High Interest Rates Obstacle in Home Buying

By CHERI WARD Staff Writer

Prospective homebuyers can expect to pay between 13.5 and 16 percent interest for a loan until elevated interest rates drop, Hreford lending institutions concur. Rates vary from 13.5 percent interest for a Veteran's Administration loan to 16 percent for a conventionally financed loan.

People react in different ways when faced with the inflated rates, said Neil Cooper, Hereford real estate broker.

"Some people are aghast, and some people accept the high rates. There is a realization present," Cooper said.

Cooper's explanation of the correlation between the two double-digit rates relies on the purchase of a home financed by a loan with an interest rate comparable to the current rate of inflation.

"Your interest rate usually follows your inflation rate pretty closely," Cooper said.

If the inflation rate rises, the interest being paid on a home remains the same, but the value of the home increases, so the purchaser of the home is gaining by ownership of the property, said Cooper.

"If a home increases in value, while the owner is paying the same interest rate, you can justify the

Don Lane, executive vice president of Hi-Plains Savings and Loan, said Monday that while Hi-Plains is making fixed-rate mortgage loans now, within a month almost all loans will be made on a variable rate

A variable rate mortgage is usually set up on a thirtyyear basis, said Lane. The rate of interest paid is adjusted every three years based on a national index of interets rates.

By law, the mortgage holder must reduce the interest rate paid if interest rates drop, but a choice of either increasing the rates or leaving them at current levels if the rates rise above the initial interest level exists, said Lane.

"I think lenders will quit making loans at a fixed rate; five years ago we thought ten percent interest made a good loan, and look where we are now," Lane said.

Part of the reason for high interest rates is the "extremely tight" money supply, Lane said.

Two Hereford banks are not even making conventional loans, and Hi-Plains reported that few loan applications have been

Jim Sears, First National Bank president, said that while the bank is not making conventional or federal home loans, there are interim construction loans being made at about 21 percent interest for a four to five month loan.

The three financial businessmen agree that interest rates will probably be going down within six months, to a low of about 13 to 15 percent.

Very few speculative homes (homes without a previously contracted buyer) are being built right now in Hereford because of the high interim interest rates, said Neil Cooper.

Interim is the amount of money a builder borrows to build a home before its

Cooper also said that the number of Hereford homes sold during 1980 is "substantially down."

Part of this may be due, he said, to problems with financing the home loan. There are a number of innovative financing routes available today, Cooper continued.

The most common financing method is owner financing; the owner finances a portion of the home loan by taking a second mortgage on the home, said Cooper.

Other forms of financing include a wrap-around mortgage which allows a home owner to benefit from rising interest rates.

The owner takes a second lien on his property, and the buyer pays the owner for the payments on the lien. The owner retains the difference in interest between the first and second mortgages, said Cooper.

A new loan available with certain companies relies on past business with the company, said Cooper.

If the customer obtains a loan from the company that financed the original loan, a two percent reduction in the interest rate is available.

The graduated payment mortgage is especially designed for a young professional couple that has an assured income increase with the number of years on the job.

Payments for a loan of this type begin at a lower rate and gradually increase to a higher rate after about seven years, said Cooper.

Young people buying their first home are hardest hit by high rates, said Cooper.

The good news, Cooper said, is that the bulk of the monthly installment is tax deductible since it is interest.

Some good news also remains for Hereford residents-land costs here help hold the price tag on a home down.

"You see a lot of high prices for homes in California, but what the people are paying for there is the land, said Cooper.

The scarcity of choice areas jacks the price up to $100,000 for a single lot, he explained.

Air Force SNAFU Forces PRPC To Cancel MX Review

By JIM STEIERT Managing Editor

A foul-up in delivery of 31 copies of a draft environmental impact statement filed by the Air Force concerning deployment of the MX missile system in the Panhandle has forced cancellation of a review of that statement by members of a special panel from the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

Members of the PRPC's MX Missile Task Force were scheduled to begin a review of the implications of deployment of the MX missile system in the Panhandle area this morning in Amarillo.

Col. Ken Van Dillen of the Air Force reported that 31 copies of the EIS were sent by the Air Force for review by the panel but those copies had not arrived in Amarillo for review by the committee this morning. The review committee was to be chaired by West Texas State University President Max Sherman and Deaf Smith County Commissioner Austin Rose was included among the committee members.

The task force was to assign general study areas to specific force members, with each task force member to serve on at least one of three interest areas including physical, human and economic impact. Issues such as soil and water erosion, water table depletion and other matters were to receive particular attention from the task force with the human aspect of the study to include a review of the effects of displacement of small segments of the population in the target and any other psychological affects that go along with increased construction activity and the nearness of defense installations.

Particular concern over the MX missile sytem has been expressed by Panhandle residents over the likelihood that deployment of the missile sytem in the Panhandle would displace valuable farmland.

Kriegshauser Recovering

Kolby Kriegshauser, 15, returned home Sunday from High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo where he underwent major surgery after a hunting accident Dec. 30.

According to the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Kriegshauser, 226 Centre, pellets from a 20-gauge shotgun were removed from his arm and from the lung area. A plate was placed in the right arm, where pellets had broken the main bone.

"He was very fortunate. There is no permanent damage. We just have to wait for the miracle of healing to take place," Mrs. Kriegshauser said. The accident occurred on the Jim Marnell farm, 14 miles from Hereford when Kolby and his cousin, Kerry Walsh, of Portales N.M. were hunting geese. According to the district attorney's office, when Walsh got down on the grond to shoot, his elbow hit the gun causing the gun to discharge and pellets hit Kriegshauser.

Pastor Protests

Draft Registration

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Rev. Carole Carlson, a Denver pastor who says draft registration will bring the nation a step closer to war, is urging young men to sign up as conscientious objectors.

A spokeswoman at Selective Service headquarters in Washignton said that's fine, but such a designation won't do draft registrants any good.

"If it makes them feel any better, they can write 'CO' on their registration cards, as long as it doesn't interfere with the legibility of their information," said Joan Lamb of the Selective Service.

But she emphasized that young men born in 1962 - they turn 19 years old this year - are required to register this week even though they may object on religious or moral grounds.

Failure to register carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Ms. Lamb said the only time a registrant can seek exemption from the draft as a conscientous objector is at the time of pre-induction classification and examination. Without a draft in force, she said, any classification and examination at the time of registration would be a waste of $220 million in tax funds.

But Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, a respected Democratic member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, called Monday for Haig's confirmation.

"For those who are insatiably curious about the Nixon era and Watergate, there are plenty of books they can buy," Nunn said. It was not clear how much fuss would be stirred either by Haig's connection to Watergate or by his career as a four-star Army general who headed the military forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Senate Minority Leader Robert Byrd said he has detected no concerted Democratic campaign to delay or kill the Haig nomination.

Howard H. Baker Jr., the new Senate majority leader, said he expects the various Senate committees will approve all of Reagan's nominees by Jan. 20, Inauguration Day, and that the full Senate will confirm them shortly afterward.

Baker said fast action on Reagan's nominees would permit Congress to go to work on the new president's plan for the economy, which the majority leader said would be worked out in advance with congressional leaders and formally proposed to Congress by early February.

The newly elected Congress' first session Monday was marked by goodhumored ceremony in the Republican-controlled Senate and some bitter partisan quarreling in the House.

On the House side, Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill's reelection as speaker on a party-line vote reflected the continued Democratic control of that chamber. Taking note of the increasingly conservative tone of both Houses, O'Neill said: "Being elected every two years, we are acutely aware of the desires of the people. We intend to adapt to the changed circumstances."

The GOP gained 33 seats in November's election and Republicans hope to take control of the House in 1982. Nonetheless, under

That prompted Rep. W. Henson Moore, R-La., to complain that the Ways and Means Committee was "be ing stacked by the same people who were overwhelmingly repudiated on Nov. 4" and Rep. John Rousselot, R-Calif., to accuse Democrats of choking off debate on the issue of giving Republicans additional seats on the two panels.

"It is a mistake to gag this House and prevent it from fulfilling the promises made in the last election," Rousselot said.

The Ways and Means panel, which the Democrats dominate 23-12, will have jurisdiction over Reagan's plans to propose a tax cut and other economic measures. The Rules Committee, where Democrats prevail 11-5, controls the speed and procedures under which the new president's legislative proposals would be considered in the House.

Despite the squabbling in the House, much of Monday's opening sessions on both sides of Capitol Hill was devoted to good-natured pomp and circumstance.

The Senate galleries were jammed with relatives and supporters of new and old members. Wives, husbands and children of House members joined them on the House floor for swearing-in ceremonies.

Old, new and former members of the Senate shook hands in a mood of general conviviality among members of both political parties.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale, carrying out one of his last official acts before leaving office, swore in 34 new and re-elected senators.

Among those sworn in were Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., the second woman member of the Senate; Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., a former prisoner of war and retired Navy admiral; and John P. East, R-N.C., a polio victim who took the oath in a wheelchair.

According to announcements from city officials, at least one additional annexation is planned. As a result of these actions, the city limits of Port Arthur, either now or soon, will encompass more than seventy square miles of the Gulf of

The announced purpose of these annexations is to place the city in a position to levy ad valorem taxes on offshore oil and gas exploration and production equipment as well as on reserves in the ground. A State of Texas tract now producing some 200 million cubic feet of natural gas per day is included within the annexed area, together with the pipeline system that transports the gas ashore: More than 40 percent of this gas production is taken in kind by the state and sold to United Texas Transmission Company for ultimate resale to customers in Harris Coun-

Since the last legislative session, hearings on this situation have been held both by the Energy Subcommittee of the Senate Natural Resources Committee and by the House Energy Resources Committee. Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and representatives of the producing industry appeared before these committees and called attention to the fact that Port Arthur is not in any osition to furnish normal city services or protection to oil and gas production platforms 10 miles offshore, but apparently simply desires to value of mineral properties which were set aside by the Texas Constitution for the benefit of the Permanent School Fund. "These Port Arthur annexations put the city in a position to levy taxes and set drilling rules and regulations which might adversely affect state oil and gas lessees. Either the companies will have less desire to lease submerged State lands which are subject to annexation by a coastal city or, if they do lease them, they will possibly be willing to pay less bonus and royalty for them,'

Senator Mengden said. Both the School Land Board and the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council (TENRAC) have recently adopted resolutions condemning the Port Arthur action and calling for legislation to correst this abuse.

The last session of the Legislature recognized these concerns by passing Senate Bill 1176 which limits annexation by general-law cities to 5,280 feet Gulfward of the coastline. SB 100 will extend this limitation to home-rule cities, and will go a necessary step further by revising and reforming the city limits of Port Arthur to conform to the one-mile distance. "I am satisfied that authority for cities to annex out to a distance of one mile from the shoreline adequately and responsibly protects their legitimate interests in regulating activities, such as boating and swimming, in waters immediately adjacent to beaches. It has long been the policy of our state that Gulf of Mexico waters and submerged lands be managed to the greatest benefit of all Texans. Under existing law, home-rule coastal cities can conceivaly annex all of the state's Gulf of Mexico submerged lands, or if other home-rule cities stand idle by. Port Arthur can extend its city limits by annexation in increments all the way down the coast to Brownsville. This situation is not in the best interest of all Texans, and the Legislation that I have prefiled is absolutely essential to cure this problem," Senator

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

Since the holidays, Mother has been looking a little peaked. It's nothing you can put your finger on - just a lot of dragging

When I saw her doctor at a social gathering, I mentioned mother to him and he suggested we run a G.S. series on her.

"I've seen women at death's door who hiked three miles in the dark to get dibs on last year's calendar and a box of

The next time I saw Mother, I mentioned I had a pair of cuff links with scorpions on them, a lawn chair that wouldn't open, a drinking glass with a picture of Johnny Bench on it, a jewel box that played "Happy Days Are Here Again," and

Mother's blank face slowly came alive. Her droopy shoulders straightened, her limp hands became clenched and she stood up and announced, "That sounds like the beginning of a garage sale."

From that moment on, she became a blur. She moved the cars from the garage to the street, hung lines for display, carted card tables out of closets and attics, posted signs, ran ads, orchestrated the comings and goings of merchandise

The day of the sale was her finest hour. "No dear, we don't do alterations." "You want that stuffed hamster head or not? I got three waiting." "Ask yourself, if the boots didn't have a hole in them, would you be able to buy them for 50 cents?" "We don't deliver. Who do you think we are, Saks?" "We call that a husband and put him down, he's not for sale. He's just

He said, "If a woman doesn't respond to a garage sale, very frankly, I'm not too optimistic about her."

Ann Landers

Coping with Suicide

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Some friends of mine recently buried their son. He was 16 and committed suicide. Survivors include the parents and a 14-year-old brother.

The lad who took his life was a "good kid" from what appeared to be a stable family. He was involved in a church that has an active and effective youth group.

The parents are relatively young and will have a good many years ahead of them to live with the guilt. The 14-year-old brother is bewildered and stunned. His brother's suicide will undoubtedly have a strong effect on his life.

What can these parents do to help themselves overcome their feelings of grief and failure? My heart aches for this couple. When I see them I want to reach out and press a hand and say something. But I don't know what to say. It is such a tragedy. - Looking On With Sad Eyes In Elgin, Ill.

DEAR SAD: There is little you can say beyond, "We are so sorry." But perhaps you can do something to help them. Suggest that they phone or write to Compassionate Friends. This is an organization founded in Oak Brook, Ill., for parents who have lost their children to death. Like so many self-help groups, they give one another the quality of emotional sup-

People have a tendency to think of gossips as females. I am here to tell you that men have bigger mouths than women, and anyone who doesn't know this should smarten up. My husband works with a group of men. You would not believe the junk these men tell on their wives and girlfriends. No detail is too intimate. If these women knew what was being said about them, they would never show their faces in public.

I'll bet millions of men read your column. I hope you pick my letter as one to print because I would love to have the clatter-traps at my husband's shop see it. Then maybe they will shut up. - An Oregon Woman

DEAR WOMAN: Don't bet the rent, honey. Men have always been bigger gossips than women. (P.S. In my opinion, nothing is more unattractive than a fella with a loose lip.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I work as a waitress in a nice restaurant. My very steady boyfriend comes in for lunch almost every day and sometimes for supper. The question: Should he leave a tip or not?

Actually, I am embarrassed to take his money and have asked him several times not to leave any. He says I am entitled to a tip because I give him great service. Also, he doesn't want to look like a cheapskate in the eyes of the other waitresses or the people he sometimes brings in as guests.

I told him I was writing to Ann Landers, and he said, "She is a sharp apple. I will go with her decision." What is it? - Ella In Augusta

DEAR ELLA: The "sharp apple" says you should accept tips graciously - then squirrel away the money and buy Mr. Wonderful a gift for his birthday or Christmas, whichever comes first.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage - What to Expect," will prepare you for a better or for worse. Court Fights over Census May Affect 67th Legislature

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of stories prepared by the AP for the 67th Texas Legislature that meets Jan. 13. Redistricting of legislative and congressional districts has long been considered one of the session's main tasks. However, court fights over census results may postpone at least part of it. Other stories in the series will discuss the governor's program, public school and college education, state spending, crime, environment and other matters before the lawmakers.

By GARTH JONES

Associated Press Writer AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -This is the year the Texas Legislature is supposed to take the 1980 census figures and re-adjust legislative and congressional districts to fit the changes of the past

It may and it may not, depending on federal courts. The Legislature is ready for the job with a new $430,000 computer system installed just to help lawmakers see what will be in the new the amount of federal monety they got. A U.S. district court judge agreed and ordered the census bureau to adjust figures to allow for "undercounts." The U.S. circuit court appeal will be heard in February.

If the census bureau is allowed to report April 1, as it promised, the 1981 Legislature has the job

Demo Party To Hold Event

Pointing out that Texas is still a Democratic state, State Democratic Executive Committee member Donna Forbes of Claude announced recently that the Texas Democratic Party will hold a gala honoring Texas' Democratic legislative and statewide office-holders. The Fundraising event will be held the same day the Legislature convenes, January 13th.

Preliminary figures released last week indicated that Texas will have 27 congressmen.

Attorney General Mark White filed a court action just before Christmas asking that Texas be allowed to take part in the appeal arguments in the Detroit case. He said if the courts decide in favor of Detroit it will "unduly complicate the reapportionment process in Texas " and deprive the state of the added representation in Congress in 1983 plus fairer representatiion in the state Legislature.

"You can kiss redistricting goodby for 1981" if the U.S. Supreme Court doesn't order publication of census results by April 1, Speaker Bill Clayton said. If census figures arrive too late for the 1981 Legislature to agree on Senate and House districts, state law says it will be done by a board made up of the lieutenant governor, speaker, attorney general, comptroller and land commissioner.

If the census figures are not available until after the 67th Legislature adjourns, the job of redistricting Senate and House seats will be up to the 1983 Legislature.

Congressional redistricting could be handled in a special session, called by Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

Actually, this is not a new situation in Texas. The job of redistricting after the 1970 census was started by the 1971 Legislature but not completed until 1977.

On the basis of preliminary figures released by the census bureau, the state's population is 14.15 million, an increase of 26.4 percent over The Newspaper Bible WHAT? NO FRUIT FOR THE KING?

Thirty-Eight Die In Texas Traffic

By The Associated Press Thirty-eight people were killed on Texas streets and highways during the long New Year's holiday weekend - one more than Department of Public Safety estimates. The grisly 102-hour count ended at midnight Sunday. DPS spokesman Richard

Grimmett said the toll reached 34 by late Sunday, and four others died during the night. Sylvia Zamora Ugolina, 26, was killed at 11:59 p.m. CST as a passenger on a motorcycle that ran off the road on IH

10 in El Paso. Her address was unknown. A four-ear crash Sunday night in Austin County killed Paul James McElroy, 23, of LaGrange and Andrew Jackson Raymond, 26, of Cameron. Grimmett said two cars collided head-on, then glanced off two other vehicles about 9:45 p.m. CST two miles south of Sealey. And Phillip Anthony Holt, 19, of Lockhart, was killed as a passenger when a car ran off U.S. 87 and overturned Sunday evening about 17 miles north of Sterling City in Sterling County.

Grimmett said DPS used a beefed-up patrol Sunday night, pulling troopers from other duties to aid patrol units during the windup of the holiday period.

The DPS had predicted that 37 people would die in Texas traffic over the 41/2-day weekend by midnight Sunday, but 29 had died by Saturday, and five more fatalities were reported by late Sunday afternoon.

Juan B. Sanchez, 27, of Alice was killed in a head-on accident shortly before midnight Saturday a half mile north of Alice on U.S. 281.

Earlier Saturday, David Francis Tuck, 45, of El Paso died when his vehicle ran off the highway in Culberson County.

Don C. Christ, 33, of Lake Charles, La., was killed about 1:15 a.m. Sunday in Chambers County. The DPS said he died at the intersection of Interstate 10 and Farm Road 1724.

Prosecution Said To Be Retaliation

HOUSTON (AP) - Attorneys for inmate David Ruiz say the state's desire to prosecute him on attempted sexual abuse charges is retaliation for his successful court challenge against the Texas prison system.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice was asked Monday to enjoin the state from trying Ruiz in the November 1978 attack on a 16-year-old at the Harris County Rehabilitation Center.

Called to testify at the hearing were Harris County Sheriff Jack Heard and several deputies. Testimony continues today.

Attorneys argued the state wants to prosecute Ruiz, serving a 25-year sentence for robbery, for the assault because he participated in a federal suit protesting living conditions at the Texas prison.

Following a lengthy civil trial, Justice recently issued a 248-page report critical of Texas prisons. The suit was filed by TDC inmates and later joined by the Justice Department.

Ruiz is accused of attempting to sexually abuse another prisoner and threatening him with a knife. Because of his robbery conviction, Ruiz would receive a mandatory life sentence if

"There have been numerous instances of welldocumented misconduct ... All involved conduct far more serious and injurious than the charges against Mr. Ruiz," they argued.

Heard, who worked as TDC assistant director until 1973, told Justice he was not involved in the decision to prosecute Ruiz. He said he took "a hands-off attitude" because of prior association with the

Cowboy Fans Exuberant With Win

DALLAS (AP) - As Monica Stock left Atlanta's Fulton County Stadium with her three friends and coworkers, the Dallas Cowboys trailed the Atlanta Falcons 24-10 in Sunday's National Football League playoff game. It was the start of the fourth quarter, the time when the women always have to

"Don't worry, girls. Cowboys will win by three," Miss Stock told her colleagues. "I just can't figure out where the three points will come from, is all."

In the car, all the way to Atlanta's airport, she kept trying to perk up the spirits of her glum companions, all of whom are dedicated Cowboys fans. After all, they had been the flight attendants on all the Cowboys' road-game charter flights during the season.

They reached the airplane and started putting things in order for the team's arrival. Only Ms. Stock was confident. The others - Jackie

None of their portable radios worked. They had no idea what was happening back at the football field.

They began wondering what they could say to console Danny White, the quarterback whose brooding had shrouded the Mondaynight flight home from Los Angeles, after a 38-14 bombing, in a funereal pall.

They remembered the Braniff executive who met them at the hatch after that LA game and said, "Don't smile - no matter what you do, don't smile, don't laugh or look happy."

Then, just as the game ended, an airlines agent hustled aboard and told them the score. Cowboys by three. And what a party on the way

DePaul Retains Top Spot in Poll

By TOM CANAVAN

Associated Press Writer Football still rules in Alabama, but Cliff Ellis and his University of South Alabama Jaguars are more than just pretenders to the throne.

South Alabama climbed from 17th to No. 15 in The Associated Press college basketball poll Monday as top-ranked DePaul retained the top lot for the fifth consecutive week.

looks unattractive, but also can allow water seepage and cause damage to underlying walls. Replacement is quick, simple and inexpensive. First, use a straightedge to mark the broken tile with an X" from corner to corner. Use a felt-tip pen or grease pencil and mark only to the grout lines. Using these lines and the straightedge as a guide, score the tile with a lass cutter. This will ruin the cutter, so don't use an expensive one. Lightly tap the scored lines in the center with a chisel or punch. This will break the tile. Use a piece of the broken tile for a match-up at the tile store. Before adding new tile, clean the surface of the wall with a sharp putty knife by scraping off old adhesive. "Butter" the back of the new tile with a fairly thin coat of adhesive and place the tile. Wipe in ceramic tile grout with a wet finger. This will properly indent the grout.

"Football is still king in Alabama, but we've created a monster," said Ellis, who coached South Alabama to consecutive appearances in the NCAA tournament the past two seasons. "In the beginning, we were getting maybe 1,500 people to come to our games. Now it's more like 7,000 or 8,000 a game. And our people expect us to win now."

South Alabama hasn't been disappointing its Mobilebased backers. The Jaguars are 10-1 this season, and that includes a nine-point victory over then seventh-ranked Ohio State.

"We started getting national attention after beating Holy Cross by 24 points on the road, and the eyeballs really got bigger after we beat Ohio State," added Ellis, who knows a national ranking has put pressure on South Alabama, a school with an enrollment of about 8,000.

Check your battery terminals for corrosion. Be sure corrosion hasn't crept up under the insulation on your battery cables. Tornado Chaser Predicting Deadly Tornadoes

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Alan Moller doesn't spend his vacation skiing, swimming or sunning on a sandy beach. Instead, for two weeks each spring, he grabs his cameras and chases tornadoes.

The 30-year-old National Weather Service meteorologist claims that stalking the elusive, swirling storms is "relaxing, entertaining," and he doesn't understand "why more peo-. ple don't do it."

"When I was about 4 or 5 years old, growing up in Fort Worth, I wanted desperately to see a tornado," Moller said. "When I wasn't out playing baseball, I was out looking for tornadoes."

But the diminutive, bearded Moller, a self-described 'tornado freak," says there is more to chasing the killer storms than risking life and aimb for a little excitement.

"We go out and try to capture (on film) the exact time the storm forms, its touchdown and dissipation. By goang out and chasing them, I've found that storms which produce tornadoes have definite visual patterns," he said. "I've learned far more out in the field than I ever learned in the classroom."

Heavy rain and hail toward the southwest edge of a thunderstorm signal the possibility of a developing twister, Moller said.

"Usually, there is a flat, dark rain-free cloud base at the area where tornadoes develop in the wall cloud."

The wall cloud, a ragged appendage that hangs beneath the belly of the storm and follows heavy rain, is where air is sucked into the core of the storm, Moller said. It is the intense upward movement of air that can eventually produce a tor-

"Not many storms have that feature," he added. "A wall cloud is only seen with severe, damaging storms. If it's rotating, it will produce a tornado."

Moller, who has been on the trail of twisters Since 1971, said he uses the information gleaned from his many outings to teach "Skywarn" participants - mostly amateur radio operators how to spot tell-tale rotating clouds in severe thunderstorms.

Trained ham radio operators. dubbed 'spotters," are called on by the National Weather Service to go out in the field when bad weather develops and watch the sky for the signs of developing tornadoes that meteorologists cannot detect

Moller, who is in charge of the Skywarn program for northern Texas, said his field studies have helped him make the early warning program in his area "the best in the country."

* WASHINGTON (AP) -With control of the Senate and more clout in the House, Republicans in the new Congress are making it clear they don't plan to put in too many hours. At least not right away.

Even before Congress convened Monday, it had a crowded agenda for 1981 - of recesses.

After meeting for a few days this week, Congress will recess until after Presidentelect Ronald Reagan's inauguration on Jan. 20.

Then, after barely a week's work, comes the year's first big recess: the Feb. 7-15 Lincoln's Birthday break.

After that, there's the Easter recess from April 11-20, a Memorial Day recess from May 23 to June 1 and a Fourth of July break from June 26 to July 6.

That will get Congress ready for its five-week summer recess between July 31 and Sept. 9.

REMEMBER "BYE, BYE BIRDIE," the musical about a teen singing idol who is about to be drafted into the military? The story is being continued two decades later in "Bring Back Birdie," which is about to begin previews on Broadway. Actress-singer Chita Rivera, a star of both the original stage "Birdie" and the new show, recently rubbed noses with composer Charles Strouse (left) and co-producer Lee Guber at a press conference announcing the production. Her co-star will be Donald O'Connor.

Spastic colon not uncommon DEAR DR. LAMB - I had X-rays of my intestine and colon, even a procto, and none of them showed anything. The doctor said I have a spastic colon and spasm of the bowel. I would like to know how long this lasts or if it can be a lifetime thing. I'm only in my middle 30s and a female. My doctor only said it is something I have to live with. Does this lead to cancer or can it

DEAR READER - This is a very common problem in our society. It's related to our eating habits, exercise habits and nervous tension. It's true that you're probably going to have to consider your lifestyle in relationship to this problem as long as you live. The colon is a long, muscular tube and the muscles in that tube can cramp or go into spasm just like the muscles in the calf of your leg can.

Authorities think that one reason for such spasms is the absence of bulk in the diet for some people. When this is the case, some help can be obtained by the addition of bran into the diet, or at least whole cereals and whole wheat bread, while avoiding foods that have no residue such as sugars, sweets and foods made from white flour and corn starch. Increasing the amount of fresh raw vegetables, salads and other foods that contain bulk may also

Coffee, tea and colas are all irritating to people who have a sensitive bowel. Frequently the elimination of these beverages helps. Spices such as garlic may be irritating to some people, too. Developing a regular bowel habit, as explained in The Health Letter number 16-4, Spastic Colon, Irregularity and Constipation, which I am sending you, helps some people. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This issue will give you more detailed information on the kind of bowel program that will help the vast majority of people wbo simply have problems in lifestyle and habits.

There is no indication that spastic colon itself becomes cancer, although there are a group of authorities who feel that the absence of bulk in the diet may be a contributing factor in the development of colon cancer. That's debat-

Some people have the symptoms of spastic colon because they have milk intolerance. They are unable to split the double sugar in milk and that leads to gas and cramping and severe symptoms. If you wish, you might try to find out if this is a factor in your case by eliminating all milk, all milk products and foods that are made with milk from your diet for a short period of time and see how that affects your symp-

Don't do that persistently on your own, however, because you must have some dairy products to provide calcium. If you should have a problem digesting milk sugars, you might need to use a milk substitute or at least calcium supplements.

Milk intolerance will not be evident with X-rays or proctosigmoidoscopic examinations. That is why so many people with this problem were thought to have nothing but an irritable colon for years until the problem of milk intolerance was better understood. POLLY'S POINTERS

Congressman Can Claim Years of Experience

WASHINGTON (AP) -Rep. Bill Patman is one of three new Texas congressmen but he can already claim years of Capitol Hill experience, most of it from long before he ever thought he would be taking the oath of of-

The Democrat from Ganado was born in 1927, just one year before his father. the late Wright Patman, was elected to Congress for the first of his 25 terms.

"It's quite a thrill for me. as you can imagine," the new congressman said Monday after the swearing-in ceremony for the 97th Con-

Patman noted that he grew up watching his father's career and, as a boy, worked as a congressional page. He also worked at other jobs in Washington.

"I was so wrapped up in my father's career that I really didn't contemplate going to Congress myself," the former state senator said. "In fact, I didn't think I'd get into politics."

Rep. Ralph Hall, a Rockwall Democrat, and Rep. Jack Fields, a Republican from Humble, also were sworn in Monday for their first terms.

"It feels good," Hall, a former state senator, said upon assuming his new duties.

committee assignments for new members have not been made yet, but Fields said if he could choose, it would be for a seat on the newly renamed energy and commerce committee.

Fields, who drew strong support from the energy industry during his campaign, estimated that one-half of the residents in his Houston-Gulf Coast district depend directly on the energy industry for their income.

"I would hope that I would have a philosophy that is going to promote the development of energy," he said.

Hall, whose district includes East Texas oil fields, said he expected to be assigned either to the energy and commerce committee or to the public works committee where Roberts sat.

Jr. High Athletic Competition May Be Limited

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A State Board of Education committee is recommending that the power of the University Insterscholastic League governing body for public school athletics in Texas - be diluted and competition among junior high schools be de-emphasized. The Committee for Special Schools and Athletics recommends the UIL governing body be enlarged from nine to 13 members, not including the league's executive director, and that any junior high sport that makes a student miss even part of a class be halted. The committee said interscholastic programs require students to spend 'significant amounts of time during the regular school day in athletic endeavors."

Athletics in grades seven and eight are "nonessential activities" that can be reduced to lift students' grades and save taxpayers money, the committee said.

Many junior high schools in Texas offer extensive athletic programs.

The committee offered this recommendation to the Board of Education, which meets Saturday:

"The junior high level program should emphasize regular physical education and intramural activities. Emphasis on interschool competitive activities should be reduced. No athletic endeavor, including preparation and travel time, should be scheduled in a manner that would result in a student's loss of instructional time during the regular school day."

Athletic Director Bill Farney of the University Interscholastic League said, "Local school districts already can do that themselves. It's up to each district."

"The idea is that the students' grades will pick up, that they will go straight home and do homework and study," said Farney, "but I think - as one who has a doctorate in education - they probably will throw Frisbees. work on cars or do everything

The committee recommended that the current ninemember UIL state executive committee, which includes seven University of Texas professors, UIL Director tion with safeguards." Farney said the special committee's recommendation to make it easier to get a proposal on the UIL's statewide ballot could result in conflicting propositions, such as different dates for the state track meet.

NEW YORK (AP) - You must by now have had your fill of the so-called experts proclaiming their beliefs about (1) the economy and (2) what they think you think about the economy and why you are wrong.

Why not listen to some people who never claim to be experts, and who are always shocking the experts right out of their forecasts because the experts didn't listen to them? To the views of ordinary Americans?

The New York Stock Exchange, which learned respect for ordinary views after unexpectedly losing (and partially regaining) 5 million investors in the early 1970s, put its ear to the phone and listened.

After 1,012 interviews in November it found, for example, that by a 61 percent to 35 percent margin Americans believe their economy is in a crisis, and that more than half say a depression is possi-This point of view, you may note, bespeaks a greater recognition of reality than is sometimes attributed to the American public. A few days ago, for example, the esteemed Arthur Burns, former Federal Reserve chairman, publicly cautioned Presidentelect Reagan against declaring a state of economic emergency, suggesting it would frighten the public.

The next finding also might be viewed as a criticism of political and governmental attitudes toward the public. The finding: Eighty percent of Americans believe the political leadership - Congress and the President have failed to understand and control economic problems.

The realism, and perhaps wisdom, of Americans shows through in another conlcusion reached by the surveyors: The public does not expect any improvement in inflation and unemployment in the next year.

"Approximately 65 percent of Americans believe it will take three years or longer to reduce inflation and unemployment to 5 percent levels, and to balance the budget," the study says.

Though, according to the researchers, your views are represented in their scientific sampling, you might have some reservations about another important finding, regarding public patience, to "Sixty-four percent are willing to give (Reagan) three years or longer to implement changes. Fully 93 percent are willing to give his policies a chance, even if they personally disagree with them."

This attitude has not always been demonstrated. In fact, say some economists, one of the great difficulties facing the nation today is that economic change take longer to achieve than political change. The American public also declares it is willing to sacrifice to solve the economy's problems. Again, it hasn't always been so; the consumptive seventies are testimony to the unwillingness to do so. Still, this is the people speaking, and one lesson to be drawn from the recent election results it is that leaders should listen because, on election day, the people have the strongest views of all.
