, 50-6, was matched against Pan American, 52-10, of Edinburg, Texas, at 7:30 p.m. CDT.

The winner in the double elimination tournament will advance to the College World Series at Omaha, Neb., June 1-8.

"Everyone here has something to prove - we'd all like to go to Omaha," BYU Coach Gary Pullins told a news conference Friday.

Texas may have lost its apparent edge when all-SWC pitcher Ricky Wright hurt his knee so badly in an intrasquad game last Saturday he will miss the tournament. Wright had won 10 and lost 3 and was a .309 hitter.

Coach Cliff Gustafson said when Wright is "right, he can dominate a game, strike out 15 and throw a one or two-hitter against the best team in the nation. You can't replace a guy like that."

BYU enters the tournament with a team total of 90 home runs, and all of its regulars are hitting .300 or higher. The attack is built around all-WAC third baseman Murphy Su's, who is hitting .350 with 22 homeruns.

"He's had an awesome year with the bat and epitomizes our team," said Pullins.

Bert Bradley, a right-hander with an 11-2 record, will start for BYU against Lamar, which had its season interrupted by 19 rainouts.

David C. Smith, a 6-foot-4 sophomore who threw a no-hitter against the University of Louisville and has a 0.94 earned run average, will start for Lamar, which had a winning streak of "20 or more" during the season.

"We have five guys who probably could lay claim to being our No. 1 pitcher at some time during the year," said Coach Jim Gilligan. He said two others also had no-hitters, and a third lost a hitless game when he misplayed a bunt.

Gustafson said he would probably start left-hander Jerry Don Gleaton, the SWC's player-of-the-year, against Pan American. Gleaton is 11-0 and is hitting .375 even though he has had mononucleosis.

Coach Al Ogletree's squad has a pitching staff with the best earned run average in the nation - 2.33 - seven pitchers have won at least six games. Ogletree indicated he would start a left-hander against Texas because "we've heard them give Texas problems."

Ogletree said his shortstop, Leonard Brown, is the best he has coached in 23 years, and outfielder Roger Pena is hitting .484.

"The team that's hot will win this tournament," said Gustafson. "All four teams have an excellent chance to do that." Texas' ranking, he said, "doesn't mean much."

The Longhorns won the NCAA baseball title in 1949, 1950 and 1975.

UCLA Wins Tennis

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) - The long and the short of it was that UCLA's Fritz Buehning beat Trinity's Ben McKown 3-6, 6-1, 6-4 in the No. 1 singles. After Trinity's Erick Iskersky evened the match at 1-1 when he beat Mike Harrington 7-6, 6-1, and the 5-foot-7 Willenborg put UCLA back in the lead with a 3-6 6-2, 6-2 victory over Tony Giammalva in the No. 3 singles.

UCLA held a 4-2 lead going into doubles play. The Buehning-Willenborg team battled Trinity's top doubles team of John Benson and Giammalva to a 6-6 tie in the first set and then won the tie breaker 5-3 on a scorching backhand return of service by Willenborg. The Bushning-Willenborg team then coasted to a 6-1 second set victory to clinch the team title for UCLA.

In the consolation match, Stanford's No. 2 doubles team of Scott Bondurant and John Corse squeezed by Tom Cains and Mark Vines of Southern Methodist 7-5, 7-6 to capture third place by a 6-2 score.

The two teams split their six singles matches, but Stanford swept the three doubles matches.

Stanford's Peter Rennert and Lloyd Bourne, who also won their singles matches, teamed up to defeat SMU's No. 1 doubles team of Jai DiLouie and Mark Turpin, 6-2, 6-2. Tim Mayotte and Jeff Arons beat SMU's Jeff Turpin and Chris Delaney 6-4, 6-3 in the No. 3 doubles match.

Effective Defense Stops Bullets

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) - Whatever kind of defense the Seattle SuperSonics were using, legal or illegal, it certainly was effective.

Badgering Washington with traps and double teaming - a tactic which some of the Bullets said merely masked an illegal zone - the SuperSonics scored a 92-82 victory Thursday night and evened the National Basketball Association's championship series at 1-1.

The next two of the best-of-seven series will be played in Seattle, at the Kingdome on Sunday and at the Coliseum Tuesday night, with the SuperSonics now claiming the homecourt advantage.

"The key to the game was defense," said Seattle center Jack Sikma, who had 14 points and 13 rebounds in a bruising battle with Washington's Wes Unseld. "Defense is the start of our offensive game."

"We're not a great shooting team," said guard Dennis Johnson, who had 20 points and six assists. "but our defense is first-class. We work very hard on it. As long as we have the defense working for us, we know we can win." Johnson's theory was put to a severe test when the SuperSonics, after leading 46-33 midway through the second quarter, missed 14 consecutive shots and fell behind 56-49 early in the third period.

At this point, the Seattle defense stiffened and the SuperSonics ran off 11 straight points for a 60-56 lead. During that stretch, Washington missed five shots, had two blocked, and lost possession once on a steal.

Gus Williams scored four of his game-high 23 points during the streak, Sikma had four and Johnson three of his 17.

"We had a little lapse in the second quarter," said John Johnson. "We've got to make them give up the ball. When Elvin Hayes or Bobby Dandridge hold the ball for 15 seconds, it's like a surgeon getting ready to operate."

Washington's two high scorers were blanked over the final 10 minutes, however, and the Bullets shot only 38 percent in the second half. Dandridge finished with 21, after going 3-for-11 from the field in the second half, and Hayes had 20.

"We didn't function well against their zone defense," said Washington Coach Dick Motta. "We are going to have to regroup and sharpen up against their zone if we are going to win this series."

Hayes also talked about the zone, but Dandridge took a different view. "It wasn't illegal zone like Atlanta in New Jersey use," he said. "It was just double teaming."

Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens said of the zone talk: "I hate to hear that. It's a terrible thing to say. We trap and double-team, but we don't play a zone."

Martin Hurting Chance

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

It's out of the frying pan into the fire for Billy Martin, the pugnacious, outspoken manager-in-limbo of the New York Yankees.

Poor Billy. Again he is the victim of his unharnessed tongue. He isn't the master of diplomacy and discretion. He doesn't know when to keep his mouth shut.

It is almost certain to be his undoing - as it was in his successful but short-lived managerial careers with Minnesota, Detroit and Texas.

If, as reported, Billy has agreed to shell out $8,000 and make a public apology to settle the law suit by a Reno, Nev., sports writer, who charged he was slugged by Bad Billy in a bar, Martin's hopes of getting back his Yankee job in 1980 are diminished rather than enhanced.

The best prediction is: Don't count on Billy being in the Yankee dugout next year.

Owner George Steinbrenner doesn't say so - "I don't know all the facts. I want to talk to Billy first" - but all one has to do is read the writing on the wall.

Martin has violated the seventh and most important of Steinbrenner's famed seven guidelines, enunciated when Martin was walking the tight-rope in mid-July, 1977.

The tenet: A manager must be honorable.

The purity of Martin's intentions are bound to come up for question when Steinbrenner meets with Billy, his agent and lawyer at the earliest convenience.

When Martin resigned under growing pressure on July 24, 1978 only to be rehired with a dramatic electronic scoreboard announcement at the Yankee Old Timers' game five days later the stipulation was that he could have his job back in 1980 if he regained his health and mental composure and stayed clear of trouble.

Billy did the former. The latter became the stumbling block.

Last Nov. 10, Billy was hoisting a few with friends at half time of a basketball game when he was approached by Ray Hagar, a Reno sports writer. Hagar charged that Martin became incensed at some of his questions and hit him, knocking off the reporter's glasses. Martin insisted he was provoked.

Steinbrenner, questioned at the time, said that Billy's future would depend on his being wholly vindicated of the charge.

As early as a week ago, Martin, on a visit to New York, told newsmen: "that case with the guy in Reno. It's coming up soon. I will be cleared."

"Sure, I'm sure I will be back next year," he said. "Steinbrenner gave me his word."

That's true. Yet now it appears that it isn't Steinbrenner's credibility - but that of Martin - which is up for challenge.

While Billy was proclaiming that he would be totally cleared of all blame, was he secretly negotiating with the plaintiff to have the case settled out of court?

If, as Hagar claims, the settlement is being made, then it's going to be difficult for the scrappy skinner to claim total vindication. It's virtually an admission of guilt. The boss is off the hook.

reaped big dividends for the Rangers.

Reliever Kern won his sixth game without a loss Tuesday night with a 4-3 victory over Minnesota and Bell hit the game-winning home run.

Kern also has six saves and a 1.30 earned run average.

Bell is hitting .256 but has a team-high 26 RBIs. He is playing third base better than any Ranger in the nine years the team has been in Arlington.

Blanks has been playing so well - he's hitting .333 - that he is in the starting lineup replacing error-prone rookie shortstop Nelson Norman. Meanwhile, Bonds, Barker and Harrah have yet to hit their stride for the Indians.

Kern came to Texas with something of a flake reputation. "I'm a free spirit and I enjoy life, hopefully not at the expense of anybody else," says Kern.

The first time Kern took the field for a warmup in Arlington Stadium he was almost run down by a lady riding a horse carrying the Texas flag for pregame ceremonies.

"I told you you'd like it here," said Doc Medsch to Kern.

Kern answered, "Yeh." Kern is no longer strictly a fastball pitcher. He has added a changeup curve to his 100 mph fastball and the result has been particularly deadly.

"I'll really be OK as soon as I get my NEW pitch ready," says Kern. "It's called a strike." The gangly Kern is called

"emu" by his teammates. "An Emu is the world's largest known flying bird," says Kern. "I think I like the nickname."

Kern has appeared in 20 games and Sparky Lyle 21 games for the Rangers.

"I realize there is a danger in bringing Kern in a lot because he depends on the fastball often," says Manager Pat Corrales. "That can take something out of a pitcher." Kern says he loves the work. "I get out of my death bed to pitch an inning," he says.

Both Kern and Lyle say they are most effective when used often.

"We're kind of loose out there in the bullpen," says Kern. "We're kind of zany but we enjoy ourselves. We is what we is."

Dodger Power Corp Down With Injuries

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Four Los Angeles Dodgers who blasted their way into baseball's record book - when each hit 30 or more home runs in 1977 - might not have much over 30 homers altogether this year if injuries keep striking them out.

Outfielder Reggis Smith has just one home run, nine RBI and a .211 batting average prior to tonight's Dodger Stadium opener of a four game series against the Cincinnati Reds, who lead the National League West Division by five games.

While Smith was out with leg and neck ailments, the Dodger record is 10 victories and 20 losses. That record is solemn evidence of Manager Tommy Lasorda's contention that Smith's play has been the catalyst of league championships for the Dodgers the past two years.

Third baseman Ron Cey and first baseman Steve Garvey each have seven homers so far this year, but both are nursing leg injuries. The healthiest of the four sluggers, outfielder Dusty Baker, is in a power drought that had held him to three homers.

Cey was the leading Dodger hitter in an eight game victory streak earlier this month, hitting five homers in two weeks. But a pulled hamstring has kept Cey out the last eight games, six of them losses. Cey is expected back tonight.

Baker and Garvey have been present for duty every day. After a slow start, Garvey has had a very productive May. Although limping with a pulled calf muscle of his own, Garvey drove in two runs to win Wednesday night's game in San Diego. And he hasn't missed any action to imperil his string of 555 consecutive games as he raised his RBI total to 30.

When the Dodgers completed a recent series at Cincinnati, salvaging a victory in the last game, Smith was felled by a painful neck ailment. When the team went to a pair of losses at San Diego, Smith went to Los Angeles for examination by a neurosurgeon.

The doctor described the problem as "a severe crick of the neck in layman's terms," Smith said. "All I cared about was that it wasn't something pathological. I didn't want to go on the disabled list."

"That was implied," said Kern.

Morgan Error Gives San Francisco 2-1 Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - "How many times will you see Joe Morgan make a play like that?" asked John McNamara, manager of the Cincinnati Reds. The play - actually the Reds' latest misplay against the San Francisco Giants - cost the Reds a ball game Thursday night, giving the Giants their second unearned run of the game and a 2-1 victory. The answer to McNamara's question is hardly ever. "I've made two errors this year, both against the Giants," said Morgan, who last spring set a major league baseball record for second basemen by playing 91 consecutive games without an error. He dropped a pop fly by Jack Clark, after backing onto the outfield grass, with two out in the bottom of the seventh inning. Mike Sadek, who had doubled and moved to third on a sacrifice, scored to break a 1-1 tie. "He slipped getting off the mark, and the wind had to bother him a little," said Giants Manager Joe Altobelli. Morgan said, "The wind had nothing to do with it. I tripped, then started stumbling and never could get my balance. I had to run on my heels, so I was bouncing. The ball hit right in the glove and bounced out." The Reds opening a four-game series in Los Angeles tonight, still leading the National League West. But the second place Giants, 2 1/2 games back, have beaten them in five of seven meetings this season, partly by feasting on errors. Cubs 9-2, Mets 7-4 Steve Henderson's single in the fifth inning drove in the tie-breaking run and Pat Zachry returned from the disabled list by pitching seven strong innings as the Mets won the second game and salvaged a doubleheader split. The Cubs snapped a six-game losing streak in the opener as Barry Foote and Steve Ontiveros hit two-run homers. "We broke our losing streak but got another one going in the second game," said Manager Herman Franks of the Cubs. In the nightcap, Zachry made his first appearance since April 18, when he was sidelined with an inflammation in his pitching elbow. He allowed four hits, including Dave Kingman's 14th home run. "This was different than my broken foot last season," Zachry said. "I make my living with my arm, so it was nice to be back, mighty nice. I used my fast ball mostly. I didn't have the proper feeling for my curve. My change-up wasn't working, so I tried to hit locations with my fast ball. I didn't really want to come out, but I reasoned what was I trying to prove?"

Wadkins Beats Weather Takes Lead In Event

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) - It seemed improbable, if not impossible, for Lanny Wadkins. His second shot was buried in a bunker in front of the 17th green, a victim of the deplorable playing conditions Thursday in the Memorial Golf Tournament. Wadkins needed a par 4 to preserve a 2-shot lead at the time. A bogey was more likely. Instead, the stocky North Carolinian holed the 40-foot wedge shot for a 3-under-par 69, good for a 1-shot lead over Mike McCullough going into today's second round at weather-plagued Muirfield Village. "I hit it perfect," said Wadkins. "All I could see was the top of the flag. I had to run up the hill to see it go in the hole." Only four players - Ed Sneed and Mac McLendon had 71s - of the 105 international field of 105 - mastered par on the blustery, rainy, 50-degree day. That broke the single round record of 5 subpar rounds in the 1976 event for this 4-year-old tour stop. The victims were some of the game's biggest names. Jack Nicklaus, the main force behind this $8 million layout, had a 73. So did leading money winner Tom Watson. John Mahaffey, the PGA king, went for 78. Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller and U.S. Open titleholder Andy North struggled to 79s. Defending champion Jim Simons skied to an 80. All of the players, even Nicklaus, blamed the high scoring on the conditions. "You could see your breath," said Watson. He needs just $124 here to reach $300,000 for a third straight year. First prize is $54,000 in the $329,000 tournament. "It was just a difficult day," said Nicklaus, still searching for his first victory of 1979. Wadkins, who conquered the winds of Sawgrass to win the Tournament Players Championship earlier this year, is fast building a reputation as a good poor weather performer. "No," he insisted, "I don't really consider myself a bad weather player. I would rather play in 80-degree sunshine with no wind every time. Maybe I just concentrate better when the weather's bad." Still, Wadkins birdied three holes in a row on the front side and solved the front nine for a 32, 2 shots off the course record Craig Stadler posted in a proamateur prelude Tuesday. "It's tough to fuss on a day like today, but my putting was not what it should be. I left a lot of birdie putts short. If I'm going to win this week, my putting has to improve," said the double winner this year. McCullough fashioned the best score he's ever had at Muirfield Village without the benefit of a practice round. "I didn't expect anything from myself since I hadn't warmed up. No one can come back on tour and be abreast of the game," said McCullough. His appearance in the Colonial last week was his first in five weeks.

Dennis Duo Win For Teams

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

Dennis was a menace to the Boston Red Sox and Seattle Mariners Thursday night. Dennis Martinez scattered 10 hits for his seventh consecutive triumph as the torrid Baltimore Orioles defeated the Red Sox 5-3 while Dennis Leonard allowed seven hits and went the distance for his first victory since April 28 in the Kansas City Royals' 5-4 decision over the Mariners. In the only other American League games, the Milwaukee Brewers downed the California Angels 9-6 and the Chicago White Sox crushed the Oakland A's 10-1. Kiko Garcia's tie-breaking two-run homer in the sixth inning capped a three-run rally that lifted Baltimore past Boston. The victory was the 25th in the last 31 games for the Orioles and enabled them to stretch their lead in the AL East to 2 1/2 games over the Red Sox. Royals 5, Mariners 4 Leonard was breezing along with a 4-1 lead until Seattle tied it in the top of the eighth on Willie Horton's two-run homer and Bruce Bochte's RBI double. Pinch hitter Steve Braun opened the bottom of the eighth with a bunt single and punch runner Fred Patek was sacrificed to second. After George Brett, who drove in three earlier runs, was intentionally walked, Otis delivered his game-winning hit. Brewers 9, Angels 6

Ben Oglivie hit a three-run homer and Sal Bando a solo shot in Milwaukee's five-run third inning. Oglivie crashed his ninth homer of the season after a bunt single by Cecil Cooper and a pop fly by Dick Davis, which fell for a bloop double when second baseman Bobby Grich misjudged it in the wind. Bando hit his third homer one out later, stretching the lead to 7-0 and chasing loser Chris Knapp. The Angels broke a string of 21 scoreless innings with five runs in the fifth off Milwaukee starter Moose Haas. Jerry Augustine was the winner with a strong relief job. White Sox 10, A's 1 Lamar Johnson had a double and two singles, drove in four runs and scored twice as the White Sox beat the A's for the sixth time in as many meetings. Richard Wortham, 5-4, hurled a five-hitter while Matt Keough, 0-7, took the loss. "What can I say?" asked Oakland Manager Jim Marshall. "We just got clobbered. This club beats us badly, beats us to death. Our club had trouble against left-handers all last year, and we're still having trouble against left-handers." The victims were some of the

Qualifying Continues For Monaco Grand Prix

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) - The energy crisis had its first impact on the world of Grand Prix auto racing Thursday, to the great benefit of the Ferrari team. Gilles Villeneuve of Canada and Joey Scheckter of South Africa had the two fastest - and record-breaking - qualifying times around the streets of this Riviera resort, using their regular, superfast qualifying tires from a French factory. Their leading opponents, however, were forced to run on full-distance race tires, costing at least a second per lap. A shortage of diesel fuel in Britain delayed a truck bringing a shipment of their qualifying rubber from the factory in Britain. Thus, Saturday's final qualifying period, with all the top racers on fast tires, may show a dramatically different final lineup for the Monaco Grand Prix, the 37th in 50 years. Racing fans, however, were treated to a fascinating driving display, the first time in years that most of the top racers were on equal terms in a qualifying session. It heightened the impact of Monaco as a "drivers circuit" and behind the Ferraris - showed this lineup: Niki Lauda, Austria, Brabham 1 Alfa; Clay Regazzoni, Switzerland, Williams; Emerson Fittipaldi, Brazil, Copersucar, and Jean-Pierre Jarier, France, Tyrrell. The spread among the top six was about 1.5 seconds, and the qualifying tires should reduce that drastically and improve, for example, the 12th place by Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., in a Lotus he described as out of balance and hard to handle. Saturday also should see Regazzoni's teammate Alan Jones of England among the front-runners. He crashed his Williams early in qualifying and failed to make the grid. The team was bringing a new car from Britain for him for Saturday. Fittipaldi, who qualified sixth in Montreal last year, showed his love of driving this type of track, which demands utmost precision and concentration. Team manager Peter Mackintosh said the Brazilian former champion was "like a kid with a new toy" all day.

have to come out. Daddy says so." Herman Franks of the Chicago Cubs was reminiscing about Connie Mack, who was still managing the Philadelphia Athletics in his late 80s and who had as his first-base coach, his 65-year-old son, Earle Mack. THEY GAVE THEIR LIVES TO PRESERVE YOUR FREEDOM

We are inclined to take for granted the many forms of freedom which we enjoy in this country, perhaps because we have never been forced to live without them, and yet we must remind ourselves of the sacrifices that have been made in order to preserve them for us, by those who were called upon to give their lives in battle. Not only on Memorial Day but throughout the year we should honor those brave heroes, and give our thanks to God for this wonderful free nation we have because of them. And since the list of our freedoms includes the right to worship God as we choose, the Church of your choice is the best place to express your gratitude.

O valiant hearts, who to your glory came Through dust of conflict and through battle-flame,
Tranquil you lie, your knightly virtue proved,
Your memory hallowed in the land you loved.
—John Stanhope Arkwright

man than this, that a man lay down-his life for his

Live Music Retains Attraction

NEW YORK (NEA) - You can have headphones, 78 stereo tracks and wools up to here. There's still nothing like the sound of a live symphony orchestra, says Marianne Jeffrey.

If you live in a community of 40,000 or so, you can make one, if you like. Eventually, first, you build a small chamber group, she says. That's how the Greenwich Conn., Philharmonia started in 1964. For several years, Mrs. Jeffrey was a voluntary president of the voluntary board of directors that turned it into a symphony orchestra good enough to play New York's Lincoln Center. Which it did last year.

So Mrs. Jeffrey — fair, handsome, a native of Munich and the daughter of a musicologist whose house was "always full of great musicians" — knows what it takes to make serious music in the community.

People like you who want to hear it, for one thing. You form, say, the Friends of the Chesterville Chamber Players and then, she says, "One person has to take leadership."

Lydia, no doubt, who does so well at the PTA. She already knows that, "In any volunteer group, people have children who get sick and husbands who want to go somewhere. So the leader must be willing and able to take on herself anything that comes along."

Hoping for the best, though, Lydia scouts her colleagues for various skills. There has to be a planning chairman, for instance, to decide on the programs. Clarissa's Come As You Deserve To Be party was a coup so she's a good bet.

Then you need someone to rent the high school auditorium (or library or store front), arrange for lighting, music desks and take the tickets at the door — all for beans.

That would be Char-mayne. She feeds seven mouths if you count the Lisa Apa and her bachelor brother-in-law who loves to see the kids at dinnertime.

"Next, you find someone who can write program notes about the musicians, etc.," Mrs. Jeffrey says.

Alma. She fancies herself Erica Jong.

But before Clarissa plans, Char-mayne negotiates and Alma waxes literary, you need two other elements: musicians and money. And someone — or ones — to enlist them.

True, Henrietta has an annoying habit of saying, "Might I interject a word?" but she does play madrigals well on the recorder. She can peruse the music departments of local high schools and colleges for talent.

There must be music teachers and students good enough to form a small chamber group," Mrs. Jeffrey says. Of course, the closer you are to a metropolitan area, the better the perusing. Still, "you can draw on towns 30 miles or more apart," she says encouragingly.

Now then, it falls on Lydia's padded shoulders to come up with the moola to give the chamber group its first downbeat.

Belief in the cause can accomplish that — in writing, though, not orally. "It's very bad to try to raise funds by phone. I know if I'm at the washing machine and someone calls to sell me something, I get annoyed."

So Lydia must compose a compelling letter that says, "There's a chance to bring live serious music here and we need funds." There should be a contribution scale — contributor $5, sponsor $25, etc.

Then she types one neat, clean copy and runs off a couple thousand at the zippy repro shop. "And then you send it to everybody," Mrs. Jeffrey says. Businessmen, relatives — yours and the musicians'.

All the while, obviously, you're spending money, for paper, postage, et. al. "But these are very small amounts in the beginning and if you really want a chamber group, you can put out the money. As soon as some comes in, you pay your debts."

Finally, after months of drop-outs and murmurings that Lydia thinks she knows it all, the Chesterville Chamber Players holds its first recital.

The music stands wobble, the chairs creak, Alma insisted on writing the program notes in blank verse and the second violinist has mononucleosis.

Still, it's Vivaldi in the flesh, to the delight of music lovers who don't want to or can't subscribe to a nearby professional symphony series.

Or who take pride in music of their own. According to the American Symphony Orchestra League, and Chamber Music America, Inc., there are 1,500 communities with symphony orchestras and 100, at least, with independent chamber orchestras, who do that.

More than 5,000 U.S. soldiers and their leader, Gen. George S. Patton, are buried in Luxembourg and Belgium. Their graves are carefully tended by the grateful citizens whom they liberated from the Nazis.

ONE RECORD NOT likely to be matched at any speedway was recently set by Oscar the Grouch of "Sesame Street." Judges Gordon (Roscoe Orman) and Luis (Emilio Delgado) clocked at three seconds flat the time it takes Oscar's "Grouch Jalopy" to fall apart, losing doors, bumpers and fenders.

Terrible foot odor

DEAR DR. LAMB — My feet are so dry and crusty on the sides and bottom and they smell awful. Also the skin breaks and peels on the bottom and between the toes. They itch and when I rub them, they burn. I've tried all the products on the market for athlete's feet and all kinds of creams and lotions to soften the skin. A foot doctor told me I didn't have athlete's feet but that my feet sweat so bad that it was burning the layers of the skin, causing my problem of pain.

I would so love to be able to wear sandals and be able to have a shoe salesman help me to try on shoes without becoming ill I am so self-conscious about this problem and I get so desperate trying to find relief. I envy the soft smooth feet of other people. Please help me. I'm getting desperate.

DEAR READER — Your problem may indeed be caused by excessive perspiration of the feet but I think your first step should be to go see a dermatologist. Let him look at the condition of the skin of your feet and find out if you do have a fungus infection. There isn't any satisfactory program that will solve your problem if you have a fungus infection that is not properly treated.

If it's true that you just have excessive perspiration and a build up of callouses on the feet, then good foot care should help a lot. This means frequent washing of the feet, two or three times a day in good warm water followed by a cold foot bath.

While the skin is still soft, you can use a pumice stone to rub off all the excess callous area. Also if you don't have cracks in the skin you might then wipe off the feet with alcohol and let them dry completely before you put your stockings on. You might find this a little painful if you have cracks and in that case, you might not want to do that.

You may need to change your socks two to three times a day and change your shoes every other day. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 11-8, Your Feet And How To Care For Them, to give you more information about controlling foot odors. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

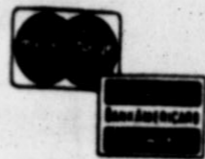

One problem that women have is finding suitable stockings. The use of nylon or synthetic stockings is prevalent. Such plastic footwear actually traps the moisture from the foot and contributes to problems like you have and certainly contributes to foot odor.

Because of style women do not wear cotton and wool socks ordinarily. However, these are much better for foot hygiene because the cotton socks in the summer and the wool socks in the winter absorb the moisture and they "breathe," which helps to avoid trapping odors.

One thing you might do is to take a pair of cotton socks and cut off the foot part that won't show out of your shoe and then slip your nylons over these so that you won't feel unstylish. There are other things you can do to help treat foot odors which are included in The Health Letter that I'm sending you.
