Nine-month wait for Strain's trial to end

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Nine months after a law enforcement raid was made on a barn northeast of Hereford, the owner of the barn and its allegedly stolen contents is set to be tried in 222nd District Court.

District Clerk Lola Faye Veazy said she was ordered to call in 225 people-75 more than usual-to report for jury duty Monday at 1:30 p.m. The 12 citizens selected will try a burglary case pending since last August against Hereford farmer Robert Strain.

The 52-year-old former County Democratic committee chairman is accused of maintaining a fencing operation at the barn near his home; last January two Lubbock men pleaded guilty to theft and receiving stolen property and admitted in court to their business dealings with Strain.

Law enforcement authorities reported that 22

Jury selection Monday

burglaries in a number of Panhandle counties were cleared up when they raided the barn and confiscated weapons, appliances, farm equipment and other items valued as high as $150,000. Strain was charged with theft and released on $30,000 bond that same week.

On Sept. 1, a Deaf Smith County grand jury indicted Strain on 17 counts of theft, one of which was for theft over $10,000. Named on some of the charges were Thomas Martinez Sr. and his son Thomas Martinez Jr. of Lubbock, who later entered guilty pleas under terms of plea-bargain agreements with the district attorney's office.

The son was given a probation sentence while his father, reportedly already on probation from a prior conviction, was given two five-year jail terms in the Texas Department of Corrections.

The case first came up in district court in October, but a continuance was granted by District Judge David Wesley Gulley at the request of defense attorney Travis Shelton of Lubbock. It was continued again in January after Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul, who is to prosecute the case, said he had a scheduling conflict.

A jury was called in Feb. 16, but sent home the next day after news coverage from an Amarillo television station brought about yet another continuance.

Gulley agreed during a special motion for continuance hearing filed by Shelton that potential jurors might be influenced by the Channel 10 story, which included criticism by sheriff's deputy Harry Hardisty as to how the investigation of the Strain case was handled.

Hardisty indicated he thought Saul should have moved in on the situation more quickly because he has been told over two years ago that Strain had stolen merchandise in his barn.

Saul, already being investigated by a Deaf Smith County grand jury and a state bar grievance committee, blamed local attorney Schalan Atkinson and Justice of the Peace O.K. Neal for the news leak which he said was aimed at him and interfered with the progress of the trial.

Gulley then ordered the trial be held in a special setting—meaning no other cases on the docket—to help prevent such an event from happening again.

Veazy said she did not care to speculate on how long jury selection would take.

This Is Really Fun

Eight cosmetologists to graduate

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Among the almost 300 seniors expected to graduate from Hereford High School later this month will be eight licensed cosmetologists.

That is provided the seven girls and one boy do well on the state board exams they took early last week.

Hereford High has been turning out employable hairdressers for more than 20 years now; it was one of the first schools in the state to adopt the vocational program.

In addition to completing the same graduation requirements as the rest of their classmates, the students have managed to squeeze in three hours of cosmetology classes per day during their junior and senior years.

When they graduate, they are ready to go to work. And according to their instructor, Billie Young, they do find jobs.

"I feel like a lot of these students would not have graduated from high school had it not been for this program," she said. "I see big changes in these kids when they come here. They learn good grooming, professional ethics and responsibility as well as a job skill."

"Not every student can afford to go to college," she added. "And not all have the initiative to work their way through college."

"It's a good career," said junior Leticia Pesqueda. "It's fun to go to school here,

This spring from high school and you learn at the same time."

"Nowadays a lot of girls are getting married right after high school," remarked Linda Galindo. "They don't have time for themselves."

The girls said they think of hairdressing as a service career. "You help others by making them look good—and they feel better about themselves."

Brenda Flores, also a junior, said she would like to go to a larger town and open her own shop when she graduates. "I like the idea of being my own boss," she admitted.

There are 14 students in the junior class, including four boys. David Parsons plays nose guard and guard on the varsity football team.

"The guys tease me a little, but it doesn't matter," he said. "I had thought about it for a long time, and this is what I want to do."

Parsons said when he finished high school he would like to go to Pivot Point, a school in Chicago "where you can get your master's in hair design." He said fashion design also interests him.

Juniors meet in the morning for theory and practice on mannequins. Seniors arrive after lunch and usually have "real people" to work on.

This Won't Hurt A Bit

learn the art of hairdressing at Hereford High School's cosmetology school.

Hostages released to gain refuge

By ARTHUR ALLEN
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Anti-government rebels held 73 people hostage overnight in a grocery store before freeing them today in exchange for refuge in the Mexican embassy here.

The drama came a day after Jose Napoleon Duarte, a moderate politician, marked his presidential victory by asking Salvadorans to help him stabilize their country's shaky political structure.

The standoff at the grocery store began after a shootout between five rebels and police who foiled a holdup at the checkout counter, authorities said.

"All the captives have been taken home. This is over," said Col. Carlos Reynaldo Lopez Nuila, the police officer in charge of the situation. He said three hostages received minor burns when tear gas, fired by the rebels at police, blew back into the store.

Seventy-three held overnight

The rebels kept their hostages for 10 hours. The guerrillas, their heads wrapped in towels to avoid identification, left the store in a van provided by the Red Cross.

The hostage-takers claimed they were members of the Clara Elisabeth Ramirez Front, a guerrilla faction that broke off from the Popular Liberation Forces guerrilla group last year.

The ultrarightist party of Roberto d'Aubuisson, Duarte's challenger in the May 6 presidential election runoff, quickly denounced the Central Election Council's announcement Friday of Duarte's victory. The Republican Nationalist Alliance party called the election a "farce."

Official tallies gave Duarte 752,625 votes, or 53.6 percent, and d'Aubuisson 651,741, or 46.4 percent. Leftists boycotted the election.

Members of d'Aubuisson's party charge fraud and U.S. interference in the election. U.S. officials have said privately they preferred a Duarte victory because if d'Aubuisson won, Congress might oppose more aid to El Salvador.

D'Aubuisson has been linked with right-wing death squad activity, but he has denied the charges.

Duarte, a moderate Christian Democrat, appealed to the populace for help in ending the nation's civil war.

"I call on the people to help me destabilize that machinery they (the far right) have in place, which is based on death squads and in destabilizing institutions," Duarte, 58, said in a telephone interview Friday.

At a news conference, Duarte signed a pact with the Democratic Action Party. The pact commits the two parties to work together for human rights, economic recovery, peace and democracy.

Also Friday, the Honduran government ordered Nicaraguan Ambassador Edwin Zablah to leave the country within 48 hours.

Hicks familiar with politics

The new Deaf Smith County Republican Party chairman said he "grew up with politics" and has "voted Republican all my life."

Dennis Hicks, 31, consented just two days before the primary elections Saturday to run as a write-in candidate for the post. Garth Thomas had resigned from the position when he decided to seek the nomination for state representative.

Jane White, an active member of Deaf Smith County Republican Women, had been filling in since Thomas stepped. She indicated, though, she was not interested in the position "for keeps."

"I feel like younger people need to be involved," Hicks commented. "The party is small here, but has a chance to grow if more people would get involved."

The new GOP chairman said he is glad to see more people going to the polls locally. "Our system won't work unless people get out and vote."

Hicks moved to Hereford when he was 6. His mother is Agnes Hicks, a longtime activist in local politics.

Hicks graduated from Hereford High School and attended Texas Tech University for two years. He and his wife

Ombudsman charges outrageous

HOUSTON (AP) — An jail ombudsman says he may file a contempt motion against Harris County Sheriff Jack Heard because charges that a jail inmate raped two other prisoners within a 24-hour period show the jail is poorly run.

"This is simply outrageous," Jim Oltzinger, who was appointed by a federal court to see that the jail complies with court orders.

Timothy Lee McQueen, 26, was charged Thursday with two counts of sexual assault and ordered held on bond totaling $20,000. McQueen is accused of forcing a 23-year-old inmate to have oral sex with him May 5 and of anally raping a 25-year-old inmate the next day.

Oltzinger said the assaults last weekend reflect deficiencies in the jail's administration and said he is considering filing a contempt motion against Heard, whom he accuses of violating a federal court order by housing first-time offenders with a previously convicted prisoner.

Klan plans anti-gay parade

HOUSTON (AP) — The Ku Klux Klan has asked the city of Houston for permission to hold an anti-homosexual parade in the center of the city's gay community.

Klan members requested a permit Friday to hold the protest march June 9 in the Montrose area, a central Houston neighborhood with a large gay population.

"What we are saying is we are tired of seeing them on our streets," said Charles Lee, grand dragon for the White Camelia Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Lee said during a press conference on the steps of City Hall that the parade is intended to protest growing acceptance of the homosexual lifestyle. He said about 100 Klansmen dressed in robes, black uniforms and military fatigues will participate in the parade.

Paul Mabry, spokesman for Mayor Kathy Whitmire, said city officials will decide early next week whether to grant the permit.

Police believe pair responsible

HOUSTON (AP) — Two Houston detectives say convicted killers Henry Lee Lucas and sometime companion Ottis Elwood Toole were responsible for nine Houston deaths and could have been involved in nine others.

Houston police Sgts. K.R. Williamson and L.B. Smith, who traced the activities of the two alleged mass slayers for several months, said Friday they are certain the duo were responsible for nine killings in Houston from 1977 through 1981.

The detectives also said they "significantly suspect" Lucas and Toole were involved in at least nine other slayings in Houston.

The officers said they determined where Lucas and Toole were at various times and eliminated all but 200 unsolved homicides in Houston. The officers then interrogated Lucas and Toole about those slayings.

Amusement park fire kills 8

JACKSON, N.J. (AP) — A smoky fire swept through the Haunted Castle ride at the Six Flags Great Adventure amusement park Friday, killing eight people, police said.

Officials originally said that six people suffered from smoke inhalation at the 200-acre amusement park, but police officer Samuel DePasquale said that eight had died in the smoky blaze.

"We know of eight people so far that perished in the fire. We also know there were several injuries," said DePasquale. No identities of the victims were provided.

He said the search for bodies may have to be called off because of darkness and would resume Saturday morning.

The fire was reported to authorities at 6:35 p.m. and was under control by 7:41 p.m., said Great Adventure spokeswoman Kathy Schoch.

Mondale comes out swinging

Walter F. Mondale is calling Gary Hart inconsistent on arms control and lacking in leadership qualities as the Democratic presidential campaign moves toward the 306 national convention delegates in California.

Mondale followed Hart into Nebraska on Friday and gave the Colorado senator a taste of the debate to come in the final month of the primary campaign.

And, the Rev. Jesse Jackson swiped a bit of Hart "new ideas" rhetoric in New Jersey and said, "We need more than just a new president. We need a new direction. It's time for a change."

Country joins Soviet boycott

A fifth communist country Saturday joined the Soviet boycott of the Summer Olympics and more appeared likely to drop out, as Olympic officials maneuvered to stop the snowballing walkout and tried to convince Moscow to change its mind and send a team to Los Angeles.

Laos dropped out because "the U.S. administration uses sports as a political tool," Radio Vietiane quoted government officials as saying.

Mario Vasquez Rana of Mexico, the president of the Association of National Olympic Committees, was to conduct formal consultations Saturday with the Soviet Olympic Committee after holding preliminary discussions Friday.

Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, said in Lausanne, Switzerland, that the IOC's Executive Committee will hold an emergency meeting May 18 as part of "a fight to the last minute" to change the Soviets' minds.

Pope discusses Asian trip

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II said today his Asian tour was important because it gave vital support to Catholic minorities, and he singled out the "strong, fighting church" in Communist Vietnam.

The pontiff made the statement in a 30-minute chat with reporters as he flew home from Bangkok.

The 63-year-old pope, looking refreshed after a nap, walked up and down the aisle of his special Alitalia DC-10 and fielded reporters' questions in French, Italian, Polish, English, Spanish and German.

Asked if his radio message to the people of Vietnam, broadcast on Friday, might result in government repercussions against the Roman Catholic Church there, he said:

"Yes, it is in difficulty, but it is a strong church, a fighting church."

Candidate contends Friday

Democratic hopefuls trailing Gramm

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican U.S. Senate candidate Phil Gramm says a new opinion poll shows he is running ahead of either of the two Democrats he might face in November.

In forcing a runoff election between state Sen. Lloyd Doggett and U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, Democratic voters already have excluded their strongest candidate — Bob Krueger, Gramm said Friday.

"The Democrats sent the strongest opponent that I would have had to the locker room," said Gramm, who won 73 percent of the vote in last weekend's GOP primary.

Gramm said his campaign's new poll, to be made public Monday, shows him with a 10 percentage point lead over either Doggett or Hance.

"We have exceeded our goal of coming out of the primary in a competitive position," he said.

But Gramm said that regardless of who is his Democratic opponent, several issues will be important. He said that for years, Texans have elected one Democrat and one Republican senator.

"It's given us a power base in both parties. It's given us instant access to the White House no matter who's been president. I think most people in our state, Democrats and Republicans alike, would agree that in Lloyd Bentsen we have an effective Democratic senator," Gramm said.

The Republican also said control of the Senate may hinge on how Texans vote as they replace retiring GOP Sen. John Tower.

The Republicans have controlled the upper chamber of Congress since the 1980 election, and Gramm said it is important the GOP keep that hold.

"If we have a Democratic majority, not only will the president have to deal with (House Speaker) Tip O'Neill (D-Mass.) ... but he could very well be dealing with somebody like Ted Kennedy (D-Mass.) as majority leader in the U.S. Senate.

"Howard Metzenbaum (D-Ohio) would be chairman of the energy regulatory subcommittee of the U.S. Senate if the Democrats take control...

"That's the same Howard Metzenbaum who this year proposed doubling the windfall profits tax, eliminating the depletion allowance and reimposing price controls on oil. Those policies would not only jeopardize 1.5 million jobs in our state ... it would also jeopardize our tax base which is heavily dependent upon the petroleum and chemical industry."

Gramm said he and Hance, also a congressman, had similar voting records in the House from 1979 until 1981.

But since that time, Gramm said Hance has chosen to obey Democratic leaders on many issues involving the economy, support for President Reagan and business.

"From 1979 to 1981, Kent Hance and I had very similar voting records ... At that time, Tip O'Neill put the pressure on. My voting record stayed the same. I was ultimately taken off the budget committee, I resigned from Congress, changed parties, ran and was re-elected. Kent Hance responded by changing his voting."

No big deal

Doctor comes home to practice

RIO GRANDE CITY, Texas (AP) — Being called "Tonito" and home-cooked meals from his patients isn't at all uncommon for Dr. Antonio Falcon, a family physician who chose to practice medicine in this close-knit, South Texas rural community.

The 32-year-old doctor is chief of the medical staff at Starr County Memorial Hospital in Rio Grande City.

"After my residency, I returned to my home town because I wanted to see more of a medical community here. When I was growing up, there were very few doctors. I wanted to create even more of an availability of general health care in this area," Falcon said.

Since he came back to Rio Grande City in 1980, the 44-bed county hospital has increased its staff from three to seven doctors.

"The county has doubled in size in the twelve years I was gone. But I still know more than half of the patients who come to see me. There is a good social relationship between us," Falcon said.

Most of approximately 30 patients he examines each day at his downtown clinic are people he grew up with and people who have known his parents for years, he said.

"The fact that they knew me when I was growing up or that they know my parents creates a more favorable environment for my patients," he said.

Falcon said he doesn't mind when these patient friends call him "mi hito" or "Tonito" or when they bring him food.

Patient friends don't hesitate to go to Falcon's home for a quick diagnosis either.

"Most of these people feel more at ease with me. I don't mind them coming by, although I sometimes am a little tired. But it rarely happens," Falcon said.

"And only in a close-knit community will the people feel comfortable coming by. You don't find that in the bigger cities," said the doctor's wife, Kathleen Falcon.

Mrs. Falcon has ignored the common saying "don't marry a doctor because he is never home."

"Tony is a real family person. He spends all his extra time with us. He always makes an effort to be with his family," she said.

Support from his parents, Emma Falcon and the late Eugenio Falcon, "helped me get to where I am today," Falcon said.

"We helped him by encouraging him and supporting him all along the way. But we didn't have to worry because once he set his mind on something he would do it. Tony never needed help," Emma Falcon said.

Born in Edinburg and raised in Harlingen, Falcon graduated from Rio Grande High School in 1970.

"He was a model boy. He tried his best to be as perfect as he could. He never had any complaints from his teachers," Emma Falcon said.

One of Falcon's most influential teachers was his high school chemistry teacher Romeo Lopez because "he further created my interest in medicine," Falcon said.

"Antonio was a very well organized student. He was dedicated, conscientious and responsible. He had a tendency to go further into things and ask questions. He wouldn't just learn something and forget about it," Lopez said.

Back then, Lopez predicted Falcon would accomplish his goals because he was "a well-rounded person."

"He was involved in athletics and was also taking chemistry. Even though he was bright he didn't keep his head buried in his books. He could be good in two things at once," Lopez said.

Lopez said the fact that Falcon was the oldest child in the family also may have played a part in his accomplishments.

Concerning buyouts

Doomsayers claim big bust

NEW YORK (AP) — Everybody's talking about leveraged buyouts, saying that there are more of them than ever, that they are bigger than ever, that banks are starting to sour on them and that investment bankers are beginning to hedge their bets. And the doomsayers claim a big bust is around the corner.

Those involved in the deals, of course, see things differently. Leveraged buyouts have a lot of good aspects, says Joe Rice, a vice president of Clayton & Dubilier Inc., which specializes in divesting subsidiaries of parent companies.

He says leveraged buyouts can offer a hedge against inflation to the investor; to management, a chance to be an owner and to run the company differently; and to the shareholders, a premium price for their stock.

Leveraged buyouts are those deals in which management, or outsiders, or both, become owners by putting up little money. The target company's operating earnings or the sale of its assets are used to pay off the debt.

Just this past Wednesday, a group led by the Merrill Lynch Capital Markets, a subsidiary of the nation's largest investment firm, offered $2.3 billion in cash and securities to buy City Investing Co., a conglomerate with interests in manufacturing, lodging and insurance. It was the second $2 billion-plus leveraged buyout offer in a week. On May 3, Kohlberg, Kravis, Roberts & Co., a New York investment firm that specializes in leveraged buyouts, announced a record $2.4 billion offer for Esmark Inc., a big conglomerate based in Chicago.

"Just because you see prices going up doesn't mean it's bad," Rice said. "It's not really important how much you pay for the company that is the risk."

He said the investors' key is being able to borrow a lot of the asking price and having to put up very little money themselves.

But, Rice conceded, "You can't pay an infinite amount of money for a buyout and have it make sense. The key is buying good businesses at sensible prices."

That means picking a target that generates enough cash to pay off the debt incurred in the buyout.

Now, some developments of this past week:

— Most of the nation's major banks raised their prime rate to 12.5 percent from 12 percent. Most should continue through this year and next.

— Martin Feldstein, 44, said he will quit his post as the president's chief economist on July 10 to return, as expected, to teaching at Harvard University, which has a rule limiting leaves of absence of tenured professors to two years.

Take pride

May 13-19 is "Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Week" in Hereford, as proclaimed by Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, and a special section is sponsored in today's Brand by supportive businesses in the community.

Actually, the beautification project of the chamber will extend beyond this special week. Using this coming week to launch the program, the chamber hopes to involve as many citizens and organizations as possible in helping beautify the community.

"Take Pride Today for a Proud Tomorrow" is the theme for the citywide project, and the chamber is challenging all citizens to participate.

Several clubs have already taken the lead in adopting areas of town to clean up and beautify on an on-going basis. The Noon Kiwanians, Rotary Club, Golden K Kiwanis Club, and the Hereford Satellite Center are among those who have already set goals in the program.

If all citizens and business owners get in the spirit of things, we could really enhance the many assets we already have!

Madness!

"Madness! Madness!"

Remember those famous words uttered by the British doctor in the Movie "Bridge Over the River Kwai" when he surveyed the final scene of British commandoes battling Alec Guinness, the British colonel who had built the Japanese bridge with British prisoners of war.

Those words "Madness! Madness!" seemed particularly appropriate for the news recently of the signing of Brigham Young quarterback Steve Young, to a pro football contract with the USFL team, L.A. Express, for $40 million.

The young quarterback is talented and will be a great asset for the fledgling team, but no talent on this earth can be justified economically for $40 million.

The pro contract, plus the news of Standard Oil of California to take over Gulf for $13.1 billion, and the recent announcement of Texaco taking over Getty Oil, provide perfect examples of where graduated income taxes have taken us.

It's not talent nor takeovers that justify that kind of money-it's taxes.

The Young contract, the Social and Texaco takeovers are tax deals, pure and simple, and the loss to the federal treasury will be made up by you and I.

Young's talent on the gridiron, sports fans attendance in Los Angeles, the Express schedule or the possibility of winning the league - none of these are real factors in the $40 million contract.

Sports contracts are depreciable assets just like automobiles, factory machines, or a pumping unit. The young man is paid $4 million up front and the owners can purchase an annuity for $8.7 million, 11 percent, that will yield one million dollars a year for 32 years.

So the owners of the new franchise lay out $12.7 million, but can depreciate the entire $40 million contract over the playing period of the quarterback or roughly, $4 million a year in deductible expenses over a 10-year period. In other words, the owners are picking up $40 million in depreciation for an outlay of $12.7 million-and the federal treasury is the loser...and you and I make up the difference.

As the Years Turn

75 YEARS AGO

F.H. Fretz, chairman of the sidewalk committee, has started a building epidemic in the community and as a result, every one of his neighbors have agreed to put down the standard sidewalk and some of them have already begun the good work.

For a town the size of Hereford not to have a shipment of local freight for three days is something unusual, but that is what happened this week. It appears that since the thru trains have been running that no regular local has been sent out of Amarillo.

25 YEARS AGO

Eighty acres of land purchased by the city this week is scheduled to go into operation Monday as Hereford's new public dump ground site. Site of the dump grounds is one mile east of Aikman School, in the southwest corner of section 43.

A Chamber of Commerce is as good as you want to make it-or as sorry as you let it get, Joe Sitterwhite told 30 Hereford merchants and businessmen Friday. The manager of the Brownfield Chamber was on hand to describe the organizational methods used in that city.

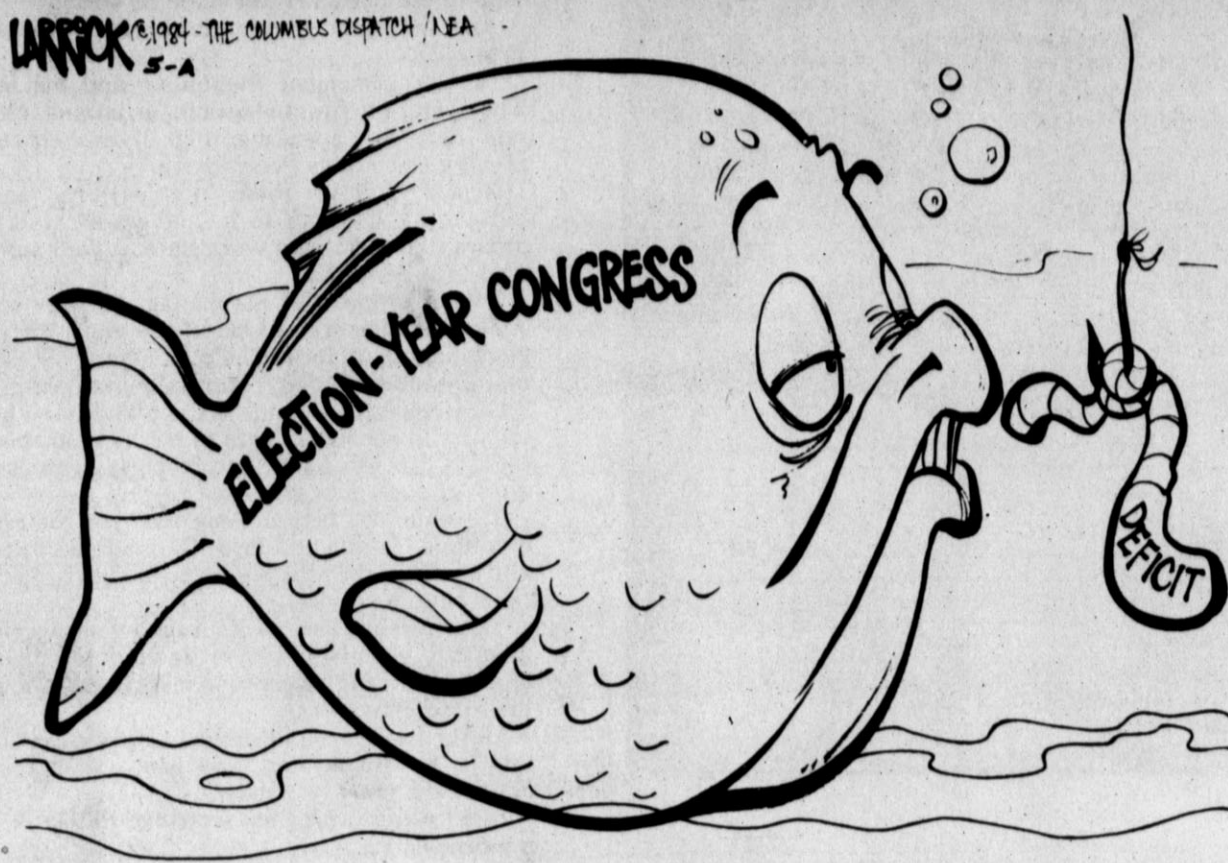

10 YEARS AGO

Purchases of three new vehicles, discussion of Bull Barn use and routine payment of bills filled the agenda of the Monday meeting of the Deaf Smith County Commissioners.

Sheri Lyane Young was named Valedictorian of the 1974 senior class Tuesday morning by Superintendent Roy Hartman during a special awards assembly at HHS. Cited as class salutatorian was Frank Paul Galley.

1 YEAR AGO

U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower's office has announced that $413,000 has been earmarked for study of the spillway problems present at Buffalo Lake near Umbarger through a grant from the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

The Penultimate Word

I MISS HARRY

Harry Truman would have been 100 this week. I should have loved him when he was alive. I probably would have done so had I not been so busy judging. He was a Baptist who cussed. That is, he was a Baptist who cussed out loud in front of people. I was so uptight that I could not see beyond the words he used to discover the man he was. Sometimes being a Baptist is a pain.

The greatness of the man became real to me by comparing him to his successors. The man may have made some mistakes, but his honesty, openness, and integrity were refreshing. Wouldn't it be great to have a leader who calls 'em as he sees 'em.

The first article I wrote for this paper was written during the fuel crisis under the Nixon administration. It tried to compare presidents by how they labeled issues.

Nixon called it a fuel crisis—everything was a crisis to Nixon. He even wrote a book called by My Seven Crises. Since Watergate he has more than seven.

Johnson would have called it a War On Fuel

Paul Harvey

Jesse Jackson could be kingmaker

When the democrats convene in San Francisco, Jesse Jackson and his entourage will be assigned to convenient hotels; they will get all the credentials they need.

"We must not be seen as pandering to him," says one party official, "but neither dare we risk offending him. He is an ally and we need him."

Should neither Mondale nor Hart win on the first ballot, Jesse Jackson with his potentially decisive 300-plus delegates could demand and get just about anything.

He could be the kingmaker. If Mondale is able to win the nomination on the first ballot, as now appears likely, Jackson would still have enough clout to influence the party platform and rules.

He has now promised that he will not run separately from his party but that promise could be rescinded should he feel ignored. Obviously, the party without his constituency would be gelded.

If he goes too far—if he goes to the mat with fellow democrats over tougher enforcement of the Voting Rights Act—he could jeopardize democrats' chances in nine southern states.

Traditional labels do not fit Jesse Jackson's candidacy. To whites he sounds "radical" yet his greatest strength is in the most conservative institutions in black America—the black churches. Including the Black Muslims.

I've tried to tell you about the Black Muslims.

This is an organization unlike any other race-related organization in the United States.

It is all black and closed-shop.

You are white—you need not worry about a Muslim moving in next door to you. HE would not want to!

He preaches and teaches black supremacy. He favors separation of blacks and whites.

Indeed, if the democrats are not nice to Jesse Jackson at their convention, Black Muslim leader Louis Farrakhan threatens to demand

Bootleg Philosopher

Suggestions on China trade

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm discusses China this week, sort of off-handedly.

Dear editor:

Now that the door to China has been propped open and the way is clear for trade and cultural exchanges with the United States, I've been speculating on how things will work out.

For example, take our fast food restaurants. They've just about used up all the corner lots in this country, so naturally will be looking for fresh new corner lots in China. Must be thousands of lots over there occupied by nothing but ancient pagodas that could be bulldozed down in 30 minutes.

I don't know how the Chinese will react; they may not be in as big a hurry to eat as some Americans, but nonetheless it's going to be interesting to see if they can eat a hotdog with chopsticks. One of the first things China Shortage. Everything was a war to Johnson.

Kennedy would have declared it as a New Frontier on Fuel Usage. He would somehow convince us we were lucky to have such a great opportunity for greatness.

Ike would have said, "I haven't noticed any fuel shortage. My golf cart is still running."

The presidents since Nixon would have labeled the crisis:

Ford: "Betty heard some truckers on her CB saying there was fuel shortage. We will look into it."

Carter would have grinned and said, "It is terrible. Or maybe not."

Reagan would go on television with a homemade chart and blame it all on Congress.

But old Harry—bristling, crusty old Harry—would have said, "Listen, you silly old buzzards (Not a direct quote. I cleaned it up for the Baptists). Cut the comedy and get the oil moving."

Gosh, I miss Harry.

Warm Fuzzies,

ted delegates to commit themselves to Jackson.

One national official of the Democratic Party said, "Unless we proceed very carefully in our negotiations with Jackson, we could be destroyed."

Jackson has energized black as never before. "Now," he says, "is the time to seize power."

(c) 1984, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

has indicated an interest in U.S. help in building nuclear plants, although there may be some Chinese citizens who're wondering if we've gotten the hang of it yet.

Some American financiers consider China a great place for investments, but if they invest over there and the investments go sour and the U.S. government has to bail them out, will that bail-out take precedence over the other countries we're already bailing U.S. investors out of?

There's a great opportunity in China for American tire manufacturers. During Mr.

Reagan's visit I watched television scenes of Chinese farmers hauling their crops in oxen-drawn carts and only one had rubber tires, the rest wooden wheels. If there ever was a marketing opportunity, that's it.

Now as for cultured exchanges, some Washington experts in such matters have suggested that we could improve relations by sending American rock bands over to perform for the Chinese but it wouldn't do any good. They'd all leave records over here to be played while they're gone.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

The Weakly Reeder

-a partial view of the news-

By REED PARSELL

"Our young men and women in their formative years ought to learn to participate in athletic games and not in war games."

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, a trailing though potentially influential presidential candidate, was remarking about Russia's decision to pull out of the summer Olympics. Such clever clips have become one of his trademarks. Use of catchy phrases, alluring aliterations and popular titles - such as "War Games" - help make Jackson more interesting to hear than either other Democratic hopeful.

"The refusal to strive for peace is a hopeless case for the human race," Jackson might say about international tensions. "We need to negotiate to placate, and unless we now turn to the bargaining tables the tables are going to turn on us."

On unemployment: "Before the jobless rate will get lower, it is necessary to hire. Get people off the boardwalks and into the board rooms. We ought to prevent those now ripe for work from becoming sour on our capitalist system."

On legalized gambling: "Let us put our cards on the table and oppose this risky business. Let us play the hand God has dealt us, let the chips fall as they may. Let us put up our dukes to any more Cool Hand Lukes."

On sending troops to Central America: "Our boys should be here hitting home runs rather than battling a foul cause and wanting to run home. Before striking out we must find out what are our alternatives."

One would probably scoff at Jackson's oratory and attempts at mediation had he not already been successful. Late last year a visit to Syria resulted in the release of Lt. Robert O. Goodman Jr., a U.S. airman captured in Lebanon.

One might accuse Jackson of performing these pleas as political ploys. This is certainly true to an extent, though such actions offer more solid evidence of possible future performance than do vote-probing campaign promises.

One might also wonder why the black leader did not attempt such negotiations in the past. As a presidential candidate, Jackson's influence has lately increased to a level where he can exert some pull and power.

Future administrations would be wise to consider using Jackson as a diplomat. His rise might therefore be described as, "From kennel rations to the United Nations."

Letters to Editor

Dear editor,

Let's give credit where credit is due. The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce has done, and is doing, an excellent job on projects which boost Hereford and Deaf Smith County internally. I cite for example the current projects for beautification, recent political forums, Chamber breakfasts, etc.

That's all well and good, and I applaud their efforts in that respect. But my main concern is what our community is doing externally. We're trusting a squadron to do what it would take a division to accomplish. I speak of the desperate need there is in our community for industrial development. The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is simply not equipped to recruit industry and business on the required scale.

Adequate funding is an absolute prerequisite to commercial recruitment. We are getting right now exactly what we are willing to pay for. No more, no less. The public perception seems to be that the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is doing all for our community that is humanly possible. We have resigned ourselves to accepting far less than we could have.

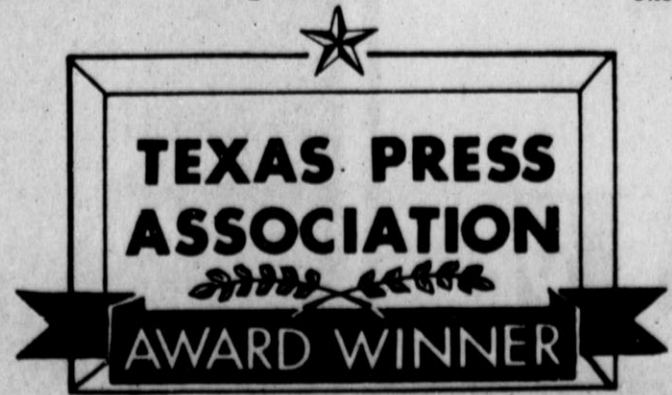

That is why I believe it is so urgent that the community have an aroused interest, indeed to demand of our public officials that we quit giving lip service to industrial growth, and to make a real commitment to it. The Chinese have a proverb which aptly states "a man must sit in a chair with his mouth wide open for a very long time for roast duck to fly in." In my opinion we are doing essentially the same thing here in Hereford; that is, just sitting around waiting for some good thing to happen to us.

Friends, it won't just happen that way! I urge the community to cast aside your complacency toward economic growth! Get involved! It is crucial that action be taken not one year from now, because lead time is required to locate and promote new industry and business. Action must be taken now to reverse this negative trend. If our community is not willing to assert it's right to an economic sphere of influence, it will be taken over by the surrounding trade centers who aggressively pursue economic development.

As stake right now is whether Hereford is going to remain an economically viable community. That may sound like an extreme statement, but in all sincerity I believe it to be true. Let's not just "fiddle while Rome burns." Apply pressure on those who can take the required action.

We've all heard of the train that derailed because someone was asleep at the switch. When we look back five years from now, we may see that as an apt description of what took place five years ago, and then say "if only we had taken action when we had the opportunity? We have the opportunity to do something new! What more can I say?"

Bilingual computer to revolutionize market

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — Jerry Setliff has high hopes for his company's bilingual computer, a word processor that translates text from English to Spanish and vice versa.

"I think it's going to revolutionize the market," said Setliff, president of Challenge Systems Inc., which has spent the last two years developing the word processor.

The Translating Word Processor — its official name — costs about $25,000, but for those firms that do a high volume of translations, the computer will pay for itself quickly, Setliff said.

The company currently is beginning to market and sell the product, offering firms and governmental agencies the computers to test them for 60 days, he said. Setliff said marketing has concentrated on the Texas-Louisiana Gulf Coast region and on Southern California because those areas have a heavy concentration of Spanish-speaking people and translations are needed.

"The product would be used as a productivity tool to do translations faster," said Setliff, who left an executive position at Texas Instruments to help start the company.

The bilingual computer would save the firms money because people no longer would have to do the translations manually, he said.

One of the agencies testing the system is the Houston Police Department, which has had its bilingual computer for two weeks.

"The feedback that I have received is that everybody is excited," said Don Hollingsworth, director of the department's Crime Information Center.

The department has agreed to test the computer and make recommendations to the company, Hollingsworth said.

"I think a further use for it," he said, "is to produce crime prevention bulletins to produce and distribute on a large scale."

Setliff said computer that can translate are not new, but that with the advent of microcomputers, the system now is much more affordable.

The Translating Word Processor seems simple. It has a 25,000 word vocabulary each in English and Spanish. It also includes a video display terminal with a multilingual keyboard, storage capability, a printer and software.

A document, a letter or other correspondence is inputted in the computer in one language and, with a push of a button, the computer begins its translation.

The typist sees the document being translated as the screen splits horizontally to show the text in both languages.

The copy then is sent to a printer, where the English and Spanish versions are seen side-by-side.

Editing and reinputting is next, Setliff said, admitting that the vocabulary limits the product's success.

"The product itself is not perfect," he said. "It cannot produce totally clean translation, such as a human translation."

The translation is literal and, therefore, sentence construction could be awkward, he said.

But he quickly added that those with a working knowledge of either language could easily edit the sentences to make them readable.

Two or three of the company's 20 employees are working full time developing multilingual dictionaries, Setliff said.

He expects that French, German and Latin translations will be available in a few months.

"It improves with age,"

Setliff said of the system. "You can add new terms so it (can) handle idiomatic translations."

Hanna shows records to society Thursday

President Troyce Hanna showed members of the Deaf Smith County Genealogical Society the first printout of the county marriage records which members compiled during a meeting in the library Heritage Room on Thursday.

The marriage record book is scheduled to be printed after corrections are made.

It was announced that there will be no June meeting, and that the society will meet with the Amarillo Genealogy Society at the main Amarillo Library from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday, July 2. Visitors are welcome to attend.

Nell Norvell, who has compiled a book on the Rape family, addressed the group on the "Dos and Don'ts of Writing a Family History."

She said it takes fortitude, perseverance, and above all tact, to complete such an undertaking. The greatest reward is certainly not financial, but the satisfaction of being able to say to oneself, "I did it!"

Religion Roundup

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Three stages have been provided for religious programs, including choirs and dramatic presentations, at the Louisiana World Exposition opening in New Orleans May 12 for 184 days.

The religious programming on the fairgrounds is being coordinated by the multidominational New Orleans Federation of Churches, under direction of the Rev. David Beach.

Baptists are providing various specialty groups, including a brass band, bluegrass band, magician, mime and barbershop quartet. As the crowds listen, volunteers will mingle in the crowd to distribute tracts and witness to faith.

"We have scheduled witness programs on the fairgrounds, in the French Quarter and at approximately 40 camping areas, says Jimmie Knox, director of Baptist Exposition Ministries. He says it expects to use 30 volunteers rotating daily, a total of more than 5,500 of them from area churches for the 184 days.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — President Reagan outlines his opposition to abortion in a new book, "Abortion and the Conscience of the Nation," bearing his name as author.

In the 96-page hardcover book, issued by Thomas Nelson Publishers, he stresses the sanctity of all human life, and says: "Regrettably, we live at a time when some persons do not value all human life. They want to pick and choose which individuals have 'value.' In other words, 'quality control.'"

Graduation pictures to be made

Hereford High school graduating senior students will be photographed by Anderson's Studio May 23 during dress rehearsal at Whiteface Stadium. Seniors will be photographed receiving their diplomas and those who desire a color 5x7 photo must make payment before Monday, May 21.

The cost is $3.50. Payment, name and number of pictures desired must be returned to the school office or Anderson's Studio before May 21. Only students who prepay their orders will be photographed during the program.

Each student may order as many 5x7 pictures as desired for $3.50 each and finished orders will be available at the studio approximately two weeks after graduation.

Reagan's text originally was published in the May 1983 quarterly, Human Life Review. In the book, it is supplemented by articles by British writer Malcolm Muggeridge on "The Humane Holocaust" and by Surgeon General C. Everett Koop on "The Slide to Auschwitz," both written earlier.

La Plata ninth-grader Bobby Baker watches his final drive sail down the 18th fairway at Hereford's Municipal Golf Course Friday. Baker was competing in the third round of the boys junior high team golf championship. La

Canyon leads junior high district

By STAN GODEK

After the third round of the junior high district golf championship at Hereford Municipal Golf Course Friday, it appears as if Canyon has it wrapped up.

With only next week's final round in Borger yet to take place, Canyon has a 23-stroke lead (1051) over second-place Pampa (1074) through the first three rounds.

But if Hereford could combine its low scorers from the two junior highs, it would be battling for first place. "If we'd had our best five scorers together, we would have shot pretty good," golf coach Mike Fields said after the meet.

La Plata Junior High (1077) is in a battle for second place, three shots behind Pampa. Stanton Junior High is securely in fifth place (1096).

But the boys from Borger were winners of Friday's third round as they shot an 18-round team score of 333. La Plata was third with a four-player score of 346. Stanton finished with 360.

Ninth-grader Bobby Baker, leading the district medalist race by seven shots, hit for 79 to pace the Mavericks. Eighth-grader Jason Bullard followed with an 85 score; ninth-grader Heath White added 89; seventh-grader Jay Chapman scored 93; and Todd Collier, seventh grader, came out with a 107 score.

Freshman Keith Anderson was low man on Stanton winding up with 80. Johnny Urias, ninth grade, was second with 88; eighth-grader Chad Larkin chipped in 95; seventh-grader Billy Burnam had 97; and eighth-grader Jay Beene hit for 109.

La Plata's B Team also competed. All were seventh graders except eighth-grader Dustin Hubbard who shot 100 for the 18 holes. Michael Albracht hit for 90 to pace the B Team. Todd Schroeder scored 97; Darren Nikkel was right behind with 98; and Scott Simmons finished with 106.

Two La Plata eighth graders played as singles. Kelby Hagar hit for 89 and Brent Newton shot 107.

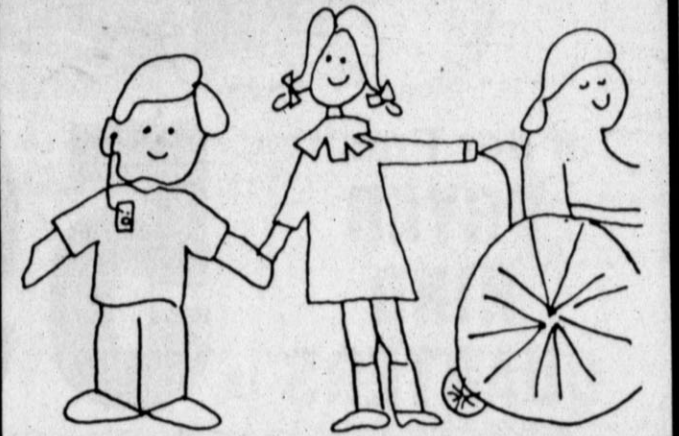

The final round for the boys will be Friday in Borger.

There is no team race for the junior high girls but there were several girls competing Friday from various schools. Eighth-grader Amy Conway from La Plata shot 98, low score of all girls. The rest of the scores from the eighth-grade Mavericks looked like this: Sherry Chapman, 101; Brenda Martinez, 104; Kathy Neil 111; and seventh-grader Paula Moore added 119.

Daingerfield won its first state boy's University Interscholastic League track and field title since 1963 in Class 3A and Bay City's Black Cats took their first 4A championship in five years Friday night.

Classes A, 2A, and 5A decide their champions today and tonight at Memorial Stadium.

Dallas Roosevelt was among the favorites to win the coveted 5A crown.

In Class 3A, Daingerfield scored 41 points, Cuero 32, Navasota 30, and Gilmer, Hillsboro, and Port Arthur Austin tied with 20 each.

Next were Caldwell, Linden, and New Braunfels tied with 18 points. Dalhart had 13.

In Class 4A, Bay City scored 42 points followed by Everman and Port Arthur Lincoln with 32, Corsicana had 30 and Lubbock Estacado 22.

Daingerfield won the climactic 1,600-meter relay to seal its championship with Eric Everett running a strong anchor.

The winning time was 3:16.8 to 3:18.9 for second place finisher Port Arthur Austin.

Everett also was second in the 100-meter hurdles for the Tigers of East Texas.

Federals stun Generals, 31-17

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quarterback Mike Hohensee ran for two touchdowns and threw for a third, Curtis Bledsoe rushed for 122 yards and Greg Taylor returned the opening kickoff 91 yards for a touchdown as the United States Football League's Washington Federals stunned the New Jersey Generals 31-17 Friday night.

The upset made New Jersey 9-3 and the Federals 2-10.

Hohensee, playing with his left wrist in a cast to protect a broken bone, completed 20 of 27 passes for 214 yards.

The much-maligned Federals' defense rose up to intercept New Jersey quarterback Brian Sipe five times and hold Generals' running back Herschel Walker to 53 yards rushing.

Offensively, the Federals broke on top early as Taylor took the opening kickoff at his own 9-yard line and raced straight through the heart of the Generals' special teams for a touchdown just 17 seconds into the game.

The Generals took advantage of a Washington fumble to cut the deficit to 7-3 before the end of the first quarter.

After Kerry Justin recovered a loose ball at the Washington 43, the Generals drove to the 6 before the drive stalled. New Jersey salvaged three points on Rodger Ruzek's 28-yard field goal.

The Federals extended their lead to 14-3 in the first minute of the second quarter after marching 86 yards in 11 plays with Hohensee's 6-yard touchdown pass to Joey Walters on a play action, culminating the drive.

Walters finished the night catching eight passes for 65 yards.

Converting four straight third-down plays on the drive, the Federals drove 96 yards in 9:02 with Hohensee's 1-yard keeper giving the Federals a 21-3 lead with 56 seconds remaining in the half.

The lead ballooned to 24-3 midway through the third quarter on Jeff Brockhaus' 28-yard field goal.

The Generals pulled to within 24-10 on Maurice Carthon's 1-yard run with four minutes remaining in the period. In the fourth quarter, it was Hohensee again, scoring on a 1-yard run on third and goal from the 1.

Brian Sipe, who completed 24 of 35, including 11 straight at one point, passed two yards to tight end Jeff Spek as the Generals closed to 31-17.

Sugar Ray Leonard retires again

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Kevin Howard, another tough fighter from South Philadelphia, was supposed to be an answer to a trivia question as the initial victim in Sugar Ray Leonard's return to the ring after a 27-month absence.

Instead, the 23-year-old Howard will go down in boxing history as the man who caused Leonard to go back into permanent retirement.

Leonard, the former world welterweight champion, beaten only once in 33 professional bouts before he suffered a detached retina more than two years ago, stopped Howard at 2:28 of the ninth round of a scheduled 10-round Friday night.

Then, after being knocked down for the first time in his brilliant career, Leonard announced his retirement for good, passing up possible mega-buck fights with middleweight champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler or junior welterweight king Aaron Pryor.

Howard, who had a 20-4-1 record entering the ring, received only $100,000, while Leonard collected a reported $3 million. However, Howard shocked a crowd of 10,461 and a national cable television audience by putting Leonard on the canvas with a jarring right in the fourth round.

Leonard, who will be 28 next Thursday, got up at the count of three and took the compulsory eight count standing. He came back and earned a technical knockout when he staggered Howard with a left hook and referee Richard Flaherty stopped the fight in the ninth round.

"They stopped it because I was ahead," Howard said before being told that Leonard actually was ahead on all three officials' cards. "He wasn't hurting me, I was hurting him. He hit me a good shot, but I know how to protect myself. That's why I was grabbing him when they stopped it."

"I was winning the fight, I know it," added Howard. "If they wanted to stop it, they should have stopped it when I knocked him down. When I got my head clear, they stopped it."

"He can't hit. My right hand was more devastating than anything he threw. And he tried to hit me with everything except the stool.

Marvin Hagler will beat Sugar Ray because Sugar Ray can't hit. If the fight hadn't been stopped, Sugar Ray might have hit the deck again."

Leonard went to his dressing room and, accompanied by his pregnant wife Juanita, his son Sugar Ray, Jr. and his father, came to an interview area after Howard.

"First, I commend Kevin Howard for such a dynamite display of ability and determination," Leonard said. "This was a test to see if it was still there. I had never been knocked down in my professional career, and I was embarrassed. I was not hurt. However, I had the feeling it just wasn't there. I looked over and saw my wife and really made a decision then."

"In the dressing room I took my wife and son into the bathroom and told them 'that's it'. There's no sense fooling anyone. I can't go on."

"My ability is all right, but my confidence is not there. I was very apprehensive about getting hit. I had cold feet. I am not going to take any chances and fight any other fighter. I do not have the concentration it takes to be a champion."

Howard came to fight and although Leonard, who relinquished his undisputed welterweight title after undergoing surgery to repair a detached retina, was in control all the way, he was never dominant.

In the fourth round, Leonard landed a four or five punch series to the head and then mugged at Howard, his chin sticking forward. Suddenly, the 23-year-old from Philadelphia did something that Roberto Duran hadn't been able to do in 23 rounds, something that Thomas Hearns couldn't do in his 14-round brawl with Leonard.

Kevin Howard knocked down Sugar Ray Leonard with a right to the jaw that followed a pawing left. Leonard hit the seat of his pants, then got up at three to take a mandatory eight count.

Howard resumed the attack and landed two good left hooks to the jaw but Leonard was able to withstand them.

In the fifth round, Howard motioned Leonard to come to him. Leonard won the round with several hard body shots in the last minute.

Leonard also held the edge in the sixth, seventh and eighth and then the former champion won the fight on the force of that tremendous hook in the ninth.

Leonard retired Nov. 9, 1982, five months after undergoing retinal surgery on his left eye. His last fight was Feb. 15 of that year, when he defended the 147-pound title with a third-round knockout of Bruce Finch.

Leonard announced he was coming back to the ring last Dec. 10 and a 10-round fight was scheduled here Feb. 25. But that fight was postponed when, on Feb. 13, Leonard had a procedure performed to strengthen the retina of his right eye.

He had no problems with the eyes Friday night and was not marked about them. Both fighters wore thumbless gloves, which Leonard insisted on as a precaution against eye injuries.

Leonard showed good foot and hand speed. He also punched well to the body and showed a good jab and left hook. But he never put it all together as he has so many times in the past.

"I'm confident the ring rust will not show at all," said Leonard, who will be 28 on Thursday, said before the fight.

Leonard, who weighed 149 pounds, scored his 33rd victory against one loss. It was his 24th knockout.

Howard, 150½ of Philadelphia, lost for the fifth time against 20 victories and a draw. But it was the kind of showing that should help his career.

Howard earned $125,000, by far his biggest purse, while Leonard made $3 million.

(AP) - How to win in basketball without really trying:

Earlier this year, Indiana defeated Purdue, 73-68 in overtime, without taking a shot.

The Hoosiers did it by winning the tap to start the overtime period and then controlling the ball until one of their players was fouled. They managed to score 12 points in the overtime period, all on free throws, while Purdue only put seven points on the scoreboard.

King forces Celtics to seventh game

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernard King scored 29 of his 44 points in the first half and the New York Knicks went on to even their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series with Boston at three games each with a 106-104 victory over the Celtics Friday night.

Game 7 will be Sunday at Boston Garden.

Friday night, King bettered the 40-point plateau for the sixth time in 11 playoff games. The Celtics have never led at any point in the last two games in New York, although they managed two ties in the first quarter Friday night and one in the third period of Game 4.

King's 11-for-13 shooting performance in the first two periods lifted New York to an eight-point halftime lead. Boston's swarming defense held him to five more points in the third period, but the Knicks still managed an 82-75 advantage going into the fourth.

King then poured in 10 points in the first 8½ minutes to lift the Knicks to their largest lead at 104-91, before the Celtics scored nine straight points to make the final score close.

During that rally by Boston, Larry Bird, who led the Celtics with 35 points, was fouled as he drove in for a breakaway layup by Rory Sparrow, who was ejected for a flagrant foul.

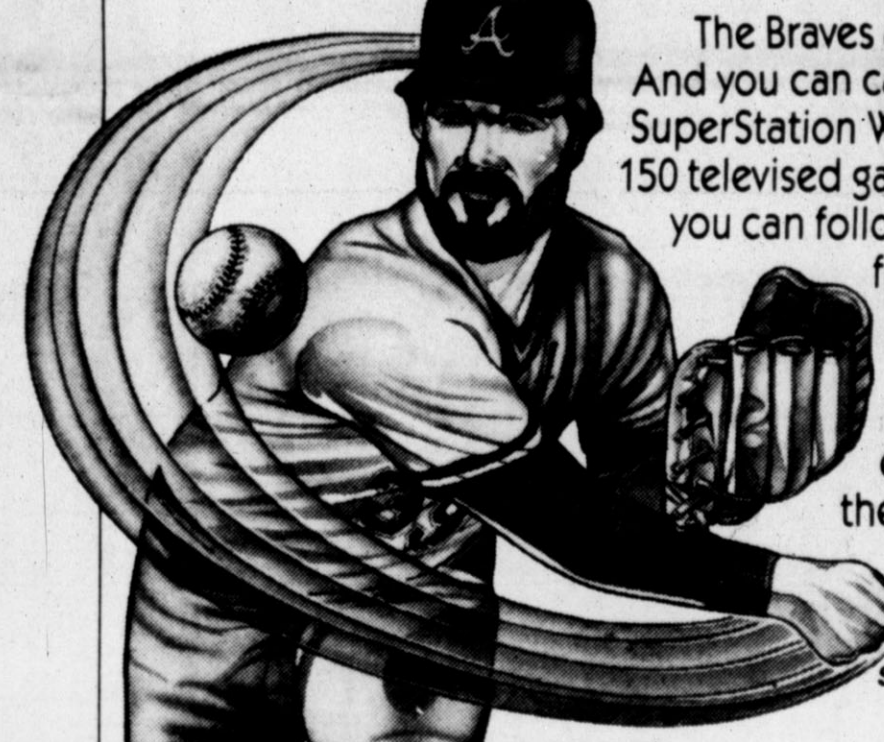

Boston had a chance to tie it in the final seconds, but shots by Bird and Cedrick Maxwell were off the mark.

Bill Cartwright and Ray Williams both scored 14 points for New York, while Gerald Henderson had 20 and Kevin McHale 16 for the Celtics.

King scored 18 points in the first quarter and the Knicks led 30-28 at the end of 12 minutes, although the Celtics hit 11 of 17 shots in the period, 64.7 percent. In the first two games at New York, they had managed to make just 42 percent of their field-goal attempts.

In the 1928-29 hockey season, goalie George Hainsworth of the Montreal Canadiens recorded 22 shut-outs, which is also a team record. This feat is all the more amazing because the season in those days consisted of only 44 games, compared to today's 80-game schedules.

Astros finding pieces to puzzle

HOUSTON (AP) — The pieces of the Houston Astros' puzzle may be at last falling into place if a 3-1 victory over Chicago is any indication of their capabilities.

Nolan Ryan pitched his best game of the season Friday night. The Astros had timely hitting, including rookie catcher Mark Bailey's game-winning single in the seventh inning. Frank DiPino added his fifth save of the season and second in as many nights.

Jerry Mumphrey continued to produce in the clean up position.

"It's all coming together at the same time," DiPino said. "The whole team is starting to pull together. We got the timely hits and we're all relaxing now."

The "relaxed" Astros won their fifth game in six starts on Ryan's eight strikeouts over seven and one-third innings and Bailey's single that broke up a 1-1 deadlock.

"I warmed up on about 40 pitches in the bull pen and sometimes it's a bad omen if it comes too easy in the bull pen," Ryan said. "But tonight I had the best stuff I've had all year."

Chicago scored first in the fourth inning on Ron Cey's double. Leon Durham reached base on Astros second baseman Bill Doran's fielding error and raced home from first base on Cey's clout to the left field corner.

Houston matched that in its half of the fourth when Craig Reynolds singled to center field and scored on Mumphrey's double to left field.

Starter and loser Dick Ruthven, 2-4, matched Ryan until the seventh when Mumphrey and Enos Cabell led off with singles and Bailey drove in Mumphrey with the winning run off reliever Tim Stoddard. Cabell came home on Cubs catcher Jody Davis' passed ball.

Ryan, 3-2, struck out eight and extended his career total to 3,732 before giving way to DiPino with one out in the eighth.

"Ryan's especially tough when he throws the breaking ball for strikes like he did tonight," said Chicago's Ryne Sandberg, who got two singles. "You sit on the fast ball and when he throws the breaking ball for a strike, you have to concede it to him."

Sandberg extended his string to a National League leading 14 consecutive games.

"I've been swinging the bat good and seeing the ball good," he said. "I'm trying to be more patient this year and lay off the bad pitches and I think that's been the difference so far."

Tigers off to best start

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers, buoyed by Dave Bergman's three RBI and the pitching of Milt Wilcox and Willie Hernandez, downed the California Angels 8-2 Friday night and improved their record to 26-4 for the best start in major league history.

The victory was the seventh straight for the Tigers. The Tigers' 25-4 record going into the game had been equaled only by the 1955 Brooklyn Dodgers.

Almost overshadowed by the Tigers start was Wilcox's 10th American League victory. Wilcox, 4-0, yielded six hits in six innings, struck out five and walked one, working out of bases-loaded jams in the second and sixth. Wilcox left with stiffness in his

Kirk Gibson was safe on a grounder that forced Trammell, then stole second before Darrell Evans singled in Whitaker and Gibson, chasing Witt. After Laker's series

Mavs no longer weakest team

DALLAS (AP) — The once woeful Dallas Mavericks, formerly the weakest kid on the National Basketball Association block, have become a little monster in four years.

But they still are at that awkward age: good enough to whip some weak sisters along the NBA playoff path, but not strong enough to keep from losing teeth to a big bully like the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Mavericks never again will be able to play off their green, young, expansion image.

Defeating the Lakers in Dallas during the playoffs put an end to the myth that they are short, slow, and untalented.

"The Mavericks like to play off that 'poor me' thing, but they have a lot of talent and what they really like to do is kick butt," said Laker Coach Pat Riley, who became disturbed with Dallas Coach Dick Motta's poor-mouthing during the playoffs.

Riley felt Motta was trying to do a psych job, particularly when the Mavs played at home.

There are few teams any tougher at home than the Mavericks at Reunion Arena with their 17,007 fans singing along with "Shout" during the timeouts.

Dallas might have had another victory at home against Los Angeles if guard Derek Harper hadn't forgotten the score and dribbled the clock out with Game Four tied in regulation.

No longer can the Mavericks surprise the established NBA teams.

"Under Motta, the Mavericks simply run the best half-court offense in the NBA," said Riley. "They have great shooters in Mark Aguirre and Rolando Blackman. They hustle and scratch. They can play."

But Dallas does have a big deficiency and it's in the middle, which the Lakers' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar exploited at will.

Power forward Pat Cummings hasn't given away much muscle in the position this year, but he does give yield quickness and a half-dozen inches in height to each center he goes against.

The difference is rebounds and blocked shots that other teams get and the Mavs miss.

Kershen attends conference held recently in Lubbock

Andrew Kershen, member of the Deaf Smith County Historical Commission, attended the 1984 Historic Preservation Conference recently in Lubbock.

The annual preservation conference is sponsored by the Texas Historical Commission and is attended by county historical commission representatives and other preservationists from across the state.

This year over 300 delegates gathered at the Lubbock Civic Center to hear prominent state and national preservationists and to exchange ideas about the programs and projects to conserve local history and historic landmarks. The event was funded in part by the Texas Committee for the Humanities, a state program of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Numerous county awards were presented during the conference. Among the honors conferred were best local and regional historical publication, best county historical commission program of work, outstanding county historical commission chairman, best county historical commission newsletter and distinguished service awards for county historical commissions.

This year's conference, entitled "Things we Leave Behind", examined the preservation of 20th century heritage. Topic discussions centered on minority involvement in preservation, new social history in Texas, ranching history, Texas music in this century, historic bridges, urban development and other matters pertaining to the recent past.

Guest speakers included Dr. Thomas J. Schlereth, Department of American Studies, University of Notre Dame, Indiana; Dr. Don Carleton, director of Barker Texas History Center, Austin; State Rep. Edward M. Emmett, chairman of the Texas House Committee on Cultural and Historical Resources; and professional archaeologists, historians, architects and museum personnel.

Two post-conference tours were also offered. One tour featured historic sites in Lubbock while another offered a tour of nearby Crosby County. Each tour gave participants an exciting look at this former frontier region of Texas.

The Texas Historical Commission, the official state agency for historic preservation, also conducted its quarterly business meeting during the conference.

The 18-member commission, appointed by the governor, encourages conservation and maintenance of the state's cultural resources and administers programs involving museums and historical organizations, archaeology, historical markers, downtown revitalization, National Register properties, federal projects, state and federal technical grants and publications.

According to Kershen, the Texas Sesquicentennial Wagon Train Tour will come through Hereford in May 1986, marking the 150th year since our Texas forefathers declared their independence from Mexico.

To commemorate this period in history, Texans are already gearing up to launch an exciting, as well as educational celebration of this state's independence.

The wagon train, authentically recreated to represent the wagon trains that brought our ancestors to Texas, will embark on a six-month journey, covering 2,800 miles, on January 2, 1986.

Local wagons and riding clubs are encouraged to join the wagon train as it goes through the area.

The Texas Historical Commission wants to preserve all old adobe houses in West Texas and is looking for one-room rural school houses. Old railroad depots are disappearing, and Hereford needs to plan what to do with the local depot should Santa Fe decide to sell it, stated Kershen.

THE SCOTCH NEW YORK (AP) - Scots have penetrated every sphere of influence and power in the United States, according to the Scottish Development Agency.

The agency says 18 U.S. presidents, including President Reagan, can trace Scottish ancestry in their blood. "Half the secretaries of the U.S. Department of the Treasury and a third of the Secretaries of State were of Scottish descent," it adds.

"And, 25 of the 73 Americans honored in the Hall of Fame had Scottish lineage. All told, some 44 million Americans have Scottish ancestors."

Soften up your look this summer with new cosmetic shades. Vivid nails and lips, black-rimmed eyes and rosy cheeks are being replaced with a gentler, more refined palette.

The girls of summer are using bleached out, desert tones—soft, sandy peach and apricot, palest powder pink—to give them the look of natural, sunwashed beauty.

Add dash to your new menswear looks with the latest in tailored jewelry. Crests and crowns are showing up on all the best jackets and coat dresses...and no one's going to check DeBrett's to see if you're entitled to the insignia.

One of summer's newest and best looks is the sweater and skirt. That's right, a light and airy sweater knit from silk, cotton or rayon, is being teamed with crisp linen or soft silk skirts for an elegant, ladylike effect.

If they bite

Insects could spark allergies

COLLEGE STATION — Spring weather can mean danger for Texans who get bitten or stung by insects. Insects cause a number of injuries to people each year when outdoor activities increase. The worst offenders are bees, wasps and yellow-jackets. The greatest peril from insect-people encounters is allergic reactions, pointed out Dr. Phil Hamman, entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. He notes that insect bites kill at least nine times more Americans than do snake bites.

People have different reactions to insect venoms, and allergic reactions are classified by the severity of one's body reaction, Hamman noted.

He cited at least three levels of reactions insect bites and stings can cause:

- Slight reactions, including itching, inflammation of the skin or anxiety.
 - Moderate reactions, including swelling, abdominal pain or nausea.
 - Severe reactions, including difficulty in breathing or swelling, hoarseness or confusion.
- Most severe would probably be a shock reaction that causes a drop in blood pressure, collapse or unconsciousness, Hamman said. Moderate and severe reactions from an insect bite or sting are enough cause to see a doctor. Capture the offending insect if possible to help the doctor in providing treatment.

To reduce contacts with venomous insects, Hamman advised people not to walk around in the yard barefooted; to avoid wearing sweet smelling colognes or perfumes; to keep ripened fruits, watermelons, soft drink cans or other sweet smelling materials covered when outdoors; and to avoid mowing lawns or working in flower beds when bees or wasps are active. Insects are less active in the early morning hours.

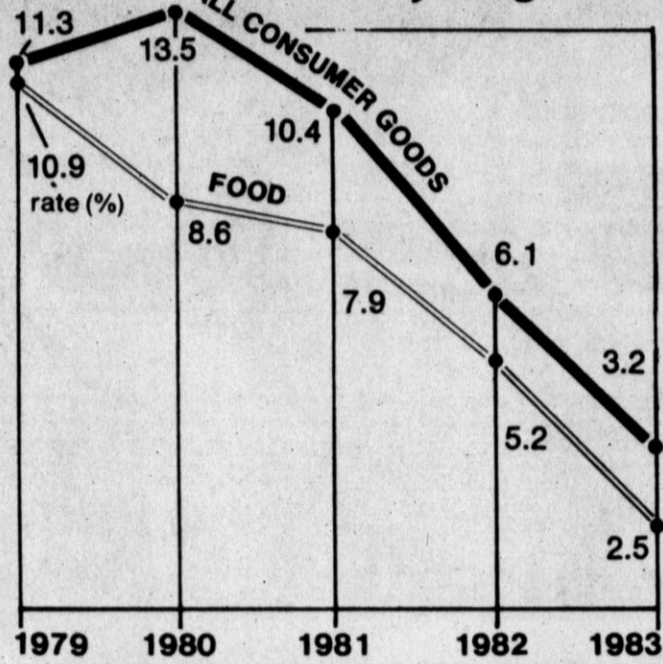

Remain still if a stinging insect is near, the entomologist said. brush it off if it attacks but don't slap it to prevent a sting. If attacked by a swarm of wasps, yellow-jackets, hornets or bees, leave the area immediately while protecting the face with hands and arms.

Among the variety of venoms produced by insects are these:

- Those producing blisters, caused by certain stinging caterpillars, centipedes and blister beetles.
- Those attacking the central nervous system, produced by scorpions, black widow spiders, bees, wasps, yellow-jackets and hornets.
- Those destroying skin tissue, produced by fire ants, wheel bus, brown recluse spiders, mites, scorpions, chiggers, bees, wasps, yellow-jackets and hornets.
- Those preventing blood from clotting, caused by fleas, lice, mites, ticks, biting flies and true bugs.

'MENU INFLATION'

Food's cheaper — compared to everything else

It might not seem that way, but food is something of a bargain. As the U.S. inflation rate has dropped, food prices have increased less from year to year than the combined prices of all consumer goods.

Thanks to big 1984 harvest

Wheat prices should dip this year

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers can expect wheat prices to decline as a result of a bumper 1984 harvest, possibly to a six-year low, according to new projections by the Agriculture Department.

In a "highly tentative" look ahead, the department also projected a huge corn harvest this year of nearly 7.76 billion bushels, nearly double the skimpy 1983 harvest of 4.2 billion bushels.

Officials said Thursday in a new supply-and-demand report that the average price of wheat is expected to be in the range of $3.20 to $3.50 per bushel in the marketing year that will begin on June 1, down from $3.50 estimated for the 1983-84 season just ending.

According to department records, that would be the lowest season average price for wheat since farmers got $2.97 per bushel in the 1978-79 season. Prices rose to $3.78 in 1979-80, $3.91 in 1980-81, $3.65 in 1981-82, and $3.55 in 1982-83.

The analysis followed the department's report on Wednesday that estimated 1984 winter wheat production at 1.98 billion bushels, less than 1 percent below last year's huge output. Wheat industry officials said at the time that the big prospective crop would put pressure on prices.

Overall, the latest report said, total U.S. wheat output this year could be around 2.55 billion bushels, up from 2.43 billion in 1983. That would make it the third largest crop on record.

The biggest was 2.81 billion bushels in 1982, just edging the 1981 harvest of slightly less than 2.8 billion bushels, which was the second largest.

According to the analysis, another huge wheat crop this year would mean a resumption in the U.S. wheat surplus to about 1.47 billion bushels by the end of the 1984-85 marketing year on May 31, 1985. The old-crop inventory this May 31 is expected to be about 1.39 billion bushels, down from the record high of 1.54 billion bushels a year ago.

The latest winter wheat production figure is an official estimate based on field surveys as of May 1.

Production of corn and some other 1984 crops were "projected" for the first time by USDA, based on assumptions that weather will be normal and yields in line with recent trends. The report said those projections should be viewed with caution, with an understanding that the figures could vary greatly.

The corn crop, which was only 10 percent planted by May 6, was projected at about 7.76 billion bushels. Last year's harvest dropped to 4.2 billion bushels as a result of drought and the government's payment-in-kind acreage program. Corn output set a record in 1982 of 8.36 billion bushels.

According to the projected figures, corn prices at the farm in the 1984-85 marketing year that will begin on Oct. 1 may average $2.65 to $3.20 per bushel, compared to an estimated $3.25 this marketing year and $2.68 in 1982-83.

The corn inventory is expected to be down to 520 million bushels by Oct. 1 from a record carryover of 3.14 billion bushels last fall, reflecting last year's small harvest. But another bumper harvest in 1984 could rebuild the inventory to more than 1.12 billion bushels by Oct. 1, 1985, the report said.

Projections also showed: —This year's soybean crop at about 2.08 billion bushels, compared to 1.6 billion bushels in 1983 and 2.23 billion in 1982. Farm prices in 1984-85 could average $6 to $8.50 per bushel, compared to an estimated $7.90 per bushel this season and $5.69 in 1982-83.

—Cotton production at 11.5 million bales, compared to 7.8 million bales in 1983 and 12 million bales in 1982. By law, USDA is prohibited from projecting cotton prices.

—Rice output at 150 million hundredweight, compared to 99.7 million in 1983 and 153.6 million in 1982. Prices at the farm were projected at $7.75 to $9.25 per hundredweight, compared to $8.65 estimated this season and $8.11 in 1982-83.

No poultry decision yet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says no decision has been made on whether to allow producers to market some birds from flocks of poultry that have recovered from outbreaks of deadly avian influenza in Pennsylvania and Virginia.

A scientific committee appointed to review the disease eradication program had recommended that some marketings be allowed from recovered flocks, Assistant Secretary C.W. McMillan said Tuesday.

"We need to see what impact this would have on our overall eradication program," he said.

Millions of fowl, including laying hens and broilers as well as breeding flocks and turkeys, have been destroyed in the massive effort to curb the disease and stop its spread. The disease does not affect humans.

In all, more than 13 million birds have been killed to stop the spread of the disease. Federal indemnities to help compensate owners for losses total $30.4 million so far.

The department appointed the committee as part of a request by Virginia poultry representatives to look for alternatives to destroying flocks found infected with avian influenza. The disease broke out in Pennsylvania last fall and spread to Virginia, with minor outbreaks also reported in Maryland and New Jersey.

McMillan said the USDA "endorses the committee's stand opposing the use of vaccination in the quarantined areas." No vaccinations have been used and none is planned, he said.

Also, McMillan said, the department "supports more stringent security to keep the virus from spreading beyond the quarantined area, and better sanitation education." More research is needed on the virus that causes the disease, he said.

"While the committee's review and recommendations were based primarily on data from Virginia, USDA must carry out an eradication program that is uniform in both Virginia and Pennsylvania," McMillan said.

Vegetable oil could be surfactant alternative

An alternative to petroleum surfactants, now being marketed in the Panhandle and elsewhere, is one of Mother Nature's products that developers say will save the farmer money and do a better job.

Vegetable oil, made from cotton seed or soybeans, can be mixed with herbicides and insecticides before they go in the spray tank. Dale Meixner, vice-president of one of the companies promoting the product, said it saves the grower money by reducing the amount of chemicals needed.

Meixner claims it also protects the chemicals from evaporation and sunlight, and will penetrate the plants instead of just sticking to them.

Meixner said his company, U.S. Ag Associates, is focusing on a direct marketing method so the product can be explained in depth to the farmers. He said not all vegetable oils will work because they don't all mix with water.

The specially processed oil is most often sold in five-gallon containers; it takes about one quart per acre.

Ronnie Griffith, manager of Riverside Chemical Company, said they carry the product under the label Prime Oil Two. He said it has been selling but not in great quantities.

Griffith said he believes it probably works better than the petroleum surfactants, but it is more expensive and he thinks it may take it a while to catch on.

Other people selling the product think that once it does, just about everybody will make the switch.

Systemic protection above and below ground.
Now Temik for sorghum.

You can now get solid protection against sorghum pests above and below ground, with TEMIK® alicarb pesticide.

Below ground, TEMIK, applied at planting, controls nematodes in the soil on contact. The developing root system is protected from nematode damage that can stunt seedling sorghum and often severely damage an entire crop.

Then, as the plant grows, TEMIK alicarb is absorbed through the root system and spreads around-the-clock protection throughout the plant.

Above ground, TEMIK alicarb reduces damage from sucking insects for 30-45 days. Foliar sprays often do not reach chinch bugs that cluster on lower parts of the stem or greenbugs that feed on the underside of leaves. TEMIK, with its systemic action, spreads protection throughout the plant. One in-furrow application of TEMIK alicarb pesticide can do the job of 1 to 3 applications of foliar sprays on seed sorghum and 1 to 2 applications on commercial sorghum.

With the protection of TEMIK, sorghum plants start strong, develop fast, and yield big. Systemic protection above and below ground, for healthy plants, bigger yields, with fewer trips over the field.

G - 922

SG 922 is a full-season, high yielding hybrid. Anthracnose resistant, downy mildew resistant, head smut tolerant, and a short tough stalk for exceptional standability combine to make this a very versatile, rugged hybrid. Also, this hybrid has shown a very good resistance to damage from most common insecticides. The extensive root system helps this thrifty hybrid in dry years and wet years to produce those high yields that growers need. The root system plus the large stiff stalk should make this an excellent standing hybrid. The large head will be filled with a yellow endosperm grain and the moderately open head type will aid in drying down. High yields, disease resistance, and tropical adaptation will make 922 a most prized hybrid by sorghum farmers.

Farmers' plight worries air serviceman

By PATTI MUCK
Port Arthur News
FANNETT, Texas (AP) — George Mitchell looks out over the 750 acres of farmland surrounding M & M Air Service. It's spring again, and his 10 planes and 10 pilots are gearing up for one of their busiest months of the year.

With his cap pulled low over his tinted glasses, Mitchell watches as seed rice is loaded into the gullet of a bright yellow Stearman biplane. Nearly 1,200 pounds of seed go up in each load — enough to cover 12 acres of land with one of the state's top five cash crops.

"This will be our first rice," Mitchell says. "We started working the ground the first of March. It's a perfect day to plant."

As if on cue, pilot Duffy Breaux revs the engine of the fully loaded craft and lifts off toward the 140 freshly flooded acres that will get planted today. It's a scene that has been repeated around M & M Air Service since April 9, 1946, when former pilot Kinky Shane planted the first rice by air in the state of Texas.

"This is a family-owned business, a family-owned air service and a family-owned farm," Mitchell says. "That's the grass roots of America. And we're scared to death. It's slipping away from us and there's nothing we can do about it."

Mitchell is a straight-talking man who adds an edge of humor to nearly everything he says. But that humor vanishes when he talks about what has happened to area farmers in the past decade. "This is our fourth loss year — this means you either break even or go in the hole," Mitchell says.

"This cost-price squeeze cannot exist another year. In 1983, M & M had 72 customers that did not farm but did farm in 1981," he says. Rice acreage dropped from 63,000 acres in 1981 to 28,000 acres in 1983.

Mitchell pins the fall of the farmer on a number of things.

The average age of a Jefferson County farmer is 57, so many of them have retired. Some were lucky enough to be financially able to quit farming when the market tightened up. Some farmers were foreclosed on by their banks. Some went bankrupt.

"Or they flat gave up," Mitchell concludes.

"The big question is: Who will farm the land?"

He points to his son, David, and his nephew, John Murth, as they unload seed from a flatbed truck. They will follow in the aviation agriculture tradition. But

Despite government

Huge wheat crop likely

By DON KENDALL AP
Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Another huge wheat crop may be in the works despite the government's attempt to curb plantings and reduce surpluses.

The Agriculture Department is scheduled to announce later today its first official 1984 production estimates for winter wheat, which makes up most of the total U.S. output.

Some private forecasters say the winter wheat crop will increase from last year's 1.99 billion bushels, approaching the record of 2.11 billion bushels set in 1982.

Winter wheat is planted in the fall and harvested the following year, beginning in late spring in southern areas. The remainder of the annual wheat crop is planted in the spring. Spring wheat can range from about 430 million bushels produced last year to 700 million bushels produced in 1982.

Total wheat production last year was 2.43 billion bushels, down from the record of 2.81 billion bushels from the 1982 harvest.

According to the latest projections, the wheat stockpile when the new marketing year begins on June 1 will be around 1.41 billion bushels, down less than 8 percent from the record of 1.54 billion bushels a year ago.

The corn stockpile, by comparison, is expected to be down to about 520 million bushels next Oct. 1, the beginning of the new corn marketing year. That would be an 83 percent drop from the record 3.14 billion bushels on hand last fall.

Only a small part of the wheat crop is eaten by Americans — about 625 million bushels this year — while most of the crop harvest is consumed by livestock. Both grains are big items as exports, and those have not rebounded as well as had been hoped.

Last year, in exchange for idling part of their land farmers were given $9.1 billion worth of free surplus commodities to sell or use as they chose, a payment-in-kind to curb the production of wheat, corn, sorghum, cotton and rice.

Drought swept much of the country, cutting yields sharply for many crops. Wheat, however, mostly escaped the effects of the drought. Although the total wheat acreage was down because of PIK, average yields per acre set records.

According to preliminary start to finish — from the blackbirds to the politics of the government," Pryor says. "There's so much rice in government storage, you can sell it for $10 to $20 less than what it costs to raise."

"Your American farmer is going to be like a dying breed — like the American Indian," Pryor says.

Both men add that the export market has virtually died. "Our competitors are dumping grain on the market at cheaper prices than we can grow it at," Mitchell says. "It costs us $11 a hundredweight (cwt) to grow. In Taiwan, Burma and the Philippines, they're selling rice on the Foreign Exchange Market for $6.75 and $7 per hundredweight."

Mitchell ends his somber summary as abruptly as he started. After all, it's another season and a new crop. The yellow plane touches down for another load of seed rice. "Today they'll plant 140 acres of Lebonnet and 96 acres of Lemont," Mitchell says.

"We'll probably be able to do the whole job in two hours," he says.

If the balmy, sunny weather remains, the rice will start swelling tonight, the

Hill Country winery challenging labels

By MELINDA MACHADO
Kerrville Daily Times
KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — Texas wines may soon rival familiar California or New York labels as the state adds another vineyard dedicated to putting a taste for Texas on wine lover's palates.

will join 13 other wineries by bottling its first vintage this summer. A small orange and yellow sign alerts travelers to the Oberhellmann Vineyards on the Llano Route. A dirt road to the right reveals the iron gate and Oberhellmann coat of arms. The winery will open to the public in June for Saturday tastings. "We're getting ready to bottle very shortly," said owner Robert Oberhellmann, adding, "We felt the wine had to be ready."

The first wines Oberhellmann plans to produce will be Kraineiwer, a dry white wine made from the Gewurztraminer grape and drunk with meals, Liebschen, a sweeter white wine and a red Edelblume wine. In the fall, he hopes to add a Chardonnay, a Domain Blanc which will be a combination of the Sauvignon and Sauvignon Blanc grapes and a Johannisberg Reisling wine. Thirty acres of land produce the Pinot Noir, Cabernet Sauvignon, Sauvignon Blanc, Gewurztraminer, Chardonnay, Johannisberg Reisling, Edelblume, and Semillon grapes.

vines, Oberhellmann described the type of grape each produced. Ten acres of the Oberhellmann Vineyards are dedicated to producing the Pinot Noir grape, which makes a burgandy wine. Chardonnay grapes yield a white burgandy wine while Semillon is a white grape from Bordeaux. "It produces a nice full bodied wine," Oberhellmann said.

"This area is freakish for the Hill Country," Oberhellmann said, showing where the red, sandy soil yields to rich, black dirt. The vines are watered by trickle irrigation using underground mains from four wells. From the field, grapes are picked and put through a steel machine called the crusher and stemmer. The machine pumps must of the juice and pulp of the grapes. Must from white grapes is pressed and the juice sent to the winery to ferment. The winery itself is located inside a nineteenth century German styled building filled with steel storage tanks, oak barrels of aging wine, a bottling room, a tasting room and an experimental wine lab.

body to reds." Red wines go back to press and then are stored to ferment again. The steel storage tanks can ferment up to 20,000 gallons of wine. A refrigerated storage room allows the wines to age at comfortable temperatures. White wines are kept between 50-55 degrees and reds at slightly higher temperatures. A native Kansan, Oberhellmann studied horiculture in college and food technology at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Now a Dallas foodbroker, Oberhellmann decided to invest his love of fine wines and good food into a vineyard. "Wine is a food," Oberhellmann said, adding, "It should be consumed with food. There's a lot that can be said about wine and health," he said, discussing the medicinal value of wine through the centuries.

"Wine is handled in the body differently than alcohol. It's assimilated slowly," he said. Quoting from Thomas Jefferson, whom Oberhellmann described as a lover of wines, he said, "That country that drinks wine is not drunk." The viticulturist said countries with a high wine consumption have a lesser incidence of alcoholism.

Dick Kleiner

TV favorites can be a matter of music

By Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: We love the show "Mystery," hosted by Vincent Price. How can we find out the name and the composer of the beautiful musical score that is played during "Reilly: Ace Of Spies." — E. L., Springville, Utah.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me the title of the theme number of "Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer" on CBS? — N.A.K., Reading, Pa.

DEAR DICK: I would appreciate any information you have about the theme song played on the TV show, "AfterMASH." — L.L.B., Michigan City, Ind.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me the title for the theme song on "Cheers"? I would like to get a record of it, if possible. — L.G., Schoolcraft, Mich.

You people must have become very theme-music-conscious all of a sudden. Anyhow, from top to bottom: The "Reilly: Ace Of Spies" music was composed by Harry Rabinowitz, who used themes from Shostakovich; the "Mike Hammer" theme is an old Earl Hagen tune called "Harlem Nocturne"; the "AfterMASH" music is new, written for the show by Johnny Mandel; and the "Cheers" theme is called "Where Everybody Knows Your Name," and it was written by Gary Portnoy (he sings it) and Judy Hart Angelo, and is available on record.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me who sings the theme song on "The Dukes of Hazzard"? — H.R.E., Fleetwood, Pa.

What ho! Another theme music question. Waylon Jennings sings the "Dukes" theme, and he wrote it, too.

DEAR DICK: On the TV show, "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," how did they come up with the name Fernwood, Ohio, for the town? I used to live in Fernwood, Ohio. — H.S., Steubenville, Ohio

The studio where "Mary Hartman" was shot is on Fernwood Avenue in Hollywood.

DEAR DICK: I would sincerely like to know whatever happened to Alan Reed, who up until recently was the original voice of the cartoon character Fred Flintstone. — R.S., Hamilton Square, N.J.

I will sincerely tell you that Alan Reed died in 1977.

DEAR DICK: I watched the movie, "Why Me?," and I was wondering how they made it look like she was really hurt bad. How do they do this? And was it a real story? — M.M., Hanover, Pa.

I didn't see the movie, so I'm not sure exactly what you mean by her looking like she was really hurt bad. I presume that was accomplished by makeup; Hollywood makeup men are real wizards and artists. In the case of "Why Me?," Michael Westmore was the makeup man. That was a true story, taken from an autobiographical account written by Leola Mae Harmon.

DEAR DICK: My husband and I were watching a rerun of "Hogan's Heroes," when we got into a disagreement. My husband keeps insisting that Bob Crane, who played Hogan, is dead. I say he's still alive. Who's right? And if he is dead, how did he die? — A. J., Hightstown, N.J.

Listen to your husband — at least this time. Crane died in 1978. He was murdered and the killer has never been found.

DEAR DICK: Did Veronica Hamel, who plays Joyce Davenport on "Hill Street Blues," ever live in Chillicothe, Mo.? — G.R.D., West Plains, Mo.

Not according to information I have. She was born and grew up in Philadelphia; then went to New York to model and study acting; and then came to Los Angeles to work. No Chillicothe.

DEAR DICK: Who played Harlan Adams when "Emerald Point N.A.S." first aired? Now I see Robert Vaughan as Harlan. What happened to the first Harlan? — I.S., East Detroit, Mich.

Patrick O'Neal played the Harlan Adams character in the pilot for "Emerald Point." When it was sold as a series, O'Neal was unavailable, so Vaughan was hired to play the part.

"This is high density farming," Oberhellmann said. Miles of fence wire stretch across posts supporting the Y-shaped vines. Each lot or grape variety is separated from the rest. Walking through the rows of clinging Word origins are the key to the type of wine German grapes produce. Gewurtz means spicy and the reddish-bronze Gewurtztraminer grape produces a more flavorful robust wine. Edelblume is German for noble bouquet and Oberhellmann is using the grape to produce a red wine.

Oberhellmann's acreage has been blessed with iron-rich, sandy soil in an area known for its caliche or lime-based soil which is too alkaline for many plants to grow.

Insiders know why

Interest rise no surprise

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Announcement of the rise in the prime interest rate to 12.5 percent seemed as much a surprise to the Reagan administration as the Russian decision to refrain from Olympic Game competition.

It shouldn't have been. Everyone associated with finance had known that the Federal Reserve decided in March to tighten credit. They knew also that the Federal government was in the midst of major financing, and that business also was seeking more credit.

They knew in addition that the federal funds rate — the rate at which banks lend to each other — has risen to double digits, and they knew the feeling was widespread that the 8.3 percent first-quarter expansion was unsustainable.

They knew the Federal Reserve, and the fears of Paul Volcker, its chairman, who less than three years ago had taken the economy to the brink in order to reduce inflation, no matter what level of interest it took to do so.

And they knew that many economists more conservative than those the president listens to were spreading the word that the Fed shouldn't wait until industrial capacity reached its limit and wages began to rise sharply.

Surprise? Not at all. The stock market, which used to get hysterical over prime rate changes, rose in the face of what otherwise would be considered bad news. It knew.

The matter of surprise, however, is entirely removed from the issue of correctness — that is, over whether the Federal Reserve's policy of restricting the money supply is excessive, and whether its fears are also.

So long as there are economists, that argument never will end.

But, it is obvious to all that the importance of the Fed has grown over the years, and that its decisions can have immediate international rather than just domestic consequences.

The goals of young couples seeking a home could be affected by a tight Federal Reserve policy. So could the Reagan administration's efforts to remain in office. So could efforts to reduce the budget deficit. And, the efforts of Latin countries to repay their loans.

Nobody knows with any certainty where interest rates will go over the next few months, but they know the present direction. Earlier this year the prime rate was at 11 percent, but rose in March, April and May.

Temik. The Business Decision.

For cotton. Peak production, cost control, profit, less - they're part of any business, including a successful cotton farming operation. These days a farmer has to follow good business practices to stay ahead. And one product that keeps him ahead is TEMIK aldicarb pesticide. TEMIK improves the bottom line because it does so much to improve cotton. Controls thrips, plant bugs and mites for 18 solid weeks. Protects developing roots from nematodes. Improves plant vigor. Returns high yields of high quality cotton. And consistently outperforms any other single product. It may seem to cost more per acre. But with all TEMIK aldicarb does, it actually lowers the cost of producing each pound of cotton. And that means a better return, no matter what the market price. For dependable crop protection and top return on investment, cotton growers stay with products they can count on. Top growers know. TEMIK is the Business Decision.

Ann Landers
Surviving loss of child

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I lost my grandson last year and found great comfort in this poem. I hope you will print it for others. It may help them, too.

FOR ALL PARENTS
"I'll lend you for a little time, a child of mine," He said,

"For you to love while he lives, and mourn when he is dead.

It may be six or seven years, or twenty-two or three, But will you, till I call him back, take care of him for me?

He'll bring his charms to gladden you, and shall his stay be brief,

You'll have his lovely memories as solace for your grief.

I cannot promise he will stay, since all from earth return,

But there are lessons taught down here I want this child to learn.

I've looked the wide world over in my search for teachers true

And from the throngs that crowd life's lanes, I have selected you.

Now will you give him all your love, nor think the labor vain,

Nor hate me when I come to call, to take him back again.

I fancied that I heard them say, Dear Lord, They will be done.

For all the joy They child shall bring, the risk of grief we'll run.

We'll shelter him with tenderness, we'll love him while we may;

And for the happiness we've known, will ever grateful stay.

But shall the angels call for him much sooner than we planned,

We'll brave the bitter grief that comes, and try to understand!"—Anonymous, West Palm Beach

DEAR W.P.B.: Thank you for that comforting poem. And now once again, I recommend an organization that has brought solace to countless parents who have lost children. It is Compassionate Friends. The national headquarters address is P.O. Box 1347, Oak Brook, Ill. 60521. In Canada it's The Compassionate Friends, National Center Winnipeg, 685 Williams Ave., Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada R3E0W1.

Only a person who has experienced the trauma of losing a child can know the pain. Compassionate Friends has the ability to heal the hearts of fellow sufferers when all else has failed.

DEAR ANN: Is it possible that a problem in your column could apply to more than one family? Considering the size of the country and the number of papers that carry your advice, it seems plausible.

A letter you published recently was startlingly similar to a messy situation that occurred in our family.

The injured party accused me of writing to you to embarrass her publicly. All hell broke loose. Please come to my rescue. I'm in big trouble.—Innocent In Illinois

DEAR ILL.: It happens all the time. I often change names of cities, number of children and other identifying details to protect the innocent (or the guilty), but invariably the letter describes someone else's problem to a T and there isn't a darned thing I can do about it. Sorry.

TRAVEL
Along with with Joan Coupe

For centuries the Himalayan Mountain kingdom of Tibet was the "forbidden explorers, not just the fabled Shangri-La of unspoiled nature, but an Asian El Dorado, or city of gold. Closed to foreigners out of fear that they would threaten its way of life, Tibet became almost a legend. It was one of those faraway places that, like magnets, drew European adventures on trips that strained and almost surpassed human endurance in quests to breach the last frontiers. After being closed to the outside world for centuries, and all but impossible to reach because of its location high in the Himalayas, Tibet is gradually being opened to foreigners, including small but increasing numbers of Western tourists.

Whether your final destination will be Tibet, Paris or perhaps Disneyland HEREFORD TRAVEL CENTER looks forward to planning it for and with you. As your friend and neighbor, you can be sure we will give you the best advice and service in every phase of travel. We offer travel planning assistance for individuals, couples and groups. Country music show scheduled June 9

"Country Caravan," the 1984 edition of the country music show produced by South Plains College will come to Hereford for a performance on Saturday, June 9, 8:30 p.m. at Whiteface Stadium.

The show is being sponsored again this year by Hereford Lions Club. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students and are available from any Lions Club member.

The Lions will present a half-beef to one lucky adult ticket holder and another half-beef to a student ticket holder. The winners do not have to be present to win.

Country Caravan features 34 current and classic country music hits and gospel numbers in a fast-paced 90-minute show, according to Caravan general director John Hartin. Numbers include the latest country music hits like Janie Fricke's "He's A Heartache," "Let Somebody Else Drive" by John Anderson, "Woke Up In Love" by Exile, and classic standards like Jim Reeves

"He'll Have To Go" and Patsy Cline's "Crazy."

A Nashville Brass style horn section, the Caravan Brass, has been added this year, and they will perform a number with the Caravan Cloggers, in addition to popular tunes like "Tijuana Taxi."

The Caravan Cloggers, the dance troupe who made their debut last year, will be featured on four numbers—an opening clog and square dance to "Sally Goodin," a Mexican fiesta number, "The Magic Trumpet" with the Caravan Brass; a medley of Texas dance tunes, and their finale, a jitterbug to "The South's Gonna Do It Again."

"We have aimed at a really high quality variety show, and I feel that we have the talent to make this the best show ever," said Hartin, who has been a performer in all eight seasons of SPC's country music traveling road shows. The shows, which began in 1977 with "Texas Cradle of Giants," features both faculty and student performers.

Twenty members were present for the club's last meeting until September.

Lone Star Study Club assembles

Members of Lone Star Study Club met recently in the home of Carmen Angel for a luncheon with Evadne Cox, Bibby Morgan and Zoe Williams serving as co-hostesses.

The members were seated at quartet tables covered with white lace clothes and centered with yellow and purple forget-me-nots. Refreshments were served from the dining table covered with a white cloth and decorated with a large arrangement of spring flowers.

Following the luncheon, the business meeting was conducted by President Ruby Stevenson. The club collect was read in unison by members and Ms. Stevenson then thanked the various committees for the work done throughout the year.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Lucile Naylor, secretary, and approved after one correction. Chairperson Grace Tinnin reported the sending of two get-well cards this month. Treasurer Hilda Havens was absent so there was no accurate report on finances given.

The correspondence included a special invitation to the Bay View Study Club tea celebrating its diamond anniversary Sept. 20 in the home of Mrs. Jim Witherspoon.

An invitation was extended to the club to participate in the Town and Country Jubilee Aug. 11.

Jessie Mae Dodson, as leader, gave a program on "Exploring the Wild Flowers of North America." She gave an introductory merrathon of the many wild flowers growing everywhere with many being found in the Panhandle of Texas.

Ms. Dodson showed slides taken on tours in many parts of North American of colorful flowers in the foreground, snow covered mountains, trees and lakes forming the background. The slides of "Buchart Gardens" on Victoria Island, Canada, were perhaps the most impressive by exhibiting flowers of every variety and color as one followed winding walks, bridges across streams and in the shade of towering trees.

Janice Conkwright read the minutes of the previous meeting and gave the treasurer's report. It was announced that a $200 scholarship is to be given to a graduating senior by the 4-H Parent Leaders Association.

"Mothers Day Tribute"

This year I have one more reason to celebrate Mothers Day - Ronald Thurston. It took me a few years to become a mother but I made up for lost time - having four in the past 13 years.

Would like to discuss with you the four reasons I'm pleased to be a mother - Ronald, Allison, Bryan, and Stuart. Our youngest gem, Ronald, will be eight months old this week. A year ago I didn't know what I would do with him - now I don't know what I'd do without him.

It's debateable at this stage of the game whether he and I will spend Mother's Day together. He has spent some time in Arkansas with his granny and his dad. We've found he has cut his first tooth. The other three children miss Ronald after their being apart for almost two weeks.

All are really put out that he cut his first tooth while away from all of us. Bryan asked if he is brushing his tooth. They all have a hard time visualizing only one little pearly white. There are all kinds of questions - mainly when will he cut another one?

We understand he has his first pair of Nike's - a size 4, at that.

Then there's Allison, our only girl. She is so pretty - has such pretty hair but mother has a horrid time fixing. She wants every pair of shoes, jeans, jewelry she sees. At 10 years of age, she is certainly maturing. It's good we have a baby because she certainly isn't a baby anymore.

It seems little girls want to be in every school and extracurricular activity there is. Allison loves to be with people. She is not much on entertaining herself alone.

Bryan, my middle child for so long, has lots going for him. He can be content reading a book and socializes well also. He plays the trumpet in the band and is doing quite well with piano. He seems so appreciative of adults that help him. He is looking forward to a Boy Scout Camp this summer.

Stuart, our oldest, has become a teenager. He feels so grownup because he will be an eighth grader next year. In other words, they're the seniors of junior high. He still likes band-plays his Daddy's trombone.

Stuart had rather be alone any old day. He likes home radios, model airplanes, and flying magazines. He can hardly wait until he's 15.

Then he can take flying lessons and solo on his 16th birthday.

I bet each of you have the same reasons for being a mother. I'd like to share with you.

THE MOST CREATIVE JOB IN THE WORLD

It involves taste, fashion, decorating, recreation, education, transportation, psychology, romance, cuisine designing, literature, medicine, handicraft, art, horticulture, economics, government, community relations, pediatrics, geriatrics, entertainment, maintenance, purchasing, direct mail, law, accounting, religion, energy, and management. ANYONE who can handle all those has to be a somebody special. She is. SHE'S A HOMEMAKER.

The United Technologies Corporation of Hartford, Conn., has called homemaking the most creative job in the world. When the profession of homemaking gets this kind of recognition from a national corporation home economists across the country gain increased respect.

But homemaking doesn't really have a gender. Homemakers, male and female, are beginning to be perceived as masters of dozens of specialty skills and as persons who make substantial economic contributions to the home.

Michael Minton, an attorney specializing in divorce law, has compiled evidence to support his theory that homemaker's duties have an objective economic value.

After consultation with economists, job counselors, employment agencies and others, Minton created a chart listing exactly how homemakers with small children spent their time, how many hours are spent on each function, and how much that time is worth. Minton's breakdown of a homemaker's monetary worth, function by function, is:

- FOOD BUYERS: 3 hours a week at $12.85 per hour.
- NURSE: 1 hour a week at $5.14 per hour.
- TUTOR: 2 hours a week at $6.43 per hour.
- WAITER OR WAITRESS: 2.25 hours a week at $5.14 per hour (including tips)

According to Minton, the services homemakers render at home have just as much economic value to family units as the services marriage partners render in traditional "breadwinner" roles outside the home. Of his chart, Vinton says, "I've already used it in courts of law, and you're going to be seeing it more and more."

Ethiopian comeback

Artist Tekle encounters success

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer
ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Afewerk Tekle, the once-favorite artist of the late Emperor Haile Selassie's court who gave up a 22-room mansion and other lavish trappings, has resurrected his old flamboyant lifestyle now that he has again won official favor.

After the 1974 socialist revolution here, Tekle was hounded by Marxist militants who made telephone threats, searched his rooms and seized his numerous medals and decorations.

The local "kebele," one of the neighborhood councils set up in cities by the new regime, forced him into stints of manual labor, including digging sewage ditches. But in recent weeks, the 51-year-old painter has traded in his modest Fiat sedan for a new Mercedes — he used to have a Jaguar sports car.

He works as an adviser to the Ministry of Culture, and is busy helping with preparations for gala celebrations the regime is hosting next September to mark a decade of rule.

The art of surviving in revolutionary Ethiopia evidently has been mastered by Tekle, and many Ethiopians say this is reflected in his work.

He can paint in the style of the European romantics or in African abstract. Some of his work is clearly at home in the Socialist Realism School which the regime's Soviet allies promote.

The official media under Selassie, who died in 1975 while under house arrest, referred to Tekle as "the imperial artist laureate." Though he received some of the most important state commissions, he said, "life wasn't totally a delicious thing."

Aside from "jealous and envious enemies" in the court, the artist often found the government reluctant to pay for work it ordered.

"They said I was educated at state expense," Tekle said in an interview with The Associated Press.

"As an artist, I knew things were not going right and, intellectually, I knew a change was necessary," he said.

At the height of revolutionary fervor, Tekle said he received midnight calls denouncing his paintings as "bourgeois."

"They told me I did not belong to the working class," recalled Tekle, the son of a hunter who studied art in Britain, France, Italy, Spain and Greece.

The painter's political rehabilitation got off the ground when the Soviets asked him to exhibit in Moscow and Leningrad in 1980. The one-man shows received excellent reviews in the Soviet press, he said.

"When I returned (the Soviet success) opened all doors and ended all criticism as far as I could tell," he said.

"I was asked what I would like to do with the government and I agreed to serve as a cultural adviser — provided I was not involved in a lot of (political education) meetings."

Actor born in New York

Mel Gibson not Aussie after all

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — When Mel Gibson burst upon the movie scene in such Australian-made films as "Mad Max" and "Gallipoli," American audiences figured he came from Down Under. The Aussie accent sounded like the real thing.

But as his fame grew and the interviews came, people learned that Gibson had been born in Peekskill, N.Y. He lived his first 12 years in the United States until his parents and their 10 children moved to Australia.

When he was here last year for the opening of "The Year of Living Dangerously," his accent was unmistakably Australian. Back again for this year's Academy awards, he sounded American.

"That's because I've just made two films as an American," he said. "The muscularity of the mouth becomes a habit that is hard to change."

The two films illustrate Gibson's rise as an international star: "The River," with Sissy Spacek and "Mrs. Soffel," with Diane Keaton.

One warm afternoon at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel, Gibson sat down for an interview. His wife and three young children had left for their Sydney home, and Gibson would join them as soon as he wound up his obligations.

Interviews do not seem to be one of his favorite pastimes. He appears nervous and impatient, though his answers are responsive.

"I want people to see 'The Bounty,' and if interviews will help, I'll do them," he said.

"The Bounty," is Dino De Laurentiis's $25-million version of the mutiny tale that has already been filmed twice — three times if one includes the Australian version with young Errol Flynn.

Gibson is cast as Fletcher Christian, played by Clark Gable in 1935 and Marlon Brando in 1962. Gibson studied with a voice coach to adopt the accent of an English gentleman-sailor of the 1780s.

The new film contains something remarkable during the mutiny itself. Gibson, who has presented an intense but self-controlled image on the screen, suddenly erupts in violent emotion as he rails against the brutal Bligh; played by Anthony Hopkins.

"Yes, that was rather a surprise when I did it," said the 28-year-old actor. "I studied both the Bligh and the Morrison accounts of the mutiny. Both of them were eyewitnesses, and both said that Christian was 'extremely agitated' and 'sweating and crying.'"

Gibson's next film will be made in his adopted land, another "road culture" film similar to the solitary biker he played in "Mad Max" and "The Road Warrior."

EYE CARE UPDATE

Dr. James Simmacher, O.D.
Optometrist

QUESTION: I just got my TV back from the repair shop and it should be working perfectly. In fact, they said it was. But no matter how I fool with the dials the picture isn't as sharp as it should be. Could the problem be with my eyes?

ANSWER: Watching TV for long periods of time can cause eye fatigue. But TV watching is not harmful to the eyes. If your eyes are bothered in any way, an eye examination will show you how they can be helped. To give your eyes a break when watching TV, you should be sitting at least six feet away from the screen. And don't sit in the dark. It's not good for your eyes. If you've done all you can to get a clear picture but still have troubled seeing well, maybe it's time for an eye examination.

HEALTH
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you comment on people who had syphilis during World War II? Many of these people are now in their 50s and 60s.
After the initial treatment of penicillin for two weeks and mainline injections of something else for a year, what then? Are there bacteria or viruses still in the system? Do they settle in the brain and cause you to go crazy? Will you wind up in a mental institution with your friends and family knowing your terrible secret?
The county health nurse takes a blood test to reassure you, but if the test shows positive, is it too late for treatment? I'd sure sleep easier if I knew the answers.
DEAR READER — You've certainly paid a high price for your exposure. You've worried needlessly. You should have been cured if you were treated with penicillin. Those who had early syphilis or received a pre-penicillin treatment often are retreated.
If you should ever have a sign of a positive reaction, you could be treated then.

Between the Covers

By DIANNE PIERSON
Library Director

Two bestselling novels will be featured this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. "The Haj" is by Leon Uris, a master storyteller who believes that we must understand each other if we are to share this planet. He is the author of such landmark novels as "Exodus" and "Trinity."

"The Haj" opens windows to the world of Islam and the Arabs, the British, the Israelis, and all who contend for the Middle East. The village of Tabah had a timeless, Biblical quality. It stood on a knoll in the valley where Joshua beseeched the Lord to make the sun stand still. Little changed from one generation to another.

And then came the Jews, reclaiming a nearby swamp and proving that they could defend themselves in a hostile atmosphere. After that, everything changed forever.

Tabah was ruled by Haj Ibrahim, a man who had mastered the complex ways of his people. He was the Haj, a leader to be feared and respected; a man at once compassionate and merciless, loving and cruel, visionary and blind.

Forced to leave Tabah in the vortex of the struggle for Palestine, his family embarks on an odyssey filled with scenes that sear the mind. The Haj ultimately hides among the caves of Qumran, an area once known to King David and Jesus.

They finally emerge to settle in a refugee camp near Jericho. This becomes a breeding ground for anguish and terrorism. Here the Haj makes a gallant and lonely fight to reverse the tragedy of his people. The Haj is surrounded by vivid characters: his brilliant young son, Ishmael, his daughter, Nada, and the one man the Haj loves and trusts, Gideon Asch, who is, unfortunately, a Jew and the enemy.

"The Haj" is a mature and committed work by a great author.

Also featured this week is "Warday" by Whitley Strieber and James Kenetka. It lasted only 36 minutes and when it was over much of the earth remained untouched. But in those 36 minutes, a world had been destroyed: Seven million Americans died in the immediate blast. Millions more would die of radiation, famine, and disease during the next five years. Millions also lived, strung out across a country that knew it had been hit—but not why, or where, or how.

Five years after Warday, the answers have yet to be found. It is time to take stock. So, five years after the missiles detonated, two survivors set forth on a trek across America. Theirs will be a journey filled with pain and hope.

As they travel amid pockets of resurgence and remnants of destruction, they will hear America speaking: remembering the past, willing the present, longing for the future. "Warday" takes you into a world you couldn't imagine.

Strieber is the author of "The Wolfen" and "The Hunger" and Kunetka is the author of "City of Fire: Los Alamos" and the "Atomic Age, 1943-1945" and "Oppenheimer: The Years of Risk." Though "Warday" is set in 1993, nothing in it is beyond the possible, technologically or politically.

This is what gives the novel its terrifying truth.

Also available this week is "Icefire" by Robert C. Wilson and "Th Man In The Gray Flannel Suit II" by Sloan Wilson.

Program on assertiveness scheduled

Charlotte Amato, M.Ed., caseworker at the Hereford Family Services Center, will present a program entitled "Saying 'no' Without Feeling Guilty" at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Heritage Room of the Deaf Smith County Library.
 The program, which is expected to last approximately one hour and 15 minutes, is free of charge and the public is invited to attend. Child care services will not be provided.
 The presentation will offer suggestions on how people can take a greater control over their life situation.

 Some specific situations in which people find it difficult to speak up for themselves are: being the kind of person who does the most work in the office and gets the least recognition, feeling guilty about anything that goes wrong whether it's their fault or not, always knuckling under to their children's demands and, feeling uncomfortable about expressing an opinion on some subject for fear it might not be well received.

 The principles of assertiveness training can help in these situations and in many others which are encountered each day.
 This program is the third and final in a series being offered by the Hereford Family Services Center this month in observance of May as National Mental Health Month.

 For further information contact Ms. Amato at 364-6111.

'Take Pride Today for a Proud Tomorrow'

"Take Pride Today For A Proud Tomorrow," is the theme Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce officials have chosen for a city beautification campaign now underway.

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce would like to challenge all residents of Herford to join the city-wide efforts to help beautify our community," said Executive Vice President Mike Carr. "The overall goal of the chamber is to clean up specific areas of town and to enhance the many assets that we already have. Some of the areas to receive attention will be the isolated triangles located on Highway 386 and also on Park Avenue."

Carr said several civic clubs have agreed to help out, but the project will take everyone's support. He urged all local businesses to make special efforts to clean and maintain their property.

Carr said the Herford Noon Kiwanis Club will landscape the triangular area at Highway 386 and Miles Street, while the Golden K Kiwanis Club will clean up and landscape a similar patch of land in front of Stanton Junior High School.

The Rotary Club has agreed to re-do the Windmill Park near the Santa Fe Depot. Carr said that area is especially important because tourists notice it as well as local residents. He added they hope to get the windmill working again as well.

In addition to the civic groups joining in the effort is the Herford Satellite Center, which will work throughout the summer chopping weeds along major city streets and both highways.

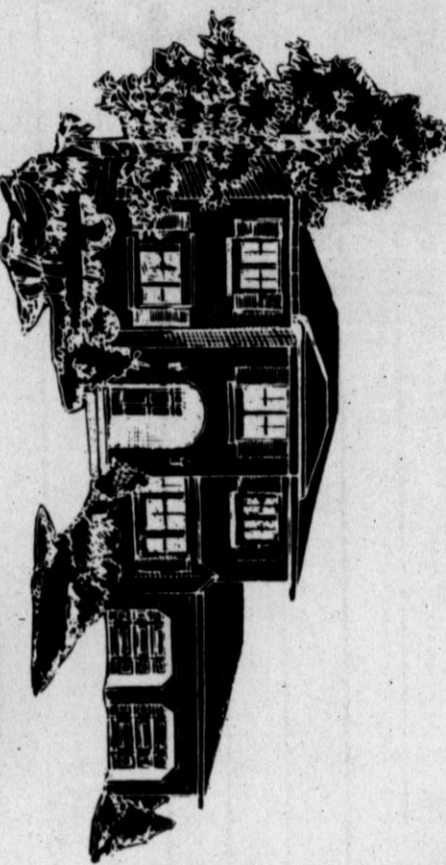

Carr asked other interested groups to contact the Chamber of Commerce for more details.

Stylizing home's exterior examined

Stylizing the exterior of a home can work much like a face lift — rejuvenating both home and homeowner.

Any standard building job can be turned into a home stylization project that transforms an existing house into a distinctive "custom" home for a lot less money than it would cost to buy a new one. And homeowners are virtually tired from all costly and time-consuming exterior maintenance chores.

The investment in home improvements — no matter how minor — should not be taken matter of factly. A typical re-siding job represents the perfect opportunity also to change the exterior look of a home without substantially increasing the project cost.

maintains Eric Hahn, resident siding product manager for Alcan Building Products.

Professional painters are hired by the Japanese to squeeze passengers into cars so the doors can be closed.

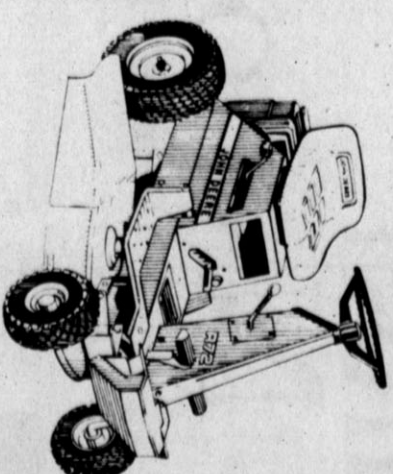

Soft panels should provide some ventilation, however, to prevent excessive moisture buildup in the walls and ceiling," cautions Hahn. "Softies with lanced lower vents can be installed in combination with solid panels to provide proper ventilation."

Another maintenance problem arising from this home care is with rainware. Painted wood gutters can quickly peel and rot from constant exposure to climatic conditions such as rain, snow and humidity.

Aluminum rainware will resist such deterioration. Aluminum rainware also protects sidewalls from roof runoff stains or streaks and helps prevent gardens, shrubs and foundation supports from being washed away.

Pecked and cracked wood window frames can be covered with aluminum window trim for long-lasting protection. And as a finishing touch, aluminum shutters can be added to accentuate.

Asking questions gets good results

Despite current economic conditions, many people today are making decisions concerning the upkeep and maintenance of their homes.

Whether its siding, new gutters and downspouts, new windows, or attic ventilation systems, the decision to make an improvement is just the beginning. Then come decisions concerning the product to use and the contractor to install it.

Another thing to watch for is a statement that allows the distributor to put a lien on your home if the contractor doesn't pay him for the material. Any contractor who asks you to sign this type of document should be investigated further.

And one more thing — federal law now requires that all home improvement contracts have a clause providing a 72-hour "cooling off" period, during which the homeowner can change his mind. This is particularly important to the homeowner who feels he was subjected to high pressure selling techniques.

What should I look for in terms of warranties?

The product warranty on siding varies among manufacturers. The two things to look for are:

- (1) The types of potential problems covered — these should include such things as defects, chipping, peeling, blistering, staining and flaking.
- (2) The length of the warranty. Standard coverage is 25-40 years.

How can I find a good siding contractor?

The best way is through referrals. Ask your neighbors or co-workers if they have had homes sided. Find out if they are satisfied with the product and workmanship. Stand on the sidewalk and look at houses carefully. Ask yourself if it's the quality of work you would want on your house. Find out if the contractor's prices were competitive and if he cleaned up properly after the job was finished.

Is it necessary to get estimates?

Because most home improvements are a major expenditure, it's a good idea to get at least three estimates. After you've talked with all three contractors, you'll have to make a choice based on price, information contained in their presentations and your examination of jobs each has done.

Should I have a signed contract?

If the contractor is highly recommended by someone you trust, and has worked in the area for a number of years, a contract may not be necessary; otherwise, it's best to have one.

The contract should specify which products will be used (the brands, colors, styles), total purchase price, amount of down-payment, terms, payment schedule and types of warranties from the manufacturer and installer. It should also specify that the job will be done in a workmanlike manner, and that the installers will clear away all trash and scraps when the job is completed.

Be wary of contracts that permit the installer to use an equivalent product on your home. You may pay for one brand of siding and get another if you sign this type of contract.

More money spent on remodeling

You get a very lonely feeling sometimes, sitting and talking with a banker. But if you are one of the millions of persons thinking of borrowing some money for remodeling your home this year, one thing is for sure: You are not alone.

You and your neighbors across the country will spend a total of $34 billion on remodeling by year's end, according to Census estimates. But some economists place the figure at closer to $50 billion.

This is the first year in history when money spent for remodeling will total more than money spent for new homes.

That money will go into purchase and installation of 2,184,000 kitchens, 3,125,000 bathrooms, 2.7 million insulation jobs, 1 million room additions or dormers, 17 million storm windows, 12 million doors, 2.7 million roofing jobs, 1.3 million siding jobs, and much, much more.

A STYLIZED EXTERIOR is more than just a pretty face. The real beauty resides with the time and money realized from exterior maintenance freedom.

Wood windows add to energy conservation

Pentry of sunlight, fresh air and outdoor views, sound like attributes in a brochure for summer camp. Add energy conservation, beauty and low maintenance, and they also describe contemporary, well-made windows.

In these days of high fuel costs, choosing cheap windows when building or remodeling can be an expensive mistake.

Ordinary windows are one of the largest potential sources of heat loss in a home. The way to avoid excessive heat loss through windows is to choose those with wood in the sash and frames because wood is a natural insulator.

Add tight, factory-applied weatherstripping and either separate storm sashes or double-pane insulating glass and you have the elements of a well-made window.

Though well-made windows may cost more when you buy them, they are less expensive to own because of the savings in heating and cooling costs.

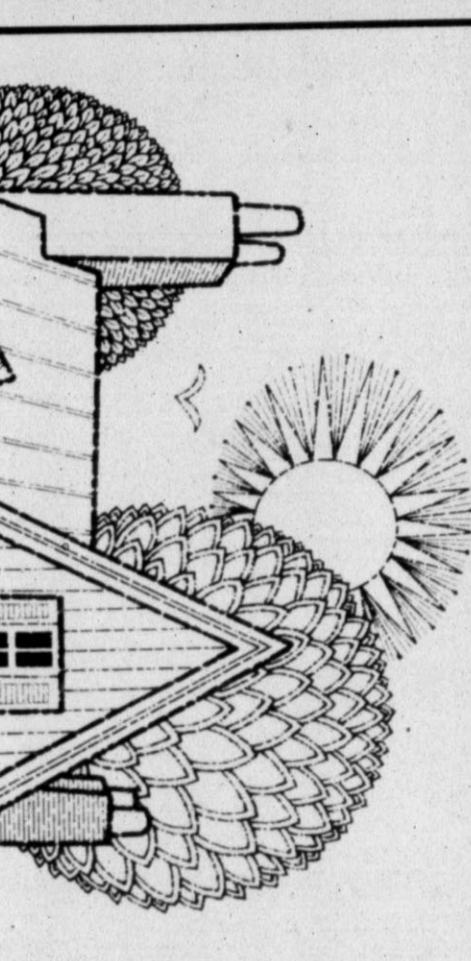

Another way to save on costs is to install the windows yourself. Many window manufacturers provide do-it-yourself instructions.

And, a $60,000 mortgage at the common interest rate of 9 percent only a dozen years ago, meant monthly payments of only $483. An income of about $33,000 per year could support that. It has been growing by that amount each year for the last two decades.

But, at today's interest rate of 17 percent, a $60,000 mortgage will demand monthly payments of $886, and it takes settlers who, by some estimates, account for half of the market.

The estimates are from the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI), a nationwide group that includes contractors, manufacturers, wholesalers, lending institutions and the trade press. It results from the recent merger of the 50-year-old National Remodelers Association and the 26-year-old National Home Improvement Council.

Installation easy to botch

Pitfalls of vinyl floors described

Installing your own vinyl flooring is a good way to save money. But some of the most skilled do-it-yourselfers have botched the job because they did not take these few simple precautions. Here are some tips that will help save you the time and money spent on a job gone wrong.

1. Purchase from a store specializing in vinyl flooring. Because the salespeople may be more knowledgeable about how to advise you. Tell them you want a booklet.
2. Get the recommended adhesives, solvents and other needs. Vinyl bakings, different and condensation. The booklet also advises you about finding a reputable contractor and on financing the cost of new windows or storm sash.
3. A Homeowner's Guide to Choosing Windows is available free by writing to the Aluminum Window Information Bureau, 818 Connecticut Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20006.
4. Lay vinyl in areas where the temperature stays above 50° F. Once the temperature drops, the vinyl will stiffen and crack.
5. Select a dry, and if possible, warm day for this job. The room temperature should be 70° F for 24 hours prior to the installation, and remain at that temperature for 48 hours after the job is done.
6. If you are laying the vinyl directly over cement, there are no all-purpose products for this job.
7. Before you install your new flooring over old vinyl, make sure the new flooring you select can be laid over these surfaces. Heavily embossed and/or cushioned vinyl will probably have to be picked up.
8. People who have ignored this precaution have found that their new vinyl flooring starts to sink, while the embossing from the old flooring starts to surface.
9. Before you purchase your new flooring, a booklet prepared by the makers of Park contains a great deal of useful information which can help you in your selection, and could help to save you money, as well. Just write booklet, P.O. Box 1504, Plainfield, NJ 07061. The booklet is free.

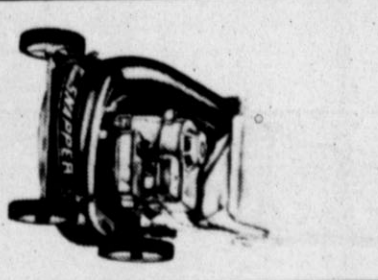

TODAY'S NO-WAX VINYLs are even simpler. Fine wood parquet floors, Park no-wax beauty fresheners will keep them clean and looking as shiny as new...and without any build-up.

Reroofing houses prevents disasters

Reroofing your home an impossible task? Not at all! With planning, patience, the right tools, and some easy-to-follow safety precautions, reroofing your home can be a less expensive, satisfying project for the do-it-yourselfer.

During the rainy season, a badly worn or leaky roof can cause severe structural damage to your house, requiring expensive repairs. Before that happens, the wise homeowner will have the problem well under control.

The first step

First, make a visual inspection, from the ground. Walk around the house, checking for damaged shingles or those that have aged or lack their original luster.

Also check for corroded or obstructed gutters and valleys, loose or rusted flashing, damage or wear along eaves and ridges and signs of water seepage under the eaves. It may help to use binoculars to see those very high or difficult-to-see spots.

Your next step should be to pull or nail down any protruding nails, and nail down any loose shingles. Replace any missing or broken shingles and damaged gutters and drip caps at the eaves.

If you've determined your house needs a new roof, first sweep the area clean of any debris or loose mineral granules. If there are more than two layers of roofing on the roof or if the old roof is in very bad repair, tear off the old shingles to the wood deck, adding new felt, then the shingles.

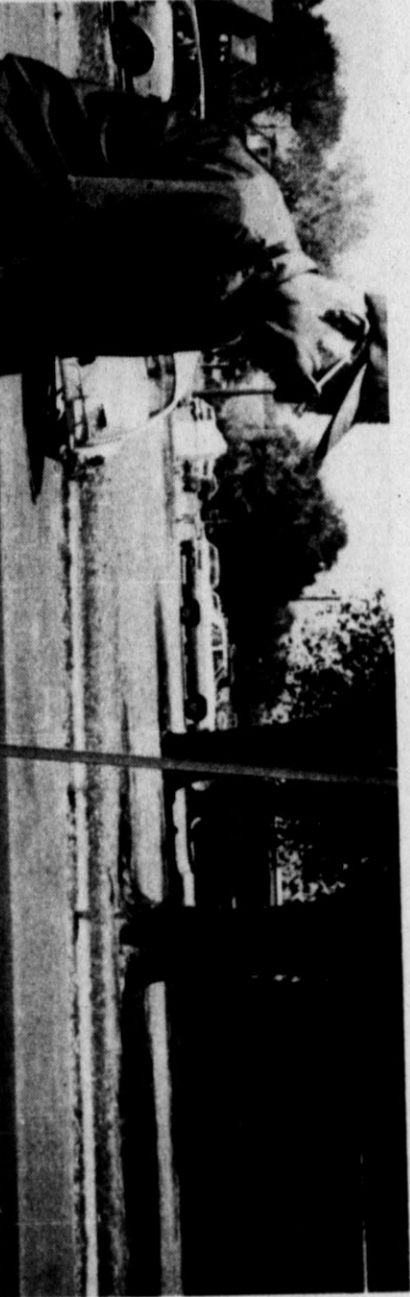

Estimating the amount of new roofing shingles you'll need is quite simple. Asphalt shingles are sold in squares (that is the amount of material necessary to cover a 100 square foot area.) Squares are sold by weight, so 240 pound roofing means the amount of roofing that covers one square weighs 240 pounds.

A simple roof with unbroken planes such as a ranch style house, can be measured along each eave and rake. Then multiply the length times the width to get the number of square feet. Add the various areas and allow an extra 10 percent for waste. Divide the total by 100 to find the total number of squares you'll need.

If your roof planes are broken up by dormers, extensions or other architectural features, check with your local building supply dealer for assistance.

The tools you'll need to reroof your home are those found in most do-it-yourself workshops: broom, carpenter's square, caulking gun, chalkline, chisel and saw, flat shovel, hammer or roofer's hatchet, ladder and scaffolding, putty knife, painting towel or brush, safety goggles, tape ruler and utility knife.

Common sense precautions
Many of the safety precautions you'll take are just common sense... but others might not come to mind so easily. Wear rubber-soled shoes and always work on a com-

Be sure to keep extra tools and shingles well out of the work area when out in use. Remember to warn others to stay away from the grounds around the eaves because shingles or tools could slide off the roof and injure someone.

Be sure to keep extra tools and shingles well out of the work area when out in use. Remember to warn others to stay away from the grounds around the eaves because shingles or tools could slide off the roof and injure someone.

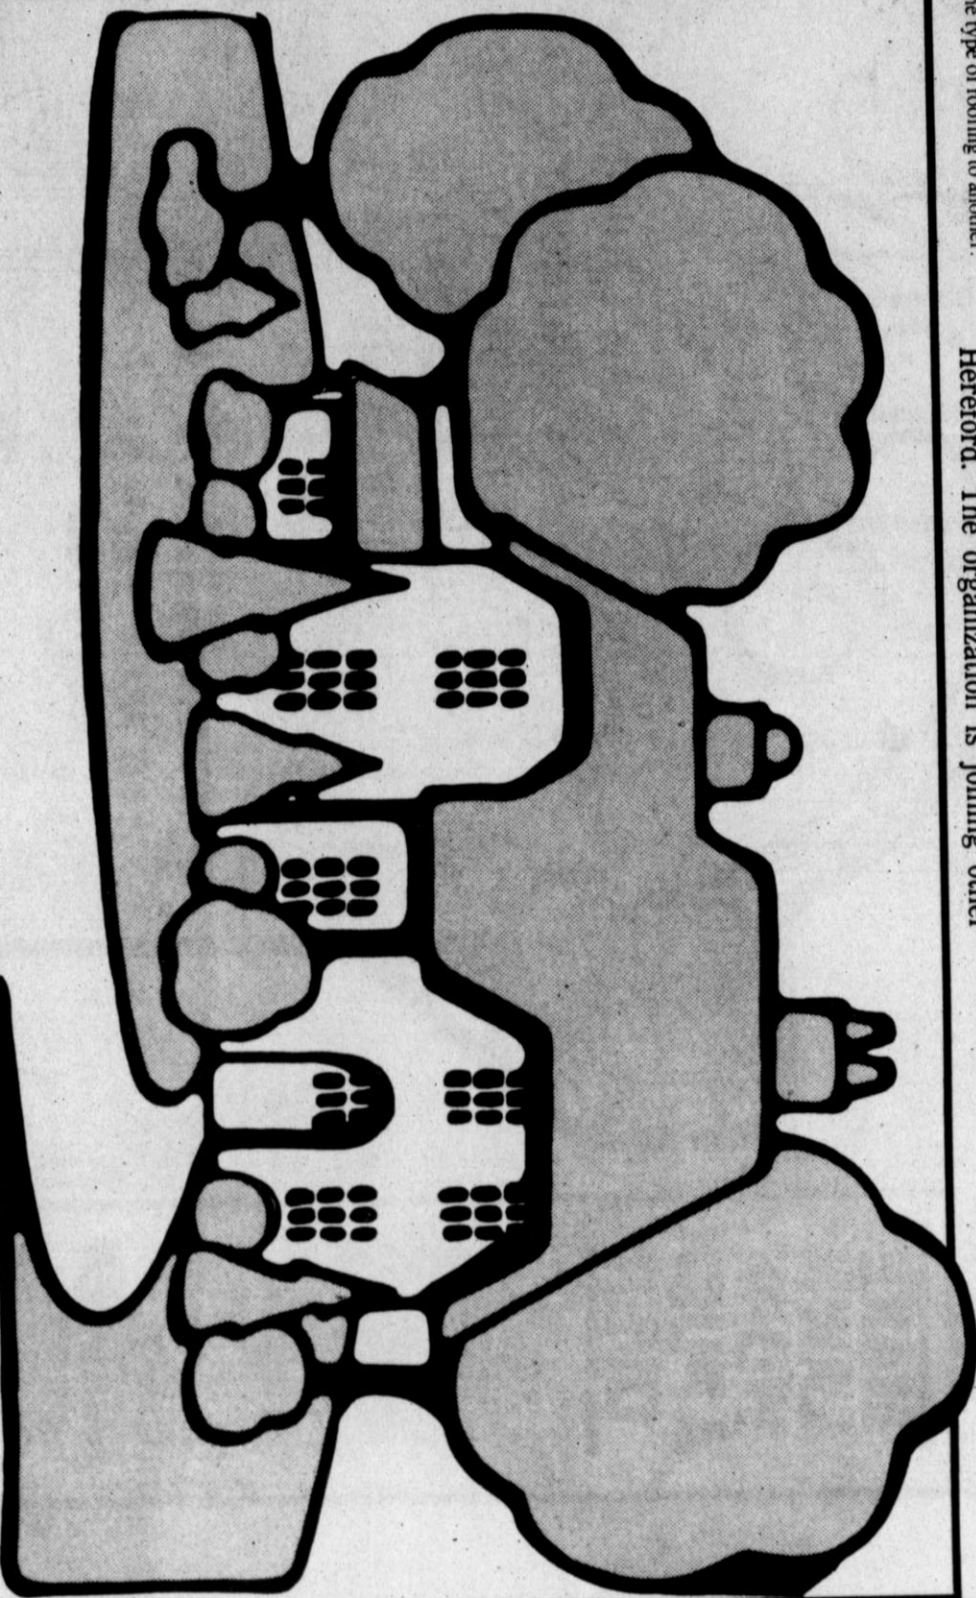

Use an extension ladder which is at least two feet longer than the height of the eaves and make sure it has safety feet which grab and hold firmly. Never use a ladder near power lines, and, don't forget to tie it off at the eaves, and with stake and line at the ground.

Now you're ready to start the hard work. Applying the shingles, nailing them down, adding the flashing, shingling the valleys, hips and ridges and around the chimneys. It's important to follow the manufacturer's application instructions, found on the shingle wrappers, which differ from one type of roofing to another.

Good habits improve dishwasher's performance

The Hereford Brand—Sunday, May 13, 1984—Page 7C

With more than 52 percent of all working age women out in the work force, the demands on a woman's time are greater than ever. As a result, her interest in convenience products cuts across all product categories.

One category that has received increased attention these last few years is the kitchen and the availability of time-saving appliances.

A dishwasher, once considered a luxury item, has moved up on the homemaker's list of necessities and can be found in nearly 45 percent of all American households. It allows time previously spent on kitchen clean up and maintenance to be spent with one's family or friends or in pursuit of a favorite hobby.

Bad habits, however, often defeat the time-saving benefits of a dishwasher. It's important, therefore, for you to occasionally check your everyday habits so you receive the best possible performance from your dishwasher.

If the design of your kitchen allows it, install your dishwasher on an inside wall, as close to the water heater as possible. Water temperature can drop 10 to 20 degrees over a long plumbing run. Be certain that the water coming into your dishwasher is hot enough to do a good job. Hot water is needed to penetrate and break down food soils, particularly fats, as well as to activate your dishwasher detergent. Water temperature during a cycle should be between 140°F and 160°F.

To ensure good results, look for a dishwasher which states for a dishwasher which states incoming water to the correct temperature. KitchenAid is one brand which heats incoming water to 150°F in every full cycle. Because of this special design, it also allows you to reduce the setting on your water heater by 20 degrees and save money on your utility bill.

To utilize the dishwasher's full capacity, always load it according to the manufacturer's instructions. Remember that the water must have access to the surface of an item to scrub it clean. Overloading inhibits good water circulation and drainage, causing poor soil removal, as well as spotting and filming.

Only use detergents specifically formulated for automatic dishwashers. Never use liquid detergent or laundry detergent. They cause an excess of suds which slow down the action of the wash arm and may cause flooding.

Always use fresh, dry detergent. Detergent exposed to moisture can become lumpy and lose its strength. An unopened box of detergent has a shelf life of one year but, once it's been opened, it will only stay fresh for several months. So, never buy more than you'll use during that time.

If you're returning to a vacation home after a long absence, throw out that box of old detergent. You will save both time and money by starting with a fresh box.

The amount of detergent you need to use depends upon the hardness of your water and/or the amount of food soil on dishes. Start with the amount of detergent recommended by the manufacturer.

Generally, hard water and/or heavy food soil require more detergent, with soft water, use less detergent. To determine the hardness of your water, contact your local water company, an area water softening company or your state university extension service.

Whatever the degree of water hardness, always add at least one tablespoon of automatic dishwasher detergent to the dispenser. It contains ingredients that protect china and metals from the corrosive effect of heat and water.

If spotting and filming on glasses and dinnerware is a problem, there are a number of possible causes... and solutions. One cause might be hard water.

Beside using the maximum amount of detergent, condition the final rinse water with a rinse agent. It allows the water to quickly sheet off the surface of your dinnerware and glasses, instead of clinging in droplets to dry as spots. You might also try mixing a packaged water conditioner with your detergent.

Few people realize that low water pressure can also contribute to spotting and filming. (Home water pressure should
