

Carter Seeks Mass Resignations

WASHINGTON (AP) - With all of his Cabinet and high-level staff offering to resign, President Carter is expected to decide by Friday where the ax will fall as he works on a new lineup to revive his presidency.

Senior officials were shaken by the move - the latest surprise in Carter's self-declared turning point - which left the government in limbo.

The 34 top officials affected said little in public beyond confirming that they have been asked Tuesday to tender their resignations.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said the officers, made orally and not in writing, would be considered "carefully and expeditiously" by the president.

Cabinet secretaries were led to believe they would hear whether Carter would keep them on "in two or three days," one source said. Another source said the president's decision would come sometime "this week." Both sources asked not to be identified.

One White House official, reflecting the extremely secretive nature of the day's developments in this city that thrives on rumors, said, "Whatever the president's decisions may be, I can assure you he is keeping them to himself."

The number of resignations the president will accept remained unclear, but one White House official said "the president will accept some."

Members of Congress called Tuesday's announcement "strange" and "curious." Republican reaction was the harshest, but several Democrats also questioned the president's actions.

Powell's brief announcement that several high members of the administration had tendered their resignations left unanswered several questions:

What motivated the mass offer? Were the resignations solicited? And by whom, the president or his chief aides as they seek flexibility in restructuring the administration to bolster Carter's re-election odds?

Dodging such questions, one official who asked for anonymity, would say only that the resignations "were offered."

Asked why dozens of top people in government would be moved simultaneously to offer to quit without prodding, the official responded: "We felt it to be an appropriate step to take at this time."

Besides the 12 Cabinet officers, resignation offers came from all presidential assistants and special assistants, including Hamilton Jordan, Carter's de facto, but untitled, chief of staff. When the smoke clears, Jordan is likely to emerge with that title.

Powell, a Georgian like Jordan, could also be given expanded authority.

Speculation on those most likely to leave the Cabinet focused on embattled Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, who has said he would leave before Carter opens his anticipated re-election campaign.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, and Joseph A. Califano Jr., the secretary of health, education and welfare, both of whom have raised the ire of senior Carter aides, were also possible targets.

Reflecting the scope of the resignations, Warren Dunn, spokesman for Housing and Urban Development Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris, said, "My boss and everybody else's boss in Washington resigned today."

One Cabinet member was described by an aide, asking not to be identified by name or department, as "literally shaken" by the prospect that his resignation offer might be accepted.

Among those offering to resign were U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young; Budget Director James McIntyre; Middle East peace negotiator Robert Strauss; and Mary Hoyt, first lady Rosalynn Carter's press secretary.

Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, was not asked for his resignation, a spokesman (See CARTER, Page 2)

Clements: 'Just Planned Media Event'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements said Tuesday President Carter's cabinet was conducting "a planned media event" by offering their resignations.

"The president can terminate or recruit any of them at will. To have a big mass movement of this kind is obviously a planned media event," the Republican said in a statement distributed by his office.

"To me, this is just another indication of a general lack of management skills in running anything as complicated as the executive department of the United States government," said Clements, an outspoken Carter critic. "If these people are inadequate for their jobs, I don't know why it has taken the president 2 1/2 years to make that determination," the governor added.

"It's pretty obvious to the American public, of course, that some of these people never should have been employed in the first place. I expect he will accept some of the resignation offers, keep some of his top appointees on the job - and probably promote some of those who should go," Clements said.

The governor frequently has called the Energy Secretary James Schlesinger's resignation.

Committee Advances Standby Rationing

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congressional energy leaders predict a change mood at Capitol Hill will give President Carter the standby gasoline rationing authority he wants.

Late this week or early next, the full House will take up a bill, approved Tuesday night by its Commerce Committee, that would give the president a variety of energy-conservation powers, including standby gasoline rationing.

The committee's approval marked the first action on any of the measures Carter outlined in his energy-policy addresses earlier this week.

Under the bill, the president could impose rationing during a 20 percent oil shortage - with either chamber of Congress given the right to veto it during a 15-day review period.

He would also have the power to set state-by-state energy-conservation targets and to order motorists to leave their cars home one day a week in states not meeting the specified goals. These steps could be ordered whenever fuel shortages climbed above 10 percent.

Although the House rejected Carter's standby gasoline rationing plan by a bruising 246-159 margin May 10, leaders are extremely optimistic about the new plan - even though it contains powers beyond what was in the rejected bill.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and other key energy legislators predict the rationing plan has enough support to pass.

"The momentum is now going for the president. It's just a matter of seeing if it can be maintained," said Rep. Phil

Sharp, D-Ind. Commerce Committee approval came by voice vote. This is the same panel that deadlocked bitterly on the original Carter proposal and sent it to its floor death without a recommendation of support.

House leaders reintroduced the standby plan as gas lines lengthened and their constituents' tempers shortened. Carter renewed his appeal for rationing authority in his Sunday address to the nation and in a Monday speech in Kansas City, Mo.

On Tuesday, congressional leaders told Carter they would try to put the rationing bill - along with the president's proposed "windfall profits" tax - on his desk before the August recess.

"No one in his right mind wants to impose rationing. But this is a plan that should be in the president's toolbox," said Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas.

County Courthouse To Pay Respects To Attorney Miller

Deaf Smith County Courthouse will be closed from 10:45 a.m. to 1 p.m. Thursday in honor of attorney Bruce Miller, who died early Tuesday morning. Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Thursday at St. Thomas Episcopal Church. The announcement of the courthouse closing was made today by County Judge Glen Nelson.

Miller once served as county attorney. He practiced law in Hereford since 1949.

Proposal Ties Contributions, Rates

Pioneer Accused of Pressuring

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A utility analyst, ACORN lawyer and Plainview city councilman claim Pioneer Natural Gas Co. wants to foster a good corporate image at the ratepayers' expense.

Jack Hopper of Electric Consumers of Texas, Inc., accused the Amarillo company Tuesday of using corporate pressure to gain support for its proposal to make customers pay for gas utilities' advertising and charitable donations.

"Believe me, there's been coercion to smoke people out to get them down here today," Hopper said at a Railroad Commission hearing.

Pioneer's proposed rule would allow gas utilities to charge up to 0.5 percent of their gross receipts from advertising and contributions.

"Advertising by utilities is not a four-letter word," said Tom Stephens, a Pioneer spokesman.

Support for Pioneer's proposal came from hospitals such as Scott and White of Temple; charitable organizations such as United Way; chambers of commerce; private colleges such as Texas Christian and Abilene Christian universities; Entex, Inc.; Plano YMCA; Southern Union Gas Co.; and the Texas Association of Broadcasters.

Paul Plunket III of Houston, representing Entex, said the rule would add only one-half cent a day to the average customer's monthly bill.

He noted the Public Utility Commission allows electric utilities to pass on 0.3 percent of its gross receipts for advertising and donations, which gives them an advantage.

"If we have a story to tell, we need to be able to tell that story on the same basis as electric companies," Plunket said.

"The Railroad Commission should not be influenced by an error committed by the Public Utility Commission," said Plainview Councilman Tom Almon.

He presented a council resolution opposing the proposed rule.

"There's no reason to ape an unpalatable and unpopular rule of the Public Utility Commission," said Hopper.

"We've opposed to any limitation on advertising," said Rush Evans of KTBC-TV, Austin, a spokesman for broadcasters. "The public has a right to know what's happening in the utility field."

Stephen Gardner, representing ACORN - Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now - said shareholders, not ratepayers, should bear the cost of advertising and contributions because such expenditures benefit the company.

With natural gas supplies dwindling, he said, "it is a mistake to allow a company to promote the use of gas."

Hopper's statement about company pressure referred to a letter from Pioneer President K. Bert Watson to those who had received company contributions. The letter asked for support of its proposed (See PIONEER, Page 2)

Gold Price Tops $300

First Time in History

LONDON (AP) - The price of gold topped $300 an ounce for the first time in history today amid uncertainty in the world's financial markets that President Carter will be able to implement his energy policies. The dollar dropped.

Gold, an investor's traditional hedge in times of monetary uncertainty, opened on the London market at $302.25 an ounce. This was an advance of $3.875 from Tuesday's closing rate in London of $298.375, the previous record price.

A month ago an ounce of gold was selling for around $280, and at the start of the year it was $225.20. The metal leaped the $200 hurdle for the first time July 28, 1978.

The dollar declined in New York late Tuesday on uncertainty over the news that Cabinet members of the Carter administration had offered their resignations to allow the president to pick a new team to cope with such pressing problems as the U.S. energy shortage.

The U.S. currency continued its slide on the Tokyo market, but dealers said news of an impending U.S. Cabinet reshuffle had no significant impact on Tokyo trading.

"I guess operators here don't know how to interpret the news and are withholding evaluation at the moment," one Tokyo trader said.

The dollar finished the day in Tokyo at 215.775 Japanese yen, down from 216.80 yen at Tuesday's close.

The dollar was also weaker as trading began on European foreign exchanges, which start their business day about the time Tokyo's ends.

In London the pound was quoted in morning trading at $2.2887 dollars, up from $2.2705 late Tuesday and at its highest level since June 1975.

Big Oil Spill Keeps Distance from Texas

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Ixtoc 1 - Mexico's runaway oil well in the Gulf of Mexico - has produced what may be the world's worst oil spill. But the U.S. Coast Guard says the plumes and streamers of floating crude, though heading northward, are not yet threatening Texas' Gulf Coast.

"There's certainly not any immediate danger. The question of whether there's a future danger is a hard one to answer," said Cmdr. Joel Sipes, who heads the Corpus Christi command center that's monitoring the oil slick and preparing to intercept it if necessary.

"Certainly, we're not talking about waves of oil rolling up on the beaches," he said.

"Early on," said Coast Guard spokesman Richard Griggs, "there was a lot of talk about the threat to the Texas coast and that mushroomed into the misconception that the coast is definitely going to be impacted.

"But right now, we just don't know. They're still trying to determine exactly what the currents are going to do."

The exploratory well has been gushing out of control off the coast of southeast Mexico since June 3, when it blew out with a fiery burst of natural gas.

Officials of Pemex, the Mexican government's oil monopoly, have said the well in Campeche Bay is spewing 30,000 barrels of crude each day.

If the figure is correct, Ixtoc 1 has become the worst oil spill in history, surpassing even the 54.6 million-gallon spill from the Amoco Cadiz, a super-tanker that broke apart off the French coast in March 1978.

The Ixtoc blowout has defied repeated control efforts by oil field troubleshooters and engineers at the scene say the well probably won't be capped until early September, when a pair of relief wells should be completed.

The rusty-brown oil - twisted and driven by winds and currents and split into ribbons and splashes - was still at least 360 miles from the South Texas coast and "we haven't found any evidence that it has come ashore anywhere," Sipes said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

"We're gearing up to keep collecting information and to keep watching it," he said. "We have the time to develop a very meaningful and effective plan."

The Corpus Christi task force, which also includes the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration, Environmental Protection Agency and Texas officials, is using instrument-laden planes and ships to monitor the oil and the prevailing winds and currents to determine when or if the slick might reach American waters.

The Coast Guard cutter "Valiant" was carrying scientists toward the spill's northern boundary today.

Sipes said, "It's hard to say how much oil is floating on the Gulf," since much of the crude evaporates in a day or so and some is broken up by marine microbes or dispersed by the currents. Pemex contends about half the oil spewing from Ixtoc 1 is burned in a continuing fire on the water above the well.

Texas Grain Dealer To Be Arraigned

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) - While Texas grain dealer Robert Johnson prepares to return to Fort Worth for arraignment on fraud charges, his traveling companion is free on bond in his home town here.

Johnson will be returned to Texas from Pocatello, Idaho, Thursday and is scheduled for arraignment on a 17-count federal indictment before U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon Friday.

Johnson is charged with swindling Texas and Oklahoma farmers out of $2 billion worth of wheat. He disappeared 2½ years ago and had eluded an extensive federal search for him until last weekend, when he was arrested in Rexburg, Idaho.

His companion, Irene Mary Olson, 40, surrendered to federal authorities here Tuesday. She was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Gene Richey on charges of harboring a federal fugitive. Richey denied a prosecutor's motion that bond be set at $50,000 and Mrs. Olson was freed Tuesday on $7,500 bond.

The 40-year-old woman appeared at the arraignment with her 11-year-old son, Nathan, and two Wichita Falls attorneys.

Oil Exec Predicts Program's Failure

HOUSTON (AP) - President Carter's energy programs will "freeze and reduce" domestic oil and gas production and cause longer lines at the gasoline pumps, an oil industry spokesman maintains.

"The best way to cure the shortage is to be certain that oil and gas is the most profitable investment anywhere," D.K. Davis, vice president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, told the Men's Club of Houston Tuesday.

But Carter's plan is based on "the fallacious premise that we're out of oil or gas in this country," he said.

"Under the Carter plan being debated, only $8 million would go to the producers for exploration and $40 billion of tax proceeds would go to the government," he said.

The country's energy now consists of 53 percent oil, 21 percent natural gas and 19 percent coal, Davis said, while all others - including hydroelectric, nuclear and geothermal power - make up just 7 percent.

Probe Finds No Company Wrongdoings

WASHINGTON (AP) - A joint investigation by the Energy and Justice departments has found no evidence of any deliberate actions by oil companies to create the current gasoline shortage, an informed administration official says.

But the source, who asked not to be identified, said the investigation's final report may question the judgment of the companies, suggesting they may have been overcautious in trying to make their oil supplies last longer.

The investigation, cited by President Carter in a speech Monday in Kansas City, Mo., has been underway for several months and is near completion, administration sources said.

Several drafts of its findings have been written and shunted back and forth for review by investigators in both departments and a final version may be sent to the White House within the next few days, these sources said.

Carter said in his speech the Justice and Energy departments were assigned to find out whether the current gasoline shortage, which created long lines at gas stations in many areas, involved any "improper activity."

Rep Favors Plan To Elect Councilmen

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Mickey Leland says a planned Aug. 11 referendum on changing the Houston city council's makeup should offer voters a wider choice.

"The bottom line is not - as some press reports have falsely indicated - to merely elect another black to the council, but rather to guarantee truly representative government to all factors of this growing city," Leland said at a news conference Tuesday.

The ballot apparently will list the present system which elects eight city council members at large or a plan for a 14-member council with nine members elected from single-member districts.

The Justice Department has objected to the city's annexation of outlying areas on the grounds it would dilute minority voting strength. Department spokesmen have said a plan mixing single member and at-large districts might make the city council's structure acceptable.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Energy—how to produce more of it—remained the topic of state officials in Austin, as well as at Camp David where President Jimmy Carter was meeting with his staff to draw a new energy policy for America.

Texas Governor Bill Clements fired more criticism at Carter last week while attending a National Governors' Association meeting in Louisville, Kentucky. A governor's panel there rejected a recommendation backed by Clements for a Carter-supported plan for a windfall profits tax on higher-priced oil at 50 percent.

Clements had proposed a 100 percent tax on windfall profits that would not be reinvested in some form of energy development. Clements told the group even the oil companies are against his version because it is too restrictive.

Earlier on "Issues and Answers" television interview, Clements said he favored production of synthetic fuels, including gasohol, but would do all in his power to defeat Carter in 1980.

In The Same Boat

Meanwhile, back home in Texas Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, rapped Clements for his constant criticism of Carter, saying both men share similar energy policies.

"As far as I'm concerned, there's not a bit of difference between the president's ineffectual leadership and Gov. Clements' actions," Ogg said.

Clements' recent statements that fuel would be channeled to the cities and also saying that rural areas would not suffer were "as inadequate and confusing as the president's."

"First, he (Clements) votes a gasohol program for Texas. Then, on national television, he calls for production of alternative energy sources."

Ogg said in reality no solutions have been offered by either of the two leaders.

Hearing on Fuel Shortages

A Senate subcommittee hearing on fuel shortages in Texas suffered a shortage of its own—no oil producers showed up to testify.

The absence of a witness to testify for the oil industry prompted Consumer Affairs subcommittee chairman Sen. Ron Clower of Garland to blast the industry's invited spokesman for "not showing the people of Texas the courtesy to come here and present the oil industry's side of the story."

Clower was referring to Bill Abington, general counsel for Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

Those who did testify included representatives from the U.S. Department of Energy, the governor's office, service station operators, tourist development groups, businessmen, labor, consumer groups, farmers and truckers.

All testified the gasoline shortage is having serious and adverse effects on the state.

English Inevitable

Secretary of State George Strake said Wednesday he would like to see a "serious, honest" debate on bilingual voting and bilingual education in Texas.

The Republican's remarks were made in response to a Federal Election Commission report that said Spanish-speaking Texans are poorly served by state and local election officials. The report's data "are old and on a fairly small sample" and ignored other facts about Texas voting, he said.

Strake said he does not favor immediate repeal of a federal law requiring bilingual ballots; but "if the Mexican people come to the conclusion that they don't want it, I would be in favor of dropping it."

"It seems to me the longer you continue bilingual training the more you're continuing the inevitable. The sooner you get (Mexican-Americans) into an English world, the better it will be for them," Strake said. He stressed he would do all he could to involve all Texans in the political process.

Death Penalty Upheld

Texas Supreme Court rejected convicted murderer David Lee Powell's arguments that the state's execution procedures were illegally adopted and should be overturned.

Youth Improving

Russel Kershen, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Kershen of Canyon, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kershen of Hereford is reportedly improving at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo after suffering burns over his lower body last Friday.

According to a family spokesman, the youth has been undergoing therapy and showing improvement since his injury.

The Canyon youth had gone next door to play with youngsters, who had built a fire, and was burned in a flareup when a youngster apparently poured alcohol on the fire.

Another youngster caught the Kershen youth as he began to run and put out the fire, according to his father.

The youth was burned over one third of his body, primarily on his legs and stomach.

Building Managers Alter Cooling Systems

By SALLY CARPENTER
Associated Press Writer

Some Texas building managers are changing their cooling systems rather than be held liable for tenants' violations of the federal mandate.

Most public buildings surveyed Tuesday were following President Carter's order that thermostats be set at 78 — to a degree.

The First International Building, one of Dallas' newer skyscrapers, has two thermostat systems — one for the interior of the building and one for the perimeter. While the first can be altered only with a key, "a bunch" of tenants have figured out how to lower temperatures in the latter system, said manager Henry B. Dirks III.

"If they change it, that's their violation," he said.

But Bill Nickolas, director of governmental affairs in the Dallas Energy Department office, said he interprets the regulations to mean building owners are ultimately responsible for violations, since they are responsible for certifying that the building is in compliance with the regulations.

The Sheraton-Dallas Hotel is starting to computerize temperature controls and is placing plastic guards over all thermostats in public areas, said Energy Manager Jim Taylor. Now, each thermostat can be raised or lowered by anyone who walks by. Two thermostats in a lobby of the hotel were set at 68 and 70 degrees Tuesday.

Next door at the Southland Life Building, the management was preparing letters alerting tenants to the new regulation and the maximum $10,000 fine for violators.

Since each office has its own thermostat, the building's management will have to rely on the honor system for compliance.

BRUCE L. MILLER

Memorial services for Bruce L. Miller, 66, are to be conducted at 11 a.m. tomorrow in St. Thomas Episcopal Church with the Rev. Charles Threewit, vicar, officiating. Graveside services are to be held in Bellwood Cemetery at Pine Bluff, Ark. Local arrangements are under the direction of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

Mr. Miller, who resided on Harrison Highway, died Tuesday morning in Deaf Smith General Hospital after suffering an apparent heart attack on Friday.

He was an independent practicing lawyer in Hereford since 1949 and was preceded in death by his wife, Katherine, in April of this year.

He is survived by two daughters, Katherine and Pamela Miller, both of Santa Fe, N.M.; a son, Lt. Bruce L. Miller III, stationed at Oak Harbor, Wash. with the U.S. Navy; a brother, James T. Marshall of Edna; a sister, Mattalou Roth of Siloam Springs, Ark.; and two grandchildren.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests memorial donations to St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

LENA L. TOMS

Mrs. Lena L. Toms, 84, of Amarillo died Tuesday. She was a longtime resident of Hereford, moving to Amarillo in 1970.

Graveside services will be conducted tomorrow in Clinton, Okla. with local arrangements under the direction of Schooler-Gordon Funeral Home of Amarillo.

Mrs. Toms was born in Junction. She was a member of Trinity United Methodist Church.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Martha Roberts of Amarillo; a brother, Terry Cowsett of New Braunfels; and five grandchildren.

The family will be at 1616 Madison in Amarillo.

CARLOTA SERDA VALDEZ

Services are pending with Smith & Co. Funeral Home for Carlota Serda Valdez, 66, of 241 Ave. K. She died last night in St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo.

She was born Nov. 4, 1912 in Mexico. She married Sam Valdez Nov. 15, 1932 in Balingier. She was a homemaker and a member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

She is survived by her husband; seven daughters, Omega Proffitt of Glendale, Ariz., Emma Trevizo, Elida Valdez, Gloria Balderaz, Amelia Garcia, all of Hereford, Armandina Sandoval of Midland, and Delia Camarillo of Plainview; three sons, Azael, Sam Jr., and Omero, all of Hereford; five brothers, Manuel Serda of Odessa, Pete Serda of Plainview, Faustino Serda of Fort Worth, Tomas Serda of Fresno Calif. and A.C. Serda of Hereford; two sisters, Mrs. Eleanor Hernandez of Monday; and Mrs. Concepcion Esquivel of Monday; 39 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

said. Nor were any changes said to be contemplated that involve key national security affairs positions, reportedly including the jobs of Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Defense Secretary Harold Brown, and national security assistant Zbigniew Brzezinski.

The resignation offers pushed the dollar down at the close of Tuesday's currency trading in New York.

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Lowell Weiker, R-Conn., said, "I think the president is nuts." Referring to Carter's declaration that the nation is facing a "crisis of confidence," Weiker said the resignation offers were "just a continuation of the scapegoat operation. It is the president, not his Cabinet, that the American people have lost confidence in."

But Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., said the president was "trying to give the impression that ... policies are going to change, that personnel are going to change."

The announcement came on the heels of a new Associated Press - NBC News poll showing that Americans agree with Carter's assessment if a nation-wide crisis of confidence but that most of the public is not yet ready to say Carter is a strong leader in the face of energy shortages, continued inflation and national malaise.

The offers to resign were engineered in a series of meetings and telephone calls on the president's first White House work day after 12 days of seclusion at Camp David, Md., and Monday's speaking trip to Kansas City, Mo., and Detroit.

The shock waves seemed to hit each department, with not only Cabinet members but their aides doubting their futures.

rule and stated, "Should the existing policy be followed, a very strict review of the existing levels of contributions is likely."

"It is ... reprehensible for Pioneer to make such a threat," Hopper said.

"We all feel very warm about this rule," said R.L. Rummel of Austin, a spokesman for Texas United Community Services, Inc.

Frank Basham of Hillsboro, a witness for Electric Consumers, said, "What an outrageous proposal to make at this time, when gas rates have tripled during the last five years and will probably triple again during the next five years."

"Why shouldn't the stockholders who have gotten rich on gas utility stocks pay for any advertising or contributions if they want their management to spend the money? Ratepayers don't want the money spent and will be furious if they are required to pay for it."

"The Railroad Commission ought to think twice, or thrice, or 20 times before it allows this utility rip-off to occur."

Hearing examiner Tom Hill took the testimony under advisement.

College Funding Probed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - State colleges and private foundations routinely handle funds between themselves in a method that some would consider "laundering money," says a legislator involved in a probe of North Texas State University.

"Almost every university in the state has a private foundation," said Rep. Lee Jackson, R-Dallas. "Our concern is if it serves the public and if it leads to opportunities for abuses of the kind we've discovered."

Jackson and other members of the House General Investigating Committee turned over audit reports and other documents Tuesday to prosecutors from Denton and Austin.

At issue is whether North Texas State officials and officers of the North Texas State University Educational Foundation Inc. violated state law by depositing checks made out to the college in foundation accounts.

C.C. "Jitter" Nolen resigned as university president April 12 after mounting publicity over alleged misapplication of university funds. Hours after stepping down, Nolen and three others testified at a closed investigating committee hearing. One of the other witnesses, James Reid, recently announced his resignation effective Aug. 1 from his post as foundation executive director.

Two state audit report cite numerous instances of university donations being diverted to the foundation. State funds also were used to pay the salary of the foundation executive director. Private foundations have been used as "bankers" by state colleges that need more money that the Legislature gives them, Jackson said. The foundations raise funds by contributions and can spend them almost without restriction, in contrast to their beneficiaries, he added.

The private entities often supplement state salaries of top university administrators.

"This has been for years considered standard operating procedure," Jackson said. "What we've considered to be laundering the money was standard operating procedure."

Committee Chairman Richard Slack, D-Pecos, said the panel will give the district attorneys a chance to review progress in the case before pursuing the matter. The committee will meet again Aug. 6 and Denton County District Attorney Jerry Cobb said he will know by then whether criminal charges will be filed.

Slack said regardless of what Cobb and Austin prosecutors decide, the committee probably will suggest legislative remedies and administrative changes at the university.

If criminal violations occurred, the Denton or Austin prosecutors would handle the case depending on where the activity happened, Cobb said.

The committee also agreed to ask Attorney General Mark White to file civil suit if necessary to recover any state funds improperly spent for private use.

Nicaragua Reversing?

WASHINGTON (AP) - The new leadership in Nicaragua is moderate for the most part, wants to hold free elections and is anxious to have relationships with the United States.

These are the tentative and admittedly hopeful conclusions of the Carter administration as it assesses perhaps the most significant political upheaval in Central America during its more than 150 years of independent history.

The administration is saying little publicly about the demise of the Somoza dynasty, but it seems to be persuaded that democracy will be a given a chance in Nicaragua.

It has not, however, ruled out the possibility of an "extremist solution" if the new, inexperienced leadership is incapable of effective government.

The Sandinista guerrilla movement has within its ranks pro-Cuban elements whose activities will be closely monitored here.

The rebel grouping was Marxist-Leninist at the start, but it has since split into three factions and now represents a broad range of political thought. Fidel Castro's movement in Cuba, on the other hand, was not avowedly Marxist during the struggle against the Batista dictatorship but moved in that direction after taking power.

For now, the Sandinista-appointed provisional junta has demonstrated its moderate tendencies in several ways:

— It has agreed to move toward what may be the first truly free elections in Nicaragua history.

— It has appointed a cabinet representing a broad spectrum of political opinion, including some whose views are described here as "remarkably conservative."

— It has agreed to forge a new national army composed of Sandinista guerrillas as well as younger elements of the National Guard, which has been President Anastasio Somoza's main pillar of support.

— It has indicated that U.S. business interests in Nicaragua, which amount to several hundred million dollars, will be allowed to continue their operations.

Robert Florez of Fort Worth will be among 40 artists to be participating in the Western Heritage Art Show and Sale here Aug. 16-18. The show will begin on the 16th with an invitational preview in the lower level of the library, which is temporarily serving as the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage. The general public will have the opportunity to view the collection on the 17 and 18.

A native of Tennessee Mrs. Florez specializes in painting animals and nature, calling on her experience in hunting, fishing, exploring and other study for accuracy. She, her husband and artist Mark Fields have joined efforts to organize the Texas Art Classic.

The art show will be staged in conjunction with the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame weekend here. Events to be encompassed are the professional All Girl Rodeo in Hereford Riders Club Arena, a parade, barbecue, old fiddlers contest, open calf roping, dances and the induction of seven Cowgirl Hall of Fame honorees.

In addition to Mrs. Florez, artists who have agreed to exhibit sculpture and paintings during the art show here are: Joyce Hickman, Hereford; Pam Trotter, Hereford; Anna Lou Andersen, Newcastle, Wyo.; Gwendolyn H. Branstetter, Refugio; Eva Caprani, Taos, N.M.; LaVerne Carruthers, Notchkiss, Colo.; Marilyn Castleberry, Dalhart; Vicky Clark, Seminole; Carol Cox, Lakewood, Colo.; Juan Dell, Santa Fe, N.M.; Anna Dwyer, Fairfield, Conn.; Sherry Evans, Ritzville, Wash.; Charleen Hare, Gordon, Neb.; Pamela Harr, Bozeman, Mont.; Diana Hendrix, Midlothian; SI Humphrey, Silver City, N.M.; and Margie Jackson, Concho Valley, Ariz.

Others to be showing their works are Linda Johnson of Winsboro; Linda Lima, Phoenix, Ariz.; Jean Marlow, Amarillo; Mary Ann McConchie, Plainview; Vacie McKaskle, Seminole; Margaret O'Brien, Los Alamos, N.M.; Mabel Palmer, Sebastopol, Calif.; Evelyn Ragland, Running Springs, Calif.; M. Loys Raymer, Dimmitt; Lois E. Rumohr, Aracadia, Calif.; Mary Selfridge, Amarillo; Ann Sprague, San Mateo, Calif.; Carolyn Stallwitz, Dumas; Pat Staar, Capistrano Beach, Calif.; Mary Thomson, Play del Rey, Calif.; Leona L. Tidd, Wickenburg, Ariz.; Barbara Vaupel, Henryetta, Okla.; Shirley Wadzeck, Wichita Falls; Joy Weddle, Parker Dam, Calif.; and Bettie Haller, Amarillo.

Program Continues

After six weeks of the Library's Summer Reading Club, "In Search of Texas Treasures," approximately 630 children have joined the program and read books for prizes. Checking out a few books with the help of left Lurline Cawthon, librarian; and Debbie Fielder, student librarian is Shelly Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buddie Edwards of 244 Elm. Shelly is 11 years of age. The Reading Club is still open for new members. [Brand photo by Denise Smith]

Host Families Sought For French Students

Local participants are being sought by the North Atlantic Exchange League, a non-profit program which provides host families for French students in America and American students in France.

The founders of NACEL have had more than 20 years of experience arranging student exchanges between France and English-speaking countries. The purpose of the program is to provide cultural enrichment for both the students and the host families.

Applicants ages 13-19 from all regions of France are selected by teachers of English. The French parents supply transportation, insurance and pocket money. The students arrive on chartered planes, accompanied by one chaperone for every 30 students.

This year, nearly 3,000

French students will come to America for the Sumer Homestay Program and will be placed by NACEL coordinators. Many coordinators become interested in this program as a direct result of hosting. Others are French teachers who appreciate the cultural and educational benefits of the homestay program.

All American families are eligible to host a student. It is not necessary that the family understand French. Families without teenagers at home can also host a student. Americans can volunteer to host one of the teachers from France who accompany the students as chaperones.

Any family in the Canyon-Hereford-Dimmitt triangle area interested in hosting a French high school student from Aug. 6 - Sept. 3 is asked to contact Frank Kyle, 513 Quincy Place N.E., Albuquerque, N.M. 87108; or call collect (505) 256-3425.

Ann Landers

Bigoted Friends

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son, Bill, is getting married in a few months. We plan to entertain him and his bride in our home when they return from their honeymoon.

Problem: Bill wants to invite his entire office staff. Among them are four blacks. We live in a small Southern town and some of our friends would not be comfortable in the presence of people of African descent.

I'm sorry, I can't change the way they feel, nor would I try. Bill stubbornly refuses to exclude the black members of his staff. He says those who don't like the idea can stay away. I know for a fact his grandparents would refuse to accept any invitation if they knew in advance blacks would be present.

I feel it would be rude and insulting to invite the hometown folks knowing how they feel about mixing socially with black people. Even though they are bigoted, they are relatives, friends and good neighbors. We love them and wouldn't offend them for the world.

What do you say, Ann? We are caught in the middle. -- H.L.J.

DEAR H.L.J.: I say, if you are having a party for your son and he wants to include his black co-workers, you should invite them.

If those bigoted friends and relatives of yours don't want to come, let them stay home. The loss will be theirs.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just found out for the umpteenth time that my dear husband has volunteered my services without asking me. Last night he told some friends we would be very happy to keep their son for ten days while they went on a vacation.

I work at a part-time job and have no household help, only a sitter to take care of our pre-school children. Our two youngsters are very lively, to say the least. It takes every bit of the girl's time and energy to manage them. (They are even a handful for me.) A third child would be a real problem even if the kid was beautifully behaved -- which unfortunately, he is not.

My husband repeatedly offers my services to take people shopping, drive them home from the hospital, transport their relatives to the airport, meet planes, and so on. When I become upset and say I don't want to do it, he tells me I can't refuse after he has said I would, because it would embarrass him. He calls me "ungracious" and claims I don't know how to be a giver.

Please, Ann, what can I do about this situation? I'm signing my real name but I hope you won't print it. Just label me -- Trapped Again

DEAR T.A.: It looks as if you're going to have to be "ungracious" a few times before your husband finally gets the message. But get it he will, if you make up your mind not to cave in.

Tell your husband you are no longer going to allow him to put on the spot. Then phone those friends and tell them, "So sorry, we aren't able to keep your son when you go away because I'm working part-time and our own children are more than the sitter can handle."

Inform Mr. Huge Heart that you have cancelled his commitment. And make it clear that if he makes any future commitments for you, he will have to call the people himself and rescind the offer. Don't -- repeat, DON'T phone for him. It's the only way he'll learn.

Class Reunion Slated July 28

The silver anniversary of the graduating Hereford High School class of 1954 will be observed here with a reunion July 28 at the Community Center.

Reunion festivities will begin on the morning of the 28th with a coffee from 9-11:30 a.m. A buffet style dinner will be served at 8 p.m. that evening. Cost per couple will be $7.50. Reunion chairmen stress that reservations to attend the reunion must be placed no later than July 20.

In order to make reservations or for further information, alumni can contact LaJean Henry at The Pants Cafe or Marion Krieg at home in the afternoons.

COLLEGE STATION - Make garment design and fabric "work together" when you're homesewing today's fashions, says Becky Culp, a clothing specialist.

Ms. Culp is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Spend time planning to coordinate both design and fabric with your own needs, she advises.

Start by considering current activities, wardrobe voids and current fashion trends.

Don't overlook that home stockpile of already-purchased patterns and fabrics for possibilities.

DESIGNS, COLORS Consider colors and designs that are most becoming.

For those that are drastically different than anything worn before, try on similar ones in ready-to-wear first to decide if it's for you. Spend some time browsing through all available pattern catalogs.

Compare designs, time involved in making the garment and skills needed.

Make mental or written notes.

FABRICS

Explore available fabrics. Decide which ones are compatible with the general mood and characteristics of the garment you have in mind.

Pay close attention to color, texture, print and required care each will need.

Women lose on benefits

Working women get gypped under the Social Security system today.

The problem for Social Security Commissioner Stanford G. Ross is how to make men understand this fact.

Look at average benefit levels last January: For women the average monthly benefit was $230, for men $339.

You can argue that men paid more taxes on wages than working women, so they should get more out of the system. But that's saying working women's unpaid work in the home is worthless.

In the early 1930s, when the Social Security system was designed, that's the way the designers thought. The typical couple was considered to consist of a fulltime, lifetime male worker and a fulltime, lifetime unpaid homemaker. The wife was considered dependent, just like the couple's children.

Dependency was the key to the system. After all, only 17 percent of the nation's married women were in the labor force 40 years ago. Today, half the nation's married women work for pay.

But we're still stuck with a Social Security system that assumes the male worker is the family's "primary" earner.

Take two couples whose average monthly earnings are each $1,000.

Couple No. 1: The husband's average earnings are $1,000, the wife's zero. The husband is entitled to a retirement benefit of $432 a month; his wife, the dependent, is entitled to half her husband's benefit, $216. Total monthly retirement benefit: $648.

Couple No. 2: The husband's average earnings are $667, his wife's $333. Their $1,000 total is the same as Couple No. 1's. The husband is entitled to a monthly retirement benefit of $325, his wife, not a dependent, to $219. Their total: $544 a month, or $104 less than Couple No. 1 gets.

And Couple No. 2 paid more in Social Security taxes than Couple No. 1.

How to change the law to make benefits fairer?

A logical way, adopted years ago in Scandinavia and Canada, is to split earnings credits. That way each partner in a marriage is credited with half the couple's total earnings. Couples No. 1 and No. 2 would get the same benefit on retirement.

Note that in the case of Couple No. 1 the male spouse would be entitled to only half as much as he is now; if his wife were to die before he did, he'd be in financial trouble (unless he could inherit his wife's earnings credits).

But the likelihood is that his wife would live longer. Earnings sharing, among couples, also would recognize the value of the homemaker's unpaid contribution.

There is another element in the picture. Forty years ago there was one divorce for every six U.S. marriages. Today there's one divorce for every two marriages. Generally, the wife loses out on Social Security benefits at time of divorce. Splitting earnings credits would be fairer to the divorced wife, too.

Ross believes it's important that we redress the discrimination against women under the present system. He and his aides recently held a day-long skull session with 50 opinion leaders on the subject, and now he's thinking of mounting "town meetings" to expose Americans to them more fully.

The Social Security Advisory Council, headed by former HEW Assistant Secretary Henry Aaron, is wrestling with the same problems and is to report to Ross in October. Later this summer the House Ways and Means Committee's social security subcommittee, run by Rep. J.J. (Jake) Pickle, D-Tex., will focus on them, too.

You can influence these men. Write one, or all, of them and speak your mind. Their addresses: Social Security Commissioner Stanford G. THOUGHTS

Figuratively, a wet blanket discourages or dampens the pleasure of others. In Old Testament days it was literally fatal.

"And it came to pass...that he took a thick cloth (a blanket) and dipped it in water, and spread it on his (King Ben-hadad) face, so that he died." — II Kings 7:15

Tuesday

The "Murderers Bible" of 1801 is so-called because of a printer's error which made "murmurers" read "murderers."

"These are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own lusts..." — Jude 1:16

Wednesday

The first pair of kid gloves were made and used to deceive a husband and father.

"And she (Rebekah) put the skins of the kids of the goats upon his hands..." — Gen. 27:16

Thursday

Under the Mosaic law of inheritance, disobedience to parents carried a death penalty.

"If a man have a stubborn and rebellious son, who will not obey the voice of his father...then shall his father and mother...bring him out unto the elders of the city...and all the men of his city shall stone him with stones, that he die..." — Deut. 21:18-21

Friday

The first public relations man was Aaron. He was spokesman for his brother, Moses, who was "Slow of speech, and of a slow tongue."

"...is not Aaron...thy brother? I know that he can speak well...and he shall be thy spokesman unto the people..." — Exod. 4:14-16

Saturday

The Old Testament slaveowner who knocked out the teeth of a slave according to "the regulations of service" had to free him.

"And if he smite out his manservant's tooth, or his maidservant's tooth; he shall let him go free for his tooth's sake..." — Exod. 21:27

Hereford Stars Kick Muleshoe, 12-0

By MARC HERRING
Brand Sports Editor
PLAINVIEW - The unbeaten team continued for the 13 year old all-stars yesterday as they walloped Muleshoe 12-0, behind the two-hit pitching of Dale Holigun.

Muleshoe never presented a threat to the Hereford stars as they could only manage to get two runners to third base in the 10 run rule shortened contest.

Meanwhile Hereford pounded out 10 hits, six of those in the first inning as they pushed across seven runs. Muleshoe's two hits came in the first and second frames and from then on the only baserunners were because of walks.

Holigun gave up four free trips in the five innings and struck out six. Along with the sterling pitching performance, defensive play by the Herd infield kept the Muleshoe stars at bay.

In the first inning Jeff Streun led off with an infield single, stole second and scored on a single to left field by Mickey Stengle. Before the inning was completed Streun had reached first on a single again and was thrown out trying to steal third.

Hereford did not have a batter strikeout in the contest. They put two men on bases via walks by the Muleshoe hurler and also reached base six times because of defensive errors.

After seven runs in the initial inning, Hereford came back in the second to score one more, after Stengle reached second on a miscue by the left fielder. Two passed balls by the Muleshoe catcher netted the run, as fly outs by the team stopped the Herd scoring at one.

Three more runs in the fourth gave Hereford the needed runs to win the contest in five innings as two errors, a base on balls and a single pushed across the tallies.

A final run in the fifth finished the scoring for the Herd. A single by substitute Charles White, an error and a fielder's choice gave Hereford the final run.

For the game, Ronny Collier led the team with two hits in three at bats and one run scored. Streun and Holigun also punched out two hits. The only extra base hit in the game was by Bobby Snyder as he poked a double down the right field line in the first inning to tally one of the team's seven runs.

Today at 4 p.m. Hereford goes against Graham, who had received a bye in the first round of play in the double elimination tournament.

Hereford will use the services of Robert Martinez on the mound according to manager Gene Combs. Combs was happy with the way the team played against Muleshoe, but he feels that the team will have to hit the balls much better as the tournament progresses.

"We hit the ball, but not with the authority that we did in Pampa," Combs said. "But as long as we are hitting and scoring we can't complain too much.

"Also we did not have an error in the game and a team is going to win if they don't commit any mistakes and keeps the other team from scoring."

In the other contests of the tournament, Lubbock edged Dumas 6-3 and Plainview lost to Lamessa in a barnburner, 17-14.

The winners of these games will play each other in games following the Hereford Graham matchup.

Parker's Arm Paves Way For NL Victory In Classic

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer
SEATTLE (AP) - Baseball's annual All-Star game can be counted on for surprises and the 1979 edition came up to that standard except the National League won again and that's routine.

But who would have thought the throwing arm of Pittsburgh's Dave Parker, the muscular giant, would win the Most Valuable Player Award for him? After all, it was his bat that won him MVP honors for the league last season.

And who would have thought the Mets' Lee Mazzilli would homer in his first All-Star at-bat and then outduel Ron Guidry of the Yankees in a confrontation 3,000 miles from New York?

Or that in the intimate confines of the enclosed Kingdome that four walks in the ninth inning would decide the 7-6 game for the eighth straight NL victory and their 16th of the past 27.

"When you're not hitting, you have to do something," said the 6-foot-5 Parker, who weighs 230 pounds.

What he did was throw out Jim Rice at third base after the Boston star hit a sky high fly that dropped for a double to open the seventh inning with the AL leading 6-5.

Then in the eighth, when the Angels' Brian Downing tried to score from second on a single by the Yankees' Graig Nettles, Parker threw him out at home. The ball reached catcher Gary Carter of Montreal on the fly and he blocked the sliding Downing from the plate.

"That play was perfect all the way," declared Manager Tommy Lasorda, who has to hope that some of the All-Star good fortune will rub off on his defending champion Dodgers, who languish in last place.

Mazzilli, a 24-year-old outfielder and All-Star reserve, evened the count with his home run in the eighth inning on a 0-2 pitch from Texas' Jim Kern.

Kern, who had given up only one home run this year, observed wryly. He went with the pitch and hit it 317 feet fair.

The dimensions of the Kingdome are 316 feet down the foul lines and Mazzilli's shot landed at the top of the fence.

Tourney Entries Sought

Entries for the 4th Annual Doc Render Memorial Partnership Tournament in Dimmitt are still being accepted according to the tournament committee.

Fee for the 36 hole low ball event is $60 per team with each team flighted according to the lowest handicap of the team. Tee time will be 9 a.m. for the third, fourth and fifth flights and 2:30 p.m. for the first three flights.

A barbecue and entertainment will be included in the fee for Saturday night and prizes will be awarded to the first three places in each flight.

Persons wishing to enter the two day tournament can contact Box 1099 or call 647-4502.

It was Mazzilli again in the ninth only this time he drew a bases loaded walk from Guidry who was called into the game by Manager Bob Lemon after Kern had walked the bases full.

"He didn't throw anything close to the plate," Mazzilli commented. "I really wanted to get a hit and I swung at one bad ball and missed it. Truthfully, I liked the home run better than the walk."

Guidry appeared angry with Lemon, the man fired earlier this season as manager of the Yankees. The Cy Young Award winning pitcher who helped the Yanks to the World Series title last season said:

"I'm not happy with the circumstances of going in there. When you come in with the bases loaded, you ain't got no room to play with."

Relief ace Bruce Sutter of the Chicago Cubs took credit for the victory, pitching shutout ball the final two innings. It was the second straight All-Star win for the right-hander who throws what he calls a split-finger fast ball, something like a forkball.

Don Drysdale, in 1967 and 1968, was the last to achieve two consecutive All-Star triumphs. A crowd of 58,905 jammed the Kingdome for Seattle's largest baseball crowd ever and in addition to the game saw striptease dancer Morganna make good her boast that she would run onto the field. She did, fully clothed and planted a

Coe Sets New Mark In Mile

OSLO, Norway (AP) - England's wonder boy, Sebastian Coe, set a world record for the mile, winning the Dubai Golden Mile in 3 minutes, 40.95 seconds.

John Walker of New Zealand held the old record of 3:49.4, established in Goteborg, Sweden, in 1975.

It was the second world record established by Coe, 23, in 17 days. On July 5 he also set a world record of 1:42.33 in the 800 meters.

kiss on George Brett of Kansas City, who was stepping into the batter's box.

The Angels' Nolan Ryan started for the AL, struck out the first two batters but then gave up a walk to the Dodgers' Steve Garvey, a triple Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt and a double to Cincinnati's George Foster.

Ryan gave up another run in the second that knotted the count at 3-3.

The AL jumped on two-time Cy Young Award winner Steve Carlton for three runs in the first, highlighted by Fred Lynn's two-run homer in his only time at bat. He had been bothered by a groin pull and had run into the fence trying to get Schmidt's hit.

The AL added two more off Joaquin Andujar of the Houston Astros on singles by the Angels' Don Baylor and Boston's Carl Yastrzemski, plus a hit batsman and an error.

In a bad night for Cy Young Award winners, Gaylord Perry of San Diego, gave up three hits and the final AL run. Mazzilli's homer led off the eighth but then Kern put down the side.

With one out in the ninth, he walked Joe Morgan who reached second on a balk. Parker was intentionally passed, thus finishing the evening with just one infield hit. Craig Reynolds of the Astros fouled out and Larry Parrish drew a walk.

That's when Lemon called on Guidry, who promptly walked Mazzilli forcing in the run. He then retired Winfield but the damage was irretrievable.

Although each manager played nearly all of their 28-man squads, Parker played the whole game and Lasorda declared. "If the game had gone 20 innings, he would have stayed in there."

Lemon, in conclusion and in probably his last game wearing a Yankee pinstripe uniform, commented, "We had opportunities, but we let them go. We didn't get walks with the bases full."

Woodard Loses Weight Plans To Play For A&M

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas A&M fullback George Woodard's weight-or-lack-of-it-is once again a topic of conversation.

Woodard weighed as much as 290 pounds his junior year and soared over 300 pounds last year when he missed the entire season with a broken leg.

He was given an ultimatum by Coach Tom Wilson to get down to 245 or not bother reporting for fall practice.

The Aggies will have to dust off Woodard's old No. 33 jersey because Woodard now weighs a trim 248 and plans to come back for his final collegiate season.

"I know pro football plays a big part in his future plans, and that had a great deal to do with it," Wilson said. "We told him what he had to do to come back. George does have some character."

"Tom put his foot down and George knew he meant it," A&M assistant coach Paul Register said. "From what I've seen so far, he has more endurance than ever. I'll damn sure take a bet now that George will play. Not too long ago, I wouldn't have."

Woodard rushed 2,864 yards and scored 35 touchdowns during three varsity seasons with the Aggies.

"I'm tickled to death," Wilson said. "We presented him with an ultimatum and he took the challenge."

Wilson said Woodard's future

League Champs

First Baptist Gains Title After Perfect Season

First Presbyterian added its name to the list of defeated foes of First Baptist Church last night as FBC finished the church softball league with a perfect 9-0 ledger to claim the league championship.

FBC led to an early lead with three runs in the first frame as Carey Black rounded the bases on an inside and park homer and then Craig Nieman added two more runs as he blasted a shot over the rover's head to score Ralph Hill and himself.

The Presbyterians tied the game in the second, hitting singles to steadily push across their three runs. But from that point on the offensive showing was all First Baptist.

Tallies in every inning except the second gave the Baptists their ninth win, as every player except two scored for the winning team.

In the second game of the night, First Nazarene showed awesome offensive firepower as they scored 26 runs to bombard First Methodist 26-5.

Eleven runs in the first inning gave the Nazarene's all the runs they needed as they sent 14 batters to the plate. Meanwhile the Methodist team did not put a market on the score board until the fifth when they pushed a lone run across the plate.

Two more in the fifth and sixth innings ended the scoring for the losers as First Nazarene added runs in every frame except two.

The remaining games in the league will be completed this week with the post-season tournament, open only to the league teams to be held Aug. 3-5, according to Rick Wood, YMCA director. The tournament deadline for entry is July 25 with an entry fee of $40 per team. The tournament will be a double elimination affair with each team having two chances to win the title.

The trophy for the league will be a traveling presentation that will be given to the winning team each year. Trophies for the post season event will be permanent.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — We dissected worms and frogs a decade ago in Mr. Rodgers' required sophomore biology class at Paris, Texas, High School. I don't know what they did in chemistry or physics — I dodged the first and dozed through the latter.

But 17-year-old Clarence Herbert Jr. of Berwick, La., one of 452 calculator-toting little geniuses at the 30th International Science and Engineering Fair, built himself an almost human, radio-controlled robot that mows the grass and vacuums the carpet.

Fifteen-year-old Maria Conover designed a revolutionary new sea wall for preventing beach erosion in her hometown of Neptune Beach, Fla. She's applied for a patent. She's also in the ninth grade. Depressing, huh?

David C. Lingelbach, 17, of Brookfield, Wis., determined the protostellar properties of Jupiter or something like that and 18-year-old Bradley Brown of Fort Lupton, Colo., built his own laser.

Mitchell A. Gallagher, 16, of Jamestown, N.D., created his own clouds in a homemade chamber, in search of a better method of cloud seeding.

Sixteen-year-old Andrew Seville of Dallastown, Pa., designed and built a roving, self-controlled Mars probe with photocells and all sorts of other neat stuff in it. Meanwhile, David John Lvorak, 17, of Terre Haute, Ind., came up with an improved artificial foot.

We collected insects — water bugs, June bugs and ladybugs — in Mrs. Topp's life-science class. William Kulp, 17, of Dallastown, Pa., however, examined the effects of exposure to a magnetic field on Drosophila — fruit flies, they tell me. Eighteen-year-old Fran Brown, of Jackson, Ala., investigated the effects of coffee, tea and cola on the web-spinning behavior of the spider.

Air-Rail Travel

Marks 50th Year

KINGMAN, Ariz. (AP) — The Ford Tri-Motor sputtered down onto the freshly oiled airfield, bounced a couple of times, then came to a throbbing stop in front of the terminal building where a crowd of about a thousand waited.

A minute later, the oval door opened. Standing in the doorway, grinning and waving to the spectators, was Charles A. Lindbergh. Following Lindbergh off the plane was his bride, Anne, and aviator Amelia Earhart.

It was July 8, 1929, and the plane, the "City of Los Angeles," was making the initial stop on the inaugural journey of the nation's first coast-to-coast air-rail service.

Lindbergh made a short speech about the new transportation system. Then without further delay, the plane was refueled and the inaugural party reboarded for the continuing flight eastward, with Lindbergh back at the controls.

It was the beginning of a pioneering transportation venture that took travelers between New York and Los Angeles in 48 hours by using a combination of planes and trains.

Operated for 16 months, the service never made money, according to Alan Hogenauer, director of market research and planning for Trans World Airlines.

"The fares were too high and the time savings too limited relative to all-train alternatives to attract sufficient passengers," he explained.

"Moreover, the economic climate after the stock market crash of October 1929, and the many uncertainties of travel by commercial aviation in its infancy, did not help matters at all."

Hogenauer recently reported in a company newspaper on a trip in which he traced the route of the air-rail service and tracked down the 12 original sites involved in the cross-country operation. He suggested the sites are "national historic treasures."

"Since night flying had not yet been perfected to the point where it could be safely offered to the public, train service was used during two consecutive evenings of the total trip," he wrote.

Frankly, Neill, I dunno. And 18-year-old Leslie Glasgow of Jackson, Miss., did something with mathematical matrices and music. She patiently tried to explain it to me in the simplest terms she could muster. I listened blankly, feeling about as intelligent as the earthworm I once dissected.

"The projects get better each year," said 18-year-old Greg Judy of Forgan, Okla., a three-year veteran of the international science fairs who designed a system to use wind to convert water into hydrogen to operate autos and heat homes.

"The engineering is up tremendously. Of course, there are more energy projects than ever this year," he added.

Judy, headed for Oklahoma State University and an engineering career "of some sort," is a member of a graduating class of 21 in his tiny Oklahoma town of 500. His science teacher, a biology major who coaches the football team, teaches chemistry and physics on alternate years.

The crucial part of Judy's project is an electrolytic cell he had to design himself, with the help of college textbooks his teacher scrounged up for him.

The top two winners of the fair earn a trip to Sweden for the next presentation of the Nobel Prizes.

Dr. Edward Roy, chairman of the Trinity University geology department who has been involved with the science fairs for 12 years, said the junior Einsteins wound up — not surprisingly — as successful doctors, engineers and researchers.

"There has been an evolution of scientific thought among young people," said Roy.

"They have access to ideas and equipment unthought of a decade ago," he added. "What is being taught in the eighth-grade science classes today wasn't taught in high-school classes 10 years ago."

Aha! So that's why I don't know how to construct or operate a tracking fresnel solar concentrator like 17-year-old Barry Eppler of Louisville, Ky., does.

The air service was offered by Transcontinental Air Transport, which through a series of mergers eventually evolved into TWA.

Hogenauer recalled that the westward-bound journey in 1929 began at New York's Pennsylvania Station and proceeded overnight to Columbus, Ohio, which was the easternmost point on the TAT route system.

"At Columbus, passengers detrained and enplaned, flying to Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Wichita, and Waynoka, Okla., before darkness," he related.

"From Waynoka to Clovis, N.M., the Santa Fe Railroad took over. On the second morning, air travel was resumed for the final legs from Clovis to Albuquerque, Winslow and Kingman, Ariz., and, at last, Glendale, serving Los Angeles."

Hogenauer reported that although eight of the 12 original points were still key cities on TWA's present system, three of the other four were no longer served by any commercial airliner.

In observance of the 50th anniversary of the inaugural flight, a TWA spokesman said the airline would present a full-scale replica of the propeller from the center engine of the plane used on the inaugural flight to each of the eight cities.

SIDEWALK SALE DAYS

JULY 19 - 20 - 21

NEW YORK (NEA) - "I killed 'im, I did!" cried Agatha Cranshaw, "quite mad, quite carefree and merry." "Cor blimey, I'd throttle the beggar once more." For Alfie turned over me Spilsbury!"

One morning in 1767, Agatha had sat down in London's East End to better herself. With her wages - she did "night work" - she'd bought a new-fangled "dissected" map put out by John Spilsbury, "Engraver and Map Dissector in Wood, in order to facilitate the teaching of Geography." Spilsbury was one of the first known jigsaw puzzle makers, according to "The Book of Firsts."

Agatha had most of the counties of Wales in place and was beginning on England when Alfie, who never minded where he was going, rounded the corner....

Poor Agatha. Poor Alfie. They'd be alive today if she'd had one of the puzzle framing boards you can buy from people like Elliot Gallin who manufactured jigsaw puzzles - in his case, fine art puzzles that retail, everywhere, for about $8.00.

"We developed the framing board because people do jigsaw puzzles on a kitchen or coffee table," Gallin says. Naked, unfortified territory: Eli spills coddled eggs on "A Venetian Night;" Cynthia sweeps "Autumn Sunset" off the table so she can eat dinner; or you insert the final, 500th piece of "Mill on the Floss," and now what? Glue it together? To do that, you have to take the pieces apart....

With the frame, which is available in standard puzzle sizes - 16x20 inches for $20; 18x24 inches for $24 - you just slide off the Plexiglas cover and work the puzzle inside against a Masonite backboard. If Cynthia wants to eat dinner, you slide the Plexiglas back in and move to the den.

When you and the puzzle are finished, you slide in the top section of the frame and bang a nail in the wall. And, when "White on White" begins to pall, you remove it and do a different puzzle in its place.

One of the ones, Gallin hopes, he began marketing through Gallin's Gallery three years ago when he tired of being sales manager for a women's sportswear company. He'd done that for 10 years, had kind of fallen into it because the garment center had always been part of his life, like his interest in art.

"Then three years ago," he says, "I was looking through an M.C. Escher book. He was a Dutch artist and architect, a master of illusion and surrealism, who died in the early '70s. And I thought, what can I do to make some money with him?"

Smash him to bits that the public can reconstruct, he decided. "I contacted the Escher Foundation in Amsterdam and got the rights to reproduce his work as jigsaw puzzles."

The foundation, and other artists whose work Gallin breaks up, get between 3 and 6 percent of the puzzle's wholesale price, and everyone comes out fine. "We started with six Eschers," he says, "and now, with 12 Eschers, six Chagalls, five Magrittes and five Klimpts (a German artist of the early 1900s), plus some individual puzzles like Pompeii and King Tut's burial mask, we do a million dollars volume a year."

Those who sit up nights belaboring Gallin's black and white or color conundrums are between 15 and 50, he says. "We included a questionnaire with the puzzles in the beginning, which is how we know. And people usually get the puzzles as gifts."

What they get starts out as a print, say, of Chagall's poster of "Carmen" for the Metropolitan Opera.

"The print gets glued to a piece of chipwood," he says, "and you wait 24 hours for it to dry. Then the mounted print goes into a die cutting machine where the pieces are cut. There are thousands of dies so you never get the same shaped piece twice in one puzzle."

Once "Carmen" is cut into 551 squiggles, in her case, she's carried by a conveyor belt to a "breaker" which mixes up her parts.

Then she's dropped down a chute. At the other end is a person holding an empty box. He or she has 20 seconds to catch all 551 pieces and pass the box to the person who puts on the lid, before "Carmen" plummets down again.

Pioneer Previews Ag Fuel Presentation

Agriculture Interests Discussed

K.B. "Tex" Watson of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. of Hereford visits with Leo Harper of the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford Plant, Tom Hamlett of Armour Foods Inc. and Ken Rogers, president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce following a slide presentation "Fuel for American Agriculture" at the Hereford Country Club last night. The presentation highlighted a number of local agri-business industries in stressing the importance of High Plains agriculture, and the vital nature of natural gas as a fuel for that industry. [Brand photo by Jim Steiert]

Area agribusiness representatives were treated to a preview of the slide presentation "Fuel for American Agriculture" by Pioneer Natural Gas Co. at the Hereford Country Club last night.

Leaders in the agriculture industry from Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer counties, along with representatives of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service were on hand for the program, which emphasized the vital role natural gas plays as a fuel for High Plains farming, ranching, cattle and related enterprises.

K. Bert "Tex" Watson, president of Pioneer, addressed the gathering of agriculture representatives prior to the program.

"Although our cost of gas has gone up, particularly for irrigation farmers, our average cost of gas is about $1.77 per mcf, and only one other company in Texas is anywhere close to that price. Most of the others are over $2 per mcf," claimed Watson.

"I know this area is getting its gas at the cheapest rate in the state for irrigation. Pioneer has taken important steps to maintain an adequate supply of gas for our customers in the High Plains agriculture region," he continued.

The gas firm executive pointed out that Pioneer "hasn't been able to identify any package of gas we really wanted that we couldn't get," despite some changes in energy regulations.

Commenting on the slide presentation, Watson explained that the program places particular emphasis on the productivity of the High Plains region, with concentration in the Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer county areas, and the importance of a reliable supply of agricultural fuel for the High Plains region.

"If we would just concentrate national effort on promoting our agriculture, we could offset 8.5 million barrels a day of oil imports," stated Watson.

The slide program was compiled by Lee Wilcox, assistant director of corporate communications for Pioneer, and Bob Carthel, an agricultural representative for the firm.

According to Judith Kerr, director of corporate communications, the slide show will be available to area civic clubs and organizations for presentation as a program at their functions.

Among items highlighted in the program were facts on industries served by Pioneer, and their productivity.

According to the presentation, some 71,400 irrigation wells are present in the High Plains area, with 60 percent of the total fueled by natural gas.

In a breakdown of the crops irrigated with gas powered pumps, cotton accounted for 28 percent of natural gas consumption; corn, 24 percent; wheat, 19 percent; and sorghum 19 percent.

Other crops also accounted for lesser degrees of consumption.

Apart from irrigation, gas was also singled out as a major fuel in the cattle feeding industry, where it is used in steam flaking, popping, water heating and other manners to increase feeding efficiency, as well as in the eventual processing of cattle by High Plains packing plants.

Among other agricultural uses singled out in the presentation were grain drying, confinement pork production operations, greenhouses, and fertilizer production, where 40,000 to 45,000 cubic feet of gas is utilized to produce one ton of anhydrous ammonia fertilizer, according to the program.

In an informal discussion prior to the slide presentation, Mrs. Kerr pointed out that Pioneer headquarters in Amarillo had been swamped by calls from area farmers during the past week, concerning the need to file a Priority 2 Form with the USDA.

Mrs. Kerr explained that a great deal of confusion evidently occurred over whether intrastate gas customers needed to file the form.

"Our legal people advised us that to the best of their knowledge, those in agriculture

Inspection Point Is Closed

The official grain inspection service point at Hereford has been discontinued, effective July 16, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced.

Leland E. Bartelt, administrator of USDA's Federal Grain Inspection Service (FGIS), said the Plainview Grain Inspection & Weighing Service, Inc., Plainview, Tex., will continue to provide official inspection services at Hereford on an as-needed basis.

Bartelt said no comments were received in response to a proposal published in the April 25 Federal Register to discontinue the Hereford service point. The action was proposed because of insufficient demand there to justify the full-time employment of an inspector.

FGIS is administered in the Southwest by Jerry Cotter, Regional Director, USDA-FGIS, 1100 Commerce, Room 7C34, Dallas, Texas, 75242, phone: (214) 749-3096, FGIS-39.

served by Pioneer who pay their bills to Pioneer did not need to file the Priority 2 form, because Pioneer is an intrastate firm, and the filing regulation applied to agricultural users served by interstate pipeline systems under federal regulation," commented Mrs. Kerr.

Pioneer Natural Gas Co., an intrastate utility division of Pioneer Corporation, is subject to regulatory provisions of the Texas Railroad Commission.

According to Mrs. Kerr, Pioneer will take action to assure that supplemental supplies of gas purchased by Pioneer from interstate gas companies for irrigation use obtain the highest priority available under recent federal proceedings.

Water District Plans Tax Rate Cut

The board of directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District has unanimously adopted a resolution stating its intent to cut the district's tax rate by ten percent for fiscal year 1979-80. When finally adopted, the tax rate will be trimmed from five cents per hundred dollar valuation to four and one-half cents. Board members took the action during their regular session on July 10th at the district's Lubbock office.

The district's attorney, Don Graf, outlined the effects of recent changes in the property tax code enacted by the Texas Legislature, including the "Truth in Taxation" provision. He outlined procedures for the district to follow to comply with the new tax law.

Among other things, the statute requires all taxing entities with projected tax revenues which will exceed last year's tax revenues by three percent (3%), based on assessed valuations, to publish a notice of intent to raise taxes and to conduct a public hearing before finally setting the tax rate.

The district has been notified by the Tax Assessor-Collectors of increased valuations and expects tax receipts from Lynn, Armstrong and Lamb Counties to be in excess of the three percent (3%) maximum.

In related business, the board adopted a fiscal 1980 operations budget of 650 thousand dollars. The tentative 1980 budget is 23 thousand dollars below 1979's adopted budget. A net reserve of approximately 100 thousand dollars is anticipated in 1980, trimming 35 thousand off 1979 figures.

District agriculturist, Ken Carver, reported to the board on the status of the "Field Water Conservation Laboratory" and training workshops conducted jointly by Soil Conservation Service and Water District staffs. A total of ten training sessions on soil moisture, center pivot, and side roll evaluations were conducted in May and June for over 80 attending personnel, including representatives from the U.S. Geological Survey and the Texas Department of Water Resources.

Carver reported that "the wording is getting out" and participation is on the increase. He cited by example, the five counties represented in one workshop in early June.

Directors were also brought up to date on the development of the district's supplemental water text for eighth and ninth graders. It is undergoing revision after extensive review and comment, and is approximately 90 percent complete. The staff hopes to have it published for the fall public school semester.

In other business, the board approved 79 water well permit applications, eight extensions, and one exception.

Early Treatment Vital To Controlling 'Hoppers

COLLEGE STATION - Hordes of grasshoppers are stripping rangelands in the Texas Panhandle and have their sights on pastures, ranges and crops to the south and east.

Some 1.5 million acres of rangeland have already been treated or will be treated shortly in the Texas Panhandle, report Dr. Mike McWhorter and Dr. Phil Hamman, entomologists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Counties in the spray area have a grasshopper count ranging from 32 to 54 per square yard. A count of eight adult grasshoppers per square yard is considered serious enough for control measures.

According to McWhorter and Hamman, the spray program for rangeland involves use of the insecticide malathion and is being conducted on a cost-share basis with ranchers, the Texas Department of Agriculture, and the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Spray applications are made after grasshoppers hatch and before females start laying eggs.

The entomologists encourage farmers and ranchers as well as homeowners to check for grasshopper infestations along roadsides, fence rows or idle, undisturbed ground where the pests may be hatching. A key to effectively suppressing grasshopper numbers is to treat these hatching areas early before young hoppers begin to migrate.

A bait mixture using toxaphene has been effective in controlling grasshoppers along field margins and roadsides, point out McWhorter and Hamman. The formulation calls for 100 pounds of mill-run bran, 1 1/2 pints of Taxaphene 6E, 7 to 8 gallons of water, and 2 gallons of blackstrap molasses. Sawdust may be substituted for up to 1/4 of the amount of bran. Distribute the bait while still moist at 10 to 20 pounds per acre.

Another product, Hi-Plains

Border Bait, is a ready-to-use formulation that is registered in Texas but currently has no distributorship.

Tips for clean mirrors

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - Every time I try to clean the mirror on my dresser I end up with a lot of streaks. I have no problem with my other mirrors so would appreciate any suggestions. - JANICE

DEAR JANICE - Unless there is some imperfection in the mirror perhaps one of the following letters from readers will be of help to you. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - Alcohol and water makes an excellent window or mirror cleaner and does not streak. - MRS. J.A.

DEAR POLLY - I think car windshield cleaner (liquid) is the best window and mirror cleaner ever invented. Pour two caps of the cleaner in a plastic bowl, soak a soft cloth in this, squeeze out the excess and clean as usual. Polish with a soft cloth and there will be no streaks or spots. - EVELYN

DEAR POLLY - Mothers and grandmothers who have soiled stuffed toys around the house will find a good way to clean them is to use rug shampoo and a stiff brush. I add a bit of liquid disinfectant to kill germs, too. Hang on the line to dry and then brush to fluff up. - Marge B.

DEAR POLLY - Those who have small children and floor fans can make things safer by having screen wire cut to fit inside the front and rear panels. Attach to the panels with tiny wire or tape and put panels back in place. This saves little fingers. - CHERYL

DEAR POLLY - Do take a plug-in night light on your next trip. This makes it much easier to find the bathroom or telephone in an unfamiliar motel room in the middle of the night.

When rolling pastry between waxed paper always sprinkle the work surface with a few drops of water so the paper does not slip when you are rolling out the dough.

To start fires in your fireplace more easily stuff empty milk cartons with newspaper, poke holes in the sides of the carton and place under the wood and ignite. - LUCILLE Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peavee or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Miss Lee's School features the picture of a dog on its school bag.

The dog is Bonnie, the school's mascot. Bonnie, brown and beagle-shaped, has been around the school for the past six years. She attends graduation ceremonies, and when a photographer comes around to make the school portrait, she has hers made also.

She used to belong to a woman, but about a year ago, the woman called to say she was moving and that she couldn't take the dog with her.

So Bonnie went to live with Licia Moody, 13, and now she rides to school with Licia every morning. Although Licia has only one more year at Miss Lee's, Bonnie will stay on after she leaves.

"What I'll do is to drop her off here on my way to Catholic High where I'll be going next," she said, "and then I'll pick her up in the afternoon. I don't think she'd be happy in any other school."

When barbecuing, use long-handled tongs rather than a fork for turning meat in order to avoid piercing it.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Cortisone side effects

DEAR DR. LAMB - What are the side effects of cortisone shots for arthritis? I have a type of arthritis that strikes suddenly. The joints swell and become hot and very painful. The cortisone shots do give relief for several weeks but I wonder about those shots like I wonder about all of the other medicines that are pumped into us. Would you recommend cortisone shots?

What information can you give me about the different types of arthritis and is there anything that can be done?

DEAR READER - Cortisone and related hormone shots are used in some cases of arthritis or related conditions. In general, doctors don't like to use them unless there is no other way to control an acute condition. The biggest reason is that the changes going on in the joints may continue even though the symptoms are significantly relieved. In short, the disease gets worse while the patient feels better. There's finally a point when the joints are so badly damaged that the cortisone doesn't help anymore and it's even harder to treat the case than if nothing had been given at all.

Cortisone and hormone shots are sometimes very useful in treating bursitis which isn't the same thing as arthritis. The inflammation of the linings around the joint in bursitis doesn't involve changes in the bone and cartilage itself.

Cortisone shots are not used for osteoarthritis, sometimes called degenerative arthritis. If cortisone is used at all for arthritis, it's used in selected cases of rheumatoid arthritis. Since you want more information, I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-11, Rheumatoid Arthritis. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Please explain the disease called sarcoidosis. My daughter-in-law has it and doesn't seem to be getting rid of it. She has a low temperature, fatigue and a cough. Can it be cured and what antibiotics are used for it? Does it have anything to do with stress or worry?

DEAR READER - I wish I could explain sarcoidosis but most of medical science hasn't been able to do so yet.

Friday

Chiseling does not pay. "As the partridge that sitteth on eggs which she has not laid, so is he that getteth riches, and not by right; in the midst of his days they shall leave him, and at his end he shall be a fool." - Jer. 17:11

It is a disease of unknown cause.

It's associated with small lumps or masses which we call granulomas. These may occur in the lungs or in various organs. Sometimes they disappear entirely and the disease may just disappear.

The lung involvement seems to be the most common location. It may be found in a routine chest X ray or when an X ray is taken because of respiratory symptoms. I must say that fever is not a common feature of sarcoidosis and raises the question of whether your daughter-in-law may have a complication or some other disorder.

In general, there are two categories of sarcoidosis. Some people have an explosive onset and the disease may last for a couple of years and disappear entirely. Others have a chronic form that has a slow insidious onset that slowly progresses, sometimes causing severe pulmonary fibrosis and changes in other organs of the body.

Antibiotics aren't used in the absence of a bacterial complication since the disease is not known to be caused by bacteria.

DEAR DR. LAMB - During the last several months I've experienced a strange feeling while sleeping. I'm awakened in a state of panic fighting for breath. This has happened on more than one occasion in a night and on several different nights. I do push ups every day and I walk or jog about three miles daily.

I knew a man in his 20s who died with a similar condition. He was in the Marine Corps at the time. I don't have any nightmares, although I have experienced a cold sweat when I awake. I've not been able to relate this sensation to anything I've ever been dreaming. Of course, now I think about it before I retire and then I do get concerned.

DEAR READER - You probably will need sleep studies to find out exactly what's going on. Such sleep studies would entail recording a brain wave (EEG) during the normal sleep hours.

One of the recent discoveries about sleeping is that some people experience sleep apnea, meaning literally they stop breathing during sleep. Your description sounds like that, but, of course, it would have to be documented. People who have been monitored sometimes don't have respirations for as long as three minutes. The lack of oxygen eventually stimulates the brain and there may be a forceful gasp for breath at that point. One patient was studied who had such episodes as often as 400 times a night.

Incidentally, this kind of problem in sleeping is made much worse by taking sleeping pills. Many of these tend to depress the respiration and that's certainly not what you need in this circumstance. Check with your doctor and see if he can make an appointment for you at a sleep center in your area. You may have to go to the nearest university for such detailed studies. But in view of the specific nature of your history, I think it might be worth it.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-6, Sleep and Insomnia, to give you more information about the common problem of sleepless nights. Your problem could be related to something else other than sleep apnea and it's important that you understand that sleeping pills are of little or no value and should never be used except on a temporary basis, even for other forms of insomnia. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

That fact that you're in good health otherwise may have nothing to do with the problem of insomnia, particularly sleep apnea.

Many people who think they have insomnia really sleep longer than they think. This can be documented by sleep studies. For some reason there is an illusion in time that people experience who tend to wake up during the night. A few minutes of being awake sometimes seems like hours.

As the Health Letter I'm sending you explains, many people with insomnia tend to benefit from changing their life style. That includes eliminating stimulating drinks that contain caffeine, such as coffee, tea and colas, the proper use of exercise and developing proper sleep habits. These measures are often much more beneficial in the long run than sleeping pills.
