

Administration Kills '80 Set-Aside

WASHINGTON (AP) — Growers of the 1980 wheat crop will have no set-aside requirement, a higher support price, a lower target price and Russians waiting with open wallets.

With winter-wheat planting time near, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland announced details of the 1980 wheat program Wednesday, two weeks earlier than the law requires.

But he brought to the news conference Undersecretary Dale E. Hathaway and a surprise. In secret London meetings Monday and Tuesday, Hathaway gave the Soviet Union permission to buy an additional 10 million metric tons of U.S. wheat over the next 14 months.

The Russians' need for more grain to offset a poorer crop than anticipated already had sent wheat prices in July to $3.95 a bushel, the highest monthly average in 45 months.

And, as Hathaway noted, that was when no one thought they wanted to buy more than 15 million tons this year of wheat and corn combined.

The new picture for the current wheat year through next June now looks something like this, according to chief Agriculture Department economist Howard W. Hjort: A $1.8 billion boost in growers' incomes; a $1.4 billion boost in exports; a $500 million hike in consumer food bills; and a $660 million savings for taxpayers in lower farm-program costs.

Those estimates are based on a projected season average price between 50 cents and $1 higher than 1978's $2.94 a bushel, with $3.76 a bushel likely now, Hjort said.

The 1980 wheat program looks like this:

—No requirement to idle acreage to secure price-support loans, receive target-price payments or get disaster relief. Bergland said he will move against any farmers who plow up fragile land. "We are cautioning against this fence-row-to-fence-row planting," he said.

—A price-support loan rate of $2.50 a bushel, up 15 cents from the $2.35 of the last two seasons, when more production was also discouraged with a 20 percent set-aside.

—A target price between $2.95 and $3.20 a bushel, but probably about $3.07, down sharply from this season's $3.40. It will be announced March 15, but Bergland said he may seek new legislation next month in order to raise it.

"We think it's prudent not to put restraints on farmers" when demand is so high, Bergland said, even though USDA still expects some 23 million tons of wheat left over next June 1.

The Senate on Monday had urged a 6 percent set-aside to thwart overproduction that could bust the market again.

Bakers associations have been urging Congress and USDA to have farmers return to the full-production policy of the mid-1970s as a hedge against more inflation.

Hathaway said the Russian purchases stack up this way:

—For the year ending Sept. 30, the Soviets have already bought about 3.5 million tons of wheat and 11.5 million tons of corn and can buy 2 million tons more wheat, for a new authorized total of 17 million in the third year of the U.S.-Soviet grain pact.

—For the following year, they can buy 8 million tons of wheat without further consultations, 3 million of which they reportedly have bought already. When Hathaway and the Soviets hold their regular meeting here in October, they will firm up a "mutual understanding" that the Russians will take 5 million tons of corn, too. That means they have permission to buy 13 million tons of grain next year from U.S. traders already.

Under the pact, the Russians must buy from private U.S. traders at least 3 million tons each of wheat and corn and may purchase a total of 8 million tons of both before seeking the approval of the U.S. government.

Farmers Miffed At Plan

Despite an optimistic picture painted by the Administration concerning the 1980 wheat program, area agriculture representatives aren't necessarily buying all of that optimism.

Bill Nelson, executive vice president of the Amarillo headquartered Texas Wheat Producers Association, warns that a lack of set aside provisions for the new wheat program and reduced target and loan rates will mean "too little protection of farmer income, and overproduction as well."

While the administration announcement touted the promise of burgeoning export sales of wheat to the Soviet Union, Nelson maintains that it's the old failing of counting the chickens before they're hatched.

"I'm not objecting to any big sale, but to the gearing of the 1980 wheat program to sales before they're actually made," stated Nelson.

"Sales have not been made at this point, and there's no guarantee the sales will be made," he continued.

Nelson charged that the forthcoming wheat program is another indication that the administration continues to favor a "cheap food policy" that uses low income for farmers as the basis for low-cost food for consumers.

The TWPA executive urged farmers to show restraint from the fence to fence planting that following the Russian grain deal of the early 1970's.

"Bergland is building up for a continuous grain stock, cheap grain, and little protection for farmers," Nelson charged.

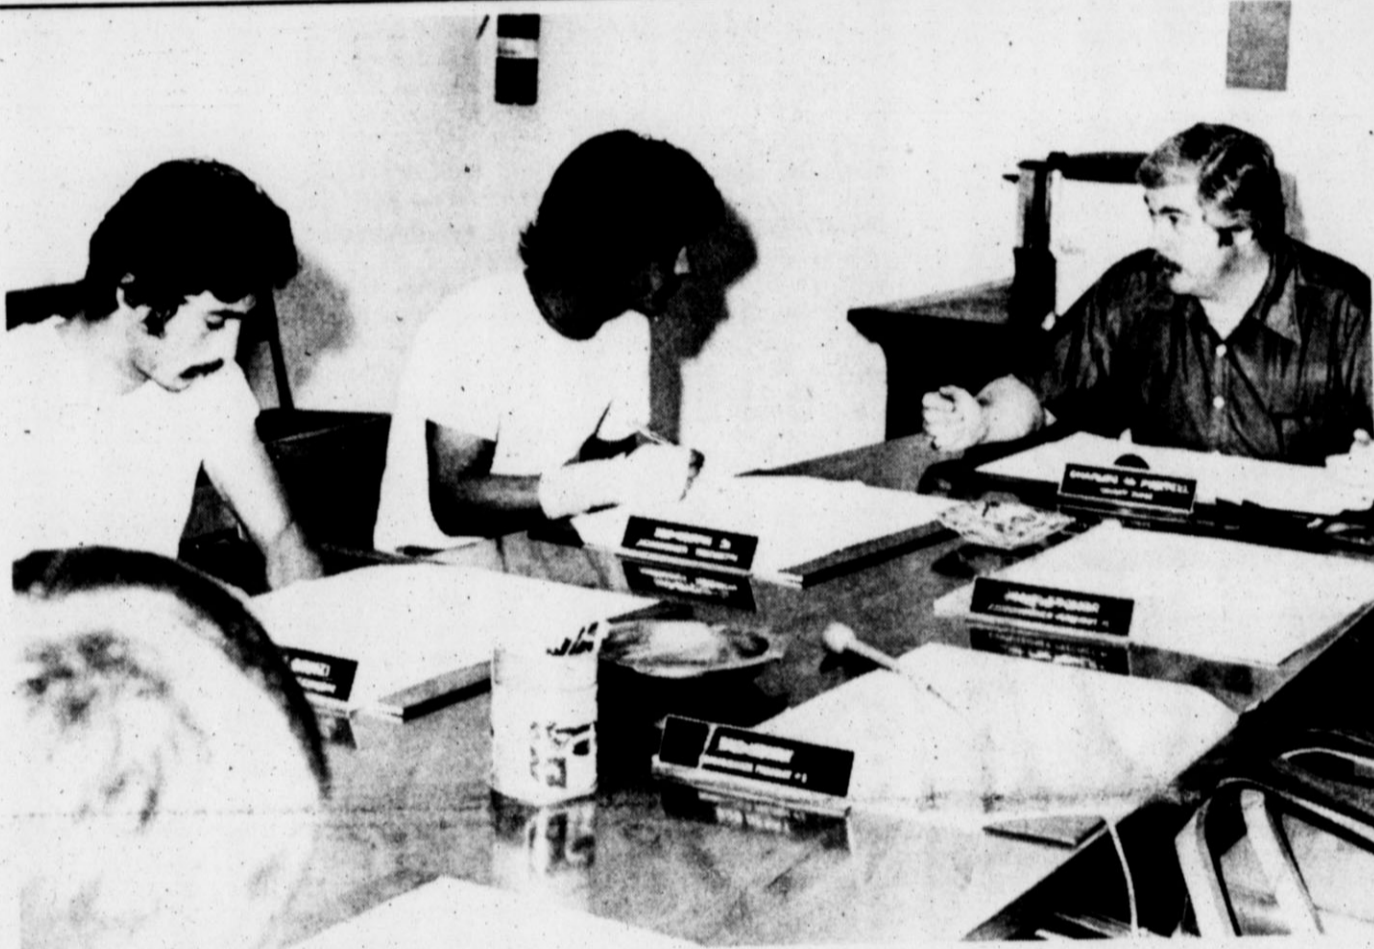

Local agriculturalists expressed disappointment over actions that will lower the wheat target price at a crucial point.

Cutbacks in wheat production, coupled with a massive upsurge in Soviet demand for export wheat this year have combined to boost wheat to its healthiest price level in years.

Jerome Friemel, a vocal opponent of Carter administration farm policies in the local area, labeled the ouster of the wheat set aside program "more of what you'd expect from the Carter administration."

"Producing crops that are not needed is expensive in energy consumption, and the cost of wheat production goes up every day. We still have a surplus of wheat, and should maintain a wheat set-aside," he commented.

Taxpayer Groups To Organize Initiative-Referendum Campaign

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans upset over taxes chewing away nearly half of every $1 they earn have joined in supporting a proposal to give citizens authority to bypass the Legislature in making laws.

Representatives of 20 local taxpayer associations voted unanimously Wednesday to organize a statewide effort in favor of initiative and referendum.

Former Attorney General Waggoner Carr of Texas 13, Inc., a non-profit tax relief group, said the campaign is expected to cost at least $125,000.

The goal is to gain legislative approval of a proposed constitutional amendment whenever Gov. Bill Clements calls a special session.

The 1979 regular session rejected the proposal, which was the cornerstone of Clements' "Taxpayers' Bill of Rights."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton opposed the measure.

Carr told a news conference the associations, meeting for the first time Wednesday, supported "direct" initiative and referendum, which means voters could bypass the Legislature through petitions and elections in

Coast Guard Orders Intensive Spill Fight

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Coast Guard officials, surprised by thick balls of oil that washed up on a Mexican beach, have called for immediate mobilization of massive equipment to combat the world's largest oil spill.

Coast Guard Capt. Roger Madson, who is directing the spill containment operation, has ordered "strike teams" and equipment to battle the spill from North Carolina and California.

Coast Guard spokesman Richard Griggs said Wednesday that six 15,000-pound "floating fences" were being shipped here. The mobilization was called for after the unexpected discovery of "tar balls" on a Mexican beach about 60 miles south of Brownsville.

"It was a surprise that it washed up that far north. It was sooner than we anticipated," Griggs said.

The oil is flowing at a rate of 30,000 barrels a day from the runaway Ixtoc 1 oil well in Mexico's Bay of Campeche, said Coast Guard Lt. John Mitchell.

The thick oil has been flowing out of control since the well blew out June 3. Experts have projected it may take until October to cap the well.

The 612-foot floating fences — called booms — are made of rubberized material and float two feet below the water and two feet above. They can be used either close to the coastline or offshore. Previous projections have said traces of the oil may turn up about 40 to 50 miles off the Texas coast this weekend.

Insurance Executive: Claims Won't Decline

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Contrary to what some consumers might believe, the current gasoline shortage will not decrease auto insurance claims, says an insurance company spokesman.

Inflation has increased the costs of automobile repairs and other things that insurance pays for, J.M. Eddins, vice president of Maryland Casualty Companies, said in prepared remarks today.

Eddins and others testified at a State Insurance Board hearing on the industry's request for a 21.7 percent average statewide hike in automobile insurance rates.

"Under the current situation, we cannot expect any added advantage from a change in speed limits, as was the case in 1974," Eddins said, referring to the drop in speed laws from 70 miles per hour to 55 mph.

The subcompacts that consumers buy for better gasoline mileage are higher accident risks and cost more to repair, Eddins added.

"Also, when accidents do occur in these smaller automobiles, the bodily injury implication is much greater than if the same accident had occurred in a heavier automobile," he said.

Eddins represented the Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office, which files rate recommendations for car insurance companies.

The insurance board staff has recommended an 8.9 percent rate increase. Board Chairman William Daves said Wednesday the panel will rule on the rate hike request in about a month.

On Wednesday, the insurance board heard comments on possibly reducing collision insurance costs for motorists who regularly carpool.

A motorist reduces the chances of his car being in accident by leaving it at home and carpooling, industry spokesmen agreed. But they asked whether more people riding in a single auto would increase physical injury risks in the event of an accident.

"We really don't have any hard data, but there are offsetting (risk) factors" to carpooling, said David Irons, attorney for the service office.

Irons said carpooling definitely would help conserve energy and should be encouraged. As a starting point, he proposed creating a new insurance class for motorists who carpool at least half the time.

Texas who drive to work pay more for collision coverage than other motorists. City dwellers who commute to work in their private cars also pay more liability insurance than urban Texans who don't drive to work.

In Harris County (Houston), the average driver taking his car to work pays $44 more in annual premiums. An average driver is described as a male over 21 or female over 25 with a medium-priced 1978 Chevrolet, Ford or Plymouth who drives to work with basic coverage.

Irons said rates in the new category would reduce the commuting, Houston motorist's premium $22.

City officials from Houston and San Antonio urged the board to adopt a new rating classification as an incentive for drivers to carpool.

By carpooling four days a week, a motorist can save $1,200 a year in gas and other costs, said Sharon Hagan of the Houston Car-Share Program. About 2,200 people take part in the city-sponsored program, which matches drivers with a carpool.

Rationing Approval Chances Dwindle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic congressional leaders are making one last bid to rush a standby gasoline-rationing bill to President Carter's desk, but they claim their chances are slim.

More likely, Congress will begin its month-long recess at the close of business Friday without producing the rationing bill Carter seeks.

The Senate was expected today to formally reject the rationing bill the House passed late Wednesday and thus set off the search for a compromise version.

The House passed its bill by a 263-159 vote, but laden it with so many amendments Senate leaders immediately pronounced it unacceptable.

Finding a compromise that can be enacted before the recess "would be very difficult," concluded Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., the main House sponsor of the rationing bill.

However, he said the attempt will be made. "It won't be easy," he said.

House leaders had hoped to give the president at least this piece of his new energy plan before beginning their recess.

Many of the amendments tacked on in the House did not concern rationing. One would weaken the new federal order requiring thermostats in non-residential buildings to be set at an energy-saving 78 degrees. Others would set aside special reserves of tractor fuel for farmers and heating oil for homes in cold-weather regions.

"It looks like we're going to have an impasse," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee. He said the amendment exempting businesses from the 78-degree thermostat law if they save an equivalent amount of energy through other means was especially objectionable to senators, one the Senate would "absolutely not" accept.

White House officials also indicated the president has serious reservations about the bill as it emerged from the House.

Following Wednesday's vote, the White House press office issued a statement that called the bill "a modest Chamber of Commerce officials met Wednesday in special session with Deaf Smith County commissioners to discuss the county's role in helping an energy-related industry locate in Hereford.

Chamber President Ken Rogers and manager Michael Carr told the court that officials from the prospective company wanted to meet with commissioners this morning. That special meeting was scheduled for 10 a.m. today.

Commissioners told the chamber representatives they would agree to meet with company officials but said they would take no action on any matter if it obligated the county.

Mexican-Americans Say Voting Clout Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mexican-American spokesmen say discriminatory tactics, blatant and subtle, are frequently employed to reduce their clout four years after the inclusion of language minorities in the Voting Rights Act.

Vilma Martinez, president of the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund, said a polling place in one Houston district was barely changed. She said the new location, however, moved the polling place from a Chicano to an Anglo neighborhood, placing it across the freeway and reachable to poorer voters from the Chicano neighborhood only by public transportation.

Willie Velasquez, director of the Southwest Voter Registration Project, told of a Chicano worker in a small West Texas town who said he would be fired if his name appeared on a voter registration roll.

Nor is it unusual for Mexican-American voting rights activists to be ordered out of town, he said.

"West Texas politics are not housebroken," Velasquez said.

The organizations held a news conference Wednesday to mark the fourth anniversary of the language minorities amendments to the Voting Rights Act.

Joaquin Avila of MALDEF said a legal drive is under way to bring county governments in line with the act's provisions. The San Antonio, Texas,

Congress Plans Amtrak Rollback

WASHINGTON (AP) - About one-fifth of the Amtrak passenger train network appears headed for elimination under a congressional plan that falls far short of President Carter's original rail cutback proposal.

In perhaps the last major fight over Amtrak this year, the Senate voted 89-11 Wednesday to go along with a House-passed formula that probably will result in three percent of the 22,700-mile system.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Commerce surface transportation subcommittee, said the plan will "eliminate those trains that represent an unreasonable waste of limited resources."

Less than one-third of 1 percent of inter-city travelers use Amtrak trains, Long said, and two-thirds of fare costs are subsidized by taxpayers.

The Senate passed the measure after adopting an amendment requiring Amtrak to cut fares at least 25 percent for the elderly and handicapped.

The Carter administration in January recommended a 43 percent cutback with an estimated savings of $1.4 billion over the next five years.

Britain, Nigeria Feud over Seizure

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) - The dispute between Britain and Nigeria over Nigeria's seizure of British oil holdings overshadowed the Commonwealth Conference as it turned today to world economic and political problems and Southeast Asia. British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington confronted Nigerian Foreign Minister H.E.O. Adefope at an outdoor reception Wednesday and displayed his anger over the Nigerian government's seizure of British Petroleum's holdings in the West African country.

British officials were convinced that Nigeria's purpose was to warn Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher against recognizing the elected new biracial government in Zimbabwe Rhodesia, and Carrington told reporters:

"Nothing could be more counterproductive and less likely to succeed than an action of this kind to move the government's policy on southern Africa. This will have a serious affect on Anglo-Nigerian relations."

He strongly denied Nigeria's allegation that Britain was supplying oil to South Africa, which Nigeria said was the reason for the takeover.

Adefope told reporters the takeover was "not necessarily linked with Zimbabwe," but added, "We must get Britain to look at Zimbabwe in a different light...No black African can consider himself free until southern Africa is free."

Skulls Baffle Kentucky Scientists

RICHMOND, Ky. (AP) - Modeling clay and the hands of two anthropologists have recreated faces on the skulls of a man and woman whose remains were found in eastern Kentucky.

Photographs of the sculpted, mannequin-like faces were given to the news media and law enforcement authorities Wednesday in an effort to find out who they are.

The man's nearly intact skeleton was found in a snowstorm last January on a hillside about 75 yards from a highway in a thinly populated area of Breathitt County.

The woman's skull was found last summer by workers clearing a weeded lot in preparation for former President Richard Nixon's visit to Hyden, Ky. The rest of her skeleton was never found.

Dr. David Wolf, an anthropology professor at the University of Kentucky, and Virginia Smith, a graduate student with degrees in art and anthropology, reconstructed the faces by applying modeling clay directly to the skulls.

Wolf, who estimates he worked 200 to 300 hours on each face, said this is the first time such a technique has been used in Kentucky, where he is the only forensic anthropologist.

UNEF To Leave Sinai Wilderness

CAMP SINAI, Egypt (AP) - U.N. peacekeeping troops are packing their souvenirs of duty in the dusty Sinai wilderness - scorpions frozen in plastic, spent shell casings and pinup calendars - as they disband and head for home.

UNEF, the 4,015-man United Nations Emergency Force, ceased to exist on July 25, more than 5½ years after the U.N. Security Council sent it out to monitor the truce that ended the October 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

The death of the seven-nation peacekeeping force was an indirect result of the peace treaty signed by Israel and Egypt March 26 even though the treaty envisioned its continuance as a buffer force. The Soviet Union, opposed to the treaty, refused to agree to extension of UNEF's mandate from the Security Council.

The first to go were 140 Swedes who packed their gear Tuesday and began moving out of this base camp nestled in the rolling sand dunes of the northern Sinai about 17 miles east of the Suez Canal. The military withdrawal is expected to take up to two months. A number of civilians will remain behind to wind up such chores as shipping home equipment, but UNEF officials say they, too, should be gone within six months.

Fire Called Suspicious

HOUSTON (AP) - A "suspicious fire" is what investigators still call the seven-alarm blaze that destroyed 324 fashionable apartments and left more than 1,000 homeless.

"We're still treating it as a suspicious fire," said H.G. Torres, the Houston arson officer in charge of investigating the Tuesday fire at the Woodway Square Apartments on the near west side of Houston.

Accounts differ about who was seen working in the 1,080-unit complex before the fire began, he said, and must be sorted out before causes of Houston's worst fire in 69 years can be determined.

Fire officials blamed the quick spread of the flames on wood shingle roofs. It was Houston's seventh major apartment complex fire within three years and the fourth involving wood shingles.

Houston Fire Chief V.E. Rogers said more than 400 firefighters from Houston and a dozen surrounding areas brought the blaze under control after about three hours.

The blaze, which amazingly killed no one, may have lit a fire under Houston City Council which unanimously passed a long-delayed ordinance Wednesday strengthening standards for use of wood shingles on multiple residential units. Amendments to the ordinance will make it also apply to all new single-family dwellings.

Ironically, the council had tabled the measure just as the

Gasoline High But Available

HOUSTON (AP)—If you have the money to pay for it, there should be plenty of gasoline available for Texas motorists this weekend.

The American Automobile Association reports 33 percent of the stations checked will be pumping fuel Sunday, with 39 percent open after 6 p.m. Saturday.

These are the brightest figures since the Memorial Day weekend.

Prices continue to climb, about half a cent over the previous week.

At full service stations regular is 88.4 cents a gallon compared to 87.9 last week; unleaded is 92.2, up from 91.8 and premium is 93.9 up from 92.4.

For those who can find self-service stations this week's prices, with last week's in parentheses, are:

Regular 85.9 (85.5); unleaded 89.8 (89.3); premium 91.7 (91.4).

The availability of gasoline has improved in Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Amarillo, McAllen and Midland-Odessa.

Here is a breakdown on gasoline availability in Texas:

Amarillo, 36 stations surveyed, 58 percent closed after 8 p.m. weekdays, 17 percent closed after 6 p.m. Saturday, 61 percent closed Sunday.

Austin, 15 surveyed, 93 percent closed after 8 p.m. weekdays, 87 percent after 6 p.m. Saturday, 80 percent on Sunday.

Farmers

disappointment over the scrapping of the wheat set-aside during a telephone interview with The Brand this morning.

"I was upset over the announcement, because it seems to me that we're almost getting into the same situation that we saw when former Ag Secretary Earl Butz urged farmers to plant fence to fence a few years back. There was overproduction, problems with embargoes and all kinds of things that sent the price down at that time," stated Hance.

"I have to wonder just how stable the Russian market would be. I think we'd be better off to maintain the set-aside or post a substantial increase in the loan price, rather than just 15 cents. There is a possibility we may get an increase in the loan price above the 15 cents which Secretary Bergland announced. I've discussed it with him, and if it comes about, it will occur in the fall or early spring," added Hance.

Sam White of the Hance staff also reported to The Brand that Rep. Hance has introduced House Resolution 394, calling for establishment of a wheat set-aside for the 1980 crop year.

"If we don't have a set aside, it will drop the price below the crucial $3.40 level," commented White.

"We've got to have support for the set-aside resolution, so we can keep the price of wheat at a good level for farmers. We urge farmers to send cards and letters, or make calls to Secretary Bergland calling for a wheat set-aside, and we urge support for this resolution," stated White.

According to the Hance staffer, Bergland is expected to make a final announcement on whether or not there will be a wheat set-aside on August 15.

Carr said the associations represent 45,000 Texans in Gonzales, Tyler, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Austin, Houston, Waco, Yoakum, Lubbock, Weslaco, Plainview, Runge, Galveston and Irving.

Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, and, according to Carr, some dozen House members also were present.

The purpose of the statewide campaign, Carr said, is to "gain power to control our tax destiny in the years ahead."

"Government has grown too large, it is costing too much money and taxes do not leave enough in our pockets to maintain our desired standard of living," Carr said.

He said the U.S. Department of Commerce estimates the average American pays 45 cents out of every dollar he or she earns in taxes. "The federal lords were required to give their feudal serfs one-third of their labor. The average American is already required to give his government almost one-half of all he makes," Carr said.

Based on current trends, Carr added, the commerce department has stated the taxes will claim 85 cents out of every $1 in 20 years.

He suggested the "tax revolt" of the 1970s may become "only a Sunday school picnic compared to the tax revolt that will inevitably come during our children's time" unless government spending and taxing is cut back to a "reasonable level."

Chagra - Good or Bad?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Jimmy Chagra - big-time smuggler of "Colombian Connection" cocaine and marijuana or a hero who flew to South America only on a mercy mission?

Lawyers for the 34-year-old Las Vegas gambler and the United States government placed that question before jurors Wednesday at the start of Chagra's trial on charges he masterminded the importation of tons of marijuana and pounds of cocaine.

The eight-man, four-woman jury was picked after U.S. District Judge William Sessions of El Paso warned that jurors must not consider the fact that the original judge in the case was assassinated May 29.

Federal Judge John H. Wood, Jr. of San Antonio was murdered by an unknown gunman as he left his apartment.

Sessions is protected around-the-clock by armed U.S. marshals, and guards searched purses or briefcases of everyone entering the federal courthouse.

Wood was not the only person connected with the case to die violently.

Chagra's lawyer brother, Lee, was murdered last December in his El Paso office, and the records law enforcement officers found there reportedly fueled a federal grand jury drug investigation that still continues.

The Chagra charge with the biggest wallop is "continuing criminal enterprise" in illicit drugs. Conviction carries a prison sentence of 10 years to life imprisonment, a possible $100,000 fine and confiscation of any profits he might have made from the drug trade.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ronald Guyer of San Antonio said in opening arguments to the jury that the continuing criminal enterprise law "may be termed the 'kingpin statute.'"

"What the government will bring to you will be testimony of accomplices of Mr. Chagra, co-conspirators who acted with Mr. Chagra in many offenses from 1974 to 1978," Guyer told the jury.

He said the government would prove that Chagra flew to Colombia in November 1977, met a confederate who had "made contact with Mr. Chagra's sources" and flew out with 13.2 pounds of cocaine.

Other accomplices, Guyer said, sold 4.4 pounds of the drug and returned $70,000 to Chagra to finance a shipload of marijuana from Colombia.

Ultimately, he said, federal authorities confiscated three ships carrying 100,000 pounds of marijuana, all tied in some way to Chagra.

Guyer said the government also would prove that in 1974 through 1976 Chagra "was responsible for delivery" of tons of marijuana to Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Oklahoma — the latter case involving a single shipment of 17,000 pounds to Ardmore.

Chagra's lead attorney, Oscar Goodman of Las Vegas, Nev., said the government's case rested on "purchased testimony" of the alleged accomplices.

"The government witnesses have been offered the fact that they won't be prosecuted for their offenses," Goodman said.

He said Chagra did, indeed, "fly in and out of Colombia once but not to smuggle out cocaine."

"Jimmy Chagra was contacted by Lee (Chagra) to aid an individual burned in Colombia in 1977. Jimmy Chagra arranged to have an air ambulance fly down to aid this individual. Jimmy Chagra advised the U.S. authorities he was going to pick up this injured individual. He picked up medicine to treat the burns. The government will try to show this was nefarious activity. The evidence will show it was an heroic act on his part," Goodman said.

He told jurors that Lee Chagra was the "subject of intense interest on the part of the U.S. Government. They believed Lee Chagra was the kingpin of operations involving marijuana and cocaine."

"Former representatives of the government will testify that Lee Chagra was the suspect, but their interest shifted from Lee Chagra (to Jimmy Chagra) because of the Colombian incident and the murder of Lee Chagra," Goodman said.

Lee Chagra often represented defendants in federal drug cases, and his frequent adversary was Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr of San Antonio.

Kerr, highly active in drug prosecution and in an El Paso federal grand jury investigation of the international narcotics trade's possible links to that city, narrowly escaped death when his car was riddled with 20 bullets in November.

Jimmy Chagra has denied any connection with either the attempt on Kerr's life or Wood's assassination, although his lawyers had claimed Wood was biased and tried to get him to turn the case over to another judge.

Sessions spoke to potential jurors of the Wood assassination Wednesday and told them the trial would involve only the four-count drug indictment.

Television Set Stolen from Home

Alice Rodriguez, 303 Witherpoon, told police Wednesday that someone entered her home between 7 p.m. Tuesday and 2 p.m. Wednesday and stole a 12-inch black-and-white television set.

Police did not know how entry was gained.

A 13-year-old white male was arrested for allegedly making obscene telephone calls Wednesday. Police said he was caught through a telephone company tap.

Mrs. Danny Martin, 206 Ranger, told police Wednesday that someone stole a red and white Western Flyer one-speed bicycle sometime last week. She added that a five-speed bicycle had been stolen from her home about six months ago.

Officers investigated minor traffic accidents Wednesday in the alley behind the 700 block of Stanton and in the 600 block of N. Main. The latter involved a car and motorcycle.

Collector's Items

This month Deaf Smith County Library chose Bob Hillerby as their displayer for August, with his collection of antique printed newspapers titled "Antique Printing From the Collection of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Hillerby." Hammett started his collection two and a half years ago. He has portions of the lawbook printed by Ben Franklin and his oldest item was printed in 1709 by Addison & Steel, who were early publishers. Hillerby is self-employed by Graphics Printing. He resides at 147 Ironwood with his wife, Alice, and their two sons. [Brand Photo by Denise Smith]

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Recently on the Phil Donahue show, educator Dr. Raymond S. Moore discussed why he thought children would be more emotionally secure and better educated if kept out of school until they are nine or ten years old.

It's not the sort of thing I'm capable of handling in August. This is the time of year when my "emotional security" is reduced to squatting in a corner macrameing my own hair.

I'm not saying the theory is without merit. I'm only saying it would certainly foul up the timetable as we know it.

If kids started to school at, say, ten years old, they would go through puberty before they could spell it, drive a car only a couple of years after they're permitted to cross the street with the light, and get a checkmark under Personal Habits for "not shaving regularly."

Can you imagine your eighth-grader coming home one day and saying, "Mom, Debbie and I are going to get married Saturday," and your exclaiming, "What! And miss the Science Fair?"

The emotional development of a child is important, of course. But what happens to the emotions of a mother who is sentenced to a home with a child hanging around with nothing to do for the first ten years of his or her life?

At age one, the child pulls himself up to the table.

At age two, the child pulls the tablecloth off the table.

At age three, the child crayons on the table.

At age four, the child climbs in the middle of the table and takes off all his clothes.

At age five, the child pounds nails into the table.

At age six, the child pulls the table over to the cupboards and gets to the cookies.

At age seven, the child saws the leg off the table.

At age eight, the child shoves the table outside and leaves it in the rain.

At age nine, the child paints the table.

At age ten, he sells it.

The idea may work, but when these emotionally mature children graduate, prepare to see emotional 70-year-old mothers in the audience.

Ann Landers

Grossed Out

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few days ago my father left my mother. He came out of the closet and announced he is a homosexual and will appear everywhere with his lover. "I am sick and tired of leading a double life," he told me. "From now on I'm going to be what I am out in the open and if anyone doesn't like it, that's THEIR problem."

My mother is beside herself. She can't understand how he could have kept this secret for so long. She swears she never had an inkling. When I gave my husband the news he almost passed out. Couldn't believe it.

How shall I tell my in-laws? They are conservative Baptist Fundamentalists. I dread it. Ann, especially since my father has made it clear that he has every intention of attending all family functions and plans to bring his lover along. What will this do to my mother? She is a wonderful person and I hate to see her hurt and humiliated.

I have two married sisters who have small children. What shall I tell them? Please give me some help. My head is spinning...Grossed Out In Grosse Pointe

DEAR G.O.: Tell them exactly what you told me. Don't bother to try to put a better face on this one. There's no way you can do it.

As for your father attending all family functions and bringing his lover, he would have to be invited, like any other guest, wouldn't he? If you want him—invite him. If he shows up uninvited with his lover (who I take it is not welcome) you have ever right to usher them both to the door and onto the street—just like any other party crashers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It is both amusing and annoying to see how often you suggest "counseling" or "therapy" or advise a reader to "see your clergyman." It's a simple way to pass the buck when you don't know what else to say -- a very transparent dodge, to say the least.

Why do you suppose people write to you? It's YOUR counseling they want, Ann.

Another thing--when you give such advice, do you honestly believe these people know where to go to get "counseling?" Psychiatrists in the big cities charge as much as $100 an hour. Not many people can afford such "help." I never expect to see this letter in the paper but I feel better for having gotten it off my chest.--Sarasota, Fla.

DEAR SARA: A great many people who write to Ann Landers need a lot more help than I can give them. A life that has been loused up for 15 years cannot be straightened out in three inches of newspaper space. Moreover, I am not a therapist. These people need to talk to someone--on a continuing basis. Often family counseling is in order. When I say, "Get professional help," I mean just that.

As to where to get "counseling"--anyone who has read this column for a month or more knows that I constantly repeat (at the risk of boring my readers to death)...Look in your phone book under Mental Health Clinic--or call Family Service, the Salvation Army, Call Alcoholics Anonymous--phone Gamblers Anonymous. Ask your physician to make an appointment with a competent therapist. Call the nearest medical or dental school. Write to the American Psychiatric Association or the American Psychological Association.

I make no apologies for the advice I give. But I know my limitations. Many readers have told me that the best advice I ever gave was..."Get counseling."

"Learning to parent" begins the moment we are aware of being parented, says Diane Welch, a family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

CHRIS PAETZOLD AND KAY FOSTER...honeymooning in Colorado

Foster-Paetzold Wedding Solemnized Last Night

Summer bouquets of white chrysanthemums and blue daisies flanked the altar of St. Anthony's Catholic Church Wednesday evening for the marriage of Miss Kay Foster and Chris Paetzold. The nuptial ceremony was conducted by Deacon Kenneth Artho.

The bride is the daughter of Leroy Foster, 600 Star Street, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Paetzold, Route 3.

Miss Kim Foster attended her sister as Maid of Honor while Gary Gallagher served as the best man.

Steve Gallagher and the bride's brother, Kevin Foster, ushered guests to their seats in the sanctuary.

Debbie Paetzold, the bridegroom's sister, led the processional as the flower girl. She was escorted by the ring bearer, Paul Devin, son of Edna Devin. Candles at the altar were lighted by Bryan and Mark Urbanczyk.

Instrumental versions of "The Lord's Prayer" and "Wedding Prayer" were performed at the organ by Gwynne Hacker.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a slipper-length wedding dress of bridal taffeta beneath silk organza. The Victorian collar and yoke were of sheer organza and edged with a lace ruffle. Her A-line skirt, sweeping to back fullness to form a Chapel train, was enhanced by matching lace motifs.

Her fingertip-length veil of sheer silk organza was bordered by a wide band of coordinated lace. She carried a silk nosegay of white daisies nestled in a cluster of blue silk babybreath.

Her honor attendant was attired in a formal-length gown of blue silk organza designed with fitted bodice flowing into a princess skirt. A wide ruffle of organza was draped at the cameo neckline. She carried a bouquet of white roses and daisies.

Immediately afterwards, the newlywed couple received their guests in the church's Antonian Room. Lynette Rhoton served the four-tiered wedding cake trimmed with blue daisies and topped with an angel figurine.

Miniature bride and groom figures were positioned in the middle tiers of the cake, which was flanked by flowing fountains. Jill Davis poured coffee and punch. The table, draped with white lace over blue linen, was appointed with crystal.

An arrangement of white and blue daisies marked the registry table, where Karen Foster presided. The small table was laid with white lace and a blue underlay. Guests signed the book with a white plumed pen.

For a honeymoon trip to Colorado Springs, Colo., the newlywed Mrs. Paetzold chose to wear a three-piece blue pantsuit. The couple will be at home after one week on a farm south of Hereford.

The bride is a senior student at Hereford High School. The groom, who graduated from Hereford High in 1978, is employed as a truck driver by Hominy Feeds in Amarillo.

Out-of-town guests attending last night's wedding included Edna Devin, Karen Foster and Paul Devin, all of Florida.

After 19 years, he moved to Pearsall and Devine, a dual-parish, then to Corpus Christi for seven years. He served for a brief time as president of the Lutheran Evangelism School at Wichita Falls before moving to Albany, Tx.

He started a new congregation at Breckenridge in 1977 and opened a Spanish congregation a year later. While in Corpus Christi, he was president of the Hospital Chaplain's Association and became chaplain in the Civil Air Patrol.

He is presently in the Doctor Ministry program at Concordia Seminary, Fort Wayne, Ind., having studied there this summer. His wife, Sande, is a native of Saginaw, Mich., but has spent most of her life in South Texas. She is an experienced LVN.

Stanton Dogie Roundup

We are borrowing from Dan Valentine, author of American Essays, for a portion of today's column--from his essay, "What Is A School."

"A school is a building of four walls... with tomorrow inside. A school is a store...with knowledge on its shelves.

A school is a building with a mind, a building that questions and explores...and probes...a school is many things.

It is a glow in a teacher's heart. It is a question in a young boy's eyes...It is the echo of children's laughter at recess time...the sound of bells in busy hallways...a choir of young voices raised in husky song...

A school is filled with eagerness and energy. Its halls are choked with vitality and the electricity of learning.

It is always the youngest building in town. It is never empty. All the great minds of the past live in its classrooms... and all the great leaders of the future roam its halls.

There are old schools filled with the ghosts of students grown old and with the memories of teachers long gone. There are new schools, streamlined for the future, designed for new frontiers.

But young or old, large or small, a school is more than bricks and wood, steel and concrete, desks and blackboards and books...A school is more of a spirit than a physical structure.

It is a building erected on the strong foundation of knowledge, held together with the mortar of wisdom. It is built with the bricks of dreams, constructed with the timbers of history...and roofed with the shingles of truth.

Young hope walks its corridors...Young dreams climb its stairways...Young ambitions fill its classrooms...A school is a beacon of light...a shopping center for the mind.

A school never dies. It can be crippled by time, blackened by fire, shaken by unbelievers, threatened by zealots and bigots, and weakened structurally through the years. But its scholastic foundation never wavers...its strong beams of knowledge never grow old.

A school gives a priceless heritage to the young...a legacy of laughter and carefree days...A school opens wide vistas so that young eyes can see over high mountains and across wide plains.

A school provides charts for unsailed seas. A school provides lessons in the past to help answer the questions of the future...A school is a giant gymnasium where the very young can exercise the muscles of the mind.

There is a special flavor around a school...the aroma of erasers and chalk, wet shoes, poster paper, paste, crayons, dust and old gym shoes...

There is a distinct atmosphere about a school...an atmosphere of conquests and victories...and the dreams of things to come...It's a beacon of hope...it's a lighthouse of knowledge...it's the future of the world with bricks around it...It's the youngest building in town...It's a school!"

How does this compare with your idea of a typical school? The new school year will begin within just a few weeks and hundreds of boys and girls in the Hereford area will enroll for classes in one of the nine schools here in Hereford. Surely these campuses will provide these students with a beacon of hope from their lighthouse of knowledge!

But it takes more than what the student can do! For our school to be successful, the entire community should be involved. As you prepare your child for "back-to-school" with new clothes, school supplies, athletic physicals, band instruments...also prepare yourselves, mother and dad, for being a more involved part of your child's education this year. Get acquainted with your child's teachers--the day-to-day managers of the classroom--the place where the educating takes place. With parents and teachers working together, better education can and will take place.

(Next week--teenagers)

Clean up and fix up have been in order since the storm which did damage to homes in the Adrian area. There are some good samaritans in Adrian that this reporter knows of. He was hospitalized until Monday, when he returned home to see friends on his roof with new shingles, hammers and nails.

The residents of Adrian are contributing to a hospital fund for Olney and anyone wishing to make donations can send their gifts to Rev. D.C. WASHINGTON (AP) — The exhibit "The Whiskey Rebels" is being shown at the National Portrait Gallery through Dec. 9.

The gallery says the show's subject comes from "the federal levy on domestic whiskey, instituted in 1791, and the ensuing rebellion by the frontiersmen of Western Pennsylvania — the first armed challenge to the newly established federal government."

The show includes a portrait of Alexander Hamilton, whose "policies initiated the revolt."

NEW YORK (AP) — The exhibition "Collecting for the Future: 25 Years of Acquisitions" is on view at the New-York Historical Society through Oct. 1.

The show includes historically significant and are material acquired since 1954. On view are American paintings, sculpture, silver, furniture, maps, prints, manuscripts, books, photographs, architectural drawings and historic memorabilia.

On July 15, the society will honor the 40th anniversary of the World's Fair with an exhibit titled "Yesterday's View of the Future: Revisiting the World's Fair of '39." The show will include design and construction plans, publications and other memorabilia.

Nicaragua and its erstwhile strongman have at last parted company...

Pedro Joaquin Chamorro Cardenal, editor of the newspaper La Prensa...

The responsibility for his death is still not precisely fixed, and may never be...

Chamorro's death and the attendant publicity transformed the Nicaraguan situation...

The life of its editor was not, however, the only cost to La Prensa of the Nicaraguan civil war...

That was not to be the end of La Prensa, however, any more than Chamorro's death...

Pending rebuilding of La Prensa's own plant, they expect to publish on borrowed equipment...

That is a businesslike form of poetic justice that newspaperman Chamorro would surely have appreciated.

The ayatollah is not charmed

Who are we to believe - Karl Marx or the Ayatollah Khomeini? The former laid it down...

Not so, the latter, now says. Music fulfills that socially undesirable function, at least in revolutionary Iran...

It thus joins alcohol, Western movies and educational swimming as officially certified and proscribed paths...

It's conceivable the ayatollah might have had second thoughts about taking such a drastic step...

The man that hath no music in himself, Nor is not mov'd with concord of sweet sounds...

The motions of his spirit are dull as night, And his affections dark as Erebus:

Finishes Post-Season With 8-2 Record

Herd Stars Eliminated In Tourney

NEW ORLEANS—Post-season competition ended last night for the Hereford 13-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars as they fell to East Texas Alvin 5-1 here in third round regional play.

Coach Gene Combs said that the team just couldn't hit the ball and when that happens winning is hard to come by.

"Alvin's pitcher just baffled our hitters," Combs said. "He wasn't throwing hard or even much junk, but whatever it was we couldn't hit the ball."

The East Texas team jumped to an early 3-0 lead after the initial inning and scored two more in the third to wrap up the third round victory. Hereford was able to push its lone run across the plate in the third inning.

"Those first few innings did us in," Combs said. "We made a few fielding errors and when we got behind we couldn't hit the ball to catch up."

"The shortstop on that team seemed to be everywhere, he was tremendous, and whenever we hit the ball he always seemed to make the play."

Hereford reached the Southwest Regional Tournament with two consecutive tournament wins in Pampa and Plainview earlier in the season. As the representative of the West Texas area, Hereford was one of eight teams to reach the third round of post-season play.

Entries Being Taken For Hereford Tennis

The YMCA sponsored Hereford Closed Tennis Tournament set for Aug. 24-26, now has entries available according to Weldon Knabe, program director.

Eligibility for the tournament requires that all entries be a resident of Hereford. Cost of each event is $7 per player.

Events scheduled to be contested include singles and doubles for men and women in the two different divisions, single and doubles in high boys and girls, singles and doubles for junior high and singles for elementary boys and girls.

Placement in the specific divisions is set by the year of

The team will leave New Orleans today at 12:35 and will arrive in Amarillo this afternoon. Combs said it's been a long year and the kids should be proud of themselves.

"These guys can hold their heads high after what they have accomplished. They have represented the town and the area magnificently the entire time they have been playing."

With the elimination of the team, Hereford has had all of its all-star team complete baseball for the summer.

school that will be entered this fall.

Entries can be picked up at either the Chamber of Commerce office or the YMCA. Deadline for entry is Aug. 22.

Volleyball Team To Meet

All girls that will be participating in volleyball for the coming school year should attend a meeting set for Friday, Aug. 3 at Dameron Park, according to Helen Reed, HHS volleyball coach.

The meeting, which will begin at 8:30 a.m. will be for old and new players and a reminder to have physicals taken before the beginning of school.

Red Grange is a charter member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

while Ron Houston (left) and Paul Holligan are coaches. The team completed post-season play last night as they lost the second time in the double elimination Southwest Regional Tournament being held in New Orleans. The team's post-season record ended at 8-2. (Brand photo)

Sundberg Leads Texas To Win

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Nothing seems to bother Jim Kern—not even the revolving door that is the Texas Ranger clubhouse.

"Oh, you get used to all that coming and going," said Kern Wednesday night after he had earned save No. 18 with a five-strikeout performance in two and one-thirds inning of relief of Steve Comer.

Kern said "I just sort of forget about all the trades and all the commotion going on. I just go out there and crank out the heat."

Thanks to a two-run triple in the sixth inning by Jim Sundberg and a tremendous defensive play in the ninth inning by the Ranger catcher Texas outlasted Detroit, 4-3.

Comer (12-6) was the winner and Milt Wilcox (8-5) was the loser.

"I like to pitch every other day if I can," said the hard-working Kern whose fastball has been timed over 100 miles per hour. "I've only asked for time off twice this year."

Kern struck out five Tigers, four of them in a row.

In the ninth inning, Kern walked Lance Parrish who made a daring play when Sundberg crashed into the backstop catching a foul off Al Greene's bat. Parrish tagged up and darted to second but Sundberg nailed him with a rifle throw.

Parrish tried to apologize to Tiger Manager Sparky Anderson but was told one was not needed.

"It was a helluva play by Sundberg," said Anderson.

Parrish said "he (Sundberg) was about as far from second as he could get. I figured he wouldn't be able to make a good throw. I thought I had a decent shot."

Texas Manager Pat Corrales said Kern had been struggling lately but was back on the target now.

"He's a human being," said Corrales. "He's not perfect. Sometimes we think he is."

Texas scored its other two runs on run-producing singles by Mickey Rivers, involved in trade with the New York Yankees for Oscar Gamble, and Buddy Bell.

Detroit got two-run scoring singles from Alan Trammell and one from Ron Leflore.

Texas, chasing California and Minnesota in the American League West, goes on a long road trip in which it will play three doubleheaders and the Baseball Hall of Fame "exhibition" game all in one week.

"We can't even afford to play .500 ball," said Corrales. "We've got to play much better than that."

Orioles Show Strength By Sweeping Brewers

Now that the Baltimore Orioles have proven to the Milwaukee Brewers who's boss in the American League East, they'll try to show the New York Yankees the same thing.

Baltimore swept three games from the previously red-hot Brewers in Milwaukee, climaxing the rout with a 5-2 victory Wednesday. The Orioles lead second-place Boston by 7½ games; are 9½ ahead of Milwaukee and 14 in front of the two-time defending World Champion Yankees. The Orioles invade Yankee Stadium Friday for a four-game series.

Al Bumbry extended his hitting streak to 13 games, opening the contest with a single that spurred a three-run Baltimore first inning off Larry Sorensen, 12-11. Dennis Martinez, 14-8, coasted home with an eight-hitter as the Orioles won for the 13th time in 15 games.

"It wasn't do or die, but it certainly was crucial," said Bumbry. "We came here feeling we had to win two out of three. Winning all three means now we know we can beat Milwaukee."

Milwaukee beat the Yankees three times over the weekend for a sweep of their own but those victories had little meaning following Baltimore's devastation of the Brewers.

Rich Dauer added a solo homer for Baltimore, which has a 72-34 record and a .679 percentage. At their present rate, the Orioles would win 110 games this season.

In other AL games, Cleveland had its 10-game victory string under unbeaten Manager Dave Garcia broken by Boston 7-4; Oakland stopped Minnesota 7-1; Kansas City nipped Toronto 4-3; New York defeated Chicago 9-1; Texas edged Detroit 4-3, and Seattle beat California 7-6.

Red Sox 7, Indians 4

Jim Rice had a pair of two-run homers, giving him the AL lead with 27 this season, and Dennis Eckersley, 13-5, beat his former teammates on a 10-hitter. The Red Sox thus salvaged one game of the four-game series and moved on to Milwaukee tonight.

The game was delayed 2 hours, 18 minutes by rain.

A's 7, Twins 1

The A's got their fourth consecutive complete game and won for the fifth time in the last seven contests. Rick Langford pitched an eight-hitter for his fifth route-going effort of the year. Langford has been the victor in five of the last 10 Oakland wins, dating back to June 22.

"I might go into a state of shock with statistics like that being thrown at me," said Manager Jim Marshall. "But we're using kids and some are getting better. It would be an awfully long winter ahead if they didn't."

Royals 4, Blue Jays 3

Kansas City got its sweep of a three-game set against Toronto as sore-thumbed George Brett, designated hitting instead of playing third base, had two doubles and a single and drove in a pair of runs.

Brett singled home Willie Wilson in the first, then snapped a 2-2 tie with an RBI double in the fifth.

Yankees 9, White Sox 1

Reggie Jackson, Lou Piniella and Jerry Narron powered home runs and the Yankees completed a three-game sweep of Chicago, which has lost seven in a row. Don Hood, 4-0, pitched seven innings of four-hit ball for

New York, after he learned 10 minutes before the game that scheduled starter Ed Figueroa had arm trouble.

Mariners 7, Angels 6

Dan Meyer homered, doubled and singled and drove in three runs for Seattle while Randy Stein, 1-1, pitched 31-3 innings of shutout relief. Meyer's homer was his 15th and Bill Stein also connected for his fourth.

Aaron Kyle To Miss Contest

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — A bruised left knee probably will keep veteran right cornerback Aaron Kyle out of the Dallas Cowboys' preseason home opener Saturday night against the Denver Broncos.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said Dennis Thurman would replace the four-year veteran and former No. 1 draft choice in the Cowboy lineup. However, Landry said second-round draft choice Aaron Mitchell of Nevada-Las Vegas would see action.

Professional Wrestling Canceled

The cancellation includes this Saturday night, which was scheduled to be the first matches of the month.

Blind Trackster Enjoys Competition

PLANTATION, Fla. (AP) — "There's no greater feeling of accomplishment than crossing the finish line first," says 17-year-old Sheila Holzworth. But when she started doing it at high school meets back in Des Moines, Iowa, opposing coaches stopped liking it. Sheila, who lost her sight in a freak accident at age 10, runs with an electronic pager to help her stay in her lane. "At first, everyone said, 'Oh, isn't that nice. A blind girl running track,'" the Dowling High School senior said. "But when I started winning, they started becoming jealous. Coaches complained that I was getting an electric zap out of the device to help my time — as crazy as it sounds." She may compete as long as she follows the rules, the Iowa High School Athletic Association ruled. Holzworth was here to receive her paging system from Motorola's communications department. She changed into a maroon and white running suit to demonstrate it on Plantation High's track. "Winning means a great deal to me because I like the attention," the sprinter said. "I like the attention because I don't want to be shoved away like blind people used to be. I like to show that being blind doesn't mean you're useless." She also enjoys trick skiing, horseback riding, roller skating, cycling and dancing, but admits the skiing requires some polishing and her time of 12.8 seconds in the 100-meter dash isn't as good as it could be. The Iowa state high school record is four-tenths of a second faster. "Being blind is more of an inconvenience than a handicap," Holzworth says. "Heck, the hardest thing for me to do is match my socks in the morning."

The electronics company's pager makes her track competition easier. She'd been guided by a family friend and ham radio operator, but sometimes the transmission failed or she'd pick up signals from other hams in the area — once for a pizza order. "Whenever it failed, I'd end up running into a fence or out of the lane and wiping out someone," she explained. "I never imagined this new system could be this good. It's almost perfect." Her competition has drawn a lot of attention. Holzworth has been asked to lead an annual

Easter Seals Marathon and the family has been approached about making a movie. "I just hope that what I'm doing will help other blind people realize their potential," she said. "I'd like to compete in track in college and the Olympics if I keep improving." The great Kelso won five straight renewals of the Jockeys' Club Gold Cup. Richard Sheppard, D.D.S. Tarkenton's Place In Broadcast Booth A Natural Fran Tarkenton may have finally found his calling. After 18 years of scrambling around, he seems to have found steady work.

And he's a natural at it. His new job is occupying the hot seat between Howard Cosell and Frank Gifford on ABC's "Monday Night Football." Tarkenton and Don Meredith will share color duties, alternating in the role of the former pro quarterback whose career is playfully ridiculed by Cosell.

Tarkenton held up admirably Saturday in his ABC debut at the Hall of Fame Game between the Dallas Cowboys and the Oakland Raiders. He and Cosell bantered well together. This is important because ABC's regular season broadcasts are in prime time, and they need viewership from the folks who don't have subscriptions to "Pro Football Weekly" or don't know the up-to-the-minute point spreads.

"If the game is 35-0, how do you keep interest?" asks Tarkenton. "You've got to talk about something besides the game. Howard is a unique super talent. He gets conversations going. I enjoy that type of bantering. I'm a master at it. I do it all the time."

But more importantly for the football fan, Tarkenton gives real meaning to the term expert commentator. His analysis was interesting and forthright, and his commentary drew praise from Cosell. "I like the way Sir Francis talks — right on the line."

If anything, Tarkenton may have problems because he's hyper-critical. His standards may be too high for mere mortals after his spectacular career with Minnesota and the New York Giants stamped him one of the greatest quarterbacks in National Football League history.

"After playing 18 years, I know all the ins and outs," he said in a telephone interview.

"My problem will be opposite to many color men. I might be too critical because I demand such excellence of myself and people around me. But the important thing is I've got to be me. I've got to be honest."

Tarkenton has the utmost confidence in himself. When he was looking around for a network TV job, he wouldn't accept second-string duty. He wanted to be part of a network's top football crew. NBC, which used Tarkenton as a pre-game commentator the past three years, turned him down. ABC, which had problems convincing Meredith to increase his workload when the network got Sunday and Thursday games, said yes.

Tarkenton, a participating chairman of the board of a management consulting firm headquartered in Atlanta, was asked if it would be difficult to stay on top of the football beat because of his varied business interests. "It won't be hard because I'm a sports fan," he said. "I read the sports pages every day."

Tarkenton retired from football because it wasn't a satisfying outlet anymore, even though his 1978-79 season was a good one.

"I haven't had a single pang of regret," he said. "Quite frankly, football wasn't fun last year. I had done it too long."

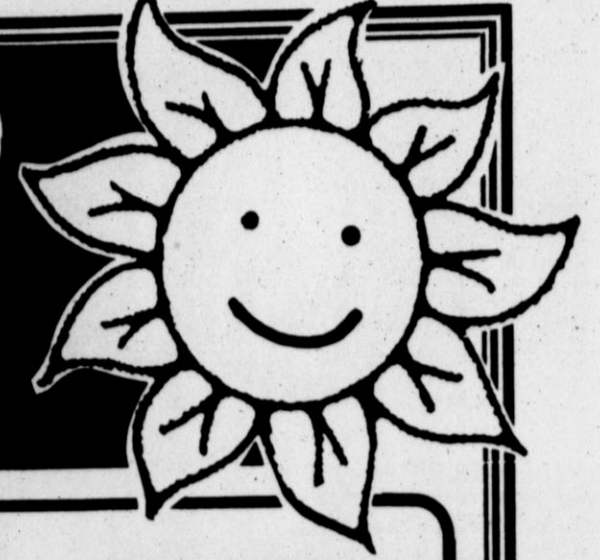

His first pang may come Oct. 15, when the Vikings play the

New York Jets. That Monday night, the best Minnesota quarterback will be in the broadcast booth rooting for the Vikings.

It could be a very helpless feeling.

En route to his record time of 2:24 in winning the 1973 Belmont Stakes, the great Secretariat was timed in 1:09 4-5 for the first six furlongs, running against the wind in the backstretch.

Cards Play Oilers Tonight

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — On July 13, St. Louis Cardinals Coach Bud Wilkinson noted that the return of J.V. Cain at tight end could make the position one of strength for the 1979 season.

Nine days later, Cain, a Houston native, collapsed and died during a Cardinal practice.

Cain's teammates will try to put aside thoughts of the tragedy tonight when they open their exhibition season in the Astro-dome against the Houston Oilers. Kickoff is at 7 p.m. CDT.

There will be a moment of silence in honor of Cain, who had been looking forward to playing before fans in his native Houston.

Cardinal Vice President Bing Devine said the team would never really put Cain's death out of their minds.

"We had a scrimmage last Saturday and I think the outside challenge of the scrimmage was beneficial," Devine said. "It gave the team some action and something to relate to."

Cardinal Coach Bud Wilkinson had counted on Cain coming back from Achilles tendon surgery to help the team this season. He'll now rely on Al Chandler and Eason Ramson, who filled in for Cain last season.

Jim Hart will open at quarterback against the Oilers with backup Steve Pisarkiewicz also seeing action.

The Cardinals used their first two draft picks to select running backs Ottis Anderson of Miami and Theotis Brown of UCLA in an effort to improve their 25th place finish in rushing among the 26 NFL teams last season.

Houston Coach Bum Phillips will start backup quarterback Gifford Nielsen while starter Dan Pastorini continues to recover from a sore shoulder.

An abundance of nagging injuries bothers Phillips.

"We've never had this many hurt before, not even after the first few games of the year," Phillips said. "We haven't even been scrimmaging. Imagine what it would be like if we'd had full contact."

The Oilers dipped heavily into the college defensive talent pool and came up with defensive linemen Mike Stensrud of Iowa State and Jesse Baker of Jacksonville, Ala., State.

Phillips said both would see plenty of action against the Cardinals.

The Cardinals, who lost their first eight games last season, came back to win six of their last eight for a 6-10 record while the Oilers finished 10-6 in the regular season and advanced to the American Football Conference championship game before losing to Pittsburgh.

Meanwhile, Carl Eller will face his former Minnesota Vikings teammates tonight in the first preseason encounter for his new club, the Seattle Seahawks.

The Seahawks, who obtained the 37-year-old defensive end this week for 24-year-old defensive tackle Steve Niehaus, have been trying since then to justify the deal.

"It is a trade I normally wouldn't make," said Seattle head Coach Jack Patera, who coached Eller's defensive line in Minnesota before the Seahawks hired him in 1976. He explained that Niehaus, the club's No. 1 pick that first year, hadn't lived up to his potential, and that Eller "was Minnesota's best defensive lineman last season."

The New York Giants also will meet a recently traded ex-teammate Saturday when they host the Cleveland Browns at the Meadowlands.

The Giants traded Jack Gregory to the Browns Wednesday after the defensive end "walked out of camp Monday and threatened to retire unless the Giants worked out a suitable trade."

"Cleveland — that's my town. I've been sorry ever since I left," said Gregory, a 13-year veteran and the Giants' defensive captain the last three seasons. He will be returning to the club with which he began in 1967 and earned All-Pro honors.

The Giants also lost four-year veteran tackle Bill Bain to the Washington Redskins, who acquired him on waivers Wednesday along with guard Gary Anderson from the New Orleans Saints.

The San Francisco 49ers received encouraging news on running back James Owens, their first draft choice out of UCLA, who was reported in good condition Wednesday after being hospitalized in Palo Alto, Calif., for non-contagious meningitis. The 49ers expect him to miss only about a week of drills.

Baseball Furious At NBC's Switchover

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Baseball is furious at its long-time television partner, NBC, because the network cut short coverage of the Saturday Game of the Week for the National Sports Festival in Colorado Springs.

In less sensitive TV times, this slight may have been shoved under an executive's rug somewhere. But, with the rival Olympics one year away, it meant war.

Baseball is putting its spiked foot down. The national pastime hates sharing its 1980 summer with the Olympics, but it has no choice next July. This July, however, it will fight any inroads into its live and promotional airtime.

"It's an absolute breach of contract," Tom Villante, baseball's director of marketing and broadcasting, said Monday. "The whole situation is outrageous, and we're not going to take it lightly."

NBC's four-year contract with baseball requires that games be shown in their entirety. Baseball wasn't consulted on Saturday when NBC decided to leave the Atlanta-Cincinnati and New York Mets-Chicago Cubs games to show one hour of taped highlights from the Sports Festival.

Villante says he wouldn't have granted permission, but the overture should have been made anyway.

"Why wasn't there any communication?" asked Villante. "I'm concerned about the spirit and good faith of the contract with NBC. Is their attitude toward baseball changing?"

There doesn't appear very much baseball can do to NBC for the contract violation, but Villante is very concerned that the network doesn't begin treating the national pastime as a second-class citizen. He was already upset because NBC had given publicity and aid to the impostor who cavorted on the field in an American League uniform at the All-Star Game two weeks ago.

Villante is also concerned about Don Ohlmeyer, NBC's high-powered executive producer who was hired away from ABC because of his Olympics expertise.

For his part, Ohlmeyer considered the National Sports Festival the network's only live practice session to work on the taping and packaging that will be so essential to the smooth broadcast of 152 hours of Olympics next year.

Ohlmeyer says he alone made the decision to cut off baseball and plug in the Sports Festival. "It was not a decision I made lightly, but it was strictly a programming decision, ultimately predicated on length of time," he said.

Ohlmeyer said the main game (Cincinnati-Atlanta) ran late and eventually ended at 5:42 p.m. EDT, leaving only 18 minutes for the Sports Festival broadcast. He said he petitioned the network for latitude in pushing its evening programming back to accommodate both baseball and the Sports Festival, but was turned down.

"We were set to handle a normal five- to 10-minute baseball runover, but 30 to 45 minutes wipes out an entire show," Ohlmeyer said. "Baseball's being upset is legitimate. Conversely, if we had let baseball run over, the U.S. Olympic Committee would have been upset."

Villante, who says he received an apology Monday morning from NBC Sports President Art Watson, doesn't feel NBC had any choice. The baseball game came first and was foremost.

"Where did Ohlmeyer come off making the decision by himself?" Villante said angrily. "I'm bothered by his cavalier attitude: the public and baseball are damned. They made a bad business decision in not giving themselves enough time between events. But baseball had to be the priority."

Villante said the Atlanta-Cincinnati game, originally a two-night doubleheader, was switched to a day game to accommodate the national telecast. "Maybe we could have started the game at 1 o'clock, but they never asked us," he said.

When the network sent its advisory to its affiliates, plans were to follow baseball to the bitter end. However, NBC may have been unhappy with baseball because the only two telecast choices in the afternoon were the Braves-Reds and Mets-Cubs — not big box office draws. And NBC and baseball couldn't work out a schedule change that might have made a different TV game available. "This possibly left bad feelings at NBC, and made it easier for the network to ditch the baseball.

When the move was made, NBC explained the switch to its viewers and provided game updates. Still, 200 irate callers phoned NBC in New York on Saturday. One oddity of the back-and-forth coverage was that NBC made its final cut from Atlanta with one out to go.

Ohlmeyer admits it was misleading not to provide earlier advisories for the viewers who were expecting to finish the game they started. "None of us are perfect," Ohlmeyer said. "If I had thought of it at the time, I would have done it. We've had shows (the LPGA Championship June 9 was one) wiped out because we stayed with baseball.

"We never thought we could make everybody happy, but we thought we could cover both stories."

Villante disagrees. He thinks NBC blew the build-up for a possible fourth home run by Dave Kingman of the Cubs and missed the late stages of two exciting games.

"It was just bad judgment from the fans' point of view," Villante said. "If they want the Olympics every four years, fine — it could help baseball if NBC gets its popularity up. But we won't let them treat us cavalierly."

Houston Stays On Top With Victory

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Denny Walling says his first trip to the plate against San Francisco's Vida Blue Wednesday night, a strike out, was a donation to the Giants' cause.

"He's one of the best fast ball pitchers in the major leagues and he's got a lot of stats," Walling said. "He's had the 300 strike outs, the 24-8 record and the Cy Young Award. I'll admit it. I was nervous the first time. That strikeout was a donation."

But when the collection plate came around the second time, Walling was not nearly as generous, blasting a two-run triple to highlight a four-run Houston fourth inning that paced the Astros to a 5-4 victory.

"He pitched to me pretty good all night," Walling said. "I just happened to be looking for a fast ball when he threw one."

The Astros, struggling to hold onto their lead in the National League's Western Division, needed every bit of their fourth inning uprising to hold off the desperate Giants, who felt they needed to win the three-game series.

Houston starter Ken Forsch, 8-6, held the Giants to seven hits and had a 5-3 lead through five innings before leaving the game with a stiff shoulder.

The Giants loaded the bases off Houston relievers Ric Williams and Randy Niemann in the seventh but managed only one run on a sacrifice fly by Darrell Evans, who hit two doubles and drove in three runs.

Jack Clark was another sore spot for the Astros. He went four for four with two doubles and two singles, driving in one run.

San Francisco took a 2-0 lead in the first as Joe Strain singled and scored on Clark's first double. Clark then scored on Evans' double.

Houston got one run back in the first when Cesar Cedeno walked went to second on a groundout, took third on Terry Puhl's controversial single and scored on Jeff Leonard's single.

Puhl hit a fly ball to shallow centerfield and Bill North charged the ball and appeared to catch it but third base umpire John Kibler ruled North trapped the ball.

Altbelli explained "He threw LeMaster out of the game and we're short of infielders Leonard then singled home Cedeno and Giants infielder Johnnie LeMaster yelled to Kibler from the bench and was ejected. That brought Giants Manager Joe Altobelli out to argue the point and he too was given the boot.

Altbelli explained "He threw LeMaster out of the game and we're short of infielders anyway. He got the blast (from LeMaster) from the bench and he could have come to me and told me to keep the guys quiet. But he threw him out and then he threw me out.

"Anytime they (umpires) make a mistake, somebody has to go."

North said he did make the catch and that Kibler failed to come into the outfield to make the call, rendering his decision from the third base area.

The first inning squabble became academic in the fourth when Walling belted his fourth triple of the year to score two runs and singles by Enos Cabell and Forsch plated two more.

Evans hit his second double of the game in the fifth inning to score San Francisco's third run.

Knight Uses Borrowed Bat To Carry Reds Over Dodgers

George Foster's bat has helped keep the Cincinnati Reds in the National League's West Division race. Ray Knight used the injured slugger's lumber to drive in 14 runs in the last four games.

The last three RBI came Tuesday night in the Reds' 10-5 rout of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Knight had a two-run double in Cincinnati's eight-run first and added a run-scoring single in the sixth.

In 1976, while Knight was playing with the Reds' Indianapolis farm club in the American Association, he had hit just one homer going into the last month of the season.

Then he borrowed one of Foster's clubs and hit nine homers in the final month.

That memory may have slipped into Knight's mind Sunday, when he went 0-for-5 in the first game of a double-header at Atlanta. For the nightcap, he switched to one of Foster's "Black Beauties," hit a homer, drove in five runs, then added three RBI in each of the next three games.

son three of the last four games to remain within 3½ games of the Houston Astros.

In the other NL games Wednesday, the Houston Astros edged the San Francisco Giants 5-4, the Pittsburgh Pirates nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3, Atlanta trimmed the San Diego Padres 5-4, the Montreal Expos defeated the Chicago Cubs 7-5 in 12 innings and the Philadelphia Phillies topped the New York Mets 9-6.

PGA Event Has Many Favorites

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Gary Player has fond memories of the Oakland Hills Country Club, site of the 61st PGA Championship that opened today.

Player won the PGA title here seven years ago, hitting a magnificent nine-iron 150 yards on the 408-yard 10th hole to within four feet and a birdie to clinch the victory.

"Anytime you win a great championship like the PGA on a great golf course, you have nice memories," said Player after finishing a practice round Wednesday in a steady drizzle.

"The course played a little longer due to the fact that they had so much rain. There is not as much rough as in previous championships. Still, it is going to be a great test because it is one of the great golf courses in the world."

Player said if he had to pick a favorite in the field of 150, he would name Jack Nicklaus.

winner of four PGA titles and runnerup three times.

"I know he hasn't been playing well," said Player, "but he has been improving and he will be tough."

Nicklaus, himself, admitted that he's in the proper frame of mind to win another title.

"I think they're right," said Nicklaus when told of the comments by Player and others who predicted that the Golden Bear would take home his first championship of 1978. "I've been hitting the ball reasonably well but I haven't been able to make a putt. However, I have been making some putts in the last few weeks."

"As for this course, it will be a good test of golf. You've got to hit the ball long and straight, put your irons around the pin and putt. Even though it will be soft, it still will be a test."

Nicklaus said he thought there might be some subpar rounds — he played in a practice round Wednesday with Ray Floyd, who shot a 63, with seven birdies and no bogeys. But he doesn't think anyone will put together four of them.

"To break par on this course, you've got to play very well."

he said. "If par were 72, I would say 'Yes.' But it's 70. You can get a good round on this course when conditions are soft, but I don't know if it will stay that way."

Of course, there are several others in the field who stand a chance of breaking par 280 over the 7,014-yard, par 70 course, most of whom are long hitters.

The lineup includes leading money-winner Tom Watson, who has been having trouble with his driver of late, defending PGA champion John Mahaffey, U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, Floyd, Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino, Ben Crenshaw, Jerry Pate and Lanny Wadkins.

"If I were to pick a score, I would pick something under 280," said Arnold Palmer, whose list of 61 titles does not include a PGA Championship.

"The course favors the big hitters. If you hit the ball long and can putt, you are a very definite threat on this golf course."

Mahaffey, who says he's completely healed from a hand injury suffered earlier this year, also says that par will be broken this year, which hasn't been done in a major tournament here through four U.S. Opens and the 1972 PGA championship.

"The wet weather will make it play longer but I think par will be broken," he said, echoing just about every one in the field with the exception of Hubie Green, who said the so-called "monster" will not be brought to its knees.

In 1972, Player was tied for the lead with Jim Jamieson when he sliced his drive behind some willow trees on the 10th hole. To get back into the thick of things, he had to shoot over the trees and a pond that was in front of the green 150 yards away.

He used a nine-iron because a less lofted club would not have cleared the trees. He put everything he had into the 9-iron and the ball landed next to the pin.

"One of the men came out of the gallery and took the divot and planted it in his garden," recalled Player this week. "He wrote me a letter, asking me if I wanted a piece of the divot. I told him I wouldn't mind a piece of the divot as long as I didn't have to mow his yard."

Dutch Clark, who droppicked extra points, led the National Football League in scoring in 1932 while playing for Portsmouth and again in 1935 and 1936 for the Detroit Lions.

Entry fee for the tournament is $5 per event per player. Events include single and doubles for men and women in the "A" and "B" divisions, singles and doubles in the over 35 for men and women and over 45 for the men.

Other divisions include father-son doubles, and mixed doubles.

In the junior division under 14 and under 16 and under 18 and under, with singles and doubles to be contested.

Entry deadline is Aug. 8 and the entry fee can be sent to Reed at Box 1006, WT Station, Canyon 79016.

Dave Concepcion also drove in three runs with a pair of singles in Cincinnati's biggest inning of the season. Mike LaCoss, 11-4, gave up 11 hits in six innings for the Reds, who have won 17 of the 21 games LaCoss has started this season.

Braves 5, Cardinals 3

"We're a club that more or less puts things together from the fifth inning on," said Pittsburgh's Dave Parker after the Pirates rallied from a 3-0 deficit to beat St. Louis.

Pittsburgh got two runs back in the sixth on consecutive triples by Manny Sanguillen and Omar Moreno and a sacrifice fly by Parker, and tied it in the seventh on pinch-hitter Mike Easler's RBI triple.

Braves 5, Padres 4

Dale Murphy's three-run homer highlighted the five-run Atlanta eighth inning that carried the Braves past San Diego.

The game was spiced by a bench-clearing incident, at least the fourth in the major leagues since Friday night. San Diego's Gene Tenace finished trotting out a home run, then charged Braves pitcher Eddie Solomon after the Atlanta hurler apparently said something.

The players were stopped before a punch could be thrown.

Expos 7, Cubs 5

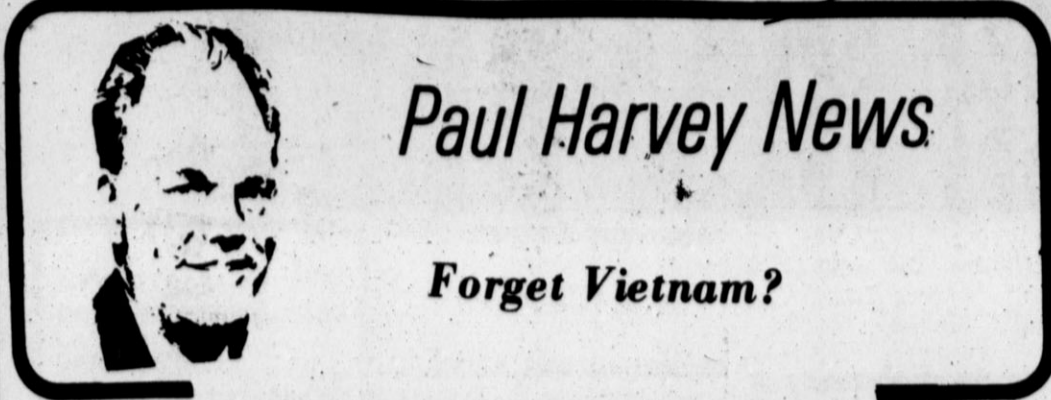

Montreal got home runs from Tony Perez, Gary Carter and former Cub Rodney Scott, the latter a two-run shot in the bottom of the 12th, to beat Chicago.

Dave Kingman connected again for the Cubs, hitting a three-run shot in the fifth inning and raising his season's total to 36.

Phillies 9, Mets 6

Garry Maddox and Pete Rose each had four hits each, carrying the Phillies to their victory over the Mets. Maddox and Schmidt each drove in three runs, while Greg Luzinski hit his 13th homer of the year for Philadelphia.

Doug Flynn drove in two runs from New York with a single and a double.

Paul Harvey News

Forget Vietnam?

A recent issue of Time magazine included these quotes from former Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Cisco: "We are struggling through our Vietnam guilt feelings. Carter himself has changed; after promising to reduce defense spending he now seeks a larger defense budget."

Here's another: "I am absolutely convinced that the Vietnam syndrome is not widely shared in the United States... That the American people have largely put Vietnam behind them."

In other words, we should forget Vietnam?

The news media is bored with all this "peace." Night after night prime time telecasts give up to 20 minutes of their precious 30 to trying to make news of no news in the Middle East.

The Pentagon is bored. No longer is war talk merely a congressional prod at budget time; now there is serious recommendation at Cabinet level to resurrect the military draft.

The reemergence of the war mongers is so persistent as to appear orchestrated.

Bantam books is planning to release 60 new paperbacks, all war stories.

Granted, historically, governments in trouble at home have bought solidarity with blood, but our present President shows no such inclination. Instead it is political commentators suggesting that President Carter has been gelded by Vietnam, is allowing himself to be intimidated by that scalding,

As indeed he and we should be.

But such writers seem to be suggesting that we should forget Vietnam and revert to throwing our weight around again.

Recently the United States has been minding its own business fairly well.

Africans, north and south, have been locking horns, exhausting themselves. Cambodians, Vietnamese and Chinese have been wasting themselves in a see-saw war. Iranians have been killing one another in the name of religion. Chinese fighting Indians in Kashmir. Yemenese fighting Saudis.

Americans, outside of all this debilitating ferment, are thanking God to be outside.

But the superfluous multiplicity of competing media scrounges for anything, any conjecture, any quote, anything that brings the gunfire closer.

We are not malicious war mongers—but in a house of straw we are bored children playing with matches.

Inflation, Layoffs To Continue

NEW YORK (AP)—The big, 3.8 percent decline in second-quarter productivity, or output per hour of work, is an omen of more bad news to come. Of continued inflation, of layoffs, to name two likelihoods.

Commerce Department chief economist last Monday. Then comes the slightly delayed reaction: the layoffs.

There is an explanation for this. When sales begin to slow, for example, many companies are caught with a full complement of workers. Unwilling to believe the slowdown is permanent, they retain them.

A common reaction at this point is to disbelieve. The executive office lays plans to spur lagging sales through promotion and advertising campaigns. It's already happening with cars. But at the same time, they must cut production. As a consequence, the ratio of manhours to production changes: less product is made in relation to the hours worked. Productivity measurements drop.

Industry reacts by cutting overtime. The downturn continues and marginal workers lose their jobs. In all industries, the unskilled and part-timers go first. Production line workers follow very quickly.

In the past, white collar workers were the last to get their pink slips, but that may have changed. Companies now recognize better than ever that administrative and executive staffs can hide lots of fat.

As the cutbacks continue, the productivity decline slows. By the time it is understood that business will be poor for a period of months, maybe many months, industry will have gone on a cost-cutting binge.

At the same time, prices and interest rates will have fallen or the rates of increase will have slowed. Customers become tempted again, and sales build. Workers trickle back to jobs. Recovery is under way.

At this early point in the recovery the rate of productivity builds quickly. Generally, many of the most skilled and efficient—the most highly productive—are rehired first. And they are in a working mood. As less productive workers are added, the strains on productivity reappear. Less efficient production puts upward pressure on prices that, if not contained, leads to a wage-price inflation spiral.

The message is there: When productivity falls very sharply it usually means the economy's growth is slowing—or is right on the verge of doing so—and that industry will react with cutbacks, especially in the work force.

The White House expects the rate—5.6 percent in June—to rise to 6.9 percent in the final quarter of 1980. The Congressional Budget office anticipates 7.2 percent by late 1980. And some private sector forecasters believe 8 percent by election time is probable.

Based on the relatively optimistic White House estimates, 7 million would be unemployed by the November 1980 election, or 1.3 million more than in this past June.

Prison Called Superior

HOUSTON (AP)—Despite inmate and Justice Department claims that Texas prison conditions are oppressive, a former California prison official says the state's prison system is far superior to those in most other states.

Lewis H. Fudge, senior institutional planner when he retired in 1977, said the Texas Department of Corrections does a far better job with about one-fourth of the $200 million budgeted for California's prisons.

Comparing Texas' system with others, he said, "is like comparing the General Motors Corp. with a local department of welfare."

"To visit the Texas Department of Corrections is a privilege. It restores one's belief that prisons can be operated in an effective manner which benefit the public, the staff and the inmates," Fudge said.

Fudge testified in U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's court, which is in the tenth month of a class-action lawsuit filed against TDC by several prison inmates.

The inmates claim the prisons are severely overcrowded and inmates are deprived of adequate medical care, brutalized by other prisoners and by guards, subjected to homosexual terrorism and often denied access to attorneys and the courts.

During the trial, one federal witness said the TDC "is probably the best example of slavery remaining in this country."

In a pretrial brief, the Justice Department said conditions at the Texas prisons are "so oppressive as to produce deprivation psychosis and to drive some of its residents to attempt suicide, some unfortunately successful."

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—With the general election little more than a year away, Texas party leaders are jockeying for advantageous positions and doing little explaining.

A prime concern lately has been the issue of a Texas presidential primary and what political goodies it will bring.

The Republicans, proud of potential nominees John B. Connally, George Bush, Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford, have already decided to hold a presidential primary.

The Democrats, eyeing the Jimmy Carter-Ted Kennedy struggle on Capitol Hill, are keeping their options open.

Last week the rules panel of the State Democratic Executive Committee voted not to hold a Texas presidential primary, but left the door open to change its decision sometime in the future and opt for a non-binding primary.

Why they left the door open is the subject of much speculation by party regulars around the state.

Rules committee chairman Carrin Patman said the SDEC would have had to lay the ground rules for a binding primary by July 31, but that the party has until March 1980 to make a final decision on the non-binding primary.

In her opinion, Democrats are best served by preserving a future choice between the non-binder and a convention plan.

Which is Better?

Under the convention delegation plan, 104 delegates would be elected from the state's 31 senatorial districts to attend the national convention. Another 34 delegates would be selected at large at the state Democratic convention next June.

Unbound to any candidate, the Texas delegation would have more mobility in selecting the state's best presidential candidate, one argument goes. Another argument is that the convention system builds a strong party through personal interaction and cooperation by loyal, proven Democrats.

Democrats supposedly need that, because Texas lacks a Democratic leader with the stature of Connally or Bush. (That idea causes many Democrats to bristle and point to John White, Robert Strauss, Lloyd Bentsen, Sarah Weddington and other Texans in Washington.)

Under the non-binding primary plan, the delegates will go to the national convention armed with a ballot box favorite but still unbound to any candidate.

Liberals v. Conservatives

There are those who see the presidential primary issue as a struggle between liberals and conservatives in the Democratic party. Sorting out what each faction is trying to accomplish, if that is the case, is no mean feat.

Many conservatives are more than a little concerned that the Republican candidacies of Connally, Bush and Reagan will draw conservative Democrats into the Republican party, there to stay.

If that happens, they fear, conservatives and even more moderates who remain loyal Democrats will be outnumbered by the liberals who can choose a party slate from amongst their ilk.

Some conservatives have gone so far as to express the suspicion that liberals are intentionally purging the party, which may be a little far-fetched. Lieutenant Governor Bill Hobby, Speaker of the House Bill Clayton and Attorney General Mark White, all conservatives, are the Democrats' top office holders.

Gleeful Republicans

Texas Republicans, meanwhile, are seeing their best chance in a hundred years to assume control of state politics.

For years touted as the party of the wealthy, they now await their opportunity to advertise themselves as a bona fide grassroots party by dent of a presidential primary. And if that presidential primary attracts enough conservative Democrats and uncommitted to greatly expand Republican party membership, no one can accuse them of false advertising.

Should Connally or Bush take the White House in 1980, Texas Republicans will, said simply, have clout.

All this may come to pass anyway, whether the Democrats have a presidential primary or not. What hurts Texas Democrats most is the known unpopularity here of President Jimmy Carter and the uncertain popularity of potential party-draftee Teddy Kennedy.

Carter v. Kennedy

Currently, only Carter and Kennedy seem to be the Democrats most likely to "retrieve" Texas, although the future will certainly bring the mentioning of other names. Both men have solid constituencies here and will not lack for supporters to put on a horse race in the Southwest.

Each man is familiar with grassroots politics. Carter slugged it out in each state primary in 1976 and emerged the winner. Kennedy, of course, has the grassroots legacies of brothers John and Bobby to draw on.

Would the names of Carter and Kennedy on a Democratic primary ballot be strong enough to counter a Connally, Bush, Reagan marker and keep Democrats from crossing over? No one will know until after the votes are counted.

The American Revolution's Battle of Bunker Hill was fought in 1775.

Paint got on switches

POLLY'S PROBLEM
DEAR POLLY — How do I remove old paint that has been dropped on light switches and outlet sockets while painting? Evidently they were not covered when the walls were painted. — MRS. R.L.H.
DEAR MRS. R.L.H. — How much grief could have been saved had the painter taken the time to remove those switch plates. Latex paint may be there to stay. If it has hardened into tiny "balls" try loosening them with the tip of a paring knife and they may come off. If an oil base paint was used a paint remover might be tried — that is, if the plates had not been painted. Perhaps you could sand them smooth and then paint to match the walls. That would doubtless be the easiest way. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — For perfect rice every time always cook according to directions on the package. Remove rice from heat and leave covered so it steams for 10 to 15 minutes and it will be fluffy every time. — COLLEEN
DEAR POLLY — After I launder my husband's cotton caps I stretch them over a two-quart kettle to dry and the result is a clean, unwrinkled, well-fitting cap.
I keep a plastic laundry basket in my son's closet to hold sandals, slippers and tennis shoes that used to clutter up the closet floor. Now the closet looks neater and the shoes are all easy to locate in the see-through basket.
I encourage my 4-year-old to brush his teeth by letting him paste a colored star on a calendar after each brushing. — MRS. X
DEAR POLLY — Never discard a discolored, dingy-looking sponge. Save them to use when cleaning silverware. They work especially well when one uses a paste type silver cleaner. — CATHRYN
DEAR POLLY — Those who sew a lot will find there is nothing as good as 3-inch-long corsage pins for pinning patterns to fabrics. No more lost pins, especially when using some of the new materials that straight pins will scarcely go into. Try to buy a box of corsage pins from a florist. — LEE

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Blood transfusion

DEAR DR. LAMB — I wish you would discuss blood transfusions — the effects and how soon one recovers completely. How long does it take for the blood to get to the outer surfaces of the body? I had a hysterectomy and 14 days later I hemorrhaged and underwent three more operations for repair. I was in the hospital 23 days and had 10 blood transfusions. I am 58 years old and have always had a good health record.

I'm wondering how much of the recovery time was related to getting the circulation back or my muscle tone. A relative said the blood recirculates every 24 hours, but what about to the outer areas of the body?

My gynecologist did notice how my coloring was coming back. It took quite a while for the pink to come back into my cheeks. I've always had a ruddy complexion.

DEAR READER — An average adult has around seven quarts of blood in the body. The heart at rest will pump about five quarts a minute so your blood is constantly on the move. A vigorous athlete may pump over 30 quarts a minute even though all the blood in his body may only be about seven quarts.

When you have a transfusion, the blood immediately enters into your circulating bloodstream. If you require a transfusion, you usually have a lot of other things wrong with you. I'm sure that was true in your case. You needed a transfusion to replace the blood that you had lost.

Whenever you lose blood, all the little vessels in the body undergo changes. The tiny capillaries in the skin may contract. This causes the skin to appear white.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 42 years old and of medium complexion. I usually get a healthy tan by routine exposure to the sun — gardening, outdoor recreation but not sun bathing.

This summer I have had rather extreme skin irritation — redness, severe itchy dryness — and it seemed to follow a period outdoors. I was told by a dermatologist that it was an allergic reaction to the sun and that wasn't uncommon. He gave me an ointment to use but said that avoiding the sun is the only real treatment. This is very hard to do.

Would you please comment on this. Is it likely to be a permanent condition? Is there a medication which would prevent or offset the effect of moderate exposure? I have noticed some itching even on mild spring days and hate to accept the idea that I cannot enjoy outdoor activities without a reaction.

DEAR READER — There is such a thing as solar urticaria which simply means hives or allergic-like skin reaction to sun exposure. I gather from your remarks that's what your dermatologist thinks you have.

This is truly an allergic-type reaction to sunshine, but have hope because there are things that can be done to protect you.

In the first place, the normal physical and chemical barriers to sunlight do help. For this reason, I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots And Cancer. It includes in it information about protecting the skin from the sun. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents by check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I would suggest that every day when you first get up that you use one of the sunscreens that contain PABA (paraminobenzoic acid). Use them carefully, since some PABA preparations stain clothing. In addition, when you get ready to go out in the sun to do your gardening or for recreation, you should probably use one of the physical blocking agents on all of the areas of the skin that are apt to be exposed to the sun. And since it's an allergic-type response, the antihistamine medicines used for allergies may also help.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My question is, how do you figure a woman's menstrual period days to find the 24th day? Do you count from the first day of her period or do you count from the day she stops her period?

DEAR READER — The first day of the menstrual period is considered the first day of the menstrual cycle. If the period lasts for four days, the fourth day of the period is the fourth day of the cycle.

I get quite a few letters asking for information about this and usually it's because someone thinks that she is going to use this method to avoid pregnancy. I'd like to caution you against thinking that that's such an effective measure. A woman who is absolutely regular may menstruate the 14th day after ovulation. This always means that you know after ovulation when it occurred rather than before. There are quite a few variations involved and a woman who is regular all the time may just not be regular the critical month.
