Threat of filibuster may delay dump bill

A threatened filibuster in the U.S. Senate Wednesday delayed any action on a bill that would offer one state $100 million up front, plus annual incentives, for accepting the nation's first high-level nuclear waste repository.

Senators from Washington and Nevada, two states along with Texas that are potential candidates for the nuclear dump, blocked debate on the bill offered by Sen. Bennett Johnston (D-La.). The western state senators said they favored a plan already okayed by the Senate Environmental committee that would call for partial characterization of sites in Deaf Smith County, Yucca Mountain, Nev., and Hanford, Wash., before the U.S. Department of Energy would be allowed to select one site for complete characterization.

"Characterizing three sites at a cost of $5.8 billion is wasting money," Johnston said Wednesday. "The verdict is clear. It is sufficient to characterize one site at a time."

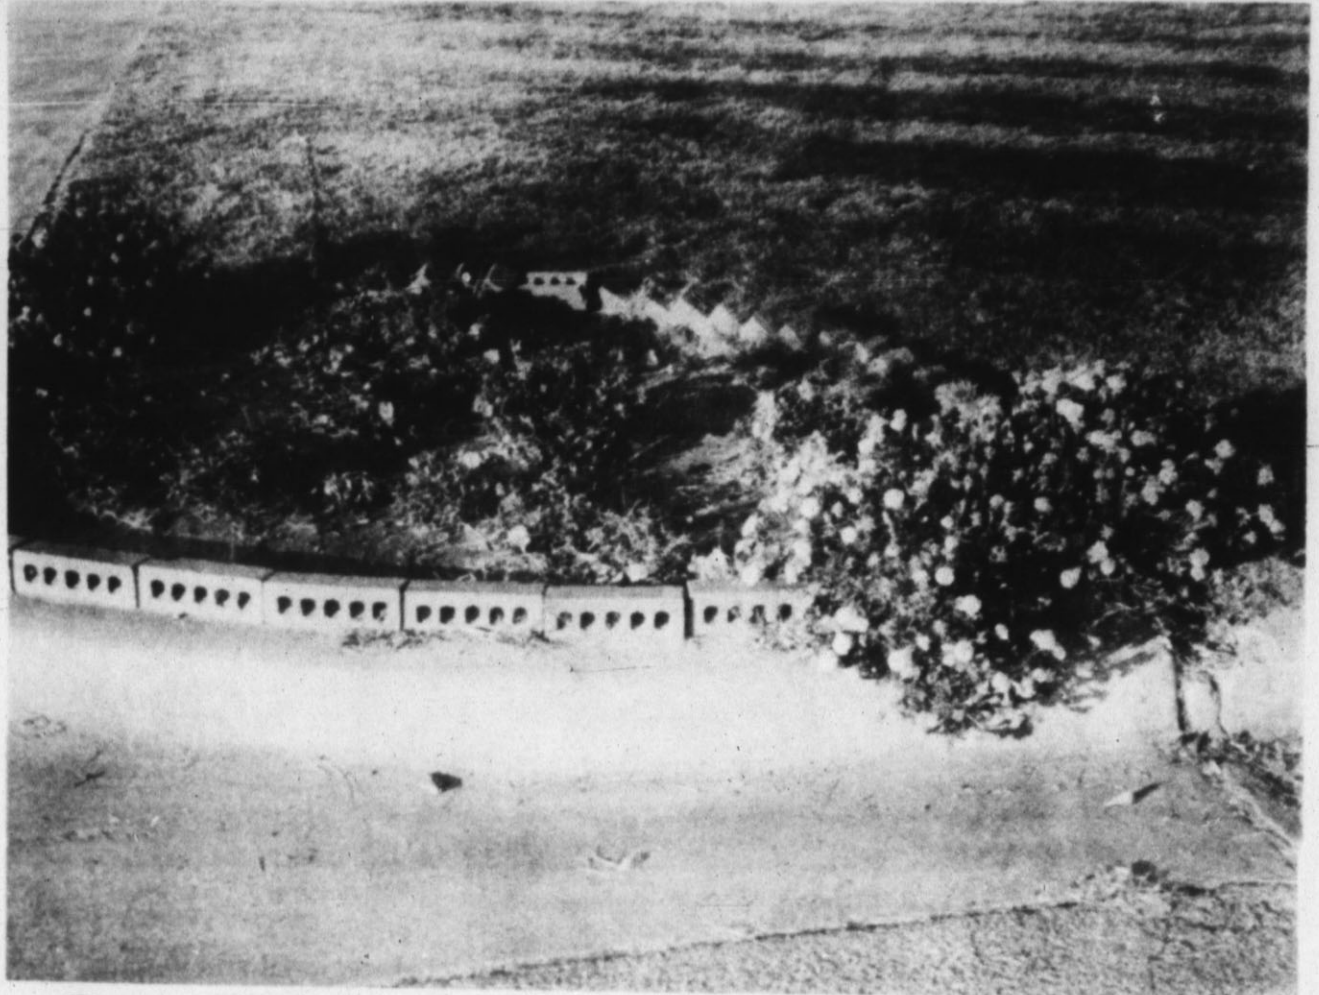

Under Johnston's plan, if the first site is found to be unsuitable, DOE would then move to a second site. The selected state would end up receiving multi-million dollar payments "to assuage their hurt feelings," Johnston said in introducing the bill on the Senate floor.

As soon as Johnston had introduced the bill, Nevada Sen. Brock Adams offered an amendment to strike Johnston's changes in the nuclear waste program. Adams said that Johnston had been "unwilling to negotiate. I intend to debate this amendment by amendment, and I am willing for the debate to last days, weeks, months or years."

A Johnston spokesman said Johnston was willing to allow the filibuster to last for a couple of days before trying to turn to parliamentary maneuvers to stop further debate.

Johnston's bill is tied to an appropriations measure that carries funding for DOE, the Bureau of Reclamation and Army Corps of Engineers.

Flowery weather

A surprisingly persistent Indian Summer has kept flowers and grass on the grow in Hereford. Temperatures have consistently been in the 60s and 70s during the day, and warmer-than-normal nights, not anywhere near the killing freeze which has usually taken place by now, have kept things growing in Hereford. These flowers, on the corner on Fir and Moreman, are flanked by a newly-mown front yard.

Congress considers military base cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixteen Republican congressmen, including one from Texas, have asked the General Accounting Office to study the feasibility of cutting back operations at 28 military bases as a way to reduce the federal deficit.

Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, joined his GOP colleagues in the request, which came because President Reagan may be faced with accepting a tax increase or reducing military spending under the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law.

"This list is not presented as the best 28 to close, it's a list of bases that ought to be reviewed," Barton said Wednesday. "Quite frankly, I think these Texas bases would fair pretty well if such a study is done."

The GAO refused the request, The Dallas Morning News said in Thursday's editions. Comptroller General Charles Bowsher said such a study should be done by the Department of Defense, the newspaper said.

Included in the list were Laughlin Air Force Base in Del Rio, a major flight training station, and the Naval Air Station in Kingsville, slated to support the new Corpus Christi homeport. Included in an initial list but later deleted was the Air National Guard base at Houston's Ellington Field.

In the letter to the GAO, the congressmen asked for a base-by-base analysis of the annual cost of operation, the cost of transferring functions to other bases, the cost of transferring and reassigning personnel, the total short-term cost of reducing level of operations and the long-term savings of operating at a reduced level.

"I don't necessarily say any one base on this list is obsolete," Barton said. "But one thing wrong with this Congress is everybody saying, 'Let's do some reductions over there and not here.'"

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, blasted Barton and the others who signed on to the letter, saying the Texas bases add $150 million to the state economy each year while contributing to the national defense.

Contra aid debate re-flares in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The issue of U.S. aid to Nicaragua's Contra rebels boiled anew in Congress as the deadline arrived today for implementation of a five-nation peace agreement in Central America.

The fight arose as the House prepared to take up a stopgap money bill to keep the government running past next Tuesday, legislation which included $3.2 million in non-lethal aid for the Contras.

Democrats, led by Rep. David Bonior of Michigan, planned to ask on the House floor today for tight restrictions which would prevent the CIA from delivering the aid through airdrops to rebel troops inside Nicaragua. Instead, the aid should be routed through an international relief agency such as the Red Cross, Democrats said.

"You threaten to blow up this whole (peace) process," without such a restriction, Bonior argued. "We will be giving a tremendous excuse to the government of Nicaragua to break this whole thing off."

Meanwhile, a Republican leadership source who asked not to be identified said the administration has decided to ask for about $30 million in non-lethal aid to the Contras when Congress considers a long-term catchall spending bill to fund the government through the rest of the fiscal year. That measure is expected to be considered before Christmas.

House Republican Leader Robert Michel of Illinois vowed that GOP lawmakers, already restive over what they regard as heavy-handed Democratic control of the chamber in recent weeks, would cause trouble "in spades" if Bonior tried to win approval of the restrictions.

"This triggers a debate that will absolutely blow up the House," added Rep. James Quillen, R-Tenn.

The spotlight on the aid issue was intensified because today was the target date for the governments of Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Costa Rica to put in place elements of the peace accord signed Aug. 7.

It appeared clear that the goal of establishing cease-fires, granting amnesty to insurgents and instituting democratic reforms would not be fully realized immediately. As the peace process moved ahead, leaders have come to accept that a more realistic deadline will be January, when the presidents of the five countries are to get a report on the effort's success or failure.

Bonior said he expected announcement soon by Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government that it would open indirect talks with the rebels aimed at achieving a cease-fire, and said the Sandinistas may also release political prisoners.

President Reagan has said he wants to give an additional $270 million in aid to the rebels and had planned to ask for it this month, but administration officials also now seem to be accepting January as a target date.

The rebels now are operating on leftover money from last fiscal year's $100 million allocation, which included military aid, and a $3.5 million infusion for non-lethal assistance provided in the current short-term spending measure.

Democrats did not oppose the $3.5 million extension when it was approved in September, saying it would be used only for food, medicine and clothing for the rebel troops. At the time, Wright said he expected the money to be the last U.S. aid ever sent to the Contras.

That money officially runs out Tuesday, and Michel argued that the aid should be extended again to keep up pressure on the Sandinistas to carry out democratic reforms and other steps called for in the regional peace accord.

He pointed out the United States did not sign that document and should not necessarily feel bound by it.

Jessica loses little toe

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Jessica McClure has lost a little toe as a result of her 5 1/2-hour ordeal at the bottom of a dry water well, but doctors haven't decided whether the 19-month-old girl will have a big toe amputated as well.

Orthopedic surgeons Wednesday removed the little toe on the toddler's right foot in her fifth operation at Midland Memorial Hospital since her Oct. 16 rescue, which drew international attention.

During a four-hour operation that ended about noon, dead skin also was removed from the foot which was wedged in an awkward position in the well and lost circulation.

No skin grafts were performed during the procedure, but a plastic surgeon placed tissue expanders in a forehead wound the girl suffered to help heal severe scarring.

Jessica was listed in stable condition following the operation, and no additional surgery was immediately scheduled, hospital spokeswoman Sue Ristom said.

Hospital officials have said it probably will be another month before the toddler can go home.

Holy war erupts in Central Texas

WACO, Texas (AP) — Authorities are struggling to figure out why eight heavily armed men invaded a farm belonging to an offshoot religious organization and launched a raging gunbattle.

Eight men were arrested in connection with Tuesday's shootout at the Rodenville farm and charged with attempted murder, McLennan County sheriff's officials said Wednesday.

Weapons confiscated by authorities are being examined to see if any have been modified to provide full automatic-weapons fire, Deputy Kenneth Vanek said. If they have, the men could also face federal firearms charges.

A peace justice set bond of $50,000 each on Vernon Wayne Howell, 28, Floyd Leon Houtzman, 55, Peter James Hipsman, 22, Gregory Allen Summers, 22, James Loye Riddle, 27, Paul Gordon Fatta, 29, and Stanley Carl Sylvia, 49, all of Palestine; and David Michael Jones, 33, of Waco.

The 77-acre tract near Elk has been the subject of litigation of one kind or another for more than two decades. Tuesday's shootout appeared to be an effort to have George Roden, president and a trustee of the Branch Davidian Seventh-day Adventists, ousted from the site, investigators said.

Officials of the Seventh-day Adventist Church say their organization is not connected with the Branch Davidians.

A splinter of the Branch Davidians that set up shop near Palestine sent what Roden called a "threatening letter" to everyone living on the tract last week.

The letter advised residents that Roden had been removed as trustee of the Branch Davidians and that Howell had replaced him.

The letter, which included a notarized document filed with the county clerk's office in Waco, labeled Roden "just a trespasser" and asked residents to send any tithes or rents due the church to Howell in Palestine.

"When they sent that letter out, I knew they were coming," Roden told the Waco Tribune-Herald. "They sent an article removing me as trustee, now they've come to finish the job and remove me from the land."

Roden said that the men came to kill him, and managed to wound him in his gun hand, but that he and another resident of the farm managed to pin down the advancing gunmen with fire until sheriff's deputies arrived.

Roden was treated for powder burns and a wound in the hand at Hillcrest Baptist Medical Center.

He said he had been to the federal authorities to ask that the men's bond be increased to $1 million each, "because as soon as they get out, they're coming back out here looking for me."

Roden said their effort is part of a "holy jihad" (war) to kill him and

We have some great youngsters representing us on teams and organizations at Hereford High School. Be sure to read a letter to the editor on Page 2 today from the tennis coach at Monahans!

Maybe something good will come from the adverse publicity Hereford has received from the out-of-town media. That hustlin' Hereford spirit seems to be on the rise again.

Fed up with what they feel is unfair, slanted and inaccurate stories about the community, many residents have decided to fight back. The retaliation efforts may hit some innocent business firms in Amarillo, but it's the only way some citizens feel their protests will be heard.

Maybe the campaign will add new meaning to the "shop-at-home" slogan we've been preaching for many years!

And speaking of shopping at home, don't miss the holiday gift temptations to be displayed at the Christmas Carousel Friday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., at the Community Center. The annual event is sponsored by the Women's Division of Deaf Smith C of C and includes a number of Hereford's leading retail firms.

Carlucci picked to succeed Weinberger

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today announced the resignation of Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, a seven-year veteran of his Cabinet and the ramrod for a big Pentagon buildup, and named national security adviser Frank Carlucci as his successor.

Reagan also promoted Army Lt. Gen. Colin Powell, the No. 2 man on the National Security Council staff, to succeed Carlucci. Even before his elevation, Powell was the highest ranking black on Reagan's staff.

The changes come as the administration prepares for a summit meeting beginning Dec. 7 in Washington between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. The two leaders are to sign a treaty eliminating intermediate-range nuclear weapons and discuss cutbacks in strategic weapons as well as differences about the U.S. "Star Wars" missile defense program.

Weinberger has been adamant in opposing any restraints that would slow the Star Wars plan and was instrumental in pushing it ahead rapidly.

Although news of personnel changes leaked Monday night, White House and Pentagon officials bowed to Weinberger's request and had refused to acknowledge publicly he was leaving. However, Reagan all but confirmed it Wednesday during a picture-taking ceremony in the Oval Office.

Asked if he would miss Weinberger, his associate of more than two decades, Reagan replied, "Yes. I always miss friends when they're not here."

Insisting there were no policy differences behind Weinberger's departure, White House officials said the secretary told Reagan three weeks ago he wanted to leave because of the poor health of his wife, Jane, who underwent radiation treatments this year for cancer.

Carlucci, a career bureaucrat, was hand-picked by Weinberger to be his deputy when he took over the Pentagon in 1981. At the time, Carlucci was the No. 2 man at the CIA. He was recruited back from a job as a business executive last January to take over the NSC after John Poindexter's resignation.

Carlucci selected Powell as his second in command when he was told to rebuild the NSC staff in the wake of the Iran-Contra affair.

Powell had been the top military aide to Weinberger for three years. He was commander of the Army's 5th Corps in West Germany when Carlucci asked him to come back to be his deputy, and reportedly returned only reluctantly because he was not anxious for another desk job. He once was commander of the 101st Airborne Division.

Weinberger, 70, and Carlucci, 57, are considered to hold similar views on military issues but are markedly different in style. Weinberger was abrasive and uncompromising in demanding more and more military funding from Congress.

Like Reagan, Weinberger demonstrated a strong distrust of the Soviets and frequently was at odds with Secretary of State George Shultz on arms control issues.

Carlucci, an outspoken defender of Reagan's military policies, is known as a skillful negotiator with a solid reputation on Capitol Hill. White House officials believe he may smooth relations with Congress that were ruffled by Weinberger.

Letters to the Editor

Tennis team praised, more letters on G-N articles

Dear editor: Please publish this as a message to the community of Hereford:

Too many times in competitive athletic sports all we read or see are the scores, and very seldom do we know the stories behind these contests.

Last weekend at the Region I Team Tennis Tournament in Lubbock, Texas, ten teams from five districts squared off and gave their best shots to qualify to represent Region I at the 5th annual UIL State Team Tournament in Austin on November 5th and 6th. There were many close and well-played matches and when the smoke cleared only one team advanced. However, in my opinion, and the opinion of the spectators from Monahans that witnessed that great contest, there were really three champions: Monahans, Hereford, and the Hereford fans.

On behalf of the Monahans-Wickett-Pyote school system, our athletic department, our tennis team, and our supporters, I wish to commend you, Hereford, your team, your coach, and your fans for the tremendous sportsmanship and effort that was displayed throughout and after the contest. Not only did the players and coaches congratulate each other, your fans were sincerely involved also. You displayed what competitive athletics is all about. You gave it your all and yet you were gracious in defeat.

As president of the Texas Tennis Coaches Association, I take my hat off to you, Hereford, your team, and coach. You would be a credit to anyone's community as you revealed the true meaning of the University Interscholastic League Code. I hope our team and fans would respond in a like manner.

To the tennis team supporters, and to coach Ruben Vargas congratulations. To the young men and women of the Hereford High School tennis team - "Come on Herd", we have used up our luck; your time is coming. Sincerely, Perry D. Coursey, Tennis Coach-Monahans High School, President of TTCA

Dear editor: Three cheers to Doug Manning on his article "An Open Letter to Amarillo", November 1, 1987. Rah! Rah! Rah!

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter was addressed to Mike Carr, Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce, and a copy received by The Brand.) Dear Mr. Carr:

The recent series of articles, "Hereford and the Hispanics," in the Amarillo Globe News certainly does not correlate to the community that we know. Since our arrival in late March, we have had the opportunity to work with a variety of Hereford residents, civic leaders, businessmen, craftsmen and law enforcement personnel. We have also gotten to know a number of Hereford residents socially. Our impression is that Hereford is a dynamic, progressive community with an excellent high quality labor force, and that the people of Hereford are doing a very good job of facing and solving economic and social problems.

When we arrived in late March, our goal was to find office space for our people and occupy it by May 4, 1987. We achieved that goal by renovating an old bowling alley in less than 30 days. Many of the craftsmen and laborers who worked around the clock to complete that task were Hispanic. We could not have done any better anywhere else in the country and there are few places where we could have equaled that effort.

Unfortunately, the Globe-news painted an entirely different picture of Hereford which is disheartening to us. We believe they have done a great disservice to the community of Hereford and to the Panhandle region.

We are proud to be members of the Community and I want you to know that you and the Community have our support. As newcomers, we have been received with a spirit of true friendliness and warmth by all segments. We greatly appreciate our welcome and the continued warm relationship.

Very truly yours, Glenn A. Stafford PARSONS-REDPATH Project Director

Dear editor: The Stanton Student Council and faculty would like to extend their sincere thanks to everyone who helped make our Halloween Carnival such a success. We would especially like to thank the Stanton parents for their support.

(Editor's note: This letter, addressed to the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, was submitted as a letter to the BRAND.) Dear Chamber:

In response to the series of articles last week in the Amarillo Globe-News and the editorial on Monday, November 2, I will no longer be shopping in Amarillo. I have always shopped Hereford first and Amarillo second.

In 1986 when our football team advanced to the state semi-finals, I only made one Christmas purchase, of about $40 during our trips to Lubbock, Abilene, Canyon and Dallas. The remainder of my Christmas shopping was done in Hereford and Amarillo. However, this year I will shop Hereford first and then the remainder of my shopping will be done in Canyon or Lubbock.

My husband and I have also decided to cancel our subscription to the Amarillo Globe News with its advertisements from the Amarillo businesses and subscribe to the Lubbock Avalanche Journal.

Sincerely, Diane N. Hoelscher

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Oliver L. North is now obeying subpoenas to appear before the grand jury investigating his role in the Iran-Contra affair, but he still is refusing to cooperate.

North appeared briefly before the special federal grand jury on Wednesday, consulting five times with his defense attorneys in a hallway before leaving after 20 minutes.

The former National Security Council aide apparently refused to answer a series of questions by invoking his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination. It appeared that North refused to answer committee questions about documents.

North, who wore his green Marine Corps uniform with battle ribbons, entered the grand jury room not long after a short but lively shouting match between defense attorney Brendan V. Sullivan Jr. and a prosecutor.

"We've always followed the law; we've always followed the law," Sullivan shouted at Michael Bromwich, an associate of independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh.

North's grand jury appearance came after an eight-month legal fight in which defense lawyers unsuccessfully challenged Walsh's authority to investigate the sale of arms to Iran and the diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

North was cited for contempt of court last spring for refusing to comply with a subpoena obtained by Walsh for a sample of his handwriting. A federal appeals court in August upheld the validity of the subpoena and Walsh's legal authority to investigate the case.

North was fired from his National Security Council job last year after it was revealed that profits from the Reagan administration's secret arms sales to Iran were diverted to the Nicaraguan rebels.

Last spring, two conservative fund-raisers named North as a co-conspirator in a plan to use a tax-exempt foundation illegally to raise money for the Contras. The two fund-raisers pleaded guilty to conspiracy to defraud the government and are cooperating with Walsh's investigation.

Walsh is putting together a broad charge of conspiracy to defraud the government against North, former national security adviser John M. Poindexter and others including retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord and Secord's business partner, Albert Hakim, according to sources familiar with the case.

North came out of the grand jury room five times to consult with Sullivan and Barry Simon, another defense counsel, about material in a black loose-leaf notebook he was holding.

Simon took notes on a yellow legal pad while talking to North in the hallway outside the grand jury.

North declined to comment on his grand jury appearance, ignoring questions about whether he had invoked the Fifth Amendment.

Perry Jones, a spokesman for the Palestine group, said the eight men had been trying to get pictures of the bones of a deceased follower so that the sheriff's department could take action against Roden for corpse abuse and evict him from the land.

Roden admitted that he has had a corpse lying in a church at the farm. It was there because he had been trying to move the community's graveyard when his bulldozer broke down and he was unable to get spare parts, so he left the coffin in the church out of respect, he said.

Roden is living at Rodenville in violation of a restraining order issued by 19th State District Judge Bill Logue, Jones said. His group was forcibly evicted in 1985, he said.

"That injunction has never been released," said Jones, a vice-president in the Palestine sect. "The only reason we're not there now is because he took over at gunpoint. ... We were run off and kept off by force of arms."

The eight men were armed because of that incident and because of Roden's reputation, Jones said.

"We felt that going (there) unarmed is something you don't do," he said. "If you wanted to shoot George, there's a lot easier ways than to do it."

Now You're Cooking

BY GAYE B. REILY
Staff Writer

With the holidays just around the corner and pheasant season set to open Dec. 12, Cherry McWhorter has several recipes to take advantage of both events.

"We love rich food and such recipes are my favorite," she said. Yet she does not consider herself much of a cook.

"My husband laughed when he found out I would be the subject of a cooking feature," the mother of two said. "I can cook but it is not my shining quality."

The Ted McWhorter family, which engages in farming, resides two miles west of the city and are Hereford natives. Both Ted and Cherry graduated from Hereford

High School in the '60s; he is the son of D.C. and Kay McWhorter and she is the daughter of Faye Holt and the late Earl Holt.

After graduating from Oklahoma State University with a bachelors degree in elementary education, McWhorter spent 14 years teaching in various places. Such schools were in Fairfax County, Virginia, Albuquerque, N.M., Oklahoma City, and Mustang, Okla.

Upon her return to the Texas Panhandle, McWhorter went on the West Texas State University for her masters degree and acquired certification in administration and supervision. Cherry and Ted are the parents of seven-year-old Nicole and six-year-old John, and much of Mrs. McWhorter's life continues to center around children.

"I have 17 students ranging in age from four years to seventh grade who come out here for lessons in such thinking exercises as inquiry and deductive logic," she said. McWhorter also teaches a fourth grade Sunday School class at First United Methodist Church, where the family holds membership and the McWhorter children are choir members.

While the family's animals (cows, horses, cats, and dogs) keep the children entertained, McWhorter manages to find time for her own activities. She is currently president of Calliopean Club, is involved with local bridge clubs, and serves on the Deaf Smith County Museum Board.

She lists as hobbies bridge, reading, and needlepoint. She is also expand-

Read labels carefully for saturated fat in oil

Reducing your intake of saturated fat can help lower blood cholesterol levels and reading labels carefully can help you regulate your levels of saturated fats, says Dr. Alice Hunt of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Even if a label states, "Made with 100 percent pure vegetable oil," the oil may not be low in saturated fatty acids, she warns.

"Although all vegetable products are cholesterol free," says Hunt, a nutrition specialist, "the fact is palm, palm kernel and coconut oils are highly saturated. They contain more saturated fatty acids than soybean, cottonseed, safflower and corn oils. They actually contain twice the saturated fat of animal fats."

Dr. Al Wagner, an Extension food technologist, says palm, palm kernel and cottonseed oils contain between 51 and 87 percent saturated fatty acids. Soybean oil has 14 percent, cottonseed has 23 percent, corn oil has 13 percent and sunflower is the lowest with 10-11 percent.

"It is easy to confuse fats and oils," says Wagner. "One must remember that all oils are 100 percent fat."

Fats that contain mostly saturated fatty acids are solid at room temperature and fats that contain mostly unsaturated fatty acids are liquid.

"The exceptions are coconut, palm and palm kernel oils which are mostly saturated and liqui at room temperature," Hunt says.

Hunt reports palm, palm kernel and coconut oils are frequently used in processed foods.

Two beaten eggs
Milk or cream

Add cream or milk to moisten. Cook in crock pot all morning; if dressing looks dry, add more milk.

HARMONY HOUSE BUTTER TOFFEE

Mash half of a 7 1/2 oz. box of vanilla wafers, add 1/4 stick of butter, softened, and spread in bottom of pan to create crust. Set aside.

Sift together:
2 Tbsp. cocoa
1/2 tsp. salt
1 c. powdered sugar

Add this mixture to:
3/4 c. creamed butter
2 egg yolks
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1 c. chopped nuts

Have butter soft before creaming it and this mixture should be light and fluffy.
Fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites.
Spread mixture over vanilla wafer crust; crumble leftover vanilla wafers on top. Chill 12 hours.

YAMS

1 cup sugar
4 cups yams-mashed
1/2 cup milk
1/2 T. salt
2 eggs
One-third stick butter
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix all the above ingredients

Roses cut in the afternoon last considerably longer than those cut in the morning.

COPING WITH RAPE
By George W. Morley, M.D.
President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

A major violent crime, rape happens too often in our country. Yet many women are ignorant about rape until the issue becomes a personal one affecting a friend, a family member, or even themselves.

In most cases, the rapist uses force, such as choking, beating, or threatening with a weapon, and in every case, the victim has no control over events. The victim attracts the rapist not by her looks but by her apparent vulnerability. Often, the rapist is not a stranger to the woman, and half of all rapes happen in the woman's home.

What do you do if you are raped? First, you should call the police to report the rape, then you should contact a rape crises center or hot line, if one is available, about medical care and legal advice. Then call a friend or family member to keep you company, comfort you, and to let you talk about your experience.

Don't shower, bathe, or change clothes until a doctor has examined you, and get examined as soon as possible after the rape before the sexual evidence of rape disappears. If you press charges against your attacker, you will need that medical evidence to prove you were raped.

You also may need medical attention for any injuries sustained. Your doctor will want to test you for possible sexually transmitted diseases. If you are not already pregnant, you will probably want to take a contraceptive pill to prevent a pregnancy resulting from the rape. As a precaution, you should have a pregnancy test six to eight weeks later.

After a rape, most women feel a range of emotions, usually starting with shock, and then relief at having survived. Later you may feel depressed, angry, ashamed, bitter, and victimized. For a period, you may even deny that the rape happened. Because of the emotional impact of rape, you may want to seek professional counseling.

According to the experts, you can take steps to lessen the chance of rape. Attend rape prevention classes, usually sponsored by a local organization in your community. If you are out alone, plan your route ahead of time and walk at a steady pace through brightly-lit areas. If you think you are being followed, walk faster, change directions and head for a public place. Whenever possible, go out in a group.

At home, keep your doors locked. Hang curtains or blinds on windows for night-time privacy. Use a peephole to identify callers. Ask for identification, and if in doubt, don't let the person in. Get to know a reliable neighbor.

Pope Gregory XIII reformed the calendar in 1522.

Ways with Wine by David Hutchins

WINE'S PARTNERS

Because wine can change with food, it is worth keeping a few guidelines in mind. Acid foods tend to bare every fault in a wine, particularly a red wine. Fatty foods, especially rich cheeses such as Brie and Camembert, bring out the best in a wine. Even a mediocre wine can blossom when accompanied by the best food. A California Cabernet may taste astringent when sipped with a salad. Yet, when accompanied by a steak, it will blossom and mellow. In general, simply remember that the richer and fattier the food, the bigger and fuller the wine. The leaner and more acid the food, the simpler the wine. Of course, these guidelines can be bent to accommodate personal tastes.

AT THE STORE you will find wines from all over the world...France, Italy, and Germany as well as from California and New York. Today many of the domestic wines equal those from abroad. Feel free to ask us any questions you have about wine...the world of wine is our favorite topic of conversation. Stop by 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802 and look us over. Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun, only beer and wine is available from 12-12.

Lighter wines go best with the simpler foods of picnic fare.

Dawson is player of year

By JIM DONAGHY
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Andre Dawson, who found new life in the sunlight of Wrigley Field and hit a career-high 49 home runs, was named today as The Associated Press Player of the Year.

Dawson received 80 votes from a nationwide poll of writers and broadcasters prior to postseason play to beat Toronto outfielder George Bell, who received 42 votes after hitting 47 homers and driving in 134 runs.

Detroit shortstop Alan Trammell was a distant third with 15 votes.

This was the first time the AP has awarded Player of the Year honors.

Although the 33-year-old Dawson reached the top of his career statistically, the Chicago Cubs again were at bottom in the National League East, finishing with a record of 76-85.

It was Dawson's presence in the Cubs' outfield this season that gave the Bleacher Bums some moments in the sun.

But it was a day that almost never dawned.

The right fielder had turned down a two-year, $2-million offer from the Montreal Expos because it represented a cut in pay from his previous contract. No other team had topped the Expos' offer, but Dawson really wasn't interested in playing in Montreal anymore.

Dawson and his agent, Dick Moss, visited the Cubs' training camp at Mesa, Ariz., last spring, and Moss immediately angered then General Manager Dallas Green by telling reporters that his client was close to signing with the Cubs.

Green, who resigned his position last week, accused Dawson and Moss of turning his camp into a circus.

That's when Dawson stunned the Cubs by handing the club a blank contract and told them to fill in the figures. That's how eager he was to play day baseball on grass.

"I realize I was sticking my neck out but a proposal like that was my best chance," Dawson said. "If I had asked for a monetary figure, they could have turned it down. I didn't think it would put them on the spot, but I knew it would put a little pressure on them."

Green wrote in $500,000, a figure earned by most journeymen these days and surpassed this season in bonus money by Kansas City's Steve Balboni ($525,000).

But Dawson got some bonus money of his own. He got $150,000 for staying off the disabled list and another $50,000 for making the All-Star team.

The contract made Dawson the second-lowest-paid player among the Cubs regulars. Only shortstop Shawn Dunston made less.

Dawson finished the season batting

.287 with a major-league high 137 RBI. Only Oakland's Mark McGwire matched his home run total. In Dawson's 10 previous full seasons with Montreal, his best power numbers were 32 homers and 113 RBI, both in 1983.

On Aug. 1, Dawson hit three home runs at Wrigley Field for the second time in his career. Dawson also hit three home runs in September, 1985 against the Cubs when he was with the Expos.

On Nov. 18, the NL Most Valuable Player will be announced and Dawson is the frontrunner despite the Cubs' last-place finish.

Murphy signs new contract with Braves

ATLANTA (AP) — Dale Murphy will be with the Atlanta Braves for at least three more years, ending any speculation that the seven-time National League All-Star would file for free agency and play elsewhere.

Murphy had until midnight Monday to declare himself a free agent, but never did, instead signing a three-year guaranteed contract Wednesday.

Murphy's exact salary was not officially disclosed, but The Atlanta Constitution reported he signed for $2 million a year, with $500,000 of each year's salary deferred at 10 percent interest.

The newspaper said Murphy also would be paid $100,000 for winning the Most Valuable Player award in any season, $25,000 for finishing second or third in the MVP voting and $25,000 for winning the World Series' Most Valuable Player award.

Also, the newspaper said, the Braves will pay Murphy $100,000 if their attendance reaches the 1.75-million level and another $100,000 if they draw two million.

Cowboys kicker is in NFL record books

Landry calls Ruzek 'remarkable'

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) — This summer, Roger Ruzek couldn't make the Dallas Cowboys' roster. Now he's in the NFL record books.
The former USFL kicker booted an NFL-record four field goals in the fourth period Monday night to lift the Dallas Cowboys to a 33-24 victory over the New York Giants.
"Ruzek was remarkable," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "Every one of them, including the 49-yarder, were right down the middle."
One of 12 placekickers in the Cowboys' training camp, Ruzek got cut. But the Cowboys discovered later that he was injured and had changed his kicking style.

"I changed my technique trying to compensate, but I didn't tell anybody," he said. "I should have told them I was hurt. I just wanted another chance. I'm glad I got it."
The Cowboys kept Ruzek, although Luis Zendejas kicked well during the three strike replacement games. The Cowboys had cut Dave Trout and 11th-round pick Jeff Ward in their search for a successor to Rafael Septien.
"Roger looked like a different kicker after he came back," Landry. "He was getting his kickoffs deeper and putting his placekicks out there a lot farther."
The Cowboys had second thoughts after Ruzek had a field goal blocked by the Philadelphia Eagles.

"I studied the film of that block from three different angles," Ruzek said. "I knew I needed to get it up a little quicker."
Ruzek hit field goals of 34, 49, 40 and 35 yards against the Giants.
No player had ever kicked four field goals in the fourth period of an NFL game. Garo Yepremian of Detroit (1966) and Curt Knight of Washington (1970) had kicked four field goals in the second period of their games.
"Ruzek really has a good swing," Landry said. "He has almost perfect form. He's like a good golfer. He doesn't overswing. He has a good tempo."
Ruzek played two seasons for the New Jersey Generals of the USFL as a teammate of Herschel Walker. He hit 34 of 48 (.708 percent) field goal attempts and 100 of 105 extra-point attempts for 202 points.

"Roger was a tremendous kicker for the Generals," Walker said. "I was happy when the Cowboys gave him a chance."
The 6-foot-1, 185-pound Ruzek played college ball at Weber State.
"I've got to keep my feet on the ground," Ruzek said. "I know what can happen to placekickers who think they have it made. But it really felt good to contribute to a winning effort again."
Mike O'Dowd, the middleweight champion from 1917 to 1920, was nicknamed "The St. Paul Cyclone."

Rodney McCray signs contract with Rockets

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Rockets starting forward Rodney McCray will be able to suit out for the regular-season opener Friday night now that he's agreed to contract terms with the NBA team.
McCray, starting his fifth season with the Rockets, has agreed to a six-year contract with the Rockets, General Manager Ray Patterson said Wednesday. Terms were not announced.
Ralph Sampson and Akeem Olatunji, the team's Twin Towers, earlier signed long-term contracts, and McCray's agreement will reunite the nucleus of the Rockets' starting unit.
"We've reached agreement and all that has to be done is draw up the contract for me to sign," McCray said. "It's basically a relief. It seems like a long time since I've played a game."

Patterson said the contract would be signed in time for McCray to be in uniform for Friday's opener in the Summit against the San Antonio Spurs.
McCray had sought $1 million per year and the Rockets had offered $700,000 when McCray was represented by Howard Slusher of Los Angeles. But McCray recently replaced Slusher with David Falk and negotiations resumed at a faster pace.
The Rockets now have a roster of 14 players that does not include Robert Reid and Jim Petersen, both on the team's injury list.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Vitamin Mania
BY LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband and I are both in our 60s and have come to realize that we are not immortal. We are trying to stay healthy for the future. We have tried to do most of the things we think are important about our diet. We use a lot more bulk than we used to. We have cut down on fats and sweets and avoid cholesterol.

My question concerns vitamins. You hear so many people say you have to take vitamins. My neighbor claims that at our age we need vitamins no matter how good our daily fare is. Is that true? If so what vitamins should we take? We don't want to get caught up in an expensive program of vitamins that are advertised in the health magazines.

DEAR READER: The vitamin question is an old one. Of course you need vitamins, and the best source of vitamins is the foods that should be included in a healthy, balanced diet. I've always been amused by a number of health faddists and salesmen who push "natural" foods and in the next breath try to sell the public on vitamin pills.

The Council on Scientific Affairs for the American Medical Association has recently issued a statement on the use of vitamins. It reaffirms physicians' and nutritionists' recommendations that the best source of vitamins is a proper diet. And it again points out that if a person is not getting a proper diet for whatever reason, then vitamin supplements are advisable. Both physicians and nutritionists recommend vitamins when indicated, but not if they are not needed.
